

Devonian Well Opens New Pool In Martin Area

R. K. Petroleum Corp., Mt. Carmel, Ill., has completed No. 2-G, T. Hall, et al., as a Devonian oil discovery in Martin County, 3 1/2 miles northeast of Tarzan.

It had a 24-hour flowing potential of 455 barrels of 44.5-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 50-1. Production was through a 7-44-inch choke and perforations at 11,810-11,815 feet, which had been acidized with 250 gallons.

Drilled to 12,476 feet, it has 5 1/2-inch production pipe set at 12,000 feet, and is plugged back to 11,908 feet.

The following log tops were picked under derrick floor elevation of 2,850 feet: Spraberry, 7,625; Dean, 5,992; Strawn, 10,860; Devonian, 11,697; Fusselman, 12,068; and Montoya, 12,132 feet.

Location is 690 feet from north and west lines of section 4, block 37, T-2-N, T&P survey.

Operators Slate Offsets In Pecos

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. filed application to drill No. 2-B Blackstone-Slaughter as a 3/4-mile east offset to the dual Ellenburger gas pay opener and Strawn oil conformer, and the same distance northwest offset to the Strawn conformer in the Yucca Butte, West field of Pecos County.

Location is 990 feet from north and 1,200 feet from west lines of section 30, block A-3, TCRS survey, six miles west of Sheffield. Planned depth is 11,000 feet.

The Ellenburger opener, the firm's No. 1-C Blackstone-Slaughter, was completed May 22, for 29 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 10,624-10,714 feet. It picked the top of the Strawn zone at 7,920 feet, under ground elevation of 2,692 feet.

Stepout Scheduled Gulf Oil Corp. plans No. 1-14 State Gas Unit as a 3/4-mile north stepout to the four-well Rojo Caballos, South (Ellenburger) gas pool of Pecos.

It has a projected depth of 22,000 feet, and spots 900 feet from south and east lines of section 14, block 40, T-9, T&P survey, 10 miles south of Cayanosa.

Eddy Exploration Rates Big Gas Flow

David Fasken, Midland, No. 1 Lake-Federal, 3/4-mile southwest stepout to the dual Strawn and Morrow discovery of the Avalon field of Eddy County, N.M., was bottomed at 11,212 feet, circulating, after it flowed gas heavily on a straddle-packer drillstem test in the Morrow.

Tool was open 220 minutes on the test taken from 10,765-10,847 feet. It flowed gas at the rate of 7.3 million cubic feet per day, increasing to 7.73 million cubic feet daily, and recovered 310 feet of mud-cut condensate and 205 feet of muddy filtrate water.

The project earlier flowed gas at the maximum, daily rate of 4.45 million cubic feet per day, on a drillstem test from 10,567-

High Winds, Lightning Rake Area

High winds overturned a mobile home south of Midland and lightning damaged at least three houses here during thunderstorms which hit the area at about midnight Wednesday.

There was an unconfirmed report of a tornado sighting northwest of the city. A mobile home owned by Danny Crocker was turned around and thrown about 25 yards from its foundation about 2 1/2 miles south of the city on FM 1213 (Valley View Road), the Department of Public Safety reported.

The residents were in a storm shelter and escaped injury. Damage to the mobile home and its contents was estimated at $25,000.

A vacant house at 2405 Metz St. received heavy damage to the roof, trusses and ceiling, fire department officials said. The house is owned by Grafa Construction Co.

The Bill Sole home at 9 Mariner Court was damaged when lightning struck the television antenna and traveled to the floor. No injuries were reported.

Fire caused light damage to the roof of the Robert Bigard home at 1902 N. H St. when it was struck by lightning, fire officials said.

In Odessa, firemen said a home was damaged by lightning and a car was destroyed when lightning set it afire.

There were no other immediate reports of serious damage in the area. Although many areas of the Tall City reported a rainfall overnight of 5/8 inch, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal collected .65 inch for a month's tally of 3.26. The storm boosted the year's rainfall to 4.93 inches.

More precipitation may be in store for area residents, with forecasters citing a 20 per cent probability for late this afternoon and Friday and a 30 per cent chance tonight.

The weatherman said the mercury should rise to the middle 80s both this afternoon and Friday, with tonight's low in the mid 50s.

Wednesday's high was 90, and the overnight low was 59.

$605,000 United Way Goal Slated

A goal of $605,000 for its 1976 campaign was announced today by The United Way of Midland, Inc.

The goal was adopted by the board of directors upon the recommendation of campaign chairman Cecil Bybee and co-chairman Ron Schwisow.

"Our advisory committee, comprised of leaders from banks and local industry, discussed the goal thoroughly after hearing the agency needs. It was their consensus that our 1976 goal should be around $600,000," said Bybee.

The advisory committee is comprised of Tony A. Martin, J. Harvey Herd, K. M. Jastrow, Hamilton E. McRae, Robert L. Pendleton and Charles H. Fridley.

Budget division chairman Jim Stephenson said agency requests totaled more than $644,000. After audit expenses and pledge losses are deducted, actual allocations will be about $20,000 less than the amount raised.

The 1975 drive raised $564,710—$28,310 more than the goal.

Midland last year ranked third in the state in per capita giving behind Beaumont and Waco.

Bybee said the city's growing population and planned emphasis on corporate contributions should contribute to an even more successful campaign in 1976.

Economic Indicators Rise Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to anticipate the course of the economy showed its sharpest increase in history last month, the Commerce Department said today, providing a preliminary signal that the recession is at or near its end.

The department said its composite index of leading indicators, released for the first time in a new form intended to eliminate the distortions of inflation, jumped 4.2 per cent in April and showed a one per cent rise in March.

The April rise surpassed the previous record monthly jump of 3 per cent in June, 1965. It was the first time since February and March of last year that the index has risen for two months in a row. The increases reversed 11 consecutive months of decline.

A historical compilation of the indicator shows it has anticipated recovery from the past three recessions by one or two months. Advisory economists generally follow what they call "three-month rule" in interpreting the index, meaning they consider any change in direction to be only tentative until it continues for three months.

But with two months of increases already in hand, and given the past record of the index, the early indication was a substantiation of an earlier judgment by Commerce Department economist James L. Pate that the recession apparently bottomed out in April.

At the same time, government reports show workers' productivity, a measure of how efficiently the economy is functioning, rose at an annual rate of 3.4 per cent in nonfinancial corporations during the first quarter.

It was the first increase since the second quarter of 1973. The nonfinancial sector includes all private businesses except banks, credit agencies, stock and commodity brokers and insurance companies.

In a statement responding to the latest figures from the index of leading indicators, Pate cautioned against attributing too much significance to any single economic yardstick.

But, he added, "The size and breadth of the two consecutive monthly increases in the leading indicators is encouraging and consistent with other evidence suggesting that the recession has reached bottom."

"The performance of the index in March and April supports the forecast of a recovery in over-all economic activity in the second half of the year," Pate said.

In addition to reporting the double increase in its new leading indicators, the Commerce Department also reported a 4.2 per cent rise in April by the old index measure. The old index had shown a 1.1 per cent decline in March.

But, he added, "The size and breadth of the two consecutive monthly increases in the leading indicators is encouraging and consistent with other evidence suggesting that the recession has reached bottom."

President Meets With Premiers

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — President Ford scored no immediate success today as he launched a new search for a Cyprus settlement.

Ford met separately at the U.S. ambassador's residence here with the premiers of Greece and Turkey, the two parties to the nine-month-old Cyprus dispute.

"You can't say that progress was made in these meetings," Asst. Secretary of State Arthur Hartman told newsmen afterward.

Hartman said any progress would have to await direct Greek-Turkish discussions here Saturday.

Hartman said Ford was "very careful not to put forward any suggestions" of his own for a possible Cyprus accord. The State Department official said the President merely emphasized "the will of the United States to be as helpful as possible in helping them."

After five hours of sleep, Ford followed a marathon schedule during his first full day as President on European soil.

In addition to meeting with the Greek and Turkish leaders, he had conferences with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany and the premiers of Luxembourg, Denmark and Portugal.

All these meetings came before the opening of the NATO summit meeting.

U.S. officials said Ford was hopeful he could help lay the groundwork for a Cyprus settlement during separate talks with Premier Constantine Caramanlis of Greece and Premier Suleyman Demirel of Turkey.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was to meet with the Greek and Turkish foreign ministers. American informants said that if the talks go the way Kissinger expects, a settlement of the long and bitter dispute over the division of the island in the eastern Mediterranean may finally be in sight. The two sides were said to seem reconciled, but each was reported reluctant to make a major concession to the other.

Kissinger was reported hopeful that even if no settlement can be reached yet, sufficient progress will be made to encourage the U.S. House of Representatives to approve the legislation rearming U.S. military aid to Turkey. Congress suspended such aid because of the use of American-supplied arms in the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last summer, but the Senate has approved the resumption.

Wanted: Go-Go Dancers For Troops At Ft. Hood

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — The U.S. Army is quietly, but earnestly, looking for somebody to supply it with a troupe of experienced go-go dancers to entertain troops at Ft. Hood, Tex., during the upcoming fiscal year.

Although the Army, like the rest of government, is an equal opportunity employer that is supposed to be color-blind and indifferent to sex, insiders report that male topless dancers who apply for the Army contract will be given a polite brush-off.

The Army, which buys everything from scrub brushes to battle tanks, had to bend its procurement procedures slightly, since it did not have an alphabetical code to designate contract bids for go-go dancers. It settled, coincidentally, for the letter "X" which will be used hereafter when Army seeks to recruit exotic dancers and other entertainers not normally considered integral parts of combat units.

Suppliers of go-go dancers around the country are already working out details of the presentations they will begin to make next Thursday, when the Army officially opens bids for the Ft. Hood contract. It hopes to make a choice in time for the dancing season, which is supposed to kick off June 30 at Ft. Hood.

Violence Erupts At Farm Union Demonstration Site

HIDALGO, Tex. (AP) — An object was hurled through the window of a truck driving past a line of United Farm Workers Union picketers near a canteloupe field here today but a deputy sheriff on the scene stepped in to prevent further violence.

About 100 union demonstrators had lined both sides of Farm 1016 to picket a canteloupe field owned by M. F. (Mike) Frost.

A pickup truck driven by a man who refused to identify himself was driving through the double line of demonstrators when an object was hurled through the air.

The rear window of the truck exploded into shivers of glass. The truck added to a sudden stop and the driver, pump shotgun in hand, jumped from the truck.

Hidalgo County deputy Elise Juarez leaped from his patrol car, shouted at the man and motioned at him to return to his truck. The man replaced the shotgun on the truck seat.

Sheriff Claudio Castaneda and other officers arrived and attempted to determine who threw the object.

"That screen (a sunscreen across the rear window of the truck) was the only thing that saved my head," said the driver.

The incident came during a week of demonstrations by UFW organizers and sympathizers.

One melon grower said Wednesday he will harvest his canteloupes despite UFW activities, even if it requires bloodshed. Farmer Chester Moore of El Texano ranch near this South Texas border city said he watched union demonstrators throw rocks and his own melons at his workers Wednesday.

He also said some of the union demonstrators ran into his fields and chased his workers, striking some of them.

"I was sitting a little ways off with my shotgun cocked and ready," Moore said. El Texano ranch was the scene of violence Monday when farmer C. L. Miller Jr. opened fire on demonstrators, wounding ten.

Tower: Decontrol The Key

By LARRY LOVELACE
If Republicans and Democrats head John Tower, the presidential race next year will feature Gerald Ford and Lloyd Bentsen.

The Republican senator from Texas was in Midland Wednesday and said he felt the Democratic senator from Texas, Bentsen, was the best bet for his party, at least "in our part of the country (the South)."

Of course, Tower's personal choice for the job is the man who now sits in the White House. "Naturally, I support the President," he said in an interview with The Reporter-Telegram.

He also supports the President's proposals to hike the tariff on foreign crude by another $1 a barrel. However, that's not the important issue, as Tower sees it. "I think the tariff has been played up too much. We must look beyond that—to decontrol" of crude oil and natural gas prices, he said.

When Ford announced Tuesday night he was increasing the tariff to $2 a barrel, he also said he would send to Congress next month a proposal to deregulate oil prices over the next 18 to 24 months.

Tower explained that either house of Congress could veto the oil deregulation order by Ford, but indicated such an action might not be without its political perils.

"Congress is beginning to run some risks now in trying to strap the President" in his efforts to deal with the energy problem, the senator commented, adding that it is especially open to criticism because it has not produced an energy program of its own.

One proposal which would require affirmative action by Congress is the deregulation of natural gas, which, unlike crude oil, is a legislative matter, Tower said.

Deregulation is important, he said, in order to encourage domestic production "through the price mechanism," an approach he advocated.

That approach is also behind the President's tariff decision, Tower asserted. "The President has decided the best way to regulate consumption is through the price mechanism."

The senator conceded the tariff "may or may not cut consumption," and added that was why he felt the deregulation issue was much more important since the resulting higher prices would provide incentives for increased production.

Commenting on an incentive that now is just a memory for the major oil companies and some large independents, Tower said the elimination of the oil depletion allowance has "stymied drilling activity in this country. Sure, they're continuing with projects already under way, but they're having to go back and examine plans because of the retroactive feature of the depletion elimination."

Without the cash flow generated by the allowance, (See TOWER Page 2A)

Sen. John Tower

Tower Committed To Decontrol Of Oil, Natural Gas

Another issue facing Congress when it returns Tuesday from its 10-day Memorial Day recess is Ford's veto of a strip mining regulation bill.

News reports have indicated the override proponents would have an easy time of it in the Senate, but Tower said the "prospects in the Senate are very marginal."

Coal production could play a big part in the future of Texas, Tower said. Although the state is traditionally thought of in terms of oil and natural gas, he noted it "has the largest deposits of coal in the nation."

In the nation's drive toward energy independence, other sources of energy—most notably nuclear power—are being advanced as solutions. In response to a question, Tower replied, "Nuclear power will never phase out the petroleum industry, but we have to take up the slack" by other means, including atomic and solar energy.

One pursuit that will be consuming a lot of human energy over the next 18 months is the 1976 presidential election. Asked about the political prospects of Democrat-turned-Republican John Connally—who has said he didn't plan to leave public life after his recent acquittal on bribery conspiracy charges—Tower said, "He's not running. I don't think he's made up his own mind yet what he wants to do."

Tower declined to comment on the effort to create a state utilities commission. "That's a matter for the Texas Legislature to decide and not the U.S. Senate."

Among other matters hanging fire while Congress is in recess are GI Bill checks for about 300,000 veterans across the country. A supplemental appropriations bill, which includes funds for the educational and training benefits, is stalled in a House and Senate conference committee.

Weather Goes On Tear

Residents of Bandera, Kendall, Kerr, Wichita, Travis, Williamson, Wise, Parker, Tarrant, Dallas, Johnson and Denton counties were warned to watch for water in low lying areas. The National Weather Service reported that Mary's Creek in Benbrook in Tarrant County was at its bankfull and was expected to overflow by mid-morning.

Weathermen said extensive flooding was expected to continue in the area.

Nearly six inches of rain left the Groom area east of Amarillo awash, probably wiping out the wheat crop in that area and sending water four feet deep over a section of Interstate 40.

Odessans Charged In Oilfield Thefts

LOVINGTON, N. M. — Two Odessa men have been arrested and charged after oilfield equipment was reported stolen from two Lea County locations.

Clyde Jesse Lonis, 34, remained in Lovington jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

William Hardy Boyd Jr., 34, remained in Ector County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond on a fugitive charge.

Lea County investigators said Louis is charged with receiving and concealing more than $2,500 worth of stolen property. Both men were arrested in Odessa.

Welfare Rolls Jump To 11.2 Million Persons

WASHINGTON (AP) — High unemployment produced a sharp increase in the number of fathers receiving public assistance during February and March.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reported Wednesday that the number of unemployed fathers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) rose 8.5 percent or 8,937 to a total of 114,431 in February, when the unemployment rate was 8.2 percent.

The number of those receiving aid was 15.6 percent more in February a year ago.

Over-all, family welfare rolls increased by $4,789 or .8 percent in February, slightly more than half the 1.3 percent rise in January.

Breach-Of-Contract Suit Filed Here

Williams-Patterson Inc. of Midland, supplier of oil field pipe and equipment, has filed a breach-of-contract suit against Woolard Pipe & Supply Co. of Midland to enforce $215,761.82 payment for 4,542.35 feet of 13 1/2-inch casing.

The lawsuit petition, filed in 143 District Court here, says that Woolard placed $25,000 in escrow toward the purchase but refused to accept the casing.

Woolard claims that Williams-Patterson did not live up to terms of the contract.

Royce Woolard and Jerry W. Woolard are defendants in the suit. Woolard Pipe & Supply is a general partnership, the petition says.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts 2 For Conspiracy

Robert Jefferson Rodgers, 25, San Antonio International Airport, and George William Brewer, 60, of Dallas were indicted today by a federal grand jury here on conspiracy in the interstate transportation of $600,000 in security bonds taken in a May 1973 burglary in Midland.

The securities were taken from a safe-like cabinet in a room in the old downtown Scharbauer Hotel, now razed. The securities were taken from the cabinet owned by Robert S. Brennan Jr.

Rodgers and Brewer were arrested April 5 by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Texas Rangers at San Antonio International Airport. Rodgers is jailed in San Antonio in lieu of posting a $500,000 bond. Brewer, however, has posted bond and is free.

Odessa Man Dies Of Beating Injuries

ODESSA—Rex Marsh, 41, of Odessa, died Tuesday afternoon of injuries suffered in a beating Sunday night at an Odessa lounge.

Donald Edward Sloan, 29, of Odessa, was free on $3,000 bond Wednesday after being charged with aggravated assault in the beating. Officers said Wednesday they were preparing additional charges.

Services were at 4 p.m. today in Odessa Cemetery under direction of Easterling Funeral Home.

Born Jan. 15, 1934, in Florida, Marsh was a truck driver. Survivors include his widow, Marie; one daughter, Susan Marsh of Odessa; and two sons, Larry Marsh and Billy Marsh, both of Odessa.

Craddick Moves Measure Rapidly Through Maze

Austin Bureau AUSTIN—Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland today proved he can do in a matter of hours what many legislators cannot do during an entire session.

At 2:30 a.m. today as the House was about to adjourn, Craddick gained permission to introduce a bill to create a five-state energy compact. It took no more than 30 seconds for the bill to be referred to the House Energy Resources Committee.

Committee chairman Joe Hanna of Breckenridge got House permission to suspend the rule that would have required a five-day delay before a hearing on the bill could be held.

By 3 a.m. the bill had been reported favorably by the committee and by 9 a.m. it was set on a consent calendar with several other matters for consideration by the House today.

Butz Says Organized Crime May Be In Grain-Export Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are investigating the possibility that organized crime may be involved in the U.S. grain-export trade, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said today.

He said any illegal activities that are uncovered will be ended. "We are looking for it," Butz said in response to queries from newsmen about whether his department has evidence organized crime is involved.

"We are looking for any evidence we can find. Whatever we find that is illegal, we are going to clean up," he said. "Shady practices may be a way of life in international grain trade around the world, but we're going to stop it in this country," Butz added.

"We are looking at any port in this country where we have complaints, or where we suspect that there is improper activity."

Special Prosecutor Satisfied With Access To Nixon Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate special prosecutor's office is satisfied with its access to tapes and documents of former President Richard M. Nixon's administration and plans to seek court permission soon to withdraw from various suits over ownership of the material, an official says.

"We never had any position at all over ownership of the Nixon papers," John Barker, a spokesman for special prosecutor Henry A. Ruth, said Wednesday.

"All we were concerned about was getting access to materials we needed for possible criminal prosecutions. "We have had access, we've been getting documents," he added.

Nixon is challenging the constitutionality of a law giving the government possession of the material. He also is trying to have the Ford administration live up to its agreement to give the papers to him.

W. C. Wettstein, 52, Dies Of Mishap Injuries

William Charles Wettstein, well-known former Midlander, died in a Dallas hospital this morning from injuries received in a car-truck mishap May 8 in Dallas. He was 52.

Services have been scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday in Holy Trinity Catholic Church of Dallas, with interment to be in Gate of Heaven Cemetery at Mt. Kisco, N.Y. Sparkman Hillcrest Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Wettstein was a Fourth Degree member of the Knights of Columbus and was a member of the St. Ann's Catholic parish of Midland. Rosary for Wettstein will be held at the church at 10 a.m. Friday.

During his Midland residency between 1956 and 1973, Wettstein was active in many civic and cultural organizations here. He was a member of the Midland Rotary club and the chamber of commerce, was active in Midland Community Theatre and the P.T.A., and worked on various committees for the United Fund and the Central YMCA. He was a sponsor of Junior Achievement and worked with the Boy Scouts, having himself been an Eagle Scout.

Drugs Reported Stolen At Stanton

STANTON—More than $3,000 worth of narcotics were taken in a burglary of the Stanton Drug Store Wednesday morning. Officials said the drugs were kept in a large trash bag at the drug counter.

Wettstein married Patricia Goff at Dallas in 1962, and the couple moved to Midland in 1965 when he became a partner in the Pete Lomax Drilling Co. Later he became a land developer.

He was a former president of the Midland Country Club and of the Cottillon Club of Midland. Surviving are his wife, Zoe, of Dallas; three daughters, Charlotte Wettstein and Laura Wettstein, both of Midland, and Mrs. Eland Harper of Dallas, a granddaughter, Christine Harper Dallas; his mother, Mrs. Max Wettstein and a sister, Mrs. George M. Stevens, both of Scarsdale, N.Y.

UTPB Funding Hiked By Conference Panel

ODESSA—The University of Texas of the Permian Basin prospects brighter financing prospects as the result of Wednesday night's vote of the Texas legislature's conference committee which favors allocating the school more than $10 million for the upcoming biennium.

A UTPB spokesman this morning said the committee, composed of five members from each the House and the Senate, voted to recommend $5,072,665 for the 1975-76 school term and $5,142,782 for the 1976-77 year.

The recommendations must be ratified by both houses to become official. The conference committee's recommendation includes an inflationary increase of $150,000 for the first year and an additional $70,134 for the second year of the biennium.

McCord Leaving Penitentiary Today

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — James W. McCord Jr., first Watergate conspirator to cooperate in the government's investigation that led to Richard M. Nixon's removal from office, is scheduled to become a free man today.

McCord was to leave Allenwood Federal Penitentiary after serving less than four months of a one-to-five-year term in the minimum security facility.

Roger Anthony Welch Dies In Traffic Mishap

SNYDER—A Midland man was killed and three persons injured Wednesday night in a two-car collision about 15 miles southwest of here on Texas 350.

Killed was Roger Anthony Welch, 23, of 2928 W. Louisiana St. He was pronounced dead on arrival at a Lubbock hospital. Injured were Linda Hightower, 27, Jody Hightower, 7, and Ace Hightower, 3, all of Clint. Both the Hightower woman and the girl were in satisfactory condition this morning at a Lubbock hospital. The boy was in serious condition.

Department of Public Safety officials said a pickup driven by Welch and a car driven by the Hightower woman collided head-on about 7:30 p.m. Welch, an employee of Bill Smith Pumping Unit Service, was returning from a job near Snyder at the time of the collision. Services for Welch were pending today at Newmie W. Ellis Chapel.

Midland Youth Center Chatter

By GAYLE GRIMLAND, LESLIE MORGAN and VICKI THROCKMORTON

The tapers burn low with the closing of the 1975 Bulldog School year—a year full of love, laughter and misty memories. We, your Chatter writers, have enjoyed reporting happenings week by week, and as a final goodbye, we would like to ask you to think back with us and "Try to Remember."

Try to remember the kind of September when bright eyed Sophomores wandered wonderingly through the halls at their first taste of Bulldog Land — When seniors thrilled got a black eye from a church basketball game; Scott Pellard's loss of a spleen; Freddie's parties; Riley's black eye from skating; the candy cage; the soap opera of Candy and Charley; the magazine assembly when Karen, Randall and Peter got pie in their faces;

The nightmare of driving with Jay Poe; laughing till you cried at Skiles and Henderson Shelly; C.B. radios, Diane, Courtney and Pam's performing at half-time basketball game; streaking around the park; Brenda and Debie; Hop-a-long Lacy Densmore; using chairs at the Senior Breakfast as a protector from flying food; the look on Kathy Giesel's face when she got Biggie's Flirt; the recent Seniors after Senior Ditch Day; Mr. Cobb following Courtney Agar around to be sure she went to class; when all the girls were skinny before graduation parties.

Sundays with Leslie's fire extinguishers; getting hit with rotten bananas, eggs, or water balloons; Sophomores getting licenses; Juniors getting class rings and Seniors ordering announcements and receiving caps and gowns.

Also when Greg's hair rose from the atomic energy and Bobby Chinn thought he swallowed some radio active Coke; Raisin in The Sun; Jim Johnson's skill of hitting two cars in one motion; Lynn Cowden's Mississippi and Saturday night specials; staying up all-night; to type a term paper; the lot; cherries; the B and Ws; Love's drive-in; Colorado Koolaid; Mike Cobb being locked up in the Skeleton case; Catalco waltz lessons; getting locked in the bathroom for the second time at Holt's ranch and not being missed; F.C.A. hayrides; forgetting your tennis bloomers.

New Year's at Everetts; butter in your hair, salt in your tea with rolls and chicken everywhere else at the Senior Girl's Party Breakfast; hitchhiking on the choir trip; sitting up when your bathing suit wasn't tied; Mary Overton, and so many more things that we could never put to paper.

So, as these events, still fresh, become memories of later years, please keep in mind that although Bulldogs may have differed in physical and emotional nature, religious beliefs and personal convictions, the elements of tradition and common goal enveloped us all, and made us one forever. The Senior's high school days are over, yet we hope we have left some things in our lingering footsteps which the upcoming will "Try to remember"—and follow.

Deep in December our hearts shall remember—Midland High. Best of luck to all.

Always Bulldogs, Gayle Grimland, Leslie Morgan and Vicki Throckmorton

P.S. News from Rascoe: A thanks for the van for the senior trip to Max Harris Insurance Co.; to the outgoing Seniors for their efforts and help throughout the year for the Y.C.; to Mary Overton and Judy Karcher for helping count money and to the Board Members for their participation in Bacc reception. The Y.C. will be closed in June. Next year's Junior Council members please keep in touch during the summer.

P.P.S. And a special thanks to Rascoe, who is a big part of our Remembrances.

with a pride of authority and prestige and Juniors teetered on a tight rope in between.

As time speeds on, it's nice to remember (with a chuckle) the fire of October—our much publicized Eagle bonfire and the coming of Foodland. Yes, our homecoming festivities were treasures added to everyone's memory. We remember the Bulldog enthusiasm which never died; Fossetta routines; the football barbecue; the victory posters and yard signs; the closeness of victory, with the subtle sting of defeat.

All the while, activities were never ceasing. The Junior Council hustled to keep the Tall City warm with its firewood sales, while the Student Council provided student phone numbers and addresses in a delayed handbook. The Junior Class Council constantly greeted Dogs with new things to buy—Bangles, suckers, jerseys, twerp cards—while the Soul Club was established, and the annual staff made its first deadline.

Father Time flips another page of the calendar. Deep in December we remember, the dinky snowfall which brought a white Christmas.

laughs brought from the Honors Society's singing telegrams. Then, the tables were turned and the flash of glittering and enchanting evening is seen in remembering our Mardi Gras coronation where beauty, charm and fun were found.

Try to remember when grass was green and grain was yellow with the coming of spring. All too soon it was time to elect the cheerleaders and student council officers for another September.

A tear glistened in the eye of many a Senior at Sunday night's Baccalaureate service, which brought the realization that a 12-year phase of their life had come to a close and that many of their friends they would never see again as they go their separate ways.

WELL, DO YOU? These big events we'll never forget—but the little sidelines that made the year so interesting are all important too. Do you remember: When Sophomores actually bought elevator and bathroom passes; Janice tripping off the plane; all the girls got their hair cut; Laulie's pool was finished; all the candy fights in 4th period Room 234; rain for a week; dressing up for Valentines; Holt

Ecuadorean Tuna War Seems Over

By JOANNE OMIANG
The Washington Post

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador — The last American tuna fisherman has steamed away, the last confiscated catch has been disposed of, and Ecuadorean tuna officials now hope their own industry will be left in peace by the "giant pirate bullies" to the north.

"Why do you Americans want all your resources and all of ours, too?" asked Oscar Cornejo, co-director of Garrido Fisheries, the second largest of Ecuador's 10 tuna processors.

Ecuadorians see the apparent end to the 10-year-old tuna war as further proof that causing trouble is the only way to get the United States to stop ignoring needs and feelings of little, underdeveloped nations like Ecuador, which is the size of Oregon.

"What does it matter to you, such a huge, powerful country, a few tuna, a few dollars more or less?" asked Carlos Ponce, a former president of Ecuador. "This kind of thing costs you so many friends."

Sovereignty Question
American tuna boats have been following the migratory fish to the coast of Ecuador between January and March every year. Concerned that its own infant tuna industry was being hurt, and foreseeing a future need for the resources of its offshore ocean bottom, Ecuador joined Peru and Chile in a 1962 declaration of sovereignty over the ocean out to 200 miles from the coast.

It set up a licensing procedure for foreign fishermen based on storage capacity of the boats. But most U.S. owners refused to buy licenses on the ground — tacitly encouraged until recently by the government — that the 200-mile limit was not recognized by the United States. Although U.S. diplomats now insist that the decision whether to purchase licenses is strictly up to the tuna men, few have brought them. Ecuador seized the first American vessel in 1966 and since then has collected $6 million in fines.

The tuna, Ecuador argues, belong to Ecuador while they are feeding off the plankton and small fish that thrive on the rich runoff from the country's rainy, tropical mountains and river basin. "It's like the way you protect the ducks that migrate from Canada," said Oswaldo Trujillo, manager of Equatun, the mixed Ecuador-Chilean processing operation that is the country's largest.

"They're only there to feed like the tuna are here, but you protect them and issue hunting licenses for them."

Cornejo noted, "We're like a cafeteria for the tuna and we have to protect our customers."

Sets Limit
The government has set a 200,000-ton limit on the annual tuna take, but so far has not had license applications of that level. It will not license the biggest American vessels, which stretch their nets half a mile and may have 10 storage bins each roughly the size of a large American living room. Such a ship carries a crew of 15 to 20 men and holds up to 1,000 tons of tuna.

By contrast, the Ecuadorean fleet consists of about 90 vessels, all without refrigeration. More than half of the Ecuadorean boats use cane poles instead of nets to catch the tuna. Although a few approach the size of the American ships, most are much smaller, many holding only one ton of fish.

This year, in a new get-tough policy proclaimed by the military government of Gen. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara, police began confiscating catches. They also stretched out for weeks the procedure for paying fines, causing the seven American and one Panamanian vessel they had arrested even further losses in time and fish. The Ecuadorians seized 1,200 tons of tuna, filling the country's entire 7,800-ton storage capacity, and then required the remaining vessel to buy back their own catch at $400 a ton.

"It's all over now. We've made it too painful for them," said Trujillo. "Sometime it looks as though the only way to get the United States' attention is to throw stones, because if you throw flowers they ignore you."

In previous years the American fleet of about 130 boats, mostly from San Diego, was able to load up on Ecuadorean fish, secure in the knowledge that capture meant only a one day interruption in work and that the U.S. government would pay the fines.

SOME FEAR TAX INCREASE

Senators OK School Finance Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators have approved a $834 million school finance bill that some fear may put a capital "T" in local taxes.

Although the Senate bill would cost $145 million less than the House proposal, it would still require local school districts to supply an additional $384.4 million over the next two years.

Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, said he was worried that the higher local fund assignments might force numerous school districts "to cut back on programs, raise taxes, or both."

Sen. Oscar Maury, D-Dallas, the sponsor, assured his colleagues the state could pay its share without levying new taxes.

The bill was approved on voice vote Wednesday, but six senators—Max Sherman of Amarillo, Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, O. H. Harris of Dallas, Peyton McKnight of Tyler and W. F. Moore of Bryan—asked to be shown as voting "no."

districts do could require additional local revenue.

In an effort to begin to correct inequities between the richer and poorer school districts, the Senate bill sets aside $50 million a year to be distributed to the poorer schools on a formula basis.

It provides a minimum salary of $8,000 next September for beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree, with a 5 per cent increase the following year.

In addition: —Districts would get $90-per-student in 1975-76 and $100 the following year for maintenance and operations budgets—compared with $31 this school year. School bus allotments would be increased by $2.5 per cent.

—A district's true market value of property would be re-laid on in figuring how much state aid each would receive.

—Districts would be required to have an average ratio of one teacher for every 25 pupils, and personnel-pupil ratios would be even lower, such as 1:18 in grades 10-12.

—$3 million a year would be used to finance driver's education.

—The Texas Education Agency could adjust a district's local fund assignment if, for example, a major industrial plant closed, lowering the taxable base.

"It certainly isn't perfect, it isn't everything we would desire," said Maury, "but the bill does seek to equal educational opportunity and taxpayer equalization and it can be certified"—meaning the state can pay the tab.

Long Arguments Likely After Lower Postal Charges Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Months of argument are in prospect over the recommendation that the cost of mailing a letter should be 8½ cents per ounce instead of 10 cents and that rates should be higher for newspapers, magazines, circulars, catalogs and packages.

Meanwhile, the 10-cent first-class rate that was implemented in March 1974 on a temporary basis will remain in effect.

The 8½-cent rate for first class and higher rates in other classes were recommended Wednesday by Administrative Law Judge Seymour Wenner, who presided over extensive hearings that explored what it costs to handle the mail.

His recommendations may be overturned, but his finding that it costs less than 10 cents per ounce to handle a letter — and that first-class mail thus subsidizes other classes — will intensify long-standing debate over postal costs.

Those who argue for lower first-class rates agree with him. Large mailers and others likely to oppose his recommendation that rates for other classes be higher argue that the way the postal expenses are calculated makes it difficult to determine the real costs of first-class mail.

The Postal Rate Commission, set up by Congress to review postal rates in much the same way that public service commissions regulate utilities, contends that it's almost impossible to decide fair rates for each class until the Postal Service changes its cost system.

The Postal Rate Commission estimates that it will be about two months before it decides whether to change Wenner's recommendations.

Once the commission has acted, the nine governors appointed by the President to oversee the operation of the Postal Service may accept its recommendations, ask the commission to reconsider, or seek a review in federal court. By unanimous vote, all nine governors could also put into effect a rate schedule different from what the commission recommends.

Even after the present case is resolved, the "final" rate might not last longer than 100 days. The Postal Service has already announced plans to file a new rate proposal, and any portion of a new rate that does not exceed one-third of the present rate can be implemented on a temporary basis 100 days after the new filing.

The Postal Service says it will need the new rates to cope with inflation and to pay the salary increases now being negotiated with postal workers' unions.

Wenner also recommended that the domestic air mail rate be 16 cents per ounce, instead of the temporary 13-cent figure now in effect, on the grounds that the extra cost of handling air mail exceeds the three-cent difference between that rate and the first-class rate.

The distinction is soon to become outdated, however, as the result of a Postal Service plan to merge air mail and first-class mail. Postal officials estimate that this will enable them to save the extra costs of air mail and provide all first-class mail with service as fast as that now promised for air mail.

Initial hopes that the House might accept the so-called Senate compromise faded with word from Speaker Bill Clayton that House members would insist on a conference committee to negotiate the differences between the two versions.

Of 16 amendments proposed in nearly 2½ hours of debate, the Senate tacked on seven, including a $8.3 million proposal to pay for bilingual instruction in kindergarten.

To "cushion the impact" on local districts, the Senate voted that the first year the local fund assignment may not exceed the money the district is receiving in taxes. In the second year of the biennium, an increase of up to 50 per cent would be authorized.

Also to insulate local districts from too-drastring economic demands, the bill provides that no district would receive less state aid in the school year beginning in September than 104 per cent of the amount it got in 1974-75.

To maintain programs at higher-than-minimum levels of spending, however, as some

Paralyzed Coach Planning To Swim English Channel

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — An elementary school coach, paralyzed from the waist down in an automobile accident, says he will try to swim the English Channel this summer.

"It's easy to get wrapped up in our personal problems, forgetting the beauties associated with our lives," says 24-year-old John Robertson, who coaches three sports from his wheelchair. "We must realize our limitations, but challenge them continually."

The accident that led to that philosophy occurred six years ago.

"I was lying down in the back seat and the two guys in the front seat were talking about Vietnam and then got to talking about death," he says. They agreed that Robertson would be the safest in the event of a wreck.

"See the third pole on the right," he quoted the driver as saying. "Let's get in an accident."

He said that as a joke, the driver swerved. But the car veered out of control and hit the pole. Robertson became a paraplegic. His two companions were not injured.

Today, he doesn't dwell on the mistake. He has completed college, become a teacher at Yavapai Elementary School and coaches basketball, track and softball.

Robertson said he has been training for the 21-mile swim across the channel for two years, swimming more than two miles daily at a local pool and on the weekends in the Gulf of California.

This summer he will go to San Diego to train in the choppy ocean water. "I plan to swim 21 miles several times in San Diego before I try the Channel ... to get my confidence up," he said.

State May Conclude Case In Kleasen Trial

AUSTIN (AP) — The state may conclude its case today against Robert Kleasen, with the star witness expected to be a federal lab technician who will testify about hair samples found on a taxidermist's band saw.

A process known as neutron activation analysis supposedly is as foolproof as fingerprints, and Mike Hoffman, of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Washington, D.C., has been called by the state to tell the jury about it.

Kleasen, 42, is accused of killing Gary Darley, 20, of Sini Valley, Calif., and Mark Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis.

The state contends Kleasen cut up their heads on the band saw.

Hair samples from Darley and Fischer had been saved by their sweethearts and mailed to Mormon missionaries they were going to a church member's place outside of town to eat venison on Oct. 28.

State witnesses have testified Kleasen served missionaries deer steaks at his trailer west of town.

Tunnel Collapse Kills Two Miners

PAWNEE, Ill. (AP) — Two miners were killed Wednesday night when a tunnel collapsed in a coal mine near this central Illinois town.

The collapse occurred around 7 p.m. in the south hole of Peabody Mine No. 10. The victims, a machine operator and helper, were working about 300 feet below the surface, authorities said.

Rescue workers dug frantically for 2½ hours to recover the bodies, authorities said.

Sangamon County Coroner Norman Richter said the men died when a 5-by-24-foot section of the tunnel roof collapsed. Officials said the roof was bolt supported.

Illinois Mines and Minerals Director Russell Dawe said both of the victims "were experienced miners."

Richter identified those killed as Jackson Ray, 44, of Tovey and Kenneth Hunt, 36, of Taylorville.

Defense Begins In Trick-Or-Treat Poisoning Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Defense testimony begins today in the capital murder trial of Ronald C. O'Bryan, charged in the Halloween candy poisoning of his son. The prosecution ended its case Wednesday with witnesses who told of O'Bryan's efforts to purchase the deadly chemical cyanide.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Hinton presented a total of 39 witnesses in seven days of testimony in what he described as a "circumstantial evidence case." None of the witnesses testimony actually placed cyanide—the death weapon—in O'Bryan's hands, but several told of his interest and his attempts to buy the chemical.

May Call O'Bryan
Defense lawyers Richard Harrison of Dallas and Marvin Teague of Houston said it will take about two days to present their case. O'Bryan, himself, may be among their witnesses. In testimony Wednesday, a chemical salesman identified O'Bryan as a man who attempted to buy potassium cyanide only a few days before Timothy Marc O'Bryan, 8, died from eating a cyanide-laced Halloween trick or treat candy.

O'Bryan is charged with poisoning his young son to collect on insurance policies. He is also charged with four counts of attempted murder in connection with distribution of poisoned candies to four other children.

The salesman, David C. Jackson, 31, of Houston, said O'Bryan came into the Curtin Matheson Scientific Co. salesman late in October and inquired about buying cyanide.

Smallest Cost
"He asked if we stocked potassium cyanide," said Jackson. "He asked for various sizes. I gave the price on the smallest size. He was interested in the smallest cost."

But, said Jackson, when he checked the stocks, he found there was only a five-pound container, costing about $40, available.

"I suggested two other outlets in town that could have the size he wanted," said Jackson. "He was very polite. He said thank you" and left.

Jackson admitted that details of his testimony varied from those of testimony he gave during pre-trial hearings and in a statement to police.

Under defense questioning, Jackson admitted that he had earlier testified that O'Bryan came in on different dates and that he was unable to identify a picture of O'Bryan when shown it by police. The salesman testified Wednesday that O'Bryan had been wearing a short-sleeved smock, but admitted that in the earlier testimony he had called it a long-sleeved smock.

Sure Of Identification
"When they showed me the picture," said Jackson, "I didn't know who it was." But, he said, he was able to give a good physical description—and was sure of the identification after seeing O'Bryan in person.

"Did the officers help you?" asked Harrison.

"I gave them the (physical) make up," replied Jackson. "I helped them more than they helped me."

"Is there a possibility that these officers (police) suggested this man to you?" pressed Harrison.

"No, there isn't," insisted Jackson, shaking his head. "It isn't possible."

Another witness, Bob Lee Terry, a Armeo Chemical Co.

chemist, said O'Bryan called him on an evening in September and asked about the effects of cyanide poison.

Terry said the call was unusual. He said he knew O'Bryan when he worked at the chemical company and that they went to the same church, but that he had never associated with him socially.

"He (O'Bryan) said he was attending San Jacinto College and taking a chemistry course and that his instructor was young and he doubted his competency," said Terry. O'Bryan, said the witness, claimed he and the instructor had argued about the number and types of cyanide.

Then, said Terry, O'Bryan asked about a "terminal dose" of cyanide.

"He asked what concentration would be fatal to a human," said Terry. "I said I didn't know and asked 'what do you want to know that for.' He said, 'I'm just curious.'"

During the 25-minute telephone conversation, Terry said O'Bryan also asked where he could buy cyanide.

"I said he couldn't go down to the grocery store," said Terry. "I told him there were some large supply houses, like Curtin Scientific (now Curtin Matheson) that stocked it."

Terry said he recalled the conversation and reported it to police after O'Bryan was charged four days after Halloween.

Not Registered
The state then called the San Jacinto College registrar, Norman M. Rushing, who testified that O'Bryan was not registered at the school last September, despite what Terry was told. He said O'Bryan took a chemistry course at the college in 1967, but not since that time.

The state's final witness was Paul M. Bowers of Cleveland, Tex., a paint contractor who was a customer at the Texas State Optical Office where O'Bryan was employed.

Bowers testified that on Oct. 31, the day of the poisoning, he saw O'Bryan walk from the TSO office with a large paper sack.

A few minutes later, said Bowers, he went to the TSO of-ice to pick up some glasses for. He says one small grain will kill and I say it won't."

"I said, 'well, from what I know about cyanide, it will kill,'" testified Bowers.

The witness could offer no explanation of why O'Bryan asked him that question. Bowers said he was in his paint clothes and was not acquainted with O'Bryan.

The 29 states witnesses have presented a picture of O'Bryan as a man who was deeply in debt, about to lose his car repossessed, about $600 delinquent in income taxes, and yet able to pay $100 in cash for premiums on $20,000 insurance policies on his children.

Cattle Moved After Showdown Between Sheriff's Posse, Rancher

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Seven hundred head of cattle grazed in new and quieter pastures today after an armed showdown between a sheriff's posse and a Red River County rancher.

"I've never been through anything like this before," said Lamar County Sheriff Louie Noles. "It was a real showdown and for a while there I was afraid there was going to be some real shooting."

Sarah Raulston, ranch wife of Kenneth Raulston, said: "We finished moving all the cattle late Tuesday evening but this thing isn't over yet."

The mini range war began last Friday when Noles, armed with a court order obtained by a property owner, went to one of Raulston's leased ranges to forcibly remove the herd. The owner wanted to void the lease for the 1,140-acre range so that he could sell the land, Mrs. Raulston said. The Raulstons refused to move their herd "because our lease was already paid up."

Noles arrived at the range gate but was met by Raulston who Noles quoted as saying, "I'm going to get reinforcements. If you're still here when I get back, some of us won't leave here alive."

Noles said: "Well, I told 'em to hold everything right there. Don't do nothin'. I went back to town and got me a posse."

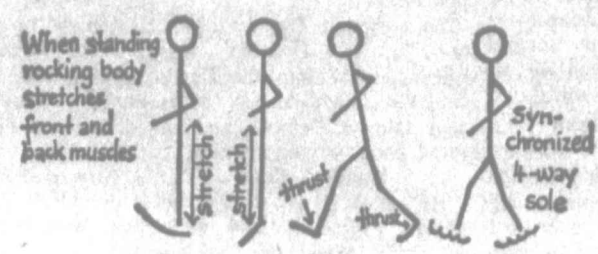

Noles returned to the range with 18 armed men on horseback.

"That's exactly what happened," Mrs. Raulston, 32, said. "My husband went and got Blackie Hart, one of our ranchhands and he told me to go get the guns. It took me about 30 minutes but I got back with a couple of 30-30s and three shot-guns."

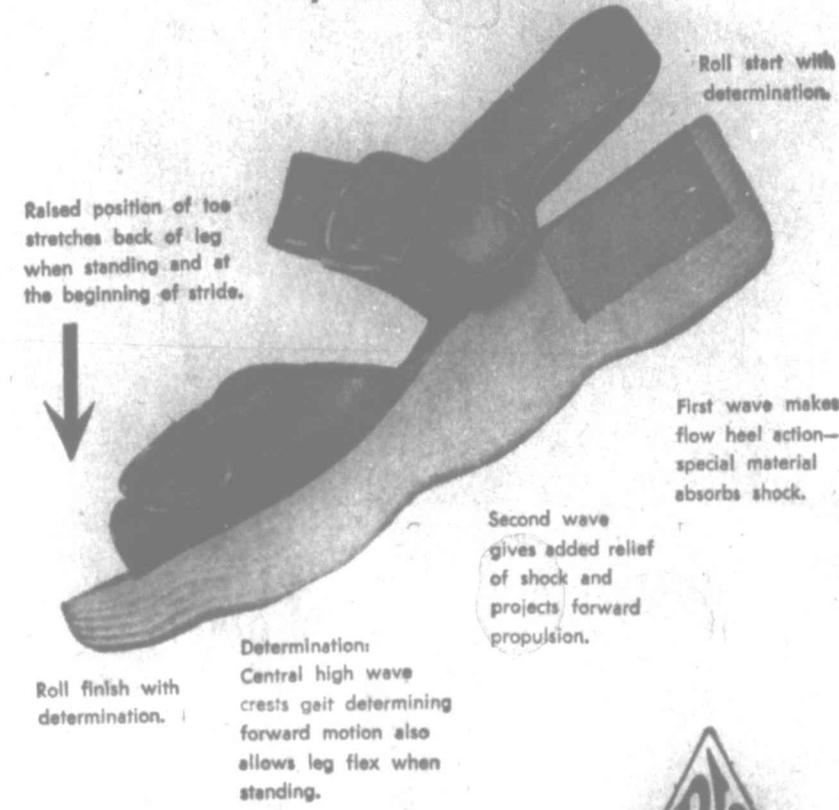

Raulston returned to the pasture gate with Hart. Mrs. Raulston and her 15-year-old daughter returned in their pickup truck.

"Well, we were all squared off across the fence from each other," Sheriff Noles said. "We had a lot of words but it all boiled down to this: I told him 'You're a businessman and you can't do business from the jail-house. He's an old task hog and he got puffed up pretty good. I thought for a while we'd all wind up shooting it out but after a while he backed off.'"

Mrs. Raulston said one of the posse members ordered Hart to come outside the gate "and show his guns. He's a 60-year-

PICNIC A REAL BLAST — The picnic was a real blast when the fifth and sixth grade children of Yakima Valley School Patrol in Washington state got to fire a .50 caliber machinegun. Some youngsters got a chance to fire blank ammunition at the recent picnic sponsored by the Jaycees and Yakima Police Department. (AP Wirephoto.)

Youngsters Play With Real Machinegun

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — The picnic was a real blast. Ranking right up there with the hot dogs was a .50-caliber machinegun for the 800 youngsters to play with.

"I asked the Marine Corps Reserve for a display. They thought maybe the kids could shoot the machinegun... the Marines asked me and I said 'sure,'" said Yakima police officer Mike Amos.

Gunnery Sgt. Richard Cecil said that during the picnic, sponsored by the Jaycees and the Yakima Police Department, the fifth and sixth grade Yakima Valley School Patrol children fired 3,000 rounds of blank ammunition.

Cecil, who supervised the shooting, said, "I thought it might be a good idea. They shot blanks, which, of course, are harmless."

Jaycee event co-chairman Doug Lemon said he thought the police were arranging a little bit of entertainment. "It kind of surprised me," he said of the demonstration.

After the picnic, the children were treated to a movie, "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight."

"If we could have gotten a bus to get the children out of there, we would have done it," said one teacher, who was unhappy with the film. But the buses had already left.

"There were a lot of four-letter words and people going to bed together," she said. "There were funny parts to it, but it wasn't what I would want a child that age to see and I felt very guilty about taking those children in there."

Of the machinegun demonstration, she said: "Oh, they enjoyed all of that. They were just thrilled. The kids were all out in front (of the tank) pretending they had been shot."

STUDENT KILLS TWO, WOUNDS 13—

Revenge Apparent Motive In Shooting

BRAMPTON, Ont. (AP) — A quiet teen-ager who killed two persons on a shooting rampage in the halls of a high school before killing himself was apparently bent on revenge against some of his teachers, police say.

Michael Slobodian, 16, who said he was "fed up with life," walked through the corridors of Brampton Centennial Secondary School in this suburb of Toronto shortly before noon Wednesday, spraying bullets from two rifles at screaming, terrified students, authorities said.

He killed a student, John Slinger, 17, and an art teacher, Margaret E. Wright, 25, and wounded 13 students before blowing his head off.

Three of the wounded are in serious condition. Mrs. Wright was one of his intended victims.

Deputy Chief William Teggart of the Peel Regional Police said a note found in the youth's bedroom indicated that revenge may have been the motive. Teggart said the note, addressed to Slobodian's family, named two teachers who Slobodian said he "wanted to eliminate."

One of those named was Mrs. Wright. The name of the other teacher mentioned in the note was not released.

Slobodian's sister, Dona, 18, told newsmen her brother's note said he was "fed up with life," was "going to eliminate some people" and kill himself. She said he had complained about his English and physics teachers writing to his parents about his poor attendance.

Students who knew him said he was a good student, was quiet and kept to himself.

Teggart gave this account of the shooting:

Slobodian, carrying a .44 Magnum lever action rifle and a .22 caliber automatic in a guitar case, entered a men's washroom on the first floor of the school shortly before noon. Dona Slobodian said her brother had learned how to handle the weapons while hunting with their father.

The youth apparently loaded the rifles in the washroom and began firing at Slinger and another student. Slinger was fatally wounded.

Slobodian left the washroom, firing at random at students and wounding two of them. He walked down the hall, wounding three more near the home economics room and five more in the area of the cafeteria.

Then he turned toward the art room and fatally shot Mrs. Wright and wounded two more boys before finally turning the gun on himself. Witnesses said his head was blown off.

In one of the ironies of the incident, Slinger's mother, a first aid instructor who was taking courses at the school, administered first aid to the wounded in the corridor. She was unaware that her son lay bleeding to death a short distance away.

COUPLE HONORED — Dan de Strong Jr., right and his fiancée, Carolyn Frost of Montevallo, Ala., second from right, were entertained recently with a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry, 810 W. Storey St., also pictured. Miss Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Frost Jr. of Montevallo, and de Strong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel de Strong of Midland, will be married June 28 in the University Baptist Church in Montevallo.

Judith Cagiano, Dub House Wed

Judith Jo Cagiano, daughter of Mrs. Margie Cagiano of Austin and Joseph Cagiano of Odessa, and Dub House, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold House of 3307 Cimmaron St., were married at 8 p.m. Saturday in the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The couple will reside at 3412 Baumann St., following a trip to Freeport.

The Rev. J. Otterness of the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, Odessa, officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. James Gilliam of Odessa was the matron of honor. Jay Roberts of Odessa was the best man.

Silver candelabra, white candles, white daisies in a silver container with silver appointments were used.

The bride wore a full-length gown of white organdy with pink flocked roses, sweetheart neckline and long puffed sleeves. She also wore a pink garden hat and carried a bouquet of white daisies with yellow centers, pink sweetheart rosebuds, baby's breath and greenery with pink streamers.

The matron of honor wore a street-length dress in yellow with pink roses in the same styling as the bride's gown. She carried a bouquet of daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Frances Gunkel, Mrs. Danny Talley, Mrs. George House and Mrs. Jay Roberts were in the house party.

The bride has an associate degree in nursing from Odessa College. She is employed by Midland Memorial Hospital. She was a member of Alpha Nu Chi, nursing club. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lee High School and is engaged in construction work with House and House Real Estate Co.

Imperial Economy Recipe

maharajah date pie

4 eggs, well beaten
1 cup Imperial Brown Sugar, firmly packed
1 tablespoon flour
1 stick butter or margarine, melted
1 cup white corn syrup
1 cup (8 oz. package) pitted, chopped dates
1 unbaked pastry shell

Combine well beaten eggs, Imperial Brown Sugar and flour; blend well. Stir in melted butter, corn syrup and dates combining well. Pour into 9x1 1/4-inch pie pan lined with an unbaked pastry shell. Bake 40 to 45 minutes in preheated 350°F. oven. If desired, serve with whipped cream. Since pie is very rich, slice in narrow wedges. Serves 10. Good either warm or cold.

NOTE: If preferred, substitute pecan halves for dates and call it Texas Millionaire Pie.

Jelly side down

By NANCY STAHL

I am convinced that people without children never discover the unlimited potentialities of their own bodies.

I would venture to suggest that most childless couples feel compelled to try nothing more ambitious than touching their toes. This is actually a relatively inconsequential feat and can be easily accomplished by the simple expedient of growing your fingernails three inches longer.

No, it isn't until one is blessed with children that one rises to the physical challenges which children continuously hurl.

If I did not have children, I would never have known that I could wiggle my ears, touch my nose with my tongue, or flare my nostrils to the tune of "Old MacDonald Had a Farm."

Childless women are never asked whether they can hold a marble in their bellybuttons. They will never know whether they can get into the lotus position. Or out of the lotus position.

How many ever become truly proficient at folding their eyelids back or burping at will?

Or become adept at dialing "Operator" with their big toes?

Or find the endurance to hold an ice cube in their mouth for ten minutes?

Or attain the dexterity to fit a regulation-size popsicle stick in their mouth crosswise?

Or feel truly competent enough to carry a plastic bag of garbage outside to the can on their head?

Or master the knack of playing "Mary Had a Little Lamb" on a pushbutton phone, blindfolded?

Or develop the ability to eat a bowl of chocolate pudding without using their hands?

Dear Abby

-By Abigail van Buren

Shuck Momma— And Maybe Sam

DEAR ABBY: I am unmarried with two small children. I don't love their father, although we live together because it's convenient. We get along so-so. We share the bills, and I get the use of his car.

I knew Sam only three weeks when we started living together. I got pregnant, and then I was stuck.

He told me he was divorced, but he won't show me the proof. (I think he's lying.) He gambles a lot, and I can't trust him very far. He works nights and I work days. We have no friends and no social life. But Sam is good to the kids, and they love him.

My mother lives in my building, and she is driving me nuts. She interferes and causes arguments between Sam and me. She goes against everything I say to my kids—calls me stupid in front of them and tells them not to listen to me. When I discipline the kids, they cry for Grandma, and this hurts. She also tells everybody my business.

What can I do about her? And what can I do about my messed-up life? I'm 32 and feel like 32.

MISFIT IN CHICAGO

DEAR MISFIT: I see two major problems: Sam and your mother. You need to get away from your mother. She is poison to your self-esteem, and a troublemaker to boot.

Call Family Service, and make an appointment with one of their professional counselors. You need to talk at length with someone who can help you put your life in order. Living with a man you don't love because it's a convenience is a bad trip. Counseling will lighten your burden and show you the way. Good luck. Write again to tell me how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has the classic answer to those overly smug parents of children of both sexes.

We were already the proud parents of three fine daughters when I gave birth to a fourth daughter.

Many people came to my husband, expressing sympathy because he had no sons.

My husband's reply to them was: "If the good Lord thought another man was needed in my house, He would have sent him."

Keep Nation Strong!

Congressman George Mahon of Lubbock, speaking at a Memorial Day ceremony at Plainview, maintained that none of the estimated 50,000 Vietnam war casualties died in vain, despite the fall of the American-backed government in South Vietnam.

At the same time, however, he called for continued military strength, echoing President Ford's Memorial Day address urging the nation to remain strong.

Mahon, in saluting area servicemen, said, "We are all disappointed that the United States did not win in Vietnam. The United States is not used to losing, yet we did not go into Vietnam with the intention of winning, and we won't win as long as we have that attitude."

Mahon said that Vietnam should serve as a lesson for future politicians.

He hit the nail on the head with this observation. America's politicians from here on out must remember the fallacy of entering any conflict without the intention of winning. The military never was turned loose in Vietnam. It undoubtedly would have been a different story had military victory been the goal.

"The men we are honoring here today and some 50,000 who gave the supreme sacrifice, who gave their all, did not die in vain," Mahon said.

The West Texas congressman, who is chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, emphasized a great need for the country to maintain its military might.

This actually is the only way in which Americans may be sure that their Vietnam heroes did not die in vain.

"We need to be able to be the top power in order to negotiate for peace," Mahon said.

Yes, this matter of detente is fine—if the United States has the power to make it work.

The congressman cited figures comparing U.S. arms with those of Russia. He explained that the Soviets outranked America in tanks, but remains outdistanced by U.S. aircraft carriers and long-range missiles.

This brought his urgent plea for support for present defense funding levels.

"We can't do this when we have persons who want to cut defense to balance the budget," he said. "That is not the place to cut in order to balance the budget."

It is surprising that there are those in Congress who have access to the same statistics as does George Mahon, yet cannot see the light in this regard, particularly when there are so many non-essential places to cut budget figures.

This is one of the great dangers facing the nation today. Hopefully, Chairman Mahon's position will prevail... and that the United States of America can and will remain strong—as a means of assuring its survival as a great and free nation.

Terrorism Flourishes In Today's Jet Age

WASHINGTON—Last week, two senior U.S. Air Force officers were murdered by left-wing terrorists in Tehran at the same time that four German anarchists (Red Army Group) stood trial in Bonn on multiple counts of murder and other violence. In recent years, the world has been plagued with bombings, kidnappings and murders by terrorists utilizing the jet age, Communist training and new weapons.

There is a general impression that terrorists are indigenous folks, so angry and frustrated with the established order that they resort to homemade bombs and other crude weapons. Actually, according to Brian Crozier, a world authority on such violence, terrorism is "transnational" in nature.

In recent testimony before Sen. James Eastland's (D-Miss.) internal security subcommittee, Crozier, who is director of the Institute for Study of Conflict (London), explained that, while terrorists report to no central body, a great majority are helped by kindred groups in other countries. They also receive training and support from Communist and even non-Communist nations like Sweden, Crozier testified.

A prime example is the Japanese Red Army (Rengo Seikigun), which massacred seven Israelis and 24 Puerto Ricans, at Lod Airport, in May, 1972. These terrorists, anarchistic in viewpoint, were trained in North Korea, visited West Germany to get funds, were armed in Italy, received specific training in Syria and committed their murders for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine in Israel.

It seemed bizarre for Japanese to murder Puerto Rican Catholic pilgrims in Israel on behalf of Arab extremists. But it's entirely possible that a group, say, of Irish Republican Army (IRA) terrorists could, with funds donated by and encourages Communist parties to use the constitutional process to attain power. And yet, as Crozier testified, the Soviets provide clandestine assistance to terrorists and maintain subversive centers.

Those are mostly Soviet weapons fired by Palestinian, Turkish, Portuguese, and other "liberation"-minded terrorists. Even the Soviet SA-7 heat-seeking, portable missile has been found in the hands of terrorists.

The Soviets, Crozier states, offer courses in terrorism, sabotage and guerrilla warfare in two programs; for members of Moscow-line Communist parties and for "national liberation movement" activists. The courses last six months, have enrollments ranging from 300 to 600 men and women, and Latin America sends the most students, followed by Arabs. The "liberation"-minded Patrice Lumumba University in Moscow and then go off to training camps at smaller Soviet cities to learn sabotage, assassination and other kinds of clandestine and violent warfare. On graduation, are they issued diplomas or hand grenades?

Other terrorist training schools are located in North Vietnam; North Korea; Communist China; Cuba, and several African countries, including Libya, which has involved itself in terrorism in Northern Ireland, Chad and the Philippines.

Crozier had no qualms about naming the Soviets as deeply involved in terrorist activity. The U.S. official who testified, Robert A. Fearey, special assistant to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, offered detailed testimony on world terrorism but refrained from naming the Soviets. Reason: It's impolitic to do so in the era of detente.

LACK OF BASIC EDUCATION

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Periodically, a new device is tried out in Washington to shoo the startlings from the eaves of government buildings. The startled birds rise fluttering and twittering, then settle back after the alarm has past.

Much the same effect is produced on the Pentagon brass everytime Congress raises a howl about military spending. They fire off memos, issue stern directives and otherwise create the impression that changes will be made.

If Congress appears to be really serious about military cuts, a blue-ribbon panel is formed to uncover waste and to re-examine spending policies.

It is a measure of the Pentagon's present apprehension that another blue-ribbon group has been organized to go through the usual motions. As a signal to Congress that no one will be immune, the blue-ribbon boys will even check upon extravagances in Defense Secretary Schlesinger's office.

The Pentagon proudly has hailed the integrity and independence of the Acquisition Advisory Group, as this latest blue-ribbon panel is called. But a closer examination reveals that every last one of the distinguished watchdogs was recruited right out of the Pentagon's own kennels.

Men who once served in the Defense Department, in other words, now are called upon to bark at their former masters. Some of the panel members actually served directly under Schlesinger during the last year.

The discovery of this backscratching operation was made by the Senate Government Operations Reports subcommittee. A confidential report to its chairman, Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., is now in our possession.

The report calls the Acquisition

Advisory Group nothing more than "an advisory committee reunion of former Pentagon officials." Its $138-a-day members are not "independent in any ordinary sense of the word," the study charges.

The chairman is Dr. Alexander Flax, who is listed as president of the Institute for Defense Analyses. No one has questioned Flax's ability or patriotism; he has even refused to accept the $138-a-day fee. But his company happens to be a major defense contractor and he is a former assistant secretary of the Air Force.

Here are a few of his associates, who will join him in reviewing policies affecting billions worth of military purchases:

— Don Brazier, identified as treasurer of the National Railroad Passenger Corp. Omitted is the fact that in 1974 he was deputy assistant defense secretary.

— Charles Bowsher, listed as an accounting firm official. He was an assistant secretary of the Navy.

— Philip Odeen, identified as vice president of Wilson Sporting Goods. He was a deputy assistant defense secretary.

— Dr. Emory Cook, identified as a "consultant." He was a prominent adviser to the Navy.

— Adm. Thomas Moorer, the retired chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The U.S. Senate Strips Down Ford

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The letter from 76 Senators pressing President Ford to give up his even-handed Middle East policy and make clear "that the U.S. stands firmly with Israel" was only the first of a one-two punch which strips him of vital bargaining power on the eve of his summit meetings with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The second punch: an amendment to the defense procurement bill by a leading Democratic presidential candidate and staunch friend of Israel, Sen. Henry M. Jackson — of Washington, singling out Israel alone for potentially unlimited supplies of American arms on long-term, low-interest credit sales.

A similar amendment was inserted in the defense procurement bill by Jackson in 1970, but this year the Senator decided not to put the amendment in the committee bill but to offer it on the floor after the bill comes up for debate June 2.

"That way," said one Senate Democrat, "the amendment will get much bigger treatment in the press."

The Pentagon did not request such a special arms deal for Israel, and the President does not want it. Indeed, Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, asked Jackson not to offer the amendment on grounds that military aid to foreign countries falls under the jurisdiction of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, chairman of Foreign Relations, is planning a point of order, asking the amendment to be sent to his committee.

Both Sparkman and Stennis know the amendment reeks with politics. Both strongly back the President's "reassessment" of U.S. Mideast policy. Both refused to sign last week's round-robin letter asking Mr. Ford to "be responsive to Israel's urgent military and economic needs."

But the effort of these two old Senate warhorses will be swept aside in top-heavy Senate voting which once again will undermine a calculated presidential plan to lift the Arab-Israeli struggle above domestic politics.

Once again, Sadat and the Arab states for whom he will speak when he meets Mr. Ford in Salzburg, Austria, June 1-2, will be on notice that no matter what the President says about "reassessing" American policy, he cannot deliver because of Israel's political power inside the U.S. Congress.

But the more damaging effect of both the letter to the President and the Jackson amendment will be its impact not on the Arabs but on Israel.

Mr. Ford ordered his reassessment following the breakdown of the latest U.S. mediation effort with Israel and Egypt. By reassessing overall policy, the President intended to delay U.S. decisions on new weaponry for Israel: the F-15 fighter, the ground-to-ground Lance missile, the miraculous laser-guided bomb and other exotic American arms.

The President's purpose in this was to jar loose Israeli policy. By holding up deliveries and delaying an administration decision on how much of Israel's new $2.50 billion aid request should be granted, Mr. Ford hoped the stonewalling in the Israeli government might break down a little.

While trying that tack with Israel, the President has exerted equally hard pressure on Sadat and other Arab leaders publicly to acknowledge Israel's irrefutable rights as a sovereign nation. Except for Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), Mr. Ford has had growing success in this campaign with the Arab leaders.

With Israel, however, the going has been hard. Middle East specialists in the government worried that Israeli Prime Minister Rabin might arrive in Washington for his summit meeting with the President on June 11 in stonewall position — that is, without a single new proposal.

Now, on the heels of the one-two punch — the senatorial letter and the Jackson amendment — the President's bargaining leverage has been drastically weakened, the Prime Minister's correspondingly strengthened. By going public for Israel under pressure from the Pro-Israeli lobby in this country ("My phone did not stop ringing until I agreed to sign the letter," one Democratic Senator said), the Senate stripped down Mr. Ford and delivered its power to Rabin.

This giddy assertion of legislative clout to disrupt one of the most delicate presidential foreign policy negotiations ever attempted, with war or peace in the balance both in the Mideast and the world, should help satisfy Senators worried about presidential power. In this case, it seems, there is very little presidential power to worry about.

generals on the panel. Its executive director is a retired admiral. Not a single member is a non-Pentagon specialist or a consumer advocate.

Commented the Senate study wondrously: "The Acquisition Advisory Group is made up of insiders, who will be reviewing recommendations on behalf of present and former colleagues. As such, their reviews will be anything but an arm's-length transaction."

Footnote: Dr. Flax politely but forcefully defended the group, saying: "I think that, although all of us were influenced by our experience in the Defense Department, we can now sit outside with a certain amount of detachment."

WATCH ON WASTE: The eight chief officers of the newly elected Energy Research and Development Administration, who are supposed to find ways to conserve energy, are cruising around in government-leased Ford Torino Elite automobiles. Equipped with a 460-cubic-inch engine, this happens to be one of the biggest gas guzzlers on the road today. The eight cars, complete with stereo tape decks, are costing the taxpayers $12,000 a year in leasing costs alone.

The timber barons are pushing through a bill, which would grant them interest-free credits from the federal government for the roads they build to haul timber out of national forest. The bill, introduced by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, would cost the federal and county governments $160 million during the first year alone.

The Army recently sent a dozen key congressional staff members to Fort Jackson, S.C., for an orientation tour. They were loaded down with sharpshooter medals, Green Beret insignia pens, letter openers and enough knickknacks to start a souvenir shop. All of the bric-a-brac, of course, was paid for by the taxpayers.

U.S. Housing Area In Laos Deserted

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Kilometer Six, the large American housing area on the outskirts of Vientiane, was deserted today except for Pathet Lao police patrolling the streets in an apparent effort to prevent looting.

Of the 1,000 Americans in Laos when the Communists Pathet Lao began taking control of the coalition government last month, only 200 remain, the U.S. Embassy said. They include 182 government employees and members of their families and 111 businessmen, journalists and other private citizens.

A few more employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development and their families were scheduled to leave today. But an Embassy spokesman said a final "cellar figure" for the Embassy staff was not available yet.

The last Americans moved out of Kilometer Six Wednesday. Since the evacuation of the area began last week, demonstrating students and the Pathet Lao police allowed those departing to take only one suitcase of belongings.

Many of the houses left vacant in the compound have been broken into and the contents carried away.

The AID headquarters com-found in the heart of Vientiane, which was restored to American control Wednesday after a week of student occupation and tense negotiations, was peaceful although Pathet Lao police remained inside in violation of an agreement signed Tuesday night.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian A. Chapman met with Foreign Ministry officials to discuss the presence of the police and the personal property the departing Americans are being forced to leave behind.

Meanwhile, despite the Communist Pathet Lao's obvious domination of the Laotian coalition government, a government spokesman denied at a news conference that the Pathet Lao intend to seize absolute control of the country.

The spokesman, Ouday Souvannavong, said both the rightist "Vientiane side" and the Pathet Lao are abiding by the 1973 peace accord calling for a Vientiane-Pathet Lao-neutralist coalition government until general elections can be held.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said that the United States intends to continue diplomatic relations with Laos and keep the embassy in Vientiane open, but the military and economic relationship with Laos is under review.

Former Chilean President Hits Military Junta

Agence France-Presse
SANTIAGO — Former Chilean President Eduardo Frei today launched a strong attack on the military Junta for failing to overcome inflation and allowing substantial loss of real income for wage-earners and retired people.

Speaking out publicly for the first time since the Junta came to power in September 1973, Frei, the leader of the Christian Democratic movement, told the magazine Exilium that the Chilean economic situation is "extremely difficult" and that the Junta is not following effective anti-inflation policies.

Frei said the country's shaky economic condition could be traced to the "catastrophic" economic situation inherited by the Junta in 1973, "the application of an erroneous economic model" by the Junta, the drop in world prices of copper (the main Chilean export) and the rise in world oil prices, and the effects of international recession.

The former president (1964-70) said that the social effects of the present economic situation "are worrisome, when they are not dramatic, for people who live on their wages, salaries, or pensions."

Frei said that a study by a technical institute had shown that the average real wage in 1974 was less than it had been in 1973, dropping by about five per cent.

Members Of Maoist Party Are Arrested In Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — In a crackdown on left-wing extremists, Portugal's leftist military government has arrested a number of members of a small Maoist party in Lisbon and Coimbra, the military security force announced today.

A communique accused the movement for the Reorganization of the Party of the Proletariat, or MRPP, of "falsely revolutionary" activities and attitudes of "confrontation." The announcement said the party was a threat to internal security.

It was the military regime's second attack on the MRPP, which it barred from participation in the constitutional assembly election a month ago.

It was not known whether other small far-left parties would suffer similarly.

Ten days ago the MRPP, working in conjunction with a radical army unit, announced it had uncovered a "vast fascist plot" against the year-old military regime. Military authorities acknowledged anti-government activities by some groups but accused the party of arming soldiers and using force to extract information from them.

Two weeks ago young members of the MRPP took to the streets with cries of "down with military dictatorship." Military leaders accused the party of fomenting disobedience in some army units.

MRPP members attacked the U.S. Embassy on May 18, painting it with slogans and roughing up an American security employee. Later the Maoists beat two Embassy Marine guards while they were off duty.

The Maoists also are opposed to the Moscow-line Communist party, which they accuse of arming MRPP militants and turning them over to the army or the police to be tortured.

The Communists produced a modest turnout of about 15,000 people for a march to the presidential palace Wednesday night to demonstrate support for the government.

One spokesman for the military regime told the crowd that the ruling Revolutionary Council could not be identified with any single party and that it disapproved of demonstrations that stimulated partisan struggles, an apparent reference to the current confrontation between the Communists and the Socialists.

Taylor, once known as the "phantom sniper of Royal Oak," was arrested last week in Houston in connection with a series of rapes.

Houston authorities say Taylor later confessed to killing four women in three states. But Taylor told a judge Tuesday that the confessions were forced out of him by a police beating.

Working on a tip from Taylor's former wife, Lenawee County sheriff deputies began searching last week for three women and one man allegedly buried near Taylor's house. Last Thursday deputies turned up the bodies of two Toledo, Ohio, women — 24-year-old Lee Fletcher and 17-year-old Debbie Henneman.

The digging operation was halted Friday. Officials said it would not resume until more accurate information on the location of the other bodies was obtained.

Houston officials said Taylor also has confessed to killing a Houston waitress and a Seattle housewife.

Taylor was found innocent by reason of insanity for shooting at nine women and girls in Royal Oak, Mich. in the late 1960s. He was classified as an escaped mental patient in 1973 after he stopped reporting to state doctors for outpatient psychiatric treatment.

Alleged Murder Victim Turns Up Alive, Well

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — A man among persons allegedly slain by Gary Addison Taylor has turned up alive and well in Garden City, the sheriff of Lenawee County says.

Sheriff Richard Germond said Wednesday that the man, Wilbert Parker, was supposed to have been one of the four persons killed and buried near Taylor's former home in Cambridge Township near Adrian.

Germond said Parker had no idea he was the man believed to be buried along with three women.

The sheriff quoted Parker as saying Taylor was a casual acquaintance when they worked together in Ypsilanti. He said Parker apparently did not realize Taylor he knew in Ypsilanti was the same man now facing a series of murder accusations.

Meanwhile Wednesday, authorities in Sherman, Tex., said they would question Taylor, 39, about recent highway shootings by an unknown sniper.

The sniping attacks took place near Sherman, north of Dallas, the night of May 16. Three buses and three trucks were hit by bullets apparently fired by a sniper positioned on an embankment or overpass on U.S. 75.

A 15-year-old girl, a passenger in one of the buses was injured.

Police in Lansing said Wednesday they have reopened their investigation of the 1972 slaying of Irene Waters be-

Relatives Of Nine Killed Aboard TWA Plane File Suit Naming Two Executives

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The president and the security chief of Trans World Airlines are being sued for $8.6 million by relatives of nine persons who were killed last Sept. 8 when a TWA airliner was blown apart by a bomb over the Ionian Sea between Greece and Italy.

The suit charges wrongful death through negligence of the two executives, asserting that they failed to provide adequate security measures to safeguard the plane from bombs.

All 88 persons aboard the plane died in the crash. The National Transportation Safety Board, in an official report issued May 19, blamed the crash on an explosive device in a baggage compartment.

The relatives' suit apparently went unnoticed when it was filed in U.S. District Court here earlier this month.

TWA itself is not named as a defendant in the suit. An international air travel agreement known as the Warsaw Convention limits the damages a passenger can claim from an airline to less than $10,000. An amendment to that treaty, however, permits claims of up to $75,000 for passengers whose flights begin, end or stop in the United States.

But the suit against the TWA executives seeks damages of $1.5 million each for the deaths of two men, $1.2 million for the death of another man, $1 million each for the deaths of two women and $600,000 each for the deaths of four children.

The suit was filed for the relatives of Dan William Reed of Yellow Springs, Ohio; Seldon R. Bard and his son Elan of Tuckahoe, N.Y.; John F. Gilday of Fort Worth, Tex.; Katherine M. Michael and her son Jeremiah of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; and Paula Orphan and her daughters Emily and Vasiliki of St. Louis, Mo.

The defendants are Forwood Cloud Wiser Jr., president and chief operating officer of TWA, and Richard E. Neuman, the airline's staff vice president for audit and security.

They were ultimately responsible for security of the plane, the suit said, charging, "As a result of their negligence a bomb or other explosive device was permitted to be placed or carried aboard, which exploded after takeoff, causing the crash and the deaths of all aboard."

The suit was filed before the National Transportation Safety Board issued its final report on the cause of the crash, but preliminary reports from the agency pointed at the probability of a bomb.

Immediately after the crash, a telephone caller in Beirut said a group called the Nationalist Youth for the Liberation of Palestine had sabotaged the plane, but the Palestine Liberation Organization said the call was a hoax.

The plane was on the Athens-Rome leg of a flight from Tel Aviv to New York.

JONESBORO, Ga. (AP) — Former cowboy movie star Alfred LaRue has been convicted of possession of marijuana.

LaRue took his own Bible to the stand to swear "in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost," he only was trying to "save the souls" of two hitchhikers when he took the marijuana.

Keep Nation Strong!

Congressman George Mahon of Lubbock, speaking at a Memorial Day ceremony at Plainview, maintained that none of the estimated 50,000 Vietnam war casualties died in vain, despite the fall of the American-backed government in South Vietnam.

At the same time, however, he called for continued military strength, echoing President Ford's Memorial Day address urging the nation to remain strong.

Mahon, in saluting area servicemen, said, "We are all disappointed that the United States did not win in Vietnam. The United States is not used to losing, yet we did not go into Vietnam with the intention of winning, and we won't win as long as we have that attitude."

Mahon said that Vietnam should serve as a lesson for future politicians.

He hit the nail on the head with this observation. America's politicians from here on out must remember the fallacy of entering any conflict without the intention of winning. The military never was turned loose in Vietnam. It undoubtedly would have been a different story had military victory been the goal.

"The men we are honoring here today and some 50,000 who gave the supreme sacrifice, who gave their all, did not die in vain," Mahon said.

The West Texas congressman, who is chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, emphasized a great need for the country to maintain its military might.

This actually is the only way in which Americans may be sure that their Vietnam heroes did not die in vain.

"We need to be able to be the top power in order to negotiate for peace," Mahon said.

Yes, this matter of detente is fine—if the United States has the power to make it work.

The congressman cited figures comparing U.S. arms with those of Russia. He explained that the Soviets outranked America in tanks, but remains outdistanced by U.S. aircraft carriers and long-range missiles.

This brought his urgent plea for support for present defense funding levels.

"We can't do this when we have persons who want to cut defense to balance the budget," he said. "That is not the place to cut in order to balance the budget."

It is surprising that there are those in Congress who have access to the same statistics as does George Mahon, yet cannot see the light in this regard, particularly when there are so many non-essential places to cut budget figures.

This is one of the great dangers facing the nation today. Hopefully, Chairman Mahon's position will prevail... and that the United States of America can and will remain strong—as a means of assuring its survival as a great and free nation.

Terrorism Flourishes In Today's Jet Age

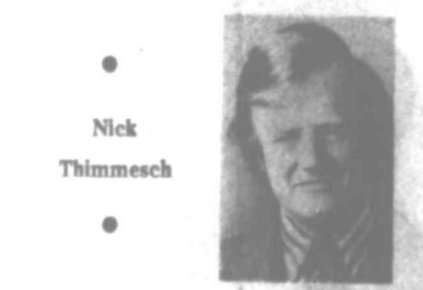

WASHINGTON—Last week, two senior U.S. Air Force officers were murdered by left-wing terrorists in Tehran at the same time that four German anarchists (Red Army Group) stood trial in Bonn on multiple counts of murder and other violence. In recent years, the world has been plagued with bombings, kidnappings and murders by terrorists utilizing the jet age, Communist training and new weapons.

There is a general impression that terrorists are indigenous folks, so angry and frustrated with the established order that they resort to homemade bombs and other crude weapons. Actually, according to Brian Crozier, a world authority on such violence, terrorism is "transnational" in nature.

In recent testimony before Sen. James Eastland's (D-Miss.) internal security subcommittee, Crozier, who is director of the Institute for Study of Conflict (London), explained that, while terrorists report to no central body, a great majority are helped by kindred groups in other countries. They also receive training and support from Communist and even non-Communist nations like Sweden, Crozier testified.

A prime example is the Japanese Red Army (Rengo Sekigun), which massacred seven Israelis and 24 Puerto Ricans, at Lod Airport, in May, 1972. These terrorists, anarchistic in viewpoint, were trained in North Korea, visited West Germany to get funds, were armed in Italy, received specific training in Syria and committed their murders for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine in Israel.

It seemed bizarre for Japanese to murder Puerto Rican Catholic pilgrims in Israel on behalf of Arab extremists. But it's entirely possible that a group, say, of Irish Republican Army (IRA) terrorists could, with funds donated by and encourages Communist parties to use the constitutional process to attain power. And yet, as Crozier testified, the Soviets provide clandestine assistance to terrorists and maintain subversive centers.

Those are mostly Soviet weapons fired by Palestinian, Turkish, Portuguese, and other "liberation"-minded terrorists. Even the Soviet SA-7 heat-seeking, portable missile has been found in the hands of terrorists.

The Soviets, Crozier states, offer courses in terrorism, sabotage and guerrilla warfare in two programs; for members of Moscow-line Communist parties and for "national liberation movement" activists. The courses last six months, have enrollments ranging from 300 to 600 men and women, with Latin America sending the most students, followed by Arabs. The "liberation" minded attend Patrice Lumumba University in Moscow and then go off to training camps at smaller Soviet cities to learn sabotage, assassination and other kinds of clandestine and violent warfare. On graduation, are they issued diplomas or hand grenades?

Other terrorist training schools are located in North Vietnam; North Korea; Communist China; Cuba; and several African countries, including Libya, which has involved itself in terrorism in Northern Ireland, Chad and the Philippines.

Crozier had no qualms about naming the Soviets as deeply involved in terrorist activity. The U.S. official who testified, Robert A. Pearey, special assistant to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, offered detailed testimony on world terrorism but refrained from naming the Soviets. Reason: It's impolite to do so in the era of detente.

LACK OF BASIC EDUCATION

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Periodically, a new device is tried out in Washington to soothe the startings from the eaves of government buildings. The startled birds rise fluttering and twittering, then settle back after the alarm has past.

Much the same effect is produced on the Pentagon brass everytime Congress raises a howl about military spending. They fire off memos, issue stern directives and otherwise create the impression that changes will be made.

If Congress appears to be really serious about military cuts, a blue-ribbon panel is formed to uncover waste and to re-examine spending policies.

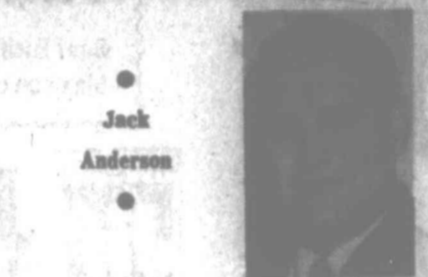

It is a measure of the Pentagon's present apprehension that another blue-ribbon group has been organized to go through the usual motions. As a signal to Congress that no one will be immune, the blue-ribbon boys will even check upon extravagances in Defense Secretary Schlesinger's office.

The Pentagon proudly has hailed the integrity and independence of the Acquisition Advisory Group, as this latest blue-ribbon panel is called. But a closer examination reveals that every last one of the distinguished watchdogs was recruited right out of the Pentagon's own kennels.

Men who once served in the Defense Department, in other words, now are called upon to bark at their former masters. Some of the panel members actually served directly under Schlesinger during the last year.

The discovery of this backscratching operation was made by the Senate Government Operations Reports subcommittee. A confidential report to its chairman, Sen. Les Metcalf, D-Mont., is now in our possession.

The report calls the Acquisition

Advisory Group nothing more than "an advisory committee reunion of former Pentagon officials." Its $138-a-day members are not "independent in any ordinary sense of the word," the study charges.

The chairman is Dr. Alexander Flax, who is listed as president of the Institute for Defense Analyses. No one has questioned Flax's ability or patriotism; he has even refused to accept the $138-a-day fee. But his company happens to be a major defense contractor and he is a former assistant secretary of the Air Force.

Here are a few of his associates, who will join him in reviewing policies affecting billions worth of military purchases:

— Don Brazier, identified as treasurer of the National Railroad Passenger Corp. Omitted is the fact that in 1974 he was deputy assistant defense secretary.

— Charles Bowsher, listed as an accounting firm official. He was an assistant secretary of the Navy.

— Philip Odeen, identified as vice president of Wilson Sporting Goods. He was a deputy assistant defense secretary.

— Dr. Emory Cook, identified as a "consultant." He was a prominent adviser to the Navy.

— Adm. Thomas Moorer, the retired chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The U.S. Senate Strips Down Ford

By HOWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The letter from 78 Senators pressing President Ford to give up his even-handed Middle East policy and make clear "that the U.S. stands firmly with Israel" was only the first of a one-two punch which strips him of vital bargaining power on the eve of his summit meetings with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The second punch: an amendment to the defense procurement bill by a leading Democratic presidential candidate and staunch friend of Israel, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, singling out Israel alone for potentially unlimited supplies of American arms on long-term, low-interest credit sales.

A similar amendment was inserted in the defense procurement bill by Jackson in 1970, but this year the Senator decided not to put the amendment in the committee bill but to offer it on the floor after the bill comes up for debate June 2.

"That way," said one Senate Democrat, "the amendment will get much bigger treatment in the press."

a special arms deal for Israel, and the President does not want it. Indeed, Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, asked Jackson not to offer the amendment on grounds that military aid to foreign countries falls under the jurisdiction of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, chairman of Foreign Relations, is planning a point of order, asking the amendment to be sent to his committee.

Both Sparkman and Stennis know the amendment reeks with politics. Both strongly back the President's "reassessment" of U.S. Mideast policy. Both refused to sign last week's round-robin letter asking Mr. Ford to "be responsive to Israel's urgent military and economic needs."

But the effort of these two old Senate warhorses will be swept aside in top-heavy Senate voting which, once again will undermine a calculated presidential plan to lift the Arab-Israeli struggle above domestic politics.

Once again, Sadat and the Arab states for whom he will speak when he meets Mr. Ford in Salzburg, Austria, June 1-3, will be on notice that no matter what the President says, he cannot deliver because of Israel's political power inside the U.S. Congress.

But the more damaging effect of both the letter to the President and the Jackson amendment will be its impact not on the Arabs but on Israel.

Mr. Ford ordered his reassessment following the breakdown of the latest U.S. mediation effort with Israel and Egypt. By reassessing overall policy, the President intended to delay U.S. decisions on new weaponry for Israel: the F-15 fighter, the ground-to-ground Lance missile, the miraculous laser-guided bomb and other exotic American arms.

The President's purpose in this was to jar loose Israeli policy. By holding up deliveries and delaying an administration decision on how much of Israel's new $2.59 billion aid request should be granted, Mr. Ford hoped the stonewalling in the Israeli government might break down a little.

While trying that tack with Israel, the President has exerted equally hard pressure on Sadat and other Arab leaders publicly to acknowledge Israel's irrefutable rights as a sovereign nation. Except for Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), Mr. Ford has had growing success in this campaign with the Arab leaders.

With Israel, however, the going has been hard. Middle East specialists in the government worried that Israeli Prime Minister Rabin might arrive in Washington for his summit meeting with the President on June 11 in stonewall position — that is, without a single new proposal.

Now, on the heels of the one-two punch — the senatorial letter and the Jackson amendment — the President's bargaining leverage has been drastically weakened, the Prime Minister's correspondingly strengthened. By going public for Israel under pressure from the Pro-Israeli lobby in this country ("My phone did not stop ringing until I agreed to sign the letter," one Democratic Senator said), the Senate stripped down Mr. Ford and delivered its power to Rabin.

This giddy assertion of legislative clout to disrupt one of the most delicate presidential foreign policy negotiations ever attempted, with war or peace in the balance both in the Mideast and the world, should help satisfy Senators worried about presidential power. In this case, it seems, there is very little presidential power to worry about.

U.S. Housing Area In Laos Deserted

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Kilometer Six, the large American housing area on the outskirts of Vientiane, was deserted today except for Pathet Lao police patrolling the streets in an apparent effort to prevent looting.

Of the 1,000 Americans in Laos when the Communist Pathet Lao began taking control of the coalition government last month, only 200 remain, the U.S. Embassy said. They include 100 government employees and members of their families and 111 businessmen, journalists and other private citizens.

A few more employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development and their families were scheduled to leave today. But an Embassy spokesman said a final "cellar figure" for the Embassy staff was not available yet.

The last Americans moved out of Kilometer Six Wednesday. Since the evacuation of the area began last week, demonstrating students and the Pathet Lao police allowed those departing to take only one suitcase of belongings.

Many of the houses left vacant in the compound have been broken into and the contents carried away.

The AID headquarters compound in the heart of Vientiane, which was restored to American control Wednesday after a week of student occupation and tense negotiations, was peaceful although Pathet Lao police remained inside in violation of an agreement signed Tuesday night.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian A. Chapman met with Foreign Ministry officials to discuss the presence of the police and the personal property the departing Americans are being forced to leave behind.

Meanwhile, despite the Communist Pathet Lao's obvious domination of the Laotian coalition government, a government spokesman denied at a news conference that the Pathet Lao intend to seize absolute control of the country.

The spokesman, Ouday Souvannavong, said both the rightist "Vientiane side" and the Pathet Lao are abiding by the 1973 peace accord calling for a Vientiane-Pathet Lao-neutralist coalition government until general elections can be held.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said that the United States intends to continue diplomatic relations with Laos and keep the embassy in Vientiane open, but the military and economic relationship with Laos is under review.

Former Chilean President Hits Military Junta

Agence France-Presse — SANTIAGO — Former Chilean President Eduardo Frei today launched a strong attack on the military Junta for failing to overcome inflation and allowing substantial loss of real income for wage-earners and retired people.

Speaking out publicly for the first time since the Junta came to power in September 1973, Frei, the leader of the Christian Democratic movement, told the magazine Excelsior that the Chilean economic situation is "extremely difficult" and that the Junta is not following effective anti-inflation policies.

Frei said the country's shaky economic condition could be traced to the "catastrophic" economic situation inherited by the Junta in 1973, "the application of an erroneous economic model" by the Junta, the drop in world prices of copper (the main Chilean export) and the rise in world oil prices, and the effects of international recession.

The former president (1964-70) said that the social effects of the present economic situation "are worrisome, when they are not dramatic, for people who live on their wages, salaries, or pensions."

Frei said that a study by a technical institute had shown that the average real wage in 1974 was less than it had been in 1973, dropping by about five per cent.

Tokyo's Smog Damage Is Up

Agence France-Presse — TOKYO — Smog is causing increasing damage to rice and other food plants in Tokyo and neighboring prefectures, it was reported Thursday.

A survey conducted last July and August by seven prefectural governments revealed that leaves of rice plants, which had been believed to resist smog, suffered from cell dissolution and other damages apparently caused by photochemical smog with sulphur oxide pollutants.

Leaves of 19 other plants, including onion and spinach, were bleached or spotted, the survey showed.

No damage was found in cabbage and morning glory plants.

The survey covered 78 places in Tokyo, Kanagawa, Saitama, Chiba, Gumma, Tochigi and Ibaraki prefectures.

LaRue Convicted On Drug Count

JONESBORO, Ga. (AP) — Former cowboy movie star Alfred LaRue has been convicted of possession of marijuana.

LaRue took his own Bible to the stand to swear "in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost," he only was trying to "save the souls" of two hitchhikers when he took the marijuana.

The 37-year-old idol of Saturday Western matinee fans was found innocent at the Wednesday hearing on a charge of possessing barbiturates and amphetamine.

LaRue was sentenced to 12 months' probation and fined $300.

Members Of Maoist Party Are Arrested In Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Coimbra, the military security force announced today.

A communique accused the Movement for the Reorganization of the Party of the Proletariat, or MRPP, of "falsely revolutionary" activities and attitudes of "confrontation." The announcement said the party was a threat to internal security.

It was the military regime's second attack on the MRPP, which it barred from participation in the constitutional assembly election a month ago.

It was not known whether other small far-left parties would suffer similarly.

Two weeks ago the MRPP, working in conjunction with a radical army unit, announced it had uncovered a "vast fascist plot" against the year-old military regime. Military authorities acknowledged anti-government activities by some groups but accused the party of arming soldiers and using force to extract information from them.

Ten days ago young members of the MRPP took to the streets with cries of "down with military dictatorship." Military leaders accused the party of fomenting disobedience in some army units.

MRPP members attacked the U.S. Embassy on May 18, painting it with slogans and roughing up an American security employee. Later the Maoists beat two Embassy Marine guards while they were off duty.

The Maoists also are opposed to the Moscow-line Communist party, which they accuse of arresting MRPP militants and turning them over to the army or the police to be tortured.

The Communists produced a modest turnout of about 15,000 people for a march to the presidential palace Wednesday night to demonstrate support for the government.

One spokesman for the military regime told the crowd that the ruling Revolutionary Council could not be identified with any single party and that it disapproved of demonstrations that stimulated partisan struggles, an apparent reference to the current confrontation between the Communists and the Socialists.

Alleged Murder Victim Turns Up Alive, Well

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — A man among persons allegedly slain by Gary Addison Taylor has turned up alive and well in Garden City, the sheriff of Lenawee County says.

Sheriff Richard Germond said Wednesday that the man, Wilbert Parker, was supposed to have been one of the four persons killed and buried near Taylor's former home in Cambridge Township near Adrian.

Germond said Parker had no idea he was the man believed to be buried along with three women.

The sheriff quoted Parker as saying Taylor was a casual acquaintance when they worked together in Ypsilanti. He said Parker apparently did not realize the Taylor he knew in Ypsilanti was the same man now facing a series of murder accusations.

Meanwhile Wednesday, authorities in Sherman, Tex., said they would question Taylor, 38, about recent highway shootings by an unknown sniper.

The sniping attacks took place near Sherman, north of Dallas, the night of May 16. Three buses and three trucks were hit by bullets apparently fired by a sniper positioned on an embankment or overpass on U.S. 75.

A 15-year-old girl, a passenger in one of the buses was injured.

Police in Lansing said Wednesday they have reopened their investigation of the 1972 slaying of Irene Waters be-

Relatives Of Nine Killed Aboard TWA Plane File Suit Naming Two Executives

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The president and the security chief of Trans World Airlines are being sued for $8.6 million by relatives of nine persons who were killed last Sept. 8 when a TWA airliner was blown apart by a bomb over the Ionian Sea between Greece and Italy.

The suit charges wrongful death through negligence of the two executives, asserting that they failed to provide adequate security measures to safeguard the plane from bombs.

All 88 persons aboard the plane died in the crash. The National Transportation Safety Board, in an official report issued May 19, blamed the crash on an explosive device in a baggage compartment.

The relatives' suit apparently went unnoticed when it was filed in U.S. District Court here earlier this month.

TWA itself is not named as a defendant in the suit. An international air travel agreement known as the Warsaw Convention limits the damages a passenger can claim from an airline to less than $10,000. An amendment to that treaty, however, permits claims of up to $75,000 for passengers whose flights begin, end or stop in the United States.

But the suit against the TWA executives seeks damages of $1.5 million each for the deaths of two men, $1.2 million for the death of another man, $1 million each for the deaths of two women and $600,000 each for the deaths of four children.

The suit was filed for the relatives of Dan William Reed of Yellow Springs, Ohio; Seldon R. Bard and his son Elean of Tuckahoe, N.Y.; John F. Gillday of Fort Worth, Tex.; Katherine M. Michael and her son Jeremiah of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; and Paula Orphan and her daughters Emily and Vasili of St. Louis, Mo.

The defendants are Forwood Cloud Wiser Jr., president and chief operating officer of TWA, and Richard E. Neuman, the airline's staff vice president for audit and security.

They were ultimately responsible for security of the plane, the suit said, charging, "As a result of their negligence a bomb or other explosive device was permitted to be placed or carried aboard, which exploded after takeoff, causing the crash and the deaths of all aboard."

The suit was filed before the National Transportation Safety Board issued its final report on the cause of the crash, but preliminary reports from the agency pointed at the probability of a bomb.

Immediately after the crash, a telephone caller in Beirut said a group called the Nationalist Youth for the Liberation of Palestine had sabotaged the plane, but the Palestine Liberation Organization said the call was a hoax.

The plane was on the Athens-Rome leg of a flight from Tel Aviv to New York.

Super Shoot Moves Into Heavy Varmint Division

Trying to place five shots in the same hole over a range the length of two football fields is difficult enough, but a fast running mirage encountered by 115 riflemen at the Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club Wednesday made it almost impossible.

Super Shoot III was greeted by a West Texas mirage Wednesday and kept things interesting. For instance, compare Match Director Skip Gordon's nine inch group with the world record of .198 over the 200-yard distance.

Small group honors went to a trio of Lone Star riflemen. Bill Massey of Dallas fired a .376 to lead the pack while Dallas' Chuck Dornay and New Braunfels' Howard Dietz followed with .495 and .512 respectively.

Success in benchrest shooting, however, is measured in aggregate, which is the average group size over the course of a day's firing. Frequently, the competitor who fires a very small group will follow it up with a big one. Consistency wins in benchrest.

Wednesday's action ended the light varmint competition, and attendance will mushroom today as additional shooters arrive to take part in the heavy varmint contest. This class has rifles weighing up to 13 1/2 pounds, and is the most popular in benchrest shooting.

In addition to overall honors, there will be awards for Junior shooters, husband and wife teams, and competitors representing sponsor companies. Gordon, who hails from New Jersey, has been more than pleased with the shoot so far.

"Everything has been more than perfect. The range is in superb shape and the local civic groups have made us feel like kin-folk. The ladies from the Order of the Eastern Star have kept us well fed," Gordon said. All profits from the sale of food and soft drinks goes to the Universities Cancer Research program.

Heavy varmint competition will last through the last day of action Friday, and winners in all divisions will be honored Friday at the close of competition when over $2,000 worth of trophies will be awarded. Merchandise and cash awards will exceed $10,000.

NBA Crosses Fingers

Hope For Better Draft Than Last Year's Flop

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association was hoping that today's collegiate draft would produce somewhat better results among its top picks than it did a year ago.

Of last year's first through fifth choices, only one, center Tom Burleson of the Seattle SuperSonics, performed up to expectations in the NBA this past season.

The others—Bill Walton, Marvin Barnes, John Shumate and Bobby Jones—were of little or no use to NBA teams.

Walton, the high priced three-time All-American and two-time Player of the Year from UCLA, was chosen by the Portland Trail Blazers. Instead of leading the Trail Blazers into the playoffs for the first time in the team's five-year history as had been expected, Walton was sidelined for most of the season with injuries and Portland didn't come close to making the playoffs.

Barnes, an All-American from Providence, didn't even play in the NBA, although he had been drafted by the Philadelphia 76ers. Instead, he signed with the Spirits of St. Louis of the rival American Basketball Association and became the ABA's Rookie of the Year.

Shumate, the All-American from Notre Dame, was signed by the NBA's Phoenix Suns, but he didn't play a single minute for the team after it was discovered before the season that he had a blood clot in his left lung.

Jones, drafted by the Houston Rockets, disdained the NBA for the ABA's Denver Nuggets and finished a close second to Barnes for Rookie of the Year honors.

After the top five, the NBA had much better luck in the first round of its draft last year. Among the players chosen was Rookie of the Year Keith Wilkes by champion Golden State.

Among the top collegians in today's draft were All-Americans David Thompson of North Carolina State, Dave Meyers of UCLA and Luther "Tickey" Burden of Utah.

Also highly regarded were Marvin "The Human Eraser" Webster of Morgan State, Junior Bridgeman of Louisville, Kevin Grevey of Kentucky, Joe Meriweather of Southern Illinois, Gus Williams of Southern California, Alvan Adams of Oklahoma and Frank Oleynek of Seattle.

Steve Smith Clears 18-5

Sets Pro Indoor Pole Vault Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Fiery Steve Smith, concentrating better than ever because of recent hypnotism, says he isn't satisfied with his latest pole vault record.

After leaping 16 feet, 5 inches at the International Track Association pro meet at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night, bettering his indoor mark of 18-4, the 23-year-old Smith said, "I won't be satisfied until I do 19 feet. I'm sure I can jump 19 feet and I'm pretty sure I can jump 19-4. I really don't know my limit."

Smith's limit Wednesday night was 18-5. He tried three times at 18-7 1/2 but failed on each occasion.

Misses World Mark
Clearing that height would have shattered the world's record of 18-6 1/2 set earlier this year by Dave Roberts. The indoor amateur record is 18-1 by Dan Ripley of San Jose State.

Earlier in the competition, the blond, bouncy Smith, a student at Long Beach State University, had cleared 18-1, bettering his Garden record of 18-1/4. Those two jumps over 18 feet increased to 12 the number of times he has cleared that height. No other vaulter has done it as often.

Afterwards, Smith said that he and fellow vaulter Bob Richards Jr. go for hypnotic treatments once a week in Irvine, Calif.

"He (the hypnotist) helps us put everything out of our minds," Smith said. "We can stand at the runway and you'd be surprised how high we can go. He helps us increase concentration and other events going on at the same time don't bother us."

Biggest Pay Day
Smith's performance earned him $4,000—$2,000 for winning and $2,000 for breaking the record. It was the biggest payday for any athlete in the ITA's three-year history and boosted his 1974 earnings to $14,900, second behind Ben Jipcho's $21,300.

Jipcho won both the mile and two-mile races, giving him 40 victories in 43 races during his two years on the ITA tour. His mile time was 4:02.7 and his two-mile clocking was 8:40.2.

In addition to Smith's pole vault record, a Garden record was broken in the 440, with John Smith winning in 47.5 seconds. Larry James, the runner-up, also bettered the arena record of 48.2 with a time of 47.6.

Wyomia Tyus, the only undefeated athlete on the ITA circuit, raced to her 24th triumph in three years, taking the women's 60-yard dash in 6.7.

Other winners were: Brian Oldfield in the shotput, 69-5; Rod Milburn in the 60-yard hurdles, 7.9; J.J. Jackson in the 60-yard dash, 6.1; Ken Swenson in the 800, 1:52.2, and John Radetich in the high jump, 7-2.

Crowell Takes Post

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Fred J. Crowell, former coach of Athletes in Action, was named head basketball coach at Samford University Wednesday.

Ex-Cub Finds Range; Brock Davis Promoted

Jerry Tabb, former Midland Cub first baseman who shared the Texas League home run title with Wayne Tyrone last year, has been having his troubles with Wichita in the American Assn. this year, but showed signs of coming out of it Memorial Day in Oklahoma City.

He banged out six hits in nine trips and knocked in nine runs in a doubleheader against the Indians. And if that's signal for one of his binges, they might not get him for two or three weeks. . . .

When El Paso's Paul Dado was busting up Cub pitching for seven hits in 13 trips here in the opening series, Whitley Lockman observed, "He's too good for this league."

It took a while, but the California Angels, after Dado hit .493, belted seven homers and knocked in 32 runs in the first months, apparently came to the same conclusion and called him up to Salt Lake City. . . .

Former Midland Cub centerfielder Brock Davis, who also had a big series for San Antonio against Midland here, has been called up to Oklahoma City.

While the Brewers were here, a Midland fan, noting the big crowds they were drawing in San Antonio, observed, "It must be nice playing before so many people."

Brock responded, "Yes, but they should draw more. After all, it's a city of 300,000. Still, it's not the same as in Midland. In San Antonio it's all business. There's not the same rapport between the fans and players as there is here. . . .

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles

Despite the $1 million offer, the National Basketball Assn. used good judgment in turning down the American Basketball Assn.'s World Series challenger. There's no way the NBA could have won. . . .

If the NBA had won, everybody would have nodded and said, "What did you expect?" If the NBA had lost, it would have cost them more than $1 million in lost prestige. . . .

Beattie Feathers, the one-time Tennessee All-American (1931-1933), is finally stepping down as a coach at Wake Forest.

Feathers' nine yards per carry for the Chicago Bears in 1934 still stands as an NFL record, which is truly remarkable when you consider it came in the single wing era and back in the days when players still went both ways. . . .

ABC-TV issued its own hopeful football rankings when it talked Arkansas and Texas A&M to switching their SWC game from early Nov. to Dec. 6 for national viewing.

Roons Arledge apparently sees the possibility of another imagination-catching showdown comparable to the 1969 Texas-Arkansas classic at Fayetteville. . . .

'SUPER PSYCHED' FOR LPGA BID— Carol Goes All Out

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carol Mann says she's "super psyched" for her ninth try at the Pine Ridge Golf Course today for the opening of the first round of the $55,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association championship tournament.

Miss Mann, a local favorite, has won once in eight years of tournament play at Pine Ridge and finished out of the top three only once. She's been preparing for today's first round, which is expected to draw record crowds. In fact, her preparations for the Pine Ridge greens may have cost her a victory last week at Raleigh, N.C., where she finished fifth after adjusting her putting grip.

In a sense, today's play actually features two champions in the field of 96 lady golfers. Sandra Haynie will be defending the LPGA Championship she won last year at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton, Mass. But Midland's Judy Rankin is the two-time defending champion at the Baltimore stop on the LPGA tour.

Betsy Rawls, Mary Mills and Kathy Whitworth, all two-time LPGA champions are also in the field. Also among the favorites for this week are Marlene Hagge, Gloria Ehret, Judy Kimball, Sandra Post and Kathy Aherm, all one-time LPGA winners.

Miss Haynie is not a prohibitive favorite. Among her most serious competition is Sandra Palmer, the season's big money winner with $45,700 already in the bank while en route to a possible $100,000 season.

Other contenders include Joanne Carner, one of the longest hitters on the tour who is coming off a playoff victory over Miss Rankin last week at Raleigh.

Donna Caponi Young is also in the running as the most consistent player during the first two months of the season.

Miss Mann and Miss Whitworth come to Baltimore without a tournament victory.

Miss Rankin, who scored her second Baltimore victory in as many years in 1974, has been the hottest golfer on the tour in her last three tournaments. But she has yet to win this season. In each of her last three tournaments she has tied for first and then lost in the playoff.

North American Extends Gas Area

North American Royalties, Inc., No. 3-8 Jack Mann has been completed as a 1/4-mile north extension to the Jack Mann (Canyon) gas field of Edwards County, 14 miles north of Rockspings.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 963,000 cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 5,126-5,597 feet, which had been fractured with 12,000 gallons and 10,000 pounds. Wellbore is 990 feet from south and 870 feet from east lines of section 8, HE&WT survey.

Borden, Yoakum Gain Explorers

Exploration has been slated in Borden County, and a Yoakum reentry has been slated anew.

Davis Oil Co. of Tulsa, Okla., will drill No. 1 Stansell at a 9,000-foot venture in Borden, 17 miles northeast of Gall.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 42b, block 77, H&TC survey, 1 1/2 miles northeast of the depleted Myrtle East (Strawn) field.

Representative Terms Committee 'A Disaster'

DALLAS (AP) — Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., says he is pessimistic about chances the House Ways and Means Committee will approve deregulation of crude oil prices.

"The Ways and Means Committee is a disaster and will continue to approve punitive legislation against oil," Wilson told the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association Tuesday.

Wilson said congressional action that eliminated the oil depletion tax allowance for major drillers already has caused a decline in oil and gas exploration.

Wilson addressed the association shortly before the trade group ended its annual meeting by approving a resolution seeking early restoration of percentage depletion because of its importance in providing risk capital for domestic oil and gas finders.

Congress has killed the 22 percent tax allowance for major companies but retained the

Gulf Worried About Proposed Jewish Boycott

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. says it is deeply concerned about a proposal by Jewish leaders to boycott the firm because of its alleged support of Arab oil countries' propaganda in the United States.

Gulf issued a statement Wednesday responding to a resolution from a New York conference of 300 presidents of Jewish organizations.

The resolution supported "acts of conscience taken by individual members reacting to the Gulf Oil gift to Arab sources . . . for propaganda purposes in the U.S."

Such acts of conscience could include avoiding purchases at Gulf stations, surrendering credit cards, or writing letters of protest to the company, according to a source at the conference.

Gulf urged the protesters to await the outcome of an investigation of apparently illegal payments the company has admitted making in foreign countries under various forms of duress.

"We are deeply concerned about this resolution," the Gulf statement said. "It is based upon incomplete information about a contribution which is one part of an ongoing investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission."

Hackberry Irritation

The broom-like excessive twig development found on hackberry and other trees results from an irritation caused by fungi, insects or a virus.

Lablock, has filed application to reenter and plug back to 5,400 feet as a wildcat at No. 1-C R. R. Cox, former producer in the Precitico field of Yoakum County, 1/4 mile east of a recent 5,700-foot pay opener.

It originally was filed in November, 1974.

Location is 330 feet from south and east lines of the north half of section 21, block K, PSL survey, six miles north of Tolk.

Hamon Explorer Develops Gas Flow

Jake L. Hamon, Midland, No. 1 Kimber Gas Unit, Reeves County wildcat, 11 miles north of Saragosa, and 1/4 mile southeast of the one-well Nine-Mile Draw (Fusselman) gas field, flowed gas at the rate of 470,000 cubic feet daily for 24 hours, from the Fusselman.

Flow was through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations at 14,353-14,376 feet. It flowed 26 barrels of load water along with the gas. The perforations had been acidized with 10,000 gallons.

Testing continued. It was slated as a wildcat, and drilled to 14,650 feet, and has a 5-inch liner hung from 10,297-14,616 feet.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 17, block 54, T-7, T&P survey.

The Nine-Mile Draw strike, Texaco Inc. No. 1 Keith Gas Unit, was completed in January, for 34 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 14,187-14,432 feet.

Amoco Completes Wolfcamp Opener

Amoco Production Co. has completed its No. 1-FU State as a Wolfcamp oil discovery in Lea County, N.M., six miles south of Buckeye.

It had a daily, flowing potential of 587 barrels of 30.4-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 553-1. Production was through a 10-64-inch choke and perforations at 10,094-10,656 feet, which had been acidized with 3,900 gallons.

Drilled to 13,499 feet in barren Mississippi, it has been plugged back to 12,085 feet, and has 7 1/2-inch casing seated at 12,140 feet.

Scurry Pool Gets Second Producer

Second producer and a location south extension to the Loyd Mountain (Strawn) oil field of Scurry County has been indicated with the recovery of 540 feet of free oil-gravity oil and 80 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, along with 1,380 feet of salt water, on a drillstem test at Hilliard Oil & Gas Co., Midland, No. 1-A Western Reserves-Rhoedes.

Tool was open 80 minutes on the test taken from 7,009-7,053 feet, on which gas, no gauges, surfaced in 17 minutes. Flowing pressures were 514-523 pounds, 60-minute initial and 100-minute final shut-in pressures were 2,334 pounds each.

A previous drillstem test in the Strawn from 6,952-7,005 feet, open 50 minutes, recovered one foot of drilling mud, no shows of oil or gas.

Operator was moving off rotary after setting 5 1/2-inch casing at 7,125 feet, on total depth of 7,135 feet.

The project spots 467 feet from north and 2,400 feet from east lines of section 151, block 7, H&TC survey, 18 miles northwest of Snyder.

The discovery, Hilliard No. 1 Western Reserves-Rhoedes, was completed June 27, 1974, for 56 barrels of 30-gravity oil and 46 barrels of water per day, through a 10-64-inch choke and perforations at 6,994-6,996 feet.

Oil Recovered At Runnels Test

Geo-Tech Petroleum Management Corp., No. 1 E. Black, et al, Runnels County wildcat, five miles south of Ballinger, recovered 1,600 feet of gas, 70 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, 20 feet of free oil and 10 feet of oily filtrate water on a drillstem test in the Capps.

Tool was open one hour on the test taken in the upper Capps from 3,583-3,585 feet.

Operator was waiting on a completion unit, after setting 4 1/2-inch casing at 3,800 feet, the plugged-back depth. Total depth is 4,260 feet.

Location is 3,300 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of Henry Scheris survey 142, abstract 437, 1 1/2 mile southwest of the H&R Hovrack (upper Capps) gas field, but separated by a 3,600-foot failure.

Dunigan Stakes Pair Of Offsets

James P. Dunigan, Inc., Abilene, plans to drill No. 2 F. E. Alya as a 1/4-mile southwest stepout to the dual Ellenburger discovery and Strawn producer in the Chiniquin field of Nolan County.

Drillbite is 660 feet from south and 1,900 feet from west lines of section 48, block 20, T&P survey, 30 miles east of Sweetwater. Planned depth is 5,750 feet.

The Ellenburger discovery, Dunigan No. 1-B F. E. Alya, was completed April 3, for 22 barrels of 42-gravity oil per day, from open hole at 5,729-5,900 feet, and from the Strawn, for 102 barrels of 42-gravity oil per day, through perforations at 5,197-5,193 feet.

Earlier, it flowed oil at the maximum, daily rate of 238 barrels, through a 10-64-inch choke, for an unreported time.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 45, block 8, H&TC survey.

The J-D opener, Phillips No. 1-C Duncan, was completed in March, for 273 barrels of oil per day, through perforations at 4,163-4,169 feet.

Cities Service Hits Tyler Gas

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Cities Service Co. reported Wednesday it has found a wildcat gas-condensate producer in Tyler County, Tex.

Flow rate at the well, the No. 1 Exxon Fee, was 5,450 million cubic feet of gas plus 256 barrels of condensate per day through choke. Production is from perforations in the Woodbine between 11,286 and 11,286 feet.

Calculated open flow is 42 million cubic feet of gas daily.

The well is 15 miles northeast of Woodville, Tex., in a 10,000-acre block. Nearest production is at Mike Field, three miles northeast.

Earlier, it flowed oil at the maximum, daily rate of 238 barrels, through a 10-64-inch choke, for an unreported time.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 45, block 8, H&TC survey.

The J-D opener, Phillips No. 1-C Duncan, was completed in March, for 273 barrels of oil per day, through perforations at 4,163-4,169 feet.

Offshore Sale Of Gulf Leases 'One Of Smallest'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal government's 28th sale of offshore oil and natural gas leases hit the oil companies in a time of changing regulations and shifting drilling frontiers.

It was the first sale since the oil depletion tax allowance was removed and may be one of the last in which major companies can join together in bidding and drilling for offshore oil.

And company executives said the best drilling spots in coastal areas of the Gulf of Mexico — the center of the nation's offshore drilling — have been used up.

"It was the smallest sale in a long, long time," said John Lotus Jr., an Exxon vice president from Houston, after the bids were opened and read Wednesday.

Companies bid for the right to search for oil and gas on only 102 of the 284 tracts covering 1.4 million acres off the coasts of eastern Louisiana and southern Texas.

Altogether, there were 191 bids totaling $402.7 million on 102 tracts, most still to be approved by the Interior Department.

The largest single bid, $18.8 million, was made by a combination of companies headed by Ashland Oil for a 5,000-acre tract off the Louisiana coast.

Jack C. Threet, a Shell Oil vice president for southern exploration, said the tracts lie between already developed areas and included "some attractive prospects, a lot of uninteresting prospects, a lot of uninteresting prospects."

"We're definitely into an advanced stage of exploration off

Texas and Louisiana," he said. Threet said the end of the oil depletion allowance — a tax advantage for oil companies removed by Congress since the last sale in February — prompted a tendency toward lower bids and less risk-taking.

Figures Show Production Decline Is Leveling Off

AUSTIN—Stepped-up drilling in Texas since higher price levels were permitted for "new oil" has finally turned around the steady decline in Texas oil production.

Tabulation of almost-complete reports on field production in March reveals that production that month averaged 3,294,000 barrels a day, with reports not yet received on leases which in February yielded 2,943 barrels a day.

This is 15,570 barrels a day more than actual production in February, which was 3,278,000 barrels a day. Much of the increase was in the Permian Basin in West Texas.

At the statewide proration hearing last week, Commission Chairman Ben Ramsey said there were preliminary indications that the decline in Texas production had finally leveled off. His prediction was borne out by the actual figures obtained today.

Texas production has been declining for the last two calendar years, as old wells yielded out under 100 per cent production quotas, and were abandoned. However, many of them have been reworked since the increase in crude oil prices made them again commercially feasible.

In addition, drilling has increased, despite shortages of drilling rigs and pipe, and the new wildcat wells brought into production, along with several large secondary recovery programs, have finally halted the decline in production.

In 1974, Texas oil production was 32,500,000 barrels below 1973 production, and 38,700,000 below 1972, which was an all-time high production year under the 100 per cent production quotas started that year. The decline continued through January and February.

Odessa College Trustee Resigns

ODESSA—A former chairman of the Odessa College board of trustees resigned his post late Tuesday, citing additional responsibilities.

Odessa radiologist Dr. William H. Melton, 54, had served on the board since 1970 and his current term was due to expire in 1976.

R. J. Juedeman will head a personnel committee to select candidates to fill the vacant board seat, and board members decided to accept applications for 15 days.

The trustees' June 24 meeting is expected to see designation of Melton's successor.

Applications For Drilling Permits Totals 106 For Permian Basin Area

Applications for oil and gas tests in the Permian Basin last week rose to 106, an increase of 35 from the number of permits sought two weeks ago.

Texas Railroad Commission District 8-A, with offices in Lubbock, jumped to the lead in planned exploration, with eight filed in that office. District 7-C (San Angelo), recorded six and RRC District 6 and Southeast New Mexico tied with five each.

The Midland RRC office received the largest number of permit applications for development projects. Thirty-three were filed last week. District 8-A received 28; 7-C, 13; and Southeast New Mexico, 10.

Economic Forecasts Sometimes Confuse Future With Present

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You would probably have more peace of mind if you didn't look for the answers today, at least the answers to the economic puzzle that confuses us daily.

While the explanations to economic phenomena never are clear, they usually are a bit less murky than they are now. It may be the problems themselves that defy explanation; it may be the timing only.

That is, most economists are agreed on one thing: We are now approaching the period of downward momentum but we are not yet in an upturn, and probably won't be for a few months more.

That leaves a situation in which one economist after another is issuing statements that "the consumer soon will be in a buying mood," or "the worst is over for the auto slump," or "stock buyers more confident now."

But those are forecasts, and they don't necessarily jibe with the facts. The future is confused with the present.

General Motors forecasts returning health for automotive sales, but so far the sales statistics don't buttress that faith. Ford and Chrysler don't share the answers to the economic puzzle that confuses us daily.

There are some fears among the latter that GM could overproduce again, resulting in rising inventories and, most disheartening of all, a renewal of shutdowns and layoffs.

The answer, of course, lies off in the future, which helps not a bit to relieve the tensions of today. In the transition period between a shrinking economy and an expanding economy, there lie many mysteries, and few answers.

Most somewhat mystifying to most people, it seems safe to say, is the rationale of an oil import tariff of an additional $1 "the consumer soon will be in a buying mood," or "the worst is over for the auto slump," or "stock buyers more confident now."

While that much seems clear enough, the confusion comes when you realize that the tariff isn't projected to reduce American reliance on imports, except in a relative sense. Actual imports are expected to continue to rise.

The impact of the tariff, it seems, will be to reduce the rate of increase. But it now appears that unless new sources of energy are developed the United States might always be somewhat reliant on foreign sources.

An area of confusion that affects millions of Americans very directly lies in the housing category of the economy. Despite rebates and predictions, private and governmental housing remains stuck in the mud.

Instead of rushing out to get mortgages, many potential home buyers seem content to continue what they have been doing for the past year or so; that is, they build their bank accounts and pay off their debts.

In a transitional economy, it seems, people don't let go of their foothold until they can reach out and grab the future. For the moment, it seems to be just beyond their reach.

Rathbone Submerged By Holmes

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD—It is elementary, my dear Watson, that the best remembered, the most endearing and the most definitive of all the Sherlock Holmes on stage or screen or radio was an actor once described as having "two profiles stuck together" and, further, as a "folded umbrella taking elocution lessons." That, of course, would be the ineffable Basil Rathbone, tall and urbane, the model of Mayfair elegance.

We are, as everyone knows, in the midst of a substantial Sherlock Holmes revival, not yet at its crest.

There's a hit Broadway play, a best-selling book called "The Seven and One-Half Cent Solution" and a movie forthcoming. And on television stations across the land the Holmes movies starring Rathbone are being shown to vast interest, with ratings on the upswing. One Los Angeles station, KBJ-TV, has a special Sunday afternoon slot for its Holmes movies.

As the story goes, back in 1938 a conversation took place between producer Darryl Zanuck, a director named Gregory Ratoff and writer Gene Markey. "Somebody should turn Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes stories into a movie series," Ratoff suggested.

"Good idea," said Zanuck. "But who would play Holmes?"

"Who else," said Markey, "but Basil Rathbone?"

Thus did Rathbone become indelibly associated with the role that would change his life. Allogogether, according to his biographer, Michael B. Druzman, Rathbone essayed the role of the greatest of all fictional detectives in 14 films, a long-running radio series, a stage production and on television.

"It was a characterization that satisfied audiences," Druzman writes, "but frustrated the artist, as it ultimately overshadowed the more impressive accomplishments of his career."

After two years of research and writing, Mike Druzman's book entitled "Basil Rathbone: His Life and Films" is now in the stalls, a highly informative and illuminating work and a bonanza as well for all the Sherlock Holmes buffs. A Hollywood publicist by trade, Druzman is a film nut with a scholarly approach. The Rathbone book was clearly a labor of affection.

"It's so ironic," says Druzman. "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle created Sherlock Holmes and then, toward the end, he hated the character and killed him off only to be forced, by his readers to revive him in another book. Rathbone was typecast as Holmes; it destroyed his career and he began to hate Holmes, too."

In his book, Druzman has an anecdote about Rathbone being confronted by several kids waving pencils. "Can we have your autograph, Mr. Holmes?" one of them said.

"What is my real name?" Rathbone demanded.

"Why, you're Sherlock Holmes, the detective."

This distressed Rathbone. "After he became Sherlock Holmes," Druzman points out, "Rathbone never played an important role in an important picture. Incredibly, his exit movie before he died in 1967 was something called 'Hillbillys'."

Accordingly, we have the curious spectacle of Sherlock Holmes trucking down Nazi spies in World War II epics. And beginning with a 1962 production, "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror," we have the further oddity of Holmes discarding his familiar deerstalker cap in favor of a fedora.

The Rathbones, Basil and his wife Ouida, were known in Hollywood for hosting the most lavish of parties. "They spent a fortune on parties," says Druzman, "and it broke them. Rathbone made big money—$50,000 a week—for years. He left an estate of only $10,000. His widow died last year. She was destitute."

As a part of his research, Druzman viewed all of those Holmes movies that are so big now on TV were filmed over a five-year span—two at 20th Century Fox, the rest at Universal. At the same time, Rathbone was Holmes on the radio, abetted there as well by Nigel Bruce as the good Dr. Watson.

Fiddlers Contest Slated Saturday

GOLDTHWAITE — A pre-Bicentennial Fiddlers Contest and Festival will be a Saturday event here.

The festival, sanctioned by the Texas Old Time Fiddlers Association, is expected to draw old-time fiddling enthusiasts from a wide sector of the state, including the Permian Basin. A preliminary event will be held Friday night, followed by various events on Saturday. The main contest will begin at 1 p.m. in Mills County Park here.

COM Members To Meet Coach

The City of Midland Swim team will hold a "meet the coach" session beginning at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Christ Presbyterian Church.

"We would like to have a huge turnout of parents for this meeting," Charles Koch, president of the COM board of directors, said.

Doug Ingram, former head coach of the University of Texas at Arlington, last Monday became head coach of the team, replacing Steve Montgomery who resigned to devote fulltime to his duties as coach of the Midland College swim team.

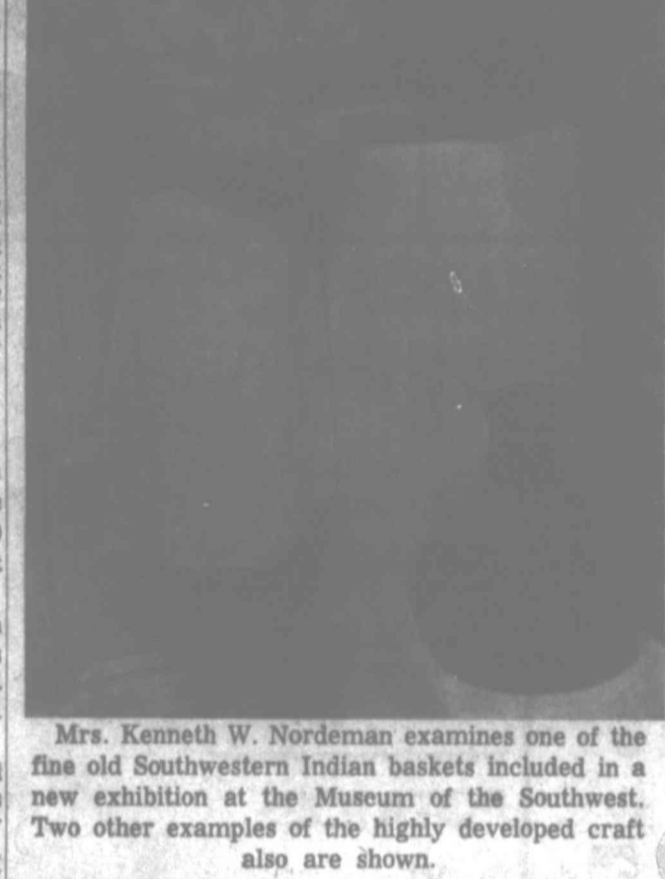

Indian Baskets On Display

The genius of Southwestern Indian basket makers is exemplified in a new exhibition at the Museum of the Southwest here.

Twenty-two baskets make up a collection which is on loan to the museum from the Exxon Corp. The show has been assembled by Dr. Ned Danson of the Museum of Northern Arizona, through the cooperation of various tribal craft centers and Indian leaders in Arizona.

The new exhibition showcases the specialized skills required for basket making which have been developed during many generations by the Pima, Papago, Yavapai, Apache, Chemehulvi, Havasupai, Hualapai and Hopi Indian tribes. Experts have pointed out that the American Indian in his basketry has given to the world an art that is unique and individual to his race, an art that is purely American and one in which the beauty and richness of design is just cause to be proud of it.

The special exhibition is on view to the public between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. each weekday, and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free at all times.

Mrs. Kenneth W. Nordeman examines one of the fine old Southwestern Indian baskets included in a new exhibition at the Museum of the Southwest. Two other examples of the highly developed craft also are shown.

Senate Approves New Seed Law

Austin Bureau — A rewrite of Texas seed law to conform with new federal standards has been adopted by the Senate and sent to the governor for his signature in the form of a conference committee report.

The conference committee report is in the same form as the bill (SB 595) by Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene passed the Senate. The House has one amendment which the Senate refused to accept.

The Commissioner of Agriculture would classify and define noxious weed and other type of seed, and then publish notice of any new rules or amendments to existing rules.

Retiring CRMWD Director Honored

BIG SPRING—Retiring from the board of directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, Lyle Deffebach was honored Tuesday by a resolution adopted by that board for his vision in helping develop West Texas water resources.

Deffebach, who began his service in 1951 as Snyder's representative, was presented an engraved plaque commemorating his contributions to the CRMWD.

The board in its Tuesday session also approved contract of water sales to the Mabee Petroleum Corp. effective Jan. 1, 1976, or sooner if the company is able.

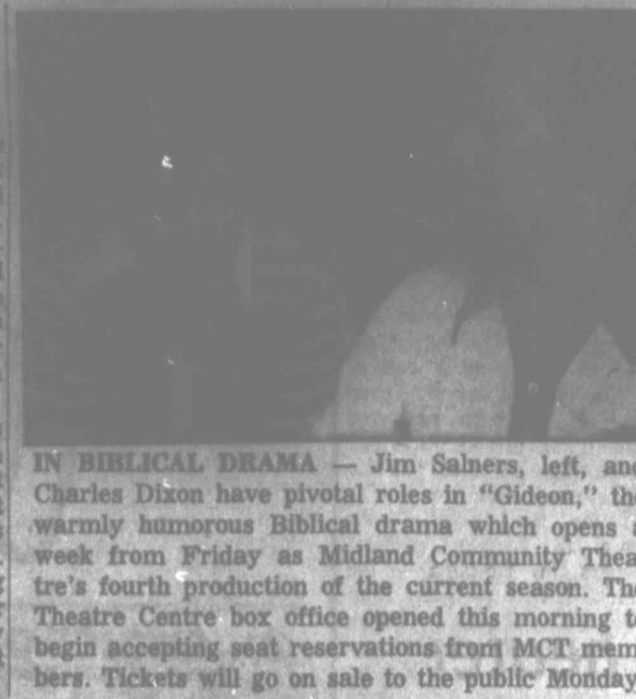

The cost will be 49.62 cents per thousand gallons. The initial quantity is 5,000 barrels daily, which may be escalated.

Puppetry Seminar Set Friday Night

Puppetry, today recognized as a highly effective teaching aid, will be the subject of a training seminar scheduled in Midland Friday night.

Basic puppetry, designed for persons who know nothing about the art, will be presented at the seminar by representatives of Puppet Productions Inc. of California. A similar training seminar was held here last year by that organization.

Friday's workshop, scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. in Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas St., also will have a session for persons already versed in basic puppetry who wish to advance their skills.

Registrations for the seminar are being accepted at Crestview Church, and persons also may register Friday evening at the start of the session.

Tanzania Believes Negotiations Only Hope Of Rescuing Three Hostages

By COLIN LEGUM
The Observer, London

LONDON — The Tanzanian government believes that the only hope of rescuing the three student hostages captured by African guerrillas on May 19 from a game reserve on Lake Tanganyika lies through negotiations conducted by Washington with the Zaire government of President Mobutu Sese Seko.

A top member of Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere's staff said in London Wednesday evening that it would be misleading to suppose that Tanzania can still do anything more to save the three hostages, two American and one Dutch, who were originally abducted on Tanzanian soil.

Originally four students were abducted but one of them, Barbara Smuts, was later released in bringing ransom notes to Nyerere and to the U.S. ambassador in Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania's capital.

The negotiations to secure the release of the hostages has now become complicated by international problems affecting relations between the two neighboring African states, Tanzania and Zaire.

Although the ransom notes were delivered to Tanzania, the principal demand requires that Nyerere should assist in arming a rebel movement in Zaire with the help of the United States.

One of the three demands made in the ransom note is for the delivery of a considerable supply of American-type ammunition and weapons.

The fact that American weapons are specifically requested suggests that the rebel band already possesses U.S. weapons of the kind with which the Zaire army is supplied, but which are not in use in Tanzania.

The rebel demand is for 500,000 rounds of regular ammunition, 200,000 rounds of specifically designed ammunition and 200 75mm rockets.

Two further demands are for $500,000 and for the release of a number of Zairean political prisoners allegedly held in Tanzania.

"If we were to consider agreeing to allow such a huge quantity of arms provided by Washington to go to the rebels it would involve Tanzania in agreeing to support military intervention in a friendly neighboring country which is unthinkable," the Tanzanian said.

He added that such a decision could be taken only by Mobutu. "It couldn't possibly be taken by us, and we have told the Americans that we will under no circumstances be prepared to be a party to such a transaction," the Tanzanian spokesman said.

For the same reason the Tanzanians are resolutely opposed to acting as a conduit for the ransom money, even though it has been suggested to them that private American sources might be ready to raise the necessary sum.

On the final point — the release of Zairean political prisoners in Tanzania — the position is that refugees from Zaire had, coincidentally, been released from detention on the very day on which the kidnaping had taken place and were declared prohibited immigrants. They are now free to leave the country for any place of their own choosing.

One of the difficulties in the situation is that Mobutu has so far apparently refused to accept the accuracy of the report that the hostages are on Zaire soil.

For him to admit this fact would amount to admitting the existence of a rebel guerrilla force operating inside his country.

Yet Barbara Smuts, the released student, is very specific in her reports that the hostages were taken across Lake Tanganyika into Zaire. She was able to give an account of a large, well-organized military camp as the rebel base.

Statewide Physicians' Strike In California Ends On Monday

By LARRY STAMMER
And ROBERT A. JONES
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — A statewide physicians' strike which crippled non-emergency medical care, threatened hospital bankruptcies, and threw thousands of hospital employees out of work will end Monday, spokesmen for doctors and legislative leaders announced in Sacramento Wednesday.

Representatives of physician groups, including the California Medical Assn. and the California Society of Anesthesiologists, said they are now convinced the California Legislature is moving quickly to enact both short-term and long-range solutions to skyrocketing medical malpractice insurance rates.

In the San Francisco area, physicians apparently accepted the settlement with little or no opposition. Dr. John Driscoll, president of the San Francisco Medical Society, said a mid-morning meeting of his group resulted in a unanimous endorsement of the plan.

In Southern California, however, the agreement produced confusion and disgruntlement among several medical societies, and there was concern expressed that the settlement would not be accepted universally.

Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, a Democrat, who during the past two weeks has publicly scolded doctors for pressing their walkout, Wednesday hailed their decision to return to work.

He said it is now up to the Legislature to follow through and enact malpractice reforms it has promised all along.

"The leadership has pledged itself to perform this task as rapidly as it can while protecting the public interest. The winners in today's decision are the hospitals and the thousands of patients who were innocently caught up in the middle of this crisis," McCarthy said.

Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, a Republican, said the decision to return to work marked "a very happy occasion."

The walkout, in which doctors declined to perform non-emergency surgery, began May 1 in the San Francisco Bay Area. It spread to Southern California as physicians protested skyrocketing medical malpractice insurance rates which cost some doctors, they said, up to 40 per cent of their annual income.

A final step assuring the end of the walkout must still take place, but doctors and legislative leaders said there was no doubt that step would be taken.

The step involves a hearing Friday in San Francisco by the state insurance commissioner. The commissioner is expected to make a finding that private malpractice insurance in the San Francisco Bay Area is too expensive.

This finding, in turn, will trigger the creation of an insurance pool composed of 400 liability carriers in the state that would offer Bay Area physicians low cost insurance through December.

By that time, the pool would disband and it is anticipated long-term reforms will be on the books which will enable private carriers to offer insurance by reduced cost to doctors.

Such an action in the Bay Area will be sufficient to persuade Southern California doctors to return to work, according to Dr. Joseph Boyle, speaker of the House of Delegates of the California Medical Assn.

Boyle told newsmen Wednesday he has during the past 10 days contacted up to 1,500 physicians in the state "from San Diego to the Oregon border."

Boyle said, "Their position has been that as soon as doctors in the San Francisco-Oakland Area had available to them affordable insurance, and as soon as they had assurance there would be expeditious action on reform bills before the Legislature — without accepting any guarantees — they would return to work and give the Legislature the opportunity to act."

Boyle said, "We will be communicating this to the leadership throughout the state with the expectation they will accept our recommendations." He said the return to work involves "all doctors and all hospitals in the entire state of California."

When the women's world championship was held in Italy some years ago, today's hand was dealt in the match between Great Britain and South Africa. The English girls won a good part of their victory by the way they bid the hand.

At one table, Mrs. Fritst Gordon got to six diamonds doubled, as shown in the diagram. She ruffed the second spade, drew trumps and took the club finesse. When it worked, she was home with a score of 1,540 points for England.

Additional Slam

At the other table, England held the East-West cards. Mrs. Rizzi Markus got to six spades with the West hand and scored an additional 1,430 points for England. Probably South should have doubled to ask for a heart opening lead, but she was afraid that the heart ruff might be her only trick.

The important point about such hands is that it pays to "buy" them. Become declarer, and let the other side find the right defense. Bid as high as you dare, and if the opponents continue to bid, don't be in a hurry to sell out; bid one more of your own suit, just for luck.

Australia Not Interested In Nuclear Weapons

Agence France-Presse

CANBERRA — Australia does not believe its security would be advanced by acquiring nuclear weapons, Prime Minister Gough Whitlam said today.

He believed all members of the parliament share this view. He was commenting in the House of Representatives on suggestions in a journal of the Returned Servicemen's League that the Anzus treaty with the U.S. was not worth the paper it was written on and that Australia should acquire nuclear weapons.

Whitlam expressed faith in the Anzus treaty and so believes the U.S. administration does not share the view expressed in the R.S.L. Journal that the treaty was worthless.

LUCITE

Nationwide tests on homes in all types of climate prove that Du Pont LUCITE house paint outlasts five other largest-selling national brands.
When compared on wood siding—the exterior material most commonly painted by homeowners—LUCITE lasted longer 9 out of 10 times.
LUCITE means longer lasting protection, fewer repaint jobs. It does the job right, the first time.

WHY VOLKSWAGEN?
1. Proven in 160 Countries. No other car has a record equal.

2. Millions sold around the world. Still number 1 in sales.

3. High resale value that is proven year after year, over 25 years. It's a fact, not fiction.

4. The largest network of dealers for import cars in the U.S.A., Canada, Mexico plus other world markets.

5. 20,000 mile warranty for 12 months plus 24,000 mile or 24 month on the power train and engine internal parts... time or miles whichever is first.

6. U.S. GOVERNMENT proved that 70% of the top 10 cars for economy are Volkswagens, our Rabbit, Scirocco, Beetles, Buses, Dashers and Audi all in the economy class up to 38 M.P.G.

7. Service, we have it, mechanics trained by factory personnel, with the finest in diagnostic equipment and special tools... over $100,000 in equipment for guaranteed good service.

8. Computer analysis that gives you a printed copy of the strength and weakness of your car.

9. Service 6 days a week and 18 trained service personnel specialists trained to give you fast service, with special tools, equipment and parts.

10. We do not knock our competition... BUT if you want a good car, a good warranty, a good price, good service, high resale value, service after the sale, economy that is proven world wide, and by U.S. Government E.P.A. test, the answer is still VOLKSWAGEN AND AUDI.
