Ward Field Is Extended

The Barstow field of Ward County gained a 1 1/2-mile east extension to Fusselman production with completion of John C. Snyder, Inc., Fort Worth, and Tucker & Heath, Midland, No. 1-32 Williams, four miles southeast of Barstow townsite.

It gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 18,500 million cubic feet of gas per day, through Fusselman perforations at 17,344-17,390 feet, which had been acidized with 16,000 gallons.

Drilled to 17,465 feet, it is plugged back to 17,445 feet, in a 5-inch liner hung from 13,456-17,465 feet. The well was staked to drill as a wildcard.

Location is 3,400 feet from northeast and 990 feet from northwest lines of section 33, block 33, H&TC survey.

Wildcats Staked In Hockley, Kent

Wildcats have been staked in Hockley and Kent counties.

Salari Drilling Co. of Abilene filed application to drill No. 1 Lena Hamill, a 5,000-foot venture in Hockley, six miles northwest of Levelland.

Drill site for the project is 330 feet from north and east lines of labor 8, league 731, State Capitol Lands survey, 3/4 mile southwest of a 7,595-foot failure and three miles southeast of the Yellowhouse, South (San Andres) field, producing at about 4,735 feet.

Kent Try Lobe Oil Corp., Midland, accounted for No. 1-A Connell, as an attempt to open a shallow pay in the Polar, East (Pennsylvanian) field of Kent.

It is scheduled to 2,500 feet, and spots 1,646 feet from south and 1,200 feet from east lines of section 18, block 5, H&GN survey, two miles southeast of Polar townsite.

Offset Planned In Scurry Area

Cobb & Runow of Midland will drill No. 1 Golden as a 3/4-mile northwest offset to their No. 1 Blum, recently completed reopener of the Ride (Cisco) field of Scurry County.

Location is 467 feet from south and 1,900 feet from east lines of section 168, block 97, H&TC survey, four miles north of Ira. Planned depth is 7,000 feet.

The discovery, completed May 6, was completed flowing 148 barrels of 40-gravity oil daily, with gas-oil ratio of 710-1, through a 14-64-inch choke and perforations at 6,862-6,867 feet.

High Winds, Intense Thunderstorms Hit Texas Areas Again

By The Associated Press
Winds topping hurricane force and intense thunderstorms belabored broad areas of Texas today with flooding rains, occasionally mixing in a tornado for good measure. Menacing turbulence blustered deeper into the state from the Panhandle-Plains section late Monday and kept spreading while the weather calmed in its wake. The National Weather Service reported clocking wind gusts up to 80 miles per hour — 5 above minimum hurricane velocity — at both San Angelo in West Central Texas and San Marcos in South Central Texas. Tornado funnels popped out about dusk around Sabinal, Bandera and Seguin, and a twister spun northwest of Austin in Angus Valley shortly after 5 a.m. today, official observers reported. Although a tornado watch remained up as late as 3 a.m. for areas from around San Angelo northward into Oklahoma and repeated severe thunderstorm warnings went up, there was no word of injuries or major damage from the vicious winds and tornadoes. A roof was torn off a house near Fort Stockton in West Texas and hail as big as baseballs pounded the countryside 30 miles east of there. By early morning gusty winds still lingered in parts of the Texas Panhandle with a few thunderstorms around Childress and Wichita Falls although skies had cleared farther north, and often severe thunderstorms raged downstate in a section embracing San Angelo, Del Rio, San Antonio and Fredericksburg. Meanwhile generally light rain fell from around Corpus Christi and Kingsville in the south toward Cotulla and Laredo. And before daylight, as radar detected rainfall at rates exceeding 2 inches per hour, a flash flood watch went up through the day for all of North (See STORMS Page 2A)

Strip Mining Bill Vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford vetoed a bill to protect the environment against coal strip mining today, saying it would boost unemployment and consumer fuel bills. "I am unable to sign this bill because as many as 36,000 people would lose jobs when unemployment already is too high," Ford said in his veto message to Congress. "Consumers would pay higher costs — particularly for electric bills — when consumer costs are already too high," Ford said. "The nation would be more dependent on foreign oil — when we are already overly dependent and dangerously vulnerable," the President said. "Coal production would be unnecessarily reduced — when this vital domestic energy resource is needed more than ever." The President included a job at Congress for not coming up with an acceptable energy program, saying: "America is approaching a more serious domestic energy shortage and we are not facing up to it."

Late Bulletins

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon spokesman said today that "we just don't have any facts" on whether a Cambodian navy boat which surrendered itself to Thai authorities had been involved in the seizure of the U.S. freighter Mayaguez. LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian government placed the local representative of Gulf Oil Corp. under house arrest today, ordered Gulf's American president to appear in court and said the company would be "criminally prosecuted" for making illegal political contributions to Bolivian officials.

Full Statewide Oil Allowable Extended

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission extended Texas' 100 per cent statewide oil allowable today through June—the 39th consecutive month of all-out production. Major buyers of Texas crude oil asked for 4,021,186 barrels a day next month, an increase of 4,186 barrels from May. As usual, the East Texas Field will be restricted to 86 per cent production. Chairman Ben Ramsey said a "preliminary examination of the crude oil production figures" for March "indicates that Texas production is beginning to stabilize and possibly show a slight increase." Nominations by major purchasers for Texas crude oil in June, in barrels per day, with any changes in parentheses: Amoco 350,000, Atlantic Richfield 180,000, Chevron 77,800, Cities Service 115,000, Continental 54,500, Diamond Shamrock 36,000, Exxon 799,000, Gulf 165,000, Mobil 345,000, Phillips 115,000, Shell 300,500, Sun 235,000, Texaco 223,000, Union of California 90,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission announced today a set of rules that would restrict the testimonials that advertisers can use for their products. For example, satisfied customers of drug products would be barred from affirming that a headache remedy gave them fast relief. An automotive engineer must actually look at test results or conduct a personal examination before declaring one car superior to another. An athlete claiming to get quick energy from a certain breakfast cereal must actually use the cereal. The examples are a part of what are actually five separate guides. In Federal Trade Commission terminology, guides do not carry the force of law, but they do put businesses on notice that if they violate the guides they can expect to be held to answer to the commission's general sanctions against unfair or deceptive practices. Two of the five guides were put into effect today. One covers endorsements by experts and generally requires that the expert must have done his or her homework before providing the endorsement. The second guide covers endorsements by organizations and generally requires that the organization must have actually considered the product in question and made a decision that fairly reflects its collective judgment. Endorsement by an organization of experts must also meet the standards outlined for expert endorsements. The three other guides were offered in proposed form, which means they will be subject to public comment before the commission decides to implement them. One would be a general guide covering all endorsements and would incorporate three basic principles: a testimonial must be the honest views of the endorser, the advertiser may not distort a testimonial by taking it out of context, and the endorser must actually use the product. The second proposed guide (See FTC Page 2A)

Budget Debate Continues

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas representatives, debating an $11.9 billion two-year state budget bill, today rejected attempts to cut funding for arts and humanities programs and regional planning. Consideration of the bill was interrupted by fatigue, hunger and committee schedules at 9 p.m. Monday and resumed this morning. Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, tried to switch $200,000 from the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities to a program of rural industrial development loans. "They're doing an excellent job. This is not a slap at them," Von Dohlen said of the arts agency. But, he added, the $200,000 rural loan program is about out of money. He said it created 763 jobs, plus a tax-paying potential of $125,000 a year. Rep. Neil Caldwell, D-Angleton, former appropriations committee chairman and an accomplished artist and sculptor, said the arts and humanities had been neglected too long. "We rank just behind Guam—53rd—in our interest as evidenced by the amount of money we spend on the arts and humanities," Caldwell said. "If you are going to take the money from some place, don't pick on the cripples. These people have been crippled long enough." Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, claimed the commission had at one time considered subsidizing symphony orchestras involved in labor disputes in Dallas and Houston. Von Dohlen's amendment failed, 70-33. Also rejected were several tries by Rep. Al Koriath, R-Dallas, to cut funds for councils of governments. One would have transferred the two-year $3.5 million appropriation from planning to special education. "Rather than give this money to the boondoggle we've created to rule and govern the people without their vote, we should give it to the children," Koriath said. Rep. Fred Head, D-Athens, replied that the planning money was necessary and should remain intact.

Portugal's Leaders Shut Paper

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The government today shut down the Socialist party newspaper Republica pending a decision by a special press tribunal on the seizure of the newspaper by Communist workers. A spokesman for the information ministry said the newspaper, Lisbon's only non-Communist daily, must cease publication until the court rules on the dispute. The decision to close the paper came after a visit by high government officials while Socialists kept vigil through the night outside the offices. Paratroopers rushed to the building by the leftist military government barred the Socialists from entering the building to drive the Communist printers out. Led by party chief Mario Soares, a minister without portfolio in the government, scores of Socialists spent the night in a drizzling rain outside the building. Soares threatened to take his party out of the cabinet unless it regains the paper. Speaking from the roof of a car, Soares told his supporters: "The seizure was illegal, against the press law and all that the Portuguese revolution stands for. The paper was taken over by a minority. It is our duty to stay here, to defend our liberty. "Our patience has its limits," he warned when told that the printers balked at carrying out an agreement to clear the building. Leaders of the typographical union and the Socialist editorial staff, bargaining under the supervision of an army major, reportedly agreed that the building would be cleared and sealed off while the government decided who should get control of the paper. The printers reportedly told the editor of the paper, 62-year-old Raul Rego, that his ideology was incorrect. Rego was imprisoned three times by the fascist dictatorship that the army overthrew last year. Meanwhile, the 240 officers of the Armed Forces Movement, the parent assembly of the regime, ended a special meeting without launching an expected purge of moderates in the group. Instead the AFM declared it was ready to "intensify its direct links with all popular structures... and to overcome partisan struggles in the battle for production." The assembly also announced it was setting up a revolutionary tribunal and 12-man jury to try persons implicated in the unsuccessful rightist counter-coup on March 11.

Americans Reported 'Just Fine'

By The Associated Press
Pathet Lao troops took over the southern Laos city of Savannakhet today, and a dozen Americans held in loose arrest there by left-wing students were reported "just fine." Thousands of townspeople cheered the Communist troops, and rightist troops joined the victory parade. The takeover of Savannakhet, which previously had been under control of Laotian rightists, came after two weeks of political upheaval in which the right-wing faction of the coalition government surrendered political power to the Communist-led Pathet Lao and neutralists. Observers believe the entire country will fall to the Pathet Lao, which was reported moving into Pakse, another Mekong River town in southeast Laos.

Westerners Safe
Sanford Stone, 58, U.S. aid coordinator for the area, told a newsman all the Westerners in Savannakhet were safe despite radio reports received earlier in the day by the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane that two Americans had been led from their homes by a crowd. "We are confined to our houses, but we have food which came on a courier flight Monday," said Stone. "We have never been asked to leave and we have never been threatened."

Meanwhile, officials in Bangkok and Washington reported that Cambodian navy men who sailed a 175-foot subchaser to Thailand seeking asylum, claim theirs was the vessel that captured the American freighter Mayaguez last week. The Thai navy, in a one-sentence statement, said it had impounded a gunboat flying the flag of the old Cambodian government and disarmed and detained 10 crew members. Conflicting Reports
The fleeing Cambodians reportedly arrived at Sattahip, on the Gulf of Thailand, last Thursday, the day U.S. Marines and planes rescued the Mayaguez and her crew of 39. However, there were conflicting reports as to whether this was the boat involved with the Mayaguez. Mayaguez Capt. Charles T. Miller said Saturday the Cambodian boat involved was a "motor torpedo boat," but U.S. government sources said the Mayaguez was captured by two small gunboats. The captain's log identified the vessel as bearing the number P128, but (See PATHET LAO Page 2A)

HINTS FROM Heloise

'Let The Lord's Dew The Work ...'

Dear Folks:

Have you ever thought about leaving your clothes on the line overnight so that the dew can fall upon them?

If not, it's a great idea.

Most people try to get their clothes hung on the line by noon and take them down a few hours later.

Well, DON'T anymore.

The dew makes them smell sweet and gets out most of the wrinkles if you hang them correctly. Shirts on plastic hangers, blue jeans matched at the seams and crossed over the line at about the knees. Pillow slips hung halfway over the line, sheets hung folded in half and not cross the line. Sure it takes longer for these to dry but heaven help a duck, let the Lord's dew do the work for you. Tomorrow the wind and sunshine will come and dry 'em anyway.

And if you leave 'em there two days, never mind. God won't care.

If you have something real "clouded, looking" such as a table cloth, napkins or diapers, try laying them on cut grass, as it will bleach them. In one country, Mexico, which I live near, they all do this.

These are the laundresses who take in washing for a living! It works wonders!

The fresh honey dew smell will dwell upon your bed sheets at night when you put them on the bed. And even if you have a dryer, just try hanging out a pillow slip for a few days. Oh, it's wonderful.

So why don't we learn from others? I did. It's fantastic for diapers.

Dear Heloise:

With prices what they are, here's a real money-saver.

I buy powdered milk and mix it in two-quart quantities, following the directions on the package. Here's the catch: add one teaspoon of vanilla extract to each two quarts mixed.

It takes the powdery edge out of it and adds a rich flavor.

When the milk is nice and cold, no one can tell it from "real."

A Fan

Dear Heloise:

I have a flexible plastic box which holds a regular-sized loaf of bread. Instead, I use it to keep a block of ice.

Planning a picnic, the ice is all ready for the cooler.

Plenty of extra ice, too, if you are having a party and the ice maker can't keep up.

When a storm blew down power lines, my daughter had the ice to keep her foods frozen until electricity was restored.

It seems I'm always refilling the "ice box" because of our own needs or others.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

Oldsters Have It Made

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you, when he is old enough to understand? Please help me, Abby. I have no one else to ask.

YOUNG WIDOW

We oldsters sure get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folks. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday, and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie or forget to shave half your face or take another man's hat by mistake or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you act silly, you're in your second childhood.

Being 80 is much better than being 70. At 70, people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80.

GOT IT MADE AT 80

DEAR GOT: You are beautiful. Thanks for a dandy day-brightener.

DEAR ABBY: My husband committed suicide and left me with a tiny baby.

When people learn that I am a widow, they ask, "What happened to your husband? Cancer? Heart? Or did he die in an accident?"

Abby, I just can't bring myself to tell them that he committed suicide, so I say, "He was sick and died." (He had been under the care of a psychiatrist, so that could be called an illness, couldn't it?)

What should I tell my child

DEAR WIDOW: The truth is always best. Simply say that your husband was ill (it's true, he was), and he took his own life.

DEAR ABBY: I have an 18-year-old daughter who has a beautiful baby girl.

My daughter and her husband are getting a divorce because he is so immature, there is just no hope for him. (She went back to him twice for the baby's sake, but even the marriage counselor told her to leave him for good.)

My daughter's mother-in-law wants to adopt the baby. She even offered my daughter $2,000 cash for it! My daughter wants to keep her baby, of course, and the baby's father doesn't want it. He wants his mother to have it.

What do you think about a grandmother who would try to BUY her grandchild for adoption?

MARSHALL, TEXAS

DEAR MARSHALL: Not much. In fact, there are laws against buying and selling babies. Your daughter is under no obligation to consider such a proposition.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Handy Hanger

Make a handy skirt hanger by pulling down the bottom rod of a plain wire coat hanger enough so the skirt will not stretch out of shape, but not too much for it will slip off. Make sure buttons and zippers are fastened so the skirt stays on securely.

What Time Is 'Sixish'?

One distressing aspect of being invited to attend a dinner party is that one never is certain when to arrive.

What time, exactly, is "sixish"?

There is a distinct possibility of arriving at a "sixish" dinner party at 6:05, only to be greeted at the door by a four-year-old wearing blue ski pajamas and holding a tv dinner and a glass of Welch's grape juice, who tells you that Mommy is still fixing her face.

There is no need to ask where to drive around the block for a while. Unfortunately, the other guests do the same; by 10 p.m. there is a cavalcade of twelve cars glumly circling the block, each determined not to be the first to arrive.

The distraught hostess, meanwhile, has locked herself in the upstairs bathroom, where she is having a spectacular crying jag and making plans to move to another city, while her husband, having polished off two pitchers of beer before dinner martinis, is finishing his eighth helping of lasagna.

For the next forty-five minutes the three of you sit cross-legged on the living room floor, watching the last half of "The Bugs Bunny Roadrunner Hour" and playing "Go Fish," during which time you develop a nasty stiffness in your knees and an indelible spot of Welch's grape juice on your dress.

The next time you are invited to dinner at sixish, you resolve to play it safe and check first to see whether anyone else has arrived.

Seeing no parked cars in front of your host's house, you decide

Hobby Calls For Equity In Funding

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has told Texas senators that school expenditures are paid in Texas range between $700 and $7,000 and are "obviously unjust and inequitable."

Hobby also told the senators, meeting in special session Monday, that the expenditures have to be "remedied."

At a meeting of the committee of the whole, the senators received analyses, cost estimates and copies of two public school financing bills, including one that had apparently died in a Senate subcommittee.

Alkin, Maury Proposals
Last week a Senate education subcommittee approved 3-2 a measure by Sen. A. M. Alkin, D-Paris, that carries a two-year, $65-million price tag and emphasizes the current foundation school finance program.

Sen. Oscar Maury, D-Dallas, chairman of the Education Committee, chaired Monday's committee and presented information on his bill and Alkin's. Maury's bill was also before the subcommittee.

Maury said later he expected his committee would vote on a bill Wednesday.

Teacher Raises Included
According to the Texas Education Agency, Maury's bill will cost $55 million over the next biennium. Both bills provide for an $8,000 starting teacher's salary as compared with the present minimum of $6,600.

The Legislative Budget Board has said there will be between $647 million and $700 million left over for school finance after the state budget for the next biennium is set.

Among information made available to the senators was an estimate of $779 million for the House school finance bill passed last week.

Hobby also said the range of options available in a new program was limited by having a set amount of money available and the necessity of allotting at least $450 million to increasing teachers' salaries.

Maury's bill calls for the state to pay 70 per cent of the school finance funds with local school districts putting up the remaining 30 per cent. Currently the state pays 80 per cent with the local districts paying the other 20 per cent.

Rural-Urban Conflict
Callie Smith, executive director of the Texas State Teachers Association, said consideration should be given to the state's smaller school districts. "It's important that we don't have innovation for innovation's sake," he said.

Alkin told the senators that he does not want to get into a rural-urban disagreement.

"I just want us to come up with a bill that the comptroller will be able to certify," Alkin said. "I'm not going to vote for a bill we know is not fiscally responsible."

After the meeting Maury said he expects the vote on his committee's final version will be 5-4. "No matter what happens in committee, I expect both bills to show up on the Senate floor," Maury said.

Rail Executives Assessed Fines, Probated Terms

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Two railroad executives have been fined $2,000 each and placed on probation for three years on charges of making false employment reports.

Judge Earl E. O'Connor of U.S. District Court imposed the penalties Monday against Maiben F. DeVeney, 56, of Kansas City, Kan., and Donald D. Doyle, 51, of Denison, Tex. They pleaded guilty to making false reports last month.

They were accused of falsifying records to show DeVeney's wife working for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad for several periods between 1969 and 1972, apparently in a scheme to collect overtime payments due DeVeney. The government said Mrs. DeVeney collected more than $6,000 during the period.

 Strike Call

By GARY GARRISON
 RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — United Farm Workers Union organizers chanted "Viva la huelga" (long live the strike) across Starr County, melon patch Monday for the first time in almost eight years.
 Union organizer Tony Orendain of McAllen and about 15 other persons staged a demonstration on a county road which winds through the melon fields of La Casita Farms near here.
 The union demonstrators waved the red-and-black flag of the union formed by Cesar Chavez, as they shouted at workers in the melon fields to quit work and join the union. They also used a loud speaker system mounted on the roof of a station wagon.

1968 Trouble Recalled
 The demonstration was near a spot where in 1966 five Roman Catholic priests were arrested during a demonstration. The priests were among about 125 persons arrested during an earlier union organizing drive.
 A spokesman for La Casita Farms at Rio Grande City had no comment on the union activity in a field near Garciasville. "They're just out looking for some publicity," said Ralph Ross, general manager of La Casita Farms.
 Orendain said the purpose of the day-long demonstration was to urge the growers to allow elections to give their employees the opportunity to decide if they want to join the union.
 Peccos Next Step

Orendain indicated the demonstration was a prelude to new attempts to organize the mostly Mexican-American field hands at La Casita and said the union plans to follow the melon harvest to Peccos in an attempt to unionize melon pickers.
 The same union in 1966 and 1967 attempted without success here to organize field hands. La Casita was the main target of that drive. That attempt resulted in mass arrest of pickets, occasional violence, the burning of a railroad trestle and a federal court trial. Union organizers claimed the Texas Rangers and other law enforcement officers used unconstitutional laws to help break the strike.
 The federal court ruled several Texas laws to be unconstitutional and held that the Rangers and officers joined with the growers in an attempt to break the strike.

Union Stronger Now
 Orendain predicted that the union will again attempt to halt the shipment of melons out of Starr County as they did in 1967 unless the growers, primarily La Casita, agree to elections. "We're stronger now than we were then," Orendain said.
 The union organizer also said that other melon growers in the Lower Rio Grande Valley may become the target of the union's drive... specifically mentioned Griffin and Brand, a McAllen firm.
 Starr County Sheriff Ray Alvarez visited the demonstration site Monday, reminding Orendain and the others that they must stay off La Casita property.

British Scientist
 Hopelul For Cure
 Of Crohn's Disease

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Experiments show that a vaccine, antitoxin or medicine to cure Crohn's disease and colitis may be in reach, a British scientist says.
 Dr. David R. Cave said Monday that the two diseases may be transmitted from person to person by a microscopic factor.
 "It is too early to tell if it is a virus or a toxin or something else," he reported to scientists attending Digestive Disease Week here, a gathering of 4,000 specialists in diseases of the stomach and intestines.
 Crohn's disease is an inflammation of the last segment of the small intestine. Colitis is a severe inflammation of the colon.
 The cure for both of these diseases has been cutting out the affected part.
 Dr. Cave of St. Georges Hospital in London took tissues removed from human patients and injected small amounts into the intestines of rabbits.
 The diseases developed in the rabbits after three to 24 months in more than half the animals tested, Dr. Cave said.
 Further study is needed before a preventive inoculation can be manufactured, however, he said.

Bob Krueger's Plan

Rep. Robert Krueger of New Braunfels, who represents the San Angelo-to-San Antonio area in Congress, merits widespread commendation for the victory he gained last week over an oil price roll-back proposal in the House Subcommittee on Energy and Power.

In a stunning move, according to a Washington news release, the subcommittee rejected an oil price roll-back and passed a measure by Congressman Krueger which provides for phased deregulation of the price of oil.

The panel, which for three months has been working on a comprehensive energy program, reported out a bill which provides for the removal of price controls in approximately five years.

This wasn't an easy task, and observers were surprised at the rejection of the roll-back provision, which had been expected to prevail.

Krueger's amendment, however, received bipartisan support, with five Republicans and three Democrats voting for it. The vote was 8-7.

"Obviously it's politically attractive to speak for lower prices and roll-backs," Krueger said, "but such actions do not address the real long-term energy needs of American consumers. Those needs can only be met by a stable and sufficient domestic supply. Only when we are free of heavy dependence on foreign oil will the American consumer be protected."

The Texas Democrat may be a freshman congressman, but he speaks out like a veteran — one who understands the problem and is willing to buck the trend in a liberal Congress to solve same. This, of course, isn't true of all the Democratic freshmen in Congress. It could use more members like Bob Krueger.

"While I would personally prefer immediate decontrol," he said, "I believe the phased approach is an important step in the right direction."

Unfortunately, this doesn't mean that the battle is won, but, as Krueger said, it is a step in the right direction. The measure now goes to the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee where another hard-fought battle is expected.

Krueger's plan, in time, would eliminate "the absurd practice of charging two prices for one commodity, and would allow the United States to invest in high cost domestic oil instead of being forced to import higher priced foreign oil."

Krueger said the nation's most fundamental task is to increase the domestic energy supplies and to stop subsidizing the OPEC countries. His plan will do just that.

He also structured his plan so that if a "windfall" profit tax is applied by the House Ways and Means Committee, as envisioned, producers would be able to receive a tax credit for investment "plowed back" into domestic exploration and development.

Krueger's plan would allow for several billion dollars more in investment funds than President Ford's decontrol/windfall tax proposal. The President's plan would not have allowed "plowback" tax credits against the windfall tax on new oil.

It is interesting to note also that Krueger's measure exempts all properties using tertiary recovery methods from price control and tax liability. He emphasized that "an estimated 50 billion barrels of new reserves could be added by tertiary recovery methods."

Hopefully, the other committees and Congress as a whole, will look with favor on Bob Krueger's sound proposal.

'American Business Day' Merits Support

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN

Copley News Service HARRISONBURG, Va. — "One might well argue," observed the historian Richard B. Morris in his work, "The American Revolution Reconsidered," "that the Revolution began when the first Englishmen came to Jamestown and Plymouth."

Conscious of this important historical fact, the local Chamber of Commerce of this city of 16,000 celebrated on May 13 "American Business Day." For it was on that date in 1607 that a handful of English settlers established the Jamestown settlement.

"All too often," asserts Richard S. Gillis Jr. of the Virginia State Chamber, "the public considers the Jamestown settlement to have been a commitment of the English government to establish a settlement in the new world. This, as we all know, is incorrect, since Jamestown resulted from private investment in hopes of a return on that investment."

One could argue, therefore, that the concept of business was the basis from the very beginning for the creation of a new nation on this continent. In fact, it was the free enterprising spirit that built the 13 original Colonies, from Jamestown in 1607 to the eve of the American Revolution in 1775.

The Americans went to war against their British brothers because not only did George III and his ministers seek to curtail their political freedom, but also their economic liberty and the right of free enterprise to flourish without the shackles of royal regimentation.

It was businessmen who very early rallied to the cause of American independence, and later they played a principal part in financing the War for Independence and utilized their commercial connections abroad to secure both credit and materials for Washington's army. When the war was won it was businessmen who helped create the infant Republic and during all of the 19th Century played a critical role in the industrial revolution, which laid the foundation for the technological revolution of the 20th Century.

This long record of achievement, which got its start at Jamestown in 1607, is virtually unknown to most Americans. For this reason the businessmen of this town via their local Chamber have mounted a campaign to have May 13 declared national American Business Day.

American labor has, since the late 1800s, managed to have the first Monday in September declared a national holiday. Why, therefore, not an American Business Day?

The idea is the brainchild of Louis E. Farraye, the 1973 president of the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce and a vice president of Gilmore Broadcasting Corp.

"There are any number of compelling reasons why such a day of commemoration and rededication to the concepts and principles of our system of capital investment and profits is vital," states Farraye. "Large percentages of the last two generations have entered

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam has shelled out a whopping $329.6 million to students who apparently pocketed the money and then played hooky.

They are Vietnam veterans who have been collecting their educational benefits, it seems, without bothering to go to school.

The House Veterans Committee quietly has ordered the General Accounting Office to investigate the massive overpayments and to recommend ways to get back the misspent funds.

The veterans who have been ripping off the taxpayers, meanwhile, could be prosecuted. They have taken advantage of a tax law, which was intended to permit veterans to begin their education without waiting around for the wherewithal. Under the law, the government benefit checks must be sent out before the veterans start their classes.

Some schools, particularly community colleges, abet the culprits by permitting them to skip classes and still remain listed as students entitled to federal benefits.

In many states, it pays colleges to keep students on the rolls who don't attend classes, because the amount of state support depends upon the size of the enrollment.

In Maryland, for example, an investigation disclosed that 145 veterans at one community college never completed a single course during the 1974 semester. Yet 71 received fulltime benefits of at least $270 per month.

At another Maryland school, one veteran was allowed to keep signing up for classes for five semesters, although he never has completed a single course. He still is enrolled in the college and, of course, still collects his monthly government check.

Another student, according to the investigative report, was asked why he was enrolling in the same course he had taken the previous semester. "You get your money," he replied, "so why should you care how I use my entitled benefits?"

What has happened in Maryland, according to other state education officials, her anything like $20.5 million," said the source.

The late Aristotle Onassis left no will but left the keys to his financial empire with his daughter Christina, according to our sources. Christina discussed a financial settlement with Jackie in London a few days ago. Thereafter, $20.5 million of the Onassis fortune was transferred by Chase Manhattan Bank from London to New York City where it was put into the account of the Milbank, Tweed, Hadley and McCloy law firm, our sources say.

At this writing, less than $900,000 has been transferred into Jacqueline's account at the First National City Bank. But Onassis executives have been conferring with bank officials, according to our sources, about a large transfer.

Jackie's attorney, Alexander Forger of the Milbank, Tweed firm, refused to discuss the details of the negotiations. We also were unable to get any formal comment from the Onassis office. Spokesmen for both Chase Manhattan and First National City banks had nothing to say.

FORD'S DILEMMA: President Ford ordered the rescue of the merchant ship Mayaguez against the advice of his legal experts.

They cautioned him that, contrary to his public statement, the ship's capture was not "piracy." Under international law, they said, Cambodia had a legal right to seize the ship after it steamed within the 12-mile limit which Cambodia claims as its territorial waters.

The Mayaguez was only eight miles from the Cambodian inlet of Poulo Wai when it was stopped.

Meanwhile, the Joint Chiefs gave President Ford their opinion that the ship could be rescued because of its isolated location off an inlet some 25 miles from the Cambodian coast.

In the end, the President listened to his generals rather than his lawyers.

PUYALLUP HOSPITAL: The Puyallup Indians gave up cheaply 39 acres of land in 1941 so the federal government could build an Indian hospital. Twenty years later, the government turned the hospital over not to the Indians but to Washington state for a token $1 payment.

Now the Puyallups want the hospital back, and the state would like to get rid of it. But the state government is insisting upon a $1.7 million payment either from the Indians or the feds.

The federal government won't pay, and the state government won't give up the hospital without pay. "The state got at least $10 million worth of use out of it for $1," grumbled a Puyallup spokesman. "With a little help from the feds, we could make it count for a lot more than $1.7 million."

INSIDE REPORT— President Ford And The 'Rule Of Law'

By ROWLAND EVANS

WASHINGTON — The gamble taken by President Ford in using armed force against Cambodia, starting with air strikes against Cambodian gunboats Tuesday evening, was based above all on this hard conclusion: the U.S. had to seize the occasion of Cambodian piracy to prove it both could and would react with decision and power to international lawlessness.

There was no split of any kind in the National Security Council (NSC). Indeed, every top official in the administration agreed that whatever the risk, a show of American will and power was absolutely essential following the humiliation of South Vietnam.

In ordering American attacks on the Cambodian gunboats to block an obvious American effort to remove the Cambodian crew of the Mayaguez to the Cambodian mainland, neither the President nor the NSC even attempted to figure out an answer to this potentially explosive question: what if the Cambodians should use the gunboat attack as the pretext for murdering some 40 American crewmen?

"Of course we had contingency plans," one top presidential aide told us. "But we couldn't sit around and try to estimate every possible contingency when we are dealing with a primitive government which has virtually no outside contacts with the world. We had to act."

The underlying assumption of the President's aides was that the U.S. must deal with such an act of piracy as a Western nation acting in a civilized fashion: demand immediate return of the ship and crew and map a contingency plan to seize both by force if the demand was not met within a reasonable time.

Following seizure of the Mayaguez by Cambodia just after midnight, Sunday, the President allowed almost 48 hours to go by without any military response. Next, the basic plan of isolating the little island in the Gulf of Thailand, where the Mayaguez was held, went astray when Cambodian gunboats moved toward the mainland about 15 miles away. The President then gave his order to halt the gunboats.

At that point, the U.S. went the full and necessary distance to prove what Mr. Ford and his Secretaries of State and Defense, Henry Kissinger and James Schlesinger, had been preaching non-stop ever since the catastrophic end of the Vietnam war: despite that national humiliation, no foreign country should make the mistake that the United States was discarding its role as world leader, or was reluctant to take strong action where demanded.

Indeed, the private remarks of top officials here make it abundantly apparent that the Mayaguez seizure became the ideal case to prove the point.

In the background was the utter failure of all efforts to open some kind of circuitous diplomatic channel to the revolutionary Cambodian government of the Khmer Rouge. The Soviet Union has been kicked out of Phnom Penh for failure to break with the old regime. The People's Republic of China, according to one high official, informed the U.S. it would try to help, and did so, but proved the point that the jingoistic Cambodian regime was simply beyond reach.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Ford ordered word passed to congressional leaders that "appropriate action" would soon be taken. Perhaps in retrospect the President should have summoned these leaders to the White House for a face-to-face conversation. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, for example, said later that he had not been "consulted," on the theory he was told, not asked.

Other criticism in a Congress now showing dangerous symptoms of taking over American foreign policy from its feuding committee rooms was also heard, raising ominous questions about a vicious partisan debate erupting from the President's bold action.

But on that point Mr. Ford and his top aides, often indecisive and vacillating on lesser matters, showed no concern this time. They assumed that whatever partisan outcry might ensue, the American people as a whole would react with overwhelming approval to the President's powerful response to an unprovoked act of piracy on the high seas.

"Sure they'll try to demagogue it," one senior presidential aide told us. "That's par for the course. But no one considered that as part of the problem."

Thus, in this first, clear show of American power since the Indochina fiasco, Mr. Ford has demonstrated what he is often criticized for lacking: a talent for leadership and command, in a case void of ambiguity to him and his advisers.

Storms Injure More Than 50 Persons From Oklahoma To Minnesota

By The Associated Press

Violent thunderstorms hatched by a record spring heat wave injured more than 50 persons from Oklahoma to Minnesota and caused millions of dollars in damage.

Temperatures that soared into the 90s Monday from the southern Plains to the Great Lakes, fell back as the storms passed but were expected to touch or surpass records again today.

In sharp contrast, a storm in the West brought heavy-snow warnings to Montana and stockmen's and travel advisories in sections of four other states.

The storm followed a day in which temperature records for the date fell in numerous locations.

Des Moines, Iowa, with 93 shattered a record of 92 that had stood since 1854. Chicago sweltered to 94, one above the record set there in 1962 for May 19.

While tornadoes were sighted in more than a dozen places Monday, none of the storm damage was attributed by the National Weather Service to twisters.

National Guardsmen were called out to help with security at Mounds View, Minn., after winds of more than 100 miles per hour ripped several northern suburbs of Minneapolis-St. Paul late Monday. More than 20 persons were injured and damage was estimated at $1 million at a Mounds View trailer park.

Twenty minutes after children were dismissed for the day at the Sunnyside Elementary School in New Brighton, Minn., the storm hit and tore the roof from the school building. No one was hurt.

The winds unroofed part of a shopping center at Fridley, Minn., causing $500,000 damage to stores and merchandise.

Hardest hit there was the Ellenville-Ballwin area in west St. Louis County. The storm ripped the roofs off 25 buildings in an apartment complex near Ellenville. The owner of the complex estimated damage at $1 million.

Twelve persons were treated for injuries after similarly violent thunderstorms raked Midwestern and other sections of Wisconsin. Damage included buckled walls, shattered roofs, downed trees and power lines.

In the West, 4 inches of snow blanketed Lander, Wyo., and a heavy-snow warning was posted through the day for southwest and south-central mountain areas of Montana.

Two Old Movie Pros, Hepburn, Olivier, Win Emmy Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Oscar-winners Hepburn and Olivier won Television Academy Awards Monday night as outstanding stars in a special program for "Love Among the Ruins," which scored a total of six Emmys including those for director, George Cukor and writer James Costigan.

"The Mary Tyler Moore Show" was hailed by the television Academy as the outstanding comedy series of 1974-75, winning a total of six Emmys including those for supporting performers Betty White, Ed Asner and Cicely Leahtman.

But Miss Moore lost out as best actress in a comedy series to Valerie Harper, whose "Rhoda" was an offshoot of the Moore series.

"Upstairs, Downstairs," the British-made story of servant life in Edwardian England, won for the second year in a row as best dramatic series. Its victory and that of the British-made "Love Among the Ruins" gave the Emmy awards a decidedly British accent.

Some of the winners were also losers at the Hollywood Palladium festivities. Tony Randall was best lead actor in a comedy series for "The Odd Couple," and Jessica Walter best lead actress in a limited series for "Army of Women." Both shows have been cancelled.

Battle scenes during the Revolutionary War more than 100 battles were fought in New Jersey, one of the 13 original colonies.

They cautioned him that, contrary to his public statement, the ship's capture was not "piracy." Under international law, they said, Cambodia had a legal right to seize the ship after it steamed within the 12-mile limit which Cambodia claims as its territorial waters.

The Mayaguez was only eight miles from the Cambodian islet of Poulo Wai when it was stopped.

Meanwhile, the Joint Chiefs gave President Ford their opinion that the ship could be rescued because of its isolated location off an islet some 35 miles from the Cambodian coast.

In the end, the President listened to his generals rather than his lawyers.

PUYALLUP HOSPITAL: The Puyallup Indians gave up cheaply 39 acres of land in 1941 so the federal government could build an Indian hospital. Twenty years later, the government turned the hospital over not to the Indians but to Washington state for a token $1 payment.

Now the Puyallups want the hospital back, and the state would like to get rid of it. But the state government is insisting upon a $1.7 million payment either from the Indians or the feds.

The federal government won't pay, and the state government won't give up the hospital without pay. "The state got at least $10 million worth of use out of it for $1," grumbled a Puyallup spokesman. "With a little help from the feds, we could make it count for a lot more than $1.7 million."

HO-BOY! AN AFTER-DINNER WALK IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD IS SURE EDUCATIONAL. I LEARNED ANOTHER LESSON TONIGHT—

INSIDE REPORT— President Ford And The 'Rule Of Law'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The gamble taken by President Ford in using armed force against Cambodia, starting with air strikes against Cambodian gunboats Tuesday evening, was based above all on this hard conclusion: the U.S. had to seize the occasion of Cambodian piracy to prove it both could and would react with decision and power to international lawlessness.

There was no split of any kind in the National Security Council (NSC). Indeed, every top official in the administration agreed that whatever the risk, a show of American will and power was absolutely essential following the humiliation of South Vietnam.

In ordering American attacks on the Cambodian gunboats to block an obvious Cambodian effort to remove the American crew of the Mayaguez to the Cambodian mainland, neither the President nor the NSC even attempted to figure out an answer to this potentially explosive question: what if the Cambodians should use the gunboat attack as the pretext for murdering some 40 American crewmen?

"Of course we had contingency plans," one top presidential aide told us. "But we couldn't sit around and try to estimate every possible contingency when we are dealing with a primitive government which has virtually no outside contacts with the world. We had to act."

The underlying assumption of the President's aides was that the U.S. must deal with such an act of piracy as a Western nation acting in a civilized fashion: demand immediate return of the ship and crew and map a contingency plan to seize both by force if the demand was not met within a reasonable time.

Following seizure of the Mayaguez by Cambodia just after midnight, Sunday, the President allowed almost 48 hours to go by without any military response. Next, the basic plan of isolating the little island in the Gulf of Thailand, where the Mayaguez was held, went astray when Cambodian gunboats moved toward the mainland about 15 miles away. The President then gave his order to halt the gunboats.

At that point, the U.S. went the full and necessary distance to prove what Mr. Ford and his Secretaries of State and Defense, Henry Kissinger and James Schlesinger, had been preaching non-stop ever since the catastrophic end of the Vietnam war: despite that national humiliation, no foreign country should make the mistake that the United States was discarding its role as world leader, or was reluctant to take strong action where demanded.

Indeed, the private remarks of top officials here make it abundantly apparent that the Mayaguez seizure became the ideal case to prove the point.

In the background was the utter failure of all efforts to open some kind of circuitous diplomatic channel to the revolutionary Cambodian government of the Khmer Rouge. The Soviet Union has been kicked out of Phnom Penh for failure to break with the old regime. The People's Republic of China, according to one high official, informed the U.S. it would try to help, and did so, but proved the point that the jingoistic Cambodian regime was simply beyond reach.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Ford ordered word passed to congressional leaders that "appropriate action" would soon be taken. Perhaps in retrospect the President should have summoned these leaders to the White House for a face-to-face conversation. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, for example, said later that he had not been "consulted," on the theory he was told, not asked.

Other criticism in a Congress now showing dangerous symptoms of taking over American foreign policy from its feuding committee rooms was also heard, raising ominous questions about a vicious partisan debate erupting from the President's bold action.

But on that point Mr. Ford and his top aides, often indecisive and vacillating on lesser matters, showed no concern this time. They assumed that whatever partisan outcry might ensue, the American people as a whole would react with overwhelming approval to the President's powerful response to an unprovoked act of piracy on the high seas.

"Sure they'll try to demagogue it," one senior presidential aide told us. "That's par for the course. But no one considered that as part of the problem."

Thus, in this first, clear show of American power since the Indochinese fiasco, Mr. Ford has demonstrated what he is often criticized for lacking: a talent for leadership and command, in a case void of ambiguity to him and his advisers.

Storms Injure More Than 50 Persons From Oklahoma To Minnesota

By The Associated Press
Violent thunderstorms hatched by a record spring heat wave injured more than 50 persons from Oklahoma to Minnesota and caused millions of dollars in damage. Temperatures that soared into the 90s Monday from the southern Plains to the Great Lakes, fell back as the storms warnings to Montana and stock warnings and travel advisories in touch or surpass records again today. In sharp contrast, a storm in the West brought heavy-snow the date fell in numerous locations. Des Moines, Iowa, with 33 shattered a record of 22 that had stood since 1934. Chicago swelled to 94, one above the record set there in 1922 for May 19. While tornadoes were sighted in more than a dozen places Monday, none of the storm damage was attributed by the National Weather Service to twisters. National Guardsmen were called out to help with security at Mounds View, Minn., after winds of more than 100 miles per hour ripped several northern suburbs of Minneapolis-St. Paul late Monday. More than 30 persons were injured and damage was estimated at $1 million at a MOUNDS VIEW trailer park. Twenty minutes after children were dismissed for the day at the Sunnyvale Elementary School in New Brighton, Minn., the storm hit and tore the roof from the school building. No one was hurt. The winds unroofed part of a shopping center at Fridley, Minn., causing $500,000 damage to stores and merchandise. Hardest hit there was the Ellisville-Ballwin area in west St. Louis County. The storm ripped the roofs off 25 buildings in an apartment complex near Ellisville. The owner of the complex estimated damage at $1 million. Twelve persons were treated for injuries after similarly violent thunderstorms raked Madison and other sections of Wisconsin. Damage included buckled walls, shattered roofs, downed trees and power lines. In the West, 4 inches of snow blanketed Lander, Wyo. and a heavy-snow warning was posted through the day for southwest and south-central mountain areas of Montana.

Two Old Movie Pros, Hepburn, Olivier, Win Emmy Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Oscar-winners Hepburn and Olivier won Television Academy Awards Monday night as outstanding stars in a special program for "Love Among the Ruins," which scored a total of six Emmys including those for director George Cukor and writer James Costigan. "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" was hailed by the Television Academy as the outstanding comedy series of 1974, winning a total of six Emmys including those for supporting performers Betty White, Ed Asner and Cloris Leachman. But Miss Moore lost out as lead actress in a comedy series to Valerie Harper, whose "Rhoda" was an offshoot of the Moore series. "Upstairs, Downstairs," the British-made story of servant life in Edwardian England, won for the second year in a row as best dramatic series. Its victory and that of the British-made "Love Among the Ruins" gave the Emmy awards a decidedly British accent. Some of the winners were also losers at the Hollywood Palladium festivities. Tony Randall was best lead actor in a comedy series for "The Odd Couple," and Jessica Walter best lead actress in a limited series for "Ally Poppins." Both shows have been cancelled. Battle Scene. During the Revolutionary War more than 100 battles were fought in New Jersey, one of the 13 original colonies.

Arithmetic Can Help Develop Much-Needed Shopping Skills

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the thirteenth of a series of 14 articles prepared by Science Research Associates, Inc., that shows how everyday situations can help children learn to add, subtract, multiply and divide.

Mathematics is an integral part of our language. In talking and writing, we not only use the 26 letters of the alphabet—but we use the 10 digits from zero to nine, a fact often overlooked by parents who are helping children develop their language skills.

We use digits to express ideas, to ask questions, to find and give answers, and to otherwise verify and expand our experience.

Sometimes there are contradictions between what the "alphabet" part of the language tells us and what the "digit" portion repeats.

There are occasions when the alphabet part of the language says "good deal" but the digit part says "you got gypped!" There are times when the digits in the language reveal that the "bargain" you thought you had turned out to be just the opposite.

Arithmetic, which includes adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing, is a basic part of the mathematics language. Some knowledge of it is necessary for people to live their everyday lives.

This skill is particularly vital in shopping. "Sale" items are not always that. Guarantees don't always mean what they seem and it gives practice in elementary division.

The exercise is designed to let children find the real bargains in the "fare sale." If the child is not ready yet for division, he or she can use subtraction to find the answer. For division is a quick way to subtract, just as multiplication is a fast way to add.

If the child is not ready for division and wishes to use subtraction he can do it this way, using the plastic bats as an example: Subtract 19 from 88 and get 69; then subtract 19 from 69 and get 50; subtract 19 again and you have one cent left. This is no bargain because the sale price is one cent greater than buying three bats separately.

Search Under Way For Men Missing In Lake At Athens

ATHENS, Tex. (AP) — A search for two Dallas men missing after unrelated boating incidents on Cedar Creek Lake resumed today.

The body of the wife of one of the missing men was recovered from the lake.

Sheriff J. W. Brownlow said the body of Mary Frances Deans, 49, was recovered Saturday night.

Her husband, John W. Deans, remained missing. Also missing was Codis Weaver, about 45. Authorities searched for the men Sunday and Monday.

Officers began rescue operations for the couple about 10:30 a.m. Saturday after an empty boat was reported "running wild" on the East Texas lake, Brownlow said.

Weaver apparently drowned late Saturday evening in the lake when a boat in which he was riding with two other men went out of control, tossing the trio into the water, officers said.

Occupants of another boat rescued Weaver's companions, Carlton Jones and Willie Davis, both of Dallas.

TSTA Members OK Merger With NEA

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas teachers who are members of the Texas State Teachers Association have approved unification with the National Education Association, the TSTA said today.

Jewel Howard, Dallas, TSTA president, said a mail ballot showed 54,992 members for unification and 46,661 against.

She said that unification means, in essence, that the Texas educators who belong to TSTA state and local associations must also hold membership in NEA beginning Sept. 1. TSTA now has about 160,500 members.

Mrs. Howard said the NEA has guaranteed to make up any dues revenue which TSTA might lose by a decline in membership for the next three years.

The membership referendum May 16 reversed a vote last year when TSTA members voted about 2 to 1 against unification.

Mrs. Howard said she and other supporters believe unification will strengthen teacher organizations and give Texas more influence in federal education legislation.

Texas Primary Bill Draws Fire From Oklahoma

HOUSTON (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, an announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, says the 1976 Texas presidential primary proposal is "special privilege bill."

He said Monday the bill was "specially tailored" to the presidential candidacy of U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and predicted if it becomes law "surely will be challenged all the way to the Democratic National Convention."

He said he hopes Bentsen will join him in asking Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe to veto the bill. "I believe the people of Texas want to have their votes counted for the candidates of their choice," Harris said.

Namath Deciding On Chicago Offer

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The yearling World Football League learns today whether free-agent quarterback Joe Namath will make the jump from the National Football League's New York Jets to the WFL's Chicago Winds.

But WFL President Chris Hemmeler said Monday that it would be a while before the decision is made public.

Winds owner Eugene Pullano held his first face-to-face meeting with Namath in Tuscaloosa Monday night, after day-long discussions among league officials, the backers of the Winds and Namath's lawyer, Jimmy Walsh.

Hemmeler told a news conference in Birmingham that the meeting in Tuscaloosa, where Namath owns a popular restaurant, was "a big step. It's important that Joe meet the people he is going to work for and with."

Namath reportedly has been offered a $4 million multi-year contract with the Winds, including $100,000 a year for 20 years.

The Jets, with whom Namath has played out his option, reportedly have offered him a million-dollar pact. The quarterback signed with the Jets in January 1965, fresh off the University of Alabama team, for a then-fabulous $400,000.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Jets said Monday night "We have made Joe a substantial offer. I guess like everybody else, we just have to sit and wait for Joe to make up his mind. That's all we can do."

Namath's decision, Hemmeler said, would be known internally by the league, "but we'll keep it confidential until he wants to make the announcement." That probably would come in Chicago, he said.

The president said the "material parts of the contract and some subtle parts of it have been worked out. Namath is looking for additional potential or contingent benefits."

Hemmeler would not define the additional benefits. He said, however, that they represented "a substantial sum of money, based on substantial performance."

He said Pullano would discuss the final details of the 40-page contract with Namath.

Asked if he thought Namath might be playing the WFL offer against the Jets, Hemmeler replied: "I don't think so. The NFL is reasonable and conservative, they know Namath's value to that league, and we know his value to ours. Our offer is reasonable as far as this league is concerned."

"I am optimistic. Our offer is substantial, and it is hopefully unlikely that it would not be given full consideration. "It's almost an emotional offer. Namath and his advisors feel comfortable with its accuracy. Negotiations are complete at this time. Namath relies on Mr. Walsh, but he will make the ultimate decision."

SMU Grid Players Suspended After Polygraph Results

DALLAS (AP) — Dave Smith, Southern Methodist University's football coach, says he used a lie-detector test to pursue questions of drug use among his athletes after he learned such a test "was one means employed at another university."

Two players have been suspended from the team and both claim their suspension was a result of refusal to take a polygraph, or lie detector test. Smith and SMU athletic director Dick Davis said one of the players was suspended because of his grades.

Published accounts here Sunday and Monday say three athletes were involved in the polygraph test issue, but only one player actually took such a test. Davis said, "to the best of my knowledge, he cleared himself."

Although the Southwest Conference has provisions for polygraph testing, the provisions are for investigation of recruiting practices. About the use of the polygraph test in such an investigation as the one SMU officials are conducting internally on drugs, Southwest Conference executive secretary Cliff Speegle said, "an institution can do whatever it wishes, or what it can do under its authority."

Smith said concern for individuals in his charge prompted him to use the polygraph test in the drug matter.

"If one player is involved in drugs, you should be concerned. The players—that's our reason to be here, to be of help to them. That's all I was trying to do," said Smith.

Smith would not name the other school which he learned had similarly used a polygraph

Flyers, Sabres Set To Battle Tonight

BUFFALO (AP) — When he is being interviewed, Philadelphia Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent wrings his hands as would a mother whose child is late getting home from school. He speaks softly, at times nervously about himself—almost as if there's someone else he's rather be at the time.

He seems far more at home when hidden by the bulky equipment and the mask that shields his expressions from the fans who adore him. When he is on the ice, surrounded yet alone, his inhibitions flee.

"He's the main reason we won the Stanley Cup last year," says teammate Andre Dupont. "He's so good, you can afford to take a chance on offense once in a while."

Buffalo's teammates were in the penalty box. Shots zoomed toward his net; the Flyers could not clear the puck. But at all times, Parent kept his uncanny cool and sent Buffalo away without a goal.

"If you get caught up ice," the defenseman continued, "you think, 'Well, Bernie will stop them.' But there are a lot of other teams that can't play that way."

It is Parent's often extraordinary ability that has helped the Flyers carry a 2-0 lead into tonight's third game of the National Hockey League's championship series. He has allowed his Buffalo Sabres' challengers only one goal in each of the first two triumphs while stopping the other 45 shots he has faced.

"We expect Bernie to play well," says Buffalo Coach Floyd Smith. "He's part of the Flyers' machine, where each part complements the other."

Senate Unit Kills Three Tax Plans

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A bill that the House sponsor insists is essential in any meaningful attempt to revise Texas' public school financing has been buried in a Senate subcommittee.

The Senate Finance Committee rejected three plans Monday to set up a uniform statewide system for assessing property for taxation, including one sponsored by Rep. Wayne Pevelo, D-Orange, which already has passed the House.

Two proposed substitutes for the Pevelo bill—both of which would dilute the state comptroller's authority over property taxes—were defeated, 5-4.

Pevelo's bill was then sent to a subcommittee on an 8-4 vote, with senators representing rural areas solid in their opposition to the measure.

The Senate sponsor of the bill, Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, was asked if the Pevelo bill was dead.

"Yes," he said.

"Who killed it?"

"I'd rather not make any nominations," said Jones.

Under Pevelo's bill, all evaluations of taxable property would be made by county appraising officers, using standards and guidelines issued by the comptroller.

The comptroller would audit county appraisals to assure uniformity across the state.

A proposal by Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, would have set up a tax board appointed by the lieutenant governor and speaker to do the audits. It also would have eliminated annual reappraisals, at an estimated saving, Hance estimated, of $100 million to local tax units. It was one of the substitutes that failed.

Ford To Boost New Car Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. probably will raise new car prices about $300 this fall, says board chairman Henry Ford II.

Ford's prediction, made Monday at an impromptu news conference, was at the upper limit of the increase of 3 to 6 percent mentioned by company President Lee A. Iacocca at the firm's stockholder's meeting earlier this month.

New car prices rose an average $450 last September and another $500 or so in the preceding nine months, contributing to the sharp sales slump started by the Mideast oil embargo and deepened last fall by economic recession.

This is still the land of opportunity. Where else could you make enough to owe so much to the government?

The trick is to control inflation without causing a depression—a challenge equivalent to sticking a pin into a balloon gradually.
