

Ford To Propose Deregulation

Slow Gas Price Hikes Promised

CHICAGO (AP) — President Ford announced Saturday he will propose a bill this week removing price controls from domestic oil in a way that he said would not result in a sudden rise in gasoline prices.

Ford said his proposal to Congress will be "a responsible, well-timed decontrol of domestic oil ... so that there will not be a precipitous rise, but at the same time offer encouragement for those that are seeking to increase and improve our domestic oil production."

The President told a news conference midway through his three-day trip to Illinois and Michigan that gasoline prices could rise substantially anyway unless domestic oil production is increased. And he said Congress must move quickly to avoid price hikes that might occur if "we stay vulnerable to foreign oil."

During the half-hour session, Ford also said he hoped the Soviet Union would buy excess supplies of U.S. grain. And he said he has no personal knowledge of any CIA-related employees at the White House. He said he was not referring to personnel assigned with his knowledge.

The President also reiterated that he regards his Midwest trip, the first since he declared (See FORD Page 4A)

Radicals Release U.S. Army Officer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A U.S. Army colonel, kidnaped two weeks ago by Palestinian radicals, was released Saturday after the Lebanese government delivered free food and other supplies demanded in ransom.

Col. Ernest R. Morgan's only statement before going into seclusion with U.S. officials was: "Tell my mother I'm fine, glad to be free and alive. I was treated well."

Muslim leaders who reportedly arranged the release first brought Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., to the residence of Lebanon's Premier Rashid Karami. Shortly afterward he was taken to meet U.S. Embassy officials and a spokesman announced he would be secluded at least until today, presumably for a medical checkup and debriefing by American officials. Details of the release were not disclosed.

Morgan was clean shaven, appeared fit and smiled broadly when he arrived at the premier's residence a little more than two hours before the deadline set by his kidnapers for his execution.

He was accompanied by Sheikh Abdullatif Zinde, a Muslim religious judge, and Mohammed Mokaddem, a leader of the left-wing October 24 Movement. Reporters were told that organization had negotiated Morgan's release.

The kidnapers, calling themselves the Socialist Revolutionary Action Organization, twice threatened to execute Morgan "by firing squad" as a spy if their demands for free food, clothing and building materials were not met. The first deadline set for Wednesday was extended to 9 p.m. — 2 p.m. EDT — Saturday.

American officials said all efforts to win Morgan's release were left to the Lebanese government. U.S. policy is to refuse ransom demands.

Put Romance Into Your Life

An interesting story is told about Ramsay McDonald, one-time prime minister of England. He suffered a sad loss when his wife died early in life, leaving their children for McDonald to bring up. Her last words to her husband were wise indeed: "Put romance into the lives of our children."

It was a curious last admonition. But certainly, the capacity for romance is one of the most important legacies she could have left her children. Because if a young person becomes responsive to the wonder and glory which is in every aspect of life, it will lift him out of himself, and make him a dynamic part of a wonderful world.

My own mother taught her children to live with romance. One thing I remember about her was that, whenever her children complained, she would say, "You must learn to love life. You're living in a beautiful world; see as much of it as you can. Love the world and make the most of every minute of your life."

My son John graduated at Deerfield Academy and I came to know the late Dr. Frank Boyden, its headmaster, very well indeed. He was a rare soul, one of the greatest educators of boys America ever had. Almost every evening he concluded his announcement to the five hundred boys in the big dining hall by saying, "As you go out, take a look at the hills." Misty-eyed old Deerfield boys will tell you that they found new beauty in the Massachusetts hills at twilight from a sensitive teacher who was trying to put romance into their lives.

Once on a speaking engagement in Fargo, N.D., I was scheduled to make a speech the next night in Duluth, Minn. "Go by air," a friend advised, "By plane you can be in Duluth in an hour."

"Isn't there anything to see between Fargo and Duluth?" I asked.

"No," he answered, "not much. Only a bunch of lakes."

Well, I'd never been through that particular area and decided to drive so as to see those lakes. And I'm glad I did. For what I saw and felt added to the romance of living for me. I started out early on a beautiful morning. Spring hadn't quite come yet, but there was already an unmistakable trace of it in the air and on the land. And I've never seen so many lakes and of such depth of color. I began to understand why they call this part of the country, "The land of the sky-blue water."

The question for all of us to face is, "Am I putting romance in my life in full measure? Do I get a big thrill out of the world? Do I feel a real zest for life, for my work? Or am I, perhaps, too preoccupied and bogged down with problems?"

Midland's Clean-Cut Image Result Of Hard Work

Ector County DA John Green ... Porno raids outdated?

By ED TODD
Midland may never make it to a federal court tribunal that would rule on pornographic movies, books and magazines, and possibly, exotic and erotic stage routines.
Midland, from outward appearances, is utterly lacking in the triple X-rated hard-core stuff.
"I'm pretty proud of it," Dist. Atty. Jim Mashburn said. And that clean-cut aspect of this city of 65,000 population is far from an accident.
When the porno-smut threat arose, Mashburn said, the Midland County Grand Jury took some counter action. It said, quite politely but firmly, "no deal" to the porno peddlers.
The grand jury, in 1966 and 1967, launched a "general investigation concerning the quality of books, movies — the general area of what is loosely called 'pornography,'" Mashburn said.
That effort, he said, got the "full cooperation" of Midlanders — primarily book and magazine distributors, movie theater operators and "the local merchants."

If and when "totally objectionable" material landed on the news stands, Mashburn said, "we would simply go to the merchants," voice objections to the material, and, vanish, the so-called dirty literature would be slipped to the back room.
In other cases, merchants who were selling the objectionable material would be summoned before the grand jury, presented copies of their merchandise and would be asked not to sell the pornographic art again.
It worked, and the newsstands and magazine racks were cleaned up.
"They (the merchants) simply took it off the shelves," he said of the material. One business specializing in the "arty" works folded; it was Chaucer's Bookstore.

But Midland's not a fairy-tale land.
"There's still trash around," Mashburn, district attorney here since 1965, said.
"But, any place you go, there's going to be more (pornographic literature) out in open view than there is in Midland."
The same applies to films made by that maverick in the film industry: the quick-and-easy money-making XXX-rated "movie" producers.
Any pornographic flicks in Midland are strictly undercover, Mashburn explained the cooperation among merchants here to keep pornography out of town: "Midland has been their home for years and years" and they want this city to be "the finest place around for people to live."
... And that same kind of attitude does not exist in larger cities where they're out

Apollo-Soyuz Countdown In Final Hours

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Russian rocket was on its pad, the American astronauts wound up their training and the only major concern Saturday for this week's U.S. Soviet space chase was the kind of weather that gives fits to Florida's Chamber of Commerce.

Thomas P. Stafford, the American commander for Tuesday's U.S.-Soviet space chase, landed a T38 jet in a rainstorm and declared: "I hope it's not like this next Tuesday."
The other members of the crew, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton, also piloted individual T38s from Texas.
The two Soviet cosmonauts, Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov, have been in quarantine at their launch site several days. Their rocket and spaceship were moved to the launch pad Saturday.

Everything was going according to plan for the twin launches Tuesday: 7:20 a.m. CDT for the blast-off of the Russian Soyuz from Baikonur; 2:50 p.m. for the Apollo from Cape Canaveral.
The two ships are to link up at 11:15 p.m. Thursday.
But Central Florida has afternoon thunderstorms in the summer and this year is no exception. The launch site has been deluged with rain, high winds and some lightning in mid-day the past week.

The Russian launch site, at the edge of a desert where the temperature reached 113 degrees earlier in the week, has no such problems.

Nature's Divebombers Renewing Attack

By GEORGE MASSEY
Small-winged, black divebombers, commonly known as flies, have made their annual summer attack on Midland alleys.
The buzzing and darting little six-legged pests are grouping airborne divisions in garbage and trash collections that are man-made breeding spots.
Recent rains have supplied the extra ingredient necessary for an abundant crop of the insects. Moist piles of cut grass generate enough heat to hatch millions of the fly larvae in less than a week.
Attempts by the city-county health unit have proved less than adequate to control the massive population growth of the flies, and city officials are calling for an assist from Midland home owners to help in the never-ending battle to exterminate existing and future fly armies.

The health unit is operating two insect control vehicles, but each spraying unit takes approximately three weeks to work its way through all the alleys across Midland.
Great numbers of flies can be hatched before the spraying covers any particular area. If rain washes down a previously treated alley, the flies are back in business. It takes constant effort to control the pests, and city officials have indicated fly control can be accomplished with a "unified citizen effort."
"The flies are immune to many of the insecticides we have used in the past," Fred Poe, assistant city manager, said. This year the spraying is being done with a new pesticide available from a Lubbock research lab, Poe said, while noting that old insecticides such as DDT have been banned from use.

The health units operate five days each week with the sprayer vehicle following a trash pickup truck to treat garbage containers and alleys during the day. The fogger unit operates only at night, and mostly in the early morning hours, Poe said, to avoid high wind conditions.
Several suggestions to help in controlling fly population growth have been made by Fred Baker, public works director. Baker said flies generate in loose garbage placed in trash containers.
"The flies breeding activity can be stopped by placing garbage and trash in plastic bags," Baker suggested, "with the bag being secured with a tie-off." Most trash bags have the tie-off strips included to seal them from air, water and insects.

Piles of mowed grass provide an "excellent breeding place" for the fly larvae, Baker said. "The cut grass should be gathered with a grass catcher and put in the container, preferably in a sealed bag," he said.
Cut grass that is not gathered, but allowed to stay on the lawn forms a matted layer for the flies to lay their eggs in, Baker said.
Home owners can control the flies generating in the yard by gathering the cut grass and incorporating a pesticide into the yard watering system, Baker said.
Another method is to carry a can of fly spray with you each time the trash is placed in the alley container and give the container a blast of spray, Baker said.
If all else fails, Midlanders can resort to the fly swatter.

About Those Horned Toads...

THE HORNED TOAD, Texas' mini-king of the desert, has the law on its side and, thanks to a game warden, now the YMCA, which wouldn't touch the lizard with a 10-foot pole.

That may be somewhat exaggerated, but state game warden Homer Crosby of Midland was quite literal when he called to the YMCA Friday night to sound off on the toad's untouchable quality.

An article in Friday's Reporter-Telegram said that the YMCA would knock off $2.50 from the Y's Chaparral Day Camp fee if the registrant brought along a horned toad.

IT SEEMED LIKE A GOOD GIMMICK at the time, John McVickar, the Y's community program director, said later.

Gimmick or not, Crosby said the idea went against the grains of the law.

The horned toad, the Parks and Wildlife Department officer said, is a "protected species" and has been since 1967 when the Texas Legislature outlawed the "killing, capturing, selling and trading" of the creature, Crosby said.

"IT'S JUST ONE OF THOSE THINGS that has to be stopped," he said Saturday of the YMCA's proposing to accept horned toads as barter. "Unfortunately, it's against the law."

Crosby talked to McVickar about the law being in the lizard's favor. And some other folks called, too.

"Those who knew about it called us," McVickar said, "and brought it to our attention."

In a YMCA news release issued to retract the load-bartering aspect of the newspaper article, McVickar said the YMCA was "unaware of the restrictions concerning the trapping and bartering of the Horned Toad in Texas."

BUT WITH HORNED TOAD out of hand, the $2.50 discount still holds, McVickar said. Those who register by July 16 for the day camp automatically will get the reduction.

"The YMCA regrets its oversight in regard to the Horned Toad," McVickar said, "and wishes... to remind all youngsters in Midland that we must take special precautions to preserve the wildlife of our state for everyone to enjoy."

Oklahoma Bank Official Arrested

LAWTON, Okla. (AP)—Bank Court Judge David Carter released Jimmy Harrell, 32, was free on bond Saturday while police continued their investigation of 45 firearms, some of them stolen, which they seized in a raid on his home at Cache and another at Indianola.

Police obtained a search warrant for Harrell's home Friday after equipping Charles G. Johnson, 29, of Lawton with secret tape recorders to bug conversations with Harrell, detective Jim Ingram said.

No charge was filed against Harrell, but Special District Attorney

David Carter released Jimmy Harrell, 32, was free on bond Saturday while police continued their investigation of 45 firearms, some of them stolen, which they seized in a raid on his home at Cache and another at Indianola.

The gun investigation began Friday morning after police questioned Johnson, who had been arrested at Duncan on a burglary warrant from Comanche County (Lawton) on Thursday, Ingram said.

Ingram said he drove Johnson to Cache, 15 miles west of Lawton, and recorded a telephone call from Johnson to Harrell that resulted in a meeting between Johnson and Harrell behind the First State Bank of Cache. That conversation, Ingram said, was recorded by bugs on Johnson's person and in his car.

The recordings showed the men discussed the firearms and other property that was confiscated, Ingram said.

Thirty-two weapons were taken from Harrell's home at Cache and 13 others from the home of a relative at Indianola, Ingram said. They included 10 pistols and 35 rifles and shotguns valued at several thousand dollars, police said.

The National Crime Information Center reported nine of the firearms had been stolen in Lawton, Oklahoma City, Corpus Christi, Tex., and Montpelier, Vt., Ingram said.

Police also seized a color television set and an organ that were stolen from a Lawton home between July 3 and July 7, Ingram said.

Kissinger Sees Progress Toward Sinai Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger claimed progress toward a settlement in Sinai after talks Saturday with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

However, Kissinger told newsmen at a stopover in London that "significant differences still remain and we will know in the course of the next few weeks whether they can be bridged."

As a result of his discussions with Rabin outside Bonn, newsmen were told, the Israeli cabinet probably will authorize a precise withdrawal line and send Ambassador Simcha Dinitz to Washington with the results by midweek.

Do Israelis Possess Nuclear Weapons?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two researchers said Saturday it is now so certain that Israel possesses nuclear weapons that the United States and Soviet Union should decide how they will react if atomic warfare breaks out in the Middle East.

"It may well be that nuclear weapons will be used in the Middle East in the near future, perhaps even in the next round of the fighting," Drs. Robert J. Pranger and Dale R. Tahtinen said in a study of nuclear potential in Israel and among Arab states.

"To offset an apparent Israeli advantage," the researchers said Arab nations are likely to develop their own nuclear stockpile.

Pranger and Tahtinen head the foreign and defense sections of the American Enterprise Institute, a nonpartisan, generally politically conservative, research organization.

Unless the superpowers develop contingency plans for the use of nuclear weapons by either side, said the study "nuclear war in the Middle East could well spread to world atomic war."

It cited "mystery surrounding current operations" at Dimona, one of two Israeli nuclear reactor complexes. The Israelis can produce enough plutonium at Dimona to duplicate the bomb dropped by the United States on Nagasaki at the end of World War II, the study said.

In addition, the researchers said Israeli scientists have developed sophisticated laser beam techniques which allow for the production of uranium port to President Ford, who has issued repeated warnings that unless there is a partial settlement soon the Middle East could drift into war. Kissinger, who arrived in Washington Saturday night, is to meet with Ford tonight or early Monday.

A senior U.S. official said the United States probably would be willing to help operate an electronic warning system in Sinai to give Israel assurance against surprise attack.

Israel has resisted Egyptian demands for abandonment of the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes because with a relatively small force there the Israelis are able to guard access to the eastern Sinai.

The U.S. official stressed, however, that American troops would not be positioned between the separated Israeli and Egyptian forces.

Answering questions on his stopover in London, Kissinger said "some progress was made" and he would decide within the next few weeks whether to resume his so-called shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East.

He emphasized, as he had at the conclusion of the meeting with Rabin, that "for an agreement to be reached both parties have to make a contribution."

The Israeli cabinet was to meet today, U.S. officials said. If the decision is not made then on the broad outline of a settlement it should be forthcoming within two or three additional days.

It would not by any means complete the pact and the U.S. mediator role, reporters were told. If Egypt signals its approval and all outstanding differences are narrowed, Kissinger would then make a "shuttle" trip to the Middle East, possibly in August to seal the agreement, U.S. officials said.

These officials said Kissinger and Rabin reviewed three principal categories — the elements of a settlement, how this step would relate to future Israeli negotiations with Syria and Jordan and the extent of U.S. assurances to the Jewish state.

mium useable in atomic weapons.

Israel's refusal to sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty is also a "significant indication that it has nuclear weapons," they said.

The study said Israel not only has the capability to design nuclear weapons, but in fact has been building them, although no numbers were specified.

The only Arab states known to own reactors, both built by the Soviet Union, are Iraq and Egypt. While those facilities are much smaller than those in Israel, the institute study predicts Egypt could probably begin producing atomic weapons in six to 10 years.

Polluted Water Forces Shutdown Of National Park

CRATER LAKE, Ore. (AP) — Crater Lake National Park, one of the nation's natural wonders, has been shut down indefinitely because its drinking water supply is polluted by a fouled sewage line.

Investigators from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, checking on the cause of hundreds of cases of stomach disorder among recent park visitors, closed the park Friday.

Green dye poured into a toilet in the park lodge appeared in drinking water 90 minutes later, they said.

The CDC said that between 500 and 1,000 persons had become ill in the park since mid-June, complaining mostly of severe nausea, diarrhea and cramps.

The two men were arrested Thursday at Las Cruces, N. M., by Texas Rangers and New Mexico sheriff's deputies.

The Cooksey brothers and Carl Gail Harding, 43, are charged with taking equipment from an oilfield near Coahoma. They were almost arrested on day of the alleged offense when Deputy Sheriff Buster of Big Spring caught the three men leaving the oil field where they

Hunts' Attorney Says CIA May Be Behind 'Selective Prosecution'

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency may be behind the "selective prosecution" of Nelson Bunker Hunt and W. Herbert Hunt, sons of the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt, on federal wiretapping charges, their defense attorney says.

That claim came among a rash of defense motions filed before U.S. District Court Judge Halbert O. Woodward Friday in the case of the Hunts.

The wiretaps allegedly occurred in late 1969 and early 1970 and involved a Houston private detective agency.

An affidavit filed by defense lawyer Phillip Hirschkop said Nelson Bunker Hunt had been approached by the CIA to request that the intelligence agency be allowed to operate in the Hunt's international businesses.

Hirschkop suggested that had the Hunts complied with the CIA's wishes, they might not be facing trial.

When Hirschkop presented the motion, Woodward asked, "What are you trying to do here, try the government?"

Hirschkop replied, "Defend my clients, but the government may well be the real culprit."

When the CIA motion was filed earlier in the case, prosecutors responded with an affidavit saying they had searched CIA files and found 15 pages of material of a biographical nature on Nelson Bunker Hunt and an authorization to approach him.

Turkey Aid Bill Set For House Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill backed by President Ford to lift Congress' embargo on U.S. arms sales to Turkey, starting with $185 million worth already contracted, has been cleared for House action.

The bill approved Friday by the House International Relations Committee would authorize Ford to approve additional credit arms sales beyond the $185 million worth to bolster Turkey's ability to meet its NATO commitments.

But the committee imposed a waiting period on finalizing any additional sales so that Congress could block them if it became clear the initial weapons would not achieve the goal of getting Turkey to negotiate a Cyprus peace.

Opponents, including Rep. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., said the substantial repeal of Congress' cutoff of U.S. military aid to Turkey should be rejected.

Riegle said the United States should give Turkey its $185 million back and continue the embargo full force until that country agrees to negotiate an end to its military occupation of Cyprus.

House leaders said they expect the vote on the floor to be close but that the odds are good for House approval. The committee vote was 16 to 11.

Texas Democrats OK Delegate Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Democratic party leaders, alternating between rebellion and harmony, finally approved Saturday a plan for selecting delegates to the 1976 national Democratic convention.

However, State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest, Bryan, called another meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee for September to act on further expected changes expected by national party heads.

"We are by no means through today," said Gordon Wynne Jr., Willis Point, whose rules committee of the SDEC, drew up the plan. "We fully expect to get more requests from the (national) Compliance Review Commission for further changes."

The Texas plan, as adopted Saturday by a 45-22 vote incorporates the new law passed by the recent legislature at the urging of backers of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., a candidate for the 1976 presidential nomination. Three-fourths of Texas' 130-member delegation, or 98, would be selected by popular vote in the May primary, at least three for each of the 31 state senatorial districts.

The other one-fourth, or 32 delegates, and all alternates will be selected at the June state convention. The plan approved Saturday says that all such delegates and alternates "shall reasonably reflect the preferences of the state convention participants as indicated by a straw poll of the delegates."

An effort to require that all delegates and alternates be equally divided between men and women got a majority vote.

Richard H. Jones, 85, 1209 W. Michigan St., died Saturday morning in a Big Spring hospital after a brief illness.

Services are pending with Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Jones was born and raised in Fannin County until his move to Midland in 1941. He was employed with Fashion Cleaners for a number of years until his retirement in 1967.

He is survived by two sons, Herman William Jones of Midland and Edwin G. Jones of Charlotte, Mich.; one daughter, Mrs. W. L. Clayton of Big Spring; one sister, Mrs. Taylor Stone of Bonham; and seven grandchildren.

Odessa—Jennie Lee Henry, 38, who was charged with aggravated kidnapping, robbery, aggravated assault of a police officer and auto theft in connection with Thursday's bizarre high speed chase in Ector and Andrews counties, was still being held Saturday in the Odessa City Jail in lieu of bonds totaling $30,000.

Henry allegedly stole an Odessa policeman's patrol car, kidnaped a man, took his car and then attempted to hit a police officer with it in the wild chase which ended with local law enforcement officers apprehending Henry just south of Andrews.

Portuguese Leaders Order Troops On Partial Alert

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's leftist military rulers nervously ordered troops on a partial alert Saturday after the country's largest political party quit the government and the second-biggest delivered an ultimatum the army was expected to reject.

The worst crisis in the republic's short history was aggravated by dangerous clashes among guerrilla movements in the African territory of Angola which threatened to engulf Portuguese soldiers stationed there until Nov. 11, independence day. Authorities in Angola estimated as many as 200 persons may have died since Wednesday. Officials here confirmed only six deaths but said the toll could go higher.

A military spokesman said troops in Portugal were confined to barracks in a "state of vigilance" because of the crisis following the walkout of Mario Soares' Socialist party from the cabinet Friday.

Premier Vasco Goncalves, an army general who backs the Communists, began consultations to revamp the cabinet. Among the people called to his Sao Bento residence were Communist party chief Alvarez Coimbra.

Soares left the cabinet saying the country was headed toward "a police state run by a new class of bureaucrats to oppress the workers." His departure was precipitated by the military taking over the Socialist party newspaper Republica.

Ringing The Bell

By BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience: The National Black Assembly will be hosting an Economic Conference Aug. 1-3 in Atlanta, Ga. The theme of the conference is: "Current Depression and the Survival of Black People — What is to be Done?"

The National Black Assembly sees the need for this major conference that will bring national leaders and economy specialists from around the country to speak on the current economic crisis and what should be done about it.

Tiesel the black community do about the crisis. It will be a forum that will bring together the entire spectrum of the Black nation. All organizations, church leaders and people interested in discussing alternatives for the black community in this economic crisis are invited.

The official national unemployment rate is 8.9 per cent and predicted to go higher. Actually it is double for the black community, with black youths aged 16-19 50 per cent unemployed.

The conference will be divided into five areas: employment, consumer concerns, legislation, existing programs and political education. Belligerents interested in more information or in attending the conference, can contact the National Black Assembly, 502 High St., Newark, N.J.

"Dear Bob: Some newspapers in the West Texas area as well as in other parts of the nation are advocating doing away with the nation's compulsory school laws and thus perhaps bringing relief to the 'armed camps' existing in some areas of our country. We can be thankful that such is not true in any area of West Texas or Southern New Mexico. And while integration of schools in above areas is not perfect, it is common knowledge among those who are observers of the situation that we lead many parts of the nation in amicable solutions to a touchy problem for some.

"A recent study by the Children's Defense Fund reveals that about 2 million children of school age are not enrolled in school. Ten states have more than 6 per cent of their school-age population out of school and in Mississippi it's almost 10 per cent. Almost twice as many blacks as whites were out of school in Michigan. Spanish-speaking students are also victims of this voluntary massive dropout of school children.

"It seems that school administrators should formulate guidelines for a rational disciplinary code and equality as well as justice for white and black and brown kids in school today rather than doing away with school laws that have made this country great in its policy of education for all the deserving."

(Signed) Mrs. T. E. of Odessa. Until later, Peace. See you after our vacation.

Dirt, Squirt & Quirt

FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS --
By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Agent

Crops made excellent growth in the Midland area during the past week. Cotton especially "look off" in the warm weather. Most areas in the county have good soil moisture following the rains during the week of July 4 and the warm days and nights plus the moisture spelled fast growth. Weeds are growing vigorously also and are presenting a problem for farmers. Some fleahopper activity has been noted in fruiting cotton, with 10 to 20 per cent of young squares blasted in some fields.

A new synthetic pyrethroid insecticide, labeled NIA-33297, performed well as a control for some important insect pests of cotton in field studies in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas. Besides showing promise as an effective insecticide for control of the tobacco budworm and boll weevil, the insecticide is considerably less toxic to man than some now in use. Tests indicated that the experimental insecticide was about 10 times more toxic than methyl parathion to both laboratory and field-collected strains of the tobacco budworm and the bollworm and about twice as toxic to the boll weevil.

Cicadas, often miscalled "locusts," have become very troublesome the past few years in parts of the Trans-Pecos and southern High Plains areas of Texas. Adult cicadas usually start appearing on shade trees and shrubs in the month of June. The males make all the shrill noises that may be considered noise pollution to most people. Cicadas have become annual pests in parts of the area. The female cicada normally lays eggs in small slits in small branches on twigs the only apparent damage that cicadas cause to trees and shrubs. The injured branches often bleed, die and break off.

When the eggs hatch, the tiny nymphs crawl down or drop to the soil where they enter and feed on young tree, plant or grass roots. Usually they cause little injury to the roots. The nymphs may remain in the soil one, two, three or more years before becoming full-grown. A full-grown nymph emerges from the soil and crawls up a tree trunk, side of a building or plants and attaches. The adult cicada then emerges from the nymph skin. Small trees and shrubs may be protected from cicadas by covering them with open-weave cloth, such as heavy cheesecloth or netting. The cloth should be put in place as cicadas begin to appear and should remain about five weeks. Although it is difficult to achieve chemical control of the cicada, carbaryl (Sevin) may be used on ornamental plants, shade trees and those fruit trees that are listed on the container label. One application of Sevin just before egg laying starts will provide protection for 5 to 8 days, depending on the degree of infestation and the character of the surrounding area. Three to five applications are generally necessary where heavy infestations of cicadas are present throughout the area. High temperatures and rains reduce the protection. Prepare a carbaryl spray by mixing two pounds of a 50 per cent wettable powder with 100 gallons of water. For one gallon of spray, use two level tablespoons of 50 per cent wettable powder.

Nine Persons Die When Hotel Burns

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A 57-year-old man has been charged with reckless homicide in connection with a hotel fire that killed nine people. Roy Jennings Beard of Portland was being held without bail for arraignment Monday after his arrest on Friday. Twenty-five men were also injured in the fire which swept through the three-story Pomona Hotel in Portland's skid road district Monday night. Fire investigators said gasoline apparently was poured down a stairway from a second-floor landing of the hotel before the blaze broke out.

On Mailing List? Want To Get Off? Here's How

By ROBERT E. DALLOS
The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — Are you tired of finding your letter box stuffed with unwanted mail? Now, you can do something about it.

There are a variety of ways to go about it.

The quickest and most effective means is to contact the Direct Mail Marketing Assn. Inc., 6 E. 43rd St., New York City 10017. The organization has 1,700 company members who will gladly remove your name from their mailing lists.

They contend that if you consider their mail junk, a description they decree, you're not going to buy anything anyway. And good riddance to you. After all, every piece of mail that goes out costs the merchandisers 15 cents.

Besides, they maintain, there are plenty of other people who will buy mailers' products. The sum, in fact, is staggering.

Annually, according to Anne Crouch Cole, consumer relations manager of the DMMA, about 25 billion pieces of advertising are mailed. Direct mailers sell $60 billion worth of merchandise every year. And you don't need one of those pocket calculators (they happen to be one of the favorite items sold through the mail) to tell you that adds up to about $2.10 per mailing.

The average single order amounts to $14, the direct mailing people say. Such orders range from highly expensive items such as farm tractors which may cost many hundreds or even thousands of dollars, to the $2 and $3 items. Sale of so-called "high-ticket" items are growing, the DMMA says.

There are 21,000 mailing lists in the United States. Some are so small they contain only about a hundred names. Others contain millions. Some companies won't allow outsiders to use their lists. They confine them to their own products.

"If you are socially and professionally active," Mrs. Cole says, "if you belong to organizations, subscribe to things, have credit cards, give to charities and attend benefits, you would be on an average of 150 mailing lists."

The average family receives about six pieces of direct mail material a week, or about one a day, she says, adding, "That's not nearly the deluge that opponents of direct mail would have you believe."

Once the DMMA gets your request to be dropped, it sends your name to its members. They are not required to abide by the requests, but they generally do so. The DMMA says it takes about 90 days to notice the full decline in mail.

But even if you fill out the DMMA application requesting no more mail, you won't rid yourself of all "junk" deliveries. Local merchants, religious and charitable organizations, alumni associations and other smaller agencies that don't belong to the DMMA will keep you on their lists.

There are other ways of getting off unwanted mail. The major credit card companies have always been willing to remove names from their lists but consumers must specifically request the action and many do not know they have such options.

There is no federal law requiring companies to stop sending you ads if you don't wish to receive them. The postal service feels that denying someone the right to send you a letter could be considered interfering with free speech.

Norman W. Shibley, a Cleveland attorney, some years ago filed a $50 million class action suit against American Express and four magazines contending that the sale of membership or a subscriber list which included his name was an invasion of his privacy. The suit was dismissed but is being appealed.

The litigation was enough to make American Express take notice of action. According to Lawrence J. Wigdortz, the firm's manager of marketing, his company had been considering for some years giving card holders the opportunity of not having names on lists the credit card company rents to third parties.

Blanks have been sent to all new card holders and also are being sent with membership renewal notices. So far, about 5 million persons have been contacted since the program began last November. The response has been very low. Only 22,000 have exercised the option to have their names removed from American Express lists.

But the direct mail marketing people cannot help you if you've been getting obscene or pornographic mail. If you have, the U.S. Postal Service has the clout to shut it off.

Federal law protects you and your family from receiving sexually oriented advertisements through the mail. You must list with your local post office the names of those in your household.

The postal service makes such lists of names available, at a fee, to mailers of such materials. They may view the lists at 60 locations throughout the United States. Thirty days after your name is added to the list, any mailer who sends you a sexually oriented advertisement subjects himself to civil and criminal legal action.

In order to obtain the postal service's anti-pornography application, ask a post office clerk or your mail carrier for a copy of the form for getting off sexually oriented advertising lists, known officially as USPS No. 2201.

According to Thomas Chadwick, the consumer advocate of the postal service, 440,172 such forms have been filed since the law pertaining

Grain Deal Negotiations Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz confirms that U.S. grain traders are negotiating in Moscow but says the impending sale will have little impact on prices paid by American consumers.

Butz told the Senate Agriculture Committee Friday that he expects food prices at the supermarket checkout counter to remain stable the rest of the year.

He said his price forecast was based on this week's estimate by the Agriculture Department of record harvests this year.

The department issued another report Friday predicting that the 1975 U.S. grain crop will be so big that reserves will rise even if the Soviet Union buys 19 million metric tons of U.S. grain, as reports indicate.

A Russian purchase in 1972 of about 19 million tons of American grain helped spur increases in retail food prices of about 14.5 per cent over each of the next two years.

Grain crops this year "appear large enough to meet substantial increases in domestic and foreign demand while still permitting increases in carryover (reserve) stocks," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Drought in primary growing areas of the Soviet Union is strengthening the outlook for grain exports from the United States."

Butz said that private American grain traders in Moscow are in communication with Deputy Assistant Secretary Richard E. Bell in Washington as the negotiations proceed.

The law requires only that the companies report to Bell within 24 hours any final sale exceeding 100,000 tons, Butz noted. The traders "are going beyond the law's requirements and discussing it with him before the purchases," Butz said.

In other developments affecting food prices:

—Preliminary figures released by the Agriculture Department showed that retail meat prices are still climbing. During the week ended June 28, retail beef prices averaged more than $1.61 per pound on an all-cut blended basis, compared to less than $1.59 a pound a week earlier. In April, the average was less than $1.34 per pound.

—Major refiners announced their second increases in the wholesale price of grocery sugar this week. The increases have reversed a steady decline in the price of sugar since last November.

Nuclear Policy Change Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — American policy is aimed at improving conventional military force "so a president would not be driven to early use of nuclear weapons" in a conflict, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger says.

In a public television interview Friday night, Schlesinger also said there has been no basic change in U.S. policy aimed at avoiding use of nuclear weapons.

Lynn Testifies To Grand Jury

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Houston Police Chief Carol M. Lynn says he told the truth and did not take the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self-incrimination during his testimony before a federal grand jury here.

Lynn, who recently resigned as chief, spent about 40 minutes Friday before the panel, which is investigating allegations of illegal wiretapping by the Houston Police Department.

to the mailing of sexually oriented material went into effect in May 1974. These forms contain 730,800 names.

And there's yet one other way the postal service can be of help to you. Another law which seems almost omnibus allows you to be the sole judge of whether material you get in the mail is "erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

Chadwick says that an ad for National Geographic magazine or an ad showing a cowboy with a whip could fall under this category if you made such a judgment.

In order to avail yourself of this law — and 618,886 persons have — you must ask the post office for form No. 23 and fill it out in duplicate. Your form then is forwarded to the mailer whose material you wish to stop getting. The mailer must then cease sending you such material.

Chadwick says that many people fill out this form to prevent material from being mailed to them which they don't wish their children to see.

If you do elect to get off any type of mailing list, according to the DMMA, you are in a distinct minority. It says it has conducted its "removal mail preference service" for the last four years and in that time only 46,480 persons have asked to have their names taken off mailing lists.

In a recent newspaper advertising campaign, persons were given the choice of adding or deleting their names. The number seeking to add their names to mailing lists totaled

1,600. Those wanting off numbered just 529.

Lords Win Match Against Commons

A bridge team representing Britain's House of Commons played a team from the House of Lords a few weeks ago, beginning an annual contest between the two houses of Parliament.

The scoring hairline was rubber-duplicate. Each table played the same cards at the same time. When a rubber ended at either table, the other table had to add up and a new rubber was started.

By staging the match during an extended lunch hour, and by having more than four players on each team, the legislators could play without interfering with their commitments. Thus Harold Lever, the authority on high finance in the reigning Labor Party government and also Parliament's best bridge player, attended a full morning Cabinet meeting, played several rubbers in the match and left in mid-afternoon for further official engagements.

The Commons won the first rubber by 1,120 and the second by 620. They lost the next two, but by lunchtime still led by 800.

After lunch the Lords picked away at the lead, but the Commons were still ahead at Board 30 (of a 33-deal match) when one of their players revoked. Nobody sent him to the Tower of London; in fact, the Lords sportingly tried to waive the penalty, but the Commons insisted on calling referee Harold Franklin.

The ruling cost the Commons the rubber. Two boards later, the Lords won the match by 900 points.

The civilized encounter was organized by Rini Markus and the national newspaper The Guardian, of which she is the bridge correspondent. Mrs. Markus, who played bridge in her teens on a world championship team in her native Vienna, has been a leading British player for the past 30 years and has won several world championships.

The entire margin of victory in the Parliamentary match might be traced to a single hand, in which a Lord was prudent and a commoner failed to take proper precautions.

It was clear that South had a spade-diamond two-suit and that North had a fine club suit with some strength in hearts; and the lead of the jack of hearts was the best choice to attack a weak spot.

South ruffed and led a diamond. West could not gain by playing low since declarer would win in dummy with the queen of diamonds and would then switch to clubs.

West therefore took the ace of diamonds and should have continued the pressure by leading another heart. Instead, he switched to a trump, hoping to prevent declarer from setting up his diamonds by ruffing in the dummy.

Macpherson won the trump return with the jack and, like a canny Scot, ruffed a low diamond with dummy's ace of trumps. He returned a trump to the king and drew the last missing trump with the queen. Then he could run the diamonds and still develop an overtrick in clubs, with his last trump to maintain control.

At the other table of the match, the Commons reached the same contract and got a low heart lead. Declarer steadily played low from dummy, but Lord Paget read the heart situation and played the eight from the East hand.

South ruffed and led a diamond to West's ace. West returned the jack of hearts to make declarer ruff again. Now South drew three rounds of trumps without ruffing a low diamond in the dummy.

When the diamonds failed to run South could win only eight tricks.

Problems Plague Military Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Technical problems are continuing to plague U.S. military aviation, with four major types of warplane grounded within six weeks.

The latest problem was disclosed Friday when the Air Force said it has pulled all 34 of its F15 fighter planes out of service as a precaution due to "contamination of oil used for lubricating a subsystem gear-drive assembly."

Examination of some of the F15s showed that oil mixed with fuel used to power the jet engines, the Air Force said. It said specialists from the Air Force and McDonnell Douglas Corp., builder of the $14.4-million planes, are seeking the cause and corrective action.

Since June 2, a total of 89 Navy F4 Phantoms, Navy F14 Tomcats and Air Force A7 fighter-bombers have been grounded for varying periods because of problems with the engines or control systems.

Those 'Lakes' In Parks Are There For A Purpose

By GEORGE MASSEY

Ask the question, "Where's the nearest lake?" and Midlanders will most likely come up with the answer, "Oh, about a 100 miles from here."

Believe it or not, that's wrong. The nearest lake is right here in the city limits. As a matter of fact they're two of them, one is Grafa Park and the other Wadley-Barron Park.

Both of the parks are "play" dry lake beds, and were designated as "ponding areas" for rainwater runoff back in the 1950s.

City officials have refused numerous suggestions to fill in the lake beds or keep water in them all the time.

Because, "to change the natural drainage pattern of rainwater runoff would make the city liable for any flooding damage sustained on private property as a result of the change," Fred Poe, assistant city manager, explained.

State statutes place the burden of flood liability on the city if the drainage is altered, Poe said.

"The parks don't fill with water very often, Poe said. "But a good rain of a half-inch or better causes a pretty substantial amount of water to pond in the parks."

"The ponding doesn't occur very often and the parks can be used more than 90 per cent of the year," Poe said.

A check with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal revealed an average of eight days each year when half-inch or better rainfalls occur here. The weather station reported that last year was better than average with a total of 14 days of better than half-inch rains.

On July 3, the day before Fourth of July celebrations, Midland was blessed with a 1.63 inch downpour, the weather station reported, that caused heavy ponding in both Grafa and Wadley Barron parks.

Poe says it takes one to two days to pump the greater portion of water out of the parks. At Wadley-Barron the city has installed permanent pumps and portable pumps are used at Grafa. Poe said Grafa can be cleared in about two days while the larger pumps at Wadley can do a pretty good job in about 24 hours.

The city administrative executive said it is "in violation" of city codes to "swim or boat" in the parks when they are flooded.

"The water is dirty," Poe said.

"It has insecticides, oil, fertilizer and just about everything imaginable in it. It's sure not going to do those kids any good to be in that water."

Southside Lions Hear Report On VAN Project

Visual Aids News-Mobile (VAN) is a project which "fits in with your overall program of sight conservation," Mrs. Mayme Martin told members of the Midland Southside Lions Club at their Friday noon meeting.

Mrs. Martin, founder and executive director of VAN, said that one home client has been set up to take a touch typing course from Hadley School for the Blind, and magnifying glasses and other items have been purchased for several persons with vision problems. She said VAN also has purchased such items as large raised telephone numerals, self-threading needles, pre-threaded needles, needle threaders and other items.

"These items have been given to those persons needing them," Mrs. Martin said.

She mentioned a number of specific projects and said that VAN presently is serving two nursing homes regularly, as well as several home clients. She said that additional volunteer help is needed so that a third nursing home may be served on a regular basis.

She displayed articles made by a number of clients with materials furnished by VAN, explaining that the articles are sold at the cost of materials plus whatever is paid the client for making the items. It is hoped, she said, that enough of the items eventually will be

City Manager Leaves Hospital To Be Outpatient

City Manager James Brown has been released from in-house care at M. D. Anderson Hospital at Houston following his recovery from major surgery last week.

Brown is scheduled to start chemotherapy at the hospital Monday as an outpatient. The city manager is staying with his family at a nearby motel and will remain in Houston for approximately three weeks while undergoing further treatment.

Fred Poe, assistant city manager, talked to Brown Friday. "He seemed to be in good spirits," Poe said, but noted that Brown had experienced what was termed a "letdown" earlier last week after learning the results of a biopsy test had returned "positive."

The positive biopsy evidently meant that Brown could not receive radiation treatments and would instead have to undergo chemotherapy, Poe said. "We had been very optimistic following the operation, and we are going to send flowers and continue to keep in touch."

Gasoline Tanks Blow In Oklahoma

GUYMON, Okla. (AP)—A deputy sheriff was hospitalized Saturday when three large gasoline tanks ignited and exploded at Optima Dam near this Oklahoma Panhandle town, the Highway Patrol reported.

Two 3,000-gallon gasoline tanks, each about three-fourths full, ignited as a pickup was being fueled shortly after midnight. The fire ignited the third tank, and all three were destroyed by explosions.

Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Texas County Deputy Sheriff Calvin Rhodes was flung into a ditch by the explosion, but all other persons had been cleared out of the area, the patrol said.

Rhodes sustained injuries to his left shoulder, left arm and lower back and scraped both knees. He was hospitalized at Guymon for observation.

Gunshot Wounds Midlander In Leg

Charles E. McLendon, 1305 E. Pennsylvania St., was in satisfactory condition in Midland Memorial Hospital Saturday after suffering a gunshot wound in the leg early Saturday on the 400 block of S. Mineola Street.

McLendon told police that he was walking north on the east side of the street shortly after having an argument with a woman who lived in the vicinity when he heard a shot, felt something hit his leg and then fell to the ground.

The shot came from the west side of the street, McLendon reported to police.

Police indicated that McLendon appeared to have been shot with a .22 caliber firearm.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Charlie Moore drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single and stole home to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox and All-Star pitcher Jim Kaat Saturday night.

The Brewers took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Sixto Lezcano drove in Hank Aaron with a sacrifice fly.

The Mets bounced back in the second with two runs. Rusty Staub singled and went to third on Dave Kingman's double.

After reliever Don Demola walked Williams, Baker followed with his 14th home run of the year over the left field fence.

Tigers Cop 2-0 Victory Over Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bill Freehan slammed his ninth homer and Lerrin LaGrow pitched a six-hitter, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 2-0 decision over the Kansas City Royals Saturday night.

LaGrow limited the Royals to just five singles as he improved his record to 6-3 with his second straight complete game.

The remainder of the umpiring crew, announced Saturday by the commissioner's office, will be Chris Pelekoudas of the National League at first base, Marty Springstead, American, second base; Bruce Froemming, National, third base; Russ Goetz, American, right field line, and John McSherry, National, left field line.

Expos, Braves Split Twin Bill At Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie Gary Carter smashed two home runs and drove in three runs, triggering the Montreal Expos to a 7-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves and a split of their twin-night doubleheader Saturday.

Dusty Baker capped a four-run fifth inning with a three-run homer, powering Atlanta to a 9-4 triumph in the first game.

Carter, who has hit six of his 10 homers off Atlanta pitching, drilled a two-run shot in the first inning of the nightcap off loser Jamie Easterly, 1-4, and added a solo blast in the sixth, helping the Expos end a five-game losing streak.

Pete Mackanin and Larry Parrish added run-scoring singles for the Expos, helping Woody Fryman improve his record to 7-6.

The Braves tied it 2-2 in their half of the first on consecutive solo homers by Darrell Evans and Williams and added three insurance runs in the sixth on RBI singles by Ralph Garr, Perez and Evans' sacrifice fly.

Montreal got a run in the seventh on Pepe Mangual's sacrifice fly and one in the eighth on Carter's RBI single.

Montreal took a 2-0 lead in the first inning off winner Carl Morton, 10-9, on a bases loaded play.

Arnie, Jack Drawing Attention

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Ask any golf buff the biggest names in the game, and he'll probably say Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer.

Those two have been playing the British Open for a decade and a half, and when the 1975 tournament ended its regulation play Saturday, they drew more cheers than the two youngsters in Sunday's playoff.

Palmer, 45 and winner of the Open back in 1961 and 1962, finished in 16th place in the final field of 63. But he got his cheers, as one of Arnie's Army said, just for being Palmer.

Marriage Makes Big Difference

NEW YORK (AP) — Evonne Goolagong, the graceful, honey-skinned teenager who came out of the Australian outback to win Wimbledon at the age of 19, is all grown up now.

Chris Evert, primarily because she lacks a killer instinct.

He was sitting there with this great big grin on his face and I just had to laugh.

Miss Goolagong is now Mrs. Cawley, 23, the new bride of British businessman Roger Cawley. It makes a difference.

"I wish I could be as aggressive as Billie Jean, but I can't. I'm just not made that way," she said at a recent luncheon here to promote a $75,000 women's tennis tournament, sponsored by Medi-Quik, beginning Aug. 17th at nearby Westchester Country Club.

"Then I went out and won one game in the second set," she added with a smile.

"It's like anyone who gets married," she said, looking relaxed and trim in a beige pants suit, gold earrings and a bright smile. "You want to go off on your own and sort things out for yourself. Roger doesn't want to manage me. He just wants to be a husband."

"Mr. Edwards at first didn't approve of the marriage," she said. "It didn't matter if it was Roger or anyone else, I had 14 happy and successful years with Mr. Edwards. No one else could have done what he's done for me, but... I feel I'm married and, well, it's a new situation."

Mrs. Cawley shrugs off defeat just as she minimizes victory. There are more important things—like the direction her career is taking these days. Although she is reluctant to talk about it, she has been pulling away from Edwards and making more of her own decisions these days.

Rozelle Rule Testimony Heads For Final Week

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A federal court trial on the National Football League's "Rozelle Rule" is in its final stages after a week of testimony suggesting removal of the rule would shake the very foundations of the sport.

And the man the rule is named after, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, forecast the wholesale failure of teams within five years.

The league contends that the whole structure has resulted in joint prosperity for both players and owners. Without the rules, the sport would crumble, according to league witnesses.

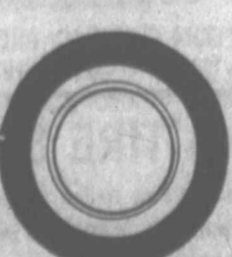

It would be "the beginning of the end" of the NFL as it now exists, said Jim Finks, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Bears.

The dire predictions came as the NFL rested its case Friday in defense of antitrust accusations by 15 past and present players. The players' suit contends the Rozelle Rule interferes with their right to sign with other teams once they have played out the option year beyond their contracts.

Testimony began in February and thus far totals about 10,000 pages of typed transcripts. There are hundreds of exhibits, ranging from minutes of NFL meetings to copies of player contracts.

Track Meet May Answer Questions Will Bayi Lap 1500 Meter Field?

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — This weekend's triangular track meet among the United States, West Germany, and Pan Africa should answer some intriguing questions for track fans.

Stanton Names Richardson As New Football Coach

STANTON — Bob Richardson, 43, assistant football and head track coach at Stanton High School, has been named head football coach to succeed Jim Young.

Also named to the Stanton staff was Bob Denison, who has been coaching at Floresville near San Antonio. He will assist in football and track. He is a graduate of Trinity University.

Will Filbert Bayi of Tanzania set a 1500 meter pace fast enough to lap anyone?

Is Duke University's Wallace Wade Stadium big enough to hold the javelin throws of West German world record holder Klaus Wolferman?

Can Oregon State's Joni Huntley defeat the reigning Olympic champion Ulrike Meyfarth, in the women's high jump?

Can Ethiopia's Miruts Yifter count the laps properly in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters?

Bayi Is Glamour Will American stalwarts like Marty Liquori, Dwight Stones, Jim Bolden, John Powell and Steve Williams be able to watch the meet on television?

Bayi, new world record holder in the mile, is the meet's most glamorous entrant. His competition will come from Kenya's Wilson Waigwa, Americans Len Hilton and Ken Popejoy, and West German Thomas Wessinghage.

Aaron Heads For Corral

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Henry Aaron, 41 years old and a bit paunchy, is no longer the graceful outfielder or the fleet baserunner.

out No. 44 and raise their hopes of seeing a home run. Most early season fans were disappointed.

His home runs are only occasional now, and they're usually more like long pop flies than the screaming line drives that for two decades seemed to still be rising when they cleared the outfield walls.

Incongruously, the home run king seemed badly fooled by these new American League pitchers, some of whom had not been born when he hit his first homer in 1954.

But he is still the most valuable 238 hitter in baseball. His head is not really hoary or wizened, and he tries to avoid the platitudes of a Tibetan monk.

"It's been a nightmare," Aaron said at one point when he was trying desperately to raise his batting average above .150.

When the Hammer strolls out of the Milwaukee Brewer dugout before each game, it's like the old guru of the mountain coming out of his cave to impart wisdom to the masses. And the young Brewers listen.

There's no doubt his presence has helped transform the Brewers from a perennial fifth-place finisher to a bona fide, or at least dark horse, contender. They are still considered too young and too weak on the mound for a pennant but they keep winning as Aaron's base hits, home runs and runs-batted-in become more timely.

The top male performers on the West German team are weight men. Klaus Wolferman holds the world record at 309.8 in the javelin and Walter Schmidt has thrown more than 250 feet in the hammer. Both figure to score easy victories.

The Brewer front office, with attendance running nearly 50 per cent above the record turnstile pace of 1973, gives most of the credit to Aaron. People come to the games to see Henry and to see the Brewers win, and with Henry in the lineup the Brewers are winning.

The field events will also be among the highlights in the women's competition. Miss Huntley will have her crack at the Olympic champion, and Kathy McMillan, a rising senior at nearby Hoke County High School, will carry the American colors in the long jump. She recently leaped 21-7, less than an inch off the American record.

In fact, the entire city flipped with a giant Brewer-promoted "Welcome Back" campaign at the start of the season. Milwaukee, which the Brookings Institute says is too small to support a major league team, drew 50,000 opening day, has had several crowds in excess of 30,000 and is on the way to an attendance of 1.5 million.

Yifter provided much of the drama in the 1971 U.S.-Pan Africa meet here. He took a big lead in the 5,000, then stopped with a lap to go, thinking the race was over. The next day, he entered the 10,000 and nipped America's Frank Shorter by inches after a stretch duel that brought the crowd screaming to its feet. Both are entered in the 10,000 again.

And Aaron seems glad to be back in Milwaukee after his 1974 troubles in Atlanta. He squabbled with the Braves over money, over not being offered the manager's job and over attempts to kick him upstairs and off the field at the end of the year.

The young, inexperienced American team will be making its domestic debut after a loss to the Russians in Kiev and narrow wins over Poland and Czechoslovakia in Prague.

He moved to a fashionable Milwaukee North Shore home, his wife Billye latched onto her own local television talk show and he began relaxing in the beer-and-bratwurst atmosphere that has not changed that much since he was a rookie in the 1950s.

The team does not have Bolding, Stones, Powell, Liquori and several other reigning national champions. They are in Europe, staying off the team in their annual dispute with the Amateur Athletic Union.

"There are no more plateaus whatever," Aaron says. "I think in terms of trying to swing the bat and help the ball club."

Suspension Reversal Is Upheld

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education voted 7-6 Friday to uphold a decision by its chief executive officer overturning a McKinney school board of a student suspension for alleged possession of marijuana.

The board also affirmed three other decisions in school personnel appeals to Education Commissioner M. L. Brockette. The other appeals were from El Paso, Wharton and Grape-land.

James Ray Jones was suspended from the McKinney high school after the principal said he caught Jones with marijuana that had just been passed to him by another student in a hallway.

The suspension was for the remainder of the trimester, which had only four days to run. But Jones was denied credit for courses taken that trimester, which he needs to graduate.

A member of the state board, D. Joseph Gathe, said: "It is too severe a penalty for the incident. All of us know marijuana is in the schools."

But Joe Butler, board chairman, said: "Discipline is a hard and rugged situation. I think local boards are carrying a pretty great load."

After the narrow defeat for the local board, its lawyer said the board had made two trips to Austin in the case because its members felt so strongly about it. But he declined to speculate on whether the board would appeal to state district court.

Losing attorneys in two other cases said there was no question but that they would appeal.

David Lopez of Houston said his client, Joseph Losack, a Wharton driver education teacher, had his contract reduced to a probationary status without the notice required by law and without a hearing at the local level at which he could cross-examine witnesses against him.

The Wharton board took its action "because of an inability on his part attitude-wise to get along cooperatively and professionally with students and teachers," Brockette said.

"We're going to win," Losack's lawyer said, "and then the board's going to get mad and complain about the courts telling them what to do."

H. D. Wallace, Grape-land elementary school principal, was fired after 39 years of administrative and teaching experience in what his lawyer called a personality conflict with a young superintendent.

Wallace allegedly tried to get the school district investigated by the University Interscholastic League for reported violations in expenditures for athletic awards.

"That's next to murder" in a community of 1,200 persons, Wallace's lawyer said. The school won the Class A football championship last year.

The lawyer said the case will be appealed to state district court.

In the fourth case, special education teacher Kendrick Cunby, was dismissed for alleged fondling of El Paso elementary school girls after he had been warned to stop.

Quinby denied any wrongdoing. He said in his appeal that he is "a touching person" and that he patting some students on "the bottom" in the manner of an affectionate father.

His lawyer indicted there would be no appeal because he probably could not show the local school board abused its discretion.

Wallace Feeling 'Pretty Good' Now

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace has made his first public appearance since breaking the shin bone on his paralyzed left leg.

The governor told newsmen Friday the injury "hasn't given me any second thoughts about political life at all." He made it clear he still intends to seek the Democratic presidential nomination, although a formal announcement is still pending.

Wallace said he feels "pretty good" now. The governor, whose legs were paralyzed by a would-be assassin's bullets, said he apparently suffered the fracture a few days before it was discovered July 2.

He said he will continue to wear a hip-high cast for a few more weeks.

Permian Basin OIL & GAS LOG

Thompson Finishes Crockett Discovery

J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas has completed No. 6-A J. R. Bailey Estate as an Ellenburger gas strike in Northeast Crockett County, and proposed field designation of Ozona, Northeast (Ellenburger).

The well gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 2.03 million cubic feet of gas per day, from pay zone behind perforations at 8,867-8,891 feet. Information as to hydrocarbon liquids and treatment was not available.

The well was staked as a 1 1/2-mile southwest outpost to the Crockett County part of the Ozona, Northeast (7,530 Canyon) field, and was drilled "tight" to 9,000 feet.

Location is 14 miles northeast of Ozona, 1,330 feet from north and west lines of section 5, block GH, GC&SF survey.

The nearest Ellenburger gas production is 10 miles to the southeast in the Buckhorn field.

Midland Operator Sets Coke Wildcat

A 4,000-foot wildcat will be drilled in East Sutton County by NRM Petroleum Corp. of Midland.

The project, No. 1 Valliant, is 25 miles east of Sonora, 1,900 feet from south and 600 feet from east lines of section 21, block A, GWT&P survey.

Drill site is 1/2 mile north of the depleted opener of the one-well Gibbs, South (Palo Pinto) gas field and one-mile southwest of a 4,258-foot failure.

North Crockett Gains Wildcat Try

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland announced plans to attempt the reopening of the M.P.L. (Ellenburger) gas field of North Crockett County.

The attempt will be made at No. 1-7 ARCO, an 8,300-foot wildcat 1/2 mile northwest of the depleted pool. It is surrounded shallow production.

The drill site is 1,000 feet from south and 2,300 feet from west lines of section 7, block A, BS&F survey and 11 miles southwest of Big Lake.

Location is 1 1/2 miles southwest of the Ellenburger reopener of the World field.

NRM Will Drill Coke Exploration

NRM Petroleum Corp. of Midland announced site for a 6,500-foot wildcat exploration 6 1/2 miles south of Robert Lee in South Coke County.

It is No. 1 Weaver Ranch, 1/2 mile northwest of the depleted Weaver Ranch (Strawn) field, 1,900 feet from north and 800 feet from east lines of section 12, GWT&P survey.

The field has been depleted since 1963.

Major Challenges FEA Disallowance On Transfer Costs

LOS ANGELES—Atlantic Richfield Co. Saturday challenged the accuracy of the Federal Energy Administration's notice of proposed disallowance relating to foreign crude transfer costs, and declared its pricing policies during the period under review conformed fully with FEA rules.

The company is preparing a response to the notice that will be filed on or about July 21.

A company spokesman pointed out that the amount of the FEA's proposed disallowance is about 2 per cent of Atlantic Richfield's total raw material costs during the period in question.

"The FEA notice is not an accusation of wrongdoing or violation of the law," said the spokesman. "In effect, the agency and the subject companies disagree on the market prices of foreign crude oil under a variety of circumstances during the complex Arab oil embargo period.

The FEA notice asks to disallow these differences as they apply to sales of crude by the companies' foreign affiliates to their domestic refining operations."

Atlantic Richfield, he said, applied the rules for such transactions as then specified by the FEA. It was not until later that the agency redefined its rules and interpretations.

Applying for rules retroactively, the FEA now asserts that Atlantic Richfield must absorb the difference in its price structure. Atlantic Richfield already has informed the FEA that it disagrees with the agency's figures.

PREPARING FOR DELIVERY — A welder joins two segments of steel rings for a 250-foot diameter crude oil storage tank being constructed at the Valdez terminal of the trans-Alaska pipeline. The tank, which will be 62 feet high, will have a capacity of 510,000 barrels of oil. Eighteen tanks are being constructed to take the initial pipeline deliveries.

Maintenance Costs Hit $1 Billion In '74

DALLAS—Cost to maintain production of oil and gas wells in the United States hit $1 billion last year, according to J. E. Kastrop, publication manager for Petroleum Engineer Publishing Co.

He told the recent 19th annual convention of the Association of Oilwell Servicing Contractors meeting in Hawaii that the decline in number of producing oil wells dating back to 1961 will halt this fall and next year will swing over the 500,000 mark.

At the beginning of this year, the U. S. counted 497,000 oil and almost 125,000 gas producers. In 1961, producing oil wells totaled almost 600,000.

"Oil and gas wells must be doctored in two ways," he said. "A workover will improve producing characteristics and downhole mechanical problems are solved by equipment repair."

Studies indicate 12 to 14 per cent of all producing wells, approximately 75,000, must be worked over annually. The industry spent $800 million for such workovers last year.

Kastrop said there were half a million downhole mechanical failures in the nation's oil producing wells in 1974. The study indicated every oil well requires some type of repair every year.

The total cost to industry for downhole mechanical failures amounted to about $475 million in 1974 and will increase this year 10 to 12 per cent, Kastrop said.

Production of crude and natural gas liquids is expected to decline further this year to slightly more than 10 million barrels per day, while demand is expected to reach 16.8 million barrels.

By assuming only a 3 1/2 per cent per year growth rate in energy demand, the AOSC speaker predicted by 1985 the U.S. would be importing almost half its total requirements of more than 24 million barrels of oil per day.

Injunction Issued Against Oil Companies

DALLAS (AP) — U. S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor Jr. has issued a permanent injunction against a group of oil and gas companies prohibiting the firms from misrepresenting their assets.

The action against the group was initiated by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The group includes Olympic, Tipco Management Corp., Sawwood Petroleum Corp., Alliance Energy Corp., and eight individuals associated with the firms.

The injunction ordered by Taylor Friday prohibits the companies from misleading potential investors regarding the monthly income they can expect from purchase of the securities. The risk involved in the securities and the amount of oil and gas produced by the companies.

Joe Feagan, PGP president, also announced the completion of its Ozona Gathering System which will transfer gas from the Hunt-Baggett (Strawn) field of Crockett County.

PGP is a subsidiary of Perry Gas Companies, Inc., with headquarters at Odessa.

Drilling Work Increases But Reserves Down

By MAX B. SKELTON HOUSTON (AP) — Offshore drilling activity around the world increased last year but proved reserves and production of oil and gas declined.

Offshore Magazine attributes the production decline to unstable economic conditions, political influences, and delays in the start of output that had been expected to come on stream.

The decline in offshore crude oil reserves was traced to downward revisions in estimates for the Persian Gulf, Venezuela's Lake Maracaibo, and offshore Louisiana. Similar revisions for the Persian Gulf, Texas, the Gulf of Suez-Red Sea area, and Louisiana caused the drop in natural gas reserves.

The new estimates for offshore reserves and output were published in the magazine's annual worldwide drilling and production edition.

Offshore crude oil reserves at the end of 1974 were estimated at 155.74 billion barrels, some 5.78 billion below the year earlier level.

Natural gas reserves of 483.43 trillion cubic feet represented a decline of 7.97 trillion.

Offshore crude production last year averaged 9.5 million barrels a day, compared with 10.4 million a year earlier. Natural gas production averaged 17 billion cubic feet a day, compared with 17.3 billion in 1973.

The publication emphasizes the estimates should not be considered as definitive nor exact but as a means of determining relationships of the world's offshore crude oil and natural gas supplies.

The Persian Gulf continued its dominating position for both crude and gas reserves. The 68 billion barrel estimate for crude, however, was 17.2 billion below the year earlier estimate. The 243 trillion cubic foot estimate for gas compared with 247 trillion a year earlier.

Lake Maracaibo's crude reserves were placed at 27.2 billion barrels, down from 33.5 billion. Offshore Louisiana had a 3.8 billion estimate, down from 5.4 billion.

Sharp increases in the North Sea and on the West Coast of Africa minimized the decline in worldwide crude reserves. Africa's west coast area jumped its reserves to 16.4 billion barrels, compared with 6.2 billion a year earlier. The North Sea's estimate of 18.9 billion compared with 14 billion a year earlier.

Offshore Louisiana's gas reserves declined from 36.2 to 35.2 trillion, while the Texas offshore estimate was dropped from 3.2 to 2.1 trillion. The estimate for the Gulf of Suez-Red Sea area dropped from 1 trillion to 750 billion.

Saudi Arabia now is seriously challenging Venezuela as the world leader for offshore crude oil production.

Venezuela's oil output at Lake Maracaibo last year averaged 2.07 million barrels a day, a decline of 627,000 barrels or 23 per cent. Saudi Arabia meanwhile was boosting its output to 2.02 million with an increase of only 34,000 or 2 per cent.

Despite a decline of 269,000 barrels a day or 16 per cent, the United States held the No. 3 spot in offshore production with 1.4 million barrels a day. Nigeria followed in fourth place with 648,000 barrels a day, up 130,000 or 25 per cent from 1973.

The United States continued its dominant position in offshore natural gas production at 6.5 billion cubic feet a day despite a decline of 626 million cubic feet.

The United Kingdom, with production in the southern part of the North Sea, moved ahead of Iran for the No. 2 position in natural gas output.

United Kingdom gas production averaged 3.6 billion cubic feet a day, compared with 3 billion a year earlier. Iran's output meanwhile was declining 175 million a day to a daily average of 3.1 billion cubic feet.

Clayton Williamson

Williamson Named Safari President

ABILENE—Clayton "Buddy" Williamson, formerly with D&B Drilling Corp. in Abilene, has joined Safari Exploration, also of Abilene, as president and co-owner.

Also joining Safari as drilling superintendent is Bill Sheppard of Abilene.

Formed 15 months ago, Safari operates four rotary drilling rigs.

Williamson has been associated with the oil industry since 1948, and Sheppard has been in the oil business 30 years.

Drilling Operations Hold Steady Pace

New Mexico counties, with Eddy boasting 27 active rotary rigs, were at the top of the list Friday in Permian Basin rotary rig activity.

The count for the Southeast New Mexico-West Texas area was 254, identical to the tally a week earlier and two more than the 252 reported on the comparable 1974 week.

Lea County was only one behind Eddy Friday with 26.

Pecos County was the most active West Texas county with 22, while 14 were drilling in Ward and 12 rigs were making hole in Scurry and Andrews counties.

Sutton County showed 10 active rotaries.

Moore Promoted By IMCO Services

IMCO Services, a division of Halliburton Co., has named Olan Moore of Midland manager of mud logging and domestic operations.

In his new post, Moore will be in charge of all logging units in IMCO's domestic operations and will be headquartered in Midland.

He has been employed by IMCO since 1970 and was promoted to his new post from area Drilpak coordinator, West Area.

Checks In Midland Can Be Just As Hot As Weather

By STEPHANIE WARD

The weather isn't the only thing that's hot in Midland — so are the checks.

According to many Midland store managers, an upsurge in hot check writing has prompted numerous retailers to require stringent identification measures on customers wishing to cash checks or pay for goods with checks.

The majority of managers questioned said customers using payment by check are advised to be sure that the check is good, be armed with a valid Texas driver's license (or a license with a picture), and a major credit card, with the same name and address on the check, license and credit card.

These are the major requirements in most Midland stores. However, some stores require more or less identification while some managers are more lenient or stricter than others.

In Dunlap's, for instance, any valid driver's license or social security card will suffice. Tony Haskins, manager, is very cautious about out-of-town checks but said, "Occasionally, we do take the check."

He stressed that usually two-party checks are not taken but there could be exceptions in cases where the customer is well known or, for example, a past Midland resident and Dunlap's charge card owner.

The manager of Grammer-Murphy said that company policy necessitates the customer have a Grammer-Murphy charge card along with any state driver's license. No out-of-town checks are accepted unless the customer is known. Cashing two-party checks is taboo.

"A great deal of common sense is injected by any store manager when deciding whether to accept a check or reject it," Raymond Martin, J. C. Penney's manager, said.

"We are rather flexible and require any driver's license and credit card for someone we don't know. If we know the customer well, we usually don't ask for anything but the check," he said.

Penney's does not take out-of-town checks and no two-party checks unless the customer has a charge account.

A stricter company policy requires the downtown Woolworth store to reject all two-party checks and all out-of-town checks unless the customer lives near Midland; say Odessa or Big Spring, for example. On Midland checks after driver's license information is recorded, the check then has to pass manager approval.

Levine's Department Store in the Dellwood Plaza does not accept any out-of-state checks and requires one other form of identification besides driver's license with the Midland address matching that of the check.

Two-party checks are okay only if the customer is known.

Ray Boulter, manager of Gibson's Discount Center, said that because of a new system of computers, they must ask for a Texas driver's license using the picture for verification. The franchise policy states that only out-of-town checks near Midland are accepted with no two-party checks okayed.

Like Gibson's, Skaggs Albertsons looks for the pictured driver's license and, should further ID be needed, they then ask for a major credit card. Out-of-town checks are accepted for amount of purchase only with the proper identification.

Large and small grocery stores are frequented many times with requests of cashing checks without purchase.

Because of this, these stores are a great deal stricter due to the many hot checks they receive each day.

Hart's Drive-In Grocery records the car license number if the customer's driver's license is not available. "The main thing we go on is knowing the customer—it's safer that way," a store employee said. They accept no out-of-town checks unless the person is known.

"We've got a stack of hot checks totaling around $4,000," Roy Scott, supervisor of 7-Eleven stores in Midland, said. "We have got to crackdown on this occurrence and the best way to do this is to require a valid Texas driver's license and a major credit card, all with the same name." The amounts allowed to be cashed differ from store to store.

The manager of the Illinois Street M-System Food Store said he has to approve any check that exceeds $10 over the purchase. They also ask for a Texas driver's license and will accept no other ID. He is "fairly lenient" on out-of-state checks but will cash no two-party checks unless the customer is known.

These rules have been set up within the past year because the store cannot press charges against the owner of the check if a driver's license number was not recorded at the time the check was cashed. This is the case in most charges pressed against insufficient funds checks.

Odessa store managers follow closely to the rules and identification measures that Midland retailers follow.

Bill Ewing, Beall's Department store manager, said a complete description taken from the license is "just a necessary thing. Because we cash so many checks, we follow closely to the Texas Penal Code requiring a Texas driver's license," he said.

A new customer policy has just been instituted at K-Mart Discount Store on 42nd St. The new policy avails the steady K-Mart shopper with a customer card or a courtesy card that can be shown instead of any other identification. In lieu of the customer card, the customer must display a Texas driver's license and a major credit card.

Woolco Department Store in Winwood Mall will accept any driver's license and many times, some other ID. This is a nationwide policy with all Woolco Stores, the manager said.

All store managers contacted are in hopes that this crackdown on cashing checks and payment by checks will lower the number of hot checks that they receive daily. As one sign in a Midland store reads: "When they're hot, they're hot!" (and so are the managers.)

Vietnamese refugee and Big Spring newcomer Chau Thi Truong smiles as she holds her 17-month-old son Chau Quoc An Binh after arriving at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Refugees Finding A Home In Big Spring

By BO BASKIN

"I just want to get a job and start a new life."

That is the approach Vietnamese refugee Chau Thi Truong, 28, is taking to the days ahead in her new West Texas home. Truong is one of about 75 Vietnamese attempting to start life anew in Big Spring.

The first Vietnamese refugee arrived in Big Spring May 1. Others followed in June. Thursday Truong and eight members of her family arrived in Big Spring to set up residence.

For the town's most recent arrivals, Big Spring is a long-awaited and most appreciated destination. According to Truong's brother Chau Van Ut, 25, the family left Vietnam by ship over 10 weeks ago on April 29. Since then, they have spent 25 days on the sea.

"Our ship first arrived in Singapore," Ut said, "but the Singapore government would not let us on the land. They provided us with food, but we had to stay on the ship off shore for seven days."

Ultimately, the Chau family landed at Henderson Air Force Base on the island of Guam. After leaving Guam, they journeyed to Florida, where they spent some time at Eglin Air Force Base before finally coming to West Texas.

"Being here gives me and my family great happiness," Ut said.

Ut is the only member of the Chau family who had ever been to the United States prior to their recent arrival. A 2nd lieutenant in the now defunct South Vietnamese Air Force, Ut learned to fly at Shepard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls and attended flight instructor school at Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring.

While at Shepard, Ut met Lt. Col. Stanley Hanson, who Ut says later became "like a father to me" while the two were at Webb. Hanson is a member of Webb's 3389th Flying Training School, which is sponsoring the Chau family in Big Spring.

"We are providing housing and food, and we are helping find employment for members of the family," Hanson says. "We are generally taking the responsibility for the welfare of these people until they can become self sufficient."

Indeed, the members of the 3389th appear to be doing just that. While four members of the 3389th and their wives picked up the Chau family at Midland Regional Air Terminal Thursday, other members were busy collecting bedding, toys and dishes for the Chaus as well as preparing their dinner and cleaning up the house which the squadron had selected for them.

By Saturday, the squadron had found jobs for both Ut and his 17-year-old nephew Mai Van Ba.

Although the families of 10 current and former squadron members are sponsoring a total of 12 Vietnamese people, the 3389th is not the only group helping the town's 75 refugees. Hanson says that many different Big Spring families are sponsor-

Sticky Postal Problem Posed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service will have to make drastic cuts in service unless it gets higher postal rates soon, its chief financial officer says.

Without new revenue, the Postal Service faces a financial crisis within a few months. Ralph W. Nicholson, senior assistant postmaster general for finance, said in an interview.

"There is a chronic disparity between our revenues and our expenses. It's a problem that must be resolved either by new revenue or by very sharply reduced expenditures, which would mean curtailment of service," Nicholson said.

He said the Postal Service has not decided what service cuts would be needed and he insisted reduced service is not the answer. What is needed is new revenue in the form of higher postal rates, he said.

"We do not think the nation wants us to make the kind of drastic reduction in service that would be needed to bring expenses down to the level of revenue. The solution is to put revenue up," Nicholson said.

So far there have been no service cuts, he said.

Nicholson continued the Postal Service's attack on the Independent Postal Rate Commission, saying: "We can't continue with the present rate-making structure."

The Postal Service asked the commission in September 1973 to make present postal rates permanent. The commission is still studying the request and postal rates are frozen until it decides.

The Postal Service has announced it will raise the price of a 10-cent stamp to 13 cents if it can get the authority. While rates have remained stable, inflation and recession have played havoc with the Postal Service's finances, Nicholson said.

Labor costs, swelled by cost-of-living increases, exceeded predictions by $440 million in the fiscal year that ended June 30, and the cost of fuel was $130 million more than budgeted, he said.

THE MONEY TREE

In my experience, money and elbow grease spent wisely on landscaping will pay off handsomely in adding value to your property — in dollars — not just in impression. Some go as far as to say that a mature tree in the right place is worth a thousand dollars.

Landscaping gives a house personality. It is exterior decoration. Landscaping and the house facade greet the visitor and give that important first impression of the owner as well as the home. It can work both ways, too. A plain house can be made attractive with the right landscaping. A beautiful house can become ugly with the wrong landscaping. In fact, a prospective buyer will have a pretty good opinion of what the inside of the house will look like by the time he has finished perusing the appearance of the exterior decoration.

Aside from increasing value, good landscaping pays dividends in other ways. It adds pleasure to your family's life. And it's not all that difficult to achieve and maintain.

Air Transportation Association Formed

AUSTIN — A new statewide association dedicated to the continued development of Texas' intrastate air transportation system and aeronautical facilities was announced here recently.

Vernon Smith, association chairman, said the Texas Good Air Service Association has been formed to obtain for Texans "the best intrastate air transportation and aeronautical facilities possible."

Joining Smith, a Waco attorney and civic leader, in making the announcement were association vice chairman Robert Layton Jr., mayor pro tem of Tyler, and William W. Harris, executive director of the new group.

Smith said that the development of air transportation in Texas was reaching a crisis point that threatens continued progress. He said that one element was being ignored in all the deliberations over air service and this was "the people."

"In all the controversy, the people are being left out. The people are being hurt. The people are being denied the services and facilities they need and deserve."

He said that the crisis was not only in scheduled air service, but aviation facilities as well. He pointed out that there are more than 10,000 aircraft in Texas and that general aviation plays a more important role in communities away from major cities and airports than the general public realizes.

The association, which has a 22-member board of directors, is headquartered at 506 Stemmons Tower North, Dallas.

Washington Discourages Sale Of Lamps

DALLAS — Natural gas companies are being urged by the Federal Energy Administration to voluntarily stop promotion of the energy-wasting gas lamps used to decorate lawns across the nation.

"A decorative gas lamp burns 18,000 cubic feet of natural gas a year, or as much energy as is needed to provide an average family with hot water for six months," notes Delbert M. Fowler of Dallas, FEA regional administrator.

Fowler said generating and delivering electricity for a 60-watt electric bulb for 24 hours requires less than 17,000 BTU's of fuel energy. The equivalent light uses three times that much.

Two other factors pointed out by Fowler are that the electric light can easily be switched off when not needed, while most gas lamps burn 24 hours per day. Thus, if a light is used five hours an evening, the net energy saving is almost 14 to 1 in favor of the bulb.

Replacing gas lamps with electric bulbs could save an estimated 33,000 barrels of oil daily, enough to heat 600,000 homes for a year.

"This doesn't seem like a tremendous amount of saving, but with the shortage of natural gas every little bit of saving is important," Fowler said.

It is estimated there are four million decorative gas lamps in the United States.

Bullock Says Sales Tax Reports Due

AUSTIN — Comptroller Bob Bullock reminded 225,000 retail businesses Saturday that July 31 is the deadline for sending in quarterly sales tax reports.

"Late reports are nothing but headaches for the taxpayer and for the comptroller's office," Bullock said. "I'd like to see every quarterly report filed on the deadline."

Reports due July 31 cover the April-May-June quarter. Forms for the reports were sent to all sales tax permit holders by Bullock's office in June.

"Most of the delinquent or tardy reports are just oversights and simple mistakes but the consequences under the law are just the same," Bullock said.

HERE'S WHAT MRS. SMYLIE SAYS ABOUT PAT WALKER'S:

Dieting had been a way of life with me before joining Pat Walker's. I would go on a diet and lose five or ten pounds then turn around and put them back on. One day I decided it was time to do something about it. I had heard about Pat Walker's so after trying their courtesy treatment I knew it was for me. Since that time, I have lost weight, inches and have felt better than I have in years. I have recommended this program to many of my friends and they have also benefited. Shopping for clothes is now a lot more fun, since I've gone from a 14 to a 10.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight imported re-embroidered Alencon lace intricately jewelled with tiny seed pearls and crystal beads applied on fine pure silk organza. The molded high rise bodice veiled with the jewelled lace was fashioned with a wide oval neckline and long, full trumpet sleeves of the lace and tiered organza. The slim skirt of back gathered fullness, accented at the hemline with a deep banding of the jewelled lace, swept to a cathedral-length train entirely edged with the jewelled Alencon lace.

Her wedding veil, a mantilla of the matching lace mounted on a shaped calot, gently framed her face and fell in soft folds extending beyond the length of her train. She carried a cascade bouquet of camellias and lilies-of-the-valley.

A reception followed the ceremony in Midland Country Club.

The bride is a graduate of Texas Christian University with a degree in elementary education. She was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

The bridegroom attends TCU and plays varsity football. After a wedding trip to Carmel and San Francisco, Calif., and a cruise to Alaska, the couple will live in Fort Worth.

Can You Think Of Anything You Really Want To Do?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

If you've suddenly lost your enthusiasm for hobbies — bowling, bridge, whatever — and have lost interest in your job or the neighborhood kaffeeklatsch, you may be into a depression. Recognize it and you may nip it in the bud, but you may be one of about 90 per cent of Americans who continue to go untreated for it in an era when treatment is relatively simple.

So says Dr. Nathan S. Kline, noted for his work in the field of mental health. At the recent Degenhausen Conference he attended in Bermuda, Dr. W. Lindford Rees, the newly elected president of the Royal College of Psychiatrists, and his two British colleagues estimated that in Great Britain only about 10 per cent or fewer of depressed people seek medical treatment. Dr. Kline is inclined to think the same percentage applies to Americans.

"The absence of joy and pleasure — anhedonia — is one of the most unrecognizable symptoms of depression. It includes a loss of interest in friends and family. Feelings of love and affection disappear. Very often the change is on a biological basis," he explained. Such feelings can result in a great loss in human productivity and can be a loss economically, he insists. Depressed people often cannot face up to going to work on Mondays and by Thursday they have had it for the week, he says. Real depression should not be confused with existential depression — things that happen by reason of our existence. Everyone from time to time experiences things that depress him or her.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

Hair Issue Revisited

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a teen-age boy, much to the dismay of his mother, had long hair and tried to justify it by saying that Jesus had long hair. His mother then said, "So you want to be like Jesus? O.K. Jesus didn't have a car—he had to walk everywhere. So just hand over the car keys!"

And you, Dear Abby, said: "That Jesus story doesn't hold up very well because nowhere in the Bible does it state that Jesus had long hair. In fact there are Biblical injunctions against long hair. (New Testament, I Corinthians, Chapter II, Verse 14.)"

Well, Dear Abby, you are mistaken: Jesus DID have long hair because Jesus was a Nazarene, and the laws for the Nazarenes are given in Numbers, Chapter 6: "All the days of the vow of separation there shall be no razor come upon his head, until the days be fulfilled, in which he separated himself unto the Lord, he shall be holy, and shall the locks of the hair of his head grow."

D.H.J.: RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR RALEIGH: Before I throw in the towel and the razor, let's hear from a Bible college student in Los Angeles:

DEAR ABBY: I am 26 years old, married for seven years, and have worked every day since I was 17. My husband has wandered from job to job and has had periods of unemployment up to nine months. On one occasion I have even had to work two jobs. Fortunately, I was smart enough not to have any children. My husband is presently unemployed (always, conveniently, in warm weather) and spends most of his time riding around on his $4,000 motorcycle. Nothing irks me more than to come home from working all day and have to clean, cook, do laundry, etc. In seven years of marriage, I have never come home to a meal on the table. My arm was in a sling for a week, and I had to wash dishes one-handed. On the day I came home from the hospital after surgery, I spent the afternoon cleaning because I couldn't stand the mess. If I ask for help, he says I am "nagging" and that "no other guy helps his wife with the housework; that is strictly a woman's job."

I think marriage should be 50-50. If, after men left their mothers' bosoms, they made marriage a 50-50 deal, the divorce rate in this country wouldn't be so high.

FED-UP BUT STILL PLUGGING

DEAR FED: You don't tell me what your problem is, but you have given ME one. What are you still "plugging" for? I must have missed something.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The bride-elect is a student at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, and will enter Mary Meek School of Nursing in the fall.

Her fiancé attended Ouachita Baptist University at Arkadelphia, Ark., and presently is a ministerial student attending H-SU.

Escorted to the altar and presented in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de sa-

Hemingway Papers Stationary Feast

EDITOR'S NOTE — Before he settled on "A Farewell to Arms," Hemingway toyed with a dozen other titles for the famous novel. One tongue-in-cheek idea, found among his papers: "I Have Committed Fornication, But That Was In Another Country And Besides The Wench Is Dead."

By SHELLY COHEN
WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — It's not the Ernest Hemingway legend that comes through in his papers, not the womanizer or the hunter, but the skilled craftsman, the friend and devoted husband.

The Hemingway papers are now part of the collection of the John F. Kennedy Library, a gift of his widow, Mary Hemingway. And what they tell about Hemingway the man may prove as fascinating as what they show of Hemingway the writer.

One marginal note on what was to be the final chapter of "A Moveable Feast" advises his publishers not to use the material until after his death and "maybe not then" and definitely not while his first wife, Hadley, is still living.

The intensely personal recollection of life in Paris during the '20s was published posthumously in 1964. The pages he wanted kept from the world were boiled down to a few paragraphs in the published work, just a passing reference to the "other woman" in his life during his marriage to Hadley.

But in the pages never before published he confesses, "Everything is split inside of you and you love two people now instead of one." The "other woman" (never identified in his papers) made only one mistake, Hemingway said. "She underestimated the power of remorse." And that remorse plagued him until Hadley remarried a man Hemingway judged more worthy than himself.

The Hemingway collection, given to the Kennedy Library

Jo August, curator of the collection in the Federal Records Center until a permanent home is built, contains 15,000 pages of manuscripts from Hemingway's published novels and short story collections and 3,000 photographs.

The most recent section of the papers opened to researchers is a collection of 12 letters from F. Scott Fitzgerald to Hemingway.

Mrs. Hemingway chose the Kennedy Library because "there was a great mutual respect" between Hemingway and the youthful president, said Jo August, curator of the collection.

Sometimes this summer another 2,000 pages of manuscripts from his short stories, newspaper and magazine articles will be available to researchers. Boxes of correspondence from Hemingway's father, mother, wives and literary friends are still being catalogued.

But what is available even now is a feast for scholars and Hemingway fans. Locked away in vaults at the Federal Records Center are the original, yellowed pages, the smeared penciled notes, some on hotel stationery, that were often the first drafts of chapters or story fragments.

One small scrap from the author's private, unpublished papers, written sometime before 1929, lists more than a dozen possible titles for what was later called "A Farewell to Arms."

The wartime love story might have been called "Patriots Progress," "The Grand Tour," "Love in War," "Education of the Flesh," "The Carnal Education," "In Praise of His Mistress" or "I Have Committed Fornication. But That Was In Another Country And Besides The Wench Is Dead."

HEADLINING MUSICAL — Former Miss America Mary Ann Mobley and her husband, television and stage actor Gary Collins, are headliners in the fifth musical production of the current summer season at Fort Worth's Casa Manana. The musical, "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever," will open Monday night, continuing through July 26. Tickets for Monday through Saturday performances each week have gone on sale at the Casa box office, 817-332-6221.

Stanton Hosts 700 For Settlers Day

STANTON — The 42nd annual Old Settlers Day Reunion featured a parade, barbecue, sidewalk sale and an open house at Stanton View Manor Nursing Home "luring well over 700," Bob Sale, president of the reunion, said.

Headquartered in the building just north of the U.S. Post Office in downtown Stanton, the parade kicked off the celebration. Prize-winning floats were first place — the Stanton View Manor Nursing Home; second, the Stanton Historical Society; and third, the Stanton Music Club.

A guessing game was one event with the prize going to the person that could guess the identity of a masked rider. "This is the second year in all the 42 that no one has guessed the masked rider," Sale said. She was Mrs. Brenda Howard.

Winners of the Best Dressed Western Attire of the Old Timers were Mr. John Pates, Mrs. Walter Kelly, Kyle Blocker and Michelle Fisher.

Honored guests included I. G. Peters who has been a resident of Martin County for 81 years. Of the Old Settlers, John Peters, 84, has never missed one of the reunions.

Living in Stanton since they were first married, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kelly were honored

To Holland And Return For 10 Cents

HOLLAND, Tex. (AP) — A roundtrip from Texas to Rotterdam, the Netherlands, for only 10 cents?

Sounds unbelievable, but it happened.

Jerry Pavlov of Holland, Bell County, Tex., went into a Temple store to buy a part for his water well pump. The store didn't have the part in stock, and ordered it for him from its Dallas warehouse.

After waiting several days for the part — a two-inch piece of quarter-inch pipe — Pavlov went to another Temple store which had the part, bought it and repaired his pump.

Later, the part he ordered out of Dallas arrived almost two months late.

Pavlov discovered why it was late when he looked at the address and postmarks on the package.

It was addressed simply to Jerry Pavlov, B325, Holland, Texas. One postmark, with 10 cents postage, was marked Dallas and dated May 13. The other was marked Rotterdam.

Handwritten on the package was "unknown in Holland."

Book On UT-Austin Examines History

AUSTIN — "UT-Austin—Traditions and Nostalgia," is the title of a new book by Margaret Catherine Berry, published by Shoal Creek Publishers, Inc., Austin ($6.75).

The book, with 36 pen and ink or wash drawings by Joe Stubblefield, evokes the spirit of Texas traditions, but it also contains the names and dates which settle arguments or jog memories of "back when."

The book had its origins in the research which the author, a longtime staff member, did for her dissertation at Teacher's College, Columbia University. The scholarly accuracy remains, but the sketches now have a light touch.

Dr. Berry is eminently qualified for the job of chronicling these unofficial aspects of campus life. An honor graduate of UT-Austin, she formerly was associate dean of students and now is director of developmental programs in the office of the vice president for student affairs at the University.

Art Exhibit Set At Odessa
Midland artist Lula Belle Klingler, joined by former Midlander Nancy Lou Klingler, will have an art exhibit Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week in Odessa's Winwood Mall. Hours will be 1 to 9 p.m. each day.

Lula Belle Klingler will be exhibiting oil and watercolor paintings as well as pen-and-ink drawings. Nancy Lou Klingler, a 1953 graduate of Midland High School, will show oil paintings as well as watercolor works, most of them in the "dry brush" technique. She will be showing a special group of paintings done recently while on a visit to the Lamshead Ranch in Shackelford County.

'Oldest Living Graduate' Due At Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Two performances of "The Oldest Living Graduate," one of the plays making up Dallas actor and playwright Preston Jones' acclaimed "Bradleyville Trilogy," will be presented here next week.

The performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. next Sunday and 8 p.m. Monday, July 21, in the Texas Tech University Theatre on campus. Tickets have gone on sale at the University Center box office, priced at $3 for the general public, $2 for Tech faculty and staff and $1 for Tech students.

"The Oldest Living Graduate" had its premiere last year at the Dallas Theater Center where it was performed in rotation with the two companion plays in the trilogy, "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia" and "Lu Ann Hampton Laverly Oberlander."

Jones, an actor at the Dallas Theater Center, writes about the region he knows and understands, the small towns of West Texas, and their people. "Graduate," like the two companion plays, is set in the fictional town of Bradleyville—population 6,000, somewhere between Big Spring and Abilene on the old highway—and tells the story of Col. J. C. Kincaid, a leading (but doddering) citizen of the town and the oldest living graduate of a Galveston military academy. The plot centers on a scheme by the old man's son, Floyd, to develop a resort community on lake property owned by the family. The old colonel, however, refuses to give up a particular tract for which he has a strong sentimental attachment.

Dallas Theater Center resident actor Randy Moore will be seen as Col. Kincaid. Moore, who created the role in the Dallas performances, has been hailed for his characterization of the strong-willed old man. Others in the cast are DTC actors John Henson as Floyd and Mona Pursley as the son's bored, vapid wife.

The production, which recently had performances at San Angelo, is being toured here by the Dallas Theater Center and has been staged and directed by DTC's Paul Baker. The production has sets by Mary Sue Jones, Baker's assistant, and costumes by Kathleen Latimer.

Bicentennial Exhibit On At San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO—A special Bicentennial exhibition which currently is drawing crowds to San Antonio's Witte Memorial Museum is the collection of 18th and early 19th Century portraits of members of the Washington, Custis and Lee families.

The exhibition, on loan from Washington and Lee University in Virginia and circulated by the International Exhibitions Foundation in Washington will remain on view here through the end of the month.

Most of the paintings in the show were at one time at Mount Vernon or at Arlington where the families lived. The portrait collection grew with the passing generations and passed from George and Martha Washington to their grandson, George Washington Parke Custis, and from him to a daughter, Mary Randolph Custis Lee, wife of Gen. Robert E. Lee. The collection then passed to Washington and Lee University through a son and granddaughter of the Lees.

Six generations of men and women who were influential in the birth and early development of the United States are represented in the exhibition. Included in the collection are two famous portraits by the noted early American artist Charles Willson Peale. The earliest of the pair, "George Washington in the Uniform of a British Colonial Colonel" was the first life portrait of General Washington ever painted and was done at Mount Vernon in 1772. The other Peale portrait is of the Marquis de Lafayette, staunch friend and ally of the American revolutionary movement. It was commissioned by Washington in 1779 as a companion piece to his own portrait.

Other artists represented in the portrait collection include John Wollaston, William Edward West, Robert Edge Pine, Junius Brutus Stearns and James Peale, brother of Charles Willson Peale.

The Witte Museum is open to the public from 9 a.m. 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays each week, and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Voluntary admission fees of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children are suggested.

'Cosi Fan Tutte' Santa Fe Opera's Third Production

SANTA FE, N.M.—Mozart's sparkling operatic comedy, "Cosi Fan Tutte," is the third production to enter the season repertory of the Santa Fe Opera.

The opera's initial presentation here Saturday night will be followed by other performances on July 19 and 30, and Aug. 9, 14 and 22. They will be sung in English.

"Cosi Fan Tutte," or "Women Are Like That," is the satirical story about the fickleness of women—specifically, the sisters Fiordiligi and Dorabella. The Santa Fe cast includes Ellen Shade, Joanna Bruno, John Walker, William Parker and William Dooley. The production is staged and directed by Richard Pearlman, with sets by John Conklin and costumes by Paton Campbell. John Mauerci conducts.

Information on availability of seating for "Cosi" performances, and for performances of the five other productions in the season schedule, is obtainable from the Santa Fe Opera at P.O. Box 2408, Santa Fe 87501, or by telephoning the box office, 505-962-9802.

Museum Extends Deadline For Trip

An extended deadline for making reservations for the Museum of the Southwest-sponsored trip to San Antonio in early August to the Texas Folklife Festival is being announced.

The August 8-10 trip originally had a July 8 cutoff for reservations, but museum spokesmen said Saturday that a few vacancies remain and that the deadline has been extended to this coming Tuesday.

The Texas Folklife Festival, described as the state's "biggest block party," is sponsored by the Institute of Texan Cultures to showcase the food, games, music, dancing and crafts of virtually all of the state's ethnic groups. Site of the festival is HemisFair Plaza.

Additional information on the upcoming trip may be obtained from the Museum of the Southwest office, 683-2882.

Festival Enters Fourth Week

ODESSA—The Globe of the Great Southwest, the Permian Basin's own version of an Elizabethan English theater, launches the fourth week of its current Summer Festival with the premiere of a new play this afternoon.

The play is "The Life of Christ," a religious drama by Odessa's Regina Walker McCally, and it will have six additional performances—all on Sunday matinees—during the remainder of the summer season which concludes in late August.

Mrs. McCally based her drama on the four gospels in the King James Bible. This premiere production, sponsored by Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Hestand of Odessa, features members of the Globe's summer repertory company of actors, joined by numerous townspeople in supportive stage assignments. The production has been staged and directed by Globe producer-director C. D. McCally.

Charles Benton of Hollywood will portray Jesus Christ in this new drama. Benton has numerous motion picture credits, including "The Great White Hope," "Foreign Aid" and "Ride With the Devil." He has performed on the Globe stage in previous summer festivals here.

Tickets for "The Life of Christ" will be on sale at the box office before today's 2:30 p.m. performance and reservations for future presentations may be made by telephoning the theater at 332-1586.

Pucci House Model's Life-Style Has Its Pizzazz

OUTDOOR OUTFIT — Cynthia Ammon is fashionably turned out for the beach in one of the many ensembles she has modeled for Emilio Pucci. The lycra bathing suit in shades of pink and geranium is worn under a printed cotton terry velour cape.

By BARBARA HERRERA
Copley News Service

Cynthia Ammon, 23, is living the kind of good life dreamed of by almost any young woman.

She models for Emilio Pucci, reputedly Italy's most charming couturier, goes dancing evenings in Florence discotheques, works in a Florentine palace and lives in an apartment created from part of an old villa.

And, as if that's not enough to make any woman envious, she eats all that good pasta abundant in northern Italy without sacrificing her willowy figure.

It's not a half-bad life, she acknowledged while home recently on vacation. She was visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Woodbury Perkins of La Jolla, Calif.

As a Pucci house model, Ammon not only models the designer's clothes in shows and for prospective buyers but also translates, interprets, sells clothes in his boutique and represents him in business.

And she landed the job without previous modeling or fashion experience. What it took, besides the 6-foot, 133-pound blonde's obvious assets, is intelligence, a certain natural modeling ability and—Ammon's favorite word—"pizzazz."

Pizzazz is certainly what it took for her to decide, while touring Florence in February, 1974, to stay there and find herself a niche in its wobbly economy.

She was armed with a B.A. in linguistics from the University of California at Berkeley, ability to speak Spanish, French, English and Italian, and a large portion of self-confidence.

Why did she want to live in Italy?

"The Italians have great pizzazz." That word again. "I have always been attracted to the Italian life-style that embraces today and does not worry about tomorrow."

Looking back over her 14-month adventure, Ammon described how her effort to get a job led her to Pucci's ornate palazzo, what it takes to be a successful model in today's competitive fashion world and her impressions of fashion both here and abroad.

She began by placing a job-wanted ad in La Nazione, a Florence daily newspaper.

The ad had to start with the letter A, she reasoned, because Italian classifieds run in alphabetical order. So she started it with "Americana."

After fielding nuisance calls the day the ad ran, from several men who suggested she meet them such places as under a tree in a certain park, Ammon understandably was feeling discouraged when the phone in her hotel room rang again about 4 p.m.

"If you had a magic wand, what kind of a job would you want to create for yourself?" a distinguished male voice asked her in Italian after a few preliminary questions.

"Well, uh," Ammon hesitated, "maybe something in computer programming? Something in the shoe industry, or maybe fashion?" The Americana had said the magic word.

"And what fashion establishments do you know in Italy?" the voice asked.

She stumbled through various designers' names and finally hit on Pucci.

"You are speaking to the proprietor."

The two arranged to meet and 15 minutes later Ammon found herself being ushered into the 1,000-year-old Pucci family palace. The palace is embellished with such heirlooms as plates painted by Raphael and bedroom walls done by Wedgwood. The wines bear the Pucci name from his own vineyard. And the velvet-upholstered chairs and huge Argentine llama-wool rugs are patterned in Pucci prints.

Ammon, remembering her first meeting with the nobleman—he is a marchese, described him as being "humorous, extremely receptive, cordial, very gentlemanly and charismatic."

After a brief interview, she was hired—a Pucci model with no modeling experience.

Pucci is famed for his distinctive geometric prints in vivid colors. He first designs the silk-screened prints, then engineers the fashion around them, Ammon said. Besides outer wear, he has lines of lingerie, purses, shoes, jewelry and perfume.

Ammon said her first move in her new job was to lose five pounds.

"There's always somebody who's prettier and skinnier than you are," she said.

Most of what she now knows about modeling techniques she learned from the three other Pucci house models.

"The most difficult part was learning to slow down at the dressing room door (just before going on the fashion ramp), and speeding up again once back in the dressing room," she said.

Models, who change clothes with amazing speed, must look calm and composed on the ramp.

Luncheon Held By Association

The Ladies' Association of Ranchland Hill Country Club had a monthly luncheon and bridge party Friday in the clubhouse.

The hostesses were Mrs. Joe Chastain and Mrs. Lewis Raymer.

Bridge winners were Mrs. Jerry Crawford, high; Mrs. Woodrow Arnold, second high, and Mrs. Edson Wilder, guest high. Winners of the special prizes were Mrs. Raymer and Mrs. Wilder.

Removing Makeup

Instead of using soap and water to remove makeup try one of the fine cleansers your beautician can suggest. If skin is particularly oily a grainy cleanser should be used. Remove last traces of makeup and the cleanser with a mild astringent such as good quality witch hazel. Skin will be clean and toned at the same time.

COUPLE TO WED — Mrs. Dorothy Roberts of Midland and Wayne C. Roberts of Austin announce the engagement of their daughter, Connye Lou, to Roy F. Miss Roberts is a 1975 graduate of Midland High School and is a receptionist-typist for Don R. Trott, Certified Public Accountant. Her fiancé was graduated from MHS in 1973 and is employed by Gibson's Discount Center and Sid Yates Construction.

Names Of Many Things Changed Over Years

By HELEN M. PAGEL
Copley News Service

What's in a name? Shakespeare has said, "That which we call a rose, by any other name would smell as sweet." But for some reason or other, the names of many things have changed subtly over the years.

For instance, take older people. Nowadays if you are over 65 (or is it 60?) you automatically become a senior citizen. Nobody ever heard of a senior citizen 60 years ago. When great-aunt Mable, who never married, grew older she became an "old maid." (As a matter of fact, any unmarried woman over 25 was an old maid, and resigned to her fate.)

(The only faint hope left to her was that a widower with a family of children to raise might "shine up" to her.)

But she didn't wear mini-skirts and eyebrow shadow, for it never occurred to her to try to convince anyone that she was still young. She wore skirts to her ankles, pinned her hair in a knot on top of her head, donned gold-rimmed spectacles and spent a great deal of her time knitting and sewing and helping care for her nieces and nephews and was probably fairly content with her lot.

A single man was referred to as an "old batch," which was short for bachelor, and he had to take a great deal of good-natured joshing over his inability to win a wife. But he could always grin and say nothing and so create the impression that he could have had his pick of any girl in town in his day—and maybe he could yet, but he wasn't interested—just not interested.

And grandmas and grandpas—they were always affectionately called "the old folks." There is something so homey about that title. Somehow, you get the picture of the old couple sitting in the evening, grandma knitting by the light of the kerosene hanging lamp and grandpa asleep in the big leather Morris chair, his hands folded across his stomach, his spectacles pushed up on his forehead and an open copy of the "Agriculturist" in his lap. They had found the gold for which so many are frantically digging, and his name was contentment.

There have been other changes, too. Years ago you went down cellar, but that phrase became too plebeian so then you went to the basement. Now you descend to the lower level.

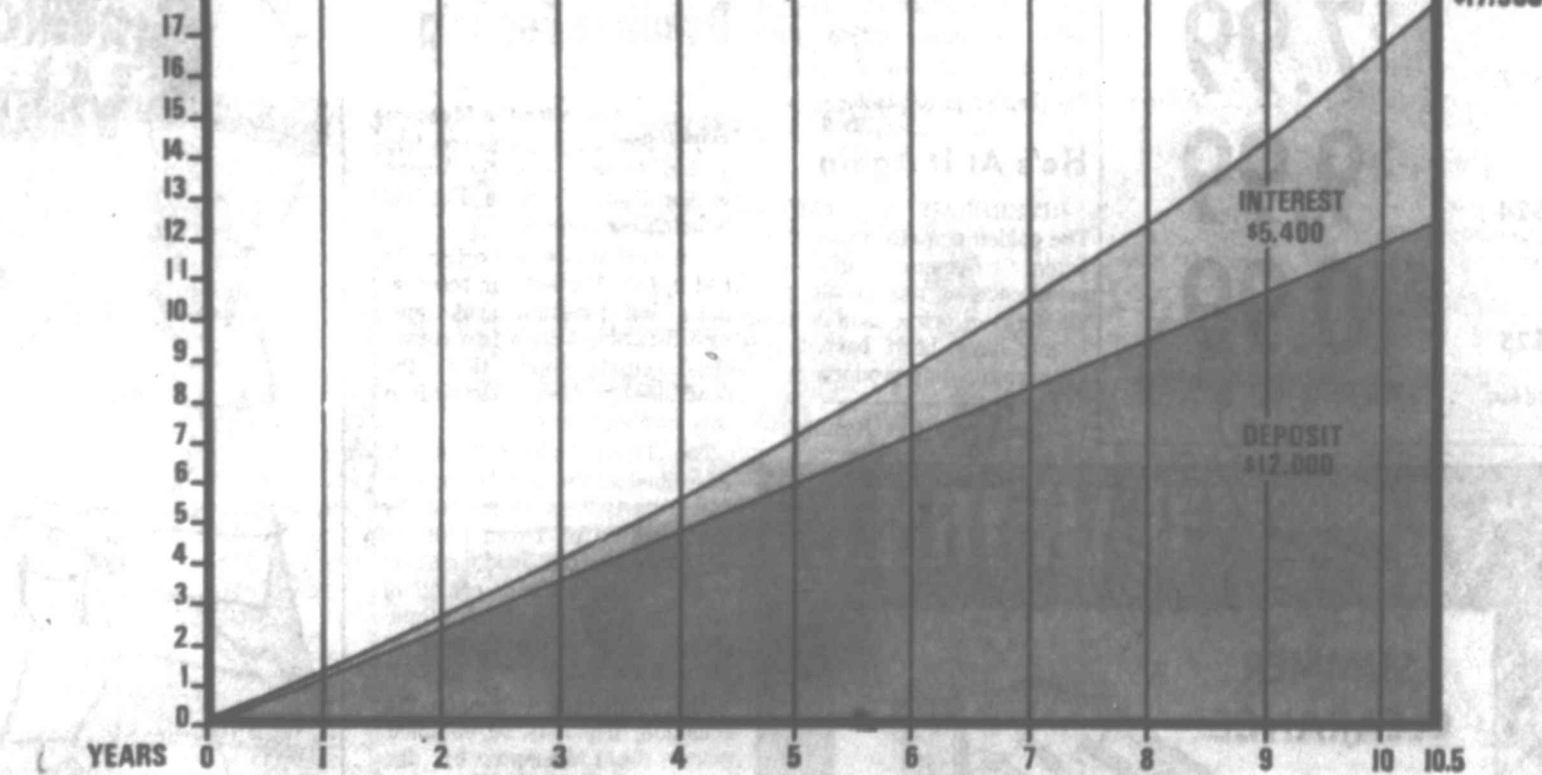

What grandma used to call the "buryn' ground" became a cemetery and then a memorial park; the undertaker became a mortician and the old-fashioned preacher a clergyman.

A farmer used to have a hired man, and his wife had a hired girl, but the hired man has become an assistant agricultural engineer and the hired girl has simply disappeared to be replaced by automatic appliances. Maybe the hired girl broke more dishes, but she never had a power failure, nor did she have to be rushed to the repair shop to have a broken part fixed or replaced. And she did know all the gossip which her mistress always reproved her for repeating, but not until she had told all she knew.

A janitor has become a custodian, the drugstore a pharmacy which sells everything from garden hose to shoe polish with drugs as a sideline, the grocer, the butcher, the baker and the milkman have all been amalgamated in the supermarket, and the old-fashioned saloon (stay away from those swingin' doors) with its brass rail and steins and strictly male clientele has become a luxurious nightclub with soft carpets, soft music and soft-voiced waiters.

U.S. Readies Metric Commitment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid early signs that many Americans will resist changing pounds to kilograms, quarts to liters, and miles to kilometers, the federal government is about to commit the United States to going metric.

Metric, which measures distance, weight, temperature and volume in multiples of 10, is coming into widespread use on the heels of a new conversion law expected to clear Congress soon.

Among changes in the works or already occurring in federal agencies and in the private sector:

- The Weather Service is ready with plans for temperatures in Celsius—or Centigrade, the replacement for the Fahrenheit scale. Shortly thereafter television weathermen will be reporting snow depth in centimeters and wind speed in kilometers per hour.
- The federal transportation department is encouraging metric road signs in a number of states including Ohio, Alabama, Arizona, California, Florida, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Vermont and Washington.
- A major soft drink manufacturer—Seven Up—is selling its product exclusively in liter and half-liter bottles in Pensacola, Fla., and Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.
- The Treasury Department is requiring that all wine bottled in the United States be sold in metric containers by Jan. 1, 1979.
- The National Park Service is converting its signs and literature to metric units.
- General Motors Corp., U.S. Steel Corp. and a number of other big manufacturers are converting parts of their assembly lines to metric measurements.
- Many schools are routinely teaching metric to elementary students.
- Metric and customary units are used to mark home run distances in River Front Stadium, home of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team. Metric advocates are quick to say, however, that after conversion, football fields will remain at 100 yards, and most other sports measurements now in customary units will stay that way.
- But there are labor leaders, small businessmen and householders who see no need for any changeover during this century.
- “There will be massive resistance,” predicts Thomas A. Hannigan of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. “What we have here is engineers and scientists trying to make an important social and economic change.”
- Hannigan said skilled workers will lose jobs unless they can learn the metric system rapidly.
- The labor leader also worries that many workers will be forced to make expensive purchases of new metric tools, before their old ones wear out.
- Metric supporters argue that the traditional English system is cumbersome to deal with and long overdue for the statistical scrap heap. For example, multiplying in tens is much simpler than in half or quarter inches, they say.
- For more than five years, there have been moves in Congress for a law calling for a conversion which has already occurred within many corporations, especially those who do heavy overseas business.
- Big companies like General Motors find it costly to produce one set of goods measured and advertised in feet and pounds or other traditional measures for U.S. consumption, while selling their goods overseas in metric. Government officials are quick to acknowledge that U.S. status as the only industrialized nation in the world not to commit itself to conversion is the biggest reason for the push toward metric in Congress.
- Until this year, the opposition of labor unions and small business interests had blocked passage of a conversion law. When a House subcommittee dropped a 10-year conversion goal and softened language in the 1975 bill, passage through both the House and Senate became a certainty.

Proprietary Schools' Guidelines Adopted

AUSTIN (AP) —The State Board of Education adopted new guidelines Saturday for proprietary schools, including placing the responsibility for all tuition-refund liabilities on the purchaser of the school.

Proprietary schools have been the subject of recent federal and state investigations after several closed and did not refund tuition payments.

The new guidelines require submission of a balance sheet “in a form consistent with generally accepted accounting principles” with its application for a state certificate.

And the schools must furnish annual financial statements prepared by an independent public accountant or a certified public accountant using generally accepted accounting principles.

There are two exceptions to this last rule.

Schools with gross annual income from tuition and fees of $20,000 or less, and schools that collect no more than one month's tuition and fees in advance from fewer than 11 students do not have to have their annual financial statements prepared by independent public accountants or certified public accountants.

In other action Saturday, the board:

- Adopted a resolution calling for a study of the emigration of hundreds of Mexican nationals of school age into Texas. A copy of the resolution is to be sent to the Texas congressional delegation and to officials in New Mexico, Arizona and California.
- Approved a $16,377,108 revised budget for the Texas Education Agency for 1974-75.
- Adopted a $6.1 million budget for the sixth year of the crime prevention and drug education program.
- Approved investment of no more than $5.3 million of the Permanent School Fund in corporate bonds in July and no more than $3.3 million in common stock. The fund, $1.159 billion, is growing at the rate of approximately $10 million a month, the board was told. The investments approved for August are no more than $4.7 million in corporate bonds and no more than $3.5 million in common stock.

County Dress Revue Winners Chosen

By PATSY GORDON
They showed how to "make a silk purse out of a sow's ear" Thursday night as the "Making of a Dress Revue Girl" unfolded at Alamo Junior High School.

The seven top winners in the Midland County 4-H Dress Revue now will compete in District 6 competition July 29 at Stanton.

Twenty-five girls in seven divisions competed amidst typical West Texas scenery as they modeled garments they made in recent clothing projects.

Vicky Calhoun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rayford Calhoun, was the senior winner. She modeled a three piece pantsuit enhanced with a collarless jacket with front button closing and an upper front gathered to lower front. Her print body shirt featured long set-in sleeves and released tucks at wrist.

The 13-year-old winner was Rainy Calhoun, sister of Vicky. She modeled a yellow dress fashioned with a circular skirt and dropped shoulder line. Lace was sewn into the many front seams and around her V-shaped patch pockets.

Daria Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Henry, was the winner in the 12-year-old division. Miss Henry created an A-line print dress with a "Peter Pan" collar and short, set-in sleeves. She topped the dress with a white pinafore trimmed in lace.

Karen Green, the 11-year-old winner and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Green, modeled a two-piece pantsuit with lots of orange featured. The top had a round neckline and short, set-in sleeves and was trimmed

The 10-year-old winner, Tonya Streun, made a green sun dress that wrapped to the back and buttoned. It was high waisted with a full skirt. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Streun.

Kim Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson, was the 9 year-old winner. She modeled an A-line jumper fashioned from 100 per cent denim. It featured a round neckline and pockets in the side seam.

Lynn Chamberlin modeled a three piece brown and beige outfit. Miss Chamberlin was the winner of the consumer buying division and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chamberlin.

Alternates selected were Patti Morgan, Vicky Whisnant, Becky Wilson, Terri Otto and Carrie Morgan.

Other Midland County 4-H'ers participating and their ribbons were: Christi Calhoun, red; Charlotte Jackson, red; Michelle Rutledge, red; Kami Boyce, red; Angie Casbeer, red; Socorro Chavez, red; Pam Alkredge, blue; Theresa Folger, blue; Martha Sherrod, blue; Liz Campbell, blue; Mary Beth Rutledge, red; Theresa Gallagher, blue; Prissy Kail, blue; and Debbie McCourt, blue.

Judges for the revue were Sara Williamson, home economist for Texas Electric Service Co., Mrs. Judy Stubbs, Kathryn Luckenback, Diana Wells, Glenda Langston and Nancy McDaniel.

Woman Manages State Park System

BRIGHTON, Colo. (AP)—When she took over the management of Barr Lake State Park recently, Carolyn Rae Hodgson became the first woman park manager in the history of the Colorado state park system.

Barr Lake, a 2,463-acre park located on the plains area southwest of here, is a new state park which includes one of the largest bodies of water in the Denver metropolitan area.

A 1974 graduate of Colorado State University, Miss Hodgson was the first woman ever to be hired as a forest ranger in Colorado.

Chilled Dishes Postpone Melting
Place ice cream in individual serving dishes an hour or two before serving time and keep it in the freezer. It will stay firm longer as the chilled dishes postpone melting.

Water Improves Meat Texture
Add a few drops of water to hamburger meat and let stand a few minutes before shaping meat into patties. It improves the texture of hamburgers.

Wayne Powell Roberts, son of Mrs. Dorothy Roberts of 405 W. Dengar St. and Wayne C. Roberts of Austin, married JayJay Kinnison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Kinnison of 113 S. Dewberry St., at 7 p.m. Saturday in the First Christian Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Steve Edwards.

Her lace-edged mantilla was held by a matching lace Camelot sprinkled with bridal pearls and formed a chapel train. She carried a bouquet of purple Catleya orchids.

The church parlor was the scene of the reception.

GM, Ford New Law Allows Appeal Plan Hike Before Losing Licenses In Prices

Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Under a new law, persons involved in auto collisions in Texas which cause as much as $250 damage will have the right to appeal to a court before their licenses can be suspended for failure to post insurance, cash or securities to assure payment to those damaged.

The auto makers are hinting they will stick an average price increase of about $300 on new-model cars and light trucks this fall, but analysts say the companies probably will bow to consumer resistance and that the increases will range between $150 to $200.

The latest indication on the price hikes came Friday from Ford Motor Co., which told dealers it would absorb price increases higher than 6 per cent — about $335 on the average — on new vehicles this fall.

The announcement, called "price-protection," indicates prices the company expects on new cars.

General Motors made a similar announcement earlier. Both firms emphasize 1976 prices have not been finalized and could be changed.

"I think the companies are threatening 6 per cent increases to get consumers out buying cars this summer. My feeling is 4 per cent ($200) is the most that the industry can get away with," said one analyst.

Industry analysts point out the car companies are unusually talkative this summer about possible increases. They theorize that may be a ploy to spur late 1975-model sales by threatening large price hikes that will never take effect. The industry currently is trying to recover from a two-year sales slump.

The new law requires the Department of Public Safety to notify the driver if its agents feel that the liability might be as much as $250. He then can appeal to a police court or justice of the peace court for a hearing on whether there was a probability that he might have been responsible for the accident. His license cannot be suspended unless the court agrees with the Department of Public Safety finding.

Upon an adverse finding, a person may appeal to a county court. No determination made by the DPS or a hearing officer may be admitted in any civil damage suit arising from the accident.

12-Month Vocational Nursing Program Opens Aug. 25 At Memorial Hospital

A 12-month Licensed Vocational Nursing program will begin Aug. 25 at Midland Memorial Hospital under the direction of Mrs. Patricia Myers, program director for the Midland College classes.

The year-long course has been approved by the Texas Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners and the Texas Education Agency.

The classes, which will be held from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. at MMH, have a capacity for 35 students, according to Mrs. Myers.

Applicants for the course are required to be 18 years of age, have a high school diploma (or the GED high school diploma equivalent), and pass an entrance examination and interview.

Upon completion, graduates will be eligible to take the state board exam and receive vocational nurse diplomas.

The course entails a study of growth and development, disease control and prevention, classification and administration of drugs, normal aging process, and reproduction as it pertains to psychology, emotional and socio-economic factors.

A course in psychology will also be taught to give the future nurses the ability to understand the patient's emotional needs.

The classes will be concluded with a course in the understanding of principles underlying nursing care. It will be aided by lectures, films and supervised clinical experience.

Included in the course will be observation in the Coronary Care Unit, Intensive Care Unit, and the Psychiatric Unit. Care for the patient in the recovery room will also be studied.

Students will also be supervised in observing operations.

For more information concerning the classes, contact Mrs. Myers at MMH at 682-7381, extension 36.

Dr. Grover Hubley Jr.

Former Midlander Starts Houston Hospital Residency

TYLER — Dr. Grover C. Hubley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Hubley of Tyler, formerly of Midland, has begun a three-year residency in family medicine at Memorial Hospital at Houston.

He received his M.D. degree on June 7 in the first graduation convocation at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. He attended St. Gregory's School and T. K. Gorman High School here before moving with his family to Midland, where he was graduated from Robert E. Lee High School in 1967. His parents later returned to Tyler.

An honor student at North Texas State University, where he received his B.A. degree, Dr. Hubley was awarded a Teagle Foundation scholarship when he entered medical school. Teagle scholarships are awarded to children of employees of Exxon Corp.

Dr. Hubley is married to the former Janet Freeman of Midland. They have a daughter, Kelly Elizabeth, born June 27 at Houston.

Surgeon May Become Pipeliner

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's only open-heart surgeon has given up his practice and says he may take a job on the trans-Alaska pipeline because he cannot obtain adequate malpractice insurance.

Dr. Arndt Von Hippel said Friday that he closed his office because the highest liability his $40,000-a-year malpractice insurance policy allows is $300,000.

Von Hippel, who has participated in 59 open-heart operations since February 1974, says he has never been sued for malpractice and is entitled to the lowest premium available in his high-risk category.

But he says he cannot obtain insurance of more than $300,000 and, with recent malpractice awards in some cases reaching in excess of $1 million, he does not feel his coverage is sufficient.

"So rather than pay this premium for such inadequate coverage, I have elected to discontinue both my insurance and my practice. I might go up and get a job on the pipeline, or I may find something else I want to do," he said.

"I decided to quit, and I'll stay quit until there is some limit on the physicians' liability in the practice of medicine."

Von Hippel is not alone. Another of the 300 or so private physicians in the nation's largest but least populous state also announced recently that he is severely curtailing his practice.

Dr. David Beal, chief of surgery at the state's major medical facility — Providence Hospital in Anchorage — said he would close his ear, nose and throat practice Aug. 1. He said he would continue to see chronically ill patients and

Society To Hear Dr. Martha Madsen

Dr. Martha Madsen, pathologist at Midland Memorial Hospital, will speak on "Who Done It?—the Mysteries of Sudden Death" at the meeting of the Permian Basin Society of Radiologic Technologists Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Coors Hospitality Room of the Coors Beer Distributing Co. on West U.S. 90.

Hay is grown on more land in the United States than any other crop.

emergency cases but would not perform surgery after that date. And a spokesman for Providence Hospital said many high-risk patients who come to that facility are now being sent 2,000 miles away to Seattle for cobalt treatments for cancer. Von Hippel predicts "rapid destruction" of the Alaskan medical community because of the malpractice insurance problem. "The doctors will be forced to discontinue their practices. They will scatter. They will never regather, and we will end up just where we were 10 years ago," he said.

Volcano Heating Up

MOUNT BAKER, Wash. (AP) — A government scientist says the amount of sulphurous fumes spewing out of Mt. Baker has increased sharply in recent months and that there are indications of an increasing buildup of heat within the now-dormant volcano.

Dr. Mark Meier of the U.S. Geological Survey said Friday that devices placed in the mountain's Sherman Crater to measure earth movement and gaseous fumes indicated 2,000 pounds of sulphur were emitted each hour on March 27. The devises showed emissions of 10,000 pounds of sulphurous fumes per hour in a June 30 reading, he said.

The state's largest sulphur pollution source, the American Smelting and Refining Co. plant in Tacoma, releases about 40,000 pounds of sulphur each hour, according to the state Department of Ecology.

Meier said acidity measured in Boulder Glacier Creek, which runs down the side of the mountain and empties into Baker Lake, is three times greater now than it was a month ago. The amount of runoff in the creek from melting snow and ice also increased substantially, indicating that more heat is being generated within the volcanic peak, he said.

Scientists say Mount Baker most recently erupted 6,000 years ago. It has steamed off and on for the past century. Recent warnings have been issued about a possible mudslide as activity on the peak increased.

A slide could send as much as 40 million cubic yards of old lava and ash deposits down the 10,778-foot mountain.

Nine From Area Win UT Degrees

AUSTIN—Nine Midland area students received B.A. degrees from UT-Austin's College of Social and Behavioral Sciences during spring semester commencement.

They were Margaret Ann Bissell Anderson, Cheryl Ann Bowman, Frank Gibson Breckenridge III, David Purvis Neely and Gerald Wade Stanley, all of Midland; Terry Colleen Griffin, Janice Anne Sims Yardley Tiffany and Barbara Sue Winkler, all of Odessa; and Kay Tempest Pergem of Big Spring.

Argentine Official Ousted

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron, yielding to labor pressure, has ousted conservative Welfare Minister Jose Lopez Rega but included three of his closest allies in a reconstituted cabinet.

But it was not clear whether the shuffle would satisfy widespread demands for changes in Argentina's top leadership.

All of the members of Mrs. Peron's old cabinet had submitted their resignations last weekend in a futile effort to head off a general strike threatened by labor leaders.

The strike went ahead, but ended early after Mrs. Peron rescinded a limit on wage increases to which labor objected and reportedly agreed to reshuffle the cabinet.

While most members of the cabinet were retained, with old or new portfolios, Lopez Rega was not among them. Mrs. Peron accepted his resignation.

Lopez Rega said Friday he offered his resignation to "secure the pacification of the disturbed spirits" who fought him, and did so "serenely ... with the security of having served God, my country and my conscience."

"Some names have changed, but not the orientation," commented a spokesman for the Radical Civic Union, the main opposition group.

There was no immediate indication what role the 58-year-old Lopez Rega might play in Argentine politics.

Lopez Rega, a former policeman who rose to power under the late Juan D. Peron, was replaced as welfare minister by Carlos Villone, a staff aide, and as presidential secretary by Julio Gonzales, another of his confidants.

Foes blamed him for economic policies that they said plunged Argentina into debt and for creating alleged right-wing death squads.

It was presumed he will keep his private position as Mrs. Peron's personal secretary.

Leaders in congress, the military and guerrilla movements had joined labor in demanding dismissal of Lopez Rega, considered the major influence on Juan D. Peron until his death last year.

Woodrow Wilson was the first U.S. president to visit Europe while in office.
