Ban On Natural Gas For Boiler Fuel Questioned

AUSTIN (AP) — Conscious businessmen have questioned whether the Texas Railroad Commission might be jumping the gun in considering a prohibition against the use of natural gas for boiler fuel.

They also told the three-member state agency they doubted it had the power to make the order stick.

Natural gas—once scorned and burned as an oil field waste—once again Tuesday was the focal point of a statewide commission hearing. The hearing continued today.

The importance of a possible order eliminating natural gas as a boiler fuel was illustrated by the standing-room-only crowd of several hundred persons and the presence of the three commissioners—rather than merely a staff examiner.

It was obvious, too, from the day-long testimony that the executives and others were worried that gas saved in Texas might be burned out-of-state.

Disagreement over whose gas should be cut first also surfaced.

Howard Jensen, vice president of Lone Star Steel Co., said any reduction in the 15 million cubic feet of gas it uses each day "could be a body blow to the economy of north-east Texas."

The Morris County plant employs 5,000 workers from seven counties, Jensen said, with an annual payroll of $60 million a year.

Curtallment, he said, would be "self-defeating" in that it could reduce the casing and tubing Lone Star manufactures for the oil fields.

Thomas Devine, vice president of Celanese Corp. and a spokesman for the Petrochemical Energy Group (PEG), said any order directing the conversion of gas-fired boilers to oil or coal would need the approval of the federal government.

Devine noted two federal proposals to restrict the use of natural gas under boilers and said, "Conflicting federal policies and pending legislation could frustrate a Texas plan or, worse, treat the fruits of a Texas plan as spoils to be divided among other states."

"In these circumstances," he said, "it seems wiser to defer implementing specific conversion measures at this time."

He asserted that "natural gas as a boiler fuel is an inferior use" to the "nonsubstitutable feedstock and process fuel requirements of the petrochemical industry."

Petrochemicals, he said, account for 300,000 jobs in Texas and provide the "building blocks" required to meet America's needs for food, clothing, shelter and health.

T. L. Austin Jr. of Dallas, chairman of the board of Texas Utilities Co., also questioned the railroad commission's authority, saying, "Our lawyers tell me that there is a serious question as to the authority of the commission to forbid the use of gas as a fuel."

Carolyn Jordan, city councilwoman from Lubbock, said the phase-out of natural gas as a boiler fuel in less than 2 years would have "disastrous economic" consequences.

Commissioner Jim Langdon said the commission was thinking about a 10-year period because it was too uncertain to project beyond that time.

Wildcat Trio Set In Basin

Wildcats have been staked in Hockley, Coke and Runnels counties.

Alan B. Leeper of Midland No. 2 John Given will be dug as a 6,000-foot exploration six miles southeast of Sundown in South Hockley County.

Drill site is 440 feet from north and west lines of section 16, block X, PSL survey.

James K. Anderson will dig No. 1 Geist as a 7,100-foot wildcat in Coke County, eight miles southwest of Blackwell. It is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 265, block 1-A, H&TC survey and five miles east of the two-well Arledge (Pennsylvanian) field.

Anderson No. 1 Bridwell will be dug six miles east of Hatchell in Runnels County, 7,025 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of Austin & Williams survey No. 263.

Contract depth is 4,050 feet. Location is 1/2 mile southwest of a recent Gardner gas discovery.

C&K Completes Drinkard Oiler

C&K Petroleum, Inc., No. 1-34 Shipp, west offset to production in the three-well Shipp (Drinkard) field of Lea County, N. M., five miles southeast of Lovington, has been completed.

On 24-hour potential test, it showed 53.2 barrels of oil and no water, through Drinkard perforations from 8,148 to 8,275 feet. Gravity of the oil is 37.8 degrees, and gas-oil ratio is 477.

The oiler is bottomed at 8,905 feet, with 4 1/2-inch casing cemented at total depth.

Wellbore is 1,900 feet from south and west lines of section 24-16a-37e.

Morrow Wildcat In Lea Testing

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-A Covington-Federal, wildcat in Lea County, N. M., four miles southeast of the Red Tank (Morrow) gas field, is testing the Morrow sand.

The explorer was drilled to 15,550 feet and plugged back to 14,950 feet. Casing was perforated from 14,679 to 14,914 feet.

The last gauge reported was 33,000 cubic feet of gas during an unreported time.

Location is 640 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 25-22a-32e, 16 miles southeast of Halfway.

Ellenburger Zone In Coke Reopened

Mann Rankin of Midland No. 1 Lassiter has been completed to reopen Ellenburger production in the San Benito multiphase field of Coke County, two miles northwest of Sunco.

On 24-hour potential test, the well pumped 76 barrels of 46-gravity oil and no water, through perforations from 6,809 to 6,816 feet. Pay was acidized with 500 gallons.

Gas-oil ratio was 250-1. The

Sgt. Jim Colburn of the Midland Police Department surveys pistols, rifles and shotguns and appliances recovered Tuesday in the search of two Odessa residences. Police said the weapons cache was stolen early Saturday from White Stores, Inc., at 3 Meta Drive here. Two suspects in the burglary remained in Midland city jail today on bonds of $25,000 each.

Charges Filed In Burglary

Two Odessa men, David Franklin Collinsworth, 22, and Tom Steven Tucker, 22, remained in Midland city jail today on bonds of $25,000 each after being arrested in Odessa Tuesday and charged with the burglary of a Midland store, in which more than $4,800 worth of guns and ammunition were taken.

The suspects were arrested while driving in the 300 block of University Street in Odessa.

The pair is charged with the burglary of White Stores, Inc., at 3 Meta Drive in the Village Shopping Center early Saturday.

Reported taken were 18 pistols, 21 shotguns, 17 rifles and 69 boxes of ammunition, along with two television sets and two radios. Value of the weapons alone was estimated at $4,800.

A Midland police detective said today, "as far as we know," all of the merchandise was recovered.

Lt. Earl Luckey of the Midland Police Department said today officers were going to Odessa to pick up a revolver taken during the burglary and sold.

Fewer weapons were recovered than were reported stolen, he said, because some weapons reported as stolen had been sold before the burglary.

Luckey said that "a great many of the rifles, shotguns and pistols were loaded."

A Midland police detective said today the suspects had refused to talk to officers and that it was not yet known why such a large quantity of weapons was stolen.

Capt. Floyd Hudman of Odessa said the suspects were wanted in Illinois where they

Ford To Fight Hard For Defense Budget

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Congress should approve his full defense budget and enact a program for U.S. energy independence to show the world that "Americans have lost neither their nerve nor their national will."

Ford's speech to the cadets came only hours after his return at 1 a.m. today from a weeklong trip to Europe during which he conferred with 22 heads of state.

The President waited until later in the day to meet with his Cabinet and congressional leaders at the White House to fill them in on his trip.

"Our major alliances are strong and firm... our allies' confidence in us is not misplaced," the President said.

Ford became the first president since John F. Kennedy to speak at a Military Academy commencement. Kennedy, a Navy veteran like Ford, was here in 1962.

Elsewhere, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller spoke to the graduating class of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger spoke at the Air Force Academy commencement.

As he wound up his speech, the President drew a burst of applause when he reminded "ourselves, our friends and our potential adversaries that Americans are still prepared to pay the price of freedom — that we will honor our commitments — that we will do our duty."

And he concluded: "Let us renew together our Founding Fathers' pledge to our country of our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor. And let us always remember that freedom is never free."

The President handed diplomas to 43 of the cadets, who were in the first five per cent of their class, and to the lowest ranking cadet — termed the "goat" — Eugene Emmett Shaw Jr. of Danville, Ill.

accomplished without it," he said.

"It is men and women like Bill Collins who have taken the wide view and recognized the impact on our lives and lifestyles that good, safe and efficient transportation has. It is they who have brought this vital issue to the attention of fellow citizens in their own communities," he said.

Interchange Opens

Three years and $3 million after the project was begun, the new U.S. 80 interchange at the Midland Regional Air Terminal entrance today was officially opened with ribbon cutting ceremonies which drew a host of state and local dignitaries.

The official ceremonies were preceded with a noon luncheon at Midland Country Club where Charles E. Simons, member of the Texas Highway Commission, named W. H. "Bill" Collins, editor of The Reporter-Telegram, for the Highway Department's road hand award.

"When the road hand awards were initiated by the Texas Highway Department in 1973, it was intended to honor Texas like Bill Collins," Simons was accompanied to the Toll City by commission chairman Reagan Houston and state highway engineer Luther DeBerry, all of Austin.

Several prominent Midlanders were on hand to see Collins receive the tribute and witness formal ceremonies held at 1:45 p.m. at the interchange site.

"Not all Texas road hand work for the Highway Department or in the private sectors of the road building industry," Simons said. "The work of road hands like Bill Collins is a more fundamental level."

"The success of the program rests squarely on the support and interest of the people of Texas. Nothing could have been

Israel Completes Force Pullback From Suez Canal

By The Associated Press — Israel completed the thinning out of its forces and firepower along the Suez Canal today, a day before Egyptian President Anwar Sadat seeks down the waterway to reopen it.

Israel's Defense Minister Shimon Peres, announcing completion of the pullback, said he hoped Israel's gesture would lead to the relaxation of tension in the entire area and help create a better atmosphere in the Egyptian cities along the canal.

Asked by newsmen if he thought Israel would make similar partial withdrawals on the other fronts with its Arab adversaries, Peres said: "We don't see any major change on any other front that would warrant such a move on our part."

He said the Jordanian and Lebanese fronts were relatively quiet and he didn't think Syria would make any drastic change toward peace.

In Washington, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said President Ford's summit meeting with Sadat may have laid a basis for a new period of Middle East diplomacy.

"I'm not saying there is going to be progress. I'm saying there could be," Kissinger said. "We can move into a phase of more specificity" after Ford meets with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin in Washington June 11-12, said a senior U.S. official who accompanied Ford on his European trip.

Peres said the partial Israeli withdrawal was "a one-sided move" made without expectation of a reciprocal concession from Egypt. Rabin in a television interview Tuesday renewed the Israeli claim that Egypt agreed as part of the disengagement agreement 18 months ago to allow cargo bound for Israel through the waterway.

He said if Egypt does not honor this pledge, Israel's position in future peace negotiations would be tougher, but "the Israeli reaction would in any case not be military."

After Israel announced it was thinning out its front-line

Senator Claims Evidence Of CIA 'Murder Plots'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate Intelligence Committee said today he has hard evidence of "murder plots" developed by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Church declined to give specific details and would not say whether any of the "plots" were carried out.

But he was sharply critical of statements by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and other members of the Rockefeller Commission for characterizing transgressions of the CIA as infrequent and minor.

"I have been concerned about the apparent attempt of certain members of the Rockefeller Commission... to lead the public to believe that any misdeeds of the CIA have been minor and that the agency has been relatively without guilt," Church told reporters at the National Press Club.

"I think the committee has heard enough and the Rockefeller Commission itself has heard enough evidence to substantiate my statements," Church added.

He refused several times to go beyond his statement.

However, he said he did mean to refer to "plots" in the plural and to make clear his belief that Rockefeller and other commission members were attempting to leave a false and unjustified impression.

Church said he had not seen an advance copy of the Rockefeller Commission report, which is to be released publicly Friday.

In announcing the completion of his commission's investigation of the CIA, Rockefeller said Monday it uncovered instances of wrongdoing but no pattern of widespread illegality.

"There are things that have been done which are in contradiction to the statutes," Rockefeller said, "but in comparison to the total effort, they are not major."

Reporters pressed Church on the matter, and he repeated that his committee has heard evidence of murder plots "and that the CIA has been implicated in this kind of activity."

Among those believed to have been questioned about alleged assassination conspiracies in CIA Director William Colby.

AUSTIN (AP) — Robert Kleasen was formally sentenced to death today in the murder and butchering of a Mormon missionary last Oct. 28 at his trailer behind a taxidermy shop.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overwhelmingly refused today to cut $1.2 billion from a $30.3-billion military weapons procurement and research bill.

GRANITE, Okla. (AP) — A group of rebellious inmates snatched nine hostages and took over the educational building at the Granite Reformatory today while they drew up a list of grievances.

House Vote Set On Ford's Veto Of Jobs Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats cautiously predict they have the votes to override President Ford's veto of a bill designed to create 900,000 jobs to help fight the recession.

Senate Democrats also were reported optimistic, but were waiting for the House vote later today before making final counts. It takes a two-thirds majority in both chambers to override a veto.

Both chambers passed the legislation by considerably more than two-thirds margins. Some Republican votes would be needed to provide the override margin, since the Democrats have a bare two-thirds majority in the House and less in the Senate.

The $5.3 billion measure seeks to provide jobs through direct public service employment programs and indirectly through acceleration of public works projects across the nation.

Imports Increase In May

DETROIT (AP) — Auto industry analysts say American car sales in May fell an estimated 23 per cent from year-ago levels, while imports rose about 17 per cent to grab a record May share of the U.S. market.

However, import deliveries were expected to be down slightly from April while domestic sales were expected to show a rise from the previous month, thus sending the import share of total monthly sales below 20 per cent for the first time this year.

The four major U.S. car makers and most foreign manufacturers report their May sales today.

Of eight importers which released their results on Tuesday, seven reported gains over May 1974, ranging from 13 per cent at Mercedes Benz to 127 per cent at Subaru.

Three importers — Fiat, Volvo and Alfa-Romeo — set sales records for the month. Only one importer — Subaru — reported an increase in sales over April levels.

Analysts predicted domestic car sales during the final 11-day period of the month were 250,000, the highest total for any sales period this year.

That would raise domestic sales for the entire month to 892,000, down from 766,443 a year ago and the lowest total for a May since 1961.

But the analysts said deliveries would be up 14 per cent from April. May sales normally rise only 8 per cent above April levels.

One analyst said the May figures would translate into an annual sales rate of 6.2 million U.S.-built cars, up from 5.9 million in April. The American companies sold 7.4 million cars last year and a record 9.7 million in 1973.

Import sales in May were estimated at about 135,000, up from a weak 118,400 a year ago, but off 4 per cent from April. Import sales in May normally rise about 5 per cent over April levels.

Defense Official Says Files On Dissenters May Be In Existence

By DOUGLAS WATSON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A Defense Department official testified Tuesday that files which the Army compiled on thousands of political dissenters during the late 1960s, and which the Army subsequently has said it destroyed, could still exist in U.S. intelligence agencies that exchanged information with the Pentagon.

David O. Cooke, a deputy assistant secretary of defense, said that while the Army has eliminated the files it compiled through surveillance of private citizens, he doesn't know what the CIA, FBI and other investigative agencies have done with any such files they got from the army before 1971.

"I think that is an astonishing situation," responded Rep. Andrew Maguire D-N.Y., a member of the House subcommittee on government information and individual rights.

Cooke, chairman of the Defense Privacy Board, said under questioning that he was "relatively certain" that prior to 1971 the Defense Department exchanged information on suspected civilian dissenters with U.S. intelligence agencies.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., the subcommittee chairman, asked whether such files could be retrieved. "I assume they are retrievable, but not by us," Cooke replied.

Cooke denied charges made by NBC-TV Monday night that instead of destroying its files on civilian dissenters, the Defense Department since 1971 secretly distributed them to CIA, National Security Agency and Massachusetts Institute of Technology through a computer network.

Cooke testified that unannounced inspections at most military installations in this country found only minor infractions of the Defense Department's 1971 directive requiring that political-dissident files be destroyed.

"The maintenance of files on Americans in exercise of their fundamental rights has got to stop," Rep. Abzug said emphatically as she repeatedly questioned whether federal government officials were certain such files had been destroyed and no longer are being compiled.

Spokesmen for the departments of Justice, Health, Education and Welfare and Defense said they aren't sure just how many record-keeping systems they have for retaining information individuals ranging from employment files to criminal investigations to Social Security files.

Mary Lawton, a deputy assistant attorney general, said the Justice Department seems to have about 410 record-keeping systems. Thomas S. McFee, a deputy assistant secretary, said Hew maintains as many as 500 systems.

Rep. Abzug repeatedly criticized the federal departments for not moving fast enough to draft guidelines and otherwise prepare for the Sept. 27 effective date of the Privacy Act of 1974, which will require federal agencies to make public all their systems for keeping records on individuals.

The new law also will allow citizens to obtain whatever information on themselves is being maintained by a federal office and to challenge its validity. Further, the law seeks to eliminate unessential record-keeping and will limit access to personal records.

House Appears Certain To Pass Strong Extension Of Voting Rights Law

By RICHARD L. LYONS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The House Tuesday overwhelmingly rejected a series of amendments which civil rights supporters said would seriously weaken the voting rights bill and appeared certain to pass a strong 10-year extension of the law today.

Through a long afternoon of voting, virtually no southern Democrat spoke on amendments and none offered any. They had led the fierce fights against civil rights legislation in the 1960s, but this time it was Republicans with their leadership support offering the softening amendments.

Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., first black elected to the House from a southern state covered by the law, suggested that the reason for southern silence was that, thanks to the effectiveness of the 1965 voting rights act, Southern congressmen now need black votes to win.

But Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, D-La., a leader of oldline southern Democrats, said they had decided against making a hard fight because provisions in the bill extending protection to language-minority groups will make it apply in many sections of the country, not the South which has been the main target of the law. "We feel the same way about this as we do about busing," said Waggoner. "Let them stew in their own juice up there."

The voting rights act, often called the most effective civil rights bill ever enacted, gave southern blacks the vote by suspending literacy tests for registration, sent in federal registrars and required covered states to clear changes in their voting laws with the attorney general or federal district court here in Washington.

Rep. Charles Wiggins R-Calif., backed by most Republican leaders, offered a substitute that would have made it easier for covered states to get out from under the law. He was defeated, 269 to 159, with Republicans voting 83 to 52 for the substitute and Democrats voting 217 to 51 against it.

Wiggins said court decisions have made it impossible for covered southern states brought under the act because they had literacy tests in 1964 ever to get out from under. He said the present law unfairly "tells the South to ride in the back of the bus" forever. His proposal would have exempted a state from provisions of the act if more than 50 per cent of voting-age blacks voted in a biennial federal election.

Lung Association Sets Conference Here This Week

The American Lung Association of Texas, Big Country Area, is sponsoring a Pulmonary Conference in Midland Friday and Saturday.

Midland and Big Spring medical personnel concerned with treatment of pulmonary patients are invited to the conference, which will be held at the Roweway Inn on Friday and at Midland Memorial Hospital Saturday.

Leaders for the conference include Dr. Phyllis Huffman of Midland, specialist in pediatric allergy; Maudie Rains of Midland, nurse anesthetist; and Dan Rodriguez, clinical coordinator of the Respiratory Technology Program at Odessa College. Joan Goodpasture, clinical coordinator of West Texas Community School of Respiratory Technology in Abilene, will lead the team of specialists.

Friday's session will emphasize the responsibility of members of the health team in the delivery of pulmonary patient care, patient care planning and problems particular to the patient with chronic or acute pulmonary disease.

Saturday morning Miss Goodpasture will demonstrate and discuss respiratory equipment in the staff conference room at Midland Memorial. At 10 a.m. Saturday, guest lecturer Dr. Paul M. Stevens of Houston will speak to physicians in the area.

Stevens is professor of medicine and chief of pulmonary section at Baylor College of Medicine. His topic will be "The Physiologic Approach to the Diagnosis and Therapy of Acute Respiratory Failure."

A typhoon hit Hong Kong on Sept. 19, 1967, and an estimated 50,000 persons died.

Man Who Killed Beggars Arrested

Agency France-Press
VITORIA, BRAZIL — Police arrested a lethal crusader, Sidney Silvestre Moraes, who murdered five beggars here in obedience to what he called "the Divine mission of cleansing this city of people who live by asking decent people for money."

Moraes, who killed his victims here early Monday morning, called himself the envoy of the "True God." Police said he admitted having killed three other beggars in Sao Paulo, where he lives.

He asked police to be allowed to continue his "sacred mission."

Moraes, 27, is tall and thin, with light-colored hair, blue eyes and a demasted air. He constantly repeated: "I am a man of God who came to this city to free it from evil doers."

Brazil's Population To Top 107 Million

Agency France-Press
RIO DE JANEIRO — The population of Brazil will exceed 107 million on July 1, the National Institute of Geography and Statistics said.

The institute forecasts further that the population would rise to 123 million in 1980.

The highest growth rates in the last 12 months were recorded in the nation's northeast and southeast regions, which now have 22,013,000 and 45,312,000 inhabitants, respectively.

Andrews Cleanup Campaign Launched

ANDREWS — A cleanup campaign, expected to last through June, is under way here.

U.S. Becomes Self-Sufficient In Gold Overnight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virtually overnight, the United States has become almost self-sufficient in gold and able to exert considerable influence over world gold prices.

The development has been at least partially responsible for a decline in world gold prices from a peak of $199 an ounce late last year to around $165 an ounce recently.

In addition, the United States has not needed to import any gold so far this year, compared with net imports of about 4.5 million ounces in 1974.

The supply of gold that has made the United States self-sufficient has come from the U.S. Treasury, which possesses the world's largest gold stockpile. Treasury officials say a government gold auction later this month will help reduce the amount of imports and thus help keep U.S. dollars from flowing out of the country.

The U.S. stockpile totals about 276 million ounces, equal in value to about $45.5 billion at the recent market price of about $165 an ounce.

"We own more gold than anybody else in the world; nobody will have as much gold as we do for the next 30 to 35 years," said Thomas W. Wolfe, director of the Treasury Department's office of domestic gold and silver operations.

The gold, accumulated over the years, formerly was government's chief monetary asset and used to back up U.S. currency and to settle international debts.

O'Bryan Convicted Of Poisoning Son; Jury To Decide Punishment

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury will decide punishment today for "the man who ruined Halloween," Ronald C. O'Bryan, a Houston optician convicted of capital murder Tuesday in the trick or treat candy poisoning of his eight-year-old son.

The three-man jury deliberated only 46 minutes before retiring at the gaily decorated court to hear testimony and arguments today before deliberating on punishment. The state is asking for a death penalty.

In closing arguments Tuesday, assistant district attorney Mike Hinton said O'Bryan "should be damned for what he did"—not only for killing his son, but for triggering "terror and suspicion" in residential neighborhoods.

Defense attorney Richard Harrison said the state never proved O'Bryan actually bought cyanide and poisoned the candy with it.

O'Bryan, 39, is known to many Houston school children as "the man who ruined Halloween."

He was convicted of giving his son, Timothy, a cyanide-laced candy which O'Bryan claimed he received during a trick or treat outing.

He is also indicted on one count of attempted capital murder and three counts of murder in the distribution of poisoned candies to his daughter and to three other children.

Timothy O'Bryan's death sent shock waves through Houston suburban neighborhoods and some parents' organizations have already announced plans to forbid the traditional trick or treat.

"I'm very happy about the verdict," said Charles Hudgins, the stepfather of Whitney Parker, a young boy who received one of the poisoned candies. "I feel better about Halloween now, but I think next year (Halloween) everybody will have a block party instead of trick or treating."

According to testimony in the month-long trial, O'Bryan, a friend named Jim Bates, two O'Bryan children and Bates' son spent about 45 minutes on a rain-drenched trick or treat outing in Pasadena, a Houston suburb.

During the outing, Bates said O'Bryan came away from a house holding Pixy Stix, a powdered confection packaged in a plastic tube.

Later, the candy was distributed to the O'Bryan and Bates children and to Whitney Parker, who just happened to come to the door.

O'Bryan testified he later let his son eat a Pixy Stix. The boy vomited, went into convulsions and died within an hour.

The state contended O'Bryan killed his son to collect on $30,000 in insurance.

An insurance agent testified O'Bryan took out $20,000 policies on his two children four weeks before Halloween and paid a $108 premium in cash. The agent said O'Bryan called within hours of his son's death to start processing a claim.

The defendant's wife, Mrs. Daylene O'Bryan, testified for the state, saying she knew nothing of the $20,000 policy and had argued against two $10,000 policies taken out on the children in January.

She said the family was "very poor," deeply in debt, about to have their car repossessed and that O'Bryan had no insurance at all on his own life at the time he took out the $30,000 policies.

Several witnesses testified that O'Bryan, starting in September, had shown an unusual interest in cyanide. He asked a chemist where it could be bought and how much was needed for a fatal dose. Another witness said he tried to buy the chemical at a supply house.

Mrs. O'Bryan also testified that her husband began talking about how the insurance money was to be spent even before the boy was buried.

Her testimony triggered the only show of emotion from O'Bryan throughout the long trial. He wept quietly through much of her appearance.

In closing arguments Tuesday, Harrison said the state presented a "flawed" circumstantial evidence case and never proved O'Bryan actually put cyanide into the candies. He said the state concentrated on a minute that he was ready to take the rest of the kids too ... to cover his own tracks."

Hinton characterized the thinking of O'Bryan, an active church worker as: "Oh, my God, the money's coming, but it's okay because Tim's with Jesus."

Hinton, in his closing arguments, admitted "I don't know where he got that cyanide," but said state witnesses proved "he had cyanide on his mind" just before Halloween.

He characterized O'Bryan as "a liar" who "lies even when there's nothing to be gained by it," and, hence, his claim of innocence cannot be believed.

"This is the most despicable crime I've ever heard of—to kill your own son for money," said Hinton, snarling on the last word. "And don't forget for the jury brought in the guilty verdict."

He faced the jurors and ducked his head only once as jury foreman Doyle Roddy, looking directly at O'Bryan, read the verdict.

The jurors were polled and one by one answer "yes, sir," when asked if this was their verdict. The packed courtroom was stilled.

"Can you imagine the terror and suspicion in that neighborhood?" Hinton asked. "Can you imagine what this had done to Halloween night. How many more years will it be before we have another normal Halloween."

"Please be strong," Hinton asked the jury. "He should be damned for what he did."

O'Bryan stood impressively as the jury brought in the guilty verdict.

O'Bryan's act will have lasting consequences, he said.

CONVICTED OF MURDER — Ronald C. O'Bryan is shown as he waited for an elevator outside a Houston courtroom Tuesday after he had been convicted of murder in the death of his 8-year-old son Timothy. The jury found him guilty of poisoning his son with Halloween candy to collect on a large insurance policy. The jury convenes today to decide punishment in the case. (AP Wirephoto.)

Decisive 'Yes' Vote Predicted In British Market Referendum

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

KEIGHLEY, England — This Yorkshire mill town, a sensitive barometer of British opinion, is pointing toward a decisive "yes" vote in the referendum on the Common Market Thursday.

Yorkshiresmen are famous for hoarding their "brass" or money. But with Britain's economy in deep trouble, it is the European Economic Community's political — not its economic — virtues that are winning most voters here.

"We are sunk without the market," says Nora Moore, the wife of a prosperous druggist. "We're too small to stand on our own. We must stick together to avoid wars and to keep the Communists out."

It is the sorry state of Britain's inflation-ridden economy that foes of the community stress. Jack Ralstock, a printer, speaks for a sizeable minority when he says:

"The cost of living has just soared since we went into the market. The motor industry is on the verge of bankruptcy because of the foreign cars being pushed in here. We'll lose our sovereignty. We could even lose the Queen."

Above all, Keighley wants to cling to what it has and fears the change that leaving the nine-member Common Market would bring. An accountant says: "It will cause too many problems to come out. I wasn't sure we should get in, but once we're in we should stay in."

What Keighley thinks and how it votes have a special significance. The town's farmers, textile mill and machinery workers, bank clerks and civil servants are a microcosm of the occupational structure of the country as a whole. Keighley is a demographic mirror of Britain.

Not surprisingly, the town has voted just like the country in the six national elections since 1950, going Conservative when the nation went Tory and Labor when Britain voted Socialist.

A random sampling of opinion in the town's two major markets, a low income public housing development and among the well-to-do homes in Spring Gardens turned up a comfortable majority of "yes" votes among those with an opinion.

Forty-five said they want Britain to stay in, and this sentiment is strongest among the well-to-do and white collar workers. Thirty said they want Britain out, and this view is more frequently voiced by blue collar workers. An unforeseen result was that no fewer than 35, more than one in three, said they still haven't made up their minds.

The "don't knows" are the long uncertainty, both in Keighley and the rest of Britain. If they swing massively to the "no" column — an unlikely prospect — they could pull Britain out of the EEC. The undecideds are confused by the rival claims and by the complexity of an issue which many supporters of EEC membership insist should never have been put to the people.

The issues have been explored relentlessly on television and in the four serious national papers. But most people tune out news of the market. At the Gardiner Arms, a pub in the center of town, the other day at noon the television was carrying a brisk debate between two articulate members of Parliament. Not a soul looked up from their pints to watch it.

The government is mailing every voter three popularly written leaflets, one by the pro-market forces, one by the opponents and the third carrying Prime Minister Harold Wilson's own tepid endorsement. But with 12 days to go before the vote, none had arrived in Keighley.

Indeed, the campaign is barely visible in the town. A few cars carry "Britain in Europe" stickers, but there are no posters or badges in sight. The "yes" force have just received their leaflets and placards and were getting them out. The "no" team did not expect to launch its campaign until the last 10 days.

TMA's House Of Delegates Against Doctors' Slowdown

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

The House of Delegates of the Texas Medical Association has gone on record against work stoppages as a weapon to reduce medical malpractice insurance rates, which cost some doctors as much as $30,000 a year.

About 100 members of the TMA policy-making body spent more than three hours arguing Texas afternoon before adopting the position statement.

The delegates met behind closed doors in Austin after hearing a low key appeal from Gov. Dolph Briscoe and watching him sign legislation guaranteeing doctors malpractice coverage for the next two years at rates regulated by the State Insurance Board.

One of the two bills includes a mandatory search by an 18-member Medical Liability Professional Liability Study Committee for a permanent solution to the malpractice crisis.

The House of Delegates' statement pledges the TMA's cooperation with the commission, which will include two doctors selected by the TMA: Milton Davis of Dallas and Edward D. Webb, Houston.

"In view of the studies of the Medical Professional Liability Study Commission, the House of Delegates expresses a definitive position that patients and the public will best be served by a dedicated profession continuing to provide medical care to the people of the state," the statement said.

When asked for a summary of the statement, Webb replied: "In essence, it says the TMA is on record as favoring the continuation of medical care, with no work stoppages at this time."

The statement does not bind doctors, however, and Dr. Nell Nations, president of the San Antonio Society of Anesthesiologists, said her group will continue its slowdown.

Dr. Nations was defeated in an effort to put in the statement a call for doctors to provide only emergency care until the governor has convened a special session of the legislature to pass a bill limiting the size of judgments and settlements in malpractice cases. The TMA supported such a bill but failed to get it through the Texas House of Representatives.

The statement does not bind doctors, but TMA President-elect L.S. Thompson Jr. of Dallas said, "I am sure it will have the effect of heading off work stoppages by physicians in Dallas and other cities."

"I think the House of Delegates has done exactly what the governor wanted us to do," Thompson said.

But neither he nor President N.L. Barker of Paris would rule out work stoppages during the next two years if malpractice rates and the availability of coverage do not improve.

Briscoe signed the two temporary malpractice bills after addressing the delegates.

"For many generations, the people of Texas have had great confidence in the medical profession. They have turned to our doctors and hospitals in times of greatest need and have watched with deep gratitude and respect as the members of the Texas medical professions have responded to our many human crises," Briscoe said.

"Today, the people of Texas have the same expectation of our doctors and hospitals—the expectation that the members of the health care professions will act responsibly in this current crisis situation; that this new legislation will be given a chance to work, and that we will be given adequate time to collect and analyze all of the facts about medical liability insurance in Texas as we seek to provide satisfactory relief for all affected parties."

One bill sets up the study commission, with a reporting deadline of Dec. 31, 1976, and requires the more than 300 companies writing liability insurance to share the risks of providing malpractice coverage. The other returns to the State Insurance Board its power to regulate malpractice coverage, a power taken away 20 years ago at the TMA's behest.

The board will have the authority to veto rates charged by the companies and require them to submit data on their Texas loss experience.

"My suspicions are that physicians and hospitals are paying rates that are too high and do not reflect the Texas experience. I believe they are a reflection of the national experience," insurance board chairman Joe Christie told the doctors.

He predicted that gathering statistics for the next two years "should have a profound depressing effect on the rates you are being charged."

Doctors are engaging in slowdowns or work stoppages, including cancellation of non-emergency operations, in Austin and San Antonio. El Paso anesthesiologists plan a two-day work stoppage Thursday and Friday, and those in Beaumont plan an indefinite walkout beginning Friday.

The president of the Texas Hospital Association, O. Ray Hurst, issued a statement commending the TMA delegates "for their cool and reasonable approach to a potentially volatile situation. The lack of or the high cost of professional liability insurance is a very serious problem for hospitals as well as doctors. We are convinced, as apparently is TMA, that those bills that are now law must be given an opportunity to work."

GOVERNOR SIGNS MALPRACTICE INSURANCE BILLS — Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Dr. Nym Barker, Paris, president of the Texas Medical Association share in a hearty laugh as the governor signed into law two bills aimed at bringing temporary help to Texas doctors in obtaining malpractice liability insurance. More Indictments Predicted In Judge Carrillo Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — The foreman of a South Texas grand jury predicts "quite a few more" indictments will be returned in the political upheaval that surrounds an effort to impeach Dist. Court Judge O. P. Carrillo.

Jose R. Nichols, ranch foreman of a 100,000-acre ranch in Freer County owned by San Antonio banker-rancher Clinton Manges, was a witness Tuesday as the special House committee considering allegations against Carrillo resumed hearings following the close of the legislature.

Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, chairman of the 11-member group, said testimony would continue daily the rest of the week and into next week if necessary. If the committee recommends impeachment the House will be recalled to consider the charges, which if approved by the House would bring on a trial by the Senate.

Nichols is foreman of a grand jury in Judge Carrillo's district. Under questioning he said that other members of the jury include a vice president of the Manges ranch and a first cousin of Carrillo.

"Is this a political type grand jury set up by the judge to investigate his political enemies?" asked Rep. Melchor Chavez, D-Harlingen.

"I've never discussed the grand jury with the judge," Nichols said.

Nichols said he had been threatened twice since he was made grand jury foreman.

"Once Mr. Manges called me and told me not to leave the ranch without someone with me because they were out to get me," he said.

The committee has made an unsuccessful attempt to subpoena Manges.

Nichols said he talked with Manges Saturday night by telephone "but I did not ask where he was. I forgot to ask about the subpoena. It slipped my mind."

Another witness Tuesday was Octavio Hinojosa, assistant Duval County auditor.

Rep. Bob Hendricks, D-McKinney, asked about a warrant paid by the county that showed 88 sheets of fancy rustic pecan panelling were delivered to Precinct 3, where the commissioner is Ramiro Carrillo, the judge's brother, and charged to the road and bridge fund. Also delivered were door knobs, interior door jams and

by Carroll Righter

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Afternoon and early evening are not good times to get any new plans into effect. Study details them. Later, you find you are able to make real headway toward your long-range goals by discussing them with knowledgeable persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Daytime is not good for making any changes where partners are concerned, but you know the right ones to make by evening.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Come what your personal aims are and how best to attain them in the shortest possible time. A wise financial wizard can be helpful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Quietly think out your aims, then do something constructive about attaining them. Assist a good friend in trouble.

SCORPIO CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Personal aims and revisions. Listen to what a good friend says, but extract only the wisdom from ideas to use.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be careful in dealing with others, and others, or you could lose out. You have now seen in some credit affairs better.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure new ideas are good before making any radical changes. Forget a very important news you may get from an out-of-town.

LINUS (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Change your attitude and improve relationship with one you like. Be conspicuous in the handling of some responsibility.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) An assistant is not giving you the information or assistance you need, but force nothing and it will soon be forthcoming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An unimportant quest work out now but will later. Instead of fighting, find the right solution. Talk so chances with a friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) An unimportant quest work out now but will later. Instead of fighting, find the right solution. Talk so chances with a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 18) You are not getting the backing from him you desire, but be patient and things change very quickly by p.m. Improve trend.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) Investigate a situation that will soon be coming up, but may not be right for you. Do nothing yet about a disturbing letter.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

Funeral Will Solve Things

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the mother who was brokenhearted because her son and daughter (both married with families) hadn't spoken to each other for years and were the reason she could not have complete family get-togethers.

If my own experience means anything, tell that mother not to worry. Eventually they'll make up. And although she won't live to see it, she will be the cause of it, because it will take place at her funeral!

Since everyone will be crying anyway, the two who finally decided to make up won't be conspicuous—even though they'll be crying twice as hard as everyone else. And with good reason.

Think about it, kids. Sign me...

cried me a river

DEAR CRIED: I wonder how many others have to bury a relative before they bury the hatchet? It's something to think about, all right. Thanks for a timely reminder. (Nu Charley?)

DEAR ABBY: My best girlfriend is getting married soon, and I am her maid-of-honor. I am trying to talk her out of a crazy plan she has that sounds ridiculous to me, but maybe I am wrong.

She wants to lock the church doors five minutes before the start of the ceremony.

I have argued that this is rude, since many of the guests will be driving into a strange area from a distant place and looking for an unknown church. I also showed her an etiquette book that says the bride's mother should be seated at the time the ceremony is scheduled to start and those who arrive late must watch the ceremony from the back of the church. It does NOT say that they should be locked out five minutes before the ceremony starts.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

DEAR ABBY: I have long hair and get tired of wearing the limited selection of commercially available hair bands.

Now whenever I make something of doubleknit, I make a matching hair band out of the remnants. I cut a wide strip an inch or two shorter than the distance around my head, seam, turn, press, stitch the ends together.

The stretch of the doubleknit allows it to slip on easily but hug my head snugly. And it matches my garment.

DEAR HELOISE: My daughter always wanted butterscotch pie for her birthday — no cake.

So when the filling has cooled, I put the meringue in my cake decorator, made a pretty border around next to the crust, piped or wrote "Happy Birthday" and her first name on it with a light brown icing.

These bottles are also good for pouring that opened can of milk "that you needed just a little bit of" and storing in the refrigerator. Saves room and the milk stays fresh longer.

Also on an outing or overnight camping trip, for people who like canned milk or sweet milk in their coffee or scrambled eggs, just the right amount, no souring or having an opened can or carton of milk floating around and getting water mixed in from moving the cooler around. These bottles float and are airtight.

I'm sure there are a lot of small things these bottles could be used for. A little bit of water when traveling with children. Detergent or dishwashing liquid when camping.

I would also like to thank you for taking the time and trouble to write a column to help us housewives and husbands to stretch a constantly shrinking dollar.

Mrs. Paul Bryant

DEAR HELOISE: At mealtimes my son, who is a little over one year old, occasionally prefers to play with his food than eat. I was about to throw out some photos of him, which were blurred or other wise unsuitable for our album, but instead, taped them to the kitchen counter near where he eats.

Now he has something to look at and keep occupied with while he eats.

Mrs. W. E.

DEAR BEST: Keep trying to convince her that YOU are right, because you are.

DEAR ABBY: TICKLED wrote, protesting her husband's habit of holding her down, tickling her ribs and feet until she becomes hysterical and thinking it's all just jolly fun.

Well, it isn't. It's torture. I know because my husband used to do this to me until I literally dampened his enthusiasm for this kind of "fun" when I lost control of my bladder on HIS side of the bed when he had me pinned down.

I refused to change the sheets until the next morning, and I went and slept on the sofa.

How To Squeeze More Out Of Your Budget

Dear Heloise:

Don't throw away those plastic squeeze bottles that liquid margarine comes in. These bottles are great to put ketchup in for small children — no mess, no waste.

The Midland Beta Sigma Phi City Council met Monday in the Learning Resources Center of Midland College, with Mrs. Dale DeBord, president, presiding.

Former Midland Teacher Married

EL PASO — Glida C. Alvarez of El Paso, formerly of Midland, and Lt. Phillip Sanfilippo were married here at 5 p.m. Sunday in St. Michael's Catholic Church in a double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Alvarez of El Paso and Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Sanfilippo of Brooklyn, N.Y.

The bride, a 1974-75 teacher with the Midland Independent School District, was presented in marriage by her father.

A reception was held in the Ft. Bliss Officers Club. The couple will reside in Athens, Greece, where the bridegroom is stationed with the United States Army at the American Embassy.

Magazine Features Seminole Designs

Photographs of fashions created by Mrs. Joe Smith of 5304 Ma-Mar St. are featured in the May issue of Arizona Highways magazine.

As related in the article, Mrs. Smith's authentic Seminole creations are handmade and require months to make. Mrs. Smith is the great-great-granddaughter of Chief Billy Bowlegs, Seminole Indian for whom the city of Bowlegs, Okla., was named. The fashions, which are meticulously hand-sewn together, are distributed through Saks Fifth Avenue in Phoenix, Ariz., and in Las Vegas, Nev.

five scholarships were awarded this year to Midland and Lee High School girl graduates. Included was Kathy Ann York, the first daughter of a member of the sorority to receive a scholarship. She also introduced recipients of scholarships to Midland College.

Kelley Ann Arthur, graduate of Lee High School, is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Arthur. She was a member of the Rebel-ettes. She plans to major in elementary education.

Mrs. DeBord announced the next council meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 25. XI Pi Kappa Chapter members will be the hostesses.

Xi Epsilon Chapter members were hostesses to a reception honoring the Student Council and National scholarship recipients.

Honor Society. She plans to study child development and elementary education. Ann Victoria Stone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Stone. She is a graduate of MHS and was a member of the A Cappella Choir, French Club and Student Council. She plans to major in commercial art.

Miss York daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman York. She is a graduate of LHS and was a member of the Rebel-ettes, lettered in drama and was the first female manager of the varsity basketball team. She will major in geology.

Fasken Award Given Student

Gina Leigh Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker, recently was named a recipient of a Fasken Foundation scholarship.

Miss Walker has been an active member of St. Luke's United Methodist Church and has been president of the United Methodist Youth. While attending Lee High School, she was a member of the Rebel Band, swim team, Junior Council, Pan-American Student Forum, Student Council and vice secretary of Aviation Explorer Post No. 747. She also has received awards in piano theory.

Miss Walker plans to attend Southwest Texas State University, where she will major in education and minor in Spanish.

Group Holds Annual Event

The Midland Legal Secretaries Association held Friday its annual Bosses' Night at Midland Country Club.

Midland attorney Pat M. Rankin gave the invocation. "The Sun Country Gentlemen" entertained with a program of "barbershop" songs.

Officers installed by Mrs. D. Sanders, also Midland attorneys, presided during the awards presentation, which was of a humorous nature. Instead of acknowledging the good works of secretaries and bosses, the masters of ceremonies recalled mistakes made by secretaries in law offices and bosses in courtroom situations. Several secretaries and bosses were recognized with appropriate awards.

Stanton Woman Engaged To Wed

STANTON—Mr. and Mrs. Burnell Howard of Stanton announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris Ruth, to David Michael Haynie, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Walter B. Haynie of Highlands.

The neighbor's puppy, a mere three hands high at birth, escaped his soldered chain ordinarily used for anchoring ocean liners and romped across my freshly dug flower bed. So much for the peonies.

Somebody had an accident in the kitchen with Funny Face midway between the refrigerator and the back door. And back again.

Years will be solemnized at 6 p.m. July 5 in the First Baptist Church at Brownwood.

Miss Howard will graduate in December from Howard Payne University, while her fiance is a May graduate of HPU. He is employed with J. C. Penney Co.

After resisting any slacks lighter than midnight blue I finally bought a dove gray pair and immediately sat in the residue of my daughter's strawberry sundae from the Tasty Froese which she had spooned across my side of the car just seconds before. Naturally.

My oldest son says if he can't have a pocketknife and a new pair of bell-bottoms he's going to run away from home. Difficult decisions like that always give me a headache.

I made the mistake of going into a department store dressing room to try on a new outfit. As a result, I got a good look at my backside, a view I've avoided for several months. Maybe if I promise not to look again it'll all go away. But I doubt it.

So far this season my children have rescued six baby rabbits and a dying robin. Yesterday they discovered a snake hole near the tomato patch.

If this is spring, can summer be far behind?

Castro's Sister Still Denounces Cuban Leader

By IKE FLORES

MIAMI (AP) — Her eyes flash and there is passion and fire in her voice when she denounces her brother and all he has wrought.

"He is a monster that must be overthrown," says Juanita Castro of Fidel. "That is the only way we can eradicate Communism from Cuba."

Juanita has been in Miami since 1964, five years after her brother toppled the Batista dictatorship and came to power.

She helped her brother in his struggle, but turned against him in 1960 and left Cuba.

She went to Washington last month for an anti-Castro demonstration held because U.S. officials had announced that a consensus exists for lifting the economic embargo against Cuba.

Miss Castro laments the fact that interest in her cause has dimmed.

"The small, dedicated circle of firm anti-Communists is getting ever smaller," she says ruefully.

What kind of a woman is Juanita?

She's in her early 40s now, a hard-working businesswoman. She recently became co-owner of a small pharmacy and discount notions store on the outskirts of Miami's "Little Havana" section.

She dresses fashionably, works a full day at her store, drives a late-model car and lives with a Cuban family in an upper-middle class home. She has never married and says little of her personal life.

Her father, Angel Castro, a Spaniard, was a well-to-do landowner in Cuba's Oriente Province. He died in 1956 while Fidel was in Mexico preparing for his Cuban invasion. His wife died in 1963, at Juanita's Havana home. Juanita left soon for Mexico, blaming Fidel for hastening her mother's death.

He never speaks publicly about Juanita.

Juanita has not tempered her harsh judgment of Fidel, who she says "betrayed us all, those of us who believed in a social, humanistic, democratic revolution."

When Fidel was in the Sierra Maestra mountains carrying out guerrilla warfare against the Batista army, Juanita was in this country raising money to help the rebels. She served as treasurer of the Fidelistas' 26th of July Movement in Miami in '57-'58.

Declining a post in the new government in 1960, Juanita says she worked instead at establishing hospitals and schools for the poor in the interior of the country.

But it took her only a little more than a year to become disillusioned. "You know how it is," she says. "You overhear things that aren't meant to be overheard. And my brother and the others would say one thing and do another."

What of her future if the United States and Cuba normalize relations?

"There have always been traitors to any cause," she says about those exiles who renewed ties with their homeland.

Older Persons More Successful At Suicide Attempts

By EMMA E. PULLEN
The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — Older people are more successful in suicide attempts than the young or middle-aged, but the rate of attempts is highest among women under 30, a seminar on suicide was told Friday.

Dr. Seymour Perlin, a psychiatrist at Georgetown University, said the rate of success among the elderly is a reflection of society's attitude toward the aging.

Usually the older person lives alone and has no family or is terminally ill and either cannot face going to the hospital or does not want to be a medical expense to the family.

Another factor indicated by Perlin was the availability of potent drugs. People under 30 bent on suicide, or suicide attempts, use mainly over-the-counter drugs, while the elderly often have access to a greater quantity of prescribed drugs.

Other panelists at the seminar at the Washington Hospital Center emphasized the need for the physician, family and friends of an individual who unsuccessfully attempts suicide to recognize whether the person really wants to die or is merely asking for help.

"There is a tendency to give warning and give others the chance to intervene," said Dr. Warren Johnson of the Baltimore Psychoanalytic Institute. "It is important in suicide attempts to see what can be changed, to get the message that is trying to be communicated."

It was generally agreed among the panelists that the best method for treatment is to show the individual someone cares. "Always leave something for them to look forward to," said Dr. Ricardo Galbis, director of Andromeda Hispano Mental Health center in the District of Columbia.

Galbis stressed the use of community centers, hotlines and the clergy in efforts to lower the suicide rate. "Where there is available treatment," he said, "there seems to be a decrease in suicidal attempts."

Data on suicides is hard to tabulate, Galbis told the group because until recently most suicides were recorded as death by asphyxiation, hemorrhaging or accident. Also, if a suicide occurs in connection with a homicide — an individual takes his own life after killing someone else — it is labeled a homicide.

According to a breakdown in the rate of suicide by sex, there is a higher rate of attempt among women — but men are more successful in their attempts. Dr. James Head of the Washington Hospital Emergency Center said that while more women show up in the emergency room, more men reach the coroner's office. Most calls are received at the center in the evening and early morning hours, and most attempts are made in the winter and around holidays, with January the peak month, according to Head.

Physicians and policemen have the highest incidence of suicide of any professions, according to Dr. Johnson, because of elements peculiar to their jobs. He said doctors may become frustrated when they try to help patients and fail. A policeman may suffer low self-esteem because his profession is going through a period of criticism by the public, Johnson said.

Kleasen Sentenced To Death In Murder Of Missionary

AUSTIN (AP) — Robert Kleasen must be put to death, a jury decided in only 21 minutes Tuesday for murdering and butchering a Mormon missionary last Oct. 28 at his trailer behind a taxidermy shop.

Kleasen was convicted of killing Mark Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis. He also is accused of killing Fischer's missionary companion, Gary Darley, 26, of Sim Valley, Calif., who was tried only in the Fischer murder.

"I feel sorry for Mr. Kleasen," Darley's father, David, said after the death verdict. "I'm sorry for what's been done. We miss our son."

"I'm heartbroken at the loss of my son," said Darley's mother, Jill. "I'm grateful he won't be on the street to harm anyone else."

Kleasen continued to protest his innocence as he sat with glazed eyes in a high-backed courtroom chair after the verdict. "I'm innocent of the charge," he said tiredly. "I've always been innocent."

A few moments earlier, while the jury was deliberating on whether to give Kleasen life imprisonment or death, the Darleys walked up to Kleasen, separated only by a low wall.

"Why did you kill my son?" Mrs. Darley asked.

"I didn't kill your son," Kleasen replied.

The father shook hands with Kleasen and said, "The Lord will have the final judgment."

It was the same hand, the state contended, that Kleasen used to push the son's head through a taxidermist's hand saw.

"I know he did it. I know he did it," the mother said as they walked away.

Fischer's parents attended part of the trial but were not present at the conclusion.

Kleasen, a 42-year-old big game hunter who claims he is the victim of a government conspiracy, testified in his own defense for four hours.

"No, I never did have any animosity toward the Mormon church," he said in answer to Dist. Atty. Bob Smith's question. "I'm a Mormon to day. Certainly there was no hostility."

The prosecutor then introduced four letters Kleasen wrote to another missionary, Blair Bell of San Antonio, less than two months before Darley and Fischer were slain.

"I want blood...I want their heads," Kleasen wrote in one letter.

He told the jury he did not mean the words literally, that it was a dispute he was having with church leaders over an incident in Denmark.

This apparently was a reference to a woman-beating incident in Denmark that the prosecution mentioned briefly Tuesday morning before the judge prevented further questions on an indictment against Kleasen in that country.

Asked by his own lawyer what he meant when he said in one of the letters, "I will not mess around any longer—I am going to kill," he said he meant, "I'm going to a lawyer. I'm going all the way this time. I'm through writing letters. I'm through making telephone calls."

This involved the theft of an air rifle, a vacuum cleaner and other items from his trailer by a Mormon, Kleasen said.

Defense attorney Pat Ganne asked the jury for mercy. "You have no moral right to take his life," he said. "... Can you right that wrong by killing another person?"

"Everybody is down on him,"

Smith said in his final argument. "Everybody is against him. He has a hostility you can feel 10 feet away. And I wonder what he thinks about your treatment of him yesterday by your verdict."

"Everybody believes in capital punishment in a proper case," Smith said. "I submit you this to a proper case. Do you believe in self-defense or not? He has been in hospitals, and they didn't keep him. He's been in jails, and they didn't keep him. Society needs protection from him."

Kleasen claimed a manuscript found in his trailer telling how to dispose of several deer carcasses in a hurry was written by his cousin, John T. Williamson, who he said died in 1961.

The bodies should be cut up and placed in several plastic bags to be thrown away in different trash cans around such institutions as universities.

Smith pointed out Tuesday that plastic bags did not come into common use until long after 1961. He said Kleasen was Williamson.

Kleasen contended he killed to revenge himself against the Mormon church, which Kleasen thought deserted him when he spent several months in rural Texas jails on a buffalo rustling charge and while awaiting possible extradition to New York on a felonious assault charge.

Kleasen kept the wrist watches of the missionaries as "trophies of his kill," Smith said. In the mistaken belief he could brag about it later but not be prosecuted because there were no bodies.

Brewery Strike Enters Third Day

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP)—A work stoppage by about 500 drivers and production workers at Falstaff Brewing Co.'s Narragansett brewery went into its third day today.

Robert J. Flynn, president of Local 1114 of the Teamsters Union, said he expected the work stoppage to spread to the seven other Falstaff breweries around the country, including one in Galveston, Tex.

"We have every indication to believe that there will be work stoppages at our sister locals throughout the Falstaff chain beginning Wednesday," Flynn said.

Flynn said Falstaff workers in Omaha, Neb., stayed off the job Tuesday when two Narragansett union members set up pickets at that plant.

But plant officials in Omaha said after the two Rhode Island workers left their station Tuesday afternoon, operations returned to normal.

U.S. Pushes Arms Deal With Belgium

WASHINGTON (AP) — To encourage Belgium to select the U.S. F16 fighter plane over the French Mirage F1, the United States may buy Belgian weapons if it chooses the American plane.

Pentagon officials said the French have threatened to withhold orders for Belgian rifles if Belgium rejects the Mirage. To offset this, Belgian Defense Minister Paul Vandet Boeynants reportedly was told Monday during meetings with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and other Pentagon officials that the United States might purchase some Belgian weapons.

Highly Prized Order

The NATO order is highly prized, not only because it would be worth about $2 billion, but because it could be the forerunner of as much as $12 billion in sales to other countries.

Vanden-Boeynants came to Washington in an effort to gain improvements in the deal offered by the United States to four NATO countries, including Belgium. The four are shopping for up to 350 new planes to replace the aging U.S.-built F104s.

May Be Crucial

The Belgian decision could be crucial because the other three countries in the consortium — the Netherlands, Norway and Denmark — have made their choice of the F16 contingent on Belgium going along with them. The Belgian cabinet arranged a special session later today to consider the question amid conflicting indications of the outcome.

Fierce Maneuvers

Behind-the-scenes maneuvers by the United States and France for the plane order have been fierce for more than a year. U.S. officials claim the French are exerting "staggering pressure," especially on Belgium.

In discussing possible U.S. purchases of Belgian arms, a proposal to buy 16,000 machine guns for about $30 million was mentioned.

"We may accelerate consideration of the Belgian machine gun, which is a very good weapon," one senior official said. Pentagon experts have been evaluating both the Belgian weapon and an improved model of the U.S.-manufactured M60 machine gun.

Suit Filed Here Against Drug Manufacturing Firm

An El Paso man evoking the state's "wrongful death statute" has filed a $200,000 suit in federal court here against the E. R. Squibb & Sons Inc., manufacturer and distributor of prescription and non-prescription medicines.

Filing suit was Hall S. Millsap who alleges his wife Blanche died at age 41 in 1973 as a result of a liver damaged by her intake of tetracycline, generic name of an antibiotic made and marketed by Squibb.

Millsap claims that El Paso physician Dr. John H. Johnston who prescribed the anti-infection drug had not been sufficiently warned by Squibb of the drug's "harmful side effects."

Squibb, Millsap contends, "was negligent in failing to make reasonable efforts to warn" the woman's doctor "of the dangers of using tetracycline drug" made by the defendant.

Two Die As Drug Smuggler Plane Crashes

DAWSONVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A World War II plane that crashed into a hillside was the fifth in 10 months to go down while struggling drugs into the Southeast, authorities say.

The B25 bomber crashed near this Dawson County community in north Georgia early Tuesday, just after apparently dropping off what authorities said was a ton of marijuana.

Two persons were killed, but their bodies were badly burned and they were not immediately identified, authorities said.

David R. MacDonald, assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of enforcement, said drug smugglers have turned increasingly to the use of aircraft since the United States began using electronic sensors in 1974 to detect drugs being smuggled from Mexico.

It was the latest of a series of mishaps involving planes. Others include:

—The crash near Rockwood, Tenn., last week of a converted World War II Navy patrol plane carrying a ton of marijuana.

—Three crashes in Florida of planes that according to U.S. Customs officials were carrying illicit drugs, apparently from the Caribbean.

—The seizure in Chattanooga, Tenn., of two tons of marijuana aboard a DC3 seized last September by police.

Customs officials said they had been chasing the B25 bomber for two days before it crashed, not because of any drug offense but because it was flying with military markings, including camouflage paint.

Officials said the Neutrality Act forbids a plane with military markings to fly out of the country without proper documents.

Dawson County residents said they heard the plane crash about 3 a.m. Rescue workers made their way through heavy underbrush to the smoking wreckage and found the two bodies, a partly burned wife of money and an empty pistol holster.

Ted Swift of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration in Miami said "perhaps a ton" of marijuana was found in a field a mile from the crash site, in 50-pound bales wrapped in plastic.

Authorities theorized the plane dropped the bales and had been unable to climb quickly enough to clear the hillside.

The Federal Aviation Administration said its records showed the plane once belonged to Ben Kerr III of Dallas, Tex. Kerr said he sold it in 1973 to Al Burchanal, a World War II aircraft flight instructor who operates the Flying Tiger Air Force Base at Paris, Tex.

The FAA said it had no further registration for the aircraft, but Burchanal said he sold the B25 last year for $14,000 in cash to a man he identified as Charles Vance Moody of Tampa, Fla. Burchanal said he had taught Moody to fly other types of World War II aircraft, but not the B25.

Burchanal said Moody told him he planned to take the B25 to the Atlanta area and restore it to its military configuration.

Attitude For Helping Others A Must, Lions Here Are Told

Lionism is a way of life, but to live it to the fullest, one must develop an attitude for helping others.

This was the theme of the address delivered by Ebb Grindstaff of Ballinger, a former director of Lions International, at the officer installation banquet of the Midland Downtown Lions Club and the Lion Tamers Club held Tuesday night at the Elks Club.

Special entertainment was furnished by the Sun Spots, a Barbershop quartet. Piano dinner music was provided by Mrs. Gary Hall, a former club sweetheart.

Mrs. Victor Horn installed the Lion Tamers officers, including Mrs. J. Melvin Little, president; Mrs. Horace Robb, vice president; Mrs. Elmer Barnett, secretary; Mrs. Lester Van Pelt Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Bill Collyns, publicity chairman. Mrs. Frank Martin is the retiring president.

Grindstaff, in installing the new Lions Club officers and directors, challenged them to keep their heads up in order that they might see the needs of others. He urged them to live their respective offices by "working, thinking, planning, reading, dreaming and serving."

Victor M. Horn is the new president. His associates are Horace A. Robb, Gerald R. Chapman and George Weis, vice presidents; Herman Dancy, secretary-treasurer; Jerry Speck, Lion Tamer; Jim Goldman and Wilson Hollars, liaisons; and Mrs. Hazel Russell, club sweetheart.

Directors are Donald C. Combs, C. J. "Jeff" George, William H. Malone, W. F. "Swede" Olson, Elmer W. Barnett, John Berry, Glen M. Ford, Ray Gwyn and G. A. Plummer.

"The Daily Art of Living or Not Living" was the subject of Grindstaff's message. "The decision of living or not living is up to the individual," he said. "The more that people care about each other, the more involved and enthusiastic they become in the art of living."

"People working together as a team can achieve tremendous results," the speaker declared. "The is the story of Lionism."

An oil field core lamp was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Grindstaff as a gift from the club.

Gifts from the club also went to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Coker and to H. W. Coker, who is retiring after long service as Lion Tamer.

Jim Coker presented special awards to John Clark, Bob Bolin, Weis, Windell Thomason, Combs, Tisdale, George, Malone, Olson, Horn, Dancy, Chapman and Robb.

Horn presented a past president's pin to Jim Coker who, in turn, presented a president's pin to Horn.

Saigon Government Confirms Some Soldiers Are Resisting New Regime

SAIGON (AP) — An official of the new South Vietnamese government has confirmed reports that soldiers of the former South Vietnamese army are resisting the new regime and hiding out in areas north of Saigon.

Duong Van Day, a member of the executive committee of the Revolutionary Youth, told 1,500 Saigon youths beginning a political indoctrination course Tuesday:

"What is important now is the task of eliminating reactionary elements, the servants of Americans who are still living in hiding and who intend to cause trouble to us."

He did not elaborate. But his statement was taken as confirmation of frequent reports that former soldiers were hiding in the woods and along the rivers north of Saigon and raiding government patrols and civilian buses to get food and other supplies.

The holdouts are believed to be operating in small groups only and are not considered a major threat to the new regime. The government indicated several days ago that an operation had been launched to root them out, and stocks of weapons had been seized.

Day said the Americans transformed South Vietnam into a consumer's market, and Saigon into a consumer city depending entirely on foreign countries.

"Our responsibilities are to go ahead in the field of labor, of producing labor," he said.

"We shall start a campaign to encourage the youth to live in a permanent struggle, in continual labor and in the examples given us by Ho Chi Minh."

The government ordered three more American newsmen to leave the country Thursday or Friday, saying it wants to reduce the foreign press corps in Saigon by getting rid of journalists who had been in the country a long time. Those being expelled are George Esper of The Associated Press and Paul Vogle and Chad Huntley of United Press International.

Saigon's Liberation Radio said Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, was put under civilian control Sunday. It is the first major South Vietnamese city in which military administration has ended.

Another broadcast said 4,000 more refugees from central Vietnam had been sent home from the Saigon region.

(The U.S. State Department declined to comment on an offer by North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong to normalize relations with the United States if Washington lives up to its pledge in the 1973 Vietnam peace agreement to assist in the reconstruction of North Vietnam.)

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger predicted Tuesday that Congress will eventually be forced to create a powerful new federal court, just below the Supreme Court, unless it promptly adopts less drastic measures for reducing the justices' workload.

Burger's remarks came in a letter to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., chairman of a special commission which recently proposed establishment of a National Court of Appeals to decide important legal questions now left unresolved by the overworked Supreme Court.

In the letter, which was written last week and released Tuesday, the chief justice carefully avoided outright endorsement of the plan of the Commission on Revision of the Federal Court Appellate System.

Instead Burger allied himself with those constitutional authorities, including Justice Thurgood Marshall and Senior U.S. Circuit Judge Henry J. Friendly, who have argued that Congress should first try to ease the courts' burden by reducing their jurisdiction.

The chief justice repeated his recommendation, first made five years ago, that Congress eliminate special three-judge district courts, whose decisions on the constitutionality of state laws are appealed directly to the Supreme Court without screening by the 11 circuit courts of appeals.

Burger complained that the three-judge court rulings, which the justices are required by law to review, now account for 60 per cent of the cases heard each year by the high court.

The implication of his letter was that eliminating this mandatory jurisdiction would not only free the justices to tackle the issues that now go unresolved but also indirectly aid the appeals courts. By law, one circuit judge must sit on each three-judge court, a practice that adds to the burden on the

Northern Plains Raked By Storms

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms raked the northern Plains today and spilled into the Midwest with wind, heavy rain and hail.

Tornadoes dipped into several areas of South Dakota and Nebraska late Tuesday, but there were no reports of injury or damage.

Hail piled to a depth of 4 inches at Newcastle, in northeast Wyoming, Tuesday evening, and the National Weather Service received unconfirmed reports of hail 2 feet deep near the north-central South Dakota community of Glenham. Large hail also hit Highmore, S.D.

Severe thunderstorms in the predawn hours soaked western Iowa with heavy rain. The storms raged east into Illinois and south into Missouri before daybreak.

Showers also broke out at scattered locations elsewhere over the Plains and central Rockies and stretched north into south-central Canada. Other showers sprinkled the interior Northwest and parts of the Northeast.

Fair weather prevailed over most of the Far West and from the southern Rockies through the lower Mississippi Valley and into the Appalachians and the Southeast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 40 at Evenston, Wyo., to 88 at El Paso, Tex.

Some other reports: Anchorage 51 rain, Atlanta 64 clear, Boston 58 cloudy, Buffalo 54 partly cloudy, Chicago 65 partly cloudy, Cincinnati 59 clear, Cleveland 54 clear, Dallas 70 clear, Denver 55 clear, Detroit 53 clear, Honolulu 74 partly cloudy, Indianapolis 61 clear, Kansas City 74 clear, Los Angeles 59 cloudy, Louisville 64 clear, Miami 75 partly cloudy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 64 rain, Nashville 68 clear, New York 61 partly cloudy, Philadelphia 63 partly cloudy, Phoenix 83 clear, Pittsburgh 59 clear, St. Louis 71 clear, San Francisco 58 clear, Seattle 54 cloudy, Washington 69 partly cloudy.

Ford's Administration Turning Back On Law-And-Order Rhetoric

By RONALD J. OSTROW
The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — The Ford administration is turning its back on the law-and-order rhetoric of the Nixon years, striving to quell what President Ford regards as unrealistic expectations produced by hard-line talk.

In its place — and with crime climbing at an unprecedented pace — the administration plans to emphasize help for the victims of crime, a crackdown on "career criminals" and protecting the public from white-collar lawlessness.

Throughout the new strategy, which will be detailed in Ford's much postponed crime message, will run the theme that the major responsibility for combating crime rests with state and local authorities.

The adoption of the softer-toned strategy comes at a time when leading criminal justice experts are concluding that very little in the way of crime reduction has been achieved in the decade since the President's Crime Commission began the work for its landmark 1967 report. Instead, these experts believe, there have been accomplishments in making the criminal justice system more humane, more decent and more efficient.

While emphasizing that prime responsibility for curtailing crime is not in Washington, the new approach will not overrule the one federal agency created to upgrade state and local police, courts and prisons — the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Soon after the crime message, the administration will send to Capitol Hill a bill that while recommending a five-year extension for LEAA would also create a panel of advisers to look over the shoulder of Administrator Richard W. Valdes as he parcels out the anticrime grants. Some officials who have had a hand in drafting the Ford administration's new position on crime view the Nixon administration's promises with the same disdain as the Nixon administration regarded the Great Society of the Johnson years: Unfulfillable promises that in the end leave those whose hopes were fostered bitterly disillusioned.

"The law-and-order rhetoric overpromised and diverted people from issues that should have been addressed," said one official.

Politics, to be sure, has a role in the switch of strategies. The 1976 presidential election is in sight, and crime, which at last count was soaring upward at a 19 per cent rate, shows no sign of slowing.

The hard-line Nixon message of the 1968 presidential and 1970 congressional campaigns, coupled with the $4 billion-plus that LEAA has laid out, helped create the impression that the federal government could roll back crime.

In the 1968 campaign, for example, candidate Nixon said the role of poverty in fostering crime had been "grossly exaggerated" and instead shifted much of the blame to the courts. Key rulings by the Supreme Court, he said, "had the effect of seriously hamstringing the peace forces in our society and strengthening the criminal forces."

The impression that Uncle Sam could conquer crime was underscored when the crime rate dropped in 1972 — the first decline in 17 years — and such law-and-order enthusiasts as former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst credited LEAA and the administration's hard line.

As for the Ford administration's new approach, one administration official says, "It's the public and the victims of crime we're worried about and not attacking any particular group of people."

Speaking at Yale University Law School April 25, Ford foreshadowed the direction of the new strategy.

Noting that the nation has been far from successful in curbing brutal street crime which he said "obsesses America day and night," the President said: "I do not seek vindictive punishment of the criminal, but protection of the innocent victim. The victims are my primary concern. That is why I do not talk about law and order, and why I return to the constitutional phrase — insuring domestic tranquility."

Ford's upcoming crime message is expected to call for compensating victims of crime through a fund that would be provided, at least in part, by the lawbreakers. Their contribution would be required as part of the sentence they received.

New approaches in the crime war have not been the Ford administration's strongest domestic suit.

In preparing for the Yale speech, for example, it was learned that the speech drafters intended to include a passage that would have "federalized" all crimes involving a gun. They changed their minds, however, when one Justice Department official advised the White House that enactment of such a law would have required an all-out federal prison construction program.

Plans call for Ford to deal with gun control in the upcoming message, a touchy topic for him throughout his political career. He is firmly against any kind of federal registration program for firearms.

The view that the federal government so far has demonstrated little capacity to cut crime appeared to square with the otherwise often disparate views advanced recently by a gathering of crime experts at Harvard Law School's Ford Foundation-backed Center for Criminal Justice.

James Vorenberg, executive director of President Lyndon B. Johnson's Crime Commission and a professor at the law school, gathered two dozen experts and a couple of reporters in cutting crime — at least statistically — will eventually come in better protection for vulnerable crime targets; the Crime Commission deceived people about the state of knowledge on how to reduce crime when the commission really was striving to be more humane.

No participant gave any sign of expecting Congress to cut back the federal outlay in the search for means of lowering back crime. But with the Ford calling for a more realistic look at the federal capacity the chance of such a reduction would seem very real one.

During the two-day seminar, the experts spoke under the ground rule that they would not be quoted by name so that uninhibited discussion would be encouraged.

What emerged were some opinions that would have shattered the drafters of the Crime Commission report: Police really can do little about the crime problem, but they have improved markedly in management and restraint; the pay dirt in cutting crime — at least statistically — will eventually seem very real one.

Ancient Navy Radio In Museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — What is believed to be the first radio receiver ever installed aboard a U.S. ship has been turned over by the company that made it to the Navy Memorial Museum.

When the 1915 receiver went aboard the USS New York, a company spokesman said, it stayed in a guarded compartment with only a select few trained and trusted officers permitted to operate it.

The unit was primarily for ship-to-ship communications but it could also receive shore transmissions. This ability to communicate without resort to visual means gave U.S. Navy ships distinct advantages over contemporary fleets of the day.

Bullock Says State Spending Bill Has One Page Missing

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock says he will hold certification of the $12.1 billion state spending bill for 1976-77 until he gets an opinion from the Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Bullock said Tuesday the official copy of the bill he received from the legislature has a page missing.

He said he had asked Hill for a legal opinion on what he should do and also notified Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton.

"Legally, there is no way I can add a page or take away a page from the bill which came to me signed, sealed and delivered from the legislature."

"To certify the bill without a page or to certify it because of an obvious error would automatically cause a special session," Bullock said.

The comptroller said the missing page is one concerning highway appropriations and included one item for $77 million.

Speaker Clayton said he had not been notified personally. He added, "I hope it works out all right."

Gov. Briscoe was reported in Uvalde, but a spokesman at his office, said that as far as he knew the governor had not been notified.

The scene was a world championship, some years ago, and an American team was playing Italy. Hundreds of spectators were watching each bid and play on the big exhibition board — all of which made it embarrassing when South fell on his nose.

West opened a spade to dummy's ace. Decide for yourself how you would play the hand if you were South.

Now we'll see what South did. He led out dummy's ace and king of diamonds. Silly, wasn't it?

East ruffed the second diamond and returned a trump to dummy's ace. South still had to lose a club and two spades, for down one.

EASY PLAY
There is an easy play to make the contract. Declarer should lead a low club from dummy at the second trick.

If the opponents return a trump to dummy's ace, South can ruff a club and draw the rest of the trumps. It is then safe to cash dummy's top diamonds.

If the opponents fail to return a trump, South can ruff a spade with dummy's ace and ruff a club to lead out trumps. He can then afford to give up a trump to the jack.

Ashford's Hit Wins It

ALEXANDRIA, La.—Mike Dupres and Tucker Ashford singled home runs in the eighth inning to give Alexandria's Aces a series-squaring 5-4 Texas League victory over the Midland Cubs here Tuesday night.

Dougie Moore, once again felled in his bid for a fourth victory, went 7 1-3 innings and gave way to Bruce Suttler, who was tagged for the decisive hits and his fourth loss before 1,139 fans.

It will be Old-Timer's night in the series rubber-game wind-up tonight and Bob Feller will pitch against Satchel Paige in the exhibition preliminary.

The Cubs return home Friday night to meet the slugging El Paso Diablos, led by third baseman Paul Dade, back in the lineup after a long, long injury absence.

Midland unleashed a 12-hit attack on three Alexandria pitchers, but the Aces turned three double plays to take much of the sting out of the Cubs' punch.

Midland scored a run in the first when a walk to Joel Green, Cesar Gonzalez's single and a walk to Bill Droegge loaded the bases with none out and Wayne Tyrone's grounder plated the run. Alexandria used a hit batsman and singled singles by Jim Wilhelm and Stone to tie it in the home 3, 1st add midlands cube

The Aces struck again in the fourth when Wilhelm reached first on a third strike passed by Steve Clancy and scored on Gene Delyon's double. Alexandria made it 3-1 in the fifth when Marc Rhea walked, stole second and scored on Scott Brown's single.

Pele Signs With Cosmos

Pele Can Do It All... signs with New York

Kissinger Sends Telegram To Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Pele, one of the world's two most famous athletes and considered the best ever to play the game of soccer, will come out of retirement to play in the United States.

Pele, whose worldwide fame is equalled only by that of heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, informally announced in Brazil Tuesday he has agreed to play for the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League.

The decision was announced here simultaneously by the Cosmos.

The imminent signing was immediately regaled not only as a major sports coup but a diplomatic accomplishment as well.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, in a telegram to Brazil and Pele, said: "Should you decide to sign the contract, I am sure your stay here will substantially contribute to closer ties between Brazil and the United States in the field of sports."

The Brazilian newspaper Folha de Sao Paulo bannered the headline: "Kissing roots for Pele."

It's not a new sensation for the 34-year-old Pele.

He has been feted by heads of state, proclaimed the "King of Soccer" by ardent European soccer fans, made a national commodity by his home country of Brazil, and is regarded as the world's wealthiest athlete after 18 years with the team Santos.

His financial status will be enhanced by the Cosmos, who are offering a contract that will make Pele the highest paid athlete on any team in the world.

Pele says he is not as interested in the money as in "helping soccer to become a popular sport in the United States." But it took a three-year contract with a price tag estimated as high as $7 million to entice him out of a retirement which he had said repeatedly was permanent.

Throughout prolonged talks and wrangling that spanned four years and three continents, the Cosmos steadfastly refused to discuss the financial arrangements that would ultimately lure Pele to the United States.

Now it only remains for Pele's attorneys in Santos, Brazil, to go over the contract line by line. The actual signing, considered a formality, is expected within days, after which Pele will fly to New York.

Pele retired in October, 1974, after scoring a remarkable 1,220 goals in 4,300 games.

Earl Anthony Leading Pro Bowler

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., continues to run away with the top prize Saturday in the Professional Bowlers' Association dollar derby, and now has won $68,560 in 16 tournaments.

That is $17,625 ahead of Dave Davis of Atlanta, who has won $50,935 in 14 tournaments.

Anthony boosted his earnings to $9,000 when he captured the Brunswick PBA National Championship at Los Angeles. Davis picked up $1,850 for eighth place at L.A.

Ed Reissler of Allentown, Pa., is third with $36,378, followed by Carmen Salvino of Chicago with $34,948 and Nelson Burton Jr. of Saint Louis with $34,135.

Nets, Spurs In Trade

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Nets, having obtained center Sven Nater from the San Antonio Spurs, now have another rather large gap to fill, the one left by the departure of forward Larry Kenon.

The two American Basketball Association clubs announced the swap—Kenon for Nater—on Tuesday. At the same time, the Nets revealed that they had sent guard Mike Gale to San Antonio for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The trade, reported last week by The Association Press, solved one Nets' problem, the lack of a strong pivotman. Both Nets Coach Kevin Loughery and former General Manager Dave DeBusschere, now ABA commissioner, had expressed disappointment in center Billy Paultz.

And now its possible Paultz will be offered as bait to lure another forward to New York to play alongside All-League frontcourt man Julius Erving.

"It was difficult in the area of rebounding at the end of the season," said Loughery. "We decided we needed a top rebounder. We wound up getting the best rebounder in the league."

"You can never be strong enough in center. We lost an outstanding player in Kenon, but we intend to fill the spot with a good player. We're talking to others clubs now, and also there's the draft."

Nater, a 6-foot-11, 250-pound giant who played behind Bill Walton at UCLA, won the league's rebounding title with a 18.4 average and scored 15.1 points a game despite knee injuries that hampered him at the end of the season.

Nater, a native of The Netherlands, began his ABA career with Virginia in the 1973-74 season but was sold to San Antonio in midseason.

In his rookie year, 1973-74, Kenon, 6-9 and 215 pounds, averaged 15.9 points and hauled in 962 rebounds in helping the Nets win their first ABA title.

GOLF STILL CLOSE TO HEART

Hogan Glad Jack Breaking Records

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ben Hogan is now a businessman, but the game of golf is closest to his heart. In the second of a three-part series based on a lengthy interview, he discusses the state of the game and its future.

By DEENE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Ben Hogan leaped forward for eye-to-eye contact with his visitor to make certain there would be no misunderstanding on what he was about to say.

"I'm glad Jack Nicklaus is breaking my records because he is a superb golfer," Hogan said. "What a credit to the game of golf this man is. He has built his game since he was a child.

"He has a strong body and is a vicious competitor. And, of course, there is his concentration. You only get that through one thing — practice."

Hogan relaxed back in his leather office chair. Then he added, of Nicklaus, "He's a very nice man."

The once-feared Texas Hawk doesn't hand out compliments just because they look nice in print. And when he speaks of the game he loves and once dominated, he speaks precisely.

His comments on Nicklaus were his first public statements on the man who dominates the game today.

Hogan, 62, now directs his golf equipment company and presides over construction of a new golf course. He has given up competitive golf.

As a subject, Nicklaus was a natural because Hogan has come closer than any other man to winning professional golf's "Grand Slam." Nicklaus, who recently won the Masters and has 15 major titles, is considered the biggest threat today to accomplish the Slam, in what would be the greatest feat ever in golf.

Hogan said the Slam will be made. "Somebody will surely do it, and I hope they do, because it would be a great thing for the game. Who knows? The fellow may not be born yet or he might be a rabbit out there trying to make a living on the tour. It can happen."

Hogan is the only player ever to win in one year three of the four championships which make up the Grand Slam, and he didn't play in the fourth — the PGA — in 1953 because of his injured knee, suffered in a car accident that almost claimed his life.

"Nicklaus, of course, is very capable of winning the Slam," said Hogan, who stepped out of competitive golf four years ago.

The man who concentrates much of his time and energy in building his new golf course, marvels at the concentration of Nicklaus. The same trait carried Hogan to scores of tournament victories, and he said he was delighted to see Nicklaus break his Masters record several springs ago.

"That's what they are supposed to be doing," he said. "Records are being broken in every sport and certainly golf shouldn't be standing still. Golf must progress. The players and equipment are better. The golf courses are better. They are supposed to have better minds. They have better bodies."

"I know a lot of them are starting up where I left off. Golf must have its leaders to draw the imagination of the public. Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino and Tom Watson — players like that —

Willie Davis On Trading Block Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Texas Rangers manager Billy Martin said Tuesday night that controversial centerfielder Willie Davis would be traded after Davis failed to show up for Tuesday night's game with the Baltimore Orioles.

Rangers general manager Dan O'Brien, who confirmed Martin's statement, said he would "probably know something definite" today.

Martin waited until one hour and 15 minutes before game time before writing a lineup that did not include Davis. A club spokesman said Davis did not accompany the team to Baltimore Monday and had not been heard from since an apparent money disagreement with owner Brad Corbett Sunday night. Neither Davis nor Corbett could be reached for comment.

O'Brien said, "A couple of days ago, it didn't appear that we could make a deal for him. Now a couple of teams seem pretty eager to talk about Davis."

A team source indicated Tuesday night that two National League teams are interested in Davis.

O'Brien indicated that he had received American League and major league waivers on Davis about two weeks ago, even before Davis took off his glove and squatted in the outfield at Arlington Stadium last week while pitcher Steve Hargan threw to two batters against Boston. The waivers mean that no team in either league can claim Davis for the $20,000 dollar waiver, leaving Texas free to negotiate a trade in either league.

O'Brien said Davis had been granted several salary advances this season and apparently decided not to show up in Baltimore when Corbett refused another such request last weekend.

O'Brien said, "Willie came to Brad and myself Sunday night with another request for an advancement. We've been exceedingly lenient with the guy since last winter on all matters pertaining to his financial affairs. But at some point you've got to draw the line. He can't expect to be treated any differently from any of the other players. Everyone else is paid on the first and the 15th."

O'Brien added, "But he told us when we refused him that he wouldn't be playing for us again. He didn't appear to be angry about it. Really, Willie never gets angry about anything."

stimulate interest like Arnold Palmer in the 1960s.

"Everything is laid out now for a fellow who wants to become a player. He can start with films and good instruction. He can get a good golf swing early. In my time, you had to dig it out on the practice tee. That takes years."

Besides Nicklaus, Hogan is impressed with fellow Texan Lee Trevino. Trevino is capable of record-shattering binges, Hogan said, because "he knows what he's doing...he came from a caddy yard."

"Trevino can play shots that some of the other fellows don't have," said Hogan. "But Lee has to outwork those other guys. That's what makes him a fantastic player."

Although Hogan, using a golf cart, has only played nine holes in the past 18 months, he has kept up with the game by television. "I think the 1975 Masters was one of the most dramatic tournaments I've ever witnessed," he said. "It started at the 12th hole and the drama carried all the way through."

Hogan didn't make this year's Masters because he was busy working on his new golf course. "But if I ever get this golf course built, I'll go," he said.

Asked how he believes he could do against golf's current stars if he were in his prime, Hogan pondered a moment, then said: "I think I could make a living."

Billy Casper Fails To Qualify

Snead Makes Diamond National Open

By The Associated Press
Slammin' Sammy Snead made it one more time Tuesday for another shot at the sole major golf title that has eluded him over the years—the U.S. Open. But two-time Open winner Billy Casper, who had been the choice of many golf experts to win this year's Diamond Anniversary National Open, failed to qualify.

Among the others failing to qualify at Charlotte were ex-U.S. Open champs Ed Furgol and Ken Venturi; Lee Elder, first black to qualify for the Masters; former Masters champion Gay Brewer; former PGA champion Lionel Hebert; former British Open titlist Bob Charles of New Zealand and Puerto Rican star Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Snead, who has been chasing the Open title without success for more than 30 years, opened with a sizzling 66—three shots over his age—at the Charlotte Country Club on Tuesday. Then Snead, still swinging as sweetly as ever, moved to another course in the Charlotte area and carded a 76. His 142 was well under the qualifying limit of 145 at Charlotte, where Snead arrived on Monday night from Japan.

There were 121 pros at Charlotte trying for 50 spots in the 150-man U.S. Open field. The tourney will be played June 19-22 at Medinah, Ill.

Other sectional qualifying was held Tuesday at Chicago, Detroit, New York, and Pittsburgh. The 75 who qualified Tuesday joined 41 who qualified on Monday. Another six places will be determined next Tuesday in Washington, with the field including several Walker Cup players now competing in the British Amateur.

The remainder of the U.S. Open field will come from 28 exempt players, among them defending champion Hale Irwin, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller and Arnold Palmer.

Casper could still make it to the Open. He lost out in a playoff but wound up as the first alternate. That means that if any of the 50 who qualified at Charlotte can't play, Casper would play in their place.

Casper was one of six players in Charlotte tied at 145 for the last four berths. All engaged in a sudden-death playoff and the survivors were England's Peter Oosterhuis, former Masters champion Bob Goalby, Bob Gilder and Terry Small.

Casper bogeyed his second hole to drop out but then beat Canadian George Knudson for the first alternate's spot with a birdie on the next hole.

Top qualifiers at Charlotte were Terry Dill, back on the pro golf tour after a three-year layoff, and 12-year pro Kermit Zarley. They matched 36-hole scores of 136 and were one stroke ahead of pros George Johnson, Jim Wiechers and Danny Edwards.

Dill shot 32-33—65 over the 6,881-yard, par-72 Myers Park Country Club course to lead the field after the morning round. Then he went across town to the Charlotte Country Club, a par-71 layout measuring 6,729 yards, and scored 35-36—71. He bogeyed his next-to-last hole to miss finishing on top alone.

Zarley, playing out of Clear Lake, Tex., shot a 67 at Myers Park, then added a 69 at the Charlotte Country Club. Each won $250 for the effort.

Vikings Will Not Renew Four Veterans' Contracts

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings announced Tuesday they will not offer 1975 contracts to four of the club's veteran stars.

The club said offensive linemen Grady Alderman and Milk Sunde have been claimed on waivers and running back Bill Brown and defensive tackle Gary Larsen have played out their options and will not be offered contracts.

"We'll miss them all," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "They were team men first and individuals second and not too many are like that."

Alderman, last of the original Vikings, was taken on waivers by the Chicago Bears and Sunde by the New York Jets.

"Grady was through it all with the Vikings," noted Grant. "The frustrations and disappointments, the successes."

Chicago Coach Jack Pardo said Alderman, 36, would give the Bears competition, experience and depth at the tackle position.

Ironically, it was the Bears who traded Brown to Minnesota.

"The worst trade I ever made," said Bears' owner George Halas.

The bull-legged, crewcut Brown rushed for 5,838 yards in 14 seasons and holds virtually every Minnesota career rushing record. He will be 37 on June 29.

"He was literally Mr. Viking," said Grant. "He epitomizes the Vikings as much as anybody who has ever played with us."

Larsen, 35, was the foundation of the club's famed front-four until being moved out of their starting job last year by Doug Sutherland.

"He stayed at home and cleaned up while others were ranging and making the spectacular plays," said Grant. "He has to be one of the steadiest and most dependable players we've ever had."

The 33-year-old Sunde joined the Vikings from the University of Minnesota in 1964 as a 200-round draft pick.

"He proves what a person can do if he makes the sacrifices," said Grant.

Sunde was named winner of the YMCA's Brian Piccolo Award, which is given to an individual who unselfishly gives of his time to assist needy causes or people.

Sloan, Myers Highlight Tech's Annual Barbecue

Texas Tech football Coach Steve Sloan and basketball Coach Gerald Myers will be in Midland Thursday for the Red Raiders barbecue at 7:30 p.m. in the VFW hall.

Tech execs and friends are invited. Sloan, the personable young former quarterback from Alabama who rescued Vanderbilt from the football doldrums, will be beginning his first season as Tech coach. However, he will have an opportunity to get his feet wet in Lubbock's Jones Stadium later this month as coach of the East team in the Coaches' All-America game.

Grant Teaff of Baylor's SWC champions will coach the West.

After leading Vanderbilt to a Peach Bowl bid against Tech last season, Sloan faces a rebuilding job with the Red Raiders this fall. Returning will be five offensive starters and five defensive starters. He picks up a sixth starter in fullback Rufus Meyers, who started in 1973, but was sidelined by a knee injury last season.

"We have some excellent ability on the team, but we have a bevy of inexperience which will be hard to overcome. I feel we will be very strong in our secondary and in our running backs."

"We have definite problems in the offensive line where we lost so many regulars. Graduation also wiped us out at linebacker." Myers, Tech's first All-Southwest Conference player back in 1969, took over as Tech basketball coach in mid-season 1971, won the SWC title in 1972-73 and has had the Raiders up near the top every year since.

The former Berger all-stater has been busy on the recruiting front this spring lining up prospects to provide help and depth to go with such outstanding returnees as 6-4 Rick Bullock, 6-4 Grady Newton, 6-2 Steve Dunn and 6-4 Rudy Liggins.

Jack Hightower (682-9779) is in charge of arrangements for the barbecue.

Baseball Player Draft Opens With Goodwin No. 1 Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — The California Angels opened baseball's free agent draft today by selecting 21-year-old catcher Danny Goodwin from Southern University.

Goodwin, a native of Peoria, Ill., previously had been drafted out of high school in 1971 by the Chicago White Sox but elected at that time to continue his education.

He became eligible for the draft's regular phase again today with the graduation this month of his college class.

The San Diego Padres, drafting second, chose Mike Lentz, a left-handed high school pitcher from Kirkland, Wash.

Detroit owned the third selection and took outfielder Lee Filkins, a high schooler from Chicago.

The Chicago Cubs then chose high school outfielder Brian Ronsinski from Evanston, Ill.

The Chicago White Sox followed by naming right-handed pitcher Robert Knapp from Central Michigan University.

After that, the Philadelphia Phillies selected right-handed pitcher Sammy Weiborn from Wichita Falls High School in Texas.

Minnesota chose shortstop Richard Sofield from Morris Plains, N.J.

The Houston Astros picked right-handed pitcher Michael McLaughlin of David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tenn.

Boston took first baseman Otis Foster from High Point College in North Carolina.

David Johnson, a left-handed pitcher from Gaylord, Mich., was the pick of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Texas selected right-handed pitcher Jim Gideon from the University of Texas.

Atlanta chose high school catcher Don Young from Santa Barbara, Calif.

The New York Yankees took high school first baseman James McDonald from Los Angeles.

The Pittsburgh Pirates grabbed shortstop Dale Berra from Montclair, N.J. He is the son of New York Mets Manager Yogi Berra.

Oakland named catcher Bruce Robinson from Stanford University.

The Cincinnati Reds selected high school outfielder Tony Moretto from Evansville, Ind.

Baltimore chose high school outfielder David Ford from Cleveland.

Los Angeles completed the first round, choosing shortstop-outfielder Mark Bradley from Elizabethtown, Ky. High School.

NCAA Track Finals Beginning Today

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University, NCAA decathlon champions the past two years, goes into the final five events today of this year's competition in a good position for a third consecutive title. BYU's Raimo Pihl set two NCAA marks Tuesday, first in the shot put and then with a record-setting first-day point total. The 1975 decathlon winner led the field with 4,186 points. Pihl's performance put him in the running to top the NCAA decathlon record point total established by Ronald Backman of BYU last year at Austin, Texas. Backman and Bob Coffman

British Amateur Golf In 3rd Round

HOYLAKE, England (AP) — Two hours after Dick Siderow of Westport, Conn., won through to the third round of the British Amateur Golf Championship, the seasoned U.S. Walker Cup star was still practicing on the putting green. "I've got to get my putts right," said Siderow, a 37-year-old stockbroker who won the coveted amateur crown two years ago.

"My putts are awful," he moaned as he battered away at a dozen or more balls in front of Hoylake's famous Royal Liverpool Clubhouse.

Siderow's problem was mirrored in the play of several other American hopefuls as they reached the halfway stage Wednesday over Hoylake's 6,979-yard par-72 layout.

It wasn't the gale wind which threatened to wreck the tournament on the opening day that worried most of the American survivors in the tough match play competition.

And even Jerry Pate, the joint top seed and U.S. Amateur champion who tumbled to defeat in his opening match here, wasn't blaming the weather.

"The wind didn't bother me," said Pate from Pensacola, Fla. "The trouble was I only hit about four decent putts since I got here. Sometimes I hit the ball as if I never played golf before."

An exception to the poor-putting disease was George Burns, a bulky salesman from Port Washington, N.Y., and the other top seed here.

"I didn't hit many fairways, but I putted very well," he said after he moved into the second round with a mighty 8 and 6 win over local player Mike Brabner.

Burns now meets South Afr-can Gavin Levenson in the next round. Siderow's third-round opponent Wednesday is Findlay Black, an experienced Scottish player.

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Paul Paolisso, offensive backfield coach at Villanova last season, has been appointed coach of quarterbacks and receivers at Cornell University, football Coach George Seifert announced Tuesday.

Seifert said Paolisso, 26, will join the Cornell staff in July and will be employed as a part-time aide under Ivy League regulations.

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League announced Tuesday the signing of seven draft choices, bringing to 11 the number of 1975 signees.

The year Ed Jones, a 6 feet, 193-pound defensive back from Rutgers; Greg Krpalek, 6-5, 242 pounds defensive center, Oregon State; Chuck Bland, 5-11, 188, defensive back, Cincinnati; Herbert Scott, 6-2, 248, Virginia Union; Scott Laidlaw, 6-0, 206, running back, Stanford; Willie Hamilton, 5-11, 182, running back, Arizona, and Jim Testerman, 6-5, 225, tight end, Dayton.

The Cowboys said Mike Hegman, a Tennessee State linebacker who was their seventh round draft choice, has decided to return to school, but they retain the right to negotiate with Hegman in 1976.

Clement Traded To Washington Capitals From Philadelphia

MONTREAL (AP) — Last week, Bill Clement was celebrating the Philadelphia Flyers' Stanley Cup triumph over the Buffalo Sabres but today he may be wondering what life will be like with a new club.

Clement, a center, and defenseman Doug MacLean, who played in the American Hockey League in 1974-75, became the property of the Washington Capitals in a deal which allowed the Flyers to pick first in the universal National Hockey League amateur draft. The Flyers also gave up their own first-round pick to the Caps for the right to select center Mel Bridgman from the Victoria Cougars, starting the season which lasted just over six hours and saw 217 players chosen. Bridgman was the leading scorer in the Western Canada

Hockey League last year with 66 goals and 91 assists. He was one of 10 WCHL players picked in the opening round and the first of seven consecutive Western selections.

The WCHL had 55 players chosen compared with 53 from the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series and 28 from the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League. There were 59 players selected from U.S. universities and colleges as well as six players from Europe. In addition, six players who played either in the World Hockey Association or with its affiliates were picked, two in the first round.

Both the New York Rangers and the New York Islanders used first-round picks to select players who played with the WHA. The Islanders drafted defenseman Pat Price, who played with the Vancouver Blazers last season while the Rangers took center Wayne Dillon. Dillon is under contract to the Toronto Toros of the WHA for one more season but is reported to have agreed to a $1.4 million contract for seven seasons with the Rangers.

Gulf President Blasts Federal Energy Delays

NEW YORK — Federal government delays in enacting a productive national energy policy strike Z. D. Bonner as "social irresponsibility of massive proportions."

In remarks prepared for a synthetic energy forum, the Gulf Oil Company-U.S. president said the absence of a national energy policy has left a climate of uncertainty over all energy industries. He thinks this uncertainty is probably the most important factor restricting full-scale development of synthetic fuels.

Bonner described Gulf as "very interested and very much committed" to developing energy from non-conventional hydrocarbons such as tar sands, oil shale and liquefied coal. He said the company has become active in these projects recognizing the lead-times involved and the risks and financial commitments necessary before it can begin to recover its investments.

"I think many people believe the petroleum industry is sitting on its hands and waiting for Congress to act. That is simply not so." Uncertainty over future public policies, however, is adding to normal difficulties of planning future investments, he said.

In other times, the market-place demand for oil and gas provided adequate incentive for oilmen to explore for oil, refine it and send it on its way to the consumer, Bonner observed. "There was comparatively little need to file endless forms, ask permission, argue about national policy, wait for decisions to be made in Washington and wrangle over what constitutes an acceptable rate of return on investment."

"Our concerns were mainly geological, rather than bureaucratic," Bonner characterized today's climate for oil companies as "a brave new world of allocations, price controls, regulations and an endless flow of government forms."

"Added to the natural lead-time involved in exploring for new oil and gas reserves and bringing them on stream, we now must add an indeterminate period for bureaucratic lead-time."

"In developing synthetic fuels, some eight or ten or twenty years must elapse before these products become commercially available. Added to that are the lead-times involved in waiting for political decisions regarding supply, decontrol of oil prices — before we can determine the economic feasibility of even further investment," he commented.

Synthetic fuels will be available to consumers eventually, but in the meantime — over the next ten years — the nation is in a dangerous position of dependency on foreign supplies, Bonner believes. With domestic oil required to fill in the gap, he says, Congressional actions which increase regulation, extend price controls and raise taxes "sacrifice the long-range best interests of consumers to short-run political expediency."

Commuter Blimp Pushed By Executive

By RICHARD CARELLI

MIAMI (AP) — Lester Freeman is looking forward to the day he will catch the 7:15 commuter blimp to work.

"Thimp Blimp" reads the chalkboard above his desk, and the executive vice president of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce intends to keep the faith.

"Nothing's impossible," Freeman said. "I'm just not going to sit here and say blimps won't work. Go tell that to the guys who walked on the moon."

Freeman said Miami already has applied for funds in the event the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration authorizes a pilot program to test commuter blimp feasibility.

"NASA is spending $250,000 for feasibility studies on lighter-than-air vehicles," Freeman said. "If pilot programs or demonstration projects follow, Miami wants a piece of the action."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, working with the Goodyear Aerospace Corp., is to release results of its initial study next month.

While NASA spokesmen are hesitant to comment before that release, R.T. Madden, a Goodyear executive, indicated that the study could be favorable.

"The potential of buoyant vehicles for mass transit in urban areas is one of many missions we are investigating in our NASA feasibility study," Madden said. "Initial results indicate this application may offer advantages not currently available with other transport systems."

Freeman said the dirigibles could prove an economic and ecological boon.

"We could reduce air and noise pollution in our cities, reduce land surface traffic and drastically cut the costs of mass transit systems."

"In Miami, we're paying $5 million for right-of-way for each mile of urban expressway. When we are thinking about sinking $1.5 billion into a program, I think all the choices — alternative and supplemental — have to be studied," he said.

Freeman admitted that gaining public acceptance of blimps would be a major drawback.

"For some reason, people just want to laugh about it," he said. "But those same people aren't laughing when they have to put up with the traffic, the pollution and the cost of gasoline. Who knows what will be feasible 10 years from now."

Hughes' Concern To Be Assessed More Back Taxes

By GEORGE LARDNER Jr.

WASHINGTON — Billionaire Howard Hughes' organization will be assessed an additional $3 million in back taxes for the CIA-sponsored Glomar Explorer, it was learned Tuesday.

Los Angeles County Tax Assessor Philip E. Watson said he would levy an "escape assessment" on Hughes' Summa Corp. because of Coast Guard papers showing that the mystery ship was registered in California in late 1973.

He said the registration papers — disclosed by The Washington Post in April — seemed to contradict the claims of Summa Corp. that the vessel has been permanently licensed in Delaware last year and thus not subject to California taxes.

The new property tax levy would bring the total tax bill being assessed against the Hughes-owned company to approximately $6.1 million. Watson sent an initial $3.1 million bill for 1975 property taxes to the Summa Corp. Last week after he said the company ignored his repeated attempts to pin down the true ownership of the vessel.

Watson said he had been assured by CIA representatives at a hush-hush meeting in January that the government owned the ship. It raised portions of a sunken, nuclear-armed Soviet submarine from the Pacific Ocean floor last summer in a top-secret CIA operation code-named Project Jennifer.

Sources said that the Hughes empire does own the ship and has been planning to build it for deep-sea mining operations when the CIA learned of it and financed expensive refinements for the sub-raising operation. The refinements were a giant claw to lift the Soviet sub from the Ocean depths and a huge barge that could secretly carry the claw and install it in the Glomar's main hold near the Catalina Island.

Bryan Man Dies In Plane Crash

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — A Bryan man was killed and his brother injured Tuesday night when their small airplane crashed one mile northeast of the Central Texas city.

The dead man was identified as 40-year-old Jim F. Riley. His brother, Joe Riley, was listed in fair condition at a Bryan hospital.

Authorities said the Piper 180 crashed after hitting a scaffold as it attempted to land at an uncontrolled airport near Bryan.

Phillips Reports Sutton Potential

Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1-A Keene, 20 miles southwest of Sonora in Southwest Sutton County, has been completed as the fourth well in the Jo Nell (Canyon) field.

Canyon reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 3,300,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The pay is behind perforations from 8,382 to 8,395 feet.

Total depth is 9,150 feet and 3/4-inch casing is set at total depth.

Well site is 1,520 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 32, GC&SF survey, abstract 1502.

Cox Potentials Martin Pumper

John L. Cox of Midland No. 1-G Guy Mabee is a new well in the Lacoff (Dean) field in Martin County.

On 24-hour potential test, the well pumped 54 barrels of oil and 10 barrels of water through perforations at 9,057-9,221 feet after being fractured with 100,000 gallons.

Gravity of the oil was 28 degrees and gas-oil ratio was 645-1.

Well site is 1,294 feet from north and 933 feet from east lines of section 1, H. S. Moore survey.

Standard Raises Gas By 2.1 Cents

NEW YORK (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced today an increase of 2.1 cents per gallon in the retail cost of its gasoline.

The Cleveland-based oil company said the cost to motorists at company operated stations would now be 57.9 cents per gallon, including taxes.

The wholesale cost of Sohio's gasoline also will be increased by 2.1 cents and this increase most likely will be passed along.

The company said the increase was in line with Federal Energy Administration regulations permitting price adjustments in line with crude oil, labor and other costs.

Longest river in Canada is the Mackenzie, 2,635 miles in length.

Spraberry Well In Martin Finals

Adobe Oil Co. of Midland No. 1 Wilson has been completed in the Spraberry Trend Area field in Martin County.

The well pumped 91 barrels of oil and 22 barrels of water on potential test from pay behind perforations from 8,042 to 8,776 feet. The zone had been acidized with 4,500 gallons and fractured with 80,000 gallons. Gravity of the oil is 40.1 degrees and gas-oil ratio on potential test was 1,824-1.

Well site is 1,320 feet from north and 1,480 feet from east lines of section 8, block 36, T-1-S, T&P survey, 4 1/4 miles northwest of Stanton.

Gulf Sets Pipe In Terry Test

Gulf Oil Corp. has cemented 4 1/2-inch oil string at 8,049 feet in No. 47 Mallett Land & Cattle Co., one-location east of discovery well of the Kingdom, North (Abo) field in Terry County.

No. 47 Mallett is bottomed at 8,050 feet. Drillsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 1, block D-14, C&M survey and 20 miles northwest of Brownfield.

School Leases Go For $1.2 Million

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Bonus payments by explorers looking for oil and gas on state lands have enriched the Permanent School Fund by $1.2 million.

State Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said Tuesday 35,502 acres were leased for exploration at an average price of $39.43 per acre.

M. M. Slagel Jr. paid the most—$280,396—for a tract in Reeves County in far West Texas.

In addition to the school land leases, Cabot Corp. paid $620,000 for a lease in Galveston Island State Park.

Lea Exploration Rate Gas Flow

American Quasar Petroleum Co. No. 1 Brinninstool, wildcat 18 miles southeast of Halfway in Lea County, N. M., has gauged a flow of gas from perforations at 15,586-15,630 feet.

On the last gauge reported, the project flowed at the rate of 2,900,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 45-64 choke. Testing continues.

Location is 1,990 feet from north and east lines of section 20-23-33E, five miles northwest of the Bell Lake, South (Morrow) field.

Firemen, Police Combine Forces

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The police and fire department forces in nabbing a thief recently.

Fire department inspector John Driscoll was sitting in his car when he saw a young man race down the street, outdistancing a policeman.

"Hop in," the fireman invited the police officer. The chase ended with the capture of the thief.

Republicans Focus On Tax Segment Of Committee Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans are focusing on a proposed gasoline tax as the most vulnerable part of an energy bill shaped by the Democratic-dominated Ways and Means Committee.

Both Republicans and Democrats scheduled party meetings for today to map their strategy for the floor debate on the bill that begins Monday.

Even before their conference, Republicans stressed the gasoline tax.

Rep. Delbert L. Latt, R-Ohio, said that during his visit home over the Memorial Day recess, "I didn't talk to one person who wanted to pay 23 cents more for gasoline."

Rep. James H. Quillen, R-Tenn., said he would be delighted if the Democrats chose to campaign on a 23-cent gasoline price boost.

Democrats say it is a distortion of the energy bill to contend it would raise gasoline prices by 23 cents. They contend that President Ford's program, which involves ending oil price controls and imposing tariffs on imported oil, would be more costly and inflationary.

The bill provides for a 3-cent additional gasoline tax, to be put into a fund for energy research and development. Further annual increases of 5 cents would phase in if measures to limit consumption did not work.

But much of this additional cost would be refunded through the income tax system to make up for the added burden on essential driving.

It appeared that the complicated provisions of the bill had not come through to the

Union To Move Durango Office

Union Oil Co. of California will relocate its Durango, Colo., exploration office to Casper, Wyo., in order to centralize the company's total Rocky Mountain oil and gas operations, it was announced today by T. W. Stoy Jr., vice president of Union's Central Region in Midland.

The office consolidation will effect 15 persons now headquartered at Durango who will move to Union's Casper offices and continue responsibility for exploration and land activities in the four-state Southern Rocky Mountain District.

The Casper District presently employs 155 persons and is responsible for exploration and production activities in nine Rocky Mountain and Northern Plains states, plus production operations in the Southern Rockies.

Coquina Tester Develops Crude

Coquina Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1 White-Federal, wildcat 7 1/2 miles northwest of Carlsbad in Central Eddy County, N.M., recovered oil on a drillstem test in the Wolfcamp.

The zone tested was from 8,068 to 8,080 feet, with tool open 75 minutes. Recovery was 675 feet of heavily gas-cut oil, 45 gravity, and 130 feet of gas-cut drilling fluid. Flowing pressure was from 136 to 211 pounds.

Hole was deepened to 8,207 feet where another drillstem test is to be taken.

Location is 1,990 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 29-20-27E.

Patent Infringement Suit Filed In Federal Court Here

A. R. Baumstiller, owner of Basin Packer Co. in Odessa, has filed suit in federal court here to enjoin two former employees and another person from infringing on patents he claims he owns in making certain tools for the oil industry.

Defendants in the action are Buford B. Rankin and Kenneth J. Laughlin, former Baumstiller employees who "had knowledge of trade secrets" of Baumstiller's Basin company, and John Barbee, all of Odessa.

Baumstiller claims that Rankin and Laughlin this year conspired with Barbee "to begin a business in competition" with him and that the trio violated invention and patent laws in "manufacturing tools according to the design of Basin and according to the teaching of the . . . patents."

Plaintiff Baumstiller seeks a final injunction barring "further infringement" on the patents and a tripling of any damages awarded by the court.

Plaintiff's attorneys in the action are Ruff Adherers of Odessa's Warren Burnett, Associated, and Wendell Coffey of Lubbock.

Barbee, Laughlin, and Rankin

Barbee, Laughlin, and Rankin in March began operating as Hydro Tool Co., in Odessa, the plaintiff claims.

The patented inventions held by Baumstiller include a well clean-out tool, downhole tool, and a combination well clean-out tool and jar.

Plaintiff Baumstiller seeks a final injunction barring "further infringement" on the patents and a tripling of any damages awarded by the court.

Plaintiff's attorneys in the action are Ruff Adherers of Odessa's Warren Burnett, Associated, and Wendell Coffey of Lubbock.

Americana Exhibit Opens At Smithsonian

WASHINGTON (AP) — Approximately 6,000 items of Americana have been handsomely mounted in a Bicentennial exhibition that opens today at the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology.

There is John Adams' case, a metal case in which rock samples were brought back from the moon, the muppets Bert and Ernie from "Sesame Street," an engraving by N. Currier of "Washington from the President's House," and draft notations from the "Mass" composed by Leonard Bernstein for the 1971 opening of the John F. Kennedy Center. There is Thomas Moran's transformed daily life so dramatically — the food people eat, the buildings that shelter them, the clothing they wear — still continues to govern itself by a system devised two centuries ago," he writes.

"Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone," one of this country's greatest landscape paintings, a tent from the 1868 Resurrection City, and the chairs in which Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee sat during the surrender of the Confederacy at Appomattox, Va., in 1865. Grant's appearance to be more comfortable.

Among the more recent items is Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's corrected proofs of the case of the United States v. Richard M. Nixon, ordering the former president to turn over his White House tapes to the Watergate prosecutors.

The show opens with an exuberant display of U.S. symbols — the eagle, Uncle Sam, the Stars and Stripes, an Oriental rug commemorating the bicentennial of Washington's birth in 1792.

A case contains two muskets, elaborately inlaid in gold and coral, which the Emperor of Morocco presented to Thomas Jefferson. Nearby is the Resolute Desk, used by presidents from Rutherford B. Hayes through John F. Kennedy.

"On a table in the white flag used as a symbol of surrender. The exhibition is called, "We the People" from Lincoln's famous phrases in the Gettysburg Address, and it is a semi-permanent show, meaning it likely will be there for 10 years or so. Drawing again from Lincoln, the exhibit is divided into three parts: "Of the people" asks who Americans are, "By the people" how they have governed themselves, and "For the people" what they have asked of government as citizens.

Daniel J. Boorstin, a museum historian, writes in the catalog that the exhibit aims to remind everyone of an American miracle.

"No fact about the United States is more astonishing than that a nation which has grown so spectacularly, which has

Ozzie Nelson's Services Friday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Services will be held Friday at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in the Hollywood Hills for Ozzie Nelson, the nice guy father in the television series, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet."

Nelson died Tuesday in his home with his wife and series co-star, Harriet, by his bedside. He was 69 and had undergone surgery for cancer of the liver eight months ago.

An athletic 170 pounds most of his life, Nelson had thinned to 130 pounds and was confined to his home for the past two months, no longer able to take his daily two-mile ocean swim.

When first informed of his malignancy, Nelson's reaction was: "Isn't that odd for a guy who never drank or smoked?"

Born Oswald George Nelson on March 20, 1907, in Jersey City, N.J., Nelson became at age 13 the nation's youngest Eagle Scout and a representative of the United States at the first Boy Scout Jamboree in London.

He went on to become an honor student at Rutgers University and a star on its debating, football and boxing teams. In his spare time, he played the banjo and sang in a band, inheriting his musical talent from his parents.

He earned his law degree in 1930, financing his studies by coaching football at a Jersey City high school. However, prompted by the depression, he formed a dance band instead of going into law practice.

The Ozzie Nelson band clicked and it was booked into dance halls and on radio across the country with Nelson doing an unabashed imitation of crooner Rudy Vallee.

In 1932, Nelson married Harriet Hilliard, a singer from Des Moines, Iowa, and the following year they began a radio series, appearing with comedian Joe Penner, "Believe It or Not" man Robert Ripley and eventually with actor-comedian Red Skelton.

Miss Hilliard branched into films on her own, starring in such movies as "Follow the Fleet" and "Coconut Grove," while Nelson stayed with the band. But, in 1944, the Nelsons launched "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" on radio, working together on the series.

The show quickly became a phenomenon, lasting 10 seasons on radio and 14 years on television, with a two-year overlap.

South Again Rises In Field Of Rock 'N' Roll Music

By MATT YANCEL
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — After years of being ignored by almost all areas of the music industry except country, the South has risen again in the field of rock 'n' roll.

Not that it ever left, really. Elvis Presley and Jerry Lee Lewis, reared on a tradition of blues and country and western, have always stirred enough interest to keep serious rockers aware of their roots.

But the Southern style of rock found itself taking a back seat to the British groups and the more bizarre and elaborate stage productions of some American bands beginning in the mid '60s.

A tune by a group out of Atlanta called "Midnight Rider" kindled a new pride among Southerners in their music.

Soon afterwards, the rest of the nation's latent hard rockers were on to the Allman Brothers Band.

Now, the Charlie Daniels Band has put it all in song. The two featured singles from the Mt. Juliet, Tenn., group's latest album are "The South's Gonna Do It Again" and "Long-Haired Country Boy."

The old Allman Brothers Band was the flagship of the movement," Daniels says. "They weren't just another super group; they meant something to a lot of people, funky street people."

At 38, Daniels is emerging in his own right with a style that picks up from bluegrass, folk, Negro spirituals, blues, bigband and country.

It's not hard to see why. For years he was regarded as one of the top studio fiddlers and guitar pickers in Nashville, recording with Bob Dylan, Ringo Starr, Pete Seegar, Leonard Cohen and Flatt & Scruggs, among others.

Daniels attributes the revival in Southern music to a new emphasis on getting back to rural roots and the same type of feeling that causes people to identify with George Wallace.

"We play music like George Wallace makes speeches," Daniels says. "I wouldn't vote for Wallace, but I can understand every word that comes out of his mouth."

"Ralph Nader's got something important to say, but he'll get on television and speak in such stilted terms that people will turn the channel."

"People identify with George Wallace because they know what he's talking about. Southern bands are the same; they play basic music that people can understand."

Daniels' popularity, along with that of other Southern rock acts like the Marshall Tucker Band, Wet Willie, Lynyrd Skynyrd and the Allman Brothers exemplifies a turn away from the more decadent and theatrical. There's no jumping around all over a stage when they put on a show.

Daniels lives a quiet middle-class, middle-class lifestyle when he's home with his wife and 10-year-old son. Helped by success motivation books, he's reduced from 325 to 250 pounds in the last year.

"It has to be the music," he says. "I surely ain't a sex symbol."

'Butter 'Em Up' Campaign Starts In Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Taxi-drivers, waitresses and maids in this vacation mecca have been scolded for biting the hand that feeds them.

So the city has kicked off a massive campaign to remind them, "Tourists are our bread and butter — butter 'em up."

Six chorus girls in cutaway coats and bowlers strutted Tuesday as a blonde in a skimpy outfit sang "We're a happy little island" to the tune of Yankee Doodle Dandy.

A city policeman, a bus driver and a hotel executive paraded with flags of the United States, Florida and Miami Beach — freshly christened, "The happiest island in the world."

"If enough tourists stop coming, we'll have to move back to New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland..." warned the narrator of a slide presentation on the courtesy campaign.

Mayor Harold Rosen said the campaign was triggered by complaints from convention delegates who reported rudeness in the resort's hotels, restaurants and taxicabs.

"We in Miami Beach are first class all the way, and we want to be sure our attitude is first class too," Rosen told more than 300 guests at the plush Poinsettia Hotel.

Hotel executives estimate conventioners spend more than $47 million each year on the beach.

The campaign will include signs, posters, decals and the slide show, which will be used in a series of training seminars for resort employees.

Runaway Government, Not Oil, Is At Fault

WASHINGTON (KFS) — Stung by Gerald Ford's attack on their notable failure to develop an energy policy, congressional Democrats are charging that the President's own tariff-based program is highly inflationary, severely damaging to the economy and therefore worse than nothing.

In a nutshell, the Congress has a recurrent record of trying to falsely blame rising fuel costs for America's worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. Most Americans realize that inflation is the central component of our economic pain and Congress would like to make people think that petroleum costs — rather than runaway government spending and budget deficits — are the key to inflation. But that's simply not true.

Think about it a moment. If mushrooming federal programs and deficits are among the major causes of inflation, a lot of the guilt must ultimately fall at the feet of Congress. Small wonder that many representatives and senators would instead like to point to the Middle East and blame Arab sheiks or international oil companies.

Sen. Henry Jackson, whose anti-Arab outlook is colored by close ties to Israel, leads those favoring an oil scapegoat. In a May 28 speech attacking the President's energy policies, Jackson charged that "higher prices for energy and the drain they cause from consumer purchasing power are the chief single cause of the present depression. Further price increases, including the increases that will be generated by the new tariff, threaten to turn the depression into an economic catastrophe."

Jackson and his Capitol Hill colleagues would do well to read a study prepared earlier this year by Virginia Polytechnic Institute Prof. Wilson Schmidt for a group of economists who call themselves "the Shadow Open Market Committee." They make recommendations to the real Open Market Committee, which is the policymaking body of the nation's central bank, the Federal Reserve System.

By Schmidt's calculations, the 1974 boost in prices by the OPEC oil cartel cost the average American consumer just 1.7 per cent of his or her real income. The professor based his data on changing U.S. trade patterns (the ratio of export prices to import prices). His conclusion: that the international oil problem "is not nearly so severe nor dangerous as the early alarms and rhetoric forecast."

At more or less the same time as these conclusions were being published, the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, headed by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, brought out a study showing that rising taxes — not food or fuel costs — were the largest component of 1974 inflation for the average family. This re-inforces the notion that government is the bogeyman, not the petroleum industry.

None of this should be taken as endorsement of the Ford administration's energy program. Their efforts look good only alongside of the feeble efforts of the Congress. Indeed, the great danger in the Ford Administration scheme is that, if too, visibly focuses the oil price issue (via tariff increases) and lends itself to the attacks of those like Senator Jackson who are interested in scapegoating petroleum for the state of the U.S. economy.

If the American people believe this humbuggery, and blame oil for consequences that truly flow from runaway government and runaway government debt, then before long the economic catastrophe cited by Senator Jackson could become an unhappy reality.

'Gold Chip' Jaycees!

Midland Jaycees, long recognized statewide and beyond for their noteworthy projects and achievements, have done it again.

The Midland unit was designated as a Gold Chip chapter for 1974-75, marking the fifth year it has been so honored. The chapter and its members also claimed a number of other awards at the recent state convention.

These honors ranked the Midland chapter right at the top among the outstanding Jaycee clubs in the state. It is said that 1974-75 was one of the best, if not the best, years for Midland Jaycees in their 35-year history.

Midlanders long have been aware of the outstanding record of their Jaycees, and it is good to know that others over the state recognize their prowess.

Midland Jaycees, in addition to serving the Tall City and its residents, also are desirous of spreading the good work by making Jaycee endeavors and accomplishments available elsewhere. For this, Midland Jaycees were awarded first place as the Top Extension Chapter in its division for organizing new Jaycee chapters at Crane, Rankin and O'Donnell during the last year.

But this isn't all by any means. Midland also was cited as the outstanding Chapter for Region 125. It also was named runnerup in the "World Series" competition for membership recruitment, and finished third in its division for Community Action Programming and Individual Development Programming.

The Midland unit was awarded the Founder's Plaque for its assistance to Stanton Jaycees. It was the recipient of the 1500 Club award for the three extensions of new chapters during the year.

Isn't this something? And the outstanding record was achieved by hard-working young men who are interested in the overall welfare of the community and its residents. Community betterment is the watchword, insofar as the Jaycees are concerned. No assignment has ever been too large or too difficult for the young and enthusiastic civic workers.

Joe Campbell, retiring president, was named as the state's Outstanding Local President, and John Nobles, his successor, was cited as both Top Recruiter in his division and Pacesetter for recruiting more than 40 young men into the ranks.

The Midland Jaycees, in Local Project Chairman competition, received 19 awards for the 28 projects entered — eight first prizes, six seconds and five thirds.

In addition, 12 Midlanders won Sharpshooter awards for recruitment and activation of new members.

Yes, it really was a great year for Midland Jaycees, but they are not resting on their laurels. They already are working to make 1975-76 an even more outstanding year, from the standpoints of expanded activities and community achievements.

In planning their activities and in establishing priorities in the areas of individual development, chapter management and community action, the Jaycees are circulating a questionnaire among leaders of the city and county, seeking their suggestions as to community projects which they might tackle.

Midland Jaycees are moving swiftly . . . and they don't intend to slow down.

They merit the congratulations and support of the community which they serve so well.

INSIDE REPORT—

President Ford's Foreign Nightmares Told

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Using the congressional ban on American military aid to Turkey as his worst-case benchmark, Gerald R. Ford is now known to feel that legislative encroachment on the President's freedom to make and carry out U.S. foreign policy has reached a dangerous level.

Just before leaving on his European summit trip, the President made clear in private conversations that the Turkish aid ban was one of the most unwise actions ever taken by Congress in dictating to the executive branch on a critical issue of foreign policy.

Indeed, the President is known to have carried his criticism of that congressional aid ban even beyond the hard case made by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Mr. Ford now believes that Congress just conveniently overlooked the fact that it was the former Greek military junta, not Turkey, that set the Cypriot tragedy in motion by deposing Archbishop Makarios as president of Cyprus.

The congressional aid ban has actually forced Turkey to finance storage costs of U.S. weapons paid for by Ankara but now stored in American depots because of the embargo.

The explosive Cyprus question could have been solved months ago by Turkish territorial concessions if Turkey had not been publicly affronted by the aid ban.

This worst-case benchmark of congressional intrusion into a President's traditional control over foreign policy, privately termed a disaster by Mr. Ford, is only one of what he regards as many severe congressional restraints on his freedom to carry out foreign policy.

Another is the pro-Israel letter, signed by 76 senators and interpreted by Mr. Ford as a clear threat to his whole foreign aid program. What disturbed the President most about the letter — which he suspects was deliberately promoted by the Israeli government — was the apparent threat by the 76 senators to hold up all foreign aid unless Mr. Ford agrees to give Israel much of the $2.59 billion it requests.

Publicly, Mr. Ford accepted the letter from the senators as a candid declaration to consider in his reassessment of U.S. policy toward the Middle East following collapse of Kissinger's Egyptian-Israeli negotiations early this year.

But with intimates, the President is known to be less charitable. The letter, appeared to him as a one-sided political effort to promote Israel's special interest which raised obvious problems for Egypt, Syria and Jordan. As such, it did the opposite of helping Israel's cause because it lacked even the semblance of objective analysis. Mr. Ford is now attempting in his effort to solve the Arab-Israeli mess.

The President remains confident, despite the one-sided senatorial letter, that Congress is in no mood to vote $2.59 billion for Israel against his wishes. He cannot believe that even a Congress in thrall to Israel would vote for the full Israeli request, particularly in view of the fact that the Israelis asked for the $2.59 billion without prior consultation with U.S. officials.

The real threat implicit in the Senators' letter, Mr. Ford is known to feel, is that all other foreign aid will become hostage to the President's willingness to meet Senate demands for aid to Israel.

As he attempts to reduce discord with the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress and show a united front to the world, the President sees his most explosive future problem along the demilitarized zone (DMZ) between North and South Korea. He is concerned that the radically different political environment in Congress today, compared to 1950 when the U.S. entered the Korean war, at least raises a question of congressional response to a new Communist attack across the DMZ.

Mr. Ford feels confident that any outright aggression, any blatant North Korean attack on a broad scale, would go much further to unite the American people — and presumably Congress — behind the U.S. treaty with South Korea than an isolated incident.

The danger in Korea, Mr. Ford believes, would arise from paramilitary or political-military operations cloaked in ambiguity. But if such an event convinced him of the need for American military support of South Korea, he would stake not only his presidency but the validity and credibility of the United States to provide it.

Even so, the President fears that the executive-legislative balance is now tipped so dangerously toward Congress and the post-Vietnam environment is so different from 25 years ago that he will not speculate on possible Korean scenarios. Precisely therein is contained a seed of disaster as Mr. Ford tries to assert presidential supremacy in foreign policy over a Congress acting as though an imperial President were still enthroned in the Oval Office.

the small society

By JACK ANDERSON With LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — What has happened to more than three million Cambodians who were driven out of their city homes into the hinterland by the conquering Communists?

This is the great mystery of Southeast Asia.

The United States, with all its intelligence resources, has been unable to find out. The Communists hermetically have sealed Cambodia so that almost no information leaks out.

Aerial photographs have established only that the cities have been emptied. The marketplaces, which used to be teeming, are now virtually deserted.

The Communists have shut down almost all their broadcasts, so the Central Intelligence Agency has intercepted few messages that shed any light on the displaced population. There are also no travelers coming out of Cambodia for the CIA to debrief.

In CIA jargon, the agency has "no assets" left in Cambodia. The analysts can merely make agonizing guesses as to what has happened to the three million men, women and children.

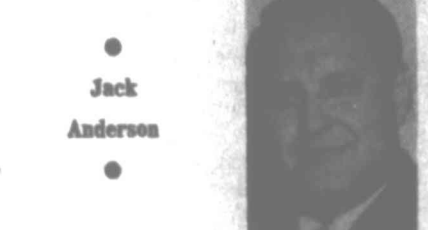

For many, the sudden exodus must have been a death march. The aged and the ailing probably didn't survive the trek. Patients were even cleared out of the hospitals and herded into the hinterland with the rest.

So far as it is known, there also aren't enough food stocks in the backwoods to feed the masses from the cities. Analysts believe that hundreds of thousands will die of starvation. One shocking estimate is that at least a million people will perish.

It appears that the Khmer Rouge, as the Cambodian Communists call themselves, may be guilty of genocide against their own people. Certainly, the ruthless uprooting of three million people is an act out of the dark ages.

Yet no one — not the United Nations, not the Red Cross, not an individual nation — has called upon the Cambodian authorities for an accounting.

Footnote: Analysts believe that the

Jack Anderson

Khmer Rouge must be orthodox Maoists who seek to convert their country by massive upheaval into a peasant society.

There also have been reports, including some intercepted messages, that the Communists are executing the entire families of former military officers and high civilian officials.

But the intercepted messages have been sporadic and fragmentary. "There isn't even hard evidence," our sources say, "that the killings run to the 80 figure" that President Ford has mentioned.

AEROSOL ADDICTS: It used to be glue sniffing. Now it's aerosol sniffing.

The young and the poor, seeking a cheap "high" have taken to inhaling the toxic fumes of spray paints, hair sprays and deodorants out of aerosol cans.

It is a dangerous pastime, which kills about 125 young people every year. The fumes depress the central nervous system and can lead to nervous disorders, loss of memory and, occasionally, heart failure and death.

An unpublished study, conducted by Philip Vargas of the Drug Abuse Council, found that aerosol sniffing is popular "among the very poor, disenfranchised and marginal minority groups such as Chicano and Indian youngsters."

Government bureaucrats call it "solvent abuse." The back-alley users call it "huffing." One New Mexico doctor described it as "a poor man's marijuana."

But the consequences, according to the study, can be pathetic. Here are a few examples: "In Colorado," the study reports,

"a mother told a community worker that her son even sleeps with a cloth sprayed with paint over his nose and that whenever she reprimands him for his sniffing, he threatens her and sometimes beats her."

— A 17-year-old was described by his teacher as "a very gentle boy" and a good student before he started sniffing. Now his probation officer says that "his eyes are always bloodshot and he has bluish-colored rings around his eyes and mouth. His speech has deteriorated and, at times, he is very hot-tempered and very nervous. He gets frustrated very easily and sometimes he is extremely violent."

— In Tucson, the researchers found a "four-year-old child of a chronic sniffer" who was introduced to sniffing by his father. "Rag, daddy, Rag, daddy," the little tyke cries, asking his father for another sniff.

— "My son has been sniffing paint from spray cans since he was 19," writes a mother. "My son is a very sick person and I just don't know how to deal with him anymore. His mind is already so deteriorated I don't know if anything can be done for him."

For that matter, little is being done by the government for any of the aerosol addicts.

It Happened Here—

40-Years Ago (June 4, 1935):

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Cowden returned from a 10-day trip to Dallas, Fort Worth, Mineral Wells and Denton.

Five P-26 pursuit planes landed at the Midland airport.

Plans for the erection of a new brick office and store building for Rockwell Bros. Lumber Co. were announced by R. V. Lawrence, manager. Mrs. C. D. Vertrees and children left for a visit in San Antonio.

Officers elected by the Senior Epworth League included Thelma Chivers, president; Alvon Patterson, vice president; Mrs. Enos Feeler, secretary-treasurer; and Roy Collins, reporter.

35-Years Ago (June 4, 1940):

Billy Noble, student at The University of Texas and son of Mrs. Susie Noble of Midland, was selected to lead the music of the First Christian Church during the summer months.

The Civic Theater, Mrs. N. A. Lancaster, president, issued a call for singers and chorus line girls for the forthcoming production "Orphan Nell."

A. B. Cole, superintendent of the city water works, announced that water would be turned off briefly in certain areas of the city while repairs to water lines were being made.

25-Years Ago (June 4, 1950):

The 16th annual World Championship Midland Rodeo concluded its five-day run with afternoon and night performances.

Texas Highway Commissioners Fred Wemple of Midland (chairman), R. J. Potts of Harlingen and A. F. Mitchell of Corsicana participated in a "Highway Commission Day" observance here.

Stock Market Prices Weaken In Fairly Active Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market weakened a bit today in the face of some hesitation over economic recovery prospects.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4.25 at 241.19, with losers and gainers about even overall on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was fairly active. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told a congressional committee this morning that the economy was in the process of changing direction. But he added that signs of a recovery "will not quickly be evident in all of the measures of economic activity."

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 24 to 69.85. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks, by contrast, was off 16 at 118.36.

Brokers said technically inclined investors might be feeling some wariness over the resistance the market had met as the Dow struggled to rise above 250. Utilities continued to show some gains on anticipation of a new program from the Ford administration to aid the industry. Wisconsin Electric Power gained 1/2 to 27; Commonwealth Edison added 3/4 to 20 3/4, and Florida Power & Light was up 1/4 at 24 1/4. Asaram Oil, the Amex volume leader, showed a 1/4 advance at 10 3/4.
