Low Fat Dishes Answer To Heart Disease Prevention

Delany News Service
 Impoverished as a leading factor in the development of coronary heart disease is now widely accepted by the medical community.

The major culprits are fatty substances (lipids) called cholesterol and saturated fats. Cholesterol is manufactured by the body from the saturated fats that have been eaten. Cholesterol is also present in the animal foods we eat and is absorbed into the bloodstream during digestion.

When too much lipid circulates in the blood, however, as in the condition called hyperlipidemia, the excess gradually deposits into the inner walls of the arteries, much like silt depositing in river banks.

This atherosclerotic process (hardening of the arteries) continues over the years, gradually decreasing the inside diameter of the blood vessels. When a narrowed coronary is finally blocked completely, usually by the heaped-up lipid plaque or a blood clot which may form on the rough lipid deposit in the wall of the artery, the heart muscle itself is deprived of the oxygen-rich blood it needs to do its work. This is the classic "heart attack" or myocardial infarction.

Today's main dish recipes are a good way to put into practice the low-cholesterol prudent meal plan.

BREADED FLOUNDER FILLETS

1 lb. fresh or separated thawed frozen flounder filets
 1 lemon
 One-half tsp. salt
 One-fourth tsp. pepper
 One-half cup dry bread crumbs
 One-fourth tsp. paprika
 One-fourth liquid egg substitute
 One-fourth cup polyunsaturated oil
 Mix salt, pepper, bread crumbs and paprika. Dip fish in liquid egg substitute, then in crumb mixture, coating well. Heat oil in skillet.
 Add fish and saute over medium heat until fish is lightly browned on both sides and flakes easily. Makes three servings. Serve with lemon wedge.

Dear Abby Tooth Fairy In Reverse

— By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am employed at a very large convalescent home. One of the elderly residents here lost her dentures, so with a pillow case in hand, she crept into the rooms of the other occupants while they were sleeping, and picked up each pair of false teeth from the water glasses. She then returned to her room and tried each set until she found one that fit her. She then sneakily returned any set of teeth to the water glasses.

The next morning, everyone was walking around the place with overbites and underslug jaws, complaining bitterly that their dentures didn't fit.

How do we straighten out this mess? Or must we buy new dentures for 100 residents?

DENTURE DILEMMA

DEAR DILEMMA: Call in a dentist and ask him to examine the mouths of the patients and the dentures, in order to return them to their rightful owners. I am told that denture-marking kits are available. Get one, and use it, before another tooth thief gums up the works again.

DEAR ABBY: What do the experts say about children sleeping with their parents in case of divorce? Please be explicit.

I have been keeping company with a 44-year-old divorced man for three years. He has three daughters, aged 13, 11 and 8, and he feels it is all right for them to sleep with him until the age of 10 or 11. I don't.

When the girls visit him overnight, they ask to sleep with him, and he sees nothing wrong with it. The 11-year-old shared his bed until only recently, and the 8-year-old still does. The little one is seeing a psychologist weekly, and her mother is seeing a psychiatrist regularly, which I hope is beneficial to both.

My friend is a very kind and sensitive man who would not intentionally hurt anyone, but I feel that he is off his mark with regard to bed-sharing. What do you say?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: I agree that a father should not encourage daughters of this age to share his bed. Not only could this have conscious (or unconscious) sexual overtones for the father as well as for the daughters, but it also tends to foster a dependency in the children that is not in their best interests.

The fact that one of the daughters is in therapy underscores these points, but they could be equally true for the daughter not in therapy. At the very least, I would expect that this "well-meaning" father would check this matter out with his daughter's therapist.

DEAR ABBY: The wife and I are having an argument. We received a crate of fruit this morning. It was a gift from her parents who vacation in Florida every winter.

The box contained oranges and grapefruit. Half the grapefruit were rotten, and only two oranges were worth keeping. We threw out the rest.

I say her parents laid out good money for that fruit and we should tell them what condition it arrived in. She says there is nothing they can do about it, so why make them feel bad?

Whose side are you on?
STEVE

DEAR STEVE: Yours. And there IS something they can

WHAT IS THE TRUTH?
 "Thy Word is Truth" (John 17:17)
 by Bryan Boal

On the last day Jesus will be revealed from heaven, "inflicting vengeance upon those who do not know God and upon those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus" (II Thessalonians 1:8). Not wanting that fate to be mine, how do I obey the gospel?

The New Testament tells me that salvation comes through God giving his Son on the cross. I must become aware of that fact and have faith in Jesus. Faith comes as I accept the preaching and teaching about him (Romans 10:17). I obey the gospel when in faith I repent and am baptized. A passage such as Acts 2:38 or 22:16 shows me that. Obeying the gospel therefore is acting on my faith in Jesus to decide to serve God completely. It includes using the rest of my life for Christ, obeying his teaching (Romans 6:17).

With this understanding obedience to the gospel of Christ become the most important issue in my life.

House Panel Weighs Program To Defer Gasoline Tax Hike

By TERENCE HUNT
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The energy program being drafted in Congress may defer higher gasoline taxes until states first have a chance to save fuel through some type of allocation program, says Chairman Al Ullman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

However, Ullman predicted that an allocation program is doomed to eventual failure, and higher gasoline taxes are inevitable. He has proposed a plan that would increase the gasoline tax up to 37 cents a gallon by 1980 on gasoline beyond a basic weekly nine-gallon allotment. The federal tax now is four cents a gallon.

Possible Experiment
 Ullman said Sunday that the possible experiment with state allocation programs would be a means of "putting our (tax) program in place." Once the allocation program "breaks down, you trigger in the gasoline tax. There's a possibility of doing that," he said.

Ullman's committee has been negotiating with Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb to reach a compromise between congressional energy programs and the oil import fee increase imposed by President Ford. Zarb said last week the administration and the committee are "in 60 per cent agreement on an energy program."

In the past Ford has strongly opposed a gasoline tax increase. Higher gasoline taxes also face some heavy Democratic opposition.

Ullman indicated the allocation plan was being considered as a compromise maneuver to win support for his gasoline tax proposal.

Up To States
 He disclosed that the state allocation program now under discussion would call for the administration to reduce oil imports and then give states a specific allocation. "Then you let the states use all the conservation measures that they can use in order to get by with what they've got," he said.

States probably would try such techniques as closing service stations on Sunday, Ullman said on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers."

In another energy development, a congressional survey said that automatic price hikes granted to electric and gas utilities last year because of increased fuel bills cost consumers about $6.5 billion, more than all the rate increases granted in the previous 25 years.

Fuel Adjustment Clause
 Fuel adjustment increases, now a common clause in most utility tariffs, represented the bulk of nearly $10 billion in rate increases granted to utilities last year, said a survey released by two Senate Government Operations subcommittees.

Elsewhere, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. said the federal government will continue to seek enforcement of the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit. Highway deaths have been reduced by 9,400 since the 55-mile speed limit was established, Coleman said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

Advertise Or Be Forgotten!

COURTEOUS?—Yes, Elmo Linebarger, the Midland County tax assessor-collector, does extend what he calls a check-writing courtesy to the taxpayers who pick up their license plates at his office. But some checks have bounced, which Linebarger admits makes him unhappy and a bit perturbed. And his past record on collecting the cash or the tags backs up the red-on-yellow office sign. But he may discontinue honoring personal checks; about half of the state's tax offices have, says Linebarger: "I hate to penalize 95 per cent of my taxpayers because . . . 5 per cent . . . gave hot checks." April 1 is the deadline for buying 1975 vehicle plates. (Staff Photo by Charles McCain.)

Chopper Pilot Does Double Duty

SONG BA RIVER, South Vietnam (AP) — The weary refugees dash through the long grass and across the scorched sand flats of the river as the helicopter passes just over their trapped caravan. They run frantically in small groups, clutching babies and bundles, waving scraps of cloth.

"Here! Here! Take us! Take us!" they scream. But their voices are lost in the roar and throb of the chopper.

LA, Vinh Hieu is in anguish as he scans thousands of upraised arms.

"God, please let me find something I can handle," he pleads.

The 25-year-old gunship pilot spends half his day trying to kill as many of the enemy as he can and the other half trying to save as many refugees as he can. He regrets the number of both is not greater.

"I have to find a small group" of refugees, he says. "I cannot let them mob the chopper or pull it down. Then nobody will be saved."

Back and forth Hieu hunts over hundreds of buses, trucks, three-wheel taxis, cars and motorbikes, over thousands of waving people clustered under poncho roofs on truckbeds, LA, camped under bushes on the sand flats, bathing in the shall-low river. The army engineers are trying to throw up a causeway to let them move on.

The refugees, exhausted by an eight-day crawl through mountain valleys, falling from hunger, heat stroke, exposure, fever and North Vietnamese mortar fire, are strung out along the river.

They say hundreds have been left by the wayside, victims of wounds or disease or fatigue.

The helicopter pilots take food out to the refugees each morning, some from the government and some they have collected themselves. But it feeds only a tiny fraction of the tens of thousands on the move.

Suddenly, Hieu sideslips and lands with a thump. He has spotted a farm family under a tree. A quarter of a minute later he is airborne again with 14 refugees aboard and dozens more clutching vainly at his skirts. The gunner pulls out of the leg pocket of his flight suit and passes them around.

The refugee women weep. The men grin and shake the pilot's hand. The children huddle silently under their mother's arms.

Hieu figures there is room for two more. The problem: Finding them. Hieu's copilot, LA, Nguyen Duc Lien, waves and searches, waves and searches.

Two girls are washing by the riverside. Numerous other refugees are 20 yards away. The girls walk away from the landing chopper.

"They want to stay with their families," says Hieu.

Two little boys, apparently not understanding, run from the helicopter and fall into a bank of grass.

Now fuel is too low and Hieu and Lien can hunt no more.

The flight back passes a small hill. On its way out a chopper spent 10 minutes firing M rockets and 12,500 machine-gun rounds against dug-in Viet Cong who are blocking the road.

"I don't know why they shoot like that at civilians," says Hieu. "I guess they want to force people back into the Highlands. They don't want to govern empty cities."

Idaho Inventor Claims Super Economy Compact

POST FALLS, Idaho (AP) — A Post Falls inventor says he has developed an inexpensive subcompact commuter car that can travel 39 to 55 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Donald Stinebaugh's 1,270-pound car, called the Leata, is currently being test-driven by 20 local motorists. Stinebaugh says he could turn out two Leatas a day on 15-worker assembly lines in three shops and fourties here and in nearby Spokane, Wash., but he wants to make sure all the bugs are out of the 56-inch-high, 115-inch-long auto before going into full production.

No Laboratory Tests
 No independent laboratory has tested the Leata to back up Stinebaugh's mileage claims. He cannot legally sell the car until it meets auto emissions standards set by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

He says he has 1,300 orders and plans eventually to sell the pre-seat coupes for $2,895 piece — $101 less than the 1975 Ford Pinto.

The Leata, named after Stinebaugh's wife, has a four-cylinder, four-cycle 50 horsepower water-cooled engine. It reaches speeds of 70 miles an hour but is most economically run at 48 to 55 m.p.h., Stinebaugh says.

Fiberglass Body
 It has four-speed transmission, heater, radio, front and rear window defrosters, radial tires, chrome trim and 5 m.p.h. crash bumpers. The steel-reinforced fiberglass body is carried on a steel tubular frame mounted on a 70-inch wheel base.

Stinebaugh says the 50-mile-per-gallon mileage figure he cites is a result of the car's light weight and the combustion chamber he has designed for a ratio of 13 parts air to one part gasoline, compared with a 15-1 ratio for most other engines.

He says he hopes to manufacture Leatas commercially beginning in June with a production target of 1,000 to 1,500 a year.

"I'm not sure I want more than that because I want to stay in handmade cars," he says.

Haldeman Says He Erred Originally About Tapes

NEW YORK (AP) — Former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman says he recommended that the White House tapes not be destroyed because he failed to consider the "enormous damage" they would eventually do to him and President Richard M. Nixon.

In a paid-for interview shown Sunday by CBS, Haldeman said the question of destroying the tapes was broached once in his presence by Nixon. He said he suggested to the President the tapes had historical value and would aid Nixon in knowing what had been said in his office.

"I should have realized that as a practical matter that the release of the tapes was not good," Haldeman said. "And when it got to the point of having to release them, or of having even to consider the possibility of releasing them, they should have been, in my opinion now, should have been destroyed."

"I never, stupidly, didn't really think the thing through to the point of realizing . . . the enormous damage that would be done to me and Richard Nixon," he said.

The tape recordings were instrumental in forcing Nixon's resignation and in Haldeman's conviction on cover-up charges stemming from the Watergate burglary. He was sentenced to 30 months to 8 years. Haldeman is appealing his conviction.

Morality Assessment
 Asked to assess the morality of bugging conversations when most of the speakers were unaware of the eavesdropping devices, Haldeman said, "Morally, I would say that given what we know now, and what happened, it was a disastrous thing to have done."

Haldeman also said he thinks all the tapes should be made public.

"We have not heard one-tenth of one-thousandth of one percent of the tapes and they're pretty bad."

Valuable Area
 "There are areas of those tapes that would be enormously valuable to the American people to have . . . know the great things that Richard Nixon did, the great, strong, incisive and decisive leader that he was 90 per cent of the time."

The interview with Haldeman has raised controversy because CBS paid for it. The network refuses to say how much it paid but estimates have ranged from $25,000 to $50,000. The other networks have issued statements saying they could foresee no circumstances in which they would pay for an interview.

Sculpture Triggers Las Cruces Hassle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major reaction to the sculpture, a congressman says he's investigating the wisdom of its purchase and the government says, "You'll get used to it."

"It" is a $23,000, bright yellow, welded steel sculpture in front of a new federal adobe-style office building in Las Cruces, N.M.

"When the object first appeared, people apparently only were questioning the taste of the General Services Administration," wrote Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M., in a letter to GSA administrator Arthur Sampson.

But when the price was reported, constituents "began questioning the use of their tax dollars," Runnels said.

Runnels added that "even the mayor of Las Cruces has been quoted as stating he would sign a petition to take the sculpture to the dump."

Sampson replied to Runnels with a two-page letter explaining the qualifications of the sculptor, William Goodman.

Sampson also explained that "abstract public art generally experiences an initial reaction of outrage followed by an

LONDON (AP) — Ambassador Elliot Richardson wants to be President of the United States, according to the Sunday Times magazine.

"I suppose it's like climbing Mt. Everest: if you're a mountaineer, it's the most demanding," Richardson was quoted as saying. "I've had experience in various forms of public service for so long, I'm sure I would feel this would—more than any other possible role—demand every ounce of experience and ability, energy and stamina that I could give it."

Good Grief!

Bureaucrats do some of the most ridiculous things . . . and yet they pretty well control the life style of most Americans today.

T. Driskell, writing in Saturday's San Angelo Standard-Times, points out most vividly a bureaucratic decree which brings all this to mind.

Perhaps you are one of those who wrote to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C., expressing opposition to the proposed ban on the manufacture and sale of handgun ammunition.

Driskell points out in his column that he expressed his opinion on the subject in a letter addressed to the commission.

And what did he gain by his action? Why, he learned that "some minor bureaucrat had decreed that citizen comments and opinions should be in five copies—mind you, FIVE COPIES. A 'one' will get you ten that if your comments and opinions were not forwarded in sufficient copies (I sent one) it will be regarded as sufficient cause to disregard our comments and opinions."

Isn't this one for the books? It is an outrage! How much longer will Americans put up with such ridiculous edicts issued by inexperienced, often uninterested bureaucrats who forget that they are working for the public.

Driskell says that he is violently opposed to control of handguns, as are many other persons. And he doesn't think too highly of the organization which is trying to sneak through handgun control through restrictions on the manufacture of ammunition. But chances are his pet hate at the moment is the bureaucratic decree for five copies. His feeling is justified.

The commission, as he points out in his article, is holding the hearings under order from the federal courts on a petition of The Committee for Handgun Control of Chicago . . . but this five copy business is something else.

"Have you ever copied a letter five times in longhand?" Driskell asks.

This requirement practically rules out many rural residents and others who undoubtedly would like to express an opinion in this regard, but who will not attempt it under the five copy requirement.

It is suggested, however, that if you do send your five copies, it would be just as well not to abuse the commission. Opinions should be stated simply and briefly—with emphasis—in five copies.

But it would not be out of order to apprise your U.S. senators and representatives of your feelings concerning this five copy business.

It is a doggone shame when citizens have to express personal opinions on a particular subject to THEIR government—in FIVE copies.

But it would be even worse if citizens should be ordered to give up their guns to the government.

Cambodia Crisis Revives Domino Theory

By L. EDGAR PRINA

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — It has been fashionable in recent years, particularly in liberal political circles, to scorn the so-called "domino theory."

That pastime may soon become passé, as rapidly unfolding events appear to be breathing new life into the idea first symbolized by the domino by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the mid-1950s.

In essence, the domino theory holds that, if the United States does not stand against Communist aggression in Indochina, the states of Southeast Asia might very well be toppled, one by one, by Red forces outside or within their borders.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, for one, has declared with feeling that the domino theory has been "overly discredited." A look at the situation in that part of the world today would support his view.

— Communist Khmer Rouge forces are blasting at the gates of Cambodia's capital city of Phnom Penh, which is being largely kept viable by an American-chartered airlift of food and ammunition.

— U.S. intelligence officials have recently begun to see parallels in the present North Vietnamese buildup and military action in South Vietnam with those before the Tet offensive of 1968 and the major Communist drive in 1973.

— Pressure is building up in Thailand for a speedier-than-planned withdrawal of American military forces and aircraft from that country, which borders Cambodia and Laos.

There are approximately 25,000 U.S. servicemen on duty in Thailand today, about half the number there at the peak of the Vietnam War.

— Laos, of course, hardly could be called "free." It is called "neutral," rather loosely. Ruled by a coalition government, its strongest force is the Communist Pathet Lao, backed by Hanoi.

Whether Congress votes the $222 million in military aid for Cambodia requested by President Ford, or half that amount, or none of it, the days of non-Communist rule in that country appear to be numbered.

The Ford administration hopes for something of a small miracle: that the U.S. aid in food and ammunition can sustain the anti-Communist forces until the July rainy season begins and then, with enemy pressure reduced because of the flooding of the countryside, government military units can lick their wounds, regroup and convince the Khmer Rouge they should negotiate a settlement.

This is, of course, possible, if not very likely. The Communists have been

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Deep in the ocean off the Bahamas, the Navy four years ago lost a supersecret Mark 48 torpedo that the Soviets were eager to get their hands on.

The circumstances were reminiscent of the crisis the Soviets had faced in 1968 when one of their subs sank in the Pacific with secret equipment aboard. Last summer, the Central Intelligence Agency recovered part of the sub but lost the section that contained the secret equipment.

Navy sources now say the 18-year-old Soviet sub was obsolete and had little intelligence value. But this was not true of the missing Mark 48, which had been built by hand for sea trials under the tightest security.

At a cost of $1 million apiece, the torpedoes were designed to track and strike enemy ships with lethal accuracy. They could be fired from U.S. submarines and destroyers far away from the target ship.

But in the early tests, some Mark 48s purred so loudly that the sound threw the sensitive tracking mechanism out of whack. Others suddenly plunged into a dive or swerved off the designated path.

The Soviets, apparently aware of the wayward wanderings of these early sophisticated Mark 48s, dispatched trawler spy ships to the Bahamian area. They tried to monitor the tests and, if possible, to snare one of the top-secret torpedoes.

The capture of a Mark 48, of course, would have advanced the Soviet torpedo technology by years and would have taught them what countermeasures to use against America's deadly undersea weapon.

Then one day, as the Navy nervously watched the Soviet intelligence ship in the vicinity, a Mark 48 nose-dived to the bottom. It settled in an ocean hole about 6,000 feet below the surface and there was no way to self-destruct it. News of the loss was flashed secretly, to the Pentagon and the top brass held urgent meetings to decide what to do. We got an inkling of what had happened and reported on May 23, 1971, that a Mark 48 had "got away" and that it had thrown the Navy into "a panic."

We quoted a Navy source as confiding to us: "We were afraid a Russian sub would get the thing."

Now we have dug out the rest of the story, which the Navy has suppressed for four years. The Pentagon brass anxiously discussed how to keep the Soviets from retrieving the misfired Mark 48. "We were in a stew," a Pentagon official now recalls.

It first was proposed that an attempt be made to recover the precious torpedo, much as the CIA tried last summer to bring up the lost Soviet sub. But oceanographic and salvage experts, who were brought into the secret meetings, questioned whether recovery would be possible in water more than a mile deep.

In the end, the experts agreed to fish and figure it would implode," explained a participant in the secret meetings. "We decided it would cave in on itself because the pressures were so great down there. Even if the Russians got it, they would've wound up with no more than a lot of very expensive scrap metal."

Recrimination For Indochina Forecast

WASHINGTON (KFS) — With Communist forces closing in on Phnom Penh, disagreement between the White House and Congress over aid to Cambodia is not really a debate over whether that poor, wounded country can be saved.

More likely, we are witnessing the opening round in the critical 1976 battle to assign domestic political blame for the fall of Indochina.

South Vietnam also seems to be on the brink of expiration, and by 1976, it may well have collapsed, especially with Congress unwilling to vote increased U.S. financial aid and supplies. Then, with Indochina gone, the already apparent domino reaction will escalate. U.S. influence may crumble in Thailand, Malaysia and the Philippines.

By itself, this is an unhappy prospect, but history suggests that the most important tumbling dominoes could come in U.S. politics. White House strategists believe that the American people will hold the liberal Congress responsible for any debacle in Indochina. Top congressional leaders, in contrast, say that there is little support for sending more aid because our citizenry is fed up with Southeast Asia. They cite Yankelevich and Gallup polls showing, respectively, only 7 per cent and 12 per cent support for increased assistance to Indochina.

In a sense, both sides may be right. Most Americans oppose U.S. re-involvement in Southeast Asia because of fatigue and conviction that the struggle already has been lost. Yet these psychologists don't rule out subsequent anger and backlash. Bear in mind that popular recrimination is cheap — it involves no U.S. commitment, cash or reaching the continental United States. Yet the Drug Enforcement Agency has only eight full-time agents assigned to cover Puerto Rico. An additional 300 Puerto Rican narcotics officers have such poor liaison with federal authorities that a top Puerto Rican official complained: "We get the same requests from different (federal) agencies which appear to be unaware of each other's activities."

These are the findings of House Coast Guard Chairman John Murphy, D-N.Y., who has submitted a confidential report to the parent Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

Much of the deadly narcotics are smuggled out of Colombia to an almost deserted island off the Puerto Rican coast known as "Isla Caja de Muertas," but called "Coffin Island" by narcotics agents. Swift motor boats haul the drugs to secret landing spots on the Puerto Rican coastline. Since Puerto Rico is U.S. territory, they can be smuggled to the mainland without customs examination.

So short-handed are drug enforcement officers that they had to stand by helplessly while a boat, loaded with narcotics, recently slipped ashore and unloaded its deadly cargo.

The confidential Murphy report presents a vivid picture of the terror and bloodshed that the narcotics trade has brought to the once peaceful island of Puerto Rico.

"The drug traffic is so intense in Puerto Rico," states the Murphy report, "that during the first week in January 1975, of the dozen homicides listed in San Juan . . . half were linked to warring factions of organized gangs dealing in the multimillion-dollar drug business."

Murphy reported there were 17 narcotics enforcement officers killed in Puerto Rico in 1974. One high official arrested two traffickers and "some rocks (were) thrown on the roof of his home in the evening, and he opened his front to investigate. As he looked up toward the roof, a shotgun was put under his chin and his head was blown into the driveway."

Cars Top Killer List

The Associated Press reports that traffic accidents, as usual, drew the blame for the greatest number of violent deaths in Texas during the first weekend of spring.

The Associated Press tabulated reports of at least 10 fatalities between 5 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, including 11 on streets and highways.

Among the victims were: Kenny Ray Grison, 18, of Fort Worth was killed early Sunday as a car rambled into a bridge support there. Another youth escaped with minor injuries.

Pedestrian Fatality
 Bernice Paulene Chapman, 61, was struck and killed by a car as she stepped off a curb Sunday in Houston. Police quoted witnesses as saying the woman was walking home with an armload of groceries when she was struck by the car that did not stop.

A Hawley youth, 17-year-old Timothy Earl Paxton, died Sunday afternoon when his motorcycle collided with a car about 3 1/2 miles east of Hawley, which is 10 miles north of Abilene.

Dallas Shootings
 Bill and Norma McElrath were found shot to death Saturday in their North Dallas home. Police said Mrs. McElrath, 30, was shot once in the face and twice in the stomach and her husband, 39, was found with a bullet in his brain. A .25 caliber pistol lay next to McElrath's body and police said a note was found in the den. Friends said he had been despondent over financial matters.

A Pleasant Grove man was shot and killed and another man arrested after a backyard argument, Dallas police said. John L. Morgan Jr., 33, was shot in the chest during an argument over ownership of an automobile, officers said.

Pecos Woman Stabbed
 Dorothy Johnson, 62, of Pecos was found dead at her home Saturday with multiple stab wounds.

Raquel Ramos, 5, of Lubbock was killed Saturday when she was struck by a car in Fort Worth. The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geronimo Ramos, had been playing across the street from the home of friends and was returning when the accident occurred.

Bobby Patton, 25, of Houston was stabbed to death at a Houston bar early Sunday. Police said a woman was sought.

Jimmy Wayne Adams, 23, and Otis Malco, both of Port Arthur, were killed Saturday when their small foreign car and another vehicle crashed head-on between Port Arthur and Beaumont.

One-Car Fatalities
 Cynthia Anderson and Loreta Shores of Corsicana were thrown from an overturning car and killed Saturday when the vehicle ran off Farm Road 1126 in Navarro County. Two companions, Jeffery Bonner of Waco and James R. Arp of Corsicana, were injured.

Russell J. Harrell, 44, and his daughter Roxanne, 8, were electrocuted accidentally Sunday evening on a farm one mile northeast of Hereford in the Texas Panhandle. Officers said Harrell was felled when he brushed a high voltage line with a piece of irrigation pipe and the girl died while trying to pull him clear.

Mario Reyna, 31, drowned Sunday afternoon in a pond 3 1/2 miles east of Los Fresnos in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The body was recovered by his brother Carlos.

Mystery Chutist Has Close Call
 DALLAS (AP) — An unidentified parachutist narrowly escaped death Sunday when his descending chute became entangled in high-tension power lines in North Dallas.

Witnesses said he was hanging in his harness about 30 feet above the ground, slipped free and landed on his feet. The chute, freed of his weight, then billowed free and blew into a field.

The mystery jumper folded his chute and departed before police, an ambulance and a rescue team arrived.

Nickel has two passenger vans to seat 12 to 15 people for rent on a daily or weekly basis. Excellent for camping trips for groups or when taking family outings.

Also for customer convenience Nickel has just completed the addition to the Service Department, added a complete new Paris Department and expanded the Body Shop.

With the expansion of the body shop Nickel is gearing to do big truck body repair along with the regular size cars and trucks. Visit the newly renovated

Korff Says Nixon Could Have Saved Southeast Asia
 NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Rabbi Bernard Korff says the collapsing condition of Southeast Asia is proof how badly America has suffered without the leadership of Richard M. Nixon.

Korff told a cheering fundraising group on Sunday that the nation was heading for isolationism because of inaction which "could give Red China and Russia dominance of the world."

Korff has been appealing for funds to help pay Nixon's legal fees. He said he was $15,000 short of the final goal of $150,000. He spoke at a $10-a-plate dinner attended by about 300 persons.

Army Says Future Women GIs Must Be 'Markspersons'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has decided that all women soldiers donning their new uniform after June 30 must become qualified "markspersons" with the M16 rifle.

Although women are barred from serving in combat units, the Army said it feels they should be trained to help defend their supporting outfits if emergencies arise while they are stationed overseas.

Marine Corps, Air Force

The Marine Corps reportedly is considering a similar step, although it probably will be on a selective basis determined by a woman Marine's assignment.

In the Air Force, weapons training for women is a voluntary matter. The Navy has its Waves fire 22 caliber rifles and revolvers, but only to familiarize them with the weapons.

The Army said voluntary rifle training for enlisted women has been part of their basic instruction since last August, but that about one-fifth of the girls have chosen to stay out of it.

"Therefore, the voluntary weapons program did not fully meet the Army's need to have all its soldiers adequately trained and a change in policy was required," an Army spokesman said when asked about reports of the switch.

June 30 Start

All enlisted women joining the Army, National Guard or the Army Reserve after June 30 will be required to become qualified with the M16 rifle. They will be told of this before they sign up, the Army said. There are about 40,000 women in the Army.

Women already in uniform or in the reserve forces will not be required to take rifle training during their current enlistments. But they will have to do so if they want to re-enlist.

Women officers also will have to undergo what the Army calls "defensive-type weapons training."

Combat Still Taboo

Meanwhile, the Army stressed that "women will continue to be precluded from assignment to units having a direct combat mission."

In recent years the Army has widened the range of military specialties open to women.

But the services still refuse to allow women to enter West Point, Annapolis and the Air Force Academy because they say the mission of those schools is to prepare leaders for combat.

The issue has been tested in the courts, but so far the ban has been upheld.

Tito Bags Bear On Hunting Trip

Ford Defends CIA's Submarine Try

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In his first public comment on the subject, President Ford has defended the CIA attempt to raise a sunken Soviet submarine.

Ford spent 40 minutes with five Los Angeles Times reporters at the White House and the story and the text of his remarks were published in Sunday's editions of the Times.

At the start of the interview, Ford complimented the newspaper for an editorial that called the project one of "the greatest exploits in the history of espionage."

The reporters said they had nothing to do with the editorial, but wanted to question him further on the project, which was carried out by a sophisticated ship owned by billionaire reclusive Howard Hughes.

Ford commended the news media for initially withholding the story and praising the project editorially. The President refused to elaborate on the project, explaining that to do so would violate his orders to administration officials not to discuss the matter.

Last summer, the Hughes-owned Glomar Explorer retrieved part of a nuclear-armed Russian submarine which exploded and sank off Hawaii in 1968. A second mission had been tentatively authorized for this summer.

Ford spent much of his interview with the Times discussing what he termed the "very disturbing" situation in Southeast Asia. He said the United States must re-examine its policy in Southeast Asia.

"I think we have to take a new look because these changes in Vietnam, in Cambodia, in Thailand and potentially other countries require that very serious study be given to how we meet the new circumstances there," the President said.

He added that the deteriorating military situation in South Vietnam a "very sad thing," and he blamed the current crisis on Congress for failing to appropriate $300 million in additional aid he sought.

In the interview, the Times reported Ford said he will also — "Maximize" his cooperation with congressional committees investigating the CIA and FBI, but said he has made no decision on whether he might invoke executive privilege to prevent them from taining certain documents.

—Put off "as long as I can" the establishment of a re-election organization because "I think its existence would tend to undermine the credibility of whatever decisions I make."

He added that he expects Vice President Rockefeller "to be on the team in 1976."

—Possibly veto the tax cut bill that Congress is likely to send him this week if it calls for what he considers too large a reduction in taxes or contains too many extraneous amendments.

Pope Paul Reads Palm Sunday Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI officiated at Palm Sunday Mass in St. Peter's Square, opening Holy Week for Roman Catholics.

The 77-year-old pontiff dedicated the open air Mass to the youth of the world, calling on them to be "bearers of faith and joy, bearers of palms, the symbol of the new spring."

East put up the king of spades at the first trick, and South won with the ace. Declarer had two easy tricks in each suit, and his best chance for a ninth trick was in clubs.

Considering himself quite an artist, South led a low club from his hand and played a low club from dummy. South meant to lose this trick, of course, and he succeeded. It was the only success he had.

East returned a spade, and South stepped up with the queen of spades. Then South led another club to dummy's king.

Breaks Record

When the clubs failed to break, South broke the record for the sitting jaw-drop. There was no ninth trick.

South should start the clubs by playing the ace and king. If nobody shows out, declarer can continue with a third club.

Actually, South finds out that the clubs are not going to break. Now he must play for a 3-3 break in diamonds. He takes the king of diamonds and deliberately loses the next diamond.

South can win the spade return and lead a diamond to dummy's ace. When that suit breaks favorably, dummy can

Ford Advisers Eye Setting Up Outside Election Committee

By MARGARET SCHERF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some political advisers to President Ford are discussing the possibility of setting up a committee outside the White House to run his 1976 re-election campaign.

However, presidential counselor Robert T. Hartmann said in an interview Sunday night he does not believe a decision has been made on the matter.

Former President Richard M. Nixon has blamed his Watergate troubles on the fact that he did not run his own re-election campaign in 1972, leaving it instead to the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Hartmann asked whether a separate committee to run Ford's re-election effort might not bring back bad memories of Watergate, replied:

"I don't see that it has anything to do with that. We don't plan to break into Democratic national headquarters."

Hartmann, a longtime political adviser to the President, said he has taken no stand on whether a separate committee should run Ford's re-election campaign.

"The problem of what happens before the convention is one that has been talked about, but I don't think any decision has been made," he said. "I don't agree or disagree with

Princeton Captures NIT Cage Title

NEW YORK (AP) — You don't have to be great to play basketball for Princeton—only smart.

The slowest Tigers proved Sunday that brains were far better than brawn while winning the 36th National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

"This team is smart and courageous and how can you beat brains and courage?" Princeton Coach Pete Carril noted with smug satisfaction after his "textbook" Tigers whipped the Providence Friars 80-60 in the title game.

To be sure, Sunday's victory was a clinic in basketball—were Princeton's first three victories in the tournament.

When Providence went into a full-court press in the first half, the Tigers broke it by running with the ball. When Providence went into a zone defense in the second half, Princeton killed it by sitting on the ball.

"They sure know what they're doing out there," said Carril. "They're a terrific bunch of kids."

The Tigers became the first Ivy League team in history to win the NIT—and they did it with stunning impact. Rarely has one team done so much with so little in a season.

"I don't remember the odds ever being so big against a team I've coached," said Carril. "We lost our first string center early in the season and we were down to 10 men, seven straight victories.

"The difference between the Ivy League and the rest of the country is that it doesn't get a lot of publicity," said Carril.

"Now we can laugh at all those other teams because we're winners," grinned Ramati.

The Tigers took charge of the game behind Tim Van Blommestein midway through the second half. The Princeton guard scored 23 points and came off the bench to ignite a rally after intermission that provided the knockout blow over the riling Friars.

The Friars, who beat Clam-son, Pittsburgh and St. John's on the way to the final, hung in until the Tigers outscored them 19-8. Van Blommestein had nine of the points. That provided Princeton with a clinching 73-59 lead with 3:27 remaining.

Mickey Stauffer scored a game-high 25 points for Princeton, many of them at the end of the game.

Dynamic Ron Lee, who scored 31 points in leading Oglethorpe to an 80-76 overtime victory over St. John's in the third-place game earlier Sunday, was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

EARNs TWO-STROKE VICTORY— Ziegler Gets Paid For Tourney Crown

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Larry Ziegler peered at the check in his hand.

"It looks okay," he said, then wiped the smile from his face and, in mock-seriousness, observed:

"But I ain't got it to the bank yet."

The last time he had won a golf tournament, in the 1969 Michigan Classic, he didn't get to the bank. He didn't even get a check. When the tournament was over and Ziegler was a winner, the sponsors discovered they didn't have enough money to pay off.

He got it eventually. The Tournament Players Division of the PGA paid him from their funds in two delayed installments. It won him the nickname "Half-Pay Ziegler."

But it was full pay this time, last round, the last time with a 25-foot birdie putt on the fifth hole.

But he bogeyed the next, missing the green, bogeyed the seventh and hit out of bounds on the 12th. He finished far back with a closing 75 and a 284 total.

"I never really put it together. It was like I was fighting an uphill battle," he said. "It looked like everybody was waiting for someone else to make a move. As it turned out, Ziegler was the one who did it."

He did it with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 13th hole, a 30-foot-er on the 15th and the dramatic chip-in for eagle on the 16th, putting Ziegler two strokes ahead of the field.

Mike Morley bogeyed the last hole for a 70 and tied Mac McLendon for second at 278. McLendon had a final 68. Lou Graham matched the course record, as did Ziegler, with a 65 and was fourth at 279. Tied at 280 were Andy North, Wally Armstrong and Tom Shaw.

Ziegler, a member of the board of directors of the St. Louis Blues and a sometimes stick boy for the NHL team, credited his mentor and close friend Doug Ford with a major share of his success. Ford is a former Masters and PGA champion.

It was the third time this season Palmer had been in position to win. And it was the third time he'd failed. He hasn't won since the 1973 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

It's even more frustrating because he gets so close. He was in strong contention for a first three rounds. He twice shared the lead early in the

Ali Favored Over Chuck

CLEVELAND (AP) — Boxing takes a 35-mile trip over a rolling road to seeming nowhere tonight for another bizarre Muhammad Ali benefit.

You have to be here to believe it.

"I am like oxygen—oxygen is all over the world," says the bombastic Ali. "Any man who challenges me is challenging the world—he has to be out of his head."

The challenger is a big, mustachioed booze salesman named Chuck Wepner, who until a couple of months ago was little known outside the dimly lighted saloons of Bayonne, N.J.

He could be the longest shot in heavyweight title fight history. Odds have been quoted from 10-1 to 100-1. Las Vegas refuses to make book on it.

Wepner, a hulking 6-foot-5 with a reputation for facial skin that will crack like delicate china and countless bar room brawls, appears awed by his sudden thrust into the center of boxing's stage and the guarantee of a $100,000 pay check, but he gives no indication of being frozen with fright.

"Ali was a great fighter once but is going downhill," he says. "The champ's got fast hands but slow legs. I will stop him in the 13th."

Some of his closest associates wonder if he believes it.

The 15-round fight, the first defense by Ali since regaining the crown with a knockout of George Foreman last October in Zaire, Africa, is part of a unique electronic doubleheader representing a $2.3 million gamble by promoters.

The show begins in New York's Madison Square Garden at 8:30 p.m. CDT with a creditable heavyweight matchup between Jerry Quarry and Ken Norton, guaranteed $185,000 and $100,000 respectively, for their 12-round battle.

From there, the closed circuit TV cameras shift westward to the $25 million Cleveland Coliseum, a modern 21,000-seat arena which the builder seemed determined to hide from the populace. It is located in the hinterlands, 35 miles from Cleveland, reachable largely over one-lane, roller-coaster roads.

Spectators purchasing tickets at the Garden and the Coliseum will see one fight live and the other on giant screens. The price range for the main event here is $15 to $250. The Garden has a $40 top.

All is guaranteed $1.3 million for what most experts contend will be the easiest night's work of his career.

Rumors that the promoters—Don King and Video Techniques, Inc.—were in for a $1 million bath were strenuously denied.

Brown, Partner Win

Jimmy Brown and Vernon Williams teamed up for a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Mike Bustillo and Jeff Bramlett Sunday to win the Midland Tennis Club's Mens Doubles Tournament.

McCraig and Snayley won the B Doubles crown while David Scott and Mike Franck won the C title.
