September Oil Price Hike Due

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The Iranian government newspaper reported today that the United States and other major industrial countries have agreed that the price of crude oil should be pegged to an index of the major products the oil countries buy from the industrial nations.

Rastakhtiz said following Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlevi's "successful" discussions with U.S. officials over the weekend, special envoys of the United States, France, the European Economic Community, Saudi Arabia and Iran met secretly in Tehran and agreed to hold an energy conference.

The report did not say when the conference would be held.

The shah some months ago proposed that the price of crude oil rise or fall in accordance with the worldwide rate of inflation, as indicated by the world market prices of some 30 other major commodities. Up to now, the United States and other major industrial nations have resisted the proposal.

The shah said in Washington Sunday that the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries probably will raise prices in September to keep up with the rising prices of what they buy.

A White House spokesman denied today that there was any news management in the delay in announcing the casualties.

The new casualty figures from the air, ground and sea operation in the Gulf of Thailand were disclosed Sunday by Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger. On Friday the Pentagon had put preliminary casualty figures at one Marine killed, 22 wounded and 13 Marines and airmen missing.

"The President regrets even one casualty — and he certainly regrets all of the casualties," Nessen said.

Stroke Fells Japan's Sato

TOKYO (AP) — Former Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato collapsed tonight at a restaurant in Tokyo while meeting with businessmen, his secretary said.

He said Sato was in a coma and was being treated by doctors at the restaurant. No other details were available, he added.

The 74-year-old Sato shared the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize with former Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride for his role in promoting peace and stability in East Asia during nearly eight years as Japanese prime minister from 1964 to 1972.

Bus Crash Sends 42 To Hospitals

LIBERTY CITY, Tex. (AP) — A Continental Trailways bus enroute from Shreveport to Dallas crashed head-on with a sports car and overturned Sunday night, sending 42 persons to hospitals, police said.

The bus, carrying 47 passengers including two infants, hit the car which had swerved across the median on Interstate 20 near Liberty City shortly after 10:30 p.m., officers said. The car was cut in half and the bus rolled down an embankment and tipped over.

Two passengers were listed in critical condition and two others were in serious condition at hospitals in Kilgore and Longview. Eleven were in fair condition, said Capt. Pat Patterson of the Gregg County sheriff's office. The rest were treated and released.

"It was pretty rough out there," Patterson said today. "There were many broken bones and one woman had her arm pinned in the wreckage for about an hour. Many of the ambulances had to make two or three trips."

The driver of the car, identified as Patricia Mason, 27, of Kilgore had critical injuries. Her 4-year-old daughter Melaine was in good condition.

WASHINGTON (AP) — But Press Secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford was somewhat puzzled over the slowness in totaling the losses.

"There was no intention to hide the bad news. There was no intention to hide the casualties," Nessen said.

Congress Eyes Weapons Spending, Energy Pinch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major bills on weapons spending and the energy crisis are before Congress this week and the Senate plans to begin a "great debate" on U.S. defense and foreign policy.

The Senate today was considering President Ford's request that Congress lift its cutoff of U.S. military aid to Turkey.

Congress cut off the aid effective last Feb. 5 because of Turkey's occupation of Cyprus, but Ford contends resumption of the aid is needed to bring hope of renewed Cyprus peace negotiations.

In the aftermath of the end of U.S. involvement in Vietnam and Cambodia, a philosophically diverse mixture of senators including Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., will lead what they call the "great debate" on whether America should revise its defense and foreign policy and how.

The debate is to be conducted in connection with a $30.3-billion military weapons authorization bill next month. The House expects to act on its $31-billion version of the bill tonight or Tuesday.

Rather than a "great debate," the House faced votes on specific amendments to cut major weapons systems, withdraw 70,000 U.S. troops worldwide and open up the three military academies to women.

Ford Set To Veto Strip-Mining Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will veto a compromise strip-mining bill, a spokesman for Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said today.

The spokesman for Udall, principal sponsor of the bill and chairman of the House-Senate conference committee that produced its final version, said earlier that Ford had already vetoed the measure.

The President was expected to sign a $405-million refugee aid bill to help resettle more than 100,000 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees and to appoint a committee to direct that effort.

Kleasen has filed a $50,000 federal suit against Travis County Sheriff Raymond Frank and chief jailer Bill Mansell for alleged brutality in jail. Mansell once ordered another inmate to serve Kleasen a sandwich of two pieces of white bread enclosing a dead centipede, Kleasen says.

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., who led House opposition to the bill, said "there is no doubt we can sustain the veto." The Senate passed it by voice vote.

Blackwell has said he does not want to lock up the Kleasen jury.

Jury selection was to begin this afternoon, with 400 prospective jurors scheduled to report to Blackwell's court at 2 p.m.

Bryant said part of the roof and a back room of a neighboring house were blown away in the winds.

A mobile home belonging to Mrs. Maye Richardson was overturned by the winds Sunday night while she was attending church. She lives about three miles east of Cole Park.

The casualties were suffered Wednesday night (Eastern time) when Marines landed on the island of Koh Tang off the Cambodian coast in the mistaken belief that the ship's 38-man crew was being held there.

It later was disclosed that the crew had been put on a fishing boat and taken to the mainland port of Kom Pong Son and a nearby island after the Mayaguez was seized Monday by a Cambodian naval vessel. The crew was later released and picked up by a U.S. Navy ship while the ground and air attack was still underway.

Arab Terrorist Killed By Own Hand Grenade

By The Associated Press

An Arab terrorist was killed by his own hand grenade while apparently preparing to hurl it from a roof into a crowd of students exercising in a schoolyard in northern Israel, police reported.

Teachers discovered the body of a 25-year-old Arab who had entered the school posing as a workman Sunday on the roof of an agricultural college in Acre, police said. Fragments of the grenade were in his hand.

In Lebanon, the death toll of Arab children blown up while playing with an unexploded mortar shell in the border village of Alteroun rose to nine when two of the five wounded died.

Lebanese officials said the shell was fired during a recent Israeli bombardment, but the Israelis denied this. The village was raided by Israeli troops twice last week.

Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin told a cabinet meeting that despite opposition from within his own Labor party, his government will build 500 apartments in the next two years at Sharm el-Sheikh, at the southern tip of the occupied Sinai Peninsula.

Although Israeli officials have often said Israel will never give up Sharm el-Sheikh because it commands the waterway to the southern Israeli port of Eilat, Rabin said the construction plans did not mean Israel was raiding its neighbor.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said he will be speaking at an Arab world united against Israel when he meets President Ford in Salzburg, Austria, on June 1. He told a news conference in Damascus, "I am sure that when I speak to President Ford, I am representing the views of the bigger majority of my colleagues, the Arab leaders."

Sadat made the statement at the end of a tour of Kuwait, Iraq, Jordan and Syria designed to forge a common stand for his talks with Ford.

Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, met Sadat in Damascus and was at his side during the news conference.

Egyptian sources said Arab leaders were agreed that (1) it is no longer realistic to talk of destroying the state of Israel; the effect of American setbacks in

(2) they should get back what Israeli-occupied territory they can by force but explore other avenues, and (3) Sadat should ask Ford to pressure Israel for territorial concessions and agreement to a Palestinian state.

Sadat also indicated he expects a clear outline of U.S. policy from Ford, including whether Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger can still be of use as a mediator and the effect of American setbacks in the Middle East.

Yankee Midwife Predicts Practice Demand Increase

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — of study usually weeds out "Boil some water! Rip up some sheets!"

These cries, supposedly shouted by a midwife about to deliver a baby, are all most people know about midwifery. And, as in most legends, myth rather than truth dominates the picture.

Julia Marcoux of Putnam, Conn., who says she's the only registered midwife in the state, can testify to that.

While she has not practiced in this country, Mrs. Marcoux trained and worked for several years in her native England before coming to the United States in 1955.

"In England, we practiced in the hospitals and were more common baby deliverers than doctors were," she said.

"Very seldom did we deliver in the home, but many movies portray the dramatic portion of work such as ours, and I guess that's how that impression of midwives was started."

She said, "The first month of study usually weeds out would-be actresses."

"After that we have three years of training similar to that of a nurse and one year of intense study and practice in obstetrics, nutrition and total care for mother and baby."

Julia Marcoux of Putnam, Conn., who says she's the only registered midwife in the state, can testify to that.

"The trend toward 'getting back to the natural life' may contribute to the increasing popularity of midwives," she said.

Mrs. Marcoux is the mother of eight children ranging in age from 7 to 18 and is a part-time nurse at a local hospital. She says she's too busy to be a midwife at present.

"It's not an easy profession, because you have to reassure the woman, calm her and concentrate on the delivery all at once," Mrs. Marcoux said.

But she says that "looking at a new life you helped to bring into the world" makes it worthwhile.

Double Crust

When making a pie with a double crust, roll out the top crust, cut several holes in it with a thimble, remove and set these circles aside. When the crust is put on the unbaked pie, rounds are put back in the holes. This makes a decorative top crust and the steam comes out around the circles.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

These Schnorrers Not 'Schnorrers'

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column about people who were always mooching rides, and these moochers were called "schnorrers."

I would like to know where that term came from. We are one of the 100 families in the United States with the name of "Schnorr," and we object to the use of our name with such a meaning.

We hope that the Schnorr families in Oregon, New Mexico, Illinois and all the other states feel as we do and that you get 99 more letters of protest. Thank you.

THE SCHNORRS

DEAR SCHNORRS: The verb "to beg" is "schnorren." In German. From it comes the noun, "schnorrier" — which means "a beggar, a panhandler, a moocher, a cheapate, a chiseler, a bum, a drifter or a borrower. It can also mean a compulsive bargain hunter, a bargainer or an impudent hound."

The above information was "schnorred" (borrowed without permission) from "The Joys of Yiddish"—a delightful and authoritative book written by Leo Rosten.

DEAR ABBY: I have also had it with schnorrers who mooch rides. But when an acquaintance calls and asks if I'm going to a certain affair and I say I am, she immediately asks, "May I ride with you?" Then what do I say?

My greatest objection to these freeloaders is the loss of my personal freedom of movement. I can neither arrive nor leave an event at my own convenience. And I can't choose the route I will take. Even though I may be downtown shopping; I must leave from home because one habitual rider lives near me.

I must also wait until the end of the affair, or until my riders have finished visiting with their friends. I don't have a chance of leaving a few minutes early to stop at the market or do a few errands because I must deliver my riders to their homes promptly.

My car is a two-door. One hefty freeloader who had trouble getting into my back seat said, "When you get a new car, will you please get a four-door?"

I wish I had the nerve to say, "Like fun I will. My next car will be a two-seater!"

WHAT TO DO?

DEAR WHAT: Some people actually enjoy providing others with rides, but since you so

Valiant Women Defeat Weaknesses

By JUNE GALLAGHER
Copley News Service

AURORA, Ill. — The next time you do housework or cook a meal, step outside of yourself. Take a good look at what you do.

Notice how adroitly you walk, bend and stretch, and manipulate tools and objects. You grasp with both hands, pick up and put things down. Notice how easily your body serves you.

That is, unless nature has decreed otherwise.

Some women are not so blessed. Some have crippling physical disabilities and must adapt to what would seem to be almost impossible situations.

They have had to change their work habits because of their lack of mobility.

Watching Helen Zablicor of Aurora, you can't tell she has muscular dystrophy. But if she fell down or stumbled, she would be in trouble—unless there was someone around to pick her up. She uses her cane or walker only when outside the home.

Things just take longer to do at home, she says. And she can no longer pick up a 10-pound bag of potatoes. She waits until her son comes home from high school for that.

To remove a roasting pan or a pie from the oven, she first sits down on a chair and hangs onto the stove. And the table to place it on must be near.

P.P.S. And those of you who have central air-conditioning, just close off some of those rooms in the house you do not use.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

While the air-conditioner is on, you think, "It's getting a little cool, but I should leave it on." etc., do you know that you COULD get out of that ol' proverbial fan, which is by far cheaper to run than your air conditioner. Flip the switch (the fan, not yours); and turn your conditioner OFF and let 'er run! I love my Mr. Fan.

Whew! You don't have that big air-conditioner pulling those dimes out of your pockets every hour on the hour. Right? You betcha you are!

So when my home gets cool, I turn off the switch of my air-conditioner and turn on my little cheap (costwise → less than 15 bucks) fan and let that little old "fellow" himself "save me money."

Know what he does? He takes the cold air which the air-conditioner has given up and circulates "his" air and circulates "their" cold air with his fan.

You'd be surprised what Mr. Fan can do with Mrs. Air-conditioner's air!

They both have each other, but they finally become friends. Believe it or not — and my name or theirs isn't Ripley!

I have cut my electricity bill this way. And by far, too. I am just as comfortable as can be sitting here right now, and letting the Mr. and Mrs. get together. They are not fighting each other, either.

Because Mr. Fan and Mrs. Air-conditioner both know they need each other. They have decided to get married, tomorrow! And so I am going to buy a dime-store wedding ring for those two loves this afternoon, and tell them that it was sent from you with congratulations. O.K.?

Besides anyone who can join hands and smile should. Don't you think so?

So let's you and I join hands with our fan and the air-conditioner and the electric company. O.K., pals?

I send my love for today.

Helen A.

Dear Heloise:
For those who sew and want to make a look-alike patch pocket, try this method.

Make a cardboard pattern, the exact size of the finished pocket.

Lay it on the wrong side of the pocket material and turn up the five-eighths seam allowance over the edges of the cardboard and steam press the pocket edges around the form.

The set creases of the pocket sew on with ease.

Helen A.

Dear Heloise:
My husband does not sleep on a pillow. I find that an 18x24-inch quilted, crib pad in the playpen stays in place and protects the sheet.

One may cut pads from an old mattress pad and bind them for use instead of crib pads.

enough to reach.

She uses a long pair of metal tongs to pick things off the floor. Again, she must only use one hand and hang on to something nearby. If she falls, she cannot get up alone.

Even when seated, it takes much thought and willpower to rise. First she seats herself next to another chair and a table.

To get up, she rests her arms and hands on the seat of the second chair, pushes herself up and grabs the table.

As her legs no longer work automatically or coordinately, she gives them commands—out loud. She doesn't care what people think, she says. "I say, 'Come on, legs, you must turn.' Otherwise they won't."

Perhaps she has learned the secret of independence. She does what she must. When her falling body wishes to call it quits and lay down on the job, she uses her brain and will—literally—to flag it on.

Terry Webster of Aurora learned she had multiple sclerosis in 1968. Her husband was told two years ago that he has emphysema. She wears braces for her leg and back, using crutches or a wheelchair mostly when she goes out.

She sits to sweep a floor or to vacuum with her canister sweeper. She also sits to do dishes.

Cooking is not too difficult, she says—unless she has to carry things from the stove to a table. Then she calls on her husband. They have no children.

Like Mrs. Zablicor, she must hold on with one of her hands or she loses her balance. Because her illness has been gradual, Mrs. Webster says she has not had much trouble adjusting.

She, too, must do for herself. Her father-in-law does the grocery shopping and dries their washed clothes. But she uses a spin-dry washer which hooks onto the sink and does the washing.

The independence we all cherish is more tied to freedom of movement than we realize. Despite nature's restrictions, most people try to outwit their weaknesses and carry on.

After lying around Texas for 55 million years this lump of coal has finally gone to work.

This is a piece of lignite, a form of soft coal. Even though it's 55 million years old, it's relatively young compared to 300-million-year-old hard coal.

Texas is fortunate to have fairly large deposits of lignite; it's generally low in sulfur content, so pollution problems are minimized.

We're turning to lignite to fuel new electric generating plants, because natural gas and oil, the fuels we've traditionally used, are harder to get and more costly.

Lignite plants cost more to build, which, along with inflation, means electricity will have to cost you more. But the increase won't be as much, because lignite fuel is available and more economical than new supplies of natural gas and oil.

Electricity today is still a good value. Especially when you consider that during the past ten years the cost of living has gone up more than three times as much as the price of electricity.

We're continuing the orderly development of our power system so that you'll continue having the electricity you need.

This year over 20% of your electricity will be produced using this 55-million-year-old fuel.

Unwarranted Attack

"The capitalistic system of this country has never worked. It has produced only atrocious policies under the guise of a free enterprise system."

This doesn't sound like a statement one ordinarily would hear in West Texas, yet it was heard recently in Midland. Furthermore, it was voiced by a person residing in the area.

It was made by Dr. Kevin-John McIntyre, a professor at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin at Odessa . . . delivered at a meeting of the Midland-Odessa Citizens Forum, whatever that is.

When asked what system of government or market would be better than the "capitalistic system," McIntyre replied, "I will not give you a name to call me. I only support the regulatory methods as suggested by the congressman (Bob Eckhardt of Houston).

Eckhardt, in addressing the meeting, had defended oil price regulations and called for government controls on both old and new oil at a price of $7.50 per barrel.

This was what the professor was defending in his comments. One can imagine the line of thinking presented to his students in the classroom.

Several persons, after reading the newspaper account of the meeting, said they were shocked to learn that a West Texas institution of higher learning, supported by Texas tax dollars, would have "a person like this" as a member of its faculty. It is somewhat surprising . . . and resented.

One Midland man said that his firm previously had decided to donate considerable equipment to UTPB, but that the gift now is being held up as a result of the professor's attack on the free enterprise system. This is unfortunate from the school's standpoint.

McIntyre topped off his attack with the observation that the oil companies have a "monopoly" in this country and it is "frightening" to think they are establishing national policy.

It actually is frightening to think that McIntyre is teaching in an area university.

Bringing Congressman Eckhardt to Midland and Odessa to fill speaking engagements was something else again in itself.

Gulliver Finally Rises-- Swats Tormentor

WASHINGTON — There must be good feeling among Americans this week. If we think of the United States as a frustrated, pinned-down Gulliver, well, Gulliver finally burst his bonds and swatted his tormentor with a mighty arm. U.S. warplanes sunk Cambodian gunboats which had fired on them. Cheers are heard across the republic.

Indeed, President Ford's firm handling of the Cambodian piracy of the U.S. ship, "Mayaguez," won him not only applause but also strengthens the people's confidence in him as a leader.

The United States has been kicked in the shin plenty recently, and our credibility is greatly shaken in the world. Reckless revolutionary governments and plain anarchists will always try to get away with whatever they can, as long as the big guy on the block stands there with his finger in his mouth.

American reaction to aggression or the threat of it is carefully measured by the Communist powers and by the world's buccaneers as well.

On April 15, 1969, North Korean MIG fighters shot down an unarmed U.S. Navy plane, with 31 aboard, some 90 miles off the Korean coast and, therefore, in free airspace. This atrocity was the first testing of the Nixon Administration by a Communist nation. There were cries demanding "retaliation" in Congress and elsewhere. Indeed, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger was among those favoring a retaliatory air-strike against the Communist airfields harboring the

What did President Nixon do? He huffed and he puffed, but only sent a small fleet of U.S. Navy ships into the Sea of Japan to protect other U.S. reconnaissance planes. This task force soon came home without firing a shot. Mr. Nixon was busy figuring ways to get out of Vietnam and didn't want to aggravate the situation with yet another Communist power.

In 1969, an American President could still count on the authority of the U.S. government to influence adventuresome nations. By July of 1975, that Presidency was so weakened that, when Turkey threatened to invade Cyprus to protect its Turkish minority, President Nixon and his government could do little but dispatch diplomats to foreign ports to talk, talk, Result: Turkey invaded Cyprus.

In June of 1964, President Johnson was informed the Turks had assembled a fleet to invade Cyprus for precisely the same goal they carried out 10 years

Step In The Right Direction

WASHINGTON — One of President Ford's pet projects has turned into a thorn patch full of prickly problems.

Before he became President last year, he pushed through a $2.2 million program to fight drug and alcohol abuse. He personally prodded federal officials to fund the money to a private citizens council supposedly to educate state legislators on the evils of drugs and booze.

The council, it turned out, was headed by one of Ford's longtime acquaintances, Jerry Leonard. To the astonishment of officials, Leonard appeared at Ford's side, beaming benignly, while the then-vice president made his $2.2 million pitch.

The confidential minutes of the meeting tell the story. "The vice president (made) it clear," declare the minutes, "that he had an interest in LEAA support for this proposal," the memo adds.

"His reference is to what he refers to as correspondence from Jerry Leonard on such a proposal less than one year after Jerry left the LEAA position."

In the end, Santarelli refused to allow LEAA funds to be used for the Leonard project. But the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, whose director Morris Chafetz has been under FBI investigation for expense account chiseling, was less scrupulous.

Chafetz not only provided funds but assigned a bright official, Robert Beauregard, to push the project. In compliance with the law, Beauregard organized a review panel to study it. He promptly helped appoint one of Leonard's political pals, Robert Knowles, to help review Leonard's contract.

Both Leonard and Knowles are powers in Wisconsin politics. Leonard once ran for the U.S. Senate in Wisconsin, and Knowles was president pro-term of the Wisconsin Senate.

Not surprisingly, the project was approved by the review panel, which also selected Wisconsin as one of the first states to participate. But a special advisory council still had to give final approval.

None other than the ubiquitous Robert Knowles emerged as the advisory chairman, with Robert Beauregard as the sole consultant. It turned out that Beauregard had quit his government job and had signed on as a $250-a-day consultant for the project he had helped to establish.

When we asked the irrepressible Leonard about this garden of conflicts, he cooed happily: "I am so clean." He had been off the LEAA payroll the required year, he swore, before seeking the LEAA grant.

Knowles told us he was paid nothing for his service. Initially, he hadn't wanted to choose Wisconsin as one of the first states to benefit from the grant, he said.

Beauregard said he saw no conflict in accepting a consultant's fee from the same project he had supervised while he was on the government payroll.

As for President Ford, he started the wheels rolling for his old friend Leonard and then, apparently, lost touch with the whole thing.

Letters To The Editor

Words Too Strong

To The Editor:

An editorial page column appearing in your paper May 12 written by Nick Thimmesch and titled "Let's Stick With Those Who Stuck By Us" has finally brought me to the typewriter to write a letter to the editor rather than threaten to do so many years.

Mr. Thimmesch should get his facts straight before telling us Americans how ashamed we should be for anything much less how we should think. "We got South Vietnam into that terrible war and didn't get them out of it," quotes his second sentence, and I submit to Mr. Thimmesch that his statement is incorrect!

We did not get South Vietnam into the war — Communist Viet Cong opened warfare in South Vietnam as early as July 1955 after waging war against France's colonial army at least five years before that. No, we didn't get them into that terrible war — we went there to try to stop Communist infiltration from spreading any further. In my opinion, our greatest mistake was that we didn't do just that — stop them immediately by whatever means necessary.

Having just returned home from a month's stay in Europe (five different countries) I assure you it was quite enlightening to hear the news from their point of view. We watched the "tele" in Britain the day of the end in Vietnam! Memories of that newscast sweep over me as I read Mr. Thimmesch's third sentence in his opening paragraph — "We owe it to the South Vietnamese who stuck by us to help them settle in the United States, and that's that."

A Nice Adventure

To The Editor:

One frequently hears about young people in mischief.

I hope you and your readers will permit me to say something about a group of young men and their families.

The families of those young men gave up a part of last Sunday, Mother's Day, so their sons could surprise me with a kidnap breakfast.

At 7 a.m. I was driven around blindfolded for an hour, up and down streets and alleys until I was sensible of my surroundings — at last returned to my home to have one of the most delicious breakfasts imaginable with a record playing Glenn Miller music (ouch).

One would have to see the proud smiling faces to fully appreciate just what they had done.

The frosting on the cake came when a wonderful woman thought I was being abducted and called the police (how good to know we have people like her).

After a lot of careful explaining on our part to the officer that all was fine, the boys asked if pictures could be taken with him (we really have a great police department). When asked if he would, this police officer showed us how one was frisked using one of the boys. A little frightening but to the delight of all.

A very special thanks to Officer Joe Kropf and the lady who is truly a good citizen and most sincerely to my sons: D. Self, B. Bristol, M. Ericson, B. Gaines, M. Gesell, C. Gelsia, L. Ireland, M. McNabb and their wonderful families.

Moral to the story: A good citizen, great police and wonderful young men and their beautiful families.

First Things First

To The Editor:

I am writing in regard to the many Vietnamese people being brought into our country. Before we give any more aid to people of other nations, I feel we need to take care of our own first. There are thousands of Americans who do not want these people here, and I am one!

You offer us a measly little tax rebate then want to give millions to foreigners . . . while our people are starving, under-educated and unemployed. The refugees will tax our resources even more and we cannot afford it!

In a democratic society, aren't we the ones who have a say about what is to happen? It seems that our rights are being quickly taken away, like over night! Even the governors of certain states expressed surprise at having newly arrived "guests."

Charity begins at home!

Former LCRA Official To Testify Today In Coastal States Lawsuit

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — For against Coastal States Gas Producers Co. Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) compatriot R. Lucksinger faces cross-examination today in the electric utility's $22.5 million lawsuit.

Lucksinger testified last week that Coastal States board chairman Oscar Wyatt told directors of the LCRA in 1972 that "there was plenty of natural gas available."

He said that Wyatt said higher prices would be needed to get the natural gas in the future, however, and urged LCRA to renegotiate its 20-year contract for higher prices on an extended term.

Lucksinger testified also about documents which the utility's lawyer, Hume Coler, indicated showed that LCRA had refused assignment of the natural gas supply contract to Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., a Coastal States subsidiary.

Coastal States says it has signed the contract to Lo-Vaca and that price provisions of the contract are invalidated by Texas Railroad Commission's ruling allowing cost pass-throughs.

Those increased costs have been passed through by Lo-Vaca and paid under protest by the LCRA.

However, LCRA says it never approved or accepted the assignment of the contract to Lo-Vaca and that billings higher than the contracted price should be paid to Lo-Vaca by Coastal States.

Shortages of natural gas prompted the Railroad Commission to allow the cost passes through and to set up a slate of priorities for curtailing supplies of natural gas.

Venezuela Seeks Refinery Control

Agence France-Presse
CARACAS — Venezuela should obtain control of the oil refineries in Aruba and Curacao so as to have the largest refining complex in the world, with a total capacity of nearly two million barrels a day, Hernan Anzola, minister of mining, oil and gas, said there today.

The ministry said Venezuela's Amuay refinery, the largest in the world, has a capacity of 640,000 barrels per day. The country's other refinery, in Cardon, has a capacity of 348,000 barrels a day and is operated by the Anglo-Dutch Shell group. Total Venezuela's refining capacity is therefore 988,000 barrels a day.

Anzola said the refineries on Aruba and Curacao, operated by a number of foreign firms including Shell, have a total capacity of 965,000 barrels per day, nearly equal to that of Venezuela.

He added that it would be "desirable and convenient for Venezuela" to acquire holdings in those refineries once the current nationalization of the Venezuelan oil industry is completed. He did not indicate how he thought Venezuela should go about acquiring such holdings.

Texaco Completes Ellenburger Well

Texaco Inc. has completed No. 1 R. M. Gas Unit as a ½-mile south and northwest extension to Ellenburger gas production in the Gomez field of Pecos County, seven miles west of Fort Stockton.

It gauged a calculated absolute open flow of 14 million cubic feet of dry gas per day through perforations at 22,205-23,000 feet, which had been acidized with 3,500 gallons.

It is 2,769 feet from north and 1,225 feet from most westerly east line of H&GN survey 541.

Shallow Pecos Pool Extended

The Onslow (Queen) gas field of Pecos County gained a ½-mile southeast extension with completion of C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, No. 2-C Yates.

Calculated, absolute open flow was 780,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 1,106-1,194 feet. The interval was fractured with 10,000 gallons.

Drilled to 1,408 feet, it has ¾-inch casing seated at total depth, and it is plugged back to 1,231 feet.

Location is 467 feet from north and 9,160 feet from west lines of section 543, block 1, H&GN survey, five miles south of Iraan.

Addition Main Prerequisite To Learning Multiplication

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the twelfth of a series of 14 articles prepared by Science Research Associates, Inc., that shows how everyday situations can help children learn to add, subtract, multiply and divide.

Children need time to "play" with arithmetic—particularly addition—before they begin to learn multiplication.

Fortunately, the "real world" abounds with natural groupings of objects that can be used to help children practice adding same-size groups and making "arrays" of similar items.

Youngsters by now may be familiar with the term "set," which simply means a group of things—three bottles, two whistles, five drums, four people, six bugs, etc. An "array" is simply an orderly arrangement of objects. The number of objects in an array can be quickly determined by multiplication.

Today's exercise shows how the real world often provides natural sets which the child can count quickly. For, after all, multiplication is related to addition.

The ease with which a youngster is able to answer the questions in the exercise will indicate how ready he is to learn multiplication.

"Readiness" is a key to learning mathematics. The child who has had some preliminary experiences and the proper background will learn easily and in the most natural way. A skill is introduced too soon, the learning process is impaired.

So, if a child needs more practice with the idea that multiplication is repeated addition, he should work with that concept for a while before moving on to written problems using the multiplication symbol, "x."

If the child needs concrete objects to work with, he can use small things like paper clips, buttons, or hard candy.

The objects in today's exercise may be counted in several different ways. Some youngsters will count by ones. That's O.K.

Brian "Sailor" Roberts was the middle-aged, hefty "world champion" says he competed for one reason only — money.

Roberts, a Las Vegas resident, was the "world champion of poker" late Saturday night in the sprawling desert community after winning a $10,000 hand from Bob Hooks of Dallas on a pair of jacks.

Poker is not my favorite game, said Roberts as he walked away with the $210,000 grand prize. He says he prefers bridge or even chess, but competed in the poker tournament because of its attractive purse.

When the competition began Tuesday, each of the 21 entrants put up $10,000 to form the grand prize.

Twenty of the players ended up empty-handed, including several former champions in the seven-year series, such as two-time winner Johnny Moss of Odessa, Texas; Walter "Puggy" Pearson of Tennessee, and Thomas Austin "Amarillo Slim" Preston.

Roberts, who came to Las Vegas from San Angelo, Texas, in the 1960s, said after his victory:

"I was extraordinarily lucky. I happened to have the best hands at the right time. When I needed to draw out, I did. The others didn't."

Leroy Anderson, Composer, Dies

Ace Of Trumps Helps Like Mumps.

Once upon a time there was which suit? East decided to a greedy bridge player. No matter how many deuces you dealt him he was never happy; he wanted aces. "If you're going to give me only one ace, let it be the ace of trumps," he pleaded. And one day he got his wish.

With the ground thus cleared, South led a trump, and West took his precious ace.

Unfortunately for him, West had no safe exit. As West ruffed a diamond, dummy could discard the low club while South ruffed.

West actually led a club, but declarer let this ride around to the queen, after which he could claim the rest of the tricks.

The moral is quite clear: Don't rely on the ace of trumps to make you happy. (But, if you do, try something better comes along.)

DAILY QUESTION

ANSWER: Bid four spades.

This shows strong trump support (often five or more cards), singleton ♡ void and most

Guthrie's 'Everyman' Well Received Here

Members of the audience which almost filled Theatre Centre Sunday night for the special performance of "Everyman" by a troupe from the noted Tyrone Guthrie Theater of Minneapolis were not, I think, disappointed by their evening out — it had a lot to offer.

"Everyman" is today considered the best surviving example of the morality play, the medieval drama which sought to communicate to its audience ideas about what was considered proper behavior in the light of religious thinking. The significant issue in plays of this nature was the question of whether man should be saved or damned at the end of his life.

Such plays were often presented on the steps of church or cathedral, or in the courtyard, and reconstructions of these dramas (particularly "Everyman") are still being performed at intervals in many parts of Europe.

The Guthrie troupe's version of "Everyman" is something different, however: immensely (sometimes intensely) contemporary, an occasional blending of American idiom and song with the rather fulsome rhetoric of the original English version, it is sometimes ambiguous. Good theater it most certainly is — high drama served up in low-key fashion — and the production in its performance here was inordinately fascinating to see and hear. But in the end, I could not help think that the true intent of "Everyman" was lost, its flavor and "feeling" subordinated by words, much ritual and a great amount of acrobatics.

Rather than assigning its seven-member cast a specific role (Beauty, Strength, Discretion, etc.), with one actor portraying Everyman throughout the drama, the Guthrie production has its players taking turns in the Everyman role. Certainly, this is a valid concept, good for furthering the play's theme of universality, but it also tends to dilute the impact of the play. It becomes less a presentation and more an entertainment, although this can lessen the total impact — the "clout" — of the drama, and it is a little confusing at times. The humorous aspects of this production — stage business as well as dialogue — are well-confined but they also take away somewhat from the dramatic impact of the play. It becomes less a presentation and more an entertainment upon your particular viewpoint.

The Guthrie cast members are all young and vigorous and it is good that this is so, for the production makes many and great physical demands of the players. They all handled their stage assignments with grace and ease and with the kind of assurance that comes from long association with each other and with the theater piece itself.

Good training certainly was evident in the way they spoke their lines, projecting them clearly and beautifully to the farthest reaches of the theater.

SARATOGA 120's

Saratoga 120's

Standard 100's

That's the Saratoga idea.

More puffs than 100's.
Tailored longer and slimmer than 100's, so you enjoy extra smoking time, extra smoking pleasure, without smoking more cigarettes.

Priced no more than 100's.
And Saratoga 120's are rich, full-flavor cigarettes made from a fine blend of tobaccos.

More than just a new brand.
Saratoga 120's are a whole new idea in smoking pleasure.
Because now you can enjoy smoking longer
without smoking more.
Look for them in the new 120 mm crush-proof box.
