Three Die As Plane Hits Home In Austin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Three persons died today when their twin-engine plane crashed into a residential section of north Austin and burst into flames. No one in the house was injured. (AP Wirephoto.)

The aircraft came to rest against a tree in the front yard. Federal Aeronautics Administration controllers at nearby Bergstrom Air Force Base said the plane, a Cessna 410, was preparing to land at Austin Municipal Airport.

The crash site is on one of the approaches frequently used by planes in taking off or landing at the municipal airport.

Will Hill Jr., a city meter reader, said he heard an explosion and looked up to see a plane on fire "falling out of the air," then it exploded.

Rickey Norris said he saw an explosion in the air while at a hamburger restaurant on nearby Interstate 35.

Retired Air Force pilot Dick Hartford said he saw the crash. "He had started making his approach. When I saw him his gear was up, flaps down and he started a shallow left turn. The bank increased and he rolled over and just went straight down."

Hartford said the plane hit the corner of a house. "It went straight in, the nose straight in. As far as I could see there was no hope of anyone getting out of the airplane. It demolished the whole house. All of it was in flames. The biggest section left was the tail section and a wingtip and the tail fell right on top of it and began melting down."

Langdon Declares Government May Raid Texas' Natural Gas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jim Langdon of the Railroad Commission said today that the federal government may raid Texas' natural gas supplies this winter to head off a fuel shortage in other states, and this would be a "rape of Texans and the intrastate gas market."

Langdon addressed oil and gas men before announcing that Texas' statewide oil allowance for September once again would be 100 per cent.

September will be the 42nd consecutive month of wide-open crude oil production in Texas. The usual exception was made for the oil-rich East Texas field, where production was restricted to 85 per cent of potential to avoid possible waste.

Twelve of the 14 major buyers of Texas crude asked for the same amount of oil in September as this month, with Gulf Oil Corp. and Exxon Corp. slightly reducing their nominations. A spokesman for Gulf noted his company was merely trying to bring its nomination in line with actual production.

Langdon said indications are that there will be a 15 per cent shortfall in interstate gas pipelines this winter, with states such as Pennsylvania and Ohio experiencing natural gas shortages two to three times the national average.

"This will draw attention to the intrastate gas reserves" of states such as Texas and Louisiana, Langdon said. He added that Texas had arrested a drilling decline and stockpiled gas at a "very high cost to Texans, who were willing to pay a high cost for gas and to keep it."

Langdon said federal agencies are holding emergency meetings to decide what to do if there is a severely cold winter this year, "and they will be looking at" reserves in (See LANGDON Page 2A)

Mahon Supports President's Veto Of Oil Price Controls Extension

By GEORGE MASSEY

The 40-year veteran of the halls of Congress was relaxed. It was 8:30 a.m., and he sat on the end of a sofa-bed in his motel room appearing alert and astute.

Dressed in a gray business suit with intricate designs of red and blue plaid, U.S. Rep. George Mahon, D-Lubbock, moved to the picture window and drew the curtains open, filling the room with early morning light.

In an adjoining room, four Midland police officers also relaxed. They occasionally stepped outside — looked around, strolled to the pool area. But for the most part they stayed near their quarters, smoking cigarettes and drinking coffee.

It was the beginning of a day filled with social and business activities for the congressman that would put stress on a much younger person. But Mahon, in his middle 70s, is used to those days. He was ready to go, and immediately began a thorough discussion concerning recent legislative activities within the federal government.

Mahon, who has been chairman of the House Appropriations Committee since 1964 — he was first elected to Congress in 1934 — began to offer some clear insights to the Midland area.

"For one thing," he said, "you have to realize that I'm responsible to all of my constituents out here. Not just the oilman, but the consumer also. You have to inform all of the people concerning issues such as the energy crisis and decontrol of petroleum prices."

"I'll tell you," he said, "we have to be very careful when we do something that is going to increase the cost of living. But with decontrol we're going to have to do a little of that. I think that it's not going to be a great increase — maybe 3 or 4 cents per gallon on gasoline with a buffer the President has proposed with the $2 tariff on imported oil."

Mahon said some congressmen have said that a veto by the President of the six-month extension of controls on oil prices would "cause petroleum prices to leap a dollar a gallon at the gas (See MAHON Page 2A)

Good Deep Gas Well Potentials In Reeves Area

John C. Snyder, Inc., of Midland and Tucker & Heath of Fort Worth have filed potential test for No. 1 Hardin-State, third Devonian well in the Toro field of Reeves County.

Operators reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 42,000,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day through perforations from 17,041 to 17,365 feet after a 26,000-gallon acid treatment.

Bottomed at 10,928 feet and plugged back to 20,460 feet, the well has 5-inch liner set at 20,585 feet.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 48, block 50, T-7, T&P survey.

Wildcat, Offset Spotted In Howard

A wildcat and a field offset have been staked in Howard County.

C&K Petroleum, Inc., No. 1 Garrett will be drilled as an 8,000-foot wildcat, two miles northwest of Coahoma and one mile south of the depleted Sand Springs (Fusselman) field.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 40, block 31, T-1-N, T&P survey.

Merren & Montgomery of Midland No. 1 J. A. Burris Estate is scheduled to drill as one location west of the lone producer in the Sara Mag, North (Canyon reef) field.

Location is 1 1/4 miles northwest of Vincent, 250 feet from south and east lines of section 29, block 25, H&TC survey.

Eddy Tester Takes Four-Point Gauges

Cities Service Oil Co. No. 1-AD Government, 1/2-mile north outpost to the La Huerta (Morrow) field in Central Eddy County, has completed four-point tests.

All one-hour tests, the gauges were: through 2064-inch choke, 5.5 million cubic feet per day; 17-44 choke, 282 million; 14-64 choke, 2.30 million; and 11-64 choke, 1.65 million.

Production is from the Morrow through perforations from 11,363 to 11,548 feet.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 21-21s-27e, three miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Gulf Completes Lea Discovery

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-A Covington-Federal has been potential as a field opener in Lea County, N.M., 16 miles southeast of Highway.

The strike finalized for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 14,697 to 14,914 feet after a 15,000-gallon acid treatment and 16,250 gallons of fracture fluid.

Final Parr Arguments Due To Start Wednesday

Final arguments in the bond revocation hearing for former Duval County Judge Archer Parr will begin Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. before federal District Judge D.W. Suttle.

U.S. Attorney John Clark and Parr's attorney, James Gillespie of San Antonio, will present their closing remarks in the continuation of the hearing that began Aug. 7.

Clark is seeking to have Parr kept in jail while a 1974 perjury conviction is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gillespie wants the judge to bring Parr from behind the Midland City Jail bars and let him go free under a $121,500 cash bond.

Parr had been free on a bond put up by South Texas banker-rancher Clinton Manges. But Parr was arrested and jailed in San Antonio July 24 after a circuit appellate court upheld his conviction. Manges said he wanted his money back.

Aug. 7, Judge Suttle ordered Manges' $121,500 returned in revoking Parr's bond. Gillespie then offered the court another cashier's check for $121,500 to gain his client's release. The substitute bond money was put up by another Duval County rancher, Praxedis Canale.

Following Wednesday's summations, the court may elect to deny Parr bail or to set the bail bond, if allowed, at virtually any amount.

Grand Jury Interrogates Mrs. Hearst

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The mother of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst said today that she was only interested in her daughter's safety and refused to discuss "anything that might endanger her."

Catherine Hearst made the comment after spending 22 minutes appearing before a federal grand jury investigating the alleged harboring of her missing 21-year-old daughter.

"Wherever Patty is, I hope she'll realize we love her and want her back and that we will help her resolve whatever legal difficulties she faces," Mrs. Hearst said as she prepared to leave the federal building here. She refused to discuss her testimony. (See HEARST Page 2A)

Wounded American Pilot Faces Possible Charges

TRAUNSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — A wounded American helicopter pilot faces possible border violation charges for flying three East German refugees out of Communist Czechoslovakia under a hail of bullets, the Bavarian state border police said today.

A police spokesman said the American, Barry Meeker, 33, of Hartford, Conn., was under investigation for alleged illegal border crossing from West Germany into Austria initially, violation of foreign air space and filing a false flight plan. Meeker, according to police, reported on departing Munich-Riem Airport Sunday that he was making local flights.

Investigators also were trying to determine whether Meeker had flown similar escape missions in the past, the spokesman said.

Meeker, describing himself as a decorated Vietnam war veteran and former member of Special Forces, said friendship motivated him to take part in the perilous airborne escape.

"I wanted to help an East German family to flee," Meeker told reporters at his hospital bed. "They were friends of friends of mine."

He brought out two men and a 14-year-old girl who was shot in the leg, but he said that gunfire forced him to take off without a man who had requested the rescue and an injured woman.

LATE BULLETINS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — President Ford said here today he is disturbed by the maritime unions' announced refusal to load grain on ships headed for the Soviet Union.

SAFFORD, Ariz. (AP) — John Osorio, sentenced to three years in the Texas "Sharpstown scandal," has been released after serving 14 months, a federal prison spokesman said today.

TEL AVIV (AP) — The newspaper Ha'aretz reported today that Israel and the United States are preparing to sign a secret agreement of understanding containing about 40 clauses as part of a second-stage Sinai pact.

Ford Warns Soviets Detente Isn't License

By HOWARD BENEDICT

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Ford warned the Soviet Union today that detente "is not a license to fish in troubled waters" and said he will seek additional strategic weapons if there is no new agreement on limiting nuclear arms.

The President chose a strongly anti-Communist audience, the American Legion's national convention, to declare that the United States is keeping a wary eye on the Soviet Union, especially in Portugal, to determine its true intentions on detente.

The speech highlighted a second busy day of a two-day swing through four states. He planned appearances later in the day in Peoria and Peoria, Ill.

In the prepared text for his Legion address, Ford said that to him detente means "moderate and restrained behavior between two superpowers — not a license to fish in troubled waters."

The President told the Legion group, which has criticized detente, that he would continue to work toward relaxation of tensions between the two nations. He said his meetings with Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev have been "constructive and helpful," but "future success will depend on concrete developments."

"We are now carefully watching some serious situations for indications of the Soviet attitude towards detente and cooperation in European security."

"The situation in Portugal is one of these," Ford said. "We are deeply concerned about the future of freedom in Portugal."

The President said that in Portugal, where Communists are exerting a strong influence in the government, "The wishes of a moderate majority have been subverted by forces more determined than representative."

On national security, the President told the Legionaires, "I am committed to keeping America's defenses second to none."

He said he hoped to hold down spending on nuclear forces next year, but "this tentative judgment is conditioned on real progress in SALT II. But the Congress and the American people must realize that, unless agreement is achieved, I will have no choice but to recommend to Congress an additional $2 billion to $3 billion for strategic weapons programs in the current and coming fiscal years," the President warned.

On other subjects, the President said:

"Any reckless congressional action to cripple the effectiveness of our intelligence services in legitimate operations would be catastrophic." But he said, "I do not condone improper activities or violation of the constitutional rights of Americans by any personnel or agency of the federal government."

—He is troubled by Congress' refusal to permit shipment of arms to Turkey but added "I know that when the bottom line of any issue is the ultimate security of the United States, the Congress and the President have always found the way to close the ranks and act as one."

The President started today with an early breakfast meeting with newspaper and broadcasting executives from Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri.

Mahon Favors President's Oil Price Control Veto

Tools, CB Radios Reported Stolen

A box of tools and two citizens band radios were among items reported stolen to Midland police Monday and today.

John T. Masoner, 3702 Monty St., told police Tuesday that a tool box and some tools had been taken from his home. The items were valued at $600.

A citizens band radio, a road atlas, six sets of sheets, a pair of cover-alls and a coat were stolen from a truck parked at the Scottish Rite Inn, Conrad Driskell of Anaheim, Calif., told police. Total value of the items was estimated at $291.95.

Mrs. Jerry Speck, 3812 Roosevelt St., told police that a diamond drop necklace worth approximately $250 had been taken from her home.

An envelope containing $125 was stolen from the office of Richard Spencer at 507 W. Tennessee St., Spencer told police. Police said that entry to the office building was apparently gained by breaking out a window.

Arnold Gene McDonald told police early this morning that a citizens band radio valued at approximately $125 had been taken from a car parked in the area of Eubanks Auto Parts Number Two at 106 Carlton St. The radio was the property of Floyd Edward Williams.

An adding machine valued at $50 was taken from C&S Salvage Co., 1810 W. Florida St., E. J. Connor reported to police.

Mayberry Seeking Women Golfers

Ron Mayberry, Midland College golf coach, is seeking women golfers for the 1975-76 golf season at Midland College.

Any women are eligible for the golf team provided they enroll in school. Age does not make any difference as long as they do not have a college degree.

The shortage came about when three members of the team announced that they would not show this year. Girl's scholarships are not binding, and the three women decided to go elsewhere at this late date in the season.

Mayberry said that some financial assistance is available to those that make the team. "Most people think you have to be 18 to try out, but I'm talking about women golfers. Age is no requirement, only enrollment in school."

Anyone interested in joining the MC team may call Mayberry at 684-7851.

Chamber To Host New Teachers

The Midland Chamber of Commerce's annual welcome for new school personnel will be held at 6 p.m. today at Hogan Park.

Attending the affair will be new teachers and administrators from the Midland Independent School District, Midland College, The University of Texas at the Permian Basin and Midland's private and parochial schools.

A barbecue dinner and entertainment will be featured at the welcome. After the dinner, those attending the affair will be the guests of the Midland Cubs at a Texas League baseball game between the Cubs and the San Antonio Brewers.

Midlander's Mother Dies At Odessa

ODESSA — Virginia Mae Shelton, 78, mother of Floyd McArthur of Midland, died early Monday morning in an Odessa hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services were to be held at 4 p.m. today in the West Chapel in Carlsbad, N. M. Interment was to be in Carlsbad Cemetery under the direction of Easterling Funeral Home.

Other survivors include her husband, one other son, one brother, six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

"I'm in favor of the President's veto on the control measure. It's going to take a full two-thirds majority to override the veto and I think it has a chance of being sustained," Mahon said.

"If the veto is sustained," he said, "then we'll see what happens."

"You can't just willy-nilly an increase in the cost of living, but you've got to do something to put some incentives into our economy and the petroleum industry."

Mahon said, "A windfall profits tax is necessary, but there must be a liberal plowback provision." He said that an estimate on the plowback percentage "can't be guessed" but stressed that it must be a "liberal" one to keep petroleum production and exploration incentives up to par.

Other members of the Democratic delegation in Congress have indicated that a maximum 25 per cent plowback is all that can be hoped for.

The congressman said, "You know, when I was first elected to Congress in 1934 the total governmental budget for this country was only $6 billion — now it's expanded and grown to where the deficit this year is going to be $100 billion."

"If we don't find ways to live within our means," Mahon said, "this country is in for a fiscal collapse."

"If we go on spending at the rate we have for the last 10 years, fiscal collapse is inescapable. We've come to the crossroads — the hour of decision. We are now aware of the situation and we know that we can't spend astronomical sums that we don't have. We must find a way to live within our income," Mahon said.

"There are a lot of people who don't understand what politics and government is all about," Mahon said, "it's a system of compromise. You're not going to get exactly what you want, but you have to vote for and represent your constituents. But it's still a process of compromise, and you're never going to like what you end up with because there's a lot of people to please, and the same things don't please all of them."

"Now," Mahon said, "there's this Budget Control Act, and it's going to force Congress to look at the overall picture of the nation's fiscal situation and not go about this spending in a fragmented or piecemeal fashion."

That bill will help the government to reduce the inflationary spending of the past several years, Mahon predicted.

Concerning federal efforts to get a hand into local land use planning, Mahon said the land use bill would be a "disastrous thing" if passed. He said, "We all know the importance of planning for the use of land on the local level, but if the federal government sticks its hand in to dictate land use it would be most unfortunate."

He said the efforts of Congress have been "fortunate this past year and have 'bottled up' the land use bill in committee."

"If we're lucky," Mahon predicted, "we're going to be able to defeat this measure. The people against it are very active, and I'm one of them."

He said another bill which he is fighting to kill is one for consumer protection. Mahon said, "All we need is another bureaucratic office to mess things up, and that's what we would get with this pending legislation on consumer protection. We've got enough consumer protection agencies now."

Mahon said an "embargo on food exports would be disaster on this nation's part."

He said, "We're the OPEC nation when it comes to food. We have to keep up trade with other nations, but then again we don't want to oversell."

Mahon said, "We want to become self-sufficient when it comes to energy and petroleum, but to take so called reprisals against the OPEC nations because they are again attempting to hike the price of oil is not exactly the way to go about things. We need to get away from depending on those countries and develop our own resources."

A national oil company, Mahon said, "would be a disaster. We definitely don't want to get federal government into the offshore or any other oil business." It has been proposed by some members of Congress that as much as $400 million be supplied by the federal government to acquire offshore drilling leases on the Continental Shelf.

"There's no telling how the omnibus bill, H.B. 7014, for the regulation of several sorts of interstate energy will come out," Mahon says. "But in its present form it will never pass," he said.

Congressman Bob Eckhart's proposal to rollback all oil prices to say $7.50 a barrel would be another "disaster," Mahon said "because it would not encourage or add incentives to the petroleum industry to step-up production."

The congressman was finishing his conversation, he leaned back into the sofa-bed and then was leaning forward to stress a point. He said, "I'm going to run for this office again. But you have to remember you can't be an isolationist in Congress."

"I have a good rapport with my younger colleagues and we're going to get the job done," he predicted.

His aide entered the room. He was asked several rapid questions concerning the congressman's schedule for the rest of the morning.

The day was well under way, news media, oilmen and the people—his constituents waited.

Six Firemen Die In Big Refinery Blaze

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Sunday.

The fire forced closure of the Penrose Avenue bridge, main artery between the city and Philadelphia International Airport, but police opened the span to traffic at the start of the evening rush hour Monday.

A major threat was eliminated Monday morning when three Gulf employees pushed an aluminum rowboat across oil and water to shut off a valve on a tank leaking highly flammable naphtha.

A curtain of water sprayed by other Gulf workers protected the three men from intense heat as they cut the valve just 100 feet from the point where the naphtha was igniting in mid-air.

Six persons remain hospitalized, four of them city firemen in critical condition with second- and third-degree burns. The other two were Gulf fire officials who suffered heart attacks Sunday.

The dead were identified as Joseph Wiley, 34; John J. Andrews, 50; Robert J. Fisher, 43; Ralph Campana, 41; Hugh McIntyre, 53, and Roger Parker, 28.

The fire started early Sunday as Venezuelan crude was being unloaded from a ship. The blaze was declared under control Sunday morning, but eight hours later it exploded out of control.

The six firemen who died were incinerated in the sudden flash.

Gulf said it lost about $10 million in facilities, equipment and oil, but a company spokesman said fire damage "would be adequately covered with a modest deductible."

Fire Commissioner Joseph Rizzo said the city lost fire equipment valued at almost $1 million. Rizzo and City Managing Director Hillel Levinson said Gulf would be billed for the lost equipment.

Showers Skip Most Of State

Those persistent showers dried up across Texas for awhile today and even warmer weather was in prospect for northern sections of the state.

Clouds thickened over the Central Texas Hill Country. It was clear to partly cloudy elsewhere. The Associated Press reported.

A few light showers in the northeast part of the Panhandle provided the only moisture during the night, and they dried up before daybreak.

Temperatures in early morning dropped no lower than 68 degrees at Midland and Odessa in West Texas, ranging through the 70s elsewhere up to 81 at Palacios on the coast.

Official observers said even warmer weather was on the way behind west winds into the north part of the state. Top marks Monday afternoon climbed as high as 99 at Dallas and Waco.

Another round of thunderstorms was promised by evening from Southwest Texas into the Panhandle.

Spending Suggestions Scarce

Midland County commissioners have $11,000 in Community Development funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and they are having a difficult time getting ideas from the public on how to spend it.

The commissioners held a public hearing Monday on the subject, and only two residents showed up — Mrs. Lorraine Stiles, who came to hear other peoples' ideas, and Mrs. Cynthia Monley, who represented the League of Women Voters.

A second hearing has been scheduled for next Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the commissioners' courtroom at the courthouse.

"I just wonder what could be done with $11,000 this day and time," Mrs. Stiles said.

"I think," she said, "that something could be done along the line of ... parks and recreation. . . . We have to go so far to see something pretty . . ."

"But what could be done with $11,000. There could be a start of something, maybe."

The county's four commissioners seemed to agree that, yes, the money could start something but could do little else.

Mrs. Monley suggested a shuttle bus for Midland's senior citizens.

A couple of buses already are serving those folks, and, Commissioner Durward Wright pointed out, "$11,000 wouldn't even buy the bus in the first place."

Earlier in the hearing, Jerry

Tschauner, director of planning for the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, explained the workings of the HUD grant.

He said Midland County initially had been allotted $15,000 of HUD's money but that was cut to $11,000 "because they ran out of funds up the road."

Tschauner said the money could be used for "public works programs, parks, recreation . . ."

The HUD grant to Midland County, he said, works backward to many others in which a public hearing is held before a formal application is made for funds.

The commissioners "had to make pre-application (for the grant) without benefit of public hearings," Tschauner said.

Hearst—

Brandon Alvey, special Justice Department prosecutor who is handling the Hearst matter, said Mrs. Hearst "cooperated with us, she was very helpful."

Alvey insisted that the questioning of Mrs. Hearst centered only on allegations that her daughter, sought by the FBI on bank robbery and weapons charges, may have been in hiding in Pennsylvania last summer.

There have been allegations that Jack Scott, a sports critic from Portland, Ore., and former athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, and his wife, Micki, rented a house in South Canaan, Pa., last summer where Miss Hearst reportedly lived for several weeks.

The prosecutor added that the grand jurors were sent home and will await recall pending a decision by U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman on whether the Scotts can be required to testify. They are seeking to quash subpoenas.

Midland Schools Enrollment Down

Monday's first day figures for enrollment in the Midland Independent School District showed a slight decrease from last year's figures, a MISD representative reported today.

Total enrollment for the school system decreased from 15,212 a year ago to 15,173 on Monday.

First day elementary school figures indicate an enrollment of 7,379—10 fewer than the 7,389 recorded last year.

The enrollment in Midland's junior high schools showed a considerable dip. Monday's enrollment was 4,112 as compared with 4,267 a year ago.

Enrollment at Midland's high schools increased from 3,556 last year to 3,682 on Monday.

Bubonic Plague Kills Prairie Dogs

NEEDMORE, Tex. (AP) — Bubonic plague, the feared Black Death of the Middle Ages, has killed entire "towns" of prairie dogs in the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge in Northwest Texas, authorities say.

City of Midland Zoo Director knew of no such plague problems in the Midland area.

"We haven't found any (prairie dogs) dead," he said, "I suspect the problem (in Muleshoe) is rather isolated and that we have little to worry about."

Chief City Sanitarian O. E. Martin said he had received no reports on the plague in the Midland area.

The disease was confirmed in some fleas taken from prairie dog holes to the U.S. Public Health Service in Fort Collins, Colo. Fleas usually transmit the disease, said Bert Blair Jr., manager of the wildlife refuge.

At least two prairie dog towns survived the epidemic, Blair said. About 40 to 50 acres of the 5,800-acre refuge have been closed to the public for the rest of the summer, and visitors have been warned to stay away from affected areas, he said.

Officials have placed chemicals in affected prairie dog burrows to "kill germs which cause the plague. The animals usually die in their holes, Blair said.

The refuge is northwest of Lubbock, near the Texas-New Mexico border.

Carrillo Attorneys Will Seek Recess

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Attorneys for Duval County District Judge O. P. Carrillo have indicated they will ask a recess in the impeachment trial, scheduled to start Sept. 3 in the Texas Senate.

The trial by the 31-member Senate follows the 10 articles of impeachment voted by the House against the South Texas office holder Aug. 4-5. Carrillo has been suspended from his judicial post until after the trial.

Arthur Mitchell, Austin attorney representing Carrillo, urged the Senate Administration Committee Monday to keep in its proposed rules for the impeachment the requirement that the start of the trial could be postponed, more than once, by a simple majority vote.

"I wanted to present the problem now," Mitchell said concerning the scheduled Sept. 8 federal court trial of Carrillo in Corpus Christi on alleged income tax evasion charges. "So far as I know, it's going to trial, and I'd hate for a federal marshal to drag me out of the Senate if we didn't appear," he said.

"Federal marshals don't have the privileges of the floor in the Senate," remarked Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who will be the presiding officer at the impeachment trial.

Mitchell also called attention to another scheduled hearing Oct. 3 in Corpus Christi for Carrillo before the Judicial Qualifications Commission.

The Senate drew up a long list of proposed rules that will be presented the full membership when it assembles Sept. 3. They included:

—Allow live radio broadcasts of the entire trial.

—Allow natural light photographs while the trial is in progress but no flash bulbs or flood lights.

—Require all persons within the chamber, including news reporters, to register when they enter or leave. Newsmen must obtain special credentials to cover the trial.

—Prohibit senators, who act as the jury in the trial, from making public comments about the trial while it is in progress.

—Put a "call on the Senate" which would require all members to stay within the physical limits of the chamber and adjoining rooms while the trial is in progress.

—Gave Carrillo's attorneys full rights to argue "all preliminary pleadings" and to have them decided by the Senate before the Senate begins consideration of the actual articles of impeachment.

Fannie Winford Dies At Lamesa

LAMESA — Fannie Winford, 66, of Lamesa died early Monday morning in a hospital here after a brief illness.

Ford Warns Soviets Detente Isn't License

By HOWARD BENEDICT MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Ford warned the Soviet Union today that detente "is not a license to fish in troubled waters" and said he will seek additional strategic weapons if there is no new agreement on limiting nuclear arms. The President chose a strongly anti-Communist audience, the American Legion's national convention, to declare that the United States is keeping a wary eye on the Soviet Union, especially in Portugal, to determine its true intentions on detente. The speech highlighted a second busy day of a two-day swing through four states. He planned appearances later in the day in Peoria, Ill.

In the prepared text for his Legion address, Ford said that to him detente means "moderate and restrained behavior between two superpowers — not a license to fish in troubled waters." The President told the Legion group, which has criticized detente, that he would continue to work toward relaxation of tensions between the two nations. He said his meetings with Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev have been "constructive and helpful," but "future success will depend on concrete developments."

"We are now carefully watching some serious situations for indications of the Soviet attitude towards detente and cooperation in European security," Ford said. "The situation in Portugal is one of these." Ford said, "We are deeply concerned about the future of freedom in Portugal." The President said that in Portugal, where Communists are exerting a strong influence in the government, "The wishes of a moderate majority have been subverted by forces more determined than representative."

On national security, the President told the Legionaires, "I am committed to keeping America's defenses second to none." He said he hoped to hold down spending on nuclear forces next year, but "this tentative judgment is conditioned on real progress in SALT II. But the Congress and the American people must realize that, unless agreement is achieved, I will have no choice but to recommend to Congress an additional $2 billion to $3 billion for strategic weapons programs in the current and coming fiscal years," the President warned.

On other subjects, the President said: "Any reckless congressional action to cripple the effectiveness of our intelligence services in legitimate operations would be catastrophic." But he said, "I do not condone improper activities or violation of the constitutional rights of Americans by any personnel or agency of the federal government."

—He is troubled by Congress' refusal to permit shipment of arms to Turkey but added "I know that when the bottom line of any issue is the ultimate security of the United States, the Congress and the President have always found the way to close the ranks and act as one." The President started today with an early breakfast meeting with newspaper and broadcasting executives from Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri.

Three Die As Plane Hits Home In Austin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Three persons died today when a small plane crashed into a residential section of north Austin shortly after taking off from Austin Municipal Airport. Several other persons narrowly escaped when the twin-engine craft crashed into one house on East 55th Street and sprayed debris and fuel over others. At least two houses caught fire, police said. The dead, not identified at once, were in the plane. Mrs. Ruth Whitehead told police that she heard the crash, something hit her frame house and she ran out the back door just before the residence burst into flames. Her two children had gone to football practice and were not at home. The crash site is on one of the approaches frequently used by planes in taking off or landing at the municipal airport. Retired Air Force pilot Dick Hartford said he saw the crash. "He had started making his approach. When I saw him his gear was up, flaps down and he started a shallow left turn. The bank increased and he rolled over and just went straight down."

Hartford said the plane hit the corner of a house. "It went straight in, the nose straight in. As far as I could see there was no hope of anyone getting out of the airplane. It demolished the whole house. All of it was in flames. The biggest section left was the tail section and a wingtip and the tail fell right in on top of it and began melting down."

Most of MacKenzie's cheek when it exited. Much of the defense's case has centered on the theory that a shot from other than a guardsman's weapon could have set off a 13-second volley of gunfire during a campus anti-war demonstration. The plaintiffs contend the only shots fired at Kent State on May 4, 1970, came from guardsmen's weapons. After the defense rested Monday, the plaintiffs dropped their claims against three former guardsmen who testified they fired only in the air. They were James K. Brown of Orrville, Ronnie B. Myers of Wooster and Lonnie D. Hinton of Ashland. The motion reduced the number of defendants to 29, including Gov. James A. Rhodes, ex-Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso and former Kent State President Robert I. White.

Testimony In Kent State Suit Enters Rebuttal Stage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Testimony in a $46-million damage suit stemming from the 1970 Kent State University shootings enters the rebuttal stage today. Court sources said the case could go to the jury as early as Thursday afternoon. The plaintiffs — nine students who were wounded and the survivors of four who were killed during a campus antiwar demonstration — will attempt to counter defense testimony that one of the wounded might have been hit by a nonmilitary bullet. Lawyers defending present and former state officials and Ohio National Guardsmen in the suit introduced testimony from an Army surgeon that a bullet which hit Donald S. MacKenzie in the back of the neck, had it been a military round, would have ripped away most of MacKenzie's cheek when it exited.

Final Parr Arguments Due To Start Wednesday

Final arguments in the bond revocation hearing for former Duval County Judge Archer Parr will begin Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. before federal District Judge D.W. Suttle. U.S. Attorney John Clark and Parr's attorney, James Gillespie of San Antonio, will present their closing remarks in the continuation of the hearing that began Aug. 7. Clark is seeking to have Parr kept in jail while a 1974 perjury conviction is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Gillespie wants the judge to bring Parr from behind the Midland City Jail bars and let him go free under a $121,500 cash bond. Parr had been free on a bond put up by South Texas banker-rancher Clinton Manges. But Parr was arrested and jailed in San Antonio July 24 after a circuit appellate court upheld his conviction. Manges said he wanted his money back. Aug. 7, Judge Suttle ordered Manges' $121,500 returned in revoking Parr's bond. Gillespie then offered the court another cashier's check for $121,500 to (See PARR Page 2A)

Jury Quizzes Mrs. Hearst

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The mother of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was ready to tell a federal grand jury today what she knows about the alleged harboring of her daughter at a Pennsylvania farm house. The grand jury is investigating allegations that sports activist Jack Scott and his wife, Micki, rented the house at South Canaan in which Miss Hearst reportedly hid out for several weeks last summer. Catherine Hearst was to be the first witness to testify before the jury about her 21-year-old daughter. Scott, former athletic director at Ohio's Oberlin College, and his wife have also been subpoenaed to testify, but they say they will not cooperate, even if they are offered immunity from prosecution. Miss Hearst, whose father, Randolph A. Hearst, is president of the San Francisco Examiner, was kidnapped Feb. 4, 1974, at Berkeley, Calif., by members of a small terrorist band which called itself the Symbionese Liberation Army. She later renounced her parents and said she had joined the SLA. She is now being sought with two other SLA fugitives, William and Emily Harris, on bank robbery and weapons charges. "I think she (Mrs. Hearst) can offer useful information as to harboring," U.S. Atty. John Cottone said after a court hearing Monday in which the Scotts and Martin Miller, a Scott friend now studying in New York, sought to quash their subpoenas on grounds they had been wiretapped, harassed and threatened by the FBI. Government attorneys denied there was any wiretapping or harassment. U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman took the Scott-

Miller requests under advisement. Mrs. Hearst told newsmen in San Francisco last week she had no idea why she was subpoenaed to testify — "I don't know why I am going." Scott's brother, Walter, had also been subpoenaed, but Cottone said his appearance — scheduled for today — was canceled. Walter Scott has repudiated statements in which he claimed he had seen Patricia Hearst twice since she went into hiding, and that his family helped harbor her. Wounded American Pilot Faces Possible Charges (Related Story Page 10A) TRAUNSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — A wounded American helicopter pilot faces possible border violation charges for flying three East German refugees out of Communist Czechoslovakia under a hail of bullets, the Bavarian state border police said today. A police spokesman said the American, Barry Meeker, 33, of Hartford, Conn., was under investigation for alleged illegal border crossing from West Germany into Austria initially, violation of foreign air space and filing a false flight plan. Meeker, according to police, reported on departing Munich-Riem Airport Sunday that he was making local flights. Investigators also were trying to determine whether Meeker had flown similar escape missions in the past, the spokesman said. Meeker, describing himself as a decorated Vietnam war veteran and former member of Special Forces, said friendship motivated him to take part in the perilous airborne escape. "I wanted to help an East German family to flee," Meeker told reporters at his hospital bed. "They were friends of friends of mine." He brought out two men and a 14-year-old girl who was shot in the leg, but he said that gunfire forced him to take off without a man who had requested the rescue and an injured woman.

Gunfire Punctuates Police Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Snipers fired shots at a police station early today, less than 12 hours after policemen unpinned their badges and hoisted picket signs in a strike for more pay. Striking policemen at the station abruptly left their picket lines after the shooting began and helped arrest three young men. In an earlier incident, an angry motorist ran over two picketing policemen. City officials have pledged that the strike will not lead to a reign of lawlessness. More than 90 per cent of the 1,835-member force struck Monday afternoon after the San Francisco Board of Supervisors refused to meet pay hike demands by the 1,800-member Police Officers Association. Picket lines immediately went up outside the city's nine police stations, including headquarters at the Hall of Justice. Police reported two sniping incidents at the Ingleside station beginning at 1:25 a.m. Shots were fired from the San Francisco City College area and from a nearby construction firm. Officers inside the station shut off all lights, and police picketing outside discarded their signs and joined in a chase of three teen-agers who fled on foot to an auto, officer Jim Cannon said. One of the fleeing men was wounded in the foot before the three were arrested and booked for investigation of attempted murder and assault on a police officer, Cannon said. The three were identified by police as Terrence Ng, 19, Calvin Woo, 18, and Mike Ming Lo, 19, who was treated at a hospital for a foot wound. No other injuries were reported. The shots fired from the construction site were from a heavy-caliber rifle, Cannon said. No one was arrested in that incident. Earlier, two striking policemen were hit by a car as they picketed outside the Mission station. Nonstriking police arrested Thomas Oxtien, 50, at a bar about midnight, said Sgt. James McCarthy. Neither officer was seriously injured, authorities said. "Major crimes such as rape, robbery, murder and serious assaults will be answered, but such things as barking dogs and broken windows will not," Police Chief Donald Scott said. Lt. Frank Jordan said detectives, plainclothesmen, juveniles, plainclothesmen, juvenile hall staff and sergeants at the patrol force level were replaced. (See GUNFIRE Page 2A)

Three Die In Vintage Navy Plane Crash

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration will investigate the crash of a vintage Navy aircraft—owned by the Confederate Air Force—in which three men were killed. The amphibious plane, a Navy PBV-6A, was used during World War II to pick up pilots who had been shot down over the sea. It was part of a large collection of restored and flyable World War II planes owned by the nationally known Confederate Air Force (CAF). The plane plummeted into an open field Monday afternoon shortly after takeoff from the Harlingen Airport in far South Texas. The CAF has its headquarters here and its approximately 67 aircraft are hangared here. CAF spokesman Glenn Bercot said the plane apparently lost power just before crashing about 2.5 miles east of the airport about 1:15 p.m. The plane flipped over on its nose and burned. Killed were C. A. Skiles, 58, of Houston, the pilot; Richard C. Disney, 61, of Harlingen; and William Toler, 47, of Tomball, which is just north of Houston. Dennis Lawrence Williams, 25, of Brownsville, a paid CAF mechanic, suffered severe burns from his waist and was taken to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. Attendants there said his condition was critical early today. A fifth man aboard the plane, Van Shiles, brother of one of the victims, somehow walked away from the crash unhurt, Bercot said. Disney was one of the early members of the CAF, joining in 1962, Bercot said. Disney was an Air Force pilot in World War II and had logged more than 41,000 hours at the controls of various airplanes. Skiles had recently retired from Pan American Airlines where he had been a pioneer pilot on many South American and Central American flights. He had once flown the "Clipper ships." Toler served in the Navy. Bercot said the plane was being flown to Houston and then was to be flown to Ottumwa, Iowa, where it was to be exhibited with other CAF planes this weekend. Worldwide the CAF has about 1,200 members, Bercot said, and the group is known for air shows, which often recreate World War II air battles.

Bronfman Kidnaping Planned Months Ago, FBI Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — The alleged kidnaping of Samuel Bronfman II planned the abduction months ago and threatened to kill him and his multimillionaire father unless a ransom demand was met quickly, the FBI says.

In a complaint filed Monday in U.S. District Court, the FBI said Mel Patrick Lynch, a New York City fireman, and Dominic Byrne, a limousine operator, admitted seizing the 21-year-old victim.

Rejecting a defense plea that the two were "amateurs involved in some kind of lark," U.S. Magistrate Martin D. Jacobs set $500,000 bail for Lynch and $300,000 for Byrne on a charge of extorting the $2.3-million ransom.

Later Monday, Westchester Dist. Atty. Carl Vergari said he would press state kidnaping charges against the two Irish-born Brooklynites because they had not taken their alleged captive across state lines, a necessary qualification for applying federal kidnap statutes.

Samuel was seized early August 9 sometime after he left the lavish Yorktown Heights estate of his father, Edgar, the head of the Seagram Company Ltd., the world's largest distributors.

After a tense week of waiting and the delivery of the $2.3 million ransom, he was rescued unharmed Sunday by the FBI and city police from Lynch's Brooklyn apartment.

The ransom money was found under a bed in a nearby apartment.

In court, FBI special agent Joseph Conley said Lynch, described as the "prime mover" in the alleged plot, prepared the ransom letter to Edgar Bronfman sometime in June "demanding a ransom and fur-

Most Portuguese Ignore Communist Strike Call

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Communist-dominated central trade federation Inter-sindical called a 30-minute general strike today to protest "escalating Fascist reaction" and attacks on Communist parties across the country.

But many of the two million Inter-sindical workers — approximately two-thirds of the nation's work force — defied the strike call though the federation had said it expected 80 per cent support. As the strike began at 11 a.m. — 5 a.m. CDT — most taxis, buses, subways and hotels ran normally in Lisbon. The national airline TAP, however, halted its operations.

Some taxi drivers blocked Lisbon's main street, Avenida da Liberdade, and a crowd gathered and fistfights broke out; but as strike time ran out, the crowd dispersed and normal traffic resumed.

The Socialist party issued a statement urging its members to "ignore, despise and fight this desperate maneuver to control workers."

Communist party leader Alvaro Cunhal planned to lead a rally tonight in the Crystal Palace at Porto, 175 miles north of Lisbon, continuing his battle for Communist control of the Portuguese revolution.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union accused "imperialist forces" of interfering in Portugal, called for "massive solidarity" behind its Communist leaders and charged that North Atlantic Treaty Organization military forces staged maneuvers to threaten the Lisbon government.

An article in Pravda said Western powers were using pressure tactics reminiscent of "things that happened just before the Fascist coup in Chile." Kremlin propagandists have endorsed charges that the American CIA helped overthrow Chile's Marxist president Salva-

Nine Midlanders Receive Degrees

SAN MARCOS—Nine Midland students received diplomas from Southwest Texas State University in summer commencement ceremonies Saturday, Aug. 16.

They are Barbara Lynn Lair, 3 Marchelle Court, B.A. in journalism; David Clark Gaines, 1504 W. Storey St., B.B.A. in business administration; Jim Pate, 3234 Dengar St., B.B.A. in business administration; Cheryl W. Pannell, 2509 Fannin St., B.S. in commercial art.

Other Midland students are Christopher Iverson, box 703, B.S. in elementary education; James Robert Kelley, 1909 Hughes St., B.A. in psychology; Michael Charles Moore, 2606 N. Garfield St., A.A.S. in respiratory therapy; Deborah Ann Allen, 2601 Harvard St., B.S. in biology; and Cynthia Ann Tergerson, 3314 Bedford St., B.A. in sociology.

Karen Evans Was Not Driving

Several thousand dollars damage was done Friday when a car driven by Shanna Ladon Post, 16, 4601 W. Illinois St., collided with a car parked in a residential driveway in north Midland.

A story in Sunday's Reporter Telegram reported that Karen Evans, 16, 4600 W. Illinois St., was the driver of the car. Miss Evans, who suffered minor injuries in the accident, was a passenger in the car driven by Miss Post.

The Reporter Telegram regrets the error.

Spending Suggestions Scarce

Midland County commissioners have $11,000 in Community Development funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and they are having a difficult time getting ideas from the public on how to spend it.

The commissioners held a public hearing Monday on the subject, and only two residents showed up — Mrs. Lorraine Stiles, who came to hear other peoples' ideas, and Mrs. Cynthia Monley, who represented the League of Women Voters.

A second hearing has been scheduled for next Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the commissioners' courtroom at the courthouse.

"I just wonder what could be done with $11,000 this day and time," Mrs. Stiles said.

"I think," she said, "that something could be done along the line of . . . parks and recreation . . . We have to go so far to see something pretty . . ."

"But what could be done with $11,000. There could be a start of something, maybe."

The county's four commissioners seemed to agree that, yes, the money could start something but could do little else.

Mrs. Monley suggested a shuttle bus for Midland's senior citizens.

A couple of buses already are serving those folks, and Commissioner Durward Wright pointed out, "$11,000 wouldn't even buy the bus in the first place."

Earlier in the hearing, Jerry Tschauner, director of planning for the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, explained the workings of the HUD grant.

He said Midland County initially had been allotted $15,000 of HUD's money but that was cut to $11,000 "because they ran out of funds up the road."

Tschauner said the money could be used for "public works programs, parks, recreation . . ."

The HUD grant to Midland County, he said, works backward to many others in which a public hearing is held before a formal application is made for funds.

The commissioners "had to make pre-application (for the grant) without benefit of public hearings," Tschauner said.

acing striking officers. He said only three or four patrol cars were out, compared with the usual 45 to 50.

"We want to put the citizens' fears to rest. There is police coverage," Jordan said. "We feel confident we have the manpower on patrol and standby to handle emergencies. We may have a problem if numerous emergencies come in."

Police reported late Monday night that there was no indication of a noticeable upswing in crime in this city of 677,000.

The police association is demanding a 13 per cent raise in salaries. The Board of supervisors approved a raise of 6.5 per cent.

City firemen, also seeking a 13 per cent pay boost, vote today and Wednesday to decide whether to stage their own walkout.

Under the current scale, police and firemen receive wages ranging from $16,044 for cadets to $44,832 for chiefs.

A 13 per cent raise for police would cost the city an estimated $13 million and put San Francisco officers at parity with Los Angeles police. San Francisco traditionally has paid the same rate as the highest-paying communities in the state.

Gerald Crowley, president of the police association, said the board's refusal to meet police demands "probably caused the most tragic day in San Francisco history."

He said striking police will refuse to provide emergency service until the board agrees to start negotiating with them.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto had vowed to fire any officer who failed to report for work, but there was no indication of any firings.

Fannie Winford Dies At Lamesa

LAMESA — Fannie Winford, 86, of Lamesa died early Monday morning in a hospital here after a brief illness.

Services were to be held at 2 p.m. today at the North Side Baptist Church here with the Rev. Dennis Hurd, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, officiating. Interment was to follow in Lamesa Memorial Park under the direction of Branon Funeral Home of Lamesa.

Mrs. Winford was a native of Durant, Okla. She was a Baptist for 70 years and had lived in Lamesa for 13 years.

Survivors include two sons, Fred A. Damron of Lamesa and J. C. Damron of Waco; 14 grandchildren; and 26 great-grandchildren.

Enrollment Up At Big Spring

BIG SPRING — Big Spring schools' first day enrollment figures were up for the first time in many years Monday, officials reported.

Total enrollment for secondary school enrollment for the first day of classes Monday was 2,936.

Last year, opening day enrollment in Big Spring's one high school and two junior high schools was 2,930.

Elementary school enrollment was 3,048. Last year's total was 2,996.

The kindergarten registration has not been completed, officials said.

New State Lease Form Distributed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A new lease form for State-owned lands under the Relinquishment Act is being sent by the General Land Office to persons interested in leasing those lands for mineral development.

The new form is to be used in connection with leasing such lands after Sept. 1, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong says.

The new form was made necessary by acts passed by the Legislature—SB 3, providing for natural gas from State-owned lands to not be sold outside Texas if there is a purchaser inside the state, and SB 604, giving the State the option of taking the royalty from production "in kind."

Carrillo Attorneys Will Seek Recess

Austin, Tex. (AP) — Attorneys for Duval County District Judge O. P. Carrillo have indicated they will ask a recess in the impeachment trial, scheduled to start Sept. 3 in the Texas Senate.

The trial by the 31-member Senate follows the 10 articles of impeachment voted by the House against the South Texas office holder Aug. 4-5. Carrillo has been suspended from his judicial post until after the trial.

Arthur Mitchell, Austin attorney representing Carrillo, urged the Senate Administration Committee Monday to keep in its proposed rules for the impeachment the requirement that the start of the trial could be postponed, more than once, by a simple majority vote.

"I wanted to present the problem now," Mitchell said concerning the scheduled Sept. 8 federal court trial of Carrillo in Corpus Christi on alleged income tax evasion charges. "So far as I know, it's going to trial, and I'd hate for a federal marshal to drag me out of the Senate if we didn't appear," he said.

"Federal marshals don't have the privileges of the floor in the Senate," remarked Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who will be the presiding officer at the impeachment trial.

Mitchell also called attention to another scheduled hearing Oct. 3 in Corpus Christi for Carrillo before the Judicial Qualifications Commission.

The Senate drew up a long list of proposed rules that will be presented the full membership when it assembles Sept. 3. They included:

—Allow live radio broadcasts of the entire trial.

—Allow natural light photographs while the trial is in progress but no flash bulbs or flood lights.

—Require all persons within the chamber, including news reporters, to register when they enter or leave. Newsmen must obtain special credentials to cover the trial.

—Prohibit senators, who act as the jury in the trial, from making public comments about the trial while it is in progress. The "gag rule" may be extended to attorneys later.

—Put a "call on the Senate" which would require all members to stay within the physical limits of the chamber and adjoining rooms while the trial is in progress.

—Gave Carrillo's attorneys full rights to argue "all preliminary pleadings" and to have them decided by the Senate before the Senate begins consideration of the actual articles of impeachment.

Mahon Says

Oilmen Need To Influence Voters, Not Congressmen

By GEORGE MASSEY

U.S. Rep. George Mahon, D-Lubbock, told Midland oilmen that the petroleum industry is going about things the wrong way in trying to influence legislation concerning the decontrol of oil prices.

Mahon indicated the oil industry should be trying to influence the voter — not congressmen.

The Midland oilmen, as a majority, voiced opinions that if members of Congress would "just come out here and take a look at what we're faced with" then they would support us with good petroleum related legislation.

But the 40-year senior congressman indicated time and again that the individual congressmen are going to be "swayed" by their "constituents." He said the constituents are the voters, and those congressmen are going to be very "careful" in the way they vote because they "have to please their constituents — the voters who elect them to office."

Congressman Mahon stood at the podium in front of a full room of oilmen at the Midland Petroleum Club. He told them, "The media is most important. Only yesterday, a reporter with the Washington Post read me an editorial published in that paper which supported decontrol of the oil and gas industry.

"That paper is most influential in the Northern and Eastern states," Mahon said. "Congress is working to gain the support of these people — it's coming about very slowly, but it's coming."

Mahon indicated that what the petroleum industry needs to do is influence the voters — the constituents of the individual congressmen. He indicated to the Midland oilmen that before they could expect to gain the support of the congressmen, they must gain the support of those who elect them in order to remove the fears Congress faces with the possibility of increased petroleum prices.

Mahon said, "The time of cheap fuel is over, and we just as well face that fact."

But, he said, "We are very, very lucky we haven't set in concrete bad energy legislation."

The congressman defended the lack of energy crisis action by saying, "It's better to do nothing than something damaging with legislation." He suggested that the level of "uncertainty" within the halls of Congress concerning the energy situation has forced the "stalemate" which now exists between the President and Congress.

"You're not going to like the legislation that gets passed," Mahon predicted, "but it's something that requires sacrifice. Congress and private industry is going to have to put some incentives into their programs. But so far there has been a disinclination to bite the bullet."

"The majority of the House and Congress voted for the extension of controls on oil oil," Mahon said, "but I didn't — it's just a way of postponing energy questions."

"I'm for the President's veto of controls on old oil," he said, but indicated later in his talk that "oil decontrol will not come about immediately — it will be phased out over an extended period of time."

Mahon said the $2 tariff on imported oil would ease the price increase brought on by decontrol possibly from 7 cents to only 4 cents per gallon.

He predicted the windfall profits tax could be "oppressive to the extent to discourage new exploration and production." Mahon said he would fight to see that a "liberal plowback" provision be included in the amendment. Oilmen have suggested a 100 per cent plowback to take the tax obligation away from the excess profits bill, but many members of Congress have indicated that a 25 per cent plowback provision is the best that can be hoped for.

Mahon said the efforts of fellow congressman Bob Eckhart, D-Houston, would be "disastrous" — concerning the Democrat's rollback proposals to limit all oil to an artificial $7.50 price level.

The congressman predicted a "crash" if the federal deficit continues to exceed the $70 billion level. He said, "The deficit will grow to $100 billion this year." If those national expenditures not shown by the budget are included, he said, "There must be a turnaround or we're in for a crash."

To a round of applause, the congressman told the oilmen, "Congress to find ways and means of getting oil and gas exploration and production. Unless we let the free enterprise system take over — we'll never solve this problem."

Mahon suggested that the President and Congress are "coming closer together" on energy crisis action.

He predicts no major action on tax reform and said, "Tax rebates seem a bit amateurish on ways to solve the national economy problems."

"One man's reform is another's punitive action," Mahon said, which indicated the stress on the importance to inform the constituents (the consumers of petroleum) in lieu of their congressmen.

Showers Skip Most Of State

Those persistent showers dried up across Texas for awhile today and even warmer weather was in prospect for northern sections of the state.

Clouds thickened over the Central Texas Hill Country. It was clear to partly cloudy elsewhere. The Associated Press reported.

A few light showers in the northeast part of the Panhandle provided the only moisture during the night, and they dried up before daybreak.

Temperatures in early morning dropped no lower than 68 degrees at Midland and Odessa in West Texas, ranging through the 70s elsewhere up to 81 at Palacios on the coast.

Official observers said even warmer weather was on the way behind west winds into the north part of the state. Top marks Monday afternoon climbed as high as 99 at Dallas and Waco.

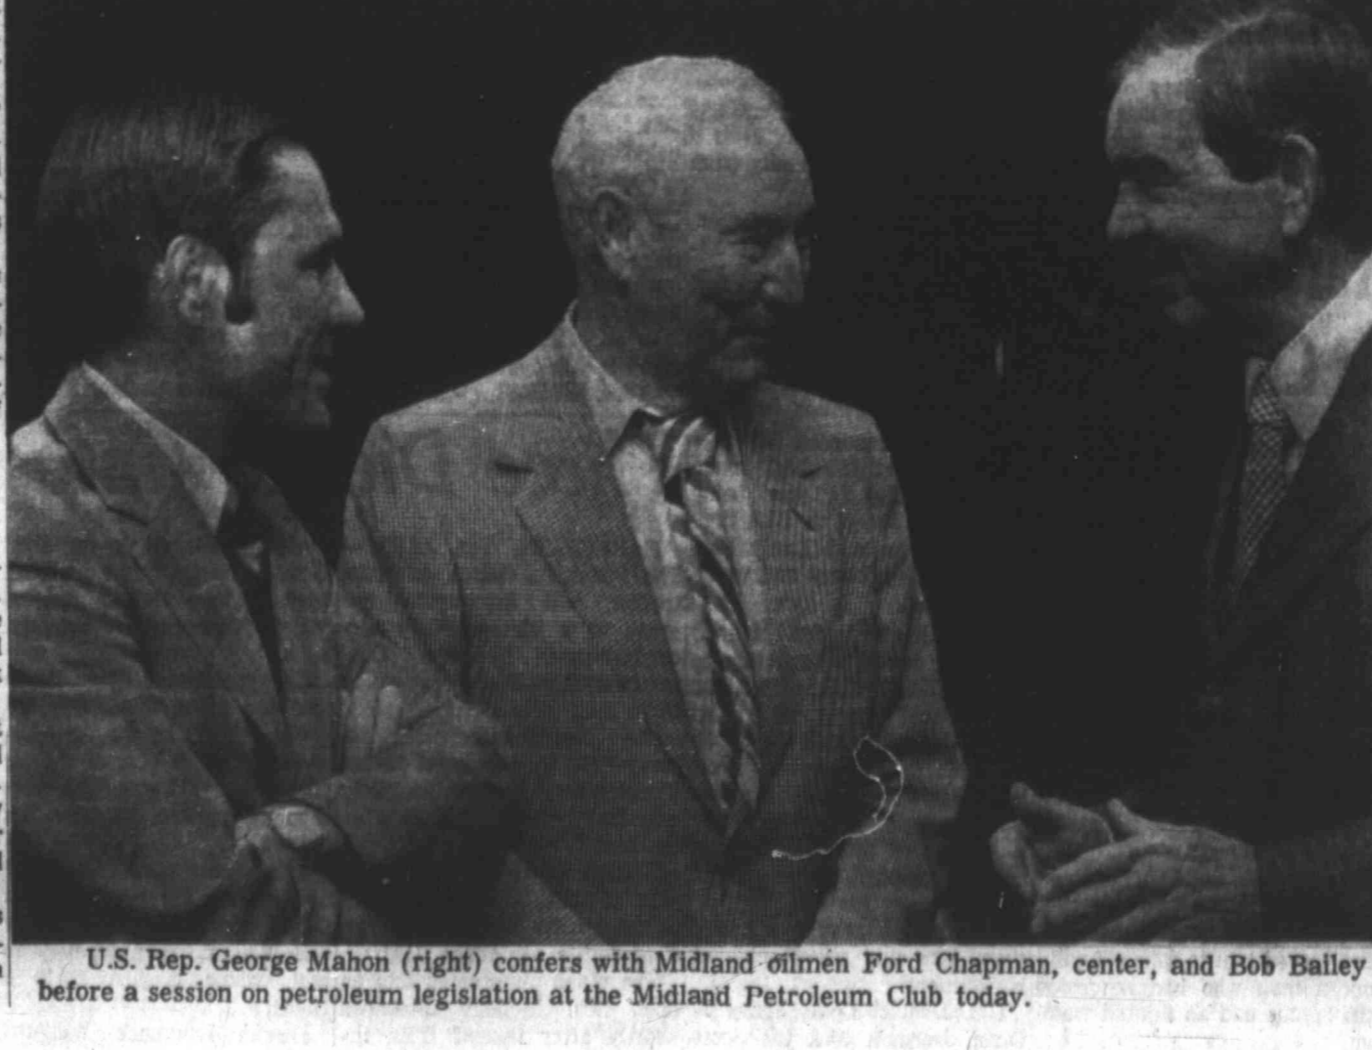

Another round of thunderstorms was promised by evening from Southwest Texas into the Panhandle.

Midlander's Brother Dies At Lubbock

LEVELL — Elbert Clifton Lester, 68, brother of Mrs. Thelma Rhinehart and Minnie Richman, both of Midland, died Sunday morning in a Lubbock hospital.

Services were to be held at 2 p.m. today in Smith Funeral Home Memorial Chapel here. Interment was to be in the City of Levelland Cemetery under the direction of Smith Funeral Home of Levelland.

Other survivors include his widow, two daughters, two stepdaughters, a stepson, and a brother.

Make Nectarine Upside-down Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

In this Bicentennial period it's time to celebrate an ingenious American invention — upside-down cake.

This summer, for the first time, we tried a recipe featuring fresh nectarines and the dessert was delicious. The nectarines hold up in neat slices and have delicate flavor. The cake batter is a decent one and, most important of all, there's a good ratio of cake to fruit — not too much, not too little.

FRESH NECTARINE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-3rd cup butter
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
3 large (about 1 pound) fresh nectarines
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2-3rds cup granulated sugar
Large egg
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1/2 cup milk

On wax or brown paper sift together the flour, baking powder and salt.

In a square (9 by 9 by 1 1/2 inches) cake pan over low heat melt the 1-3rd cup butter; remove from heat and stir in the brown sugar; spread evenly. Rinse and dry nectarines; halve and pit. Cut each half into 4 thick slices. Arrange in an attractive design over butter-sugar mixture — they will not cover entire surface.

Cream the 1/2 cup butter and granulated sugar; thoroughly blend in egg and lemon rind. Stir in flour mixture in several additions, alternately with milk, just until smooth each time. Spoon evenly over nectarines.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until cake shrinks from sides of pan and a tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 40 to 45 minutes.

Place cake in pan on a wire rack and let stand for 10 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen edges; invert onto a serving plate. Serve warm (or reheat) with a topping of whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Makes 9 servings.

Note: For the most delicate cake batter, use cake flour as suggested and sift before measuring. For a good but a little less delicate batter, all-purpose flour may be used; either sift (even if the flour is marked presifted on its bag) or fork-stir thoroughly to aerate before measuring.

Those Teen-Agers Did Learn To Cooperate

Jelly side down

By NANCY STAHL

Contrary to popular opinion, there are advantages to sharing a house with two teen-agers.

Not many, mind you; at least twice a week I lie down with my head in the oven, only to remember that I have an electric range.

Perhaps the most comforting aspect, however, is that I no longer am forced to act as the Court of Appeals in such civil disputes as whose turn it is to make Jello or feed the budgie.

Teen-agers work out such disagreements themselves using logic, as is evidence from the following actual conversation:

"I get the brown chair."

"You had the brown chair last night when we watched 'Kojak.' You were wearing the green socks that don't match, I saw my daughter.

gunky blue nail polish, and you were eating a navel orange. Look, here are the seeds that you hid under the cushion!"

Though I rarely become involved in such a perfectly-functioning code of ethics, last night I couldn't help exclaiming when I saw my daughter.

"Boy, are you going to get it! You're wearing your brother's hockey suspenders!"

"I can wear his hockey suspenders whenever I want since I let him borrow my toothbrush," she replied.

"Where's HIS toothbrush?"

"I have it. I traded him an empty match box for it."

"Why, for heaven's sakes?"

"He needed something to put his silverfish in."

"What silverfish?"

"The silverfish that Tommy traded him for a ham sandwich and a picture of Ursula Andress in the nude."

"But why did you need his toothbrush?"

"How else do you separate your eyelashes?"

Dear Abby Husband's Boss Should Be Asked To Beach Parties Only

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an executive with a large insurance company. My problem is my husband's boss. He's not an alcoholic, but when he drinks too much (which is every time we entertain him in our home), he loses control of his kidneys, and I can't tell you what he has done to our furniture! (I had to re-cover a satin brocade chair because the cleaners couldn't get the stain out.)

Another time the boss had one of those "accidents," my husband let him wear his best bathrobe for the rest of the evening. The boss wore it home, and I never saw it again. It happens to be the robe I gave my husband last year for Christmas and I want him to get it back, but he doesn't have nerve to ask for it because he doesn't want to embarrass his boss. What do you suggest?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: Since your husband is in the insurance business, perhaps you are covered for such damages and losses. (Have you flood insurance?) In any case, if your husband lacks the courage to ask for the robe, write off the loss. And the next time you entertain the boss, make it a beach party.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the husband who was being driven up a wall because his wife used "you know" at least once in every sentence:

I recently made a tape-recording to send to a friend, and when I played it back, I couldn't believe my ears. I had said, "and what not" at the end of nearly every sentence.

After that, I vowed to overcome that obnoxious habit. The husband who is tired of hearing his wife say, "You know," all the time ought to rent or buy a tape recorder and get first-hand evidence of all those "you knows." After she hears it, she will clean up her act.

SUSAN

DEAR SUSAN: You know, that's a dandy idea!

DEAR ABBY: I am 64. I raised my children alone after an early divorce. Somehow, I never took the time to make myself glamorous or think of a second marriage.

Two years ago (at age 62), I had an excellent secretarial job. A man my age came from another state to be my boss. He was extremely attractive but he had a good marriage and grown children, so I had no designs on him.

Because he went home only on weekends, we dined together every night, and soon our friendship developed into an affair. It was the greatest thing that ever happened to me, although I knew there was no future in it.

He has now been permanently based with this office, and his wife has moved here. She and I have become the best of friends. (I am now retired.)

The wife and I visit with each other, but the man I see as her husband is not the man who comes to visit me when he gets a night out alone. I still love him deeply, but I'll never do anything to cause another woman any pain. We are, very discreet and no one knows. (Can you imagine two people in their 60s having an affair such as ours?)

He will eventually retire and make his home in a distant state, and I'll probably never see him again. Meanwhile, I'll enjoy whatever happiness I have with him. When he leaves, it will be over.

I enjoy my family, travel a lot and will just kill time until I'm old enough to die. I consider myself a respectable woman. There is no problem, so no solution is needed. Thanks for reading this. I had to tell someone.

"AN OLD FOOL?"

Everyone has a problem what's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Nutritious Snacks Can Prevent Decay Of Teeth

COLLEGE STATION — Nutritious snacks give an extra boost to help preschoolers avoid tooth decay, Mrs. Mary Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, advises.

"Celery cut in fan shapes, carrot curls, radish roses, lettuce leaves or raw cauliflower will tickle a preschooler's imagination, and satisfy his hunger pains," this specialist said.

Serve fresh fruits such as melon balls, plums, apples, oranges, grapefruit, lemonade or other juices.

Meat, boiled eggs or cheese cubes or wedges add protein for the hungry child and do not hasten tooth decay, she reminds.

"Tooth decay results from chemical reactions in the mouth. Starchy foods supply the food required by germs or bacteria in the mouth. This results in acid formation, which takes anywhere from 10 seconds to 30 minutes after eating candy or other starch foods. Thus the result is tooth decay.

"The longer this acid remains in the mouth, the more likely the tooth is to decay. This is why hard candies kept in the mouth a long time are actually more harmful than a chocolate bar or chocolate mint.

"The sugar and reaction of the bacteria on the teeth produce more acid, because hard or sticky candy remains in the mouth longer," Mrs. Sweeten explained.

She reminded that brushing teeth immediately after eating concentrated sweets is most important, also.

'Winningest' Team

The Midland Cubs simply have to be one of the "winningest" clubs ever in professional baseball.

Certainly the 1975 team, which has done what many said couldn't be attained, has broken all kinds of records in the annals of the Texas League.

Whether or not you keep up with professional baseball, all Midlanders surely must be proud as can be of their Cubbies, as they affectionately are called, upon the successful season they have had to date. And they still are going strong. The Cubs certainly do not plan any let-up... and neither do their loyal fans.

"What is it the Cubs have done to make them so noteworthy?"

Glad that you asked that question, podner, 'cause we were ready to say something about it anyway.

Back in June, the Cubs found themselves 13-plus games out of first place, trailing the Shreveport Captains, who, up to that point, could do no wrong on the diamond.

It was then that the Midland Cubs made up their mind, as a team, to take over first place in the league standings before the end of the season.

Well, this almost impossible dream, became a reality right here in Cub Stadium one night last week, and, believe it or not, the Shreveport Captains formed the stepping stone to the league leadership for the Cubs.

"How did the Cubs do it?"

Well, obviously, by winning ball games, but back of that was the determination of a well-balanced, talented ball club which had decided that it was going to pull ahead.

It represents a tremendous achievement in the ranks of organized baseball... bringing fame and glory not only to the team and its members but to the Tall City of Midland as well.

As Reporter-Telegram Sports Editor Ted Battles said, "Making up 13 games and pulling ahead for the first time ever in Midland Cubs history is enough to label the season a success, regardless of what happens the rest of the way."

Well said, but we have an idea the Cubs now have made up their minds to annex the league pennant.

Meanwhile, the Cubs conclude their regular season home schedule Thursday night. Midland and area residents in record numbers should be on hand to show their appreciation for their "winningest" Texas League representative.

Let's Cut Weeds

The dear lady, one of Midland's leaders in city beautification for half a century, appealed to the editor to help her find someone to cut the weeds on vacant property adjacent to her home.

"I read the articles and editorial on weeds in The Reporter-Telegram and I want to do my part in getting rid of some of them," she said. "I no longer can cut weeds and I can't find anyone interested in doing this kind of work."

This problem perhaps confronts others. It could be that there are individuals and groups who would like to be of two fold service in this regard—earning a few dollars for themselves or their organizations, and improving the appearance of the Tall City by "harvesting" some of the near-record weed crop.

If there are those interested in this sort of community service, they should make themselves known.

We are glad to report that this newspaper's recent call to action has produced some results, but not nearly enough. City crews and others have been busy with hoes and rakes the last several days. It is easy to see where the work has been taking place. It looks great, too. Stay with 'em!

Boomlet Reported In U.S.-Soviet Trade

MOSCOW — There is a remarkable boomlet in U.S.-Soviet trade, so growing numbers of American businessmen scurry about the Soviet capital having little time to learn Russian or dabble in this land's history and culture. They are so busy that they pay no more heed to the looming Kremlin walls than they would to Wall Street's vast canyons.

Before that intrepid foe of detente Sen. Henry (Scoop) Jackson (D-Wash.), goes into another fret, however, let it be said that the actual trade beneath all this bustling activity is small stuff indeed. Less than 1 per cent of American exports come to the Soviet Union, and Pepsi Cola's business is only a smidgen.

Nonetheless, the Soviets are delighted, even exuberant, over the American traffic. It's a matter of pride with them that the U.S. — Soviet Trade Council was established after the Nixon-Brezhnev 1973 meeting, thus removing the inhibitions of many an American firm to do business with the Soviets. The U.S. plunger spurred European and Japanese firms, already doing substantial business here, to increase their efforts.

Actually, U.S.-Soviet trade dates to Lenin's time, 1923, when Ford Motor Co. sold 8,000 tractors to the Soviets. Dr. Armand Hammer, president of Occidental Oil Co., which has an $8 billion contract with the Soviets, made his first deal here in the '20s, and so did General Electric.

In the cold war and in detente, there were barriers to such trade. Pressure from anti-Communist groups like the Young Americans for Freedom stopped a Firestone tire deal. AFL-CIO

President George Meany constantly lobbies against doing business with the Soviets. Jewish groups voice opposition, and a Ford Motor Co. truck deal was stopped by Melvin Laird when he was secretary of Defense.

Currently, Sen. Jackson heads the opposition to extending the Soviets easy credit or most favored nation status, a term which should be changed to normal trade status because that's what it is. Moreover, the Soviets claim they diverted $900 million in purchases from the United States to European and Japanese firms in recent years because the U.S. government blocked the deal.

What the Soviets primarily want from U.S. industry is technical know-how, the machinery and equipment to build plants. The Soviets want to be able to manufacture far more cars and trucks, extract the vast deposits of minerals, oil, coal and gas which lie within their borders, and construct factories which can produce much yearned for consumer goods.

Europe, Japan and the United States can sell them the know-how. So the boomlet here is with American companies which can build, for example: Pullman, Inc., DuPont, Engelhard Minerals and Chemicals, General Elec-

ART BUCHWALD

Lovlost Finds Its Way -- Or Something

(Nothing seems to have changed in the last 20 years as proved by this column which Mr. Buchwald wrote when he was living in Europe.)

Art Buchwald

Many people are still not too clear about what exactly is happening with the gold reserves in the United States. It appears from what the President has said, and what the secretary of the Treasury has tried to do, that the situation is serious.

Nothing could dramatize the plight better than what has happened in Lovlost-by-the-sea, the tiny European country that has been a bulwark against communism and a friend of the United States since the early days of 1946.

As everyone knows, Lovlost was on the side of the Germans in World War II and therefore was entitled to immediate financial aid from the United States once the hostilities had ceased.

Since 1946 Americans have poured in $150 million until today she has one of the strongest economies in Western Europe. Just before the Marshall Plan went into effect, Lovlost's currency, which is known as the "bardot," was one of the weakest in the world and it took 500 bardots to make a dollar. Now it takes 500 dollars to equal one bardot.

It is this strengthening of the bardot that has caused a drain on the U.S. gold reserves.

To make matters worse, Lovlost is a vital link in the chain of Western European defenses, and it has the only carrier pigeon station in NATO.

While the bodies of the pigeons can be handled by Lovlost, only the beaks may be touched by the Americans: It is for this reason that American troops, a private and a corporal, have been stationed in Lovlost.

When President Eisenhower put out his edict that Army dependents had to come home, it raised a bitter fuss in Lovlost. The corporal, who had a wife with him, said nothing as he was carrying on with a girl from Lovlost. But the private, who was unmarried, was furious because he was in love with the corporal's wife.

The private protested to the secretary of Defense, pointing out that if the corporal's wife was sent home morale among the U.S. forces in Lovlost would go to hell. But while the secretary was sympathetic, he said that no matter how noble the cause "no exceptions could be made."

The first step in America's dramatic effort to halt the flow of gold to Lovlost was made.

The next step was even more dramatic. The Army PX in Lovlost, one of the largest in Europe with 500 civilian employees, was forbidden to sell Scotch, Canadian whisky or French Champagne. Since the corporal drank beer and the private made his own from raisins, not too much of a saving was made there. But as Pentagon officials explained, if the corporal was promoted to sergeant he "might" start drinking Scotch, and it was better to lock the barn door before the horse was stolen.

The third step was by far the most dramatic. The President decided to send the assistant secretary of State for Lovlost affairs to plead with the Lovlost prime minister to pay for the costs of maintaining American troops in Lovlost.

In one of the worst slaps to American prestige, the prime minister turned down the assistant secretary flat and said, "Thanks to American aid, the bardot is now the strongest currency in the world. If we helped share the military burden, the bardot would be weakened again and then we would have to ask for an increase in American dollar aid, something we don't want to do, as you yourself say the dollar is in trouble."

The only thing that came out of the assistant secretary's visit is that everyone in Lovlost started to panic and exchange dollars for Spanish pesetas.

But as the assistant secretary pointed out when he got home, "Lovlost is now aware of our situation, and for that reason alone my trip was worthwhile."

Union-Ordered Ban On Handling Grain Triggers Protests

By The Associated Press

Farm organization leaders and political figures in key grain states are reacting strongly against the announced refusal of maritime unions to load U.S. grain on ships headed for the Soviet Union.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said Monday the unions will refuse to handle the grain cargoes until the Ford administration guarantees that consumers are protected from higher prices and takes steps to provide more work for American seamen.

The boycott is being imposed at Great Lakes, Gulf and East Coast ports because the grain sales to the Soviet Union would "cost American consumers billions of dollars," Meany told newsmen in Washington.

The stop-work order came after the International Longshoremen's Association and five other AFL-CIO maritime unions last month threatened to boycott the new Soviet grain shipments.

There was no immediate reaction from Ford administration officials.

However, Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas — the nation's biggest wheat-producing state — called the boycott "arrogant."

"The refusal of longshoremen to load American wheat on vessels bound for the Soviet Union is an ill-conceived grandstand play that could have tragic consequences for the wheat-producing Midwest and our entire nation," Bennett said.

The governor urged President Ford "to take quick and forceful action to see that the export of U.S. grain is not disrupted."

Board members of the Kansas Farm Bureau directed John Junior Armstrong, their president, to investigate the possibility of a $1-billion class action suit against the AFL-CIO and the International Longshoremen's Association.

"It's hard to believe that one man can bring economic havoc on American agriculture, but Meany did it," Armstrong said.

Houston Orders

Meany said orders were issued Monday suspending handling grain on two ships in the Port of Houston until it can be determined whether the cargo involves new purchases or shipments under an earlier deal. Old purchases will be loaded, he said.

However, longshoremen in Houston continued to load grain bound for Russia. A spokesman for the AFL-CIO said later there apparently was a lag before the longshoremen received official orders not to load ships.

Citing rising prices for flour, wheat, corn and soybeans over the past month, Meany told a news conference the new grain purchases will "give the Russians an open door to our private grain market... in a way that is going to cost the American consumer billions of dollars."

"The American housewife is still paying" for the 1972 grain deal which resulted in higher domestic prices, Meany said, asserting that "this is not going to happen again."

Meany suggested that any new grain purchases should be made on a government-to-government basis instead of permitting private industry to negotiate the sales.

The Constitution Of 1869

After all the wrangling and rabbit-chasing of the Convention of 1868, the constitution it produced was remarkably moderate in most of its provisions. Thus frustrated in their efforts on the convention floor, the ultra-Radicals sent a delegation to Washington in a vain attempt to get Congress to invalidate it. Instead of disfranchising most of the white population, as the military had and the ultra-Radicals wanted to continue to do, it placed only such restrictions on former rebels as the U.S. Congress might provide. This paved the way for general participation in politics, the election of many conservative legislators and the return to power of the Democrats, as soon as Reconstruction ended.

The most dangerous trend in the new constitution was the strengthening of the central state government at the expense of county and other local units. This paved the way for Edmund J. Davis, as the next governor, to become the most hated tyrant in the history of the state. Combined with this, the free-handed disbursement of public credit and money to the railroads was to corrupt the legislature and bankrupt the treasury.

By making the judiciary, including the supreme court, appointive, the constitution made it possible for Governor Davis to dominate the courts. He would not hesitate to use this power. In 1873, when he was overwhelmingly defeated by the resurgent Democrats, Davis would have his hand-picked supreme court declare the election invalid. Basing their opinion on the placement of a semi-colon in the election law, this court went down in history as "The Semi-Colon Court."

The Constitution of 1869 accomplished its basic purpose, insuring readmission of Texas to the Union and the end of military occupation. Although the years of its effectiveness would be full of turmoil and bitterness in Texas, it paved the way for a return of control of the government to the people, secured the vote and other privileges of citizenship for the black population and gave most Texans a strong distaste for centralization of power in Austin.

Ironically, this constitution instituted the poll tax, which was years later to be abolished, primarily as a hindrance to the minority vote. The tax was established simply as another income for the public school fund, to which all funds from the sales of public lands were also dedicated. Another educational landmark in this document was the provision for compulsory attendance of the public schools.

Cool Weather Spreads Over North

By The Associated Press

Cool, showery weather spread across the northern third of the nation today. Clear to partly cloudy skies and seasonably warm temperatures prevailed elsewhere.

The cool weather extended from northern New England across the Great Lakes and northern Plains to the Pacific Coast. Bands of showers stretched from the northern Pacific Coast across the northern Rockies and into northern Plains.

Thundershowers were also reported in the upper Mississippi Valley and along the southern Atlantic Coast and eastern Gulf Coasts.

Highs today ranged from the 60s and 70s across the northern states and along the northern Pacific Coast to the 80s and 90s elsewhere.

Heavy rain from thunderstorms on Monday set off some local flooding in the Carolinas. Hail up to 1 1/4 inches in diameter fell in sections of Nebraska, Kansas and Illinois. There were funnel clouds and a few waterspouts sighted along the Gulf Coast, but no damage was reported.

A high pressure system centered over the upper Great Lakes continued to pull cold air southward overnight. Temperatures were generally in the 50s from New England through Wisconsin, with some readings down in the mid 40s.

Temperatures over the nation early this morning ranged from 89 at Needles, Calif. to 43 at Pellston and Marquette, both in Michigan.

Some other reports: Anchorage 59 light rain, Atlanta 71 clear, Boston 65 clear, Buffalo 56 clear, Chicago 69 cloudy, Cincinnati 68 partly cloudy, Cleveland 66 partly cloudy, Dallas 83 clear, Denver 66 clear, Detroit 63 clear, Honolulu 76 clear, Indianapolis 71 cloudy, Kansas City 75 clear, Los Angeles 64 partly cloudy, Louisville 71 partly cloudy, Miami 78 clear, Minneapolis-St. Paul 68 cloudy, Nashville 73 fog, New York 67 clear, Philadelphia 69 clear, Phoenix 88 partly cloudy, Pittsburgh 66 partly cloudy, St. Louis 74 clear, San Francisco 57 cloudy, Seattle 5 cloudy, Washington 76 partly cloudy.

Princess Getting Crank Phone Calls

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne has been getting crank telephone calls but staff members at her home have intercepted them, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said today.

The calls began about a month ago to the unlisted number at Oak Grove House within the grounds of Sandhurst Military Academy, where the princess lives with her husband, army Capt. Mark Phillips.

"There hasn't been one word spoken—it's just been silence, clicks and sometimes whistles," the palace spokesman said. "The number was changed but the calls started again the next day."

He said the princess was "irritated" by the calls, "but she's not easily ruffled."

The 25-year-old princess, who has been away for two weeks horseback riding and visiting her in-laws, returned home today. Calls to her number were being monitored by police and telephone company investigators.

Nation Taking Unemployment in Stride

The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — Last April the industrial union department of the AFL-CIO staged a rally at Robert F. Kennedy stadium in Washington to seek more jobs for America's eight million unemployed.

Tens of thousands of persons showed up from across the nation to hear some encouraging word on job prospects. But the rally broke up an hour after it started.

The abortive ending to the rally was a sharp contrast to the turbulent days of the 60s when thousands of Americans eagerly took to the streets to demonstrate for nearly any cause.

Certainly, the man on the street gripes about high prices. The corporate executive complains that business is off and bankruptcies continue to climb. In urban areas, at least, nearly everyone knows of a friend or relative who has been laid off or fired.

While some racial violence has flared this summer, there has been little organized activity against the government or corporations to voice opposition to the worst recession since the Great Depression.

While there doesn't appear to be any clearcut reason for the tolerance of 8.6 per cent unemployment — with no quick relief in sight — still experts tend to attribute the feeling to the times, plus very practical factors such as welfare, union or unemployment compensation benefits which can amount to a half or two-thirds of normal pay for more than a year.

Also, President Ford has told the nation that high unemployment is inevitable until inflation can be brought under control, which perhaps defused any potential social unrest. However, joblessness is sure to be an issue in the 1976 election.

Ernest Green, executive director of RTP Inc., a New York-based organization which helps minorities qualify for union hiring, says he feels people are accepting the high unemployment rate because "the activities of the 60s drained a lot of people."

"This time, unemployment has hit not only the poor, but the middle class. Also, factors like the Watergate scandal and the oil crisis have left people with the feeling that they can't do much about the world," he says.

"There are no specific targets like there were in the 1960s when, for instance, blacks couldn't eat in all restaurants so we could demonstrate for rights like that. Unemployment isn't a black thing. It's everyone's problem and I think we are going to see a broader based effort in congress from minorities to work for overall employment."

Also a lack of leadership to organize opposition is missing from this issues which doesn't carry the emotional volatility that racial issues or the Vietnam war did. There is no one person or situation upon whom to place the blame. Members of Congress informally report that while they receive constituent mail complaining about high or inequitable prices, mail discussing unemployment is virtually nil.

As an unemployed school teacher from San Diego put it, "I'm too busy job-hunting to waste time complaining about it." Others might feel there is a stigma attached to being unemployed which would rule out public displays of anger or frustration.

On the other side, the Bureau of Labor Statistics counted 1.2 million persons this month who were not looking for work because they thought they wouldn't be able to find a job. The number of these "discouraged workers" has levelled off as the year wears on, but since the third quarter of 1974 the number of discouraged workers has increased by 530,000.

In other recessions, a period of unemployment lasted only about five weeks per person. However, by the second quarter of this year, the average jobless period was nearly 14 weeks, up from nine weeks a year ago and the longest duration in more than a decade.

Film To Show South's Role In Early War

By WILLIAM H. JONES
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Was it the South that really won the war? According to a Washington film maker, Peter A. Beltz, the South indeed prevailed. But he's talking about the Revolutionary War and not that between the states nearly a century later.

Moreover, Beltz is hoping to find adequate financial resources to produce a major motion picture on the subject, based on three years of research about the Revolutionary period.

What is most unusual about Beltz's project is the fact that he is based here and not in traditional film centers. In addition, he is planning an unorthodox approach of trying to raise money for his projected 3 1/2-hour film, called "The Giant and the Gentleman," and budgeted at about $3.5 million.

He has met with groups of investors in such cities as Charlottesville and Winchester, Va., and has sold shares in his company — Lexington Green, Ltd. — as well as pieces of the film. Now he is prepared to place advertisements in newspapers throughout the Southeast, seeking donations for a film that would dramatize how significant fighting in South Carolina ended up in England's defeat.

Central characters in the film will be Daniel Morgan, a Winchester farmer who became a general in the Continental Army, and Lt. Col. Banastre Tarleton of His Majesty's Green Dragons — who, despite a "gentleman" label, earned the title of "bloody Tarleton" for butchering men and raping women. The two leaders met in a climactic battle at Hannah's Cowpens, S.C., around which the film will concentrate.

Although Washington has never been a major center of commercial motion picture creation and production, it is a film town — with government and institutional films turned out each year.

Beltz's projected venture would not be the first full-length feature completed by a Washington film business. That status has been claimed by Sheldon Tromberg, who teaches a course on the movie world at Georgetown University.

Tromberg is producer of a film tentatively titled "Country Boy," now being edited here after two months of on-location shooting in and around Chapel Hill, N.Y. The movie was filmed in color with a 60-member cast and crew directed by Christopher G. Casler.

Beltz's project is more ambitious and he is hoping to convince Gene Hackman to play Morgan and Michael York to play Tarleton. But no stars have been approached, to date, and the script still must be completed, Beltz said in an interview.

Beltz hopes to direct financing and completion of preparations for actual filming that would start next February. He is aiming for a premiere date of Dec. 25, 1976 — in Washington, Charleston, Camden and Spartansburg, S.C.

A crucial time is now, Beltz emphasized, in detailing how a small film maker tries to make it in a large entertainment industry. He is not new to the business: Previous credentials include writing, directing and acting in "The Animals Are Crying," a film on animal overpopulation that won a first prize in the San Francisco film festival several years ago. He also has other scripts to his credit and was a newsman and photographer earlier.

Beltz asserted that Washington is notoriously bad in terms of investor interest in motion pictures. He attributed this to a conservative attitude on the part of government workers. He also emphasized that presentations on his film project start with a warning that at least 80 per cent of movies started fail to make money.

To date, Beltz's Lexington Green, Ltd., has raised about $50,000 — mostly from people in Virginia and South Carolina. Beltz expressed surprise that Hollywood is not turning out a number of films for the nation's Bicentennial — in contrast with work on television projects.

Beltz described himself as basically "creative," but he is spending an estimated 75 per cent of his time on the business side of his project. An agreement is possible, he said, with a major studio to co-produce the film.

"Hollywood may find this kind of ludicrous," Beltz conceded of his plan to seek contributions of a dollar or more. "But if we get a response, it will register on the studios."

Bentsen Considers Entering Arkansas Primary Next Year

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said Monday he probably would enter the Arkansas presidential primary election next year.

Bentsen told reporters at a news conference that he would have to think over the situation and then decide what to do if Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., becomes a candidate in the Arkansas primary.

Bentsen, who had introduced himself to about 250 Arkansans at a get-acquainted luncheon earlier in the day, said he was pleased with the results.

Not Widely Known
His name is not widely known outside Texas. However, he said trips such as the one to Arkansas would help to change that.

Bentsen said he doubted that Gov. George Wallace of Alabama would be as big a factor next year as he has in the past. Wallace also is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination.

Wallace carried Arkansas in 1968 on the American party ticket and has continued to attract support with the appeal that a vote for Wallace would amount to a message to Washington that Americans don't like the way things are.

Answers Needed
But, Bentsen said that Americans not only want a spokesman for their frustrations, "they want answers," and that when it comes time to vote, Americans won't be just sending a message, "they'll be sending a President."

On other matters, Bentsen said: —The death penalty would be justified "in extreme cases." An example, he said, would be an incident in which a terrorist planted a bomb which exploded and killed "scores of innocent people."

—The Congress, where Democrats have a majority in both chambers, is trying to cope with the nation's problems by passing such measures as the jobs bill, the housing bill and the agriculture bill. But, President Ford has vetoed all three of those bills and the Democrats don't have the two-thirds majority to override.

—It would not be appropriate to label him as the most conservative of the Democrats now seeking the nomination. "I don't like labels," Bentsen said. "I just ask myself will it work, will it be effective, can we afford it, and then I vote accordingly."

—His ideas to reduce the consumption of fuel include tax breaks as incentives to encourage manufacturers to convert their machinery to types which use less energy, tax charges on automobile manufacturers for not producing automobiles that get more miles per gallon, tax credits for improved insulation of homes. He conceded that the tax on manufacturers of automobiles probably would be passed on to consumers. He did not favor cutting import taxes on foreign-made cars even though they get better mileage than most U.S.-produced cars. Bentsen said American car makers and their employees needed the protection that import duties give. The taxes inflate the showroom price of imported vehicles.

—The price controls on "old" oil should be removed not all at once as advocated by President Ford but over a period of about 3½ years.

—In bargaining with Russia during the era of detente, the United States has occasionally been "out-traded" and should take a tougher stance to get from the Russians concessions which are more in line with those the United States makes. "I don't want to go back to the cold war," Bentsen added.

—Americans believe in selling agricultural products abroad. The sales, such as grain deals with Russia, ought to be subject to Agriculture Department confirmation that a surplus exists.

THE EASY WAY — John Bales, 23, of Seattle, Wash., who says a glove on a stick is the only way to hitchhike to Central America, waits for a ride near Salinas, Calif. Bales said holding out his thumb all that way would be too much and besides, the glove gets more attention. (AP Wirephoto.)

U.S. Judges To Get Built-In Pay Hikes After Retirement

By EVANS WITT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal judges now can look to retiring at full pay with guaranteed automatic pension increases to keep up with increases in the cost of living.

Pension immunity from inflation for the more than 600 federal judges is one effect of the pay-raise bill signed recently by President Ford and brings the federal bench to a par with a number of state courts.

The pay-raise measure affects judges' pensions because their retirement pay generally is defined as the full salary for their last post, court administrative officials say. Therefore, as basic pay for judges goes up under terms of the pay-raise bill, pensions for retired federal jurists also will increase.

The new law also provides pay raises for the vice president, members of Congress, Cabinet members and other top officials. But their pensions are calculated differently, and they don't retire at full pay.

All pay hikes under the new law will be keyed to rises in the consumer price index, which is used to measure changes in the cost of living. The pay raise this year could be as much as 8 per cent, although Ford, who must recommend the precise figure, has talked in terms of a 5 per cent raise.

Here is an example of how the law will work for federal judges:

A U.S. district judge now is paid $40,000 a year. A retired U.S. district judge also draws a $40,000 annual pension if the judge retired at age 65 or older.

If this year's cost-of-living pay raise turns out to be 5 per cent, the active district judge would get a $2,000 pay raise to $42,000. The retired judge also would get a $2,000 pension increase if the retired judge left the bench at age 70 after 10 years of service or at age 65 after 15 years service.

Lawmakers' Overspending Ruled Subject To Penalty

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill has ruled that a House member who intentionally exceeds his office expense account limit is subject to a jail term, fine or both.

A number of representatives have exceeded the amount allowed for office expenses, but "I haven't had to contact anybody in three months," said House budget officer Jim Reynolds.

Hill's opinion said that to knowingly exceed a legislative expense limit would violate a penal code provision against abuse of power by public officials.

The penal code carries a $2,000 fine or two-year jail term or both for violation of that law. "A representative's authority to charge expenditures to the state is limited by HSR4 (the House expenses resolution). When he goes beyond the limits established in that resolution he exceeds his official power. Thus, in our opinion the act of intentionally or knowingly charging expenditures to the state beyond those authorized in HSR4 could constitute a violation of section 39.01 (of the penal code)," Hill said.

His opinion went to Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, chairman of the House Administrative Committee.

Laney said he had no particular representatives in mind when he sought the opinion.

House members can spend $3,000 per month when the legislature is not in session. Their allowance during sessions is $4,000 per month.

South ruffed the second diamond, led a heart to the king and tried the spade finesse. This cost him one trick in each suit. "Hard luck," South remarked, "every card was wrong."

There was no need for South to rely on finesses in spades and hearts. If he had sent out a scout, he would have discovered that both finesses were sure to lose.

LOCATE STRENGTH
After ruffing the second diamond South should lead a club to dummy's king. If that won, South would know that East held the king of spades or the queen of hearts for his raise.

When the king of clubs actually loses to East's ace, South knows that West must hold the missing high cards in spades and hearts for his opening bid.

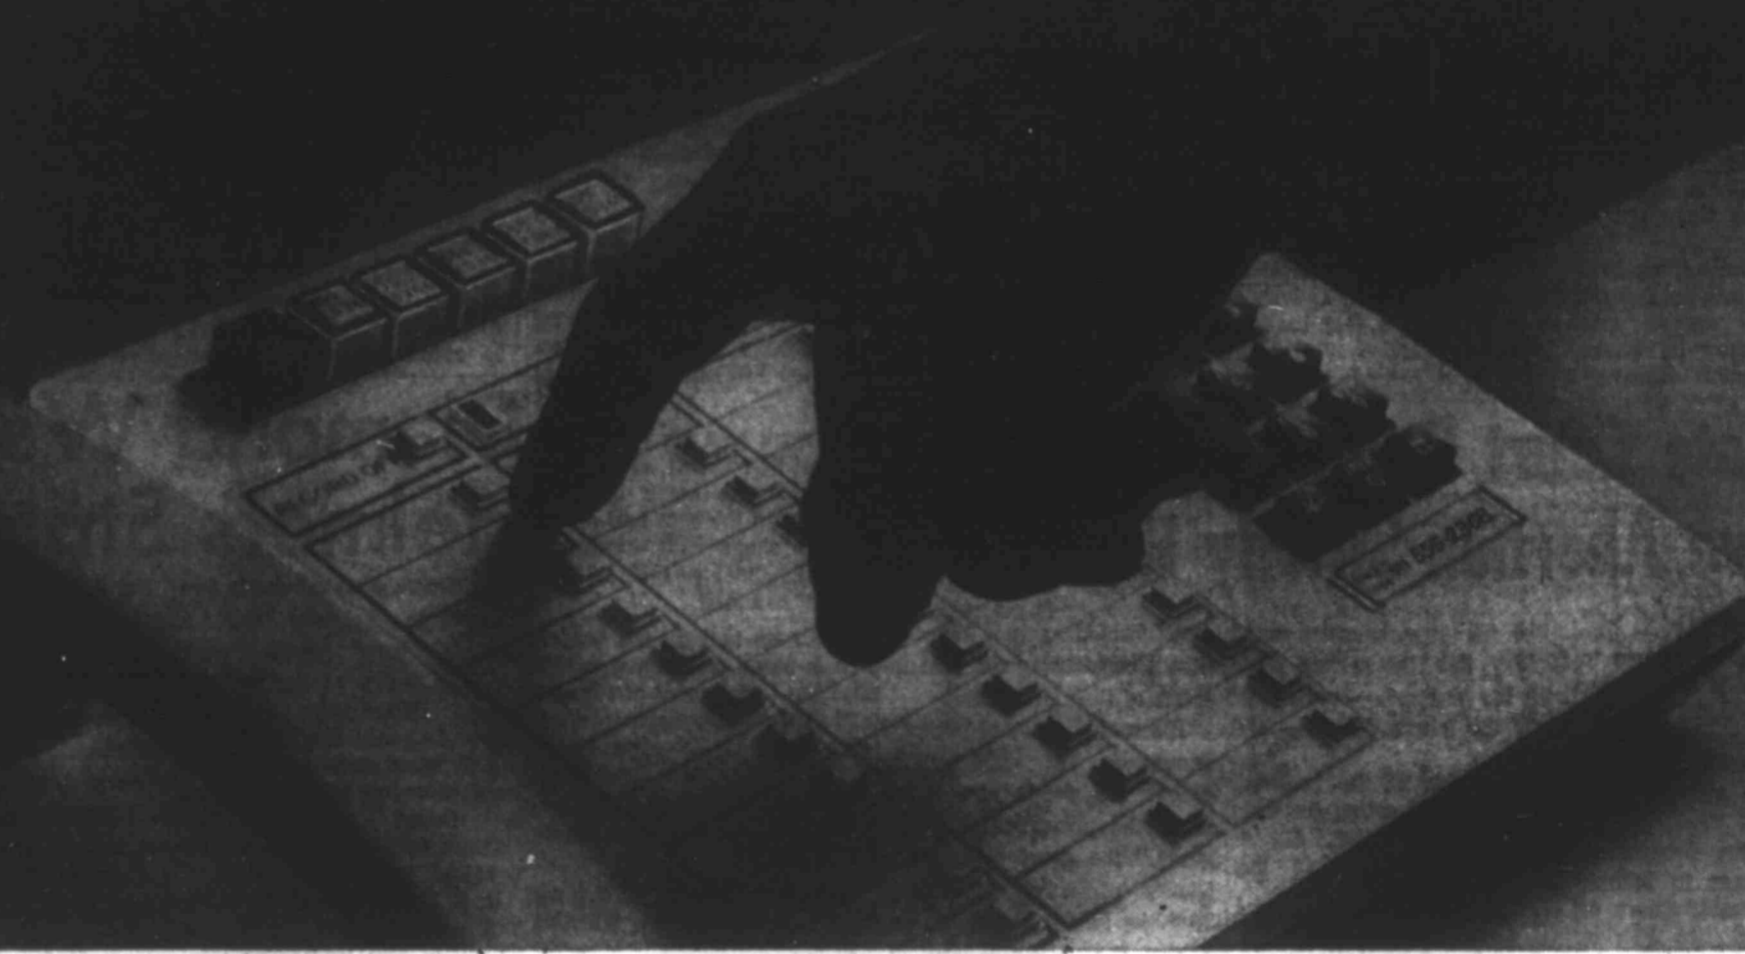

Regardless of East's return, South can draw one round of trumps with the ace, cash the queen of clubs, ruff a club in dummy, ruff dummy's last diamond and then lead a trump to West's king.

If West returns a heart, South gets a free finesse. If West returns anything else, South ruffs in his hand and discards the losing heart from dummy.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with 1-NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-5 H-9 8 7 D-Q 10 7 5 C-A 6 5 4 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. If you bid two clubs, your partner will assume that you are using the Stayman Convention to discover whether or not he has a four-card major suit. If you want to play the hand at clubs, you will have to bid up to three; and you cannot be sure that three clubs will be a better contract than 1-NT.

U.S. Pilot Flies East Germans To West Under Fire

TRAUNSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — "It was terrible, they started firing right away. They could at least have given us a warning."

In an interview from a hospital bed here, wounded American pilot Barry Meeker, 33, on Monday recalled his daring rescue mission into Czechoslovakia in a rented helicopter the previous day.

He said he lifted out three members of an East German family, including two men and a 14-year-old girl who was shot in the leg. But he said he was forced to leave behind an injured woman and a friend who had requested the rescue and "their fate is unknown."

"The two men with the family had already boarded and my friend actually threw the (wounded) girl into the helicopter," he said.

Then shots, apparently from a rifle equipped with telescopic sight, "came at intervals of about five to seven seconds," he said.

"Ahead of me was an elderly lady on the ground, obviously injured, and then suddenly bullets hit me right through the helicopter." He said the bullet pierced his elbow.

Meeker said the family was not at the pre-arranged meeting spot when he landed and "the whole affair was delayed. Instead of 10 seconds, as previously calculated, I had to remain almost two minutes on the ground. When the refugees arrived at the helicopter, I noticed that the girl was shot through her leg." Fearing that the shots might ruin the entire mission, Meeker said he signaled his friend to leave the injured woman and come aboard.

"But he did not see me. When I heard another shot fired at the helicopter, I thought, 'Now you've got to get out of here fast, or else we've all had it.'"

"I took off, flying toward Munich at high altitude, but noticed very quickly that my fuel was running low. Having been a rescue pilot before, I knew my way to Traunstein hospital and had exactly the amount of fuel to reach it," he said.

The West German Foreign Ministry said it had received no diplomatic protest from Czechoslovakia.

There were reports that Meeker, a civilian flying instructor, had once served with the U.S. armed forces in West Germany.

He said his home town was "Hartford" but hospital officials abruptly cut off the interview before he could name the state.

German authorities gave no information about him or his passengers. Their identities and relationship to each other was not known.

Doctors said Meeker's condition was satisfactory at the city hospital, 12 miles from the Austrian border. They reported his injuries on Monday and only then did Bavarian authorities learn of the flight.

Venezuela Almost Ready For Takeover

By WILLIAM H. HEATH

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Legislation to nationalize the huge American-owned oil industry is expected to reach the desk of President Carlos Andres Perez for signing by the end of the week.

The senate on Monday sent the legislation back to the lower house, which passed the original measure on July 28 and now must approve minor changes.

The oil companies have not objected to the plan which would put them under a new parent company, Petroleos Venezolano — or Petroven.

The bill calls for total takeover of the 2.5-million barrel-a-day industry which last year earned the state more than $10 billion.

Subsidiaries of Exxon, Royal Dutch Shell, Gulf, Texaco, Mobil and Sun Oil will be required to return to the state by Dec. 31 oil concessions covering some 5.4 million acres.

The government will take over a dozen company-owned refineries with a total capacity of 1.6 million barrels daily, hundreds of miles of pipeline, production equipment capable of handling 3.5 million barrels daily, storage facilities for 152 million barrels of crude and refined products as well as terminal facilities at Venezuelan ports.

The foreign companies, several of which began work in Venezuela in the early years of the century, would receive still-to-be-determined compensation which, under terms of the bill, would not exceed net book value of their assets, officially estimated at $1.1 billion.

Company and government representatives are negotiating the amount of compensation each firm would receive, following deduction of employee benefits and pending taxes. Compensation will be payable in government bonds over a 10-year period.

Nationalization will mark the end of a process of increasing state control over the industry. Foreign oil workers, who numbered more than 5,000 in 1967, now total fewer than 700 — less than 3 per cent of the industry's 24,000-man work force.

If They Don't Know, Who Does?

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A letter addressed to The Salt Lake Tribune was delayed by the Postal Service with this explanation stamped on the envelope:

"Mail delayed due to use of incorrect zip code. Please notify correspondents of correct zip code." The letter was official business from the Postal Service.

Upturn Eases Bite Of Bad Housing Year

By G. DAVID WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's home building industry appears destined for its slowest year since the economy emerged from World War II, but signs are that the worst is over.

Industry economists say the key now is how fast the federal government can convert into bricks and mortar its paper promises to support construction of new low-income housing units.

The Commerce Department reported Monday that builders reported July construction of new housing at an annual rate of 1.228 million units after adjustment for seasonal factors.

That was a monthly advance of 14 per cent but left activity 6 per cent behind a year earlier. The industry ended 1974 about 34 per cent behind 1973 construction and it wasn't until this spring that builders began pulling out of a nosedive which started in 1972.

The number of new building permits issued, a sign of future activity, was up for the fourth straight month in July, this time by 6 per cent.

Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development, called the statistics encouraging. "This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry," she said.

The latest estimate from the National Association of Home Builders is that the industry will start 1.06 million new apartments and houses this year, compared to 1.352 million last year. This year's projected production would be the lowest since the 1.02 million started in 1946.

"It won't be a big year," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the home builders. But he said the best half of the year is ahead with starts hitting an annual rate of 1.4 million by year-end.

And even that modest projection is based on the assumption that the Department of Housing and Urban Development will make good by December on the 35,000 low-income apartment units it has promised to support with rent subsidies to low-income families.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments affecting consumers:

—The Federal Energy Administration says consumer petroleum prices may be boosted no more than about 3 cents a gallon as a result of the expected end of oil price controls Aug. 31 but that the price increases may come sooner than expected.

—Old aluminum wiring in mobile homes poses a "more serious, more dangerous" threat of fire than in houses and apartments, Lawrence Kushner, a member of the U.S.

Appellate Court Rules Girl's Right To Have Abortion Strictly Her Own

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The right of a girl or a woman to have an abortion is strictly her own, says a federal appeals court. A wife doesn't have to ask her husband; a minor doesn't have to ask her parents.

In affirming the decision of U.S. District Court in Miami, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals declared two Florida abortion statutes unconstitutional.

One of the statutes protected the rights of a husband.

But the appeals court noted Monday that the statute dealt with the husband — not necessarily the fetus's father — and said:

"The rights of the husband, which arguably spring from his interest in the fetus, are of doubtful applicability in this case."

It added, however, that it may be paradoxical for the federal government to hold both that men have a right to beget and raise offspring and that women have a right to abort them.

"The state may secure the man's procreative rights by merely making unconsented abortion a grounds for divorce," it suggested.

"The man may then enter into a new marriage relationship and the state may thereby protect his procreative interests without infringing upon the former wife's right to abortion."

The appeals court said a minor's right to an abortion must be upheld because teen-age motherhood could seriously impair a girl's physical and psychological health.

"The magnitude of the minor's interest... suggests that the developmental differences between adults and minors do not warrant denying constitutional protection to the minor's abortions," the appeals court said.

It said most girls would normally consult their parents, but it added that the decision would prevent a hostile set of parents from forbidding an abortion without considering the best interests of their daughter.

"The requirement of parental permission is unlikely to achieve the state's aim of insuring the preservation of the family," the court said. "If a minor's pregnancy has fractured the family structure, imposition of a parental prohibition of abortion cannot reasonably be expected to restore the family's viability as a unit."

Agnew Withdraws Beer Application

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Former vice president Spiro T. Agnew has withdrawn his name as an applicant for a Coors beer distributorship in Texas because he said recent publicity might hurt his associates' chance to obtain the franchise.

Adolph Coors Co. officials said Agnew and professional golfer Doug Sanders visited the brewery here Aug. 4 to apply for a distributorship in the Houston area. Agnew said in a letter to the company that he withdrew his name to give his associates a fair chance to obtain the distributorship.

Accidental Shot Sends Connally Kin To Hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Police said what was described as an accidental shooting sent a sister-in-law of former Texas Gov. John Connally — Minnie Lou Connally, 62 — to a hospital Monday night.

She is the wife of Stanford W. Connally, eldest brother of the former state and federal official, and she suffered a bullet wound in her left arm.

Officers said her husband told them a .38 caliber pistol discharged by accident at their home while he was showing his wife how to use it.

Stanford Connally, 64, is president of a trucking firm.

Diamond Watch, Helmets Stolen

A diamond studded watch, two motorcycle helmets and a citizens band radio were reported stolen to the Midland Police Department and the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

A diamond studded watch and band valued at $2,000, belonging to Donna Skillern, 2509 Dartmouth St., was stolen this weekend, police said.

R. C. Duncan, 504 Watson St., told police a citizens band radio valued at $225 was taken from his car Saturday evening.

An air compressor valued at $100 was stolen from a Phillips 66 service station, 2101 N. Big Spring St., early this morning.

Eueracia Namez told police her car was burglarized while parked at the Jamaica Club, 501 E. Industrial St., late Saturday. She said a tape deck valued at $30 and a purse containing $70 in cash were stolen.

Gun Case Headed Back To Huntsville

HOUSTON (AP) — State Dist. Judge Wallace Moore says he plans to return to Walker County the cases of men charged with smuggling guns to Fred Gomez Carrasco prior to his attempted prison escape in August 1974.

Moore's decision came Monday following another round of disputes between the defendants' court-appointed attorneys and the Walker County commissioners and County Judge Amos Gates. The commissioners have voted not to pay the attorneys for their services.

Purulor Security Service, 1211 W. Louisiana St., was burglarized Saturday evening. Police said $135 was taken from a bank bag belonging to Furr's Cafeteria.

Steve Lawson, 1306 Lawson St., reported the theft of two motorcycle helmets, valued at $38, today.

Three pair of Levi slacks, valued at $24, were reportedly stolen from the car of a Snyderman, Ray M. Grimmett, while parked at the Dellwood Plaza Shopping Center Saturday.

Refunds Waiting For South Texans

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service regional headquarters says approximately 10,300 South Texas taxpayers have refund or rebate checks—and in some cases both—waiting for them at the IRS office here.

The checks were returned or undelivered, most often because the taxpayer had moved and left no forwarding address, said Robert McKeever, district IRS director.

Refund checks for southern Texas taxpayers averaged $323 this year, he said, with rebates running about $123.

McKeever said anyone who thinks he is entitled to a refund or rebate check should contact the IRS before Oct. 1.

Lamp Stops Brewers As Montreuil, Ortiz Poke Homers

BY TED BATTLES
Last time Dennis Lamp was to start, Manager Doc Edwards kept it a secret from the righthander who has specialized in long relief chores this season.

Doc figured Lamp would be better off not knowing he was going to the dentist, but Monday Lamp knew it was coming and it didn't really make any difference.

The 6-3, 22-year-old from Los Alamitos, Calif., went the route for a 7-4 win over San Antonio's Brewers that enabled the Cubs to stay in first place in the Texas League West.

Lamp received home run help from Al Montreuil, whose two-run shot in the third, his ninth of the season, was the insurance the Cubs needed to salt the win away, giving Midland a 6-2 lead at the time.

It also was the highlight of a three-hit night for the Gretna, La., Volkswagen.

Jose Ortiz homered in the seventh, a solo job, his fourth, while Mike Umfleet, the rookie from the University of Oklahoma, cracked out three hits.

Longest homer of the night, however, belonged to San Antonio's Mike Hannah, who lost a 385-footer over the left-center field fence in the eighth. It was his third of the season and Wayne Cage's infield hit came after and not before the homer, which minimized the damage.

Lamp literally had the Cleveland Indian farmhands biting the dust. The Cub infield had 19 assists and turned four double plays, two of them started by Lamp, who had five assists for the night.

"I guess the reason they were hitting on the ground so much is that I stuck with my fastball, which sinks, 85 percent of the time," Lamp explained. "I feel my best pitch is the ground ball."

Doc Edwards was surprised at how many grounders the Brewers hit, but said, "When you are not a strikeout pitcher, that's where you want them to hit it, on the ground."

As for not trying to keep Lamp's starting assignment from him, Edwards said, "My fun and games are over. Dennis has done a good job for us and he'll be in the regular rotation from now on."

The deception was rather unusual, since Lamp is the club's practical joker and usually pulls the wool over the other guy's eyes. "I had a sneaking suspicion I was going to start that other time, but still I took batting practice and was running and jumping around. I don't guess that was a good idea before pitching."

Lamp's win was his sixth in nine decisions, but he never would have gotten it if it hadn't been for the sensational glove work of second baseman Bill Huisman and shortstop Mike Sember, who repeatedly came up with superlative defensive saves.

Lamp apparently was headed for big trouble in the fifth after Wil Aaron singled and Rich Guerra doubled him home. Mike Hannah walked, but Huisman went to his right to make a leaping, spearing catch of Cage's liner and easily double Guerra off second for the inning ending outs.

In the sixth, Sember backhanded Andy Rodriguez' smash behind second and fed Huisman covering the bag with a glove flip as he ran by. Huisman fired first for another inningender.

For San Antonio, shortstop Bill Hiss robbed Tyrone in the fifth to start a double play and third baseman Steve Rametta continued the handy work he showed in Sunday's doubleheader with airtight defensive play.

After a walk, wild pitch and Bob Hickey's first of three singles gave San Antonio a 1-0 lead in the second, Midland bounced back for four runs in the home half of the inning.

Lefty Ron Salyer, 6-12, walked Tyrone to lead off, Huisman doubled down the left field line for one run, Mike Sember singled in another and took second on the throw to the plate.

Sember was erased at third on Earl Chew's bouncer to short, but Steve Clancy walked while Ortiz and Umfleet plated runs with singles.

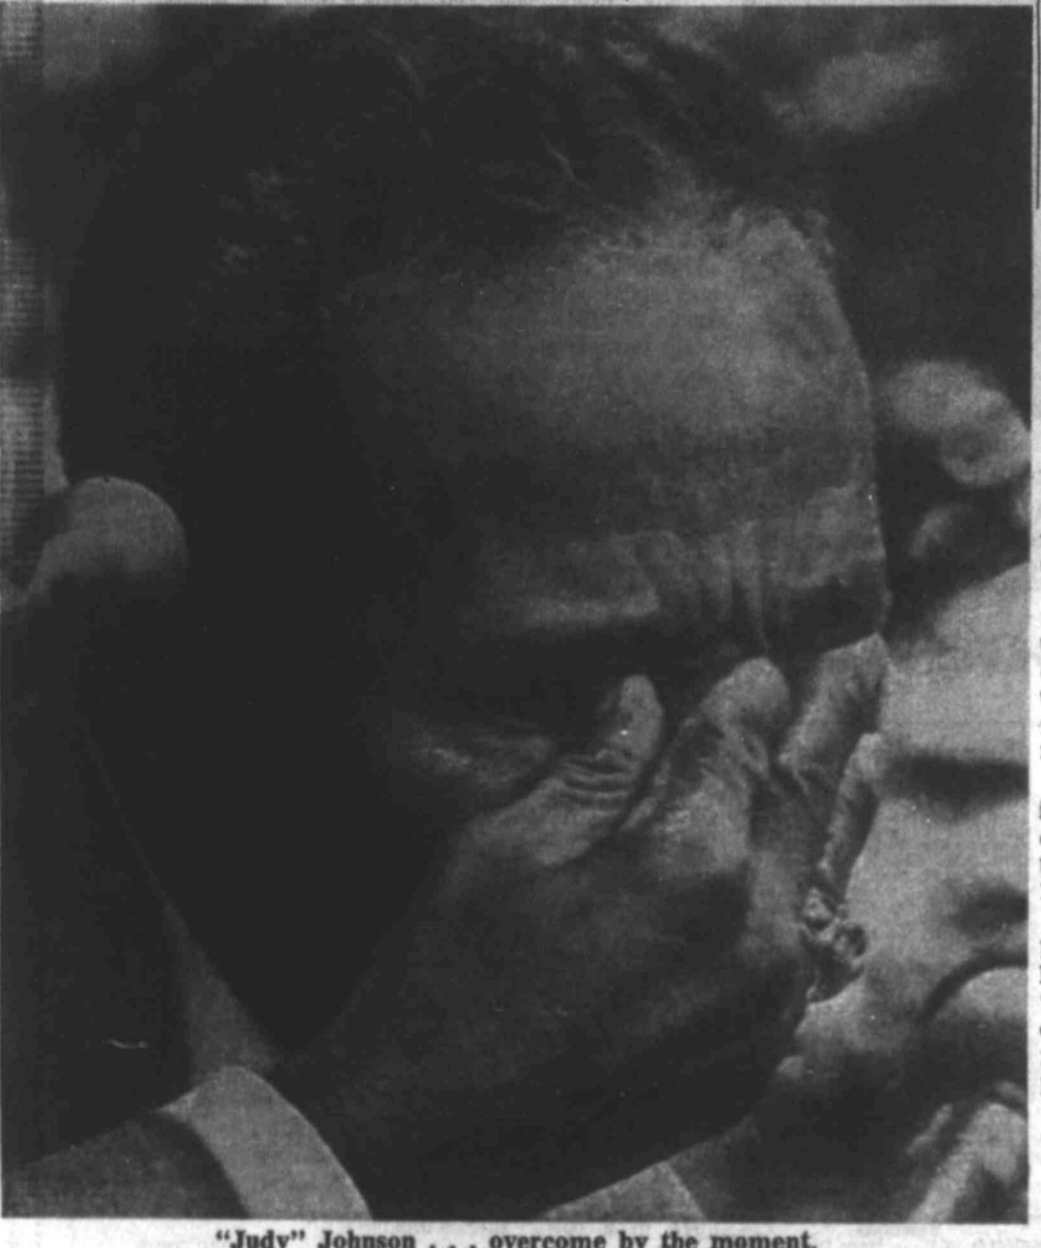

Hiss' single, a walk and Guerra's single down the right field line in the third left the Brewers two behind.

Midland got that back and another to boot in the third when Tyrone singled and Montreuil hit his ninth homer, one of those high, lingering balls that seem to hang forever before disappearing into the darkness.

The Brewers nicked Lamp for a two-out run in the fifth but Ortiz arched his fourth homer the left field fence with two away in the seventh to make it 7-3.

Averill Displays His Indignation

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Baseball's Hall of Fame inductees ran the gamut of emotions, from Judy Johnson's sob interrupted acceptance speech to Earl Averill's controlled indignation over the electory system which brought him and four others here for enshrinement.

While Johnson's words came in monosyllables and with difficulty, Averill, "The Rock" of the Cleveland Indians from 1929-39, said plenty.

In a prepared statement released after the ceremonies Monday, Averill revealed: "Had I been elected after my death, I had made arrangements that my name never be placed in the Hall of Fame."

"My disagreement with how the Hall of Fame elections are held, and who is elected, is not based on bitterness that I had to wait 34 years after retirement to receive this honor."

"But it is based on the fact that statistics alone are not enough to gain a player admittance into the Hall of Fame."

Still, the 73-year-old Averill is there now, along with Johnson, former Pittsburgh slugger Ralph Kiner, Bucky Harris and Billy Herman.

Johnson was a most remarkable speaker—not so much for what he said but for the fact that he began a sentence, stopped and cried for two minutes, then resumed his remarks at the very spot where he left off.

"So many people have been nice to me coming up . . ." he said before the excitement caught up with him and forced his right hand over his eyes.

He appeared to reel momentarily and his son-in-law, former center fielder Bill Bruton, hurried to the stage to be sure all was well. His hand went to Johnson's shoulder before the 75-year-old whispered, "I'll be all right."

Then he returned to the microphone and said: ". . . I want to thank all of them."

The crowd of 7,500 gathered at the grassy clearing where the ceremonies were held, applauded one of the top third basemen in the folklore-history of Negro League baseball.

Johnson finally recovered long enough to tell of the days he used to box with his sister because his father had wanted him to be a boxer.

But young William, handicapped by a warning not to be too rough with sister Mary Emma, took a whipping almost every time. Until, that is, Mary Emma's glove fell off and she bent over to pick it up.

"I don't have to tell you what happened next, and after that Daddy said, 'Well, I guess you better play baseball,'" said Johnson smiling now.

Kiner had to pause in his speech when he referred to his late father, and Bucky Harris, who managed for 29 years, hardly could speak into a telephone hookup between the festivities and his Bethesda, Md., home.

Harris, who did not make the trip due to ill health, said: "I'm a little touched; I better not try to talk."

Billy Herman, 66, the feisty second baseman for the Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves, may have expressed the feeling most simply: "I was a utility infielder on my high school team, and now I'm joining the greatest baseball team in the world."

Hamrick Faces Grossman

CUB BRIEFS — Lefthander Steve Hamrick, 5-1, will pitch against the San Antonio Brewers at 7:45 p.m. today in the fourth game of the series at Cubs Stadium. Bob Grossman, 5-4, will hurl for the Brewers.

With Shreveport sweeping El Paso Monday night, the Cubs' victory over San Antonio kept the Captains from taking over first place. "We've just to keep winning and not worry about what Shreveport is or isn't doing," Manager Doc Edwards said.

Texas League President Bobby Bragan informs Cub officials that if the race should end with Shreveport behind in games and ahead in percentage points, the Captains would get the flag. He cites Rule 10.23 as the basis for the ruling.

Thursday night will be Fan Appreciation Night at Cubs Stadium as Midland closes out its 1975 home season and festivities will begin at 7 p.m. and the game time has been moved up to 7:15 p.m., according to Cub General Manager Stoney Feeney.

Manager Doc Edwards says if it weren't for Midland Paul Thorpe pitching batting practice when the Cubs are home, "My arm would be eight feet long. Paul has been a big help. He fits in with the guys so well that he seems like a part of the family."

First baseman Wayne Tyrone feels the same way. "He comes out and pitches extra batting practice for (Bill) Droge and myself and that's a big help. It's always better to hit off live pitching than it is off a batting machine."

Chiefs' Bomb Catches Dallas Defense Napping

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Coach Paul Wiggin of Kansas City called it "a freak play." Coach Tom Landry of Dallas said his defense "went to sleep."

Both coaches referred to a sensational, almost unbelievable 63-yard pass reception by Andy Hamilton, a catch that set up the Chiefs' winning touchdown in a 26-20 victory over the visiting Cowboys with 45 seconds left in a National Football League exhibition thriller Monday night.

The pass was thrown by Tony Adams, trying to wrest the quarterback assignment away from 40-year-old Len Dawson, who has masterminded the Chiefs for 13 years.

Hamilton snared the ball away from two Dallas defenders, including Charlie Waters. He fell on the Dallas seven.

After Ed Podolak rammed up the middle for three yards, Adams, who led the World Football League in passing with the Southern California Sun last season, spiraled a four-yard pass into the end zone to Billy Masters.

"It was a case of one of our guys wanting it more than one of theirs," said Wiggin, unable to conceal his excitement over the Chiefs' first victory under his regime, "and that one guy was Hamilton."

Defense Asleep
"The defense thought we had the game and went to sleep," said Landry, whose team went ahead 20-19 with 1:56 remaining on Toni Fritsch's 31-yard field goal. "They relaxed, and when you relax, you get beat."

Landry noted the game, played before 35,630, was "tagged in the second half. It was just a matter of who was going to bungle it last. My gosh, fumbles and interceptions."

Despite Hamilton's miracle catch, Landry was inclined to give much of the credit for the victory to Dawson, locked in a battle with Adams and two others for the quarterback slot.

"Dawson is still pretty clever

Team	Score	Time
Dallas	20	7:17
Kansas City	26	7:17

with the play-action and choice of plays," Landry said. "He put 16 points on the board."

Stenerud Strikes
Dawson, who played only the first half when the Chiefs ran up a 16-14 lead, connected on 12 of 19 passes for 176 yards and one touchdown on a 41-yard flip to Larry Brunson. Jan Stenerud kicked four Chiefs field goals on boots of 36, 28, 24 and 40 yards, the last with 5:04 to go.

After that last field goal, Dallas linebacker Calvin Peterson, who earlier scooped up a bouncing Dawson fumble and ran 18 yards for a touchdown, fell on Cleophus Miller's fumble on the Chiefs' 19, setting up Fritsch's 31-yard field goal.

The Cowboys' other points came on a 26-yard field goal by Fritsch and Roger Staubach's 17-yard touchdown pass to Robert Newhouse.

GRID TICKET SALES TO END ON AUG. 29

Season tickets for Midland Lee and Midland High football games at Memorial Stadium will be on sale until Aug. 29, it was announced by Athletic Director Thurman "Tugboat" Jones.

Jones pointed out that options or last year's seats for 1974 ticket-holders expired last Friday. "That makes all of the tickets we have left available on a first come, first served basis," Jones said.

Midland Lee will play home games against Snyder, Plainview, Abilene Cooper, Big Spring and Midland. Midland High's home schedule Amarillo, Tascosa, Odessa Permian, Big Spring, Odessa and Abilene Cooper.

Sports in spurts and, quick now, can you name the only two batters to win the triple crown (batting average, home runs and runs-batted-in) twice?

It's quite possible that there are more future Chicago Cubs on this year's Midland team than any of the three previous editions to carry the Tall City colors in the Texas League.

Midland Manager Doc Edwards hopes the Cubs do better in the post-season all-star balloting than they did for the All-Star game when only pitcher and first baseman Wayne Tyrone made it. . . . Doc feels it was almost criminal that Cub second baseman Al Montreuil was left off the Stars, especially since he was leading the league in batting at the time.

In view of the howl raised over the fans' selections of the major league all-star teams this summer, it makes you wonder. The players and managers picked the TL stars.

In the same area, Edwards feels out-fielder Jose "Pep" Ortiz rates consideration as the TL's most valuable player. "He has been a tremendous all-around player for us. We wouldn't be where we are without him."

tion will do for the box office. Last year Midland Lee won the first 5-A title ever by a Tall City team. Midland wasn't bad either, tying co-champions Lee and San Angelo.

Although only a sophomore, Big Spring's Tom Sorley is listed as No. 4 quarterback at Nebraska as fall drills open. However, Tom is considered the No. 1 passing prospect, so his status could improve quickly if the Cornhuskers experience difficulty making their ground game go.

Nebraska opens the season against LSU, where former Midland Lee quarterback Pat Lyons is listed as one of the top two Tiger quarterbacks.

The Big Eight Conference plans to cut back expenses by dropping its round-robin baseball schedule and replacing it with a year-end tournament. Apparently, the colleges will concentrate on playing teams in their geographic areas.

Super Conference On Drawing Board

NEW YORK (AP) — First it was the Super Bowl and the Super Dome. Now the colleges have a brainstorm: the Super Conference.

A mammoth conference of approximately 75 of the nation's major football powers has been formally proposed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association and could become a reality as early as next season.

The plan was presented to the policy-making NCAA Council last week at the special convention on economics in Chicago by the NCAA's Special Committee on Reorganization. The Council said the plan would be considered at its next meeting in October.

Considered Before
"This super association was one of the things the larger schools proposed four years ago when the Reorganization Committee was formed," according to the NCAA. "It was shouted down at the time and we kind of compromised instead of dividing the majors into two groups."

The NCAA split into three divisions two years ago, but talk of a super conference surfaced again in Chicago last week when the special convention passed new recruiting and personnel regulations that put all 134 of the current Division I schools on equal footing.

A preliminary plan for what basically would be a football conference composed of 75 schools—seven conferences plus 15 independents. The conferences are The Big Eight, Southeastern, The Big Ten, Pacific-8, Southwest, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic. The independents are Notre Dame, Penn State, Pitt, Georgia Tech, Miami of Florida, Florida State, South Carolina, Tulane, Boston College, Syracuse, West Virginia, Air Force, Utah State, Memphis State and Virginia Tech.

Requirements
To remain a member, a school would be required to play 51 per cent of its nonconference games against other teams in the division while independents would have to play 51 per cent of all games against other "super powers."

There also would be scheduling requirements in basketball. A team would have to play at least 10 nonconference games with at least 75 per cent of such games against other Division I schools. The figure for independents would be 75 per cent of all games.

Hogs Report For Football Practice

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Frank Broyles, University of Arkansas football coach, praised his players Monday for the mental and physical condition in which they reported for the beginning of fall practice.

Every athlete on the team finished a 1½-mile conditioning run Sunday.

"I think that's a gauge of just how serious they are about wanting to win this season," Broyles observed.

He announced that linebacker Alan Watson will not play football this season. Broyles said he didn't think Watson had fully recovered from a knee injury. Junior Curtis Townsend will be moved to linebacker to provide depth.

NCAA Delegates Wield Ax On Budgets With Delight

The Washington Post
CHICAGO — Once the delegates at the NCAA Special Convention dealing with the financial crisis in college sports found out how easy it was to save money through legislation, they could hardly be contained. By the time the meeting adjourned Friday, the schools not only had insured athletic survival or a few more years but they also amazed themselves with their efficiency.

It was further evidence of the power of the Almighty Dollar. Actions that recruiting scandals and competition from the pros could not extract from the normally lethargic organization were suddenly approved with oh-it-was-nothing smiles.

For example, the NCAA for years had rejected both substantial improvements in recruiting guidelines and any suggestion of regulating the outlandish size of most major college football coaching staffs. Now, in two days, both issues were tackled head on, with impressive results.

Some major colleges might be able to save as much as $200,000 a year from the convention's actions, but that alone is not the most important achievement of the meeting. Some sanctions also appear to have finally been brought to recruiting, a long overdue step.

Convention legislation has stopped coaches from camping on a prospect's doorstep for weeks. Now schools can have only three off-campus in-person contacts with a recruit, and those can't take place until his senior year.

By also limiting the prospects who receive paid visits to only six schools and by allowing schools to bring in only 75 football prospects and 12 basketball prospects for paid visits yearly, the NCAA has forced coaches to be more selective.

The convention also limited football staffs to one head coach and eight assistants and basketball staffs to one head coach and two assistants.

By saving such large sums, the delegates have helped deal with effects of Title IX, which prohibits sex discrimination in federally supported schools. Nobody is sure what impact women's athletics will have on college sports, but it is conceded that extra funding will have to be found, and this convention might have uncovered some extra.

"We might," said one Division II representative, "need another convention just to find money to fight the court tests Title IX is going to bring."

The special convention reduced football scholarships slightly thus preserving two-platoon football. But the delegates turned around and delivered a knockdown blow to minor sports.

Scholarships in these non-profit sports were slashed heavily and travel squad sizes for some teams were reduced so much that a few coaches announced on the convention floor they couldn't possibly compete on the road any more. The NCAA seems almost certain to liberalize some of the squad cuts in January.

A committee on reorganization is studying a plan to form a fourth division in the NCAA consisting of the major football schools. The convention's actions probably will make this so-called super-division a necessity. Otherwise, the football schools might be tempted to bolt the organization, fearing more harm would be in store for their programs.

The convention probably staved off the collapse of more college programs for a while, but more regulations and reductions will be necessary to insure competitive college athletics continues. That's why a simple resolution passed early in the opening session of the convention eventually might prove to be the gathering's most important work.

The resolution set up a formal NCAA study of upgrading athletic aid according to a prospect's financial need. Going to a need formula would wipe out athletic scholarships and further reduce recruiting pressures. Many delegates feel this switch is inevitable as it becomes increasingly hard for athletic departments to justify giving free rides to 95 football players.

Shreveport Takes Two From Diablos

By The Associated Press
Midland bested San Antonio 7-4 and retained a one-game lead atop the Texas League's West Division despite a strong bid by Shreveport to recapture the top rung Monday night.

After hitting the skids and yielding first place in that division, Shreveport rebounded to humble El Paso 12-1 and 9-1.

At the same time Lafayette held its East Division lead at six games over runner-up Arkansas as Lafayette beat Jackson twice, 5-3 and 3-2, and Alexandria defeated Arkansas 7-5.

The Shreveport Captains clubbed 15 hits in their first game rout of the El Paso Diablos, starting with a five-run outburst in the first inning when Jim Sexton led the way with a triple. Tommy Thomas and Paul Djakonow later socked two-run homers for Shreveport and teammate Frank Grundler contributed another as the Captains' Jim Geddes twirled a five-hitter.

In the second game Shreveport collected nine hits and took advantage of two El Paso errors as winning pitcher Mike Gonzalez yielded just six hits. Mitchell Page's home run drove in three of his five runs batted in during the nightcap, while Grundler went six-for-seven at the plate.

Lafayette's Drillers victimized rookie righthander Stan Wojcik of the Jackson Mets for four runs in the first two innings en route to their victory in the opener.

Grid Drills Under Way

Blood, sweat and tears is the name of the game as the 1975 schoolboy football workouts officially opened at Lee and Midland High Monday afternoon.

The Rebels and Bulldogs hit the turf on a dead run in cleats and shorts in starting a four-day conditioning period on their respective practice fields.

Coach Jim Acree's Rebels, defending District 5-4A champion, had 65 varsity and 55 junior varsity candidates while Midland Coach John Reddell greeted 54 on the varsity and an additional 55 JV athletes.

Neither coach felt like their charges were in the best of shape, but then the first day is always tough. "We looked lost," said Acree, but we really ran them hard, he added.

"It was hard to tell what kind of shape the kids are in after the first day," commented Reddell whose Purple Pack tied both Lee and San Angelo last year as the Rebels and Bobcats shared the 5-4A crown.

Class AAAA outfits will condition themselves for the first four days and then put on pads Friday for the contact work in preparation for the season openers. Midland takes on Amarillo Tascosa, Sept. 5 in Memorial Stadium while Lee waits until the following night to try Lubbock High in Lubbock in a Saturday night opener.

Midland will scrimmage the Class AAA Snyder Tigers in Snyder, Aug. 29 with the junior varsity squad starting at 6:30 p.m. and the varsity teams to scrimmage at around 8 p.m.

Lee, meanwhile, will travel to Lamesa, Aug. 28 for a Thursday evening drill with Lubbock Coronado. The JVs will start between 3:30 and 4 p.m. with the varsities to follow at 6:15 p.m., according to Acree.

Torres Captures TAGs Meet

CANYON — Isabel Torres, City of Midland swimmer, was selected Outstanding Female Swimmer over the weekend in the annual TAGs Meet after she set new records in 500 freestyle and 50 backstroke races as the COOM team finished second in the big meet. While Miss Torres was walking off with top honors, the COOM girls 10-Under 200 Medley Relay team made up of Miss Torres, Heather Dunbar, Gretchen Koch and Carol Capadonna, set a new national standard with a time of 2:25.06.

'Once Is Not Enough'

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Just World Football League en- past the screen door at the tanglements. training camp office of the Pittsburgh Steelers is a sign: "Once Is Not Enough."

The line was borrowed from friendly terms with Mean Joe Greene, the league's Defensive Most Valuable Player in 1974. Ernest "Arrowhead" Holmes, and Dwight "Mad Dog" White.

Yet it sums up this season's theme for the Steelers, defending the National Football League title for the first time in their 43-year history.

"If our veterans and rookies perform well, we can have the championship again," Noll says.

Long Wait
He speaks the words casually. You almost forget Pittsburgh fans waited four decades for even a division title.

At 43, Noll is a man of many interests. He's a scuba diver, classical music buff, gardener, cook, and he spent the off-season flying a light plane he bought with his Super Bowl check.

Not Coasting
"When you coast, there's only one direction to go," says Noll, nine wins away from becoming the winningest coach in Steeler history.

Noll was signed by Dan Rooney, who gets less publicity than the aromatic cigars smoked by his celebrated father, club-founder Arthur Rooney.

Good Combination
Dan and Noll have been the prime movers in the Steeler transition. They drafted or signed 4 of the 47 players who suited up for the Super Bowl victory over Minnesota.

The key players will all be back, including All-Pro defensive end L. C. Greenwood, who opted to stay with Pittsburgh after shaking loose from some

New Texas Law Would Put Overtime Gunmen To Shame

By PATRICK CONWAY
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — If they hadn't died the hard way years ago, those old-time gunmen like Ben Thompson, King Fisher, John Selman and Jim Courtwright would be looking for work come Sept. 1.

That's the way a new law gets on the books to make it illegal to be a law enforcement officer if you have been convicted of a felony.

In those old days when Texas was still a frontier and folks weren't so picky about who strapped a shooting iron to his waist and went forth to represent law and order, chances were the sheriff or marshal had been in a few scrapes with the law himself.

The State Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education, which is a mouthful most old time gunslingers wouldn't even attempt to pronounce, believes the State has progressed beyond those days when it took a baddie to know a baddie.

So, Rep. Ben Z. Grant of Marshall and Sen. Don Adams of Jasper passed a bill during the recent legislative session to permit the SCLEOSE to cancel the certificate of any police officer convicted of a felony.

The ghosts of the past did not stir, and the bill sailed uncontested through both chambers to write an end to an era.

There was talk at the time that the law was needed because some cities had hired an ex-convict as its police chief.

In the old days this was commonplace. Take old Ben Thompson, who was none other than the high marshal of the city of Austin. He was jailed twice for depositing lead in the carcass of guys who antagonized him, and spent most of his Civil War service in the guard house for other problems.

The good folks of Austin pinned a badge on Thompson and sent him out to deal with oilwells and other assorted miscreants. At this time he was wanted on a murder warrant from Kansas City.

He and King Fisher, another former baddie turned deputy sheriff of Uvalde County, were killed in a San Antonio gunfight in 1882, after they had stoked up on whiskey and were out trying to make some arrests.

Jim Courtwright, another gunslinger, was marshal of Fort Worth, according to the folks who publish Western Publications — three historical magazines dealing with events in the early West. The infamous gambler Luke Short ended Courtwright's career with a bullet. John Selman, who killed the notorious Wes Hardin, had also killed many other men, and he was the symbol of law and order in old El Paso. Jim Miller, who is said to have killed Pat Garrett, who is said to have killed Billy the Kid, was a deputy at Pecos.

Even former Huntsville prison warden Lee Simmons admitted in his biography that he had been jailed in West Texas as a young man for shooting a person. He got off, but that time in jail set him to thinking about prisons and reform and he went on to make a place for himself as a guy in a white hat.

Dagnabbit — no more! Peace officers today have a new image. Little boys don't shoot a person.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Alioto of San Francisco.

Scores of Mexicans and Americans will use horses, mules and burros to re-enact the 1,500-mile trek made 200 years ago by Mexicans who founded the mission settlement that grew to be today's city of San Francisco.

The trip will be in celebration of the U.S. bicentennial to commemorate the journey made by Juan Bautista de Anza and 177 followers in 1775. De Anza was authorized by Mexican Viceroy Antonio Maria de Bucareli to found the California mission.

The modern pioneers will include Mexicans and U.S. citizens from California and Arizona, says Helen Shrophire, manager of the California Heritage Guides, who was named as trip organizer by her state's bicentennial commission.

The schedule calls for departure on Sept. 29 from Horcasitas, Mexico, which is in the northern border state of Sonora, about 2,000 miles northwest of Mexico City.

Mrs. Shrophire, who lives in Monterey, Calif., was in Mexico City during the weekend promoting the trip. She was accompanied by George Cardinet, representing Mayor Joseph Allo to San Francisco.

She said the group would ride the entire original route, camping in tents at night. She said no motor vehicles would be used.

"They can only go by horse, mule or burro," she said. Much of the trail is now a well-blazed grid of super highways.

In California they will stop over in San Gabriel Mission, San Luis Obispo, San Antonio and the old Progreso in Monterey. They plan to arrive in San Francisco on June 27, 1976.

Like the De Anza party, the "soldiers" will wear leather tunics covering blue and red striped uniforms. Mrs. Shrophire said. The "peasants" will wear sandals, sarapes, leggings and will braid their hair with ribbons.

The women will wear long skirts, peasant blouses and shawls.

The original group took along 640 head of cattle. The bicentennial travelers will be met at each campsite by field kitchens and hot meals.

NCAA Delegates Wield Ax On Budgets With Delight

The Washington Post
CHICAGO — Once the delegates at the NCAA Special Convention dealing with the financial crisis in college sports found out how easy it was to save money through legislation, they could hardly be contained. By the time the meeting adjourned Friday, the schools not only had insured athletic survival for a few more years but they also amazed themselves with their efficiency.

It was further evidence of the power of the Almighty Dollar. Actions that recruiting scandals and competition from the pros could not extract from the normally lethargic organization were suddenly approved with oh-it-was-nothing delight.

For example the NCAA for years had rejected both substantial improvements in recruiting guidelines and any suggestion of regulating the outlandish size of most major college football coaching staffs. Now, in two days, both issues were tackled head on, with impressive results.

Some major colleges might be able to save as much as $200,000 a year from the convention's actions, but that alone is not the most important achievement of the meeting. Some sanity also appears to have finally been brought to recruiting, a long overdue step.

Convention legislation has stopped coaches from camping on a prospect's doorstep for weeks. Now schools can have only three off-campus in-person contacts with a recruit, and those can't take place until his senior year.

By also limiting the prospects who receive paid visits to only six schools and by allowing schools to bring in only 75 football prospects and 12 basketball prospects for paid visits yearly, the NCAA has forced coaches to be more selective.

The convention also limited football staffs to one head coach and eight assistants and basketball staffs to one head coach and two assistants.

By saving such large sums, the delegates have helped deal with effects of Title IX, which prohibits sex discrimination in federally supported schools. Nobody is sure what impact women's athletics will have on college sports, but it is conceded that extra funding will have to be found, and this convention might have uncovered some extra.

"We might," said one Division II representative, "need another convention just to find money to fight the court tests Title IX is going to bring."

The special convention reduced football scholarships slightly thus preserving two-plate football. But the delegates turned around and delivered a knockdown blow to minor sports.

Scholarships in these non-profit sports were slashed heavily and travel squad sizes for some teams were reduced so much that a few coaches announced on the convention floor they couldn't possibly compete on the road any more. The NCAA seems almost certain to liberalize some of the squad cuts in January.

A committee on reorganization is studying a plan to form a fourth division in the NCAA consisting of the major football schools. The convention's actions probably will make this so-called super-division a necessity. Otherwise, the football schools might be tempted to bolt the organization, fearing more harm would be in store for their programs.

The convention probably staved off the collapse of more college programs for a while, but more regulations and reductions will be necessary to insure competitive college athletics continues. That's why a simple resolution passed early in the opening session of the convention eventually might prove to be the gathering's most important work.

The resolution set up a formal NCAA study of upgrading athletic aid according to a prospect's financial need. Going to a need formula would wipe out athletic scholarships and further reduce recruiting pressures. Many delegates feel this switch is inevitable as it becomes increasingly hard for athletic departments to justify giving free rides to 85 football players.

Bellard Stresses Offense

Wants Attack A&M Defense Can Be Proud Of

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — sive unit ranked second nation- (AP) — Texas A&M University ally behind Notre Dame in total head football Coach Emory Bel- lard spent last spring trying to despite A&M's impressive 8-3 create an offense of which the Aggie defense can be proud.

Before spring training, Bel- lard hired Texas Tech assistant coach Tom Wilson as his offen- sive coordinator, installed the formation and lit a fire under the offense. By spring's end, Bellard could see progress.

"I think the defense will be about the same as it was last year," he said. "We'll be improved on offense too. I think we'll be perhaps stronger at running back."

BOTTOMS UP — David Webb of Queens Park Rangers fails in his attempt at an overhead kick to get the ball away from Phil Thompson, left, of Liverpool during soccer action in London. Rangers went on to win 2-0. (AP Wirephoto.)

Bellard doesn't even object to preseason polls that have picked his Aggies as the South- West Conference favorites.

"Actually, we're com- plimented at being picked No. 1," Bellard said. "We've been working mighty hard to get our program on a level where it will be recognized."

"This is the best football team we've had since I've been at A&M. But there's a lot of proving to be done. There are any number of teams that could come on and win it (SWC title) this year."

Wilson quarterbacked the 1965 Red Raiders into the Gator Bowl using Coach J.T. King's I-formation but Bellard isn't abandoning the wishbone offense he helped pioneer as an assistant coach at the University of Texas.

Bellard says the Aggies will be a wishbone team about 80 per cent of the time.

Ten starters return on offense for one of A&M's most ex- periented teams in history. Nine of the 22 starters are three-year lettermen.

Bellard, starting his fourth year as head coach, hopes to benefit from his first recruiting crop that includes tight end Richard Osborne, split end Carl Roaches, running backs Bubba Bean and Skip Walker, defensive back Pat Thomas and line- backer Ed Simonin.

"This is the first senior class to have gone through our program and they may provide some leadership that we might not have had before," Bellard said.

Much of last season's criticism of the offense centered on quarterback. Nothing was settled by spring training so it'll be a three-way battle among David Shipman, David Walker and Mike Jay when fall two- days begin.

Shreveport Takes Two From Diablos

By The Associated Press
Midland bested San Antonio 7-4 and retained a one-game lead atop the Texas League's West Division despite a strong bid by Shreveport to recapture the top rung Monday night.

After hitting the skids and yielding first place in that division, Shreveport rebounded to humble El Paso 12-1 and 9-1.

At the same time Lafayette held its East Division lead at six games over runner-up Arkansas as Lafayette beat Jackson twice, 5-3 and 3-2, and Alexandria defeated Arkansas 7-5.

The Shreveport Captains clubbed 15 hits in their first game rout of the El Paso Diablos, starting with a five-run outburst in the first inning when Jim Sexton led the way with a triple. Tommy Thomas and Paul Djonkonov later socked two-run homers for Shreveport and teammate Frank Grundler contributed another as the Captains' Jim Geddes twirled a five-hitter.

In the second game Shreveport collected nine hits and took advantage of two El Paso errors as winning pitcher Mike Gonzalez yielded just six hits. Mitchell Page's home run drove in three of his five runs batted in during the nightcap, while Grundler went six-for-seven at the plate.

Lafayette's Drillers victimized rookie righthander Stan Wojcik of the Jackson Mets for four runs in the first two innings en route to their victory in the opener.

Grid Drills Under Way

Blood, sweat and tears is the name of the game as the 1975 schoolboy football workouts officially opened at Lee and Midland High Monday afternoon. The Rebels and Bulldogs hit the turf on a dead run in cleats and shorts in starting a four-day conditioning period on their respective practice fields.

Coach Jim Acree's Rebels, defending District 5-4A cham- pions, had 85 varsity and 55 junior varsity candidates while Midland Coach John Reddell greeted 54 on the varsity and an additional 55 JV athletes.

Neither coach felt like their charges were in the best of shape, but then the first day is always tough. "We looked lost," said Acree, but we really ran them hard, he added.

"It was hard to tell what kind of shape the kids are in after the first day," commented Reddell whose Purple Pack tied both Lee and San Angelo last year as the Rebels and Bobcats shared the 5-4A crown.

Class AAAA outfits will con- dition themselves for the first four days and then put on pads Friday for the contact work in the preparation for the season openers. Midland takes on Amarillo Tascosa, Sept. 5 in Memorial Stadium while Lee waits until the following night to try Lubbock High in Lubbock in a Saturday night opener.

Midland will scrimmage the Class AAA Snyder Tigers in Snyder, Aug. 29 with the junior varsity squad starting at 6:30 p.m. and the varsity teams to scrimmage at around 8 p.m.

Lee, meanwhile, will travel to Lamesa, Aug. 28 for a Thursday evening drill with Lubbock Coronado. The JVs will start between 3:30 and 4 p.m. with the varsities to follow at 6:15 p.m., according to Acree.

'Once Is Not Enough'

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Just World Football League en- past the screen door at the tanglements. training camp office of the Greenwood carries a purse, Pittsburgh Steelers is a sign: but it's never been snatched be- cause he's 6-foot-6 and on "Once Is Not Enough."

The line was borrowed from friendly terms with Mean Joe Greene, the league's Defensive sanna, and the sign, with a grin- Most Valuable Player in 1974; ning likeness of Coach Chuck Ernie "Arrowhead" Holmes; Noll, was painted by a fan, and Dwight "Mad Dog" White.

Yet it sums up this season's theme for the Steelers, defend- ing the National Football League title for the first time in their 43-year history.

"If our veterans and rookies perform well, we can have the championship again," Noll says.

Long Wait
 He speaks the words casu- ally. You almost forget Pitts- burgh fans waited four decades for even a division title.

At 43, Noll is a man of many interests. He's a scuba diver, classical music buff, gardener, cook, and he spent the offsea- son flying a light plane he bought with his Super Bowl check.

Not Coasting
 "When you coast, there's only one direction to go," says Noll, nine wins away from becoming the winningest coach in Steeler history.

Noll was signed by Dan Roo- ney, who gets less publicity than the aromatic cigars smoked by his celebrated fa- ther, club-founder Arthur Roo- ney.

Good Combination
 Dan and Noll have been the prime movers in the Steeler transition. They drafted or signed 43 of the 47 players who suited up for the Super Bowl victory over Minnesota.

The key players will all be back, including All Pro defen- sive end L. C. Greenwood, who opted to stay with Pittsburgh after shaking loose from some the club's busiest banquet speaker, has the other starting spot. Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson are capable back- ups, and rookie Mike Collier has caught the coaches' atten- tion in camp.

Bradshaw Starter
 And the starting quarterback is Terry Bradshaw.

He rode the bench behind Joe Gilliam early last year, the most trying weeks of his care- er.

Yet he took control down the stretch and threw just one in- terception in 50 passing at- tempts in the playoffs.

Gaines Wildcat Set; Lamb Opener Finals

A pair of wildcat locations have been staked in Gaines County, and a San Andres strike has been completed in Lamb County.

Colorado Oil & Gas Corp. No. 1 Farmer County School Land will be drilled as a 13,000-foot wildcat 15 miles southeast of Seminole in Southeast Gaines County.

Drill site is 1/4 mile northwest of the Flying M (Queen) field and four miles southwest of the depleted Seven Rivers (Strawn and Devonian) field.

Location is 600 feet from north and west lines of labor 13, league 317, Farmer County School Land survey.

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. 1 E. D. Moore is to be drilled as another 13,000-foot wildcat.

The drill site is in Central Gaines County, 5 1/2 miles east

Permian Basin OIL & GAS LOG

well has 5-inch liner set at 15,248 feet. Plugged back depth is 14,950 feet.

Site is 1,900 feet from west and 600 feet from north lines of section 25-22s-32e, four miles southeast of the Red Tank (Morrow) field.

Blanks Completes Dual Producer

W. G. Blanks of Midland No. 1-17 Foster is a new producer in the W.A.M. (Fusselman) area of Sterling County.

The well, completed as the third well in the field, was finished for a 24-hour flowing potential of 179.1 barrels of 54-gravity oil. Gas-oil ratio was 7,571-1.

Production is through perforations from 8,470 to 8,489 feet after a 25-gallon acid treatment.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 17, block 13, SPRR survey.

Runnels Sector Gets Wildcat Try

H&R Oils, Inc., and Walsh & Trant will drill No. 2 Albert Spill as a 4,000-foot wildcat in Runnels County, 1,200 feet south of the same operators' No. 1 Spill, Gardner gas prospect in the process of completion.

No. 2 Spill is 3,036 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of B. F. Lollar survey No. 322.

No. 1 Spill has flowed gas at the rate of 2 million cubic feet daily, through perforations from 4,336 to 4,339 feet.

No. 2 Spill is to drill to 4,000 feet.

Pecos Exploration Reports Gas Flow

Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 2 State-McIntyre reported a flow of 6.6 million cubic feet of gas per day from the Ellenburger.

The project, located nine miles southwest of Coyanosa in Pecos County and 1/4-mile northeast of the Rojo Caballos, South (Ellenburger) field, recovered the gas from perforated section at 21,487-613 feet.

Operator was preparing to pull plug from lower tubing.

Location is 1,170 feet from north and 1,270 feet from west lines of section 30, block 48, T-8, T&P survey.

Extends Sector Crockett Oiler

Resources Investment Corp. No. 1 J. S. Todd and others has been completed as the third well in the Todd (Strawn) field 21 miles northwest of Ozona in Northwest Crockett County.

Operator reported a 24-hour potential test of 62 barrels of oil and 68 barrels of water. Gravity of the oil was 38.8 degrees, and gas-oil ratio was 950-1.

Production is from pay behind perforations from 6,372 to 6,384 feet.

Well site is 1/4 mile north of production in the odd (Strawn) field, 786 feet from south and 2,042 feet from east line of section 1, block WX, GC&SF survey.

Lake Michigan Bottom Reveals Much Underwear

CHICAGO (AP) — What can be found on the bottom of Lake Michigan? Lots of underwear, among other things.

Digging through mud Sunday on a scavenger hunt, several divers pulled up underwear. Others found wine bottles—one containing a folded map of Chicago and another stuffed with, again, underwear, along with a light-colored liquid and matches.

That first wine bottle was worth a few points, but the second—thought to be a molotov cocktail—was left behind as 190 scuba divers competed in the underwater hunt for the sake of ecology.

The hunt, sponsored by scuba clubs and the Metropolitan YMCA, was part of Chicago's Lakefront Festival and took place in Lake Michigan on the northwest side of Adler Planetarium.

Divers surfaced with manhole covers, two full cans of beer, fingernail polish, a jar of mustard, a bicycle hand brake, a faucet, eyeglasses, an unbroken china plate and a blue baby pacifier.

They found a bottle half full of hot sauce, a milk bottle containing a purplish liquid and a floating object no one wanted to examine too closely, watches, railroad spikes, gloves and a myriad of shoes—from ragged sneakers to fashionable wedges.

Among the more conventional finds were dozens of liquor, wine and soft drink bottles and cans, fishhooks and divers' flippers.

"The amount of trash inside some of the breakwaters is really hideous," said Wayne Graham of the YMCA.

Sunday's unearthed junk was deposited in Chicago Park District garbage cans—also extracted, fittingly enough, from Lake Michigan as part of the hunt.

Midland Operator To Test Spraberry

H. D. Oden, Inc., of Midland announced plans to attempt Spraberry completion in a project in the R&W (Clearfork) field 15 miles southwest of Midland in Southwest Midland County.

The project, No. 1 J. T. Windham originally was filed by Producing Enterprises, Inc., of Midland and taken over in February by Colorado Oil & Gas Corp. and drilled to 8,100 feet.

Oden will test above that point. The operation is 1/4 mile north of the Parks (Spraberry) field.

Culberson Gets Shallow Wildcat

Castile Minerals Corp. of Midland will dig No. 1-11 Elcor State as a 2,400-foot wildcat in Culberson County.

The operation is 2,442 feet from south and 2,117 feet from west lines of section 11, block 21, PSL survey and 35 miles northwest of Toyah.

Site is 10 miles southwest of the depleted Griffis Ranch (Mississippian) field.

HNG Reports Flow At Winkler Test

NG Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-21-3 University, long outcrop to the Apollo (Fusselman) field in Winkler County, five miles northwest of Wink, is flowing to test.

Drilled as a wildcat to 19,376 feet, the project is plugged back to 17,000 feet and perforated from 16,370 to 16,375 feet.

On last report, the project

President Visits Oil Shale Mine

By HOWARD BENEDICT Associated Press Writer RIFLE, Colo. (AP) — Wearing a hard hat, safety glasses and an emergency air supply, President Ford today inspected an oil shale mine as he began a busy two-day tour of six cities in four states.

The President interrupted his two-week vacation at Vail, Colo., and rode a helicopter to the Paraho mine development site 8,200 feet up on the Western slope of the Colorado Rocky Mountains.

Here a group of 17 oil companies are working to unlock one of the largest potential sources of petroleum known in the world.

The two-day trip, during which the President makes seven speeches, includes stops today in Colorado and Iowa. He spends the night in Minneapolis and flies to Illinois on Tuesday.

On landing at the Paraho site, the President took a 20-minute ride to the mine over a narrow, winding, dusty mountain road that prompted him to say: "It scares me to death driving up this road."

The President donned safety gear at the mouth of the mine and walked 1,200 feet into the mountain where miners are working to dig up the oil shale.

The visit to the Rifle Mine underscores Ford's view that oil from shale rock is one way the United States can increase domestic energy production and decrease reliance on foreign oil.

At the face of the mine, Harry Pforzheimer, Paraho director, told the President that 17 companies were involved here in an experimental process to determine if mining from shale is economically feasible.

He said Paraho currently is mining about 500 tons of shale a day which produces about 200 barrels of oil. The mine is on Navy property and the oil is used by that service.

As Ford left the mine, he shook hands with several of the miners and told them they had a "great operation and I look forward to its development."

Ford later inspected two pilot projects for use of waste produced when shale rock is shattered and heated to turn the tar-like material into oil. Waste disposal has created environmental problems for developers of oil shale. The projects in Rifle are designed to use waste as a roadbed compactor and as soil for growing certain vegetation.

Neither U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Hill, nor State District Court Judge Ted Robertson issued the temporary restraining orders sought by the companies to stop state investigations.

The suits accuse state agents of harassment, unlawful searches and seizures, misinterpretation of the law, misfeasance, "probable implementation" of cease and desist orders, courts of inquiry and return of indictments.

Agents also were accused of turning alleged confidential information over to the news media in violation of the State Securities Act.

The companies object to the state's interpretation of the State Securities Act as requiring anyone selling a security from Texas to a person outside the state to obtain a dealer's license and to register the securities.

None of the firms has registered its securities with the State Securities Commission because none sells interests in wells to Texas residents, according to the Dallas Morning News.

The state suit also alleges that state government agents have conducted "gestapo-like raids" as part of a plan to run the companies out of the state.

Oil Companies File Suit Against State

DALLAS (AP) — Ten Dallas area oil and gas investing companies have asked that a three-judge panel of federal judges declare the State Securities Act unconstitutional and enjoin state agents from harassing the companies.

In addition, five of the companies have filed a $3 million damage suit against the State of Texas, alleging that state agents have invaded their right to privacy and breached their confidence in trying to run them out of business.

The suits were filed Monday in U.S. District Court and State District Court in Dallas.

The federal suit also revealed that the state plans to seek a court of inquiry to investigate so-called "Schedule D" companies. The suit asks that the state law permitting courts of inquiry be declared unconstitutional.

Schedule D is a federal securities exemption that enables oil and gas firms to operate with a minimum of government regulation.

The firms which filed the federal suit are Dallas Oil and Gas Inc., Sierra Oil and Gas Inc., Kema Productions Inc., U. S. Energy Inc., Enntex Oil and Gas Inc., Century Petroleum Corp., Landmark Petroleum Inc., LaPrada Oil and Gas Inc., Texas Coal and Energy Inc. and Security Petroleum Inc. Plaintiffs in the state court suit are Dallas, Sierra, Kema, Century and Landmark.

Named as defendants, in addition to the state, are State Securities Commissioner Roy Mauer, deputy securities commissioner A. James Ellisor, securities agent Ray McGregor,

Elcor Reports Best Year In Fiscal '75

Elcor Chemical Corp. of Midland has reported that fiscal 1975, which ended June 30, was the company's most successful year.

Sales for the year were $63,696,889 compared to sales in fiscal 1974 of $43,702,561, Roy E. Campbell, Elcor president, said.

Net income for the two quarters were $2,002,053 and $2,218,157.

Earnings per share for fiscal 1975 were $1.28 per share compared with 60 cents for fiscal 1974.

Earnings per share for the fourth quarter of 1975 were 49 cents, compared to the same period in 1974 of 55 cents.

Plans Announced For Gulf Pipeline

HOUSTON (AP)—Four major gas companies have announced at Houston plans to construct a 200-mile pipeline network in the Gulf of Mexico which will tap important natural gas reserves in the High Island Area off the Texas Coast.

The first phase of the system will cost an estimated $343 million. The network's main trunk will be 42 inches in diameter—the largest ever laid in the Gulf of Mexico.

Members of the partnership are affiliates of American Natural Gas Co., United Gas Pipe Line Co., Texas Gas Transmission Co. and Transco Companies, Inc.

Each company will have a 25 per cent interest in the pipeline which will be called High Island offshore systems.

The Federal Power Commission still must approve the plan which would replace two earlier plans for pipelines into the High Island area.

New State Lease Form Distributed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A new lease form for State-owned lands under the Relinquishment Act is being sent by the General Land Office to persons interested in leasing those lands for mineral development.

The new form is to be used in connection with leasing such lands after Sept. 1, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong says.

The new form was made necessary by acts passed by the Legislature—SB 3, providing for natural gas from State-owned lands to not be sold outside Texas if there is a purchaser inside the state, and SB 604, giving the State the option of taking the royalty from production "in kind."

President Visits Oil Shale Mine

By HOWARD BENEDICT Associated Press Writer RIFLE, Colo. (AP)—Wearing a hard hat, safety glasses and an emergency air supply, President Ford today inspected an oil shale mine as he began a busy two-day tour of six cities in four states.

The President interrupted his two-week vacation at Vail, Colo., and rode a helicopter to the Paraho mine development site 8,300 feet up on the Western slope of the Colorado Rocky Mountains.

Here a group of 17 oil companies are working to unlock one of the largest potential sources of petroleum known in the world.

The two-day trip, during which the President makes seven speeches, includes stops today in Colorado and Iowa. He spends the night in Minneapolis and flies to Illinois on Tuesday.

On landing at the Paraho site, the President took a 20-minute ride to the mine over a narrow, winding, dusty mountain road that prompted him to say: "It scares me to death driving up this road."

The President donned safety gear at the mouth of the mine, and walked 1,200 feet into the mountain where miners are working to dig up the oil shale.

The visit to the Rifle Mine underscores Ford's view that oil from shale rock is one way the United States can increase domestic energy production and decrease reliance on foreign oil.

At the face of the mine, Harry Pforzheimer, Paraho director, told the President that 17 companies were involved here in an experimental process to determine if mining from shale is economically feasible.

He said Paraho currently is mining about 500 tons of shale a day which produces about 200 barrels of oil. The mine is on Navy property and the oil is used by that service.

As Ford left the mine, he shook hands with several of the miners and told them they had a "great operation and I look forward to its development."

Ford later inspected two pilot projects for use of waste produced when shale rock is shattered and heated to turn the tar-like material into oil. Waste disposal has created environmental problems for developers of oil shale. The projects in Rifle are designed to use waste as a roadbed compactor and as soil for growing certain vegetation.

Lake Michigan Bottom Reveals Much Underwear

CHICAGO (AP)—What can be found on the bottom of Lake Michigan? Lots of underwear, among other things.

Digging through mud Sunday on a scavenger hunt, several divers pulled up underwear. Others found wine bottles—one containing a folded map of Chicago and another stuffed with again, underwear, along with a light-colored liquid and matches.

The first wine bottle was worth a few points, but the second—thought to be a molotov cocktail—was left behind as 190 scuba divers competed in the underwater hunt for the sake of ecology.

The hunt, sponsored by scuba clubs and the Metropolitan YMCA, was part of Chicago's Lakefront Festival and took place in Lake Michigan on the northwest side of Adler Planetarium.

Divers surfaced with manhole covers, two full cans of beer, fingernail polish, a jar of mustard, a bicycle hand brake, a faucet, eyeglasses, an unbroken china plate and a blue baby pacifier.

They found a bottle half full of hot sauce, a milk bottle containing a purplish liquid and a floating object no one wanted to examine too closely, watches, railroad spikes, gloves and a myriad of shoes—from ragged sneakers to fashionable wedges.

Among the more conventional finds were dozens of liquor, wine and soft drink bottles and cans, fishhooks and divers' flippers.

"The amount of trash inside some of the breakwaters is really hideous," said Wayne Graham of the YMCA.

Sunday's unearthed junk was deposited in Chicago Park District garbage cans—also extracted, fittingly enough, from Lake Michigan as part of the hunt.
