BY TIMOTHY HARPER MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) - Churches and taverns have long waged the war "I can just see it," he moaned. "Right of the grape, but the battle of the beer has taken a new twist in Milwaukee.

Eight Roman Catholic churches have applied for unlimited beer licenses, arousing the wrath of the Wisconsin Tavernkeepers Association. The tavernkeepers filed suit in Circuit Court against the city, the churches and Milwaukee Archbishop William Cousins to block the beer licenses. "We don't mind if the churches want to tap a keg 25 times a year for their bingo games," said Carl Schetter, executive director of the Tavernkeepers Association. "But with these unlimited licenses they can open up every night" He said the competition for the drinking dollar at church social gatherings has not yet put a dent in barroom tills, but he warned that things could get out of hand.

"What's to keep the churches from starting little clubs where guys stop in for a beer after work?" Schetter below the sign that says Sebastian's Congregation, a flashing neon beer sign. With an arrow pointing down. And another sign for the family entrance."

He said the effects could be economically depressing on Milwaukee, affectionately known among natives as Beertown because it produces more of the frothy malt than any other city in the nation. And consumes more than its share. Officials of the churches said they have no intention of competing with taverns; they said the unrestricted beer licenses would simply let them stage their usual bingo games without running down to City Hall for a permit twice

"If that's the case, the city should give them an annual permit allowing then to use their beer license 25 times a year. Not unlimited," Schetter said.

East Detroit, Mich., overplayed its high school graduation party thing by attempting to stage a fourday, city-approved happening.

The party, according to police, got out of control and turned into a small riot on the third night when the number of participants, swelled by gate-crashers, neared 5,000. Thirty-four young persons were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct, and released. Another was charged with felonious assault.

Several officers were treated for minor injuries suffered when raucous outsiders pelted them with friend of Wallace at the University of Alabama. Though no Wallace-man; Warner has kept close contact with this governor. He was the middle man for lart's excursion.

Another unlikely visitor to the overnor's mansion in Montgomery was ternard Rapoport, the rich, liberal Democrat from Waco, Texas, who was one of McGovern's 1972 campaign fat cats. Wallace and Rapoport spent two and a half hours together on April 17. There have been other visits, and there will be more, with Warner acting as

But the problems inherent in Warner's ambitious effort to assure fair treatment for George Wallace — in hopes Wallace will reciprocate and not go third party if he fails to get on the Democratic ticket - are immense, and growing.

Consider, for example, the calculated insults from party officials handling routine requests from Wallace operative Mickey Griffin, an Alabama national committeeman, on changes in state delegate-selection prodecures.

Having ignored Griffin's first two-Koster, Democratic national committeeman for the Panama Canal Zone, wrote a letter to Griffin on June 3, four months after Griffin's first request, answering Griffin's questions. But the letter ended: "Let me say further that I resent your aiming your paranola in my direction," an allusion to Griffin's implied threat to complain publicly if his routine questions weren't answered.

A similar late reply came from Nevada state chairman Paul Lamboley, who wrote Griffin: "Your thinly-veiled ... threat will not be dignified by further response." Lamboley never did give Griffin the information he requested.

It is precisely such refusals from. some party leaders to cooperate in any way with the presidential campaign of the hated Wallace that worries other party leaders, such as Hart and Warner. Purely political attacks on Wallace, on the other hand, are in the accepted. tradition of pre-convention combat.

Thus, there is no resentment in-Wallace land of Sen. Tom McIntyre's pronouncement on June 1 that he finds "incredible and appalling" that Wallace is under "serious consideration" as a possible President.

In the same vein, Rep. Morris Udall: of Arizona, an announced presidential candidate, made no enemies in Montgomery when he told San Diego Democrats on June 12 that Wallace "is not qualified to lead our country." To Wallace, such political rhetoric will be washed out in the presidential primaries he now plans to enter and win next year. He thinks he gains from political attack launched from the Democratic left.

What Hart, Rapoport, Warner and other mainstream Democrats want in a Wallace dialogue that will guarantee. procedural fairness and dissuade Wallage and his militant partisans from making a "stab in the back" charge if and when Wallace fails to get on the presiden tial ticket.

It's a commendable goal, predicated on the assumption that Wallace is a politician the party can do business with. That may turn out to be a highly dublous assumption, even if the Democratic party agreed with it.

Wallace Problem Has Democrats Worried

By BOWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON - The alarm now pervading the Democratic party establishment over the Wallace problem was sharply focused in Sea. Gary Hart's unannounced June 16 visit to Gov. George Wallace in Montgomery for an intimate three-hour talk on how to preserve party civility between now and the nominating convention next summer. Hart's journey was based on this dublous hope: that despite rabid anti-Wallace sentiment among mainstream Democrata and Wallace's contempt for the party's liberal wing, Democrats can start the presidential campaign next summer reasonably united

Hart was not the first mainstream Democrat to drop in to the governor's mansion. But as Sen. George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign manager, the visit of liberal Gary Hart to the 1976 Democratic presidential hopeful most hated - and feared - by party liberals was unusual to say the least. After their three-hour luncheon talk, neither Wallace nor Hart saw the slightest narrowing of their ideological gap. But Hart's purpose was more modest; to assure Wallace that Hart and some other anti-Wallace Democrats, both elected and non-elected officials of the party, would resist exclusionary ef-forts aimed at denying Wallace equal treatment in the pre-convention delegate-selection period.

This bold but probably futile effort was the brainchild of Alabama-born. Marvin Warner, now an Ohio Democratic

He was for open housing but against busing. He pushed revenue sharing but voted to cut anti-poverty funds. He says the United States "must not forsake Israel" but "must not rebuff the instinctive friendship of the Arabs."

With Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), whose disdain for the CIA he shares, Baker wrote and sponsored a bill to create a joint committee to oversee the CIA and other agencies. Yet, asked if Secretary of State Kissinger's activities

MINNEAPOLIS - American Lutherans of Norwegian heritage will celebrate a double holiday on July 4-Independence Day and the departure of the "Norwegian Mayflower" for New York in 1825.

The sloop "Restauration," built as a vessel for spring herring fishing, was twice enlarged and was purchased by the emigrants for $1,350. It was little more than half as long as the 90-foot Mayflower and carried one-third as many people. Fifty-two persons left Stavenger, Norway, on the leadership of Cleng Peerson, the 'pathfinder of Norwegian settlement in the northwest

This separatist life style and lack of economic opportunity led the group in Stavenger to seek its fortune elsewhere and Peerson, who had spent three years in the U.S., was commissioned to return to this country and find a new land for the Norwegian Quakers.

The emigrants settled first in Orleans County, N.Y., where their arrival is commemorated on a marker along N.Y. 18 at Kendall. They were known as "Sloopers" from the vessel that brought them here. They were trail blazers for a movement that was to bring close to 800,000

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) - Two pairs of bright red eight-ounce boxing gloves spent the night in sealed boxes behind the high walls of central

"I been fighting 20 years and I never saw them put no gloves in jail before," Muhammad Alf said. gets hotter. This can crack the head and warp the valves. To avoid corro sion, flush your cooling system once a year and put in a fresh 50-50 mix of water and PRESTONE II Concentrate.

Exhaust gases can escape through a leaky cylinder-head gasket into the cooling system. When that happens, the gases turn to acids, which weaken rust inhibitors and hasten corrosion of metal parts.

For this reason, you should never leave your coolant in the cooling system too long even when it's PRESTONE II.

A lot of people think a modern coolant Is permanent? can stay in the cooling system permanently - or at least two or three years.

> It's true that a coolant will give you annifreeze protection year after year, as long as it isn't diluted and your system doesn't leak.

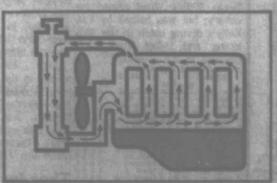

But it won't fight corrosion that long. How often should you change? You'll find that recommendations in car changed? owners' manuals may vary.

> We say once a year. Some of you may think we say that just to sell more coolant. Others may think we're being perfectionists.

But we've been working with coolants and engine cooling systems since 1927. That's almost 50 years. And our experience says that the best way to avoid corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause is to invest in a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year.

If you've waited more than a year tochange, check your coolant now for corrosion. Take a sample from your radiator. Look for a rusty brown color or loss of natural color rust inhibitors could have lost their ability to fight off corrosion. And you may not know it until it may be too late.

We know that a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year will fight corrosion and prolong the life of your engine.

Today's engines are designed to run far hotter than those designed before 1962.

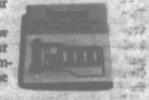

You need a coolant that can handle those oan make hot higher operating temperatures without overengines even heating and boiling over on our fiercest summer days, particularly if your air conditioner is on and building up heat under the hood.

According to Prestone engineers, today's cars need a 50-50 mix of water and PRESTONE II Concentrate for protection against boiling over, freezing up and corrosion.

That solution-in combination with 15 pounds of pressure in the system-raises the boiling point of your cooling system to 265°F. (and lowers the freezing point to  $-34^{\circ}$ F.).

How do you maintain proper pressure? Install a new radiator pressure cap about every two years. Our service experience shows that pressure cap seals can go bad in that time - so you lose pressure and your boiling point drops. Now that you know what we know, check your coolant carefully for summer protection before the next weekend is up.
