Scores of motorists were stranded by high waters and hail Saturday night as violent thunderstorms erupted across much of West Texas.

About 50 cars were stranded by waters covering a 5- to 7-mile stretch of Texas 176 near the Martin-Howard County line northeast of Midland, Martin County sheriff's deputies said.

At least three cars were swept off the highway in that area, authorities said. Rescuers shortly before midnight were taking large trucks to the area to attempt to pull out the stranded vehicles.

The farming area south of Terminal in the old Warfield community reported enough moisture to do some planting. But the major farming areas south and north of Midland still need a little more rain before planting would be optimum. Some irrigated producers with pre-watered land are planting cotton. The light moisture was helpful, where it fell, to rangeland, but much more is needed to bring on grass.

A swine educational meeting for interested Midland County citizens will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the county extension office, 218 W. Illinois St. Dr. Gilbert Hollis, area extension swine specialist from Lubbock, and Dr. Del Davis, area extension 11 v e s t o c k specialist from Fort Stockton, will present a program on nutrition and internal and external parasites of swine. This will be good information for anyone interested in swine production and all persons are invited.

Cotton producers are faced with the choice of many available each year for planting Some are the older, more standard varieties and some new ones may be released from time to time. Generally most producers have a preferred variety, which has given consistent performance on their farms. The extension result demonstration program of variety testing has identified varieties that probeen carried out for 13 years and the accumulative data is quite valuable. Irrigated varieties that have been best performers include Tamcot SP-21, Lockett 4789, Lockett BLX and Lankart 57. Western Stormproof has been probably tor that is important in choosing fruiting period. A determinate variety may have only a 28-day fruiting period and if this coin cides with a dry period it may is received. Western Stormproof is indeterminate and has a 50day or more fruiting period. This means it can "wait" for a rain longer. Other varieties that have an indeterminate fruiting habit include Coker 5110, Blightmaster A-5, Western 44, and Paymaster 909.

As gardeners start blanning for the Bicentennial celebration in 1976, there may be thoughts of using annual flower varieties to use in developing a garden planting that will carry out the theme colors of our nation's 200th birthday. Some possibilities are: For sun: Ageratum (blue), Salvia (red), Celosia (red), Dusty Miller (gray to white), Geranium (red or white), Portulaca, (white and red), Marigold (white, it's new), Petuanias (red, white and blue) Verbena (red, white, and blue), Periwinkle (white), Zinnia (red, white). For shade: Fibrous Begonia (red, white), Caladium (white), Lobelia (blue, white). It may take some experimenting this year to get them to reach their peak of bloom at the same

Klein To Receive Special Award

A special award celebrating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Israel Bond program will be presented to Michael L. Klein Wednesday at the Midland Country Club.

The award will be presented by Harold Schneider of Midland, chairman of the Midland-Odessa Area Committee for Israel Bonds.

The award is based on this year's Israel Independence Day commemorative coin dedicated to the 25th anniversary of Israel Bonds which originated at a Jerusalem Conference in 1950 convened by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion to promote Israel's economic development.

Citrus Crop Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of citrus fruit this season is expected to total a record 14.6 million tons, up one per cent from prospects a month ago and 9 per cent above last year's harvest, the Agriculture Department says.

Are You a comparison shopper?

If you aren't, you should be . . . especially when you're buying something as important as furniture. Until you've visited Knorr's you might guess that all the big furniture stores are much the same. The person who has seriously shopped around knows otherwise. That's why she's a regular Knorr's customer. She won't compromise quality for the promise of a lower price on seemingly similar furniture elsewhere . . . not when she knows she can find her kind of furniture at Knorr's for the same price . . . and often for less. But price and quality aren't the only reasons she shops at Knorr's. She knows she can see a much wider selection of better styled home furnishings in Knorr's one huge

Mormon Boss Pressures Workers

DEAR, ABBY: I work in an office. Our boss is a Mormon and will not allow a n y of us to amoke, drink coffee or tea, restrictions I don't mind, but I do resent not being able to have coffee in the office during breaks from the hectic pace of our business.

The nearest case is 15 minutes away, so going there for a cup of coffee is out of the question. Does the Mormon church condone this kind of pressure on non-members to conform to its beliefs? I don't question my boss' reasons for abstaining himself, but his demand that I do so too doesn't seem fair

Meanwhile, this boss thinks he is being morally righteous by preventing us from drinking coffee in the office, but he is carrying on a not-so-secret affair with his secretary. Both of them are married. Does that mean, according to his religion, that I can't drink coffee, but I can still have extra-marital

DEAR DON'T: Your boss is speaking only for himself and not the Mormon church, which stresses that each individual has a right to his own beliefs. Your boss' behavior shows him to be not only a poor boss but also a poor Mormon. NO church condones adultery!

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor, who thinks she knows everything, saw Joshua, my 3year-old son, playing with his big sister's doll. He was cuddling it, rocking it and treating it in a very tender way.

This neighbor told me that I should not permit Joshua to play with dolls because it might make a homosexual out of him.

and trains, but occasionally he plays with his sister's dolls, and I don't see anything wrong with high heels and pretended to "go shopping" with one of my old purses over his arm, this neighbor told me that if I didn't discourage that kind of play, Joshua might grow up to be a transvestite.

Is she right? JACKSON STREET

DEAR JACKSON: No. There's no reason why little boys he may become a father, and babies need cuddling from fathers, too.

And as for Joshua dressing up in your clothes, don't worry about it-unless he persists in this habit, goes in for makeup

DEAR ABBY: Nearly every time I invite my boyfriend over for dinner, he plops himself down in an easy chair right after he finishes eating and falls

He works 10 hours a day and is 43 years old. (I'm 42 and put in a good day's work, too, but I'm not all pooped out right

I've been tolerant of this habit of his for two years, but I have had it. Don't you think he's being selfish and unfair? We discussed it, and he says I should wake him up and keep him awake. I say if he's that tired or sleepy, he should excusé himself and go home.

He says he loves me, but do you think a man can really love a woman and fall asleep in her face nearly every night?

Don't awaken him, and don't chastize him. Insist that he have a complete physical checkup

If he's all right, rejoice! It's proof that he is completely relaxed and at ease in your company. And if you can't see it that way, maybe you'd better look around for more alert,

JOSKE'S OF SAN ANTONIO PRESENTS

A SPECIAL OFFERING OF

ORIENTAL RUGS IN MIDLAND

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, MAY 23-24

10 A.M.-8 P.M. BANQUET HALL, RODEWAY INN, 1000 W1-20

In keeping with Joske's tradition of service to Texas, experts from Joske's of San Antonio's Oriental Rug Gallery will visit Midland with an exceptionally large and choice selection of hand-made Oriental rugs. A wide variety of sizes, colors and qualities will be represented. Iranian (Persian), Indian, Pakistani, Turkish, Chinese and Caucasian rugs will be included in this collection. Joske's experience in collecting Oriental rugs directly from the most remote areas of the world enables these rugs to be offered at low investment prices. Whether you are looking for a palace-size heirloom or a saddlebag woven by Iranian nomads, Joske's experts can assist you in selecting that special rug.

Here is a partial listing of rugs included in this collection.

Next week is National Nursing Home Week. What better time could there be to visit Leisure Lodge? No doubt you know someone there, who would appreciate your personal call. Or perhaps there is one in your family who is approaching the time when professional care is needed ... or maybe even you, yourself. Any of these reasons is reason enough to visit Leisure Lodge this week. For all who live long enough, there comes a time when we are unable to care for ourselves properly. This should not be cause for alarm - on the contrary, it should be looked upon as a time for thankfulness that we are yet blessed with the gift of life at an advanced age. But most of us think we don't want to live in a nursing home - indeed, many of our guests thought they wouldn't like it, at

AND NOW, MOST WOULDN'T TRADE IT FOR THE WORLD! Why? Security, mostly. And companionship. And confidence, on the part of both the guest and his family that 24-hour nursing service and personal hygiene assistance will ALWAYS be provided; that a guest's room will ALWAYS be clean; that he will ALWAYS receive ample servings of the foods he both wants and needs; and that the "extras" will always be there -- snacks before bedtime, and planned recreational activities.

In short, confidence that a Leisure Lodge guest will enjoy all the comforts of home, provided by a staff of cheerful, compassionate PROFESSIONALS in the field of care for the elderly. Come see for yourself during National Nursing Home Week. We'd love to have you visit.

AUSTIN - The Supreme Court of Texas has agreed with lower courts that in Texas oil is measured in barrels and natural gas is measured in cubic feet.

The result of that judicial determination is that L. C. Wahlenmaier of Midland and other royalty owners of two 40-acre oil and gas leases in Ward County will only get half the royalty they would if both were measured in barrels.

Wahlenmaier and others filed the suit asking the district court in Ward County to construe a provision in the royalty interest contract on both oil and gas production. That clause provided that when production was 350 barrels a month or more, the royalty interest holders would get a 1/8 royalty. When production fell below 350 barrels, they would get 1/16th. The court records showed that in. 1971, production of oil from the lease fell below 350 barrels a month. The two tracts were made part of a 640-acre unit, and American Quasar-Sabine Gas Unit Well No. 1 was completed, producing substantial quantities of dry gas. The royalty owners said that the oil and gas together from the two tracts was more than the 350-barrel limit. But the court agreed with American Quasar Petroleum, that oil is measured in barrels and gas in cubic feet, so the contract provision determining the royalty percentage was based purely on oil production.

"I started Aamco Transmissions with $3000 and made hundreds of men wealthy. Now I have an even better idea."

That's Anthony A. Martino talking. He started Aamco on a shoestring and built it into an empire. Today, he heads up another business with even greater potential; auto paintingand refinishing. The potential is greater because practically every car will someday need repainting and body, work. And there's no company in the field with a quality national Image. The market is virtually untapped.

As the owner of MAACO Auto Painting Center, you'll have a substantial cash flow from the very first week you're in business, and every week after that, with net profit yield as high as 25%. And we have the books and cash receipts to prove it. That's because auto painting represents one of the largest, self-perpetuating, yet virtually untapped businesses in the auto industry.

After completion of MAACO's training program, you will be an expert in the management of every aspect of your business. Prior experience is not an advantage. We invite serious inquiry - just meil the coupon below. Right now is the time to act.

The Black Experience: The tilys gone by when thousands of black cowboys played big roles in 'Winning the West' will he reenacted in Boley, Okla., May 24, during the town's 70th birthday celebration and annua rodeo activities.

Mini-relays, street dances barbecues, and an old-timer's rennion, as well as Memorial Day observances will mark a week-long chain of events that hued citizens to Boley. Last year, about 10,000 went to Boley celebrate and to demonstrate that blacks can do their own ing and do it well.

black stars and celebrities from all walks of life will be there, according to the chamber of commerce, a s well as Indian and Anglo celebrants. Also attending will be Tieuel the newly-elected chief of police, Ok'ahoma Gov. David Boren, whose native home is less than 40 miles away, has been invited and may attend. Colorful Heras One will be remin frontier heroes as Deadwood Dick, a black man and one of the more colorful heroes of the Old West. As a cowpuncher,

"Deadwood," whose real name was Nat Love, took part in the long and dangerous cattle drives from Texas to Dodge City, Kan., and other northerly hing cattle centers along the famous Chisholm Trail. For several years "Deadwood" was known as "Red River Dick." Historians have estimated about 35,000 men took part in the great cattle drives that followed on the heels of the Civil War and about one in every three of these cowboys was either a Mexican or a black man. According to Library of Congress files there was even a scattering of black peace officers in the Old West. And ust as one might expect, there were also a few black badmen on the scene - Isom Dart and Cherokee Bill, for example.

Wonderful West Texas: ellringer writes: "Dear Bob: As you no doubt know, a great number of blacks came to West Texas and New Mexico some years ago to work in the cotton elds and in the oil boom towns. eny were from East Texas and neighboring states. A great number did not have formal ducation but they did possess will and a determination to make their lot better. Only in recent years have blacks moved in larger numbers to the larger lowns and cities like Lubbock, marillo, Clovis, Midland, dessa, Hobbs, Abilene and San ingelo. Today, many of these ider pioneers are in their senior ears and the future of their is in the hands of their children. We can only pray that these children will take advantage of their greater opportunities to train themselves for greater service in all fields of endeavor in school and in indus-

Black College Day Dear Mrs. T. N.: It was good n hear from you again and to learn that you and friends are making plans to sponsor a giant Black College Day in your town June 25, to be held n the Windsor Hotel. We cerainly pray that all of West Texas and Southeastern New fexico bellringers will get behind this effort to keep the loors of our struggling black and church-related institutions of higher learning open. It's not that Chamber officials have been purposely neglectful. A thorough job of researching over the past 12 months has made every possible effort to avoid the lades keep coming in so fast, they may discover that someone has made all-state while they are holding the banquet. Just Saturday, it was revealed that Three Tall City volleyballers were named all-state.

- I guess the sum total of the kind of year ill has been, especially for Midland Lee, is that the Rebels' all-around excellence has carned the Maroon color bearers the Odessa American All-Sports Trophy.

The award annually goes to the school that has achieved the highest overall finishing average in District 5-4A competition. Lee not only won football, baseball, basketball and swimming titles, but finished no lower than fourth, and that just once, in This year the award is more representative than ever, since for the first time girls volleyball and swimming are being included, how that more than half the district members participate. Tall City teams have been perennial leaders in both sports for years without receiving their due.

On the subject of the ever-expanding sports scene, particularly as it involves girls, the University Interscholastic League has listed a tentative roster of districts for girls AAAA basketball for 1975-1976.

> He pointed out it was best to establish a program on an intramural basis before competing with schools that already are competing interscholastically. "The Intentions may be good, but the results can be disastrous."

> A couple of weeks ago the Chicago Cubs traded former Midland Cub Matt Alexander to the Oakland A's and the former Grambling College star, who once beat Atlanta's Ralph Garr in a foot race, is doing what the A's hoped Herb Washington would do for them. Herb, of course, was the running specialist hired by A's owner Charles O.

It was a move much-criticized by A's players, who resented having a non-baseball player on the roster.

Alexander's speed paid off for the A's in one game earlier last week and then Friday night he was the difference in a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

Inserted as a pinch-runner in the eighth, Matt stole second, went to third on the resulting throwing error and then badgered pitcher Sparky Lyle into a wild pitch that of 60 schools, bringing the total indicating enabled him to score the winning run.

"It would be nice to have an established team like the Giants in Toronto, but it depends on buying off the lease (the Giants have a lease on Candlestick Park through 1995). The price of a franchise is one thing; it's the hidden price that has to be taken into account."

Patrick L. O'Malley, who heads the Chicago Park District, said he prefers building a new sports complex rather than renovating Chicago's Soldier Field. He said the cost of renovating Soldier Field to allow a 75,000-seat capacity would be about $45 million compared with an estimated $100 million to build a new complex.

The Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers will meet the College Alf-Stars Aug. 1 at Chicago's Soldier Field in the opening game of the NFL exhibition season. . . The clash will mark a resumption of the annual charity game that was cancelled last year because of the NFL Players' Assn.

Although the stadium leases for Minnesota's major league baseball and football teams expires shortly, it appears both teams will stay in Minnesota. Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said, "We don't consider Minnesota a 'troubled' franchise.'' Football commissioner Pete Rozelle said, "We've had 31 franchise moves in the history of the NFL and don't want that kind of situation. We're proud of the stability we've established the last four years." He added the seating capacity of Met Stadium was the lone concern of the NFL.

"I don't believe it," said Houston McTear, the 18-yearold Florida schoolboy who had just flashed to a 9.0 100-yard dash at Winter Haven Friday. "I thought I might be a 9.2, but I never thought I was going that fast." McTear shattered the national high school record of 9.3 with a 9.2 last week and his 9.0 was clocked by three timekeepers with the wind gauge showing an allowable two mph. McTear also won the 220 (21.5), the broad jump (22-81/4) and anchored the winning 880 relay.

Houston Aeros owner Irvin Kaplan is under fire from some minority stockholders, who accuse him of not promoting the Aeros strongly enough in the face of disappointing attendance this season.

"When you have a forced loss because your arena doesn't have the capacity, you either concentrate on building a team or a trained seal act. You can pretend it is a circus and put on all kinds of side shows, but the fans are not going to come back unless there are an avalanche of good seats." Kaplan said all the good seats in the Sam Houston Coliseum (9,000) have been taken, leaving only the poorer end seats. The Aeros averaged 7,000 fans per game in the WHA this season.

Reds' Pilot Counts Players, Not Sheep

Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson says his team's performance during the first month of the baseball season has him counting ballplayers instead of sheep at night.

"Every night, I lay in bed and go over our team and compare it to the others. Every night I come out with the same thing. We're better than some team at six positions, we're better than others in five positions and with only one team — the Dodgers—are we maybe four and four."

Anderson concludes, "That tells me something. Something is wrong. I know at the All-Star game, we're gonna have four guys out there. How can you be .500 with four All-

Cy Young Award winner Mike Marshall, a doctoral candidate in kinesology at Michigan State, says he thinks there's an epidemic of sore arms among youthful pitchers. "I get 10 to 15 letters a week from youngsters requesting help from their sore arms . . . What I think we have done over the past 20 years by using adults rules in children's baseball programs is we have selectively taken the best arms and ruined them."

Marshall noted that he really didn't start pitching until he was 21 and didn't throw the screwball until he was 24, "When I did start to train appropriately, I had no injuries from youth programs.

"Every player should rotate to another position every inning," he suggested, "Then everybody would pitch so they'd learn the throwing arm."

Staubach had ankle surgery last June. "It took me all of 21/2 months to get over the surgery, and meantime, our team was floundering. When I finally could play, we had lost four of our first five and three in a row."

The student advisory committee at the University of Texas at Arlington recommended that the school's football budget be cut from the intercollegiate athletic budget. According to Bill Reeves, the school's new athletic director, the sport is not in danger at the school, at least this year.

The University of Wisconsin fers a study in contrasts.

The school's branch at Madison plays big time college football and projects a profit of between $40,000 and $60,000 this year for the athletic department, which has a budget between $2.7 million and $2.8 million. Six years ago, the depart ment had a $200,000 deficit. But there are fears that inflation again will cause costs to surpass revenue in two or three

Living in the middle of an area known for its abundant gas deposits, it's hard to imagine West Texans threatened by a shortage of natural gas. However, there is the possibility that governmental regulations could create a shortage here. If we are not vigilant, we could see much of our gas supply allocated. to other areas. Or we could see price controls make it impractical for producers to drill additional wells in this area. What can the average citizen do to prevent that from happening? Our sources have been unable to find out how much gold and armaments were abandoned to the Communists in Cambodia. The assets of both fallen governments in the United States, meanwhile, have been frozen by the Treasury Department. This amounts to an estimated $80 million in Vietnamese assets, $4 to $5 million in Cambodian assets.

As the author of one of the definitive biographies of Ethan Allen, Pell has a assion for the past and the symbolic importance that Ft. Ticonderoga continued to play in the nation's history.

Placing the landmark in the context of the nation's Bicentennial celebration, as well as the 200th anniversary of its capture by Allen, Pell points out 155 years preserved it for posterity and how the past can serve as a beacon the public. It surprises just about of hope for the troubled present. everyone to learn that unlike so many

"I think it is one of the greatest moments that has ever come to the American people," he says of the Bicentennial. "I don't like to feel that other people's misfortunes are going to benefit most of us. But I think we have had so much bad news that the American people are ready to celebrate and think of the many reasons why they can be proud of their great nation. We have made a great contribution to the world.

"At this moment the media are concentrating on some of our mistakes and misfortunes, but the fact remains we have brought great benefits to the world.

"And there is no country that has given so much to its people in freedom, above all, as we have.'

In other times such a sincere set of sentiments might seem corny. But the events of the last few years, both at home and abroad, have rudely awakened many Americans to the realization that their leadership, at all levels, has defaulted and failed. The magnitude of such a moral default of leadership is made more compelling when one knows something of the quality and character of the leadership that came before-specifically, when one takes the trouble to visit Ft. Ticonderoga and study the lives of the men who fought for the creation of a new republic two centuries ago. Ethan Allen, for example, was more than just the patriot who led the capture of this strategic stronghold at the onset of the War for Independence.

A descendant of Allen's, Dr. John K. Lattimer of New York's Columbia University, told this columnist an anecdote that illustrates the character of Allen. After his capture of Ticonderoga, Allen himself was taken prisoner by the British. He had originally rallied to the cause of independence after Lexington and Concord because he believed the issue was one of freedom or slavery. Even in prison the British had Allen's body but not his mind.

"In captivity," Dr. Lattimer states. "the British put him on various prison ships and shipped him off to England. And there they made a bit of a tactical mistake, and permitted him to argue with anyone that would come along. They staked him out with a chain in the prison yard and you could come and debate with him about the propriety of the king's policies.

"Ethan was so effective at this. not only from the standpoint of his logic and his points of view, as a matter of fact, he would overpower you physically if you didn't watch out. And he got so good at this the British had to discontinue it."

INSIDE REPORT-Energy Stalemate: Crisis In Government

And ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON - A partisan catand-mouse game played within the House Ways and Means Committee points to permanent stalemate on energy and no major action against a serious menace to this country.

By ROWLAND EVANS

What Ways and Means is doing in its languorous handling of energy tax legislation is drenched in politics. Dominant Democrats are maneuvering for Republican endorsement of a bill unlikely to clear the House itself. The embattled Bepublican minority, in turn, resists such an embrace, preferring a wholly Democratic stamp on a bill condemned to oblivion and perhaps carrying political obloquy for its sponsors. Thus, despite periodic bleats from the White House about an energy compromise in sight, there is little likelihood of legislation to force reduced oil consumption. Confronting a rambunctious Democratic majority recognizing no structured leadership, President Ford cannot even control his Republican minority. Beyond doubt, the energy trouble with committee Republicans. stalemate documents the crisis in government here today.

Advice from Conable and other committee Republicans was firm: play hardball. The committee's Democrats, they told the President, were only trying to entangle him and the Republicans in a bill that could never pass the House. To protect his own eroded authority, they urged, stand firm. Some White House advisers agreed.

But Zarb urged Mr. Ford to give the Democrats one more month. Even more persuasive perhaps was Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, a conservative Democrat with close ties to the White House. He had trouble enough with Congress, Waggoner told the President; invoking executive power would only ex-

Freedom Taken

My manks to you for the Kevin Phillips' editorials appearing frequently on your pages. He is quite reasonable and, therefore, particularly enlightening in face of the darkened light of his contemporaries.

Some years ago I decided that too many intelligent Americans were inclined to be indifferent to the rapid usurpation of their personal freedoms by political "expediency" and "compromise" along with an uncontrollably large and powerpacked bureaucracy.

However, many of these people are becoming aware of the losses of their free choice in many matters, whether it involves their jobs, schools, business decisions, political party preference, homes etc. They are not "free" to choose.

Not only are our personal choices being forfeited to the nonproductive polit-bureaucrats but our money is endlessly and senselessly wasted by their effrontery to legislate their selections of what's best for us. And, since 1932, this expense has grown. The "liberals" new look at the "general welfare" clause in the 1950s has cost the unborn taxpayer a national debt unpayable in three lifetimes! Yet, they still persist.

The blame for all evils is placed by 99 per cent of the news media and 100 per cent of the bureau-cats almost entirely on American business. From whence does all the money come to pay all the polit-bureaucrats and their asinine schemes but from the total of America's business profits?

The only segment of business in America deserving strong criticism is that which, through stage, screen, tv drama and literature (?), purveys both subtle and straight-forward smut or/and anti-U.S.A. attitudes. Historically, from the Greek and Roman empires onward, this culturally inspired element always "elevated" society to its highest level of degradation.

The great majority of businesses need make no excuse for their performance or their existence. Hurray for business! Hurray for profits! Big business and little business are not the listed below the present amount of state loss of Foland, Yugoslavia, China, Vietnam or cheap Mideast oil!

To The Editor: Now that our involvement in Vietnam is over, and Vietnam has been sucessfully conquered at gun point by the Communists, and Watergate is no longer a hot news item, what will the major network news departments try to titillate us with now? Hopefully we will be seeing less of their distorted reasoning and obvious attempts at influence.

Growth Planning Needed

EDITOR'S NOTE: Alan Steelman (R-Tex.) from Dallas is the ranking minority member of the House subcommittee on energy and the environment...

By Rep. ALAN STEELMAN

Special to The Los Angeles Times There is now broad agreement among government and business groups that the United States needs some sort of land-use-planning legislation. Even the administration, wnich opposed the landuse bill currently before Congress, does so on economic rather than philosophical grounds. The United States is curren using land more intensively than ever before, with little or no thought to the consequences. This intense and unplanned use has led not only to an increasing concentration of our nation's population in urban areas (estimates are that 75 per cent of the people live on about 11/2 per cent of the land), but also to a growing consumption of natural resources.

In short, we can no longer operate on the assumption that American land is limitless. It is obvious that the United States requires a system to plan the use of our land.

But how do we do this without violating other basic rights to property? In my view, we must reassert the traditional concept of property rights: Proper balance between the rights of real property owners and those of society as a whole. Some citizens, of course, will argue that property rights are absolute by tradition, but this definition has never been adopted in the United States.

land regulation were used to protect the public health and safety, as well as aesthetic values. And over the years, restrictions have been placed on the use of private property, justified as benefitting society as a whole. What emerges is the concept that no citizen has the right to use his land in such a way as to create a nuisance to his fellows or to endanger the health, safety or welfare of the general public. Landowners, then, are short-term guardians of a valuable, nonrenewable resource. While we must always be concerned with due process and constitutional rights, we must also realize our responsibility to use land wisely and to pass it on to future generations in as wholesome a condition as possible. This, in fact, is the underlying philosophy of any land-use-planning bill worth its

On a working level, such legislation should meet these critieria:

-First and foremost, it should establish a comprehensive planning process that would enable states, in concert with city and county governments, to make land-use decisions of greater than local scope.

-Land-use-planning legislation should provide that plans of individual states be free of substantial federal

-There should be some sort of requirement that federal and federally assisted programs and projects-whether on federal or nonfederal lands-be consistent with state land-use programs.

Early this year, I introduced a bill employes in Texas are exempt clude teachers from the law." don't end up competing with with Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz, from state coverage because Henry Rothell, the TEC ad-college students for jobs as conchairman of the subcommittee on energy they work for political subdivi- ministrator, who requested the struction workers or waiters." and the environment, that would utilize sion of the state. such an approach.

The prospects for passage are good. One reason is the new composition of Congress, especially the House. Among returning congressmen, it is estimated that land-use supporters outnumber those opposed, 183 to 155. New members should increase the margin. The bill has also drawn support from a wide range of trade and public-interest

Yet, despite this broad base of su port, a new obstacle has appeared in the form of White House opposition. The Ford administration supports the principles of land-use planning, but argues that because of America's present economic difficulties, a moratorium must be placed on all new federal spending.

My answer to the administration's economic objections to the bill is simply this: Unplanned growth has a fiscal impact on taxpayers through the loss of prime agricultural land, not to mention billions of dollars spent to save decaying cities and to finance public-works pro-

The evidence is in, and the facts are clear: Our land is being misused and mistreated. Certainly, we can survive in some fashion as a nation without land-use planning. But if we give federal impetus to our state and local governments for better planning, we shall not only survive but also continue to gow in an orderly and prosperous fashion

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Water Development Plan Tied Up

By STUART LONG Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - It must have been at least 40 years ago that a few young journalists sat and listened as a polished former newspaperman, then a lobbyist and now long since dead, told his version of how a rich man came to be governor

They called me in to an office in Houston, handed me a hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and told me to elect him governor," he explained.

. "And while he was buried in the Capitol, they managed to make off with a whole lot of his property because he wasn't tending to his business. They might have got it all if he had been elected to a second term.'

That tale of long ago was brought to mind in looking at the situation on the major water legisaltion so far in this session of the legislature. People who work in water development, trying to make sure that when Texas housewives turn the spigot there's plenty of good, clean water gushing forth, were overjoyed when Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake was elected speaker of the House. Clayton had been head water boy all of his years in the House, and had become the most knowledgeable of all legislators on that subject. Gov. Dolph Briscoe's Water-

Conservation Task Force rushed up its recommendations for a short-range program of state construction of reservoirs to meet the needs of the next 10 or 15 years. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's Water Advisory Councils brought in their recommendations for stepping up water

With Hobby holding the Senate gavel and Clayton the House gavel, it indeed looked like the "year of Aquarius" for the water development fraternity. The only opposition in sight was that of the environmental groups headed by that indefatigable opposer of dams and canals, Ned Fritz of Dallas

But like the target of those Houston business titans of 45 years ago, Clayton may have been "buried in the Capitol" by his elevation to high office.

The keystone to the water development program submitted with fanfare by Briscoe was the proposal to increase from $400 million to $800 million the borrowing power of the Texas Water Development Board. The money would be used to make loans to cities or river authorities to build reservoirs.

Sen. Mac Sherman of Amarillo was able to get the proposal, a constitutional amendment, through the Senate with ease. Then it went, three weeks ago, to the House Constitutional Revision Committee. That committee had been carefully selected by Clayton for a single purpose It was a carefully-balanced group chosen with the idea of getting together a new constitution, and it worked perfectly for that purpose. Texans will vote on that product in November.

But after the public hearing at which criticisms came from both fiscal conservatives and environmentalists, it became obvious that SJR 49, the $400 million bond program, was in trouble.

Those worried looks you see on water developers' faces around the Capitol are due to the fact that there are too many liberals who are often inclined to go along with the environmentalists like Fritz, who doesn't want any dam built anywhere, anytime or by anyone. The full committee will meet sometime Monday afternoon, at the close of the day's session of the House. Rep. Ray Hutchison of Dallas thinks and hopes that it may be the last committee session

One tactical mistake is that Clayton gave his best legislative friend, not only the job of sponsoring the water bond amendment, but also the chairmanship of the House Public Education Committee. So Rep. Tom Massey of San Angelo: has been busy on school matters, not on water matters. It could turn out that electing Clayton speaker has kept him so busy that his first legislative lovewater development-will be lost.

gympasium and a pupilteacher ratio that dips as low as 2-1, Greenwood School is a far cry from the old-time country school house.

Although located 11 miles east of the city, with no "community" to surround it-only a Baptist church and a grocery store dubbed the 'Greenwood Gibson's"-the school district covers about one-fifth of Midland County.

Shaped like the number seven, it sprawls over 144 square miles, bounded on the north by the Martin County line and on the east by Glasseock County.

Two hundred twenty kindergarten through twelfth grade students attend classes at Greenwood School which began the 1974-75 year with a healthy budget of $489,669. The only state funding is the standard per-student allocation and transportation allowance, with $132 worth of salaries and operations compensation on the side.

School lunches are federally subsidized and the rest of the money comes out of the community. How do they do it?

Supt. Mel Williams replies, "There's a few oil wells pumping out there."

School board elections are uneventful. They generate so little excitement, in fact, that last year only 10 people voted.

Prior to this year's election, one candidate was asked by The Reporter-Telegram for a statement. He paused for a moment before replying, "We don't have any issues out

And, as the candidates find no issues to haggle over, nor do they campaign. "We all see each other at the ball

The candidates who are elected to the board set the school's rules which include dress code that bans hair from boys' eyes, ears and collars. Williams concedes there have been "a few battles" over that one.

The trig class, William noted, has only two students. Class sizes at the school generally run small, with trigonometry the smallest and seventh and eighth grade courses the largest having 28 students per class.

'There's no comparison between a large school and small school-both in teaching and attending," the superintendent said.

But, although Greenwood is small, it is growing, Williams pointed out. The average daily attendance during the 1972-73 school year was 171 and during 1973-74, 207. The current enrollment is 220, and the superintendent anticipates an additional 15 students next

The consolidated school was renamed Greenwood and moved to the current site. In 1951, a $160,000 bond issue gave area residents the current elementary building, now disguised with a modern facade constructed when the seventh through twelfth grade facility was built three years

The elementary area contains seven self-contained classrooms, a room for art, office area and an auditorium used for music, play and special events.

A 1952 bond issue for $48,000 also provided the school with a gymnasium. Max Dickerson is elementary school principal.

When Greenwood residents decided they no longer wanted to bus their junior high and high school students into Midland, they passed still another bond issue-this one for $150,000 - to construct a building for the older students.
