Purvis Completes Ellenburger Strike

J. H. Purvis of Midland has completed No. 1 Slaughter as an Ellenburger oil pay opener, 3/4 mile southeast of the recently completed Ellenburger gas opener and Strawn oil confiner in the Yucca Butte, West field of Pecos County.

It rated a 24-hour flowing potential of 200 barrels of 47.8-gravity oil, no water, with gas-oil ratio of 690-1, through a 14-3/4 inch choke and perforations at 10,755-10,805 feet, which had been acidized with 7,250 gallons.

The well has 4 1/2-inch production string seated at 10,822 feet, total depth.

It spots 1,650 feet from south and 1,900 feet from east lines of section 50, block A-22, TCRR survey, nine miles west of Sheffield.

Pennsylvanian detrital gas production also was recently opened in the area.

Yates Potentials Eddy Discovery

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, N.M., has completed No. 1-EG Ross-Federal Communitized as a shut-in Morrow gas strike in Eddy County, N.M., seven miles northwest of Lake Wood.

It gauged a daily flow of 2.025 million cubic feet of gas and 9.55 barrels of 32.6-gravity distillate per day, through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations at 9,128-9,232 feet. The section had been acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 10,000 gallons.

Drilled to 9,450 feet, it has 4 1/2-inch casing set at 9,441 feet, and is plugged back to 9,369 feet.

Wellsite is 1,900 feet from south and west lines of section 20-19s-25e, 3/4 miles northeast of Morrow production in the Dagger Draw field.

Bank Deposits At Season High

$47-Million Hike Shown In Midland

Midland bank deposits totaling $454,641,859 are at a record high for this season of the year and are less than a quarter of a million dollars under the all-time record high of $454,867,353 reported at the end of 1974.

The present figure is up $46,857,716 from the $407,784,143 recorded at this time last year, and up $13,761,845 from the $440,890,014 reported last April 16.

Statement of condition of Midland's four banks — Commercial Bank & Trust Co., The First National, The Midland National and Western State — at the close of business last Monday, came this morning in response to calls from the federal comptroller of the currency and the State Banking Department.

Loans and discounts of the four banks were at a record high of $289,620,620, up $48,897,578 from the $240,723,042 reported at midyear 1974, and up $7,822,107 from the $281,798,513 registered almost three months ago.

Continued activities in the petroleum industry in the Permian Basin Empire are believed to be responsible for the increased deposits.

The First National Bank reported deposits totaling $286,533,426, compared with $252,140,820 a year previous and $269,656,731 last April 16.

The bank's loans and discounts totaled $174,735,346, compared with $145,717,296 a year ago and $169,199,203 three months ago.

The Midland National Bank had deposits amounting to $119,038,379, compared with $113,162,470 at this time last year and $120,161,045 last April 16.

Its loans and discounts totaled $78,801,159, compared with $65,819,612 at midyear '74 and $77,304,182 in mid-April of this year.

MAD DASH—An ill-timed thunderstorm this morning caught this Midland woman, along with scores of other work-bound residents, in a pouring rain which topped curbs in several areas of the city.

City Getting More Rain

Midland, skies poured an official .46 of an inch of rain on the city this morning around 8 a.m. today—just in time to catch residents on their way to work in the heavy downpour.

The rainfall apparently was spotty throughout Midland, with the official total reported by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal estimated to be the median measurement.

This morning's precipitation boosted the month's total to .48 of an inch and the year's total to 7.64 inches.

Still more rain is possible this afternoon through Friday, according to the weatherman. The probability is 30 per cent this afternoon and 20 per cent both tonight and Friday.

In the area, Garden City, Stanton and Sterling City also reported precipitation. While Stanton sources said that community was receiving only a misting rain this morning, the other two towns reported slow, steady rains before dawn.

Big Lake, Big Spring and Sterling City each had showers Wednesday. Several other communities reported "sprinkles" overcast skies were forecast in Andrews, Big Lake, Lamesa and Rankin this morning, with only Crane under partly cloudy skies.

In Midland, the predicted high for this afternoon is in the middle 80s, with the low tonight expected to slide into the middle 60s and rise again on Friday for a maximum in the upper 80s.

The Wednesday high was 88 and the overnight low was 68. Meanwhile, thunderstorms dotting the interior of the state died down elsewhere during the night and skies cleared in many areas.

Fog plagued some localities in East Texas in early forenoon, dropping visibility to half a mile around Lufkin and hanging low around Texarkana and Tyler, The Associated Press reported.

Temperatures near dawn ranged from 81 degrees at Galveston on the coast down to 63 at Dalhart and Lubbock in the Panhandle-Plains sector. The top marks Wednesday afternoon went as high as 95 at El Paso.

It's Junket Time Again

By JOHN H. AVERILL
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — It is congressional recess time again and once more the Air Force is wheeling out its huge 707 luxury jets to fly senators and House members and their wives and aides to distant parts of the globe.

The posh flights, featuring Air Force stewards to bring drinks and meals to the VIP passengers along with other airborne amenities, will cost U. S. taxpayers an estimated $143,930 for just three trips that have become known, and there could be others.

One of the big jets, similar to Air Force One used by President Ford, flew to Moscow last weekend with a Senate delegation headed by Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

Of the 14 senators aboard, all but Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Mo., were accompanied by their wives. There also were 13 Senate staff aides aboard, 5 of them with wives.

As an escort for the delegation, the Air Force sent along a colonel, a major and two sergeants, whose duties include baggage handling.

The Senate delegation, which will return to Washington Monday after stopovers at Leningrad, Warsaw and Amsterdam, went to Moscow at the invitation of the Supreme Soviet, the parliament of the Soviet Union. The visit was in return for one made to Washington last year by a delegation of the Supreme Soviet.

Meanwhile, the Air Force has assigned two other luxury 707s to carry two separate and tiny congressional delegations to Somalia on the east coast of Africa to check Pentagon claims that Soviet missiles are being installed at the port of Berbera.

One of the big jets, only slightly less luxurious than the one that flew to Moscow, left Wednesday with one senator, Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., two Senate aides and 10 other persons, most of them Pentagon officials, aboard. There were no wives.

A second jet will leave for Somalia Friday carrying six House members, two House aides and a small Pentagon escort group.

The Air Force estimated the cost of the two round trip flights to Somalia at $1,412 for each hour of flying time. With each trip consuming 33 hours the total cost is estimated at $93,192.

Depending on the configuration, overseas flight by commercial 707s can carry anywhere from 150 to 220 passengers.

The disclosure of the two-flight mission to Somalia was a source of evident embarrassment for both the Pentagon and Capitol Hill offices.

An Air Force official, speaking privately, said the Air Force had merely responded to requests channeled through the State Department by the Senate and House Armed Services Committees.

Sanitation Walkout Ends In New York

By SAMUEL MAULL
Associated Press Writer

New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame and the head of the sanitationmen's union announced agreement today to end a three-day wildcat walkout and have the sanitationmen return to work at noon to begin removing 50,000 tons of garbage that piled up in the city streets.

The agreement came after the city declared a "partial" health hazard, obtained a court order against the walkout and faced growing problems that climaxed Wednesday night with hundreds of trash fires in crowded sections of the city.

The mayor's announcement said the men would return to work pending final action in Albany on the city's request for additional taxing powers that could restore some of the 19,000 city jobs cut because of the budget crisis.

John DeLury, head of the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association, said his union would post $1.6 million to cover any losses the city might sustain by returning all his men to work and then not getting enough money to pay for all of them.

The announcement said "there is still a probability of layoffs" and added that union and city officials would look to the federal government for additional funding. DeLury said "all" the 10,600 striking sanitationmen would return to work.

A tentative agreement was reached in Albany Wednesday night on a new tax power package and final language was being worked out today.

In response to the budget-induced layoffs, city firemen began their own job action Wednesday, increasing sick calls and instituting a slow-down. City policemen, however, voted against any formal job action in response to the layoffs.

In Pennsylvania, state officials obtained court orders against some of the more than 46,000 striking state employees. And in Northern California, three court clerks were jailed and thousands of other workers threatened with dismissal as (See STRIKE Page 2A)

Holy Batmobile!

By ANDY WELCH
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — "I'd be condemned by the Lord for driving 110 miles per hour on the way to church."

That's exactly what Sam Houston Johnson, 61, said after a Dripping Springs Justice of the Peace fined him $90 for speeding.

Johnson, brother of late President Lyndon Johnson, was stopped at the small community of Dripping Springs by Department of Public Safety Officer M. G. Pitcock, who said he was going 110 mph.

"Maybe I was doing 75 or 80," Johnson said. "But I was on my way to church. What business did I have doing 110?"

It was a 55 mph zone, and Pitcock wrote the ticket for an even 100 mph, and ordered Johnson—to appear before Justice of the Peace James P. Hoard.

Hoard, happened to be sitting at the roadside with Pitcock when Johnson allegedly was traveling over 100 mph.

At the trial, Hoard told Johnson that through an earlier telephone conversation he had agreed to waive his rights to a jury trial and was found guilty.

"Well, no sir," Johnson responded, "I don't waive nothing, and you haven't heard the evidence."

"I can find you guilty with or without the evidence," Hoard replied.

Johnson is free on a $200 personal recognizance bond. He has not paid the fine and is appealing to the Hays County Court.

There are several things bothering Johnson about the case and he plans to bring them up at his appeal.

Officer Pitcock said he stopped Johnson three miles from where he first spotted him going 100 mph.

Johnson got a statistician to calculate that if he had been traveling at 100 mph, and if the officer had been parked, visiting with Hoard, Pitcock would have to have driven 920 m.p.h. to stop him in a three-mile distance.

"He'd have had to been in a space ship," Johnson said.

LBJ's Brother Fighting Ticket

Johnson also finds it queer that Pitcock knew who he was before asking for identification.

On the 1972 model car he was driving, Johnson has personalized license plates reading SHJ-1. Johnson now has asked the Blanco County clerk to reserve him a customary set of plates.

Back in his drinking days, Johnson occasionally had a scrape with the law, but three years ago he quit drinking and started going to church regularly.

"I've just missed church three times in three years," he confided, noting he went on to church the morning he was arrested.

Leivy Matthews Jailed In Wife's 1973 Slaying

Leivy Matthews, 42, is being held in Midland County jail in the 1973 shooting death of his wife Versie Matthews.

Chief Deputy Bill Cornell of the Midland County sheriff's office brought Matthews here from New Orleans Wednesday where he was arrested last week by FBI agents.

Mrs. Matthews was found dead Aug. 11, 1973, in her home at 804 E. Wall St. Matthews was charged with murder later that night.

Strike—

the first public employees strike in Santa Clara County history entered its third day.

The walkout by the 10,600 sanitationmen in New York did not have official union sanction, but city officials called it the "best organized wildcat strike" they had ever seen.

Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association officials claim they have been urging their members to end their wildcat strike. Union chief John DeLury has said of the workers, "I can't control them."

About 28,000 tons of garbage daily is collected in New York City. Sanitation Commissioner Robert T. Groh said almost 13,000 tons is picked up by private carters and the rest by city workers.

By Groh's estimates, the walkout, which is in its third day today, would have left nearly 50,000 tons of refuse uncollected.

About 1,650 firemen were among 19,000 city employees dismissed Wednesday. Fire officials reported that firefighters still on the payrolls began a combined slowdown and "sick-out." Within 24 hours 359 firemen reported in sick, they said.

The Uniformed Firefighters Association futilely tried in Manhattan State Supreme Court to have firings rescinded, saying the firemen's contract with the city barred layoffs. Justice George Starke rejected that claim.

Avery N. Fleming Dies At 52; Rites Set Here Saturday

Avery N. Fleming, 52, of 414 Walton St., died Wednesday in a Houston hospital.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Newie W. Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Frank Johnson, pastor of Kellview Heights Baptist Church, officiating.

Interment will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Newie W. Ellis Chapel.

Fleming was born in Gober and moved to Midland in 1946 after serving in the Navy during World War II. He was a Baptist and a member of the Midland carpenters union for over 30 years.

Survivors include the widow, Gladys; his mother, Mrs. Nancy Fleming of Killen; four sisters, Mrs. Margaret Dodd of Killen, Mrs. Iris Hall of Dexter, Maine, and Roberta Fleming and Mrs. Pat Perkins, both of Fort Worth; and three brothers, J. A. Fleming of Midland, William Eugene Fleming of Hillsboro and Lewis M. Fleming of Honey Grove.

Burglars Pile Insult On Injury

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (AP) — Not only did burglars take nearly $4,000 worth of belongings from Jerry Wilton's house they left behind a wet reminder that they had been there.

They closed all the doors and windows and turned on all the faucets. Damage was estimated at $18,000.

Witnesses said the Matthews couple had come running from an alley across from their apartment just after two shots had been fired. They said two more shots were fired inside the apartment.

Police said one of the bullets missed the woman and went into the wall. The other hit her in the head. A pistol believed to be the murder weapon was found in the front yard.

Matthews' landlady, who lived next door, told police that Matthews had come to her house, thrown a pistol on the ground and stated that he had killed his wife. She said that Matthews then ran from the area.

Matthews was indicted in early September 1973. Police officers at first believed that he may have returned to Austin, where he and his wife had previously lived, or to the Dallas area.

Officials ultimately entered his name in the national crime information computer, Deputy Mickey Clark said today.

"The FBI arrested him in New Orleans last week," he said. "They informed us of the arrest, and we mailed them the warrant for his arrest."

Chief Deputy Bill Cornell went to New Orleans for Matthews' extradition hearing and returned with him around 3:15 Wednesday, Clark said.

U.S. Attorney's Office Hard Hit By Resignations

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. attorney's office here will be left with only a secretary after three resignations become effective in August.

Two assistant U.S. attorneys, Charles Ed. Myers and Brack Jones Jr., added their names Wednesday to a string of resignations at the six-person Beaumont office.

One month ago, Dennis R. Lewis, assistant attorney in charge of the Beaumont office, resigned to join the tax department of the Exxon Corp. in Houston. At the same time, one secretary left the office to move to Houston. Lewis' secretary has resigned effective later this month.

When Myers, Jones and Dorothy McKnight leave, only secretary Sherry Spinson will be left in the office.

In a news release, U.S. Atty. Roby Hadden of Tyler said "selection of replacements will be made soon."

Myers, an assistant since 1971, said he and Jones will go into private law practice here next month.

Ford Advisers Predict Natural Gas Shortages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's energy advisers say there will be no gasoline shortage this summer but warn that many Midwestern and Northeastern states will face natural gas shortages this winter "that cannot be made up by other fuels."

The assessment was made Wednesday during an hour-long White House meeting of Ford, Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb and other energy advisers.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the advisers predicted the shortages would apply "entirely or almost entirely to industrial users."

Natural gas supplies last winter were 1.7 trillion cubic feet short of the amount suppliers had contracted to deliver, Nessen said. The shortage is expected to reach some 3 trillion cubic feet next winter and even higher in subsequent years, he added.

Nessen said Ford was told there will be significant natural gas shortages next winter in New Jersey, Ohio, North Carolina and some other states in the Northeast and Midwest.

While the energy advisers took a gloomy view of the natural gas situation, they also forecast there would be no shortage of gasoline this summer, Nessen said.

He reported that Ford is not unhappy about recent wholesale gasoline price increases because Ford's energy program is aimed "to control consumption through the price mechanism."

Nessen said Ford has pointed out that under his own energy program, the gasoline price hikes taking effect prior to the July 4 holiday weekend would have entitled consumers to rebates. Congress, however, has failed to adopt the Ford program.

The blackened remains of a fireworks stand which burned Wednesday lie in shambles on Highway 158, 2.5 miles northwest of Holiday Hill Road.

DeMolay Fireworks Go Up In Smoke

Just as people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones, neither should people who operate fireworks stands light fires.

The results can be an early display of Fourth of July fireworks as well as financial disaster.

The Order of DeMolay here learned the proverb well Wednesday afternoon when its fireworks stand located about three miles west of Midland on Andrews Highway went up in smoke, flames, bangs and sparks.

According to Midland Fire Captain Frank Marritt, the youth operating the organization's stand lit a fire bomb, and the wind blew sparks back into the stand, igniting the fireworks.

Although no large explosion was reported and only "popping" sounds were continuing when a Midland fire engine arrived at the scene, the entire stand burned to the ground within 15 minutes.

Firemen described the stand as a total loss. There were no injuries, barring the pride of the fireworks stand operator and the DeMolay's pocketbook.

El Paso Election Lawsuit Dismissed

EL PASO (AP) — A suit alleging irregularities in the April 15 election for mayor of El Paso has been dismissed in the far West Texas city by U.S. District Judge William A. Sessions.

Judge sessions said he is dismissing the suit because of lack of evidence.

The suit was brought by Woodrow Bean, who was defeated for mayor by Republican Don Henderson by about 3,000 votes. Bean was joined in the suit by Democratic Committeeman Lloyd McConnell. The suit alleged irregularities in tabulation of the computer punch cards used in the election.

Song Played 200,000 Times

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Since 1930 when Kate Smith recorded "God Bless America," each cave tour at Meramec Caverns here is concluded by the playing of that song in front of an American flag on a multi-million-year-old Stage Curtain, created by Mother Nature. Lester B. Dill, cave owner, says it has been played some 200,000 times.

"I've invited Miss Smith to come to the place where 'God Bless America' has been played more than anywhere in the nation and sing it live. It would be a new high as well as low in her career," says Dill.

Other dealers said some customers protested. But most agreed with Jimmy Brown, manager of a Phillips gas station, who said after raising prices five cents: "They'll all probably be back."

Meanwhile in El Paso there was a minor gas price war going on with independents dropping prices to 45 cents per gallon. Texaco, however, was selling for 57 cents a gallon.

In Abilene, Jim Bourland, distributor for four Phillips gas stations, said distributors and dealers have to pass the higher prices to the customers. "We just can't absorb the increase," he said explaining that gasoline now was selling in the area for 49.9 to 57.9 cents.

Beirut Security Forces Hunt Kidnaped U.S. Army Colonel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —

Security forces searched Beirut today as the government reported another cease-fire in the week-long street fighting that took at least 277 lives.

A security officer said all Palestine guerrilla organizations denied any knowledge of Col. Ernest R. Morgan, a member of the U.S. military aid mission in Turkey who was seized at the height of the fighting Sunday afternoon.

Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., was stopping for the night in Beirut on his way back from a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization in Pakistan. The manager of his hotel said he insisted on driving to the airport to "buy some magazines."

"We warned him not to go, but he became quite angry and said no one could tell him what to do," the manager said.

Morgan's taxi driver reported that a group of armed men dragged the colonel out of the car at a roadblock near a Palestinian refugee camp. Although Morgan was not in uniform, another source said the men told the driver he was "an American meddler" who had come to supply the right-wing Christian Phalangie party, whose private army was warring with left-wing Palestinian guerrillas and the Lebanese Moslem faction supporting them.

The pro-Palestine newspaper Al Mohahrer claimed that Morgan was "circulating suspiciously" in a Fiat automobile without identification papers. It said "he was taken to an unknown destination and his fate is not known yet." But American sources said the colonel was in a Mercedes taxi and was carrying his passport.

Flood Disaster Worsens In Northwestern States

By The Associated Press

Communities throughout eastern North Dakota braced for high water today, and Minnesota's Gov. Wendell Anderson says four days of heavy rain caused "astronomical" crop losses in the state's northwestern counties.

The National Weather Service said no end to rains which have dumped a foot or more of water throughout the fertile Red River basin of the two states since Saturday was in sight before Sunday.

After a helicopter tour over flooded croplands on Wednesday, Anderson said it was "unbelievable, a total and complete scene of devastation. It was frightening, shocking."

Anderson, who said he would ask President Ford to declare the region a federal disaster area, estimated crop damage in Cass county alone at $40 million.

In North Dakota, where more than a million acres of croplands have been inundated at a loss estimated at more than $100 million, the National Weather Service warned of most of Beirut early Wednesday after the formation of a new government and the announcement of a cease-fire by Premier Rashid Karami and Palestine guerrilla chief Yusef Arafat. But shooting and explosions continued Wednesday night in the eastern suburbs of Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh, where the fighting started on June 24.

Morgan's mother, Evelyn B. Johnson, said in Petersburg today after the formation of a new government and the announcement of a cease-fire by Premier Rashid Karami and Palestine guerrilla chief Yusef Arafat. But shooting and explosions continued Wednesday night in the eastern suburbs of Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh, where the fighting started on June 24.

The street fighting ended in June 24.

flood crests today on the Red and Sheyenne rivers in Fargo and West Fargo, as well as crests on other streams swollen by the drizzle, from flooded fields.

Flood conditions were also reported on the Maple and Wild Rice rivers in North Dakota. The North Dakota Highway Department reported many roads closed due to high water in the eastern part of the state.

Because students are struggling to meet the high cost of a college education, the University of Rochester is preparing to launch the largest fund-raising campaign in its history to help endow scholarships and fellowships.

According to President Robert L. Sproull, the university hopes to raise $102 million over the next five years.

Gandhi Hints Aid Resumption Desired

NEW DELHI, India (AP) —

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi seems to be hinting that she wants the United States to resume economic aid to India.

In a speech Wednesday to young members of her Congress party, Mrs. Gandhi denounced conservative Indian politicians who she said for the past two decades had urged the United States to halt economic assistance to India because of its socialist policies.

"This was not a minor thing, but a deep-rooted conspiracy to remove India from the socialist path she had chosen," Mrs. Gandhi said.

The day before, she told a group of visiting American schoolteachers that her government wants to improve relations with the U.S. government and hopes President Ford will not change his plans to visit India later this year.

U.S. economic aid to India was suspended in 1967 when the Nixon administration backed Pakistan in the Indo-Pakistani war that resulted in independence for Bangladesh. Since independence in 1947, India had received $10 billion in U.S. aid.

Acetylene Welding Rig Stolen At Air Terminal

A complete acetylene welding rig including gauges, cutting torch and 50 feet of hose, was taken from the vehicle parked in front of H. B. Zachary Construction Co. at Midland Regional Air Terminal, P. C. Coronado told police Wednesday.

The rig, which belonged to H. B. Zachary Co., had an estimated value of $220.

Emil Koevelen 3114 Delano St., reported to police Wednesday afternoon that a wallet containing $110 in cash and two credit cards had been stolen from him while at the Torch Club.

Katherine Jackson, 1314 E. Golf Course Road, told police that $110 had been taken from her car while it was parked at 1216 E. Cuthbert St. around 3:30 Wednesday.

Earl Sagison, 3101 Backhead Highway number 301, reported that two tires on his car were cut by vandals. The tires were valued at $35 each.

Two Midland police officers discovered early this morning that burglars had entered McLeod's Liquor Store at 1001 S. Rankin Highway. Entry was gained by knocking out the back door glass window and removing a wood bar behind the door, police said. The amount of stolen property was unknown.

A citizens band radio was taken from a car belonging to David George Potts, 200 W. Illinois St. number 84, Chuck Potts told police Wednesday morning. The car was parked in the parking lot at 200 W. Illinois St.

Tom Horn, 2612 Fennin St., told Sheriff's deputies that a citizens band radio had been taken from his car while it was parked at Ranchland Hill Country Club at Wadley Street and Fairgrounds Road.

Don Register told Odessa Sheriff's deputies that some chains, wrenches, hammers and an assortment of other tools had been taken from a pulling unit located at the site of Atlantic Richfield Company's June Sanders tract No. 9 in Midland County.

Texans Take Gasoline Price Hikes In Stride

By The Associated Press

Something besides rockets is going up this Fourth of July — the price of gasoline.

Gasoline pump prices across the state clicked upward from one to five cents as oil companies throughout the country increased prices following President Ford's decision to set tariffs on imported oil.

Oil companies Wednesday announced three-cent increases in the price of gasoline at the pump, but in many places throughout oil-rich Texas the price hikes ranged from two to five cents per gallon.

At Beaumont in Southeast Texas, the price increase varied from 1.4 to 5.0 cents. The largest, five cents, was registered at a Billups station in Vidor, near Beaumont, where gasoline prices jumped from 47.9 cents to 52.9 for regular gas.

Prices for regular gas across the state ranged from 46 cents at some stations in Fort Worth to 60 cents at Lubbock.

Most self-service stations were selling regular gas for 47 cents a gallon. The prevailing prices were under 55 cents a gallon, or just below the national average for the month of June.

Not all companies raised their prices Wednesday. Gulf stations managers said they had anticipated calls from their distributors to raise prices, but the calls never came. Gulf is selling at 51.9 cents for regular gasoline.

Most gas stations managers throughout the state said customers did not complain much about the price increases.

Don Low, manager of a Phillips gas station in Beaumont, said: "I think Americans so far have been indifferent about gas increases, but I think they will eventually protest."

A Texaco service manager said he did not think the oil companies timed the increase to coincide with heavy Fourth of July driving. "But they know a lot more people will be traveling and it means more money," he said.

In Abilene, Jim Bourland, distributor for four Phillips gas stations, said distributors and dealers have to pass the higher prices to the customers. "We just can't absorb the increase," he said explaining that gasoline now was selling in the area for 49.9 to 57.9 cents.

Other dealers said some customers protested. But most agreed with Jimmy Brown, manager of a Phillips gas station, who said after raising prices five cents: "They'll all probably be back."

Meanwhile in El Paso there was a minor gas price war going on with independents dropping prices to 45 cents per gallon. Texaco, however, was selling for 57 cents a gallon.

The governor, whose legs are paralyzed, apparently suffered the fracture while undergoing physiotherapy. It was diagnosed by X-ray Wednesday after Wallace noticed a swollen left knee and experienced a fever.

Aides said Wallace will work at his office at the governor's mansion for about a week and then return to his office in the Capitol.

Lamesa

The Golden Tornado Jubilee, a three-day high school reunion, which plans to bring together 60 years of graduating classes, begins in Lamesa Friday.

The reunion, which occurs every five years, this year is dedicated to kicking off the city's Bicentennial events, Jubilee chairman J. D. Dyer Jr. said.

In past reunions, more than 5,000 persons have been jammed into town from all over the country.

This year's activities will feature the "Slumtown Symphony," composed of musicians from throughout West Texas. Band leader is Richard Crawley, a first chair musician in a band alongside trumpeter Al Hirt in the Cincinnati Conservatory in 1938, according to Dyer. Crawley is now president of one of the city's banks.

Activities begin at 9:30 a.m. Friday with registration at the Lamesa High School student center. At 6:30 p.m., there will be a band concert on the school lawn followed by a "Howdy Doody" reception from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the LHS center.

Girl Midland's Only Entrant In Pageant

By LUANNA CROW
 She's been a vocational agriculture student, assistant manager of the Midland High School swim team and a student ambassador to Europe during the summer.

And now she's Midland's only contestant in the Odessa Jaycees' Miss West Texas Beauty Pageant being judged tonight, Friday and Saturday in the Ector County Coliseum.

Kathy French, an 18-year-old spring graduate of Midland High School, said she entered the contest primarily to seek the scholarship prize. She hopes to attend Texas State Technical Institute in the fall to study art.

In tonight's competition, Miss French will participate in the evening gown and swim suit divisions. She will model a yellow chiffon halter style gown and a brown and white one-piece swimsuit.

On Friday, she will sing "Some Day Soon" for her talent entry. The finals for the event are Saturday when the top 10 competitors enter the last stage of competition. Events for all three nights begin at 8 p.m.

Miss French said she hopes Midlanders will attend the event. As the only Tall City representative, she said she needs moral support during the contest—"a cheering group."

The 5-foot, 6-inch Midlander reports she is enjoying participating in the pageant. "It's hard work," she said, "but I've made two really great friends."

Miss French describes the other 17 contestants as "not worried about it at all." She added that some of the competitors do take the pageant seriously, "but I'm not the type of person to take it seriously. We have a good time."

Blonde and green-eyed, she is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy French of 1909 W. Louisiana St., Midland, and R. W. French of Corpus Christi.

During her sophomore year in high school she was named "Howdy Week" favorite and was elected secretary of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. While participating in the school's agriculture program the following year, she received a citation for raising horses for Dave Aston.

The winner of various art awards, she also went with People to People last summer as a student ambassador, visiting Holland, England, Austria, Russia, France and Denmark.

Carpenters Join Building Strike In Abilene Area

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Frank Fuller Sr., manager of the West Texas chapter of Associated General Contractors, says pay is the only issue to be settled in the strike of construction projects in a 13-county West Central Texas area.

Carpenters Wednesday joined plumbers, pipefitters and welders, who have been on strike since their contract expired Saturday.

The carpenters walked out after mid-morning negotiations failed with the local chapter of Associated General Contractors. Their contract expired Monday.

Fuller said another meeting has been set for July 10.

The union is seeking an 80 cents per hour increase over the life of the contract while the contractors are offering 60 cents.

Carpenters now make $6.90 an hour.

JAYCEE HONORED — Joe Reed, vice president of individual development for the Midland chapter of the Jaycees, has been named Jaycee of the Month for the month of April by the chapter's board of directors. He received the honor for his handling of the chapter's Personal Individual Development program.

I AM THE NATION

I was born on July 4, 1776, and the Declaration of Independence is my birth certificate. The bloodlines of the world run in my veins, because I offered freedom to the oppressed. I am many things and many people. I am the nation.

I am 200 million souls, and the ghosts of millions who have lived and died for me.

I remember the Alamo, the Maine and Pearl Harbor. When freedom called I answered and stayed until it was over. I left my heroic dead in Flanders' fields, on the rock of Corregidor, on the bleak slopes of Korea and in the steaming jungles of Vietnam.

Yes, I am the nation, and these are the things I am. I was conceived in freedom and, God willing, in freedom I will spend the rest of my days.

May I possess always the integrity, the courage, and the strength to keep myself unshackled, to remain a citadel of freedom and a beacon of hope to the world.

Child's Literary Remarks Are Worth Listening To

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — If elementary school teachers would recognize and encourage the existing ability of their students to respond to literature, a "more articulate generation" may result, says an authority on teaching English.

Alan Purves, professor of English education at the University of Illinois, says young children's comments on poems and stories are worth listening to.

Working with seven researchers investigating the response of 27 children in grades three through 12 to poems and short stories, he discovered that the youngest children react with comment on facts. As they grow older, they identify with characters and by the fifth grade they become aware of the emotional effects of language.

After the fifth grade, students are more likely to report hidden meanings. But they also increasingly ignore their own emotional responses.

Purves asks whether the child's concern for how a story affects him is suppressed by teachers who disapproved of his early literary criticism.

Garden Parties Offer Pleasant Or Lethal 'Fun'

One of the few advantages that I've ever discovered in having an outdoor party is that, unlike an indoor party, you don't have to dust beforehand.

And while gnats floating in the punch bowl in the living room might require a lengthy, somewhat awkward, explanation, guests expect to swallow gnats outdoors. Furthermore, your guests may spill an inordinate amount of cheap wine without necessitating costly cleaning bills. You may, however, wonder why the chrysanthemums don't come up.

Unfortunately, the average garden, pleasantly innocuous by day, becomes potentially lethal after dark. Perhaps the best way to prepare for unexpected disaster is to blindfold yourself at three o'clock in the afternoon of the party and stagger about in the garden, noting not only what you step in, on, or through, but what is lurking about ready to deliver a nasty crack to your shin or forehead. Take particular note of clotheslines. Many an unsuspecting guest has wandered off and been neatly garroted between two permanent-press shirts.

Jelly side down

By NANCY STAHL

Insects pose an ever-present problem at garden parties. Not only do guests turn pale as they are methodically drained of blood by hordes of famished mosquitoes, but someone's wife invariably becomes hysterical when a June bug flies down her décolletage.

Weather constitutes a distinct variable when planning an outdoor party. You can spend all afternoon congratulating yourself on having chosen such a warm, windless day for your party, only to find that promptly at 8:30 p. m. the mercury in-explicitly drops twenty-five degrees, and the wind gusts to thirty-seven miles per hour. Your guests stand around miserably sporting so many goose pimples that they look like plucked chickens. Fortunately, by 8:45 it begins to rain ice balls and you can all go inside.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Put On Your Specs For Good Hint On Tint

Dear Heloise: After all these years of getting my hair tinted at beauty shops and not being able to wear my glasses for fear of staining them while it was being done, I finally figured out a way.

Now I take regular foil wrap with me to the beauty shop and wrap the sides of my frames.

The shop likes it so well that now they use it for other customers with the same problem.

No more stained frames and I can now enjoy reading while my hair is being tinted.

Mrs. Louise Riggs

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: I told my husband about a recent hint I read in your column about keeping the mending by the phone to do while talking.

However, he thought, a 50-gallon drum might take up too much room in the kitchen — he knows I'm about nine years behind right now!

Mary Spies

I'm sure you have a lot of company when it comes to mending (me, for one), if that's any consolation.

Thanks for sending a chuckle

our way. Bless you both Heloise

Dear Heloise: Seems I am usually the last to think or learn anything, but better late than never I suppose.

Hopefully I am not the only one who uses a solid rubber ball in which to insert artificial flowers in vases that are used at cemetery lots. It really works great.

Flowers stay arranged better in this windy area, and will not blow out or away if the vase is turned over.

Jon

Dear Heloise: My 7-year-old loves to get mail.

I check our newspaper nightly for free offers and booklets. Usually, all it costs to send for them is a stamp and envelope.

Occasionally there is a mailing charge of a few cents. I try to send for booklets on things that are educational, many such offers are also on boxes of foods.

He usually gets something in the mail two or three times a week. It really brightens up his day.

Government Takes First Step Toward Appealing Order In Beef Grading Case

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The government has taken the first step toward appealing a court order which prevents a controversial new Agriculture Department beef grading system from going into effect.

The new grading guidelines, aimed at cutting the amount of grain fed to cattle, could affect meat-counter prices in supermarkets across the nation. The government says prices could go down, but some consumer groups say the effect would be for prices to go up.

The notice of appeal was filed in U.S. District Court here Wednesday afternoon, according to U.S. Atty. Daniel Wherry.

Wherry said the procedure is "sort of a protective notice of appeal because we still do not have the authority from the solicitor general to file it."

He said filing the notice does not necessarily mean the appeal will be made.

"What it does is start the time running... this will insure expedited handling of the case," said Wherry.

Wherry said the government now has 60 days to file the official appeal.

At issue is a May 29 decision rendered by U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney of Omaha. After two weeks of hearings, Denney issued a permanent injunction halting implementation of the new standards. He ruled that the USDA overstepped its authority in promulgating the revised guidelines, and failed to file an adequate economic impact statement.

The new standards were to have gone into effect April 14. They were opposed by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha (IMPAO) and others, including consumer groups.

Most attention focused on a proposal to lower the fat maring requirements for cattle to get into the "choice" and "prime" grading categories. Fat marbling, or the tiny flecks of fat found in the red meat portion of beef, is considered the best indicator of how palatable a particular piece of meat will be.

Opponents argued that consumers would wind up paying more for lesser quality meat because some cattle now graded "good" would move up to "choice" grade, while some meat now graded "choice" would move into the "prime" category.

Creation Of Intelligence Czar Post Considered

By ROBERT L. JACKSON
The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — President Ford is considering the creation of an intelligence czar to oversee the work of CIA Director William E. Colby and other agency chiefs, it was learned Wednesday.

A high administration source said such a move might bring better coordination and efficiency to the far-flung U.S. intelligence community, which includes not only the Central Intelligence Agency and the FBI but the National Security Agency and four other military agencies.

The Administration official, who declined use of his name, told The Los Angeles Times that Ford also wanted to improve the integrity of the embattled CIA, which has been criticized by the Rockefeller Commission and is being investigated by a special Senate committee.

Nationally televised Senate hearings into the CIA's activities now are scheduled to begin in September.

The Administration source said he wished to dispel rumors that Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are displeased with Colby.

"Bill has done an extraordinarily good job under intense fire," he said.

At the same time, a source on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Activities, which is headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Ida., said he believed the White House was unhappy with Colby's generally cooperative attitude toward the investigation.

Colby recently gave the committee a batch of CIA historical documents which White House officials called back when they learned of it, the Senate source said. The committee returned the papers, the source said.

Church has repeatedly complained that the White House has slowed down his investigation through a time-consuming review of documents to be turned over to senators.

Disclosures of CIA domestic spying and other illegal activities have convinced Ford that "something has to be done, perhaps a restructuring of the agency itself," the administration official said.

He said the President is considering the appointment of a prestigious figure from outside government to assume "an overview role."

"What we need is better executive oversight," the official said, in an apparent reference to calls on Capitol Hill for improved "congressional oversight."

As he described it, a new intelligence czar — if Ford chooses one — would be a person "of stature" who would coordinate the work of the CIA with the internal security duties of the FBI and foreign intelligence efforts of five Defense Department units.

These are the National Security Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency and the Army, Navy and Air Force intelligence offices. Also belonging to the federal intelligence establishment are the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, The Atomic Energy Commission and the Treasury Department.

According to this official, Colby is supposed to coordinate all U.S. intelligence gathering. But he has been unable to exert sufficient influence to resolve disputes between the various agencies, the official said.

Ford also is considering expanding the duties and staff of the CIA's Inspector General, and making the IG responsible to a person higher than the CIA director, the Administration source said.

In its report last June 10, the Rockefeller Commission recommended that CIA directors should be individuals of stature, independence and integrity.

"In making this appointment," the report said, "consideration should be given to individuals from outside the career service of the CIA, although promotion from within should not be barred."

Colby was appointed in May, 1973, from within the ranks of the CIA, where he had served for 25 years.

A presidential advisory commission headed by former Ambassador Robert Murphy recommended more recently that the CIA be directed by a person chosen from outside the agency.

Higher Debt Ceiling

Yes, it was close, but again arrangements were made in time for the federal government to borrow more funds on which to operate.

Just four days before the deadline, the Senate passed and sent to President Ford a $46 billion increase in the ceiling of the national debt.

Had the previous $531 billion ceiling been allowed to expire, the government would have been unable to borrow money to pay salaries, benefits and other bills.

The Senate reportedly accepted the House bill without amendment, dropping without debate three relatively minor amendments.

Pickets From Afar

"Those pickets out at Piggy Wiggly are not even from Midland. They were sent here from Dallas or somewhere and they are being paid by a labor union. They don't belong here."

These were the words of a Reporter-Telegram reader, voiced in rapid-fire style in a telephone conversation with the editor.

"I know this because I asked them what they were doing here, where they were from and who is paying them," the lady caller said.

It was easy to detect that the caller was not at all happy at the picket situation which exists at the Piggy Wiggly store here.

It is a strange situation... and unfortunate, particularly for the store and employes involved.

HEMISPHERE REPORT—

They Dream Of Cuba Without Fidel Castro

By KARL SIMON
Copley News Service
A cuba libre to most people is a cocktail—rum and cola and lime juice over ice.

To Cuban-Americans, refugees and emigres, however, Cuba Libre (Free Cuba) is a constant dream that one day their homeland will be liberated from the Communist regime of Fidel Castro.

It has been in the thoughts of many Cubans, many of them now American citizens, since the Cuban revolution in 1959 when Castro's guerrillas swooped down from the hills and overran a nearly defenseless Havana.

Cubans in the United States still hope Castro will be overthrown. But they see their dreams slipping away as American politicians more and more are discussing detente with Cuba.

"Better relations with Cuba?" says Juan Rodriguez, 42, of Torrance, Calif., involved in the abortive Bay of Pigs landing to wrest power from Castro.

"I think one day there will be freedom for Cuba. But there will be no peace in Cuba or this hemisphere as long as communism has a foothold. The Communists want this country," Rodriguez says.

American-Cubans, although they respect the American people and the help offered when emigrating and escaping from the island, still feel the sting of having been betrayed by the American government.

A friend of Rodriguez, Placido Caraballo, who was still in Cuba in been approved, the measure would have been returned to the House, threatening a delay in House plans for a nine-day recess for the Independence Day holiday.

It is somewhat encouraging to know that the new debt ceiling, at this point, does not involve any extra expenditures of government funds. The Treasury, however, is given the authority to borrow sufficient money to pay for previously approved government spending programs in excess of government income.

This calls to mind how very fortunate Texas is to have its "pay-as-you-go" provision in its constitution. How great it would be if the United States had to operate under such a provision.

All we can hope for, under existing circumstances, is for curtailed spending by Congress.

Well, we can hope, can't we?

have made it clear that they are not on strike; that they are satisfied with their jobs and their employer, and that the people on strike "are from other parts of the country... and do not represent the Midland area."

It would appear that certain rights are being infringed upon... and those rights are not those of the "visiting" pickets.

The Country Parson

By Frank A. Clark

"To be elected a politician must win friends — to be effective he must lose some."

Bible Verse
And Mary said, my soul doeth magnify the Lord.—Luke 1:46.

1961, says Cubans knew an invasion was coming and recalls the Communists "were crying that they would lose everything."

"We were so happy when we heard of the invasion," says Caraballo, who brought his family to the United States in 1967. "But we were very sorry to hear the Americans gave up their plans to back the invading Cubans without concern for my countrymen. The Cuban people felt betrayed."

Caraballo says that months before the invasion Castro was telling the country the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was training Cubans in Guatemala.

He says Castro knew for about three months the invasion was coming. Rodriguez verifies that Castro had spies in the Guatemalan training camp where the CIA had been training about 1,500 Cubans.

Two, he says, were discovered. The jumping-off point for the invasion was from Nicaragua, says Rodriguez.

"Our troops were transported by commercial ships, flanked by U.S. fleet ships (which never took action). Two of the commercial ships were sunk en route and 10 of 17 American airplanes were shot down.

Rodriguez says Castro had only a handful of planes but they were faster than the invaders'. "Four or five American fighter planes and the outcome may have been different."

The landing was made and fighting lasted for three days. According to Rodriguez, 130 invaders died. Castro, who pitted 30,000 men against the exiled freedom fighters, lost about 3,500.

"We lasted three days but ran out of supplies and ammunition for bazookas,

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In the Soviet Union, American newsmen are watched wherever they go. TV correspondents must take along an official censor on filming trips.

In this country, Soviet newsmen are free to travel virtually where they wish. They have the same access as other newsmen to government premises. They can interview anyone who will talk to them. Their films are shipped, uncensored, to Moscow.

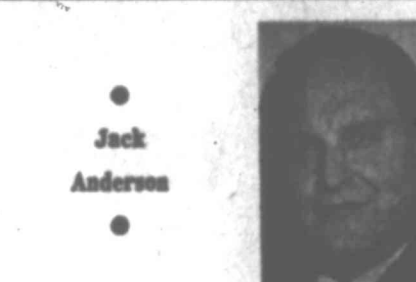

Yet secret files identify at least three Soviet newsmen as veteran KGB agents. The newspaper Izvestia's Washington correspondents, Stanislav Kondrashov and Yuri Barsukov, actually run an espionage operation, according to the files.

The files also claim that Vissarion Sinev, correspondent for the Soviet labor newspaper Trud, is an outright KGB agent. Official sources tell us that other KGB men almost certainly pose as correspondents for the Communist party paper Pravda, the Soviet news agency Tass and Moscow radio-TV.

Izvestia's busy Barsukov is a human vacuum cleaner who collects press releases, congressional reports, military and foreign policy documents and every scrap of paper he can find on Capitol Hill.

His heavily spectacled sidekick, Kondrashov, moves ponderously from office to office with the grim determination of a KGB interrogator.

Together with Sinev, they have an unparalleled outpost on Capitol Hill for espionage. Kondrashov is accredited to the congressional press galleries, Barsukov, back in Washington on a second tour, soon will be.

Jack Anderson

This accreditation gives them special access to information, including off-the-record briefings. They also share indirectly in the protection of the First Amendment. They develop friendships on Capitol Hill, making it awkward for federal authorities to monitor their activities.

The late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover, for example, didn't want his agents tracking suspects around the corridors of Congress. However, he made some quiet exceptions to the rule and to this day, the FBI keeps known KGB operatives under surveillance on Capitol Hill.

The FBI has been hampered, nevertheless, by a tight budget. Director Clarence Kelley has testified more funds are needed to keep up with all the Soviet representatives now in the country — double the number 10 years ago.

Footnote: Only one of the three KGB journalists returned our calls. Yuri Barsukov, in response to our inquiry about his KGB affiliation, said: "I couldn't answer that stupid question." Asked whether he would like to deny the charge, he growled: "I won't answer any more," and he hung up. A Soviet embassy spokesman said he had no knowledge that the three Soviet newsmen were intelligence agents.

Menace To Thailand Cited By Columnist

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

NAGAE VILLAGE, Sakon Nakorn Province, Thailand — Here in poverty-stricken Northeast Thailand, the government is not doing nearly enough to suppress a spreading Communist insurgency that could run wild with help from Hanoi.

The quiet village of Nagae, heart of Communist influence in the Northeast, bears the telltale marks of Vietnam: roads to it that can be traveled only at peril by day and never by night; minimum government presence, with decrepit, indefensible outposts; sullen villagers declining to answer our questions, grimly amused over a foreigner venturing here.

All this points to harsh reality scarcely perceived in Bangkok. The government is not committing enough money, men or energy to control the Northeast's decade-old insurgency. Increased guerrilla activity since the Communist triumph in Indochina could be only the beginning. The future menace is North Vietnam taking over Thai insurgents as it did Cambodia's Khmer Rouge, turning them into an irresistible force.

Although Hanoi may need time to consolidate present conquests, there are ominous early warnings: automatic weapons, rocket launchers and even some Vietnamese advisers turning up among Northeast insurgents. This suggests that accommodating to powerful hostile neighbors — Thailand's tactic for nearly a millennium of independence — may fail against revolutionary Communism.

Evans Novak

The government's handling of Communist insurgents in the far north and the south is equally unimpressive. Northern Meo guerrillas recently massacred two army units, who fought bravely but suffered over 90 per cent casualties (including some 160 dead). Although the government publicly writes off the southern insurgency, Thai army officers confide the guerrillas are gaining influence there.

But the most dangerous insurgency is in the Northeast, where ambushes and assassinations combine with a new Communist strategy of wooing rather than terrorizing villagers long ignored by the central government. "It's a very dangerous situation at the moment," Gen. Saiyud Kerdphol, the often-ignored counter-insurgency expert, told us in Bangkok. The government, he conceded, provides villagers neither social justice nor physical protection.

Lack of protection was confirmed by a high officer at 2nd Army forward headquarters near here. His troops can lick the insurgents in pitched battle, but guerrillas fade away into the Phuphan Mountains after raids such as a recent ambush of a mobile development unit (MDU) — a government construction team. "If the local authorities cannot protect the MDUs, I will ask Bangkok not to send them up here," the officer told us. "I don't have enough men to protect them." Thus, a vicious cycle: lack of government presence invites ambushes which force less government presence.

With the shotgun-carrying Volunteer Defense Corps no match for insurgents, army units are spread too thin here. The U.S.-trained Royal Thai army of 132,000 is concentrated in garrisons around Bangkok, partly because the government balks at spending $5,000 for monthly rations to put one infantry company in the field. Only 10,000 soldiers are fighting the insurgency, about half of them combat troops, so that Thailand's big army is effectively outnumbered by 9,000 insurgents.

While Thailand boasts M-41 tanks and naval frigates useless for counter-insurgency, it lacks what is needed: M-16 rifles (short by 37,000), M-60 machine guns, M-79 rocket launchers, small ammunition of all kinds. What's more, U.S. military aid, down to $30 million this year, seems destined to be eliminated.

Finally, responsibility is hopelessly divided between the interior ministry (police) and the defense ministry (army) causing Gen. Saiyud to urge Prime Minister Kukrit Pramroj to take personal control. Kukrit indicated to us he might do it and is now trying to spread government spending into neglected insurgency areas.

Urbane, Oxford-educated Kukrit, longtime journalist and sometime movie actor, seems ill-cast to suppress insurgents, but he told us he will move against leftist students aiding insurgents: "We can't have people stirring up trouble in the countryside. We can't allow that, students or not." Indeed, Kukrit's government is cracking down in Bangkok, using billyclubs against strikers and tear gas against students.

Army officers however claim the government secretly halted their suppression campaign against southern insurgents in response to student demonstrations. That proves, they say, that Kukrit's 14-party coalition dare not offend the students by striking hard against crime, disorder and insurgency. What keeps the disgruntled young officers from attempting a coup are the lack of approval from King Bhumibol and clear public disenchantment with Thailand's experiment in democracy.

But the old military dictatorship, brought down in October 1973, never was committed to defeating the Communist insurgency either. In fact, all Thai governments tend to look to outsiders for salvation. After first seeking protection in an alliance with Washington, the Thais now seek survival through accommodation with Peking and Hanoi. However, in a long, bitter guerrilla war just really beginning, only the Thais themselves can prevent their nation from becoming another Indochina and another domino in Communism's inexorable spread over Asia.

Laotian Guard Threatens To Kill U.S. Information Service Official

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — An armed Pathet Lao guard threatened to kill the acting director of the U.S. Information Service in Vientiane today when the American tried to enter his office.

The American, Lawrence C. Daks, said the guard shouted, "Get out or I'll kill you" in Lao as he chambered a round in his AK47 assault rifle.

Daks, a Lao-speaking veteran of service in Vientiane, retreated. He told Western newsmen accompanying him that the threat was probably a "personal reaction" rather than the result of orders from Communist Pathet Lao officials who now dominate the Laotian government.

Daks went to the USIS headquarters shortly after a government spokesman told a news conference that the seizure of the building by student demonstrators last Saturday was a mistake. The spokesman said the students left the building two days ago on orders of the government, and the Pathet Lao guards were there "only to protect property."

However, when Daks arrived, still occupying the library and blocking access to the offices upstairs.

The USIS building was one of five American installations in Vientiane occupied by demonstrators last weekend. The government spokesman, Ouday Souvannavong, said the government was still studying the relationship of the other four installations to the U.S. Embassy.

The students claim that the installations belonged to the U.S. Agency for International Development and were used for clandestine espionage activity.

The AID office was closed on June 30, and all of its property transferred to the Laotian government. But the Embassy said the property occupied last weekend had no connection with AID.

In Bangkok, the Thai Interior ministry gave assurance that student demonstrations scheduled July 4 against the presence of American military forces in Thailand "will be peaceful and orderly."

Women's Conference Urges Reform Of Laws, Customs, Attitudes

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The first International Women's Conference has ended after urging a thorough reform of society's customs, laws and attitudes to enable women to be equal partners with men in charting the future of the world.

The conference recommended that the United Nations hold another such meeting in 1980 to assess progress.

In a declaration of principle adopted shortly before the two-week conference ended late Wednesday, the delegates also said a redistribution of economic power from rich to poor nations is necessary to improve the status of women.

Inequality of women and men is closely linked to the poverty which imprisons most nations because of the "profoundly unjust world economic system," the declaration stated.

It was approved by a vote of 89-2 with 18 abstentions. The United States and Israel voted against the declaration, which contained a condemnation of Zionism along with imperialism and colonialism.

The main achievement of the conference was the 10-year blueprint for action to bring about women's equality with men at all levels of society. It called for all governments to guarantee women, as basic rights, equal access with men to education and job-skill training, adequate health care, an end to being battered as child brides and diets equivalent to those of male family members.

The plan also called for men to do more in the raising of children and household chores to free women for outside jobs and other activities. It said wife and husband should have the right to decide whether or when to have children and should have family planning facilities to help them carry out their wishes.

Without this fundamental freedom, the action plan said, millions of women will remain victims of 20-year spans of constant childbearing which ruin their health, weaken their children's lives and preclude them from making other potential contributions to society.

How much of the plan is realized will depend on the various governments and even more on the lobbying done by the 1,300 official conference delegates from 133 nations and the 7,000 others who came from 53 countries to attend the parallel informal conference, the Tribune.

The Tribune drew representatives of hundreds of grass-roots organizations, including those of disaffected black and Spanish-speaking minorities. There was considerable frustration, both because of initial inability to be heard at the official conference and because of tight scheduling in the Tribune which left no room for talk as individuals about women's issues, without the usual rich nation-poor nation confrontation rhetoric.

Eventually, the Tribune feminists arranged their own caucus. After a rocky, fractious beginning, they produced a cohesive plan of action which they presented to the U.N. conference. They also developed considerable cohesion on feminist issues which may enable them to lobby more effectively back home.

Parr Trial Testimony Reveals Manges Received Tax Break

HEBRONVILLE (AP) — Joe R. Nichols, noted Parr's creative South Texas rancher-banker Clinton Manges received a 75 per cent reduction of taxes for his ranch, according to testimony Wednesday on the ouster trial of suspended Duval County Judge Archer Parr.

Duval County Clerk Alberto Garcia testified that Duval County Commissioners and Parr voted Feb. 14 to reduce Manges' taxes on the Duval County Ranch Co. near Freeer for the past three years.

Garcia's testimony came in the third day of the ouster trial of Parr, the nephew of the late South Texas political boss George B. Parr.

Parr had been in office for about 16 years when District Court Judge O. P. Carrillo temporarily suspended him from office March 24 after Dist. Atty. Arnulfo Guerra filed a civil suit against Parr. The suit, filed on behalf of Duval County grand jury foreman Marvin Foster, of San Diego, objected to it. He later said, "If he (Guerra) wants to get Mr. Manges that deep in this case, I'll withdraw my objection."

One of the allegations against Parr claims it was conflict of interest for him to act as legal counsel for large property owners while serving as chairman of the Duval County Board of Equalization. Guerra said later testimony would indicate Parr had received compensation from Manges.

Before Garcia returned to the witness stand for a second day of testimony, lawyer Robert Frederick of the State Comptroller's Office, testified that Duval County has not submitted a county budget to his Austin office for the past four years.

Under cross examination, Frederick admitted that many other Texas counties, including Bexar (San Antonio), Jim Wells (Alice) and Hidalgo (Edinburg) did not file county budgets during the same period.

Garcia testified that a representative of the ranch company appeared before the commissioners Feb. 14 to request the tax reduction on grounds that oil and gas production on the ranch has damaged the environment.

At the time of the tax reduction, Manges was considered to be a political ally of Judge Parr and George B. Parr. He had posted bond and fine money at San Antonio and Corpus Christi when the two were convicted of perjury and income tax evasion. Manges later reportedly split with the Parr faction and is now allegedly aligned with the Carrillo family in a political struggle for control of Duval County.

When the testimony concerning Manges' ranch was first started, defense lawyer

Declaration Copy Auctions For $88,000

Agence France-Presse LONDON — A copy of the first printing of the American Declaration of Independence brought 40,000 pounds (about $88,000) Wednesday at auction at Christie's.

The copy, which was bought by two American dealers, Kenneth Ebenzahi and H. P. Kraus, was sold by a woman descendant of the original owner, John Steward of Goshen, N.Y.

The copy, printed in 1776, was one of the last in private hands. There are only two other copies outside the United States, both in London's public record office.

WEATHERMAN — Tom Churchill, Dubuque's 14-year-old weather forecaster, pauses during work in his home (bedroom) weather station. (AP Wirephoto.)

Kid Forecaster Going National

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — The weather whiz kid from Dubuque is going national.

Tom Churchill, 14, who has been prognosticating the weather for WDBQ radio for a year, vaults into national forecasting as a one-day guest of NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" show in New York on Friday.

The normally hour-long show will be on the air for six hours as a special Fourth of July bi-centennial broadcast.

"They want me to give national forecasts and weather for different parts of the world five minutes each hour during news dispatches," says Tom.

The youth says he has been a weather-watcher since he was eight, but only last summer realized that his forecasts rivaled those of the National Weather Service for accuracy.

"He had this weather hobby," says Phil Kelly, WDBQ's general manager. "He approached us and we decided to let him exercise his hobby. We checked his accuracy against the National Weather Service and from the start, he was just as good or better than them."

Program Director Paul Hemmer says that on Tom's first day on the job he predicted thunderstorms and hail. The National Weather Service forecast was for possible showers.

"Exactly at 12:30 p.m., that day, all heck broke loose, just like Tom predicted," says Hemmer.

"I don't want to say anything derogatory (about the National Weather Service) but if they feel nervous about my forecasts, I don't care," says Tom, a straight-A student and associate member of the American Meteorological Society. "Anyone with simple household instruments could do the same thing."

Tom, whose other hobbies include statistics, puts his accuracy at 90.109 per cent for 36-hour forecasts and 94.7 per cent for 150-hour, extended forecasts.

State Bar Pushing Prepaid Legal Service Programs

DALLAS (AP) — The day of the average person not obtaining lawyer's services because of a fear of high costs may soon be over in Texas.

The State Bar of Texas is pushing its non-profit corporation set up to make available legal services coverage in the same way as prepaid health insurance plans.

Doug Richnow, a state bar staff member, said this week at the organization's annual convention here the Texas Legal Protection Plan, Inc. will help "the 70 per cent of Americans who don't go to attorneys because they're scared of the costs."

The corporation, which will be regulated by the State Insurance Board, will allow groups to pay a set amount each month for certain legal services from attorneys who have agreed to participate in the plan, Richnow said.

Richnow explained the program's operation this way: A group such as a labor union, a firm's employees or even a civic organization agrees to pay the corporation a set amount each month.

A now-tentative plan would allow each member and his family to receive for $5 a month up to 10 hours of consultation a year with a participating lawyer of the member's choice. The member, however, would be required to pay 10 per cent of the lawyer's hourly service organization.

The vote was 848-264 against allowing girls to join. Spokesmen for the majority point of view argued that admitting girls would change the club from a service club to a social organization.

It was the second straight year the amendment to the club's constitution has been defeated.

The Key Club is for high school boys. The Circle K, the college organization sponsored by the Kiwanis, became co-ed about three years ago.

Key Club Again Says No To Girls

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Delegates to the Key Club International convention voted Wednesday to deny girls membership in their Kiwanis International-sponsored national service organization.

The vote was 848-264 against allowing girls to join. Spokesmen for the majority point of view argued that admitting girls would change the club from a service club to a social organization.

It was the second straight year the amendment to the club's constitution has been defeated.

The Key Club is for high school boys. The Circle K, the college organization sponsored by the Kiwanis, became co-ed about three years ago.

Miners Union Leadership Splits

WASHINGTON (AP) — A serious split in the reform leadership of the United Mine Workers threatens to plunge the union into a fierce internal power struggle.

The UMW's top three officers, who 2 1/2 years ago threw out the corrupt regime of W. A. "Tony" Boyle in a rank-and-file revolt, are openly feuding.

Union sources fear the dispute will inflame factionalism within the 200,000-member organization and lead to more wildcat strikes which already have cost the nation five million tons in lost coal production this year.

With the top leaders feuding among themselves, union insiders say this leaves less time to devote to local problems, often resulting in unauthorized walkouts.

Simmering friction between President Arnold Miller and Vice President Mike Trbovich boiled over earlier this month when Trbovich attacked Miller's and Secretary-Treasurer Harry Patrick's financial management of the union.

In a memo to the UMW executive board, Trbovich criticized pay raises awarded staffers, saying "it appears the squeaky wheel got the grease." And he charged that at the rate Miller and Patrick were spending money, "this union will find itself in dire financial difficulty in the not too distant future."

Angered over the charges, Patrick responded with a six-page memo in which he defended financial policy. He accused Trbovich of making unsubstantiated "wild charges" that will damage the union's reputation and harm its organizing efforts.

"Your claim that the UMW faces 'dire financial difficulty' is totally false and a disservice to our membership," Patrick declared in the memo given to the 31-member board at its meeting here Wednesday. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

Some union insiders, including opponents of Miller, regard Trbovich's attack as politically motivated. "I think it's politics and it's personal," said one source. "It's been pretty clear that Mike wants to make a run for the presidency."

Trbovich has denied any political ambitions, saying that he intends to retire when his term ends in 1977. However, he also has said that "unforeseeable circumstances" could change his mind.

Hard feelings have existed between Miller and Trbovich ever since the union's 1972 election campaign when Trbovich, who expected to head the reform "Miners for Democracy" slate, was eased aside for Miller.

The reform ticket defeated Boyle, who later was convicted in the murder of insurgent leader Joseph M. "Jock" Yablonski and for misusing union funds for political contributions.

Although all three officers have since worked together to institute important reforms, friction between the top two officers continued.

Miller already has said he "will probably" seek reelection.

Black Becomes 4-Star General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty years ago, 1st Lt. Daniel James was arrested when he and other black pilots tried to break down a color barrier and enter a white-only officers club.

Now, two wars later, Air Force Lt. Gen. "Chippie" James has become the first black in U.S. history to win promotion to the four-star rank of full general, an advancement announced earlier this week.

Although opportunities for blacks in the armed forces still lag, James qualifies as a symbol of how far things have come since 1945, when he protested segregation at old Freeman Field in Seymour, Ind.

But there has been an undercurrent of jealousy among some white officers who fell out in the intense competition for promotion. James also has been the target of "Uncle Tom" jibes from some militants who resented his appeals to young blacks to work within the system. He has flected off both kinds of attacks with a booming laugh and an air of total self-assurance.

Now 55, James first attracted public notice in the late 1960s as a command pilot who flew 78 combat missions over North Vietnam. Then Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird brought the big, friendly fighter pilot to the Pentagon in 1970 and installed him in the public affairs office.

It was then that James began making speeches that mixed fervent expressions of patriotism with appeals for unity among the races. At a time of campus unrest, he went to predominantly black universities and advised the students to "cool it."

On Wednesday, after returning from a three-day tour of bases in Germany, Spain and the Azores, James said at McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., that "institutionalized racism has been eliminated from the armed services. Blacks themselves must take advantage of the opportunities that exist in the military."

The son of a schoolteacher, James was born in Pensacola, Fla., and graduated from Tuskegee Institute before joining the Army Air Corps in World War II.

After expected confirmation by the Senate, James is due to move Sept. 1 from his post as vice commander of the Military Airlift Command to become chief of the North American Defense Command headquartered in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Briscoe Attacks Voting Rights Bill

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has reiterated his charges that Texas does not need the Voting Rights Act because there is no discrimination against any group of voters in the state.

The act, Briscoe told the Junior Bar of Texas here Wednesday, would extend federal control over activities that should be strictly in the hands of the state.

While Briscoe was attacking the bill, a measure already passed by the House and now in the Senate for consideration, Secretary of State Mark White was in Washington telling newsmen that the provisions of the bill should be not imposed on Texas.

Extension of the voting rights act would require the U. S. Department of Justice to monitor elections in Texas.

Briscoe said the bill "would also mean no municipality could extend its corporate limits without permission of the Justice Department," and would prevent the state legislature from passing a redistricting bill without approval of the Justice Department.

The governor said there had been no history of extensive denial of voting rights or intimidation of voters, regardless of their race, in Texas.

Briscoe said that Texas already has legislation that empowers the secretary of state to investigate charges of intimidation and voter registration irregularities. He added that new legislation also requires that ballots be printed in both English and Spanish.

Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., one of the co-sponsors of the new bill, has said the bill should apply to Texas because of intimidation of Mexican-American voters, especially in some South Texas counties.

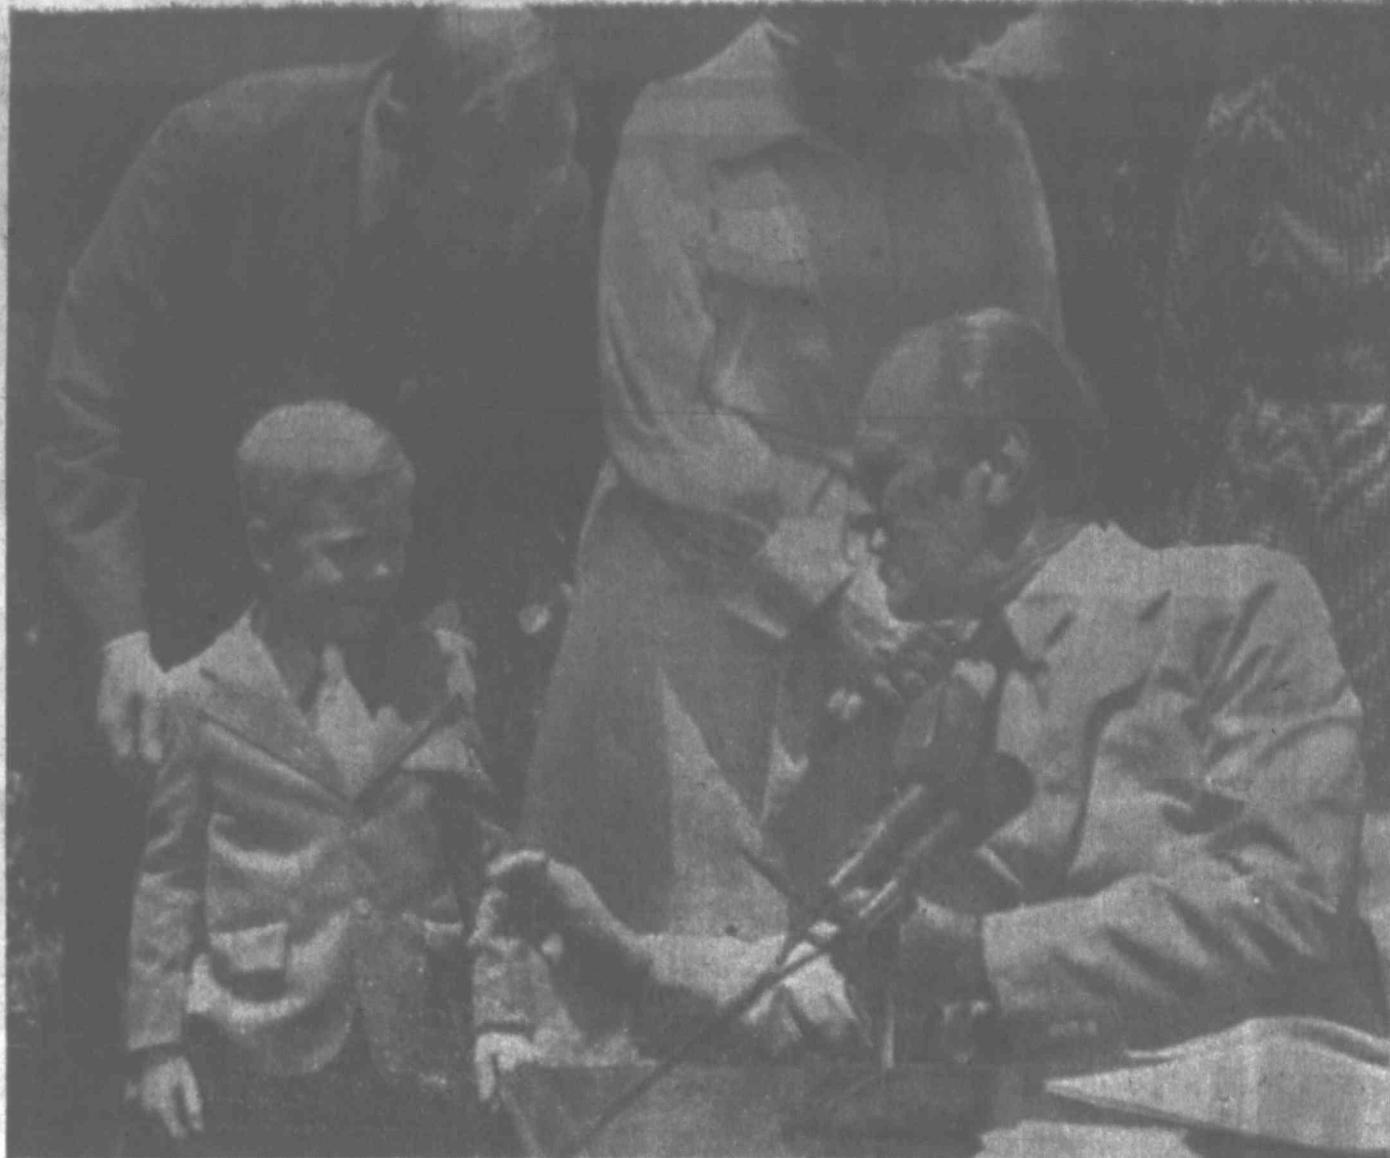

In Washington, White said the bill would be "a great injustice" to Texas.

He said that since he became the state's chief elections officer in 1973, there had been no substantiated claims that any Texans had been denied the right to vote because of color, creed or national origin.

"I have instructed members of my elections division to contact each of the United States attorneys in the state to see if they have had any claims of denials of the right to vote from any Mexican-American in the state," he said. "Early reports were negative."

He said that in counties with more than 50 per cent Mexican-American population, 48 per cent of the elected officials—not counting school boards and city councils—were Mexican-American.

"In those counties which have zero to 10 per cent of the population of Spanish surnames (where you would not expect Mexican Americans to be politically potent) 6.8 per cent of their elected officials have Spanish surnames," White said.

Emergency Housing Act Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're interested in getting a $30,000 loan to buy a house, a new federal law could save you up to $9,000 in interest costs over the life of the mortgage.

Or if you can't make payments on a house you already own because you've lost your job, that same law might help you keep that home.

President Ford signed the Emergency Housing Act of 1975 into law Wednesday, saying it would help push along a recovery of the depressed housing and construction industries.

Supporters of the bill, which gives the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) $10 billion in new mortgage purchase authority, say it could spur construction of up to 300,000 new homes in the next year.

Dan Kearney, GNMA president, outlined how the public company known as Ginnie Mae would use the funds: You might want to get a $30,000 mortgage to buy a house, but a savings and loan would now charge you about 9 per cent for the 30-year loan.

However, Ginnie Mae would promise the lending institution to buy your mortgage and others like it from the savings and loan — if the mortgages were for a 7½ per cent interest rate.

That would mean you would only pay the 7½ per cent rate, or about $25 a month less in interest on the mortgage, Kearney said in an interview. That saving totals about $9,000 over the 30-year life of the mortgage.

Kearney said the lending institution is willing to make such loans because you pay the institution up to 1½ per cent of the mortgage — or $450 on a $30,000 mortgage — as a one-time origination fee. And the savings and loan would also charge Ginnie Mae up to three-eighths of a percentage point for handling the loan each month.

Another provision of the bill could help those thrown out of work by the recession avoid losing their home because they cannot make mortgage payments. But this provision must be triggered by Ford.

"If foreclosure rates rise significantly, this legislation will enable us to act quickly to keep owners from losing their homes," Ford said at the signing ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.

Kearney explained that a bank or other institution could loan an unemployed homeowner up to $250 a month to continue making mortgage payments. The government would guarantee that loan, he said.

But the GNMA president said foreclosure rates have thus far been stable through the recession, indicating no need yet for the program.

Ford vetoed a Democratic-backed housing bill last week that would have provided direct subsidies to middle-income home-buyers. The measure Ford signed Wednesday was hurriedly worked out by Congress after it failed to override the veto.

What's Proper Dress For Church?

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if there is a dress code for church. What is permitted and what isn't?

My sister, who is 29 and married, came to church last Sunday wearing a halter-type dress that showed about three inches of her bare middle.

This sister came to church a few minutes after Mom was seated, and when Mom saw Sis in this outfit, she burst into tears and didn't pick her head up for the whole service.

Afterward, Mom went home and cried all day. She says she is sure Sis is going to the devil.

Maybe I'm of another generation (I am 22), but I didn't think my sister did anything so terrible by coming to church dressed that way. The church is very hot and has no air conditioning. Maybe if the church officials let people dress more comfortably, they would have better attendance in the summer. What do you think?

WARM IN GA.
Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Big Wave Almost Causes Disaster

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — A "sleeper" 50-foot wave almost brought disaster recently to the fishing-party boat Pillar Point and its 27 passengers.

Capt. Steve Morton, 26, of nearby Half Moon Bay, was smashed against the steering wheel. A spoke penetrated his larynx. He was knocked out, but managed to recover and radio for help from the Coast Guard before another big wave hit the vessel and smashed the skipper against the wheel again, knocking him unconscious.

Meanwhile the terrified 27 passengers, with waves breaking over the Pillar Point, managed to huddle together against the side of the ship. Help was not long in coming. The Coast Guard dispatched a helicopter which picked up another skipper, Walt Jaffee, from the harbor and flew him to the Pillar Point.

With the ship once more under control, the helicopter lowered a rescue basket and took Capt. Morton ashore where an ambulance waited to rush him to a hospital. Capt. Jaffee brought the Pillar Point to a safe mooring in the harbor.

our strength is that crack in the liberty bell

When our forefathers declared independence in 1776, they rang the bell so fervently that eventually it cracked. It's one of the great symbols of our freedom.

Rightly so. We Americans have many differences of opinion. Our major political parties are often split in both their views and their methods of solving our many problems. But they share the same basic ideals as they work for a better nation.

These divisions of thought, the freedom to express them and agree or disagree, give our democracy its vital strength. As long as we retain and cherish this splendid form of government, we'll remain as vigorous as we are today. That's 199 years young!

Israelis Find Arabic Dandy Language For Cussing

By WILLIAM J. DRUMMOND
The Los Angeles Times
JERUSALEM — When Israeli drivers are caught in traffic on the streets of Jerusalem, the oaths they utter are usually Arabic.
On the tennis court, when an Israeli double-faults, it is an Arabic expletive that bounces off the baseline.

Hebrew, the ancient language revived in modern Israel, lost a good deal of its earthiness during the 1,900 years when it survived only as a scholarly, religious and poetic language.
Significantly, in searching for expressions to bolster their verbal arsenal, Israelis have eagerly incorporated words and phrases from the Arabs.

Cussing in the language of one's foe is a phenomenon that has been observed the world over. On Cyprus, the Greeks often swear in Turkish and the Turks in Greek. Even in peaceful Switzerland, German Swiss in the integrated army units are frequently heard cursing in French — about as often as the French Swiss swear in German.

More than half a century of strong emotions regarding the Arabs have made Arabic curses irresistible for Israelis.
In fact, a bad word boom is sweeping the Jewish state.

"After the last war, a thousand swear words were born," said Netiva Ben Yehuda, 47, co-author of the World Dictionary of Hebrew Slang.
"People want to express frustration with the government, disappointment with the leaders, grief over the losses," he said.

However, the language handed down from the Old Testament restricts the Israeli to expletives about on a par with "the devil take you."
While the Bible uses a vocabulary of about 7,000 words, spoken Hebrew today has an estimated 40,000 — the result of word invention and adaptation — and the invective gap is quickly being closed.

Nobody went to the toilet in Hebrew until the second half of the 19th century," said Netanel Lorch, writer and veteran diplomat. It was then that idealistic Zionists decided that Hebrew should be the language of the Jews in Israel and it began to be spoken in households and market places here.

"Cussing is a natural reaction of people in certain circumstances," said Lorch, adding that Arabic in particular has "beautiful curses."

Nation's Largest Brokerage Firm Charged With Fraud

By JACK EGAN
 The Washington Post — The Securities and Exchange Commission charged the nation's biggest brokerage firm, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, with fraud Wednesday for promoting the stock of a now-bankrupt housing company, Stirling Homex Corp.

Stirling Homex itself was charged with fraud, and the nation's biggest accounting firm also was punished.

Stirling Homex and six of its officers were charged with recording millions of dollars in fictitious sales of its modular housing units in financial statements issued publicly between 1970 and 1972 when the company was a Wall Street favorite.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith — the company's investment banker which underwrote a $30 million Stirling Homex stock offering in 1971 — was also charged with fraud by the SEC in a suit filed here in U.S. District Court.

Merrill Lynch accounted for more than half the trading in Stirling Homex stock between August, 1971 and July, 1972 and also issued rosy research reports to its customers to buy the company's stock at a time when the SEC said the brokerage firm knew or should have known Stirling Homex was in deep financial trouble. The housing company filed for bankruptcy in July 1972.

In a related action, the SEC reached an unprecedented settlement with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., the country's largest accounting firm in terms of client billings and the auditor for Stirling Homex. Peat, Marwick is barred from taking on new clients for six months and must submit to an outside "peer review."

The settlement relates to charges that Peat, Marwick was negligent in its auditing practices for four companies involved in fraud charges before the SEC, including the Penn Central Co. and National Student Marketing Corp. as well as Stirling Homex. Peat, Marwick — as is usual in such cases — consented to the settlement without admitting or denying the charges.

Merrill Lynch also consented to the charges but said it was settling only to conclude "an exhaustive and costly proceeding that began almost three years ago."

Merrill Lynch, which sells more shares of stock than any other brokerage firm, defended its activities and said that "observers now have the benefit of hindsight and of facts previously unavailable." It said it had always labeled the Stirling Homex stock as "speculative" in its recommendations.

The six former Stirling Homex officers also consented to the complaint without admitting or denying guilt. They include former chairman David Stirling Jr., former President William G. Stirling and former general counsel Harold M. Yanowitch.

In the court suit, the SEC charged that these defendants made illegal political contributions to state and national officials, conducted illegal electronic surveillance, paid off union officials and used corporate funds for the personal benefit of company officers.

The SEC did not provide details on most of these charges but sources indicated that the political payoffs totaled less than $100,000.

The two Stirlings and Yanowitch have been indicted in Rochester, N.Y., where a grand jury is investigating possible payoffs from Stirling Homex to officials of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The SEC, in its complaint, charges that "certain high-ranking officials of the Carpenters Union received loans from a bank arranged by" David Stirling and Yanowitch to purchase Stirling Homex stock "at favorable prices." The loan was for $300,000, according to the suit.

Subsequently, it was arranged for an unnamed individual to buy back the stock at the cost paid by the officials, which was approximately $10 above the market price then, the commission alleged.

The AFL-CIO's No. 2 man, Lane Kirkland, reportedly was called before the Rochester grand jury last fall.

Stirling Homex was a pioneer in the first of prefabricated self-contained modular housing units and relied heavily on government housing programs to sell its product.

But the SEC said Stirling Homex improperly included sales on its books projects that had not yet received federal funding and, when many of the sales did not materialize, the company had to declare bankruptcy. In one financial statement, all module sales totaling $12.5 million "were either fictitious or improperly recorded," the SEC said.

In a connected action, the SEC singled out two Stirling Homex outside directors — New York labor lawyer Theodore W. Kheel and John W. Castellucci — for not providing "the shareholder with any significant protection" in trying to evaluate the true state of the company. The SEC noted, however, that they were also victims of fraud and misrepresentation perpetrated by the company's officers.

The SEC Wednesday settled separately with Merrill Lynch on two other cases in which the commission claimed the big brokerage firm had acted improperly. One involved trading of government securities for an unnamed nonprofit institution where the SEC said transactions were not properly recorded.

The other related to what the SEC said was questionable selling procedures by some Merrill Lynch branch offices of stock in a company that was connected to a Merrill Lynch affiliate. No specifics were given.

Merrill Lynch also is fighting charges in an SEC administrative proceeding that it published optimistic research reports about the stock of another company, Scientific Control Data, at a time it knew or should have known it was having financial difficulties.

Feds Speeding Up Effort To Control Rising Health Costs

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The price of being sick is rising so fast that Ford administration health officials are speeding up a drive to help states set advance limits on spending in the nation's 7,000 hospitals.

In the first year since price controls ended, the cost of health care rose 40 per cent faster than the consumer price index, federal figures show.

The cost of hospital care rose 70 per cent faster than the index.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger in an interview last week called hospital costs "the main driving force" in health prices, and "one we must control."

Among the reasons for all the rises, according to public and private health officials:

— Hospitals have been catching up on rate boosts after a period of federal controls that failed to control all the things they buy.

— Doctors have raised rates in anticipation of controls accompanying national health insurance. They raised them whenever they read that it is "imminent," which has been the case for some years.

— Medical care has been getting more expensive, in part justifiably, in part because hospitals have been buying complex equipment before it, too, is controlled by new measures.

With hospitals claiming 39 cents of every health dollar, the administration is moving to encourage hospital cost regulation by every state, Weinberger said. He explained that state controls would be required under the administration's health insurance plan, which he predicted will be submitted next year.

But Dr. Stuart Altman, HEW's assistant secretary for planning, said the slow movement toward health insurance is "forcing us to rethink."

Price controls ended April 30, 1974. From mid-May 1974 to mid-May 1975 total health costs rose 13.3 per cent and hospital charges 16.2 per cent, while all prices rose only 9.5 per cent.

Between January and March hospitals were still spending 16 per cent more than the year before. Altman has forecast hospital increases of as much as 20 per cent without tighter controls.

The average daily cost of hospital care at the end of March (the latest figure available) was $126 a day, compared with $108 a year before.

Administration officials say only 52 per cent of the hospital increases can be blamed on rises in wages and prices, with 48 per cent caused by "increases in numbers and kinds of services" — meaning more care and more expensive care per patient.

Joseph Eichenholz, a HEW health economist said, "we can't overlook doctors' fees. And they're the ones in the driver's seat at the hospitals."

Doctors' fees were up 13.2 per cent in Mid-May over mid-May 1974, and still rising at a faster rate than general inflation.

Weinberger this year ordered such measures effective July 1 to apply to federal Medicare and Medicaid payments:

— A limit on most hospital payments of no more than about 90 per cent of an area's average. Medical colleges are seeking an injunction to block enforcement, claiming that teaching hospitals that use many more doctors would be badly underpaid.

— An end to an 8 1/2 per cent bonus for nursing care for Medicare patients, because they are older and need more care. The American, Protestant, Catholic and commercial hospital associations are suing to block this change.

— A start on compulsory "utilization review" of all hospitals' patients to make sure their admissions are justified. The American Medical Association won a preliminary injunction May 27 against this rule.

— A mild limit on doctors' fees, tying any increases to a new national index.

This is the only one of the four measures on which HEW is not being sued, though all four would still save only $250 million a year when fully applied.

"I am disappointed that we have to fight foot by foot for these necessary measures," Weinberger said in the interview.

But even these are all piecemeal measures, he said, and "piecemeal cost containment can't work. This is in the first year, it estimates, why we are now helping states develop their own variations of prospective reimbursement for hospitals."

This means laws or agreements to permit state approval of hospital budgets once a year, in advance — in effect, telling a hospital that it may spend and be repaid only so much.

A labor-backed health insurance plan before Congress would at least in partial operation allocate money to hospitals in the planning stage in New

Numbers Writer Not Worried About Competition From State

By LES PAYNE
Newsday

NEWARK — Jack C. is a numbers writer. His line of work is illegal. But the state of New Jersey is out to cut into his profits with its legal numbers game called "Pick-it."

The month-old competition from the state has been little more than a nuisance. Jack's business is booming. And he expects it to stay that way as long as the economy is slumping.

"Numbers playing goes up when the economy is down," said Jack.

"I've been in this business 12 years and it's always the same. I have a truck driver who makes $250 a week. His numbers bill is usually $10 a week. Last Wednesday he got laid off. His bill this week is $40. He's risking what little money he has to see if he can get that big dollar."

The "big dollar" earnings of illegal gambling operators has attracted the interest of state governments strapped with mounting financial woes. According to a recent study by the Task Force on Legalized Gambling, "Americans wager between $30 and $40 billion annually on the major illegal games — numbers, sports, off-track horse race betting and organized casino betting." Of the total wagered, the Task Force estimated that the illegal operators retained $3 to $4 billion before expenses, "a gross profit well below that commonly supposed."

New Jersey, one of three states without an income tax, is probably leading the nation in the pursuit of dollars going to illegal gamblers. Four years ago the state initiated a weekly lottery, and shortly thereafter, a daily.

Nearby — New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut have since adapted their own lotteries, cutting into New Jersey profits it reaped when it had the only legal game in the Northeast.

During the early months, the New Jersey State Lottery Commission was selling almost 6 million tickets a week, according to an agency spokesman. Sales now average 2.1-2 million weekly. "At the beginning we had an unreal figure," the spokesman said. "We were the only lottery around."

The Task Force report, sponsored by the Fund for the City of New York and the Twentieth Century Fund, criticized legal gambling as an ineffective means of raising state revenue. It also warned of the empire-building which is occurring in the New Jersey Commission: "Legalized gambling requires a bureaucracy that, once established, acquires a life of its own. In addition to assuring the continuation of its own jobs and responsibilities, the bureaucracy will look for expansion of its jurisdiction."

At least 30 per cent of the commission profits are committed by law to the financing of state-run education programs and institutions such as hospitals and homes for the aged. Last year, the commission's gross sales were nearly $90 million, about $55 million of which was turned over to the state, according to an agency spokesman.

With the decline of the daily and weekly lotteries, New Jersey has attempted to draw additional money away from the illegal numbers game. (The illegal numbers in Newark are determined daily by the last three digits in the dollar figure for the parimutuel handled at a given race track.)

In the "Pick-it" games, machines which register three digit numbers on central computers have been placed at 350 test locations in urban centers in the northeastern part of the state. With a 50-cent deposit, players may register their number. The winning number is announced daily. The size of their winning is determined by the total amount of money played and the number of people who play the winning number.

"We have been averaging about 600 to one for a winning number payoff," said an agency spokesman.

It is doubtful that "Pick-it" is seriously affecting the illegal numbers racket financially. The Task Force observed that "illegal gambling is an exceedingly complex and sophisticated business that legalized gambling is unlikely to capture."

The illegal numbers game offers players tax-free pay-offs at a fixed rate of 600 to 1. However, the banker deducts $100 and the "runner" takes another 10 per cent, leaving the player with $450.

"Pick-it" pay-offs are parimutuel, determined by the total amount of money wagered, the 30 per cent earmarked for the state and the number of winners on a given day. The tax-free advantage, the state claims, is offset by its own credibility. "We always pay off," a commission spokesman said. "If you hit big with the illegal numbers, your guy may take the money and go South."

Jack is unconcerned about competition from the state's legal games. He says: "I haven't lost a single customer to 'Pick-it' or the lottery. I'm not frightened by the instant lottery or 'Pick-it.' The state don't give credit and they don't make house calls. And they don't have that personal contact. My runners get to know the players, drink with 'em, stand on the corner and b-w with 'em. All the state can do is take their money."

WITH 19TH WIN AT WIMBLEDON—

King Seeks Tennis Record

The Midland Reporter-Telegram

SPORTS

1C—THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1975

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King, within one match of winning her sixth Wimbledon singles crown, could set an all-time women's title record at the All-England Tennis Club before the week is out.

Ms. King, 31, who vows that Friday's final with Evonne Goolagong Cawley is her last major international singles effort, has amassed 18 Wimbledon crowns in her 15-year career—five singles, nine doubles and four mixed doubles.

Victory in two of those three events this week would break the record of 19, all-doubles, which belongs to Elizabeth Ryan, who played here in the 1920s and 1930s.

Rare Defeat

Ms. King moved into the final with a 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 triumph over defending champion Chris Evert on Wednesday. It was Miss Evert's first European loss since 1973, when she bowed to Ms. King in the final here.

net Court 6-4, 6-4 in a duel of former Wimbledon champions from Australia.

Ms. King, who constantly battles the pain of bad knees, called her come-from-behind victory over Miss Evert, 11 years her junior, "a real trip. I went to the edge of the ledge. I don't understand how I won."

Rallies From 0-3

In the final set, Ms. King was trailing 0-3 and had three break points against her in the fourth game. The crowd on center court thought it was the last they would see of the competitor who first came here as a 16-year-old named Billie Jean Moffitt and has been thrilling them ever since. But they got another chance.

Ms. King won the fourth game, came back to 2-3 on errors by Miss Evert, made it 4-3 with a winning forehand pass and took the last two games, the final point going to Ms. King when Miss Evert sent the ball out of court.

"I kept thinking that this was my last Wimbledon and I just couldn't lose now," Billie Jean said. "I was all emotional."

Connors Wins
Today, the young left-handed power merchant, Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner, and the time-tested veterans, Arthur Ashe and Tony Roche, were to decide who would survive for Saturday's men's final. Connors, the defending champion, sailed through five straight-set victories en route to his date with Tanner, who has blasted his opponents off the court with powerful serves. Ashe, 31, and Roche, the 30-year-old Australian on a comeback after a long layoff to heal injuries, both are seeking their first Wimbledon finals berth.

Arcaro Leans To Ruffian

In Match Horse Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockeys are notoriously poor winners at a race track. So when Eddie Arcaro said "I like Ruffian," a listener piped up "Thanks Eddie, that makes me like Foolish Pleasure."

It happened at a Belmont Park press conference Wednesday concerning the $350,000 match race Sunday between the unbeaten 3-year-old filly, Ruffian, and the colt, Foolish Pleasure, who almost swept the triple crown after winning the Kentucky Derby.

"I'm for women's lib," commented Arcaro, now a TV personality who retired as the nation's most famous jockey a decade ago.

Early Favorite
Arcaro sides with the majority which has established the filly, unbeaten in 10 career starts, as the early favorite for the much-publicized event.

Arcaro disregarded his own observations in picking Ruffian. "You know," he said turning to Jacinto Vasquez who will ride Ruffian, "the underdog has won the last five match races."

He referred to his own victory by a stride on Nashua against Swaps at Washington Park in Chicago August 31, 1955; Seabiscuit over War Admiral at Pimlico in Baltimore November 1, 1938; Alsab over Whirlaway at Narragansett Park in Pawtucket, R.I., Sept. 19, 1942; Convenience over Typecast at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif., June 17, 1972, and Chris Evert over Miss Musket at Hollywood Park a year ago come July 20.

"I seen quite a few match races," Arcaro said at the conference attended by all the principals, except for the (Continued On Page 3C)

Story Speculates Cox Could Become Cub GM

Is John Cox in line to be the next general manager of the Chicago Cubs?

A feature story on the former Midland Cub GM in the Chicago Tribune recently hints that it is not beyond the realm of possibility.

The article described John, who has traveled far and wide as a member of the Chicago front office staff, as the eyes and ears of GM John Holland and Vedic Himsel, director of scouting and player procurement, both of whom are pretty much anchored in Chicago.

In conclusion, the article theorized Cox's name could be thrown in the hopper as a GM possibility when Holland decides to retire.

We're not at all sure we'd like to see that happen. It would probably mean the end of a valued friendship. After all the secrets exposed and kidding he took in this space while in Midland, if John ever became Cub GM we're sure he'd never speak to us again...

Ever since the early years of the New York Mets, the National League club has outdrawn the New York Yankees.

Last year, for example, the Mets, at this stage of the season, were averaging 35,255 fans per game to 12,924 for the Yanks who were playing their first season in Shea Stadium.

This year, the Mets still hold a slight edge, but with a pennant contender the Yankees have averaged 20,225 to the Mets' 20,712.

It will be interesting to see what happens next year when the Yankees move back to renovated Yankee Stadium, where attendance had sagged alarmingly in recent years...

And we wouldn't have believed it, if we hadn't seen it with our own eyes. There was Jack Nicklaus, supposedly immune to human frailties, like succumbing to pressure on a golf course, swinging his way to victory in the U.S. Open at Medinah a couple of weeks back. At least, it was obvious to the TV audience that the title was his if he just parred home in routine fashion.

Then, around the 15th hole, someone told him he was only a stroke back. Normally, that would be the kiss of death for front-running opponents. We could just imagine the adrenalin starting to pump with the news.

But, lo and behold, Jack's game fell apart with the news and he wound up among the also rans.

We're still pondering whether to accept the implication that the Big Bear is only a mere mortal after all.

LEADS MILWAUKEE WITH 65—

Barber Likes His New Putter

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Miller Barber, well on his way to his first million dollars, may never have made a better investment than the new putter he bought after the Masters Tournament this spring.

Barber, $28,508 short of becoming the ninth pro to exceed a million dollars in career earnings, shot a seven-under-par 65 with the help of four putts of 20 feet or more Wednesday for a two-stroke lead after one round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

"It was my day to make the long ones. I haven't made long putts like that in three years," said Barber, who toured the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course in the morning, when greens were soft and moist, and withstood a late challenge by home-state favorite Andy North.

North, a three-year pro and native of Monona, Wis., closed to within one stroke of Barber with the last of his seven birdies, on No. 16. However, he bogeyed the 18th and settled into a three-way tie with Art Wall and Bob Zender at 67.

"It's pretty obvious a 65 or 66 will lead," said Zender, who finished shortly before Barber. "The course is in perfect condition. There has been a lot of rain here."

Barber, who has won nine tournaments in 16 years on the tour, tied for third at Pensacola earlier this year and is 23rd on the 1975 money list. He and U.S. Open champion Lou Graham, who shot a 72, are the only golfers among the first 24 earnings-leaders this year to have entered this tournament.

The GMO conflicts with next week's British Open.

"I played the British the last two years, but not this year," Barber said. "You hear of felas making $1 million out of winning the British or U.S. Open, but it depends on who you are or what you have done." Jack Nicklaus or Arnold Palmer might. But with Miller Barber, it's not the same thing.

NICE CATCH — Tom Hotchkiss caught this five-pound Amistad Lake bass with a top water lure near Diablo East Marina.

HUNTING FISHING

Bass fishermen swarmed over Oak Creek Lake with five clubs showing up for the Sweetwater Bass Tournament as homeowner Luke Poage took top honors with a five-pound, nine-ounce, Poage's catch was one pound better than that of Big Spring's Mike Mart.

Midland's Guy Calleo caught his largest bass ever with a five-pound, six-ounce ... Trotline fishing has been fair, according to Ike Pate of Sportsman's Lodge. "The beam has kept the kids, and some of the light tackle fishermen busy. Anybody that's looking for fast action, this is the fish to go after."

Amistad Lake will add Florida bass, a species that grows to weights up to 20

In Friday's Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Donnie Allison and Buddy Baker are determined to get rid of a few jinxes by conjuring up some good luck when they start from the front row in the $127,375 Firecracker 400 stock car race Friday.

The pair of hard-luck drivers, often leaders but seldom finishers at Daytona International Speedway, set a torrid qualifying pace Wednesday. Allison registered 188.737 miles per hour in a Chevrolet, using a pet groove he claims makes him a little faster than anyone else on the 2.5-mile tri-oval located practically in the back yard of his racing shop.

Fastest Lap
Allison, 35, said he talked himself into it by "repeating to myself, 'just do everything smooth,' for two hours before I qualified."

It is the fastest lap recorded here since National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing moguls decided things were getting unsafe at 190 mph-plus speeds and applied carburetor restrictions five years ago.

Baker, 34, was second fastest at 184.687 with his Ford and predicted he will run laps in that range during the 400-mile race.

Long Wait
Allison hasn't won on the super-speedway circuit since 1971, but he holds the only Daytona victory for the pair. He captured the Firecracker 400 in 1970. In the Daytona 500 last February, Allison won the pole but went out early with engine trouble.

Baker, a non-winner for two years until he won at Talladega last May, was leading this year's Daytona 500 until his engine quit at the midway point.

If they keep their machines running the full 400 miles, they can end the domination of this summer feature by David Pearson and Richard Petty. Pearson, who has won it three years straight, qualified third fastest in his Mercury at 184.018 mph. Petty could nurse out the 13th best speed of 180.093 out of his Dodge. He has never won the 400 but finished second each of the past four years and has taken the Daytona 500 five times.

Elcor Whips Odessa Nine

Bobby Stevens threw a two-hitter Wednesday night to pace the Elcor Chemical Chems to a 5-1 victory over the Odessa Lions Club in a Senior Texas Teen-Age League baseball game at Cubs Stadium.

Stevens bested Oklahoma-bound Alex Kager in a pitching duel by striking out eight Lions. Kager, meanwhile, surrendered five hits to the Chems while fanning nine Elcor batters.

Second baseman Rusty Laughlin of Elcor had the only extra base blow, a double in the first inning. Odessa's only hits were singles by Wes Maynard and Kager.

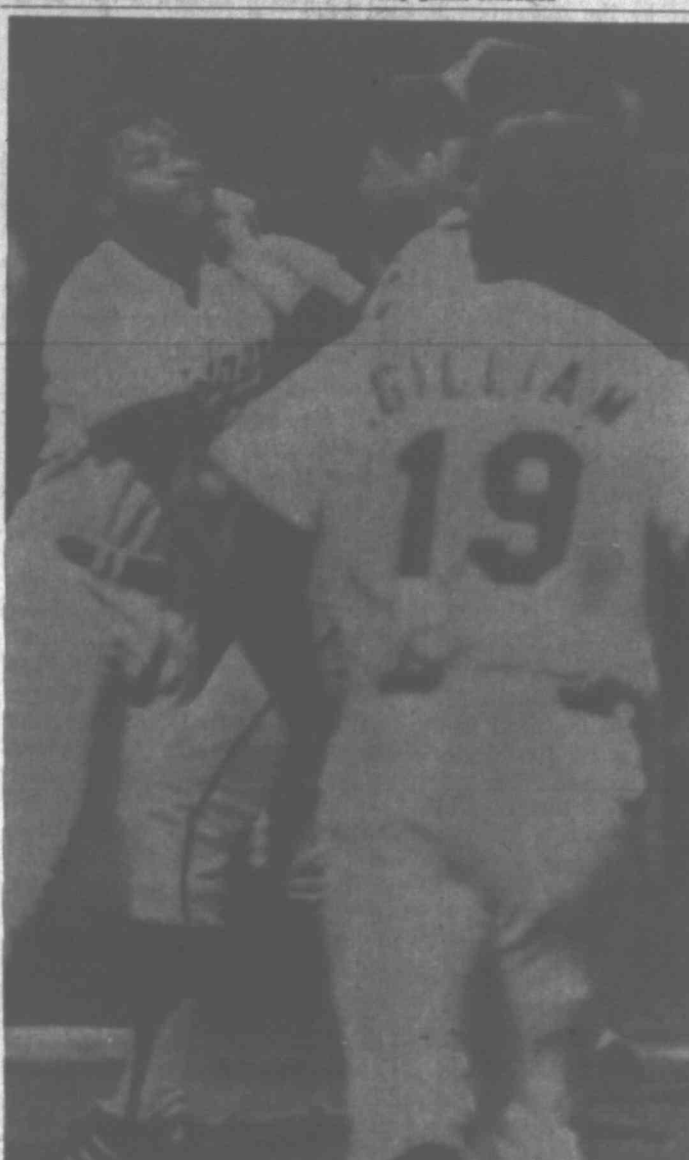

COM To Swim In Odessa Meet
The City of Midland Swim Team will enter 80 swimmers in the Odessa Aquatic Club-UTPB Bicentennial Invitational Swim Meet which gets under way at 8 a. m. Friday in the UTPB pool.

Coach Doug Ingram said COM will make this an all-out effort meet, with all age groups represented in the A and B divisions.

The A event qualifying races will be held each morning, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Friday and Saturday finals will begin at 6 p. m. and the Sunday finals will start at 5 p. m.

Marchetti, Schramm Defend Rozelle Rule

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Former Baltimore Colts' lineman Gino Marchetti and Dallas Cowboys' President Tex Schramm presented two-barreled testimony supporting the Rozelle Rule Wednesday as the defense hustled through a lengthy session.

Both said the Rozelle Rule was necessary for the continued success of the National Football League and Schramm testified that, despite the option clause, the "matter of ethics" was important to the league.

This, Schramm continued, prevented "teams from tampering with other teams."

"Everybody wasn't making money in those days," he continued. "There was more comradeship and the players were striving to make the NFL successful."

The testimony came in U.S. District Court, where Judge Earl Larson is hearing the NFL Players Association suit against the league, clubowners and Commissioner Pete Rozelle. The NFLPA suit charges the Rozelle Rule violates U.S. anti-trust provisions.

"Without the Rozelle Rule, the draft wouldn't be as effective and the average player would suffer because the superstars would get all the money," said Marchetti, now 49 years old and some 50 pounds over his playing weight. "The draft is good for two reasons. First, the league doesn't tamper with the college athlete and it is a great equalizer... it gives teams an opportunity to strengthen themselves."

Schramm said there is much pressure on a club to sign its free agents because "you don't know what you're going to get in compensation."

Match Horse Race

"Most match races have been won by the lead horse," Arco continued. "I look for this one to be one heck of a race with the survival of the fittest. I don't think there will be any 48-second half."

Frank Whiteley Jr., trainer of Ruffian, and Leroy Jolley, trainer of Foolish Pleasure, winner of 14 career starts with two seconds and one third, agreed.

"Foolish Pleasure has the speed to press her," Jolley said, referring to Ruffian who has set the pace in all her starts. "Remember they said a year ago Foolish Pleasure was a speedball who couldn't get the classic distances. We're going to test her."

AA Is Holding 'Nonconvention'

DENVER (AP)—It may be the soberest convention in the country but certainly not the most somber.

The hotels, motels, trailer courts, campgrounds and even the dormitories of the city's colleges are filled to capacity. But the bars are doing no extra business.

The streets are filled with smiling conventioners bearing the traditional name tag, but identifying the wearer only as Bob G., Tom S., Richard B. or Betty C.

It is a gathering of the world's largest organization which is not really an organization.

Some 18,000-20,000 people are in Denver for the 40th Anniversary International Convention of Alcoholics Anonymous (AA).

There are no business meetings; no policies are set or reviewed; there are no tours, no side trips or other distractions.

As one conventioner put it, "It's just a good old local AA meeting on a grand scale."

California State Official Misused Foundation's Funds

By MIKE GOODMAN
And DAVID ROSENZWEIG
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — California Lt. Gov. Mervyn M. Dymally — America's highest-ranking black state official — misused funds from a nonprofit institute he created to bring more minority youth into government.

The abuses occurred between 1968 and 1973 while Dymally, then a California state senator, guided the Los Angeles-based Urban Affairs Institute, supported by nearly $800,000 in tax-free grants, most of it from the Ford Foundation.

A three-month investigation by The Los Angeles Times reveals that:

- Dymally drew an unauthorized $1,000-a-month salary from the Ford Foundation grant. He later agreed to pay it back. Institute records show the money was refunded not by Dymally but by a UAI affiliate bankrolled with Ford money.
- State Sen. Bill Greene D-Los Angeles, a Dymally protégé and cofounder of the institute, incurred excessive and unauthorized travel expenses — more than 100 plane trips in one year — on UAI charge accounts, then collected from the state legislature for some of those same trips.
- Dymally used $30,000 — intended for expanding the institute's government intern and fellowship program into other Western states — to set up a job training project in which his brother and sister-in-law were installed as paid staff members. The program failed.
- Members of Dymally's family, former legislative aides and relatives of his staff received scholarships, fellowships and grants from UAI.
- When UAI folded late in 1973, several thousand dollars worth of office equipment and furniture could not be accounted for. A Dymally aide, appointed treasurer and assigned the task of straightening out the institute's finances at that time, told Dymally the aide's name had been forged on three checks.
- Ford Foundation executives were alerted to a number of the irregularities within a year after UAI received its first Ford grant of $600,000 in September 1968. They warned Dymally that continued funding of his project was in "serious jeopardy."
- Yet despite reports from their own monitors and auditors showing abuses were continuing, Ford Foundation officials gave the institute another $210,000 in 1971.
- "We wanted to give them another chance," said Mitchell Sviridoff, vice president of the Ford Foundation.
- Ford's initial funding of the institute evolved from a similar program it financed during the 1960s through the California Assembly.
- Few, if any, minority group members were involved in that program. By subsidizing Dymally's venture, Sviridoff told The Times, "we hoped to redress our past failings in that area."
- UAI's stated objective was to recruit minority undergraduate and graduate college students and place them as interns in the offices of local, state and federal elected officials. Graduate students were to receive academic credit for their work.
- In an interview with The Times, Dymally described the program as a success "by all measuring sticks" although "there were a number of things we did that the traditionalists (at the Ford Foundation) had difficulty with."
- He listed 26 former UAI interns who, he said, had achieved successful careers in public service after leaving the institute, among them California Assemblyman Richard J. Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, Gwen Moore, recently elected to the Los Angeles Community College Board, and Louise R. White, former head of the U.S. Teacher Corps.
- However, a former Ford Foundation executive who monitored the program, called it "screwed up."
- "There were no guidelines,"

William J. Grinker, who oversaw the program for the Ford Foundation. "They just put these kids out there. They didn't keep any records of what the kids were doing. Whether or not they got anything out of it depended on them, not UAI."

Notwithstanding the merits of either argument, the evidence is clear that UAI was plagued by fiscal irregularities that put the institute in a financial hole from the start.

And it was Dymally who controlled the purse strings from 1968 to late 1971 while serving as president, a post that allowed him to sign all checks.

Though he resigned as president, he stayed on as a director and later chairman of the board. Throughout this time, he remained the dominant force behind the scenes.

Despite the fact that it was unauthorized under terms of the agreement with the Ford Foundation, Dymally drew $7,000.45 in pay — about $1,000 a month — from October 1968 through March 1969 as UAI president.

The lieutenant governor told The Times he voluntarily agreed to return the money because Ford officials "discovered I had aspirations for higher public office and with passage of the Tax Reform Act... suggested it might be a cause of some concern."

On April 17, 1969, UAI's executive director, Sylvester Houston, a former Dymally aide, wrote the Ford Foundation that $3,750, representing Dymally's salary, had been repaid to the institute by the Center on Urban and Minority Affairs (CUMA), "which is not funded by the Ford Foundation."

Dymally, through his press aide, acknowledged late Wednesday that CUMA made the reimbursement. The aide said Dymally then replaced the funds advanced by CUMA with contributions from private donors whose names he could not recall.

'First Strike' Prospects Denounced By Democrat Presidential Hopefuls

By DAVID S. BRODER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Democratic presidential aspirants Wednesday denounced the "first-strike" nuclear prospects raised by President Ford and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, calling it "alarming, outrageous and irresponsible."

The attacks came from Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., who Wednesday became the fourth Democrat to raise enough money to qualify for federal matching subsidies in next year's primaries, and from ex-Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, one of five Democrats still struggling to cross that barrier.

Udall and Sanford focused on the nuclear issue in separate Washington news conferences, as indications grew that yet more Democrats would enter the presidential race in coming weeks.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, who has been scouting his prospects in more than a dozen states since mid-April, said Wednesday his "time of decision is near at hand." A close associate called Bayh's announcement "imminent" and defined that as being "inside two weeks."

The increasing competition for support on the liberal side of the Democratic spectrum was evidenced in the alacrity with which both Udall and Sanford jumped on the "nuclear" issue raised in recent comments by the President and Schlesinger.

Schlesinger told reporters Tuesday the United States could "conceivably" fire its nuclear missiles at Russia before being attacked, but said there was a "very, very low probability" of that happening. Earlier, Mr. Ford had refused in a press conference to rule out the possibility of a nuclear first use.

Sanford, who called a press conference to detail a proposal for a 15 per cent cutback in what he called "a fat, potbellied military establishment" budget, called Schlesinger's suggestion "outrageous, irresponsible and useless."

While Sanford, president of Duke University, said "we're entitled to use all the weapons in our arsenal if we're attacked," he said speculation by administration about their first use "in unspecified conditions" was provocative.

Udall made much the same point an hour later, saying that the "alarming" statements by Schlesinger and Ford "create confusion... add to the uncertainty... and strengthen the hand of the hawks in the Kremlin."

In a related development, Rep. Richard L. Ottinger (D-N.Y.) who last week introduced a resolution cosponsored by other House members renouncing first use of nuclear weapons, said he would seek congressional hearings on the Schlesinger statement.

As the nuclear issue mushroomed in political debate, the competition for tactical advantage increased among the liberal Democratic presidential hopefuls.

Udall's and Sanford's parallel statements recalled their similar efforts last month to stamp themselves as the pre-eminent challenger to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace (D).

In organizational and financial terms, Udall claimed a clear lead over the other liberal hopefuls with his announcement Wednesday that he was qualified for federal matching funds in next year's primaries. To qualify, he had to raise at least $5,000 in contributions of no larger than $250 in at least 20 states; he had 21.

The first three Democrats to qualify for the matching funds — Wallace, Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. of Texas and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington — all are more conservative on issues like defense.

Sanford told reporters he hopes to qualify by the end of July. Georgia ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter's office said he had qualified in 10 states and "is close" in seven more. Ex-Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma said he had qualified in three states and hoped to have the remaining 17 "shortly after Labor Day."

The two "semi-official" contenders, Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania and state Sen. Julian Bond of Georgia, are reported even further behind in the financial derby.

The prospect of Bayh's entry could affect all the liberal contenders but particularly Udall, who has worked hard to nail down the support of Liberal Democrats in such states as New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Iowa — all with early delegate contests.

Bayh has strong potential support from liberal trade unions, like the United Auto Workers and the Communications Workers of America, and from some party officials who have remained uncommitted until this point.

He said Wednesday that his intensive travels in the past two months were designed to "see if I can consolidate liberal support, rather than be just another slice of the bacon. But I may be unable to do that (determine the degree of potential support) unless I declare... Nobody in the field now seems to be even close to putting together a significant section of organized labor and some of the liberal troops."

Bayh conducted an exploratory candidacy in 1971 but withdrew from the race without declaring, after his wife had major surgery for cancer.

Jack Nicholson Versatility Itself

By JERRY PARKER
Newspaper

"In the course of 20 years," Jack Nicholson says, "I've been called the young Henry Fonda, the young James Cagney, the new Elisha Cook Jr. and the new Spencer Tracy. I think I've been compared to so many people because I'm not like anyone else."

Not like anyone else, and yet able to transform his peculiar self seemingly into anyone he wants to be: the boozey, small-town aristocrat of "Easy Rider," the low-brow, old Navy man of "The Last Detail," the lady-killer private eye of "Chinatown."

Busy Man
It is surely Nicholson's uniqueness and his versatility, always a winning combination, that has enabled him to go about as far as a movie actor can go. He has been nominated for an Academy Award four out of the past six years; he reportedly makes $750,000 plus a percentage per picture, and recently, he seems to be the star of every other movie that comes out.

Cruising the canyons of Manhattan during a recent visit, Nicholson could gaze through the windows of his limousine at his name in lights over three first-run midtown movie houses. The films, as disparate as their international, superstar directors, are the gaudy rock opera "Tommy," directed by Britain's Ken Russell; the baffling adventure story "The Passenger," directed by Italy's Michelangelo Antonioni; and the sleazebag murder farce "The Fortune," directed by America's Mike Nichols.

Promotes Film
It was "The Fortune" written for Nicholson and his friend Warren Beatty by Carole Eastman, the author of "Five Easy Pieces," and, not incidentally, a film in which the star has a sizable financial interest — that had brought him to New York for a week of promotional activity.

Nicholson spent his days in the city pretty much confined to quarters while his companion of the past two years, actress Anjelica Huston, stalked Bend Sinister and Borwits at the Sherry Netherland Hotel. Nicholson presided over the standard accommodation for visiting Hollywood royalty. Corner suite, High Floor. Dizziness view of Central Park and the skyline surrounding it. Journalists bearing notebooks, tape recorders and cameras shuffled in and out as regularly as room service.

By night, Nicholson and Huston prowled the town. They explored the raunchy downtown pleasures of Tom Egan's Off-Broadway parody, "Women Behind Bars" ("The best thing I've seen," Nicholson said); and dined in uptown elegance with the high priestess of fashion, Diana Vreeland. With his "Fortune" leading lady, Stockard Channing, they took in the Manhattan Transfer at the Bottom Line, planned an evening out with the Ella Kazans, took in the "Chicago" opening and — like everyone else in town — scrambled for a pair of tickets to "A Chorus Line."

One afternoon, when a menacing storm hung over the park and pressed against the 24th floor windows, Nicholson received visitors dressed, as movie stars will these days, in jeans and a boutique-ish T-shirt. He's a small man, just turned 38, with the hint of a paunch; but with two indisputably star-worthy features: the "Cobra Eyes" that Candice Bergen speaks of admiringly and "the killer smile" that Time magazine noted in a cover story last year.

Ill At Ease
He seems ill at ease with questions about his present eminence in the movie industry. Is he, indeed, the most in-demand actor in Hollywood? "That strikes me as a meaningless distinction," he said. "The crucial thing is whether you're being offered jobs or you aren't."

Does he really make $750,000 a picture? Nicholson shrugged. He doesn't know, he said, and he doesn't discuss it. "But it doesn't matter, really, how much you make. You still can't save anything, you're never going to be one of the landed gentry. You just have to remember that John Wayne was broke in 1960 to get some idea of how ephemeral movie money can be."

If he isn't able to put anything aside for a rainy day, then surely a $1 million or more yearly income enables him to live very high. But he doesn't, Nicholson claimed. He still has "the same house, the same car, the same clothes and the same friends" that he had before 1969, when "Easy Rider" made moviegoers Nicholson-conscious. Actually, he had been around for more than a decade before that, making a very good living and achieving something of an underground reputation in a couple dozen low-budget motorcycle and horror films, many of them for director Roger Corman, the king of the B's.

"They were usually exploitation pictures," Nicholson said. "But you were sometimes able to sneak some quality into them. Actually, I'm very proud of some of them." He is particularly proud of a pair of 1968 westerns called "The Shooting" and "Ride the Whirlwind." Nicholson, who describes them as "a thinking man's westerns," starred in both and co-produced them for about $85,000 each. Carole Eastman, who wrote the pen name Adrian Joyce, wrote the screenplay for "The Shooting." Nicholson wrote "Ride the Whirlwind" himself.

No Workaholic
Nicholson denied that he is a workaholic, insisted that it is only coincidence that three of his pictures have opened within a few weeks. "The Passenger," in which he plays a television journalist who swaps identities with a dead man, was filmed two years ago, before he made last year's hit, "Chinatown."

"Tommy," in which he does a bit as the Doctor who tries to cure the deaf, mute and blind hero, amounted to only two days, work for him. Nonetheless, during his New York stay, Nicholson was trying to grow back the hair that he shaved for the recently completed "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," in which he plays a mental patient who has just had a lobotomy — and to cultivate a beard for his next film, a western called "Missouri Breaks," which Arthur Penn will direct from Thomas McGuane's script. Nicholson will play a cattle rustler and Marion Brando a hired killer.

Nicholson is admired for sacrificing his appearance for his art. In "Chinatown," he spent half the picture with a

Rockefellers Pay Visit To Getty

LONDON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and his family, on a private visit to Britain, have paid a visit to American oil millionaire J. Paul Getty at his home near London.

Rockefeller and Getty discussed the energy crisis, the future of the oil industry and conservation matters during a two-hour talk Wednesday, a spokesman for Getty said.

bandage on his nose, which a lot of matinee idols would want to avoid. In "The Fortune," his hair has been curled to give him the wild-eyed appearance of one of the Three Stooges.

"I'm not without vanity," he said. (And he insisted on wearing a cap when his picture was taken). "But I don't want any characteristic of mine to overlap into the character: There's no way to have a lobotomy without having your head shaved. If someone's going to cut up your nose, you'll have to walk around with a bandage. In 'Fortune,' having a kinky-headed character be kinky-headed is good visualization."

Brando, his next costar and longtime Mulholland Drive neighbor, is one of several Academy Award nominees who have spit in the Academy's eye in recent years. George C. Scott and Dustin Hoffman are others. Nicholson shares their anti-establishment reputation, but he said he has no major beef with the Academy. "It's a promotional device," he said, "and a very effective one. It's had a very positive effect on me, and I've tried to reciprocate by spending about 16 of the most uncomfortable hours of my life attending the ceremonies. I don't like the idea of going, but I've gone out of a sense of fair play."

He does not care to be called a four-time loser. "After you've been chosen one of the five best actors of the year — and there are only about 40,000 — then people come up to you and ask how it felt to lose. One doesn't lose an Academy Award."

Summer Mummies Opens Friday

What do the Federnales, the Potomac, the Tiber, the Brazos, the Pecos and the Delaware have in common—besides being rivers, that is?

Simple! They've all figured in the titles of previous Summer Mummies productions here!

Joining such illustrious past productions as "Bungling on the Brazos," "Tribulation on the Tiber" and "Peril on the Pecos" is the Mummies newest "river" show, "Calamity on the Colorado," or "The Briscoe Kid Rides Again," which opens Friday night in the American Legion Hall downtown. The Mummies will present their latest melodrama each Friday and Saturday night through the end of August, for a total of 18 performances.

As title of this newest opus indicates, "Calamity" zeroes in on Austin (whence flows the Colorado on its way to the Gulf) and takes a long, searching look—and more than a few verbal jabs—at Texas politics and politicians.

Heading the Mummies cast is Ron Hughes as the heroic and straightforward young newspaper publisher Billy Hobb, who is Number 2 in the hearts of his fellow Texans. Brenda Hughes will portray sweet young Wanda Lou Welby.

The part of the villainous Snathely Snakecheese is doublecast, with John Meyer

Charges Dismissed Against Reporters

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge has dismissed contempt charges against two newsmen who had refused to disclose news sources for stories containing allegations of illegal police wiretapping.

State District Court Judge Andrew Jefferson dismissed the charges Wednesday against Houston Post reporter Jon Sanderfer and former KTRK-TV television newsmen Larry Con-and Harry Harrison to alternate in the role during the summer's performances. Jim Heck and Robert Volkman will double as Dudley Duster, Billy Hobb's true-blue sidekick. The villain's traditional henchman is instead a "henchperson" this season—Gloria Geldem, tem-taliber. The part will be played alternately by Andrea Knickerbocker and Judy Yeckel. Loree Fitz-Gerald will be seen as the heroine's true-blue friend and confidante, Mammy Van Doren, and Douthea Shaner will sink through the Austin scene as Fatima Foxbody. Bill Heck and Jim Walker are double-cast as the diplomat Ginsberg.

Other members of the Mummies' stellar cast include Joe Hathaway, Marcine Reddick, Ted Caryl, Henry Goulet, Trisha Shelton, Bill Shaner, Gary Atkins, Tish Bralley, Peggy Jacobs and Dianne Patteson.

"Calamity" has been directed by Midland Community Theatre's Art Cole. The hilarious "movieola" sequences which Mummies audiences gleefully anticipate each year, were filmed by Larry Michell, with Cole directing the action.

Following each and every melodrama performance will be the traditional olio or music hall-style review, featuring dancers, singers, standup comedians and various specialty performers. The olio has been co-directed by Cherry Jones and Shirley Hansen, with Mrs. Hansen also serving as director of the Summer Mummies Band.

Many of the upcoming performances are filling fast, and patrons are urged to make their table and ticket reservations without delay through the Mummies box office, 603-2544.

Clayton To Attend Globe Show

ODESSA—Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton will be guest of honor at the Globe of the Great Southwest Saturday night for the opening performance of the Globe's third production of its current Summer Shakespeare Festival.

The Globe is the Permian Basin's unique recreation of an Elizabethan-era theater, one of several structures in the U.S. and elsewhere modeled after Shakespeare's own Globe theater in 17th Century London.

The upcoming performance will be "Troilus and Cressida," playwright Shakespeare's dramatic treatment of the siege of Troy. The production has been staged and directed by guest director Michael Finlayson and features members of the Globe's summer repertory company.

Following its Saturday night opening, "Troilus and Cressida" will alternate in performance with two other productions in the Globe's festival schedule, Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" and a light contemporary musical, "Dames At Sea," through the end of the festival in late August. A fourth production in the season's schedule, a religious drama titled "The Life of Christ," will be presented on Sunday matinees only, beginning in mid-July.

Clayton, a native of Olney, now makes his home at Springlake, Lamb County, northwest of Lubbock. A graduate of Texas A&M University with a degree in agricultural economics, his business interests include ranching, farming and banking.

Clayton was first elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1962 and in the interim has served on all major House committees and has chaired a number of them. He became Speaker last January.

Often called "Mr. Water" because of his interest in, and work on, water legislation, he has played key roles in major water legislation measures and has served on all conservation and water committees. He also serves on the boards of Water Inc. and the Texas Water Conservation Association, and currently is chairman of the Southern Environmental Resources Conference. He is recipient of an award for outstanding service in water conservation from the Fort Worth Press, and received the first award given by the Texas Water Institute for "meritorious contributions in water development."

Clayton will attend a dinner in his honor at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Inn of the Golden West, which will be followed by the opening performance of "Troilus and Cressida" at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets for the dinner and show are available to the public for $6. Tickets for the performance only are on sale at the Globe box office, and may be reserved in advanced by telephoning 332-4031.

'Mellerdrammer' Scheduled By Lubbock Theatre Centre

LUBBOCK—A series of summer weekend performances of "mellerdrammer" are scheduled during July and the first part of August by Lubbock Theatre Centre.

For its first season of melodrama, LTC has chosen "Deadwood Dick" or "The Game of Gold" as the entertainment. The melodrama is the saga of a blind heroine adrift among miners, cowboys, saloon girls and temperance advocates. Pamela Brown is directing.

The traditional olio which will follow all performances will feature many of Lubbock's best-known public personalities in guest spots. The lineup will change nightly.

The summer entertainment, scheduled to open at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Convention Center of the KoKo Inn at 50th Street and Avenue Q, will have a second presentation at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, with additional performances each Friday and Saturday through Aug. 9.

Friday Busy Day For Planetarium

Friday will be a busy day at the Marian Blakemore Planetarium of the Museum of the Southwest, with a full schedule of events planned to mark Independence Day.

The planetarium in Haley Park, corner of West Indiana and South K streets, will offer public programs—four in all—at intervals during the day. Admission to each will be 50 cents for adults and children alike.

The day's events will be initiated with a program titled "What's Your Sagittarius?", one of the special astrology programs which have been presented each Friday in recent weeks.

At 2 p.m., a program titled "How to Watch a Flying Saucer" is planned, to be followed by another "Sagittarius" program beginning at 3:30 p.m. The final presentation of the day will be another "Flying Saucer" program, scheduled for 8 p.m.

The "How to Watch a Flying Saucer" program is scheduled for succeeding Friday evenings during July.

house to raise funds for its work at a later date, and the Lions Club will sponsor one performance to raise funds for its eye bank project.

Tickets for performances of the melodrama and music hall-style olio are priced at $3 for adults and $2 for children under age 12. An optional buffet meal is available to playgoers. The box office number is 808-744-9931.

Midland Painter To Exhibit Work At Scurry Museum

SNYDER — Midland artist Charles N. Pruitt will be represented with paintings in a new exhibition scheduled to open Sunday at the Scurry County Museum in Snyder.

Pruitt will be honor guest at a reception between 1 and 5 p.m. Sunday marking the opening of the show, which is scheduled to continue through July 18. The reception will be open to the public. Visiting hours on subsequent days will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday each week, and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Fridays.

Pruitt, who has a home and studio at 711 Kent St., in Midland, works in both oils and watercolor and specializes in landscapes of the Southwest. The Colorado City native, who has been interested in all types of art since early school days, recently had specialized art study at Tsos, N.M., with George Cherepov, author of a number of art instruction books. Pruitt will be demonstrating some of Cherepov's painting techniques to art groups in Snyder during his forthcoming visit.

The Midland artist, who holds membership in the Southwestern Watercolor Society and the Texas Fine Arts Association, has had one-man shows in recent months in Odessa and Colorado City, as well as at Theatre Centre in Midland.

'Falstaff' Opens At SFO Friday

SANTA FE, N.M.—"Falstaff," Giuseppe Verdi's comic masterpiece, will have its first performance in the Santa Fe Opera's current season Friday night.

The new production, designed by Allen Charles Klein and directed by Colin Graham, will repeat on July 9, 11 and 23 and Aug. 5 and 19. Edo de Waart, music director of the Rotterdam Philharmonic and principal guest conductor of the San Francisco Symphony, will be on the podium for all performances. Costumes for the production have been designed by Suzanne Mess.

"Falstaff" will feature acclaimed young soprano Ruth Welting in her Santa Fe debut as Nanetta, and others singing principal roles in the opera include Thomas Stewart in the title role, and Helen Varri, Jean Kraft and Betty Allen as Mistress Ford, Meg Page and Mistress Quickly. Brent Ellis will sing the role of Ford and James Atherton will be heard as Fenton.

The Santa Fe Opera's 19th season opened Wednesday night with a new production of Bizet's famous "Carmen."

FEATURED ENTERTAINER—Vocalist Jeannie Williams is the current headliner at the Rodeway Inn Lounge, IS 20 and Rankin Highway on the south edge of Midland. A talented pianist and organist as well as singer, Jeannie entertains nightly from 8:30 until closing.

Artists Equity Chapter Organized In WT Area

Professional artists in developing their own economic and legislative programs.

Unlike strictly local or regional organizations that are geographically provincial, national Equity transcends regional differences, yet, at the same time, because of its chapters located throughout the nation, it can provide essential local action where needed, King points out. For example, Equity chapters have dealt vigorously with certain unprofessional practices regarding exhibitions, helped resolve troubled relations between artists and museums, provided legal assistance to Equity members who have been unfairly exploited and developed channels of communication through which members can exchange information and firsthand experiences in matters of concern as creative artists.

Equity, a national organization, pursues federal action (from both the executive and legislative branches of government) to benefit all members of the association, and also works actively to create a favorable public image of the professional artist and his contributions to society.

According to William A. King of Odessa, an Equity member since 1962, who was elected president of the West Texas unit at the organizational meeting recently, the association for almost 30 years has represented the best interests of practicing artists throughout the country on significant economic and legal issues, and more recently the association has formulated a "Declaration of Rights" to guide artists and artist groups.

However, Equity is not in existence to help members advance their personal professional standing, it has been emphasized. Inevitably, artists succeed or fail on the strength or weakness of their own personal efforts and capabilities, Equity believes. The association instead does all it can for the promotion and advancement of the art profession as a whole, the president of the newly-formed chapter points out.

Serving with King as officers of the West Texas unit are Wesley D. Simpson, first vice president; Barry Phillips, second vice president; Pamela Champion-Price, secretary, and Dorothy Peterson, treasurer. J. Roderick Price will be legal advisor to the chapter.

Callaway Denies 'Southern Strategy'

WASHINGTON — Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway, who becomes President Ford's campaign manager today, said Wednesday he was not chosen for his political job to pursue anything resembling the "Southern strategy" embraced by former President Nixon.

"If all he (President Ford) wanted me for was some kind of Southern strategy," said Callaway in his farewell press conference at the Pentagon as secretary of the Army, "he's sure got the wrong guy."

Callaway said "that didn't come up" when asked if Mr. Ford had discussed Callaway's role in winning the South in the 1976 election campaign. Callaway is a former Republican congressman from Georgia who made an unsuccessful run for the governorship of that state in 1966.

Leadbelly's Daughter Loses Lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — A daughter of the late Huddie Ledbetter has lost her suit in federal court to block release of "Leadbelly," a film about the life of the late blues singer.

Judge Jack Roberts refused to enjoin release of the film.

Lawyers for Jessie Mae Ledbetter Baisley of San Francisco said they would proceed with a $750,000 damage suit against Paramount Pictures, which made the film.

Witnesses for Paramount indicated that previews of the film would be offered July 25.

The movie deals with a 20-year period in Ledbetter's life, from 1905 to 1925, said Marc Merson, producer of "Leadbelly."

Mrs. Baisley's lawyers contended the movie makes unauthorized use of the name, appearance and life story of her father, who died in 1949. But Merson testified that Mrs. Baisley, a Port Arthur, Tex., native, signed a release last year.

Mrs. Baisley's suit is based on a claim that she is Ledbetter's sole surviving heir.

But Paramount's lawyer here, Charlie Dye, produced documents, filed in a New York probate court, that indicated Ledbetter left his estate to his wife and another daughter.

Merson said the movie does not make even passing mention of Mrs. Baisley, who was born in 1927.

practical purposes" might be over, as the Ford administration has viewed the scene, it is still deep and ominous and very painful in the view of labor leaders.

The May jobless rate was 9.2 per cent and could go even higher before summer ends.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates the rate will be near 9 per cent through 1975 and fall only to 7.8 per cent to 8.2 per cent by the end of 1976.

Such a rate of joblessness is bound to restrain any improvement in retail sales, automobiles included. It will deprive the nation of the use of productive skills. It will mean a drain on taxes. It might mean social crises.

One explanation for the poor job outlook is the number of other obstacles on the road to recovery. Business fears expanding too swiftly, lest it be caught far out on a limb. Expansion plans are still being cut.

As this wait-and-see attitude continues, production facilities remain idle and so do workers. Even when production begins slowly to improve, companies might be reluctant to hire proportionately, hoping for a time at least to obtain greater output per manhour. Over the next few months watch the news out from foreign countries. Record harvests are expected, but weather almost always deals a blow to human expectations. A poor harvest here, or almost anywhere in the world, could reduce the expected surpluses.

Yes, the country seems to be coming out of the economic woods. It can see the road ahead, but it will take some careful driving to wheel a big vehicle like the American economy through the obstructions without a few scrapes.

While the recession "for all practical purposes" might be over, as the Ford administration has viewed the scene, it is still deep and ominous and very painful in the view of labor leaders.

Rockets' Red Glare Product Of Communist China?

By JACK LEFLER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This time the rockets' red glare may be a product of Communist China.

Chinese rockets and firecrackers are being imported for bicentennial displays in 1976 as the United States celebrates its 200th birthday, the owner of the nation's largest fireworks supplier says.

Fireworks also will be supplied by England — America's foe in the War of 1812 when Francis Scott Key wrote the "Star-Spangled Banner" — as well as from France, Canada, Taiwan, Japan, Mexico, Brazil and other South American countries, he adds.

"We're kind of in the unique position of celebrating our 200th anniversary — at least in part — with fireworks made in the world's biggest communistic country," says Patrick Moriarty, owner of Pyrotechnics Inc. in suburban Anaheim.

"The capacity of the domestic manufacturers is not sufficient to handle the volume of business. It is getting more the case as we get closer to the bicentennial in 1976."

He estimated that China will be the third largest supplier for the bicentennial windings, with their fireworks expected to make up 10 per cent to 15 per cent of the total consumed in red, white and blue displays. Japan and Canada will be the leaders, he says.

Pyrotechnics, supplier of fireworks for the daily summer shows at Disneyland and Disney World, has been stockpiling pyrotechnics for the last two years in anticipation of the bicentennial observances.

"The products the Chinese are making are superior to all others," he said. "Their colors and their materials are according to traditional practices. They haven't reduced their quality in the last 20 years."

The Chinese invented fireworks about 800 A.D. and have used them in their celebrations ever since.

Former Midlander Reelected Director Of Energy Group

FORT WORTH — W.G. Marquardt, president of Texas Electric Service Co. and a former Midlander, was reelected a director of the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation at a meeting of the directors at Austin.

Announced at a luncheon prior to the board meeting was continuation of foundation-supported research into thermo-nuclear fusion reactions at The University of Texas. The foundation, composed of Texas Electric and nine other investor-owned electric companies in Texas, is supporting research in nuclear fusion as a possible source of energy for producing electricity.

Foundation support of nuclear fusion research at the university began in 1963. Under the research agreement announced at the luncheon, the foundation will provide $800,000 over a two-year period for continuation of the program.

Nuclear fusion, the same process that powers the sun, is thought by most scientists to be the ultimate solution to mankind's energy problems. The basic fuel is deuterium, easily obtainable from ordinary sea water which contains enough of this fuel to provide electric energy for thousands of years into the future.

Research is being carried on in the physics and engineering laboratories at the university.

Natural Gas Discovery Eases Laredo's Loss Of Air Base

By STEVEN M. EAMES LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Two years ago this South Texas border city seemed perched on the brink of a depression when the Air Force closed its base here. Today, Laredo is courting a financial rebirth.

Wildcaters hit natural gas south of the city 13 months ago, and some oilmen claimed it could be the nation's largest domestic gas field discovery in the past 25 or 30 years.

Some landowners already are receiving their first royalty checks. One driller recently told about a family that had scraped a living off spare land by burning prickly pear cactus as feed for cattle. Now, the driller said, the family's gas royalties amount to $6,000 a day.

Isidro Moreno, a migrant farm worker who along with six sisters and an uncle inherited more than 500 acres of land on which two wells were drilled, said he got $2,900 last month as his share of royalties. Moreno added that he will never again pick cantaloupes, tomatoes or cotton.

"Everyday we see more and we see more," Jim Mayo, a Laredo banker, said about the benefits to the Laredo economy. But Mayo and other Laredo residents said the boom hasn't hit yet for most. And, some question whether it will be a boom at all.

"It's a boom for landowners, the oil industry and supply people, but not necessarily for the average (non-oil) worker," said Bruno Abrego, director of the Texas Employment Commission here. And, the size of the natural gas discovery depends on who is talking, said John Mann, a lawyer who represents some landowners in the area.

"If it's a company involved in getting financing, it's exceeded in dry holes."

Drillers are running into other problems, too, he added. They include abnormally pressured reservoirs, expensive operations, rough surface terrain for drilling sites and logistical problems that hamper drilling operations.

Despite continuing questions over the extent of any boom, the discovery already is having some positive effects on the local economy. Abrego noted that construction never dropped here as it did recently in other parts of the state and nation. And some workers are finding jobs when suppliers and oil companies open offices.

Apartments and homes which stood empty after the Air Force base closed are full again, Mann said. Motels are often full, New motels are under construction. Gary Jacobs, another Laredo banker, said while his institution's deposits haven't risen sharply, loan demand has increased sharply.

Jacobs said the boom is "still embryonic," but that Laredo, a city of about 72,000 population, "will benefit later." "I expect a fairly dramatic transformation in the whole economy here," Jacobs added.

Crucial Battle In what was later termed the turning point in the Civil War, Gen. George Meade's Union forces defeated the Confederates under Robert E. Lee in 1863 at Gettysburg, Pa.

Some other oilmen are more conservative. One said in a recent interview that the field is so faulted that it is impossible to say how big it may be. John Greco, district production geologist for Gulf Oil Corp., said the trend is big but, "No one knows the exact limits of the reservoirs nor the reserves that exist... and I mean no one."

Some oilmen contended that drillers were hitting more dry holes than is normal. "It wouldn't surprise us," said Greco, "because when the complexity of the geology in the area and the outpost locations are considered... it doesn't surprise us that someone thinks the industry average main over-optimistic."

He said, "I guess I believe that the OPEC countries, because the good Lord put all the oil there, are going to be around a long time, and we're going to have to be using their oil for a long time."

"Recognizing that, we've got to find a route that is accommodating to world problems. They need us, and we need them. It's just that simple."

Exxon's talks with Saudi Arabia over the future of Aramco, the big Saudi producer controlled now by Exxon and three other U.S. companies, still have a ways to go, Garvin said.

Saudi Arabia wants 100 per cent ownership of Aramco's producing assets, and the companies want access to crude oil later on. The executive said, however, there was a deep urgency for the companies to resolve the Aramco arrangement because "on a cash flow basis we are making only three to four cents a barrel" on crude oil taken from Saudi Arabia.

Government Participation In Oil Fact Of Life Says New Exxon Head

NEW YORK (AP) — Government participation in the energy business is a fact of life which is here to stay, says the next chairman of Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company. Clifton C. Garvin Jr., in one of his first interviews since it was announced that he would become chairman of the oil giant Aug. 1, said, however, that the federal government should move toward a return to free markets while supplying financial aid and priorities for future energy development.

He said his greatest fear was that Exxon would become a public utility. "We're going to have government as a partner in this country and all over the world from now on," Garvin said. "I'm not resigned to it, I accept it as a fact of life."

"All of the energy projects governments want around the world can't be financed by the private sector. There just isn't that much money." A chemical engineer who joined Exxon in 1947 and who watches birds in his spare time, Garvin moves up from president to succeed J. K. Jamieson as Exxon chairman. The post pays more than $600,000 a year.

In other comments during the wide-ranging interview at Exxon's New York headquarters Wednesday, Garvin said a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict would not substantially lessen

Arab demands for higher oil prices. "Too many militants realize they have a depleting resource and you've got a shah who has himself overcommitted and needs all the money he can get his hands on," Garvin said.

Shah Reza Pahlavi of Iran, undertaking major development plans, has been among the oil lands' leading price hawks. Garvin said he thought the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries might increase prices 10 to 15 per cent this fall.

Garvin also made clear that development of coal was a major Exxon objective, followed by uranium mining and enrichment. "Coal production has to be doubled in a reasonable time frame," he said.

He dismissed comments that Exxon's expansion into other energy fields might open the company up to antitrust charges. The executive said federal energy policy continues to drift and that administration goals of energy self-sufficiency remain over-optimistic. He said, "I guess I believe that the OPEC countries, because the good Lord put all the oil there, are going to be around a long time, and we're going to have to be using their oil for a long time."

"Recognizing that, we've got to find a route that is accommodating to world problems. They need us, and we need them. It's just that simple."

Exxon's talks with Saudi Arabia over the future of Aramco, the big Saudi producer controlled now by Exxon and three other U.S. companies, still have a ways to go, Garvin said.

Saudi Arabia wants 100 per cent ownership of Aramco's producing assets, and the companies want access to crude oil later on. The executive said, however, there was a deep urgency for the companies to resolve the Aramco arrangement because "on a cash flow basis we are making only three to four cents a barrel" on crude oil taken from Saudi Arabia.

Stock Mart Bounces Back From Mild Early Decline

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market bounced back from a mild early decline to show a very slight gain today in quiet pre-holiday trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 3 points in the early going, was up 1.02 at 871.40 by noon. Gainers took a narrow lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some early selling greeted the news of a prime rate increase by New York's First National City Bank from 6% to 7% per cent. But brokers noted that the move had been largely taken into account in advance with the Dow's 7-point drop on Wednesday.

Varian Associates was the Big Board volume leader, up 2 1/2 at 17 1/2. The issue has been heavily traded since early last week, when the company reported development of a new, small solar energy cell.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .17 at 82.82.

The slow pace of activity had been expected, with the markets due to be closed Friday for Independence Day.

The government this morning reported that both the unemployment rate and wholesale prices declined in May. But the downturn in the jobless figure was ascribed to a statistical vagary, and officials cautioned against taking it as a sign of a significant change in the unemployment picture.

United Gas Pipeline rose 3/4 to 12 1/2 and Pennzoil was down 1/4 at 22 1/2, both in active trading. United said Wednesday the staff of the Federal Power Commission had agreed to accept a proposed settlement of an investigation into Pennzoil's 1974 spinoff of United.

The NYSE's composite commission-stock index rose .11 to 50.40.

Gurney Says He Was Afraid Illegal Fund-Raising Would Be Leaked To Press

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Former Sen. Edward Gurney says that when he first learned of illegal fund-raising in his name, he didn't immediately report it because he was afraid it would be leaked to the press, embarrassing him and the Senate Watergate Committee.

Gurney, testifying Wednesday in his bribery conspiracy trial, said he later made up his mind to go to the Justice Department. But he said he first went on vacation to collect his thoughts—and during that time a major newspaper story appeared about the scandal.

"This was an horrendous period in my life," the ex-lawmaker told the jurors in his federal court trial.

Gurney, a 61-year-old Republican, has denied all seven criminal charges against him. He was to return to the stand for cross-examination today in the 5-month-old trial.

Gurney, ex-Ohio Joseph Bastien, and former federal housing officials K. Wayne Swiger and Ralph Kozick are charged with conspiracy to build an illegal slush fund from Florida builders by promising Gurney's influence with the Federal Housing Administration.

Gurney, who did not seek reelection after the scandal broke, also is charged with bribery, lying to a grand jury, and receiving an unlawful compensation an oceanfront condominium.

Gurney testified he never took part in a scheme to defraud the government, never agreed to receive a free condominium for favors to a builder, and never lied to the grand jury that indicted him.

Gurney said he did not learn about the illegal fund raising until July 1973—2 1/2 years after it started. He said he at first had a letter hand-delivered to the office of then-Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson, calling for an investigation. But Gurney said he reconsidered and ordered the letter retrieved unopened.

"I know there are no secrets in politics in Washington," Gurney said. "I knew that the letter would be released to the press and become public knowledge within a few days, de-

Average American Household Consists Of Fewer Than Three Persons Now

WASHINGTON—For the first time in American history the average household consists of fewer than three persons, and the Census Bureau says this is part of a basic change in how Americans live and how they relate to each other.

A report released Wednesday told of a declining marriage rate, an increasing divorce rate, a continued low birth rate, and a greater number of women remaining single past their teenage years.

"I think this is something of a new, complex syndrome of circumstances we've never had before," said Paul C. Glick, senior demographer in the Census Bureau's population division.

His report noted a change in the role of women. It pointed out the greater number of women working, the higher educational attainments of women and their increased economic independence from their husbands.

Glick said the full impact of the trends on people's ability to find companionship and a satisfactory life under new circumstances isn't clear yet.

"It's going to be different, but not necessarily worse. It will take a while to get used to these changes and that may be what has to be done," Glick said.

The report noted these trends:

- The number of marriages dropped by nearly 3 per cent in 1974.
- The divorce rate in 1974 was the highest since 1947.
- The birth rate in 1974 was the lowest since 1964.
- The number of women remaining single past their teenage years increased.

Probers Say SW Bell 'Manipulates Accounting Data To Maximize Profit'

AUSTIN (AP) — The staff and consultants of a Senate subcommittee probing rate practices by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said today they had found evidence that the company "has manipulated accounting data to maximize its own profit at the expense of the consumer."

They said, however, they had found "no evidence that the company has maintained 'two sets of books,'" as alleged in a lawsuit filed by a fired Bell executive.

"Nor do we find strong evidence that to support the assertion that the company has deliberately falsified essential facts requested by municipal rate consultants for the purpose of verifying the company's claimed revenue requirements."

The report to the Senate Consumer Affairs subcommittee was prepared for presentation at the subcommittee's second meeting.

Tami King, David Dodson Get Grants

Tami King and David A. Dodson have been selected as recipients of two $500 scholarships sponsored by The Midland National Bank.

Miss King, a Lee High School graduate, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. King, 2100 Wadley Road, apartment 134. A member of the Rebelettes honor squad and an employee at Mister Penguin Tuxedo, she is listed in the 1974 edition of "Who's Who in American High Schools."

She plans to attend Angelo State University to major in business administration.

Dodson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dodson, 2616 Franklin St., is a Midland High School graduate. With plans to attend Texas A&M University for a major in nuclear engineering, he is an employee of Featherlite Block Company.

He participated in varsity football and baseball during his junior year in high school and is assistant scout master for Boy Scout Troop No. 158.

Rate expert George Hess helped the staff with its investigation.

The report said Hess believed that if the new state utilities commission "closely regulates and reforms telephone rate practices... the average Texas rate request could be reduced by up to 50 per cent."

"Rate-making principles applied by Southwestern Bell in its rate increase applications have been untenable," Hess said.

In addition, the staff said it had found evidence that Bell "has wrung every possible advantage out of the generally chaotic and ineffective regulatory system in Texas."

Hess reviewed eight of the company's rate-setting practices, such as depreciation and the weight given to reproduction cost in determining fair value.

"Bell telephone effectively victimizes consumers at two stages through the device of depreciation," the report said, adding that the company "consistently overstates depreciation for expense purposes and understates depreciation in determining the value of the physical plant. Thus the company inflates rate base and expenses."

The company's practice of

Uranium Mine Will Stay Open

AUSTIN (AP) — Operators of the Karnes County uranium mine that Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he feared would close if he signed a strip mining bill say the mine will stay open.

Briscoe signed the bill into law June 21. It requires coal, lignite and uranium miners to restore the land to its original state or a "substantially beneficial condition."

W. M. Jensen, project manager of the Conquista mine, told the Austin American-Statesman Wednesday that Continental Oil Co. and the Pioneer Corp. will keep the mine open in "the immediate future" and will "make every effort to continue operations as long as it is possible to do so."

determining fair value rate bases by "giving 80 per cent weight to reproduction cost (less depreciation) and 20 per cent weight to original cost (less depreciation)..." has exaggerated by millions the company's actual investment, thus inflating local rate bases and creating artificial requirements for higher telephone rates to consumers."

The report said Bell also claims it pays a federal income tax of 48 per cent and includes the tax as an expense, which it recovers in rate charged to consumers. "Yet," the report said, "the company does not actually pay the full amount of the taxes it claims as an expense. It in effect is now charging consumers for taxes which it does not actually pay."

Bicentennial Coin To Be Displayed At Andrews Fete

ANDREWS—The final design for the Andrews Bicentennial '76 coin will be on display Friday during Independence Day celebrations here at Andrews Lakeside Park.

The coin design, created and drawn by Roland Rose, was publicly exhibited for the first time today at the Commercial State Bank.

Themes combined in the design include Texas history, Andrews pioneer days, the national spirit and America's Bicentennial.

Rose, an Andrews Middle School teacher, incorporated into four coin design ideas contributed by Andrews citizens.

The designs were then submitted to the Andrews Bicentennial Coin Committee, which chose the design to be minted. After the July 4 festival, the design will be sent to a mint in Philadelphia.

Bicentennial Plans Explained To Lions

Members of the Downtown Lions Club were brought up to date Wednesday noon on the nation's Bicentennial observance in Midland at their meeting in the American Legion Hall.

Joe Dominey, chairman of the Tall City's Bicentennial Commission, was the speaker.

Dominey reviewed the background and organizational setup of the commission, which has as its slogan "Enjoy Your Freedom—It's Your Nation's Birthday."

He explained that the Bicentennial is everywhere, in every community throughout the land, with no one focal point.

The speaker said the Bicentennial has three basic themes, nationwide: Heritage '76; Festival U.S.A., and Horizons '76.

He mentioned several Bicentennial projects being sponsored by Midland organizations and invited the Lions Club to consider sponsoring a specific project.

The U.S. Army Field Band, he said, will be presented in a special Bicentennial program here in September.

Dominey told of the various 4th of July events scheduled here and invited everyone to participate in or attend one or more of them.

Two Air Force Men Found Dead In Crashed Plane

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — Two Air Force enlisted men were found dead Wednesday in the wreckage of their light plane which crashed in rugged ranch country north of here.

Civil Air Patrol pilots had searched for the missing plane since last weekend, when it vanished during a rain storm while on a flight from Del Rio to San Antonio.

Authorities identified the victims as Airman I.C. Rex Adams, 20, of Huntsburg, Ohio, the pilot, and John McNally, 18, of Fall River, Mass. Both were stationed at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio.

Investigators said the wreckage was mostly intact although it had burned a little. Cause of the crash was not known.

Democratic Chiefs Think Wallace Unlikely To Win Nomination In '76

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party leaders around the country disagree sharply in their assessments of the strength George C. Wallace likely will amass when the party selects delegates to its 1976 presidential nominating convention.

However, an Associated Press survey found general agreement among the leaders that it now appears highly unlikely that Wallace can gain enough support to win the party's presidential nomination, although his delegates could hold a crucial balance of power. The survey, which produced responses from more than half the 50 states including 17 of the 30 now expected to hold primaries, conformed with an estimate of Wallace strength made at the party's national headquarters. The estimate, based on Wallace's past showings and the way in which the 1976 delegates would probably enter the 1976 convention with more than 720 delegates. That is nearly double the 385.7 he received on the first ballot in 1972 and could surpass any other candidate — but it is far short of the 1,504 delegates needed to capture the 1976

Democratic nomination. The wide disparity in forecasts is shown by the fear by party leaders in Wisconsin and Indiana that Wallace may win their presidential primaries, while leaders in neighboring Illinois, Minnesota and Nebraska see little support for the Alabama governor.

In part, the survey shows, the likely Wallace strength is affected by the kind of primary that is held. In a straight popularity contest, where delegates will be divided proportionately according to popular vote, Wallace is expected to do better than in states where delegates will be elected directly.

In the South, Wallace will be tested by a number of regional hopefuls — former Gov. Terry Sanford in North Carolina, Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas in his home state and in Tennessee, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia in that state and in Florida, and possibly Sen. Dale Bumpers in Arkansas.
