AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill says the Texas Supreme Court has cleared the way for possible future suits by his office and private citizens to challenge excessive utility rates.

Court Judge Tom Blackwell of Austin on whether the proposed charges are reasonable. Hill said he would be willing to drop his challenge if Bell submitted a lower set of rates that the attorney general's experts determined were not excessive.

Free Cars, Beer Out At Democrat, GOP Conventions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic and Republican national committees may have to take a second look at potential sites for their national conventions because of a ruling from the Federal Election Commission.

The commission ruled Wednesday that the national political conventions can't accept free services from private industry beyond what those corporations would be willing to offer any other gathering. According to that ruling, the free automobiles and buses and the free beer and soft drinks always in plentiful supply at past presidential nominating conventions will be missing in 1976.

The two national chairmen, Mary Louise Smith of the Republicans and Robert S. Strauss of the Democrats, were not available for comment on the ruling.

The commission ruled that the parties could accept free services from state and municipal governments although it specifically warned against using them as conduits for corporate donations.

The ruling could influence whether the Democrats choose to hold their convention in New York City or Los Angeles. Madison Square Garden in New York is privately owned and thus could not be offered rent-free to the Democrats. The convention hall in Los Angeles is publicly owned and could be offered rent-free.

Under the commission ruling, the City of New York could rent Madison Square Garden, paying the normal rate, and then offer to let the Democrats use it for free. But somebody, either the city or the Democrats, would have to pay for use of the hall.

All five cities under consideration by the Republicans have publicly owned halls. They are Los Angeles, Miami Beach, Cleveland, New Orleans and San Francisco.

In another ruling the commission said that loans to pay the cost of an upcoming Democratic fund raising telethon are contributions subject to the Campaign Reform Act of 1974, which imposes a $25,000 ceiling on the amount that any individual can contribute in one year.

Air time for the telethon scheduled for July 26 and 27 is estimated to cost $1.5 million which must be paid in advance. The commission ruling would prohibit the Democrats from raising that money with a few large loans which then would be repaid from the telethon proceeds.

In anticipation of an unfavorable ruling the Democrats have been raising money in smaller chunks and now have collected nearly $800,000.

Accord Reached In Construction Strike

DALLAS (AP) — The North Texas Contractors Association has reached a tentative agreement with 11 construction trade unions to end a 10-week strike which has crippled construction in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, NCTA manager Harold Moore said early today.

Moore said the three-year contract includes a $2.40 per hour wage increase. He said the contract is contingent upon the settlement of all unsettled labor agreements and its ratification by union membership. The 11 trade unions included in the contract agreement are the last of the 29 original unions which went on strike 10 weeks ago.

After emerging from a 15-hour negotiating session early this morning, Moore said he had been assured by union negotiators they would favorably recommend the contract to the rank and file members.

Moore predicted the workers would be back to work in "a very short period of time."

Hold-Up Play May Backfire

It's a good idea to refuse the first trick in the enemy's long suit, but it's not necessarily wise to do so when some secondary suit is led. It takes judgment to know whether the suit is important or unimportant.

back came the jack of hearts. Now South was in position to take nine tricks: two hearts, one spade, two diamonds and four clubs. He took his tricks and cheerfully gave up the rest.

If East takes the first spade trick and returns a heart, South is beaten. He has three spades, two hearts, two diamonds and only one club. As soon as South tries for a second club, the defenders can run the hearts, defeating the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-8 4 3 H-Q 9 8 5 3 D-Q J 8 C-8 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. You have barely enough for this weak bid despite your length in trumps. This would be a poor time to jump to four hearts.

West opened the five of hearts, and South won with the king. Declarer saw that he would have no trouble if he could win five clubs. If the clubs were not solid, he would need one spade trick.

South made his best play by leading the queen of spades at the second trick. Experienced defenders tend to refuse such a trick.

That's the way it worked in this case. East didn't take the first spade.

You Don't Have To Hold A 'Talking Book'

Dear Heloise:
In a recent column, a devoted husband expressed his appreciation for the pleasure your column gives his wife, who is very ill, and who asks him to read it to her every day.

His beautiful letter requires no answer.

However, it suggests a library service that many people are not aware of, which is talking books.

Talking books, although originally for the legally blind, have for several years been available to anyone who is physically unable to handle a regular book.

This includes those who have a long illness and are unable to hold a book, but would enjoy having someone read to them.

Inquiry should be made at the nearest public library for information about how and where to apply in a particular state. Would you please inform your readers of this service?
Mary Lois Rice

I would be delighted. Thank you for calling this to our attention.

Dear Heloise:
I received a lovely vase that is very shallow.

I purchased three bunches of very small artificial flowers to go in it, but discovered I did not have a frog to fit and no wire to hold the flowers in place.

Well, I had been making jelly so I happened to have some paraffin on hand. I warmed it slightly until it was soft and filled the little vase three-fourths full.

I placed my flowers in the paraffin, and they stayed in place beautifully.

Dear Heloise:
If your cellar stairs have low overhead beams or such, a strip of white plastic tape over the corners of low overhead edges will help to see the obstruction much easier — especially when going down into the cellar after being out in the bright sunlight.

Think how this would help the meter readers that have to enter our cellars to read them.

her I put a hole in the center with the point of a paring knife. I make the hole just about the size of her thumb and she can hold onto the cookie until she is finished with it.

She never eats the whole thing, and I can't see saving anything that messy, so I don't feel badly about what I cut out.

At least she enjoys what I do give her a lot more.

Dear Heloise:
Wax paper from ready-to-eat cereal boxes are often in good enough shape to be used again.

I save the cardboard tubes from my paper towels, or rolls of foil. These make an excellent place to rewind this heavy wax paper.

I hold them in place with a rubber band and place them in a convenient drawer.

You will find you will be reaching for the roll quite often.

Dear Abby Navigator Both Reverent, Irreverent

— By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I knew Lt. Col. John W. Kellogg, the Catholic who proudly wore a Star of David, a symbol of the Jewish faith, in honor of three Jewish comrades in arms.

John was a bomber navigator in W.W. II. After a bombing run over the Ploesti oil fields in Roumania, his plane was badly shot up. While the plane limped back to the Air Force base in Italy, the men tossed out everything that was loose to lighten the plane's load until nothing remained but the shell. It looked as though they weren't going to make it. When the Italian coastline was spotted, the captain ordered all his men to prepare to parachute to earth.

John bailed out and landed in a plowed field where an Italian farmer and his son were working. John was so grateful to be on terra firma that he dropped to his knees and began a prayer of thanksgiving.

The two Italians, having witnessed this scene, came over, doffed their caps, bowed their heads and also began to pray loudly.

After a few moments, John looked up and said, "F' chrisakes, shut up! I can't hear my own prayers!"

The John I knew could be both reverent and irreverent.

DEAR ROY: Thanks for the memories!

DEAR ABBY: How do I go about telling the girl whom our son dates to please stop buying our family expensive gifts for every occasion? We do not want them because we can't afford to reciprocate.

She has a very large family, and because she gave everyone in our family she ever said hello to a very expensive Christmas gift last year, my son felt that he had to do the same for her family. (He is still paying for them.)

For St. Valentine's Day she gave ME a present and also my husband. On Mother's Day, another one, and she's not even engaged to our son. She even found out when our birthdays were (mine, my husband's, the other children's, even the

Midlander Exploring History Of Tall City

Although she's lived in Midland 12 years, Lynn Mashburn is just beginning to explore the city's past, and the results of her efforts will be a special Bicentennial project involving the Governor's Council on Aging.

Lynn Mashburn

Mrs. Mashburn, who will be a senior this fall at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, is one of three students interviewing "oldtimers" in the Permian Basin for a contract study course offered through the history department.

Among the Midlanders she has interviewed are Bill Collins, editor of The Reporter-Telegram; Constable Jack Merritt, a pioneer peace officer; William L. Kerr, longtime Midland attorney, and Frank Cowden Sr., an early cattleman in the area.

Mrs. Mashburn and her two comrades plan to record interviews with 30 persons, concentrating on all areas of early Texas life — occupational, settling, cultural and personal experiences.

Some of the names for possible interviews were provided by the Committee on Aging. The list was expanded with names obtained from UTPB associate professor of history Dr. Roger Olsen and Bob Lewis "Tumbleweed Smith," lecture in the university's department of mass communications.

"It's been interesting to talk about he and his wife coming here from Snyder in covered wagons. And that was not really that long ago."

Some 60 to 100 persons with various backgrounds throughout the state are being interviewed in similar projects. From the interviews, an estimated dozen will be selected for a 30-minute film.

Copies of the UTPB students' tapes will be sent to the Committee on Aging where feature stories will be written for local newspapers. Stories and photographs will then be compiled into a Bicentennial booklet and the tapes will become part of the state oral history collection.

Master tapes of the students' works will be kept in the UTPB oral history collection.

The wife of District Attorney James Mashburn and the mother of three children aged 9 to 12, Mrs. Mashburn returned to college last fall — after an absence of 12 years — to major in American studies at the Odessa school.

She had attended Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., immediately after her high school graduation, then spent her sophomore and junior years at The University of Texas at Austin.

Now in summer school at UTPB, she plans to conduct five more of her 10 scheduled interviews before fall classes begin.

It's been fascinating because I've learned a lot about Midland history. I have been living in Midland 12 years, and I didn't really know that much about it.

She added she was surprised to discover the pioneer days were not really in the distant past. "When I talked to Jack Merritt, who's 71, he talked of Uganda and reportedly suffering from cancer, told a British radio newsmaster after his release: "I'm feeling very well. I'm very happy indeed."

Hills was arrested April 1 and convicted by a military court of treason for his remarks about Uganda's military president in an unpublished manuscript. Amin announced that he would die before a firing squad on July 4 but postponed the execution. He lifted the death sentence last week after President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire interceded on the Briton's behalf. Amin claimed that Hills was a spy and charged that the other 700 British subjects still living in Uganda were spies also.

He threatened reprisals, then did a full reversal and said the Britons were welcome to stay and help develop the former British colony.

British-Ugandan relations have been simmering since 1972 when Amin expelled 40,000 Asians with British citizenship. But they reached a crisis point in the last month over the treatment of Hills.

Hills was arrested April 1 and convicted by a military court of treason for his remarks about Uganda's military president in an unpublished manuscript. Amin announced that he would die before a firing squad on July 4 but postponed the execution. He lifted the death sentence last week after President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire interceded on the Briton's behalf. Amin claimed that Hills was a spy and charged that the other 700 British subjects still living in Uganda were spies also.

Briton Freed In Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — British lecturer Denis Hills, who was sentenced to death for calling Ugandan President Idi Amin a village tyrant, was freed by Amin today after the president met with British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan.

Callaghan met for more than an hour with Amin in Kampala, then drove with Hills to Entebbe airport, on Lake Victoria 20 miles away, where a Royal Air Force plane waited to take them back to London.

Astronauts Examined

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space agency doctors examine three American astronauts today to certify their readiness to fly a joint mission with two Russian cosmonauts next week.

The exams, scheduled to last several hours, have a dual purpose: to make sure the astronauts are physically fit and to gather baseline medical data for inflight and postflight comparison.

The tests are being conducted at the Johnson Space Center, Houston, Tex., where astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton are undergoing final training for the flight.

The astronauts will fly to Cape Canaveral on Sunday to be lodged in special crew quarters near the launch area where a 22-story tall Saturn rocket is being groomed to hoist them into space at 2:50 p.m. CDT Tuesday.

That is 7½ hours after Soviet cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov are to lift off in a Soyuz spacecraft from Baikonur Cosmodrome in central Russia, 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow.

After two days of maneuvering, Apollo and Soyuz will dock 140 miles above West Germany at 12:15 p.m. Thursday.

They'll remain hooked together for two days, during which time the spacemen will exchange visits between the ships, conduct joint experiments and share meals.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton practiced in the Apollo simulator Wednesday and had a Russian language lesson. Each astronaut and cosmonaut have had nearly 1,000 hours training in the other's language and experts say there will be no language difficulty.

In space, when they dock, the rule will be: Americans speak Russian and Russians speak English.

former wife, Deloris Ann Meadows Holmesly.

Meadows had claimed that his constitutional and civil rights were violated while he was held in custody.

Meadows maintained that his conviction was "unlawful, unconstitutional, (and) illegal" and that he was subjected to "physical beating" and "mental cruelties" in psychological "torture" aimed to get murder confessions from him.

He also said he was kept in isolated confinement for 16,000 hours and that he was "brutalized both mentally and physically." He also alleged unfair and excessive publicity.

Bureau Seminar Delayed To August

The Better Business Bureau seminar on the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act originally scheduled for today has been postponed until Aug. 21.

Rules concerning business firms' guidelines in compliance with the law have not yet been made public by the Federal Trade Commission. Accordingly, the seminar planned to discuss those rules could not be held until later, according to Al Beatty, BBB president.

Astronomers Club To Meet Saturday

The West Texas Astronomers Club will meet at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Community Room of Commercial Bank & Trust Co.

Jack Stanley will speak on "Geography of the Moon." The program will be open to the public.

Andrews Man Released From Ector County Jail

ODESSA—Grady Jenkins of Andrews spent more than three months in Ector County Jail on what turned out to be unfounded charges of possession of heroin.

Jenkins, 24, was released from jail Tuesday after Dist. Judge C. V. Milburn dismissed the indictment on a motion from the district attorney.

He had been held in lieu of $15,000 bond.

Odessa detectives who arrested Jenkins April 1 said their field tests of the gram of a brownish substance in Jenkins' possession indicated that it was heroin.

Safety laboratory report—filed away for three months—said otherwise. A DPS chemist in Midland said the brownish substance was not the narcotic but rather an antihistamine used to suppress symptoms of colds and allergies.

Copies of the DPS report were mailed in early April to Odessa police and to Dist. Atty. John Green's office. Apparently, the reports were filed but overlooked.

Jenkins' court-appointed attorney, Howard Hunt of Odessa, recently found the overlooked report in police files.

Jenkins indicated he may file a civil rights suit based on suppression of evidence.

Enquirer Trash Spirited Away

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—In the belief that turn about is fair play, a local newspaper has done unto the National Enquirer what it did unto Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger: sift through the garbage.

The Enquirer, a weekly newspaper based in nearby Lantana, sent reporter Jay Gourley to haul away trash from the Kissinger household in Washington's Georgetown section on Tuesday.

Gourley, who was quizzed for two hours by the Secret Service, retained the five bags of trash.

Reporter Steve Mitchell of the Palm Beach Post was luckier in his efforts Wednesday. He managed to slip away undetected after he rummaged through an Enquirer dumpster.

"My goal was the same as the Enquirer reporter: to sort through old bills and any other old documents for a story," Mitchell wrote of his escapade.

"If apprehended, my defense would be the same as the Enquirer's: the trash and garbage, once discarded, belongs to anybody who has the stomach to go through it."

Mitchell said it took him just three minutes to stuff a big bag chock full of the Enquirer's leavings.

"It was not until we arrived back at the Post and began going through our loot that I realized what a prize we had," Mitchell wrote. "It was nothing less than the secret of the National Enquirer's success—a memo to the editorial staff from publisher Generoso Pope Jr. himself."

Mitchell said the Aug. 17, 1973, memo told the staff how to write stories "packed with color and emotion... We need quotes that tug at the heart. Prod, push and probe the main characters in the story. Help them frame their answers."

Mitchell said Pope gave his workers an example: "How did it feel?" "Bad." "No, I mean what did it feel like?" "I don't know, it just hurt." "Was it a sharp pain?" "No." "Was it more like a toothache?" "No."

"Did you ever feel anything like it before?" "Not really, but it was something like an electric shock." "Where did you feel it?" "It hit me in the back of the neck and went down my spine." "Did you scream?" "I couldn't."

According to Pope's memo, the reporter is ready to proceed: "Let's see if I got this straight. You said, 'The pain hit me. It was like an electric shock. It started in my neck and shot down my spine. I wanted to scream but I couldn't. I've never felt anything like it.'" "Yes, that's it."

Meanwhile, Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton is trying to get someone from the Enquirer to pick up the trash from his house in Alexandria, Va.

"Tuesday and Thursdays," Morton jokingly told Nat Cizan, editor of the Enquirer, in a telephone conversation Wednesday. But Cizan said he wasn't authorized to order Gourley to snatch Morton's trash.

Religious Groups Oppose Viet Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some South Vietnamese religious groups are resisting the new Communist leaders of their country, U.S. intelligence sources report.

Tri Quang, a Buddhist priest and critic of the ousted anti-Communist regime, was said to have made a speech recently in Saigon denouncing executions by the Communists. There was no word on whether the Communists took any reprisal action against Tri Quang as a result.

Two religious sects, the Hoa Hao and Cao Dai, were reported to be putting up militant opposition to the Communists.

According to information reaching U.S. intelligence, armed members of the Hoa Hao have been harassing Communist troops in the rice-growing Delta region south of Saigon.

Some Cao Dai leaders were said to have told their adherents in Tay Ninh Province, northwest of Saigon, not to cooperate with the Communists. U.S. intelligence men refused to discuss their sources of information, but at least some of it is believed to have come from Vietnamese who have slipped out of South Vietnam in recent weeks.

Meanwhile, Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency said Wednesday that the Communist government in South Vietnam has reaffirmed its determination to uphold religious freedom in the country.

VNA, in a broadcast monitored in Hong Kong, said this was stated by the National Front for Liberation committee of the Saigon-Gia Dinh area in a meeting with 200 Christian representatives in Saigon.

Persistent reports in Washington also tell of hit-and-run attacks against Communist troops by South Vietnamese paratroopers and infantrymen.

Successful sustained guerrilla warfare requires food and other support from the peasants, and U.S. officials doubt the war-weary population in South Vietnam will provide that kind of support.

Congress Studies Rail Work Measures

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thousands of unemployed persons would be put to work patching up deteriorating railroad tracks throughout the nation under legislation before Congress.

Officials of Amtrak and railroad labor organizations gave their support Wednesday to four bills designed to reduce unemployment while improving the rail system.

Testifying before the House subcommittee on Transportation and Commerce, Amtrak President Paul Reistrup said that top priority for all upgrading should be given on routes on which Amtrak operates.

He noted that Amtrak is modernizing its aging fleet of passenger cars and has placed more than $25 million in orders for new locomotives, cars and turbine powered trains.

"The federal government is not going to get full value received for the investment in new, high-speed equipment unless track is improved," he said.

He cited 17 lines which need extensive rehabilitation, most of them owned by the financially troubled Penn Central Railroad Co.

Harold C. Crotty, president of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and representing the Railway Labor Executive Association, told the labor group would support any of the four pending bills.

However, the association maintains the secretary of transportation should have discretion to select lines which need upgrading, Crotty said. Some of the bills would limit the authority.

The condition of tracks is one of the most severe problems facing Amtrak now.

Track is so bad in many places in the highly traveled eastern corridor that trains must stay below 30 miles an hour or risk tearing up the rails. Amtrak already has announced plans to spend $15 million on track repairs north of New York City.

Iowa Bans Entrance To All Texas Hogs

AMARILLO (AP)—A hog cholera outbreak in the Texas Panhandle has caused the state of Iowa to ban entrance to all Texas hogs, but the U. S. Department of Agriculture says the only known infected hogs are dead and buried.

Diane Kramer, member of a Department of Agriculture task force here, said Wednesday a state and federal quarantine has been imposed covering a 30-mile radius from Hereford prohibiting the movement of hogs from the area or from farm to farm.

The Department of Agriculture said a 189-head herd in Hereford was destroyed July 5 after a cholera outbreak among them was confirmed.

The Department's 50-member task force of federal and state agricultural officials in the area is taking blood samples, and tracing 157 movements of the herd during the past two months in search of other exposed herds.

Miss Kramer said how far the cholera has spread is unknown.

"Fat" hogs ready for slaughter could be moved after inspection and issue of a permit.

A possibility some of the original herd were sent to Oklahoma City, Okla., for slaughter exists, she said. The task force is trying to find Oklahoma herds exposed to the Texas hogs.

No other Texas hogs have died or been confirmed to have cholera, she said.

Iowa imposed an embargo on Texas hogs until further notice because of the cholera and because its source had not been identified. About 600 Texas hogs enter Iowa each year as breeding hogs and feeder hogs, said an Iowa secretary of agriculture spokesman.

"Iowa has an awful lot of hogs and the authorities are very, very cautious about getting hog cholera," Miss Kramer said.

Oklahoma has banned Texas Panhandle hogs, and Missouri has an unofficial embargo on all Texas hogs, she added.

J. R. Vestal, a U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesman, said afflicted Texas hogs could not reach Iowa if first inspected.

"I don't see how in the world they could get to Iowa after they'd been inspected," he said.

Cattlemen's Association Chief Says Feedlot Operators Making Profit Now

AMARILLO (AP)—The president of the Texas Cattlemen's Association said here Wednesday feedlot operators are now making a profit, but prices paid to cattlemen and ranchers are still below the break-even level.

"There is no reason to think the situation of the cattlemen and ranchers will improve in the near future," said association president Glenn Deen of Dumas.

Deen commented on reports from New Mexico that cattlemen there had seen beef prices there go up 50 per cent in recent weeks.

He said prices paid feedlot operators now fluctuate around 33 cents a pound compared to a low of 34 cents in March.

"At 53 cents a pound we've (feedlot operators) have been making some money and the business in the yards is beginning to pick up," he said. Prices went up, he said, because in February and March "we were losing so much money that no cattle was placed on feed and now there is a shortage of fed cattle."

But he pointed out that cattlemen are still selling their calves for less than the cost of production.

They are reducing the number of their cattle, Deen said.

He noted, however, that there is an abundance of grass-fed cows, more than enough to supply the demand and that accounts for the low prices paid to cattlemen.

North Texas Girls Win Preliminaries

FORT WORTH (AP)—Two North Texas women have won the swimsuit and talent categories in the preliminary competition of the Miss Texas Pageant.

Miss Dallas, Donna Amos, a 22-year-old student at the Stephen F. Austin University, won the swimsuit competition.

The talent winner was Rivers Hatchett, 22, a student at Baylor University. She won the talent event as Miss Hurst-Eules Bedford with a rendition of "Granada."

Miss Texas will be selected Saturday night. The winner will go to the Miss America contest at Atlantic City.

Bankrupt Clifford Irving Declares 'Life Is Good'

By JURATE KAZICKAS
EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Clifford Irving, "Con Man of the Year" in 1972, strolls barefoot on the lawn overlooking a sunny inlet of this seaside resort. He affectionately nuzzles a pretty German woman friend and says: "Life is good. It always was."

Fine spirits for a man who a few days later declared himself bankrupt and for one still up to his neck in legal proceedings from the 1972 fracas that erupted from his fake autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes.

After serving 17 months in prison on charges of conspiracy and fraud, Irving, 44, moved here last July. He passes the time playing frenetic daily tennis, dining with friends and dabbling at pure fiction — a new novel he describes as an "erotic romance" about three women and man living in the Hamptons.

Clad in tennis shorts, Irving stretched his long legs on a tattered hassock in his rented cottage and reminisced about his caper.

"I'm sorry I got caught. And I'm sorry I involved my wife Edith, and I'm sorry I put my children into such jeopardy," said Irving, referring to emotional difficulties he says his young sons, Barnaby and Nedsky, now 5 and 7, experienced when both parents were in jail.

"But I feel better and more experienced for having gone through it all. It was exciting. And there's a certain satisfaction from meeting difficulties, conquering them and coming out relatively whole."

When asked if he saw any parallels between his own futile attempts at a cover-up and Watergate, Irving quickly answered: "None at all. My motives were adventure, literature and money, not necessarily in that order. Their motives were based on the extension of a corrupt government."

He said he's tried to block out the whole experience of prison life, where, by his own estimation, he was a "troublemaker." He said he was placed in solitary confinement a few times and was accused of being the ringleader of a prisoner's strike at Danbury.

"I just don't think of all that ever. Sometimes I wonder where I was in 1973."

But he ruefully admits he's forced to think about the Hughes book all the time. "The Autobiography of Howard Hughes" with the prefix "Auto" crossed out, was recently published in Spain. But Irving is being sued by Rosemont, a Hughes organization, which owns the rights to Hughes' name, to stop publication of the book in the United States.

"It's an ongoing pain," said Irving.

He says he is nevertheless flattered that people on the street still recognize him and indicated a certain sentimental fondness for the book which friends say he is very anxious to see published.

Irving and his fourth wife, Edith, are separated. She lives on the Spanish Island of Ibiza with the two children. He doubts they will bother with divorce since neither wants to marry again. Irving has arranged for a showing of her paintings in Southampton this summer.

He was asked whether he was still in touch with Nina Van Pallandt, the blonde beauty who was instrumental in unraveling the hoax and whose sudden fame launched a short-lived singing and acting career. "I don't know whatever happened to her, but I hear she came upon a patch of bad luck," he said. "I felt good when I heard that. I think she behaved in very poor taste."

Irving exudes that same cocky air that he mustered right up to the last days of his trial. But he says he was near tears when he heard himself described by the judge as "the biggest loser I know."

His book-about-the-book, "What Really Happened," failed to make money. He says legal fees are eating up whatever resources he has from a few lectures and magazine pieces.

A few days later, his attorneys filed an application for voluntary bankruptcy in Brooklyn Federal Court. They listed his assets at $410. His debts were a bit more than that: $55,804,248.01 to be exact. The bulk of that debt, they said, represents a $55 million libel suit pending in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. The suit was filed by Fernand Legros, an artist who was the subject of an earlier and ironically-titled Irving book called "Fake." His lawyers said Irving also owes a mere $344,899 to McGraw-Hill, who bought the fake Hughes book. The IRS wants $140,000 in income taxes. Then there's the $192,476 in legal fees.

"Has all this turned life sour for Irving?"

"It's fruitless to worry about the future," he says. "I have always been easy going and irresponsible and things have always worked out."

Buried Treasure 'Just About Everywhere'

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — For W. A. Caplinger of Greenville, buried treasure is just about everywhere. "Treasure hunting is something like fishing. There are times when the treasures just don't bite. But if you have done your homework and know there had at one time been a lot of activity where you're looking, you're apt to be lucky," said Caplinger, a Greenville fireman.

He hunts treasures in old gathering places like parks, schools and fairgrounds, and in covered-over dumps and storm cellars under abandoned homes, all in a 500-mile radius. He asks permission to search on private land.

"The Ozark Mountains are our favorite stomping grounds" because bushwhackers and "old mountain boys" left many treasures there, Caplinger said. His wife, Imogene, son, Karl David, and spider monkey, Buddy, accompany him on treasure hunts.

Since 1953, Caplinger has unearthed old bottles, 1898 quarters, 1905 "V" nickles, 1907 Liberty head dimes, antique furniture and old fruit jars containing preserves.

"New clad money turns black after it's been buried a couple of months. It's not going to hold up well through the years. If you find an old silver quarter, it will be in as good condition now as when it was lost many years ago," he said. Caplinger sells some of his treasures to pay expedition expenses, but "if something's real nice," he gives it to his wife or son.

His treasure-seeking equipment contrasts with legendary maps where 'X' marks the spot. He uses a metal detector that responds to gold, silver and copper with a high-pitched whine, and with a low buzz to iron and other metals. He first used a detector in 1956. To hunt bottles, he uses a probe with a rounded end. Caplinger digs up discoveries with a sharp hunting knife, replacing soil and vegetation afterwards, he said.

Caplinger collects some old bottles he finds. He lacks one bottle from having a complete collection of all those manufactured by Reeves Bottling Co. One of the oldest he has is an 1883 bottle from the Star Bottling Works in Greenville.

Farm And Ranch Notebook Coyote Control Program To Be Discussed In Denver

By ANDY WELCH
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Representatives of the Texas Department of Agriculture are to be in Denver, Colo., next week to meet with officials from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) about the success of an experimental program to control coyotes.

Alvin Ashorn, who headed the program in Texas, believes "we got real good results."

The program allowed qualified farmers and ranchers to destroy coyotes with cyanide, injected into the mouth of the trapped predator with a spring-loaded gun.

Over the objections of environmentalists, EPA allowed a one-year experimental program to be conducted in 44 Texas counties. Before a farmer or rancher could purchase the cyanide paraphernalia, he was required to receive instruction in use of the gadget after the coyote was trapped.

Ashorn estimated 2,000 persons were certified to use the cyanide in Texas, although far less actually bought the equipment.

"You know, the value of the animal plays into this greatly," Ashorn said, pointing the slumping prices for cattle and sheep.

Now evaluating the successes and failures of the program are researchers of the Experiment Station at Texas A&M University. Ashorn said the report should be ready for release by September.

The meeting with EPA officials in Denver is seen by Shorn as the starting point for that report. Once completed, the finalized report will be returned to EPA to determine whether sodium cyanide is an effective and safe method of controlling predatory animals.

When the program ended June 1, there were 282 ranchers actively using the traps. Each month they were required to send a report to Ashorn on the number of livestock lost to predators. They were also required to report the number of capsules used and the type animal killed in the traps, such as foxes, possums, racoons or coyotes. The ranchers were also required to show the coyotes they killed by means other than the traps.

A report by Maurice Shelton and John Klindt of the experiment station in San Angelo stated recently that the losses caused by the coyote to the sheep industry in Texas was $1.8 million annually. For the goat industry, losses would amount to $427,000 annually.

And the Shelton and Klindt study said the state's cattle industry does not appear to be in jeopardy from the coyote. However, they write that as the coyote invades the Edwards Plateau, "the problem is more serious."

The most common and effective method of dust control around feedlots is through the application of water, and Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer at Texas A&M University, said there are both pros and cons for permanent and portable sprinkler systems.

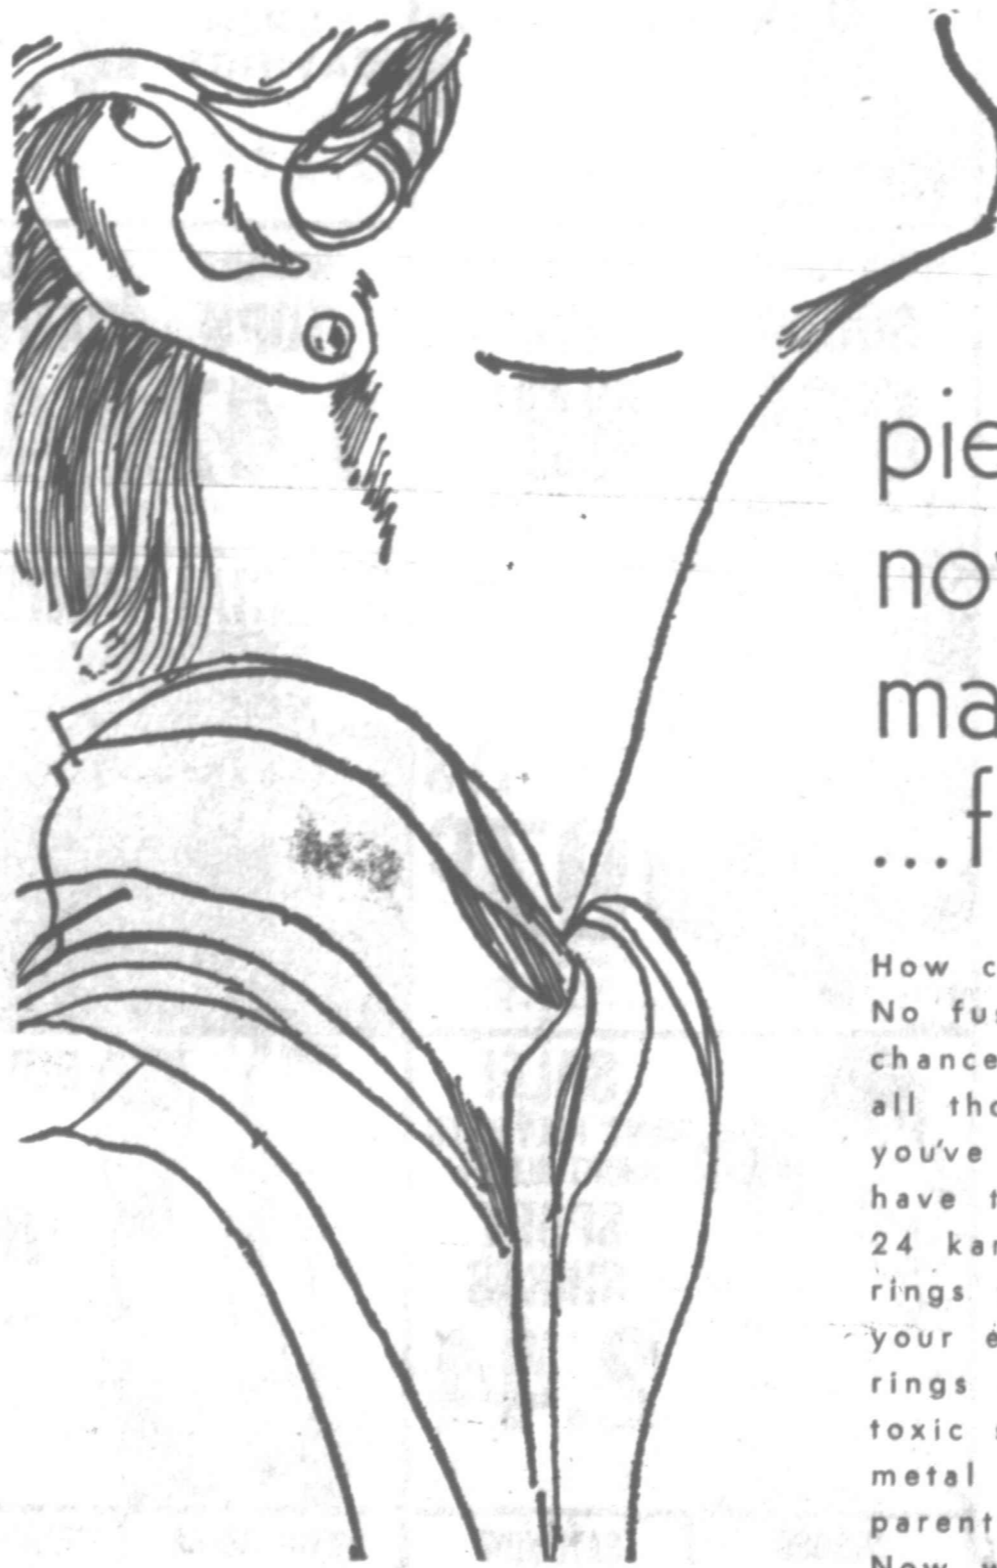

Permanent systems can take care of large surfaces at one time and can be fully automated. The labor cost, outside installation, is nominal.

But Sweeten points out automated systems are inflexible, should the design of the feedlot change. They also require routine maintenance and depend on relatively calm weather for effectiveness.

Tank trucks are more mobile, except for small pens, and are cheaper to purchase. But they also require higher costs to operate properly.

Sweeten concluded the cost of either system averages out to between 20 and 25 cents per head, but when depreciation is considered, sprinkler systems are three times more expensive.

Sweeten said that where dust control is "a periodic rather than a perennial need," mobile equipment provides "more attractive... long-range alternatives."

Driving In The Rain

A heavy downpour of rain in the Tall City at most any hour causes traffic problems due to street flooding... but particularly so during the rush hours of early morning, noon and late afternoon.

The inch-plus rainfall in west Midland prior to and during the lunch hour one day last week is an excellent example of the case in point.

Many streets and intersections on and off the Andrews Highway in particular—were flooded, raging torrents in some instances. The water-going qualities of automobiles caught in the flash-flooding were put to excellent test. The driving rain didn't help visibility either. Motorists had to proceed slowly; they had no choice. Most vehicles were fortunate just to keep moving slowly.

This doesn't happen very often in Midland—not often enough to provide expensive underground drainage facilities. It is doubtful if such a system could have handled all the water, the way it was falling on the day mentioned. The Police Department's traffic rangers were out in full force, doing an excellent job of keeping traffic moving and assisting motorists having difficulties in maneuvering. Accidents were at a minimum.

This is not exactly the situation which worries patrolmen. Rather, it is the "driving in the rain" without flooding, which presents intangible hazards, particularly on highways.

Texas A&M University researchers at the Texas Transportation Institute, contend that people driving in the rain tend to maintain their normal speeds while visibility and control over the auto deteriorates. This is the big hazard.

The tests, conducted by a group under the direction of Dr. Don L. Ivey, were made on a test track with an overhead sprinkler system to duplicate rain.

Some safety factors can be designed into a road or street—good combinations of cross slope, texture and runoff length to keep the water from building up on the thoroughfares, but the engineering options are limited, according to the researchers.

"Conclusions indicate that other aids to safety would be eliminating passing during rainfall and enforcing reduced speeds, along with turning on auto lights whenever the windshield wipers are in use," they said.

In claiming that information gained is strong enough to justify reduced traffic speeds during rainfall or to attack proposals for increased traffic speeds, they cited specific situations to prove their points.

"The incompatibility of traffic speeds during rainfall when some vehicles slow down, in appropriate response to reduced visibility, while others proceed at the speed limit further compounds the problem," Dr. Ivey said.

It all boils down, actually, to safe, sane, careful, friendly and defensive driving in the rain—and at all times, for that matter.

Potatoes Vs. Cotton

A hard-working Reporter-Telegram employe who resides on the outskirts of the city and who does a good job of gardening in his spare time, came in this morning with a sack full of some of the finest looking potatoes we had seen in a long time... and right out of his garden.

"Most farmers out here think only of raising cotton," he said in displaying the potatoes, "why not potatoes?"

He might just have something there... and with the going price of cotton vs. potatoes, well—think about it.

President Ford Has Grown With The Job

By VIRGIL FINKLEY
Copy News Service

In less than a year since he entered the White House President Gerald R. Ford has acquired impressive know-how and confidence.

His progress has been so rapid that politicians of both parties now feel he will be a strong candidate in the fall of 1976.

Some men who pass through the doors of the White House grow and develop steadily. Harry Truman was this kind of a president. Assuming the duties of that high office seems to change the attitudes of the chief executives if they are of the growth variety.

Unfortunately this did not prove to be the case with Lyndon Baines Johnson or Richard M. Nixon. John F. Kennedy was in the White House for too short a period to know what kind of a president he might eventually have become. Certainly in his first two years in office he stumbled and then regained his balance.

Few men have ever inherited the problems and crises of Gerald R. Ford, including the Watergate mess and all of the attending scandals.

When he entered the White House our unemployment rate was going up steadily and we had galloping inflation of something like 15 or 16 per cent annually. Interest rates were at an all-time high. The nation faced the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. Recession was rampant. This has been lessened.

There was the aftermath of the Vietnam War and an almost constantly threatened war in the Middle East.

Our whole economy was staggering under the blows and aftereffects of the Arab oil embargo, and Middle East oil prices had increased by as much as 400 per cent.

Almost immediately after Mr. Ford became President, Congress took a tough stance on many issues. Members of Congress said they would wield the clout at home and abroad in the future and regain powers they lost all during the Kennedy-Johnson-Nixon administrations. This decline in congressional power had begun, in fact, during the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

Many in the Republican Party were against Mr. Ford, especially the extreme right wing.

For a man who was not elected to the office of presidency and who has led the nation for only 16 months, Mr. Ford has some significant achievements to his credit.

He made a mistake in granting Nixon a pardon as soon as he did, but he was determined to get this issue behind us and was willing to take the heat that his action generated.

He began to move more and more into foreign affairs and now has a strong voice in what we do abroad. He has been on two important missions overseas.

He has wisely taken some of the autonomy away from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He is dealing directly with more heads of state.

In fact, some foreign governments have not known previously exactly what authority Kissinger has and whether

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Interior Department documents, meant for official eyes only, tell a grim story of the spattering effort to save America's fish and wildlife from exploitation.

From confidential field reports, here are the appalling details:

SACRAMENTO: "All facets of our enforcement program have been reduced and hampered by inadequate funding. For the better part of the year, only one agent has been on board in the vast Los Angeles complex."

DENVER: "Enforcement operations have been reduced considerably. No field patrol during spring migration. Undercover projects have been almost completely halted." Not a single agent, the report adds, has been assigned to enforce the conservation laws in the entire state of Wyoming.

NEW ORLEANS: "Alligator poaching, selling and exporting is very prevalent throughout South Louisiana... (Yet) the commercial activity of the endangered alligator is going almost unchecked." Only one agent is assigned to cover the New Orleans port, including the airport, 20 miles of ship docks and several outlying areas.

NASHVILLE: "All on-going criminal investigations are being halted. We have been unable to respond to requests from Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina on serious complaints involving transportation and sale of white tail deer. We have documented 128 destructive hunting sites in North and South Carolina on which we have been unable to make even a token investigation."

BALTIMORE: From Dec. 27, 1974, to Jan. 15, 1975, "law enforcement operations were at a complete standstill... in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia."

Jack Anderson

ANCHORAGE: Because of limited funds, the Anchorage office could "make only a token enforcement effort."

BOSTON: Two aircraft, assigned to patrol the northeast region, were grounded and two were restricted because of the tight budget.

ALBUQUERQUE: The "drastically" reduced enforcement effort in the southwest region has resulted in "an increasing number of illegal consumptive uses of wildlife."

The documents in our possession show clearly that the conservation laws aren't being properly enforced. These documents were demanded last February, incidentally, by House Conservation Chairman Robert Leggett, D-Calif. But for political reasons, the Interior Department has held them up.

A response to his request was drafted and passed up the chain of command. Attached to it was this handwritten memo: "The narrative part that is attached 'tells-it-like-it-is' but probably should not go out."

PRESIDENTIAL ODDS: Jimmy the Greek Snyder, the Las Vegas oddsmaker who calculates the political odds exclusively for us, rates a Gerald-Ford-Nelson Rockefeller ticket as the favorite over every possible Democratic combination except one.

The Greek claims a Hubert Humphrey-Ted Kennedy ticket would be the

All The News Fit To Print, It Says Here

The main test of news is whether or not it is out of the ordinary. Unfortunately most of the stories being printed these days are no longer surprising to anyone. In the dog days of summer, people wonder why the newspapers spend so much time on multinational company corruption, CIA wrongdoing, government wiretapping and congressional foot-dragging, since none of these events is news any more.

These are the stories that would be news if they ever happened.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger said today that the Soviets "were dismantling missiles and there was no longer any reason for the United States to build new weapons systems." The Pentagon has enough money for everything it needs and we are asking Congress to withhold any supplemental funds as it would only be a waste of money.

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Northrop Aviation announced a new contract with Saudi Arabia for the delivery of 100 F-5 fighter planes. Company officials said the Saudi Arabian military chose Northrop because it was the only company which did not try to bribe them with under-the-table "commissions."

HOUSTON, Tex. — The American Petroleum Institute turned down an offer by the U.S. government to deregulate petroleum and gas. A spokesman said, "Most of our members are making tremendous profits as it is, and it would be unfair to the American people to take advantage of the energy crisis at this time. We believe the economic health of the country comes first and, while we appreciate the government's concern that oil prices are too low, we'd rather see that there is enough fuel for everybody at prices the average person can afford."

MOBILE, Ala. — Gov. George Wallace told a group of foreign newspapermen that in his opinion the United States did the right thing when it fought the Germans and Japanese in World War II. "We had no choice," the governor said, "and I would hate to think what the world would be like today if Hitler and Tojo had won. Of course, we couldn't have done it alone. Thank God, the Russians were on our side."

WASHINGTON — Sen. Teddy Kennedy said today that he is a candidate for President in 1976. "All this talk about me not running is pure foolishness. The Democratic Party has a lot of good men, but I can't see myself supporting any of them. I'm the best man for the job, and I wish the press would stop saying I'm not interested in the Presidency as it's hurting my fund-raising campaign."

NEW YORK CITY — Mayor Abe Beame called a press conference today to announce that New York City has a surplus of $2 billion. "I intend to use the money to beef up the police force and fire department as well as add extra days for garbage collection. I also intend to pay off the debt. I want New York to become the model for the rest of the country. Thanks to understanding municipal unions, this city has a balanced budget."

CAMBODIA — Cambodian naval units seized an American freighter in international waters last night. When informed of this at four in the morning, President Ford said, "So what? We have plenty of other ships and don't really need it. Don't wake me up again!"

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger told a press conference today that most of the mistakes made in foreign policy over the past six years were his fault. After detailing where he had gone wrong, he said, "I guess I'm not a very good secretary of state after all."

50 Years Ago Today, Scopes 'Monkey Law' Trial Began

DAYTON, Tenn. (AP) — It is court cases in the history of American jurisprudence, starting a half-century ago today that the Scopes evolution trial, one of the most widely publicized of Tennessee's new evolution law. A plaque notes the date. The statute forbade the teaching in public schools of any theories that denied the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible. Scopes had been teaching Darwin's theory that man evolved from a lower form of life. The case, which went to trial July 10, 1925, attracted worldwide attention. Clarence Darrow, the most famous trial lawyer of the times and an agnostic, headed the defense. William Jennings Bryan, a Bible fundamentalist and three times Democratic nominee for president, joined the prosecution staff. During the 10-day trial, Darrow poured scorn on what he called Tennessee's "Monkey Law" and Bryan stoutly defended it. Scopes was convicted and fined $100. On appeal, the state supreme court upheld the constitutionality of the law but threw out the fine on a technicality, denying Scopes grounds for appealing the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court. All of the principals are now dead except Sue K. Hicks, 79, a retired circuit court judge who lives near Sweetwater. Hicks, a member of the prosecuting team for the Scopes trial, recalls: "I wrote the warrant for Scopes' arrest. Some members of the school board came to me and my brother, Herbert, and asked if we would represent the county in trying Scopes. We agreed." Hicks said he wrote Bryan asking him to join the prosecution. "Bryan used our law office as his headquarters," Hicks said. "I recall that he told my brother and me, 'You boys will probably live long enough to know whether evolution is true, but I won't.'" Although Bryan won the case, he emerged from the trial a beaten man and died five days after the trial ended. Scopes, who did not testify during the trial, left Dayton shortly after the trial and became a petroleum geologist in Shreveport, La. He died of cancer there in October 1970. "I thought all along, ever since 1925, that the law was unconstitutional," Scopes said in later years. He returned to Dayton only once, in 1960, and observed then that "the town hasn't changed much since 1925."

IRA Cease-Fire Strained

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — New strains were put on the Irish Republican Army's five-month-old cease-fire in Northern Ireland because of the capture in the Irish Republic of guerrilla chieftain David O'Connell. O'Connell, a 38-year-old teacher turned terrorist, was seized Wednesday in a Dublin suburb after years of evading the authorities on both sides of the border, police reported. He was the commander of the IRA's Provisional wing, the chief Roman Catholic army in Northern Ireland and the authors of the cease-fire. A police spokesman said O'Connell was taken without a struggle and lodged in Bridewell Jail for questioning. O'Connell, long the Provisional's top strategist, is thought to favor political ways of achieving the IRA's goal of a united Ireland. It is believed he pushed through the cease-fire over opposition from diehard guerrillas who want to continue the campaign of terror. His successor as the Provisional commander will be Seamus Twomey, the guerrilla group's former commander in Belfast who favors bullet-and-bomb tactics, informed sources said. The IRA rescued Twomey by helicopter from Dublin's Mountjoy Prison in 1973. O'Connell was captured shortly after the Provos exploded three bombs in a government office block in the heart of Londonderry. The British army said there was no warning, but no one was hurt. "It was only through the vigilance of an onlooker who raised the alarm that we were able to clear the building in time," a spokesman said. "It was the first bombing since February in Northern Ireland's second largest city. Protestant hardliners immediately demanded that the British government end what they called its "policy of appeasement" of the Roman Catholic IRA and crack down on the guerrillas.

Peking Faces Crisis That Could Crack Controlled Society

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT
The Los Angeles Times

HONG KONG — The People's Republic of China is facing a crisis of confidence that could crack its controlled society.

A wave of deliberate obstructionism and apathy has threatened to upset the economy and undermine the country's social cohesion, impelling Peking to appeal strenuously for "stability and unity."

Citing a specific case, a recent issue of the Peking People's Daily, the organ of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party, admitted that the appeal was essential because of severe shortfalls in production of steel and iron — the sinews of any modern economy.

apparently mutually exclusive policies.

After the National People's Congress, the people anticipated a new era of greater economic and intellectual freedom, and they have been allowed more leeway — within strict limits.

But those concessions have not come up to their expectations.

Consequent disillusionment has resulted in apathy or deliberate obstructionism.

The precarious state of health of venerated Chairman Mao Tse-tung is also causing great uncertainty, as is the fact that Chou and Mao have not appeared together in public for more than a year.

The practical effects of such uncertainty and disillusionment have been great, forcing the appeal for "stability and unity."

The Canton steel industry, for one, has been forced to reduce production because of shortages of raw materials particularly iron ore and coal. Those shortages, in turn, have come about because of difficulties on the railroads.

Last year's widespread strike of railroad workers has petered out. But many railwaymen are still going by the book as a work slowdown tactic or staying away from their jobs. Revealingly, letters from Peking and Shanghai now take twice as long as normal to reach Hong Kong.

Lower level officials are beset from two sides. Their superiors, uncertain of Peking's desires, are indecisive. The restive youth, who still remember the halcyon days of virtual Red Guard rule during the cultural revolution, are pressing them for more radical action — actually disregarding the officials' instructions and insisting upon following their own desires.

As Red Flag put it: "In both city and countryside, there exists a bourgeois (capitalist) wave. A variety of capitalist tendencies in the life of the people is severely injuring our national (economic) plan and the principled policies of the Communist party, as well as gravely impairing mutual socialist relations among the people."

Sharp Lines

A clipper ship was so called because of the long overhanging prow and sharp lines.

Exhortation

The strongest exhortation in more than a year came in a recent editorial of Red Flag, the Communist party's ideological monthly. It warned of dire consequences if disunity and instability were not checked immediately. The editorial further threatened severe punishments for the perpetrators of those disruptive "waves."

A variety of private and public reports demonstrates the alarm coming only five months after the fourth National People's Congress established the first stable administration since the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution of 1966-69.

Already handicapped by worldwide inflation, China's projected economic construction is faltering badly because of the effect of wildcat strikes, slowdowns and absenteeism, as well as serious transportation difficulties.

Not Saying

The most significant evidence is, as so often in a closed society, what the Chinese are not saying. For the past month, since the close of the lackluster Canton Spring Trade Fair, the customary glowing reports of economic progress have been conspicuously missing from the Chinese press.

Their absence has particular significance at the present time, since only five months ago in his state-of-the-nation address Premier Chou En-lai proclaimed the dominant purpose of internal Chinese policy to be a firm economic foundation on which to erect an industrial structure that would "put us in the forefront of the world's economies" by the end of the century.

Difficulties

In view of that aim, the People's Daily report on difficulties in steel production is of major importance. So distressed are the Chinese authorities that they summoned a "special seminar on iron and steel production" in Peking last month.

The chief question posed was: "What's wrong with our steel industry?" The chief conclusion: "We must study the theory of proletarian dictatorship in order to promote stability and unity, heighten the people's political consciousness, and mobilize the broad masses."

The key words were "stability and unity." The same phrase occurred 23 times in the relatively brief Red Flag article entitled "Profoundly Study Theory Promote Stability and Unity."

Local Reports

The connection between economic problems and social disorder is shown in local reports and private information. Instead of responding eagerly to the call to work harder to build a modern economy, the disillusioned Chinese people have been — if not lying down on the job — not precisely exerting themselves strenuously.

One reason is bewilderment because of contradictory instructions issued by Peking. It requires more doctrinal subtlety than most Chinese officials or private citizens can muster to understand that "bourgeois privileges" — such as free markets, private plots of land, and the right of industrial workers to work without limits for their own profit — simultaneously must be "tolerated" and "restricted."

That message was given to the Chinese people by Second Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao in March, and they are now being ordered to study the (Marxist) theories — that lie behind the

Nettles Gets Starting Spot

Lineups Set For All-Star Tilt Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) — A last-minute burst of support by Yankee fans has given dark horse Graig Nettles the starting spot at third base in the American League lineup for the 1975 All-Star Game.

Nettles, ranked fourth a week ago, attracted a total of 1,181,583 votes to outdistance runner-up Sal Bando of Oakland and last week's leader, Buddy Bell of Cleveland, according to the voting results released Thursday by the baseball commissioners office.

The Yankee infielder, an All-Star rookie, also was one of three New York players to gain a starting position in the 46th annual event, and one of five players who found themselves top-vote-getters for the first time.

New York's Thurman Munson was the runaway favorite for catcher with 2,068,535 votes, a margin of 1,093,372 over Oakland's Ray Fosse, and teammate Bobby Bonds took top honors in the outfield. Other newcomers to the leading lineup were outfielder Joe Rudi and first baseman Gene Tenace of Oakland.

Tenace, who like Nettles will be playing in the game for the first time, edged Mike Har- grove of Texas 1,241,377 votes to 1,220,904.

The five will be joined by outfielder Reggie Jackson and shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland, and Rod Carew of Minnesota, the league's No. 1 vote-getter in 1975 with 3,185,614. Carew and the National League's Johnny Bench are the only players to be elected as starters in all six years of fan voting.

Munson has never before been a first choice in the All-Star game, but started last year as a substitute for an injured Carlton Fisk. He also appeared in the 1971 and 1973 classics.

The AL outfield contest was the hottest, with Bonds vaulting from third to first place in last week's tabulation with a total of 1,767,196 votes. He was elected the All-Star Most Valuable Player in 1973 while a San Francisco Giant and played in

Cubs Home Again

Open 10-Game Slate Tonight

Midland's Cubs will have their hands full keeping pace with the Shreveport Captains, who they trail by 7 1/2 games in the Texas League West Division race.

Manager Doc Edwards' Cubs open a 10-game home-stand, the first five against Lafayette's Drillers, the East Division leaders.

Righthander Dan Corder, 5-4, will pitch for Midland at 7:45 p.m. today in Cubs Stadium in the first game against the San Francisco Giant farmhands.

Midland and Lafayette haven't faced one another since the spring exhibition series in Arizona.

However, Manager Denny Summers and his Giants are familiar faces in Midland. For three seasons the Drillers played in Amarillo, the same division as the Cubs.

The series will match two of the league's top home run hitters in Midland's Wayne Tyrone (14) and Lafayette's Jack Clark (15).

Midland comes off an 11-game road trip in which the Cubs split 3-3 and Shreveport edged El Paso 3-2. The Cubs have won 20 of their last 27 games.

Midland will be without Cesar Gonzalez, 273 hitting infielder. Gonzalez was called up to Wichita to take Jerry Tabb's place on the Aeros roster. Tabb suffered a broken wrist, so Ron Matney will move in from the outfield to play first for the injured Tabb.

Volleyball Finals

MONTREAL (AP) — Poland and the United States meet tonight for the championship of a four-nation men's volleyball tourney after semifinal victories Wednesday night. Poland downed Canada 15-8, 15-10, 15-3 and the Americans overcame Czechoslovakia 2-15, 15-12, 15-11.

Upjohn To Post Drug Warnings

By SUSAN OKIE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The Food and Drug Administration has ordered the Upjohn Co. to warn that two of its most widely used antibiotics "can cause severe colitis which may end fatally," FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt has announced.

The warning, which must be included in all advertising, states that the drugs clindamycin and lincomycin should be prescribed only for certain severe bacterial infections in patients allergic to penicillin. Schmidt told the Senate Monopoly Subcommittee.

The two antibiotics have been implicated in 45 deaths from colitis, including 13 since last January when Ralph Nader's Health Research Group tried to get the FDA to ban the drugs.

According to testimony at hearings in January, 95 per cent of the 7 million patients taking the drugs each year should never receive them. They were being prescribed for earaches, respiratory infections, acne and other minor infections where they are ineffective and dangerous, according to the Nader group. They were even used by some doctors against the common cold, which is caused by a virus and does not respond to any antibiotic.

The FDA suspended advertising and promotion of clindamycin and lincomycin from January to May, and prescriptions declined sharply.

Schmidt and Dr. J. Richard Crout, director of the FDA Bureau of Drugs, agreed that lincomycin, which is less effective than clindamycin but equally dangerous, should probably be taken off the market altogether. But they said the FDA wanted to investigate further.

"Lincomycin is a big seller overseas," said subcommittee staff member Benjamin Gordon. If it were taken off the market here, Upjohn "would have some trouble explaining it" to European customers, he said.

Schmidt said that clindamycin is a useful antibiotic for some serious infections, particularly in the rare patient who is allergic to both penicillin and erythromycin, which are safer. But he said the FDA had not restricted the drug's use to such patients, because clindamycin might also be preferable in a few cases where bacteria causing an infection were not sensitive to the safer antibiotics.

Subcommittee chairman Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., complained that the FDA warnings were set in small, closely packed print on the fourth page of Upjohn's proposed advertisement, and were preceded by three pages of color layouts and large headlines on clindamycin's effectiveness.

Schmidt said that the FDA is rewriting its advertising regulations to insure that warnings must be more prominent, but that the advertisement complies with present regulations.

"What catches my eye first is the orange stomach—I've never seen an orange stomach," he said. "But certainly the warning did not catch my eye first."

Laetrile Flunks Test Of Ability To Fight Cancer

By BOB CORBETT
Copley News Service

Laetrile, the controversial "anticancer" drug made from apricot pits, has flunked what was billed as the definitive test of its cancer-fighting potential.

The failure of the drug was revealed by Dr. Lewis Thomas, president of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, which has been conducting animal experiments with the drug for the last two years.

During an interview, Thomas said that laetrile has demonstrated:

- No protective effects against cancer.
- Failure to provide any prolongation of life.
- An inability to reduce the size of a tumor.

Magnets May Save Cows From Metals

DES MOINES (AP) — Cows have the bad habit of swallowing small pieces of wire, nails and other sharp metal objects, and now a University of Kentucky scientist has found a unique way to protect the cow's stomach: give the cow a magnet to swallow.

Wallace Farmer magazine reports that the magnet, about the size of a man's thumb, can be swallowed by the cow and left in the stomach to collect the pieces of metal and hold them in place so they can't injure the animal. Cows don't chew their food thoroughly when they eat it. Instead, they chew their cud later, bringing up food stored in their first stomach.

When eating, if a mouthful of grass contains a small piece of metal, the cow may not even notice it. The metals can pierce the stomach wall and allow stomach juices to leak out into the body cavity. They may even injure the heart and lungs, leading to death. The magnet will hold the metals in place until stomach acids eventually destroy them.

Chutist Denies Sport Dangerous

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — Ken Paschall, 21, says "parachuting is not a dangerous sport, it's just that obstacles get in the way."

On a recent jump his chute missed its mark by a half mile and caused a power outage on the west end of town. Power lines trapped the canopy of Paschall's chute as he steered toward a landing on Rock Creek Road.

Paschall landed, uninjured but embarrassed, in a nearby ditch.

Man Alone In Universe? Maybe Not

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

The federal space agency is beating the drums loudly these days on the theme that there is ever-mounting evidence of life on other planets.

This is not a new theme, but it is getting more emphasis now from NASA than perhaps ever before.

Claims of growing indications that earth has no exclusive rights to life in the universe are part of a NASA "white paper" underlining the significance of upcoming Viking unmanned missions to Mars this year.

Two Viking spacecraft will be launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., during a 20-day period between mid-August and mid-September. A combination Titan III-Centaur rocket will serve as the booster to send each Viking on a 440-million-mile journey lasting nearly a year before red planet is too hostile to support life in any form by observing:

"Mars is dry, cold and less favorable than the earth for the support of life, but it is not implacably hostile.

"Life could exist in the harsh climate of Mars, and if it does, we will know that on planets with comfortable climates—similar to that on earth—the chances of finding life are substantial.

"We will have strong reason to believe that many inhabited solar systems—perhaps billions—lie around us in the galaxy."

Viking exploration, NASA adds, also may settle another vital question in determining the probability of life arising from nonliving chemicals:

Is it possible that Mars is lifeless today but once was the site of a rich variety of life that disappeared later in the planet's history?

"The question turns on the

'The nearest reasonable planet on which to look is Mars,' NASA says scheduled "soft" landings on Mars.

After arrival at the red planet, each spacecraft is to separate into two parts, an orbiter and a lander. Together they will conduct scientific studies of the Martian atmosphere and surface. While the orbiters conduct television, temperature and water vapor studies for transmission back to earth, the landers in each case will analyze the planet's soil and atmosphere. What they learn can be signaled back to earth either directly or via the orbiter. Some of the televised information will return to earth in living color.

NASA's white paper asks the question: "Is earth truly a unique life-supporting planet in the immense totality of creation?" Then it answers: "There is growing evidence to the contrary."

Our galaxy, NASA points out, contains 100 billion stars, many of them surrounded by families of planets.

"In studying these planets with telescopes, man has been able to verify that the basic chemicals of which earth is composed are found throughout the universe," the agency recalls.

"In just the last century, it has been proved that the ratio of these elements in our own solar system is consistent with the over-all ratio generally observed throughout the universe.

"Further, radio astronomers have detected simple organic compounds in interstellar space.

"Recent detection of complex organic compounds has increased our confidence that life could evolve on other worlds."

However, the NASA paper concedes, science needs more evidence.

"We cannot tell conclusively by laboratory studies or theoretical reasoning whether the evolution of life is improbable or quite likely. We can only estimate the probability by looking around us for signs of life beyond our earth.

"The nearest reasonable planet on which to look is Mars."

NASA answers the claims of some scientists that the

Solar Energy Building Unveiled

HARMARVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A half-story solar energy building described as a "forerunner to design of sun-fueled skyscrapers" has been unveiled at a glass company's research center here.

A spokesman said the project is the first privately financed full-scale experiment in the use of the sun's energy to heat and cool office and commercial buildings.

The structure is a mockup of a section of a high rise office building. Solar energy collectors have been mounted in the walls as well as on the roof.

Scientists and engineers will monitor the structure to determine its energy collecting efficiency on a year-round basis.

abundance of water," NASA explains. "Mars is relatively dry today, but discoveries by Mariner 9 (unmanned spacecraft which flew by Mars) of volcanism and riverbeds on Mars suggest that the planet could have had a substantial supply of water that at times became available in liquid form.

"The water could have remained long enough to permit some form of organism to evolve, only to be snuffed out later when the vital gases and water on Mars disappeared.

"If that happened, we still may find traces of onetime life on the surface."

Even if no signs of life, now or ever, are found on Mars, NASA says, "it is crucially important to study the nature of other planets presumed to have originated at about the same time and by the same processes as earth."

"Comparative planetology will be of great value in understanding our own earth, and in formulating measures to protect our own environment."

All these factors, and others, the NASA document contends, "make the exploration of Mars the most important objective of planetary exploration for many decades to come."

Virginia State Diverse Industry

RICHMOND (AP) — The economic stability of Virginia has never been dependent on a single industry, or even a few. Ever since the first handful of permanent settlers — the Virginia Company of London — landed at Jamestown in 1607 and set to work making glass, iron, barrels, ships, pitch and tar, industrial diversity has been flourishing in the state. It boasts a variety of businesses ranging from handmade crafts to highly sophisticated aerospace and nuclear products.

The first quarter of 1975 was no exception, according to the Virginia Division of Industrial Development. The division reports that new manufacturing plants announced in the three months were for companies planning rolling mills, meat processing plants and the manufacture of furniture, concrete products, clock movements, cables and slings, refrigeration equipment, woodenware, electronic parts and hardwood components.

Gas Station Favoritism Illegal

NEW YORK (AP) — In the event of another gasoline shortage, gas stations giving preferential treatment to regular customers would be violating the law, reports National Petroleum News.

The U.S. Supreme Court, the publication notes, recently upheld the Federal Energy Administration's position that it has the authority to ban favoritism.

Designer Claims Fashion Is 'Out'

By DOLORES BARCLAY
NEW YORK (AP) — Nine years ago Giorgio di Sant'Angelo was molding bizarre shapes out of plastic for fashion layouts in Vogue magazine. That was when the Italian-born designer had feathers hanging out of his ears, scads of colorful beads around his neck and flowing hair.

Today, sans beads and feathers and hair tapered and somewhat shorter, Di Sant'Angelo, 37, is one of Seventh Avenue's leading "clothes" designers. "Clothes," not "fashion," because he says fashion does not exist.

In the presentation of his fall collection, Di Sant'Angelo's designs were a departure from other Seventh Avenue houses. His matte jersey convertible dress was made of yards of material draped between the legs, around the neck, over the shoulder and knotted into shawls for an infinite variety of looks.

But the fashion press didn't like it. And Di Sant'Angelo says he doesn't care.

"I rebelled," he said. "And somehow I've created a customer — that man or woman who doesn't care what other people think."

Di Sant'Angelo designed all the clothes Mick Jagger wore in his Rolling Stones concert tour. He also did about 25 outfits for rest of the rock group.

He also makes clothes for entertainer Lena Horne, pop star Gladys Knight, television entertainer Barbara Walters and a "Who's Who" of New York's party set.

Di Sant'Angelo was born in Florence, Italy, but grew up in Argentina.

He came to the U.S. to draw for Disney. When that didn't work out, he became a textile designer. He also began working with plastic, creating shapes and designs.

"I think clothes are a tremendous expression of people," he said. "I like fantasy, and I think clothes should have a sense of humor."

A well-dressed person, he says, is one who understands this idea, is independent and does not depend on clothing to carry his or her personality.

Mummers Going Into 2nd Weekend

"Calamity on the Colorado," the Midland Summer Mummers' 27th season production, goes into its second weekend with a performance at 8:30 p.m. Friday. The melodrama, subtitled "The Briscoe Kid Rides Again," will have a Saturday performance beginning at the same hour.

Following the pair of performances this weekend, 14 additional performances will remain in the season schedule, two each weekend through Aug. 30. All presentations are in the American Legion Hall in Downtown Midland.

Accompanying all Mummers performances is a music hall-style variety show, or olio, featuring singers, dancers, comedians and specialty routines.

Table and ticket reservations for future performances are now being accepted through the Midland Community Theatre box office, 682-2544.

Allman Joins Sonny In Cherless State

9 Days Of Marriage Enough For Sonny's Ex

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Gregg and I made a mistake," entertainer Cher said in announcing that she was seeking a divorce after nine days of marriage to rock musician Gregg Allman.

"I've always believed it best to admit one's mistakes as quickly as possible," she said late Wednesday. "We just cannot live together as man and wife."

A spokesman for Cher said the couple had been separated since last Friday, and Cher had left for an undisclosed location.

Cher said, "I am trying to make my own decisions now after years of having had them made for me. I am bound to make wrong ones from time to time and this was one of those times."

But after filing for divorce from Allman, 29-year-old Cherilyn LaPiere Bono Allman reportedly was not sure her latest decision was the right one either.

Less than two weeks ago, Cher had shed her first husband, long-time singing partner Sonny Bono.

A spokesman for Allman said the latest divorce action was all a misunderstanding. He claimed Cher had already reconsidered, and he said he thought she might not go through with the divorce.

"The papers have been filed but the litigation will not go through," said Mike Hyland of Allman's recording company, Capricorn Records.

There were also reports, later withdrawn, that Cher was unaware of the divorce action.

Later, Hyland said, "I think they got things straightened out, but I really have no way of knowing. I know they were on the phone this afternoon."

He said Allman was "pretty much surprised" by Cher's divorce petition, which cited "irreconcilable differences."

Hyland said it was possible the couple would get together over the weekend in Georgia, home of the Allman Brothers Band, or Los Angeles.

Allman, 27, was in Macon, Ga., recording an album. Cher, a long-haired beauty with one of the most frequently photographed naves in the history of American television, and Allman were married June 30 in Las Vegas in a small ceremony in the Caesars Palace suite of Cher's lawyer, Milton Radin.

She had been divorced from Bono for only three days.

"I have my own feelings about divorce," Cher had said after her split with Bono. "So many people get divorced today. I think you should regard it as a failure. Just a change."

Verdi's 'Falstaff' On Stage At Santa Fe

SANTA FE, N.M. — The "fat old knight," Sir John Falstaff, who so delighted the Queen Elizabeth I in Shakespeare's "Henry IV" that she reportedly asked that he be brought back in new play showing him in the throes of love, is the central character in Giuseppe Verdi's comic opera masterpiece, "Falstaff," now having performances at the Santa Fe Opera.

The opera had its first presentation at Santa Fe on July 4, with a second performance given Wednesday night. The third performance is scheduled Friday night and additional presentations are announced for July 23 and Aug. 5 and 19.

Verdi's "Falstaff" is based on Shakespeare's "Henry IV," combined with portions of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" which Shakespeare wrote in just two weeks to oblige Queen Elizabeth. The opera is regarded as one of the three greatest operatic comedies in existence.

Although Sir John is "fat-punched," Thomas Stewart, who sings the role at Santa Fe, is not and in recent days he has been most often seen around the opera grounds wearing his paunch for the purpose of getting used to moving around in it.

Stewart, who is singing Falstaff for the first time in his illustrious career, recently commented: "Falstaff is the center of this work, and the whole story is set in motion by him with the other characters in the opera joining forces to teach the vain old knight a thorough lesson."

Stewart, most often identified with the role of Wotan in Richard Wagner's famous "Ring" cycle of operas, finds Falstaff "an antithesis within himself, a man who 'blows with the wind' but who is a gentleman, always, even when he cheats and lies. He does all his fagging with great finesse!"

Joining Stewart in performances of the opera are such firm favorites with Santa Fe audiences as Helen Vanni, Douglas Perry, Brent Ellis, Jean Kross, Betty Allen, William Damsby and James Atherton. Rising young singer Ruth Welting is making her Santa Fe Opera debut in the role of Nanetta.

Tickets for all Santa Fe Opera performances through Aug. 30 are available through the opera theater box office, or by mail from Box 2408, Santa Fe 87501. Other productions being offered this season are Bizet's "Carmen," Janacek's "Cunning Little Vixen," De Falla's "La Vida Breve," Ravel's "The Child and the Sorcerers" and Mozart's "Così Fan Tutti."

UTPB Professor Cited For Honor

ODESSA—Dr. Thomas L. Dymeson, assistant professor of pedagogical studies at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, has been nominated for a lifetime membership in Delta Tau Kappa, the international social science honor society.

Dymeson received the candidacy following the publication of a review on anthropological orientations.

Army Studio Band To Perform Here

A concert appearance by the Studio Band of the U.S. Army Field Band is set for Sept. 24 in the Midland High School Auditorium. The Midland concert, sponsored by the chamber of commerce, is part of a nationwide tour by the band.

The event, part of Midland's Bicentennial plans, will be free to the public and tickets will be available at a later date on a first-come basis.

"We are delighted that the chamber is bringing this group to the community for a concert of a distinctively American musical form," said Joe Dominey, chairman of the Midland Bicentennial Commission. "And we are pleased to act as co-sponsors for the event."

Museum Tour Set Saturday

The Museum of the Southwest sponsored charter bus trip to Palo Duro Canyon for a performance of the musical drama "Texas!" is scheduled Saturday.

The bus will depart the museum grounds at 1765 W. Missouri St., shortly after 8 a.m. Saturday. The tour will include a stop in Lubbock at the Museum of Texas Tech University and the adjacent Ranching Heritage Center. Another stop will be made in Canyon for a visit to the Panhandle Plains Museum on the campus of West Texas State University. Following the "Texas!" performance that evening, four members will return to Midland.

Victor Borge To Play At Dallas

DALLAS—Victor Borge, famed Danish pianist and musical satirist, will play not one but two concerts in the Dallas Symphony Orchestra's "Summerfest" series this weekend. Borge, internationally-known as a comedian and conductor as well as pianist, was originally booked for one performance only with the DSO, on Saturday night. The demand for tickets was so great that a Sunday performance was added. Both concerts will begin at 8:45 p.m. under the "Big Top" at NorthPark shopping center here.

The Saturday night program will feature Borge as solo artist with the 80-member Dallas Symphony. The newly-scheduled Sunday performance will feature an entirely different show, Borge's acclaimed solo act, "Comedy in Music." Borge began his career in his native Copenhagen as a "serious" musician, but after his arrival in this country during World War II began to concentrate more and more on the lighter aspects of concertizing and through the years his "Comedy in Music" has delighted audiences on television and on stages throughout the world. Saturday night, Borge will conduct the Dallas orchestra in the overture to "Captain Blood" and a suite from "Escape Me Never," both composed by Erich von Korngold, plus the "Triumphal March" by Glazounov. He will be featured performer with the orchestra in a performance of Rachmaninoff's Prelude No. 5. Also performing in the concert will be soprano Marilyn Mulvey, who has sung with the Philadelphia Lyric Opera and the New York City Opera, in favorite and familiar operatic arias from "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Romeo and Juliet" and others.

Shakespeare Fest To Open

DALLAS — The annual Shakespeare Festival of Dallas opens its limited season tonight. The 10-day festival, offering performances of the Bard's famous "Hamlet," as well as "The Merry Wives of Windsor," will take place at the outdoor band shell in Fair Park of Dallas.

The productions are directed by Jack Clay and feature performers from the SMU theater department, from other colleges and universities in this region, and from elsewhere in the nation. Full information on the upcoming festival is obtainable by telephoning 214-526-5021.

The festival, featuring free performances of the two Shakespearean productions, is financed by hundreds of individual and corporate donations. Major sponsors of the event are the Junior League of Dallas, the 500 Inc., the Dallas Shakespeare Club, Dallas Department Store Association, Pollack Foundation and the American Petrofina Foundation.

Festival founder-producer Bob Giern noted that more than 20,000 people attended the festival performances during the 1974 season and said he anticipates even higher attendance figures for this year.

"Hamlet" will open the 1975 season at 8:15 p.m. today, with additional performances scheduled Friday and Saturday and next Wednesday and Friday nights. "Merry Wives of Windsor," one of Shakespeare's greatest comedies, will have its first performance Sunday evening, with other presentations scheduled next Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday and a final performance on Sunday, July 20.

Artists, Craftsmen Selected For Event

SAN ANTONIO—Fifty artists and craftsmen from throughout the state have been selected for the fourth annual Texas Folklife Festival now just a month away. The event, described as "Texas' biggest block party," will draw visitors from throughout the state, including a group of Midlanders who will come here on a special festival tour arranged by Midland's Museum of the Southwest.

daughters who will deep fry fresh rattlesnake meat for visitors to sample. Additional information on the folk festival is obtainable from the Institute of Texan Cultures at P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio 78294. Permian-Basin area residents interested in attending the fair are urged to contact the Museum of the Southwest in Midland, 683-2882, without delay.

The Folklife Festival, which opens Aug. 7 and continues through Aug. 10 at HemisFair Plaza, is sponsored by the Institute of Texan Cultures of The University of Texas-San Antonio. "How-to-do-it" demonstrations designed to both entertain and inform fair visitors are the heart of the folklife event, which also showcases the food, crafts, music, dances, games and contests of various ethnic groups in the state, including those of Japanese, German, Chinese, Spanish, Czech, Wendish, Mexican, Polish and Indian ancestry.

Among the artisans demonstrating their creative talents and their wares at the fair will be knife maker Jim Barbee of Fort Stockton, glassblower Joe Pyle of Odessa, coppersmith Michael Davenport of Leander, tinmith Emil P. Schandua of Fredericksburg, blacksmith Sherrille Stroud of Devine and potter David Chohlis of Natalia. These are some of the traditional pioneer crafts to be demonstrated at the festival. Among those demonstrating more exotic talents at the event will be coon oil processors Mr. and Mrs. "Trapper" Delke of Kerrville, paper maker Richard A. Clifford of Fort Worth, and Robert Lee Herndon of Aransas Pass who will share his reptile taxidermy skills with the public by preparing his coiled and striking mounts of rattlesnakes, some of which are seven and eight feet long. Assisting Herndon will be his two young

Jewesson Named To MFA Position

HOUSTON — Announcement of the appointment of Kenneth R. Jewesson as director of the School of Art of the Houston Museum of Fine Arts has been made by MFA director William C. Agee.

Jewesson, currently director of the Santa Barbara (Calif.) Art Institute, received a B.A. degree from San Fernando Valley State College, attended the Fashion Institute of Technology and the Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles, and earned his M.F.A. from the University of California at Berkeley. A staff member at the Santa Barbara Art Institute since April 1972, Jewesson served a two-year term as dean of faculty and now holds positions as instructor of printmaking, lecturer, and liaison officer for the Western Association of Schools and Colleges in addition to the post of director of the institute. Prior to joining the institute, he worked as a ceramic designer and a commercial printer and artist, and served as a printmaking instructor at the Brooks Institute-School of Fine Arts. He will take over his new duties here in August.

Sometimes You Can't Give It Away

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — You might think that in a recession the company able to give away its product would not be hurt badly. But the effects of recessions are ubiquitous. Sometimes you can't even give away your product.

This lesson is an old one for publishers of a type of magazine that is distributed to businessmen, tradespeople and professionals. Popularly called trade magazines, they are free and their circulation is controlled.

The publishers make their money from the advertisers, who are assured that their message will be delivered into the hands of a specific type of reader having certain desirable characteristics, including high income.

Annual Check
The precise wording of the promise is up to the publisher, but the Business Publications Audit of Circulation then makes certain the publisher lives up to his guarantee by once-a-year check on the quality of circulation.

"They phrase it in auditable terms," says Thomas Campbell, president of the nonprofit organization, which audits 652 major controlled circulation magazines.

But now the problem: When times get tough, as they have become in the automotive industry, the word goes out to cut costs, and the edict applies to the mail room as well as to the assembly line and the executive suite.

Costs Cut
Controlled circulation magazines often are mailed in bulk to company mail rooms, to be distributed by the company's internal mail force. As some see it, mail rooms are an ideal place to cut costs.

At Ford's Rouge Office Building and at its research and engineering center in Dearborn, distribution was discontinued, although workers can pick up their copies at the mail room. Clearly this presents problems.

Chrysler said it notified publishers that it would not distribute their publications internally for the foreseeable future. The magazines, it suggested, might instead be sent to the recipient's home.

Pass Along Lost
By mailing to a home address, however, some value is lost and some cost added. "We lose the pass along," said Campbell. That is, only one reader sees the magazines instead of probably five who see an office-delivered copy.

Home delivery presents other problems. The worker might quit his job and then the publisher must find his replacement. With office-delivered copies the subscription almost routinely is picked up by the successor worker.

While the situation certainly is more than just a nuisance to the publishers, Charles Mill, who directs American Business Press, an industry association, claims "it's a tempest in a teapot." Campbell says there's been "some disruption."

The fact remains that if the publishers cannot get their books into the hands of the readers they promise to deliver, they are in trouble.

Girls In Sports Increase Seen

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — By 1978 one-third of all participants in school sports will be women, predicts a sporting goods manufacturer.

"We find more and more women want to participate in all types of athletic programs," said Spalding president Richard Geisler. "Within three years this could mean nearly two million women becoming active in interscholastic sports."

"Participation will not only expand traditional women's sports such as basketball, track and volleyball, but will rapidly increase in softball, tennis and even such typically male games as baseball and soccer," Geisler said.

Women athletes have been bolstered by Title 9 of the 1972 U.S. Education Amendments forbidding sex discrimination by recipients of federal funds. The statute helps influence allocation of funds and sports facilities while allowing women to integrate noncontact sports and start their own programs.
