Stanton Man Killed In Wreck

STANTON — Alred Wayne Graves, 26, of Stanton, was killed at 7 a.m. today when his pickup truck failed to make a curve in the north service road of Interstate 20 four miles west of here, Department of Public Safety officials said. Officials said he traveled through the culvert, becoming airborne for approximately 100 feet. The vehicle crossed Farm Market 829, flipped over four times and came to rest on the bank of 829, officials reported. Graves was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Martin L. Gibson. He was transported to the Gilbreath Funeral Home here. Services will be at 4 p.m. Saturday in the Stanton Church of Christ with Claud Woods. (See STANTON Page 7A)

Terrorist Bombing Injures 32

JERUSALEM (AP)—Arab terrorists packed an old refrigerator with powerful explosives then exploded it in downtown Jerusalem today during the morning rush hour, killing at least 14 persons and wounding 32, police said. Police Minister Shlomo Hillel denied an earlier police report that terrorists subsequently sped through a nearby street spraying passers-by with bullets.

He said an Arab car had been seen speeding through the city shortly after the blast and "perhaps someone fired a shot at it." The Arabs may have panicked and fled the area to avoid arrest or a revenge attack, other officials said.

Terror Strikes It was the worst terror strike at the Holy City since November 1968 when a bomb ripped through an open air market, killing 12 Israelis and wounding 52. The Palestinian guerrillas said the attack was their work. A statement from the guerrilla command in Beirut, Lebanon, published by the Palestinian news agency, said: "The Palestinian revolution is responsible for the heroic operation by a unit of the martyr Farid Bobali Squad in the heart of Jerusalem."

The announcement did not identify Bobali, but presumably he is a guerrilla killed in a previous attack. Nor did it say which guerrilla organization the Bobali squad is part of.

The bomb exploded at about 10 a.m. when the city was crowded with housewives and others shopping in preparation for the Jewish Sabbath.

About 33 pounds of explosive were hidden inside a refrigerator left in front of a toy shop and a paint store, the police said. Both shops were destroyed and windows in neighboring buildings were blown out.

Griety Scene The streets around the square were a grisly scene of bodies, blood, scattered shopping bags and broken glass.

"I heard a huge explosion," said a clerk who was working in a nearby store. "I ran out and saw bodies lying in the street and blood and wounded people trying to move. Then the ambulances came."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Defense Minister Shimon Peres toured the Zion Square scene but declined comment pending a police inquiry.

In all, 90 Arabs from the occupied west bank of Jordan and Arab East Jerusalem were detained for questioning, police said.

Police reported several incidents of Jews beating up Arabs nearby, but no large-scale retaliation. Hillel said Israel will step up security measures against Arabs coming into the city, especially summer visitors crossing the Jordan River from Jordan.

GROUND—George Choucalas' hot air balloon ran into problems this morning at Bowie Elementary School when he attempted to kick off Midland's Fourth of July festivities by carrying a 90-foot banner of flags aloft. Winds forced the balloon down and the event had to be cancelled. The celebration continued, however, at Wadley-Barron Park and will be capped by a Kiwanis-sponsored program at Cub Stadium at 8 p.m. and fireworks at 10 p.m. (Staff photo by Charles McCain.)

More Rain Threatens Festivities

Midland skies released a deluge of rain Thursday and families here were hoping for a clear forecast today as Independence Day celebrations get under way. But the weatherman isn't cooperating very much and a 30 per cent chance of more rain is forecast this afternoon with 20 per cent probability of thunderstorm activity tonight. The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported a high pressure system is pushing moist Gulf air into West Texas, and this combined with daytime heating is the cause of recent and forecast showers. The weather service at Air Terminal measured 1.7 inches on the rain gauge Thursday from 6 a.m. to about 3 p.m. The downpour caused major streets such as Midkiff Road, Midland Drive, Illinois and Tennessee just to name a few to be curb to curb with water runoff during the heaviest periods of shower activity. The street flooding had subsided by mid-afternoon. On a spot check trip make across the city, stranded motorists could be seen on the major streets waiting for their vehicles to dry out after having drowned out while trying to negotiate the water laden streets at too high a rate of speed. Fred Baker, public works director, said any citizen having potholes washed out near his home could contact the street maintenance department at city hall to get a repair crew to replace the washed out paving. Baker said it would be a great help if citizens called these minor street damages in because city crews could not possibly tour every street in search of the minor damages. A rain measurement of two inches was recorded at the R. D. Jones home two miles northeast of the city. A gauge at the Charles Green home two miles south measured 3/4 of an inch. In the southeast sector of Midland County at the Sohio Petroleum Plant the downpour amounted to 1.2 inches. The Gulf pumping station at the east edge of the city recorded 1.98 inches. The Norman Koonce farm located in the heart of Jerusalem.

BUT DEFICIT STILL EXPECTED—

Hospital To Increase Room Rates

By LUANNA CROW Despite a $5 per day room rate increase, the Midland Memorial Hospital budget shows an anticipated deficit of $34,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1976. The hospital's board of directors has approved a $6.5 million budget and room rate increase to bring the hospital's finances near a "break-even point," according to administrator Wayne Ulrich. Ulrich said, however, the hospital does not actually expect to be in the red at the end of the year, but will trim the anticipated deficit by utilizing "tight fiscal controls and prudent management." Ulrich said the room rate increase was necessitated by continually rising costs for the institution. The action will boost the average room rate from $53 to $58. Without the increase, the year-end budget would show a deficit estimated at $12,967. He said directors ruled out a possible $7.50 rate hike which would give the hospital an estimated excess of $55,368. The $5 room rate increase will not be enacted until Midland Memorial obtains approval from Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Texas. Ulrich anticipated their official sanction near the middle of July. The approved operational budget for 1975-76 projects $6,503,285 in patient service revenue, less $281,520 in deductions for such discounts as Medicare and Medicaid programs leaving a net revenue of $6,221,765. Patient service expenses should total $3,432,028, and general service expenses, including administrative, dietary, housekeeping and maintenance costs, add up to $2,031,671. Total direct operating expenses are projected to be $5,463,699, compared to a net income of $758,066. Indirect expenses to the hospital will include an estimated $442,149 for the 7 per cent uncollectable bills and $390,000 reserve for depreciation. Ulrich said the budgeted amount for depreciation is a "recognized operating expense" which helps pay for renovations, modernizations, equipment and replacement of such outfitting as plumbing and heating systems. Regarding the 7 per cent rate of uncollectable fees, Ulrich said the hospital historically has operated under "an open door policy" whereby no individual is turned away from necessary treatment because he is unable to pay. He noted, however, Midland Memorial is a non-profit, non-tax supported institution which is "dependent upon income received for services rendered."

Eagle Pass Butane Truck Explosion Claims 16th Life

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — More than two months after a butane-laden trailer truck overturned and exploded at Eagle Pass, a 16th victim died at Brooke Army Burns Center here Thursday night of severe burns suffered in the explosion.

A spokesman for the hospital said early today that Juan A. Ontiveros, 18, of Eagle Pass died at 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

The youth had been in critical condition since the explosion April 29 at Eagle Pass, the spokesman said. He had second and third-degree burns over 78 per cent of his body.

The spokesman said Jesus Ontiveros, 52, father of the most recent fatality, is still in critical condition with burns over 53 per cent of his body. Pedro Ontiveros, 15, brother of Juan, is listed in serious condition with burns covering 70 per cent of his body.

The explosion occurred after the butane truck swerved to avoid hitting another truck.

Six persons apparently died instantly or immediately after the explosion and now 10 others have succumbed to severe burns.

Houston Man Charged With Murder Of Wife

HOUSTON (AP) — A 47-year-old Houston food salesman has been charged with murder in the death of his wife following a day-long siege in which he barricaded himself in his daughter's home.

Cleve Bayne was charged with murder late Thursday after members of the Houston Police Department's SWAT force convinced Bayne to surrender. No shots were fired during the eight-hour drama.

Bayne's estranged wife Annis, 47, was dead on arrival at a hospital Thursday morning after she was gunned down while waiting a ride to work.

Witnesses told police they saw a man get out of a car with a gun and shoot Mrs. Bayne and then return to the car and race off. One witness noted the license number of the car and phoned police.

Police later found Bayne barricaded in his daughter's house and evacuated the neighborhood. Repeated attempts by relatives and police failed to get Bayne to surrender until late Thursday afternoon. Then he surrendered without a struggle.

Bayne chatted quietly on the telephone with newsmen during the day. "This is just something that mounted up over a period of time," he said. "You know, time does things to you—it can help or it can hurt."

Bayne's brother, "Pappy" Bayne, said Bayne and his wife were separated.

"Just last night we were sitting around playing cards and I thought he had forgot about it," the brother said. "If I'd had any idea he was going to do this I'd have stopped him."

Police said that in March 1971, Bayne was arrested on top of a downtown hotel where he had gone with a rifle and three pistols after a dispute with his wife.

Former Slave Marks 133rd Anniversary

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Smith celebrated his 133rd birthday today "just like always, eatin' some cake and tellin' some stories."

"The country and Charlie are sharing a birthday," Nelson Curran, the administrator of the nursing home where Smith now lives, said in a toast to the former slave at a party on the eve of Independence Day. "Let's hope both of them have many more."

Smith, who says he was born in 1842 and first saw America from the deck of a slave ship 121 years ago, grinned broadly as he opened his gifts — a new cowboy hat, an orange-colored bathrobe and two cartons of cigarettes — before an applauding crowd of nursing home patients.

He said his only regret was the absence of a drink of whiskey.

"I always had a touch of whiskey on my birthday, but they won't let you drink around here," Smith grumbled. "And they tried to give me a bath, too. I didn't like that either, trying to strip me and take off my cowboy shirt."

"I'm fixin' to pack up my stuff and hit the street if they don't watch out."

Smith, who says he worked as an orange picker near this citrus-belt town until he was 115, says he has no secret to long life.

"I'm the oldest man in the United States, but I don't feel old," he told newsmen. "I feel about 18 or 20."

"Only reason I don't get married again is them women want too much. Every time you turn around they want something." Smith said he has survived three wives and has one living son, 73.

He told how he was taken into slavery at an African beach in what is now Liberia.

"The captain of the ship, he told us to come aboard and get a look at his fritter tree. Fritter, that's another word for pancake. Well, he said he had this here fritter tree and we could pick fritters right off it."

"We went down and the next thing we knew we was away out in the ocean. I never saw my mamma again."

NAACP Sues To End Aid For Segregated Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says the government has abandoned requirements that racially segregated school districts in the North and West be denied federal funds.

The NAACP filed a federal court suit Thursday asking that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare be ordered to move against districts it says are segregated.

The suit asks that U.S. District Judge Joseph Waddy order HEW to investigate eight school districts that the NAACP says discriminate in classroom racial makeup, teacher assignment and recruitment and school district boundary-setting.

Another 65 districts were cited as jurisdictions where HEW moved to force desegregation and dropped it or never moved at all.

Nathaniel Jones, general counsel for the NAACP, said the suit is "the first major assault against segregation in the North."

The suit follows a major NAACP victory in which a federal judge ordered HEW to deny federal funding to racially segregated districts in 17 southern states.

The new class-action suit accuses HEW of allowing segregation patterns to continue in the 33 other states.

Ruppert Convicted In Family Slayings

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — James U. Ruppert has been found guilty of murdering 11 members of his family during an Easter Sunday gathering at his mother's home here.

A three-judge panel in Butler County Common Pleas Court issued its 2 to 1 verdict Thursday after nearly four hours of deliberation.

Ruppert's attorneys conceded during the three-week-long trial that their client shot and killed his mother, brother, sister-in-law and eight nieces and nephews. But they asked for a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity, maintaining that he acted "in a psychotic rage."

Ruppert, a 41-year-old unemployed draftsman, displayed no emotion as the guilty verdict was read. Sentencing was postponed until a hearing later this month.

Photography In Ferment Of Reexamination Of Its History

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The country is in a ferment of Bicentennial ceremonies, displays and reminders of our country's past 200 years as a nation. Photography, too, is in a ferment of reexamination of its past century-plus of history and, not surprisingly, there are many bonds that link the two together.

One of the strong manifestations in this connection is the amount of national interest in collecting photographic items or photographs relating to photography's evolution. The newest trend is in collecting photographic prints both as works of art and as significant examples of photographic history. And as interest in this phase of collecting increases, so does the price of rare photographic prints.

In fact, a record was established earlier this year when the highest price for one print — $4,500 — was paid for Alfred Steiglitz's 1907 photograph, "The Steerage," at a Sotheby's Parke-Bernet auction in New York.

With that transaction as an index of value, well-known photojournalist Arthur Rothstein has come up with a viable photographic enterprise: 10-picture portfolios of historic photographs in which the quality of the original prints is copied and retained with fidelity, at a modest price. One of the portfolios contains a photo print of "The Steerage" and its cost, figured individually, comes to $5.

Rothstein's basic idea is that historic photographs in the form of facsimile photographic prints instead of reproductions by printing press methods would make an attractive and valuable commodity for students, schools, museums, collectors and people who like distinctive photographs.

With many examples from his own vast picture collection and others from the area now in public domain, he consulted Ken Lieberman, an executive of Berkey, K & L Custom Labs, of Berkeley, Calif., to make accurate photographic copies of original prints so as to retain their original quality, even the blemishes when they exist. It was demonstrated that a special procedure involving careful copy negatives with an 11x14-inch view camera from which double-weight contact prints are made, could produce quality duplicate prints in quantity at minimum costs.

The final step was to get good distribution and that was secured with the support and cooperation of the Photographic Historical Society of New York. They are the publishers and distributors of the portfolios.

As a result, there are now two portfolios available, each with 10 photographs of collector importance which have been selected and printed under Rothstein's supervision. One is "A Portfolio of Masterpieces" and the other contains a selection of documentary prints from Farm Security Administration photographers Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, Ben Shahn and Rothstein himself.

Another portfolio on rare Civil War photographs is in production and others are in the planning stage for future availability.

Many Masterpieces

The Masterpiece Portfolio contains, besides "The Steerage" by Steiglitz: a portrait of U.S. President "John Quincy Adams" by Southworth and Hawes (1848); "Italian Family at Ellis Island" by Lewis Hine (1906), and "San Francisco Fire and Earthquake" by Arnold Genthe (1906), each of which is a part of Americana as well as photographic. In addition, there are: Julia Margaret Cameron's portrait of "Sir John Herschel" (1867), the English scientist who coined the word "photography" in 1839; "Sarah Bernhardt" by Nadar (1859); "Gathering Waterlilies" by Peter Henry Emerson (1886), an early advocate of naturalistic photography; "The Two Ways of Life" by Oscar Rejlander (1857), the famous art composite made from 30 separate negatives; "Fading Away" by Henry Peach Robinson (1858), another famous photomontage of five negatives, and "Miss Chalmers and Brother" by David Octavius Hill and Robert Adamson (1848), the Scottish pair who were the first to demonstrate the artistic potentialities of photography.

Dear Abby
—By Abigail van Buren

Now She Discovers He Was Real Heel

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you found out after your husband's illness and death and 40 years of marriage that he had been unfaithful to you for the last 15 years? There were several women, but he saw one steadily.

It was hard enough to take his death, but then I discovered among his office effects: letters and pictures and even an accounting of the money he had spent on them (apartment rent, furniture and personal items, which he couldn't afford).

I sat at home and made my own clothes and draperies to save money. Now I have to use the insurance money he left to pay notes covering money he had borrowed during that time.

He was supposedly a competent businessman, well-liked in the community, and he never missed church. His children (and grandchildren) idolized him.

On the nights that he'd come home late, he lied so convincingly that I never suspected a thing.

I'm trying to overcome my resentment, but it's hard. I loved him so. My nerves are shot. Maybe a psychiatrist would help. What would you do?

ACHING

DEAR ACHING: I would get professional help to resolve my feelings of resentment and betrayal. (P.S. This letter should serve as a warning to all who read this column: Should YOU not live until next Monday, if you have letters, pictures or other damaging evidence hidden away, destroy it NOW!)

DEAR ABBY: The man next door is a very nice person, but his wife is something else. Lately, she has been coming over here to use my telephone because she doesn't want her husband to hear her talking. She calls up her boyfriend and talks love talk anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour while I watch her 3-year-old son. It is sickening the way she carries on behind her husband's back.

I don't feel right looking after her child while a married woman with a perfectly wonderful and trusting husband is scheming and plotting with another man on my telephone.

How can I tactfully tell her to please quit coming over here to use my phone for such immoral purposes?

HER NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Tell her in English. And don't mince any words.

DEAR ABBY: Now that I am a man in my 70s, I am the object of some belittling remarks concerning my virility—or the lack of it—from younger men.

I can't complain, having been guilty of the same thing when I was younger.

I recall having once told a newly married senior citizen (as a "joke," of course) that I doubted his ability to satisfy his young wife. He replied, "You wouldn't want to bet your wife on it, would you?"

I replied, "You mean my LIFE, don't you?"

"No," he shot back, "I mean your WIFE!"

Realizing what he meant, I kept my mouth shut, and I never made a remark like that again.

"It will always come back on the correct time," she said. "That's what is amazing."

Water-Bath Method Insures Safe Canning of Acid Foods

By Judy Germany
Midland County
Extension Agent

Many people are confused by the water bath and pressure methods of canning. Which method should be used?

The boiling water-bath method is recommended for processing fruits, fruit juices, tomatoes, rhubarb and pickled vegetables. These foods are acid foods and can be canned safely at boiling temperature.

A water bath canner is a large pan or kettle with a lid and rack, used to hold the jars off the bottom of the cooker. Before beginning the preparation of the food, place the canner on the heat with enough water to cover the jars with one to two inches of water. By doing this first the water will be heating while the food is being prepared. The water should be hot, but not boiling, when the jars of food are put into it.

Be sure the jars are completely surrounded with boiling water. Start counting the processing time as soon as the water reaches a rolling boil. Remember to place the lid on the canner to help retain the heat.

As soon as the processing time is up, remove the jars to a draft free area to cool. Set the jars on a rack and allow to cool thoroughly. When the jars are cold, test to be sure they are sealed good. If the jars did not seal, can the contents again and thus save your food.

If one is canning low acid fruits and vegetables, the pressure-canning method must be used. The spores of some bacteria are highly resistant to heat, which makes it necessary for them to be destroyed by high heat which can be obtained in a pressure canner.

Be sure to check the pressure canner and gauge at the beginning of each canning season, or more often, if the canner is used frequently or if lid is dropped. If the gauge is not registering correctly, food might be underprocessed or overprocessed.

A pressure canner must be fitted with a rack in the bottom, steam tight cover, petcock, safety valve and accurate pressure gauge. Read carefully the instructions that come with the canner when purchased.

When food is ready to be packed in jars, set canner on heat with rack in bottom and 1 1/2 to 2 inches of boiling water in it. As each jar is filled and closed, securely set it on the rack in the canner to keep it hot. Pack only enough jars at one time to fill the canner. Jars should not touch the canner so steam can circulate freely.

Place the lid on the canner securely. Leave the petcock open until the steam escapes steadily for 10 minutes and no air remains in the canner. Close the petcock. Count the processing time as soon as the pressure reaches 10 pounds, or the adjusted pressure (caused by gauge not measuring accurately or altitude). Keep the pressure as steady as possible because fluctuation liquid draws from the jars.

At the end of the processing time carefully remove the canner from the heat. Allow the gauge to reach zero, open the petcock gradually and carefully. Remove the lid, opening it away from you so should a jar break it will not explode in your face. Leave jars in the canner for about five minutes, then remove and place on a rack in a draft free area.

After testing seals of jars, store in a clean, cool, dry and dark place. Remember to boil all home canned non-acid foods for 15 to 20 minutes in an uncovered pan before tasting.

HINTS FROM Heloise

It's Just Right For A Ball Point Pen!

Dear Heloise: Here is a hint I discovered when a ball point pen refuses to write.

Insert the point of the pen in top of a rubber eraser and just gently screw it around in the eraser.

Now try writing again with your pen. It will write just like when it was new.

Sarah E. Barnett

Now I just couldn't believe this would work, so I had to see for myself.

I had several different brands of pens on my desk when I tried this. By cracky, it works!

I used a pencil eraser and also an art gum eraser, and it worked on both.

Oceans of love for passing this hint on to us.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: While doing some plaster and paint repair recently, we found our paint to be too light to use for the touch up.

So to save buying additional paint, we added food coloring.

It worked! Perfect match and no excess amount of leftover paint.

James Covington

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: Flower planting time is here. I'll be more careful this year. Last spring, instead of the plants I thought I was ordering, I got seeds. What I ended up with was flower gardens full of weeds.

I didn't dare pull anything up for fear it was a flower!

Rita Stattleman

Dear Heloise: This hint worked well for me while my children were toddlers. If you're in the grocery store and your little one falls asleep in the seat of the cart, just take a package of paper towels and use it as a pillow.

I showed this to a desperate Mom in the store and she said, "Send it to Heloise."

Barbara Bake
A package of nice, soft toilet tissue will also make a good pillow! Used this many times myself when my children were small.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: For a quick way to slice a roll of refrigerator cookies, use your cheese slicer. The cookies are uniform in size and pretty as a picture.

Mrs. Deborah Miller

Dear Heloise: I've found a marvelous use for my hair blow-dryer!

I was running late for school and I had only dirty stockings to put on. I washed and rinsed them, wrung them out well, then put them in a towel and squeezed more moisture out of them. Next I removed the stockings from the towel and applied my blow-dryer to the stockings. And did they ever dry quickly!

I've found my blow-dryer useful for drying fingernail polish in a hurry and to quickly dry spilled water from my clothes. Perhaps other people with blow-dryers will find these ideas helpful.

Debbie Kennard

Dear Heloise: Here is a little hint I would like to pass along.

When making a cereal-marshmallow-type candy, use a buttered plastic lid to press it down.

I find this works better than anything I have ever tried. Super! "No sticks!"

Army ROTC Aggressively Recruiting

By WARREN BERRY
Newsday

NEW YORK — Talking enthusiastically about his client, a New York public relations man says:

"It's one of the few places that would give a management trainee a million dollars worth of equipment and 40 people to boss around for openers."

The PR man's firm, N. W. Ayer & Co. which promotes everything from Dr. Scholl's footpads to Lite 'n' Lively yogurt, obviously believes that it has a live one in this relative new product: The Army Reserve Officer Training Corps.

And the comparison between a raw second lieutenant and a management trainee is a big part of the campaign to persuade students to sign up for ROTC while they're in school.

Students Career Oriented
"Obviously the economy is a factor. A lot of these young people are serious about the future these days, they're more career-oriented," says Brig. Gen. Wilfrid K. G. Smith.

The general, as deputy chief of staff for Army ROTC, reports that business these days is just great. Enrollment in the school year that just ended jumped 18 per cent over the previous year and marked the first upturn for the Army ROTC since the height of the Vietnam buildup around 1967.

Image is no longer a problem, as the general — a Vietnam veteran — and his Madison Avenue man agree. With the ending of the war there came an "ending of the agitation against ROTC on campuses as the visible symbol of war," the general adds.

Enrollment Dropped
A dozen colleges quit the Army ROTC program in the past six years with many of them citing antiwar fervor on campuses.

Enrollment in Army ROTC units dropped from 150,961 in 1968 to 73,963 in 1970 to 50,430 in 1971. And the number of colleges that had compulsory ROTC declined from 112 to 30 between 1968 and 1971.

Normally, ROTC graduates, who are paid $100 a month in their final two years in college, sign a contract that could keep them on active duty as officers for two to four years. But apparently that's no drawback to the 39,000 male and female students now enrolled.

Actually, one of the appeals these days is pay. Newly commissioned second lieutenants fresh from the campus can expect a starting salary of $9,585 a year, which includes about $2,000 in tax-free allowances for food and housing.

Comparable Salary
The monthly starting salary of $800, which includes $165 in allowances, compares well with what graduates are finding in their first jobs in the civilian economy.

According to the respected Endicott Survey of Job Conditions, the typical liberal arts graduate can expect to be offered $776 a month; accounting majors might get $990, and engineers would be offered $1,062.

Standard & Poor's, the Wall Street advisory service, points out that people in the prime working age category — from 18 to 30 years old — have increased from 28 per cent of the population in 1965 to 33 per cent now and should account for 38 per cent by 1985, which indicates a possible glut of young people in the job market.

Some Good News
The professionals — lawyers and teachers especially — already feel that the specialized schools in their fields are turning out twice as many graduates as will be needed in the 1970s.

All of which may be even better news for Army ROTC, biggest of the armed forces college programs.

It's a little more than five years since the killings at Kent State, a time when ROTC departments were shutting down on campuses around the country.

But the Army doesn't hold grudges, Smith says. "I think schools that want into the program will get back in. Right now though there's a sort of moratorium on opening up new universities to Army ROTC until we get our current detachments on a real paying basis, make them cost-effective."

Face The Facts On Suit Breaks

Probability tells us that the trumps are likely to break 3-1 and the diamonds 4-2. You can't rely on drawing the trumps in two rounds or on setting up the diamonds with just one ruff.

If you draw three rounds of trumps, you'll be able to ruff only one diamond. If you try to ruff more than one diamond in dummy, East will over-ruff one of them.

EXCHANGE TRICKS

You can make your contract despite the unfavorable breaks in both key suits. The method is to exchange tricks with the enemy.

Take the ace of hearts, draw one round of trumps with the queen, cash the top diamonds and then lead a third diamond. When West plays the ten of diamonds, discard dummy's losing heart.

This gives the opponents a diamond trick but robs them of a heart trick in exchange. No matter how the defense continues you can ruff a heart with one of dummy's low trumps, and you can ruff a fourth round of diamonds with dummy's king of trumps.

When you have finished with this work you can return to your hand to draw whatever trumps are still out. Then you can cash your last diamond safely.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: S-A 10 3 H-K Q J 8 5 D-Q 10 6 5 C-8. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart. You have minimum strength in high cards for an opening bid, but the strong major suit and the good distribution scream out for action.

Boozy Died

HOVE, England (AP)—Boozy, a nine-inch-long giant African snail, who appeared on television drinking beer, was found dead by its owner Christopher Hudson. "He died from alcoholic poisoning," said Hudson, 19, who raises money for charities by staging snail races. Boozy had performed for beer commercials on TV.

Charges Against Dr. Tietjen Dropped

ST. LOUIS — Charges of false doctrine against Dr. John H. Tietjen have been dismissed by Rev. Oscar A. Gerken, first vice president of the Missouri District of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod. In a 17-page statement released this week, Mr. Gerken stated that although he does not agree with Dr. Tietjen on some matters, he nevertheless does not believe that Dr. Tietjen is a false teacher who is to be excluded from the ministerium or fellowship of the denomination.

Dr. Tietjen, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri

Synod's Concordia Seminary at St. Louis until his dismissal in 1974 on charges of expounding false doctrine, and of malfeasance in office, has been the center of a controversy raging within the LCMS denomination since then. Students at the seminary who were sympathetic to Dr. Tietjen's cause withdrew to form their own "Seminary in Exile," or "Seminez."

The case was recently turned over to Mr. Gerken, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church at Cape Girardeau, Mo., after LCMS Missouri District president Herman Scherer disqualified himself because of his previous involvement with the case as a member of Concordia Seminary's board of control.

"My assignment was to determine whether Dr. John Tietjen was guilty of false doctrine, not to judge Dr. Tietjen's competence as president of Concordia Seminary," Mr. Gerken pointed out. "Although I do not agree with Dr. Tietjen on some matters, I do not believe that he is a false teacher who is to be excluded from the ministerium or fellowship of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod. This decision is not to be understood as constituting my approval of Dr. Tietjen's criticism of the synod in his sermon at the Evangelical Lutheran in Mission meeting at Des Plaines, Ill. on Aug. 28, 1974, or of his involvement in Evangelical Lutheran in Mission, and Seminez.

"This decision was not made lightly. I did proceed with 'deliberate speed' and devoted many hours to this matter, neglecting many of my duties as a parish pastor, because I believed that a decision should be given as soon as possible for the following two reasons: 1) I can understand Dr. Tietjen's mental anguish and believed that I owed him a decision as soon as possible; and 2) I likewise believed that an early decision is in the best interests of my church. This decision is the result of much prayer and study, and I thank God for the many prayers that have been spoken in my behalf during the past month."

Mr. Gerken's statement also calls attention to factors which have a direct bearing on the case:

"The case of the charges against Dr. Tietjen, whether we like it or not, has the aspects of a 'test case.' By that, I mean that many members of the synod identify with Dr. Tietjen while others disagree with what Dr. Tietjen has said and done. There is an inherent danger of prejudging the case because of the subjective opinions and emotions of the individual."

Unless the decision by Mr. Gerken is appealed, the case against Dr. Tietjen is now closed. Both the Rev. Leonard Buelow and the Rev. Harlan Harlap, who brought the original false doctrine and malfeasance charges against the seminary president, have declined comment pending the opportunity to study pastor Gerken's complete statement.

Founding Fathers Weren't All That Pious

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — As America moves into the celebration of its Bicentennial with characteristic religious zeal, questions are being raised about the intensity of religiosity among some of the Founding Fathers and their followers.

Indeed, a case is being made that except for the existence of a few small groups of zealots, America was basically a "heathen" land as settlers moved across the continent until the massive conversions of the 19th Century and the development of what has come to be known as "civil religion."

The Rev. Donald G. Shockley, chaplain and assistant professor of religion at the University of Redlands in California, makes a case for this thesis in "Free, White and Christian," a dissection of Protestantism in America, published by the Abingdon Press of the United Methodist Church.

Out of the conversions by evangelists during the "Great Awakening" of the 18th Century, he said, has come the Americanization of Protestantism into a religion of "nationalism" that during its early stages could be likened to the younger Christian churches in Asia and Africa today.

The "native" brand of American Protestantism, according to Shockley, could be considered an amalgam of basic Christian doctrines mixed with elements of the Enlightenment philosophy espoused by the Founding Fathers and various beliefs about the origin and destiny of the nation.

According to Shockley, the expansion of Protestantism in a largely unchurched American population was "virtually unique" in religious history because it was accomplished voluntarily, not at the behest of the state.

The masterminds of the growth of the churches in America were not aware of the full significance of what they had accomplished, he said, explaining:

"Rather than glorying in the conquest of a heathen population, the revivalists themselves promoted the myth that America had strayed from a lost age of faith and needed only to return to the vision of the Founders."

The mass conversions that were carried out on the presupposition of a past golden age of faith in Protestant America led the revivalists to miss the full implications of what it meant to have a free church, he said.

While they opposed a state church, he observed, they did not hesitate to seek legislation supporting causes such as the abolition of alcoholic beverages, requiring sabbath observances and banning the teaching of evolution in public schools.

Thus, he said, they confused the internal discipline required in a free church with the political powers of a government-controlled religion.

"With a few notable exceptions," Shockley said, "religious awakenings in America have been associated with popular social movements of one sort or another. Revivalists have so exploited such causes to win converts that the specifically Christian significance of a decision to join a church has often been blurred."

He went on to observe that the chief symbol of American civil religion is the flag, and the most familiar ritual the Pledge of Allegiance. The Founding Fathers, "properly mythologized," serve as saints, and their speeches and writings such as the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution are the "sacred scriptures," he said. American shrines listed include the Lincoln Memorial, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and graves of the two Kennedy brothers.

Plea For Refugees Issued At Dallas

DALLAS — A plea to help the Indochina refugees and "join together in a spirit of reconciliation" was issued by an interfaith group here Thursday.

The statement notes: "Our efforts to help the Indochina refugees, our newest immigrant group, should serve to remind us that we, ourselves, are largely a nation of immigrants." Signing the statement were: — Michael Lowenberg, chairman of the Dallas chapter of the American Jewish Committee;

— Dr. James Dunn, secretary of the Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas;

— Dr. Louis A. Saunders, executive director of the Greater Dallas Council of Churches and — The Most Rev. Thomas Tachope, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Dallas.

"We view with profound concern the human tragedy that has unfolded in Indochina where the horrors of war, and social and political upheaval have once again claimed the innocent as victims," the interfaith statement said, and noted commendation of efforts to grant entry into the United States to the Vietnamese refugees and urged "other nations to open their doors to these refugees."

The statement called on the citizens of Dallas and "people of good will everywhere" to assist in resettling the refugees.

"On the eve of this country's 200th birthday, it's time for people of all races, religions and national origins to join together in a spirit of reconciliation to heal the wounds caused by the Indochina conflict," it declared.

Flemming Asks End To Forced Retirement Age

AUSTIN — U.S. Commissioner on Aging Arthur S. Flemming earlier this week called for an end to compulsory retirement, labeling it a "lazy man's device" in direct conflict with Judeo-Christian concept of the dignity and worth of individuals.

Flemming, 70, spoke to approximately 150 church and government people at the opening session of "The Aging: A Religious Response-ability," a state-wide conference at the Joe C. Thompson Center on the campus of The University of Texas-Austin.

Organizations sponsoring the conference are the 16-denominational Texas Conference of Churches, the Baptist General Convention of Texas, and the Missionary Baptist General Convention. Other groups represented through the sponsoring committee include Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Church of Christ, B'nai B'rith Women, and Temple Sisterhoods. The conference was made possible through a grant from the Governor's Committee on Aging.

Flemming told his audience that compulsory retirement which ignores circumstances passes responsibility from the individual to the calendar.

Patriotic Service Planned On Sunday

St. Paul United Methodist Church is making plans for a special patriotic worship service to climax the Independence Day weekend.

The Sunday morning service, scheduled to begin at 10:30, will have a "God and Country" theme. The Rev. Thomas Nelson, pastor, will preach on "America—Whither Bound?" and the choir will sing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The public is invited to attend the special service at 4501 Thomason Drive.

Film Showing Slated Sunday

The new David Wilkerson film, "Please Make Me Cry," which recently had Midland premiere presentations, will have another showing in the city Sunday, this one at Gardens Assembly of God.

Presented by the author of the best-selling "The Cross and the Switchblade," the new motion picture is a full-color documented film telling the story of "Cookie," a cop-hating junkie delinquent in New York City who was raised from her deathbed to become "God's girl in the ghetto."

The 7 p.m. screening at Gardens Assembly, 2901 W. Kansas St., will be open to the public, and the church nursery will be available for child care, said host pastor Paul Coxe.

Flag Rites Slated On Guadalupe Peak

The 10 Scouts from Troop 2 of the Chisholm Trail Council will carry American, Texas and Bicentennial flags to the summit of the peak, at 8,751 feet elevation, the highest point in Texas.

The climb will begin from a point near the ruins of the Butterfield Stage Line's Pinery Station near Guadalupe Pass and ascend more than 3,500 feet.

Chrysler Chairman Will Retire Oct. 1

DETROIT (AP) — Lynn A. Townsend says he will retire Oct. 1 as chairman of the financially ailing Chrysler Corp. Townsend, 56, made the surprise announcement of his retirement plans Thursday as major U.S. automakers reported that June car sales were the strongest in 11 months, up 7 per cent from May sales.

Townsend has come under fire in recent months for his management of Chrysler, which has lost $176 million since last summer and is expected to report additional losses through the fall.

There have been demands from some shareholders that Townsend resign, but auto industry analysts said they do not believe he was forced by the firm's board of directors to leave his post.

In his retirement announcement, Townsend unveiled a broad reorganization of Chrysler top management, and analysts said they believe a change in management might attract new investors for the sorely underfinanced company.

They said Chrysler President John J. Riccardo, 51, would likely succeed Townsend as chairman and that Vice President Eugene A. Cafiero, 49, would probably be named president.

The top four auto manufacturers' June sales figures provided further evidence of slow recovery in the auto industry, but deliveries still trailed depressed year-ago levels by 11 per cent.

Ford Stepping Up Push To End Price Controls On Natural Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stepping up his push to end federal price controls on natural gas, President Ford is lambasting the Federal Power Commission and predicting "a very serious natural gas shortage" in the Midwest this winter.

Departing from prepared texts in speaking appearances Thursday in Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio, Ford became increasingly vehement as he urged deregulation of natural gas shipped in interstate commerce.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen had talked Wednesday about mounting gas shortages but said they would affect industry rather than homeowners and could be offset this year by using other fuels.

Ford, at a Republican fundraising supper in Cleveland, not only assailed what he termed "bad legislation" imposing price controls but also the FPC, the agency that regulates the natural gas industry.

"We have a Federal Power Commission that doesn't respond to reality," Ford said.

And at another point he spoke of the FPC's "strangulation of the natural gas industry."

The FPC is required by law to regulate interstate natural gas prices with the aim of minimizing the cost to consumers. The agency also has advocated deregulation as a means of stimulating the industry to invest more in discovery and production.

However, Congress has shown little enthusiasm for the deregulation proposals.

The President told his Cleveland audience that Ohio and some other Midwestern states will have 50 per cent less natural gas available this winter than last. A White House aide later said Ford misspoke and apparently meant to say that nationwide the shortage would be 50 per cent greater than last winter.

In Cincinnati, Ford talked in blunt terms about the reason for increasing natural gas shortages as he sees them.

Intrastate gas, which is not federally regulated, sells for at least three times the price of interstate natural gas.

"Before both audiences, Ford expressed amazement that Congress has not acted on his long-standing request for deregulation of interstate natural gas shipments.

"I can't understand why Congress doesn't move," he said in Cleveland.

He also declared, in an apparent ad lib, that "some people have the mistaken, stupid idea that regulation protects people."

The President was well received during three speaking appearances in Ohio — at a Cleveland fund-raiser, at a White House-sponsored conference on domestic policy in Cincinnati and at the dedication of the $30-million Environmental Protection Agency research laboratory in Cincinnati.

Ironically, Ford's stopover in Cincinnati coincided with a smog alert.

10 Indians Are Killed In Car-Pickup Collision

PAGE, Ariz. (AP) — Ten people, all Indians, died when a pickup truck and sedan slammed head on in an isolated area of the Navajo Reservation in northern Arizona, authorities said.

The crash occurred Thursday afternoon on State Route 98 about 50 miles southeast of here.

The cars looked like they "melted together," said Dr. Scott Hobson, of the nearby Kayenta Public Health Service Clinic. Hobson was one of two physicians called to the scene.

Witnesses said following the impact the truck landed atop the car and the camper it was carrying was thrown from the rest of the wreckage.

"They just hit and both of them kind of accorndoned on the front," said Hobson. "The tail of each vehicle was just kind of up in the air."

Department of Public Safety Patrolman Andy Chanoki of Page, one of the first to arrive on the scene, said, "there were Virginia First Virginia in 1662 became the first colony to declare slavery hereditary.

people all over the road." All but one person was thrown from the vehicles.

The victims included seven adults and three children.

In investigators said eight persons were in the sedan. They were identified as Dan Lee, 18, the driver, no hometown given; Ruth Blackinger, 54, Christine Rose Smith, 6, and Wilson Jones Singer, 18, all of Kayenta, Ariz., and Herbert Austin, 18, Shonto, Ariz.; Roy Singer, no hometown given, and two unidentified children, a 14-year-old boy and a one-year-old child.

Officers said the other two victims were in the pickup truck. They were identified as Joe Billy Begishe, 16, Tonalea, Ariz.; and Henry Tainnimmie, no age or hometown given.

The accident occurred, officers said, when Begishe's pickup truck crossed the center line and struck other vehicle head on.

Chanoki said the car was westbound toward Page and the truck was eastbound. eH said both vehicles were traveling an estimated 70 miles an hour when the crash occurred.

Pumping tests are under way at Texas American Oil Corp. No. 1 Herring, Clearfork project three miles northwest of Dermott in Scurry County. During the last 24 hours of testing through perforations from 2,255 to 2,300 feet, the prospect made 31.75 barrels of oil and 65 barrels of water. Drilled to 3,528 feet, the test is 600 feet from north and 1,900 feet from east lines of section 67, block 97, H&TC survey.

Completion Set In Runnels Area

Trumter Petroleum Corp. of Fort Worth has set 4-inch casing in No. 1-405-A Dudley Ranch, Runnels County project, for completion attempt in the Ellenburger. A three-hour drillstem test of the Ellenburger from 4,825 to 5,110 feet. Recovery was 180 feet of gas-cut mud, 250 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud and 240 feet of oil- and gas-cut water. Flowing pressure was from 325 to 451 pounds. A drillstem test in the Cappel from 4,133 to 4,150 feet recovered 1,161 feet of slightly oil- and gas-cut muddy salt water and 992 feet of gas-cut salt water. Tool was open one hour.

No. 1-405-A Dudley Ranch is a southwest offset to the delisted one-well D-H-B (Ellenburger) field. Site is 1,339 feet south of the northeast corner and 467 feet west of location in T. Backer survey No. 405, abstract 1430.

Interviews Show Chances Remote

TULSA — The chances are remote that the United States will experience a widespread gasoline shortage this summer. However, supplies will be tight, prices will rise and brief shortages in isolated areas may occur, the Oil and Gas Journal reports in its June 30 issue. The report is based on interviews with government and petroleum industry officials.

The weekly business magazine says adequate crude supplies and plenty of spare processing capacity to increase gasoline production are the main reasons an acute shortage is unlikely. Frank G. Zarb, federal energy administrator, adds there is no reason for a major gasoline shortage this summer.

But refiners say there is a reason — government controls — but that they will keep gasoline output high despite unfavorable conditions. The controls, they say, make it uneconomical to produce more gasoline than needed for individual markets. To do so generates added costs that can't be recovered.

Gasoline inventories, indeed, fell to dangerously low levels in June after gasoline production at U.S. refineries had declined from 6.5 million barrels per day in January to 6 million barrels per day in March and remained there through May.

Mondale Labels Humphrey No. 1

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Sen. Walter Mondale says he is not interested in running for president and would rather spend the time on his senatorial duties and with his constituency in Minnesota.

Mondale said Thursday that Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, a fellow Minnesota Democrat, is probably his party's strongest choice for the 1976 presidential contest.

Mondale and Humphrey are participating here in the 150th anniversary celebration of the first wave of Norwegian emigration to America.

Meanwhile, demand shot from 6.17 million barrels per day in January to 6.68 million barrels per day in May. Inventories dropped from about 236 million barrels at the end of January to just below 200 million barrels in June, a figure estimated to be the minimum operating stock level.

The Journal says the industry is moving to correct declining inventories. Gasoline production in June jumped from an average of 6 million barrels per day in May to 6.5 million in June.

Expensive imports of gasoline also showed signs of increasing. Refiners say they expect production soon to meet the currently zooming demand.

As for price increases, Zarb tells the Journal he can't see them increasing more than four to five cents per gallons. This includes a possible one to one and one-half cent increase with imposition of the second dollar import fee proposed by President Ford to stem the flow of imports.

Amoco Reports Daily Processing Record

CHICAGO — Amoco Oil Co. has announced an all-time daily crude processing record and that refinery crude runs averaging near 100 per cent of capacity are keeping gasoline inventories above year-ago levels.

Amoco President Walter R. Peirson said the company's gasoline inventories this year have averaged 3.5 million barrels above 1974 figures.

The daily processing record was set June 18, Peirson said, when 1,133,000 barrels of crude oil were refined. Estimated daily runs in June will average about 1.1 million barrels, he said, compared to 997,000 barrels daily in June, 1974. Daily crude runs throughout the summer are scheduled to average about 1.1 million barrels — a processing rate of more than 95 per cent of capacity.

Langston Heads Exxon Exploration

HOUSTON — J. D. Langston, general manager of Exxon USA's Exploration Department, has been named vice president of exploration.

The appointment was effective Tuesday when M. W. Hass, retired, Langston joined Exxon shortly after graduation from The University of Texas in 1949.

He has served in various assignments in Oklahoma, Utah, Colorado and Wyoming. While serving as a regional geologist in Tulsa in 1964, he was named exploration advisor for Exxon Corp. of New York.

In 1966 he was named exploration manager for Esso Exploration Australia, Inc., and a year later was elected director of Esso Standard Oil (Australia), Ltd. He returned to the U.S. in 1970 to become manager of Exxon's Southeastern Division at New Orleans and in 1972 was transferred to the company's headquarters in Houston as operations manager. He became general manager in March 1974.

Subcontracts for field experiments probably will be let to Texas universities and research firms, the board said. They will evaluate rainfall amounts produced by cloud seeding performed by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Grant Announced For CRMWD Study On Rain Making

AUSTIN (AP) — The federal government has granted the Texas Water Development Board $942,237 for a five-year series of rain making experiments in the Upper Colorado River watershed.

Subcontracts for field experiments probably will be let to Texas universities and research firms, the board said. They will evaluate rainfall amounts produced by cloud seeding performed by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Auto Makers Shy Away From Diesel Engines

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

The big auto makers continue to shy away from the diesel engine for passenger cars. Yet a recent survey of diesel-powered automobile owners indicates they are saving up to $200 a year in fuel costs compared with gas-powered cars. The survey was conducted among owners of the only two makes of cars offering diesel models in this country — the imported Mercedes-Benz and Peugeot.

A Los Angeles-based opinion research firm, J. D. Powers & Associates, questioned 770 diesel car owners who bought their autos at the height of the 1974 spring energy crisis.

"The buyers were looking for greater fuel and operating economy than they expected from a comparable gas-powered auto," says Dave Power, president of the research company.

"Although the buyers of the Mercedes diesel paid an average of $9,800 for their cars and the Peugeot diesel buyers paid an average of $6,000, the idea of economy was the overriding motivation to select a diesel."

The survey showed the Peugeot diesel owners reported getting about 30 miles per gallon of fuel for city driving and 34 m.p.g. on the highway. By comparison, owners of similar Peugeot gasoline models indicated they were getting about 20 m.p.g. in town and 24 m.p.g. in highway driving.

Mercedes diesel owners reported achieving about 25 m.p.g. in town and 28 m.p.g. on the highway, the survey showed.

Part of the reason for the diesel buyers' interest in cutting auto fuel bills was the fact that most of them drive considerably more than the national average. The study shows that most Peugeot and Mercedes diesel owners drive about 15,000 miles a year, compared to the national average of 12,000 miles.

"By comparing diesel owner experiences with those of gasoline model owners, the degree of savings is marked," says Power. "For example, the Peugeot diesel owners traveled about 18,000 miles a year, averaged 22 m.p.h. over-all and paid an average of 48 cents a gallon for diesel fuel."

"The Peugeot gasoline owners, on the other hand, averaged 22 miles per gallon over-all and paid an average of 55 cents a gallon."

At those rates in a year's time (auto fuel prices have risen since the survey was conducted), the following fuel costs would occur:

Gallons of Fuel Used 563 818
Cost of Fuel Used $270 $450
That's a $180 savings for 12 months for diesel owners, but there's a catch.

The buyer has to pay about $800 extra to get the diesel engine.

However, there are other anticipated savings for the diesel versus the gasoline engine. They have lower maintenance and repair requirements.

The added cost of a diesel power plant is one factor which has steered American auto builders away from them, at a time when safety and emission control devices already have upped the price tag to what buyers call exorbitant levels.

The Environmental Protection Agency figures that a 50 per cent boost in fuel economy should be achieved by a diesel-powered car over a comparable gas buggy. It goes like this:

The thermal efficiency of a typical four-stroke gas engine ranges between 22 and 27 per cent. By comparison, a diesel engine achieves thermal efficiency levels of between 35 and 38 per cent—roughly a 50 per cent increase.

Mercedes-Benz has been selling a few diesel autos in this country for several years. They began to go at a fast clip last year as the energy crisis developed.

Now Mercedes has developed its innovative five-cylinder diesel. Peugeot only entered the diesel market in this country in 1974.

The Big Three U.S. auto makers say they still are considering their own diesel models. Each has developed a diesel engine. However, industry officials claim there likely will be no American diesel passenger cars on the market until the recession-slowed sales tempo stabilizes at some new level.

That may be two or three years from now, depending on how soon the recession recedes.

Saudi Arabian Women Slowly Move Into Modern World

By ALY MAHMOUD
 MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP)—Saudi Arabian women are slowly emerging from age-old confinement to play a limited, but growing, role in the kingdom's oil-fueled social transformation.

Though they still are banned from politics or any direct contact with men outside family circles, hundreds of Saudi women now work as teachers, doctors, nurses and social workers. Such jobs would have been unthinkable in Saudi Arabia only a decade ago, when Moslem tradition restricted women to the bedroom, the nursery and the kitchen.

King Faisal, who once called in troops to open a girls' school despite strong opposition from conservatives, supported a growing role for women before his assassination last March. The present king, Khalid, has vowed to pursue his brother's policy.

The government recently allowed several Saudi girls to take jobs as radio and television announcers, arguing this did not deviate from Islamic teachings since no direct male-female contact would ensue.

There are no official statistics on education, but hundreds of Saudi women are graduates of modern secular schools and universities in the United States, Europe and Egypt. Some are said to use the latest Paris fashions and makeup under their top-to-toe black veils.

Females also attend Saudi universities and schools. Women generally are assigned to teach girls. When men teachers are necessary, the girls watch lessons on closed television circuits. They ask questions through an intercom system handled by elderly female secretaries.

A draft law being debated would allow foreign women to drive cars, an activity now banned for all females. Saudi citizens say local women could get similar rights in a year or two.

Despite the broadening of women's roles, there are no signs the conservative Muslim leadership is deviating from strict. Muslim teachings on man-woman relationships, nor even that many people want them to.

"Truly, we have come to realize how good it is to keep women away from men. This saves us a lot of trouble. For one thing, temptation is minimal. For another, women remain pure, and the Muslim family remains united," says a 59-year-old Saudi merchant in this holy city of Islam.

Saudi sources claim there are "hundreds of businesswomen" in the country. But none is evident in the kingdom's day-by-day activities. Those sources explained that businesswomen prefer to run their affairs through male members of their families.

According to the Central Planning Organization, only 1.5 per cent of the working-age females in Saudi Arabia is working.

Saudi Arabia still rigorously enforces the harsh, 14-century-old Islamic penal code that punishes adulterers with public stoning to death. Sex criminals are almost nonexistent here, officials say.

Suspected SLA Member Arrested By FBI Agents

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston FBI agents have arrested a man they believe is Thero LaVon Wheeler, 30, a former associate of Donald DeFreeze, leader of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) group that kidnaped heiress Patty Hearst.

An FBI spokesman said Wheeler was arrested Thursday at the electrical company where he worked. An executive for the company said Wheeler did odd jobs at the office building but that he was hired under a name other than Wheeler.

The FBI said the man was arrested after a Houston police sergeant furnished information indicating the suspect was Wheeler. The officer told the FBI he obtained the information when the suspect appeared at a hospital with a minor gunshot wound.

The FBI said Wheeler was being sought on federal warrants charging him with unlawful flight to avoid confinement after he escaped from the Vacaville unit of the California prison system on March 5, 1973.

Miss Hearst, daughter of San Francisco newspaper publisher Randolph Hearst, was kidnaped from her apartment by the SLA in 1974 and later renounced her parents and said she was joining the SLA.

The FBI has said Wheeler escaped from prison about the same time as DeFreeze, identified as the General Field Marshal Cingue of the SLA.

DeFreeze died along with five other SLA members during a May 17, 1974 shootout with Los Angeles police.

Parr Will Be Allowed To Refuse To Testify

HEBBRONVILLE, Tex. (AP) — District Court Judge O. P. Carrillo said Thursday he will allow suspended Duval County Judge Archer Parr to refuse to testify on grounds of self-incrimination and will not allow Parr to be subjected to "9,000 questions."

Judge Carrillo made the comment just before the outset of the suspended county trial of the suspended county judge was recessed for the Fourth of July holiday.

It appeared for a time Thursday that the Fourth of July came early in the Jim Hogg County courthouse as explosive legal arguments erupted. Judge Carrillo threatened to hold defense lawyer Marvin Foster of San Diego in contempt of court and then denied Foster's request for a mistrial.

Judge Parr, who has not appeared for any of the trial, was temporarily suspended from office March 24 after Dist. Atty. Arnulfo Guerra filed a civil suit against Parr. The suit noted Parr's federal perjury conviction and accused the long-time South Texas politician of acts of official misconduct and conflict of interest.

A subpoena has been issued for Parr, but process servers have been unable to locate him. Foster filed an affidavit signed by Parr in Nueces County (Corpus Christi) earlier in the week that said Parr would refuse to testify on grounds that it would violate his 5th Amendment rights against self-incrimination.

Admitting that Parr has been avoiding the subpoena, Foster jokingly said, "He's changed his name from 'Duke of Duval' to 'King of the Road.'"

A deposition hearing is scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday at San Diego. Foster said Thursday, "It is not my intention to produce Judge Parr for any deposition hearing Monday."

It was then that Judge Carrillo said he would allow Parr to come to the courtroom, refuse to testify on grounds of self-incrimination and leave. "I won't make him sit there and refuse to answer 9,000 questions," Judge Carrillo said.

Foster said he would discuss the matter with his client during the weekend.

Most of Thursday's session was devoted to the introduction of county records by Duval County Clerk Alberto Garcia.

Duval County Treasurer Manuel C. Solis had just taken the witness stand not long before the weekend recess.

State Bar Leader Stresses Discipline

DALLAS (AP) — The public and the bar deserves a quick and fair method of disciplining Texas lawyers who break the law or violate their own code of ethics, the new president of the Texas State Bar says.

And John M. Lawrence III of Bryan said Thursday he will emphasize this disciplining during his one-year term as state bar president.

Lawrence, who succeeded Lloyd Lochridge of Austin as head of the 26,000 member lawyer organization, made his remarks to the general assembly of the bar on the last day of its 93rd annual convention.

"During the next 12 months, we will dedicate ourselves totally to studying the local grievance committee system to see if it is working," Lawrence said.

Rain Forecast For Much Of U.S.

By The Associated Press

Thundershowers spread from the lower Great Lakes to the Middle Atlantic Coast and from Texas to the eastern Gulf states early today, and more rain was forecast for much of the nation on this Fourth of July holiday.

A number of outdoor festivities were planned throughout the country for the nation's 199th birthday, but it appeared that fireworks might be dampened in many areas.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were posted for parts of Montana and Wyoming, and special marine warnings were up for Lake Michigan.

Scattered afternoon and evening showers and thundershowers were forecast for the south Atlantic and Gulf coast states into the central Appalachians, Arkansas, Oklahoma and over the Rocky Mountain region into western Oregon.

Heavy rains have dumped up to 13 inches of water at some points in North Dakota and western Minnesota since Saturday, virtually wiping out this year's crops and causing damage estimated at $1.6 billion.

Two men were feared drowned after flash floods swept through Las Vegas, Nev., Thursday, leaving the famed Las Vegas Strip under a foot of water. The storm was expected to continue for another two days.

The rest of the nation faced sunny to partly cloudy skies today with warm to hot temperatures and generally high humidity, especially over the Great Plains and Mississippi Valley regions.

Cooler temperatures were forecast for the New England area and warmest temperatures for the desert Southwest.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 51 at the Whidbey Island Naval Air Station near Oak Harbor, Wash., to 91 at Phoenix, Ariz.

Some other temperatures and conditions include:

Anchorage 58 cloudy, Atlanta 71 clear, Boston 72 partly cloudy, Buffalo 67 cloudy, Chicago 74 clear, Cincinnati 69 clear, Cleveland 64 cloudy, Dallas 72 cloudy, Denver 70 clear, Detroit 70 partly cloudy, Honolulu 76 partly cloudy, Indianapolis 76 cloudy, Kansas City 75 clear, Los Angeles 63 clear, Miami 76 partly cloudy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 75 clear, Nashville 75 clear, New York 69 clear, Philadelphia 65 partly cloudy, Phoenix 81 clear, Pittsburgh 62 fog, St. Louis 75 clear, San Francisco 56 partly cloudy, Seattle 85 clear, Washington 69 cloudy.

Midlander Plans Textbook Review

Anna Williams, a Lee High School teacher and a member of the State Textbook Committee, will depart Wednesday for Austin, where she will meet with other members of the committee to review bilingual systems.

Mrs. Williams said this is one of a series of meetings which will continue through December.

The 15-member committee will recommend text materials in a number of areas for state adoption. The Midland board member said the books the committee are considering are for the 1976-77 school year.

Two Feared Drowned In Nevada's Floods

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "continuing to come in."

Two men were missing and feared drowned today after flash floods swept through this desert resort, damaging scores of cars, inundating homes and leaving portions of the famed Las Vegas Strip under a foot of water.

Thunderstorms were expected to continue throughout the Fourth of July holiday weekend, according to the National Weather Service.

About 30 rescue workers were searching for two North Las Vegas city employees after their truck was found submerged in mud near Interstate 15 Thursday evening. Their identities were not disclosed.

Las Vegas police closed The Strip from Frontier Avenue to Flamingo Road, cutting off access to about six casinos. Singer Andy Williams was to have opened at Caesars Palace Thursday night, but his shows were canceled.

The storm moved in shortly after 2 p.m. Thursday and within an hour and a half about 2 1/2 inches of rain was dumped on the city, turning streets into raging streams of mud and debris.

Police said about 40 homes on the west side of the city were flooded and reports of more water-logged residences were "continuing to come in."

Hundreds of cars were stranded in high water, and many city streets were closed. Major highways leading into the city remained open but were reported jammed with traffic entering the gambling center for the long weekend.

A Delta Airlines jet was struck by lightning as it approached McCarran International Airport but it landed safely, police said.

A number of fires were ignited by the lightning, but only one serious blaze was reported. Some power lines around the city also were struck by lightning, causing temporary outages in some areas. Several local radio stations were temporarily knocked off the air.

July 4th Slow Pitch Tournament Opens Tonight

By BOB DILLON
Despite heavy rains Thursday, the 7th annual July 4th Slow Pitch Softball Tournament is set to get underway at 7 p.m. today at Hogan Park with a strong 50-team entry field for the three-day double elimination meet.

Tournament Director Kent Sloan was uneasy Thursday and was mainly worried about the condition of the four diamonds. "My main concern is the fact that we cannot postpone it and move it up a week because the Women's State Fast Pitch Tourney will be here next weekend so we have to get it in. If the rains keep the field unplayable tonight, then we will have to play around the clock Friday and Saturday night."

There isn't really a solid choice for the coveted championship trophy this year. Last year, the powerful Lubbock Merchants defeated Boxwell Brothers of Amarillo, 23-22, in the finals despite 14 homers by the losers in the title slugfest. Boxwell out-hit the Merchants 30-25, but Dudley Copland, the Most Valuable Player in the 1973 and 74 tournaments, poked three homers to pace the Hub City to the championship.

Goodrich Service Center's Thirteen wound up third and San Angelo Beveridge Sales fourth in last year's tourney which saw no less than 230 home runs sail over the fences at the four diamonds.

Boxwell Brothers hit the ball at an amazing .478 clip in the tourney despite finishing second and the Panhandle entry had to play six games on that final day.

Smith Brothers Pipe won the 1973 tourney, beating College Inn of Lubbock which had Copland and many other players that played with the Lubbock Merchants last year in the tourney.

Copland, in garnering MVP honors in 1973, smacked 10 homers in the tourney to give him a season total of 55, but Gary Washington, 6-7 first baseman for Boxwell Brothers, hit four in that tourney and 75 during the 1973 season.

Boxwell isn't back this year, but is playing in a tourney closer to home, but Smith Brothers Pipe and Goodrich Service Center are back along with some other strong entries.

In winning last year's crown, Lubbock's Merchants pounded the ball at a .414 clip and Goodrich wound up hitting an even .400 in the meet. Boxwell Brothers muscled out 49 homers during the tourney and the Merchants hit 27 and Goodrich 23.

Goodrich also had the most triples—nine in the three-day affair.

A total of 24 games are on tap tonight, if the weather holds and the out-of-town entries all drew first round byes.

Umpires for this year's tourney are Sam Austin, Aaron Cranford, Don Deck, Bobby

Dunn, Freddie Ezell, Howard King, Harvey Lauderdale, Jerry Nash, Bob Nieberger, Geirge George 'Corky' Rhea, Lewis Salinas, Melvin Upton, Mike Webb, Chuck Swallow and Mel Neese. more

Neese is from Abilene and is a National Deputy Umpire-in-Chief.

Teams in the tourney are from Midland, Odessa, San Angelo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Iowa Park, Stanton and Rowell, N.M.

Lafayette Sweeps Two From Mets

By The Associated Press
Lafayette threw its double "D" combination at Jackson Thursday night, and the result was a pair of Ws in the win column for the East Division leader.

Julio Division hurled the Driller's to a 4-3 triumph over the Mets in the opener and teammate Jay Dillard pitched a two-hitter in the nightcap as Lafayette also took the second game 7-3. Rick D'Innocenzo had five hits and three RBIs in the doubleheader for the Drillers.

In other games, El Paso bedeviled San Antonio with a 5-5 victory, the Diablos first victory over San Antonio in the last six games. Alexandria split a pair with Arkansas, winning the first game 3-1 while Arkansas took the nightcap 5-1. Midland dumped West Division leader Shreveport 13-7 in the opening game of a doubleheader, while the Captains took a 3-2 11-inning revenge in the nightcap.

El Paso went ahead in the top of the ninth to clinch the victory over the Brewers. Paul Dade stole second to draw the throw of San Antonio catcher Manny Lantigua as Dave Macheimer raced home from third to score the winning run. John Verhoeven, 3-0, won it for the Diablos.

Alexandria's Gene Delton blasted a two-run homer — his fourth of the year — in the first to pace the Drillers to their 3-1 romp over Arkansas. The Travelers snapped back in the nightcap with a three-run homer in the first by Mike Potter and runs in the third and sixth for the 5-1 triumph.

TOURNEY TROPHY — Kent Sloan, Tournament Director for the July 4th Slow Pitch Softball Tourney, poses with first place trophy that will go to one of the 50 teams that survives the three-day double elimination meet at the four Hogan Park diamonds.

Cardenal, Wife Attack Officer

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs right fielder Jose Cardenal and his wife were charged with battery Thursday night for assaulting a patrolman at O'Hare International Airport, Police Lt. John Griffin said.

Griffin said patrolman Dennis Dickson was punched, kicked and beaten on the head with his nightstick when he told Cardenal and his wife to move their car from a no-parking area.

He said Mrs. Cardenal was in the driver's seat when Dickson asked them to move the car. Cardenal emerged from the passenger's side and began slugging the officer, Griffin said.

Mrs. Cardenal then got out of the car and began kicking Dickson, after which she grabbed his nightstick and started hitting him on the head, Griffin said.

He said both were subdued when additional patrolmen arrived on the scene.

They were charged with battery and resisting arrest, and Mrs. Cardenal also was charged with obstructing a police officer and failing to have a driver's license.

Dickson was treated at Resurrection Hospital for minor cuts and bruises on his head, and was expected to be released before morning.

Police said the couple each posted $100 bond and would appear in court July 29.

King Baffles Evonne With Quick Victory

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King, playing nearly perfect tennis, needed only 30 minutes to win the Wimbledon women's singles title for a sixth time Friday with a 6-0, 6-1 swamping of Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia.

It was a rout rather than a final fight from the opening game, which Evonne — who married British businessman Roger Cawley just before Wimbledon started — dropped to love.

And, in fact, during the whole of the first set, Evonne picked up only 10 points — five of them in the second game, in which she took Billie Jean twice to deuce.

But that was the only time until late in the second set that Evonne looked like making any sort of challenge. She started tentatively and nervously, and got worse as the match went on. Not once did Billie Jean seem in trouble, and rarely did she have to pull out the strokes that have made her Wimbledon's most forceful post-war player.

Billie Jean, whose volleying looked troubled in her semifinal against Chris Evert, was in top form, but never stretched. Evonne's volleys, generally her strong point, were weak and inconclusive and she appeared yards slower around the court.

It was the shortest women's final for years, and with the victory Billie Jean equalled the 43-year-old record of Elizabeth Ryan by winning her 19th Wimbledon titles.

Billie Jean has said this will be her last singles match here, and it brought her $15,400.

With the first three games — two of them breaks — safely tucked away, Billie Jean played assertive, confident tennis and rarely missed a volley. She prowled the net, putting away Evonne's weak drives with purpose and ferocity and on the rare occasions Evonne tried to lure her back by lobbing, she had no difficulty in killing.

A couple of volleys from mid-court brought Billie Jean the fifth game and her third service break of the set, then in the sixth, Evonne essayed a couple of jobs that were way out both in length and direction. That gave Billie Jean the set in just 19 minutes.

Meanwhile, men's singles finalists Jimmy Connors and Arthur Ashe had a day off before their battle Saturday.

Some of the sellout crowd of 17,000 slept on sidewalks all night Wednesday to get standing room for Connors' Thursday semifinal against fellow American Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

But the 22-year-old Connors of Belleville, Ill., was untroubled by Tanner's 140 mph serve and put on a dazzling display of all-court play to win 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

It meant the defending champion had reached the final without dropping a single set. He said he was playing his best tennis ever, and added, "I haven't reached my peak yet."

Ashe always looked the best player in his three-hour semifinal against Australia's Tony Roche, but he had to battle out five sets before winning 5-7, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4. Even he admitted later that much of the match was dull.

The 31-year-old American from Miami, Fla., nevertheless had reached the final for the first time and called it "a prophecy fulfilled."

He said he set himself two targets this year: the world championship of tennis, which he won in Dallas in May, and Wimbledon.

Just 12 years old when he first heard the word, "Wimbledon," Ashe sat between games Thursday with his eyes closed in deep meditation trying to forget the last point and concentrate on the next, he said.

The odds are 4 to 1 against him, upsetting the fiery left-handed champion.

MILWAUKEE OPEN—

Two Share Lead In Wet Tourney

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Art Wall said it was his best round in longer than he could remember, and never mind that he couldn't quite finish it.

Wall, 1969 Masters champion but winless on the tour in nine years, was five-under-par with a hole in play Thursday when lightning, rain and darkness forced suspension of the second round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tourney.

Wall was in position to tie or overtake the second-round clubhouse co-leaders, Gibby Gilbert and Ken Still, during completion of the round scheduled today.

Wall was among almost two dozen golfers unable to finish the rain-threatened second round Thursday.

Gilbert and Still finished respective rounds of 68 and 67 moments before the elements struck for a second time during the day. They shared the lead with nine-under-par totals of 136.

Gilbert's six-under-par round was the day's best over the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Wall, after an opening-day 67 Wednesday, scored five birdies on his back nine Thursday and was 10-under-par for the tourney when play was suspended. He and the others who couldn't finish were to resume their second round at 8:30 a.m. CDT from the point at which play recessed. Weather permitting, officials planned to repair the course and replace pins in time for a third round at 11 a.m.

Wall recorded six birdies on his nearly concluded second round, and four were on putts of 12 or more feet. He went 10 under with a birdie on No. 16, then scrambled for a par on the next hole, the last played before suspension.

"I was very lucky on that last hole," he said. "I hit a two iron on a par three into sand, but blasted to within 15 feet and made the putt."

Wall could not explain his sudden emergence from a long slump.

"I don't think it is a freaky thing. I have been putting well, hitting 20-foot shots," he said.

Gilbert, using a new set of irons, reeled off four birdies on the back nine. He went nine under for the meet with a birdie on 15, then finished with three pars.

"I don't want to jinx myself, but I have played my last 61 holes without a bogey," Gilbert said.

He tied for fourth in the Western Open at Oak Brook, Ill., last weekend.

"Everything is going well. Mainly it is good thinking. I am hitting the ball to the right spots," he said.

Still, the 1969 GMO winner who offset three bogeys with eight birdies Thursday, said light rain at midday helped his putting. Five of his birdie putts were from 10 feet or more.

"The course played completely different," he said. "The greens held very well. I was amazed. They were so

Bengals Gain New Quarterback

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals have sent Wayne Clark to the Philadelphia Eagles for John Reaves in an exchange of National Football League quarterbacks.

Reaves, who had an outstanding rookie season in 1972, came to the Bengals along with an undisclosed future draft choice in exchange for Clark and tackle Stan Walters.

In 1972, the 6-foot-3, 210-pound Reaves completed 108 of 224 passes for 1,506 yards, but has seen little action in the last two seasons in a backup role to Roman Gabriel.

"We are happy to be able to obtain a quarterback of the stature of John Reaves," Brown said. "He has the potential to become an excellent backup support for regular quarterback Ken Anderson."

Bright, Tyrone Homer As Cubs Divide Pair

SHREVEPORT, La.—Shreveport's Captains went 11 innings in the nightcap of a doubleheader to beat the Midland Cubs, 3-2, here Thursday night to earn a split.

The Cubs won the first game, going ahead on a two-run single in the sixth by Jose Ortiz and then scoring four more in the seventh to salt away a 13-7 decision.

The teams divided their six-game series here, so Shreveport managed to preserve its eight-game West Division edge in the Texas League.

Tim Jones limited Midland to four hits in going the distance for the Captains in the second game. Bill Bright led off the second inning with his fourth homer and Wayne Tyrone led off the fourth with his 14th boundary belt for Midland's only runs.

Shreveport won it in the 11th when shortstop Jim Sexton beat out an infield hit with one out. Mike Edwards walked and then Tom Thomas singled to center off lefty Dave Geisel for the deciding run.

Shreveport had managed just one hit from the fourth until the 10th.

In the opener, Shreveport pounced on Donnie Moore early, scoring three runs in the first and driving the former Lubbock Monsterey star to cover in the fourth after a nine-hit attack. Bruce Satter picked up the win in relief and Dennis Lamp notched his fifth save.

Sexton and Dave Oliveras opened the game with singles and Thomas walked to load the bases. Mitchell Page hit a sacrifice fly for one run and Ron Mitchell singled home another while a third tally came home when third baseman Cesar Gonzalez misplayed the outfield throw.

Chiefs' Lamar Hunt Backer Of Rozelle Rule In Football

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Professional football would be "complete bedlam" without the National Football League's "Rozelle Rule," says Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs.

"It would be open season for 1,300 players to play out their options," Hunt added Thursday.

Hunt was among the final series of witnesses being called by attorneys for the league in defense of the rule in a lawsuit brought by 15 past and present players. The players contend the rule does not give them genuine freedom to negotiate with other teams after they play out the option year beyond their contracts.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, the man the rule is named after, will be the windup witness for the league late next week. The case, now in its 10th week, is being heard without a jury by U.S. District Judge Earl R. Larson.

Attorneys for the NFL Players Association are expected to call rebuttal witnesses after Rozelle's testimony. The league rules allows Rozelle to award players or draft choices to a team losing a player who has played out his option.

Hunt said that without the rule there could be widespread movement of players from one team to another. He conceded that the Chiefs would try and sign free players if there were no such rule but said it could be destructive to less affluent teams.

"We'd have to get in there and try to sign the top guys," Hunt said.

Is There Another Shoe?

Rumors persist that the other shoe has yet to fall in the Midland Lee football probation.

Some point to the Texas High School Coaches Association probe of the situation while others wonder if the University Interscholastic League is through.

In chasing down rumors and hearsay around the state, we've talked to people who might know if anything is going on, but are understandably reluctant to disclose any confidences to a sportswriter.

However, it hasn't been a complete waste of time. We did become better acquainted with the UIL and how it operates.

As far as Dr. Emmett McKenzie, chairman, and the rest of the District 5-4A Executive Committee are concerned, the books are closed on the April 22 incident involving Midland Lee. The Rebels were placed on probation for one year for violating Rule 24, regarding illegal practices, of the UIL code.

McKenzie said he received a call after the inquiry from someone in Midland. "But the person did not provide any specific information that could be documented as far as I was able to tell."

McKenzie noted, "You know these UIL jobs for school administrators are just part time things and as much as we want people to get within the rules and stay within the rules, we feel like we have to pretty well limit ourselves to factual evidence."

"So our decision was based on factual information. Our inquiry related to the April 22 incident and all of the inquiry revolved around that day." No other evidence that could be documented was submitted, McKenzie added.

McKenzie pointed out that there are certain limitations on what the 5-4A committee can do. "And we had to operate on the basis that the Midland School administration is operating in good faith."

No Evidence Overlooked

McKenzie emphasized that there was no evidence that was overlooked, although there was a lot of hearsay. Significantly, he added, "If the district executive committee has information and fails to act, then the entire district's playoff hopes are put in jeopardy, so the executive committee is not going to be negligent in that regard."

In the course of the conversation, McKenzie did mention that another anonymous letter had been sent to Austin.

It was curious about anonymous letters and why they should trigger investigations that prompted a call to Dr. Bailey Marshall of the UIL at Austin.

Marshall assured that there was no UIL vendetta or witch hunt involved resulting from the fact that Corsicana served a two-year probation after present Lee Coach Jim Acree resigned in the 1960's.

"The same rule violation was not even involved. As I recall, it had something to do with vitamin shots that had been paid for by the booster club."

Marshall said that investigation of anonymous letters is standard procedure with the UIL. "It's the only kind we get."

He explained, "Most come from someone close to the school, a parent, faculty member or fan. Judging from the wording in the Lee letter, that seems to be the case in this instance. The writer feels he has seen a rules violation and reports it."

"Although we would protect his identity upon request, he writes anonymously to avoid the harassment that would accompany making his identity public."

Marshall said, "So, there is nothing unusual about pursuing anonymous tips."

Asked how many such letters the UIL received and investigated a year, Marshall said 10 was about average. He also said that some rules violation is uncovered in about half of these instances.

Another shoe? If there is, only Bailey Marshall knows.

By The Associated Press
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Three players who attended rookie-free agent camp for the San Antonio Spurs of the American Basketball Association have signed contracts.

Signings announced by the club Thursday were Ken Smith of Tulsa University; Henry Ward, 6-4, of Jackson State University and Dennis Uinzant, a 6-9 forward who played for Azusa Pacific University in California before spending last season with the Switzerland entry in the International Basketball Association.

DALLAS (AP) — Steve Cottrell, former associate head basketball coach at Washington State University, is the new assistant basketball coach at Southern Methodist University.

Cottrell's selection was announced Thursday by SMU Athletic Director Dick Davis.

Cottrell, 31, served as an assistant for three years to the new SMU basketball Coach Sonny Allen while Allen was head coach at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va.

Cottrell graduated in 1968 from Frederick College in Virginia where he was a forward and most valuable player on the basketball team. He has been at Washington State for the past three years.

MEMPHIS (AP) — Liberty Bowl officials say the annual college football game has become the first athletic event to be sanctioned by the National Bicentennial Committee.

The bowl was named Thursday and will carry the sanction for the years 1975-77.

A.F. 'Bud' Dudley, executive director of the bowl game, said the event is the only one thus far in Tennessee to receive the honor.

The 17th annual Liberty Bowl will be played Dec. 22 in Memphis Memorial Stadium.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers have signed Charlie Jordan, a 6-foot-8 forward from Canisius College who was a high school All-Star at Indianapolis. Shortridge.

Jordan was the Pacers' second-round pick in the American Basketball Association draft.

At Canisius, Jordan averaged almost 16 points and 11 rebounds although he was ineligible for one semester in each of the last two years. He had planned to transfer to Mercyhurst College for his senior year before signing with the Pacers.

Dodgers Have Plenty Of Problems

By JEFF PRUGH
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — They once made beautiful music with youth and speed and power and pitching. People said things like "team of destiny" and "dynasty of the future."

Those were the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1974.

Now switch to a recent road trip — their worst of 1975 — and instead of beautiful music there was discord, also defeats.

Tempers were up and spirits down. Things went awry on the field — and off the field.

Ron Cey was picked off third base. Tom Paciorek was thrown out stealing when the Dodgers were five runs down. Andy Messersmith was warned and fined $50 for throwing what an umpire interpreted as a knockdown pitch. Bill Buckner was kicked out of a game for bad-mouthing an umpire.

Garvey Upset
Off the field, Steve Garvey was upset by a newspaper story quoting some teammates as being resentful of his "image-selling." Manager Walter Alston accused a sportswriter of "second-guessing" him. Don Sutton bickered with a reporter over what should — and should not — be made public about his private life.

If all happened during 11 forgettable days. In June, on an odyssey which ended with the Dodgers losing 7 of 11 games.

Life on the road. It is a bus ride at 2 a.m., a poker game at 35,000 feet, a cup of lukewarm hotel coffee at 45 cents.

And on this trip, there were few signs of cheer as the Dodgers sank slowly in the National League West — from 2-1 to 7 games behind Cincinnati.

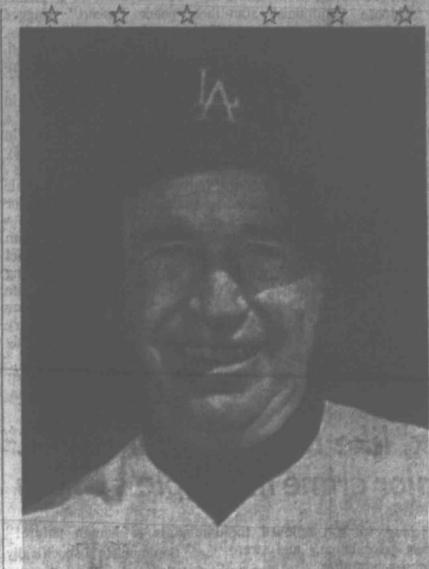

The signs of frustration generally surfaced in the clubhouse.

"You can't win with a different lineup every day," a veteran player grumbled to a reporter. "Good teams win with a set lineup. We've got some guys out there who don't know what the hell they're doing."

Third-baseman Cey conceded that the Dodgers weren't as self-assured as they had been. "I'd like to see us win," he said, "if only to get our confidence back."

Wynn Prays
Jimmy Wynn sat alone one day, long after a 2-1 defeat, and said he'd prayed that somehow things would turn around.

Walter Alston said he'd tried everything — from lineup juggling to pep talks to excusing the team from batting practice — but nothing worked.

"How do you keep from throwing a shoe through the window?" someone asked Alston after the Dodgers lost their fourth in a row.

Alston shrugged. "If I thought it would help," he said, "I'd do it."

There were signs of clubhouse psyching, by players who last season were unemotional when the club was 10 games ahead in the West.

"Hey, we gotta think about that vacation in Hawaii!" shouted Joe Ferguson, mindful that the Dodgers would participate in the lucrative Superweek competition again if they reach the World Series.

In San Francisco, Willie Crawford turned to pitcher Doug Rau and said, "Rowooo! What happens when Joshua comes to bat? He's gonna go down, right? And Thomas? He goes down, too, right? And Murcer? Down!

New Basketball Conference Formed

By DAN GEORGE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Larry Albus laughs off suggestions that he may be a boy wonder.

But consider this: At 24, he is the commissioner of a new college basketball conference designed to turn around the financial fortunes of its urban members.

He has been athletic director of St. Louis University for 10 years, during which time he has added hockey as one of the school's major sports.

He spent most of his brief career in the Army winning awards for leadership and meritorious service.

Albus, however, says it's merely a matter of analyzing problems and finding a practical solution.

"I had a mathematics teacher who once said you're always given enough information to solve a problem. If not, you have a dilemma. I just use the information I have," he said.

Albus' latest project, the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, is the product of such analysis. It is composed of six schools, all from major urban areas and relatively close to each other.

The schools—St. Louis, Louisville, Memphis State, Tulane, Cincinnati and Georgia Tech—will play a postseason basketball tournament next spring and isn't — news. Not yours." Sutton bristled. "Well, I can decide what's private and what's public about my life," he shot back. "I'm asking you not to print that."

The exchange lasted another minute or so and was dropped, unresolved. The story wasn't printed.

Emotions are stronger and tiny annoyances are magnified when a team is losing.

Walter Alston groused at one who asked if he'd considered removing pitcher Burt Hooton sooper. "Now you're second-guessing me!" he snapped. "You want me to call you up on the telephone every time I make a pitching change?"

The reporter said he was merely asking what others might want to know — and giving Alston an opportunity to defend his strategy.

"I don't have to defend it," he said. "Nobody else asks silly questions like that!"

The next day, however, Alston was cordial toward all reporters as usual.

Verbal Clash
Don Sutton had a verbal clash with a reporter over an innocent off-the-field activity he didn't want to become public property.

"That involves my private life and that's not for you to print," he said without earshot of several other players.

"It's our job," the reporter replied, "to decide what is —

Ruffian Faces Test

83,000 Expected For Match Race Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — The match race between three-beat Foolish Pleasure and undefeated Ruffian Sunday, which is being hailed as the "Race of the Century," will have to go a long way to surpass the dramatics of the War Admiral-Seabiscuit confrontation in 1938.

83,000 fans are expected for the 5 p.m. CDT starting time. Since the turn of the century, there have been about 100 match races staged in America, four involving Triple Crown champions, and the War Admiral-Seabiscuit one generally is regarded as the greatest of all.

While it is true that the Foolish Pleasure-Ruffian match has some very exciting aspects—colt vs. filly, $450,000 purse, potential largest audience ever to watch a televised thoroughbred race—the charisma of the 1938 event was equally appealing.

Simply, the "Admiral" and the "Biscuit" were two of the most magnificent colts in racing history. They had streaked across the racing spectrum in such a shower of speed, stamina, courage and color, it was inevitable that a huge clamor would arise for them to meet.

War Admiral was a son of Man o' War. He won three of six starts as a 2-year-old and never was out of the money. At age 3 in 1937, he raced eight times, was undefeated, won the Triple Crown and was named Horse of the Year. He was without doubt the darling of War Admiral's long-standing distaste for an inbred will to win. He was owned by Samuel Riddle, also owner of Man o' War, and was trained by George Conway.

Seabiscuit, a year older, was one of the greatest campaigners of the turf, who crisscrossed the country to race all challengers. His career, however, started out in rather dismal fashion. Owned by Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps and her brother, Ogden Mills, and a grandson of Man o' War, he made 25 starts as a 2-year-old in 1935, winning only five times, failing to place in 18 and earning only $12,510.

In August 1936, he was bought by west coast auto magnate Charles Howard for $7,500 and, under the tutelage of trainer Tom Smith, former cowboy bronco buster, became a consistent winner. By the end of 1937 he was the handicap champion and top money-winner with $168,580, just nosing out War Admiral's $166,500. Those were rather heady figures in the '30s. He subsequently went on to be named Horse of the Year in 1938.

The heroics on the track of both colts throughout 1937 started a public and press clamor for a match race. This grew to a loud roar by the spring of 1938, as both horses continued their winning ways.

For a while, it seemed the race never would materialize, largely because of the demands of the owners. Howard insisted on scale weight of 128 pounds, a distance of 1 1/4 miles, a winner-take-all purse of $100,000 and a guarantee that the track would have to be fast, due to Seabiscuit's aversion to mud.

Riddle demurred at first, but finally gave in to all conditions, insisting only on a walk-up start, in deference to War Admiral's long-standing distaste for the starting gate. He finally relented on this, too.

Both owners liked the idea of the winner-take-all purse, since it would enable the winner to pass Sun Beau as the world's top money-winner. It would also be the largest purse ever won in any race in the world.

It came as a terrible shock when Howard called off the race on May 24, with the announcement that Seabiscuit's legs were sore and puffy. In fact, the colt showed so little speed in his workouts that War Admiral was expected to be an easy winner.

The match race seemed very remote as the summer wore on, with War Admiral campaigning in the east and Seabiscuit in California. However, in September, when the "Biscuit" returned to New York, a new personality entered the picture and got things moving again. He was Alfred G. Vanderbilt, then only 26 years old and president of Pimlico Race Course in Baltimore. The track had been drawing poorly, was losing money and was in need of a big boost.

A match race at Pimlico between the two outstanding horses in America would do the trick, Vanderbilt reasoned, and he set off to make it happen, much against the hopes of his elders that he would succeed. That he did was considered a racing coup of gigantic proportions.

First he convinced Howard that this would be the last opportunity for Seabiscuit to meet War Admiral, since Riddle already had announced he was retiring his colt to stud at the end of the year. With Riddle, he played up to the old man's vanity, voicing confidence that the "Admiral" would have no problems winning. He even got the two owners to agree to a purse of only $15,000, plus a gold cup, with a $5,000 forfeit bond in case of a "no show."

He told both men the terms would convince the turf fans this would be a real sporting venture, rather than a money making deal.

Higher costs are pushing up the price of electricity.

Here's how you can hold down your air conditioning costs:

1. Set thermostat at 78 degrees—the lower the setting the more electricity the unit uses,
2. Replace disposable or clean permanent type filters as needed — clogged filters make the unit work harder and use more electricity.
3. Provide adequate attic insulation — this helps reduce heat buildup.
4. Install proper duct, ceiling and wall insulation and weatherstrip windows and doors — keep hot air out, cool air in. This helps reduce winter heating costs too.
5. Shade the outdoor unit from the sun but keep the unit free of grass or other obstructions that might prevent proper air circulation.
6. Keep windows and fireplace dampers closed — this prevents excessive loss of cool air and infiltration of hot air.
7. Shade windows from direct sunlight with awnings, blinds or draperies — this reduces the load on the unit.

Even though it's costing more, the electricity that's helping keep you cool this summer is still a good value. While the cost of living has increased 68% in the past 10 years, the price of electricity is up only about 25%.

Sex Rears Head In Red China

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT
The Los Angeles Times

HONG KONG — Sex has reared its alluring head in the austere People's Republic of China — and is seducing serious-minded citizens from their duties.

With the possible exceptions of North Korea and North Vietnam, China is undoubtedly the most puritanical society in the world. One reason for the Communists' fanatical opposition to any public mention of sex or even romantic love is the profligacy their predecessors exhibited.

The harems of the Chinese emperors numbered hundreds of wives, concubines and mistresses. The Ming dynasty, which simultaneously attained the heights of refined elegance and the depths of depraved degeneracy, maintained dozens of brothels, carefully graded for officials of different ranks. Chinese pornography was a major art form, finding expression in exquisite drawings, salacious couplets, and sometimes, fearfully crude statuettes.

Since they discern the ailments of their chief enemy, bourgeois decadence, in sexuality, the Communists have strictly prohibited not only pornography, but even the most idyllic love stories — unless they point out a "revolutionary" moral. The authorities are, of course, also concerned, about the population explosion — and hope to reduce the birth rate by late marriage and self-denial.

China once possessed its own equivalent of the frankly erotic ballet that is still the rage in the Soviet Union, though such dances were never a public attraction. But today, the average Chinese can see only the starkly ascetic and asexual "revolutionary dramas" inspired by Chiang Ching, Madame Mao Tse-Tung, who herself led an extremely varied and versatile romantic life as a young starlet.

The result of such conscious — and by no means ignobly motivated — suppression of all outward manifestations of sexuality has been quite different from what the leadership sought. Just as the flash of a centimeter of silken ankle could reportedly drive strong men mad in the heavily draped Victorian Era, the slightest hint of sexuality seems to have wild effects in blue-nosed Red China.

An article in Study and Criticism, journal of the Shanghai intellectuals, has just complained bitterly about that too-human tendency. The writer noted that a new book entitled its own standards, is licentious by Chinese Communist standards.

During the chaotic Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution (1966-69), for example, a senior official was denounced because of his excessive interest in the fair sex. The self-righteous adolescent Red Guards felt that a picture was worth a thousand words, however vituperative. Accordingly, they circulated cartoons showing the official, who was called Li Min, chasing young ladies of remarkable voluptuousness — and, sometimes, heaven forbid, even embracing the ladies.

The Chinese public agreed wholeheartedly that one picture was worth a thousand — perhaps even two or three thousand — words. The cartoons they settled down to a picnic, their police "escort" dragged three couples from the bushes. Their clothing was disheveled, and they were abjectly ashamed, not to say frightened.

The six had been engaged in no complex group-play, but a pleasant afternoon's dalliance in the sunlight. Nonetheless, they were serious offenders. Premarital sex, like long hair on males, is virtually a major crime in People's China.

However, it appears from other accounts that the chief fault of the six was getting caught. In the rural areas, life goes on as it always has. Some Chinese damsels still marry when it becomes quite obviously necessary.

As an old Chinese saying goes: "Eating and sex are the fundamentals of human nature!"

The Communists specifically and indignantly deny the existence of abstract human nature. They have tried to strike "sex" from that saying.

The reason, of course, is that the practice of sex distracts from political and economic "tasks" — as well as increasing a population already pressing hard on the nation's resources. George Orwell foresightedly invented the "anti-sex league" in his novel, "1984." In China, everyone is enrolled in the informal anti-sex league.

But, unfortunately, sex remains fundamental to human nature. The once glitteringly corrupt city of Shanghai is a good example of the persistence of sexual pursuits amid great difficulties. In "preliberation" days, sex, like any other commodity, was on sale in almost infinite variety in Shanghai. Frantically seeking the security of a protector — or, even better, a husband — stateless white Russian refugee girls were always available. Some houses in the French and the international concessions boasted that they could provide on demand anyone from a Mongolian princess through a Melanesian chief's daughter to a red Indian squaw with a wooden leg. An English earl's daughter might take a day or two.

Today, in Shanghai, holding hands in public is an occasion for sour looks, if not actual harassment. There are, naturally, neither brothels nor favorite courtesans, nor sex-charged dramas which were formerly advertised by exquisite paintings on glass. Few read "preliberation" poetry, since its chief theme was, naturally, romantic and carnal love.

"Nonetheless," a recent visitor to Shanghai reports, "young girls still parade for hire in the back lanes. They are moved not, as in the past, by the necessity to survive, but by the desire for money to buy the scarce goods of a non-consumer society."

Paradoxically, the gray, puritanical character of the city puts a premium on sex. "After all," adds the visitor, "there are no movies except heavy, hearty revolutionary dramas, no dramatic television, no books except improving tomes, and, of course, no nightclubs. What else is there to do after dinner?"

Premarital sex, like long hair on males, is virtually a major crime in People's China

"Selected Verse from the Dream of the Red Chamber" has been taken up enthusiastically and distributed by "a large number of (official) organizations."

Its popularity, unfortunately, is not due to the unquestioned literary merits of the novel. "The Dream of the Red Chamber" is one of the half-dozen masterpieces of pre-20th-Century Chinese belles lettres. But the selections have been eagerly received because they concentrate on love poems translated from semi-classical into modern Chinese.

Most of the selections are, to say the least, harmless or even naive by the standards of the West. But the modern West, admittedly permissive by attacking Li Min enjoyed the widest circulation, and were avidly sought-after.

Awakening to the fact that the young were being corrupted, the authorities issued a strong decree: Thenceforth, verbal attacks on Li Min would continue, but there would be no more inflammatory cartoons.

The result of such decisions has been a society that is, at least outwardly, sex-starved. It contrasts remarkably with the sex-saturated societies of the West — or even neighboring Hong Kong, not to speak of Japan, the Philippines and Thailand.

Foreigners visiting the Ming tombs near Peking recently were doubly astonished by a most unusual phenomenon. As escapers are young people in their early 20s. "The older generation has adapted to the system and in any case is rarely prepared to take on the risks involved," says Karl.

His escape was a typical one. It did not even warrant a place in the folklore that now attracts thousands of tourists each year to Berlin.

The attractions include an escape museum near the international check-point in Friedrichstrasse where for 35 cents one can see cars full of bullet holes used to smuggle people through the check-points, or a mini U-boat that got its East German builder safely across the River Elbe to the West.

Wall As Attraction There are little crosses all along the Wall to remind you that over 100 people have been shot trying to escape since it was erected in 1961. And of course there is the Wall itself, with its viewing towers from which one can look into East Germany.

Thirteen years after the Wall was built, over 30,000 East Germans, including more than 2,500 members of the East German armed forces, had fled across the East-West border. Another 120,000 have escaped through other Eastern bloc countries, or by defecting while on authorized trips abroad.

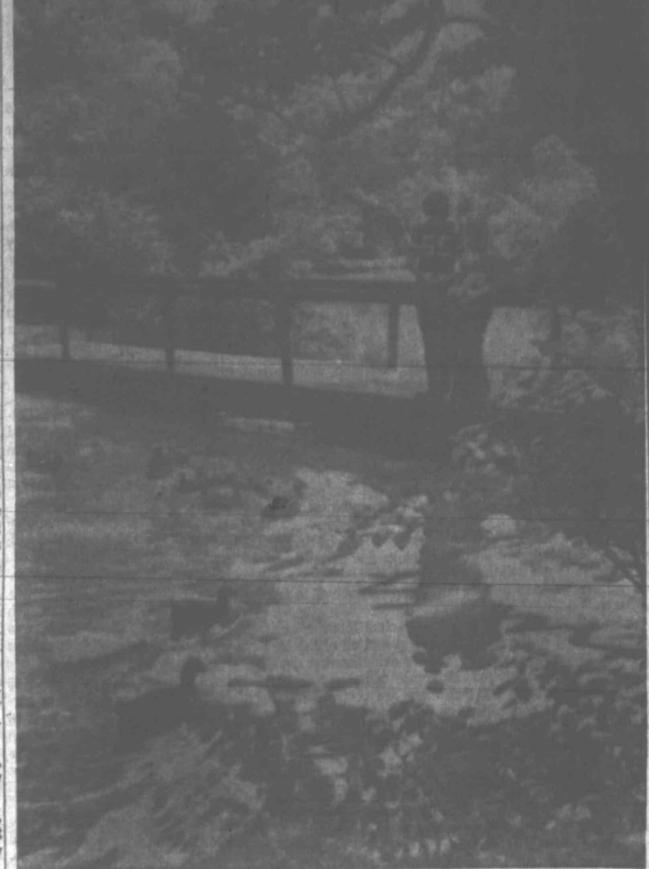

In the first six months of 1974, 442 people crossed the border between the two Germanys, and another 1,658 escaped by defecting or through Eastern bloc countries. Tragic Incident The latter is perhaps the easiest way out but there have been some dramatic cases. One ended in the tragic death of a 3-year-old boy. In 1971, Hartmut Wieback decided to escape with his girlfriend, Heidi Wilhelm, and their child, Dirk. The couple went to Hungary on a holiday and met a truck driver working for an Austrian firm who agreed to help them escape in the back of his truck.

When the lorry reached the Austrian border a car suddenly cut sharply across it. The truck driver had to brake and the jerk woke the little boy up. To stop him crying, his father pressed a cushion over his face. The Hungarian guards heard nothing and the truck was waved through. It was only on the other side that Wieback realized he had suffocated his child.

In the early '60s several West Germans took an active part in helping people escape. Many, such as Eckhardt Casser, a mining student who used his special skills to dig tunnels under the wall including the famous "Tunnel 57" in Bernauerstrasse through which 57 people escaped, did it for nothing.

But gradually escape became big business. Harry Seidel, an East German professional cyclist who escaped by crawling under a barbed wire barricade charged about $232 for each East Berliner he smuggled through his tunnels. He helped 36 people escape before being caught by the East German police. And Wolfgang Fuchs, another former East German

West German Life Not Always What Refugees Expected

By PAUL BETTS
The Observer, London

LONDON — Karl now lives in Munich. He is in his early thirties and works as a typographer. He leads a carefree and affluent life, yet it is regularly interrupted by what he calls "heavy bouts of spleen."

Ever since he escaped from East Germany in 1965 by walking across a minefield and crawling under a wall of barbed wire at a remote point on the East-West border, he has suffered from mental breakdowns.

"When I began thinking of escape," he explained, "like most of my friends, I only had one idea in my head. To get to the promised land where I could finish my studies and start a career. It was only once over the border that I became aware of the consequences of my escape."

Like so many other young East Germans, Karl's first taste of freedom was the grim surroundings of a refugee camp. Some 30 camps have been set up in West Germany, and refugees can be cooped up there for months while the bureaucratic machine investigates their background and eventually allows them to move on with a state loan, or, if they are lucky, to a new job.

Karl spent eight weeks at Giessen, near Frankfurt. "I had plenty of time to sit and think and do nothing. The excitement of my escape quickly disappeared. For the first time I realized I had cut off all links with the past and my family. For what? An environment more uncertain than the one I had just left."

Political motives had little to do with Karl's escape. "Many people use politics as an excuse. The real incentive is often an economic one. The West still offers opportunities we simply don't have in East Germany."

It is for this reason that the majority of East German escapers are young people in their early 20s. "The older generation has adapted to the system and in any case is rarely prepared to take on the risks involved," says Karl.

His escape was a typical one. It did not even warrant a place in the folklore that now attracts thousands of tourists each year to Berlin.

del stage each year. This was the meeting for all of Michigan and folks came from all over the state.

Through the rally, DeVos hoped to gain more distributors. More distributors mean more Amway soap sales. A show of hands said about 25 per cent of those at the rally were first timers — either new Amwayers or maybes.

"Some of your friends may think you're silly going around selling soap at night," DeVos said.

His pitch was not that Amway was wonderful or that his system of direct-selling worked. Rather, he told the audience to do something for themselves.

"Some of you may have been brought up in the atmosphere of defeatism, that conditions rule you. God gave us the ability to do something. We are not slaves to that system.

"If there is anything this organization represents, it's that we bring hope to people and help them fulfill dreams."

Those envious of DeVos' success, or even those just a little skeptical, have dismissed him as a quack.

But if Amway is his style, it's also his livelihood. It has made him a millionaire.

escaper, received nearly $9,200 for helping members of the East German Christian Democratic Union escape through his 150-yard-long tunnel.

One of the most famous escape organizers, Albert Schutz, is said to have made more than $700,000 from his business and helped 400 people out of East Berlin. His methods were ingenious to say the least. In 1965 he dressed an assistant as an American officer who would be waved through Check-Point Charlie without any trouble. Hidden inside his car there would always be one or two East Germans.

Three years ago, Schutz advertised a "family-together" service. He now charged up to $11,500 for each person he smuggled out. Before he had only charged $1,400.

$2,300, with children half price.

The official attitude of the West German government towards escapees has always been sympathetic. Under the West German Constitution, all Germans, including those in the East have the right to total freedom of movement. For this reason escape from East Germany is not a crime in West Germany.

The East German government takes a different view. Up to 1973, sentences for helping people escape could range from two to 10 years. Yet there was always the hope of early release, for the West German government "ransomed" up to 2,000 citizens from East Germany each year for sums of up to $46,000. The East Germans have increased the sentences for helping people escape, and since July 1974 more than 40 people have been given sentences of up to 15 years.

Soap Salesman Like Evangelist

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — The Billy Graham of the soap set brought his traveling salvation show to Saginaw recently. There were sons, brothers and sisters, and there was religion. Richard DeVos and about 20 disciples arrived from Ada, Mich., in a huge, brown "Executive Coach." What the scrubbed-faced Michiganers had to say to the 2,500 persons in Saginaw was simple: "C'mon, friend, make a better life for yourself. We'll show you how."

DeVos is no ordinary soap salesman, nor was his rally the usual fist-thumping appeal to the soul.

He and his partner, Jay Van Andel, own and manage the Amway Corp., a firm based in Ada. It is well known, especially in the Midwest, for home and personal care products, all home delivered by your neighbor — a parttime, door-to-door salesperson.

Amway has more than 200,000 such distributors. They sold more than $250 million worth of soap, vitamins and other products during 1974. In 1959, when the company was founded, its sales were $600,000.

The Saginaw rally was one of the 75 or so DeVos or Van An-

Christopher Robin Becomes Author

By LESLIE HANSCOM
Newsday

NEW YORK — It is not every day of the week that a fictional character, immortalized in an established classic, turns up later in mortal guise and writes a book of his own. It definitely comes as news therefore that Christopher Robin — the same Chris Robin who used to hang out with a gang which included a talking teddy bear known as Winnie-the-Pooh, a stuffed Piglet and a donkey who went under the name of Eeyore — has written his own account of a childhood which, thanks to four books by A. A. Milne, is also part of the childhood of practically everybody else born in the last half century.

Tender Childhood Record
Probably it also ranks as news that the book is of an unexpected character. If one were to predict in the light of recent fashion what kind of book the hero of a remorselessly sweet nursery saga would write about the reality it was based on, what would one look for but an expose and an outpouring of neurotic bitterness? Some might even hope for this. Not every grown-up can stomach A. A. Milne — as will be remembered from Dorothy Parker's baby talk malediction on him: "Toustant weader frowed up."

Yet Christopher Milne's "The Enchanted Places" (Dutton, $6.95) is not one of those familiar efforts by the child of a famous father to debunk the old man. It is for the most part a tenderly nostalgic record of a childhood that seems almost uninterruptedly blissful. It has an element of complaint in it. Who wouldn't complain at being permanently arrested in the world's eyes as a 5-year-old inhabiting a fantasy world with his talking toys? But Christopher Milne's strongest beef against his father and his life appears to be that he had such a pleasant childhood it was hard to grow out of.

The jacket of Milne's memoir has photographs front and back that show him as he was and is. On the front, he is the Christopher Robin everybody knows, a moppet in a smock and a Dutch-boy bob, hiding in a hollow tree with the stuffed bear who has come to hold a place in the culture of kiddyland alongside Pinocchio and Peter Rabbit. He looks exactly as he does in the illustrations E. H. Shepherd did for the four nursery books — which is no accident because Shepherd drew from life. In the back picture, Christopher Robin is shown as he looks now — a 55-year-old man of slight build with glasses and a head half bald.

In the lifetime bracketed by the two photographs, Christopher Robin viewed his own celebrity with different feelings at different times. As a child in the care of an adored nanny for his first nine years, he was hardly aware that other children in Australia and Japan knew him and his toys by name. Reporters occasionally asked to speak to him, but the only one who made a strong impression was the female who outraged his sense of truthfulness by putting a quote from one of his father's books in his mouth instead of writing what he had actually said to her.

Record Haunted Him
He took it as a matter of course that his father wrote books about him and this hardly interfered with the real business of life which, as he remembers it now, consisted of seeking adventures with the ever-faithful nanny in the meadows and woods around his father's English country house. When called upon to make a recording in his little-boy voice of some of his father's verses, he took it as another bit of fun, never suspecting that the phonograph record would survive to haunt him with embarrassment. It was later on, when he was at boarding school, that his sadistic contemporaries played it over and over to torment him "Hush, hush, whisper who dares— Christopher Robin is saying his prayers". Christopher Robin smashed the record.

Any schoolboy who has been put through the ordeal of permanent association with the A. A. Milne saccharinity could be excused for hating his father, but Christopher Milne expresses no such feeling. He writes that, if he didn't love his parents in the early years when his life, like that of all English children of his class, was dominated by the nanny, it was because he didn't know them well enough. Later on, when the nanny and the 9-year-old parted, it was to his father that Christopher Robin transferred his dependence and their very closeness was one of the younger Milne's problems in becoming an adult.

The time came when Christopher Robin actively resented his father, but by now he was grown up, and his feeling was no fault of the older man's.

After serving in World War II, in which he suffered a head wound, and graduating from Cambridge, he came to the bitter realization that he hadn't inherited A. A. Milne's talent. Furthermore, such talents as he had — he was good with his hands and clever at mathematics — didn't point the way to any very brilliant career. For a time he was jealous of his father's success. Coming to accept himself for what he was, however, he chose the modest occupation of bookseller. He now runs a bookstore with his wife in the English town of Dartmouth, and he indicates that this has given him contentment.

The book in which A. A. Milne says goodbye to the fictional Christopher Robin is "The House at Pooh Corner." Any father who has ever read it to a Christopher Robin of his own will remember the unexpected lump in his throat as the hero prepares at the end of the book for a mysterious departure which the grown-up reader realizes is departure from childhood. But the last words reassure that somehow the little boy playing with the stuffed bear will always exist. There is no doubt that the boy in the book always will, and for his prototype in real life, this is now only a mild irritation.

Christopher Milne says that the Pooh books are put away on an obscure shelf in his store, but that he manages to rise to the occasion with reasonably good grace whenever still another customer says to an offspring, "Come over here a minute, Mandy love. Come and say 'how-do-you-do' to Christopher Robin."

Videodiscs Potent Competition For Movie, Television Industries

By EDWARD NEILAN
Copley News Service
WASHINGTON—Move over commercial and pay TV!

Look out motion pictures! Here comes the "videodisc home entertainment" system. Due on the marketplace in late 1976, the system uses optical videodiscs which look much like phonograph records. Each resembles a long-playing record album with pictures. The albums will sell at prices ranging from $3 to $10, and the

Clyde Wilson On Camp Staff

SAN ANGELO—Midland High School band director Clyde Wilson will provide instruction for stage bands as a faculty member of Angelo State University's summer band camp.

The camp, which begins Sunday, is expected to draw more than 225 junior and senior high school band students from 37 Texas cities, including Midland.

unit that plays these discs, the optical videodisc player, will sell for about $300.

The optical videodisc will enable the consumer to view a wide variety of current films in the comfort of one's home without concern about a cable-TV fee or TV commercial interruptions.

Many TV favorites also will be available. Unlike commercial and cable TV, which is regulated by the Federal Communications Commission, permission is not required to play the videodiscs on the home TV screen.

The Optical Videodisc System consists of a prerecorded videodisc and a player that attaches to any standard home television receiver and relays full-color or black-and-white pictures and sound to the viewer's own TV screen.

The system is being introduced by N. V. Philips, a Dutch company which already produces TV sets, broadcasting equipment and records, and MCA, Inc., which owns Universal Pictures, with an estimated 11,000 previously released movies immediately available for transfer to videodiscs.

Officials say arrangements also have been made for the use of 20th Century-Fox and Paramount Picture films, and discussions are being held with other producers.

North American Philips Corp. and its subsidiary, the Magnavox Co. (both part of the worldwide Philips group of companies), will produce and market the optical videodisc player. MCA will develop, market and distribute the videodiscs which can be played on the 117 million color and black-and-white sets in the United States.

Other prospective entries into the videodisc revolution are RCA (the corporate parent of National Broadcasting Co.), Zenith and TelDec (the combination of Germany's Telefunken and Decca of Britain). Japan's Sony has not officially announced plans to enter the videodisc field but observers report that the company is working on a magnetic card system.

W. Zeiss, manager of the Philips videodisc operation, said this revolutionary development, which has been test marketed in Europe over the last few years, is "one of the most important market developments since the introduction of color television."

He said the consumer for the first time has complete freedom of choice of playing time, program material and control of the audio and visual material while it is being played.

Technically, the Philips and MCA system is distinguished from its potential competitors by an optical readout. That is, there is no needle or stylus. When placed on a turntable, the disc is scanned by a focused light beam from inside the player unit. There is no physical wear on the playing or replaying of the disc.

Each 30-minute videodisc incorporates 54,000 TV frames on one side. The optical scanning system offers such unique features as visual random access, speedup, slowdown, freeze frame, reverse and picture-by-picture viewing.

For example, Zeiss said, it is possible today to transfer an entire encyclopedia onto one side of the videodisc; the same can be done for a Sears, Roebuck catalog. The material can then be "read" page by page through the TV set.

Zeiss said the storage capacity of the videodisc system is one of the reasons why the system will be so valuable in consumer information applications.

The videodiscs take up much less room than microfilms, magnetic disc packs or video tapes, do not deteriorate with time and are easier to handle as well as being economical.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Two grants from Goodyear of $2,500 each have been made to the universities of Michigan and Rhode Island to evaluate the use of huge tire barriers to control shore erosion from storm waves along the shores of Lake Michigan and Narragansett and Chesapeake Bays. # Silent Cal Offers Cool Model For Living In Hot World

By BOB ARNEBECK
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — "There were massive evidences of celestial intervention at every step," wrote H. L. Mencken of the career of the 30th President of the United States, Roosevelt, flares and loud bangs did fill the air on the night Calvin Coolidge was born. It was the Fourth of July, 1872.

From that hot and hectic beginning Cal became the only indisputably cool President in our history. Since cool, avoiding hassles, and mellowing are the goals of millions of Americans, where is the Coolidge revival?

Unfortunately when nostalgia vendors scan the past for gold, they only hear the loud mouths. They decided that Silent Cal as cool as he was, couldn't draw next to "Give 'Em Hell, Harry," "A Night with H. L. Mencken," and "Will Rogers."

They made a mistake. An examination of the common stock of quotations our 38 Presidents have put on our tongue tips shows that Calvin Coolidge is responsible for two, a remarkable feat.

Eisenhower gave us one: "Uh." The Hell Raiser gave only his notions on the buck. Even 12 years of FDR gave most of us only a memory of what to fear.

After Lincoln, the most quoted

President is Coolidge. "The business of America is business," and "I do not choose to run," were in my stock of quotations by puberty.

"I do not choose to go to school," I told my parents. Any retort of theirs had to sound weak.

Short and memorable was Calvin Coolidge. The opposite of the hot, loud and long-winded Fourth, This Independence Day, air condition the nostalgia lobes of your cerebrum with silence and a little Cool from Cal.

SCENE: The front porch of the White House in 1924. A 5-foot-9, blue-eyed, light-lipped man in a grey suit and vest comes out. He parks a grey hornbug on his head and sits in a Vermont rocking chair.

CAL: Afternoon. He eases an inexpensive cigar out of his pocket, puffs it alive and contemplates the smoke. He begins rocking. Shadows creep.

CAL: Starting! His faithful Secret Service body guard appears.

CAL: I think I'll go window-shopping.

He's the unflappable in the age of flappers. He's Calvin Coolidge, an iceberg in a long line of volcanoes. After Vietnam and Watergate, who wants hell, even from Harry?

SCENE: Morning. Cal comes in from an early walk around pushes buttons and barks on the telephone.

CAL: Roach! Mink! Stamp! (He liked to give his help fond nicknames.)

Aides, ushers, policemen rush to attention in front of Cal's desk, wondering what national crisis they face. Cal turns and walks out of the room without a word. It was a joke he liked to play. He liked to defeat the egos of the palace guard.

SCENE: Night. There is a big reception at the White House. The biggies of Washington line up to shake the President's hand. Cal scowls at the Babbits and Brahmins. He didn't relish the chore, but he does it with cool dispatch. His record: 2,000 hands at the rate of 32 per minute.

SOCIETY MATRON: Oh, President Coolidge, you are so silent, but you must talk to me. I made a bet today that I could get more than two words out of you!

CAL: You lose. Truly the Golden Age of the White House, for isn't silence golden? Any number of aging heroes of Cool could play Cal at Ford's Theatre: Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, even Marlon Brando if he lost some weight.

SCENE: Morning. Cal comes in from an early walk around the White House grounds. He counts his paces.

CAL: A mile even. He gets to work at 9 o'clock. The hands of the grandfather clock swing through the hours. Cal props his feet up on the second drawer of his desk. The clock strikes 12. Cal has a light lunch, walks up the stairs, finds a couch and takes a nap. The clock strikes 2. He's back to work in his office.

CAL: Starting! Go get me some peanuts.

Cal nibbles on nuts. At 5 he smiles. His work is done.

The head usher for six Presidents assures us that Cal worked the least of all. Historians remind us that there was much Cal could have done to ward off the Depression. But don't put all the blame on Cal. Cool guys seldom plug the dike. Still, there should be a place in our nostalgia for the quiet man from Vermont. Cool is an end in itself. Witness: SCENE: A church yard in Washington. The rector hands a shovel to the President. The congregation is enthralled as Cal gives the shovel a swift kick and dirt dances out of a hole. Applause. Cal hands the shovel back to the rector.

RECTOR: Can you say a few words, Mr. President?

CAL: I don't know whether ever indicated to you that the cost of lead pencils to the government per year is about $125,000. Now it might be thought to be insignificant to save a lead pencil, but even the cost of lead pencils is a very considerable item.

And men filled the same chair who wasted reels and reels of recording tape.

SCENE: Cal sends for the military leaders to join him for breakfast. The brass come with briefcases bulging with plans for bombers and battleships. Cal keeps his nose in his buckwheat cakes. The brass engage in small talk, waiting for the President to ask the question that will let them unleash facts and figures. Cal sips the syrup off his plate.

CAL: Nice of you gentlemen to drop by. Exit Cal.

He never labeled any big operations Overload or Rolling Thunder. He didn't have a flair for big schemes and big names. When an Indian tribe searched for an honorary name for him, Cal suggested SHIL Water.

SCENE: Another press conference. Cal had one every Tuesday and Friday.

CAL: This is the season when the stories begin about the destitute condition of the Navy and the deplorable plight of the Army. The Post Office Department has an appropriation of over $700 million, and no one resorts to inflammatory statements to secure the passage of that bill. Some people think the bills for the Army and Navy won't go through unless somebody asserts that country is about to be engaged in war.

Cal could talk when it helped save money.

SCENE: Back on the porch. Two days before "Wonder Boy" Herbert Hoover's inauguration. CAL: What's worried me the most in the six years I've been here is the White House horns. The butler would bring a big one to the table. Mrs. Coolidge would have a slice, and I would have one. The butler would take the horn away, and what happened to it afterwards I never could find out. (Cal puffs on his cigar and smiles.) I like horns that come from near the bone.

A FLASHBACK: The sun is setting over the Potomac. Cal is entertaining guests on the Presidential yacht. Cal leans over the rail, alone. His guests whisper on the other side of the yacht. One guest cannot resist rhapsodizing about the scene before him.

GUEST: Look at that slight and slender figure! Look at that head bowed over the rail! What thoughts are in the mind of this man, burdened by the problems of the nation?

Shadows creep. Cal joins his guests.

CAL: See that sea gull over there? Been watching it for 20 minutes. Hasn't moved. I think he's dead.

8-Woman Rowing Team A Winner

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The University of California had its first eight-woman rowing crew this year — a winning one at that.

It defeated crews from UCLA, Santa Clara and Long Beach.

Carol Brandt of San Rafael, Calif., says, "Everyone is proud of this team; no one can believe that in seven or eight months we could be this good." Calling crew "the toughest sport there is except football," Miss Brandt said 60 women responded to the original call for a woman's crew last October. Twenty survived the rigorous training.

U.S. Celebrates 199th Birthday

By The Associated Press

With fireworks, speeches, patriotic observances and at least one protest about commercialism in bicentennial observances the nation today celebrates its 199th birthday.

President Ford speaks tonight at Ft. McHenry in Baltimore, where Francis Scott Key watched the "bombs bursting in air" and wrote the poem that became the national anthem.

A proposed federal ban on fireworks and unstable rockets is not in effect this July 4, although the Consumer Product Safety Commission issued rules in May 1974 to forbid them. Manufacturers complained they would be stuck with millions of dollars worth of fireworks they couldn't sell legally, forcing the agency to delay the rules.

Killers Sought In Iran

By The Associated Press

A hunt is on for the killers of another U.S. Embassy employe in Tehran and the kidnapers of an American colonel in Beirut, but no clues have been reported in either case.

Hassan Hossnan, a 25-year-old Iranian who worked in the visa section of the Embassy in Tehran, was shot and killed Thursday afternoon by two terrorists who intercepted the Embassy car in which he was riding. The terrorists escaped along with a woman who was in their car.

The driver of the Embassy car and another passenger were unharmed.

Premier Amir Abbas Hoveida said "every step would be taken to punish the criminals."

Two American members of the Tehran Embassy staff, Air Force Col. Paul R. Shaffer Jr., 45, of Dayton, Ohio, and Air Force Col. Jack H. Turner, 45, of Carbondale, Ill., were intercepted and killed in the same way on May 21 as they were being driven to work.

A group called the Iran People's Warrior Organization claimed responsibility for those killings, but no arrests have been reported. The government said recently that about 300 security men were looking for the killers.

In Beirut, a cease-fire between Moslem and Christian factions that had been battling since June 23 enabled security forces to search for Col. Ernest R. Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., who was kidnaped at the height of the fighting Sunday by about 20 gunmen.

The U.S. Embassy said Lebanese security forces reported finding no sign of Morgan, and the State Department said no ransom demand or other word had been received from the kidnapers.

New Facet Of 'Soviet Man' Being Revealed In Russia

By ROBERT C. TOTH
The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The arrival of the private car here has shown that "Soviet Man," supposedly reborn more wholesome by the revolution, is just as larcenous and entrepreneurial as any capitalist man when given half the chance.

A black market was predictable, given the shortage of cars for sale and the weaknesses in distribution systems for gas and spare parts. It occurred earlier when radios, televisions and refrigerators started to be mass produced.

But its size, particularly for gas, is startling. "Even the most conservative estimates," complained two men from Kursk in a recent article in the official government newspaper Izvestia, indicate that "more than a third of privately owned cars were operated on state gasoline. In some provinces and republics, the recorded annual sale of fuel for private cars is so small that you'd think people never used their cars at all."

If the Kursk figures are typical for the Soviet Union, which now has about 3.5 million private cars for its 250 million citizens, the annual loss to the state is 60 million rubles, or $85 million.

What must be most embarrassing to authorities, although it goes unmentioned in press exposes, is that private car owners are usually the upper strata of the Soviet system, or at least its better-paid people.

Not only is there a long waiting line for new cars but they are very expensive. The cheapest costs 3,600 rubles while the most popular Fiat-like Zhiguli is 5,500 rubles ($5,140 and $7,850, respectively), which is two to three times the average income of 1,680 rubles ($2,400) a year. The average Ivan is not the average car owner.

As one of the chief beneficiaries of the system, the car owner should be an archetypal "Soviet Man" but it is he who buys the black market gas or spare parts or gets a surreptitious repair job or sells his used car for an illegal profit.

One man earlier this year sold his old car through the state-run commission shops, as required. He had paid 2,500 rubles for it new 12 years ago. The state appraiser priced it officially at 1,800 rubles. But outside the shop, the owner asked, and got, 3,000 rubles — 1,200 through the state shop (less 7 per cent commission) plus 1,200 under the table.

"It has nothing to do with whether I'm a Soviet man or an American man or an African," he explained. "The gas situation is the same."

"The official price is 75 kopeks for 10 liters (32 cents a gallon for 72 octane gas) and if someone offers me 10 liters for 50 kopeks, I'll take it, as anyone would," he said.

Here are some other ways that the automotive age allows Soviet Man to turn a fast ruble: — Private cars become gypsy cabs in large cities. Such illegal use can mean confiscation of the car but given the lack of cabs, police blink at the practice.

State-owned cars also become gypsy cabs. Their drivers ply Moscow streets mostly at noon when the bosses are lunching. "Those black Volgas are the cleanest and best upholstered cabs in this city," said an American.

Windshield wipers left on cars overnight are almost sure to be stolen for the black market, and sometimes the thieves in spare parts is organized. Down in Krasnoyarsk, a worker began stealing them. When discovered by the foreman, the foreman joined the ring, ditto the assistant shop chief.

Repairmen as well as spare parts are in short supply and to get a car fixed usually takes "blat," or a bribe. A car owner in Armavir on the Black Sea was told by a shop foreman that his gear box could not be fixed, but then a mechanic quietly took him aside and quickly repaired it. He charged six rubles — "five for me and one for the till," he said. In rural areas private cars carry private farm produce to cities, often during work time. Speculators buy choice vegetables and fruits from farmers for profitable delivery to restaurants, sometimes take goods like rugs from city to city, all to the dismay of Socialist purists.

Motorcycles, motorboats, even snowmobiles are being put to illegal use. The snowmobiles are easier for private poachers to buy than for state organizations, it seems, and "game wardens on skis can only see the tracks," said a Pravda article. All told, as a Sovietskaya Rossiya correspondent lamented, "the last word in technology is being put to the service of free enterprise."

The dodges take advantage not only of willingness of individuals to be bribed but also of loopholes in the control systems. And the biggest loopholes by far exist in the gas distribution system. It works this way:

Drivers at state enterprises get gas coupons for their official vehicles according to mileage traveled. But the speedometers are advanced and fictitious trips reported, so the drivers get more coupons than warranted. These are sold to gas station attendants for about half the official price.

Private car owners are supposed to buy their coupons (different from those for state cars) only at special shops. Gas stations don't sell them, and no cash is supposed to change hands there. But private owners can get gas there without coupons for about two-thirds the official price from the attendants, who have the state

Pravda said. Attendants can legitimately have more gas in reserve than their records show, which is another source of illegal gas sales. Due to inaccuracies in the hand-cranked pumps, the instruction manual of the Petroleum Supply Ministry directs attendants to record 30 liters dispensed for every 30 liters actually delivered. Even then the greedy attendants fiddle the pumps. One Moscow investigating team found "rampant underdelivery of fuel to vehicles" in this way.

'Montezuma's Revenge' Vaccine Now Possibility

By HARRY NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Scientists believe they have found the cause of much of the diarrhea that strikes travelers to Mexico.

The culprit appears to be certain strains of the bacteria Escherichia coli that can produce potent toxins capable of causing the intestines to increase many fold the normal release of fluids and salt.

The result is travelers' diarrhea, also known as "tourist's" or "Montezuma's revenge."

The new finding raises the possibility of developing a vaccine against the toxin-producing bacteria to immunize travelers against their attack, or the production of a chemical that would neutralize the toxin.

Researchers from the University of California at Los Angeles school of medicine and Sepulveda Veterans Administration Hospital and from the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center and the Institute de Salubridad y Enfermedades Tropicales, in Mexico City, conducted the study.

The E. coli strains were pinpointed after studying for 18 days a group of 133 U.S. students newly arrived in Mexico.

During the 18 days, 29 per cent of the students had diarrhea. It rarely struck earlier than four days after their arrival in the country, and often did not occur until at least 10 days had passed.

Dr. Sherwood L. Gorbach of UCLA and the VA Hospital and his co-workers were prompted to look for the toxin-producing strains because of recent reports associating those strains with diarrhea among British troops in Aden and American soldiers in Vietnam.

Stool specimens taken soon after the students' arrival in Mexico revealed that none was carrying the toxin-producing strains.

However, additional specimens taken during their illness showed that 72 per cent of the sick students were carrying those strains. They apparently had picked up the disease-causing strains in drinking water or food.

Some strains of E. coli are normal in all intestinal tracts where they live without causing trouble because they don't make toxins. The fact that other strains can make toxins was only recently discovered.

The two kinds of strains are indistinguishable except by special laboratory tests. Standard tests will not reveal them.

For years scientists and others have speculated on the cause of turista. Laymen blame things like change in the water, too much noonday sun, spicy foods and nerves. Scientists have suspected kinds of bacteria other than E. coli such as salmonella and shigella.

The UCLA team found no evidence of either salmonella or shigella in the students.

Those bacteria are common causes of food poisoning. Their absence further supports the evidence that the toxic E. coli were responsible. The scientists did not look for another possible cause — viruses.

A possible vaccine or chemical to neutralize the toxin are several years away, according to the scientists. In the meantime they advised drinking only bottled or boiled water or bottled drinks and eating only cooked foods.

Dance Band Helps Doctors Unwind

By ANN HELLMUTH

MIAMI (AP) — Maynard Taylor and Joe de Cenzo are two Miami doctors who unwind from the pressures of a hard day in hospital operating rooms by running a successful dance band.

Taylor, 50, a prominent cardiac surgeon, is the band's guitarist and singer while De Cenzo, 45, an obstetrician and gynecologist, plays the tenor sax and clarinet.

"I don't play golf, I don't have a boat, so this is my way of getting out and relaxing," Taylor said. "Music is a tremendous medium of expression and you learn a great deal by being involved with music."

Since the two first formed The Doctors' band 14 years ago they have played at hundreds of parties and conventions, donating all earnings to charity.

"At first we were all doctors," De Cenzo said. "But now we have one dental lab technician, a building contractor, two real estate brokers and an insurance broker."

"I worked my way through college in Halifax, Nova Scotia, by singing with bands," Taylor said. "When we formed the group we decided to play a great variety of music, and we do everything from the Big Band era to hard rock."

De Cenzo trained in New Orleans and also helped pay for his studies by playing with musical groups.

One drawback to being a doctor as well as a musician, Taylor said, is that guests at parties sometimes try to discuss their medical problems.

"We meet many of our patients at these functions," he added. "And some of them try and discuss their aches and pains with us between musical numbers."

De Cenzo once found himself going to the aid of a partygoer who was having a miscarriage.

And Taylor said he had sometimes been late for musical engagements "because I've had to go and put in a pacemaker prior to playing."
