Winds, Rain, Hail Wallop City

Many Fences, Trees, Sheds Damaged Here

By LARRY LOVEFACE
A storm packing winds just short of hurricane force roared through the Midland area about 12:30 a.m. today, hurling down rains of up to 3 inches and stranding several motorists in flooded underpasses.

Despite the fury with which the elements struck, there were no reports of major damage or injuries in the area. But many residents reported trees, fences and sheds toppled by the winds and trees and plants in many areas were stripped by the heavy torrents of small hail accompanying the storm.

Anxious Moments For Some

By BO BASKIN
On the morning after, leaves dotted the streets almost everywhere and the Midland roads were caked with light brown West Texas mud. Midlanders raked their yards and city workers swept the streets to remove the debris left by the storm.

Hours earlier, however, Midlanders were not quite so calm, but were rather concerned by the storm one man described as "a regular East Texas gully washer."

A car and a pickup were in water up to their windows in the Front Street and Big Spring underpass. Harrel said the pumps were unable to evacuate the water quickly enough to prevent flooding. He reported flagmen tried to wave down the motorists, but they drove on into the water.

Scharbauer Drive just barely contained the floodwaters, said Fred Baker, director of public works for the city. He said the draw was completely full from the intersection with A Street east to Front Street. At Lamon Road, he reported water was a foot deep on the bridge over the draw.

Large amounts of debris were floating down the draw, Baker said, and several large sheets of fiberboard, lumber and railroad ties lodged against the bridge.

Others also were anxious. Mrs. Russell E. Davidson of 2101 North A said, "The hail sounded like it was going to break all the windows. What I looked outside, it was rain so hard and blown so hard that I couldn't see." Mrs. Preston McCleary of 213 See HIGH WINDS, Page 4A

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will act on the Rockefeller Commission recommendations for ending unlawful CIA domestic activities within two months and will seek to have all CIA probes wrapped up by Sept. 1, an informed White House source predicts. Meantime, chairman Frank Church of the Senate intelligence committee has indicated he is prepared to endorse one of the commission's major recommendations — creation of a joint congressional panel to oversee the Central Intelligence Agency on a continuing basis.

HUD Okays Housing Project Site

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has given tentative approval to a site at Scharbauer Drive and Pecos Street for a $2 million, 100-unit housing project for the elderly and handicapped. Harry Clark, chairman of the Midland Housing Authority, told members of the Midland City Council in their meeting Tuesday HUD has indicated it will approve the new site with four contingencies which he said the authority could "live with."

Ford Presses Push For Israeli-Egyptian Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford accelerated his push for a new Israeli-Egyptian settlement today at the first of two formal meetings with Israeli Prime Minister Yitshak Rabin. Rabin met with the President in the Oval Office of the White House in midmorning for meetings that began with a minimum of ceremonial hoopla. Flanking the two leaders were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Undersecretary of State Joseph Sisco and Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli ambassador here.

Hostages Overpower Prisoners

TORONTO (AP)—A siege at the British Columbia Penitentiary where three inmates held 15 hostages for 41 hours ended early today when hostages overpowered the inmates, a Canadian official said. One woman hostage died later of injuries, the official said. Solicitor General Warren Allmand said at a news conference in Toronto that the hostages rushed the prisoners and pushed two of them into a vault.

Late Bulletins

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — Ministers of the oil cartel decided today to postpone at least until Oct. 1 any action on raising prices. The ministerial conference of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to put off until the end of September an earlier decision to quote future prices in special drawing rights instead of in dollars.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stanley K. Hathaway won Senate confirmation today as secretary of the Interior after several senators accused him of waffling on support for a tough bill to protect the environment against strip mining.

Mining Bill Supporters Say They Plan To Try To Get Legislation Enacted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the strip mining bill, having failed to override President Ford's veto, say they'll try again later this year to get the legislation enacted.

"A large majority of the American people clearly wanted this bill," said Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz. "This thing isn't dead. The fight must go on."

Udall, floor manager for the bill, said the narrow margin by which the House failed Tuesday to override the veto "is but a temporary victory for those who would have this country produce energy at any cost."

The vote was 278 to 143, three votes shy of the two-thirds margin needed for a House override.

Ford vetoed the bill on May 28, saying it would drive up consumer utility bills, increase unemployment in the coal fields and make the United States more reliant on imported oil. The vote was the third time in three override attempts this year that Congress has sustained the President. The veto was a major defeat for the House Democratic leadership and for environmentalists who have worked for more than four years to get Congress to enact strip mining controls. Disagreeing with Udall, Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., the chief GOP opponent of the bill, said failure of the Democratic-controlled Congress to override the veto "demonstrates that Congress doesn't want a federal strip mine bill."

Only Four Or Five More Witnesses To Be Called In Carrillo Probe

AUSTIN (AP) — Only four or five more witnesses need to be called in the investigation of Duval District Judge O. P. Carrillo, says Arthur Mitchell, the judge's lawyer.

The special House committee investigating Carrillo to determine if impeachment charges should be brought against him got no information at all Monday from wealthy South Texas rancher-banker Clinton Manges and not a man named O. P. Carrillo.

Manges invoked the Fifth Amendment 29 times, refusing even to give his name.

His lawyer, former state Sen. Jim Bates of Edinburg, told the committee, "This morning I leafed through five volumes of previous testimony before this committee, and you've been after a man named Clinton Manges and not a man named O. P. Carrillo."

Bates said the resolution creating the committee says the judge has been indicted on multiple counts of income tax violations. If that is what the committee is looking into, Bates said, he advised Manges to refuse to testify.

Manges wore a pure white suit, a tan knit shirt open at the collar and matching tan boots, which he tapped much of the time during his invocation of the Fifth Amendment. A large diamond graced his left ring finger.

"What is your name?" Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, committee chairman asked.

"I respectfully decline to answer questions put to me by the committee on the ground that the answer might tend to incriminate me under the Fifth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution and Art. 1, Sec. 10 of the state constitution," Manges said.

He gave the same answer half a dozen times before Bates suggested, and Hale agreed, that Manges should be allowed to say simply, "I refuse to answer on the ground it might tend to incriminate me."

Manges was asked if he wrote a check for $6,911 on Jan. 27, 1971, to pay for a Cadillac for Carrillo. He declined to answer.

"Has the governor returned your $15,000?" asked Rep. Bob Hendricks, D-McKinney. He declined to answer.

Manges contributed $15,000 cash to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's 1972 campaign. Briscoe has said he could not accept a contribution that large from someone he barely knew. He has tried for more than two years to return the money, the governor contends.

Bates was asked after Manges' appearance before the committee Monday if the money had been returned. "No comment," he said.

Mitchell introduced stacks of the judge's financial records into evidence, then put on Renaldo Guerra, a Roma customs-house broker, as his first witness.

Guerra testified that he sold 500 sacks of cement to the judge in 1973.

An earlier witness, Cleo Gonzalez, testified that cement used for a foundation at the judge's ranch came from a building that housed county materials as well as the Farm and Ranch Supply Store and also the so-called Zertuche Store.

Guerra said Fred Pilon, an interpreter for the judge's court in Starr County, was a personal friend of his, ordered the cement for the judge.

Guerra said he originally quoted a price of $2 a bag, thinking he could make a profit on Mexican cement that was selling then for $1.40 a bag. But by the time the deal was completed, Mexican cement was selling for nearly $2 a bag, he said, so he made a deal for domestic cement at $2 a bag.

Hale said that left Guerra no profit on the deal. "Do you have many transactions like this?" he asked.

"No, I don't," Guerra said, chuckling.

Guerra was asked if he was related to Duval County Dist. Atty. Arnulfo Guerra, who has been accused of conspiring with Carrillo to depose four school board trustees in Benavides.

"Yes, he's my brother," Guerra said.

Governors Agree On Just One Thing: Need For Money

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The nation's governors talked about the energy crisis, calling it an emergency, but they found it impossible to agree in a hurry on anything more than the need for more money.

The governors, who met for more than an hour Tuesday without success, are expected to adopt an energy resolution at today's closing session of the 57th annual National Governors Conference.

The resolution, similar to an impromptu one approved Tuesday, demands that states get half of the proposed 3-cent increase in the federal gasoline tax and 20 per cent of anything above that.

But it also contained general opposition to a rise in the cost of petroleum products, including the gas tax hikes proposed by the Democratic House and the oil import tariff of President Ford.

State governments generally feel a hike in federal taxes will cut gasoline consumption and thus lower revenues from state fuel taxes. Thus the governors sought to insure their fair share of any hike.

Gov. Edwin W. Edwards, D-La., talked his fellow governors into giving up an easy afternoon of recreation and minor meetings Tuesday to come up with a proposal to do something about energy.

"There are 8 1/2 million unemployed Americans," Edwards chided. "If we don't do something about the problems, the next great group of unemployed Americans will be the elected officials."

So the governors folded away swim trunks, shoved tennis rackets back in the bags and came back to solve energy.

Edwards said it was a minor victory because GOP govern-

The governors met a little Tuesday morning long enough to telegraph Congress that they wanted a share of any new gasoline tax. Efforts to say something stronger were buried.

Old 'Rubble' Makes A Bang

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Guy and Beverly Williams "found an old pile of rubble" which back in 1939 ran on the streets of San Rafael selling popcorn.

The Williamses restored the old auto to its former glory and it is bringing back memories to those who want their popcorn served with a squirt of history and nostalgia, along with butter and salt.

Before it fell on evil days, the popcorn machine used to travel the streets of San Rafael with children and adults alike gathering around to buy boxes of popcorn. Now that it's in shape again the Williamses have been showing up at civic celebrations.

Breakthrough Made In East-West Security, Cooperation Conference

By DON COOK
The Los Angeles Times
GENEVA — In a major breakthrough at the European Conference on Security and Cooperation, the Soviet Union has accepted Western proposals for a global settlement of all outstanding East-West issues in the humanitarian, information, cultural and educational fields. The package deal appears to have broken a long diplomatic stalemate here and started the conference toward a successful conclusion. The 11-page document drafted by the West and accepted by

Moscow includes the following main headings: Facilitation of human contacts; issuance of visas for temporary visits and travel; right of reunification of families; right of marriage between citizens of different countries; conditions of improving tourism; expansion of youth contacts and exchanges; expansion of circulation of magazines and newspapers by subscription and greater sales outlets; exchange of films and broadcasts with an end to radio jamming — which is implicit in the wording of the article although not spelled out; cultural exchanges and access to each other's cultural achievements, in particular in the field of books; educational and teaching exchanges. It also pledges that Eastern European governments will facilitate the issuance of visas for journalists, promises multiple-entry visas for journalists, promises multiple-entry visas for resident correspondents, easing of internal travel restrictions, which are such a nuisance in the Soviet Union in particular, and places at least a potential curb on the practice of expelling correspondents without reason. The key article in this part of the package reads: "Legitimate pursuit of professional activities will neither render journalists liable to expulsion or otherwise penalize them. If an accredited journalist is expelled, he will be informed of the reasons for this act, and may submit an application for reconsideration of his case."

And as a furtherance of at least paper pledges on news gathering, the text commits Eastern European governments "to increase opportunities for journalists to communicate personally with their sources, including organizations." Putting together this breakthrough package, its timing and its diplomatic presentation to the Soviet delegates has been the most successful piece of cooperative effort the West has achieved since the security conference operation began in Helsinki more than three years ago. The original initiative, it was learned, came from the British in Geneva, with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger then playing a decisive and somewhat unexpected role along the way. The British, according to conference sources, decided back in April that a major Western initiative should be attempted to try to break out of the stalemate of piecemeal bit-by-bit negotiations and get the conference moving. The reason for their timing was primarily the increasing Soviet insistence on winding up the conference by the end of June or the end of July at the latest. They reasoned that if the Soviet leaders were in that much of a hurry, they ought to be given a chance to prove whether they really meant business.

After a great deal of preliminary discussion, the British went ahead and drafted a final document covering the entire "basket three" range of subjects and proposals — as the humanitarian contacts section of the security conference work is called here. It included some concessions to Moscow, but in the main it insisted on a wide range of concessions by the Kremlin to the West. The document then went to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels for a final discussion, and it was agreed, first of all that if the Soviet Union did not buy the whole package — give or take some minor editing and language adjustments — then it would be withdrawn and the conference would go back to the step-by-step procedure where it had bogged down. The document was then ready for presentation in Geneva just before Kissinger took off for his European trip to see Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Vienna. There he laid it on the line to Gromyko, now or never if the security conference was to get going.

Gromyko returned to Moscow on May 19. The first Soviet reaction to the move in Geneva came at a four-power lunch on Wednesday, May 21, and the reaction was querulous and negative, though no doors were slammed. But the Western delegates made clear their acute disappointment and were prepared to call the effort off. Then the very next day the Soviet delegates came back and said that they had been misinterpreted, that they were not rejecting the document — they just wanted to talk about it more thoroughly. From that point on, one clause after another began to fall into place.

At this point only the Romanians are holding out — for inexplicable diplomatic reasons of their own. A Romanian delegate is reported to have remarked that "this gives journalists a better deal than diplomats — we never need to explain to a diplomat why we expel him from the country and he certainly doesn't have the right to appeal."

But nobody expects the Romanians to hold out forever, and the diplomats of 35-nations are now trying to transfer the momentum of the "basket three" operation to a host of other major and minor issues in other areas.

Russians Carry Out Significant Expansion Of Indian Ocean Base

By OSWALD JOHNSTON
The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has carried out a "significant expansion" of its Indian Ocean naval base at the mouth of the Red Sea in Somalia and is building missile storage facilities and a three-mile-long airstrip there, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger told Congress Tuesday.

Schlesinger's testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee, which came complete with maps, charts and reconnaissance photographs of the expanding Soviet base, marked the latest installment in the Pentagon's two-year-old effort to build a large capacity Navy fueling station on the tiny British island of Diego Garcia.

Navy plans for the island, which lies almost exactly in mid-ocean, more than 1,000 miles south of the southernmost tip of the Indian subcontinent, has been bitterly opposed by India and at least vocally opposed by most of the 29 nations bordering the Indian Ocean, Persian Gulf, Red Sea and Bay of Bengal.

It has also been opposed in Congress. The Pentagon last year won grudging approval of $18 million to upgrade facilities on the island, but Congress wrote in a proviso that the President first must certify the base as "essential to the national interest of the United States." It also provided that the project, once certified, could be blocked by a resolution of disapproval by either House of Senate.

The Pentagon this year is seeking an added $13.8 million to expand the island base, and Schlesinger said the total cost of the project would run about $37.8 million.

Construction plans for the project are unchanged from last year. They include a massive 600,000-barrel fuel storage capacity for ships and aircraft; deeper and longer port facilities; and extension of an existing airstrip to 12,000 feet — long enough to take huge military cargo planes, but leaving it still too narrow to handle B-52 bombers.

Most of Schlesinger's testimony Tuesday was directed to the Soviet base which is located at Berbera on the Somali coast. Much of the expansion he described has taken place since last November, and the installation of ship-to-ship and air-to-surface missiles in the storage facilities there has been noted only in the most recent air reconnaissance photographs, he said.

The presence of facilities for storing anti-ship missiles and their non-nuclear warheads at Berbera was first reported in early April and was briefly confirmed by Schlesinger in a published interview late last month.

But the presentation Tuesday was the most detailed public briefing so far on what Schlesinger characterized as a major upgrading of Soviet naval capabilities in the Indian Ocean. U.S. national interests are affected, Schlesinger stressed, because of the oil transport lanes crisscrossing the Indian Ocean from the Persian Gulf. "It is an area of the world on which the whole future of the industrial world depends," he declared at one point.

All told, he said, the permanent Soviet presence in the Indian Ocean of 19 ships is now five times the American presence, and the capability is growing.

Most of the congressional opposition to the Diego Garcia base expansion is political, however, not military.

Most of the coastal states now support in annual United Nations resolutions an India-sponsored Indian Ocean Peace Zone plan, and opponents of the project, led in the Senate by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., accept this at face value.

A survey of the coastal states hurriedly ordered by the State Department after President Ford moved May 13 to certify the need for the Diego Garcia project produced a largely negative result, when official reaction was counted.

According to the department's own summary of the cables that came in from dozens of embassies around the Indian Ocean, none of the 29 countries is publicly and officially favorable; four are "balanced"; 12 are publicly unfavorable and the attitude of 13 is "unknown."

EPA Official Wants Heat-Warning Device On Catalyst Vehicles

By DAN FISHER
The Los Angeles Times
A top U.S. Environmental Protection Agency official urged automakers Tuesday to install on their catalyst-equipped cars a warning system to alert the driver should the antismog unit overheat.

If the manufacturers fail to act voluntarily, EPA will move to order such a warning system, Eric Stork, director of the federal agency's mobile source pollution control programs, told the Los Angeles Times in a telephone interview from Detroit.

Stork's comments were the strongest public indication yet of official concern that cars with the controversial catalytic emission control system may constitute more of a fire hazard than non-catalytic exhaust systems. The catalytic system is required on most 1975 models sold nationally and virtually all new cars sold in California.

The controversy flared locally late last week when Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn staged a dramatic demonstration in which a patch of wild oats burst into flames shortly after a 1975 catalytic-equipped car was driven on top of them.

that during the days and weeks of preparation for the tv event, Los Angeles County Fire Department people had, in fact, started a fire with a 1974 Chevrolet Nova without a catalytic converter," said G. C. Hahn, chief of ARB's Vehicle Emissions Control Division.

Hahn's remarks came in a letter delivered to Hahn Tuesday and simultaneously released to the press. "While we are not certain that further experiments and experience will not show some significant extra fire hazard from catalytic systems, experience to date supports no such finding," Hahn concluded.

However, Hahn did cite ARB tests which confirm that when a catalytic-equipped car has a "severe engine malfunction" such as misfiring sparkplugs, it "can develop substantially higher skin temperatures" than a non-catalytic car.

It's the problem of a malfunctioning car that troubles Stork. It also troubles other federal officials, a Times investigation reveals. It has been learned that:

— Catalyst-caused fires were the subject of an April 28 memo from U.S. Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman Jr. to President Ford. "While the number of reported incidents is relatively small at this time, it is of concern that the problem could escalate in the future when cars are operated under conditions of less than favorable engine maintenance," the memo concluded.

Stencil Decorations On Walls, Floors Returning

By ABILE FAULKNER
Copley News Service

With renewed interest in country furnishings and antiques, the almost forgotten craft of hand-painted decorated walls and floors is making a comeback. Using stenciled patterns which can be purchased or designed yourself, these decorative highlights add character to the now popular "cottage" interior.

The custom of decorating painted furniture and of painting stenciled prints on walls became popular in the New England states during the late 19th century. Stencil designs first were used to create wallpaper which was sold in the cities.

In remote areas where wallpaper was not readily available, walls often were decorated by itinerant journeymen painters who carried an assortment of stencil patterns. The designs usually were painted on borders, accenting corners, doors and windows. They also appeared on floors, ceilings and furniture.

divide the surface area. Floral sprays, oak leaves, pineapples, stars and sunbursts, pine trees and crossed bows were the more classic patterns of the day.

Today, an interesting hobby can develop from researching the old stenciled patterns and planning your own design. Stencil patterns also can be found through your interior designer who can assist in creating an original pattern to fit your particular country decor.

The design must emphasize construction of the room and fit the space it occupies. Scale, in particular, is important. For example, consider the vertical and horizontal lines and don't use a small design on a large wall or a long, narrow pattern on a thin vertical panel. Distribution and emphasis are other important considerations in planning a stencil-wall design. Emphasize a major area in the room and develop it as a focal point.

The stencil pattern also must be in the right proportion with the furnishings so that neither the furniture nor the wall design dwarf the relationship of one to the other. The scale must be balanced between each separate unit, but all are part of the total design.

In selecting paint for the stencil design, make use of contrast to enhance the pattern's beauty and form. Light colors are most decorative against darker shades and bright colors show up best against neutral backgrounds.

The early stencil paintings often featured pale pink, black, tones of red, ochre, gray, green and yellow. Blues were seldom used.

Many villagers took good advantage of the painter's visit by having stenciled patterns drawn on floors as well as on walls. The designs also were carried over to the furnishings with many handsomely painted chests coming out of this period.

If you have old wooden chairs, tables and other pieces which might be difficult to refinish, why not paint them with enamel and brighten them with a stencil-patterned design? Selecting the stencils and planning the wall decoration can become a family project and if you like the country look you'll be pleased with the results.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren
Abby's Not Bald Boiler Salesman

DEAR ABBY: There is something about my shipmate that Dear Abby is really a cigar-chewing, bald-headed boiler salesman in Cleveland, Ohio who moonlights by writing a column. Is there any substance to this accusation?

MERCHANT SEAMAN
DEAR SEAMAN: No way, mate! I'm a non-smoking, genuine female with hair growing on my head and no grass growing under my feet.

DEAR ABBY: One of my friends has a baby who is a little doll—very bright and good-natured. My friend and her baby are living with her parents. Abby, I am not sure anything is wrong—and I hope to God there isn't—but that baby will be a year old next week, and he can't sit up at all. He just lays on his back or stomach and kicks his little legs around. I'm afraid something is wrong with his spine.

My problem is I'm afraid to mention it because the baby's mother doesn't seem to think anything is wrong, and I guess her parents don't, either. (They say he's "lazy.") I have a baby girl the same age, and she is all over the place. I just don't know what to do, Abby. If something is wrong with that baby's back, the sooner they get him to a doctor, the better, right? Should I bring it up? And, if so, how do I do it without sounding "lacky"?

WORRIED
DEAR WORRIED: Tell your friend of your fears and don't worry about sounding "lacky." It would be a kindness. And if she hasn't had her baby checked by her doctor recently, she should do so at once.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my daughter was riding her horse along a country road. A car approached her from the rear and the well-intentioned driver blew the horn. The horse was startled, threw my daughter and ran away. My daughter was hospitalized with a broken arm. The driver of the car stopped, administered first aid and kept repeating how sorry he was. He simply didn't know the basic safety rules that should be exercised around a horse.

- You would do a great service if you would publish the following:
1. A loud, sudden noise will cause a horse to run forward blindly.
 2. Never walk within six feet of the rear of a horse. He may kick.
 3. Don't accelerate a motorcycle when passing a horse.
 4. Young horses are more unpredictable than older horses. They are extremely strong and often dangerous. Never buy a young horse for an inexperienced young rider.
 5. Never pet a strange horse. He will cause your nervousness and may bite. If the owner gives permission, you may treat a horse to a raw carrot (not sugar), extended on the palm of your hand.

HORSE LOVER
DEAR LOVER: Thank you for sharing some horse sense with my readers. Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Anesthesiologists Are Expected To End 'Slowdown'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A spokesman for anesthesiologists, who have helped perform only emergency operations here since June 1, said full medical and surgical services should be restored at all San Antonio hospitals by Thursday.

Dr. Neil Nations, president of the local society of anesthesiologists, made that prediction after a special meeting Tuesday night of the Bexar County Medical Society.

A turnout of nearly 700 medical society members voted support for legislation sought by the anesthesiologists.

Dr. Newsom Stool introduced the medical society resolution of support for the anesthesiologists. Only one nay vote was heard during the voice ballot.

The resolution endorses and supports the demands of the anesthesiologists for legislation to meet the current malpractice insurance crisis in Texas.

It specified, "The physicians of Bexar County are dedicated to continued patient care within the framework of a system that protects patients and physicians alike."

After the meeting, Dr. Nations said, "I think we (the anesthesiologists) are real happy. We accomplished what we set out to do and can get back to work."

She said according to her group's bylaws the soonest a meeting could be called was tonight.

"I suspect our members will vote to discontinue the work stoppage now that we know something is going to be done at the state level," Dr. Nations said.

The anesthesiologists began their work slowdown after the defeat of legislation in Austin which would have alleviated the insurance crisis. They were joined in the slowdown last week by 300 physician members of the medical society.

Two physician-members of the Governor's Medical Professional Liability Study Commission spoke at the meeting Tuesday night.

The pair, Dr. E. Don Webb of Houston and Dr. Milton Davis of Dallas, promised to spur the new 18-member commission to early action.

Overall CIA Record Called Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — While recommending controls to prevent domestic spying by the Central Intelligence Agency in the future, the Rockefeller Commission says the CIA's over-all record of keeping with its statutory authority, the commission said in its report released Tuesday.

The commission headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller also said the intelligence agency is needed to enable the President to make sound international decisions.

"Informed decision-making is impossible without an intelligence system adequately protected from penetration," the commission said.

"The increased complexity of international political, economic and military arrangements, the increased destructiveness of the weapons of modern warfare and the advent of electronic methods of surveillance have altered and enlarged the needs for sophisticated intelligence."

At the same time, the commission said there is a possibility some Americans are being spied on now not by the CIA but by foreign agents. It said more than 40 per cent of the nearly 2,000 Communist government officials in the United States are estimated to be intelligence officers.

It also said Communist countries have developed extraordinarily sophisticated electronic intelligence-gathering techniques and "we believe that these countries can monitor and record thousands of private telephone conversations."

The commission said, "This raises the real specter that selected American users of telephones are potentially subject to blackmail that can seriously affect their actions, or even in some cases to recruitment as espionage agents."

Hearing On Malpractice Insurance Rates Set June 23

AUSTIN (AP) — A June 23 hearing on the medical malpractice insurance rate and availability crisis has been scheduled by the State Insurance Board.

The spokesman said there was a possibility that the board hearing would get into the area of Texas loss experience on malpractice insurance. Board chairman Joe Christie has said he believes companies are raising Texas doctors not on claims paid within Texas but on the experience of all physicians nationwide.

The hearing also is expected to cover operating procedures for the joint underwriting association, or malpractice risk pool, mandated by the legislature to guarantee coverage to all doctors. The association will consist of all companies writing liability insurance of any kind. Each company's share of the risks in the pool will be based on its proportion of total liability premiums collected in Texas.

It will follow by three days the organizational meeting of a special 13-member commission established by the legislature to seek permanent solutions to the malpractice insurance problem.

The agenda for the insurance board hearing has not been prepared, but a spokesman said, "It is probable that this will be a rate hearing."

Insurance companies writing malpractice coverage have a June 15 deadline to submit their rates for board approval under a stopgap law passed in the closing days of the regular legislative session last month.

Rockefeller Commission Says Oswald Acted Alone In JFK Assassination, Discounts CIA Involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no evidence that more than one gunman was involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy or that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in the murder, the Rockefeller Commission says.

The panel in effect confirmed the basis of the Warren Commission's conclusion nearly 11 years ago that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in assassinating Kennedy. The panel also discounted all of the major conspiracy theories surrounding the slaying.

The Rockefeller report also rejected claims that photos showed E. Howard Hunt and Frank Sturgis, who later took part in the Watergate burglary, were at the assassination scene in Dallas.

However, an expert medical witness whose testimony was included in the report says his views were misrepresented and that he still believes at least two gunmen were involved in the Nov. 22, 1963, slaying.

Cyril H. Wecht, a forensic pathologist, coroner of Allegheny County, Pa., and longtime critic of the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the assassination, said the statements attributed to him by the Rockefeller panel are "reprehensible and an insult."

He challenged the commission to release transcripts of his interview with a commission attorney.

The report indicated Wecht had changed his mind about the number of gunmen and their location. It quoted him as saying "the available evidence all points to the President being struck by two bullets coming from the rear, and that no support can be found for theories which postulate gunmen to the front or right front of the presidential car."

Wecht said he still believes at least two gunmen were involved and that one fired from a knoll to the right front of Kennedy's auto.

The Rockefeller panel said a detailed analysis of movie film taken at the moment of the shooting and a re-examination of the records of the Kennedy autopsy disprove the contention that Kennedy was shot by a sniper hiding to the right front of the presidential motorcade.

It also said there is no credible evidence showing that the CIA had any connection with Oswald or with Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub operator who shot and killed Oswald.

Baptists Open Convention With Attack On U.S. Culture

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The annual convention of the Southern Baptist Convention has opened with an attack on the American culture.

American are developing a society "which accepts lying, cheating and stealing as an acceptable practice in life to accomplish human goals," the convention president, the Rev. Jarvy Weber of Lubbock, Tex., said Tuesday.

"Watergate has underscored the importance of honesty," the Rev. Mr. Weber told nearly 14,000 messengers representing 24,374 churches. "I feel that we are becoming a nation of dishonest people."

He added that Americans have lost their ability to believe or have faith in anything and called for greater involvement, special days of prayer and fasting, expressions of compassion and emphasis on church growth to deal with the spiritual and social problems of the nation.

In other action Tuesday, the convention adopted a $51 million national budget for mission causes, 25 per cent larger than last year and the largest in the convention's history. The money would be voluntarily contributed by the 33 state Baptist conventions.

An abortion resolution presented by Robert Holbrook of Hallettsville, Tex. proposed to recognize "the distress and unusual circumstances surrounding rape and incest" but condemn the practice of abortion on demand.

And Floyd Craig of Nashville, Tenn., asked the convention to urge the Federal Communications Commission to call immediate hearings to stop the television industry from glorifying violence.

OPEC Delays Price Increase Decision

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has postponed its decision on the substantial increase in the price of crude oil that it expects to make in the fall.

Valentin Hernandez Acosta of Venezuela, the current chairman of the oil cartel, said the delegates to the OPEC conference that opened Monday agreed to decide on a price increase to offset inflation at their next ministerial meeting opening Sept. 24 in Vienna.

Meanwhile, at its closing session today, OPEC was to issue a communique announcing that international oil prices will be quoted in the International Monetary Fund's special drawing rights, or SDR's, instead of the U.S. dollar. The SDR is an international currency whose value is determined by the average of 16 major national currencies.

The change is intended to compensate the oil countries for losses caused by the devaluation of the dollar since a price freeze on OPEC oil went into effect. Hernandez Acosta told newsmen the new price structure would mean an increase of less than 30 cents per barrel in dollar terms, and the effect on retail prices of petroleum products should be almost unnoticeable.

A committee of experts will meet in Vienna in July to discuss how large the price increase should be and when it should become effective. The basic price of Persian Gulf crude oil has been frozen at $10.45 a barrel since January 1974. The freeze expires Sept. 30.

Iran and Algeria claim that inflation has reduced the purchasing power of their oil revenues 30 per cent in the 16 months since the freeze took effect and price should be raised enough to recover this in full. Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf sheikhdoms appear to be prepared to settle for less.

There is no solid evidence that inflation has eroded oil revenues so much as Iran and Algeria claim. In Washington, White House press secretary Ron Neuman said on Tuesday that President Ford thinks the increase should be no more than 7 or 8 per cent because this would be in line with the estimated rate of inflation in the oil-consuming countries during the first nine months of 1973.

Several delegates said they hoped the time until the September meeting would be used to make a new start toward arranging a dialogue between the oil-exporting countries and the industrial countries that are their chief customers. These delegates said a resumption of efforts to organize an international conference on oil and other raw materials might persuade OPEC to extend the price freeze beyond September.

Ky Says Thieu Tried To Murder Him After Finding Out About Coup Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen-Cao Ky says President Nguyen Van Thieu tried to have him murdered, apparently after learning of a plot by Ky and some associates to oust Thieu in a military coup last April.

Ky said the murder scheme failed when security guards shot three would-be assassins who managed to penetrate the Vietnamese air force compound where he lived at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase.

Ky, describing the events in an interview at his rented home in a northern Virginia suburb, said the coup-plotters had hoped that the overthrow of Thieu would help save South Vietnam from falling to the Communists. He said they were talked out of the plan by U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin, who assured him that Thieu's departure would be "arranged."

But by the time Thieu finally resigned on April 21, it was too late. Saigon surrendered nine days later.

Ky said his group included a number of top political and military leaders, including the military chief of staff, Gen. Cao Van Vien, Air Force Commander Tran Van Minh and the commanders of several key military units.

Ky said the plans for a coup developed after Thieu's decision to abandon three central highland provinces to the North Vietnamese army, a move which triggered the eventual collapse of Saigon's military forces and the government.

"We were ready to move in right after the defeats in II Corps," Ky said. "Mr. Martin came to me and said, 'Well, you don't need it, it is not necessary to use military forces. We are going to arrange it.'"

Ky said he agreed to an alternative plan under which he would take charge of the government after Thieu quit, but that Thieu hung on until the situation became critical.

He said he had expected Thieu to be gone in "two days, three days, a reasonable time," but that "it took us 16 days to get rid of Mr. Thieu, and during the 16 days, each day, we lost more ground, more provinces, cities." He said in the end the plan "worked, but too late."

He said it was during this period that aides informed him of the plan in which "Thieu tried to have me killed."

Thieu, after resigning, fled to Taiwan. Quang came first to the United States as a refugee but has since moved to Montreal, where Canadian officials have expressed displeasure over his presence. Martin has not returned to the United States since the fall of South Vietnam and is reported to be in Italy.

PROTEST SIGNS — Carpenter Donald Kinghammer, who has worked only three days in the past 10 months, says a lack of jobs and his possible loss of unemployment benefits prompted him to post a sign on the home reading, "For Sale, Going on Welfare." Tennis Complex Action Postponed

The city council Wednesday postponed further action on a request by the city and Midland College for federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation matching funds for construction of a tennis complex at the college.

The council did, however, agree that the college should ask its architect to prepare construction specifications preparatory to taking of bids.

Dr. Al G. Langford, Midland College president, approached the council about the possibility of proceeding with the project without federal funding.

Federal money, at least for this year, has been denied because the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation has exhausted its available funds.

There are indications that federal help may be available next year.

Langford told the council the college needs tennis courts by fall. He proposed that the city and college proceed jointly in construction of 12 courts at a total cost of $80,000, and that lighting and other improvements be added later when money is available.

Councilmen held off making the final commitment in an effort "not to preclude the possibility of eventual federal funding."

Langford had told them the college's need for the courts in the fall is so desperate it would have to ask the city to release it from the agreement if a delay of even six months is in the offing.

The college president noted

Macmillan Likes Election Outcome

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Harold Macmillan, the 81-year-old former British prime minister, has described his country's vote to remain in the Common Market as "a triumph for moderate people who do not want extremes either way."

Macmillan, whose own efforts to get Britain into Europe began in 1961, said Tuesday, "It took us a long time to get European status, but at least we have got it."

Macmillan Likes Election Outcome

that Midland College will likely host the National Junior College Women's Championship here next spring.

After Langford mentioned terminating the agreement, Councilman Martin Neill countered, "I thought this was your idea, not ours."

Langford agreed, but added, "We wouldn't build 12 courts if we were building on our own. I think very definitely this tennis center would be of great value to the city."

Neill, however, questioned whether the facility could adequately fill the city's needs without lighting, the major item which would be omitted if the city and college decide to build without federal funding.

In discussing the advisability of proceeding to plan with the college without federal monies, Mayor Earnest Angelo told the council, "I'd rather be entangled with the college than the federal government."

Official word from the federal agency is expected to arrive

Knievel Planning To Jump Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel says he plans to return to London in September for a second try at a motorcycle jump over 13 parked buses.

Knievel, injured May 26 in his first try at London's Wembley Stadium, sprang from a stretcher on which he was carried to a waiting ambulance after his plane landed at Kennedy Airport Tuesday night.

Reminded that he vowed he was "finished" with London after his unsuccessful London jump, he replied:

"I don't listen to what I say. The schedule calls for me to jump again in September."

17 Men In Huntsville Awaiting Next Move In Death Term Chess Game

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

"Do you, the jury, find that there is a probability that the defendant would commit criminal acts of violence that would constitute a continuing threat to society?"

"Your honor, we do."

That question and answer, spoken in courtrooms 100 miles apart, doomed Robert Kleasen and Ronald C. O'Bryan to die in the electric chair unless higher courts intervene to spare them.

Kleasen was condemned by an Austin jury in the slaying of one of two Mormon missionaries whose heads allegedly were cut up on a taxidermist's band saw, and whose bodies were never found.

O'Bryan was assessed the death penalty by a Houston jury that found he poisoned his eight-year-old son to collect life insurance money.

Appeals are mandatory. Their cases focused renewed attention on the death penalty law.

Seventeen men on Huntsville State Prison's death row are now waiting for the courts' next move in the legal and philosophical chess game over the death penalty. The U.S. Supreme Court is reviewing a North Carolina case that again presents the "cruel and unusual punishment" issue that the court ducked in its 1972 decision that voided most state death penalty laws. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals upheld, 3-2, the Texas death penalty law that was passed in 1973 in response to that decision but will hear new attacks on it later this month.

The first challenge to the constitutionality of the new Texas statute will be filed with the U.S. Supreme Court this summer by lawyers for Jerry Lane Jurek, a death row inmate.

The Texas law is an attempt to comply with the supreme court's split decision that the death penalty is unconstitutional if applied in an arbitrary manner.

It defines a new crime, capital murder, for which there can be only two sentences—death or life imprisonment.

Death is mandatory if the jury finds the killing was deliberate and unprovoked and the defendant, if allowed to live, probably would commit further acts of criminal violence.

That attempt to predict future behavior is the guts of the law because in finding a defendant guilty, the jury has, in effect, found a murderer to be deliberate and unprovoked.

When the legislature sought to restore the death penalty in 1973, it removed two offenses from the list of capital crimes—armed robbery and rape.

Capital murder consists of five categories: slayings of peace officers and firemen who are performing their duties; intentional killings in the course of a kidnaping, burglary, robbery, forcible rape or arson—or during an attempt to commit any of these; murder for "remuneration"; killings during escapes or attempted escapes from prisons or jails; and slayings of prison or jail employees by inmates.

Kleasen came under the capital murder law because he allegedly had stolen watches and other property belonging to the missionaries.

O'Bryan was charged with capital murder because the life insurance on his son was "remuneration."

The court of criminal appeals ruled in Jurek's case April 16 that the Texas law provides sufficient standards to avoid the kind of arbitrary or selective inflicting of the death penalty that the supreme court warned against.

Jurek, 22, a sixth-grade dropout whose lawyer said he was "for the most part unemployed," was convicted of killing a policeman's 10-year-old daughter after she resisted his sexual advances.

E. T. Summers of Cuero, the lawyer, said an appeal will be filed with the U.S. Supreme Court by the first week in August.

The two death penalty cases to be argued before the court of criminal appeals this month raise two new issues:

—Since death can be inflicted only if a jury finds a killing was deliberate and unprovoked, how can the state execute an accomplice to a crime that resulted in a murder?

That question lies at the heart of an appeal by Ernest Benjamin Smith, a 26-year-old black ex-GI, who was assessed the death penalty in the shooting death of Dallas grocery clerk William Moon. Smith allegedly took part in the store robbery during which Moon was killed but did not fire the fatal shot.

The state's brief contends that other Texas laws make an accomplice equally guilty with the actual killer.

—In specifying only certain categories of killings as "capital murder," did the legislature make a constitutionally unreasonable classification?

"The law does not include a person who might, with premeditation and after expressing his intent to kill another individual, pick up a gun, walk across to his neighbor and shoot him five times in the head," says the brief filed by attorneys for Jerry Joe Bird.

Bird was convicted of the Jan. 12, 1974, slaying of Victor Trammell, who was shot to death by intruders who brought a truck to steal his gun collection. Trammell's wife escaped and watched as flames destroyed their home outside Harlingen.

Bird and his alleged accomplice, Emitt Leroy Korges, were arrested in Corpus Christi. Korges received a life sentence because the jury answered "no" to when asked if he believed he would commit future acts of criminal violence.

"Here, then, in full-blown operation is the arbitrary selectivity condemned" by the supreme court, said Bird's lawyers.

Levi Picks Two Top Advisers To Join His Review Of Possible CIA Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has picked two top advisers to join his initial review of possible criminal charges based on alleged Central Intelligence Agency plots to assassinate foreign leaders.

Levi, Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler and a Tyler aide "who has been handling intelligence matters" will review the secret Rockefeller Commission report on the assassination allegations and then decide how the Justice Department will proceed, said department spokesman Robert Havel.

"We are in the process of trying to get the material and Levi wants to review it personally" before assigning further inquiries to other department attorneys, Havel said late Tuesday.

White House officials probably will advise Levi on how to handle the matter. "I'm sure there will be consultations," Havel said in response to questions.

President Ford referred the commission report and other White House information on the alleged assassination plots to Levi for possible prosecution.

A White House source said Ford wants investigators looking into the assassination allegations, presumably including the Justice Department, to reach some decisions within 30 days.

Levi also was reviewing the Rockefeller Commission's public report that describes a number of "plainly unlawful" domestic CIA activities. He must decide whether to prosecute the officials who carried out such activities, ranging from spying on U.S. citizens to slipping LSD to individuals without their knowledge.

The commission report sent department attorneys to their lawbooks to determine what statutes might apply.

Department officials stressed that the review remains "exploratory and hypothetical" at this point, but they indicated that it would be very difficult to bring criminal prosecutions for the alleged assassination plots.

The primary obstacle apparently is the standard five-year statute of limitations which applies to most federal criminal laws.

The Rockefeller Commission reported that the most recent assassination incident occurred in 1968, Ford said Monday night.

However, department officials listed these potentially applicable statutes:

—The Logan Act, which makes it a crime for an unauthorized person to influence the foreign policy of another nation.

—The statute making it a crime for an American to mount an illegal expedition against another nation.

Department attorneys said successful prosecutions under either statute would require proof that the defendant acted without high-level authorization. In an assassination case, a defendant might argue that he was carrying out a presidential order.

A third possibility would be prosecution in state courts, perhaps in Virginia where CIA headquarters are located, for violation of state laws against murder or conspiracy to murder. The statutes of limitations vary from state to state and usually run longer than five years.

Department officials said a fourth possibility would be prosecution under the federal law prohibiting interstate conspiracies to violate state laws, in this case a state law against murder.

Some department attorneys noted that in a conspiracy case, the five-year statute of limitations begins to run on the last day, not the first day, of the alleged conspiracy. If even one conspiratorial act occurred in 1970, the plotters could be prosecuted for the entire conspiracy.

As for the domestic violations, there are smoother routes to prosecution if Levi chooses to follow them.

Rangoon Students Rounded Up After Five Days Of Protests

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Troops rounded up 212 students in Rangoon's pagoda district early today after five days of demonstrations against President Ne Win's military government, authorities in the Burmese capital announced.

Other students staging sit-ins at colleges and universities in Rangoon were given until 4 p.m. to leave the campuses.

Rangoon Radio broadcast a ban on public assemblies, processions and demonstrations in the capital.

Student unrest also was reported in Mandalay, 350 miles north of Rangoon.

The government blamed the Communists for the demonstrations, which included street marches, public meetings and campus sit-ins. But other reports from Rangoon said student leaders denied Communist support and asked for unspecified American assistance.

Elsewhere in Southeast Asia: The new South Vietnamese government broadcast orders to all military and civilian officials of the former regime in the Saigon area to report to various schools this weekend for "reform courses" so they could "soon become honest citizens."

It was the most comprehensive call for indoctrination since the Communist takeover April 30, although reform courses and "re-education centers" in both Saigon and the provinces have been much advertised and lauded in radio broadcasts.

The new order told those reporting to bring pens and pencils, clothes, towels, and enough food and money to last a month.

"Those who do not report themselves will be regarded as persons who stand against the order of the authorities," the order said.

In Laos, the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane said it was still unable to get an explanation from the Pathet Lao for the detention since last Wednesday of Rosemary Conway, 36, of Chicago and Las Vegas. She is a former teacher at the international school in Vientiane.

American officials said they delivered a note to the foreign ministry Tuesday requesting the reason for her detention and that a doctor be allowed to visit her.

New York City Foots Bill For More Public Service Than Other Big Cities

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

New York City, recently rescued from the brink of financial disaster, spends more money on its citizens and foots the bill for more public services than any of the nation's other major cities.

The New York budget for the fiscal year that ends June 30 was just under $11.9 billion, an expenditure of almost $1,507 for each of the city's 7,894,862 residents.

The 1975 budget for Chicago — the nation's second largest city — is just under $1.1 billion, an expenditure of about $325 for each of the city's 3,389,357 residents.

Los Angeles spends about $263 per resident, Philadelphia spends $504, Detroit spends $510, Cleveland, which some experts believe may face financial trouble in the future, spends $146.77.

Why does financially strapped New York pay so much more?

It has more employees, for one reason. And it pays for many items that, in other areas, are financed by county and state governments with broader tax bases.

Of the three largest cities — New York, Chicago and Los Angeles — only New York includes welfare expenditures in its city budget. In other areas, welfare is a function of county or state government.

There are one million persons on welfare in New York. The current annual welfare budget is $4 billion, of which the city paid $2.27 billion. Chicago has 641,000 persons on welfare. All the money for these people comes from the state and federal governments.

Chicago's city budget does not include education or hospitals. Neither does Los Angeles. New York's budget includes $3.25 billion for education and $1.3 billion for health and hospitals.

Philadelphia spends $442.8 million on its public school system. The money is raised mainly through city real estate taxes, but is handled in a separate school district budget.

The size of the New York payroll is demonstrated in per capita figures showing it has fewer residents per employee.

New York has one fireman for every 638 residents; Chicago has one fireman for every 756. New York has one policeman for every 263 residents; Chicago has one for every 298. New York has one sanitation worker for every 718 residents; Chicago has one for every 1,232.

The current New York City budget includes $1.7 billion for the 53,000 policemen, firemen and sanitation workers.

In order to pay the bill, New York has had to borrow money. Some experts on urban affairs estimate that New York City accounts for 30 per cent of all the short-term borrowing in the country.

New York had hoped to borrow another $1.7 billion but underwriting syndicates — who buy the bonds, then resell them — said no. That put the city in its current financial bind.

Experts Say Joint Space Flight Safe

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — American experts say potential fire hazards and other problems have been met and, according to the three American astronauts, the planned linkup of Soviet and U.S. craft next month is as safe as any other space mission.

The astronauts said they disagreed with congressional critics who claim the mission is endangered by an accident-prone Soviet record.

Apollo, with three astronauts, and Soyuz, with two cosmonauts, will link up in space and the two crews will exchange visits for a few hours during the mission that begins July 15.

"It's no more dangerous than any other space mission," said Thomas P. Stafford, commander of the American crew. The astronauts said the Soviet So-yu spacecraft was simpler than the U.S. Apollo but safe.

U.S. space officials say the most obvious problem that had to be overcome was the different atmospheres aboard the spaceships. Soyuz has a mixed oxygen and nitrogen atmosphere at 15 pounds of pressure. The Apollo operates on a pure oxygen atmosphere at 15 pounds.

Thus, the U.S. crew could not transfer from the Apollo to the Soyuz as planned without experiencing the "bends" — nitrogen poisoning caused by a change in pressure. Deep-sea divers who surface too quickly frequently get the bends.

The problem was overcome when the Soviets lowered the Soyuz atmosphere to 10 pounds. For the Soviets, the pure oxygen of the Apollo atmosphere posed a fire hazard, as evidenced by the 1967 Apollo flash fire that killed three astronauts during a routine ground test.

To avoid this problem, the Soviets will use some American equipment, such as earphones and cameras which have been qualified for fire safety in pure oxygen atmosphere instead of bringing Russian hardware which has not. They will also wear special clothing.

U.S. engineers worried that a depressurization valve in the Soviet craft might endanger the Americans while they are aboard the Soyuz.

The only space deaths occurred when a similar valve failed aboard Soyuz 11 and three cosmonauts were plunged suddenly into a vacuum. These deaths along with a recent aborted Soyuz mission prompted congressional critics to express concern over safety.

"We asked that a manual override be placed on the valve so it couldn't be electronically triggered," said Lunney. The Russians complied with the request.

To help insure the docking mechanisms would mate properly, tests were performed here and in Russia, using actual flight hardware.

Some precautions deal with the men themselves.

The astronauts and the two Russian cosmonauts have spent hundreds of hours together, practicing again and again the complex procedures that must go well for the mission to succeed.

Spacemen on both sides have studied the language of the other side to develop sufficient fluency for the mission.

Noll Defends Rozelle Rule

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)— Chuck Noll, who coached the Pittsburgh Steelers to the National Football League championship last season, defends the disputed Rozelle Rule and puts prime importance on the college draft.

He told U.S. District Court Judge Earl Larson Tuesday the league regulation helps to protect a team's investment in a player.

Bob Baun Seeking WHA Coach Slot

TORONTO (AP)— Bob Baun, former National Hockey League defenseman, says he is talking to the Toronto Toros about the possibility of coaching the World Hockey Association club.

Baun, 38, said Tuesday he has met with Toros' owner John F. Bassett and plans another meeting with him later this week.

"I haven't decided whether I want the job but I'm definitely interested in it," said Baun, a former star with the Toronto Maple Leafs who retired in 1972 because of a back injury.

Army Blows Down Yankee Section

NEW YORK (AP)— The U.S. Army, celebrating its 200th anniversary, staged a brief ceremony Tuesday night prior to the California Angels-New York Yankees game—and blew apart a section of Shea Stadium.

Two 75-millimeter cannons were placed in the outfield, facing toward the fences in left and right-center field. During a 21-gun salute, one cannon blew out a panel in the left-center field fence and the other started a small fire in the right-center field fence.

The damage was minor in both cases and the fences were repaired before the game began.

spent, but at least you're going to get something back for it," said Noll of the clause which provides for compensation to a team which loses a free agent player to another team.

Noll followed former super star Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears to the witness stand. Sayers was a volunteer witness for the league which is being sued by 15 present or former players who seek to rub out the Rozelle Rule, or option compensation clause.

The rule specifies the commissioner shall set terms when two clubs can't agree on compensation for a free agent who played an option year.

Noll, who lifted the Steelers from a 1-13 record in 1969 to Super Bowl champions last January, stressed the value of the college draft.

A Foundation He called it the foundation of Steeler strength, providing such talent the past six years as quarterback Terry Bradshaw, running back Franco Harris and linemen Joe Greene and L.C. Greenwood.

Noll said Greenwood, drafted 18th in 1969, "is becoming one of the finest football players in the league." He acknowledged that Greenwood played an option year and negotiated with Birmingham of the World Football League, had a falling out there, "and we are in the process of trying to sign him."

If Greenwood had signed with an NFL team, "it would hurt us very much to lose him," said Noll.

Lose Two Ways It was an example, he added, of a team pouring "time and effort" into developing a player. The Steelers would lose two ways because they could have invested in someone who wanted to remain with the championship club.

Players' attorney Ed Glennon asked why Noll and other Steelers officials wouldn't want to negotiate with a tight end like Ted Kwalick of the San Francisco 49ers.

PELE WITH THE KIDS — During pre-game ceremonies at Philadelphia Tuesday night, soccer star Pele was greeted with flowers from these three youngsters. Pele, recently acquired by the New York Cosmos, saw his new teammates lose to the Atoms, 1-0, and wasn't impressed. (AP Wirephoto.)

TEAMMATES DON'T IMPRESS HIM — $7 Million Man Shy Of Miracles

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Pele, the $7 million man, says that if people think he can make the New York Cosmos a North American Soccer League winner all by himself, they'd do well to forget it.

The 34-year-old Pele, a Brazilian national sports hero, watched the Cosmos lose 1-0 Tuesday night for the second time, this one to the Philadelphia Atoms.

His words after the game indicated he wasn't too impressed with his new teammates. "The four defenders played well," said Pele when asked what he thought of the Cosmos' play in the overtime loss.

The Brazilian admitted that he was emotionally spent from his Tuesday activities, which included signing a $4.7 million contract in New York with the Cosmos. He'll earn another $2 million in commercial work before the contract expires after the 1977 season.

BOBBY RICHARDSON FEELS PRESSURE — Rain Sets College World Series Back

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— Bobby Richardson is in his eighth College World Series, but it's all very different this time around. The former New York Yankee second baseman was asked if his series experience would aid his fourth-rated South Carolina team in the College World Series.

"This is not the same thing at all," said the famed coach after the Gamecocks' winners' bracket game with Arizona State was rained out Tuesday night.

"Before you worried just about yourself, and how you would do. Now I have to think about pitching rotation, parents, and so many other things. You have to look after 21 players."

But Richardson, whose team qualified for the series for the first time this season, isn't worried about his team's lack of series experience.

Big Ten Adopts New Bowl Policy

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— Big Ten football teams, including powerful Ohio State and equally impressive Michigan, won't be limited to playing post-season matches in the Rose Bowl under a ruling adopted by the conference.

Acceptance became a virtual certainty Tuesday when Michigan's athletic board of control voted to accept a new plan widening the league's bowl policy.

The U-M board was the sixth in the conference to approve the plan, thus making it Big Ten policy.

A simple majority vote of conference members was needed, with Ohio State, Michigan State, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota voting approval earlier.

The deciding vote by the Michigan board came as no surprise. The Wolverines, who have a 30-2-1 record over the last three years and have been Big Ten co-champions since 1973, have nonetheless missed every Rose Bowl since that time. Ohio State has gotten the bids instead, intensifying the rivalry between the two schools.

Discussions on the plan were held earlier with Pacific Eight conference members, and although final details remain unresolved, the Pac-8 is expected to fully back the plan. Big Ten schools are expected to be able to go to other bowls—including the Cotton Bowl, Sugar Bowl and Orange Bowl—this year.

Under the proposal, the conference champion, as now, would be the Rose Bowl representative. The next three teams would be eligible for other "conference approved" bowl games.

A second-place finisher must be invited prior to acceptance by a third-place finisher. The third-place team would have to be invited prior to acceptance by the No. 4 team.

DIABLOS WIN FINALE, 9-5— Cubs, El Paso Split 6-Game Homestand

BY TED BATTLES After losing a 4-3 decision in 14 innings Monday, the Midland Cubs needed a victory over El Paso Tuesday to successfully conclude their homestand and take the series. Instead, the Bruises wound up with a 3-3 split.

As it turned out, it was all over before the Cubs ever lifted a bat. Randy Wilson and Lawrence Rush smashed a couple of three-run homers to give the Diablos a 6-0 lead and the Cubs were never in the 5-5 Texas League loss thereafter.

Mike Krutov, 3-5, survived the first-inning carnage, but when he was greeted by Marty Friedman's single and Carlos Lopes' double to open the second, he headed for one of the earliest showers taken by a Cub pitcher this year.

The way things started, the former Cal State San Luis Obispo star must have wondered why he ever traded his catcher's mask for a tee shirt. A walk to Friedman and single by Lopes put runners on first and second, but there were two out when Wilson came up and hit his wrong-field homer to left.

Then singles by Chuck Alberts and Sam Ashford set the stage for Rush's second homer of the series.

The Cubs had opportunities, stranding 15 runners in all and leaving the socks packed with passing runners in the second and sixth.

About the only consolation came in the sixth when Joel Green's single to right center after walks to Joe Wallis and Greg Collins broke up pitcher Frank Panick's shutout bid.

Panick, 4-5, former UCLA pitcher who blazed the Cubs in the season's opener, was belted by Midland 16-7 in the opener of this series, but was a mystery Tuesday. When he left after seven innings, it was 9-1, following Sam Ashford's solo homer in the top of the seventh.

The Cubs finally got something going against Frank Kenyon in the eighth. A walk, Cesar Gonzalez's single and Bill Droegge's hit loaded the bases with two out. Wayne Tyrone bounced a ball into the hole at short. Dave Macherer backhanded it, but his whirling throw to second for the attempted force was wild, letting a second run score.

Bill Bright then dumped a bunt in front of the plate.

Kenyon was off the mound like a cat to field it and under-handed the ball to the plate. Only trouble was that catcher Tom Donohue was standing right next to him when he made the throw.

After Al Montreuil's single brought home a fourth run, Mike Overy came in to get Joe Wallis on a grounder to second and dome the Cubs' hopes.

Midland travels to San Antonio for a game tonight and will be in the Mission City until Sunday before coming home next Tuesday.

Sun Quarterback Files Breach Of Contract Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Tony Adams, the quarterback for the Southern California Sun of the World Football League last year, filed suit Tuesday for $10.2 million, claiming breach of contract, conspiracy to defraud, and fraud.

Adams, who was cut by the San Diego Chargers before the 1973 season while trying out for the National Football League team, declared in his U.S. District Court suit that the Sun owed him $25,000 back pay.

Defendants are Larry Hatfield, president of the Sun last year and also of the new Southern California Sun, San Bernardino, who holds the majority interest in the present club, and both the old and the new professional Sun football organizations.

Also charged is a breach of California labor code sections. Adams became the No. 1 quarterback last year when the Sun reached the WFL playoffs. He claims that on Feb. 1 of this year the defendants asked him not to file suit for back pay while knowing that bankruptcy proceedings would be filed later negating any subsequent demands for that back pay.

Wayne Naphthal of the legal firm of Deutch and Naphthal, filed the suit for Adams. The firm represents several professional athletes.

Adams asked for his release from the Sun, which was granted, and subsequently has signed a contract with the NFL Kansas City Chiefs.

Rangers Rip Bosox, 8-3, But Fail To Make Trade

BOSTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers went on a hitting binge in sweeping a two-game series with the Boston Red Sox, but apparently little progress in trade talks during the brief invasion of Fenway Park.

"We'd like to make a trade, but it looks like we're pretty far apart in talking with the Red Sox," Texas Manager Billy Martin said Tuesday night after the Rangers bombed Boston again 8-3.

With the trading deadline midnight Sunday, these facts appear certain:

- Veteran shortstop Eddie Brinkman, recently acquired by the Rangers in a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals, is available.
- Veteran outfielder Rick Miller, a defensive whiz but unable to crack the starting lineup in Boston, wants to be traded and is available.
- The Rangers would like help, particularly on defense in late innings, in the outfield.
- The Red Sox have a surplus of outfielders but lack bench strength in the infield.
- Why not a Brinkman for Miller trade?
- They want Toby Harrah, and there is no way they're going to get him," Martin said.
- Harrah was our regular shortstop until Roy Smalley came along. Now Roy is our regular second baseman. He's also one heck of a third baseman."
- They're asking for too much from us," a Boston spokesman said without mentioning names.
- We're not going to deal for our young players with futures ahead. That's all other clubs talk to us about when trades are mentioned." The New York Yankee, battling the Red Sox for the American League East, reportedly are desperate for a proven shortstop and would like to have Brinkman.
- "Maybe they'd like to have Brinkman, but with what they're offering, no way," Martin said.
- However, our general manager, Danny O'Brien, is talking to several clubs.

JIM PERRY IN ONE-HITTER— Neck Could Break Watching Pitchers

By The Associated Press

All eyes were on Nolan Ryan, looking for another no-hitter. They were looking in the wrong direction. They should have been looking at Jim Perry.

Ryan, the California Angels' flamethrower, scintillated into New York Tuesday night. In his last two games he'd thrown a record-tying fourth career no-hitter, beating the Baltimore Orioles, and had followed that up with a two-hitter.

Naturally, everyone figured he had a pretty good chance to get No. 5.

They weren't counting on one thing. He wasn't pitching against Baltimore. Perry was.

And for 5 1/2 innings, Perry flirted with a no-hitter. It would have been his first. Then Al Bumbry ruined it with a single up the middle. So Perry, cast aside by the Cleveland Indians and acquired by the Oakland A's only three weeks ago, finished with a one-hitter as the A's beat the Orioles 3-0.

Ryan, meanwhile, got a taste of things to come before he even took the mound against the Yankees.

The U.S. Army, in a pregame ceremony celebrating its own 200th anniversary, fired off a 21-gun salute with a couple of 75-millimeter cannons—and inadvertently blew out one portion of the center field fence and set fire to another.

Then the Yanks unloaded on Ryan with four runs in the second inning, two on Chris Chambliss' homer, and whipped the Angels 6-4.

"I'm not a no-hit pitcher," said Perry, who won his first game for the A's in his third start for them. "I'm just trying to win. I've been struggling and I can't worry about that no-hit stuff."

North Texas Player Listed As Critical

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — North Texas State University football player John Shepherd remained in critical condition in an Arlington hospital following an accident on a summer construction job.

Shepherd, named one of the team captain during the spring, fell from a two-story high scaffold Friday morning. He suffered severe head injuries and had to undergo surgery to remove a blood clot.

He is in an intensive care unit of Arlington Memorial Hospital.

The junior letterman is listed as the No. 1 right linebacker going into fall camp. Shepherd is a graduate of Bowell High School near Fort Worth.

TITLE BOUT SET FOR JULY 1— Ali To Test Bugner Quick

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said today he expects to relax and test the best challenger, Joe Bugner, in the first five rounds of their title match on July 1.

"He's a tough fighter but I'm going to make him work. If he tries to grab a lead in the first three or four rounds it won't matter because he'll be tiring," Ali said.

Ali said he would chat "just a little bit" to the British challenger. "I'll say something like 'c'mon Bugner, show me something. Show me you deserve a chance. Take your best shot.'" Ali hit the streets of Kuala Lumpur at dawn today, less than 10 hours after his plane landed in Malaysia. He did 45 minutes of roadwork.

A one-hour workout indoors at Negara Stadium at mid-day included three rounds of sparring with Jimmy Ellis and Levi Forte, shadow boxing and rope skipping.

Trainer Angelo Dundee agreed that it was an unusually brisk first session after a long journey and with the contest at most three weeks away.

"I think he wanted to prove to everybody that he already was in good shape," said Dundee.

Then the champion reclined in his dressing room to describe without undue modesty how he plans to tackle Bugner. In addition to his Russian tank and rope-a-dope innovations, Ali said, Bugner should prepare for the mirage. "I call it the mirage because when he's hot and tired in the middle of the ring with the light be like being in the middle of a desert. Then Bugner will start to see things he can't touch."

Ali said he was "serious enough about the mirage, rope-a-dope, Russian tank and other bizarre ring tactics to have bothered Bugner."

"He thinks I'm not serious. He won't believe I'll do it. . . he would never do it and therefore he can't really be-

Policeman Likes Discus Event

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — John Powell finds his fulltime job perfectly compatible with being a track and field athlete.

"We have a lot of fun on the job. I get plenty of opportunities for running, jumping and throwing," says the discus thrower who spends 40 hours a week working as a policeman in nearby San Jose.

The 27-year-old athlete owns the pending world record in his event, 226 feet, 18 inches, but calls himself the police department's "lowest ranked man," assigned to night patrol work in a tough part of the city.

"But things are working out well this year. I have weekends off now, so I don't have to ask for extra time off to get to meets. And since I work a swing shift, I can practice before work," Powell said.

The 6-foot-2 discus thrower will use just a fraction of his weekend time to compete Saturday at the University of California's Edwards Stadium in the Meet of Champions, co-sponsored by the U.S. Track and Field Federation and the University of California.

This summer, he'll be on the road for five weeks of competition including meets in Europe, using up his two weeks of vacation and three weeks of compensating time accrued from overtime police work.

Powell has worked on his own since leaving San Jose State but says, "I've never considered it a disadvantage that I haven't had a coach."

"Discus throwing is an art. I've spent hours thinking about it, and I'm still with the basics. I try to do them and do them well."

"Maybe I'll get exotic later, but I've still got to concentrate on basics. Most people don't even know what they are, so maybe I'm ahead of the game now."

Powell set his world record one week ahead of schedule, at Long Beach, Calif., in late May. He was aiming for the May 31 California Relays meet at Modesto where the discus throwing facility and prevailing winds are considered ideal.

"I wasn't even planning on going to Long Beach, but the meet director bribed me with an offer of $25 per diem."

Group To Boycott AAU Track Meet In Eugene, Ore.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Southern Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union has voted to boycott the AAU Track Championships next week in Eugene, Ore.

The local association made the decision after learning that the national body of the AAU had allocated just $1,000 for the transportation of athletes to the meet.

Harkness, an assistant coach at UCLA, said he felt his association was being short-changed by the national body and, in a near unanimous vote, the local group agreed to send no athletes to the AAU meet.

Among the athletes mentioned at Monday night's association meeting were quarter-mile runner Benny Brown, Olympic long jump champion Randy Williams, pole vaulter Mike Tully and Ron Mooers, and hurdler Cliff Jackson.

Desperate Putt Gives Shaw Open Golf Slot

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — Touring pro Tom Shaw needed a birdie on the fifth sudden-death hole Tuesday to earn the final berth in the 150-man field of the U.S. Open to be held at Medinah, Ill., Country Club June 19-22.

Shaw, who plays out of Iverray, Fla., sank a 15-foot putt in falling daylight after four straight pars to defeat local favorite, Chris Pigott of Chevy Chase, Md., who had already parred out.

Both Shaw and Pigott missed putts on the 18th of regulation play to go into a four-way tie for the sixth open place in the sectional qualifying trial at Washington National Course.

JUST ASK RICK MONDAY— Top Draft Picks Not Sure Pennant

CINCINNATI (AP) — Being baseball's No. 1 draft pick is no guarantee of "instant pennant," says Rick Monday, the first man selected 10 years ago when the revolutionary concept was launched to help the havenots.

"Sure there's been a lot of pressure. Everywhere I go I have the tag as baseball's first No. 1. But I don't think it's bothered me," said the Chicago Cubs' outfielder.

In 1965, the former Arizona State star was the top selection when baseball reorganized to end expensive bidding wars which usually resulted with the rich getting richer.

"I'm not enough of an authority on the subject to say if it's worked or not," said Monday, "but it's certainly saved baseball a lot of money."

It may have saved baseball, period, according to some of baseball's leading authorities. Cincinnati Reds president Bob Howsam, who admits being "among a small number opposed to the draft," says there is no question it has upgraded overall competitiveness.

"Baseball is bigger than one club. You're no stronger than your weakest link," said Howsam. "You have to have competitive teams or the public won't buy what you are selling."

The Oakland A's, formerly the Kansas City Athletics, are prime proof that the draft has accomplished what the lords of baseball had in mind.

Aero Hockey Owner Declares Bankruptcy
HOUSTON (AP) — The majority owner of the Houston Aeros hockey team and the Houston Rockets basketball team has filed for debt reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

Irvin D. Kaplan filed Monday for himself and Kaplan Properties. Kaplan listed liabilities of about $14 million. No list of assets was submitted.

Kaplan's attorney, Joel Rofy, said the bankruptcy action would not affect the operation of the Rockets of the National Basketball Association nor the impending sale of the World Hockey Association Aeros to a local group headed by Houston rancher George Bolin.

However, Bolin said the scheduled sale would be delayed about 10 days. The deadline for the deal had been Friday.

Frustrated Runnerup Eyes Tournament Win In Philadelphia Classic
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gary Player, twice a frustrated runnerup and still a non-winner in America this year, seeks a breakthrough in the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic this week.

The 72-hole chase for a $50,000 first prize begins Thursday on the 6,487-yard, par-71 White Marsh Valley Country Club course, set in a heat-collecting, bowl-shaped little valley in suburban Philadelphia.

"Actually, I've played quite well for the past few weeks," said Player, a globe-trotting little South African who has collected more than 100 international titles.

"I started playing really well at the Tournament of Champions (he lost a playoff to Al Geiberger) and then, unfortunately, I had to go home. I was playing so well I probably should have stayed a little longer, but I'd been gone so long I wanted to be with my family."

ASTROS END LOSING SKEIN— Pirates Continue Mastery Over Reds

By The Associated Press — The Pirates got their final two runs in the eighth when Hebrner walked, Oliver and Stargell singled and Zisk hit a sacrifice fly.

Coupled with Monday night's 5-2 loss to the Pirates, Cincinnati's pitchers were racked up for 18 runs and 32 hits in two games at Riverfront Stadium.

"Maybe this is the start of something big," said Willie Stargell, who collected three doubles and a single and drove in five runs.

The Pirates, usually known for their heavy hitting, have been carried most of the year by their pitching staff.

Sam McDowell, 2-1, making his first start of the season for Pittsburgh, was the recipient of the lucky Pirates support.

The Pirates jumped on Darcy, 1-3, for three runs in the first inning on singles by Richie Hebner and Al Oliver, Stargell's two-run double and Richie Zisk's double.

Medical Injury Prevention Programs Are Being Created

NEW YORK (AP) — In all the tumult and shouting about the malpractice insurance crisis, one approach to the basic problem might be emerging: the creation of medical injury prevention programs.

Under this concept, every hospital and health care institution in the country would develop programs to prevent patient injury. A national clearing house would be set up to monitor the information that is gathered and use it to reduce malpractice.

"Medical injury prevention is primary, and has to be considered first," before the problem of medical malpractice insurance can be solved and its cost brought under control, says Eli P. Bernzweig, executive director of a major federal study of the problem.

In an attempt to involve the patient, a related approach would be to establish some form of ombudsman in every hospital to deal with patient grievances.

Steps such as these are being increasingly urged by a number of specialists and observers to deal with the fact that most malpractice claims — perhaps 80 per cent, according to Bernzweig — arise from events that occur in a hospital.

"There is no coordinated medical injury prevention effort in this country," Bernzweig says.

The report of the Health, Education and Welfare Secretary's Commission on Medical Malpractice, published in February, 1973, made just such recommendations, but there has been no federal money to follow through and the ideas were largely ignored.

Until now. A major step is to be taken at a meeting in Seattle this week of the American Hospital Association (AHA) and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (state insurance commissioners). They plan to set up a national data collection system to pinpoint precisely where in the hospitals most malpractice problems occur and the procedures that are the leading contributors to malpractice.

"We're trying to develop guidelines for risk management programs for hospitals," says James Groves of the AHA in Chicago. "The insurance companies tell us the emergency room and the surgical suite are where it's happening, but we don't have any statistics to help us deal with it, to find out what procedures in the emergency room, for example," Groves said.

The California Hospital Association has had a risk management program for years, according to Doug Dutton, coordinator of insurance programs for the association.

"Don't injure that person in the first place, then you don't have a suit," Dutton says.

Asked why California was having problems with its physicians and malpractice insurance, Dutton answered: "We're having a lot less trouble out here than we would have had if we didn't do these kinds of things."

"Loss prevention specialists" working for the California Hospital Association's program go into the 450 hospitals, out of 600 in the state, that are in the program, to review and audit records and to conduct training programs.

"We're now doing a study of surgical cardiac arrests... studying the charts to see if we can find any common threads," Dutton says. Any data developed will be coded for study.

This kind of information extends on many subjects, Dutton adds, but it is not properly coded so that it can be retrieved in usable form.

The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania has 125 of its members in a safety and nurse consultant service, reviewing safety procedures to identify potential sources of liability claims.

Registered nurses review charts to see, for example, if a doctor has developed the habit of not visiting the hospital after 5 p.m. and merely calling in instructions.

There is general agreement among many specialists that not enough information has been put together so far to attack the root problems of malpractice.

'White Flight' Gives Atlanta Leaders Worries

By FRANCIS B. KENT
The Los Angeles Times

ATLANTA — White flight to the suburbs has given Atlanta's black leaders control of city hall but has left them with a dilemma: How to make up the loss of tax revenues caused by the departing whites.

The traditional solution has been to expand the city's boundaries to include the suburbs, returning the former citizens to the tax rolls. But the taxpayers reclaimed also are voters, and, in this instance, political control would be restored to the whites.

Virtually every faction in the city, as well as in the parts of five counties that make up metropolitan Atlanta, is talking about some form of consolidation. But each seems to be thinking in terms of its interests alone and no organization or individual seems to know, or care, what the full effect might be.

Moreover, many of those caught up in the debate appear to be saying one thing while meaning something quite different.

They may talk publicly of improving services or cutting costs through consolidation, but most will admit privately that the issue is race, more specifically, whether blacks or whites will occupy Atlanta's city hall in the future.

According to one official, "everybody is negotiating with hidden agendas."

Revenue figures alone would not seem to indicate a crisis situation. General tax revenues increased from roughly $8.5 million in 1960 to almost $32 million last year. Observers, however, point out that the city's budget problems are intense and say the revenue figures primarily reflect higher assessed property values and higher tax rates — fewer people paying more taxes.

They argue that population figures are a more accurate measure of what has taken place.

White flight from Atlanta began in 1961, when a federal court ordered integration of the schools. The city's population overall, however, continued to grow until a decade later. But since 1970, the population has dwindled from 468,000 to an estimated 470,000 today, while the metropolitan area has grown from about 1 million to more than 1.6 million in the same period.

"No one knows," a downtown businessman observed, "how much of that growth would have come to the city if it hadn't been for the racial issue."

Mayor Maynard H. Jackson has said publicly that he could support expansion of the city but his critics doubt that he is being altogether candid.

Jackson, who in January 1974, became the first black mayor of a major Southern city since Reconstruction, has said for the record, "I think I do" favor expansion and, further, that he could support a plan to consolidate Atlanta with all the unincorporated parts of Fulton County.

"I know the financial figures as well as the racial figures," he added.

Japanese School Children Taught Almost Nothing About Swing To Fascism

By MARK MURRAY
The Observer, London

TOKYO — University graduate Hiroshi Oeodo comes from Hiroshima, but he recalls learning little at school about the atomic bombing of his native city in 1945.

"At high school, all I can remember is a single photograph of the destroyed city and a caption that said: 'The United States dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima on August 6, 1945.'"

"No explanation as to why the Americans did it, no discussion of American or Japanese responsibility, no discussion of the people's suffering... nothing. It was not until I went to university that I read books written by foreign authors like John Hersey and finally learned in detail about the bombing."

The experience of Oeodo, now in his late 20s, is typical of the problem facing young Japanese school children today. According to many of their teachers and parents, this new generation is taught almost nothing about Japan's disastrous swing to fascism in the 1930s and 1940s.

The reason is the tight government control of school textbooks and this issue has evolved into a bitter classroom confrontation between teachers, particularly those belonging to the militant Communist-influenced Nikkyoso (Japan teachers Union), and the government.

To liberal-minded teachers, education is as firmly under state control as it ever was during the bad days of the 1930s and 1940s, basically with the same motives of controlling public opinion.

Government control of textbooks was shaken in 1970 by the landmark Ienaga case in which a Tokyo university professor won a court ruling against the education ministry, which wished to delete chunks of a candid work on contemporary Japanese history or ban it outright.

This has emboldened another would-be textbook author, Hiroshi Furuya, a history teacher at a top girls' senior high school at Tokyo, on the edge of Tokyo. With a group of colleagues, Furuya is now compiling a new history textbook, in which his contribution will cover the crucial 1930s and 1940s.

"Immediately after the war the occupation authorities abolished the previously severe state control over education and there was complete freedom for a while. But the turning point came with the Korean War," he explains.

"At that time the United States wanted Japan to become the core of its free world defense line against the spread of communism in Asia. With U.S. support, therefore, the Japanese government maintained it was necessary to change the people's thought by means of education so the U.S.-Japan defense alliance would be well accepted.

"Then again, the occupation-drafted constitution banned Japan from waging any kind of war and also prevented it from maintaining any armed forces."

Solar Science

By JAMES M. Copley News

In future years, solar energy will probably be known as a source of power for air conditioning in longer a "science dream—it's rapidly growing technical knowledge."

The public's response and its experimental solar energy has been reported throughout the country. The focus on developing solar energy has been building a strong solar energy—duals—and gas funds for expansion and more in-depth.

Most experts agree further development and cooling home energy could result in savings of up to 10%.

Facilities for such sources are being built in many new homes. It will probably be within the next decade.

A variety of solar facts, other than in homes, are also being converted. Five public heating systems, already converted in Minneapolis, Baltimore County, Va., and a solar energy water service is being built for a Los Angeles building by Southern Gas Co. A new center in Santa Fe will be heated by solar energy when completed in July.

Several universities and organizations are more efficient on better panels and energy components.

Stock Market Prices Bounce Upward In Surge Of Buying

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market bounced upward today in a brief surge of buying apparently encouraged by signs of improving consumer demand.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 3 points at its early peak, showed a 3.52 gain at 825.84 by noon. Gainers held a 2-1 lead over losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the principal catalyst for the early rally was Tuesday's report from the government that retail sales climbed 2.2 percent last month as tax rebates were distributed.

Avon Products was the most active issue on the Big Board, up 3/4 at 44. A 100,000-share block moved at 43 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .25 at 89.52.

Drinking Sessions Used As Therapy

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 49-year-old salesman sits looking at himself in a mirror placed amid rows of sparkling bottles of liquor.

He picks his favorite bottle. A stainless steel pan waits at his side.

He gets an injection of a nausea-creating drug, followed by straight vodka, a full bottle of lukewarm beer and a shot of bourbon. A nurse urges him to "swig, swirl and swallow" the last drop, and he vomits — one step on the way to overcoming alcoholism.

The treatment, reminiscent of the futuristic conditioning of "Clockwork Orange," is a key part of an enterprise called Raleigh Hills Hospital.

Patients literally drink until they are sick of drinking. However, doctors say the drugs and the vomiting prevent the alcohol from making patients drunk.

The idea is to reinforce this conditioning from time to time and make patients permanently sick of the sight, smell and taste of alcohol, removing the temptation altogether.

There is disagreement about the validity of the approach, but Raleigh Hills claims 40 per cent of its patients have stayed dry. A spokesman says the average for other programs using medical methods is between 25 and 30 per cent.

The better-known Alcoholics Anonymous, which uses psychology and fellowship, claims 60 per cent of its members are sober within one year.

Officials of Raleigh Hills, which like AA was founded more than 30 years ago, say some of their patients use AA as a supplement to the medical care.

Raleigh Hills treats more than 2,000 mostly middle-or upper-class patients a year. Officials say 95 per cent of the nation's alcoholics do not fit the image of a skid-row drunk.

Unlike AA and many medical-oriented programs, Raleigh Hills does its work for profit, which officials say is all invested in expansion. The hospital, started in Oregon and now based in Newport Beach, Calif., are a subsidiary of Advanced Health Systems, Inc.

Patients and their insurance pay between $1,700 and $2,500 for the treatment, which includes a two-week hospital stay, six overnight reinforcement treatments during the next year and the right to come back any time they feel the need for a drink.

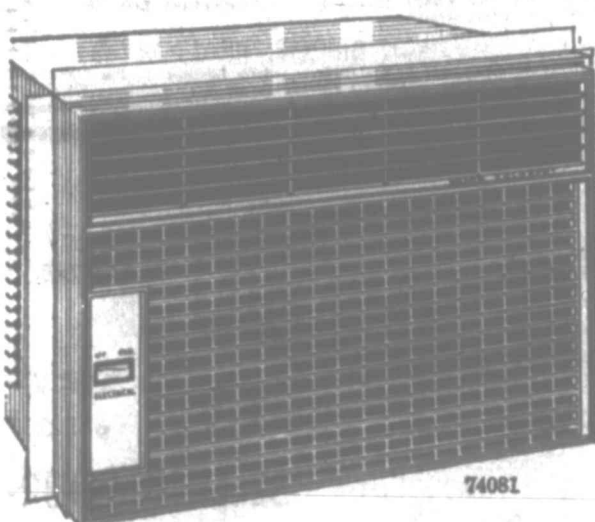

The center has a program to encourage employers to adopt health programs that cover alcoholism. It does extensive radio and television advertising, which its officials maintain is not only ethical but essential in performing a community service.
