Legislative Impasse Raises Possibility Of Special Session

AUSTIN (AP) —Threats of a special session appeared Saturday night as Texas legislators locked themselves in a parliamentary squabble over consideration of the 1976-77 compromise state spending bill.

House members first tabled a resolution, 85-57, that would have cleared the way for discussion of the $12 billion appropriations package negotiated by 10 senators and representatives earlier in the week.

Then they became embroiled over changing a second resolution sent over by the Senate. Speaker Bill Clayton declared a long supper hour for all to cool off and to prepare amendments.

The Senate got tired of waiting and went home, to return at 10:30 a.m. Monday. "We are faced with a special session if we do not pass this resolution tonight," said Rep. Nell Caldwell, D-Alvin.

"Not necessarily so," replied Clayton. "There's still some hope." Clayton explained that if the House approved the resolution Saturday night and the House and Senate were willing to suspend session-ending rules on Monday, the appropriations bill could still be debated.

Earlier in the day there had been considerable informal talk about the possibility of a special session if a doctors' work slowdown went on as scheduled Saturday night.

Breathing May Be Illegal... But Not In Midland

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air pollution standards fixed by the mid-1975 deadline have brought about substantial improvements in air quality and paved the way for further progress.

Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train reported Friday that only 99 of the nation's 247 Air Quality Control Regions appear to be in compliance with all of the Air Act which required the setting of these standards and fixed the mid-1975 deadline.

Washington (AP)—The Environmental Protection Agency has issued a list showing that most of the nation's 247 Air Quality Control Regions were expected to fall short of one or more clean-air standards when the deadline for their achievement passed at midnight Saturday.

Administrator Russell Train emphasized that the list is only a rough indication, based on data which is usually several months to a year old because of normal delays in reporting and analyzing.

Train also noted that some areas may be much closer to meeting the standards than others, although the list cannot express such differences.

In the following EPA list of Texas areas, the letters following each Air Quality Control Region identify the type of pollution which, to some degree, is not fully controlled:

Burglars Lug Off Arsenal

Burglars hit White Stores Inc. at 3 Meta in the Village Shopping Center early Saturday and walked off with an arsenal of rifles, shotguns and pistols.

Police said the burglars entered the building through a rear door and made a clean job of taking out the weapons.

The burglars, apparently working in team fashion with their hands covered by gloves, left very few clues, police said.

Taken in the burglary were 16 pistols, 21 shotguns, 17 rifles, 60 boxes of ammunition, two television sets and two radios.

Police continued to investigate the case late Saturday, but no arrests had been made.

Midland Couple Tied Up

A Midland independent oilman and his wife were accosted at their North Midland home early Saturday and, after being bound to bedposts, were robbed of approximately $100,000 in jewelry and cash.

Police said William F. Roden of 5 Oak Lawn Park heard a noise at his patio door just before 4 a.m. Roden told officers he went to investigate the disturbance and as he opened the door three men armed with pistols and wearing ski masks forced their way into the home and proceeded to rob the occupants.

The men, apparently all wearing gloves, then ransacked the home. Investigators said the men stayed at the home for a long period of time in their search for valuables.

The Rodens could supply only sketchy information about the men's descriptions. They told police the men had covered their heads with the pillow cases very quickly after overwhelming them.

Police said exact figures on the jewelry's value were being (See GUNMEN Page 4A)

Your Destiny May Strike Any Time

At 7:30 a.m. the telephone bell rang in the home of Jack Stephens, a young Atlanta businessman, and Mr. Stephens' life was never the same again. It became enlarged and exciting.

On this fateful morning it was the voice of Harold Steele, executive director of the Atlanta Boys Club on the phone. "Jack," he said, "I'm scheduled to take a little 4-year-old boy and his mother to the hospital at eight o'clock. This boy is in the last stages of leukemia and must get there at once. He has only a few days to live. But my car won't start. Will you pinch hit for me and take him to the hospital? Their home is only a few blocks from you."

Jack picked up the child and the mother promptly. The boy was so weak that he lay in his mother's arms, his feet resting upon Jack's right leg. As they drove the man stole a look at the boy, who gazed at him out of big, lustrous eyes set in a chalk-white face.

The boy's look was intense. Suddenly he asked, "Are you God?" "Why do you ask, son?" "Oh," replied the boy, "My mommy told me that God was coming to take me to a beautiful place. Are you God?"

Deeply moved by the poignancy of the youngster's look and question Stephens replied softly, "I am taking you to a beautiful place where kind people will take loving care of you."

Four days later the boy died. The course of Jack Stephens' life was changed. The memory of the frail and pathetic little boy with the big eyes asking, "Are you God?" stayed with him and caused him to take action that led in time to his becoming director of the Joseph B. Whitehead Memorial Boys Club.

This moving story told by W. Clement Stone in his book, "The Success System That Never Fails," points up a curious and dramatic fact about any person's life. It underscores the possibility that some deeply searching experience can come at any time to activate an individual to new goals and purposes.

Judge James Bailey takes target practice

Pistol-Packing Judges Prepared

By DAVID R. NELSEN
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two pistol-packing Superior Court judges say they have armed themselves because they need the protection.

"It's not an unheard of thing for a judge to get himself dusted off," Judge James Bailey said. "I like life and I want to keep on living."

"There's always that one nut," Judge Donnie Smith said. "Anytime you are trying man for a major felony, you watch it. You just don't know what's going to happen." Bailey carries a light automatic pistol and Smith has a .38-caliber short barrel revolver.

Bailey has been a judge 10 years, and Smith a little more than two. Neither has ever needed to use a gun, but both say there have been some anxious moments.

The judges say they feel compelled to arm themselves because of threatening telephone calls and letters. Two judges have been murdered in the nation in the last seven months.

In February, Louisa County, Va., Judge S.A. Cunningham, 56, was killed during a trial by a man firing a sawed off shotgun. Last November, Wanaque, N.J., Municipal Court Judge Joseph Crescente, 71, was murdered in his courtroom by a shot fired from across the street.

And in San Rafael, Calif., in August 1970, Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons died in a shootout during an escape attempt.

A few months ago, Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell said, a defendant pulled a gun during court trial in Raleigh. Also, court officials have found guns on people entering the courtroom, he said.

Bailey and Smith must travel the state trying cases. They say that makes them more vulnerable.

Both judges say they have a number of guns at home — pistols, rifles and shotguns.

Russians Ready To Test MIRVs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union appears to be preparing for what could be the first long-range test in more than a year of huge new missiles armed with multiple warheads.

Pentagon sources said Saturday that five Soviet missile tracking ships have moved into the Pacific about 400 nautical miles north of Midway Island.

Sources said the pattern of the ship positions indicates they may be awaiting test firing of intercontinental ballistic missiles from central Russia with dummy multiple warheads (MIRVs) designed to strike separate targets.

Although they have been test-fired inside the Soviet Union, the Russian SS19 with six warheads and the SS18 with up to eight warheads have not been launched over their full range into the Pacific since early 1974.

Last January Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger left the impression at a news conference the Russians had reached a significant milestone of deploying combat ready missiles armed with MIRVs.

But soon afterward Pentagon weapons analysts concluded that Schlesinger was premature and that more testing would be needed before the Russians could be ready to deploy operational MIRV missiles. The SS18 missile, deployed for the first time late last year, was a single warhead version.

U.S. experts now believe the Russians could deploy the SS18 with multiple warheads late

Vacant Trailer Guffed By Fire

Firemen extinguished a blaze shortly after 12:30 p.m. Saturday at a vacant trailer home located behind 406 S. Weatherford.

The trailer was gutted by the fire before the flames, apparently caused by faulty wiring, could be extinguished.

Fire Department reports listed the owner of the trailer as Mrs. Effie Cain of Stanton.

U.S. authorities also are concerned about the SS19, which is less powerful than the SS18 but still dwarfs the U.S. Minuteman ICBM.

Even under the present SALT agreement and the new one being considered, Pentagon officials say the Russians could mount up to 6,400 big nuclear warheads on their SS18 and SS19 by 1980.

This, Pentagon officials say, would threaten survivability of U.S. land-based Minuteman missiles in the event of a surprise Soviet attack.

Last February, Schlesinger publicly offered the Russians to restrain U.S. development of advanced missiles in return for Soviet restraint in deploying their new missiles.

Real Estate Man Named In Claims

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Three Cleveland banks have joined a Swiss Bank in filing claims against Tom Hill, a Dallas real estate man who the banks charge has been transferring assets with intent to hinder, delay or defraud existing or future creditors.

The suit against Hill, former head of bankrupt Hill Properties Inc., was filed in U.S. District Court in Dallas by Cleveland Trust Co., Continental Bank, Euclid National Bank and International Credit Bank in Geneva. The banks claimed more than $6 million in debts against Hill.

Plane Delayed By Bomb Search

Seventy-five passengers aboard a Continental Airlines flight 623 enroute from Midland to Los Angeles were delayed for more than three hours Friday while law enforcement personnel searched the aircraft for a bomb.

Local police and FBI agents searched the Boeing 720-B and the baggage and freight on board the aircraft, but failed to find a bomb.

Employees with Continental reported the bomb threat to local authorities shortly before noon Friday. They told police someone had called the Midland Regional Air Terminal Continental desk and indicated a bomb was on board flight 623.

Wilson Banks, airport manager, immediately ordered the aircraft to deplane all passengers and move to an isolated runway on the far east side of the airport.

Employees with Continental said the voice reporting the bomb threat sounded like a young person or an old woman.

Police speculated the call came from a young person.

Midland firemen stood by the aircraft during the search.

Two Recent High School Grads Here To Receive Scholarships

Two recent graduates of Tall City high schools have been named to receive scholarships by the Texas Interscholastic League Foundation.

William Alan Kelley, the Lee High salutatorian, is recipient of a $4,000 Moody Foundation Scholarship, and Julia Catherine Kinsey, a Midland High graduate, is recipient of the $1,250 Joe B. Cook Scholarship.

The two earned eligibility for the grants through University Interscholastic League (UIL) competition, scholarship, college entrance examination scores and participation in school and community activities.

Kelley, a delegate to the 14th Texas Nuclear Science Symposium, this year won a first place in district UIL science competition, a second at regional and competed on the state level.

A member of the National Honor Society, he also was a National Merit Scholarship finalist, an honor graduate and this year was named the outstanding science student.

He is a three-year recipient of academic letters and has a 4.106 grade point average.

Kelley plans to major in electrical engineering at Rice University, while Miss Kinsey attends The University of Texas at Austin to study communications to prepare for a career in secondary education.

A member of the National Honor Society and the National Forensic League, she this year won a first prize in persuasive speaking in UIL state competition.

Her laurels also include a first in district and a third in regional this year, as well as a third at the state level last year.

Miss Kinsey's other activities include feature editor of the school newspaper, a cappella choir, literary magazine staff, Drama Club and the speech and debate squad.

She also has won a National Council of Teachers of English writing award.

"THREE CONFUSING TERMS"

Three terms that confuse many home owners are: Title, Abstract of Title and Deed. Each plays an important part in the ownership of real property. All are distinct from each other.

Title refers to the means whereby an owner of real estate has valid ownership, possession and use of property.

Abstract of Title is a written document outlining in summary detail the history of the title to a given parcel of property. It should cover a history of a parcel of land from its original source of title to the present time.

Deed is a written document by means of the use of which the title or title rights to a parcel of property is transferred from one owner to another.

Like any profession, real estate brokerage has its own legal and technical jargon. Quite a reason for utilizing the services of a professional in real estate transactions.

Explorers Say Lost City Of Incas Discovered

LONDON (AP) — Two British explorers say they have discovered the legendary Lost City of the Incas high in the Andes Mountains of South America.

London University of Anthropology lecturer David Davies and one-time South American cowpuncher Ross Salmon say they found enough gold in the ancient city to back up the myth of a Golden City that has inspired adventurers for centuries.

The pair refused to give the city's geographical location for fear it would be looted before it can be properly excavated by archaeologists. They brought back gold axheads, statuettes and nuggets to back up their claim, according to the London Daily Mail.

Greece, Turkey Promise To Talk

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The premiers of Greece and Turkey pledged peaceful efforts Saturday to settle quarrels that took their nations to gunpoint last summer and weakened the southern flank of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Prodded by President Ford during the two-day NATO summit, Constantine Caramanlis of Greece and Süleyman Demirel of Turkey pledged speedy negotiations on disputes over Cyprus and rights in the Aegean Sea.

After man-to-man talks, the premiers proclaimed in a communique that "these problems should be resolved peacefully through negotiations and, concerning the continental shelf of the Aegean Sea, through the International Court of Justice in The Hague."

The three-point agreement said: —Conflicting claims to oil rights on the continental shelf of the Aegean, which divides Greece and Turkey, will definitely be taken to the World Court according to earlier agreements. Athens bases its claim to the shelf on hundreds of Greek islands dotting the sea while Turkey says the area lies off its long western coast.

In addition, experts of the two countries will meet, in accordance with Demirel's wishes, to discuss possible joint oil exploration in the sea.

U.N. Talks Backed —Accelerated negotiations will begin on disputed use of air space over the Aegean.

—The two countries will support United Nations-sponsored talks in Vienna between Greek and Turkish Cypriots on a new political and constitutional system for Cyprus.

Last summer, Turkey and Greece came to the brink of war after Turkish troops invaded Cyprus and eventually occupied 40 per cent of the island. The Turks ordered the invasion because they said a Greek officer-led coup on the island endangered its Turkish minority.

The invasion led angry Greeks to boycott NATO's operations and prompted the U.S. Congress to cut off military aid to Turkey. With Portugal's new military leader swinging leftward, NATO allies became deeply worried that their southern flank was being exposed to Soviet penetration.

There was no hint, however, that substantial accord on Cyprus had been reached beyond the noncommittal expression of support for "the intercommunity negotiations" in Vienna. Greece wants a withdrawal of Turkey's invasion force from Cyprus and Turkey has given no sign yet of a readiness to do so.

Caramanlis told President Ford on Thursday that Turkey's actions on the island will bring an ultimate explosion. The Turkish-Cypriot islanders who make up one-fifth of the population now occupy two-fifths of the territory and control 70 per cent of the economy, according to Caramanlis.

Train Destroys Empty Automobile

A Texas and Pacific freight train hit an abandoned auto which had been parked and locked on the T&P tracks east of Midland early Saturday.

Department of Public Safety investigators said the auto is owned by G. T. Farmer of 2009 Harvard.

Investigators said the vehicle, which was destroyed, apparently was being driven earlier by Farmer's 20-year-old daughter, Cyndee.

DPS investigators said the collision occurred about 6:30 a.m. 5.7 miles east of Midland south of Interstate 20.

Police said the couple told them two of the men acted polite during the robbery while one was rather loud-mouthed.

The Rodens told police the man who appeared to be the leader talked in a pleasant tone, and at one time loosened the bindings for Mrs. Roden after she had complained of them being "too tight."

Police said a search for fingerprints had so far turned out negative. No arrests had been made Saturday, but investigation efforts were continuing. Police said it was not known how the men made their getaway.

Voting Rights Amendments To Be Proposed In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican amendments permitting states to escape coverage by the Voting Rights Act will be proposed when a measure extending the law is debated in the House this week.

The amendments were defeated when the bill was approved by the Judiciary Committee last month, but Rep. W. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., says he expects the full House to adopt the proposals.

"The amendments were defeated on a tie vote," says Butler. "If you accept the generally held theory that the House at large is more conservative than the committee, that indicates the amendments have a good chance to be adopted."

The bill sent to the full House by the Judiciary Committee would extend the Voting Rights Act through 1985 and provide new protection for non-English speaking minorities, principally Spanish Americans.

Butler's amendments are opposed by Democratic Reps. Herman Badillo of New York and Barbara Jordan of Texas, who say they would seriously weaken the bill. Civil rights groups have been lobbying against any weakening amendments to the 1965 law.

The present law allows states to remove themselves from coverage of the act by petitioning the U.S. District Court in Washington for exemption. But Butler and his supporters say that Supreme Court rulings have nullified the provision and made it impossible for states ever to free themselves from coverage.

Butler's amendments would allow a federal court to remove a state from coverage if the state meets certain conditions. Those conditions include a 60 per cent minority voter turnout in the last federal election, a five-year record free of voter rights-connected court judgments, and a legislative program designed to wipe out vestiges of voter discrimination.

At one minute until midnight Friday, the bewitching hour, when unengrossed bills stay that way, Rep. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi moved to suspend all rules to consider the measure, S.B. 706 by Sen. Oscar Maury of Dallas. More than 50 bills on the calendar went unheard, and unpassed.

Briscoe Helps Get Power Bill Passed

Austin Bureau — Gov. Dolph Briscoe joined House Speaker Bill Clayton in a last-minute muscle flexing to get a bill passed that would transfer power from the state colleges and universities to the Coordinating Board.

It would seem as a defeat for former University of Texas Regent Chairman Frank C. Erwin Jr. who had fought the bill until Thursday. The UT system had been exempt from the measure but the Senate adopted an amendment putting it under the same control.

The bill would expand the power of the board over university and junior college construction and course offering and allow it to contract with the Texas Education Agency (TEA) over vocational-technical courses.

Texas Weather Quietens Down

The sun smiled upon Texas Saturday as clear skies prevailed over the state, bringing warm spring weather and relief from a long period of rain and stormy weather.

No rain was reported in the state through late afternoon. Midland was no exception to the sunny Texas weather as fair weather prevailed Saturday. More of the same is in the forecast for today, with fair weather predicted through tonight.

The high today is expected to reach the upper 80s and the low tonight will be in the upper 50s. Partly cloudy skies are predicted for Monday with a high in the low 90s. Winds will be southerly at eight to 18 miles per hour.

North winds blew across the eastern portion of Texas while at southern winds crested western sections.

Temperatures at midday ermon varied from the 70s in the Panhandle to the upper 80s in far South Texas.

The Weather Service said fair weather would continue through Sunday with some cloudiness beginning to appear late Sunday night, The Associated Press reported.

Summer Schedule Beginning Monday

The Midland Association for Retarded Citizens will begin its summer schedule Monday.

Arts and crafts for the retarded is scheduled for Monday through June 26. Classes will meet from 9 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Transportation will be provided.

A learn-to-swim program (Red Cross approved) is set for Monday through July 11. Sessions will be from 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Midland High School pool and will be taught on a one-to-one ratio. All handicapped children are eligible and may register the first day of class.

A camp will be conducted Aug. 3 - 9 at Prude Ranch Camp for Retarded Citizens at Fort Davis. The camp is for those aged 12 and over and applications may be obtained by calling 682-9771.

It was a theme Ford was expected to repeat over and over before departing today for Austria to discuss the Middle East crisis with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Spanish officials indicated ahead of Ford's visit that they expected little sympathy from NATO members, especially Britain, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and Scandinavian countries, despite Ford's praise for Spain in Brussels.

The President arrived in Madrid as talks to renew the American bases bogged down after five months of negotiations.

Thi(Buzz, Click, Whirr)ngs Changing At Library

By ED TODD — Move over, ye learned books," spouts the mechanical voice of an electronic gadget encased in steel, plastic and glass—but mostly plastic. "Your ink-stained pages," the monotone sound says, trying, but not knowing, how to be really arrogant, "will yellow and crumble while I excite and lead the people." The books are silent.

"The slick-back paper from the best of you," the voice again filter outs, trying to make some trouble, "isn't worth enough to catch the sludge dripping from my five-clutched motor." The books are silent, seemingly untouched by all the haranguing from the what-cham-call-it gadget some call an "audio-visual learning aid."

"Smul newsprint," the pompous A-V machine blurts. The finely stitched denizens of the stacks remain silent, unmoved. "Filth, trash, and garbage are your other names," the mechanical voice utters, a touch vexed by the stolid books. "You should be burned and buried before the stench of your carcasses reaches my finely tuned nostrils." The voice seems somewhat bothered by neglect.

"You (expletive deleted) trashy..." The voice rumbled on, and as it did, a Faulkner, as if moved by things unseen, begins falling straight-away from a lofty shelf. "You all," went the A-V diatribe, "will be replaced by..." Faulkner crashes decisively into the A-V power cord, yanking its plug from the wall socket. Shakespeare loosens tightened pages. Hemingway nudges a companion, and all the books remain stolid and silent. And the machine is quiet, at least for a while. Well, all the foregoing—and unverified—drama took place (or, happened?) in darkness.

And a few hours later, earth's sun filters light into the library and caresses its books. Some light even flickered on the silenced machine. Then the artificial lights blink and bring added light within the semi-darkened aisles. And library director Frances Williams and her staff at Midland County Public Library begin milling around and resume work carried from the previous day. Someone reshelves Faulkner and plugs in the machine. No questions are asked.

The workday passes, and later on, Mrs. Williams speaks: "Space is our biggest problem in this library. They (books) are just budging the walls." Specifically, she was referring to the Sci-Tech Library in which more than 20,000 volumes delve into geology and other oil-related topics. Elsewhere in the two-story downtown library, books are being shoved around, orderly though, to make room for more books and... You guessed it, audio-visual material and machines. "It's going to be our Fine Arts and Audio-Visual Room," the librarian says of the low-ceiled backroom on the first floor.

Except for being in disarray, it's virtually barren. Books in that room where moved elsewhere. And for good cause, aside from the audio-visual material and machines. "And it was so crowded," she explained the space plight, "that every time we bought a new book, we had to throw away an old book." She was quite serious and literal. And additional shelves were placed in the library, even at the expense of lessening elbow space between book stacks. Around 100,000 of the library's 130,000 volumes will have been moved around by the time the audio-visual machines and materials are well entrenched in the library. And all should go well with the books and the machines. "And watch where you step next time," bellows the unsettled machine, seething at Faulkner and friends. The librarian had already faded away after reshelving the fallen book and re-plugging the machine. And all was quiet. Anyway, things have a way of balancing out, one way or another.

Laotian Tribesmen Killed Fleeing Reds

By The Associated Press — Pathet Lao police killed eight tribesmen as about 100 of the hill people tried to flee Laos to rejoin their leader in Thailand, Vientiane sources said Saturday. A U.S. official in Bangkok said as many as 150,000 Meos are trying to flee Communist-dominated Laos.

The Vientiane sources said the Pathet Lao police opened fire when some of the 100 Meos ignored a police order Friday and tried to cross a bridge over a small stream 35 miles north of Vientiane.

The colorful dressed hill people once formed the bulk of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency's secret army which battled the Pathet Lao in the Plain of Jars under Gen. Vang Pao. The general recently fled to Thailand with several thousand of his troops and the Meos who tried to flee Friday said they wanted to rejoin him.

"We have been with Vang Pao for 20 years and he is the only one we believe," said one of the tribesmen. Scattered across part of north-central Laos, the Meos depended largely on U.S. rice drops during the war between the Pathet Lao and the Vientiane rightists. With the reduction of American presence in Laos the drops have stopped.

The U.S. official in Bangkok, an expert in Laotian affairs, said up to 150,000 hungry tribesmen are trying to flee their bomb-blasted and timber-stripped hills where the Pathet Lao are trying to impose strict regimentation antithetical to tribal traditions.

Court Refuses To Shut Down Nuclear Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has rejected an effort to close or limit production at 20 nuclear power plants in a dozen states.

Friends of the Earth, a national environmentalist group, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader contended that the plants could not be operated safely and that the lives of millions are threatened by the possible release of radioactivity in the event of accidents.

The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia turned down their petition in July of 1973 and the three-judge appellate court agreed Friday. The appellate court said it found the Atomic Energy Commission, predecessor agency of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, had acted properly in 1971 in developing and adopting criteria for emergency core cooling systems for the nuclear plants and in later rejecting the challenge to the criteria.

Ken Bradshaw told police he found the bank bag and money missing when he came to work at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Police said a 1972 model car also was taken from the parking lot of the rental agency.

Jake Arnold found the money bag, empty, in front of Arnold's Garage, 400 S. Pecos St., Friday morning, police said.

Reagan Predicts Demos Will Pick Kennedy In '76

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California predicted Saturday that Democrats will turn to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as their presidential nominee in 1976 in order to keep the nomination from Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Reagan's address to the Georgia Republican Convention followed predictions by several Southern GOP leaders that the region will back him for the Republican nomination over President Ford.

UAW Asks Extra Jobless Benefits For Chrysler Workers

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union, charging that 39,000 Chrysler workers lost their jobs partly due to the import of cars built in Canada, has asked the federal government to grant the workers extra jobless benefits. The UAW said Friday the workers, most of them on lay-off since last November, are eligible for special unemployment benefits under assistance provisions of the Trade Act of 1974.

Meanwhile, Chrysler said Friday it is extending $300 price rebates on its compact cars and light vans through June. The firm, whose sales remain down more than 30 per cent from a year ago despite a revived rebate plan in May, said $300 rebates will be granted to purchasers of compact Darts and Vallants, the Dodge Sportsman or Tradesman vans and the Plymouth Voyager. The vehicle must be in stock to qualify for the discount.

In other auto industry developments Friday: —The Soviet Union said it plans to enter the U.S. car market next year with several hundred units of an imported version of its Lada — a small car based on the Italian Fiat. But the UAW says it will fight any effort by the USSR to price the Lada below domestic models.

—Ford Motor Co. said it will cut production next week at three assembly plants and place 4,250 workers on temporary layoff while the other major American auto firms continue to operate all their plants.

Ford also announced a brake pedal problem is causing it to recall some 24,000 chassis units for trucks and buses, including some school buses.

The UAW said the trade provides special benefits for workers who lost their jobs because of competition from foreign imports. UAW officials said they referred to cars built at Chrysler's Canadian plants. "In recent months Chrysler has transferred substantial production from its U.S. plants to its Canadian plants."

Guess Doubleton To Gain Trick

When the opponents hold five cards of a suit you must sometimes guess which of them has the doubleton and which the singleton.

For example, suppose you hold Q-x-x of spades in dummy, with K-x-x-x of spades in your own hand. You can limit the loss to one spade trick if an opponent has A-x of spades—provided you know which opponent that is.

Suppose you correctly guess that your left-hand opponent has A-x of spades. You lead a low spade from your hand toward dummy's Q-x-x.

Second hand must play his low spade since it would make matters easy if he played his ace. You win with dummy's queen and return a low spade, playing low from your own hand as well.

Now the ace must be played on your low cards. You still have the king to capture the missing jack. If you had wasted your king, the jack would win a second spade trick from you.

The situation is reversed if the A-x of spades is at your right. Now you must lead the first spade from dummy. When second hand plays low, you win in your hand with the king. You play low spades next from both hands, saving dummy's queen to capture the jack.

DOUBLE FINESSE

You have a similar situation with six cards missing when you have J-x-x-x in your own hand and A-10-x in the dummy. If the honors are split, you must guess which opponent has the doubleton.

Lead the jack if you hope to find K-x or Q-x behind the dummy. Second hand must cover your jack since otherwise you will lose the first finesse but win the next. You take dummy's ace and return a low card. When the doubleton honor drops, dummy's ten is good.

If you think the doubleton honor is at your left, lead a low card first and finesse with dummy's ten. This loses, but you can play dummy's ace later to drop the remaining honor; and then your own jack will be good.

CONCRETE CASE

Since this sounds rather abstract, we can clarify it with another situation in which it helps to guess the doubleton.

South ruffs the first diamond and rattles off six trumps, watching the discards with concealed anxiety. They will tell him which opponent is more likely to hold a doubleton in clubs.

DEFENSIVE SIGNALS
Most defenders are eager to help each other with signals in situations of this kind. East will probably throw the ten of spades and the ten of clubs fairly promptly.

We'll come back to the play in a second, but first let's note that the discards are needless. It soon becomes apparent that South started with nine solid hearts. Surely South has no side aces or kings for this shutout bid.

West should know all about the missing black aces, and East should know all about the missing black kings. Neither opponent should consider it necessary to confirm this information by means of signals.

As it happens, the club signal is just what South is waiting for—East would not discard the ten of clubs if he had started with only A-10 or K-10 of clubs. If somebody has a doubleton, it must be West.

PLAYS FOR DOUBLETON
South plays for a doubleton in the West hand by leading a low club from his hand. The queen loses to the ace. South ruffs the diamond return and leads another low club.

When the king falls, South's jack of clubs becomes good.

Now switch some of the East-West cards so that East has only two clubs and assume that South guesses this. South would lead the jack of clubs first. No matter how the defenders play, South can win a trick with dummy's queen of clubs as long as he plays East to have only K-x or A-x of clubs.

Fort Worth Press Out Of Business

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Fort Worth Press went out of business Friday with its owners calling the newspaper a financial failure.

The Press, founded 53 years ago, was owned by the Scripps-Howard newspaper group. The tabloid newspaper was published five afternoons a week and on Sundays. Scripps-Howard said it had 46,000 subscribers.

With the closure of the Press, Fort Worth was without a competitive daily newspaper situation.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, which publishes morning, afternoon and Sunday editions, remains.

Jack R. Howard, Scripps-Howard general editorial manager, said the organization will try to relocate the Press' 186 employees in other Scripps-Howard jobs or help them in finding other employment.

"The Fort Worth Press, never economically strong, has not made a profit in the last 25 years," Howard said. "In the last five years expenses have increased steadily and inevitably losses have mounted."

Gaudy Lights Of Saigon Dimmed Under New Regime

EDITOR'S NOTE: A month ago the Saigon government surrendered and the Provisional Revolutionary Government took over South Vietnam. Associated Press Correspondent George Esper, who remained behind, assesses what has happened since April 30 in this dispatch from Saigon. There is no indication whether the dispatch was censored at the source.

By GEORGE ESPER
SAIGON (AP) — The gaudy lights of Tu Do Street, the Times Square of Saigon, have been dimmed.

The only neon that flashes is that which emblazons the lifelike picture of the late North Vietnamese leader, Ho Chi Minh, which hangs from Independence Palace where President Nguyen Van Thieu once held sway. Thieu now lives in exile on Taiwan.

The fancy French restaurants with the fine wines are virtually empty.

There is scarcely an American in sight. And middle-class Vietnamese no longer want to be seen in public with the few Americans who remained behind after the United States evacuation April 30.

While there has been no evidence of a bloodbath or mass reprisals as so freely predicted abroad, the spirit of many of the 3 1/2 million Saigonese appears to have been killed, the heartbeat of the city cut.

But for the first time in 30 years, the guns are silent, refugees are returning to their ancestral villages, fields are being plowed instead of bombed, and homes are being rebuilt.

It is the fear of austerity

There is still an aura of apprehension, and a fear of reprisals but some awesome predictions have never materialized. The orphans that some Americans predicted would be killed by the PRG or made Communists appear to be well taken care of.

Children still play in the parks as they always did, but I have seen some youngsters, with arms folded or manacled, marched up the streets by PRG soldiers in shame and disgrace for thievery.

There is no police force because there is no civilian government.

The city is governed by the PRG's Military Management Committee, headed by Lt. Gen. Tran Van Tra who directed the 1968 Tet and 1972 Easter offensives in the Saigon region.

People are stealing now because they are desperate for money and food. Those released from the million-man Saigon army and police force have swelled the ranks of the million plus that already had been unemployed under the Thieu regime.

The United States pullout also left thousands more unemployed.

The PRG is dealing more harshly with crime than the previous regime and publicizing it as a warning they do not intend to let it get out of hand. Thieves are being tried by "people's tribunals."

Despite the campaign against American consumer products, many are still visible in sidewalk supermarkets. You can buy everything from Scotch whiskey to toilet and hippies surrounding them, while in the next caption a large crowd is yelling: "Long live the revolutionary government which is determined to eliminate thieves and robbers."

A PRG-sponsored campaign against what it calls "depraved" culture also has been under way for a week with daily student demonstrations. The students carry banners exhorting the public to eradicate "decadent" books and music left behind by the paper. Most of these items were looted from American homes, offices, and U.S. government leased buildings.

The PRG are reopening private schools, businesses and hospitals, trying to return a city the size of Boston to normal. Civil servants under the Thieu regime are being called back to work, generally at half the salaries they made before, but they are also being given rations of rice for their wives and children.

helping normalize production, rebuild the country, and raise the standard of living.

Many of the policies of the new government remain to be defined including its relations with North Vietnam, its domestic policies, and its foreign policy.

The PRG says it wants to establish relations all over the world including diplomatic ties with the United States, but at a small mission level, if Washington will refrain from interfering in internal mat-

The North Vietnamese and the PRG are now governing South Vietnam in the absence of an officially installed civilian government.

Their flags fly side by side. They are moving toward reunification as called for in the Paris agreement and some observers say this will come early.

The new regime is consolidating its own one-party system, having banned all other parties. District committees have been formed to carry out PRG activities at the ward level. The committees are made up of PRG cadres who were underground during the Thieu regime. They control the distribution of rice and the management of real estate, among other things.

Households are required to submit an inventory of every item in the home. Soldiers are moving into hundreds of Saigon homes, either occupying one or two rooms or taking over completely the homes of thousands of Vietnamese families who fled with the Americans to the United States. All of these homes have been confiscated by the state as well as some embassies and U.S. government-owned properties or leased real estate.

An AP News Special

and regimentation by the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) which has broken the spirit of many of the middle class, upper middle class and rich Saigonese. The banks have been closed for a month, a move that appears deliberately designed by the PRG to control money circulation and make rice a key item of barter. The rich have been hard hit but the poor are unaffected.

Movie houses now show only the life of Ho Chi Minh. The bars and the nightclubs are closed.

Some of the same children who made a business of begging under the former regime are doing the same under the new government. And as before women still borrow children to use as beggars, hoping they will create more sympathy.

The Givral's coffee shop is still the main gathering point on Tu Do for the Saigonese. They sip coffee there while speculating on the form the new government will take and what their roles might be.

Crime is rampant in Saigon

Crime wave, like everything else, blamed on the Americans

Americans.

Many Saigonese have danced to American rock, pop, and country music in nightclubs. Even American comic strips are considered decadent and thousands of comic books with Vietnamese translations have been turned in, according to PRG officials.

Despite the campaign against American consumer products, many are still visible in sidewalk supermarkets. You can buy everything from Scotch whiskey to toilet

The PRG has not spelled out its full economic program, but it is trying to eliminate unemployment by returning refugees from Saigon to their home villages in central and northern parts of the country.

According to the PRG, more than 30,000 refugees have been returned to their ancestral villages in the first phase of the program which is continuing. The return to the countryside, the PRG says, is aimed at eliminating economic difficulties while

It is likely, too, that Vietnam will demand economic aid for massive postwar reconstruction and rehabilitation which will take years.

The rebuilding under way now is on a small scale, at the local level. It is likely that the PRG will try to hold the United States to its commitment to provide reconstruction aid to North Vietnam as called for in the January 1973 Paris peace agreements.

Single Persons Get New Tax Champion

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — N. Jean Dorman of Madison envisions herself as the new Vivian Kellems, the late tax champion of single persons.

Miss Dorman says she will represent herself Monday when she appears in U.S. Tax Court in Milwaukee to contest a $242 assessment by the Internal Revenue Service.

In her case, Miss Dorman contends she should not have to pay the assessment because she would not have to pay it if she was married.

Miss Kellems, of East Haddam, Conn., died in January at age 78 after years crusading for tax revisions to take away the breaks for married persons.

of the capital took the life of a village merchant.

In Madrid, a senior U.S. official traveling with President Ford said war in the middle East is a certainty if there is no progress toward a settlement within two years.

He described the upcoming talks between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Ford on Sunday and Monday in Austria, as crucial and said Sadat "wants some progress."

No casualties were reported in the Beirut explosion which also damaged several other offices in the building. The blast in the office of ITT's aerospace, electronics, components and energy group came after most of the shops and offices in the Starco Commercial Center were closed for the weekend. Meanwhile, helmeted security men continued to remove roadblocks erected in street fighting that killed more than 130 persons in 11 days. The conflict centered chiefly around Palestinian guerrillas and the 6,000-man militia of the Christian-dominated Phalange party, but also involved other groups in the faction-ridden country.

The Beirut explosion and fighting between the coastal villages of Damaur and Naameh 15 miles south of Beirut marred efforts by Premier Rashid Karami to end the violence. He was named premier Wednesday in an attempt to settle the country's crisis.

Beirut radio warned motorists that the Beirut-Sidon highway was still unsafe and that security forces were trying to remove roadblocks erected for the battle between the two villages. The fighting broke out following the kidnapping of four bodyguards accompanying top aides to right-wing Christian leader Camille Chamoun.

The ambassadors of Algeria, Egypt and Kuwait, concerned over the outbreak of violence in Lebanon, met with President Suleyman Franjeh in the morning, then with Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat.

Kuwait's Ambassador Mohammed Khaled Adassani told reporters the envoys relayed to the president Arab concern over the Lebanese strife.

In other Middle East developments:

Sadat announced in a Radio Cairo broadcast from Salzburg that the first of three tunnels to be dug under the Suez Canal will open Friday. Observers noted that the tunnel, which links the city of Suez at the southern end of the waterway with the Sinai Peninsula, could be used to move heavy armor in the event of new fighting.

A Kurdish representative in Geneva complained that Iraq pursues a "policy of Arabization" in former Kurdish regions and has moved in Arab settlers while barring the return of Kurdish refugees. The Kurdish rebellion in Iraq ended recently under an agreement between Iraq and Iran that guaranteed amnesty for the Kurds in exchange for Iran's stopping its support of their revolt against the government.

In Cairo security police arrested 13 alleged members of a revolutionary fundamentalist group which the police said wants to seize power and transform Egypt into a strict Moslem state.

Shah's Connection With U.S. Welfare Recipients Denied

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A royal court spokesman on Saturday denied any relationship between Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran and a California mother and daughter living on welfare.

The Marin County district attorney's office in San Rafael, Calif., has reported Arfa Ataby is the daughter of Gail Hohlweg and her former husband, Amir Reza Atabay, whom Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton Hyams identified as a nephew of the shah. He said Iran would be asked to pay back $1,683 in welfare funds granted for the support of Arfa.

The 15-year-old girl has lived in a foster home for the past three months, and last month, after working for a time as a live-in housekeeper, Miss Hohlweg started getting $212 a month in welfare.

A source in Tehran said there is no relationship whatsoever between the shah and the Atabays referred to by the district attorney's office.

Depletion Loss Hits Texas Producers Extremely Hard

DALLAS—At least 85 per cent of Texas petroleum production operations suffered the complete loss of the percentage depletion allowance in the tax law passed by Congress in February and this loss already is reflected in industry earnings and spending plans, Texas Midcontinent Oil and Gas Association said in a report issued Friday.

The deduction, which had been allowed since 1926 to offset the depletion of oil and gas reserves was repealed by Congress for all oil production over 2,000 barrels a day and a phaseout was begun for smaller producers.

"Independents are anxiously studying the 'fine print' of the legislation, while waiting for critical interpretations from the Internal Revenue Service," the report said. "Company budget committees are setting new priorities for projects in Texas and elsewhere because of a substantial industry-wide drop in earnings."

Citing a "general slackness" being talked in petroleum circles, the report said it is "too early to catalog specific actions, such as cancelled drilling commitments, unemployed layoffs, decreased leasing, and increased inventories of supplies and equipment."

"Unless federal price controls on oil and gas are removed immediately to allow petroleum industry income to adjust to the rest of the economy, which is uncontrolled, every sign points to a scaling back of leasing, exploration, development and refinery expansion projects in Texas," the report said.

"The companies in Texas which engage in the bulk of operations—production, refining and transportation—are deeply affected," the report said.

"They account for most of the petroleum industry payroll, investment in plant facilities, purchase of supplies and construction, tax payments, and distribution of dividends to shareholders. Four of the largest companies alone mail dividend checks to 196,300 Texans.

"Corporate earnings, a major source of expansion capital, already have begun to fall, mostly as a result of the abolition of percentage depletion for the large oil companies," the statement pointed out. "Earnings of 25 representative larger oil companies were off 29.7 per cent. Earnings peaked out for oil in the third quarter of 1974 and now are on the downside. In fact, 1975 first-quarter earnings are almost back to the 1973 level."

The report listed 14 large companies with sizable Texas operations which commented on the impact of the depletion cut on their earnings in their first-quarter reports.

Parks Master Plan For City Completed

The Midland Parks Department unveiled a $24,000 effort to outline future development for the city's parks system last week with a review of the completed Master Plan for the Midland Parks System.

The plan was presented to the parks department after lengthy studies made by Park Plan Associates of Austin.

The master plan would allow three directions for Midland to take in park and recreation development. Development program A, when completed, would provide a minimum effective neighborhood park system and some necessary additional athletic facilities. It would include no future parks in areas of projected growth and would be implemented in three phases.

Development program B (the one recommended by the Austin firm) would, when complete, result in a neighborhood park system and a balanced athletic system complemented by district, regional and specialty parks. It would include an on-going program of park acquisition and development in growth areas.

Development program C would provide park system developments common to only the best parks systems.

Costs projected for each of the three plans for development are—plan A in three phases, $1.5 million; plan B in six phases, $5.3 million; and plan C in six phases, $9.4 million.

At this time parks personnel here have not determined if the money would be available for any of the programs or where it would come from.

Term For Bribery

"Glove money" simply put means a bribe. Years ago it was the custom in British law for the client to present a pair of gloves to the attorney who agreed to handle his case.

Sirhan Can't Be Deported After Parole

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Robert F. Kennedy, can not be deported when he is paroled in 1986 as had previously been reported, immigration officials say.

"A person admitted as a permanent resident alien and convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude within five years after entry and sentenced to one year or more is deportable," Joe Dernetz, Los Angeles deputy director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service told the Pasadena Star News Friday.

"Since the conviction was more than ten years after his entry, he is not deportable from the United States," Dernetz said.

Sirhan entered the U.S. in 1967. He was convicted of shooting Kennedy at a Los Angeles victory party in 1968 after the senator won the California Democratic presidential primary election.

Canal Trying To Keep Tolls Down

Agence France-Presse — PANAMA CITY — The Panama Canal, facing stiff competition from the Suez Canal, which reopens next week, will make every effort to avoid raising its tolls, the canal's controller, Phillip Steers, said here Friday.

Panama Canal officials expect in the course of this year to lose 60 per cent of the traffic between Europe and the Far East that they picked up when the Suez Canal was closed in the wake of the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

Even though the new Suez Canal rates are almost twice as high as Panama Canal rates, shippers will prefer the Suez route between Europe and the Far East because of savings in time and fuel, the officials predict.

A drop in traffic has been registered here for the past 30 days, evidently in anticipation of the reopening of the Suez Canal June 5.

Steers, who visited Suez in April, said problems remained there, including insurance rates, surcharges and the risks of war. Egypt is completing plans to deepen the Suez Canal to accommodate 200,000-ton supertankers.

Downtown Lions Will Install Officers, Directors Tuesday

Officers and directors of the Midland Downtown Lions Club for 1975-76 will be installed Tuesday at a ladies-night banquet to be held at the Elks Club.

A hospitality period will begin at 6:30 p.m., with dinner to be served at 7:30. The club's regular Wednesday noon meeting will not be held this week.

The installing officer will be E. J. "Ebb" Grindstaff of Ballinger, a former director of Lions International and a past district governor.

Officers of the Lion Tamers Club, the woman's auxiliary of the Downtown Lions Club, also will be installed at the function.

Victor Horn will be installed as president of the Lions Club, succeeding L. N. "Jim" Coker.

Other new officers are Horace Robb, Garland Chapman and George Wels, vice presidents; Herman Dancy, secretary; treasurer; Jerry Speck, Lion Tamers; Jim Goldman, tallwater, and Mrs. Hazel Russell, club sweetheart.

New directors are Elmer Barnett, John Berry, Glen Ford, Ray Gwyn and G. A. Plummer.

Officers of the Lion Tamers Club to be installed are Mrs. J. Melvin Little, president; Mrs. Horace A. Robb, vice president; Mrs. Elmer W. Barnett, secretary; Mrs. Lester Van Pelt Jr., treasurer; and Mrs. Bill Collins, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Frank Martin is the retiring president.

Grindstaff, who has spoken here on several previous occasions, was graduated from Ballinger High School and received his BBA and LLB degrees from Baylor University.

He has been a practicing attorney at Ballinger since 1956. He is a past director of the State Bar of Texas and is a past president of Ballinger Jaycees, as well as a past president of the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce. He also is a past president of Industrial Development, Inc., of Ballinger, and has served as chairman and district commissioner of the Concho Valley Council of Boy Scouts of America. He is said.

Fatal accidents have totaled 1,035 this year, or 24 per cent more than the 838 mishaps in the same period in 1974, he said.

Other figures are not so bright, the spokesman said. In the first five months of this year 1,195 persons have died in traffic accidents statewide, which represents a 25 per cent increase over the 966 deaths in 1974, he said.

Ringing The Bell

By BOB TIEUL

The Black Experience: Crowds, estimated by Oklahoma highway patrolmen at between 15,000 and 20,000, joined by Gov. David Boren and comedian Flip Wilson, kicked off this Oklahoma County town's (Boley) 15th annual rodeo and 70th birthday celebration. Hundreds of cars bearing license plates from over the nation used the streets of Boley and Highway 62 miles leading into the town that was predicted often to "last for a few years and then die". Reason: It was an all-black town. The correspondent who incidentally first saw the light of day here some six decades ago, noted that each year the average age of celebrants goes down and that this was perhaps the youngest age group ever to attend the annual rodeo and birthday celebration.

Signs reading: "Welcome Home Flip — Glad to Have You Back," "Flip Is a Shining Star — Welcome Home" and "Rev. Leroy—You are Great." were seen high above the huge throng which lined the parade Saturday night. A huge banner at the edge of town heralded the birthday of the town and a big "Welcome to Boley's New Chief of Police-Flip Wilson." Wilson, clad in a rhinestone-spangled Hollywood cowboy outfit and wearing his white Nudie of North Hollywood designed suit, lived up to his "good guy" image by presenting the black town with its first "official police car" — a yellow 1975 Mercury.

In an exclusive interview with me in the Midway Dry Goods store, which has been owned and operated by my mother, Mrs. N. E. Tieul, for almost 70 years, Wilson said he has great hopes for Boley if "the people of Boley will simply get it together and work hard to improve the image of the town by doing what I attempt to do in the Rev. Leroy portrayal—preach love, justice, brotherhood and simply doing your own thing."

Wilson's three day visit to Boley was filmed by a crew for inclusion in a television program called "Travels With Flip."

Boley was founded in September 1904 along the Ft. Smith & Western Railroad. In March 1906, 40 citizens signed a petition for the town's incorporation, which was accomplished May 11, 1906. Until later, be a good neighbor. Remember they come in all colors. Peace.

Airport Board Files Breach Of Contract Lawsuits

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Board has filed a breach of contract lawsuit against two companies that built the airport's waste disposal system.

The $1.8 million damage suit, filed in Friday in the court of U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, names Combustion Equipment Associates of Texas and Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland as defendants.

The suit alleges the waste disposal system never operated for its intended purpose and is "totally worthless" to the airport board.

The board is seeking late penalties, reimbursement and exemplary damages.

Man's Kidnaping Sentence Reduced

EAST ST. LOUIS, III. (AP) — The prison sentence of a former racetrack groom convicted of kidnaping a Belleville girl has been reduced from life to six years in prison with immediate eligibility for parole.

U.S. District Court Judge James L. Foreman, who March 18 sentenced to life William Dean Atchison, 28, Friday reduced the term after reviewing a psychiatric report.

Atchison was convicted Feb. 18 of kidnaping Kimberly Gossett, 8, last July. He and the child were found last September in Houston.

Atchison's lawyer said the psychiatric report showed the man needed considerable help. During the trial Atchison said he tried to save the girl from a poor home environment.

Dirt, Squirt & Quirt
— FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS —
By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Agent

Crop and pasture are improved as a result of showers that occurred over much of the county and area last week. The turbulent nature of some of the rainfall caused some damage to newly planted and young crops which will necessitate some replanting. A severe hailstorm a week ago did lots of damage to crops, homes and outbuildings in the area south of Terrell. Although the date is getting late for cotton, the moisture will be adequate for replanting in most areas.

Summer annual pastures can be productive if handled correctly. The summer annual forages best adapted for West Texas include the sudans and the sudan-sorghum hybrids. They are available under many trade names. Forage quality of summer annual pastures can be higher than summer perennial pastures.

The first important factor is to use adequate amounts of fertilizer. Summer annual forages frequently produce greater tonnages of forage than summer perennial forages from the same amount of fertilizer. Growth and protein result from adequate amounts of fertilizer — especially nitrogen.

A soil test is the best method for deciding on amounts of fertilizer to apply, but generally at least 60 pounds of nitrogen should be used at each fertilizer application. Another important factor is to use the forage when it is high quality. This is while it is young and in the pre-boot stage. Summer annual forages tend to produce large stalks and seed heads rather than leaves when they mature. This means they should be shredded or harvested into hay whenever plants have a large percentage of stalks.

After leaves have been grazed from stalks, remove animals to another area. Shred the remaining stalks to a height of 6-8 inches to stimulate new leaf development. Then apply a nitrogen fertilizer. Resume grazing when plants have reached 24-30 inches.

Home gardeners are likely to have problems with blossom drop and poor fruit set of tomatoes anytime during the growing season in West Texas. The problem may be exhibited as a total or partial failure of flowers to develop into fruit, or abnormal fruits which may be misshapen or catfaced. The first category is the fruit set or blossom drop experienced most commonly in West Texas. It is most prevalent in tomatoes in plantings which bloom late. Generally, the cause for poor fruit set is high temperatures — either night or daytime temperatures. Optimum nighttime temperatures for fruit set in tomatoes is about 68 to 70 degrees. Nighttime temperatures above 72 degrees in combination with daytime temperatures above 90, often result in heavy blossom drop in tomatoes. These conditions usually occur during June, July and August.

Under these temperature conditions, fruit set may be very light but may change dramatically with the onset of more favorable nighttime temperatures (below 72). A somewhat similar condition condition may occur during extended periods of cold weather. However, under cold weather conditions the problem may show up as blossom drop, but it may also be combined with abnormalities in those fruits which do not abort (misshapen, catfaced, etc.).

There are many other causes for lack of fruit set or the development of malformed fruit in tomatoes. These include: Unbalanced nutrition including excess or deficiency of some of the major or minor nutrients, extended periods of warm, windy weather with low humidity; extended periods of showery, cool, overcast weather during early spring, and insects and diseases.

The problems of poor fruit set due to high temperatures is most prevalent in the large, slicing types of tomatoes. Some of the larger types which do have an ability to set under somewhat higher temperature conditions include: Early Giant, Spring Giant, Spring Set and Improved Summertime. The Cherry and Paste types of tomatoes do not exhibit the fruit set problem to the degree shown by the larger types. Some of the better varieties of this type include Small Fry, Red Cherry, Rome and the new Texas A&M Experiment Station release, Saladette.

Art Competition Slated At Opening Of 'Texas'

CANYON—For the third year, a special art competition will be a feature of the gala opening of the popular "Texas" music drama here.

"Texas" is the colorful pageant of Panhandle history and lore which, during its first nine seasons, has become one of the leading summer attractions in the entire Southwest.

Graduates Get High School Diploma In Piano

Six 1975 graduates of the city's two high schools are recipients of the High School Diploma in Piano awarded by the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

The awards were made at conclusion of National Guild auditions conducted here during May by William Gillock of Dallas, an accredited keyboard adjudicator for the Guild.

Receiving the diplomas were: Susan Beck, graduate of Midland High and piano student of Mrs. Hans Roweck, who will attend The University of Texas-Austin; Holly Christianson of Lee High, keyboard student of Mrs. James Finley, who will attend Texas Tech University;

Additional information on the art contest is obtainable from the "Texas" business office at P.O. Box 268, Canyon 79015, or by telephoning 806-655-2182.

Artists must submit photographs of works intended for entry in the competition no later than 5 p.m. Wednesday. Judges will make their first eliminations from these photos or slides, which must be 8 by 10 inches or smaller.

Winning entries will be on display at the amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon on opening night and will then be transferred to the Panhandle Plains Museum at WTSU where they will be on public view from June 24 through July 30.

Gideon, portrayed by Jim Salners, center, prepares to play one of the elders of his tribe in this tense and dramatic scene in "Gideon," the Paddy Chayefsky drama being readied for a Friday night opening at Theatre Centre.

Broadway Offerings High For Summer

NOTE TO EDITORS: The following list includes all shows scheduled for Broadway display during the usual summer production lull. Playguide will resume as a monthly feature in the autumn.

NEW YORK (AP) — Summer visitors to Broadway will have a wide variety of shows to choose from, including several unusual additions. Production activity traditionally halts during the hot months, but scheduled this year are three premieres and the transfer uptown of two off-Broadway hits.

This is the incoming lineup: "Chicago," musical starring Gwen Verdon, Chita Rivera and Jerry Orbach, bows June 3, at the 46th Street Theater, 226 W. 46th.

"The First Breeze of Summer," family drama, moves up with its Negro Ensemble Company cast on June 10 to the Palace, 1564 Broadway.

"Death of a Salesman," starring Teresa Wright and George C. Scott, doubling as director, opens June 19 for a run through Aug. 24, at Circle in the Square, 1633 Broadway.

"The Red Devil Battery Sign," new Tennessee Williams drama with Anthony Quinn and Claire Bloom, is due Aug. 12 at the Shubert, 225 W. 44th.

"The Chorus Line," a highly praised musical, is to shift from the Public Theater some time during the summer to a playhouse not yet announced.

In alphabetical order, here are all current shows. Listing includes theater address, story synopsis and chief players. Unless otherwise indicated, tickets are available for all performances.

"The Magic Show," Cort, 138 W. 48th — Doug Herring with some amazing illusions. Fairly scarce.

"The Ritz," Longacre, 220 W. 48th — Farcical uproar about a fat man in a homosexual Turkish bath. Jack Weston, Rita Moreno and Jerry Stiller lead the romp.

"The Wiz," Majestic, 247 W. 44th — Black version of "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," winner of seven Tony musical awards. SRO.

The continuing off-Broadway list of attractions includes "The Chorus Line," previously noted, plus: "Diamond Studs," Westside, 407 W. 43rd; "Godspell," Promenade, 76th & Broadway; "The Fantasticks," 181 Sullivan; "The Hot I Baltimore," Circle in the Square, 169 Bleecker; "The Taking of Miss Janie," Newhouse, 150 W. 65th; "Women Behind Bars," Astor Place, 434 Lafayette.

'Gideon' To Open At MCT Friday

"Gideon," a Biblical play with warmth and humor—and with meaning for modern man asking questions about himself and his place in the universe—opens Friday night at Theatre Centre.

The Paddy Chayefsky comedy-drama will close out the first half of Midland Community Theatre's 1975 season, with performances through June 21. Following the traditional summer break, the season will continue with additional productions next October and December.

"Gideon," which has been described by one New York writer as "a play of exceptional warmth, wit and dimension," and by another as "a play to see and remember," is drawn from the sixth, seventh and eighth chapters of the Book of Judges. It centers around Gideon, a simple, humble farmer chosen by God to lead an army of 300 Israelites against a mighty horde of marauding Midianites.

Playwright Chayefsky was inspired to create "Gideon" 15 years ago when he visited Israel to research a film script. That script was never completed but his research took him back to reading the Bible in some of the actual locations of its stories. "Gideon" was the result.

When the play opened on Broadway in 1961 with the late Frederic March as the Angel of God and Douglass Campbell as Gideon, nearly all the Manhattan critics noted that, in comparison with "Gideon's" humor, striking drama and stimulating thought, most other stage offerings of the season seemed pallid, indeed. The play had a satisfactory run on Broadway and has since become a favorite for production by regional and community theater groups.

In Midland Community Theatre director Art Cole's production, Jim Salners will portray Gideon and Charles Dixon has the part of The Angel. Other pivotal cast members include Morrison Brown, Joe Hathaway, Jess Atkins, Harold Shaner, Wendell McClintock, Steve Wood and Betty Sterzing. Joining them in supporting roles are Max Howard, Ted Kruger, Bill Cook, Monte Mann, Rusty Collins, Richard Ambrose, Ron Gillaspia, Mark Gillaspia, to the public Monday morning Richard McKenna, D. A. and seat reservations may be Plumble, Carol Walker, Marilyn Culp, Dell Lucas, Ann Breeding, 682-2544.

Following its opening at 8:30 p.m. Friday, "Gideon" will have a performance beginning at a same hour Saturday, and additional presentations June 13, 14, 15, 20 and 21. Tickets for all performances will go on sale to the public Monday morning.

Monty Hall Due In Dallas June 15

DALLAS — Television personality Monty Hall will headline the 40th anniversary dinner of the Variety Club of Texas here June 15.

Hall, the MC of tv's popular "Let's Make A Deal," will be principal speaker at the dinner in the Fairmont Hotel's International Room, at which past Chief Barkers (presidents) of the Variety Club of Texas will be honored. Hall is newly-elected president of Variety Clubs International.

Tickets for the event have gone on sale at the Variety Club headquarters, 1710 Jackson St., Suite 206. Toastmaster at the dinner will be actor and producer John Ashley.

The principal charity of the Variety Club of Texas is the Care-Van Center which furnishes transportation for sick and underprivileged children. The club has awarded more than 30 Sunshine Coaches to some two dozen agencies serving crippled or needy youngsters. The club plans to add several new buses to the fleet this year.

ternity farce in which Ron O'Neal has replaced Cleavon Little as Mr. X.

"Candide," Broadway, Bway at 53rd — Leonard Bernstein's score done to a new adaptation of Voltaire's classic.

"Clams on the Half Shell," Minskoff, Bway at 45th — Review spotlighting Bette Midler closes June 21.

"Dance With Me," Mayfair, 235 W. 46th — Comic fantasy in a subway station, with music.

"Equus," Plymouth, 236 W. 45th — Tony award drama about a horse-crazy youth. Anthony Hopkins and Peter Firth top cast. Fairly scarce.

"Grease," Royale, 242 W. 45th — Longest running musical, evoking high school capers during the rock 'n' roll 1950s.

"Pippin," Imperial, 240 W. 45th — Another musical stunner about a youth on identity search in Charlemagne's court.

"Raisin," Lunt-Fontaine, 205 W. 46th — Virginia Capers heads long-run song story about an upstriving black family.

"Rogers & Hart," Hayes, 210 W. 46th — A dozen brisk youngsters in potpourri reprise of the songs of Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart.

"Same Time, Next Year," Atkinson, 256 W. 47th — Sleek comedy about marriage and town for what it is but it did not nourish my mind or ears much more than the traditional no-scenery staging nourished my eyes.

Walters' cast for "Our Town" is largely a good one, with most members handling respective assignments responsibly.

Karen Kelly was generally excellent as the young, sometimes awkward Emily Webb, and her final moments were especially good. Playing opposite her as George Gibbs is Rick Stanley who has made progress as an actor as a result of his Playhouse and Globe Theater appearances within the last two years. Other excellent characterizations are provided by Charles Guy as Dr. Gibbs, Margaret Abbott as Mrs. Gibbs, Coy Sharp as Mr. Webb, Judy Miller as Mrs. Webb, Rob Caldwell as the alcoholic Simon Stimson, June Yates as the town busybody Mrs. Seames.

Special praise must go to Jim Reese for his handling of the important Stage Manager role. Reese certainly brought ease, assurance and believability to his part. In this role, folksiness is probably highly in order, but there were a occasions Friday night when I wasn't sure whether I was hearing Reese or Walter Brennan. Even so, he is good in the part.

ODESSA — In this Bicentennial-minded era, a play that harks back to gentler times and the more formative years of this nation certainly has fresh relevance. "Our Town," playwright Thornton Wilder's American classic, is just such a play.

But, alas, this drama which was something of an innovation in 1938 when it garnered honors (including the Pulitzer Prize) now seems overshadowed by more recent plays of the backward-glimpse-on-America's-heritage genre. Somehow, it wants deeper roots to give it the impact of some of these other stage works.

Perman Playhouse's production, which opened Friday night, is about as good as any I've ever seen, and better than some. Playhouse associate director James Walters strived mightily to make his production in the European and Pacific Theaters, in Africa and on the home front. The material in the exhibit, including weapons, uniforms, even C-rations, will give museum visitors a chronological view of the wartime years.

Contributing to the exhibit have been Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine installations, along with museums in many parts of the nation and many individuals who own special items of interest in this show marking the 30th anniversary of the war's end.

A formal ceremony opening the new exhibit is scheduled for 2 p.m. today at the museum, located on West Fourth Street northwest of the main Tech campus. The show will remain on view until September, with visiting hours daily and Sunday each week. Admission to the museum is free.

Cut The Politics!

One wonders if the members of Congress as a whole ever consider the possibility of dropping the game of partisan politics for a change and getting on with the business at hand.

The business at hand in this particular instance is the energy problem.

Congress has fooled around for months on end without registering a single achievement in the realm of problem-solving in this particular regard.

It actually has moved in the opposite direction, tossing roadblocks in the path of energy progress as it has gone out of its way to hamstring the petroleum industry.

Many members of Congress determined that this was popular with consumers in the non-oil producing states and they have played the game of vote-getting to the hilt, as they have used the oil and gas industry as a whipping boy.

It has been a matter of politics all-the-way, and the nation and its overall welfare be damned.

The removal of price controls on oil and natural gas would be a giant step toward solving the domestic energy problem, but Congress will not hear of it.

Well, it's about time that Congress listens to reason sounded by those who know and understand what is required in solving this particular problem.

President Ford, after waiting for months for Congress to take some action, last week ordered a second $1-a-barrel tariff placed on imported oil.

He said also that he will submit to Congress next month a plan to remove price controls gradually from domestic crude oil. By this action, the administration hopes to increase prices and revenues to producers so they will increase production and seek new sources of petroleum.

This really is the name of the game . . . and it would work. It is hoped however, that decontrol also would include natural gas.

But what happens on Capitol Hill? The Associated Press reports

William Simon Takes On The Shah Of Iran

WASHINGTON — Oil was hot stuff this past week, a downright contentious subject. President Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the Shah of Iran, and the oil-consuming nations variously issued warnings and expressed fears about it. Although there's an oil glut now, prices are raring to rise, and the consumer wonders what it's all about.

Treasury Secretary William Simon is fit to be tied over how the shah of Iran discusses oil as though it were a reparation to the oil-producing nations for past sins of industrialized powers.

"The shah uses oil for political blackmail," Simon told me as he prepared to leave for the oil consumers' International Energy Agency meeting in Paris. "He doesn't see this as an economic question at all. He sees oil as a political weapon."

"When he was on Meet the Press last week, he misrepresented oil as an issue. He gave out wrong figures and facts — a wrong statement."

Simon, who ardently believes in the genius of a free market, long has predicted that oil prices would stabilize and even drop when alternate sources of energy were tapped and crude oil production increased.

He forcefully has expressed this view to President Ford and to Kissinger and certainly is in strong disagreement with Kissinger's proposal for a "floor price" that almost without exception, congressional response to the President's action split along party lines. The Democrats were sharply critical of Ford's plan, and they control Congress. Yet, they haven't been able to come up with their own energy program.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of course, was one of the first to sound-off in opposition. "I, for one, won't buy this nonsense," he said.

Compare this, if you will, with the President's more sensible comment, "The Congress cannot drift, dawdle and debate forever with America's future . . . Our American economy runs on energy. No energy, no jobs . . ."

This doesn't sound like non-sense, Senator Jackson!

President Ford's plan of action is not totally satisfactory in any sense, but it is a start . . . and it is positive.

It is the windfall profits tax proposal included in Ford's plan which he will submit to Congress which is not pleasing to many persons in the oil business, particularly the wildcatters and the drillers generally. Their position certainly is justified.

If Congress has a more generally satisfactory program, let's have a look at it.

It Happened Here—

40 Years Ago (June 1, 1935): An ordinance had been passed by the city council regulating gambling devices, slot machines and marble machines here.

Mrs. Lura Hollingsworth of Runnels County had been named Midland County home demonstration agent.

Wallace Wimberly presented his piano pupils in recital in the Midland High School Auditorium.

H. J. Phillips and T. E. Neely had returned from a fishing trip to Lake Balmorhea.

35 Years Ago (June 1, 1940): Edna Earl Linebery had been selected to represent Midland in the bathing revue to be held in connection with the dedication of the Floyd Gwin Park and swimming pool at Odessa.

The daily vacation Bible school at the First Baptist Church had enrolled 263 youths.

Voice and piano pupils of Mrs. Maud Leonard were presented in recital in the First Presbyterian Church.

on oil. The secretary of state's reasoning is that if the producing countries are assured a "floor price," the consuming nations will find them easier to deal with.

By Kissingerian logic, this means more political stability; a shah of Iran, perhaps, who can stand with a shouldered muscle against the Soviets, and, wonderbar, a balance of power which would please Metternich, even in his grave.

Simon thinks Kissinger is off-base with this kind of theorizing and keeps his own arguments restricted to economics.

When the shah declared on Meet the Press that Western Europe's average inflation was about 14 per cent in 1974, and Europeans sold their goods to Iran for 35 per cent more than in 1973, Simon fumed.

He argues that the shah's figures are based on consumer price indices

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Ford raised the import tax on oil another $1 per barrel, according to confidential White House transcripts, to spur Congress into passing energy legislation and to prevent the reappearance of long gasoline lines.

There could be a danger, energy czar Frank Zarb warned the President, of "long gas lines sometime this summer."

Other energy experts say that Zarb overstated the case, that there is no danger of a gasoline shortage this summer. But the President is acutely aware that, as long as the United States is dependent upon oil imports, the oil potentates could create a shortage overnight.

Until new sources of energy are developed, therefore, the United States must cut back on fuel consumption, the President believes. His import tax is intended to make fuel too expensive to waste.

President Ford also is worried over the oil producing countries' plans to raise prices another $2 per barrel in September. He fears this could give the U.S. economy another serious jolt.

He appealed to the shah of Iran during his recent Washington visit to hold down oil prices. Afterward, the President told associates: "Believe me, the shah is tough."

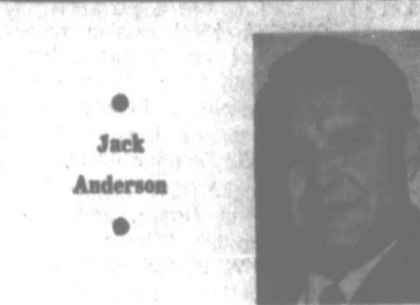

Sources privy to their conversation said the President, who had just sent the Marines to rescue the merchant ship Mayaguez, completely caved in to the shah's economic blackmail.

This has infuriated at least one top policymaker, Treasury Secretary William Simon, who has rejected the economic justification the oil producing countries offered for raising prices.

In an angry memo, he asserts: "In fact, the price rise for crude oil had no economic basis. The present price of oil bears no relationship to economic realities—not to the production of oil, not to the cost of alternative sources of energy traded on world markets . . ."

"Our data . . . shows that the prices of imports to the oil-producing nations of the Middle East went up about 24 per cent during 1974. Moreover, about one-third of that rise can be traced right back to the earlier rise in oil prices. . ."

Stresses Simon: "The price of oil went up because of the actions of the (oil producing) cartel to artificially restrict the supply of oil. There is no shortage of oil — indeed, there is a glut."

Meanwhile, the United States continues to waste more energy than most nations consume. Gas-guzzling cars, inefficient heating methods, electric gadgets and contradictory government controls all contribute to the power drain.

Yet Congress is too timid to interrupt the wasteful ways of the people. "The (Democrats) in the Senate are not prepared to vote for any kind of tough conservation program," Zarb told the President, according to the confidential transcripts. "The Senate proposals would force increased oil imports. We can't say we have an energy program without a tough conservation element."

But Zarb himself, unhappily, doesn't practice what he preaches. He heads the Federal Energy Administration which, it appears, has failed to enforce

HEMISPHERE REPORT—

Castro's Cuba Still Lacks Needed Backing

By WILLIAM GIANDONI

Copley News Service

The hemispheric ban on relations with Communist Cuba may be lifted at the next inter-American foreign ministers' meeting in July. And then, again, it may not be.

True, 14 American republics did vote at the closing session of the Organization of American States' recent General Assembly, in favor of a Mexican proposal that would leave each country free to normalize its relations with Premier Fidel Castro's dictatorship.

However, that declaration would come into force only after, and if, the foreign ministers have changed the rules of the game under which the Castro regime was punished in 1964 for trying to overthrow the democratic government of Venezuela.

The matter of changing the rules, though, was left to a conference scheduled to open in San Jose, Costa Rica, in July.

Then the hemisphere's top diplomats will get together to endeavor to update the 1947 Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance, more conveniently known as the "Rio Treaty."

It was under terms of the Rio Treaty, a collective security pact, that the foreign ministers voted to suspend diplomatic and trade relations with the Cuban government as a result of Venezuela's complaint that Cuba was "using terrorism, sabotage, assault and guerrilla warfare" against it.

But times and sentiments change, and Venezuela is now one of the group of acting pro-Castro countries that is trying to get the Cuban sanctions lifted.

As the Rio pact was written and still stands, such decisions are taken "by a vote of two-thirds of the signatory states which have ratified the treaty."

That means that 14 of those countries must cast affirmative votes.

While 14 was the number of votes that Mexico got for its fast-action proposal to free the individual countries to strike up relations with the Cuban Communists, some were ballots of countries that will not have the right to vote on the treaty itself in Costa Rica, as they have not signed and ratified it.

Nevertheless, the conference in July is expected to try to amend Article 17 of the Rio Treaty so that only a simple majority will be required to lift the sanctions against the Castro government or, for that matter, to take any other decision under terms of the pact.

While, obviously, there is considerable sentiment in Latin America in favor of Castro and Cuba, there are also those diplomats with long memories who recall that the two-thirds majority requirement was written into the Rio Treaty for a purpose. Some say that the Latins intended the two-thirds vote as a restraint on the United States, to keep the United States from getting its own way in the hemisphere too easily.

There was a time when the United States could almost automatically count on the votes of the five Central American countries, of Panama, the Dominican Republic, Haiti and even Cuba, before Castro, on important issues, and would have needed only one more vote from among the other countries to have obtained a simple majority.

Whether, after Vietnam, the Latins have lost their former fear of the United States remains to be determined.

However, on the basis of the willingness shown at the recent meeting in Washington to delay action on the Cuban question again, some of Castro's Latin apologists are losing hope.

After all, the 14 votes cast in favor of Mexico's proposal on Cuban relations included those of Jamaica and newly admitted Grenada, neither of which are parties to the Rio Treaty. Their ballots would not count in Costa Rica where, presumably, it will take 14 affirmative votes of signatory states to amend the treaty.

Unless the lineup changes again between now and July, the vote in favor of Cuba will fall two short of the required two-thirds, just as it did at the foreign ministers' meeting in Quito in November, 1974.

There was no indication that Mexico, or Argentina, Colombia, Panama, Peru, Trinidad or Venezuela, the seven which are OAS members with a vote in San Jose that have relations with Cuba, have been able to gain any significant new support for the Castro cause. El Salvador, which voted in favor of Cuba at the Quito meeting, chose to abstain in Washington, but Haiti, which customarily flits from one side to the other on most questions, voted for Cuba.

At the same time, Nicaragua, which abstained in Quito, voted against the Mexican proposal on Cuba at the Washington meeting, joining Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay in the anti-Castro camp. The United States, Bolivia, Brazil and Guatemala abstained from the vote in Washington, just as they did in Quito.

With all this in mind, plus the election of Argentine Ambassador Alejandro Orfila to the OAS secretary generalship, the pro-Castro forces seem to be growing pessimistic.

We Can Help

To The Editor: Most of us gripe about our social conditions and inequities, but few of us do something about them. If we are to maintain our democratic society, more people must assume responsibility for change and for improving the human condition.

One of our most pressing needs is the plight of our foster children — 350,000 in foster homes across America. Most of them come from broken homes caused by death, illness, or separation. Like all other children, they need love, care and attention.

The dedicated foster parents who take them in and the social agencies and workers who place them and look after their needs require your help. Not funds, but your time, your efforts, your dedication and commitment.

The average reimbursement to a foster family for a foster child is frequently less than the cost to kennel a pet. These children require improved medical and dental care, special educational opportunities, representation on their behalf at the legislative and legal levels.

The Permian Basin Foster Parent Association has been formed and is operating at the local level. It needs your participation. You can be a spokesman for the needs of our children who need you. If we act today, we can help mold the citizens of tomorrow and, thus, make our future community a better place in which to live, work and do business.

A Name Game

To The Editor: The news is often full of names of public officials. As citizens, we should be aware not only of what is in the news, but also why it is there.

Public officials are frequently in the news because it is in their own interest to keep their names before the public. Each tries to assure his constituents of his popularity, efficiency and busy schedule. These servants of the public also want to affirm their indispensability and valuable service to the community. They achieve these ends by means of televised speeches, attending public functions, cutting ribbons, awarding prizes and supporting popular causes.

And the public is interested in the lives of prominent people. Because of human nature, one group of people will be curious about how another group lives. We are interested in discovering the habits, preferences and peculiarities of figures in the public's eye. Does he jog in his high school sweat shirt? Does he like chocolate syrup on his pancakes? Does he read the Hardy Boys on the sly?

A third and valid reason for the frequent appearance of public officials in the news may be the solemn, self-imposed duty of the press to guard the interest of the public. In that interest, the news media attempts to give complete exposure to every aspect of the lives of public officials. If every area of a man's life, public and private, is exposed to public scrutiny, then how could he conceal any wrongdoing?

Of course, a final and perhaps the real reason for the appearance of public officials in the news may very likely be that daily reporters are faced with blank pages of newspaper or television and radio time to be filled. In desperation, they turn to those familiar names and faces, our public officials.

Pierre Tartoue passed away on Oct. 16, 1974, and is buried in the Moscow Catholic Cemetery, Moscow, Idaho. It is a peaceful, lovely spot fitting an artist at his stature.

To The Editor: I worked with the petroleum industry years ago in Midland. I hope your readers will read my letter.

I am a Jew who was rescued from East European Communist tyranny and death by the CIA.

Later, it was the FBI that secured a clearance for me to live and work in America.

It is disheartening for me to see members of my own race who defame the CIA and FBI, who have done much to ASSIST the Jews throughout the world.

We American Jews should count our blessings before we criticize.

Help Wanted

To The Editor: Recently I found some clippings in the files of my late husband, artist Pierre Tartoue, printed in The Midland Reporter-Telegram in the late 1930s. During that period he did much painting in the Texas area. At present I am trying to compile a list of his works, their locations, etc.

I'm sure there must be many people who would like to see his work. If you have any information, please contact me at the address below.

PLO On Positive Track

By STEPHEN S. ROSENFELD

WASHINGTON — The Palestine Liberation Organization, which reflects the several varieties of Palestinian nationalism, has been up to more than politics and terror lately. In a substantial and positive breakthrough, it has started accepting open responsibility for a large number of its own people, the refugees who have been sustained for the last 25 years by the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA).

The PLO's man in Beirut, Shafiq Hout, told a Western journalist the other day that at PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's instructions he and other PLO aides were now actively seeking contributions to UNRWA from the rich Arab oil states. The relief agency, chronically nearly broke but really on the brink this year, needs a quick $24 million to keep open the schools which a quarter-million Palestinian children attend.

Claiming that the West by creating Israel also helped create the refugees, Arabs have until now resolutely refused to shoulder anything more than a nominal share of the burden of their care. They fear that acceptance of that burden might compromise their demand that Israel repatriate or compensate the refugees. Neither the abject misery of many of the refugees nor the rebukes of the West for making pawns of their own people had shaken the Arabs' stance.

The PLO now argues, however, that its own new international stature and hoped-for momentum make it politically safe, as Arab affluence makes it economically easy, for Arabs to take over some part of the cost of continuing UNRWA. The PLO, which is very sharp in these matters, surely also understands that it would be next to impossible to squeeze more UNRWA funds out of the United States, the principal contributor, and out of West Europe, at a time of economic hardship induced in good part by Arab oil policy.

For the PLO, moreover, keeping the UNRWA schools open is of vital political significance. These schools, in which Palestinians teach Palestinians, are perhaps the chief instrument by which Palestinian national consciousness is imbued. To let the schools be closed is not only to surrender this instrument but to see many of the pupils drift into Lebanese or Syrian or Iraqi schools, where the pressure tends to local assimilation. And since outside Israel the PLO effectively runs the UNRWA camps, the closure of the schools will naturally be taken as evidence that the PLO cannot deliver even minimal services to the people whose sole legitimate leadership it claims to be.

Who would rather see Palestinians running their own schools than shooting up Israeli schools?

Some Israelis might like to see the schools closed in order to hasten the assimilation of refugees in lands outside Israel and in order to deny the PLO the extra measure of respectability it would acquire by arranging to keep the schools open. Other Israelis, though probably a minority, would take some comfort in seeing the PLO become even more deeply involved in the routine of administration rather than in revolution and terror.

On the Israel-occupied West Bank, most public schools are run by the Israeli military government, not by UNRWA. In occupied Gaza, however, UNRWA runs almost all the local schools. Arab contributions to UNRWA would thus put Arabs in the position, uncomfortable for some, of indirectly helping sustain the Israeli occupation. This is an intriguing if modest possibility which might well appeal to those Israelis who believe that the path to peaceful coexistence winds through just such chance interlocks of interdependence as this one.

For the Arab governments to join the United States and other Western states in ministering through UNRWA to the educational and social needs of the Palestinians, furthermore, may conceivably open one small way to deal with the politics for the issue.

There are not that many other aspects of the Palestinian problem which lend themselves to international cooperation, and there are not that many other forums in which the Palestinian condition can be so usefully addressed. Anyway, even if no political progress can be made, kids will go to school.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

It's Silly Season For Lawmakers

By STUART LONG

AUSTIN — The fitters of closing-up time of a legislative session always lead to actions which, at the very kindest level, can be called "unstatesmanlike."

Sen. Babe Schwartz of Galveston spoke out against what he called an unfair division of his home county of Galveston into state representative districts. He filibustered for awhile, and then gave up and the Senate passed the bill.

It was in keeping with tradition that the Senate should not disturb a bill setting up the lines of House districts, and the Senate so agreed. But 12 other senators felt that something was wrong with it, and so put themselves in a position of being able to say "I told you so" if the House boundary lines are knocked out by the federal courts which ordered the redistricting.

That afternoon, the House knocked off a "consent calendar" all the bills by the senators who had voted against the House redistricting bill. The Senate countered with a threat to reconsider its passage and kill the bill.

Cooler heads will prevail, of course, and in the end both the House redistricting bill and the senators' uncontested bills will be passed.

But it illustrates how pressure can build, tempers flare, and silly actions can come about when the end of a legislative session is in sight with so much to do and so little time to do it in.

Time was, before the "reform rules," that the final day of a session saw scores of bills passed to the governor for signature into law. But now, the two houses have effectively cut themselves off from such actions.

No longer is the clock stopped to allow consideration of bills past the hour of adjournment. Speakers and lieutenant governors for years have refused to take motions after the hour of midnight arrives in the 140th day of the session.

The clock is still stopped, but that is only to permit clerical work to be done so the speaker and lieutenant governor can sign the final official versions of bills "in the presence" of the Senate and House, as the Senate and House, as the constitution requires.

But Monday, the final day of the session, will be severely limited as to what actions can be taken.

Under the rules, the House can do nothing except adopt reports of conference committees and concur in Senate amendments to bills already passed by the House. Speaker Bill Clayton has announced that he will tolerate no suspension of that rule. The Senate rule for the last 24 hours says that no bill can be passed, except actions for the correction of errors.

If Gov. Bill Hobby holds fast to that rule, Monday will be a day of quiet, and there will be little to do except wait, pass housekeeping resolutions, elect a president pro tempore to become governor for a day sometime this summer, and speculate on whether they will be coming back in a few weeks to consider the impeachment and trial of Dist. Judge O. F. Carrillo of Duval County.

It is entirely possible that the last action of the 140 days and nights will be on the very hot question of whether Texas is to take over the regulation of public utilities, and thus become the last state to do so.

The conference committee on that issue is drawn strongly in favor of no more than highly limited regulation. It seems clear that the House will not accept a token agency like the Senate has been favoring.

Constitutional revision, the charting of the fate of the state during the next two years through directions on how $2 billion of taxpayers' money is to be spent, and the troublesome school finance problems have been settled, after a fashion.

Many other troublesome problems were argued in a standstill, and will go back on the lists of "things we ought to do something about" for consideration by the next Legislature in either 1976 or 1977, depending on what the voters say this Nov. 4 on the new constitution.

All in all, it has been a busy, wearing, tiring session.

So if you think the "silly season" arrived during the last week of May, chalk it off to just plain tiredness and frustration, and forgive the legislators, for at this stage they may not know what they do.

Graduates Finding Problems

By PAUL E. STEIGER

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — With unemployment running at post-war record levels, Scott and Kristen, a recently married couple in their early 20's, should be well satisfied to have any jobs at all. Kristen earns $100 a week as a housekeeper and babysitter, Scott a bit more as a clerk in a furniture store.

They are not satisfied, however, and it is easy to see why.

When they were in college in California last year, Scott and Kristen both had their hearts set on becoming teachers. Both have college degrees qualifying them to teach, and Scott has California teaching credentials. But they have not been able to find any teaching jobs, and they have had to settle for work that pays less and in their view is considerably less rewarding intellectually.

Problem Seen
Scott and Kristen illustrate a problem that threatens to grow steadily worse over the next decade. It is a problem that is only marginally related to the recession, and it is not likely to go away even after the recession disappears.

The problem is that the baby boom of the late 1940s and the 1950s is now hitting the labor market like a tidal wave. The children who in earlier years swarmed the schools and then the colleges are now starting to pour into employers' offices looking for jobs.

This crush of new job seekers, all with little or no job experience, represents a jolt to employers too.

Scramble On
As a result, the new young workers are going to have to scramble harder than their predecessors to find jobs, particularly jobs that promise reasonable opportunity for advancement and promotion in the future.

Sheer numbers are only part of the problem. The other part is that these hordes of new young workers are coming to the job market with more education than previous generations. If present trends continue, for example, the number of college degrees awarded in the 13 years between 1972 and 1985 will exceed 20 million, double the number of the preceding 13 years, according to projections by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Armed with all this education, the graduates are not going to be content with the blue-collar or service jobs of the sort many of their parents were happy to have. They have been taught to expect better.

Details Given
The trouble is that, under current projections, the sort of white-collar professional and managerial jobs they anticipate are not expected to be available in anything like the numbers needed to satisfy the demand.

According to Labor Department estimates, 15.3 million college graduates will be entering the work force between 1972 and 1985, but the number of new job openings for college graduates is now projected to be only 14.5 million during the same period, leaving a gap of 800,000.

Greg Daugherty, to be graduated this month from Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., says he and some of his classmates are beginning to fear they may become the "get lost" generation, shunned forever by the working world.

"My generation is not a generation of great dreamers," he wrote recently in the Chicago Tribune. "Our desires are simple because we are afraid. We just want work to do. We are willing to start at the bottom, but we have found that the bottom, in many fields, is already closed."

A recurring nightmare for Daugherty and his fellows, Daugherty wrote, is that it will be five or six years before economic conditions will have improved enough so that companies will be hiring large numbers of people again. But by that time, so the nightmare goes, "instead of hiring those of us who have fried hamburgers and delivered mail for five years, waiting for things to get better, companies will recruit fresh college graduates."

The problems of college graduates may also magnify the difficulties of those with less education. To the extent that college educated men and women decide to lower their sights and apply for jobs with lower pay or poorer working conditions, they increase the squeeze on jobseekers who have only a high school diploma.

Hurricanes May Switch To East Coast This Year

MIAMI (AP) — With the 1975 hurricane season beginning Sunday, forecasters say shifting weather patterns may mean a return to the trend of the 1950s when many of the big storms made a beeline for the east coast.

During that time, forecasters say, hurricanes bypassed their usual Southern route and headed up the east coast, smacking into the Carolinas, New York and Rhode Island.

In the 1960s and into the early '70s, most of the big storms again churned through the Gulf of Mexico, slugging Mississippi, Texas and Louisiana with regularity.

But meteorologist Dr. Jerome Namias figures the trend may be swinging back to the eastern seaboard.

"We are now closer to the time of the '50s," said Namias. "We've had warm winters the past few years. I don't mean just Florida, the whole east coast."

"The warm winters have left warm water, and that sustains the tropical storm. The probability that hurricanes will head to the east coast is higher now than it has been."

Nell Frank, head of the National Hurricane Center here, is quick to point out that in the past three years hurricanes have been less intense and not as numerous as in the past.

"There's no way to tell this far in advance how many will occur this season," Frank says. "The further you get away from the last big one, the closer you get to the next big one."

Based on patterns of the past 100 years, there are eight to 10 storms strong enough to receive names as hurricanes each season, with two or three hitting land somewhere in the United States, Frank said.

The last major storm to lash the eastern seaboard extensively was Donna in 1960, the most destructive ever to strike Florida. The eye moved over the Florida Keys and up Florida's west coast, hitting Naples and Fort Myers. It then crossed the state and accelerated up the east coast all the way to Long Island, not weakening until it reached Maine.

The major hurricanes since, such as Betsy in 1968, which killed 75 persons after hitting Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans, have plagued the Gulf Coast.

Frank has graphed the hurricane record of the past three decades, showing clear-cut cycles. But there have been breaks.

Frank said entry to the store was gained by breaking a window.

Analysts Worry Ford's Energy Package May Slow Recovery

By JOSE FITZGIBBON
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The government's index of leading economic indicators signaled this past week that the end of the recession was at hand. But some analysts worried that President Ford's energy package might forestall a strong recovery.

The recently revamped index jumped a record 4.2 per cent in April, following a small rise in March. Designed to predict economic activity, the index had declined sharply, with only one brief interruption, since the summer of 1973. The index had been changed to reflect inflation's impact. Increasingly, economists have begun looking beyond the slide to the nature and length of the recovery.

On that score, Ford's decision, announced Tuesday night, to impose another $1-a-barrel tariff on imported crude oil and 60-cent-a-barrel taxes on imported crude oil and refined goods; and his decision to decontrol energy prices this fall, concerned some economists and Capitol Hill Democrats.

"It's a $40 billion cheap shot, with tremendous implications for the economy," said David Freeman, former Ford Foundation energy adviser and now with the Senate Commerce Committee. "It soaks up capital so the spending power is just not available."

Economists predicted the taxes could add from 7 cents to 2 1/2 cents to the price of a gallon of petroleum products. A penny-a-gallon increase in gasoline prices costs Americans about $1 billion.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told Europeans at a meeting in Brussels that contrary to earlier statements, the United States was now willing to discuss international prices of raw materials other than oil. The oil-only approach had broken up the previous consumers-producers meeting in Paris.

Despite a sharp rise in oil imports, the government said the nation had a trade surplus of $556.8 million in April, the third gain in as many months. Lower than the previous two months, the surplus is likely to fall further, economists said, as the economy improves and imports expand.

In financially strapped New York City, Mayor Abraham Beame laid out two new budgets, the worst of which calls for the layoff of more than 37,000 city employees. The head of the nation's second biggest government blasted the banks, the state, and Washington for denying funds to meet the city's obligations.

Annexation Talks Scheduled Monday

Planning and zoning commissioners will consider a proposal to annex approximately 110 acres into the city limits located between Midland Drive, Holiday Hill Road and north of U.S. 90 during a 4 p.m. session Monday at city hall.

The commission is considering the annexation because of a request for utilities in the area, and so that future development control can be obtained over the area.

There are approximately 30 property owners involved who hold acreage in the area.

The commission will consider a preliminary plat for Whitburn Estates on 60 acres bounded by FM 868, Flare Drive, Ward Street and near Garfield Street on a request from Epoch Properties Inc.

A request by Donald R. Blair will be considered for a temporary trailer permit at 4405 W. Storey St.

The Golf Course Road Church of Christ, applicant, is requesting the commission to consider a zone change from single family homes to two-family homes with specific use as a foster children's home on 2.22 acres at 3504 Andrews Highway.

The request of Harold Shull for a zone change from single-family home to planned district on 18 acres out of the 3500 block of the Andrews Highway will also be considered.

Ingersoll-Rand Expands Service

Ingersoll-Rand, 1401 W. Industrial St., announced last week improved parts service to meet the needs of expanding petroleum industry operations here should be in full swing within 10 days.

Hap Willett, parts service representative, said the company will expand its parts service by approximately 40 per cent.

Willett said daily shipments are being received to provide needed parts replacements for most I-R model gas engines and reciprocating gas compressors. Common wearing parts are readily available with overnight delivery from Houston on more specialized items, Willett said.

Fire Damages Tv Repair Shop

Midland firemen extinguished a blaze at Firestone T.V. Repair, 105 N. Pecos St., Friday that caused minor damage to a workbench, wall and ceiling.

Firemen said the blaze ignited in a plastic trash container at the end of a workbench.

C-R-S Adds Two To Odessa Staff

ODESSA—Two management personnel have been added to the C-R-S, Inc., administrative staff. Rex Stafford, president of the precast concrete building and general contracting firm at Odessa, said.

K. P. Harbold has been named purchasing agent, and Jean Whittle now heads the firm's architectural and structural design department.

Ground Broken For Children's Hospital In Dallas

DALLAS — Ground was broken Friday for a new six-level hospital complex for Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children here.

The ceremonies were presided over by former Gov. Allan Shivers.

The hospital has served crippled children from the entire state since its inception in 1921, never charging for its services.

The new structure, expected to cost more than $30 million, is scheduled for completion by 1977. It will be located at 2201 Welborn St., adjacent to the present hospital that it will replace.

Farmers Union Head To Tour West Texas Area

Tony T. Dechant, president of National Farmers Union, will meet with farmers and ranchers at Fort Worth, Roby, Lubbock and Amarillo during a Texas tour Monday through Wednesday.

Dechant returned last week from Paris, France, where he attended an executive board meeting of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers.

He serves as vice president of the federation which is made up of 50 farm organizations from around the world.

Dechant will give his first report on the international agricultural meeting while in Texas.

According to the Texas Farmers Union state office at Waco, the national organization leader will meet informally with farmers and ranchers at each stop in the state.

Woolworth Sales Show Increase

NEW YORK—F. W. Woolworth has reported that consolidated sales for the first quarter ended April 30 were $948,834,000, an increase of 9 per cent over sales of $870,105,000 for the comparable period last year.

Net income, including the company's 52.7 per cent equity in the earnings of F. W. Woolworth and Co., Ltd., England, is estimated to be $2,570,000 or 6 cents per share compared with net income of $8,772,000 or 27 cents per share for the same three months in 1974.

Car, Cash Stolen At Rental Agency

Employees at Budget Rent-A-Car, 500 W. Front St., told police someone broke into the service center and removed $272 in cash, took 10 sets of auto keys and then drove off in a 1972 car parked on the lot.

Police were investigating the case Saturday, but no arrests had been made.

Building Permits Top $9.3 Million

Building permits topped the $9.3 million mark last week with 25 construction applications issued at the city inspection department listing $247,240.

Permits for four new homes were issued amounting to $115,000. New home construction for the year now stands at $6.8 million on 176 home permits.

Last week's permits were issued to Tom Mallan for a $95,000 home at 1959 North St. and a $35,000 home at 815 Neely St.

B&R Builders was issued a home permit amounting to $29,000 for location at 3702 W. Kansas St.

A $26,000 home permit went to Magnell Association Inc. for a home at 1809 N. Garfield St.

A single permit for a new commercial building was issued to Mid-West Electric Co. in the amount of $24,000 for construction at 902-04 S. Garfield St.

Commercial alteration and repair permits amounted to $70,000 during the week on three applications.

Those permits went to Tedwell Enterprises for an 800 square foot addition to existing facilities at 407 N. Big Spring St. The permit listed construction costs at $58,000.

A commercial alteration permit amounting to $2,000 went to J. W. Stewart for interior remodeling at the Red Fox lounge and restaurant at 102 W. Wall St.

A $10,000 commercial permit was issued to West Texas Office Supply (Starline Corp.) at 410 S. Pecos St. for interior office remodeling.

Seventeen home alteration and repair permits were issued during the week amounting to $30,240 in construction costs.

Those permits went to:

Rover Marshall, 800 Canyon St., $50, add garage; M. R. Campbell, 104 N. Colorado St., $10, add storage; R. E. Williams, 1200 Delmar St., $10, cover patio; Mike Moore, 220-23 Street, $2,000, add swimming pool; C. R. Nuss, 200 E. Durward St., $1,200, enclosure; Charles Conch, 240 Park Lane, $1,500, add bedroom; T. A. Four NMMI Cadets From Midland Complete Year

Four Midland youths are among the cadets at New Mexico Military Institute who are home for the summer after concluding a year at the institute as members of the 1974-75 Corps of Cadets.

Cadet Joseph E. Campbell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Campbell of 2206 Whitney St., ended his first year at the institute as a junior in the High School Division.

Cadet R. Lee Dicken, the son of Mrs. Shirley Dicken, concluded his first year as a sophomore in the High School Division.

Cadet William Wallace, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Wallace of 1401 W. Pine St., is a Pony Football letterman and was designated "Promising Cowboy" on the rodeo team. Wallace completed his freshman year in the High School Division.

Cadet Gary L. Wortham, the son of Mrs. Louise Wortham, is a President's List scholar, a Bronco Football letterman, and recipient of the Best All-Around Bronco Athlete award. He holds the rank of Private First Class at the close of his first year as a college freshman.

Thane On Honor Roll
KERRVILLE—Larry Thane, a Schreiner College student from Midland, has been named to the honor roll for the second semester here and also was named a top honor graduate of the college department.

Liquor Amendment
The 21st amendment to the Constitution repealed the 18th in 1933, permitting sale of intoxicating liquor in the U.S. The amendment provided, however, that states could continue to prohibit sale of liquor.

Camera Club To Meet
Color slide competition will be the program for the Monday meeting of Midland Camera Club, slated for 7:30 p.m. in the Midland Nature Planetarium in Haley Park.

DURING SUPER SHOOT III— Prachyl Top Gun

Benchrest shooting is a matter of consistency as proven by Dallas' Ron Prachyl. Capturing a third place in the heavy varmint, Prachyl bested the field of more than 150 shooters. His two-gun aggregate of 4410 edged second-place finisher Bill Mineman's 4875 by a scant .947. Mineman is from Dayton, Ohio. Houston pharmacist Larry Baggett was third with a 4066 aggregate tally. The light varmint class was taken by George Kelbly of Rittman, Ohio, with a .7556 aggregate score while the heavy varmint crown went to Andy Adams with a .8614. The top junior shooter was Kurt White of San Diego, Calif.

Match director Skip Gordon received the Benchrest Person of the Year Award donated by the Lyman Sierra division of the Leisure Group Corporation.

Friday's matches wound up the big four-day Super Shoot III at the Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club.

Walt and Remy Pereira of New Jersey, won the husbands and wives title while Dr. Louis Palmisano, from Patterson, New Jersey, walked off with top honors in the 100-yard heavy varmint competition with an average group size of .2648, just missing out Prachyl and Bill Massey of Dallas.

More than $10,000 in cash awards were given out Friday evening during the awards ceremonies plus $5,000 in merchandise and $2,000 more in trophies.

Bundler Takes Louisville Win

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Bwamazon Farm's Bundler won the first running of the $20,000-added Fleur de Lis Handicap Saturday at Churchill Downs, defeating a field of seven fillies and mares 3-years-old and up.

Jimmy Nichols rode the winner over a sloppy mile in 1:35. Bundler returned $4.40, $3 and $2.40. Jay Bar Pet, part of an entry that included Lilac Lady, paid $5.60 and $3. Tappahannock returned $3.20 to show.

DRAFT PROVES RUPP'S POINT— NBA Tips Hat To Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—That grand old man of basketball, Adolph Rupp, calls this year's National Basketball Association draft "a great tribute to Kentucky basketball."

"And I don't mean just the University of Kentucky," Rupp said in an interview. "I mean the entire state of Kentucky. When you have two teams in the NCAA finals, you know you've got a hell of a lot of material."

Nine players from the state, including four from Kentucky, runner-up in the NCAA final, and two from Louisville, which finished third in the tournament, were drafted in the first eight rounds Thursday.

Drafted by the NBA this year were Kentucky's Kevin Grevey, by Washington; Jimmy Dan Conner, by Phoenix; Bob Guyette, by Kansas City, and Mike Flynn, by Philadelphia.

Also picked were Louisville's Junior Bridgeman, by Los Angeles, and Allen Murphy, by Phoenix. Kentucky State's Andre Hampton and Harvey Carmichael, both by New Orleans, and Western Kentucky's Mike Odems, by Cleveland.

"But being drafted doesn't always mean anything," Rupp said. "What means something is whether you stick it out in the pros and make a name for yourself."

Rupp, who retired three years ago after 40 years as coach at Kentucky, said more than 30 players from the university "have played at one time or another with professional teams."

"That goes back to Leroy Edwards, who I think was the first (underclassman) player drafted out of college when Indianapolis took him in 1935."

"Now he was one of those who stuck it out. I think he played his entire (basketball) life with the Oshkosh team at a time when the New York Knicks weren't even heard of."

"Then there was Boston's big scoop in 1955 when they took (Cliff) Hagan. (Frank) Ramsey and (Lou) Tsioropoulos and they all stuck it out."

Hagan, who later played with the St. Louis Hawks and the Dallas Chaperals, will become athletic director at the University of Kentucky this summer when Harry Lancaster retires.

"I am stunned," said Bill Bowerman, a former coach of Prefontaine and coach of the U.S. Olympic track and field team in 1972. "He was the greatest athlete I ever coached, and he was a fine person. He really loved life."

Walt McClure, Prefontaine's high school coach, put it this way: "The whole town is going to be in shock for a long time."

76ers Claim McGinnis Philadelphia Not Interested In Trade

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia 76ers said Saturday they considered George McGinnis to be peerless and they have no interest in a trade with the New York Knicks.

"His talent is such that there is no equitable trade," said Pat Williams, general manager of the National Basketball Association team. "If there could be a trade, we would make one, but there is none."

Williams also reaffirmed the team's resolve to retain its grip on the former American Basketball Association player, whose NBA draft rights are owned by the 76ers. "No deals. No trade. We're not going to yield, not going to relent," he said.

The New York Knicks signed McGinnis on Friday to a $2.9 million contract that included $500,000 for signing, $275,000 a year for six years and $125,000 in annuities for another six years. The 6-foot-8 235-pound forward had just dropped a court suit challenging the NBA draft.

Philadelphia claims the Knicks acted in "flagrant violation" of the league draft rules, but the Knicks don't agree. They believe McGinnis is a special case—a free agent whose NBA rights had been held by the 76ers for two years, long enough to give that club time to sign him.

At issue is the right of a player to negotiate with the club of his choice rather than the one owning his draft rights. The draft is widely considered the backbone of the sport, a guarantee of decorum in a profession as competitive at the bargaining table as it is on the playing court.

Four years ago, McGinnis left Indiana University after his sophomore season and signed a three-year contract with the ABA Indiana Pacers. When his college class was graduated two years later, he became eligible, under NBA rules, for their draft. Philadelphia selected him.

McGinnis developed into a superstar in the ABA and indicated a desire to play in the NBA—with New York—after his first Pacers' contract expired. He changed his mind and stayed with Indiana, with the option after one year of buying his contract and leaving.

Philadelphia at one time had an agreement with the Pacers that allowed them to negotiate with McGinnis. The 76ers later withdrew it.

"George McGinnis has never told us he won't come (to Philadelphia)," Williams said Saturday. "The Knicks have told us, and his agent, who's based in New York, has told us. But when George McGinnis says no, that will have a lot more impact."

SPORTS SCRATCHPAD Slow Start Bothers Aaron

Henry Aaron says his disappointing start with the Milwaukee Brewers this season has got him down. "I've never been a quitter," said the 41-year-old slugger who is batting .183. "I'm not ready to throw the towel in. . . . I'm sick of using the same old excuses about this being a new league and facing new pitchers. But being a DH makes you a different kind of player. This way, if you make an out, that's all you're thinking about."

The Cincinnati Reds announced their best attendance in history for the month of May, reporting that 311,754 fans had been drawn to Riverfront Stadium for an average of 24,212 in 13 dates.

Track

"I don't know where I'm going from here, but I know I can do it," said Houston McTear after running a sluggish 9.4 100 at the inaugural Wildcat Meet of Champions at Villanova, Pa. McTear was responding to the question of who is going to run the 100-yard dash in 8.9?

McTear defeated world record holder Ivory Crockett, who finished third. McTear explained his time by noting, "I slipped at the start."

Football

Los Angeles Rams halfback Jim Bertelsen has been cleared of involvement in alleged gambling at a local bar of which he is part owner, the Austin American-Statesman reported Saturday.

Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama said Friday he plans to keep making noises "until administrators get off their backsides and do something to provide financial security for assistant college coaches. Bryant said he wants a pension plan established for assistant coaches and trainers.

Bryant proposes a spring game to get the ball rolling. "If we could have that spring game, I'd guarantee Alabama would line up with Ohio State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Texas or somebody like that and put some money in the kitty."

John Thompson of the NFL's Management Council's Executive Committee said that knocking out the Rozelle Rule would likely result in wealthier teams buying up the better talent.

Hockey

"We told them we'd play 80 games this year and wanted 70 next," said Al Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Assn. NHL players are unhappy over a 1974-75 season that began in mid-September and ended in late May.

Eagleson added, "We told them (the owners) that the players are prepared to take a proportional cutback in salaries."

Plans for an international hockey tournament bringing teams from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and the U.S. to play the best available Canadians in 1976 were announced Friday in Ottawa. The hitch is getting approval from the NHL team owners.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said, however, that he could not imagine NHL players participating if their teams did not expand their injury insurance.

Basketball

The Soviet press dashed any hopes Saturday of New Orleans' NBA Jazz signing Aleksander Belov, "the best center in Soviet basketball," by defining the 23-year-old player's plans for the near future. Belov will train, the Tass said, at a Black Sea resort until June 6 and then take part in the European Basketball Championships in Yugoslavia.

Atlanta Hawks Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said 5-4 North Carolina State guard Monte Towe would have been drafted on the fourth round, even if he hadn't been a roommate of prize prospect David Thompson. "Frankly, I think Monte will be good for pro ball, if he can make it."

Prefontaine Regarded Top U.S. Olympic Hope

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—"He thought he was the best in the world," University of Oregon track coach Bill Dellinger said of his protege.

And one day soon, Steve Prefontaine might have been.

Regarded as America's greatest distance runner and the country's best hope for a 1976 Olympic gold medal, Prefontaine died in a car crash here early Friday at the age of 24. His death came hours after he had come within 1 1/2 seconds of matching his record in the 5,000 meters in a Eugene meet Thursday night.

Prefontaine began serious running in high school, had a dazzling career at Oregon and believed, with his thousands of adoring fans, that he would bring home a gold medal from the 1976 Munich Olympics.

Instead he brought home shattered pride and a bruised ego, having discovered that despite what everybody told him, he was not yet in the big leagues of the world's distance runners.

Prefontaine loved his fans, calling them "my people." He loved the roar of the crowds and the electric atmosphere of a big meet. Everywhere he turned people told him he was the greatest. It was easy to believe and he didn't enjoy finding out he wasn't.

He began looking for faults in the system that nurtured him. America, he concluded, basks in the glory of its amateur athletes, yet won't give them one cent worth of support.

To be the best, he once said, "is almost a full-time job. . . . and that's impossible. I've got bills to pay. I'm just like any other American. If I don't pay my electric bill they turn off my lights."

"I'm not demoralized, just facing facts," he said. "After college our athletes are turned out to pasture. We have no Olympic program in this country. It's as simple as that—no sports medicine, no camps, no nothing."

Others Recalled Rupp, who while at Kentucky coached more winning teams than any other coach in college history, also called to mind Dan Issel, Louie Dampier, Pat Riley, Vernon Hatten, Johnny Cox and Larry Steele as some of the top pro players he had coached.

A. B. Chandler, former major league baseball commissioner and two-time governor of Kentucky who claims to be a Kentucky basketball fan "longer than any man, living or dead," added Jeff Mullins to the list of Kentuckians who made good at the pro level.

Prefontaine Death Stuns His Friends

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Friends and acquaintances of Steve Prefontaine reacted to the accidental death Friday of the star distance runner at age 24 with shock and dismay.

"The stunning news of Steve Prefontaine's death has crushed those of us who knew and admired this outstanding young athlete," said Robert Clark, president of the University of Oregon, which Prefontaine attended.

"I was personally acquainted with him and had talked with him often in recent years. We mourn for him, for his family and for the days of his glory that shall come no more."

Jim Putney, president of the Oregon Track Club, said, "On behalf of the Oregon Track Club, I can only say that we share with the world of track the tragic loss of Steve Prefontaine. Steve's life burned bright on and off the field and today we all experience a little darkness at the loss."

"I can't say anything," was the somber reaction of Frank Shorter, star runner for the Florida Track Club. "Not only was he a great runner, he was a very good friend. He was the reason I came to Eugene for last night's meet."

Walt McClure, Prefontaine's high school coach, put it this way: "The whole town is going to be in shock for a long time."

Boston Trips Twins, 12-8, On Rice Homer

BLOOMINGTON (AP)—Jim Rice's three-run homer in the seventh inning highlighted a 17-hit Boston attack and boosted the Red Sox to a 12-8 comeback victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Rice's seventh homer of the year, a 371-foot belt into the left field seats off Tom Burgmeier, 2-2, came after Jim Burleson and Carl Yastrzemski singled. Yastrzemski's hit was the 2,300th of his major league career.

Minnesota wasted three-run homers by Larry Hise and Rod Carew and a solo shot by Steve Braun as the Red Sox rallied from a 7-3 deficit to maintain their lead in the American League East.

Roger Moret, 2-0, who took over from starter Rick Wise in the fourth following Carew's homer, checked the Twins on one run the rest of the way to gain the victory.

Rice also singled home a run in Boston's three-run fifth then worked a double steal with Fred Lynn, who scored from third. Dwight Evans capped the Red Sox' assault with a two-run double in the ninth.

Kathy Schmidt Sets U.S. Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Olympian Kathy Schmidt set an American record for women Saturday when she threw the javelin 209 feet, 3 inches. Miss Schmidt's throw broke her own mark of 208-1 set in May 1973.

Miss Schmidt, of UCLA, set the record at the Long Beach Comet Women's Invitational Meet on her home campus.

She had four throws Saturday of more than 200 feet and a fifth of 199 feet.

Miss Schmidt, 21, was a bronze medalist in the event at the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

Nastase Walks Off In Huff At Rome

ROME (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert of the United States crushed Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-0 Saturday to retain her women's singles title in the Italian Open tennis championship.

Third-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania walked off the court and conceded his semifinal match to Raul Ramirez of Mexico. Ramirez was leading 6-2, 5-2 at the time.

Nastase, who had just been given a gold medal by the Italian tennis federation for playing 10 consecutive editions of the Rome Open, said he was too nervous and could not breathe well. He blamed the jitters on a 40-minute wait for Ramirez, who was tied up in Rome traffic.

In the other men's singles semifinal, fourth-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain crushed second-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

It took Miss Evert 44 minutes to dispose of the usually tough Czechoslovak left-hander who was seeded second. The American star, who lost only 13 games in the five-day tournament, collected $5,000 for her victory.

Nastase, a temperamental star whose record of clashes with tournament officials includes a disqualification at the British Hardcourt Championships in Bournemouth earlier this year, grabbed a 2-0 lead, scoring seven straight points, as Ramirez looked sluggish and erratic. The 22-year-old Mexican, however, made a tremendous comeback.

He won eight straight games, taking the first set 6-2 and grabbing a 2-0 lead in the second. In his drive, he conceded just seven points to Nastase, a winner of the tournament in 1970 and 1973 and a finalist last year.

Ramirez served bombshells, placed passing shots down the sidelines when Nastase tried to attack, and he took command of the net whenever he wanted with ease.

After another break which left him trailing 2-5 in the second set, Nastase walked to the referee, shook hands with him and Ramirez and conceded.

"I have a cold," Nastase said as he walked into the dressing rooms, his ears filled with jeers from the crowd of 7,000 in the Foro Italico center court.

Ford To Rule On Title IX Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will make public next week his decision on controversial new federal anti-discrimination rules regarding women in school and college sports, The Associated Press has learned.

Sources in and outside the government have said the Ford administration will publish the new rules in the Federal Register either Tuesday or Wednesday and have so informed members of Congress.

No Indication

There was no indication whether Ford would approve in toto the final draft of the new regulations sent to him by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger on March 25.

The final draft drew strong criticism from women's groups, charging the rules are too weak, and from the National Collegiate Athletic Association, calling them too strong and a threat to bigtime college sports.

If Ford approves the regulations, they will be sent to Congress for a 45-day period during which the House and Senate could reject them.

The regulations interpret Title IX of the 1972 education amendments which bar unequal treatment of the sexes. They forbid the exclusion of any person from participating in athletics on the basis of sex and apply to any school that receives federal funds for any program or activity.

July 1 Unlikely

The administration had hoped to implement the regulations by July 1, in time for the 1975-76 school year, but that would be delayed if Congress takes its full 45 days to act.

Changes from the agency's original version of the proposed regulations include:

- Women may not try out for men's teams in contact sports—defined as boxing, wrestling, basketball, football, ice hockey and rugby—even if no women's team in that sport is available. They may, however, try out for men's non-contact sports teams if no women's team is available.
- An annual poll of what sports students want to play the next year will not be required.
- Physical education classes still have to be integrated sexually, but may be segregated for contact sports and for sex education.
- Schools will not have to make special efforts for support and training of women in sports if they have not done so previously.

Texas League Averages

El Paso outfielder Carlos Lopez is setting the pace for Texas League batters with a .344 average, according to latest official statistics compiled by Ed Williams.

Lopez also leads in hits, 52, while Mitchell Page of Shreveport is the slugging leader with a .541 mark.

In pitching, Shreveport's Rich Anderson is the top winner with seven victories and Mike Kavanagh of Shreveport is the pace-setter in earned-run average, 1.86, and possesses a 6-1 record to go with it. Anderson's three shutouts also are tops in the league.

Midland's Donnie Moore is the busiest pitcher with 61 1/3 innings pitched.

In team statistics, El Paso's .282 batting mark is tops in the circuit and Shreveport is the homer hitting leader, with 37. While Midland, the home run leader the last two years, isn't knocking 'em out of the park at the 1973-74 rate, the Cubs aren't that far off the pace with 27, good for third place.

Midland is seventh in team batting with a .250 average, however. Shreveport is third with a .271 and that, combined with a league-leading ERA of 2.71, explains why the Pittsburgh Pirate farmhands are running away with the Texas League West Division race.

Midland ranks sixth in team fielding, but shows a marked improvement over previous years in pitching ERA with a 4.06, good for fifth place. Shreveport's staff leads in shutouts with six and Lafayette's Drillers, the old Amarillo club which is leading the East Division, has the most complete games with 12, nudging the Captains by one.

After another break which left him trailing 2-5 in the second set, Nastase walked to the referee, shook hands with him and Ramirez and conceded.

"I have a cold," Nastase said as he walked into the dressing rooms, his ears filled with jeers from the crowd of 7,000 in the Foro Italico center court.

Nicklaus Sights-In On Grand Slam Bid

ATLANTA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, whose incredible accomplishments are unmatched in the lengthy history of golf, continues to play the game for two reasons.

"I like it," he said. "I like the competition. I like the challenge."

"And I have not yet achieved all I want in the game."

But it's possible, barely possible, that he could fulfill his own goals, complete those achievements this year. It could happen Aug. 10 on the bowl-shaped 18th green of the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio.

If it does, his competitive career, for all intents and purposes, will be at an end.

"I would have nothing else to prove to myself," said Nicklaus, who now owns most of the records worth having in the game.

It all involves the unaccomplished Grand Slam of Golf, a 11-but-impossible, one-year sweep of the American and British Opens, the Masters and the PGA.

He has the first leg. That was nailed down with his record fifth Masters title this spring in what may have been the most exciting golf tournament of all time.

Next is the U.S. Open in Medinah, Ill. in a couple of weeks.

And that is the key. "If I can win the Open," Nicklaus said. "I think I'll have a better chance at the Slam than I did in 1972."

In that season Nicklaus mounted a dedicated assault on the one-year blitz of all the world's major crowns. He won the Masters. And he won the U.S. Open in whipping winds at Pebble Beach, Calif.

He had half of it. The third tournament was the British Open, at Muirfield, Scotland, probably Nicklaus' favorite of all the world's courses, the one after which he has modeled his life's dream layout in Muirfield Village, Ohio.

For three rounds, attempting to play the finest shots the tough old course requires, Nicklaus slipped further and further back. Then in the last round, out came the driver. He boldly challenged the gorse and heather, the thistles and thickets and came within a breath of one of the great rounds of all time. He lost by a stroke to Lee Trevino's chip-in heroics.

Jack Marvels At Ben Hogan Triple Sweep Back In 1953

The dream was gone. For that year.

But now it's back.

"It's an almost-impossible thing to do," Nicklaus said. "What Hogan did was almost incredible."

Ben Hogan, in 1953, won the Masters, the U.S. and British Opens. And he did not play in the PGA. That's the closest anyone has ever come.

But Nicklaus is challenging for a second time. It's the only thing he's concerned with.

"Yes I guess I'd have to admit it. I'll be disappointed if I don't make it," he said, then shrugged. "You always set your goals higher than you can achieve."

But his chances of making it, of achieving that incredible sweep, now are better than ever before he said. The reason:

"I'm a better player than I've ever been before, a much better player than I was in 1972."

His chances for the Slam depend a great deal on the Medinah Country Club in suburban Chicago, Nicklaus said.

Will WFL Renegade?

Bankruptcy Petition Makes It Seem So

NEW YORK (AP) — The bankruptcy petition filed by the 1974 version of the World Football League appears to reject payment of any futures contract to any player. And it differs in several areas from the description put on it by current league officials.

Officials of the current league have trumpeted their desire to make good on all debts incurred by last year's WFL and have said they would do so over the next 12 years by donating 1 1/2 per cent of the team's net revenue to a special disbursement fund.

However, the petition filed in a federal court in California under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy laws says this about repayment: The league "agrees to pay a sum equal to one-half per cent of the net revenues received by its members present and future located in Southern California, Memphis, Hawaii and Philadelphia, and one and one-half per cent of the net revenues received by all members."

Among the four franchises getting the one per cent break

World Football League was re-named the Football Creditors Payment Plan, Inc. From this group, the new league purchased, for $10,000, the "name, initials, service mark and goodwill" of the WFL and incorporated as The New League, Inc., doing business as the WFL.

Under this arrangement, the 1975 WFL is not legally responsible for 1974's debts. But the new league says it wants to make good on those debts through the plan proposed under the bankruptcy laws.

To do this, the league proposes an initial payment of $200,000 to the repayment fund, with the remainder of the estimated $6 million to $8 million in debts to come from each year's gross revenues.

Prep Cager Signs With NBA's 76ers

CHANGES INTRODUCED IN DRAFT

NEW YORK (AP) — Basketball's annual summer free agent draft will be held from Wednesday through Friday this week with several changes being introduced into this year's selection of the top high school and collegiate prospects.

The California Angels have first choice in the regular phase of the draft followed by the San Diego Padres. The two leagues continue to alternate picks according to inverse order of last year's regular season records with the Los Angeles Dodgers the last team to choose in each round.

Previously, the summer draft has been held over a two-day period but it had been expanded to three days this year. And instead of having player personnel representatives from the clubs gather in New York for the draft, the process will be conducted via telephone, the same way the smaller winter draft is held.

In another change, the regular phase of the draft comprising players being selected for the first time, will be interrupted after Wednesday's round. The clubs will start Thursday's drafting with the secondary phase for players who have been drafted but not signed previously. After the shorter, secondary phase is completed, the clubs will return to the regular phase and complete that on Thursday and Friday.

Tech's Sloan Visits Midland For Barbecue

Steve Sloan, Texas Tech's new football coach, and 4-6 members of his staff will be in Midland Thursday for a 7:30 p.m. barbecue at the VFW Hall.

Tech execs and those interested in Texas Tech are invited to attend. Reservations may be made through Jack Hightower (882-9779).

"It will give us some idea of how many to expect," said Hightower.

Sloan will be going into his first season as Tech coach since succeeding Jim Carlen. Sloan, a former Alabama quarterback under Bear Bryant, coached Vanderbilt University to the Peach Bowl against Tech last season.

No College Basketball For Dawkins

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers today announced the signing of basketball standout Darryl Dawkins, who will be graduated from high school next week.

Specifics of the reported seven-year, $1 million contract were not disclosed, but Dawkins, the first high school player ever drafted by a National Basketball Association team, called it "beautiful."

The 6-foot-10, 248-pound center, dapper in a white suit and black velvet bow tie, told reporters at a news conference that he thinks he can play in the NBA.

"I think anything that comes up, I can adjust to," he said.

Gene Shue, 76ers coach, agreed.

"Darryl just doesn't look like a high school player to me," he said. "I don't think there are going to be a lot of problems."

Scout Jack McMahon, who first saw Dawkins at Maynard Evans High School in Orlando, Fla., called him "as talented as any player I've seen."

Asked if Dawkins would start next year, McMahon said, "We expect him to."

Referring to Moses Malone, who was drafted out of high school last year by the American Basketball Association, McMahon said: "Moses Malone could not beat Darryl Dawkins in a game of horse."

Joe Garagiola Wears Better Than Cosell

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "Listen, I'll tell you like it really is," said Joe Garagiola, a lengthy Don Diego cigar in his hand and fire in his eyes. "Howard But Frank Gifford, Pat Summerall, Maury Wills — Cosell everybody he says he does, he's not about to tell me they aren't good broadcasters."

Joe was punctuating his remarks with emphatic thrusts of his cigar. "Man, I get tired of Cosell tellin' the world he had breakfast with Don Klosterman and lunch with Carroll Rosenbloom and what he said to Pete Rozelle at dinner. And, man, I'm tired of having Cosell say the only thing his casting is mediocrity."

"What makes a broadcaster, ballplayer," Joe is saying. "All anyway? Is it a guy like Cosell I hit lifetime was 207. I got who went to law school and a bigger area code—212," couldn't make it as a lawyer?"

A fellow wondered if Garagiola was exaggerating for Garagiola and Cosell, two of effect, that he wasn't all that television's most colorful commentators, were engaged in a feud.

Joe shook his head. "Nah, got to be the worst ballplayer we're not sore at each other," he said. "What I'm saying now I've said to Howard. We disagree, is all. I just don't buy that stuff about him telling me it like it is. What he really does is tell us what his like sun in future ABC shows."

"Cosell goes around putting the slam on ex-athletes in the booth. Everybody knows I wore the tools of ignorance as a big cut and the dirt looks hard league catcher and people were surprised I could say any words from right field."

Umps Take Lumps In Latest Expose

By JACK MURPHY
Copley News Service

You have to be a bit suspicious of the author's research when he identifies Bakersfield, Calif., as a community located 125 miles south of San Diego.

While reading Lee Gutkind's provocative new book about umpires, "The Best Seat in Baseball, But You Have to Stand," I often wondered if he had truly portrayed his subjects—notably Doug Harvey, Harry Wendelstedt, Nick Colosi and Art Williams.

The book is bitter, almost savage, in tone. Gutkind represents umpires as an odd breed of men who despise ballplayers and managers, people who feel persecuted to the edge of paranoia.

One feels compelled to ask if the job is so hard and mean, if the company is so undesirable, why don't they seek a more agreeable vocation?

"I'll tell you why I'm an umpire," says Doug Harvey, "because I love it. There is pride in knowing that the real integrity of the game is vested in the umpires."

"Honesty is the thing I came into this game with and honesty is the thing I'll die with."

"The thing is full of untruths, it's a flock of lies," says Harvey. "But I've promised my attorney to remain silent."

Peter Shenhas has been reading the book page by page,

Highway 80 Tour Slated

The seven-stop Highway 80 tennis trail opens in Odessa June 24-26 and winds up in San Angelo July 14-16.

The Midland Tournament is scheduled June 27-29 with Lee High tennis coach Bobby Connell the meet director. Other stops are Andrews June 30-July 3; Lubbock July 4-6; Big Spring July 7-9; Abilene July 10-13.

Competition will range from men's and women's singles and doubles to boys and girls 13-and-under singles and doubles. Entry deadline for the Midland Tournament is 6 p.m. June 23.

Matches will be played at the Midland High Tennis Center and boys and Lee High omen and girls).

The author questions the courage of Mets catcher Jerry Grote. And he manages to create an appearance, if not the substance, of evil by identifying Harvey's wife, Joy, as an official of the Madres, the women fans who dote on the San Diego Padres.

This is not a book for juveniles. It is filled with the language of the gutter and if the author is accurate, umpires are characters who should be locked in cages and fed a diet of bananas.

Naturally, there will be some bruised feelings. Oakland manager Alvin Dark, for example, is branded as a hypocrite.

Harry Wendelstedt to Dark: "He's always quoting the Bible...The fans probably think he's a second Billy Graham. What they don't know is he is the most four-mouthed (censored) on the field you'd ever want to meet. Not a clean word comes out of his mouth in a moph."

Wendelstedt also brands Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh as a cheap skate, declaring that he wretched on a bet.

The umpire Al Barlick says of Warren Giles, former National League president: "The worst excuse for a league president I've ever seen."

But there is praise for Chub Feeney, Giles' successor: "Feeney is a good guy...fair, decent and honest."

Poisoning Trial Defendant Caught In Contradictions

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald C. O'Bryan, fighting for his life in a capital murder trial, kept his composure through a grueling five hours on the witness stand Friday, but time after time he was caught in contradictions that brought gasps from the packed courtroom.

O'Bryan, 30, is charged with capital murder in the Halloween trick or treat candy poisoning of his eight-year-old son, Timothy. The state contends he killed the boy to collect on more than $30,000 in life insurance.

In direct examination by his defense lawyer, Richard Harrison, O'Bryan repeatedly denied he had anything to do with lacing five Halloween candies with cyanide and then distributing them to children, including his own son and daughter.

Timothy died after eating part of a Pixy Stix, a powdered confection packaged in a plastic tube.

"Did you kill your son by giving him a Pixy Stix poisoned with cyanide?" asked Harrison.

"No, I did not," said O'Bryan. He leaned forward, looked directly at the 10-man, two-woman jury and shook his head slowly as he answered.

Harrison came back with the question several times and O'Bryan always answered in the same manner.

In a final question, Harrison again asked if O'Bryan knew the candy he was handing out to five children contained deadly poison.

"Good God, if I did, I wouldn't have given it to them," he said.

In a brutal, relentless two-hour cross examination, however, assistant district attorney Mike Hinton created apparent layer after layer of contradictions, often causing O'Bryan to change his recollections.

Numerous times O'Bryan's answers to Hinton's hammering questions brought gasps of astonishment from a courtroom that was so packed spectators were standing along the walls.

Hinton started by reviewing with O'Bryan his work history. Starting from the day O'Bryan married 10 years ago, Hinton asked the defendant to explain why he resigned from each of 21 jobs—ranging from a contact lens plant in Baltimore to an optical office in Big Spring, Tex.

The jobs lasted from a few days to as long as almost two years.

Hinton repeated the testimony from two witnesses who quoted O'Bryan as saying he had a bleeding ulcer.

"Did the doctor ever really tell you that you had a bleeding ulcer," asked Hinton.

"Well, he said I had a starting ulcer," replied O'Bryan.

The prosecutor repeated O'Bryan's testimony that he had never discussed, after his son's death, how the insurance money was to be spent.

O'Bryan said his statements were true.

Hinton then reviewed in detail the testimony of O'Bryan's wife, her sister and a brother-in-law. Each had said O'Bryan talked of spending the money.

As each incident was recounted, O'Bryan admitted that he had discussed some use of the money. Hinton, writing on a chalkboard, listed six times O'Bryan allegedly discussed spending the money. They included trips to Florida, a long work vacation, a new house and others.

Pressed on each point, O'Bryan reversed himself and admitted they were true.

At one point, Hinton established from O'Bryan that he was months behind in car payments, was thousands of dollars in debt and owed the federal government more than $800 in taxes.

Then he asked O'Bryan why he kept using the pronoun "we" in discussing family finances.

O'Bryan replied that he and his wife always "did things together" and discussed major decisions.

Why, then, asked Hinton, didn't O'Bryan tell his wife of the $30,000 insurance policies he took out on the children just before Halloween, paying $108 in cash for the premiums.

O'Bryan replied that it was a "little decision."

"Would you call taking out $30,000 in life insurance on two little children in your financial condition when you didn't have a dime of insurance on your own life a little decision?" asked Hinton.

"Yes, sir," replied O'Bryan. The reply brought a sustained gasp and groan from the audience and a hail of questions to order the courtroom to silence.

Hinton also asked O'Bryan about a telephone call he made to a chemist to inquire about the uses and fatal doses of cyanide. The call was made early in September.

The defendant said the call was prompted by curiosity aroused by a television program on cyanide.

Hinton said, however, the television program was not aired until Sept. 28.

"How do you explain calling (the chemist) on the second Tuesday in September about a television program that hadn't even been shown yet?" asked Hinton.

When O'Bryan said the chemist was wrong about the date, Hinton asked a question that became almost a litany through the cross examination: "Mister O'Bryan, do you mean to tell this court and this jury that you are the only man in this room that is telling the truth?"

Despite the rigorous cross examination, O'Bryan never lost his composure and in final direct questions from his lawyer was stoutly defending his veracity and his innocence.

State District court Judge Frank Price recessed the month-long trial until Monday when the state is expected to present several rebuttal witnesses. Closing arguments are expected on Tuesday.

Jurors in the trial are not sequestered and were permitted to go home.

Well, He Made It Up The Monument Anyway

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — after it has been greased by upper classmen and replacing the seaman's cap on top with one of their own.

But the midshipman who finally made it to the top of the obelisk on his classmates' shoulders apparently forgot the second part of the tradition that requires him to obtain one of the superintendent's shoulder boards, signifying that he supposedly will be the first of his class to attain flag rank.

The exercise, which has been carried out by the freshman class each year since the 1920's, involves climbing the 51-foot monument

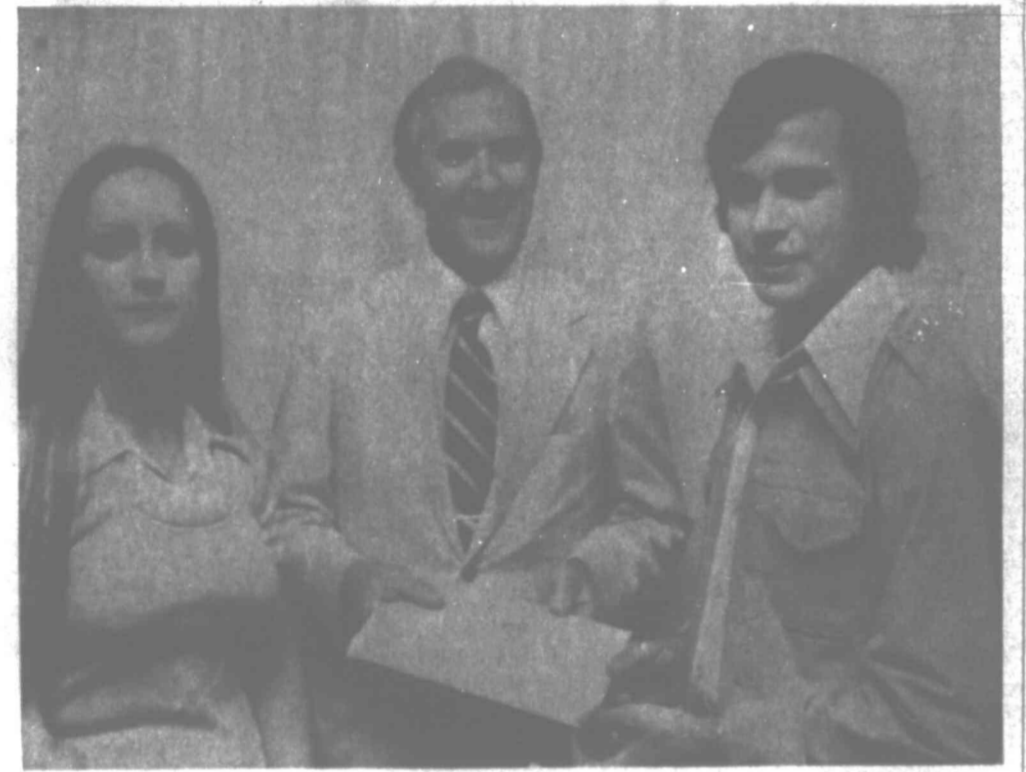

P. Mack, the academy superintendent, stood waiting patiently on the steps of the chapel across the street from the monument, 21-year-old Mike Spencer of Austin, Tex., who had made the successful climb, disappeared on the shoulders of his comrades, leaving Mack waiting like a bride on the church steps.

"Oh well, I'll send it to him anyway," Mack smiled as he finally gave up the wait and left for dinner.

Two Children Die, 14 Hurt In Bus Wreck

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two children have been killed and 14 others injured in the crash of a bus chartered by an Illinois church group on their way here to help celebrate a pastor's anniversary.

Police said the bus, chartered by the Mount Zion Baptist Church of Zion, Ill., skidded across a curve on rain-slicked Interstate 94 Friday night, bounced off the median and slid back across three lanes of highway before it tipped over and fell down an embankment.

Mary Ruhmann, R. H. Goerlich Wed

The First United Methodist Church was the setting at 7 p.m. Saturday for the marriage of Mary Kathryn Ruhmann and Richard Hall Goerlich in a double ring ceremony officiated by Dr. Timothy Guthrie and Rev. Dan Marlow.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ruhmann, 904 Princeton St. and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Goerlich of Houston. The bride is a graduate of Texas Woman's University. She is now employed as a registered nurse in the Cardiovascular Unit in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital in Houston. The bridegroom is a senior architectural student at The University of Houston. He is employed by Cline and Nelson Architects and Daddy's Money Restaurant.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown in candlelight silk organza over lutesong, with embroidered French Callaghan-Loutrel candlelight lace applied on a high yoke bodice and around the bottom of the dress with an organza bow highlighting the built-in train. The gown featured full Victorian sleeves of silk organza with re-embroidered lace cuffs with self-covered buttons. Her demi-cap covered with matching lace appliqués held a chapel length veil. The bride's mother designed and made the dress and headpiece. The bride's bouquet was of cascade style and carried on top of a prayer book. Her bouquet contained gardenias, tropicanna roses, stephanotis, gypsophila, springer fern surrounding a silk flower bouquet which was made by a family friend, Mrs. Keiko Kuriyama of Tokyo, Japan.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Gordon Cornelius of Lubbock, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Linda White of Oklahoma, Linda Henderer of Houston and Alison Goerlich of Houston, sister of the bridegroom. Kathryn Brummett of Baytown, cousin of the bridegroom, and Rebecca Ruhmann of San Antonio, cousin of the bride, were the flower girls.

Serving as the best man was F. Scott Goerlich of Nacogdoches, the brother of the bridegroom. Groomsman were Greg Goerlich of Houston, brother of the bridegroom; Anthony Macioni, also of Houston, and William C. Ruhmann, the brother of the bride. Ushers for the ceremony were William M. Ruhmann of San Antonio, cousin of the bride, Gordon Cornelius of Lubbock, brother-in-law of the bride, and Jim Callam of Baytown, cousin of the bridegroom.

The matron of honor wore a sleeveless A-line dress of printed chiffon in green, yellow, coral field flowers with a chiffon scarf drifting from around the neck to the full length of the dress in back. She wore a double horsehair tubing bow with streamers holding tiny tropicanna rosebuds. She carried a single tropicanna rose with fern and gypsophila with green-gold ribbon streamers.

The bridesmaids wore dresses similar to that of the matron of honor except in a coral shimmer knit with matching chiffon scarves. They wore identical headpieces and carried a single tropicanna rose with fern and gypsophila with green-gold ribbon streamers holding tiny tropicanna rosebuds. The flower girls wore coral shimmer knit dresses with white pinafores. They carried baskets of tropicanna roses, daisies, gypsophila and fern with green-gold streamers.

The church was decorated with two spiral candelabra with emerald greenery. White double bows marked reserved sections. The arrangements for the church and reception that was held in the bride's parents' home, were made by Mrs. Keiko Kuriyama and two assistants of Tokyo, Japan. Mrs. Stan Gill of Lubbock was the soloist and George DeHart was the organist.

Engagement Told

Mrs. Joan Stocks Nobles of San Angelo announces the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to Jim Bob Arrott Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Arrott Sr. of Ballinger. The bride-elect also is the daughter of Gerald C. Nobles of Midland.

Mrs. John O. Nobles Sr. of Midland is the paternal grandmother of the bride-elect. Miss Nobles is a graduate of Van Horn High School and Austin College. Her fiancé is a graduate of Ballinger High School and attended Angelo State University.

The couple plans to be married in the First United Methodist Church of San Angelo on Aug. 2.

Award Presented Midland Woman

Bonita Norris of Midland was among those receiving awards for Outstanding Clubwoman at a recent meeting of the Stokes-Parker District of the Texas Association of Women's Clubs in Odessa.

Miss Norris is a member of the Ebonette Civic and Social Club of Midland. She is attending Midland College, studying for a degree in nursing. Following graduation from MC, she plans to attend The University of Texas-Permian Basin.

Birth Announced
Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jon Sieker of Des Moines, Iowa, announce the birth May 28 of a son, Jason Jon. The grandparents are Mrs. A. J. C. Sieker of Midland and the late Mr. Sieker and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Radney of Houston.

Ends On Top
High man in the circus doesn't mean "the boss" but is the man who winds up on top of the human pyramid.

AUGUST WEDDING—Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Gleason, 3201 Douglas St., wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Fleming, to Peter Douglas Masten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas E. Masten, 1600 W. Pecan St. The bride-elect is a graduate of The University of Texas-Austin, as is her fiancé. He was a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, an honorary business fraternity. The couple plans to be married at 4:30 p.m. in the Episcopal Church of The Holy Trinity on Aug. 9.

HOROSCOPE
by Carroll Righter

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day of your best opportunities is ahead and you need to doublecheck with your best judgment for any important decisions to be made. Don't rely solely on your hunches now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Private affairs do not turn out as you wish today, so postpone making important decisions until another day. Be logical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good feeling cannot be relied upon today, so use your own good judgment for best results. Take needed health treatments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Guard your reputation and some others are in a most unrelenting mood now. Show that you are a conscientious person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Being alert to opportunities around you is wise, but don't take any action on them as yet. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You think you can handle an important matter in one way, but it is wrong, so consult an expert. Avoid any extravagance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An associate is discovering to include you in a new project. Keep alert and all is well. Make future plans tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Try to listen to what you are saying to me instead of arguing. Give your health more thought or you could regret it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) You have new ideas that should not be put down just yet. Show increased devotion to mate. Make it a happy evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to be more objective in all your dealings with family members. Remove any cause of friction. Be more cheerful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Attending the services of your church can be very helpful to you today. Use someone else's intuition later in the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take the time to improve those plans you have for the future and bring financial feelings today. Relax tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to control your temper with everyone today, or neither will the conversation. Later take time to improve your health.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can now discuss with some 1000-11000 associates how you can get rid of whatever is standing in the way of your program. But be sure to keep your decisions confidential and do the work required in an unobtrusive manner. Showing is good for romance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study that plan carefully to remove any error so it will be successful. A happy evening. Show more affection for mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Understand what good pals want from you and agree where feasible. Handle personal matters wisely. A busy social evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study public matters well and know how to add to present prestige via them. Take care of that credit matter without delay.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use discretion to decide which of the new interests that come up is best for you. Avoid one who is not your kind.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Give your attention to mate. Remove obstacles to trustworthiness during day, but is accurate in p.m. Take no chances with good name.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Talk over with associates your various debts and straighten out problems. Combine public matters with amusement at 2 p.m.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Though rubbed with much work, schedule time wisely. Take a short rest period in between so you renew your energy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) You can have a good time today but be sure you do not overindulge, or you can regret it later. Show more affection for mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show more kindness and thought for him to improve home conditions. Try to solve that problem early that suddenly comes up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be careful both in driving and where your wallet is concealed, or you stand to lose much today. A busy day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Analyze finances. Use your own judgment since that of an adviser is not to be so good, owing to pressure. Pause.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Forget misunderstandings with others during day since they clear up by evening. Stay clear of a greedy pal. Think positive.

Chapter Meets In City Home

The Xi Pi Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its final meeting of the year in the home of Mrs. Duane Stewart with Mrs. Eddie Wiginton, president, presiding.

Mrs. Wiginton announced the one-year-old chapter had obtained enough points to be rated a "Three Star Chapter." Mrs. Leonard Goodenough, treasurer, reported a donation had been sent to Multiple Sclerosis in memory of Mrs. Sara Woolridge. Mrs. Bill Shoemaker, social chairman, announced the chapter would hold a Hayride on June 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Semple. Other future social events will include a dinner, Summer Mummies, Bicycle Progressives Dinner, a Christmas party, Girls' Night Out, and a Children's Easter Egg Hunt.

Mrs. John Midkiff, service chairman, announced that she had written to Girlstown U.S.A. with a request to retain Linda Thorn as the chapter's adopted girl for the coming year. Mrs. Eddie Squyres, ways and means chairman, announced the chapter would have a Boutique Auction as a project and it would be held Nov. 6.

Mrs. Jack Camden, scholarship committee chairman for city council, announced the next city council meeting will be held June 2. A reception will follow honoring the recipients of the four scholarships given by the Midland City Council of Beta Sigma Phi.

Miss Prater, McLennan Wed In Odessa Church

ODESSA—Gary Lynn McLennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon G. McLennan of Midland, married Mary Louise Prater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Prater of Odessa, in a ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church.

Dr. Ed Hamilton was the officiating minister. The organist was Mrs. Earl L. Hartley of Washington, D.C., and the soloist was Scotty Rundell.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown in an ivory princess silhouette of sheer silk and Venise lace. Scrolled Venise lace accented the stand-up neckline, and the full bishop sleeves had elongated rows of scroll lace and motifs. Contoured princess-line panels fell in bouffant fullness and ended in a chapel train. She had a headpiece of ivory French illusion which fell in tiers to the elbow from a matching lace Camelot. She carried a cascade of white and yellow Sweetheart rosebuds.

Susie Howell was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Karen McLennan of Midland, sister of the bridegroom, and Sally Black of Breckenridge. The bridegroom attended Midland College and is employed in the personnel department of Drilco in Houston.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents in the Branding Iron.

Dear Abby

Yakking Seatmates Drive Her Up Wall

DEAR ABBY: I love to travel, my children (like coloring, playing games and working puzzles), but I find myself letting my housework go. The kids always have clean clothes and good meals, but my house is a wreck! There must be a smooth routine or method in a book somewhere, but I'm too ashamed to ask for it—after 10 years of marriage.

DEAR HOPELESS: Nobody's hopeless. First, teach your children to hang up their clothes (when they're old enough) and put away their toys before going to bed. Don't eat (or let anyone else eat) anywhere but in the kitchen or dining room. Don't let the children undress anywhere except in their bedroom. (This goes for shoes, too.)

After breakfast, wash the dishes immediately, so they won't stack up. Don't ever set anything down. Put it where it belongs! Give one room a thorough cleaning every day, and dust and sweep the other rooms. And if your house isn't always a model for "House Beautiful," don't worry. Doing things with your kids pays bigger dividends than being the neatest housekeeper on the block.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Deborah A. Emerick Wed To James R. Fox In Church

Deborah Ann Emerick and James Russell Fox repeated double ring wedding vows in a ceremony at 3 p.m. Saturday in St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Emerick, 2511 Camarie St., and Mrs. Margie Fox of 3807 Suncrest St.

The Rev. Dan Schuckebrock officiated for the ceremony. The organist was Mrs. Boyd Wolf.

Attending as maid of honor was Janice Naert. Jeanne Fox, sister of the bridegroom, and Sandra Emerick, cousin of the bride, of New Orleans, La., were the bridesmaids. The flower girl was Donna Dowden of Lafayette, La., and the candle lighters were Greg Moore of Midland and Mike Shearburn of Hurst.

Gerald Graham of Brownfield was the best man. He is an uncle of the bridegroom. The groomsmen were Eddie Lasater of Bryan, David Renshaw of Dallas, Mike Courter of Midland and Johnny Campbell of Fort Worth.

The church was decorated with a memory candle with jade foliage flanked with spiral candelabra.

Ushering the guests were Jim Hoffman of Fort Stockton, Tom Emerick of New Orleans and Danny Clark of Lubbock.

Mr. Emerick presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of formal length of angel.

The outgoing and incoming members of the Bufnet PTA Executive Board gave a salad luncheon for the principal and teachers of Burnet Elementary School recently.

The theme of the party was the fifties and the sixties and decorations followed the theme. Centerpieces were flags with the names of popular songs and groups from that era.

Also attending was Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of schools.

skin enhanced with Venice lace. The lace overlaid the fitted bodice which had a scooped neckline and lace shoulder caps over lantern sleeves. The A-line skirt and train were finished with a ruffle flounce and encircled with a wide border of matching lace. Her chapel-length mantilla of silk illusion was edged with matching lace and was held by a Camelot of matching lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses, miniature white carnations, yellow statice and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a maize-colored formal gown of polyester knit jersey with jacket. She had a matching hat accented with white satin ribbon, carnations and daisies. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and miniature yellow carnations with baby's breath.

The other bridal attendants wore identically-styled dresses as that of the honor attendant. They wore matching hats with daisies and carried bouquets of white daisies and baby's breath.

The reception was held in the Patio Room of Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Gilbert Naert, Mrs. Curtis Dowden of Lafayette, Mrs. Gerald Graham of Brownfield, Debra Sides of Midland and Mrs. Omar Emerick of New Orleans were in the house party.

The couple will reside in Midland following a trip to Waikiki, Hawaii.

The bride and bridegroom were graduated from Texas Tech University. She is employed by the Midland County Welfare Department and he is employed by Petroleum Analytical Laboratory Service.

The bridegroom's parents had the rehearsal dinner in the Garden Room of Midland Country Club. Judy Berroteran was hostess to a miscellaneous shower for the bride.

Rebecca Coker Marries B. G. Choat In Service

Rebecca Diann Coker married Billy G. Choat at 8 p.m. Friday in a double ring ceremony in the First Assembly of God Church with Rev. J. W. Farmer officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. Z. Coker, 4726 Storey St., and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Choat, 1400 S. Fort Worth St.

The couple plans to marry at 8 p.m. Aug. 2 in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Miss Graham Marries W. A. Glasscock Jr. Here

Paula Elaine Graham became the bride of William Andrew Glasscock Jr. at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Memorial Christian Church. Rev. Ron Briley officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Wesley Dale Graham, 306 Kessler St. and Mrs. Evelyn Graham of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Glasscock Sr. of Big Lake.

Baskets of white daisies decorated the front of the church and two 7-pronged candelabra with daisies enhanced the altar. Mrs. E. F. Motter was the organist and Cindy Caswell of Levelland was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long, white dress of silk organza with bunches of daisy floral trim scattered on the dress. The sleeves gathered at the wrists and were ruffled. The high neckline, open in the front, was gathered and ruffled. She carried a bouquet of white daisies with a few yellow daisies intermingled.

Sonja Graham, sister of the bride, of Lubbock, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Steva Graham, also sister of the bride, Nan Biscoe, Delana Rogers, cousin of the bride, and Johanna Rogers, also cousin of the bride, both of Levelland.

Serving as best man was Hal Joyce of Big Lake. The groomsmen were Tommy Horn of San Angelo, Danny Curtis, Gary McKamie of Eules and Bill Friend of Big Lake. Dawson Smith of Abilene and David Aly of San Angelo were the ushers.

The bridesmaids and the maid of honor wore identical dresses of yellow silk with Empire waistline featuring a laced front and lace on each side with a yellow ribbon tie at the waistline. The short sleeves of yellow organza were puffed. They wore white hats circled in yellow ribbon and carried a small bouquet of white daisies with yellow daisies intermingled.

The reception followed in the church parlor.

Midland Student Receives Degree

SEGUN—Marsha Streit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Streit of Midland, was among 192 students at Texas Lutheran College receiving degrees at recent commencement exercises at the college.

Miss Streit was a history major and received a bachelor of arts degree. She was a member of Phi Alpha Theta history honor society and the campus' congregation Board of Deacons.

Sandwich Making

Ribbon sandwiches are made by putting three or more slices of bread together with a soft filling between the slices. If using white and dark bread, alternate the colors. Wrap the sandwiches tightly in a damp cloth, press them under a light weight, and cut into one-fourth inch slices just before serving.

Jane Marie Fischer, Gary McCurdy Wed

Rev. Andrew Waests, assisted by Rev. John Sokolaki, officiated for the double ring ceremony at 8:30 p.m. Saturday which united in marriage Jane Marie Fischer and Gary Dean McCurdy in St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leon Fischer, 3119 Humble St., and Mr. and Mrs. Carl McCurdy of Tulsa, Okla.

Leon Fischer presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a candlelight Victorian wedding gown of peau d'ange with a molded bodice featuring a bib front of heirloomed lace and a high wedding band neckline. From the bodice fell bishop sleeves gathered to a wide cuff of heirloom lace. From the crescent waistline, the gathered skirt fell into a brush train. The hemline was accented with a deep ruffle and a band of heirloom lace. The bride wore a Victorian headband covered with lace accented with a satin bow. From the headband fell her full bouffant cathedral length veil edged in heirloom lace. The maid of honor was Suzy Fischer, the sister of the bride. Kary Fischer, sister of the bride, and Sheila Herberger were the bridesmaids.

Philip McCurdy of Denver served his brother as best man. The groomsmen were Steve Massey and Tom Toburen, both of Tulsa.

The maid of honor and the bridesmaids were dressed identically in gowns of peach Angleskin. The fitted bodices were enhanced by a Victorian collar of candlelight lace and softly gathered bell sleeves edged with candlelight lace. The gowns featured flowing carpet length skirts. They wore garden hats of natural straw accented by peach ribbon and clusters of fresh greenery, baby's breath and tropical rose petals. The attendants carried clutch bouquets of tropical roses, baby's breath and fern greenery.

Decorating the side of the main altar were two spiral candelabra with live green jade. Side altars were decorated with arrangements of spring flowers. Other arrangements enhanced the front of the main altar. Solo and organ music was presented by Joe Callan.

A garden reception at the home of the bride followed. Members of the house party included Mrs. Ed Doherty Jr. of Sao Paulo, Brazil, sister of the bride, Mrs. Charles Fischer, sister-in-law of the bride, of San Antonio, Mrs. Philip McCurdy, of Denver, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Kathy Shepherd of Stillwater, Lisa and Dale Lorenzen of El Reno and Carolyn Peck of Oklahoma City.

The bride, a spring graduate of Oklahoma State University, is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority, Mortar Board and Phi Kappa Phi National Honorary. The bridegroom, also a graduate of Oklahoma State, is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha National Political Science Honorary and is employed by the Tulsa County Election Board.

After a trip to Santa Fe, the couple will be at home in Tulsa.

Spangler, Kesler Wed In Austin Ceremony

AUSTIN — The Good Shepherd Episcopal Church was the setting here for the 12:30 p.m. Saturday wedding of Jeanne Rae Spangler and Justin Otis Kesler. The double ring ceremony was officiated by Rev. Samuel Baxter.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Spangler, 2402 Humble. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Kesler of Tulla.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was formally gowned in an A-line silhouette of silk sheer, Cluny lace and Venise laces. The fitted bodice was detailed with Venise applique and overlaid in Nottingham lace retraced with bridal pearls. The ring neckline was retraced in scalloped pearls; slim sleeves featuring wide ruffles above the wrist and up the arm. The bridal pearls were continued in the back. The A-line skirt of sheer was detailed with Venise applique and lace cascading down to the ruffle flounce at the hemline and continuing around the full chapel train. Ribbon streamers marked the waist at the back and flowed down the train. The bride's fingertip veil of illusion edged with Chantilly lace fell from a Juliet headpiece of lace retraced with bridal pearls. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of white gardenias and aqua colored carnations with stephanotis blossoms and greenery.

Liz Roberts of Tyler served as the maid of honor. Sister of the bride, Mrs. Dennis Hoffman of Fairfax, Va., was the matron of honor. Lynn Bosworth of Houston, formerly of Midland, was the bridesmaid while Mrs. Charles C. Flynn of Colorado Springs, formerly of Midland, was the bridesmatron. Serving as mistress of ceremonies was Toye Boothe of Austin. The ring bearer was nephew of the bride, Kurt Hoffman of Fairfax.

The best man was Justin Fox of Wyandotte, Mich. Lee Kesler, brother of the groom from Amarillo, Jimmy Watson of Austin and David Burgess of Tulla were the groomsmen. Ushers were Dennis Hoffman, brother-in-law of the bride also from Virginia, Jeffrey Spangler, brother of the bride and John Emmitt of Tulla.

Following a trip to Hawaii and San Francisco, the couple will reside in the fall in Austin after spending the summer in Midland.

A reception was held at the Heritage House.

The bride is attending The University of Texas-Austin. She was a graduate of Midland High School. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta social sorority and a Little Sister of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. The bridegroom is a graduate of Tulla High School and is also attending The University of Texas-Austin. He is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and of the Student Landmen's Association.

Janell Kay Jumper, Jimmy Otho Wed

Jimmy Warren Otho, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Otho Jr., Route 1, married Janell Kay Jumper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Jumper, Route 2, in a double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Bellview Baptist Church.

The Rev. Elbert Smithen officiated. Mrs. W. C. Phillips was the organist, and Mrs. Jackie Ray Taylor was the soloist.

The altar was decorated with an arch entwined with jade foliage and clusters of mixed spring colors in green, yellow, pink and blue carnations. Flanking the altar were baskets of mixed spring flowers and a memory candle.

Rita Pinkerton of Stanton was the maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Gayle Massey, and the junior bridesmaid was Terri Otho, sister of the bridegroom.

Attending as best man was Mark May of Odessa.

The groomsmen were Steve Bourland, Jimmy Jumper, brother of the bride, and the junior groomsmen. The ushers were Kenneth Havins of Abilene, cousin of the bride, and Billy Stewart.

Amy Smith of Slaton, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. The ring bearer was Dusty Taylor.

The bride was presented in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal gown of white dehustered satin with fitted bodice of hand-clipped Chantilly lace trimmed with pearls. Matching lace formed the long sleeves. The banded A-line skirt and chapel train were edged with lace. Hand-cut clusters of rose design lace accented the skirt and train. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was held by a headpiece of spring colored flowers. She carried a cascade of yellow Petite roses, pink, blue and green carnations with white daisies and streamers.

The maid of honor wore a princess-seamed skirt stitched to the bodice above a normal waistline of blue flocked voile.

Blue dotted Swiss formed the elbow-length sleeves. The neckline and hemline were ruffled. The bridesmaids' dresses were in the same styling in pink.

The maid of honor carried a nosegay of blue and light blue apple-blossoms, and the bridesmaids had nosegays of apple blossoms in colors to match their dresses.

The reception was held in the Fellowship Hall.

Serving in the house party were Mrs. Danny Smith of Slaton, Mrs. Roger Smith of Lubbock, Mrs. Sonny Parrott of Albany and Mrs. Roy New of Big Spring, all cousins of the bride.

After a trip to Arlington, the couple will reside at 1607 1/2 W. Kentucky St.

The bride was graduated from Midland High School and is employed by Faulkner Typewriter Co. as a secretary.

The bridegroom attended Angelo State University and is employed by West Texas Welders Supply.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents in the Bonanza Sirloin Pit.

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Minter McReynolds, Mrs. Charlie Pinkerton, Mrs. Frank Taylor, Mrs. Bill Pinkston, Mrs. Hazel Sullivan, Mrs. George Medley, Mrs. Aris Lettich, Mrs. Gina Hopson, Mrs. Jay Allen, Mrs. Don Hamilton, Mrs. James Wood, Mrs. Arthur Hussinger and Mrs. Dewey Thornton in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

A "come and go" shower was given by Mrs. Royce Gleghorn and Maisie Clabee, and the bridesmaids' brunch was given by the mother of the bride at LaBodega Restaurant.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT—Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Lavender of Houston, formerly of Midland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to J. Michael Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Cunningham, 1603 Midkiff St. Miss Lavender is a graduate of Midland High School and attended Southwest Texas State University. Her fiancé graduated from Midland High School and The University of Texas-Austin. He now is a third-year law student at Bates College of Law at the University of Houston where he is a member of Delta Theta Pi legal fraternity. The wedding will be held at the First Christian Church at 4:30 p.m. July 26.

Survey Of Women Reveals— Playing Dumb For Men Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember how in the dark, dim pre-Women's Lib past, the human female was frequently portrayed as considerably less than bright? And when she was shown to possess an abundance of intelligence, how she might even minimize it herself, like "playing dumb to get a man"? Back then, an apparent lack of intelligence on the part of a woman was often considered a sexual attribute. Well, according to a recent survey of super-intelligent women, such thinking is as passe as the old-fashioned petticoat.

Super-bright women of today have very definite and liberated views of their sex roles — and their roles in sex, too, for that matter.

Every one of the more than 300 women who had their opinions on sexual attitudes evaluated are as super-intelligent as any women, anywhere. All of them are members of Mensa, the international organization that admits members solely on the basis of an IQ that's in the top 2 per cent of the general population.

The survey's results, as recorded in Manfred F. DelMarino's recently published book, "Sex and the Intelligent Woman," clearly show that the traditional image of women has greatly changed.

We learn, for example, that highly intelligent women believe psychological aspects more important than physiological ones in their appraisal of men as lovers.

Apparently, intelligence helps make good marriages, too. Fifty-one per cent of the Mensa women surveyed describe their marriages as essentially happy — a tremendously impressive figure in these days of rising divorce rates.

On the clinical side, 56 per cent of the women tested see the strength of their sex drives as either "above average," "strong" or "very strong." One primary factor is their intensity of feelings of love or affection for their sexual mate.

One progressive attitude of the great majority of the Mensa women was their willingness to discuss openly virtually every aspect of sex and love-making. This openness is un-

Mrs. Joseph Mark Brock

Ava Lynne O'Neil Bride Of Joseph Mark Brock

SAN ANGELO — Ava Lynne O'Neil of Midland and Joseph Mark Brock of San Angelo were married at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Municipal Rose Gardens. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Thurston W. O'Neil of 1004 Denton St., Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Warner F. Brock of San Felipe.

The Rev. Charles Mitchell of the First Baptist Church of Carlsbad officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Music for the ceremony was presented by Mrs. George Vickers of Marfa, pianist.

Paula O'Neil of Midland was her sister's maid of honor. The best man was Craig Scott of Houston. Perry Brooks and Ronnie Willman of Clifton were the ushers.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of candlelight satin designed by her mother. It was fashioned with a V-neckline and bodice covered with rosepoint lace, which also was at the wrists of the full sleeves, the hemline and chapel train. Her mantilla was of silk illusion with scalloped lace and fell the full length of the train. She carried a long-stemmed white rose.

The maid of honor wore a dress of cream-colored crepe with gold and brown floral design. She carried a long-stemmed yellow rose.

The reception was held in the Inn of the West.

The couple will reside in San Angelo. The bride attended Angelo State University, where the bridegroom is a student.

Women Still Not In Power Jobs

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — The fact that she is the only woman state college president in the nation "is a sign that we women have not entered the power structure," says Dr. Marjorie Downing Wagner, president of State College, Sonoma.

She was speaking at a recent meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary society for women educators at Modesto Junior College.

She acknowledged that a few token women are hired in leading academic positions, but said, "it takes a small experimental, generous, open college to accept a woman president."

She added that women are discriminated against in college admissions and grant awards and are encouraged to settle for lesser positions — to become a nurse instead of a physician, a paralegal person instead of a lawyer.

Ruckman, Caughlin Wed In Church Service

William Connor Caughlin married Marcee Lea Ruckman in St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church in a double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ruckman, 2916 McDonald. Mr. and Mrs. William G. Caughlin of Houston are the parents of the bridegroom.

Rev. James L. Considine performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with altar screens of pink roses, white carnations, white daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length dress of sheer white voile with a deep scooped neck and long sleeves gathered at the wrists. The Empire waisted dress featured bands of embroidered lace at the wrists and waist with lace and pink ribbon accenting the hem. She wore pink roses, white daisies, baby's breath and white stephanotis in her hair. The bride carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, white daisies, white carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Serving as the maid of honor was the sister of the bride, Kristy Ruckman.

Acting as best man was Mike Caughlin, the brother of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor wore a formal length dress of white voile with spring flowers print. An edge of ruffle encircled the high neckline and high waistline. The dress featured long, puffed sleeves with ruffles at the cuffs accented with pink ribbon. She carried a pink rose and baby's breath. She wore pink carnations, white daisies and baby's breath in her hair.

A wedding dinner at Midland Country Club followed the wedding. Attending the dinner as out of city guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Caughlin of Bryan, grandparents of the groom and Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Walther of Dallas and Mr. Mrs. J. P. Ruckman, grandparents of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Lee High School and attended

West Texas State University. The bridegroom is a student at Texas A&M University. The couple plans to reside in College Station.

Homemaker Becomes Construction Contractor

By JANET ROHAN
Copley News Service

ELGIN, Ill. — When Barbara Kovacs approached her husband five years ago with the idea of starting her own business, he thought she might be interested in a boutique.

Instead she founded BarKo Construction Corp. Her husband, Gary, joined forces and from this came the BarKo Group, Inc.

BarKo, by the way, stands for Barbara Kovacs, who is one of the first women to become a general contractor.

At the present, BarKo is constructing 14 restaurants in the Midwest and "The Landings," located eight miles northwest of Elgin—almost adjacent to the Northwest Tollway and Illinois 47.

The Landings is called a condominium airport development "since the residents also purchase the hangar. They just don't rent them and find the rent going up every year," said Barbara.

Barbara and her husband are involved with 23 different companies. He is president of all but four and she is an officer in most of them, too.

They recently returned from Kuwait where one of their companies, Kuwait International House of Trade, has completed $4 billion in construction projects in the last five years.

"The Kuwaiti government has the money and we are supplying the technical know-how," says Gary.

In Kuwait, says Gary, gasoline costs about eight cents per gallon, no interest is charged on home mortgages and telephone service is free.

"However, temperature rises to 120 degrees in summer," he adds.

Their son, Gary, was approaching high school when Barbara became interested in the construction business. She had been doing volunteer work in one of the area hospitals but couldn't see that "or running to tea for me," she said.

"My son is very proud of me. He wasn't deprived because I went to work."

Barbara still considers herself a homemaker. "I'm a good cook and I still enjoy puttering around the house on weekends."

Others can do as well as she has, according to Barbara. "You can't be lazy and you must have a plan. Success just doesn't happen."

As an employer, she seems to prize her workers almost as a coach. She boasts of her construction supervisor "who built the first all-electric radiant-heated building in the City of Chicago."

Yet, she won't keep "employees who create a pot of stew." She tells of one she had to fire adding, "I ended up keeping him too long."

WEDDING PLANS — Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Roberts Sr., 1311 W. Illinois St., wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Brenda Lois, to Larry Wayne Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. Ward of Alabama. She is a graduate of Midland High School and is employed at Bowen's Drive-In Grocery Store. Her fiancé graduated from high school in Columbus, Ga., and is employed by Permian. The couple plans to be married at 7:30 p.m. June 16 in the home of the bride-elect.

Scholarships Given Graduates

The Women's Auxiliary, Inc., of Midland Memorial Hospital has awarded $1,000 scholarships to Laura Elizabeth Carlsen and Cynthia Diane Olsen.

Miss Carlsen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin T. Carlsen of 3215 W. Ohio St. She is a 1975 graduate of Midland High School, where she was a member of the German Club, National Honor Society and MHS Band. She plans to study nursing at Angelo State University.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Olsen Jr. of No. 11 Metz Court are the parents of Miss Olsen. She is a 1975 graduate of Lee High School and was a member of the Rebelettes, National Honor Society, Rebelles annual staff and Student Involvement through Community Action. She has been a Girl Scout 16 years and a Candy Stripper at MMH. She will receive her nursing training at The University of Texas-Austin.

Poor Posture Barometer Of One's Emotional State

Copley News Service
LOS ANGELES — Dolly Shirzad can size you up by the way you walk.

"Your body tells a lot about how you feel," says the suburban Rancho Palos Verdes dance therapy and body dynamics teacher.

She says poor posture, rigid muscles, facial expressions and eye contact are barometers of a person's emotional state.

"Your body sends out signals to others that you don't care about yourself or lack self-confidence," she adds.

She says people aren't born clumsy or with bad posture. "Look at children," she says, adding: "They walk freely. They lift their bodies as they walk. Like butterflies. Light."

"Children haven't learned to limit their bodies. But as you become an adult, the pressures grow and we learn to restrict our bodies."

"It's sad, I wish we all had the child in us."

Dolly Shirzad's mission is to make people aware of the connection between the body and mind and to motivate them to improve themselves through body awareness, dance, psychology and relaxation techniques.

She conducts a 10-week course, "Personality Development Through Interaction of Mind and Body," at nearby Harbor College.

She also holds private classes in her home and does body dynamics work at Del Amo Hospital, a psychiatric facility in suburban Torrance. Her hospital work involves helping disturbed adolescents and alcoholics.

She says she often videotapes her students' body movements to make them aware of their image.

She says her methods are the reverse of psychiatry.

"Psychiatrists begin with the feelings," she explains. "I use body awareness as the starting point to improve how you feel."

"It works to some extent, unless you're pathologically ill. I work with my students to help them become aware of their feelings, to be proud of what and who they are and to establish good eye contact."

"I tell them to stand up and walk."

She says most persons are unaware of their body image—how they use their eyes, shoulders, hands, hips, arms and legs.

"People normally are coordinated unless they have physiological problems," she says. "But they learn wrong things and it takes a long time to undo them."

One of her former students, a 25-year-old man with a master's degree in business administration, talked of his inability to get a job despite what he thought was a good job interview, says Shirzad.

"David walked with his shoulders down, bad posture and no eye contact with people," she says. "He projected a low self-image to others, poor thing."

"At the end of 10 weeks, he discovered why he was having job problems. But he had the inner directiveness to do something about it."

"I got a letter from him—he had been promoted to vice president in his company."

In working with adolescents, the problem is motivating them to care about their self-image, she says.

"The adolescents I get are either too shy or lack self-confidence," she explains.

"I ask them whether they want to look better. Everybody wants to be liked and loved."

"With the videotape, I show them how they appear and say, 'Look, who's going to like you walking that way?'"

Then, curling her shoulders forward, slumping her head and tightening her muscles, she walks in stiff steps.

"This is the walk of someone who's depressed and lacks self-confidence," she says.

Then she throws her shoulders back, lifts her head, pulls up her hips and swings her arms with the flow of her walk.

"As opposed to this, where I use space and the body is relaxed and self-confident."

She says with body awareness and self-improvement comes self-confidence.

Shirzad has a bachelor's degree and is a master's degree candidate at UCLA.

Quick Drying

When you want to dry a drip-dry garment as quickly as possible, put it on a hanger that is covered with a plastic dry-cleaner's bag. The bag will keep the garment from clinging to itself and there will be fewer wrinkles. Always use plain bags, as printing on them might come off on the garment.

Tall City Sectional Bridge Tourney Scheduled

Hundreds of bridge players will converge on Blanchard Hills Country Club this weekend for the annual Tall City Sectional Duplicate Bridge Tournament.

VFW Auxiliary Presents Flag

The Tall City Post 7208, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Ladies Auxiliary, recently presented the Stanton Hospital with an American flag. Marnie Roten, hospital administrator, accepted the flag. Also participating in the presentation were Dora Walker, chaplain of the VFW auxiliary, and Troy Pierce and Elmer Long.

Husband, Wife Commanders

MAXWELL AFB, Ala. (AP) — Capt. Lee and Linda Smith are the first husband and wife team to serve as section commanders at Air University's Squadron Officer School. Capt. Linda Smith is in charge of Section 63, and her husband, Capt. Lee Smith, heads Section 66, both of F Wing. Working in the same Wing they know the same students and attend the same functions. The Air Force couple met while stationed at Udorn AFB, Thailand, and were married there in 1969. They have one son.

Family Graduates Eleventh Child

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Medearis of 510 N. Lamesa Road have 11 children who have been graduated from high schools. The youngest son, Lee, is a 1975 graduate of Lee High School. The oldest child, Mrs. Lully Fay Williams, was graduated from Lincoln High School in Dallas in 1966. There have been three graduates from Carver High School, four from Midland High School, and three from LHS.

The tourney, sponsored by the Permian Basin Duplicate Bridge Club and Unit 209 of the American Contract Bridge League, will get under way at 1:30 p.m. Friday and continue through Sunday.

The first event will be the Unmixed Pairs. Friday night, the Masters Pairs will begin at 7:30 along with the Permian Pairs. The masters game is for players who have 20 or more ACBL master points and the Permian Pairs will be for players with less than that number, including beginners.

The competition will continue Saturday with the Alice McDaniel Memorial event at 9:30 a.m. The Open Pairs, a two-session major event, will be played at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. with consolation Open Pairs also at 7:30.

The tournament's main event, the Swiss Team of Four, will be played in two sessions Sunday, with the first beginning at 12 noon. The second session starting time will be announced at the tournament.

Mrs. W. J. Hill, president of the Permian Basin Duplicate Club, will serve as tournament chairman.

Refreshments will be served after the Saturday night session, and a buffet dinner is planned during sessions Sunday.

Trophies will be awarded to first and second place finishers in the Masters Pairs, Unmixed Pairs, Open Pairs and Swiss Team of Four.

First place trophies will be awarded in the other events. Mrs. Hill encourages all players in Midland to join in the competition which will include many of the state's finest duplicate players.

Persons who do not have a full slate of partners for all three days of play should register with Mrs. N. A. Green or Mrs. Dale Myers.

Members of the various tournament committees are:

Rules and Ethics, Mrs. V. V. McGrew, Mrs. R. L. Spencer and Mrs. Al Buehler.

Finance Committee, Mrs. T. F. Bice and Mrs. H. F. Taylor.

Women's Gains Progressing

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — This International Women's Year, proclaimed by the United Nations for celebration around the world, is not all empty formality. It is also solid progress.

Inspired by the occasion, governments are granting gains to women — and women are pressing for more.

Well before the year began, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced that Australia would ratify a 22-year-old U.N. convention admitting women to public office on equal terms with men. In December, it did.

Prime Minister Michael Manley of Jamaica, declaring IWY open, committed his government to lay down the legal framework for rapid movement toward sexual equality. But he warned women liberationists to avoid "overtones of bitterness or recrimination."

Early in IWY, Uganda sent the first woman ambassador to the Vatican — a 27-year-old Catholic named Bernadette Olowo. She noted the coincidence as she handed Pope Paul VI her credentials.

On Feb. 27, as women cheered in the gallery, Guyana's parliament authorized the government to ratify two International Labor Organization conventions putting women on an equal plane with men in the world of work.

Early in March, Queen Elizabeth II's government introduced a bill in the British Parliament to outlaw discrimination against women in recruitment, hiring, dismissal or promotion of employees or selection of business partners.

By apparent coincidence, an act requiring equal pay for women adopted by Parliament in 1970 will take effect three days before the year ends. A Norwegian act giving daughters born since 1964 the same rights as sons went into effect Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., has introduced a bill in Congress to keep up the IWY momentum in future years through a commission, conference or other device, and Rep. Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii, has put in another calling for a White House conference on women in Bicentennial year 1976.

Italy's Ministry of Justice is consulting women's associations on legislative reform to benefit their sex. The Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare is looking into women's work problems and the Ministry of Health into their health problems.

Syria has promised to review existing laws and afford women practical equality with men by giving them equal opportunities to reach decision-making levels.

Australians decided to use men's names as well as women's in naming tropical storms.

Female members of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union on March 9 adopted a women's rights charter demanding that the constitution be rid of discriminatory provisions and women have an equal chance with men for jobs and promotions despite pregnancy, maternity or married status.

Two days earlier, women U.N. employees handed Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a petition asking that he campaign to recruit and promote more women in the U.N. secretariat and meanwhile appoint an ombudsman to deal with staff members' complaints. The petition was signed by more than 2,750 men and women employees.

There is no ombudsman yet. But Waldheim long has been trying to put more women into the secretariat, where men now outnumber them four to one in executive and professional posts. He complains that governments do not put up enough women candidates.

Melanie Green, White To Marry

FORT WORTH — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Green Jr. of Fort Worth announce the engagement of their daughter, Melanie Leigh, to Gary Bruce White, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. White of 2410 Stanolind St., Midland.

The couple will be married at 4 p.m. Aug. 9 in Faith Lutheran Church in Fort Worth.

Miss Green is a sophomore student at Stephen F. Austin State University, majoring in orientation mobility. Her fiancé was graduated with a bachelor of science degree in forestry from Stephen F. Austin University and is employed by the Forest Service in Alpine, Ariz.

Information On Which Hospital Is Best Locked In Michigan Computer

By STUART AUERBACH
The Washington Post
ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Locked in a computer here, unavailable to the public, is information that could guide Americans to the best hospital care in their community. The hospitals that supply this information insist that it be kept secret.

Hospitals across the country use analysis of the data they supply to the privately funded Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities for in-house evaluations of the quality of their own patient care.

But Dr. Virgil N. Slee, who has run the CPHA here for 20 years, said that hospitals would refuse to supply information if they thought it would be made public so that patients would be able to compare one hospital with another.

And John A. McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, said releasing hospital comparisons "would be bad for the hospitals and ultimately bad for the public."

The CPHA was founded 20 years ago by the AHA, the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons and the Southwestern Michigan Hospital Council to improve hospital and medical care in the country.

It started evaluating the quality of care in Michigan hospitals, but now collects data from one-third of the nation's 6,365 general hospitals that treat 43 per cent of America's hospitalized patients. All told, CPHA has information on 100 million hospitalizations in its computer — the world's largest collection of such data.

Health experts consider it the best source of information on the quality of medical care in the nation's hospitals.

There is no public review of the care given in American hospitals, although they get 35 per cent of their income from public programs such as Medicare and Medicaid.

Hospitals subscribe to the CPHA service. They send abstracts on every case describing symptoms, diagnosis, tests and treatment to be fed to CPHA's computers. From this mass of raw data, experts can discern patterns within a hospital.

For example, Slee said, one hospital showed an abnormally high number of low hemoglobin counts every Wednesday. Checking the lab, hospital officials found that a technician who only worked Wednesday was not making the count correctly.

As a result of CPHA data, doctors now are paying more attention to lab results, which often are the result of poor controls, Slee said.

Over the years, Slee said, the amount of blood transfusions of only one pint done by hospitals — considered by most experts to be poor medical practice — has decreased because of CPHA reports.

Moreover, he continued, the use of packed red blood cells — which conserve scarce blood and cuts the risk to patients — has increased by 32 per cent since 1967. CPHA reports have continually pointed out the advantages of using packed red blood cells.

Until recently, CPHA's hospital analysis needed sophisticated interpretation in order to make judgments on quality of medical care.

But now Slee has developed a way of checking on medical care that is simple enough for anyone to understand. This new program, called Quality Assurance Monitor, will be offered to hospitals shortly.

It is aimed at hospital trustees. Slee said that for the first time it will allow them "to see and understand what's going on in their hospitals."

Moreover, he said in an interview, "It's simple enough for a patient to understand."

It gives mortality rates for common procedures in any hospital and compares them to the average of the death rates in 200 representative hospitals.

For example, one sample hospital in Pennsylvania had a 20 per cent death rate from heart attacks while another in Florida had a 14 per cent death rate.

It also provides details on the type of care given by these two sample hospitals and gives some measure of how good the care in each is compared to other hospitals in the country.

Comparing Quality Assurance Monitors from a number of hospitals can also tell which has the lowest and which the highest death rates for common procedures.

There are problems with this type of comparison. For example, one hospital may get all the tough cases because it is so good, and therefore it may show a higher mortality rate. Also, a hospital by reason of its location might attract older patients, who bounce back more quickly from surgery or illness.

Besides providing mortality rates, the Quality Assurance Monitor keeps track of the general care hospitals are giving their patients.

For example, in one sample hospital only 40 per cent of the patients whose blood pressure was above normal were diagnosed as having high blood pressure. Surprisingly enough, that hospital was, not outside the norm.

"Everybody does it wrong," said Slee.

He is anxious to have the new Quality Assurance Monitor accepted by the nation's hospitals. "We've got to get the thing so fundamentally implanted," he said, "that it won't get turned off before it gets started."

While Slee sticks firmly to the confidentiality rule, he agreed that "we need to develop strategies for getting data into the hands of people in some kind of a way that they can understand, but that won't be frightening or lead to premature judgments."

For McMahon of the American Hospital Association, however, information that would allow patients to compare hospitals "could easily be misinterpreted." Also, he said, making that information public "would discourage the very kind of analysis that leads to improvement."

The way to improve hospitals, McMahon said in a telephone interview, is through education and the internal review process in hospitals.

Bond Reduction Hearing Put Off

HOUSTON (AP) — State District Court Judge William Hatten has postponed a bond reduction hearing for Gary Addison Taylor, 39, charged with first degree murder in the death of a Washington state woman.

Hatten postponed the bond hearing Friday after learning that Washington state officials are preparing extradition papers. Taylor was charged Thursday with first degree murder in the death of Vonnie Stuth, 19, Burien, Wash.

Washington authorities asked the Taylor, being held here under $340,000 bond, be held without bond on a fugitive warrant.

Everything's Ready For Suez Reopening

By IRENE BEESON
The Observer, London

CAIRO — The Suez Canal, cleared of the debris of war, smooth, untroubled and startlingly blue, is ready for reopening on June 5, the eighth anniversary of the Six Day War that closed it.

In the town of Suez, in the villages alongside the Canal, in Ismailia and Port Said in the north, the tempo of repairs and reconstruction, started less than a year ago, has reached fever pitch.

Tens of thousands of men are hard at work, one eye on the calendar to complete the gigantic task in time.

At the entrance to Suez town the new Saudi-financed "Faisal City" is nearly ready. Begun seven months ago, this residential area, which consists of 4,000 apartments, is built entirely of stone. The attractive, four-story buildings are grouped around garden areas.

The city will be self-sufficient, with its own schools, mosques, hospital, social services, shops and markets. About 12,000 builders and laborers are working on the site.

When work is completed in two months' time, their number will have been doubled, to tackle the adjoining 10,000-unit "Sabah City," financed by Kuwait.

A few hundred yards nearer the center of the town a large housing project, built in the early 1960s and badly damaged in the 1969-70 war of attrition and the October 1973, war, has been repaired and rebuilt to look almost new.

Work in the town of Suez proper has been restricted to removing the rubble and repairing those buildings that would stand up to it. About 80 per cent of the city was damaged, much of it beyond repair.

Apart from structural repairs and rebuilding, putting Suez on its feet again involved renewing water, sewage, telephone and electricity networks, all of which were wrecked. Electricity is supplied by the Aswan High Dam power station. Sixty of the great pylons straddling the desert were destroyed in the fighting.

Engineers in charge of the master plan explain that repairs are, for the most part, emergency measures, since the whole city will be rebuilt within the next five to eight years. "It will be the most beautiful city in Egypt," they claim proudly.

South of the town the oil refinery is at work again — it had also been wrecked. Ships are sailing up the Suez Gulf towards the port of Adabya, coming from Saudi Arabia and the Far East.

In Port Tewfik, east of the Canal, nothing is intact. Rebuilding has not yet started. The wrecks of houses and villas contrast with the poincianas bravely blossoming in neglected gardens, and with young trees stubbornly emerging, green and fresh from unwatered soil.

From the control tower of the Suez Canal office in Port Tewfik, at the southern tip of the Canal, one can see the "Disengagement Zone" between Egyptian and Israeli forces in Sinai and the line where Israeli occupation begins.

At the side of the road at the entrance to Suez town three destroyed Israeli tanks and some heavy trucks have been left as mementoes of the battle for the city. The center of the town is quiet, as though holding its breath for the great day that will restore life to normal.

Some shops, restaurants and cafes are open. The owners of "bazars" that survived the onslaughts of rockets, bombs and guns, have set out souvenirs, neatly arranged in expectation of a rush of tourists and seamen.

The owner of the St. James Restaurant, a favorite rendezvous before the 1967 war, was eager to please and apologetic for the dilapidated state of the place. He was waiting to restore it until he had a "guarantee" that peace had come: "Three wars (1956, 1967, 1973) in less than 20 years. . . . terrible. . . . but we hope.

For those who stayed in Suez, the eight years since the June 1967, war have been bleak, Spartan years of endurance, interrupted by the 1969-70 war of attrition and again in October 1973, by a bloody battle to prevent an Israeli takeover of the town.

For displaced persons who returned after the January 1974, disengagement agreement, the reunion with relatives, friends and the battered city was followed by 18 months of work to patch up battered homes and broken lives.

In the Canal area, as in the rest of the country, many people, swayed immediately after the October war by the tidal wave of official optimism that swept the country, believed that Israeli evacuation and economic recovery would be almost instantaneous.

Neither expectation has been realized. "We hope" crops up in every sentence spoken in Suez today.

Monsanto Finals Second Avalon Field Producer

Monsanto Co., Midland, has completed No. 1 Coquina-Federal, as the second Morrow producer in the Avalon field of Eddy County, N.M.

It is one mile northwest of the Morrow opener in the field. Calculated, absolute open flow was for one million cubic feet of gas per day, through natural perforations at 10,676-10,704 feet. It has 5 1/2-inch casing set at 10,780 feet, total depth.

Operator has made plans for dual completion attempt in the Strawn.

Wellbore is 1,900 feet from south and east lines of section 31-26-27e, five miles northwest of Carlsbad.

Fusselman Gas Flows In Loving

The Moore-Hooper (Fusselman and Ellenburger) field of Loving County gained an assured fifth Fusselman producer, with the flowing of gas at the rate of 8.7 million cubic feet per day at Chevron Oil Co. No. 17 Regan-McElvain.

It is a 3/4-mile southwest and the same distance northwest extension to the Fusselman pay. Flow was through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations at 18,904-19,004 feet, which had been treated with 15,000 gallons of acid. Testing continued.

Test site is 2,200 feet from northwest and 1,910 feet from southwest lines of section 84, block 1, W&NW survey, one mile northeast of Mentone.

Sutton Discovery Finals; Test Set

A discovery has been completed and a wildcard reentry is slated in Sutton County.

Textland Petroleum, Inc. has completed No. 1 George Wallace, as a shut-in Canyon sand gas discovery, 15 miles southeast of Sonora.

Estimated calculated, absolute open flow was for 2.7 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 4,260-4,285 feet, after the section had been washed with 1,000 gallons of mud acid, and fractured with 14,000 gallons and 15,000 pounds.

Drilled to 5,230 feet, where 4 1/2-inch casing was set, it has been plugged back to 5,178 feet.

The discovery is 1,700 feet from north and 1,600 feet from west lines of section 78, block 14, TW&NG survey.

Wildcat Reentry
Cotton Petroleum Corp., of Midland, plans to reenter and deepen to 11,800 feet for completion attempt as an Ellenburger gas discovery at its No. 1-D Phillips.

Originally scheduled by Clossut-McCaney-Rensud, Inc. as the No. 1 B. M. Phillips, (Continued on Page 2E)

Doyle D. Williams

Hughes Promotes D. D. Williams

HOUSTON—Doyle D. Williams of Midland has been promoted to region engineer here for Hughes Tool Co.

Williams started with Hughes as an engineer trainee in 1960 at Hobbs, N. M., and in 1965 was promoted to area engineer at Midland.

Southern Governors Boost Oil Terminals

HOUSTON (AP) — Governors of Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina have told a group of oil and petrochemical company officials their states are technically feasible locations for deepwater terminal facilities.

The governors based their statements on a report issued to the officials Wednesday by the Coastal Plains Regional Commission (CPRC) which completed the deepwater terminal study last year.

The three states, in addition to Florida and Virginia, are members of the CPRC, a federal-state group designed to increase industrial productivity in the region.

"When you're ready to talk expansion, we're ready to talk turkey," North Carolina Gov. James E. Holshouser said at a CPRC-sponsored luncheon designed to explain the report to the officials and to give sales pitches.

Other governors at the luncheon were Georgia Gov. George D. Busbee, CPRC co-chairman and South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards.

"It has become increasingly obvious that for us to achieve in this country a true energy independence, there must be new facilities along the eastern seaboard," Holshouser said.

"As we look at the eastern seaboard, we find the need for one or several things—offshore ports, drilling along the Continental Shelf if Congress should ever happen to act, and new refineries."

Busbee said the deepwater terminal study was a joint effort of the CPRC and eight major oil and petrochemical companies.

"Its purpose was to analyze the economic and environmental factors related to the introduction of petroleum refining, petrochemical processing and deepwater terminal activities in the region," Busbee said.

Busbee said the report showed that Georgia and South Carolina were feasible locations for deepwater terminals in 118 feet of water. Busbee said acceptable land sites for such complexes exist in the three states.

Edwards called for a new cooperation between government and industry.

"It's nice to be a part of this program that has brought government and industry together as partners in progress rather than adversaries," Edwards said. "That's the way it should be."

Drilling Trends Concern State, Industry Officials

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP) — Domestic oil and gas drilling trends are causing concern among state and industry officials.

Such operations peaked in mid-March just before Congress practically eliminated oil's 22 per cent depletion tax allowance.

Last Tuesday, the number of active rotary rigs totaled 1,502, compared with the 12-year high of 1,672 on March 17.

"The bloom has really been taken off of what had been a very fine comeback for domestic explorations after years of decline," said Jim Langdon of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Langdon said about 60 rigs reportedly have been shutdown and blocked in the Rocky Mountain area alone.

"We need to have 3,000 rigs operating," he said. "They are being stacked just because incentives for drilling have been removed."

Texas peaked at 655 rigs on March 17 but had totals of 602 and 616 the last two weeks.

"The only thing keeping Texas activity that high is the state's free intrastate gas market," Langdon said. "Unfortunately, Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana are the only states that have significant intrastate natural gas systems."

Ed McGhee, executive vice president of the International Association of Drilling Contractors, said the burial of the depletion allowance "pulled into the grave with it a lot of borderline wells."

"Just how much impact this will have on rig activity should become apparent this summer," McGhee said. "For the last three months, inertia has propelled domestic drilling."

McGhee said operators have continued issuing contracts for wells on which they had made commitments in January, February, and early March.

"Most producers spent April reassessing the new economic," he said. "While they were thus distracted, they postponed a lot of decisions."

He added that much such stock-taking continues.

"But producers are coming to the end of early commitments," he said. "They are (Continued on Page 3E)

Texan Asserts GOP Delays Energy Policy

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Republicans in the House are delaying Congress from forming a national energy policy, U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., says.

Miss Jordan told Associated Press Broadcasters meeting here Friday that Republican representatives are demanding a windfall profits tax be included on energy taxation considered by the Ways and Means Committee.

But she said there has been no decontrol of the industry to mandate a windfall profits tax because another House committee has been unable to agree on decontrol.

"Suffice it to say a windfall profits tax is necessary if there is any decontrol of fuel or energy. The Ways and Means Committee does not have the authority to decontrol."

"Only the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House has that power," she said.

Miss Jordan said the commerce committee has missed reporting out a decontrol measure largely because of a large number of freshman representatives on the committee who are unfamiliar with the issues.

She said a taxation bill, passed through the Ways and Means Committee despite the Republican votes, was later pulled down because it was impractical.

Congress will form a national energy policy eventually, she predicted, but said it would be different from the first bill reported out.

Miss Jordan questioned also President Ford's use of troops to free the Mayaguez, the merchant ship seized by Cambodia.

She said while Ford's use of force has been well greeted by the public, it may have been in violation of the War Powers Act requiring the President to consult with Congress in such matters.

"The president says he did consult with Congress. But you've heard Sen. Mansfield (Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.) say that he was not consulted; he was informed," she said.

Mansfield is the majority leader in the Senate.

She said since the Mayaguez incident that an amendment has been offered to the War Powers Act requiring the President to consult with congressional leaders before committing troops instead of after the troops are committed.

"It appears to me that it will do no harm for the President and the Congress to talk to each other before we enter into a conflict which could insure into a conflagration of extraordinary proportions," Miss Jordan said.

Drilling in the Permian Basin, with Leas County, N.M., showing 24 rigs; Eddy County, N.M., 23 units and Pecos, 27 units. Also, there were 12 rotarys making hole in Ward, and 10 in Winkler.

Field drilling programs in Andrews and Scurry counties accounted for 11 and 13 rigs, respectively, in those sectors.

Personnel On The Move

HOUSTON—Paul W. Kidwell, Corpus Christi, oil measurement adviser for Exxon Pipeline Co., recently retired after 39 years service. He joined the company at Aqua Dulce as a carpenter and at one time worked in Midland.

NEW YORK—Jack C. Williams of Houston, general manager for Texaco Inc.'s Refining Department operations, has been named vice president in charge of the company's Refining Department-United States, effective Oct. 1.

He succeeds Eddins W. McNeely of New York who will retire after 44 years with the company.

HOUSTON—Stephen G. Tillman has been promoted to district production engineer in Texas Oil & Gas Corp. Southeastern District Office at Houston.

Personnel On The Move

TULSA, Okla.—Merrick M. Harmon has been named vice president and manager of operations for Noble Drilling Corp. in Tulsa. He joined the company 34 years ago in the Gulf Coast Division.

API Publishes Statistics Book

WASHINGTON — United States and Canadian petroleum associations have published their detailed yearly report on oil and gas reserves.

The book gives data on proved reserves of oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids in both countries as of Dec. 31, 1974.

It also contains information on U. S. productive capacity, ultimate recovery and original oil-in-place by year of discovery, and geological information on oil and gas reservoirs in the United States.

Copies can be purchased from the Division of Statistics Publication Section, American Petroleum Institute, 1801 K Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20006. The price per copy is $5.

Orders should specify "Reserve Report, Vol. 29, May 1975."

Dunigan Reports Personnel Change

D. Dwayne Glover, sales representative for Dunigan Tool and Supply Co., Inc. in Midland, has been transferred to the Dallas Division.

He will be replaced here by Charles R. Cunningham.

Glover will be headquartered at Abilene and will serve an area from Mineral Wells to Wichita Falls. He joined Dunigan two years ago as a Permian Basin crude oil purchaser.

Cunningham, a native of Midland, previously was employed as a sales representative for Republic Supply Co. He has been associated with the oil industry 13 years.

WASHINGTON OIL— Ford May Be Winning His Engery Fight

By Clyde La Motte
Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent
WASHINGTON — President Ford appears to be winning his battle with Congress on the energy issue.

He is winning largely by default, because Congress hasn't been able to come up with a rival proposition.

In the vacuum Congress has left, the President moved ahead last week with his announcement of another $1 hike in the duty on oil imports and a reiteration of his plan to decontrol the price of "old" crude oil gradually.

John E. Chandler

James D. Blausner

Exxon Transfers Sales Supervisor

John E. Chandler, sales supervisor for retail marketing activities of Exxon Co., U.S.A. in Midland has been promoted to marketing specialist in the Headquarters Marketing Department at Houston.

Replacing Chandler in Midland is James D. Blausner who was a senior dealer sales representative in Exxon's Houston Marketing District.

Chandler had been in Midland since 1973 and supervised 20 bulk plants in the Midland district, 2 resellers and 200 Exxon service stations.

Reed Reports 248 Active Basin Rigs

Reed Drilling Equipment reported 248 active rotary rigs in the Permian Basin last week.

The number was down seven from the 255 tallied two weeks ago, and up two compared with the 246 rigs counted in a like week in the area, one year ago.

Drilling in the deep Delaware Basin accounted for the large number of rigs in that sector of the Permian Basin, with Leas

This immediately brought forth cries of rage from the few members of Congress who were still around town while Congress was in its Memorial Day recess—a week-long period.

However, these outcries are unlikely to be translated into any real action when Congress gets back to town Monday because Congress already has demonstrated its inability to get a meeting of minds on any overall energy plan. Therefore, what can be expected now is that Congress will find fault with what the President is doing but will not be able to come up with a plan to replace it.

If that proves to be the case, then the Administration will likely end up with half a loaf. This stems from the fact that the President can only take a limited range of actions on his own. Beyond that, he needs congressional action to authorize him to go further. It isn't likely that Congress will oblige, so he will only be able to do such things as increasing the duty on oil imports.

Congress could stop him from doing that much, but it's highly doubtful Congress can muster a two-thirds majority to overturn a Presidential veto of any legislation restricting his executive powers in the field of energy.

Congress also can stop the President from his crude oil price decontrol plan, and this could be done by a simple majority of either house. But such action would have to be taken within five working days after such a plan is officially announced and Congress seldom is able to get anything done in five days.

It may turn out in the long run that President Ford is winning more than a temporary victory on the energy front.

His basic position has been that the marketplace and private competition are better (Continued on Page 2E)

'We Told You So', Shell Official Says

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — No one wanted to believe oil company spokesmen who forecasted the present energy dilemma, Harry Bridges, president of Shell Oil Co. says.

"We're told that our story is not very credible," he said but urged the Associated Press Broadcasters meeting here Friday to check the record.

Bridges and Eric R. Zausner, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA), spoke during a panel on energy.

Both said that plenty of oil exists in the world to fuel the United States. But they said that much of that oil is foreign, would be high priced and leave the United States subject to international blackmail.

Zausner said the last oil embargo was nearly "unmanageable" and that the United States "just barely scraped by."

But he said even if the United States could get all of the oil it needed, the nation would still face an energy crisis.

He cited problems in getting natural gas, capital expansion of electric utilities and long-lead times on developing new sources of energy as contributors to the crisis.

'We Told You So', Shell Official Says

He said an energy program is needed and "will hurt."

But Zausner added, "The cost of no program makes the cost of a real program acceptable indeed."

Bridges said oil companies need capital formation to close the gap on foreign oil but that such capital is not plentiful.

He said while it did not surprise him that the oil tax depletion allowance was repealed, he was disappointed no substitute source of capital was provided.

Even more important, his emphasis has been on how to increase domestic supply and reduce dependence on foreign supply rather than how to ration out shortages under strict price controls that, as he sees it, would simply increase shortages.

There are increasing indications that as the public and Congress develop a better understanding of the energy problem there will be more and more converts to the administration's approach.

The President is also getting increased support from the industry itself. Originally, when he announced his energy program in January it received only lukewarm endorsement by many energy industry officials. For the most part, they felt it did not go far enough fast enough.

In the months that followed, however, as the industry was made aware of the alternative approaches being considered by Congress, enthusiasm for the administration's plan grew.

For instance, after President Ford's energy announcement last week, API President Frank Ikard applauded. He said the President's emphasis on the need to increase domestic energy production and his declared intention to phase out government price-fixing on domestic oil "are clearly in the national interest."

Ikard said that government interference in the marketplace "creates more problems than it solves. We have seen this for 30 years in the case of natural gas, which is now in short supply, threatening to cause the closing of many factories and the loss of many jobs."

Regarding the "windfall profits" tax the President mentioned, Ikard said he doubted if there were any such profits but "if such a tax is enacted a plowback feature as mentioned by the President is essential."

In any event, the showdown between the President and Congress is a basic one. He feels that price is a better regulator of use and a better stimulator of added production than government rules and regulations.

Congress understandably is skittish about any action that increases prices to consumers, fearing that this could cause a bad reaction at the polls.

However, the President himself will be facing the voters next year, and he is well-aware of this. Thus, he is now in a sense gambling that the public in general will react favorably to his view that the best break for consumers over the long haul would be an increase in energy supplies.

It is still uncertain how the public will react. It seemed obvious last year that a majority tended to blame the petroleum industry for the energy crisis and/or high prices. It remains to be seen whether that attitude has changed substantially.

President Ford may be risking his political future on this issue. Right now, it seems that he is gaining ground.

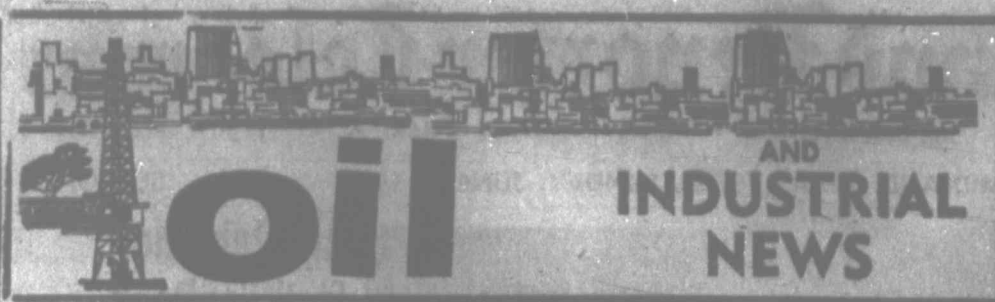

It may well be that this nation's decision on an energy approach will be decided at the ballot box in 1976.

The original discovery, Lone Star Producing Co. No. 1 H. H. Johnson, was completed May 16, 1961, for 82.63 barrels of 40.2-gravity oil, plus 18.9 barrels of water, through perforations at 5,820-5,823 feet.

LOCAL ENTERTAINERS HERE — Loretta Bybee and Lew Riggan will appear in The Pub, Sheraton Inn, 401 W. Missouri, for the next six weeks. "Lew and Loretta" are well known locally for their appearances with the Origin group, a folk singing group of the Lee High Chorale Choir.

Two Midlanders Perform At The Pub For Six Weeks

Bob Stafford, manager of the Sheraton Inn, 401 West Missouri, announces the appearance of "Lew and Loretta" in The Pub for a six-week engagement starting June 9 at 8:30 p.m. until 2:00 a.m. Monday through Saturday.

Miss Loretta Bybee and Lew Riggan, 1974 graduates of Lee High School, are returning to Midland for summer vacation after their first year at college.

Miss Bybee attends Baylor University in Waco, majoring in Vocal Performance and is a member of the Baylor Chorale.

Lew attends Trinity University in San Antonio where he is a music major and a member of the Trinity Choir.

Both entertainers were in the Chorale Choir at Lee High, one of the nine choirs participating in the 1974 Youth and Music Festival in Vienna, Austria, last July. Miss Bybee won first place in the solo competition and was rewarded with a scholarship. Also, both were members of

Three Marathon Employees Retire

IRAAN—Three Marathon Oil Co. employees here have announced retirement plans.

George Bascom, an Iraan city councilman, has completed 41 years and 10 months with the company and will retire Monday.

During his service, he worked as a roustabout, mechanic, pumper, carpenter, plumber and electrician in the Yates field.

Frank Jacot, after 36 years and 1 month, also will retire Monday. In 1939 he went to work for the Big Lake Oil Co. at Texas where he worked as a roustabout and played baseball with the Texas Oilers, a semi-pro team.

Jacot transferred to Iraan when Marathon purchased Plymouth Oil Co. in 1966. He has worked as a roustabout and pumper at Iraan.

Carter Garland retired May 1 after completing 27 years and 8 months with Marathon. His entire tenure with the company has been in the Yates field as a roustabout and pumper.

(Continued From Page 1E) entering into a time when all new wells will have been through the scrutiny of 'depletion' economics. McGhee said it soon will be determined conclusively whether domestic oil and gas producers can absorb a tax increase without cutting back operations and whether outside investors will find wildcatting attractive enough without depletion. "Until now, these questions couldn't be answered with solid facts," he said. "Now, however, they are about to be answered in a fashion with which none can argue. The active rig count in July and August will tell us with indisputable numbers how much, if any, drilling will suffer."

The Texas Railroad Commission is to start a hearing this week on possible means of converting the state's electrical generating plants from natural gas to other energy sources.

Such plants now are consuming about two trillion cubic feet of gas a year. Conversion to fuel oil would require about 275 million barrels a year.

Texas, of course, has neither the oil nor the coal for such a conversion.

Langdon said there is a need for Congress to look at all sources of energy—coal, nuclear power, and the exotics—and determine how great a burden each can carry.

"We could use such a program to restore the vitality of the nation," he said. "It would take billions of dollars and hundreds of thousands of workers. We have an opportunity here to effect a transition from the fossil fuels age."

Oil, Gas Law And Taxation Course Slated In Dallas

DALLAS — A short course on oil and gas law and taxation will be conducted by the International Oil and Gas Educational Center, a division of The Southwestern Legal Foundation, in Dallas, Tuesday through June 13.

The noncredit course will cover practical application of prevailing legal theories to problems in oil and gas production and taxation. Classes, to meet for a total of forty-eight hours, will be held at the Hilton Inn, 5600 North Central Expressway.

Subjects to be discussed are scientific and engineering background — the nature and protection of interests in oil and gas; the oil and gas lease — a close look at its more important clauses; covenants implied in oil and gas leases; transfer of interest by fee owners and lessors; transfers by lessor or lessee; oil and gas taxation; government regulations; pooling and unitization; and regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

Four men prominent in this field will conduct the classes. They are Parker C. Fielder, professor of law, The University of Texas; Richard C. Maxwell, professor of law, University of California, Los Angeles; Joseph W. Morris, dean, School of Law, The University of Tulsa; and Howard B. Williams, professor of law, Stanford University.

Fashion Designer 'Goes Berserk' During Robbery
NEW YORK (AP) — When a holdup man demanded that fashion designer Jacques Bellini turn over jewelry with great sentimental value, "I really went berserk," Bellini said. He hurled an antique bench at the holdup man in his East Side apartment and then took away the intruder's gun.

"It looked just like a German-made automatic," Bellini said after Friday's robbery. "He put it to my head and told me he would kill me."

It turned out that the gun fired only pellets. The holdup man ignored it as Bellini pointed it at him, and he escaped with $95, a $900 wristwatch and a gold ring.

Pleads Innocent
DENVER (AP) — Kathy Meade, publisher of the Denver Social Record and an executive at a Denver public relations company, has pleaded innocent to a charge of attempting to have her husband killed.

Mrs. Meade has been free on bond since shortly after her arrest April 16. The Meades are currently involved in a divorce proceedings.

SPE Study Group Elects Officers

The Midland Operations Study Group of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME has elected officers for the new year.

They are Steve Scott of Murphy H. Baxter, chairman; Ned W. Harrison of Shell Oil Co., vice chairman; Floyd Flippen of Dowell, arrangements chairman, and Fernando Cardenas of Gulf Oil Co., publicity chairman.

They will serve through May 1976. Scott presented a set of oil well core bookends to Weldon Shuck of Exxon Co., outgoing chairman.

The group's next meeting will be in September.

Policy Director Says OPEC Raises On Oil Same As Tax

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — When Oil Producing Exporting Country (OPEC) members raise their oil prices, "it's just as if they had conquered this country and put a tax on us for that amount," the director of President Ford's Economic Policy Board says.

"Now they may reinvest it back here... but it (the investment) is still theirs and they get the return on it," L. William Seidman said Friday at a meeting of The Associated Press Broadcasters.

Seidman gave that assessment after predicting that United States dependence on foreign oil will increase as the nation's economy improves.

"Economic activity and the use of energy are a one-and-one relationship," he said.

But when energy is needed to fuel the economic recovery, the United States must turn to the Arab world, he said.

"And we're going to increase our dependence on foreign oil. What it will do is increase the amount of real wealth which is being transferred out of this country," he said.

Ford's advisory called for a commitment on energy from

Learn-To-Swim Program Slated At Central YMCA

Classes begin Monday at the Central YMCA for all elementary school age children interested in participating in this year's "learn-to-swim" program.

The five-day course, designed primarily for beginning swimmers who are not YMCA members, will continue through Friday in the Central Y's indoor pool. Registration will be limited to 35 pupils in each session, and five YMCA instructors will be available for each group. Directing the program will be Mrs. Mickey Freeland, YMCA aquatic director.

Classes last 30 minutes daily. Youngsters aged 6 to 8 may sign up for classes at 1:30 p.m., 2:30 p.m. or 3:30 p.m. Children who are 9 years of age and older can meet at 2 p.m. or 3 p.m.

Ribbons will be awarded to swimmers to qualify for safety swim, 75-foot swim, 25-foot swim, tadpole float and perfect attendance. A $2 fee will be charged to cover the cost of ribbons and teaching aides.

Although parents must register their children in person, additional information about the program may be obtained by dialing the Central YMCA office at 682-2551.

AGE NO BARRIER
There seems to be a misconception about some people being too old to obtain a mortgage loan because they have no chance of outliving the length of the average loan. Thus, the pointed question: Under normal lending conditions, when does a person become too old to buy a home and obtain a mortgage? With certain reservations... never!
If the real estate equity is there and the ability to repay is established, what is the difference if a person is 30 or 70 years of age? Each case, however, must be judged on its individual merits.
A survey of loans by one major Savings and Loan Association revealed that 25% magazine.

FBI Reportedly Told Robert Kennedy About CIA-Mafia Dealings In 1961

By GEORGE LARDNER Jr.
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The FBI alerted Robert F. Kennedy in May 1961 that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in backstage dealings with the Mafia, according to informed sources.
The warning was set down in a secret memo from then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and, the sources said, reflected information gleaned from the FBI's surveillance of Chicago racketeer Sam Giancana.
The document is now in the hands of the Rockefeller Commission and the Senate Committee on Intelligence Operations which have been investigating evidence of the CIA's recruitment of Mafia figures in a plan to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

A source close to the Rockefeller Commission said it is clear by now that there were not only repeated high-level discussions of Castro's assassination during both the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, "but there's also evidence of overt acts — overt covert acts. I guess you'd call them" to kill the Cuban premier.

The source refused to be specific, but he said the commission's investigation does not support the notion of a "secret police operation that went away on its own without White House approval. There is increasing evidence that what the CIA did in the field was known to some of the highest officials of the government."
Administrations of both parties, this source added, deserve "some of the blame," although the record remains "muddy" on the chain of responsibility for various specific attempts on Castro's life, he said.

"There were indigenous (Cuban) organizations trying to do him in" at the same time, the source said.
Hoover's concern about CIA dealings with the Mafia, other sources said, was sparked by the 1960 surveillance of comedian Dan Rowan in Las Vegas, which was apparently arranged by the CIA as a favor to Giancana.
The head of a Miami private detective agency involved in the surveillance, Edward L. DuBois III of Investigators Inc., confirmed that it was arranged by Robert A. Mabeu, a former FBI agent and then a consultant to billionaire Howard Hughes.

Mabeu has refused to comment on reports that he was acting at the behest of the CIA. Giancana was reportedly upset over Rowan's friendship with singer Phyllis McGuire, whom the Mafia boss frequently escorted, and one of the detectives involved in the surveillance, Arthur J. Balletti, has said he was told to watch for the singer while keeping track of Rowan.
In addition, other sources confirmed, Mabeu, a former FBI agent who once ran his own detective agency in Washington, recruited Mafia figure Johnny Roselli to work for the CIA against Castro. Roselli was reportedly Giancana's right-hand man on the West Coast.

Hoover was apparently unaware of any plot to assassinate Castro, sources said, but wrote his memo to Kennedy because he feared that any CIA-Mafia deals could compromise government investigations and prosecutions of organized crime cases. Kennedy wrote on the memo that he wanted Hoover's report "followed up vigorously," and eventually was briefed by top CIA officials on what Roswell and Giancana had done for the agency.

"We told him (Kennedy) in as much detail as we had at the time," one former CIA official recalled, but "my general recollection is that nothing was done outside the country."
Other sources have suggested this may have been true of the CIA-Mafia scheme, but emphasized that it was not the only plot devised against Castro in the 1959-63 period.

Central Branch YMCA To Offer Variety Of Programs

A variety of summer programs will be offered by the community department of the Midland YMCA Central Branch for both YMCA members and non-members.

Registration week for season one of summer activities will be Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Day Camp Chaparral, with five sessions running from June 9 through Aug. 1, will offer a quality camping experience for youth from 5 through 12 years and provides a full day of activities five days a week.

Another full day program will be the Summer Fun Club which is offered Monday, Wednesday and Friday beginning June 9.

The advantage of this program is that prior enrollment is not necessary and youngsters from 6 through 12 years will be accepted on a drop-in basis.

Trips and activities around town and out of town are part of the Fun Club program.

A baton-twirling class will be offered to girls six years and older. There will be two levels of instruction, advanced and intermediate, on Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p.m. and beginner on Monday and Wednesday at 4 p.m. Two sessions of four weeks each will be offered, beginning June 9 and July 7.

In July, a summer soccer league will be formed for young men in grades three through 12. All games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday. Enrollments will be taken during June.

The annual football clinic will be conducted by Aubrey Llane in late August.

Special field trips to be offered this summer as part of the "Roadrunner" Club will include Carlsbad Caverns on June 26, Fort Davis on July 26, and a three-day trip to Six Flags over Texas and a Texas Ranger baseball game July 1 through 3. Enrollments and information for these trips will be available June 1.

Physical education classes for session one will run from June 9 to July 3.

Classes in swimming and gymnastics are available for all ages. Swim and gym classes are scheduled so that a youngster can attend the classes consecutively.

Swim instruction will include moms and tots (ages 1-3); tadpole (ages 4-6); pollywog, minnow, fish, flying fish and shark (first graders and older); and adult instruction. Several recreational and fitness programs are also scheduled, along with classes in springboard diving and water polo.

Gymnastics instruction will include beginning tumbling, high school girls gymnastics, boys gymnastics club and trampoline instruction. In addition, a tiny tumblers class for ages 4-6 will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:15 p.m. and an instructional gymnastics class for ladies will meet at 9 a.m. the same days.

For other adults, the all-weather jogging track, basketball and racquetball courts, exercise and weight rooms, and gymnasium will be available, along with group classes in ladies' aerobics, men's exercise, run-for-your-life, swim-for-your-life, ladies volleyball, men's volleyball and businessmen's basketball.

Other summer activities for boys and girls at the Eastern Dance for ladies and girls.

Information and registration for summer YMCA programs can be obtained at the Central YMCA office, 500 N. Big Spring 683-2551.

Prosecutors Say Charges Just Opening Round In Battle Against Alleged Land Fraud Scheme

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Prosecutors say charges against four real estate industry officials and three firms represent the opening round in a legal battle against an alleged $1 billion land fraud scheme in Florida.

State Atty. David Bludworth said the 125 charges filed by his office Friday, including fraud, grand larceny, sale of unregistered securities and sale of securities by unregistered salesmen, are the first to result from a state probe of 56 development agencies.

State officials have said the 56 firms are suspected of bilking between 30,000 and 80,000 investors of as much as $1 billion by peddling phony first mortgages.

Investigators in Tallahassee said they believe the 2609 Corp., a Fort Lauderdale-based land development firm, sold as much as $1.1 million in securities in Palm Beach County alone. There were no estimates immediately available for its total sales statewide.

The comptroller's office in Tallahassee identified those charged Friday as:

- Harris A. Collier of Coral Gables, president of 2609 Corp. The charges involve the alleged sale by the firm of lots in the Green Swamp area of Polk County in Central Florida. The firm and broker allegedly used what were said to be first mortgages on homesites to secure corporate notes which then were sold to investors; the comptroller's office said Collier was charged with five counts of selling securities without registering as a dealer.
- Lane Hartwell of Stuart, president of Hartwell and Associates of North Palm Beach and Jacksonville. Hartwell's firm, the charges allege, marketed the securities. He is charged with five counts of selling securities without registering as a dealer, selling unregistered securities, fraud and grand larceny.
- Philip Swan and David Edstrom, both of Fort Lauderdale and associated with SEI, a master mortgage broker for securities in 2609 and similar development firms. Swan and Edstrom each were charged with five counts of selling unregistered securities, fraud and grand larceny.
- The three firms — SEI, Hartwell and Associates, and 2609 Corp. — were charged as corporations.
- The 2609 Corp. developed Gateway Acres in Polk County and 2,354 acres in the Green Swamp, a vast area of mostly dry land. The firm sold 19-acre tracts to mostly out-of-state buyers for about $5,000 each, the comptroller's office said.
- Charges against the firm include allegations that it offered first mortgages to investors at guaranteed interest returns of 12 and 14 per cent when the property already was covered by a blanket first mortgage, now in foreclosure.

Med School Proposal Apparently Dead

AUSTIN (AP) — For want of a committee chairman's signature, a proposed new medical school branch for Texas Woman's University is apparently dead.

Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, angrily accused Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, Friday afternoon in a Senate speech of killing the medical branch bill, that would have established dual campuses in Fort Worth and in the Rio Grande Valley.

"This bill has the opposition of one person but this bill should not be killed by that one person," Meier said.

Moore replied that he was merely following Senate rules concerning committee consideration of a bill, adding that "we have been asked to create two medical schools with a hot check."

Moore has refused to sign a report by the Senate State Affairs committee, of which he is chairman, and without his signature the House-passed bill cannot be put on the debate calendar.

The measure was approved by the House on May 14. Meier said the bill was approved, 8-0, by eight members of the State Affairs committee on Thursday.

"I do not intend to ever sign that report. I was not present when that vote was taken (in committee) and the vice chairman was not present," Moore said. "I am just trying to save Texas the embarrassment of creating two medical schools with a hot check."

Midlander Gets Degree

Summer School Registration Monday

Registration for both elementary and secondary summer schools has been scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to noon Monday in the Midland High School cafeteria.

Classes for both age groups begin Wednesday and classes will be in Midland High.

Elementary classes will continue through Aug. 7, with July 2 through 4 as a holiday.

Classes offered will be remedial reading, remedial math and study skills. Learning and Language Disability (LLD) classes of some 20 students will be handled by the school district's Special Education Department.

The elementary classes will be conducted, at one hour each, between 8 a.m. and noon weekdays. Summer session principal is Wilburn Buttery, and the cost is $35 per student.

High school academic and distributive education classes will be offered in three quarter sessions for $20 per quarter credit. Leonard Monroe will be principal.

The first quarter session basic subjects will be offered June 4 through June 23, June 25 through July 17 for the second quarter and July 21 through Aug. 7 for the third quarter.

Classes will be 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily, with July 2 through 4 slated as holidays.

Subjects offered include English, American history, world history, government, fundamentals of math, driver education, algebra, geometry, personal typing, typing and distributive education.

Also offered will be remedial reading, remedial math and study skills for grades 4 to 12.

In addition to the course list any required or elective subject will be offered when a minimum of 15 students enroll.

Refunds for class payment will be made only on or before the last registration day for the particular quarter—June 5 for the first quarter, June 26 for the second quarter and July 23 for the third quarter.

Students may register for the second quarter any time prior to June 25 or for the third quarter any time prior to July 21.

The school's summer school telephone number is 683-6451.

Patty Hearst's Sister Put On Probation

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The sister of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, Anne Randolph Hearst, has been placed on four months' probation after admitting she owned 12 amphetamine tablets found in a companion's sock.

She could be cleared of the drug-possession charge if she serves her probation satisfactorily, Judge John T. Curtin of U.S. District Court said Friday.

Anne Hearst, 19, and Donald R. Moffett, 21, of Denver, Colo., were arrested March 4 as they drove from Canada into the United States at nearby Niagara Falls. Both were charged with possession of a controlled substance.

The young woman's father, Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, watched from a front row as his daughter pleaded guilty to the charge.

To Miss Hearst, a student at Regis College in Denver, Curtin said:

"It seems to me the circumstances were that you were driving across the country and perhaps foolishly received some of these pills from friends or classmates to assist you in driving. Unfortunately, this is a violation of the law."

Curtin added that he would not enter a judgment of guilty now, and would defer further proceedings to allow Miss Hearst's lawyer to apply for a dismissal of the charge after the probationary period expires.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Roger P. Williams said the government would drop the charge against Moffett since he and Miss Hearst said the tablets, commonly called "speed," belonged to her.

Miss Hearst's sister Patricia was kidnapped in February 1974 by a group calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army. Patricia later renounced her parents and said she was joining the SLA.
