Meesa Petroleum Co., Amarillo, has completed as a Drinkard crude discovery in Lea County, N.M., its No. 1 West Knowles, five miles southeast of Lovington.

The 24-hour flowing potential test yielded 606 barrels of 37.6-gravity oil, no water, with gas-oil ratio of 612-1, through a 30-64-inch choke and perforations at 8,330-8,313 feet. The section had been acidized with 5,000 gallons.

Drilled to 13,250 feet, it is plugged back to 9,048 feet, and has 5 1/2-inch casing seated at 9,070 feet.

The following tops were reported: Tansill, 3,102; Yates, 5,250; Queen, 4,163; San Andres, 4,823; Glorieta, 6,376; Tubb, 8,882; Drinkard "A," 8,200; Drinkard "B," 8,226; Wolfcamp, 9,089; Strawn, 11,355; Atoka, 11,523; Chester, 11,894; Osage, 13,190; Woodford, 12,913; and Devonian, 13,027. Meesa has shut in to wait on weather its No. 2 West Knowles, 1/2 mile northeast of the No. 1 West Knowles. Operator perforated from 5,450-5,480 feet, and 2,504-2,512 feet, and acidized the lower section with 1,000 gallons.

It spots 1,900 feet from south and 600 feet from west lines of section 35-18-37e.

Meesa also was drilling below 4,816 feet on an 8,600-foot contract at No. 3 West Knowles, 1/2 mile northwest of the discovery.

Location is 1,900 feet from south and east lines of section 34-18-37e.

WT Sectors Draw Sites For Probes

Wildcats have been staked in Crosby, Upton and Concho counties.

Joe Melton Drilling Co., Inc., Midland, plans to drill No. 1 Collier, a 4,700-foot wildcat, in Crosby County, 15 miles south of Ralls.

Drill site is 660 feet from south and 1,067 feet from east lines of section 4, block 2, D&E survey, abstract 1056, 5 1/2 miles west of the Ridge, South (Clearfork) oil pool.

Upton Searcher Crystal Oil & Land Co., Sireveport, La., has scheduled an 11,500-foot venture in extreme southeast Upton. It is No. 1 University.

It spots 660 feet from south and 990 feet from east lines of section 7, block 3, ULS, 12 miles southeast of Rankin and 2 1/2 miles southeast of the depleted one-well Hughlene (Fusselman and Ellenburger) field. The drillsite spots in Reagan County on Midland Map Co. maps.

Concho Prospector Fisher-Webb, Inc., and Dixon Oil Co., Abilene, accounted for a 3,100-foot try in Concho, eight miles northeast of Millersview. It is No. 1-1835 Mustang.

Indictments Sought In Pennsylvania In Patty Hearst Case

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A U.S. attorney says he is seeking indictments here against one or more persons for allegedly harboring fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst while she hid out in northeastern Pennsylvania, a newspaper reported today.

"There will be indictments," the San Francisco Chronicle quoted U.S. Attorney John C. T. O'Connell as saying.

The Scranton, Pa., Tribune

also said in today's edition that indictments are being sought in the Hearst case. The newspaper attributed the report to unidentified sources.

In San Francisco, Randolph A. Hearst said today that he had little hope the latest development would lead directly to his daughter.

"The FBI told me a couple of weeks ago they had reason to believe she had been on a farm in Pennsylvania," he said in a statement issued from his Nob Hill apartment. "It is a cold trail. They had some information she'd been on a farm somewhere in Pennsylvania, but it was last summer or late summer. I don't know, quite a while ago. "This is not a red-hot sighting. It is not a case where they just missed her a couple of days ago." Hearst said the information (See HEARST Page 8A)

Senate Finance Committee Chairman To Support $30-Billion Tax Reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, said today he will support a $30-billion tax cut, almost double the amount recommended by President Ford.

Long made the comment as his committee began writing its version of the tax cut. A proposal by Long that is drawing increasing support in the committee would allow up to a $2,500 tax credit for persons who buy a new home.

Long said he has no estimate on what this would cost the government. Meanwhile, the committee is awaiting guidance from the Senate Democratic caucus on whether the bill should include repeal of the oil depletion allowance, as did the House-passed legislation.

Late Bulletins

AUSTIN (AP) — An estimated 200 chanting students milled in front of the tower building today at The University of Texas in support of a group of Mexican-American students who shortly before took over the president's office.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Income tax deductions of nearly $200,000 claimed by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey for the gift of vice presidential papers to the Minnesota Historical Society have been disallowed by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, an aide said today.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors and American Motors announced new layoffs today and industry analysts predicted gloomy reports on auto sales for early March, the first period since most cash rebates ended.

BEAUMONT (AP) — A float top tank believed filled with crude oil exploded today at the Sun Oil Co. tank farm on the Neches River just south of here. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

HMO Bill Awaits Legislative Okay

AUSTIN (AP) — A compromise bill allowing Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs) to operate in Texas awaited House and Senate committee approval today.

The compromise, announced Wednesday at a joint House-Senate committee hearing, greatly improved chances that HMO legislation would pass this year.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, a black pharmacist who has crusaded for HMOs, threw his support behind the compromise, a new version of a bill written by a joint legislative committee on public health.

Organized medicine accepted a provision allowing lay representation on HMO boards of directors, while Leland went along with a larger degree of independence for doctors, including exemption of physician-controlled HMOs from regulation.

Doctor opposition to consumer representation on HMO boards killed a Leland HMO bill in the 1973 legislature.

HMOs provide a range of services, including check-ups to "maintain good health," for a prepaid fee that is unrelated to the amount of services one actually receives during a period of time.

The compromise bill, backed by Leland, conservative Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Golden, and liberal Sen. Bob Gammage, (See HMO BILL Page 8A)

Storms Rage Through Texas

Violent thunderstorms, often dumping rain at rates topping 2 inches per hour, raged through the night and into today across most of the state.

Although the boiling turbulence brought repeated alerts from forecasters for one area after another, there was no report of serious damage from the powerful gusts of north wind driving the unruly weather all the way past the coast.

There also was snow during the night from around Van Horn in far West Texas northward to Lubbock and Childress in the Panhandle-Plains sector. The fall generally was light and most of the snow quickly disappeared.

By this morning skies were clear over the Panhandle, the South Plains and a few spots along the Mexican border. Clouds overhung the rest of the state.

The menacing thunderstorms spread from North Central and Northeast Texas into the south-central and finally the south-east parts of the state. Small craft advisories went up as the stormy weather approached the coast.

Temperatures near daybreak dropped to 18 degrees at Amarillo and Dalhart in the Panhandle, 25 at Lubbock, 27 at Childress and 32 at Abilene. At the same hour the readings were 33 at Lufkin and 54 at Brownsville, then the warmest spots in the state, The Associated Press reported.

Skies were expected to clear throughout Texas by evening. Another chilly night was promised. (See STORMS Page 8A) ments of the two sides remains to be seen.

State Department spokesman Robert Anderson said Kissinger and President Anwar Sadat had "very good talks" Wednesday night in Aswan, "reviewed all elements of a possible disengagement agreement," and discussed "serious complicated subjects."

"There is still more work to be done," Anderson went on, but added: "both the president and the secretary continue to be hopeful."

Sadat was meeting this morning with aides, while Kissinger and his wife were visiting temples of the Pharaohs on the Nile island of Philae.

In Damascus, the military chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization derided Kissinger as a "joker and a charlatan" whose shuttle diplomacy was designed to pressure Sadat into an agreement ignoring the interests of Cairo's Arab allies, notably Syria.

Zouhair Mohsen acknowledged that the PLO raid on a Tel Aviv hotel in which 18 persons died last week was designed to sabotage Kissinger's mission.

"We will strike at any Israeli strategic target wherever we can reach it, in Israel or in Japan or in the United States," he said in an interview.

One Israeli-Egyptian Deadlock May Be Resolved

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Cairo newspaper Al Ahran indicated today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may have resolved the deadlock over Israel's demand for an Egyptian nonbelligerency pledge in return for a further pullback in the Sinai Desert.

The semi-official newspaper stressed that Egypt is now insisting that a fixed date or maximum time period for re-convening the Geneva peace talks must accompany any Israeli-Egyptian pact.

Al Ahran's shift of emphasis to the post-disengagement Geneva talks was taken as an indication that the dispute over guarantees of peace may have been cleared up.

Oil Chieftains Walking Tall—In Cowboy Boots

EL PASO (AP) — While the United States exchanges diplomacy and petrodollars for Arab oil, Middle East petroleum chieftains are bartering for something uniquely American—cowboy boots.

"It's almost like striking oil, the business we're doing in the Middle East," said Stan Stein, national sales manager for the Tony Lama Co.

With no sales representative in the Middle East, the first orders baffled the Tony Lama sales staff, but Stein said at second glance, the phenomenon was easily explained.

"We figured oil technicians from Texas and Oklahoma were walking into retail stores and trying to get Tony Lama boots. The stores didn't have them, so the merchants began writing us for catalogs and later sending us orders."

But now, with the increased volume of orders, Stein said he is convinced "there are Arab sheikhs over there running around in cowboy boots."

"I can tell who's ordering the boots just by looking at the toes," Stein said. "The technicians from Texas and Oklahoma usually go for boots with rounded toes. But we've been getting a lot of orders for the regular pointed-toe cowboy boots in everything from alligator to lizard to calfskin."

The most recent order came from Roma Abdul Wahab Abdulaziz, a shop in Bahrain on the Persian Gulf, for 350 pair of boots at a cost Stein estimated at "somewhere around $12,000."

Middle East sales now represent less than one per cent of Tony Lama's sales volume of $25 million a year, but Stein says the orders keep coming in. "I imagine it's like a clique—once some of them get boots, they all want boots."

So far, communication hasn't been a problem, because most of the letters have been in English.

"Like this one from Ebrahim Abdul Karim Alkhan, a retailer in Saudi Arabia. We introduce ourselves that we are the importers and dealing in various items of garments, footwear, etc. since 30 years in this kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Sounds like 'The King and I,' doesn't it?" Stein asked.

Only one foreign order gave them trouble, Stein said. It was a letter written in Japanese, which the University of Texas-El Paso obligingly translated.

Democrat Senators Eye Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed compromise $82.5 million emergency U.S. military aid for Cambodia was rejected by the House Foreign Affairs Committee today 18 to 15.

Rep. Pierre S. du Pont, R-Del., announced he would ask the committee to recommend rejection of any new military aid for Cambodia this year, despite President Ford's warning that the Cambodian government would fall without it.

The rejection came as Senate Democrats were asked to take the same stand. House Democrats took Wednesday against further military aid to Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The Senate Democratic Caucus met to consider the same anti-aid resolution the House Democratic caucus approved 189 to 49.

Du Pont and Chairman Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., of the subcommittee that drafted the $82.5 million proposal, told the Foreign Affairs Committee the money would have been conditional on specific steps to end the fighting in Cambodia.

The 189 votes in the House Democratic caucus against further aid caused doubts to arise about chances for congressional approval of any kind of military assistance to Cambodia.

The tally was only 28 votes short of an absolute House majority of 217, and House sources speculated there were enough anti-aid votes among the 51 Democrats absent from the nonbinding caucus vote to assure rejection of any aid, if the issue reaches the House floor.

President Ford has asked Congress for $222 million in additional military aid to Cambodia to help the government stave off insurgent forces besieging the capital city of Phnom Penh.

The $275 million in military aid already authorized by Congress for Cambodia this fiscal year has been exhausted.

In addition, the President has asked for another $300 million for military assistance to South Vietnam, in addition to the $700 million already given this year.

The Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on foreign assistance recommended by a 4-3 vote Tuesday to allow another $125 million in military aid for Cambodia and $88 million in food and economic assistance.

The full Senate Foreign Relations Committee has set a meeting for next Monday to vote on the recommendation.

Elderly Woman Might Have Seen Trio's Abduction

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — An elderly woman may have witnessed the abduction of three girls missing since Dec. 23.

Mrs. R. W. Arnold, mother of Rachel Trlica, 17, said she has learned three girls at a store in Seminary South Shopping Center, where her daughter and two friends are believed to have been, say an elderly woman discussed three girls with them.

The woman said she saw a girl being forced into a pickup truck the day of the disappearance. Mrs. Arnold said the woman told the clerks there were two girls and man inside, and a second man was forcing the third girl into the truck.

"If the woman would call us, we might be able to learn more about this thing, and we would promise to keep her name a secret," Mrs. Arnold said.

Mrs. Trlica, Lisa Renee Wilson, 14, and Julie Ann Moseley, 9, disappeared while Christmas shopping.

Height Ordinance Exempts Churches

HURST, Tex. (AP) — Mayor Bob Hampton has dispelled rumors that church steeples here would have to be torn down if they exceed 35-foot maximum height regulation in a proposed zoning ordinance.

Hampton told city councilmen Tuesday night the steeples would not run afoul of the ordinance because it excludes steeples and cupolas (domes) from the restrictions.

In the proposed plan, buildings could not exceed 35 feet in height unless a planned development was submitted specifying what will be built on the site.

Students, Soldiers Would Have Choice

AUSTIN — Students and soldiers would be able to choose where they want to vote under a bill reported to the House favorably by the House Elections Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Craig Washington of Houston, would make it easier for students to vote in the county where they are living while attending school.

Under present law, a person in military service can acquire residence in Texas only under limited circumstances. He must choose to remain in Texas and make the state his home during the remainder of his military service and after service is terminated.

Washington's bill would allow a person on active duty to claim his residence where he is living while on active duty.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Even at the risk of sounding a bit immodest, U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper likes to tell the story about the elderly woman who was determined to vote for him.

Florida Representative One Of Elderly's Best Friends

By KAY BARTLETT
The National Council of Senior Citizens, with 3.3 million members in chapters across the country, is gaining clout. Executive Director William R. Hutton says membership is climbing — it was 2.5 million in 1970. In a recent speech, Hutton assessed the trend.

"I can remember — back in the early days of political action on the part of senior citizens — when we could cool our heels in the waiting room of a senator or congressman. We would wait for hours in hopes the legislator would pass through and we could plead our case in a quick standing visit or a fast walk down the hall."

Attitudes Change
"That's changed now. While all of Congress is surely not beating a path to our door, it is uniquely satisfying to hear constantly from legislators via letters and telephone visits — asking where we stand on particular issues, asking how a certain proposal or piece of legislation might affect the elderly asking our advice."

On sun-drenched Miami Beach, Senior Power is visible from statistics or driving up Collins Avenue. Elderly men and women sit on the chairs on porches of what used to be tourist hotels. Now they're residential apartments catering to the elderly.

Banks advertise free checking services for seniors and make their auditoriums readily available for senior functions. The political battle here is not over school bonds, but tourism. The seniors want rent control, low cost housing and other benefits for those on fixed incomes, while some on the City Council want to promote tourism and more hotels on this seven-mile strip of land that used to be the creme de la creme of winter resorts.

"God's Waiting Room"
Now it's sometimes called "God's waiting room." "They want to turn this place into a welfare island," says Bobby Goodman, a former councilman voted out of office after opposing the seniors. Statistically, the median age on Miami Beach is between 62 and 67, and 47,000 of the 55,000 population receive Social Security.

Old Folks 'In'
"Babies are out; old folks are in," says a spokesman at the Administration on Aging in Washington. Last fall, before the November elections, campaigning congressmen besieged the office in record numbers for literature on the elderly.

Sometimes the elderly in retirement communities find themselves at odds with younger townfolk nearby, especially on tax issues. In Arizona, the 34,000 residents of Sun City voted down school bond proposals for the neighboring community of Peoria, population 7,000.

The county board of supervisors finally stepped in last year and separated Sun City and the smaller retirement community of Youngtown from the school district serving Peoria.

reint ordinances through City Council three times, making their point with demonstrations and marches.

"They made Kent State look like kindergarten," says Englander.

Two of the ordinances were nullified by the state Supreme Court. The third, freeing rents as of last October, is being fought in the courts by the owners of apartment hotels and by landlords.

Political Asset
Max Friedson, 76-year-old leader of the Congress of Senior Citizens, a statewide organization, boasts that the political maxim around town is that if you've got the seniors and the support of the newspapers, you don't have to spend much money to win. If you've got one but not the other, you've a fair chance. But if the newspapers and the seniors are both against you, you're dead.

One of the seniors' biggest victories was approval for a low-cost housing project on prime beachfront land. It will contain 300 units when finished.

Seniors Win Out
Those city fathers trying to promote tourism on the beach fought to have the site changed. But they lost, much to their dismay.

The seniors have won reduced bus fares, a hot meal program that provides 1,000 meals a week, nightly recreation, outdoor exercise classes, and a doctor on every ambulance.

South Vietnamese Lose Another District Town

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — New gains for North Vietnam's offensive in the Central Highlands were reported today, including the capture of another district town.

Fighting continued for the fourth day inside Ban Me Thuot.

North Vietnamese or Viet Cong forces also shot down a Vietnamese airliner in the highlands, killing all 35 persons aboard, U.S. sources reported. The passengers included an American aid official, two other Americans and Australia's top diplomat in Hanoi.

The Australian Embassy in Saigon confirmed that Graham Lewis, charge d'affaires in the North Vietnamese capital, was one of the 20 passengers. The Americans were identified as Edward Dolan and Robert Seidl, both of Washington, D.C., and George C. Miller, an official of the U.S. Agency for International Development in Vietnam. Officials said Dolan and Seidl were employed by a company named Moore Business Forms.

The district town lost was Buon Ho, 25 miles northeast of Ban Me Thuot. The South Vietnamese command said heavy North Vietnamese pressure forced the garrison to retreat to another position. There was no word on casualties.

Buon Ho was the sixth of South Vietnam's 264 district towns to fall in the past five days and the 17th lost since the signing of the cease-fire agreement two years ago.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said it had had no radio contact since Wednesday with the nine Americans trapped by the fighting in Ban Me Thuot, the threatened provincial capital 155 miles northeast of Saigon.

The spokesman said an observation pilot flying over the city reported the compound where the Americans were staying had not been bombed and showed no signs of an attack.

The loss of radio contact "could well be for technical reasons," the spokesman added. "We know their batteries were running low."

The Americans include an official of the U.S. Agency for International Development and eight missionaries. Three Canadians, an Australian and a Filipino also have been reported in the city, but there was no word of them.

The South Vietnamese command had no information on the fighting inside the city other than that it was still going on. It claimed the air force knocked out 20 more tanks in heavy raids on Communist positions outside the city.

Other sources reported that more than 20,000 of Ban Me Thuot's 150,000 people had fled from the city.

The command also reported that the air base at Pleiku, another highlands provincial capital, was shelled for the third successive day. It said several aircraft were damaged.

Increased North Vietnamese activity also was reported around Tay Ninh, another provincial capital 50 miles northwest of Saigon. The Saigon command claimed its pilots knocked out 13 North Vietnamese tanks in a column along the Cambodian border about 10 miles southwest of Tay Ninh. It said North Vietnamese or Viet Cong killed nine civilians and wounded five in the city.

U.S. sources said the Air Vietnam DC-4 that was shot down was en route Wednesday from Vietnam, the Laotian capital, to Saigon when it was hit either by antiaircraft fire or a hand-fired missile.

The sources said the plane crashed 12 miles southwest of Pleiku in a village near Thanh An, a district town that was under attack at the time. Field reports said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces moved into the area around the wreckage and fired on an observation plane that flew over but did not hit it.

Informed sources said the plane took the hazardous route over the Central Highlands because it was unable to get clearance from airport tower.

Research Offers New Hope For Controlling Diabetes

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles on diabetes that can't yet be cured or prevented because scientists lack fundamental knowledge about them.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK (AP) — Research now has opened two promising new avenues for controlling diabetes.

One is a mechanical device that in effect would be an artificial pancreas gland, secreting the precise amounts of insulin that the body needed hour by hour, day and night.

The trouble is the first model is about the size of an average TV set, and there's a long road ahead to a miniaturized version that could be implanted in the body. Electronics and miniaturization techniques spurred by the space age may provide part of the answers.

The second is transplantation of the special cells, the beta cells in the pancreas, that secrete insulin. Again, these cells would do it according to bodily need, hour by hour, day and night.

Here there is still the old handicaps facing all transplants — the body's natural defensive rejection mechanism. Part of the solution may come from the latest stages of basic research on the pancreas begun 25 years ago by Dr. Arnold Langer of the University of Minnesota.

Diabetes results from failure of the pancreas to produce or to release the insulin needed to utilize sugars and starches, both for immediate energy needs or for storage for future needs.

It was almost an inevitable death sentence for most victims until the discovery of insulin more than 50 years ago. Insulin can be injected to supplement an inadequate pancreas gland.

Insulin has saved millions of lives, but it hasn't cured diabetes. Nor has the cause of diabetes been clarified. Besides insulin injections, there are oral drugs, which may release insulin from beta cells. Controversy over widespread use of oral drugs has arisen with publication of studies linking heart disease with the drugs.

Many diabetics with a mild case can get along quite well just by careful attention to diet and to exercise.

Diabetes in some respects "is the nation's No. 1 health problem," says Dr. Max Elenberg, president of the American Diabetes Association.

"It is the fifth leading cause of death, and it is increasing in really explosive fashion. It is the No. 1 cause of blindness. Five out of six amputations of limbs for gangrene are due to diabetes.

"One half of all heart attacks are related to diabetes, and so are three-fourths of all strokes. Diabetes causes complications in child-bearing and in neurological diseases.

"It is increasing as more people live to be older. Before insulin was available, any child diagnosed as having diabetes never lived to become an adult. Now they live to grow up and have children, and apparently many pass on the susceptibility, since diabetes is a genetic or hereditary disorder, tending to run in families."

There is some evidence a virus or other external cause can trigger diabetes, Dr. Elenberg says. Diabetes often appears in children who recently had mumps or measles. Other viruses may be a cause.

Other mysteries remain, as changes in blood chemistry and rate of a person's metabolism are influenced by taking food, or sleep or exercise.

Such a sensor is a critical part of a larger goal, the artificial pancreas plant. Several laboratories and institutions are working to perfect one.

The sensor would usually measure blood sugar levels, with a miniaturized computer making the calculations of how much insulin was needed under changing circumstances. A signal from the computer would activate an insulin reservoir to release the precise amount of insulin. Or the computer could order a shot of glucose from another reservoir if blood sugar fell too low.

One system, encased in a cabinet the size of a TV, has been tested successfully in humans by a research team in the course, each student begins his "solo," going into a designated area alone.

Templin says the "solo" is built around the mystical concept of being alone to confront oneself.

Randy Stross, 20, a Denver student, fasted during his three days of isolation. He had never fasted before. But he debunked the mystical nature of the experience.

"For me, God didn't show up. I guess maybe I was napping," he says.

In recent years, no one has been killed taking a survival course in the Rocky Mountains, directors of the courses and state officials say. But there are cases of frostbite and broken bones.

Ninety-five per cent of the people taking the course are between 16 and 30 years of age, and half are women, according to statistics gathered by one of the schools.

Many participants, says Chris George, 36, an instructor in Colorado Outward Bound, must learn to rid themselves of the notion that only the fittest survive and that the weak can be left behind.

"I tell the students at the start that the most difficult thing they have to do is to stay together. They want to get rid of them weaklings."

Stross has another reservation about his experience in the mountains of southern Colorado.

"People are paying to sample the wilderness and it's sort of a voyeur trip," he says. "Hardly anyone but the affluent can afford the program. I'm afraid it's simply a playground for them."

Human trials with beta cells prepared this way are still some time off, he says.

But if it does succeed, one day there might be beta cell banks, perhaps using embryonic cells from human fetuses lost in miscarriages or taken in abortions.

And the supply might be made large enough to benefit all diabetics.

Survival Adventure Courses Booming Business

By KENNETH WALSH
DENVER (AP) — Anne Fadiman left the amenities of Radcliffe College and spent $550 to risk her life in the snowy, untracked Rocky Mountains of Colorado.

Thousands of other Americans did the same thing this winter, enrolling in survival adventure courses — a booming new business. By one estimate, 200 schools and companies now offer these courses to more than 10,000 men and women each year. Few of the schools existed seven years ago.

Miss Fadiman, the 21-year-old daughter of writer Clifton Fadiman, and 25 others, mostly young people, recently took the Colorado Outward Bound Course, living in the mountains for 21 days and nights.

The high point of the experience was a "solo" — three days and three nights alone, except for one brief daily contact with an instructor.

The first night, the temperature was 20 below zero and Miss Fadiman had only a tarpaulin and sleeping bag for protection.

"You thought you were the only person in the world," she said. "It was not a mystical experience, exactly, but I gained a great deal of self-knowledge. I had to draw on some personal resources I didn't know I had."

She dug a snow cave and read the Bible at night by candlelight.

"It's a personal challenge you can't get in the cities," Miss Fadiman says. "I think there's a feeling today that America is getting too crowded. These wilderness areas won't be around too much longer."

The word "survival" figures in the descriptive literature put out by the various schools, most of them operating in Colorado and Wyoming. But survival training isn't the purpose, says Jim Halpenny, an instructor at the Lander, Wyo., National Outdoor Leadership School.

"We teach living with the environment," Halpenny says. "We're not teaching people to whittle wooden spoons or perform other survival skills that are probably useless in this day and age."

Adds Gary Templin, 35, director of Colorado Outward Bound:

"The idea is to set aside some time to find oneself, to discover your character. . . . We get back to dealing with really basic things, such as where to sleep and eat, how far to walk. The thread on which we hang our philosophy is that a person must understand himself before he can reach out to others."

A typical course has 25 to 50 participants. Those paying $550 for the 21-day Outward Bound course meet in Denver and then go by bus to a mountain base camp, where they receive two or three days of instruction in map reading, compass navigation, rope handling, cross-country skiing, and other skills.

Today is Thursday, March 13, the 72nd day of 1975. There are 293 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1868, impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson began in the U.S. Senate. He was acquitted on May 26th.

On this date — In 1567, the Regent of the Netherlands, Margaret of Parma, used German mercenaries to annihilate 2,000 Calvinists.

In 1925, a new law went into effect in Tennessee to forestall the teaching of evolution.

In 1938, Nazi Germany annexed Austria after invading the country.

In 1939, the Germans issued an ultimatum to Czechoslovakia.

In 1942, British bombers pounded the German city of Cologne.

In 1962, the American First Lady, Mrs. John Kennedy, began a goodwill visit to India.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson said he would send to Congress a sweeping bipartisan bill to erase all discrimination against citizens seeking to register and vote.

Five years ago: A strike by San Francisco city employees halted public transportation and crippled virtually all other city operations.

One year ago: The oil-producing Arab countries agreed to end their five-month-old embargo on petroleum sales to the United States.

Expect Fresher Spring Faces

By BARBARA HERRERA
Copley News Service

Rhoda said it best. Remember the first "Rhoda" TV show, when sister Brenda was admiring Rhoda's makeup technique?

"I can't believe it," Brenda said. "You spent an hour putting on your makeup, and I can't tell you have any on."

"That's how long it takes to get that 'natural' look," Rhoda told her.

Well, this spring, Brenda, the look is more natural than ever. And whether you want to change your look with the season or just sharpen up your technique, some of the best makeup tips around come from the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Accents Features

Nowadays makeup accents features, instead of building them up. It highlights even supposedly bad features (small eyes, full mouth), instead of trying to camouflage them.

Here are the association's step-by-step instructions for achieving a glowing spring face.

— Start with a clean face. Choose from any number of cleansing routines and use it regularly, at least twice a day.

— Choose a sheer foundation that harmonizes with your skin tone — one with more pigment and water but less clay filler than in years past.

— Cover dark shadows with a shadow stick three shades lighter than the basic foundation.

— Apply a thin pat of face powder, using one of the new translucent powders made with ground silk. The new powders contain no talc or coloring. Then softly brush away all excess powder.

— Blushers, or rouge — the single most important cosmetic today — should be applied by starting below the corner of the eye, on the cheekbone, moving back toward the temple, and even down to the jawline. Apply it only on the outer portion of the face, not in the center.

For good control and a light effect, apply blusher with a damp sponge.

Divide Lid

— When applying eye shadow, divide the lid vertically. A soft color, such as a pastel, harmonizing with your clothes, can be used on the inside corner of the eye. The outer corner is where you apply a dark accent, smudging it to blend in with your blusher at the temple.

Shadow is not a cover-up, the cosmetologists warn, but an accent that should look like a natural coloring of the skin.

— If you like eyeliner, use a brush type to draw an accent line from just past the inside corner of the eye to just past mid-center. Then smudge the line for a shadow effect. No more harsh, distinct lines.

— Emphasize eyelashes with lots of mascara, but not the lash-building type that contains lead. Try the newer, thinner kinds that have lots of gloss and gleam but don't stick eyelashes together.

Too Much Emphasis

Fake-looking eyelashes are out, the cosmetologists say, because they give too much emphasis to the eyes.

— Eyebrows are in again, though, but not heavy and dark. Tweeze eyebrows to a soft, vague arch then pencil or brush on color. For women with dark brown, brown or red hair, use an eyebrow color one shade lighter than the hair. For gray or blonde hair, use a color not more than one shade darker than the hair.

— Lip color should be bright and creamy, not dark or heavy. Full lips should be accented and not made to appear small.

The result: simple, crisp, spring beauty. Get that, Rhoda?

Jelly side down
By NANCY STAHL

When I was a child, I viewed a visit to the dentist as an event roughly comparable to having my liver attacked by a flock of rabid seagulls.

I am sure that our dentist regarded my scheduled appointments with something less than heady anticipation himself, it being extremely taxing to spend an hour and a half ministering to the dental deficiencies of a compulsive screamer.

Thanks to the marvelous advances of modern dentistry, my daughter has no such painful recollections, and views a dental appointment as simply a dandy excuse to miss half a day of school. Unfortunately, she arrives at the dentist's office accompanied by a mother who had to take two tranquilizers before she could even phone for the child's appointment.

"Now I don't want you to be nervous," I said as I entered the dentist's office, dropped to the floor behind the coat rack, and assumed a fetal position.

"Of course I'm not nervous," I murmured. "Just keep telling yourself that you're not frightened, that it will all be over soon."

"Want a magazine?" she asked me.

"No thanks. I'll just sit here quietly," I began frantically chipping away at a three-dollar manicure.

"Mrs. Stahl," the nurse announced, "the dentist is ready for you."

"NOT MRS. Stahl, it's MISS Stahl — HER!" I gibbered, pointing to my daughter.

"Listen, honey," I whispered, "I just wish I could go in there instead of you!"

"Why? Do you want a Mickey Mouse ring, too?"

Revolution Hits Bedroom Setting

By ADELE FAULKNER
Copley News Service

Arrival of the king- and queen-size bedroom sets followed closely by the water bed has sparked a revolution on the bedroom scene.

The standard four-poster double bed is giving way to a variety of new sleeping arrangements. Literally anything goes... even the bed.

Some are trading the standard mattress for sleeping on air in a free-hanging hammock. Another popular alternative is "floor sleeping."

A platform which supports a six- to eight-inch mattress can be built on the floor of a child's room.

There are a number of fun and attractive custom sleeping bags for kids which fit in nicely with the floor sleeping arrangement. The floor bed also is a way to save on the budget until a youngster grows into a bigger full-size bed.

New also is the modern lounge chair which opens up to sleep one, it, too, is great for a child's room when he has a friend sleep over.

In complete contrast, the bed also can be raised. A 36-inch to 42-inch-high platform is constructed in the corner of the room for a mattress while the area below is reserved for extra storage space. A ladder or steps can be added to make it easier to get in and out of the elevated bed.

For a more exotic look, you might consider draping the bed with a sheer fabric flowing from traverse rods installed on the ceiling. It's a different modification of the ever-popular canopy bed effect.

If the bedroom is large enough, you might consider placing the bed in the center of the room instead of against the walls. Here, too, you can hang a net or mesh all the way around the bed so that you literally drape yourself in at night.

Sleep shops also offer standard beds which can save space in smaller bedrooms. There are many varieties of the trundle bed which dates back to Colonial times. The smaller bed pushes underneath the larger bed when not in service.

If you don't like the layout of your bedroom, you can change it without any remodeling.

Let's say the closet is in the wrong place or there are several windows which prevent a proper furniture arrangement.

The easiest way for apartment dwellers to deal with this is by using drapes or sliding screens as cover-ups. You can place a bed against one of the extra windows by draping over the window with floor-to-ceiling fabric.

Appear Larger

It's also easy to make smaller bedrooms appear larger by using a fairly new material called Mirrorlite. It's a glassless mirror made of a stretched reflective material. Panels of it can easily be applied to a wall or ceiling, and its unbreakable quality makes it safe even for children's rooms.

Bedrooms can be both interesting and functional if you let your imagination go.

Here Are Some Things Only A Mother Can Do!

Dear Heloise: Every once in a while, not often, I get a bit "down" and feel that by being just a wife and mother isn't playing a "fulfilling" role.

But then I look around and realize what an important job I have because of the following reasons. I am the only person in the family who is able to:

1. Refill the sugar bowl.
2. Replace tins on the bathroom roller.
3. Find lost shoes and socks.
4. Remember where my husband left his car keys.
5. Get everyone up and dressed for church — on time.
6. Walk the dog.
7. Manipulate the washing machine.

And a few other vital and important things — such as watering plants, having fresh fruit or flowers dressing up the dinner table when the meal is budget-savily mundane, and on, and on!

After I consider these things, I realize that I'm a very important person and it makes me feel so GOOD!

Margaret C. Frost

And you are, my love, we all have them these days! Chin up!

Dear Heloise: I have a lovely wooden cheeseboard, a wedding gift that after 12 years of use and abuse was bleached in places.

For the obvious reason, furniture oil was out, and cooking oil or olive oil would make the board too greasy.

I put on my thinking cap and sprayed it with the nonstick vegetable coating. I let it sit for a minute then wiped it with a paper towel.

It looks beautiful again. I used this on my cutting board also and it looks good, too.

H.B.

Dear Heloise: I have a potato masher — the kind that is flat on the bottom with little round holes in it. I use it to dice hard-boiled eggs.

To me, it seems much faster than any other method I have used.

Dear Abby Would Honeymoon Just Be Summer Re-Run?

— By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, very much against the wishes of her mother and me, moved out of our home to live with a boy she'd been going with for about a year.

After living together for two years, which they did openly, they decided to get married. Now this daughter wants me to foot the bill for a big church wedding in June. She wants a long white gown, veil, bridesmaids, flowers and a catered dinner and reception for 300, complete with orchestra.

Not only that, but she told her grandparents that in case they wanted any ideas on what to give her for a wedding present, a Hawaiian honeymoon would really be great.

My question: Do you think the kind of wedding our daughter wants is in order under the circumstances? And what are your thoughts on a Hawaiian honeymoon?

FATHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR FATHER: After a couple has been living together openly for two years, a wedding such as your daughter is planning is, I think, in poor taste. Also, a Hawaiian vacation would be lovely, but it could hardly be called a "honeymoon." It would be more like a summer re-run.

DEAR ABBY: Our widowed mother, age 52, informed her children, much to our surprise, that she had been dating a man for the last three weeks.

The following week, she called and said she wanted us kids to meet this man because she was thinking about marrying him.

Well, we met him, and he seemed very polite and friendly. He told Mother that he was an undercover FBI agent. My brother was very skeptical, so he asked his wife's cousin, who is on the police force, to run a check on this man. The report came back that this man was not connected with any law enforcement agency.

My brother and I got together and decided that we should tell our mother what we found out, but before we had the chance to tell her, she ups and marries this character.

Our question: Should we tell Mom? Or is it none of our business now that she's married to him?

LOUSED UP IN LONGVIEW

DEAR LOUSED: You're right.

It's none of your business. She may be very happy with this man. If she isn't and asks you for help, then you can become involved. But for now, the word from here is—cool it.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a non-Jewish person who all of a sudden starts wearing a Star of David? She went to Catholic schools all her life and couldn't possibly believe in the Jewish faith.

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: I would assume that she believes in someone who believes in the Jewish faith, and she doesn't care who knows it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIRGO: When a man tells the woman who has been dating him exclusively for two years that he thinks they should both start dating others, it's the beginning of the end. Say farewell to your Pisceas. There are other fish in the sea.

The service chairman, Mrs. Lon Bushell, reported that the "Shopping for Sears" project had been completed for Mu Psi Kappa, and that Xi Pi Kappa, Xi Epsilon Epsilon and Iota Beta Chapters would participate during the next quarter.

Mrs. Glenn Gardner, social chairman, reported on the recent year-end convocation of the society and the projects were selected.

Hearst Case Indictments Being Sought Against Persons In Pennsylvania Area

(Continued From Page 1A) he had come from Charles Bates, special FBI agent in charge in San Francisco. He said Bates "told me they don't know where she is now."

Cattone, the U.S. attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, said a federal grand jury at Harrisburg probably would return the indictments today or Friday, the Chronicle said.

The newspaper said the charges also would cover the harboring of Bill and Emily Harris, who, with the 21-year-old Miss Hearst, are the last known survivors of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

The Chronicle said that Cattone refused to answer further questions.

The SLA abducted Miss Hearst, daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment on Feb. 4, 1974.

In a subsequent taped message, Miss Hearst denounced her family. She said she had joined her captors because her family responded too slowly to a food give-away program demanded by the SLA in return for her release.

The Chronicle also quoted an unidentified "federal investigative source" in Washington as saying, "the investigation is pretty hot right now. We're talking to people who may have played a role in their concealment."

The newspaper said it was informed by the source that five or six people in Pennsylvania and on the West Coast are under investigation and have been subpoenaed to testify. The paper said it was understood that they would be granted immunity and then forced to testify about their knowledge of movements and whereabouts of the three fugitives.

The Chronicle said Cattone made the statements Wednesday night. Contacted earlier Wednesday, the attorney said there would be indictments but he refused to say whether they would involve the Hearst case.

But one Pennsylvania law enforcement official who asked not to be identified said, "It's on the street. My people tell me Cottone has a big one and it has to do with the Hearst thing."

The Tribune said Miss Hearst had hidden out recently in northeastern Pennsylvania. The area is not far from the home of William L. Wolfe, one of six SLA members who were killed in a shootout with police at Los Angeles on May 17, 1974, after the terrorists were trapped in a small house.

Wolfe was from Emmaus, Pa., 70 miles south of Scranton. Miss Hearst, now 21, was last heard from on June 7, 1974, when she sent a taped message to news media in which she said she had fallen in love with a slain SLA member she called "Cuzo," believed to be Wolfe. She again denounced her family and vowed to fight on with the SLA.

Wolfe's father, Dr. L. S. Wolfe, said Wednesday night at Emmaus that he did not know of any SLA members hiding out in Pennsylvania.

"I know of no reason why they would be near here or up at Scranton," he said. "I don't think my son knew anyone up there, no communes or counter-culture communities. This is the first I've heard anything about that."

Miss Hearst was not involved in the shooting. Authorities believe she fled the Los Angeles area with two other SLA members, Emily and Bill Harris, who also are still at large.

Miss Hearst faces a variety of state and federal charges which could bring her life imprisonment on conviction. The charges include kidnapping, assault and bank robbery.

One of her four sisters, Anne Randolph Hearst, 19, was arrested with a friend March 4 near Niagara Falls, N.Y., on charges of possession of amphetamines which were found by U.S. Customs agents. The two pleaded innocent to charges of possession of a controlled substance.

Girls Now Serve As 'Altarpersons'

NEW YORK (AP) — It took letters to the Pope and an archbishop before 15-year-old Jean Gallarelo realized her dream of being an "altar boy."

Now so many girls in St. John's Roman Catholic Church want to be altar girls that Jean has to wait her turn and can't serve every Sunday.

A student at Cardinal Spellman High School, she is also biding her time until she's old enough for her next battle: She wants to be a priest.

When Jean first got the idea a couple of years ago that girls should be "altarpersons," she wrote Pope Paul VI about it. She didn't get a reply from Rome, but a letter did come from a New York church official. The gist of it was that it simply "wasn't allowed."

Next she wrote to Terence Cardinal Cooke, archbishop of New York. The answer from an aide to the archbishop was that it would take many requests from many dioceses before officials could consider such a change.

With the help of an assistant pastor at the Bronx church, Jean and other girls began training to be altar girls. Then came the day when Msgr. John Doherty, St. John's pastor, told them they could put on their robes and help celebrate the Mass.

He had received permission "from some liturgical council," Jean said. There was just one hitch. Since church law forbids females in the sanctuary, the altar girls could go just so far. Only the boys went on to the sanctuary to pour the wine for the priest.

St. John's has more than a dozen altar girls now.

Senator Long Will Back $30-Billion Tax Cutback

The most often-mentioned proposal would repeal the allowance outright for all major oil companies but retain it for the first 3,000 barrels of oil pumped each day by small, independent firms.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, on Wednesday endorsed the $30-billion figure for the tax cut. Meany said the House plan is deficient because it provides no relief from 1975 taxes for the millions of wage earners in the $10,000-to-$20,000 income bracket.

To rectify this, Meany urged that each taxpayer be allowed the option of claiming a $200-per-person tax credit instead of the present $750-per-person exemption.

This would provide almost $5.8 billion in tax relief for those families earning less than $20,000, Meany said.

The labor leader promised to exert union chiefs to moderate wage-hike demands during the next several months so that the economic stimulus of the tax cut will not be wiped out by another round of inflation.

Cambodian Aid Compromise Voted Down By House Panel

The House subcommittee bill would require the President to report that the United States is taking specific steps, both through the United Nations and directly, to end the Cambodian conflict. Ford also would be required to certify each month that the Cambodian government is trying to reach a political and military accommodation with the insurgents and that steps were being taken to assure the safety of government officials.

The subcommittee bill also would authorize $17.7 million a month in additional food assistance to Cambodia for a total of $3.1 million in food aid.

Storms—

(Continued From Page 1A) Midland felt the grip of winter again Wednesday night as temperatures dropped to 35, and a trace of snow was included in the 06 inch of precipitation recorded by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

A high mercury mark in the middle 50s this afternoon is expected to follow the Wednesday maximum of 52.

The weatherman predicts another cold night with the thermometer expected to register near 32. Friday, however, should begin a new warming trend with an anticipated high in the low 70s.

Midlander Charged With Burglary Try

Billy Joe Patterson, 21, of 4301 Monty St. was charged with attempted burglary today following an incident about 12:40 a.m.

Bond was set at $3,500.

Midland police officers said they observed a man breaking the glass in the front of Bob's Better Burger, 3417 Thomason Drive. Before the man entered the fast food store, however, he spotted the police car and ran.

Police searched the area but found no one. While the officers were talking beside the store, Patterson came out of a nearby field and was arrested.

Chamber Presents Program At Rotary

The Midland Chamber of Commerce today presented a special program of interest at the meeting of the Downtown Rotary Club in the American Legion Hall.

A slide presentation, "Oil from the Earth," produced by the chamber's Petroleum Committee, was shown as a program highlight.

The presentation was shown Wednesday to a group of congressmen and others at Washington, D.C. Making the trip to Washington were Tom Stoy, Petroleum Committee chairman; Fred Tyler, executive vice president of the chamber; and Kent Randall, a chamber director who assisted in preparing the slide presentation.

William J. Mewhorter, chamber president, spoke briefly at today noon's meeting, reviewing major objectives and achievements of the organization.

Other chamber representatives on hand for the program were John Berry, chairman of the Midland Area Sales Team (MAST); Bob Lyon, chairman of the M-Squad; and Mrs. Ernest Angelo, the organization's only woman director.

The program was arranged and introduced by Rotarian Constance Mack Hood.

Hall Trial Jurors Resume Study

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — A seven-man, five-woman federal court jury resumed deliberating today in the bribery-extortion trial of former Gov. David Hall and Dallas financier W. W. "Doc" Taylor.

The jurors worked into the night Wednesday, deliberating for seven hours before spending the night in an Oklahoma City hotel. Chief U.S. District Court Judge Fred Daugherty has ordered the jury sequestered until it returns a verdict.

The jury received the case just before noon Wednesday after hearing 12 days of testimony.

Hall, a former prosecutor, said he was "very, very encouraged by the length of time they are taking. This shows they are really weighing the evidence."

"I am confident I will be vindicated," he said. "If it had been going to go the other way, they would already have a verdict."

Hall and Taylor are charged with conspiring to bribe Secretary of State John Rogers to use his influence as chairman of the board that administers state retirement funds to swing a $10-million investment to a firm Taylor owns.

Three Burglaries Reported In City

Two Midland residences and a laundromat were burglarized Wednesday.

Masie Owen, 904 N. Main St., reported someone stole a jewelry box, jewelry and two wrist watches from her home between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. Police later recovered the jewelry box from a dumpster.

A portable black and white television set and a clock radio were reported taken from the home of Aileen Vardaman, 700-A W. Louisiana St., while she was at work.

A burglar at the North Big Spring Laundromat, 3104 N. Big Spring St., set off a silent alarm about midnight. Police found the face plate pried off of one washer, but no money was taken.

Dec. 8 No. 1 Date In Lottery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young men with birthdates of Dec. 8, 1956 would be the first to be ordered to military duty if a national emergency required a resumption of the draft next year.

The draft lottery Wednesday also made the birthdate of June 19 No. 2 while March 22 would be No. 3.

These men are turning 19 this year and they drop into a lower priority for callup each succeeding year after 1976 until they lose their vulnerability to the draft, normally at age 26.

Those who drew lottery numbers last year form this year's first priority group.

Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone began the annual two-hour lottery ceremony by saying the draft provides a backup for the all-volunteer armed forces in cases of national emergency.

He noted that the law requires that it still be held and that all young men are required to register between 30 days before and 30 days after their 18th birthday.

The men who drew numbers 1 through 96 Wednesday will be given a higher priority and placed in an "available" class unless they are eligible for deferment or exemption. They will not be required to take physical exams or other tests, as happened when men were actually being drafted, however.

Men with numbers 96 and higher will remain in the "holding" class and get no further attention short of a major call-up in the future.

In the lottery, Feb. 4 drew No. 96 and June 16 No. 96.

The highest number, 366, was drawn for men born Feb. 12. The 366 was used because 1956 was a leap year. Feb. 29 drew No. 195.

The numbers were picked in random fashion by two pairs of students taking turns.

Landowners Plan Meeting On Army Expansion Issue

GATESVILLE, Tex. (AP) — State Rep. Nub Donaldson is to speak tonight to a meeting of Ft. Hood area landowners faced with the possible loss of more than 60,000 acres to Army expansion.

"We want it (the land acquisition) postponed until a full disclosure of the facts has been made available to landowners in order to protect their economic interests," he said.

About 1,000 landowners are expected to attend tonight's rally.

The Army said last week it needs more land for maneuvers and artillery practice.

ADA Group Will Meet On Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal Democrats are holding a presidential campaign strategy session, with the emphasis on issues and delegate selection procedures rather than on candidates.

The meeting, including both open and closed panels and discussions, begins in Chicago tonight and continues Friday. It was convened by Rep. Donald M. Fraser of Minnesota, who is president of the liberal Americans for Democratic Action.

Candidates Barred

"We purposely did not invite the individual candidates and their spokesmen," ADA national director Leon Shull said in an interview. He added that participants will include "a very good cross-section of the party's political activists."

Many due to attend supported either former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., or the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in 1968 and backed Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., in his successful drive for the 1972 Democratic nomination.

Most Uncommitted

Most are publicly uncommitted now but considered more likely to back Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., or some other candidate rather than Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., or Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex.

Participants include the political operatives of a number of unions, including the United Auto Workers, International Association of Machinists, Communications Workers of America and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Crew Of 104 Welfare Sleuths Aims To Prevent Texas Fraud

By DAN McDONALD AUSTIN (AP) — If you think defrauding the Texas Welfare Department is an easy way to get money, then you must not have heard of Howard Smith and his staff.

Smith is the director of the Department of Public Welfare's (DPW) Investigation Division which already has filed fraud cases on more than 300 welfare recipients since it was organized in November.

"We feel like we're helping the people who really need the help," said Smith who heads 104 investigators.

"When you take the fraudulent cases out of the money barrel, then there is a little more money in there for those who need it," he said in an interview.

27 Programs Involved

Smith, a former state highway patrol captain for 26 years, said his unit investigates all 27 programs of the DPW ranging from child adoption to food stamps.

"The 300 cases where we have found evidence of fraud represent an extremely small percentage of the DPW's total cases," Smith said.

"For example, last year the DPW handled almost 400,000 cases involving aid to families with dependent children and over one million people who qualified for food stamps," he added.

"We have had a tremendous impact in areas of the state where we have worked," Smith said. "Some people have voluntarily withdrawn from DPW programs when they heard about our investigations."

Most Recipients Pleased

Ed Richards, Smith's chief assistant, said most welfare recipients are pleased to hear the DPW has an organization to check on fraud cases.

Richards said, "A great many of the complaints we check into come from the people on welfare programs."

Smith's division also investigates the vendor-drug program where welfare patients can receive up to three prescriptions a month through state funds.

"Out of almost 3,000 pharmacists in the state involved in the program, we have had only four cases so far that showed fraud," Smith said.

"Some of the pharmacist cases referred to us by DPW auditors have involved major amounts of money where a druggist had fraudulently claimed he had filled a large number of prescriptions," Smith said.

"But the vendor-drug cases, like many of our cases, are difficult to prove because of the complexity of the evidence necessary to show fraud."

Evidence prepared by Smith's division is turned over to local authorities for prosecution in state courts.

Smith said, "By and far, the local prosecutors have been very cooperative in presenting our cases to the grand jury and trying the facts in court."

Smith said Texas is the only state with a unit designed to investigate all aspects of the welfare department including allegations of internal wrongdoing.

"Our investigations are not as exciting in a sense as catching a robber in the act," Smith said. "But they are challenging in a complicated way and also very rewarding because we know we are helping people who need it."

HMO Bill Awaits Action In Senate, House Panels

All HMOs, except those operated entirely by doctors, would have to be certified by the State Insurance Board after examining their financial soundness and having the State Board of Health determine their ability to deliver the promised health care.

HMOs would have power to build or lease hospitals and other medical facilities and furnish medical services through physicians who would have independent contracts with them. They also could contract with insurance companies to run the financial end of their operations.

Persons enrolled in an HMO would be entitled to a clear statement of coverage and charges, approved by the state insurance commissioner. Charges could be computed "in accordance with actuarial principles for various categories of enrollees," but could be disapproved by the commissioner.

HMOs would be subject to continued regulation by the insurance board, including their advertising and solicitation practices and their financial solvency.

Gammage said the bill was not designed to provide low cost medical services to the poor, adding that he hoped other legislation would do that.

"It is designed primarily to provide more comprehensive care for those who have a sound economic base, to give more for the money," said Gammage.

Von Dohlen said the compromise "strikes a balance between all legislative positions that have been taken and is a very worthwhile solution."

He said it retained the present law, which the Texas Medical Association favors, against the incorporation of medical practices.

Turbulent Weather Hits Southeast U.S.

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms dumped more rain into waterlogged sections of the Southeast today following a day of torrential downpours and tornado winds that left two dead and several injured.

Nearly 2 inches of rain hit Crossville, Tenn., and Monroe, La., during the night. Seven inches swamped Memphis, Tenn., since the rains began Tuesday. Six inches fell at Bowling Green, Ky.

A girl drowned at Franklin, Tenn., when she and her mother tried to flee their trapped car in flooding waters of the West Harpeth River late Wednesday. A woman on her way to work drowned in Montgomery County, Tenn., when her car was swept off the road.

Sixty persons were marooned at a church in Columbia, Tenn., after Wednesday night services when Bear Creek flooded approaches to the church. Police said those marooned were in no immediate danger.

Dozens of families left their homes in other flood-threatened areas of Tennessee. Flash-flood watches remained in effect for Tennessee, West Virginia and sections of Ohio, Kentucky, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina.

Four persons were treated for injuries after a tornado that touched down in Tutwiler, Miss., during the day Wednesday. The National Weather Service reported 18 twisters through the day — 10 in Mississippi, 6 in Alabama and one each in Tennessee and Georgia.

Forecasters indicated the thunderstorms could become severe again today from Louisiana to Florida and north into North Carolina and east Tennessee.

Hail the size of golf-balls pounded parts of northern Mississippi, central Arkansas, southwest Louisiana and Southeast Texas late Wednesday.

Showers ranged northward out of the heavy storm regions into the Middle Atlantic states. Snow showers chilled portions of the northern Great Lakes.

Mostly clear skies favored much of the country from California to the upper Mississippi Valley. Isolated rain and snow showers coasted from the north Pacific Coast into the northern Rockies.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from -18 at Sioux Falls, S.D., to 77 at Key West, Fla.

Some other reports: Anchorage 22 clear, Buffalo 35 cloudy, Chicago 19 clear, Cincinnati 25 light drizzle, Cleveland 34 cloudy, Detroit 32 cloudy, Indianapolis 30 cloudy, Kansas City 15 clear, Louisville 39 light rain, Minneapolis-St. Paul 4 clear, Nashville 48 light rain, New York 48 cloudy, Philadelphia 43 cloudy, St. Louis 24 clear.

Economist Says Housing May Not React Immediately To More Available Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Housing activity is generally thought to respond almost immediately to an increase in the availability of mortgage money. But a housing economist says this year that might not be so.

"The current depression in housing is the result of much more than credit shortages and restrictive borrowing terms," Saul Klamman told a meeting of mortgage men here this month.

"Mounting inflation and deepening recession have created increasing imbalances between housing costs and consumer incomes," said Klamman, chief economist of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Upheaval Cited

"Moreover, structural shifts in types of building, land utilization and environmental requirements have caused a continued upheaval which has further disrupted already shaky markets."

He said both builders and buyers are inhibited now by "the four Cs," or caution, concern, confusion and constraint. To overcome the inhibitions, he listed five keys:

1. Increased availability and better terms on mortgages.
2. Moderation of increases or actual declines in prices and costs.
3. A halt to the erosion of consumer incomes and confidence.
4. A quick and significant tax cut and a sensible energy package.

5. A reduction in the level and price of housing inventories.

Upturn Forecast

While forecasting a slow upturn for the housing industry beginning in late spring, Klamman said the year as a whole will be characterized by "depressingly low numbers," with the number of starts likely to total no more than 1.25 million in 1975. "Normal" is close to two million.

He said in the longer run basic changes are needed if the industry is to be rescued from its roller-coaster existence, in which booms and busts follow each other.

A structural reform of savings institutions is necessary. It would mean broadening the investment and service powers of thrift institutions, which now cannot offer checking accounts or other services of commercial banks.

Deposit interest rate differentials also will have to be reworked, he said. Savings banks traditionally have been permitted to offer a slightly higher rate than commercial banks on savings accounts.

Advantage Reduced

Through the use of certificates of deposit and other devices, the commercial institutions have reduced the advantage held by savings banks and, as Klamman sees it, have made significant inroads into the personal savings business.

He maintains this has had an adverse impact on the supply of mortgage credit, since commercial banks are not committed, as are savings banks, to the home mortgage market.

Greater flexibility in the mortgage instrument also was called for by the economist. Among his suggestions was the development of variable interest rates — rates that would rise if interest rates in general rise.

Home lenders argue that in today's unstable world it is almost impossible for them to foresee the turns in interest rates for 20 or 30 years ahead, and thus makes them reluctant to commit themselves to fixed rates.

Tax Exemption Urged

Klamman also urged a tax exemption for interest earned on savings accounts, claiming this would channel a greater flow of household savings into thrift institutions, which then would lend it out to homebuyers.

Among other suggestions: Improve the effectiveness of federal mortgage insurance programs by making them distinct from social-priority housing programs. Eliminate state usury laws which limit lending rates, and re-evaluate housing styles.

"Just as the production of overpowered, gas-guzzling automobiles will be sharply reduced in the years ahead, so also should the production of unnecessarily large, land-consuming housing units be cut off in the future," he said.

Khmer Rouge Rockets Hit Ammunition

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A Khmer Rouge rocket hit an ammunition dump at the Phnom Penh airport today, setting off thunderous explosions and forcing suspension of the American airlift of ammunition, rice and fuel.

More than three hours later, the dump was still exploding, sending shrapnel in all directions and putting up clouds of smoke.

No casualties were reported, however. Some soldiers and airport personnel fled from the area while others took refuge in bunkers.

The airport control tower was abandoned because the blast broke nearly all its windows.

There was no estimate available on the amount of ammunition in the dump. All of it had been brought in from Thailand by the U.S. airlift and was awaiting transfer by Cambodian air force planes to isolated positions held by the government.

Airliner Hit

Other Khmer Rouge shells also damaged a Cambodian DC3 airliner parked on the field.

The insurgents had not previously struck such a vital position on the airfield in the daily rocket and artillery bombardment that began Jan. 1.

The airlift has been suspended twice in the past 10 days for several hours each time because of the shelling.

An American civilian, Doug Sapper, of Mount Vernon, Ill., led a group of Cambodians in a vain attempt to drag cases of ammunition from the area after the rocket hit. He also tried to save a Cambodian cargo plane parked near the exploding ammunition. Sapper is employed by one of the American charter lines flying the airlift.

Shelling Intensified

The Khmer Rouge have intensified shelling of the airfield in the past nine days, using American 106mm howitzers captured from government troops as well as rockets. The fire increases when the airlift planes approach and lets up after they depart.

Military sources said Cambodian air force T28 fighters-bombers attacked sites five miles northwest of the airport from which the Khmer Rouge was believed shelling the field. But a 2,000-man force trying to push its launching sites out of range of the airport has been bogged down for the past week.

On the political front, rivalry between Premier Long Boret and Gen. Lon Non, President Lon Nol's younger brother, was reported holding up formation of a new cabinet by the premier. Political sources said Long Boret worked out a cabinet list, but Lon Non was demanding appointment of a list he had drawn up with himself in a top position.

"Here it is at one minute to midnight and these guys are still haggling over who is going to be what in the new government," said one diplomat.

Panel Says State Legislatures Must To Perceive Sentiment On Major Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — State governments were in the forefront of legislative initiatives last year because they were the first to perceive public sentiment on major issues, says a federal advisory commission.

While national news such as President Nixon's resignation and the deepening recession dominated public attention, "the states were able to act decisively in many areas to meet the needs of their citizens," the panel said in its annual report.

However, some of the state programs, particularly political reforms, were similar to measures enacted earlier by Congress.

In contrast to the federal government, 16 states adopted gasoline rationing plans to help shorten long lines at gas stations during the height of the energy crisis, the report said.

Governors in 15 states were granted emergency powers to deal with energy problems, and 18 states created commissions and agencies to coordinate supply and demand of energy.

Thirty states enacted laws governing financing of political campaigns.

And while the federal budget deficit grew larger, more than 40 states reported financial surpluses in their treasuries for fiscal 1974, although part of this was the result of federal revenue sharing.

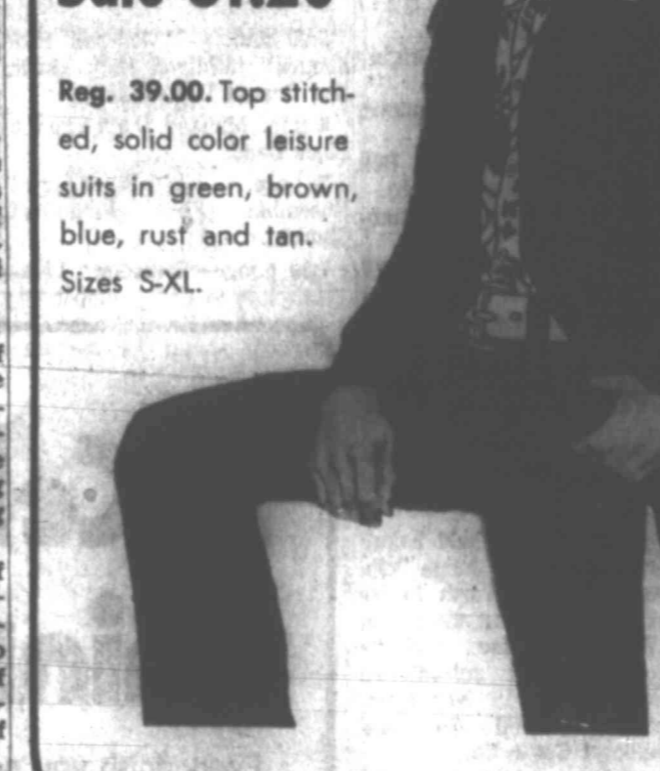

The report was issued by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, which was created by Congress in 1969 to monitor the federal system and recommend improvements.

In a review of programs enacted by state legislatures, the commission reported that "As has occurred in the past, they (the states) were the first to perceive citizen desires and translate them into legislative or executive action."

$2 Million For Big Thicket Preserve Expected By Solon

HOUSTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., says he expects Congress to appropriate $2 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1 to start buying land for the Big Thicket National Preserve.

However, Wilson said in Washington that "spite cutting" by small logging concerns may destroy some of the biologically important trees in the preserve which has already been approved by Congress.

Wilson, whose district includes most of the Big Thicket, said major timber companies are observing a moratorium on cutting in the preserve, but independent timber operators are still harvesting trees.

In a story from the Washington Bureau of the Houston Chronicle, Wilson said the small operators are practicing what he called "spite cutting" because they oppose creation of the preserve which is north and northwest of Beaumont.

He said major timber operators are the largest land owners in the area and are anxious to sell land included in the preserve's boundaries. Those companies, he said, want the money so they can buy timberland elsewhere.

However, Wilson said environmentalists want the government to first buy land owned by the small timber operators to protect trees from small lumber companies which are not observing the cutting moratorium.

Receivership Lawyers Say Wheatheart Lost Less Money Than Was Anticipated

AMARILLO (AP) — Receivership lawyers in a bankruptcy hearing for Wheatheart, Inc., and three subsidiaries said Wednesday the Perryton-based company lost $500,000 less from January through February 1975 than had been anticipated.

A report read in federal court here showed the firm had income of $5,068,000 and losses of $5,069,000.

The hearing was held before federal bankruptcy Judge John Flowers of Fort Worth to inform creditors about the status of Wheatheart, Inc., and its wholly owned subsidiaries Wheatheart Land Northwest, Wheatheart Land Co. and Wheatheart Cattle Co.

The judge told 100 creditors and spectators that the federal Securities and Exchange Commission had informed him it planned to investigate financial operations of the firms.

He cited the impending investigations as reason to limit types of questions asked by creditors at the meeting.

The four companies are reorganizing under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law.

Creditors at the hearing were given an extension from April 14 to May 16 to file complaints against the four firms.

Frank Monroe of Houston, the lawyer representing Lee Bowen of Turpin, Okla., who is acting as receiver, said the firms have a wheat crop in the state of Washington which is expected to bring in a good yield and monetary return.

The creditors learned negotiations are in progress to borrow funds so farm operations can continue near Keyes, Okla., and so cattle can be put into now empty feed lots in Texas and Washington.

Guatemalan Judge Orders American Released in Smuggling Attempt Case

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — A Guatemalan judge has ordered that an American arrested here for allegedly trying to smuggle $1 million worth of antique gold and silver coins and jewels be freed for lack of evidence, authorities said today.

It was not learned at once whether Patrick Fred Johnson, 39, was freed.

Authorities said Johnson is a native of Frey, Okla., but now lives in Houston, Tex.

After his arrest last week, police quoted Johnson as telling them he didn't know it was illegal to take such money out of the country.

Johnson was arrested at the international airport in Guatemala and agents reported confiscating suitcases filled with gold and silver pieces.

"The tribunal believes there are not enough motives for the defendant to continue in prison," the court judge was quoted as saying.

Johnson's wife Pat reportedly told newsmen Wednesday in Guatemala City that her husband is a mathematician-exporter who works for various private American companies and was on his way to Mexico City to attend an antique coin and medal auction.

Police also reported arresting two Mexicans and connected them to Johnson. Authorities said no decision has been made on the Mexicans.

The judge ordered that a Guatemalan arrested in the same case be freed.

Bill To Propose Tax Exemption

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Dick Florence, D-Hughes Springs, says he will introduce a bill today to exempt newspapers and magazines from the 3 per cent state sales tax.

"Both the United States and Texas constitutions guarantee freedom of the press, but the current tax on these items seems to be in conflict with the assurances made in both documents," Florence said Wednesday.

HOUSES BEING BOUGHT FOR $1—

Urban Homesteading Is Increasing

By NICK TATRO
Associated Press Writer

Mrs. Jones, a widow mother of two in Rockford, Ill., and Daniel Frawley, a young lawyer in Wilmington, Del., are urban homesteaders. Both live in houses they bought for $1.

Their houses, both in marginal neighborhoods and needing major repairs, were virtually unmarketable a year ago. Today, they are model homes for a self-help rehabilitation program under way or planned in dozens of the nation's cities.

"The idea is to place vacant units back on the market and stabilize the neighborhood," says Edward Martin, a former top official in Wilmington's homestead program and now a policy analyst for the National Association of Housing Redevelopment Officials.

"The benefit to the cities is obvious: it gets houses back on the tax rolls. But the major thing is that the program allows people who would never be able to own a house to have one."

There are an estimated 200,000 vacant and abandoned houses in the nation and plans are under way to rehabilitate thousands. But since Wilmington launched the first program in August 1973 only a few hundred have been homesteaded because of bureaucratic delays in acquiring houses, screening applicants and setting up loan funds.

"The bureaucratic process is slow," says Asst. Secretary E.R. Crawford of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. "But the program is moving forward now and we expect it to do well."

HUD has made 4,000 rehabilitated houses available to cities for rehabilitation.

The homesteader lucky enough to get a house risks his money, labor and often personal safety in moving into a run-down neighborhood.

The homesteader's down payment is "sweat equity" — he paints, polishes floors, lays tile, hangs wallpaper, builds cabinets, puts in windows, hand-scrapes or even adds a new roof.

Mrs. Jones, 28, became a homesteader last August. She won one of 10 houses offered in a drawing to 44 persons, those found qualified after 700 applicants were screened in Rockford.

$3,700 Loan
From a city loan fund of $50,000, she got a $3,700 loan at 9% per cent interest and moved out of a $135 a month, two-bedroom apartment where she lived with her two girls, aged 5 and 7.

"The landlord raised the rent from $127 and I don't know what I'd have done without homesteading," said Mrs. Jones, who spent two months painting, hanging wallpaper, putting in bathroom tile and fixing up her furniture. A contractor did the heavy work.

She saved hundreds of dollars in rehabilitation costs and despite an income of less than $400 a month, she owns a four-bedroom house.

Tired of commuting 30 miles a day, Dan Frawley, a 33-year-old E.I. DuPont lawyer, and his teacher-wife Bonnie began homesteading in Wilmington in October 1973. They started with a boarded-up eyesore.

"I put $17,000 into it and I consider the house in very good shape," he said. "You couldn't touch this house for $25,000 in Philadelphia where I used to live — and its only four blocks away."

"We did a lot of decorating. I did all the demolition work and my wife finished the floors. We got a professional contractor for the electrical and plumbing work."

Frawley says he became so enthusiastic about homesteading he bought the house next door and is now rehabilitating it. But five of the 25 original homesteaders in Wilmington have given back their houses.

The District of Columbia gave away 13 HUD houses in a drawing last July and plans to offer 10 more in March. There have been no dropouts.

Raymond Horton, a 47-year-old electrician who works two jobs and has four children aged 5 to 15, is hard at work on a three-story home in the Capitol Hill area of Washington. He expects to move in by June.

"If I contracted this job it would be more than $50,000, but I expect to save about half that because I can buy wholesale and the labor is my own," said Horton.

Thomas Bridgforth, 34, a forklift operator, is still working on his two-story, grey row-house in the northeast section of Washington.

The work is being financed by a $17,500 loan at 6 per cent interest from the District of Columbia Development Corp., a public authority with $168,000 to loan urban homesteaders.

"The only problem has been waiting; they did all the work," said Bridgforth, who first applied for the home in December 1972.

Bridgforth, who supports a family of four on $12,000 a year, said he could "never afford a house without homesteading — the downpayment is a killer."

His wife, Vera, added: "People kept saying how nice it must be to get a house for $1, but it's really not just $1. We paid $307 in taxes, $45 for title insurance, $70 for fire insurance and we haven't even moved in yet."

Solution to Problem
Nadine P. Winter, a city councilwoman and former director of a nonprofit community group that launched homesteading in Washington, said: "I believe urban homesteading is the solution to the housing problem," she said.

"The studies we did show 60 per cent of the rehabilitation cost is labor and I'm saying people have to learn to do it themselves."

For homesteading to work on a big scale, Mrs. Winter says it must dovetail with self-help programs such as Manpower. "My idea is to get contractors, handymen, builders and labor unions together and show people how to do things. It could even work in building new houses."

But in Rockford, homestead official Ron Hallstrom disagrees. "There is no way to effectively test the skills of a homesteader to see if he can do the major repairs," he said.

"Such work affects not only the homesteader but his neighbors and we want nothing less than a licensed plumber or electrician."

Portugal's Uprising: Who Really Did All The Plotting?

By STEPHENS BROENING
An AP News Analyst

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The leftist officers running Portugal have taken extraordinary powers by scaring the country with what they said was a reactionary plot to stall the march of their revolution.

So great was the danger from the enemies of democracy, the official version goes, that the "progressives" in the army must purge suspected conservatives and remain in politics permanently.

But the so-called uprising on Tuesday had only slightly more ferocity than a Mack Sennett comedy, leading moderate and conservative Portuguese and foreign diplomats and conservative Portuguese and foreign diplomats to wonder whether the plot was a fake and who was doing the plotting.

The attack consisted of a number of passes by two air force planes on the barracks of an artillery regiment near the Lisbon airport, accompanied by the deployment of a paratroop unit outside the barracks.

Persons who arrived on the scene soon after the planes asked one paratroop officer why he and his men were there. He said he didn't know. His troops relaxed 100 yards from the barracks, smoking and chatting with civilians.

The paratroopers fired no shots and made no attempt to attack the artillery regiment.

The planes the "rebels" chose were the air force's oldest, prop-driven T6 trainers from World War II with a top speed of about 250 miles an hour.

Reports Change
First reports said they bombed the barracks. But the holes in the red roof tiles were not much bigger than a man's head. Later a military spokesman said the pilots fired rockets. Still later, another spokesman talked of bombs again.

Officials say one man was killed and about 15 were wounded.

For three hours the planes made slow circles overhead while two air force jets stalked them. No shots were fired.

The planes were still aloft when Premier Vasco Goncalves emerged the victor in a struggle he had been unable to win earlier.

Not only had he been given a blank check to restaffle his cabinet. He also had approval for the creation of a permanent Revolutionary Council of military officers to oversee future governments.

The final power in Portugal since the military overthrew the dictatorship last April.

Shortly after dawn, Goncalves emerged the victor in a struggle he had been unable to win earlier.

Not only had he been given a blank check to restaffle his cabinet. He also had approval for the creation of a permanent Revolutionary Council of military officers to oversee future governments.

Pilots Escape
Capt. Manuel Clemente of the army's psychological warfare section reported to newsmen that the two rebel pilots managed to fly back to Tancos Air Base 60 miles north of Lisbon, land, board a helicopter and escape to Spain.

"Operational measures were taken to prevent the flight," said Clemente. "But the rebels passed through the net. Those things happen."

The government also asserted that Gen. Antonio de Spinoia, the most prestigious officer in recent Portuguese history and reputedly a tactician of genius, was the leader of the "uprising." The government cited his flight to Spain with 18 other officers Tuesday afternoon.

No Full Explanation
Capt. Clemente and Information Minister Jorge Jesuino conceded that they did not have a full explanation for Spinoia's departure. They said one theory they heard was that the general had been told he was marked for assassination.

One skeptical journalist asked whether it was credible that a man of Spinoia's stature would have associated himself with such a hare-brained scheme.

"One can only speculate," Jesuino replied. "In view of ex-Gen. Spinoia's political experience, it is difficult to believe that he would have embarked on such an adventure doomed to failure."

Forced from the presidency last September by leftist pressure, Spinoia had been in retirement but was reportedly planning to run for the presidency if the military regime ever held an election. The leftists believed he couldn't lose.

Obstacle Removed
His flight to Spain thus removed the most formidable single obstacle to the radical officers.

Premier Goncalves met all night Wednesday with the officers' assembly that has been

State Legislature Filibuster Fizzles

AUSTIN (AP) — The legislature's first filibuster fizzled Wednesday.

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Garland, said he was saving his breath.

He thinks he'll need it next week, when the Senate is expected to debate a proposal raising interest rates by over 30 per cent on many loans under $5,000.

Patman and Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, failed Wednesday in an effort to block a bill that they said would allow lenders to get more interest on real estate loans.

Sent To Briscoe
The House-approved measure was sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe on voice vote after the senate voted 25-6, a bare minimum, to rush the proposal through in one day.

"I'm very disturbed that the governor will sign it," said Patman.

Briscoe vetoed a similar bill in 1973.

Patman and Clower had their plastic floor shields carried away in preparation for a talkathon that Patman predicted would last until midnight.

But they shut up at 3:05 p.m., three hours and 32 minutes after Patman started the stalling tactics.

Important Fight
"We have a far more important fight (coming up), and one we can win," Patman said of the pending interest rate bill. "I think it is the most important fight of the year as far as borrowers are concerned."

The bill that survived the filibuster would allow prepaid "points" on real estate loans to be spread over the term of the loan in calculating interest rates.

Patman said it is a "sham" to escape the constitutional limit of 10 per cent on such loans.

Clower was angered, he said, by calls from four savings and loan associations in his district, and he searched the balcony for the lobbyist he thought was responsible, but said he had left.

"It's about time to kick the money lenders out of the Capitol once and for all," said Clower.

"This is a charade," said Sen. Tom Greighton, D-Mineral Wells.

The bill was sponsored by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Fort Worth.

Bill Approved
The House tentatively approved on voice vote a Senate bill raising from 75,000 to 80,000 pounds the weight limit of trucks that can travel on Texas' primary highways.

House members and senators approved resolutions asking Congress to reject the Army's proposal to buy 60,000 to 90,000 acres in Coryell County to expand Ft. Hood.

Bill Introduced To Divide Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Bob Gammage, D-Houston, and Rep. Fred Agnich, R-Dallas, want Texas to vote on dividing the state into five parts.

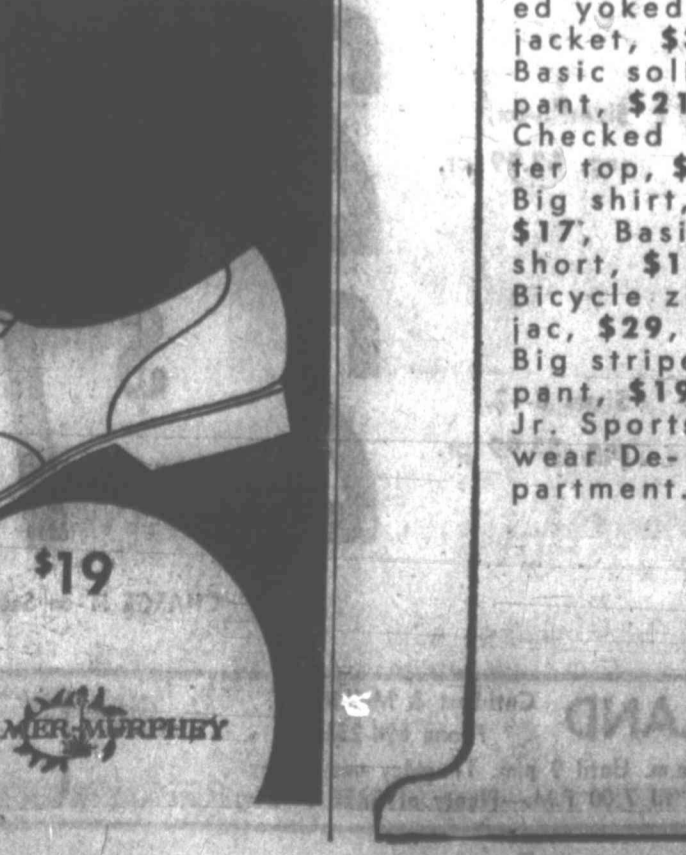

They introduced a bill Wednesday calling for a non-binding referendum at the 1976 general election.

Texas is under-represented and out-voted in the U.S. Senate, the sponsors said. It has only two senators when it could have 10 under the five-state arrangement, he said.

Pending federal legislation on oil and gas, which the oil industry opposes, has sparked renewed interest on the division which Texas is authorized to do under the agreement with the United States when Texas joined the Union in 1845.

Program To Exterminate Tsetse Flies Advances In Tanzanian Seaport

By ALBERT ABRAHAM
 NATIONAL Tsetse (L) — A program to exterminate tsetse flies through the use of sexually sterile male flies is advancing in laboratories in the Tanzanian seaport town of Tanga.
 If successful, the project may lead to elimination of tsetse flies on a big scale by countries throughout Africa and open millions of acres of now uninhabitable land to man, agriculture and animals.
 The project, a joint venture of the governments of Tanzania and the United States, is based on previous success with the biological control method of wiping out the house-worm fly, a major scourge of cattle on farms in the southeastern zone of the United States.

 The plan is to raise 20,000 sterile male flies in the Tanga laboratory. With this "breeding colony," 20,000 male tsetse flies, in the pupa stage, will be actually sterilized each week by atomic radiation and released among wild tsetse flies.

 The sterile male flies, when they emerge, would mate with wild females, who reproduce only once in their lifetime. This would result in no progeny from the females, who would become sterile for life.
 The sterile male procedure, discovered by an American agricultural scientist in 1954, was used with great success to wipe out the house-worm fly just in America. A similar procedure is being used in the tsetse fly program in Tanzania, which is estimated to be one of the most tsetse fly infested areas in the world.

 The tsetse fly is a major pest of man, animals and crops in the tropics. It is the cause of sleeping sickness in man and of nagana in animals.
 The tsetse fly is also a pest of man, animals and crops in the tropics. It is the cause of sleeping sickness in man and of nagana in animals.

LaGrange Lawmaker Would Control Bank Holding Companies

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, says Texas should either regulate state banking companies or allow the present chaos to go to court to determine if their operations are legal.

Wilson presented the House Financial Institutions Committee two bills Wednesday that would do both.

Wilson said presently there are five "very large" holding companies that control much of the banking services in the state, with the power of them concentrating in Dallas and Houston.

"I'm not sure this is allowed under our constitution that prohibits branch banking," he said.

Wilson's bill would place bank holding companies under the State Banking Department, just as individual banks are regulated now. Any holding company that had member banks with 8 per cent or more of the state's deposits would be prohibited from making any new acquisitions.

Jim Boyle, president of the Texas Consumers Association, said he thinks there will be less competition among banks as the holding companies grow.

"There is also a loss of morale in independent banks when holding companies take over," Boyle said.

Dewey Presley, president of First International Bancshares of Dallas, the largest holding company in Texas, said the companies were not without regulation and control.

"The Texas antitrust laws which we operate under are considered tougher than the similar federal laws," Presley said.

"Our company has adopted the position that daily activities of local banks rest with the local board of that bank," Presley said.

Both bills were referred to subcommittees for further study.

Accused Slayer To Rely On Court Psychiatrists

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The testimony of two court-appointed psychiatrists will be relied upon by lawyers for the man accused of killing and then dismembering two Mormon missionaries.

Glen Wilkerson, one of three attorneys for Robert Kleasen, says the defense did not hire its own psychiatrist because the testimony of court-appointed doctors will carry more weight.

Besides, Wilkerson said, there is always the risk that another psychiatrist, even one chosen by the defense, might reach conclusions less favorable to Kleasen than those reports filed by the court's doctors.

The defendant's sanity will be determined in a state district court hearing that begins Monday.

Dist. Atty. Bob Smith disagrees that the reports of the court-appointed doctors are favorable to Kleasen, a 48-year-old big game hunter and self-styled linguist and intelligence agent.

"There is some disagreement among the psychiatrists," Smith said. The prosecution has had its own psychiatrist examine Kleasen, he added.

Asked if the court-appointed doctors agreed with each other but not with his doctor, Smith said: "Nobody agrees exactly."

Psychiatrists at the federal hospital in Springfield, Mo., said earlier this year that Kleasen is not competent to stand trial.

Kleasen is accused of killing and then cutting up with a taxidermist's band saw Gary Darley, 20, of Strid Valley, Calif., and Mark Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis.

They were last seen on Oct. 28, a few hours before they were to have eaten their regular Monday evening meal at his trailer behind a taxidermy shop in the hills west of Austin.

Kleasen reportedly has claimed to be fluent in six languages and to be a former CIA agent and U-2 pilot.

West opened the queen of clubs, and East discarded a spade.

South's best chance was to win a trick with the queen of diamonds. He won the first trick with ace of clubs, led a diamond to dummy's ace and returned a diamond to play the queen from his hand. Down one.

Deep Finesse
South has a better chance if he takes a deep finesse in diamonds. He leads a diamond from his hand and finesse with dummy's ten.

This develops a trick immediately if West has the jack of diamonds. The chance that West has the jack of diamonds is just as good as the chance that East has the king of diamonds.

If dummy's ten loses to the jack, declarer is still alive. He can cash dummy's ace of diamonds and later lead a low diamond from his hand. This will produce a trick if the king appears by the time the third round of diamonds has been played.

Finessing with dummy's ten is neither better nor worse than playing East for the king of diamonds. The advantage lies in the extra chance that the king will drop early even if the first finesse loses.

Bean Files Official Plea For TEA Audit's Release

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — An attorney representing a member of the State Board of Education has filed an official request in state district court for the "immediate release" of an internal audit of the Texas Education Agency's procedures in handling some 20 vocational schools.

The board member, Woodrow Bean of El Paso, charges the TEA might be involved in an $8 million scandal. But Ed Ransdell, director of TEA audits, says there was no indication of criminal negligence found in the audit.

A five-member committee of the board and the Proprietary School Advisory Commission will meet March 18 to receive the audit. It was announced after Bean's request was filed Wednesday.

Bean's lawyer, David Richards, said, "We did not ask for a temporary restraining order because we are hopeful we can get it done by the middle of next week. That's what we are aiming for."

Tyler Senator's Unitization Measure 'In Intensive Care'

Austin Bureau
AUSTIN -- The unitization bill may not be dead, but it's "in intensive care," its old foe, Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler, said today. Speaker Bill Clayton had said that he felt the bill for compulsory unitization of oil and gas fields was dead.
But McKnight believes that it has a chance, although he hopes it is a slim one.
Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene, this year's sponsor of the bill, ran hard with the bill committee, but the luck of the lineup of the committee to which I. Gov. Bill Hobby referred it seems to have run against Jones.
"There simply are not enough votes to bring the bill out on a majority report," McKnight said of the 11-member Senate Natural Resources Committee.
"They could bring it out to the Senate on a minority report, but under the rules that takes two-thirds to print it and get it on the Senate calendar," McKnight was asked whether force of unitization have the 11 votes needed to prevent a two-thirds majority if all 21 senators are present when an effort is made to print on minority report is made.
"We've got more than that, I think," the Tyler senator replied.
In 1973, a majority of the Senate and House favored the unitization bill, but McKnight was able to delay Senate action until late in the legislative session, when his threat of a filibuster caused its sponsors to give up on passing it.
McKnight believes that there is less support for it this time, but he cautiously calls the status of the bill "in intensive care" and "doing poorly," but it won't be dead until the legislative session ends 60 days from Friday.

Midland Youth Center Chatter

By GAYLE GRIMLAND, LESLIE MORGAN & VICKI TROCKMORTON
Those lazy days of spring have hit (at least they had hit), and along with warm weather comes a great epidemic of Spring Fever. It seems this dreadful disease has crept into every nook and cranny of MHS, bringing a few changes here and there.
In the spring, a young man's fancy used to turn to love, but this year it seems as though sports are outraging girls as the number one favorite.
This last weekend, MHS accumulated sufficient points to finish 2nd in the Tournament of Champions, behind a n Oklahoma team, with Jackie Wells, Bruce Smith, Jon Tate and Dusty Hicks getting the job done. Midland High Sophs beat Andrews 9 to 8 with key performances by Shane Fletcher, Keven Pearce and Roger Russell. Baseball bats also are in full swing this weekend, so come on out and watch these champs. Friday against Carlsbad at 4 p.m. and a doubleheader with Carlsbad at 10 a.m. and noon on Saturday. All games will be at the MHS diamond.
The volleyball team will vanquish their visitors, Abilene Cooper tonight at 6:30. Friday and Saturday, the team plays in the Howard College Tournament at Big Spring. There will be a follow-up with Big Spring again at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday here. Keep that undefeated record, you're state bound!
Our ROUGH and TOUGH doubles tennis team of Billy Hickey and Jim Johnson climbed the ladder to the top of the B division last weekend in the Midland Invitational. Other swingers did swell also. The Lubbock Tournament is on schedule this weekend. Make it a HIT!
Speaking of groovy gophers (always going in the holes), the boys golf team begins district dates to make:
Monday - FHA meeting, Room 113 at 7 p.m.
Tuesday - Latin Club, Room 215 at 7:30 p.m.
April 21 at the Youth Center.
March 22 - Band Chili Supper, 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., MHS cafeteria.
April 26 - Civic Ballet
Celebrities:
John Webb and Mary Motter are missing tonsils and teeth, after encounter with a surgeon and dentist.
Donnie Roberts was named to the first All-District 5-4A basketball squad, with Michael Cobb landing on the second team.
James Coldeway and Mike Robins recently received $200 music scholarships for the fall semester of 1975.
John Keyes and Patty Winkler were awarded outstanding HECE (Home economics cooperative education) honors. They will be having an area meeting in Big Spring this weekend.
John Dunbar and Sandra Spears are Junior Rotarians for this week.
Jim Hodge and Chuck Fraser are in Washington this week attending seminars, touring, and just having a good time with students from all over the U.S. They are attending the Presidential Classroom for Young Americans. Kilty Spangling also recently made the trip to get the scoop on "our government."
Parle Vous Francais? Those who do will be at school Saturday morning for the French district competition test. Students representing schools from all over West Texas will participate.
Next week is Twip and Revenge Week sponsored by the Junior Class. Monday and Tuesday are the guys' days and Wednesday and Thursday, the girls take their turn. Tickets are 50 cents and are good for both days. They may be purchased in the trophy room and Y.C. lunch.
Your lazy Dalain, Gayle Leslie Vicki
P. S. Robs, we're glad you're in there representing our district and wish you back in the best P.S.S. Barry is here about your activities, Lesly. Hope you're up and out of the hospital soon and will be back to the hills hobbling with a cast.

Administration Officials Predicting Economic Upswing After Middle Of '75

By G.G. LABELLE
Associated Press Writer

Administration officials see the economy going further down and then up after mid-year and food prices going further up and then, possibly, down.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and top economic adviser Alan Greenspan made the predictions Wednesday as the House passed a $5.9 billion job bill and discussion continued over how much taxpayer relief is needed to jar the economy from the deepening recession.

The White House said Butz told a Cabinet meeting that food prices would rise 3 to 4 per cent, a slower rise than last year, before leveling off or dropping slightly after mid-year.

Greenspan, chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, repeated the administration view that the economy would see a turnaround in the second half of the year but warned of a steeper slump first, with unemployment up and production down.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the nation's fiscal policy would pull the country out of recession by mid-year but warned of "playing with fire" by going into debt to boost the economy.

Simon added the U.S. government will go into debt at the rate of about $1 billion a week during the coming fiscal year.

The stock market took a drop, partly in reaction to Greenspan's gloom. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.20 to 783.69, though analysts also blamed the decline on profit taking in a market that has risen sharply since the beginning of the year.

Also on Wednesday:

—Chairman Al Ullman of the House Ways and Means Committee said there is still a little life in a plan to gradually hike federal gasoline taxes to 49 cents a gallon. Only a day after indicating the plan had little chance, Ullman pointed to strong sentiment for it.

—Auto industry observers said a new car smaller and less expensive than anything now available from Detroit will roll off General Motors assembly lines in the 1976 model year. They say the new car will sell for $2,200-$2,500, $200 below the now lowest-priced American auto.

—The Senate Banking Committee adopted a resolution urging the Federal Reserve Board to further expand the money supply. It is similar to an earlier House-passed resolution.

—The Bank of England reported that oil producing countries grossed $94 billion last year and spent or invested more than a third of it in the United States and Britain. The bank said $11 billion was invested in the United States.

—An American firm signed a contract estimated at $47 million to equip a Soviet ball bearing factory. And Gould Co. of Chicago said it will be paid in cash for the manufacturing equipment.

—There were indications of a veto. The bill, which was sent to the House, has been critical of coal and electricity prices.

Traffic Lights Due At Wadley, Midkiff

The intersection at Wadley Street and Midkiff Road should be signalized by mid-summer following action by the city council Wednesday to advertise for bids on traffic signal equipment.

Robert Chambers, traffic engineer, said the traffic lights for the intersection will cost the city approximately $10,000 to $11,000.

The council denied a request by residents in the area of Neely and Western streets to have the speed limit lowered to 20 m.p.h. there.

Chambers said several townhouses have been built in that area on a curve. He said residents of the homes use the alley for parking, and a safety hazard could exist for cars entering the street blocked from sight by the homes.

Chambers said a slower traffic flow could cause traffic jams in the area. He noted police radar investigations in the area had revealed that 85 per cent of the auto traffic is presently going at 30 m.p.h. or less.

Pan American Regents Vote To Seek Merger

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Pan American University regents voted Wednesday to seek legislation for a proposed merger with the University of Texas system, but left final approval of the measure up to Lower Rio Grande Valley legislators.

The regents voted 8-2 to pass a motion by regent Morris Atlas of McAllen.

The motion said, "I move that the board of regents of Pan American University request our Valley legislators to seek appropriate legislation looking toward the merger of Pan American University into The University of Texas System, under conditions as are satisfactory to our legislators, conditioned upon our legislators satisfying themselves that The University of Texas System and its board of regents look favorably upon such merger."

Regent Moses Vela of Harlingen, an opponent of the proposed merger, said he does not believe the Valley legislative delegation will approve the merger because Vela believes public opinion is against the merger.

Before the motion was voted upon Atlas told fellow regents, "If there is any hesitancy on the part of the UT board, I say we forget it."

In arguing against the proposed measure, Vela said, "we have no guarantee and no representation (on the UT board of regents). We just have to hope things turn out all right."

Atlas, a member of special committees that voted last week to recommend approval of the merger, told the regents that the merger would help Pan American in obtaining money from the legislature, would help in recruiting the teachers and the "University of Texas" degree would be helpful to graduates.

The McAllen lawyer said opponents of the merger pointed out that there would be no local control over the university since the Pan American regents would be disbanded and the UT board would have complete control. He also said they opposed the loss of identity in the name "Pan American."

Some effort should be made to retain the Pan American name, Atlas said. "We're talking about the name of a long that hasn't even been born," said regent Ruben Carrasco of McAllen, an outspoken proponent of the merger.

SAFE DRIVER—Robert Romines has been named the U.S. Postal Service's safe driver of the month for Midland.

FRACTURING TREATMENT — Aerial view shows a ray of high pressure pumping units being hooked up to pump 900,000 pounds of sand in 500,000 gallons of fluid down a gas well near Marshall, Tex. The massive hydraulic fracturing treatment was performed Tuesday on the Amoco-Jones Gas Unit No. 3 in the Woodlawn field. Massive fracturing techniques have been used by Amoco in the Rockies recently, but Tuesday's stimulation treatment, in the planning for six months, was the first in the Southwest. Spokesmen said tests dictated use of the technique, designed to unlock gas deposits from "tight" formations. (AP Wirephoto.)

Co-Op Backing Gas Regulation Bill

KELLER, Tex. (AP)—The head of the 4,000-member Co-op Merchants Association says its representatives will go to Austin to support a bill to regulate the wellhead price of natural gas for interstate customers.

The bill, sponsored by Reps.

Bill Coody of Weatherford and Gil Lewis of Tarrant County, would limit the price of gas sold within the state to 50 per cent more than the interstate price, set by the Federal Power Commission.

Lewis said the bill, currently before the House of Representatives, will be forwarded to the Energy Resources Committee and hearings will begin in about 45 days.

The FPC has set the interstate price of gas at 53 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. Under the bill, the maximum price charged interstate customers would be 78 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, based on the 53 cent figure of the FPC.

Tri-county electric co-op bills have doubled and tripled in recent months because of gas prices of $1.57 per 1,000 cubic feet.

"We want to give the incentive to keep Texas gas in Texas without killing the incentive to go out and explore for more gas," Lewis said. "It's a fine line you have to draw to legislate a fair price that will keep the incentive to explore."

"L. A. Lintzell of Keller, chairman of the co-op association, said, "Somebody's got to find out if the gas companies are profiteering off the people."

Vermont Asbestos Workers Buy Business To Save Jobs

BENH MILLS, Vt. (AP)—Strikes in Vermont in which nearly 100 workers are fighting to keep their jobs in a mill that produces asbestos products.

Just 12 months ago, the workers of the old GAF Corp. asbestos mill have saved their jobs. They bought the business.

They began working their own payroll with the night shift on Wednesday after an eight-hour

They said $200,000 for the 2,000-sq-ft building. The workers got a bargain.

"It's just good," said Lupton. "It is good news for the business community of the state, particularly here in Vermont."

IN WEST TEXAS RELAYS AT W. T. BARRETT STADIUM—

Rebels Seek Fourth Track Crown

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
ODESSA — Coach Sam Volpe's Lee Rebels, owning three straight track titles this year, will be out to end the three-year domination of the San Angelo Bobcats here Friday and Saturday in the 30th annual West Texas Relays at W. T. Barrett Stadium, but they will have to do it without one of their top performers.

Billy Schmeer, who has been getting a lot of points in the shot and discus, broke his throwing hand while boxing last week and may be out for the season. Between Skinner, Milton Jones and Bobby Humble, the Rebels have been getting a lot of points in those two events.

Jones, however, is rated second in the state in both events and is favored to win again in Odessa this week, and other Lee performers seem to be getting better each week.

Midland High, El Paso High, Odessa High, Pampa, El Paso Austin, El Paso Coronado and Permian will make up the rest of the field in the AAAA Division along with Lee and San Angelo.

Midland High placed fourth at Andrews last week behind

Larry Munson, who won his third straight 300 hurdle race with his best time of the year at 26.9. That is also one of the best marks in the state this year.

Lee's Stanley O'Neal was the high point performer in the Rebel victory at Andrews with 24 points. He won the 150 high with a 15.6 and was second behind Munson in the 500. He was also on the Lee relay squad.

Old Butler, Tim Parker and Earl Evans gave Lee a 1-2-3 sweep in the 400 last week while David Shelton continued to run well in the 800, winning with a time of 2:02.1. Jeff Leister of Lee placed second in the 200 and Monte Wright fourth.

Robert Johnson won the 100 with a 10.1 for the Rebels and Midland High's Sam Zachery, who missed the Brownfield meet, came back with a 53-8 in the shot for his best effort of the year.

Lee won the mile relay last week with a fine 7:35.0 and Midland High continued to do well in the spring relay with a second place at 43.8 behind Permian's 43.5. Midland High was a distant second to Lee in the mile relay with a 7:38.3.

Running event prelims will start at 1:30 p.m. Friday and finals are set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Ector, Monahan, Andrews, Brownfield, Lubbock, Dalhart, Levelland, Kermit, Seminole, Snyder and Lamesa will make up the Division AAA competition while Denver City, Coahoma, Crane, Jal, N.M., McCamey, Post, Stanton, Phillips, Reagan County and Taboka will make up the AA Division.

LPGA To Have Qualifying?

HOUSTON (AP) — Carol Mann answers questions about possible future qualifying on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour as carefully as if she were lining up a three-foot putt.

"We've been looking at it (qualifying) for about six months but so far the advantages don't seem to outweigh the disadvantages," said Miss Mann, here to defend her title this week in the $100,000 LPGA tournament at Westwood Country Club.

"The advantages would be a smaller, compact and highly skilled field," she said. "There's nothing wrong with that but by taking away tournament competition, we are taking away experience opportunities for all our young players."

Men golfers are tournament ready when they turn pro because of so many opportunities to gain experience, she said.

"If you follow a junior girl golfer, that little girl has so few tournament opportunities compared to the men, we have to be a little easier in our philosophy," Miss Mann said.

The women may be forced to some kind of qualifying soon however, if entry lists continue to grow. More than 100 entries are expected for the $100,000 event here Friday through Sunday.

One alternative might be a satellite tour for the young golfers, but Miss Mann says that causes problems too.

"We'll have one satellite tournament this year," she said.

"But we don't have enough money to establish a full satellite tour. We don't have enough money to feed the players we have."

Miss Mann said the current economic situation has caused some belt-tightening on the tour but players weren't dropping off the tour because of financial reasons.

Some tournaments last year aren't back this year and some sponsors also have discontinued sponsoring tournaments.

In Wednesday's pro-am tournament Sally Little's team tied for first place and won on a scorecard playoff. Her team included Cal Self, Hoyle Granger, Snuffy Smith and Mildred Arnold.

MHS HURDLE RACE — Midland High's hurdle ace Larry Munson shows the form that has helped him win three straight races in the 300 intermediate hurdles this year. He is favored to win the event again this year in the 30th annual West Texas Relays in Odessa's W. T. Barrett Stadium Friday and Saturday.

SPRING TRAINING NOTES

Braves Never Utilized Aaron's Bat Knowledge

Hank Aaron gave some advice on hitting to the Milwaukee Brewers when rain wiped out practice at Sun City, Ariz., and that's something Henry never got to do when he was with the Atlanta Braves.

"The Braves were too busy worrying about their jobs. Maybe they felt I would take one of their executive jobs. I feel I could have talked to some of their young players the way I did here, about disciplining themselves and their approach to the game," said Aaron. "But nobody asked me to."

Aaron went on. "I didn't talk about mechanics. I talked about my approach to hitting, some of the adjustments I had to make. Harvey Kuehn is the hitting coach. I'm not here to make a 250 hitter out of a young player like Robin Yount or a Johnny Briggs or youngsters like Charlie Moore and Darrell Porter."

Baseball makes strange bedfellows. Back in the 1960's no Brooklyn Dodger fan thought his feelings toward Sal "The Barber" Maglie would be anything but hate. But that was when he was pitching for the New York Giants and before he was traded to Brooklyn.

And what Los Angeles Dodger fan ever thought he'd be cheering for Juan Marichal, the same Marichal who hit Dodger catcher John Roseboro over the head with a bat while Juan was a member of the San Francisco Giants and a 20-game winning regular.

But the Dodgers, with Tommy John still doubtful after surgery, need a fourth starter and took a chance that the ex-Giant could fill the bill by signing the 36-year-old Marichal.

While most of the Dodgers approved, catcher Joe Ferguson was suspicious. "I don't think he can pitch any more. It looks more like a publicity thing to me."

Once the mainstay of the Pittsburgh pitching staff, Steve Blass still is having trouble finding the plate, but if he doesn't locate it by the end of spring training, he probably won't have any trouble finding another job.

Blass, blasted in a 7-5 loss to the Phillies Tuesday, will try out for a tv sportscasting job in Pittsburgh. Still, Steve's first love and hope is baseball.

"I was pleased with my breaking pitches," he said. "Now I must concentrate on getting my fastball over the plate."

Blass also received encouragement from manager Danny Murtaugh. "He told me that this wasn't a make or break thing. He told me I was too old to worry about such things."

State Golden Gloves Tourney Set Tonight

FORT WORTH (AP) — Thirty-seven former champions lead a field of 135 amateur boxers into the 30th State Golden Gloves Tournament Thursday night.

Although the lineup is packed with trophy winners, only two will defend in their weight class. Fort Worth light-midweight Ray Phillips and Dallas bantam Tommy Young.

Phillips, who has won the light-middle crown the last two years, faces a tough road in the four-night tournament. Also in his division is Eloy Benitez of Amarillo, who has moved up after winning the state welterweight crown two straight years.

Another hurdle will be Dallas' Robert Hurtado, who lost a close decision to Phillips in the finals last year.

The granddaddy campaigner in the tournament is Wichita Falls' Pat Ozuna, who first came to the state meet as a flyweight in 1967. He won the lightweight crown in 1969, lost in the finals last year and will challenge for the same championship this year.

The top seeded heavyweight is San Antonio's Barry Yeats. He skipped last year's tournament, but won in 1973 and went on to the finals of the national tournament.

One of the top challengers is Fort Worth's Frankie Washington, who unseated last year's state champion, Robert Williams, in the finals of the Fort Worth regional tournament last month.

Boxers from 15 cities will compete for the team title, won by Fort Worth the last five years.

Rich Coggins, whose pursuit of a law degree isn't designed to keep him out of trouble resulting from one of his frequent thefts, figures he can steal more bases for the Montreal Expos this year than the 28 he pilfered for Baltimore last year.

"I feel like I can steal many more . . . Under the system that Earl Weaver ran in Baltimore, there wasn't much room for the stolen base because he had all those guys with power to drive in runs," said Coggins.

"If his on-bases percentage is as good as it was in 1973 I'd say 50 stolen bases would be the minimum," Manager Gene Mauch.

Coggins, who batted .282 in three years with the Orioles, is taking pre-law at Towson State in Maryland. "Baseball comes first during the season," says Coggins, "and law doesn't yet."

Baltimore Signs SMU's Mike Smith

DALLAS (AP) — Center Mike Smith, the offensive captain of the Southern Methodist Mustangs last fall, has signed a contract with the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

Smith, an Odessa Permian product, was a 14th round draft choice of the Colts.

The 6-foot-3, 235-pound Smith played in five games last year before he was suspended by SMU for violation of NCAA rules.

Smith played in the Blue-Gray post-season game at Mobile, Ala., where he caught the eye of professional scouts.

Richmond's Bob McCurdy Captures Scoring Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Richmond's Bob McCurdy is the college basketball scoring champion this year—unless Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley can average over 45 points for the next five games. If he plays five games, that is.

McCurdy, with a 32.9 average, has just about locked up the individual scoring race and it would really take a miraculous finish by Dantley to catch him.

The Notre Dame forward, averaging 30.4, must lead his team to the NCAA's championship game in San Diego on March 31 and average 45.8 in that time to catch McCurdy.

North Carolina State's David Thompson, the country's No. 3 scorer with a 29.9 average, like McCurdy has finished the season. Utah's "Ticky" Burden, averaging 28.7 points a game, is the country's fourth-leading scorer.

Hofstra's John Irving has the rebounding title sewed up. He finished his season with a 15.4 average, ahead of Maine's Bob Warner, who averaged 14.1 this season.

Statistics released by the NCAA also showed that Tennessee's Bernard King leads in field goal percentage with a .524 mark and Seattle's Frank Gleywick is tops in free throw shooting with .889.

Chicago Wants Dolphin Trio

Football

John Bassett Jr., principal owner of the Memphis Southmen, says he will sell Larry Conka, Jim Klink and Paul Warfield if it will save the World Football League. Bassett signed the trio for $3.5 million prior to the WFL's first season. Bassett had earlier made a business proposition to Chicago insurance executive Gene Pullano that would have meant a joint partnership between the two while locating Conka, Klink and Warfield in Chicago for betterment of the WFL.

Bassett withdrew from the possibility of a partnership with Pullano because it was "legally and financially impossible," Bassett said. "Now the only way the Pullano's group can get these three is to buy them outright." . . . More than likely they (the three former Miami Dolphins) won't be playing in Memphis. I'm in a difficult position: Chicago's got a gun to my head, saying if I don't do it (let the three play in the Windy City) the league will not come about."

The lawyer for former pro football player and executive Rommie Loudd said his client will fight extradition to Florida where he is wanted on a fugitive warrant. . . . No one is rushing to buy the contracts of last year's WFL champion Birmingham Americans, offered by the Internal Revenue Service to the highest bidder, maybe because one judge said the contracts are personal and cannot be assigned to someone else when they have been broken. . . .

Texas Tech student Gaylen Rice, 25, filed suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court against the Tech Board of Regents and President Grover Murray challenging the constitutionality of an NCAA rule that bars him from intercollegiate competition. Rice claims the rule that says a player must "complete his seasons of participation within five years" is arbitrary, unreasonable, capricious and not applied uniformly. . . .

Cotton Bowl participants Baylor and Penn State received a record $508,527.95 each for their New Year's Day game, bettering by $66,809.38 the amount paid Nebraska and Texas in 1974. . . .

Basketball

Freshman Patti Driesell is just about the only student at No. 1 ranked Indiana University who isn't quite sure who to root for in the NCAA basketball tournament. The 19-year-old blonde's father is Lefty Driesell, who coaches No. 4 ranked Maryland. . . .

"I'm not advertising," says Frank Goldberg, who has a pro basketball team for sale. Goldberg owns the Denver Rockets of the ABA, but the ABA has asked the San Diego furniture store owner to find a buyer for the troubled San Diego Conquistadors. . . .

Operation PUSH, objecting to exclusion of black college basketball teams, threatened to picket the National Invitational Tournament at New York's Madison Square Garden next week. Rev. Jesse Jackson, PUSH director, said black players on teams competing in the NIT have been urged not to cross picket lines. . . .

Penn Coach Chuck Daly shrugs off critics who say his Quakers, 23-4 and ranked No. 11, fatten up on weak Ivy League teams and then fold in the NCAA tournament. "There are 700 teams that start out the season and now there are only 32," said Daly. "Sure we haven't made it out of the regionals, but a lot of other teams haven't either. It's a one game season now and a lot of things can determine what a team does." . . .

Fifteen years ago Oscar Robertson was the rage of the nation while playing for the University of Cincinnati and Big O may be helping build another Bearcat dynasty. Cincy Coach Gale Casket, whose team plays Texas A&M in a regional game at Lubbock Saturday night, says, "He's definitely a key factor in our recruiting."

Cincinnati, 21-5, starts three freshmen and may be one of the youngest teams ever to compete in the NCAA tourney. . . .

UCLA's Dave Meyers is suffering from a deep-seated Charley horse that is not responding to treatment as the Bruins prepare for Saturday's regional game against Michigan at Pullman, Wash. . . .

Robert Spire, president of Jacksonville University, says, in regard to point shaving allegations, "As far as I know, we are clean as a hound's tooth. I just hope and pray that we are, anyway." . . . Dan Dougherty has been fired as Army basketball coach after a 3-23 mark.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's outburst against the officiating team in the Milwaukee Bucks' NBA loss to Golden State Tuesday was being reviewed by Commissioner Walter Kennedy. Jabbar had criticized, "We could be in third place, but they took us out of the game. I'm not talking about Golden State. I'm talking about the officials. . . ."

Hockey

Several persons were crushed to death at a crowded stadium staircase Monday night in Moscow during a stampede after a hockey game between Canadian and Soviet national teams. Moscow Pravda said a commission had been named to investigate the accident, adding: "The officials who did not ensure proper social order . . . are being made to answer." . . .

Fishing in Amador Lake near Del Rio has been good during the past week and professional guides on the lake are encouraged by the fact that some large bass are now beginning to show up.

Flocks of small bass have been biting all winter and continue to bite rainbows, but the majority of the bass anglers are casting plastic grubs off the deep points and resulted in some large fish catches.

Lake Spence Report

A new record for striped bass caught on rod and reel was established at Lake Spence last week when Arthur Runyon of Robert Lee took a 15-pound, nine-ounce striper, seven ounces heavier than Tom Wright's record catch in December.

The largest striper caught at the lake was an 18 pounder. During the past week, however, Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists netted a 23 1/2 pound striper in a trial survey.

Catches during the week were good and included C. W. Becker, Midland, 4 1/2 pound striper, two blacks to two pounds, two white bass 1 1/2 pounds; Sam Thomas, Midland, a one-pound striper; T. E. Armstrong and Dave and Dwayne Beard, Midland, 26 white bass to two pounds; James Hallbrook, Andrews, 10-pound, 10-ounce striper; Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Armstrong, Midland, two stripers to 11 1/2 pounds; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrett, Midland, 16 white bass.

Wild Turkey Film

TPWD film makers traveled 15,000 miles across Texas and spent 93 days in the field to produce the department latest film, The Wild Turkey in Texas. It's a 28-minute color film and concentrates on two species of turkeys as biologists attempt to expand the range of the Rio Grande and restore Easterns to East Texas where the birds all but disappeared in the early 20th century.

Check Your Boat

Don't be surprised by spring, warns the TPWD boating safety experts. If your boat has sat inactive over the winter, some maintenance is in order, ranging from a few minor checks to important ones that could save a lot of grief.

First, give your boat hull a good cleaning while it is still on the trailer and be sure to drain any standing rain water. Wooden boats should be stripped of all old and cracked paint and be repainted. Fiberglass hulls should be cleaned thoroughly and given a coating of wax. This helps the boat slip through the water, producing both speed and fuel economy.

Safety equipment should get more than just a quick nod. For example, your personal flotation devices by law must be serviceable. Yank on the straps: if the fabric tears, it's rotten and the device should be replaced.

Other checks should be made on running lights, horn, fire extinguisher, engine and, last, but maybe not least, the wheel-bearing on your trailer.

New Record Stripper

A new Texas record for striped bass, 27 pounds and five ounces, was certified by the TPWD on a catch made by John Smith, Pottsboro. The catch was made while plugging in the Red River below Denison Dam at Lake Texoma in December.

DORAL GOLF—

Trevino Is Ready For Next Tourney

(MIAMI AP) — Lee Trevino has everything going for him. "It always gives you a bit of confidence to win your first tournament of the year," he said, "and ticked off the things in his favor."

"I always play good in Florida. "I'm playing a golf course I like."

"The weather's hot. "I'm playing good."

And the bubbly Trevino, the current PGA and World Series of Golf champion and the winner in last week's Citrus Open, ranked high among the favorites for the $50,000 first prize in the Doral Open Golf Tournament that got underway today on the 7,625-yard par-72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

He would like nothing better than to steal the scene from the continuing series of confrontations between Jack Nicklaus and the young man who threatens to supplant him as the game's No. 1 performer, Johnny Miller.

Both were absent last week. "They should have played," Trevino said with a hint of annoyance. "If they'd been there, maybe I'd have played better."

But he quickly turned his attention to this event. "That's the only thing that's important now," he said. His enthusiasm and confidence are at a mid-year peak in the state of last week's victory, but he declined to predict another triumph.

"You never know when the wheels are gonna come off," he said. "But I usually play good in Florida. I'm hitting the ball pretty good right now. My confidence is up. I've got a lot going for me."

But even Trevino, one of the game's great gate attractions, is overshadowed by the third Nicklaus-Miller meeting this year. Neither of the first two was conclusive. They tied for sixth in the Bing Crosby tournament. Miller was 19th and Nicklaus third in the Los Angeles Open.

Miller has won three times this season. Nicklaus has yet to take a title, collapsing in the stretch for a third-place finish in his last start, the Jackie Gleason Classic.

"Of course, I was disappointed," Nicklaus said. "You're always disappointed when you blow a tournament. I had that one in my hip pocket and let it get away."

"But I've had disappointments before. And I'll have more."

Should they falter, Trevino is ready to move.

And there's a strong supporting cast with the uncle-nephew duo of Sam and J.C. Snead, millionaires Tom Weiskopf and Bruce Crampton, defending title-holder Buddy Albin and such young stars as Tom Kite, Tom Watson, Forrest Fezler, Jerry Heard and Ben Crenshaw.

U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

Hughes Television Network will televise portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Texas League Set For April Openers

FORT WORTH, Tex., (AP) — Texas League President Bobby Bragan Wednesday announced the division lineup for the 1978 season.

Jackson, Miss., Little Rock, Ark., Lafayette, La., and Alexandria, La., will be in the Eastern Division.

Western Division teams include Shreveport, San Antonio, Midland and El Paso.

Bragan said, "The Jackson franchise moves from Victoria and Lafayette moves from Amarillo."

The season begins April 11.

PRESENT AND FUTURE — Martha Kent, right, and Sandra McBride, left foreground, will be seen as the present and future wives respectively of a millionaire playboy, portrayed by Glenn Gutman, center, in Midland Community Theatre's next attraction, "Drink To Me Only." Junior High, High School Art Going On View Here Saturday

Art works by junior high and high school students in the city will go on view Saturday at the Museum of the Southwest. The display of art produced under class supervision makes up the second half of the annual Student Art Festival here, sponsored jointly by the museum, the Midland public school system, the City Council of the Parent-Teacher Association and the Junior League of Midland Inc. Scheduled to conclude Friday is the first segment of the art festival, showcasing the output of elementary-level students in the city's public and private schools. That display has been on view since March 1. The second exhibition, to be on display through March 31, will showcase paintings, drawings, ceramics, sculpture and other works produced in junior and senior high school art classes. A series of awards will go to outstanding works by junior high youth, and another series will go to works produced by high school students. Judging the art entries last weekend were Nancy Boone, head of the art department at Lubbock's Monterey High School, and Dixie Strickland, of Mackenzie Junior High School of Lubbock, joined by Herb Cooper, art teacher at Lee High School here. Museum of the Southwest is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each weekday, and 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free.

'Siegfried' To Be Aired

NEW YORK — Richard Wagner's "Siegfried," the third opera in his "Ring of the Nibelung" cycle, will be Saturday's broadcast over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network. The broadcast will start at 12 noon, CDT, and will be heard in the Permian Basin over Station KCRS in Midland, Tex. In principal roles will be soprano Birgit Nilsson as Brunhilde, soprano Betsy Norden as the Forest Bird, mezzo-soprano Lili Chookasian as Erda, tenor Jess Thomas as Siegfried, tenor Ragnar Ulfung as Mime, baritone Donald McIntyre as the Wanderer, baritone Maritus Rintzler as Alberich, and bass John Macurdy as Fafner. Sixten Ehrling will conduct. During the first intermission's "Opera News on the Air," John Cuthbert, music director of the BBC, will continue his discussion of Wagner's "Ring" cycle by presenting an analysis of "Siegfried." The second intermission will offer radio listeners an unusual feature — a discussion about the problems sometimes arising between composers and their librettists in writing an opera. The panel directing its attention to this interesting situation is to include several operatic authorities.

Texas Student Film Festival Set

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TRIBUNE, THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1978, PAGE 11C

AUREN — The Texas Student Film Festival, an annual gathering of young movie-makers and their teachers, will be held here April 19-21.

The festival, sponsored by the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education, will take place at Housa Hall on the school's campus in South Austin.

Dr. Donald L. Williams, UT Austin professor of the arts, will introduce the festival with a discussion of "The Artist as Filmmaker" on April 19 and will show examples of his own film work.

A workshop in special effects will be presented by Neil Ward and Sam Hardy of Housa Hall, on April 20. The teachers-filmmakers are authors of a practical workbook in the field, "The Electric Media." Additional workshops will be presented on animation and film.

This year's festival will offer six categories: General, which includes 16 mm or super 8 film with a maximum 15-minute length; One-reel, a super 8 modified 16-foot reel; Commercial, 16 mm or super 8, one minute long; Animated, 16 mm or super 8 with no time limit; Documentary, 16 mm or super 8 with a 15-minute maximum; and Foreign Language, 16 mm or super 8 with 15-minute time limit.

Entries in the six categories will be judged in three groups — junior division for grades 7-9; senior division for grades 10-12; and an out-of-state division. Films may be the work of one person or a group, according to Harold Hollis, a Texas Education Agency English language arts consultant serving eight 6th through 12th grade Housa Hall, Texas Education Agency students entered in the Agency, 611 S. 13th Street, Austin, Texas 78704. Additional information on the festival and All entries should be sent to the festival office.

Triple Exhibit On View

ROSWELL, N.M. — A triple exhibition composed of watercolors, sculpture and graphics is the current major presentation of the Roswell Museum and Art Center. The show will continue on view through April 20.

Ceramic sculptures by former Roswell resident Dick Evans are also being featured at this time. Born in Roswell, Evans is an art graduate of the University of Utah. Evans was appointed to the faculty of Texas Tech University as instructor in ceramics in 1966, advancing to assistant professor in ceramics and design. Since 1973 he has been assistant professor at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. He has exhibited his works widely in the U.S.

Also on view at all times at the museum are paintings from the Peter Hurd collection, and paintings from the museum's permanent collection of artists of the Southwest. Also featured are small exhibits of Southwest Indian pottery, basketry and rugs, and pre-Columbian art of Mexico. Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sundays and holidays, including Easter Sunday. The museum is located at the corner of North Main and 11th streets.

Maritime Academy Prepares Students For Lucrative Jobs

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — Students at the California Maritime Academy these days are learning about nuclear propulsion and computer programming and dreaming about $20,000 salaries for six months' work.

There are 300 future Merchant Marine officers — including six women — enrolled at CalMaritime, as cadets call the academy, located along San Francisco Bay's Carquinez Straits.

"I expect to make at least $20,000 the first year," said academy's superintendent, Brandon Gareis, 22, a senior, retired Navy captain who graduated from Pennsylvania Maritime Academy in 1936.

Some in their first year will be making $20,000, said Rizza. "In seven to 10 years, they'll be masters or chief engineers making $30,000 to $42,000. That's not bad."

His hopes are shared by Rear Admiral Joseph P. Rizza, the academy's superintendent, who said he is swamped with job requests he cannot fill, including some from foreign shipping companies, and never has the school received more applications for enrollment, including one from Iran.

"Our graduates in the last two years have had two or three jobs to select from," he said. "I now have requests for 150 jobs I cannot fill."

He says recent studies show that maritime jobs will continue to increase.

Student applications, up to 200 last year from 200 the previous year, are also on the upswing because of improvements at the school and a broadening of the program, Rizza says.

"We train the whole man," he said. "We give the man all great future, a chance to see the world and tremendous responsibilities. They'll be responsible for multimillion-dollar ships carrying dangerous cargo."

The school has changed from a three-to four-year curriculum, paralleling other colleges and universities in such areas as technology, instrumentation and automation and marine transportation.

Cadets graduate with a merchant marine license and a bachelor of science degree in either nautical-industrial technology or marine engineering.

Computer Keeps Tabs On Students

SHELTON, Conn. (AP) — How there's a computer that "talks" to students when they get into class too often.

The new Shelton High School has put an electronic "brain" to work digesting attendance figures from hundreds of classes each week.

The computer singles out persistent absentees and even prints a form letter of warning to their parents when they record six unexcused class cuts during a nine-week quarter.

Thomas Tinsley, director of secondary education, said the first month of electronic absenteeism reporting cut down absenteeism. The parent notices, which include an invitation to a conference with a teacher, "force a lot of communication," he said.

Daily computer records on attendance, now available after the first class period, indicate to teachers who should be in class and discourage cutting of that certain class a student doesn't like.

Guidance counselors can gain an insight on possible student problems when the computer is programmed to give a detailed profile of individual attendance patterns for each class.

A student receives a failing mark for the quarter if he or she cuts 10 or more classes and fails the class after 25 cuts during the school year.

Therefore, the $280,000 computer also prints automatic parent notices when either 10 or 25 cuts are recorded. The savings in time and money have been impressive. The computer has reduced the time of preparing attendance lists from seven hours to 45 minutes and the process is expected to take only 11 minutes when the bugs are eliminated.

Officials plan to record student marks on the computer, thereby saving more clerical time. It will also be used to keep track of the school budget.

Downtown Lions Club Members Hear 'Little Miss' Trio

The first place winner, the first runner-up and other selected top talent in the "Little Miss America" talent contest held here last weekend, performed for the Midland Downtown Lions Club at its Wednesday noon meeting in the American Legion Hall.

"Little Miss Midland," herself, Janet Stone, did the song and dance number which won for her first place honors in the contest. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Stone.

The contest's first runner-up, Julie Ann Gallagher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billie J. Gallagher, was presented in a baton twirling routine.

Tammy Gardner, daughter of Mrs. Janice Hodges, attracted loud applause with her song in sign language routine.

Another highlight was a tap dance number performed by Dawn Kloor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kloor of Big Spring.

Aretha McGruder, "Midland's Little Miss" of 1974, also was presented in the vocal number which won second runner-up honors for her in last year's state competition at Waco. She also was a contestant in the world pageant. She is the daughter of Mrs. Shirley McGruder.

Adding spice to the program was a specialty dialogue routine featuring David Slaughter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Slaughter, and Lion Duke Jimerson, who served as master of ceremonies for the program.

UTPB Still Looking For President

ODESSA — Wanted: President for two-year-old upper-level university. Applicant may contact Advisory Committee at University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

A notice similar to the above may well begin appearing in national academic publications following Wednesday's meeting between UT System Chancellor Charles LeMaistre and the Odessa university's Presidential Search Advisory Committee.

Dr. Taylor Sims, committee chairman, said following the meeting that the selection process for a permanent president for the school will be operational within a week to ten days.

The presidential post was vacated in December upon the resignation of Dr. B. H.

Amstead, Dr. V. R. Cardonier is president ad interim.

All 13 members of the advisory group attended the session with LeMaistre and Mike Quinn, assistant to the chancellor. Discussion centered around the general operation of the Advisory Committee in relation to the Selection Committee, which is chaired by LeMaistre.

The chancellor charged the Advisory Committee with recommending several qualified candidates for the chief UTPB administrative spot. The advisory group is to select from the applications the candidates they feel will qualify and invite the applicants for interviews on the campus. There the candidates will meet with both committees.

According to LeMaistre, all screening of potential candidates will be done by the Advisory Committee.

Both the chancellor and Sims emphasized the need to complete the selection process as quickly as possible. "However, each candidate will be given a thorough screening," Sims said.

City officials now must locate facilities to serve as a station.

Mayor Tom J. Vandegriff said Amtrak officials are expected here soon to discuss a location.

Howard Officers Continue Search For Six Women

BIG SPRING — Howard County deputies continued their search today for six women, "thought to be gypsies," in connection with the robbery of a liquor store here Tuesday.

Employees of Kent's Liquor Store, on Interstate 20 near Big Spring, told deputies that $700 was missing from a small unlocked case after the women stepped in the store.

Deputies said that the women distracted the employees by asking prices of merchandise.

The women were described as wearing long dresses, aprons and sweaters and reportedly spoke little English. Four of the women appeared to be "in their twenties" and two were described as middle-aged.

They were last seen walking east on a service road.

5-Cent Chocolate Bars Now 20-Cent Imitations

By JOE HUGHES
Copley News Service

What this country needs is a good 5-cent chocolate bar.

What it's getting, however, are more 15-cent — even 20-cent — bars.

And fold the chocolate.

The sweet smell of success in the candy business is no more.

Just ask many of the worried and troubled 3,000 candy men who attended the recent National Candy Wholesalers Association convention in San Diego, Calif.

Here's what worrying and troubling the candy men.

Prices of such candy ingredients as sugar and cocoa beans continue to be high.

Chocolate Too Expensive

Some "chocolate" bars no longer are even using chocolate. Costs too much.

One state senate has launched an investigation into the cost of candy products.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is investigating contents of such candy as licorice for "dietary hazards."

The high sugar cost has forced some candy manufacturers to search for ways to convert such things as sawdust pulp and paper mill fiber effluent and newspaper into sugar.

Are you ready for the Sawdust Bar?

Some Good News

With all the bad there is some good, say veteran candy men.

"During bad times, people eat more candy," contends H. J. Bornhoff Jr., vice president of sales for the Nabisco Confectionery Co.

"Just look around large office buildings downtown and see all the candy wrappers," he says. "People are eating candy bars."

They are skipping the more expensive lunch bars.

Bornhoff pushes Nabisco's favorites such as Sugar Daddy, which has provided added revenue for such promoters as Bobby Riggs and Evel Knievel, who eat his products in public.

"Positive Approach"

"We are taking the positive approach," says Bornhoff.

"We are telling people candy is a good, nutritious food, taken in moderation. It's a pick-me-up."

But when you ask such sellers as Bornhoff what's in his candy, he goes on the defensive, a habit of candy men.

"Look on the wrapper," he says.

The FDA and the Massachusetts Senate are doing more than that.

Licorice Under Fire

FDA officials are probing the contents of various licorice and licorice-related products.

A preliminary FDA report shows "no evidence in available information that demonstrates or suggests reasonable grounds to suspect a hazard to the public when licorice is used at levels now current and in the manner now practiced."

The report goes on, "However, additional data is needed to determine if a significant increase in consumption would cause a dietary hazard."

As to what to do in the stumping industry, the candy men twist figures to show their best side.

"Profits are up; business is good," said Bornhoff.

No matter there was a drop — for the sixth straight year — from a 1968 high of 20 pounds per person.

No matter candy prices have doubled, even tripled, in the year.

Contents Kept Secret

No matter some company executives refuse to reveal what they are putting in their candy.

Witness the recent testimony of Peter Paul president Lloyd Eaton who denies his company is coating its candy with a chocolate-brown substitute made from cotton. He will not say what it is.

"It's contents we haven't divulged," he says. "I'm not sure what it is."

The old chocolate bar, in most cases, is chocolate no more, with cocoa beans rising from 21 cents a pound to $1.10 a pound, to outpace sugar in the candy ingredient derby.

Cancer Benefit Bridge Event Set Here Friday

The competition here will be a part of the international game that will include players in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Bermuda.

All players will play the same hands throughout the competition area, according to Mrs. James N. Allison, chairman for the benefit game here.

Players who would like to participate in the Friday game and need partners should contact Mrs. V. V. McGrew, director of the game.

Competitors here will pit their skills against the world's best players who are entered in the

Airport Revenue Bond Bill Passed

AUSTIN — The Senate passed and sent to the governor today a bill that will allow Midland to issue bonds to put tunnels at its regional airport for passenger boarding.

The bill was co-sponsored by Rep. Tom Craddock and Sen. Pete Stetson, both of Midland.

The bill revised a population restriction from current law that designated which cities may issue airport revenue bonds. The old population bracket was 500,000.

Message From State Police: Slow Down!

By The Associated Press
Slow Down

That's the message state police are trying to get across to motorists who are speeding up as the energy crunch eases and the memory of gasoline shortages starts to fade.

One year after the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit went into effect on a nationwide basis, an Associated Press survey shows police in some areas are giving out almost twice as many speeding tickets as they were a year ago. Authorities are using radar, special patrol cars and even helicopters to try to slow things down.

Most officials said motorists were driving more slowly than they did before the 55 m.p.h. limit was imposed as an energy conservation measure. But they are driving faster than they were last year.

"We feel the public is stepping their speed back up for some reason," said Maj. J. L. Fuqua, commander of the Alabama State Troopers, but he added that at least people weren't going 80 or 90 m.p.h. the way they used to.

Fuqua said the number of accidents, injuries and fatalities is higher than last year, but below 1973.

"We have everybody out there we can rustle up," said a Michigan state police official, discussing enforcement of the 55 m.p.h. limit. He said that a spot check in May 1974 showed an average speed of 58.8 m.p.h. By September the average was 60.4 m.p.h.; by November, 61.3.

A spokesman for the Arkansas state police said compliance was good in the first months after imposition of the new limit. "It was the thing to do," he said. "Then the news went off."

He said the number of speeding tickets was up, partly because of the use of a seven-man squad of police cars that moves from area to area, enforcing the 55 m.p.h. limit.

New York State Police said they made 14,176 arrests for speeding in January this year — up 78 per cent from the 1973 figure. They also said a survey showed the average speed on interstate roads dropped from 63.9 miles per hour in 1970 to 58.7 in 1974.

The Washington State Patrol said 22,900 speeding citations were issued in 1974 — more than double the 11,000 citations handed out in 1973. But officials said motorists were violating the law at safer speeds, helping cut the death toll.

They said that the people who drove 80 m.p.h. when the limit was 70, now are driving 65 or 70 m.p.h. A motorist who drove about 10 miles on an interstate highway at 55 m.p.h. was passed by only three cars.

West Virginia State Police are using two helicopters to watch for speeders and said people generally are slowing down. There were 33 traffic deaths this February, however, compared to 24 in the same month a year ago and motorists trying to drive 55 m.p.h. spotted many cars going 10 or 15 miles an hour above the limit.

The 55 m.p.h. limit went into effect in Virginia in November 1973, four months before the national deadline. A state police spokesman said motorists "haven't really slowed down to that speed, but they've slowed down perceptibly."

The Virginia police are making greater use of radar and deploying more men on the highways to catch speeders, but people still are traveling faster than they were a year ago.

The State Department of Highways and Transportation said a stretch of Interstate 95 showed that when the limit was 70 m.p.h., the average speed was 78 m.p.h.; in December, 1973, the average speed was 63 m.p.h.; by last September, the speed was back up to 65 m.p.h.

Mississippi Highway Patrol spokesman Tom Sadler said people were observing the new limit "reasonably well. I think they're accustomed to the speed that we're letting them travel — say 65 on the interstate and 60 on the secondary system. Personally, if I'm speeding, it kind of makes me feel sheepish. I feel bad. Like I'm doing something wrong."

Col. Herman Oiler, commander of the Georgia Public Safety Department, said: "Troopers around the state tell me traffic has slowed down, but you won't find but about 25 per cent of the people driving around 55 m.p.h. and they really average about 60 m.p.h."

Congress passed legislation late in 1973 requiring states to lower the speed limit on interstate highways to 55 m.p.h. by March 4, 1974 or face the loss of federal funds. All states complied.

The Department of Transportation reported early this year that fewer persons died on the nation's highways in 1974 than in any year since 1963 and officials urged intensified efforts to enforce the lower speed limit to save lives.

Wisconsin Highway Safety Coordinator John Radloff said: "We'll do everything we possibly can to keep the 55 m.p.h. speed limit. It contributed to the saving of 240 lives on our highways last year."

State police say the average speed has gone up about 1.5 m.p.h. during the past year to 60.4 m.p.h. on interstate highways.

Increased availability of gasoline is one factor in the higher speeds. The Federal Energy Administration reported Tuesday that there is 10.4 per cent more gasoline in oil company holding tanks this year than there was at the same time last year.

Cypriot Negotiations To Resume

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Greek Cypriots have agreed to resume negotiations with the Turkish Cypriots under the auspices of U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

There was no indication, however, when the talks would get under way.

The Security Council unanimously adopted a resolution Wednesday evening calling on Waldheim to convene the new talks on the political future of Cyprus "under his personal auspices."

Later both sides announced their willingness to comply with the resolution. The Greeks had been demanding that Waldheim be named chairman of the talks, but the Turks refused to give him that much of a role.

The Greek Cypriots broke off negotiations with their island's Turkish minority on Feb. 15 after the Turks proclaimed a separate state in the 40 per cent of northern Cyprus which the Turkish army occupied last summer.

U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali claimed some credit for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who met abroad recently with Greek and Turkish officials, as well as for Council members, other governments and Waldheim.

Turkish Cypriot representative Vedat Celik termed the adopted resolution unacceptable because it referred to the Greek Cypriot regime as the "government of Cyprus, which we do not recognize."

But "we are ready and willing to continue negotiating with the Greek Cypriots under the new procedure," he said.

Greek Cypriot representative Glafcos Clerides said he interpreted the resolution to mean the secretary-general has the special responsibility of directing and participating in the negotiations.

He told the council: "We will cooperate with the secretary-general in his efforts. In this new procedure, to give a new impetus, a new momentum, to free negotiations for a solution of the Cyprus problem." But he complained that the council "in its desire to compromise, to take measures which would offend nobody, may have compromised the very existence of the Republic of Cyprus."

The Greek Cypriots won a point when the council president, Costa Rican Ambassador Fernando Silescu, stated after the vote that the council felt it would be most practical if the talks "were normally to take place" at U.N. headquarters.

That is where the Greek Cypriots wanted them, to afford a close U.N. connection and offset the pressure of the 40,000 Turkish occupation troops in northern Cyprus. The Turkish Cypriots, as Celik reminded the council, wanted the talks to remain in Nicosia.

He said the council: "We will cooperate with the secretary-general in his efforts. In this new procedure, to give a new impetus, a new momentum, to free negotiations for a solution of the Cyprus problem." But he complained that the council "in its desire to compromise, to take measures which would offend nobody, may have compromised the very existence of the Republic of Cyprus."
