A pair of wildcat operations have been staked in West Texas counties. Amoco Production Co. No. 1-EX University is to be dug as a 14,500-foot exploration 10 miles southwest of Patricia in Northeast Andrews County.

Magnatex Finals Strike In Sterling

Magnatex Corp. and others of Midland have filed potential test with the Railroad Commission of Texas' District 8 office in Midland on No. 1-1 Mahaffey Canyon gas strike in Sterling County.

Operators reported a flow of 285,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 7,584 to 7,608 feet and 8,041 to 8,074 feet. The upper zone was acidized with 1,000 gallons, and the lower zone with 150 gallons.

Israel Beefs Up Airport Security For Kissinger

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer The Israeli government mounted the strongest airport guard in its history today to ward off hostile demonstrations, terrorist attacks and a possible assassination attempt during the arrival of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger who is trying to pin down a new Sinai agreement between Israel and Egypt.

has been done here is in the best interest of all San Franciscans," said Alioto, who was joined by strike leaders at the news conference. Alioto said the tentative settlement would be offered to members of the Police Officers Association, Fire Fighters Local 796 and the board of supervisors "at the earliest possible moment."

Asked when he thought police and firemen would be back on the job, Alioto said, "We are going to leave the situation as it is at present." About 90 per cent of the city's 1,935 policemen went on strike Monday after supervisors approved a 6.5 per cent salary increase, half of what police had demanded. Firemen, seeking the same wage boost, joined the strike Wednesday night. Jerry Schreff, vice president of the firemen's union, estimated that of the 1,700 men on the force, only about 200 were on duty after an overwhelmingly favorable strike vote.

The current pay schedule for police ranges from $16,044 for rookies to $25,944 for captains. Firemen's salaries are the same as policemen's. Sporadic violence and vandalism, including a small bomb explosion at Alioto's home early Wednesday, erupted during the strike by police.

Supervisory personnel and some nonstriking police and firemen provided emergency protection after the walkouts. The board of supervisors voted a state of emergency Wednesday before the firemen's strike, asking that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. be requested to send in 200 state highway patrolmen to help police the city.

But Alioto refused to declare the emergency, and supervisors voted unanimously late Wednesday to ask Brown directly for the highway patrolmen.

At that point, Supervisor Terry Francois said Alioto "is not negotiating on our behalf. We never asked him to negotiate." Dianne Feinstein, president of the board of supervisors, said: "As far as we're concerned, until the public safety needs of this city are met, there are no further negotiations planned."

Meanwhile, officers of the 1-850 member Transport Workers Union, who had been earning $6.73 an hour, agreed to a 6.5 per cent pay raise, averting a bus strike threatened for midnight tonight. A strike would have affected 500,000 daily bus and trolley passengers.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soaring prices for food, gasoline and used cars pushed consumer prices up 1.2 per cent in July, the biggest monthly rise in inflation this year and the first in double figures since last September, the government announced today.

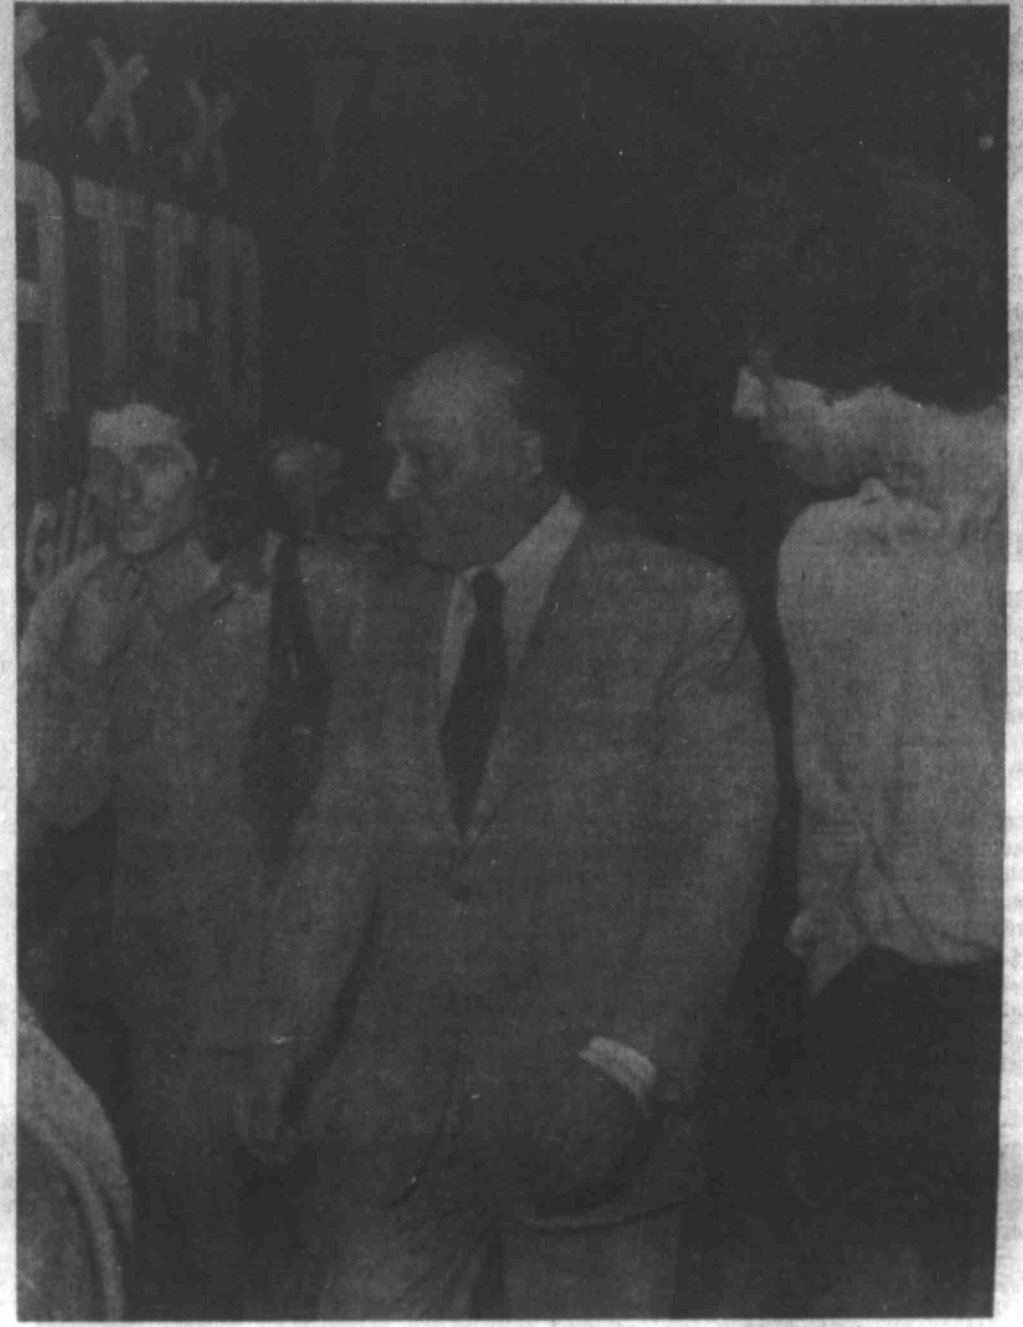

Last month's increase compared with a rise of eight-tenths of one per cent in June, providing further evidence that inflationary pressure remains a serious problem.

Judge Denies Parr Bond Renewal

By ED TODD Declaring that Archer Parr is an exploiter, U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle here late Wednesday afternoon denied a bail-bond renewal for the 49-year-old ex-judge of Duval County. And the federal judge, in wrapping up a $121,500 bond revocation hearing that took three days in a two-week span, ordered Parr to a federal penitentiary to start serving a 10-year sentence handed him on a 1974 perjury conviction.

This morning, Parr was still in Midland City Jail where he is awaiting transfer by U.S. marshals to federal prison. "Power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely," the judge said in alluding to Parr's 16-year reign as judge of the South Texas ranching and oil-producing county of about 12,000 population. "The democratic process in Duval County has been abused and prostituted by someone in power," Judge Suttle said in explaining his ruling in the Parr case.

The judge, who seemed tired and almost embittered when he announced his ruling at 6:55 p.m., had heard two days — Aug. 7 and 8 — of testimony. And then for about 2½ hours Wednesday, he sat through the closing and conflicting arguments of two attorneys. U.S. Atty. John Clark, who as an assistant U.S. attorney in 1974 had helped prosecute Parr in the perjury trial, argued that the ousted county judge would flee the country were he granted his freedom on bail. Not so, countered Parr's

Good Neighbors Still Exist

West Texas has a reputation for being friendly to strangers, but area residents don't forget the folks who live here all the time, as J. G. Bennett of Rt. 2, Midland, found out Wednesday. Bennett was feeling "weak" a little over a week ago, neighbor Alvey Bryant said today, and he went to his doctor in Midland to find out why.

The diagnosis was a malignant tumor. Last week, Bennett went to Houston for more tests — and the outcome was the same, cancer. At his farm seven miles east of Midland, Bennett had approximately 290 acres of cotton that needed working. The fields needed cultivating and some weeds had sprouted after a light rain last Friday.

To Bryant, it was obvious that Bennett, in his upper 70s, wouldn't be able to work the crop. A few phone calls later, Bryant had several neighbors lined up to plow the fields Wednesday morning. Shortly after 8 a.m. Wednesday, the plowing started. It wasn't long before other neighbors noticed the activity and volunteered their help. "We had 13 tractors working the fields at one time," Bryant said, "and we finished the 290 acres by 12:30." Bryant said, "It was marvelous how well the people here responded." The neighbors have an "understanding" that they will take care of Bennett's cotton until he's able to take over, Bryant said. Just when that will be depends on what course of treatment Bennett's doctor in Midland prescribes. Those who pitched in Wednesday included Roy Graham, Bobby Evans, Bud Lea, Wilbur Casbeer, Bill Wood, James Brooks, Bill Stroud, Bob Howard, Jimmy Lucas, Arlie Bryant, Pete Bryant, Claude Nickles and Steve Cook, Bryant said.

Gas Crisis Due, Pipeline Warns

WASHINGTON (AP)—Natural gas shortages this winter could affect residential consumers and small businesses for the first time, according to the attorney for a major natural gas pipeline company. Thomas Ryan, attorney for the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co. (Transco) told a Federal Power Commission hearing Wednesday that the firm will be forced to impose natural gas curtailments this winter to its distributors of about 40 per cent compared with a 26 per cent cut last winter.

Unlike past curtailments, these cuts may not be able to be borne completely by industrial customers and other relatively low-priority gas users, Ryan said. Transco is the first interstate pipeline to state publicly that its curtailments might affect top-priority users. The firm sells gas in states from Texas to New York. In at least two states, North Carolina and Delaware, Transco is the only supplier of natural gas. The distributors — natural gas companies which buy gas from pipelines and then resell it to the public — in certain instances may have no choice but to pass these curtailments on in some degree to their residential and small business customers, Ryan said. He said preliminary figures by Transco accountants showed that as much as 2.5 per cent of the gas earmarked for residential and small business customers may have to be curtailed this winter. "The only thing that can be done to help this pipeline this winter and other pipelines is to get more gas into the system," Ryan said.

San Antonio. In the hearing here, Gillespie had sought Parr's release from custody while his conviction is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. That should be done before the year is out, the attorney had said earlier.

Parr, who had been freed on a $121,500 cash bond since the day after his conviction on May 9, 1974, was arrested and jailed July 24 after a circuit appellate court upheld his conviction. "I haven't seen much loss of power since his conviction," Suttle said. "He has been able to collect money, high sums of money."

"There has been exploitation up to the date of this hearing, almost." The judge, in further outlining his reasons for denying Parr bond, said the ex-judge poses a danger to society. "If the truth were known, there would be plenty of reasons to fear the defendant," he said of Parr. "I think there is a danger to the community of continued exploitation," Suttle said, should Parr be released. With Parr on the loose, Suttle said, "some exchange of language down there" could invite violence. "But, they've got (See PARR Page 2A)

Trio Jailed In Massive Crude Oil Theft Racket

BALLINGER, Tex. (AP)—Three men were in jail here today in connection with what authorities called a massive theft of crude oil by a suspected interstate gang of thieves. Jailed here were Dennis T. Davis, 31, of Abilene; Clinton L. Wilkerson, 43, of Houston; and Jackie Clough, 20, of Winters, Tex. Davis and Wilkerson were each charged with two counts of felony theft and were being held under $25,000 bonds. Clough was held under $5,000 bond on the same charges. Runnels County Deputy John R. Jones said thousands of barrels of crude oil were stolen from tank farms throughout West Central Texas and trucked to a Texas City refinery, where it was refined as gasoline. Arrest warrants have been issued for at least three other men. The FBI, Texas Rangers and the Texas Railroad Commission are conducting the investigation along with sheriff's departments in Runnels, Taylor and Jones counties. A source close to the investigation said thousands of barrels

Moderates Gaining Ground In Portugal

By JULIE FLINT
 LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Moderates are gaining ground as the ouster of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves appears imminent.

Anti-Communists in the armed forces threatened Wednesday to overthrow the government by force if President Francisco da Costa Gomes did not fire Goncalves, who advocates a Soviet-oriented brand of communism.

Costa Gomes later told 18 new junior officers at a swearing-in ceremony, "It is not simple to be a member of a government team whose duration can be expressed in days."

The president was reported to favor naming the army chief of staff, Gen. Carlos Fabiao, as premier. A Paris newspaper said Fabiao told the Goncalves regime did not have much time left.

Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal indicated his party would go along with the removal of Goncalves as a way to cut its political losses.

Cunhal told a news conference the premier's Communist-line leadership "has not solved all the problems" facing Portugal. The Communist party is "open to look for other solutions to solve the crisis," he said. "No one may put his personal ambition before the general interest of the revolution."

However, the Communists brought out tens of thousands of soldiers, farmers and workers for a march through Lisbon Wednesday night in support of Goncalves.

The marchers chanted, "The soldiers always, always with the people... Down with fascism. Down with capitalism."

Farmers on their tractors held red carnations, symbol of the 16-month-old revolution.

The demand for the dismissal of Goncalves was delivered to the president by a group of eight officers who were accompanied by Gen. Otelo Carvalho, the military security chief who is a member of the ruling junta along with Costa Gomes and Goncalves. The officers, who also included former Foreign Minister Ernesto Melo Antunes and the chiefs of staff of the army and air force, claimed the backing of 85 per cent of the armed forces, sources said.

The officers also submitted a program to reverse the government's trend toward communism and move its policy back toward the center. Moderate sources said the demands had been worked out in consultation with the Socialist party.

The Socialists, the nation's largest party, precipitated the political crisis by quitting the government 40 days ago, charging that the premier was moving Portugal toward a Communist dictatorship. This was followed by anti-Communist riots in conservative northern Portugal in which five persons have been killed and hundreds wounded.

Viking Spaceship Zips Toward Mars

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — America's Viking spaceship zipped across the orbit of the moon today on a 505-million-mile flight designed to determine if there is life on the planet Mars.

A Titan Centaur rocket launched the Viking on its 303-day chase around the sun at 5:22 p.m. Wednesday, and the letter-perfect performance of the spaceship spread smiles across the faces of space officials who had scowled through two blastoff delays last week.

First, the spacecraft was fired into a parking orbit 165 miles above earth so scientists could position the ship for insertion into a trans-Mars trajectory.

Then, 30 minutes later, another rocket blast sent the Viking streaking toward Mars at 24,000 miles an hour and, hopefully, a soft landing in time for the Bicentennial.

"It's really good to have a smile on my face," said John Neilson, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's director for launch vehicles. "It was a trouble-free countdown."

The Titan Centaur launch vehicle forced the first delay of Aug. 11 when a guidance control valve in the first stage malfunctioned.

James Martin, project manager for the $1-billion mission, and other space officials have yet to offer a definite cause for the second delay, an errant switch that drained two batteries in the orbiter half of the spaceship.

A sister craft is to be launched Sept. 1.

Martin said officials were considering a long mid-course correction next Wednesday to improve shrinking chances for a landing on Mars July 4, 1976, the 200th anniversary of American independence.

Guerrillas Strike Argentine City

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A guerrilla attack on the police turned the center of Cordoba, Argentina's second largest city, into a battlefield, and police said seven persons were killed and many others were wounded.

Leftist guerrillas attacked the central police headquarters with bazookas and machine guns about 11 a.m. Wednesday, and heavy firing continued until early afternoon. There was sporadic shooting for the rest of the day, and bombs also went off around the outskirts of the city, which is 450 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

The police said five policemen and two guerrillas were killed and at least five policemen were wounded. Unofficial reports said "numerous" passersby caught in the crossfire also were wounded.

According to leaflets found in the downtown area, the attackers were members of the leftist Peronist Montoneros organization and the Trotskyite People's Revolutionary Army, or ERP.

Witnesses said the guerrillas pulled their weapons out of shopping carts and opened fire, backed by snipers in church belfries and other buildings around the central plaza.

Two policemen were cut down by gunfire in front of the headquarters, and two more died when the attackers fired a mortar into the police communications center, destroying the building.

A fifth was shot and killed in a raid on another police station. An unconfirmed report said explosives were dropped onto a bank from a small aircraft.

Army troops emerged from a nearby garrison in transport carriers, but witnesses said they did not intervene in the fighting.

Police said they rounded up numerous suspects throughout the city and its suburbs.

The governor of Cordoba, retired Brig. Raul Lacabanne, called for an all-out attack on guerrillas throughout Argentina.

"The country is in a state of war, and it's useless to concentrate the effort in just a few places to combat the guerrillas. We have to go after them in a coordinated way all over the country," Lacabanne told a news conference.

The only military action under way against the guerrillas is in the northwestern province of Tucuman where the army has been hunting down the ERP since last February.

The Montoneros want to provoke a military takeover of the government in hopes this would touch off an uprising that would bring them to power.

New rates for long distance calls within Texas.

With Discount Periods and a new One-Minute Rate, you may be able to save money.

Rates for Long Distance calls within Texas have just changed.

For you—the telephone customer—it means most rates are going up.

But you may be surprised to learn that rate changes won't necessarily bring higher telephone bills.

Because with our new discount for dialing your own calls, you can better control your Long Distance costs.

In some cases, you may be able to save money on your Long Distance bill by taking advantage of these rates.

For example, there's a new one-minute rate on all calls that you dial yourself—without the operator's help.

Under the old rate, the initial rate period was for three minutes. Now on One-Plus dialed calls the initial rate period is one minute.

That means you can save by reducing the length of your call.

	Mon	Tues	Wed	Thurs	Fri	Sat	Sun
8 a.m. to 5 p.m.	Day Rate Period Full Rate
5 p.m. to 11 p.m.	Evening Rate Period 30% Discount						Eve. 30% Discount
11 p.m. to 8 a.m.	Night and Weekend Rate Periods 40% Discount

NOTE: The Evening rate applies all day on the following holidays: New Year's Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, except in instances where the holiday falls into Night/Weekend period. In this case, the lower rate applies.

*On operator-assisted calls, the same rate applies at all hours on all days.

Nights and Weekends there will be a 40 per cent discount.

So, if you call later in the day or night, or on weekends, you're going to get the lowest rates possible.

But if you place calls through an operator, rates for these Zero-Plus calls will be higher, at any time—night or day. These include calls from a coin phone, collect, credit card and calls billed to a third number.

The initial rate period of three minutes will continue for these and other operator-assisted calls.

And, person-to-person calls will cost more than any other type call.

	#One-Plus	Each Additional One-Plus Minute
DAY RATE	50c or less	41¢ or less
EVENINGS 30% Discount	35¢ or less	29¢ or less
NIGHTS AND WEEKENDS 40% Discount	30¢ or less	25¢ or less

#One-Plus charges for 1 minute.

NOTE: One-Plus rates also apply on station-to-station calls placed with an operator where One-Plus facilities are not available.

*Rates quoted do not include taxes.

Simply put, if you dial the call yourself, you are going to get a lower rate. If you place your call through an operator, it will cost more.

Now our new rates offer you a choice.

By dialing your own calls and by taking advantage of our discount rate period, you can still get low rates and fast service.

Southwestern Bell

Also, for the first time we are offering flat percentage discounts for Evening, Night and Weekend One-Plus calls.

Using the Day rate as the base, the Evening rates will be 30 per cent less. And, on

End Of Revenue Sharing Will Hurt

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas' $122.5 million into city budgets, plus another $67.9 million into counties and $95.2 million to the state treasury. But revenue sharing will end Dec. 31, 1976, unless Congress passes an extension bill that is now going through the committee stage. The program began in 1972 with a heavy dose of "new" money that could be used for virtually any government purpose. The report said the money received by cities in that year from revenue sharing was almost double what their average annual tax revenue increases were then. But, it said, the additional spending that revenue sharing enabled the cities and counties to do has become a standard part of their budgets. "The impact of revenue sharing as 'new' money occurs only once, of course. The important point to consider is that revenue sharing is not extended beyond its current expiration date of December 1976, the revenue lost from this source would be substantial. If city and county governments should desire to maintain the same expenditure levels without revenue sharing support, then a substantial tax increase by many of these local governments would probably be necessary," the report said. At the state level, tax increases were avoided by revenue sharing, but that source was a much smaller percentage of total expenditures, representing about $170 million of the $121.1 billion 1976-77 budget. The legislature was able to spend only guaranteed sharing money through Dec. 31, 1976. That means, the report said, that the 1977 session might be able to spend a 2½-year allocation if the program is renewed. When revenue sharing first became available, state officials said they hoped it could be spent on single shot items such as construction, to avoid the kind of dependence that could cause tax increases if it were ever cut off. But the TACIR report said about 80 per cent of the state's expenditures of revenue sharing funds was going for such things as salaries and operating expenses.

Slayton Feels Fortunate Lung Spot Found Early

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Donald Slayton has a lesion on his lung. He undergoes exploratory cancer surgery next week and feels "super fortunate" doctors found the lung spot so early. "On balance, I'm super fortunate the way it worked out. I've got a problem but we know what to do about it," Slayton told a news conference Wednesday. The spaceman enters the M. D. Anderson Hospital and goes under the surgeon's knife Tuesday. Doctors said they'll cut out a specimen of the lesion, examine it, then cut out part of Slayton's lung if the spot proves to be malignant. If the dark spot—about the size of a pencil eraser—is benign then doctors will sew up Slayton without further surgery. A space agency flight surgeon, Dr. Arnold Nicogossian, said the lesion was discovered only because of the close medical care given Slayton and two other astronauts recently returned from the Apollo-Soyuz space mission. Slayton and the two other astronauts, Thomas Stafford and Vance Brand, had been exposed to toxic gas while returning to earth. They were hospitalized in Hawaii for observation. All got a clean bill of health except Slayton. Nicogossian said there was no evidence from x-ray study that the lesion was caused by or aggravated by the toxic gas fumes. The doctor said the worst thing that could happen would be removal of part of Slayton's left lung. Even should that happen, the doctor said "I don't see any reason why he can't fly again." The 51-year-old Slayton said he quit cigarettes two years ago. "I smoked close to 30 years up to that point, off and on. Mostly on," he said. Slayton said he had been a moderate smoker.

Abby Offers A Helping Hand

DEAR ABBY: Because you have always been a good friend to the Como Park Zoo, I am asking a favor of you.

We have a 5-month-old female orangutan named Joy who has been invited to the Los Angeles Zoo on a "breeding loan." They have a male orangutan named Guy whom they would like to mate with Joy.

Do you know anyone who has an air-conditioned automobile who would be willing to drive Joy and her foster parents (Ariene and Joe Scheunemann) to Chicago to board an airplane to transport Joy to L.A.?

Joy is small enough to be held in one's arms, she has good manners and she would do no damage to the automobile. JOHN FLETCHER, DIRECTOR, ST. PAUL COMO PARK ZOO

DEAR JOHN: If Joy is a "liberated" orangutan, she may not like the idea of going to L.A. to accommodate the male. If Guy wants a date with a sure thing, why doesn't HE fly to St. Paul?

On the other hand, if Joy WANTS to meet Guy in L.A., I will provide the child bride with air-conditioned transportation. And I hope she returns "hair-conditioned."

DEAR ABBY: My husband does sheet-rock work for a living. He makes good money, but he's always wanted to be an accountant so he's been going to night school. He's young and smart, and will finish his accounting course next year.

The problem is that everyone we meet asks Carl what he does for a living, and when he tells them he does sheet-rock work, they say, "Oh, come and take a look at this hole in my wall," or, "I've been looking for someone to do that kind of work for me."

Carl and I both work five days a week, and we like to have our weekends free to maybe go someplace together, but with all these sheet-rock jobs he has to do for friends, he's tied up.

How can Carl turn these people down in a nice way? CARL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Carl should simply tell them that he's sorry but he doesn't have the time. And he'd better start practicing that line while he's still in sheet-rock because when he becomes an accountant, he'll have even more "friends" imposing on him for favors.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to your column item about the person who loved to travel, but who invariably had a seat next to some long-winded bore.

I pretend I don't speak English! It is a nearly fool-proof method I have used for years. When someone cranks up, I say: "No hablo Ingles" or "J'ne parle francaise," etc.

Of course I have to be careful that when the stewardess or bus driver comes by, I don't respond in English! I also have to be careful to conceal an English language book or newspaper, which is a dead giveaway. With these precautions, it works nearly every time.

One of my female friends discourages would-be conversationalists by removing her partial upper plate. A big, toothless grin in the direction of the offender is usually sufficient.

Today's Fashions Should Depict The Individual

By FRANCHELLE MOORE
 "Women should choose fashions which suit their way of life and body; clothes in which they are comfortable and look their best." Bill Blass of New York, well-known fashion designer, said in Midland Wednesday.

Blass, who is in Midland for the Midland Symphony Guild's benefit formal dinner and style show, "An Evening with Bill Blass," to be held at 8 p.m. today in Midland Country Club, was honored Wednesday evening with a party for 250 guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Laughlin. Co-host couple with the Laughlins were Mr. and Mrs. George Shelton.

Blass' supposition that fashions, regardless of existing changes, should suit the individual may alleviate the dilemma some women face on decisions, such as proper length of hemlines and pantsuits or no pantsuits, fashion-wise.

"I knew from childhood I wanted to be a fashion designer, so when I was 18 years of age I left Indiana for New York and began my career," Blass said. This self-motivated desire has resulted in his being known internationally as a successful designer. His fashion designing now extends to fashions for men and children, as well as for women, and of accessories associated with fashions.

Blass also commented that the manufacturer of a luxury automobile will produce a Bill Blass Model in recognition of his designing accomplishments.

Professional models will show Blass' new fall fashions at the Thursday benefit for the Midland-Odesa Symphony and Chorale. The event is being co-sponsored by Julian Gold, Inc.

Casualness seems to be the prevalent factor in Blass' fall collection. His daytime styles accentuate luxurious sportswear. His favorite daytime colors are camel, gray, brown and beige. The large shawl is one of his important accessories for fall.

Slim coats abound in the Blass collection. The coats are teamed with self skirts and hand-knitted sweaters or a crepe de chine or wool jersey dress.

According to Blass, the suit is back for fall and he has designed them in a variety of fabrics and silhouettes. Fingertip-length jackets are another proportion he gives to suits, and they often are in contrasting fabrics, such as a green corduroy style with a matching silk blouse and gray flannel skirt.

Blass' evening fashion philosophy is either sporty, or dresses are sculptured to make a woman a goddess. The sportswear influence is seen in black sequin jackets, pea jackets or hip-length style over jersey pants or pleated skirts. His dresses are columns of Georgette or clingy drapes of silk crepe and matte jersey. Black is his dominant color for evening.

Envelope Expense Brings Her Self-Defeating Budget

Some people become distraught when they discover that on the twenty-fifth of the month they don't have $17.98 to buy a simply terrific tweed of Bonwits.

I never have this problem. I never have the dime to put in the parking meter in front skirt in Bonwits.

At least twice a year I become thoroughly disgusted with having to exist on barbecue-sauce sandwiches for the last six days of the month, and I resolve to reorganize my budget.

HINTS FROM

Heloise

Dear Heloise:
 When wrapping packages, before you start the task, stick a piece of cellophane tape to each of your knuckles.

When you make a fold in the paper, you can quickly tape it down without trying to hold the paper with one hand and trying to tear off the tape from the roller with the other.

M.C.H.

Dear Heloise:
 For someone who has a lot of pins and brooches, use an old wig head and stand to display them.

I put all my pins and brooches on one and they don't get mixed with my other jewelry. I can easily see which one I want to wear.

The wig heads come in colors now and look very pretty on your dresser.

Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

 (Aug. 23)
GENERAL TENDENCIES: It is advisable that you attend to personal tasks despite obstacles. Avoid putting yourself in a position in which delays occur. Whatever benefits arise are unexpected.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Buckle down to the work before you and handle it efficiently. Be ready to expect a new opportunity for getting ahead.
Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't expect much from friends who are busy with own affairs and have little time for you today. Think constructively.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Show more courtesy and thoughtfulness to higher-ups who are under a heavy strain now. Don't neglect any payments.
MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): New situations arise that should be studied with care so that you can get the most benefit. Be sensible.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 22): Learning what higher-ups expect of you makes the going easier and you stay on the right track now. Be more cooperative.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Listen to views and complaints of associates and come to a better understanding. Listen out who opposes you.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Avoid a co-worker who is in a bad mood now. Take more time for rest so that you build your energies. Relax tonight.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Not a good day for the amusements you want to take part in. A sudden invitation should not be turned down at this time.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Make sure you handle your words well or you could start a rumpus at home. Be more optimistic about the days ahead.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Much care should be exercised in motion today. Try not to get drawn into any arguments with anyone. Maintain your cool.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Exercise much care where monetary affairs are concerned or you could get into a financial bind. Try to avoid worrying.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Plan some time to improve both health and appearance at the same time. Take care of a troublesome situation at once.

Jelly side down

By NANCY STAHL

One early effort involved cashing my paycheck and distributing the cash between seventeen envelopes marked "Rent," "Heat," "Telephone," etc. While this is an admirable enough system for regular expenses, some costs vary. It is all very well to label an envelope "Repairs," but if nothing breaks down, you've wasted a perfectly good envelope. I realized that it is equally foolish to devote an entire envelope to one-shot expenses. After all, how many times can one cat be neutered?

Another problem arose when I stumbled upon an excellent bargain in the linen department. While "Home Furnishings" contained 37 cents, "Telephone" was loaded. But is it strictly ethical to rob a public utility to buy mattress pads?

Over the years, the labels on the envelopes changed. The envelope labeled "Diaper Service" was replaced by one labeled "Nursery School." (Actually, I was forced to fill BOTH envelopes for three dreadful months.) "Dancing Lessons" became "Piano Lessons," then "Flute Lessons," and, finally, "Orthodontist."

It really was an extremely efficient system until I realized that I still couldn't afford a $17.98 skirt. I was spending too much on envelopes.

Liz, Burton Back Together Again

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton were reported traveling together "somewhere in Switzerland" today after 14 months of divorce and another reconciliation. Burton was quoted as saying they might remarry in Israel.

"They are driving around in Switzerland and are expected to be back here before going to Israel next week," said Miss Taylor's secretary at the home the star maintains in Gstaad to reduce her taxes.

"The reconciliation is confirmed," she added. "They are now driving around together in her car, but I don't know where they are."

A spokesman for the couple in New York, John Springer, said Burton had told him: "This is not a trial reconciliation; it is permanent."

Springer said Burton also told him they might remarry during their visit to Israel because "after all, Elizabeth is Jewish."

Miss Taylor converted to Judaism in 1959, between her third and fourth husbands, producer Mike Todd and singer Eddie Fisher, both Jews.

Burton, now 49, was Miss Taylor's fifth husband; she is 43 and was his second wife. Their marriage lasted 10 years, and for much of that time they were among the movies' biggest — and highest paid — attractions. In the latter years, the marriage turned stormy, and last year a Swiss court awarded Miss Taylor an uncontested divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

Since their divorce, Miss Taylor has been the constant companion of a Los Angeles used car dealer named Henry Wynberg while Burton has had a string of girlfriends. But Springer said they had been in communication by telephone for some time.

He said Miss Taylor returned to Switzerland last weekend from Leningrad, where she had been making the film "The Bluebird." Burton joined her, and they were reconciled, Springer reported.

"Whether they will get married immediately is not absolutely certain," he said, adding that it was probable they would remarry.

Miss Taylor, a star since "National Velvet" when she was 12, was married first when she was 18 to hotel heir Nicky Hilton. That marriage and her next one to English actor Michael Wilding ended in divorce; Todd, her third husband, was killed in a plane crash, and she divorced Fisher to marry Burton.

Burton was divorced from the former Sybil Williams to marry Miss Taylor.

First Lady Betty Ford Shuns Separate Bedrooms Tradition

NEW YORK (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford says the White House tradition of separate bedrooms "is just too far to go for politics" and she sleeps with her husband "as often as possible."

Mrs. Ford is quoted in the September issue of McCall's magazine as saying she got letters "from all across the country" after she was reported to have spurned the White House practice of separate sleeping chambers.

Many of the writers seemed to "feel it is very immoral for us to be using the same bedroom," Mrs. Ford said. She complained that apparently some Americans think a man who becomes president is "supposed to become a eunuch."

Mrs. Ford, 57, sparked controversy two weeks ago when she said in a television interview that she would not be surprised if her 18-year-old daughter Susan came to her and said she was having an affair. Susan later said she was not having an affair.

Writer Myra MacPherson says the First Lady shows no generation gap in her attitudes toward younger people's opinions and ways of life, including living together though unmarried.

In this connection, Mrs. Ford is quoted as saying, "Sometimes I'm not so sure that maybe this generation approaches life more wisely than we have. I know that may seem controversial, but it's an actual fact that in college more couples are living off campus together. If these things are going to take place, if I were the parent, I'd rather have the children come to me and feel free to tell me."

She added that freedom to indulge in such a life style might be "impossible for her my own children," being White House children. But she adds, "I don't think they'd do it anyway. I don't think they are inclined that way."

Mrs. Ford says she has always had a strong civil libertarian streak, nurtured by her mother's tolerant attitude for people, according to McCall's. The magazine said Mrs. Ford's personality asserted itself following her very public and emotionally painful breast cancer surgery, an operation whose side effects were eased by the President's empathy.

"It was easy for me to accept the operation," Mrs. Ford says. "I had been married 26 years and we had our four children. There was no problem of lack of love, affection and attention."

Looking back on her first year in the White House, Mrs. Ford says, "I think I've learned over the past months the positiveness of the position (First Lady) — which I hadn't realized before."

She said she never thought she would enjoy being First Lady — "All I could think of were teas and that sort of thing."

"I have grown. I have come to realize the power of being able to help."

One of her favorite causes is the pending and controversial Equal Rights Amendment for Women (ERA). She was picketed last winter by opponents of the ERA who charged that she was using taxpayers' money (White House telephones and stationery) to lobby for the amendment.

"I feel I've done a great deal for the ERA," she said. "I believe very strongly that this bill should be passed."

Miss Taylor converted to Judaism in 1959, between her third and fourth husbands, producer Mike Todd and singer Eddie Fisher, both Jews.

Selection Panel Favors Zumberge As SMU President

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University (SMU) trustees have been asked to approve Dr. James H. Zumberge as president of the school. They will meet Sept. 5 to act on the recommendation of a committee that selected Zumberge.

Zumberge, 52, has been chancellor of the University of Nebraska since 1971. He was recommended Wednesday to fill the SMU post assumed by Chancellor Willis Tate a year ago when Dr. Paul Hardin resigned as president.

A geologist who has done research in polar regions, Zumberge was named to the National Science Board of the National Science Foundation by President Ford in 1974. He serves on the board's executive committee.

He has written technical papers and 10 books.

Zumberge is the chairman of the Polar Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences, and is a director of the First National Bank of Lincoln.

Stolen Spitting Cobra Recovered

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—A yellow spitting cobra, whose venom can blind or kill a victim, was found near the store from which a group of young boys took it, authorities said.

The snake, inside a transparent box, was taken from Tone Peocore's car in front of an aquarium store here Wednesday. She handles snakes for sale to retailers.

The store owner said the snake is one of the deadliest in the world. It can spit venom as far as 15 feet which could cause blindness if the eyes are touched. The snake's bite causes shock within 15 seconds and the victim would die in about one minute, she said.

Texas Firm Sues Philadelphia Bank

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — First Pennsylvania Bank has been sued by a Texas building firm for allegedly renegeing on a contract to finance a housing development in Houston.

In a suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court here, Langson Bros. Construction Co. of Houston asked $2.25 million in damages from the bank, the oldest and largest in the city.

The builder claimed the bank breached a construction financing contract for Briar Glen subdivision and defamed the firm to Houston area banks and business firms.

Mexico: Is It Bound For Socialism Or Guiding Economic Development?

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government is taking over more and more private enterprises, raising claims among businessmen and opposition politicians that the country is heading full tilt into socialism.

A spokesman for the government denies this, contending that what it is doing is guiding economic development in a nation that still has a large population of poor.

The government says that the state operated 258 enterprises in 1974, but some leading Mexican businessmen say the state already owns or may have some participation in more than 1,000 companies valued at over $5 billion which were formerly in private hands.

The government controls such basic industries as oil, electricity, mining, railroads, agriculture and petrochemicals. It also runs hotels, night clubs, bicycle factories and taxi stands.

Because of this, some businessmen and opposition politicians think this country may be gradually joining the Socialist camp through what they called a creeping state takeover of free enterprise.

"I think we are heading to absolute state control of private enterprise," said leading industrialist Alberto Santos de Hoyos, a member of the so-called "Monterrey Group" of conservative businessmen.

Monterrey is Mexico's third largest city and its industrial hub 150 miles south of Laredo, Tex.

Santos de Hoyos was supported in his views by auto executive Armando Fernandez, who is also president of the Mexican Employers Confederation, and Jorge Sanchez Mejorado, an industrialist and president of the National Chambers of Industry Confederation. Leaders of the National Action party, the largest Mexican opposition body, also have voiced support for the business attitude.

Labor leaders estimate there are five million unemployed Mexicans, about 25 per cent of the work force compared to a U.S. unemployment rate of 8.4 per cent in July. The country has a population growth of 3.5 per cent annually, one of the largest in the world. Of the 58 million Mexicans, an estimated 60 per cent live at subsistence levels. The per capita income is $400 a year in contrast to about $4,700 in the United States.

The government-backed Bank of Mexico says a sign of political and economic stability is the fact that U.S. residents have deposited more than $1 billion in Mexican banks in the past two years. The bank said the reason was high deposit interest rates paid by Mexican banks.

A typical case of government takeover was the recent purchase of the Empresas Longoria, a consortium of banks, savings and loan associations, cotton and wheat mills, vegetable oil factories and pasta plants valued by the government at $96 million.

The government said the property came under state control because the owner was deeply in debt and behind in his taxes. The owner, 70-year-old Octaviano Longoria, claimed the government confiscated his property and that he paid his debts. He said the value of the seized enterprises was several times the government's estimate of $96 million.

All major banks are private but regulated strictly by the government in terms of interest rates and credit lines. The government, however, directly controls 46 banks, some formed by the government itself to provide credit to peasant farmers and others acquired from private owners who are said to bein debt. Some pro-government labor unions have demanded state control of banks. Although some businessmen believe this will be the government's next step in controlling the economy, Finance Minister Jose Lopez Portillo has denied it.

The government also controls newspaper distribution, the largest newspaper chain and the main national news agency. The major radio and television stations are private but are forced to give up 12 per cent of their air time a day to government broadcasts.

Western diplomats are at odds in their opinions on what Mexico will do about foreign concerns. Some say that if Mexico nationalizes foreign businesses, it will frighten away badly needed foreign capital for development projects.

Others say that modern Mexico, with its roots in a constitution of more than 50 years ago that was perhaps the most leftist document up to Russia's Bolshevik revolution, has started something it cannot stop.

The last major nationalization of a foreign business occurred early in the Echeverria administration when the government took control of a leaf tobacco firm owned by the London-based British-American Tobacco Co.

Now the Mexican Workers Confederation, the largest government labor union in the country, has demanded government expropriation of the food processing and pharmaceutical industries, mostly in the hands of American and West German investors.

The government says it is not against foreign or private investment so long as it contributes to the country's development.

"Mexico is not heading to ward socialism," commented Fausto Zapata, press spokesman for President Luis Echeverria and deputy minister of the presidency. "The state guides economic development."

Zapata said the government is trying to "modernize Mexican society" through what he termed new ways of ruling. He added that this has "surprised" private enterprise.

Foreign investment is estimated at $3 billion, of which at least $2 billion is American property. Most of the rest comes from Japan and West Germany.

In the last few years, however, many foreign companies have been "Mexicanized," a process through which the government demands minority foreign ownership, usually on a 49-51 per cent basis.

Al Wichrich, executive vice president of the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico, says there is no indication of a flight of foreign capital from Mexico although he conceded that private foreign investment has declined.

Private foreign investment remained at a steady $200 million a year from the United States in the past five years, down from an estimated $500 million a year in the 10 years before that, Wichrich said.

He said American capital here represents 5 per cent of all private and public investment and 11 per cent of private investment.

The government has said it welcomes foreign investment so long as it is associated with Mexican capital to further development.

Some businessmen say the government may raise taxes to make private companies unprofitable and force the sale of companies to the government in the future.

Companies already have to pay a 5 per cent payroll tax for workers' housing and 3 per cent tax for rural education and are forced into compulsory annual profit-sharing with employees.

Government control of the Mexican economy started at the turn of the century when dictator Porfirio Diaz nationalized railroads and a coal firm.

The gradual control began in earnest during the Socialist regime of the late President Lázaro Cardenas who nationalized U.S. and British oil companies in 1938.

A private study showed that a total of 34 companies were either purchased or established by the government in the 1940s.

The number of government companies declined between the late 1940s and the late 1950s during the term of pro-free enterprise presidents Miguel Alemán and Adolfo Ruiz Cortines.

But under the regime of liberal leftist Adolfo López Mateos in the early 1960s, the government started taking over more companies, 52 in 1960 alone.

Sex Crackdown Starts In Taipei

Agence France-Presse
TAIPEI — The police vice squad has organized 36 mobile units to crack down on sex peddling in the wake of resumed air links between Tokyo and Taipei.

A police spokesman said, with the restoration of the Taiwan-Japan air services, this is a precautionary measure to maintain a healthy and moral society.

It is feared that the increased tourist traffic from Japan will create more serious problems of morality.

The mobile units which have just completed special training will in the next few days begin to conduct raids on restaurants, massage parlors, barbershops, tea and coffee houses, refreshment cafes, bars, sauna bath houses and other likely places offering illicit sex.

Conservative Old Maine Provides Fresh Approach To Life

By JERRY HARKAVY
BRUNSWICK, Maine (AP) — Strange things are happening Down East.

Mossy old Maine, that rock-bound bastion of conservatism, has become a laboratory for innovative trends in alternate life styles.

A new company which designs wind-powered electric generators has taken over a vacant machine shop in Brunswick.

A few miles away, in Bath, the Sheller Institute offers instruction in do-it-yourself low-cost homes which are in tune with the environment.

Farther up the coast, in Rockland, a company owned by a Rockefeller heiress produces a waste composting alternative to the flush toilet. It is called a clivus multorum.

And throughout the state, from the rugged coast to the fringes of the North Woods, hundreds of new homesteaders are working long-abandoned farmland, using the techniques of organic gardening in hope of coaxing a subsistence yield from the reluctant soil.

Gradually over the past decade the state has become a magnet for bright, disenchanted folk fleeing places like New York and Boston in quest of simpler, more natural ways.

The influx has resulted in a dramatic turnaround in Maine's population trends, says Louis A. Ploch, professor of rural sociology at the University of Maine.

After six decades of a steady loss of people, the past three years have shown a net gain, Ploch said.

Accidents Increasing In France

By BERNARD KAPLAN
Special to The Washington Post
PARIS — One of the happier side effects of the energy crisis was a substantial decline in French highway accidents. The phenomenon now appears to have been only temporary. Safety experts are puzzled.

Car accidents began to rise again dramatically in late spring and summer after nearly 18 months in which they had dropped by nearly 15 per cent. During the first weekend of August — when all of France traditionally is en route by auto to month-long vacations — 160 persons died in road accidents; a staggering 40 per cent more than the year before.

There is no mystery why fewer accidents occurred in 1974 and the beginning of this year. Initially, the energy crisis reduced the amount of mileage driven; although the French did not limit their driving as much as some others. More significant was the imposition — for the first time on French roads — of general speed limits. Also, the police, previously lax in enforcing highway regulations, began to crack down.

Signs grew that French drivers were slowly acquiring a sense of self-discipline that they had previously lacked and might even be losing their faith in reckless driving as a self-affirmation.

Much credit was given to a civil servant, Christian Gerondeau, 35, the road safety director. Displaying great dynamism in what had been considered a thankless job, he appeared to make both the public and the administration more safety-conscious through an imaginative series of publicity campaigns.

It was none too soon for a country where the highway accident rate had been double that of the United States for more than a decade.

The government may have grown convinced too soon that it had the problem licked. Gerondeau was transferred and his post converted into a "committee", which was seldom heard from. Cabinet ministers spoke of highway safety as a "terminated problem."

Almost immediately, the police reported an increasing tendency to ignore the speed limits and road wrecks began piling up again. Police officials complain that if there is a general determination among France's 8 million drivers to defy the speed limit; they lack the means to do much about it.

Some observers here suspect that the lid was subtly lifted at the behest of French car manufacturers who have been having a bad year. Automobile industry executives have been heard to argue that, unless a Frenchman is allowed to drive at breakneck speed, he loses his interest in cars and will not bother to buy a new one.

"It's people seeking the rusticness, the lack of hurly-burly," he said. "They want to be related to the land, the soil and the environment. And they want a place where they feel safe."

Oddly enough, Maine's basic conservatism is part of the lure. It's reflected in a personal frugality, a throwback to the old Yankee aphorism, "Waste not, want not."

"Maine is to the '70s what Paris was to the '20s; this is where the expatriates are," says John N. Cole, editor of Maine Times, an influential statewide weekly which serves as a clearing house for new ideas in energy, housing and homesteading.

Cole has been quick to recognize the hallmarks of the new lifestyles: self-sufficiency, independence, thrift, craftsmanship, recycling, harmony with nature, all the old New England virtues rediscovered.

If Cole is the philosopher of Maine's alternate way of life, the folk heroes are Helen and Scott Nearing.

Author Nearing, vigorous and healthy at 92, is a living symbol of the back-to-the-land movement. A pilgrimage — that's what it is — to the couple's organic farm at Harborside is a must for would-be homesteaders seeking inspiration and a final push.

The pioneering Nearings fled New York during the Great Depression. They settled first in Vermont and later in Maine where they live in a stone house they built themselves.

Nearing wrote "Living the Good Life" and "The Making of a Radical," among other books, and predicts that America's capitalist economy will continue to decline, forcing people to fend for themselves.

To gain total self-sufficiency, some Mainers are giving first thought to achieving energy independence.

But energy independence doesn't come easy in a state noted for its long, hard winters and forced to depend on imported oil to heat most homes and run most factories.

To the new homesteaders, natural, renewable wood is preferred for heating and building over petroleum and its derivatives.

Wood-burning stoves, some dating back to the 19th century, have become fast-selling items in recent years.

Looking beyond wood, some of the better-beeled homesteaders are examining other alternatives.

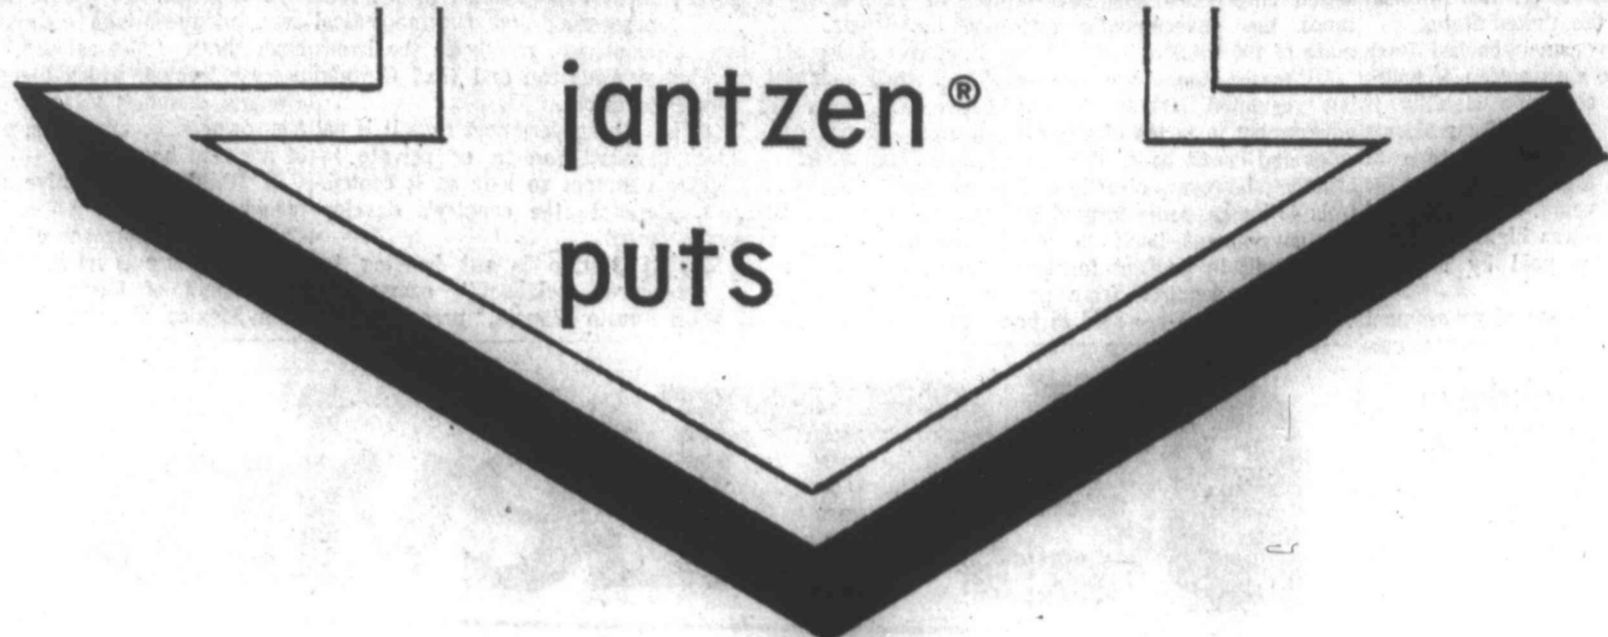

One of these is the windmill. Scores of curious visitors showed up last March in Brunswick when the Zephyr Wind Dynamo Co. unveiled a prototype of its wind-powered generator.

But what about energy for an entire community? Maine innovators are exploring alternatives to nuclear plants, referies and dams, all of which are controversial issues throughout a state jealous of its clean air and unspoiled vistas.

One often-mentioned possibility is a tidal power project, a 50-year-old dream of harnessing the 25-foot tides of eastern Maine to generate electricity.

Another idea — one being touted by independent Gov. James B. Longley — is production of methanol, a fuel distillable from the state's vast timber resources.

Houston Oilers Feeling Good About '75 Year

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Phillips opened the preseason with Vic Washington and Willie Rodgers as his running backs but a healthy Fred Willis, out most of last season, and the development of rookie No. 1 draft choice Don Hardeman of Texas A&M could beef up the running game.

Quarterbacks Strong
The Oilers have a strong one-two punch at quarterback with Dan Pastorini the incumbent and Lynn Dickey the backup. Dickey engineered Houston's winning touchdown drive against New Orleans.

Houston has an impressive crop of receivers including Jerry LeVias, who is returning to the Oilers from San Diego, Ken Burrough, who led the team with 36 receptions last year, Billy Parks and Billy Johnson, also a kick return specialist.

Although Culp still doesn't like Houston's three-man front, he says he'll accept it because it works.

"It's only as good as the personnel that plays it but we had success with it last year so its what we'll be doing," Culp said. "But I think we have enough diversification that we can do some other things too."

Like any good former Marine, Phillips is looking for a few good men in his depth-shy secondary. After the starting group of Willie Alexander and Zeke Moore at the corners and safeties Al Johnson and Bob Atkins, the Oilers are untested.

Hardeman, who reported to training camp following the College All-Star game in Chicago with a case of the mumps, has been delayed two weeks in starting to fulfill his boasts made when he was drafted.

Hardeman promised to make Pastorini an all-pro and to score twice every seven times he got the ball.

"He can say anything he wants to about what he can do," LeVias said. "But he'd sure better be able to do what he says. If he can we (veterans) won't mind a bit."

Following the victory over the Saints, Phillips said "I'm proud of this football team, not only because they won but because they proved our theory that you don't have to scrimmage all the time in training camp to get ready to play a football game."

Houston's offensive hopes this season once again hinge on development of a solid running game and finding a big running back. Injuries and miscues last season held Oiler rushers to an average of 97 yards per game.

Nicklaus Favored In Players Meet

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "Wouldn't it be more fair?" asked the touring golf pro, a plaintive note in his voice. "Wouldn't it make things more even, if Jack Nicklaus just retired?"

But Nicklaus, happily involved in one of the finest seasons of his unmatched career, has no immediate intention to retire and make things a little gasser on his fellow tourists.

"I'm enjoying the game," he said. "This is fun."

And Nicklaus, the only four-time winner of the season, the year's leading money-winner, the man with the best stroke average, the Masters and PGA champion, is—as usual—favored to add to his overwhelming accomplishments in the $250,000 Tournament Players Championship.

The ambitious 72-hole event, which aspires to major tournament status equal to the game's Big Four championships, begins Thursday on the 7,142-yard, par-70 Colonial Country Club course, one of the nation's toughest layouts.

Nicklaus never has won here. He was second to Rod Curl, who won the Colonial National Open on this course last year. And he is subject to a letdown after his triumph in the PGA, his last start. But he still is the man to beat in the chase for a $50,000 first prize.

"From the standpoint of consistency, from the way I've played, I've probably played my best golf this season," Nicklaus said after he scored his 16th major tournament victory in the PGA. "I've darn near won every tournament I've played since April."

Actually, in his last 12 starts he has won four times, lost in a playoff in the Canadian Open, was third in the British Open and three other events, was fourth in another, blew a chance to win the U.S. Open and finished seventh, and was ninth in the other one. He missed the unaccomplished Grand Slam of golf by a total of three strokes.

And he is the only champion this tournament has had. Nicklaus won the inaugural TPC last year at the Atlanta Country Club.

Opposing him is one of the strongest fields of the year. This is a "designated" tournament, an event in which all leading players are required to compete. All of the game's top stars—except Johnny Miller—are here.

Miller, a three-time winner early in the season, complained of a sore left wrist and withdrew.

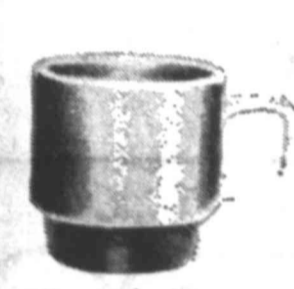

Nicklaus' chief competition is expected to be Tom Weiskopf and Australian Bruce Crampton. Both are playing very well right now and both have a history of success on this golf course. Weiskopf started his 1973 success saga here. Crampton won at Colonial 10 years ago and had two other titles in his pocket until he lost them with dramatic difficulties on the 18th hole.

Among the other major attractions are veterans Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Gene Littler; the current American and British Open champions, Lou Graham and Tom Watson; Hale Irwin, a two-time winner this year; South African Gary Player, who is closing his American schedule for the year; and Lee Trevino, whose driving accuracy could give him an advantage on Colonial's tight fairways.

Cha Cha Knows Promotion Bit

By CHERYL BENTSEN
 The Los Angeles Times
 EAST IRVINE, Calif. — Shirley (Cha Cha) Muldowney, drag racing's only licensed woman top fuel driver, is curled up on the front seat of her fire-engine-red camper truck. The trouble is, she can't really relax because every minute or so one dreamy-eyed kid or another pokes his head in the window asking for an autograph or a chance to work with her pit crew "for nuthin'."
 "Hi! Cha Cha? You got any pictures? Uh... I'm wonderin' why you're in this. Like, whatya do this for? What are your goals?"
 Cha Cha rummages until she finds a picture, showing her sitting in her two-tone hot pink dragster, low and long like a dragon fly, wearing a helmet the color of frosted pink nail polish. She signs the photo and hands it to the boy, who is leaning into the window to get a better look, awaiting her answer.
 "I'm in this because I love to drive," she says. "And my goal is to make it down that strip in less than six seconds someday." The boy smiles, awestruck. "Well, good luck. I hope you beat the bleep outta those guys," he says, and strolls off in pursuit of more pictures and autographs.
 Top fuel is the ultimate in drag racing, the most powerful cars of the many classes that race the nation's quarter-mile strips. Cha Cha's car has a tubular frame that holds only the motor and driver; it weighs about 1,700 pounds, has 16-inch rear tires, horsepower between 1,800 and 2,000 and runs on a mixture of nitromethane and alcohol.
 After 16 years as a serious racer Cha Cha, 35, is just starting to make it big in drag racing, which she says is a sport of luck and personality as much as skill. To get top bookings and sponsorship a driver needs to pay as much attention to crowd appeal as to speed, she says. "I've seen drivers with top equipment who were really competitive go broke because they didn't have the crowds behind them," she says. "I'm lucky because I'm a woman and the first one. A lot of drag racing is how you promote yourself."
 To an outsider drag racing, with its danger and chaotic lifestyle, seems an insane way to earn a living. There have been times, Cha Cha says, when it didn't seem worth it. But it's addictive. There is always the next race when a driver might make a pass under six seconds, when he might be the best. "And, anyway, I'm in it much too deep to get out now," she says.
 The life is difficult. Every year Cha Cha and her crew trailer her $20,000 car 70,000 miles or more, usually pushing the speed limit to make it to the next race. Once at the strip there are hours of engine work to prepare for a run that will last just seconds.
 Some guys would like you to believe Cha Cha is making it only because she is a woman, a novelty. But that's only part of it. In the last few years she has beaten most of the top drivers, and two months ago she defeated the all-time heavyweight top fuel driver, Don (Big Daddy) Garlits in the semifinals at the National Hot Rod Assn. (NHRA) Spring Nationals in Columbus, Ohio. In the finals she was runnerup to Marvin Graham.
 The top drivers all have nicknames like Snake, Swamp Rat, Mongoose. Cha Cha's father used to call her "Crash," which somehow evolved into Cha Cha when she began racing. "When people hear 'Cha Cha' I think they expect me to be some exotic character, a gypsy or something. I think I'm kind of a disappointment," she says.
 Nonetheless, Cha Cha is constantly surrounded by admiring teen-aged boys in the pits, a sprawling parking lot crowded with campers, trailers, top fuel cars, stock cars, funny cars. For many of the drivers this is a family event with children, girlfriends and wives slapping mayonnaise on sandwiches and passing cans of beer to men up to their elbows in motor grease.
 The top drivers are always surrounded by adolescent boys and extraordinary-looking women with platinum hair, shiny lips and flashing smiles. The drivers have cars plastered with stickers bearing the names of sponsors — manufacturers of oil, spark plugs, brakes, fuel, tires. Many have obscene slogans. There are Marvin Graham T-shirts for sale, visors to buy, pictures and posters and a lot of free advice about engines.
 Cha Cha is rapidly accumulating the signs of success. One is her camper truck, a gift from a sponsor. "I waited two years for this truck," she says. "Before we towed my car's trailer with this old truck the fellas called 'Sherman.'"
 In addition to attracting sponsors, Cha Cha is one of an elite group of drivers who command sizable fees — just to show up at an event, although she won't say how much.
 "Some of these guys aren't getting anything. I'd feel uncomfortable saying how much I got," she says.
 She feels a kind of irrational guilt peculiar to women who excel among men. Some less-talented drivers keep telling her that she got where she is only because she is a woman.

Al Hrabosky: He's Tops In Show Biz

LEAPING GIRL — Kimberly Anderson of Tampa, Fla., leaps over knee of Medford, Ore., catcher Steve Sloan to score, but Medford won, 3-2, in the Little League softball championships at Williamsport, Pa. (AP Wirephoto.)

Copley News Service

As obvious as the situation is, the reality of Major League baseball often gets lost in the midst of a 162-game season.

Perhaps it's because many still think of baseball as a game. It isn't, you know. No way, not at the professional level.

Ask any owner or general manager in either league and they'll tell you baseball is big business, the entertainment business to be precise.

Baseball is much like New York. It's bright lights, box office, critics, pressure and the constant struggle to succeed and survive.

The hottest show in the league at the moment? Well, with all due respect to New York and its traditionally high ego, it isn't playing there.

This critic would have to cast his vote for the one getting rave reviews in St. Louis for a second straight year.

Mad Hungarian

It's titled "The Mad Hungarian" and stars a long-haired, mustachioed little relief pitcher named Al Hrabosky.

Actually, two things have set Hrabosky a notch above the others in his profession. There's his talent, which is clearly indicated by his 10-3 record, 16 saves and 1.74 ERA.

And then there's his stage presence. His method is sheer madness. It extracts cheers and admiration from St. Louis Cardinal fans and boos and outright hate when his show goes on the road.

Now that's show business, folks. Imagine the possibilities for a guy playing both the hero and the villain, Muhammad Ali would be the first to tell you, Hrabosky's act can't miss being a big hit for a long time.

Scene I always opens with Hrabosky strolling in from the bullpen looking mean, menacing and very much like a man who should be arrested for intent to do bodily harm.

Normally, the stage is set with enemies on base and the game on the line. Hrabosky's mission, and he always accepts it, is to save the day by throwing blurring fast balls to halt the enemy advance.

Scene II has become the favorite of St. Louis fans. Before facing each hitter, Hrabosky turns his back to the hitter, stares off toward center field and builds himself into a rage by talking to himself as the crowd roars.

Feeling sufficiently charged with anger, Hrabosky then whirls around, slaps the ball into his glove and charges the ound to do battle...hair flopping...eyes glaring...crowd screaming.

Scene III is much shorter but equally packed with emotion. That's when Hrabosky has to leave Busch Stadium and face his toughest battle of all—getting through the horde of well-wishers and autograph seekers always waiting outside.

His stature as a leading man is signified everywhere. Bumper stickers on cars proclaim "We Hrove Hrabosky." Young girls giggle excitedly as he passes, all wearing the same T-shirt. On the front is written "We Love The Cardinal Bullpen." On the back, their devotion is more specific—"Al Hrabosky...39." How did it all first come about? How did The Mad Hungarian hit upon his unusual gimmick that has captured the fancy of St. Louis and the attention of baseball fans everywhere?

"Failure," said Hrabosky as he stepped out of character for a moment and laughed at the image he's come to thrive on.

"That's the truth. I failed badly one day and I started talking to myself, trying to get psyched up to do the job I knew I was capable of doing out there.

"I really didn't realize what I was doing. I was just mad at myself. I figured if I was going to succeed I'd better learn to concentrate on the location of my pitches and what I was trying to accomplish or I'd fall.

"Anyway, the fans really picked it up. They love it here in St. Louis.

"On the road, people hate it but the noise they make helps psyche me up, too.

"I thrive on both because the people on the road really want to see me fall badly."

Sloan Dispels Puppy Dog Image To Tech Hopefuls

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Sloan, Young and puppy dog friendly, 30-year-old Steve Sloan looks more like a budding executive than a head football coach.

If his players had any such illusions, they were quickly dispelled when the youngest head collegiate football coach in the nation took over at Texas Tech last spring.

The first thing Sloan did was to find out how far his players could run and how many weights they could lift. After telling them that sure was good, he announced, "Now, everybody is going to have to get much better than that."

This included Ecomet Burley, Texas Tech's All-SWC defensive lineman who lifts weights as a hobby. Burley can presently bench press 400 pounds.

The spring scrimmages were some of the fiercest ever held on the Tech campus. Thirteen players punched out.

"Coaching is the last great opportunity for a lot of kids to receive any discipline... I'm proud to be a coach," says Sloan.

Sloan made a winner out of Vanderbilt, long a patsy for anybody wanting a weak sister on the schedule. Sloan was a winner at Alabama where he quarterbacked the Crimson Tide to a national title in 1965 and a 39-28 Orange Bowl victory over Nebraska.

And he knows why he was hired at Texas Tech.

"The attitude at both Vanderbilt and Texas Tech is the same... They all want winners," says Sloan. "I want a winner."

Sloan's weeding out process has unearthed sophomore quarterback Rodney Allison of Odessa.

"Allison is one of the better option quarterbacks I've ever seen," says Sloan who wasn't bad himself.

Tech has gone from the I formation to the Vee but Sloan quickly adds, "We still plan to throw a bunch."

Allison is being pushed by Tommy Duniven, who burned Texas with long touchdowns bombs last year.

"At Vanderbilt we used two quarterbacks a lot and we may do it at Tech until one asserts himself," says Sloan.

The big change on defense is moving Burley from tackle to noseguard.

"The switch of Ecomet to noseguard, we feel, will really help us," says Sloan. "People can't run away from him now. He's up to 240 pounds and runs a 4.9 forty."

Sloan says of the team overall: "We'll be full of inexperience except at offensive and defensive backs. We'll have good team speed at linebacker and skill positions. We'll be bigger than Tech has been lately but the problem is we lack game experience."

"I think we'll have a better Tech team than the one that represented the school in the Peach Bowl."

Sloan ought to know. He coached Vanderbilt in a 6-6 tie with Tech in that postseason game before joining the Red Raiders.

Davis Returns To Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Willie Davis, perhaps spurred by thunderous home fan applause, has returned with a bang to the lineup of the St. Louis Cardinals.

And the 35-year-old outfielder, who sat out five games because of a financial dispute with his ex-wife, says that's where he'll stay the remainder of the season.

"She's happy, I'm happy, everybody's happy," Davis said Tuesday night after cracking four hits in his return during a 2-1 Cards' victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"She got a nice settlement—$17,000 out of my salary for the rest of the season," added Davis, whose pay is believed to be about $110,000.

"I told her, 'I can't let this happen to these guys again,'" noted Davis, who had left the Cards last Friday in a dispute over alimony.

Autonomous Region Of Inner Mongolia Capable Of Combat

Agence France-Presse TOKYO — The people in China's Inner Mongolia autonomous region, bounded on the north by Soviet-oriented Outer Mongolia, appear fully organized into militia forces capable of carrying out combat operations.

That was part of impressions of the Northern China region sketched by a member of the Japanese press corps in Peking who recently made a trip there with permission from the Peking government. The Peking correspondent of the daily Asahi reported in an account published in the Asahi Evening News that his impressions from the trip were: (1) The process of organizing Inner Mongolia's populace into people's communes has been completed. (2) The old nomadic way of living has been replaced by stock farming in settlements.

(3) Regional industry has sprung up under the Chinese policy of decentralizing industry and promoting regional economic self-sufficiency in peace and war. He also concluded, "Organization and training of the Mongolian people inhabiting these forward areas as militia forces is widespread and thorough." The press corps flew to Inner Mongolia's provincial capital of Huhehot, from where they traveled north by jeep for three days. Thence, they went 40 miles north of Sullenwang to visit people's communes and their production battalions. In his sketches of the communes, the Asahi correspondent reported on military demonstrations involving even boys and girls of age nine in target shooting, cavalry charges and shooting from the saddle. In the production battalions, he described indoctrination of officers and spoke of "the aggressive nature of Soviet socialist imperialism and China's preparedness for a great war to resist hegemony." A production battalion chief who was Mongol told the reporters how he felt about the Mongolians in Outer Mongolia, "They are revisionists. We are a socialist nation. If they attack us, we must fight and crush them."

The reporter said the 438,000 Mongolians of the eight million population of Inner Mongolia seemed to be accorded preferential treatment notwithstanding Peking's policy of equal treatment for minorities. Relations Deteriorated In 1937 relations with Japan began to deteriorate after the sinking of the American gunboat Panay off China.

Texas Dealer Buys Eberstadt Collection Of Rare Books

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Bookman John Jenkins' eyes twinkled—possibly with dollar signs—when he was asked how he could price each of the 40,383 rare books and documents in the valuable Eberstadt Collection.

"I asked another rare books dealer," Jenkins said, smiling, as if he were about to disclose a trade secret, "and he told me he'd send me a dart board that he used—where the dart lands that's the price."

Presumably in the thousands, Jenkins, 35, disclosed at a news conference Wednesday that he had bought the entire stock of Edward Eberstadt & Sons which, he said, for almost the entire 20th century made up the "largest and most important book store in New York."

Jenkins said he and his unnamed partners, including some from Dallas, had paid "substantially into the millions" for the collection, which he estimated was worth at least $10 million.

A reporter guessed at Jenkins' Dallas connections since he recently bought the Aldredge Book Store in Dallas, one of the best-known dealers in Texana, and Jenkins confirmed it.

The Eberstadt transaction, Jenkins said, is the largest in the history of the rare book business and signals "a little bit of a cultural shift from the east coast down to Texas."

"In recent years," said Jenkins, a native of Beaumont, Tex., "the center of activity in the rare book field has shifted from New York and Boston to the Southwest. This is understandable because most of the libraries, schools and private collectors that buy heavily in manuscripts and rare books are now west of the Mississippi."

He said the University of Texas here is the "world's largest purchaser of literary manuscripts." Jenkins said former UT chancellor Harry Ransom had bought so much of England's literary treasure that Parliament had enacted what is known as the "Ransom Law" to keep important manuscripts and other documents in England.

Jenkins had a special fireproof, "hopefully theft-proof" steel vault built next to his office for the new collection, and had it moved here by armed van from Eberstadt's New Jersey warehouse.

He said he outbid persons from Chicago, California, New York and Boston in acquiring the collection, which German immigrant Edward Eberstadt started.

"It's a legendary collection, the largest like this ever assembled, and it won't ever be possible to put it together again," said Jenkins.

The Eberstadt store at 888 Madison Avenue in New York was for years "a favorite gathering of rare book lovers and history buffs," Jenkins said, but Eberstadt's sons retired recently and boxed up the collection.

The purchase, added to Jenkins' stock of more than 500,000 books, makes the Jenkins Co. the largest rare book house in the world, he said.

He said buyers from such institutions as the Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif., already were arriving to consider buying from the collection.

Jenkins said his company would publish a large number of rare manuscripts from the collections, including that of Padre Eusebio Kino, the Jesuit missionary who helped settle California in the 1600s, and two journals containing a day-to-day account of Gen. George Custer's Black Hills campaign.

The Eberstadt stock, he said, includes one of the finest collections of American and state constitutions ever assembled, plus special collections on the American Revolution, the Confederacy, the American West and Mexico.

He noted, too, that the collection included the original petition Stephen F. Austin presented to Gen. Santa Anna in Mexico City, demanding that Texas be separated from Mexico.

Of general interest, he said, would be a handwritten anecdote—"on the mildly risqué side"—jotted down by President Abraham Lincoln.

"How much would that be worth," Jenkins was asked.

"Ten thousand," Jenkins replied, adding in the same breath, "or $25,000."

He must have thrown one of those darts.

Creditors Panel Okays American Beef Packers Debt Payment Proposal

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The court-appointed creditors committee for bankrupt American Beef Packers, Inc., Wednesday unanimously approved to ABP's amended and consolidated plan to pay back its creditors.

The committee began meeting Tuesday evening, but the decision wasn't made until Wednesday afternoon.

The approval was not a surprise, since committee members participated in the negotiations that led to the drafting of the plan, which was filed with the federal Bankruptcy Court here two weeks ago, but it did take a little longer than expected.

In addition to giving the plan its formal okay, the committee recommended that creditors of ABP and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Beefland International, Inc., accept the plan.

The committee rejected ABP's first plan in April, saying it did not provide enough "up front" money.

However, committee co-chairmen Herb Albers of Wisner, Neb., and William Chapman of Omaha, said, "The amended plan obtained is the best plan possible."

The new plan divides creditors into three categories.

—Class I: Livestock and feed sellers with claims of $5,000 or less. Creditors in this class would be paid 80 per cent of their claims upon confirmation of the plan, or they may elect to be treated as Class II creditors and wait a little longer to be fully reimbursed.

—Class II: Livestock and feed sellers with claims in excess of $5,000. Creditors in this category would receive an initial payment of 55 per cent of their claims, with the remaining 45 per cent being paid through deferred reimbursements, plus seven per cent interest. However, the delayed payments will be made only as sufficient cash flows are generated. Creditors in this category may also opt to reduce their claims to $5,000, and be treated as Class I creditors.

—Class III: All other unsecured creditors. Creditors in this category would receive 50 per cent of their claims in a single payment to be made not later than March 31, 1978.

East took the king of spades and returned the three of diamonds, hoping to knock out dummy's ace.

South played a low diamond, West put up the king and dummy's ace won. When declarer went after the hearts, East held off until the second round and got out with a club.

South now hopefully led the jack of diamonds. If this forced out the queen, South could later reach dummy by leading a diamond to the ten.

DEAD DUMMY
Naturally, East refused to win the trick. He could see South's plan and had no reason to help him. Now the dummy was dead, and South lost three spades, a heart and a diamond.

South went astray at the second trick. When East returned the three of diamonds, South should have played the jack.

West would cover with the king, and dummy would take the ace. After setting up the hearts, South could lead one of his two low diamonds. Either the ten or the nine of diamonds would furnish an entry to the rest of dummy's hearts.

Musk Ox Hunting License Averages $8 Per Pound

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The thrill of the hunt is apparently the only drawing card for 10 sportsmen picked to cull old bulls from the nation's largest herd of musk oxen. With a projected cost of more than $8 per pound, meat is not the goal. The controlled hunt, the first of its kind ever held, will begin Sept. 1 on Nunivak Island, a lonely rock in the Bering Sea that has a population of 300 Eskimos, 600 musk oxen and thousands of reindeer. Despite its fearsome appearance, the musk oxen is a timid beast. Its favorite tactic when threatened is to circle up for protection. It has few enemies except wolf and man. Eskimos call it "ooming-muk," or "bearded one." It eats tundra plants and produces a prized cashmere-like wool called "qivuit." Ironically, hunters who now are being enlisted to help the musk oxen thrive nearly wiped out the shaggy creature a century ago. Under extreme hunting pressure in the late 1800s, vast herds of musk oxen dwindled to nothing in arctic Alaska. In the 1930s, a herd was established on Nunivak using 34 calves and yearlings purchased from Greenland under a $40,000 federal appropriation, but the herd has not multiplied as rapidly as biologists hoped it would. Later transplants from Nunivak, including one in April that took 40 of the healthiest animals to Siberia in a detente-inspired deal with the Soviet Union, left the herd with an overabundance of old bulls. Although selective hunting has been recommended for years, it has been a controversial topic. The beast's docile nature and relatively few numbers prompted Walter J. Hickel to veto a hunt authorized by the Alaska legislature when he was governor and later secretary of the interior. State game officials warned prospective hunters they can expect to spend $5,000 for licenses, tags, transportation, housing and guides. For a 600-pound bull, that translates into more than $8 per pound. Nonetheless, 82 sportsmen from as far away as Laurel, Md., applied for the hunt.

Condominium Association Idea Sounded Good, But Hasn't Worked

By ROBIN MAYDECK
Copley News Service

America's Founding Fathers learned the hard way in the stormy post-Revolution years: Democracy, pure and simple, is nice—but without capable leaders and expert advice it seldom works.

The same lesson is being learned throughout the nation. Through the experiences, or more accurately, the failures of homeowners' associations—the bodies set up to guide the common fortunes of the buyers, builders and lenders involved in planned residential developments.

The basic idea of the homeowners' association seemed fall-proof.

Buyers of condominium, town house or planned unit development (PUD) dwellings would automatically become members of their own incorporated governance associations.

They would elect a board of directors to set up and administer various committees to maintain commonly owned properties and facilities, assess for needed repairs and improvements, and, all the while, think up programs to enhance the quality of homeowners' lives.

A simple exercise in democracy at its purest—or so the homeowners' association concept seemed.

In 1964—a mere two years after the condominium craze began to sweep the country—the Urban Land Institute realized that homeowners' associations were headed for trouble and called for a national body to teach the community leaders the finer points of leadership.

Nothing much happened.

Nothing, unless one counts the alarmingly high number of community associations forced to choose between bankruptcy or double assessments, or the multiplicity of lawsuits filed among associations, developers and individual dwelling owners.

The failure of homeowners' associations reached epidemic proportions in Florida, where multifamily developments seemed to spring up overnight and bankruptcies and legal action became the rule, not the exception.

Two years ago the Urban Land Institute, the National Association of Home Builders and the U.S. League of Savings Associations decided it was time to give democracy a little help.

The two professional organizations advanced the money and the ULI the expertise to create the Community Associations Institute, a national nonprofit organization chartered to research common problems of homeowners' associations and develop educational materials for national distribution.

Some 1,500 of the more than 20,000 associations in the nation have affiliated with CAI, and membership applications are being received on the average of 100 per month.

May Russell, national CAI president, explained the functions and goals of the organization in an interview.

On a national scale, the CAI has been funded, through both private and governmental grants, to study the problems of homeowners' associations and to provide information to help local chapters help individual members avoid obvious pitfalls.

The organization has published a 70-page booklet, "Managing a Successful Community Association," that reads like a step-by-step "how-to" in setting up and maintaining a workable homeowners' association.

It also researches and publishes a monthly newsletter, distributed to affiliates across the nation, and publishes easy-to-read guides charting the relationships of the buyer, owner and lender and the homeowners' association.

Federal taxation is the most ominous problem facing homeowners' associations.

Although homeowners' associations are incorporated as nonprofit associations, they are finding themselves in a ticklish position with the Internal Revenue Service.

Most states require the associations to maintain reserve accounts from the monthly common-areas fees paid by residents.

From the monthly fees such bills must be paid as management and administrative expenses, maintenance, accounting and legal services, utilities for common areas and insurance.

The reserves are to be strictly accounted and are, in effect, an association's buffer for the proverbial rainy day.

The IRS, however, has lifted the tax-exempt status of association reserve accounts and is impounding the reserves of associations refusing to pay the 52 per cent corporate tax on their savings, says Carroll Davis, who is forming a CAI chapter.

The CAI Washington lobby has testified before the House Ways and Means Committee that the IRS action is a form of double taxation.

Although the IRS stand could enrich federal coffers by more than a half-billion dollars, it would also wipe out a large number of financially troubled homeowners' associations, Davis said.

While the CAI is not designed solely as a political tool, it can become an effective information source for public officials, lenders, developers and land-use experts through its chartered research and educational activities, Davis says.

General Dynamics Develops Long-Range Winged Missile

The Los Angeles Times

A winged missile that can be launched from a submarine torpedo tube to attack a target 2,000 miles distant with a nuclear warhead has been developed by General Dynamics' Convair Division, San Diego.

Designed to skim just off the surface to avoid radar detection, the unique weapon also could be launched from ships, aircraft and land batteries.

The subsonic cruise missile was developed for the Navy in a competition with Ling-Temco-Vought of Dallas to provide a low-cost, hard-to-stop weapon that could be used for either conventional or nuclear strikes.

Winged missiles were developed by the United States for launch from the decks of surfaced submarines before the advent of ballistic missile subs, but they were of short range and their awkward launch sequence would have exposed subs to air and surface attack.

The Soviet Union also developed surface-launched cruise missiles for submarines and reportedly still has some subs armed with winged weapons with a range of 300 to 400 miles.

Convair's missile would be enclosed in a stainless steel capsule like a cigar in a protective container. The capsule would be loaded into a torpedo tube which then would be flooded and readied for firing by the boat's existing hydraulic ejection system.

At ejection, the missile is pushed from the capsule and a lanyard ignites a solid fuel booster charge that rams the weapon up through the surface of the sea.

As it hurtles into the air, switchblade wings extend from the missile, and air scoop drops into position below its belly and a small jet engine is ignited to begin cruise flight with automatic terrain guidance once it is over land.

Convair developed the capsule concept both for ease of handling the missile and protection for the weapon which therefore could be designed for minimum weight and maximum performance.

Asked about cost, a company spokesman said 2,000 missiles could be mass produced for $500,000 each, far less than the cost of large ballistic missiles.

Hogg Services Set For Friday

HOUSTON (AP)—Funeral services for Ima Hogg, daughter of Texas' first native-born governor, will be held Friday at the palatial Bayou Bend residence she donated to Houston's Museum of Fine Arts.

Miss Hogg, 93, died Tuesday in a London hospital. She had suffered a broken leg earlier in a fall outside her hotel room.

The Rev. Thomas W. Summers, rector emeritus, and the Rev. Maurice M. Benitez, rector, of St. John The Divine Episcopal Church, will officiate at the funeral.

Interment services will be held Saturday in Austin at Oakwood Cemetery where her father, James Stephen Hogg, and three brothers, are buried.

Oklahoma Farm Bureau Requests Meany's Advice

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Oklahoma Farm Bureau leaders said Wednesday they were sending AFL-CIO President George Meany a letter asking for "advice" on planning next year's wheat crop.

"It's almost time to sow next year's wheat crop in Oklahoma," Ken McFall, Farm Bureau executive secretary, said in the letter. "Before we know how much wheat to plant, we need to know how much grain you (Meany) are going to let other countries buy next year."

"There's no reason to wear out farm machinery to produce surplus grain you do not intend to let us export," McFall said.

The letter was drafted in the wake of longshoremen's refusal in Houston to load wheat shipments bound for the Soviet Union. The move was supported by Meany, who says he fears more wheat sales to the Soviet Union may hit consumers in the pocketbook.

McFall also said in the letter that if farmers hold back their implement purchases, it could "throw Americans out of jobs."

McFall wrote Meany that maybe farmers could "reduce purchases gradually to lessen the impact, and give your workers an opportunity to find other jobs."

1975 Has Been A 'Wiz' Of A Year For George Faison

By JACQUELINE TRESCHOTT
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In many ways, 1975 has been George Faison's year.

Since January, the month "The Wiz" opened on Broadway featuring Faison's wild choreography, he has captured both the Tony and the Drama Critics Circle Awards.

His momentum up, the 29-year-old Faison has now unleashed a torrent of works. The wispy, lyrical forms on the television commercial announcing the new Avon products line of black makeup are his creations. Part of his company, The George Faison Universal Dance Experience, appeared recently in Washington with Roberta Flack.

And Faison expects to start work later this month on the choreography for a movie with Calvin Lockhart called "The Baron Lockhart Von Tripps."

At the Tony Awards ceremony, Faison, a tall, cord-thin man, jumped up and down like a kid, clutching his statuette and momentarily at a loss for words. As a writer described "Wiz" dances as "blow-torch frenzy," Faison's face twisted with his own explosion of joy. That night "Wiz," the all-black musical version of the "Wizard of Oz," won seven Tonys.

Faison's work embodies much of the cockiness, punch, discipline and mirth in his personal makeup. He doesn't hesitate — the first dance in "Wiz" is a show-stopper. As the gale sweeps the Kansas plains, the dancers severally clad in black and resembling medieval henchmen, swarm across the stage, trailing black silk ribbons in classical ballet leats and turns.

Later in the show, Faison utilizes the antics of disco dancing in "Yellow Brick Road," a jazzed-up quartet of yellow-wigged dudes who prance around like a slick singing group. He turns to a gospel-hallelujah theme to celebrate the death of the "Wicked Witch of the West," and borrows the smoothness and extravagance of Ziegfeld for the grand finale.

Cue magazine said, "George Faison's non-stop choreographic inventions are the most exciting Broadway has seen in years."

Like many artists going public and building a reputation they know can vanish in a second, Faison has an ego. A friend for the last 10 years says, "It tickles me that people are saying a new era is beginning with George — and it's more funny, but just like George, that he's letting everybody think that." A volatile temper and an easily broken facade of calm have also been observed. Der Denmark, a Washington friend, recalls the time a prospective board member asked the choreographer about changing under closer scrutiny. And Faison immediately substituted another dancer for the television appearance scheduled for the group later that day.

He moved on to another work, "Regrets," a comment on "the ages we ask our sons to die." Faison says that dance is his weapon against racism, misunderstanding of all dimensions and non-communication.

"For me dance is a tool to bring black people closer to others. I'm looking for an honest portrayal of all our emotions. Dance is a reflection of who I am and of my experiences."

Faison grew up in Washington, one of George and Agnes Faison's five children.

Ever since she can remember, Mrs. Faison has heard her son talk about dancing. "He wasn't interested in a thing — only dancing," she says.

"One day I was vacuuming and George was sitting on the floor, looking at his feet, and he told me, 'One day I'm going to make money with these feet. I told him to hush up, and today I'm really proud of him.'"

The Faisons are a close, church-going family. The children all sang in the Salem Baptist Church chorus. The older Faisons attended George's productions at Shaw Junior High, Dunbar and the now disbanded American Light Opera Company. He also helped with the awning business his father headed for 30 years.

At Dunbar High School "Legs" Faison received a special award for choreography. His younger brother, Danny, a fireman, remembers, "He wasn't into dance at first. It was more drama. But when he started he would practice at parties. He had everybody dancing and was very innovative."

One of his first dancing experiences was at the Jones-Haywood School of Ballet. Faison likes to tell people that the teachers threw him out, but Doris Jones, one of the founders, corrects the story: "George took one class and we didn't throw him out. We knew he had lots of natural talent."

A few years later Faison dropped out of Howard University, where he had studied dentistry, because the theater world was more enticing. In New York, where he landed, he studied with Thelma Hill, James Troupe, Dudley Williams and Louis Johnson.

His first professional engagement was dancing with Lauren Bacall on a television show in 1966. Three years as a dancer with the Alvin Ailey American Dance Company followed.

Miles Davis was instrumental in shaping his company's modern direction, giving Faison access to all his music, and Faison went on to choreograph the Broadway productions of "Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope," and "Inner City."

The Faison company has been well-received, exploring themes of African history and modern black music of Billie Holiday and Otis Redding.

In addition to Roberta Flack, Faison has choreographed for performers Stevie Wonder, Eartha Kitt and Melba Moore, and for theater groups, including the Afro-American Total Theater, the Lincoln Center Repertory Theater, the Negro Ensemble Company and Joseph Papp's New York Public Theater.

He's a young heir to the dance paths widened by the handful of visible black choreographers — Johnson, Alley, Mitchell, Donald McKayle, Geoffrey Holder, Katherine Dunham — and his mother says, "he's too busy."

"Have you noticed how nervous he is?" she asks. "That Tony Award did it. He feels he has to prove himself over and over. I try not to dig into his life, but he's got to slow down."

D.A. Says Some Surveillance OK

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A tug of war between people's right to know and the privacy of an individual has left law enforcement agencies in the middle of the controversy, according to John Quinlan, Bexar County assistant district attorney.

Quinlan addressed an organizational meeting of the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council Operating Committee. He is chairman of the Legal and Legislative Subcommittee.

After running through a check list of applicable statutes and case law, Quinlan concluded, "In legitimate investigations, there is nothing wrong with surveillance."

Quinlan said court opinions speaking to the right of privacy refer to "unwarranted" invasions of privacy, and that few cases concern police officers directly.

The court has ruled that it is not illegal to photograph undercover agents, Quinlan said, nor is it illegal to photograph a booklet in a public place.

"If a person is in a situation where he can't expect privacy, he has no right to privacy," Quinlan said.

Although a private citizen cannot be forced to take a polygraph test, a police officer who refuses the lie detector test can be fired for insubordination if he could have supplied relevant information, Quinlan said.

He said the question whether to release police records to the press and the public was in some cases left up to the agency, but records are public record.

Crime investigation records are exempted from disclosure.

Road Engineers Attend Workshop

ODESSA — Two engineers with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation here have completed a three-day workshop on transit planning held at Austin recently.

Paul H. Coleman, district engineer, and Jim Whitson, assistant district engineer, attended the workshop which included classroom work, tours of transportation facilities and discussions with operators of major transportation systems.

The conference provided information on available technological data, transit operations and was geared to overall transit planning.

The transit conference was conducted for the department by the Texas Transportation Institute of Texas A&M University.

under the Open Records Act, Quinlan said, but the attorney general has ruled that the law does not disturb the right of an agency to continue to furnish factual information to the press.

Police officers should be careful not to violate the privacy or confidentiality of an individual when releasing information," Quinlan said.

The Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council and its operating committee have been in operation since 1970. Their existence was continued by a new executive order by Gov. Dolph Briscoe in April. The operating committee carries out the work of the council.

On a recent morning at his company's second-floor studio on West 96th Street in New York, Faison described the hazards and satisfactions of working with "Wiz." In early 1973 he was approached by Ken Harper, the producer, and Faison recalls, "I attended meeting after meeting and finally I said 'Call me when you get it together.'"

When "Wiz" finally got on the road for tryouts, "The story changed every week so the dances changed, too," he says. "I would get mad, frustrated, and yell and then go quickly back to work."

"The all-black version was a great idea from the beginning. The choreography came automatically because I was dealing with fantasy. There were no bounds. So you could just trip out and do everything."

Despite the attention "Wiz" demanded, Faison continued to dance with his company, a regularly performing unit since spring of 1971.

With Faison's personal success, the company has come under closer scrutiny. And Faison has doubled his demands and their output.

On salary are 20 people, including 12 dancers, and Faison explains, "When we first started I wanted to do everything. Rather I had to do everything. I sewed, designed costumes and booked appearances. Now it's nice knowing I don't have to do it all."

Why 12 dancers? "As an employer I can give 12 people the most," he replies, and with his infectious Pepsodent smile, adds, "and 12 is just a good number."

Before a sparkling line of floor-length mirrors, three women dancers rehearsed a new work called "Tilt."

Shirtless, in chino pants, wearing heavy boots more suitable for ditch-digging than dance, Faison walked among the dancers. He checked their straight-hair wigs and the fit of their new Gay Nineties-style costumes.

His directions were lost in a violent storm of music, a tape of teen idols the Jackson Five, streaming from a tape deck. Perched on a stool, he scowled and snapped his fingers, keeping time. "Ah, bop, beat, pop, ah, ah, ping. Make a sweep."

Unsatisfied, he leaped across the floor to a new position. From there he watched carefully, his face sparingly framed by a close-cropped natural, a blackboard on which expressions of anger, concentration and pleasure appeared, and were erased.

"This dance is a comment on society, like all my pieces," he said. "This is about dolls you wind up for 10 cents and they do everything you want until they exhaust themselves and give out. I think people's reactions to other people are too mechanical."

Suddenly a dancer slipped and crashed directly onto her knee. Faison screamed and everyone scrambled for help. The agonizing wait for the doctor seemed endless, but he arrived within an hour. The doctor applied acupuncture needles to her knee but warned that she shouldn't perform for a couple of days,

Revolt Of The Taxpayers

"Texans will put up with almost any corruption in their government, until it becomes so expensive they can't afford it. Then, look out!"

—An Old Political Axiom
Grizzled George Erath, San Jacinto veteran and frontier surveyor and Indian fighter, presided at the opening of the Taxpayers' Convention in Austin, late in September of 1871. Like many of the 227 delegates from 99 counties, he was an unreconstructed rebel and a Democrat. But, the threat of ruin from government waste and high taxes had finally brought together old rivals. Many leaders of the unionist moderates were there, too. One, former Governor E. M. Pease, was elected president of the convention.

A. J. and Morgan C. Hamilton, the brothers who had fought it out at the Convention of 1869, were working together at this meeting. And George Pfeuffer, representing the staunchly Republican German element, was playing a leading role. In a three-day session, held in the hall of the House of Representatives, they drew up a report on the tax situation. Since 1866, they reported, property taxes had jumped from 15 cents on the $100 valuation to an astounding $2.175, with an additional levy of 60 cents to pay for railroad bonds. There was also a $2.00 poll tax, plus occupation and license taxes.

Through waste and graft, they pointed out, state expenditures had climbed to a staggering $6,000,000 a year. By careful management, they estimated, it could be cut to $695,000. They demanded that elections be held in 1871, as provided in the constitution, so the corrupt legislature might be replaced and economies put into effect. If this failed, they urged taxpayers to refuse to pay some questionable levies and delay others by court action.

Governor Davis' reaction to this challenge was almost hysterical. On the night of the second day of the convention, he addressed a rally of his supporters from the capitol steps. "In olden times," he told the

DUE HERE SATURDAY — Comedian Bob Hope comes to Midland Saturday to headline the big Permian Basin Bicentennial salute scheduled for 8:30 p.m. that day in Midland Memorial Stadium. Joining Hope will be singers Chris Noel and Pepper Martin, along with a full orchestra and high school bands from Midland and several nearby cities. Tickets for the event are on sale at Sears stores in Midland and Odessa and Montgomery Ward in Big Spring. Tickets also will be available at the stadium beginning Friday morning.

Andrews Gospel Concert Scheduled Saturday Night

ANDREWS — The annual Andrews Gospel Concert is scheduled here Saturday night. As in previous years' concerts, the upcoming event will feature some of the outstanding gospel quartets and groups in the Southwest, among them the Cruse Family, the Amigos and others. Occupying a special place in the limelight will be the Jordans, a family group from Brownfield that recently came into national prominence with Jerry Jordan's original song, "Phone Call From God." The recording by the Jordan brothers and their wives currently is among the nation's top-selling LP's.

Cliburn To Play In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES — Texas pianist Van Cliburn will be guest artist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Saturday night when the orchestra celebrates its 1,500th performance in the famed Hollywood Bowl here. In the years since its opening in 1922, the Bowl has offered performances by virtually every noted musical performer from Jascha Heifetz and Yehudi Menuhin to the Rolling Stones and other famous rock groups. The 17,000-seat amphitheater has long provided a summer home for the Los Angeles Philharmonic which plays the classics or rock music with equal ease.

Concert Tickets Remain Available

ODESSA — Tickets continue on sale here and at locations in Midland for the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band's Friday night concert in Ector County Coliseum. The tickets are priced at $4 in advance and may be purchased at the Record Haul and the Record Center in Midland, and at Tape Town and the coliseum box office in Odessa. The tickets will be $5 at the box office on the day of the concert.

The Dirt Band, one of the nation's leading country-rock groups, will be joined by the "Colours" group in the upcoming show here. Performance time will be 8 p.m. Friday.

LUBBOCK — Midland artist W. B. Franklin will have a one-man show of his paintings here this weekend. The exhibition, consisting of approximately 30 of Franklin's Texas landscapes, will be held Friday and Saturday in Memphis Place shopping center here. The artist will be honored guest at a reception and preview tonight.

Las Manos Plans Dancing Classes

Las Manos — "The Hands" — volunteer service organization of the Museum of the Southwest, will hold another class in German and Central European dancing Friday night.

The class will be open to all persons interested in learning the polka, schottische, Varsovienne and similar dances appropriate to the German-style festival, "Septemberfest," which Las Manos will sponsor on the museum grounds Sept. 6.

Friday's session will begin at 8 p.m. at the museum's Turner Memorial Gallery, 1705 W. Missouri St. with E. F. Bingham as the instructor. Persons may register for the class by telephoning Las Manos member Mrs. Randall B. Johnston, 682-2384, or the museum office, 682-2382.

Lansing is the capital of Michigan, which organized as a territory in 1805 and became the 26th state Jan. 26, 1837.

Taste, Smell Problems Said To Afflict Many Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — For some people, the smell of a steak grilling on a charcoal fire is nauseating, or not even there. For some, the taste of that steak can make them ill. Or perhaps they cannot taste it at all.

Problems of taste and smell may afflict 2 million Americans, according to Dr. Robert L. Henkin, head of Georgetown University's Center for Molecular Nutrition and Sensory Disorders. For thousands of patients, it is better known as the taste and smell clinic.

"It's easy to sympathize with the patient who has cancer," but not always with someone who cannot taste the flavor of food or smell a fragrance, Henkin said during an interview Friday.

He said loss of the sense of taste or smell is a basic and serious problem and deserves research and concern from the medical profession.

"For some people, it's a life-threatening abnormality. For some people it's the way we diagnose their underlying disease," he said.

Henkin hopes to continue at Georgetown his 10 years of research into taste and smell abnormalities that he pioneered while with the National Institutes of Health. He ran the NIH's $200,000-a-year taste and smell clinic until it was closed last month in a government economy move.

His research has centered on the possibility that loss of the senses may be linked to a lack of zinc or other trace metals in the body.

Along with treating new patients at Georgetown, Henkin will continue treatments for the 2,000 patients who came to him at the NIH.

For some people, common tastes and smells found pleasant by most people can cause nausea, he said.

"The smell of fried food, the smell of protein being cooked, is so obnoxious, so repulsive, they're concerned, it's like eating a piece of cardboard," he said.

"There are other patients who can walk blithely into a place that sells fried chicken, sit down, know it's 1 o'clock, know it's time for lunch, and will eat. As far as they're concerned, it's like eating a piece of cardboard."

Irrigation In Midwest Depleting Underground Water

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Farmers armed with modern irrigation equipment have launched a new assault in man's age-old battle to tame the Great Plains.

Approximately 4.5 million acres have come under irrigation in the plains states in the last 10 years, bringing the total to 22.6 million acres. Officials estimate irrigation adds roughly $11 billion annually to the Great Plains economy.

Hundreds of millions of bushels of grain have been added to annual world food production.

But the water, placed in the ground over a period of thousands of years, is being used faster than nature can replace it.

Now the farmers are winning at least temporarily.

The plains are being attacked with center pivot irrigation systems. They look like giant lawn sprinklers with a single arm a quarter of a mile long and pump water from underground wells and water supplies. The pivots can irrigate hillier land than regular systems.

Satellite photographs indicate the number of center pivot systems in Nebraska increased from 2,713 in 1972 to 6,500 in 1974.

Man has not completely conquered the plains, however. Heat, hot and cold temperatures, insects and weeds still take their toll.

Nebraska, the state leading the irrigation explosion, has enough underground water to theoretically cover the entire state to a depth of 39 feet. But the water is not always available where it is needed. The water table has its own geography, sometimes sloping as much as 75 feet per mile. There are now more than 45,000 wells sucking at the state's water table. The U.S. Geological Survey's computer projections say that wells in the Big and Little Blue River basins could be dry by 2022.

A Kansas Water Resources Board report says, "Large areas of western Kansas are mining their ground water, and even at present rates of withdrawal, water shortages will occur in the near future."

In Oklahoma, irrigation has taken its toll on the water tables of the Panhandle and Caddo County. "I don't think they will ever run dry, but will eventually reach the point where it is not economically feasible to continue pumping water from the deep areas," said Forrest

Nelson of the Oklahoma Water Resources Board said.

In Texas, a Water Development Board report says only 37 per cent of the water under the High Plains will be left by 2020.

There are efforts under way to solve the problem. The Nebraska Legislature passed a law this year in an attempt to regulate the use of underground water; two ground water management districts have been formed in Kansas to conserve water and search for ways to recharge the water table.

Farmers trying to justify the cost of bringing Mississippi River water to the High Plains of Texas and Oklahoma are studying a plan to take water from the wetter eastern portion of the state to the dryer western area.

City Of El Paso Sues Steel Firms

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The city of El Paso has filed suit against three steel companies, charging collusive bidding for fabricated steel for the city's new civic center.

The suit claims $500,000 actual damages but the city seeks $1,438,552 damages plus interest and court costs.

The U.S. district clerk's office identified the defendants as Darbyshire Steel Inc., El Paso Machine and Steel Works, Inc., and Roberson Steel Inc.

Named as a coconspirator but not a defendant in the civil suit was R.E. McKee Inc., the general contractor from Dallas. The city has asked for a jury trial.

Midland Youth Center Chatter

By CORRINE CAHOON, CAROLINE KEMPER and SUSAN TIGHE

Oh, we see you're reading the newspaper again for the first time since school was out. Have you read the funnies and Dear Abby? Well, you've saved the best for last.

What's cookin' at the Y.C. (Youth Center)?! No, not burritos, wrong again, not fish burgers, no, not tacos or hot dogs. Give up? IT'S A BARBECUE AND DANCE!!! All M.H.S. students, "come as you like." Mark your calendars for Aug. 31 from noon until 1:30 p.m. for the barbecue and from 1 until 5 p.m. to burn off those calories with a bump contest, Cotton-eyed Joe contest and a special prize. We will dance to the music of the White River Band. The price will be $2.50 in advance and $3 at the door for the whole shebang.

Hey, all sophomores, get a head start, join the 100 Club! This is the only organization for sophomores only. It helps support the Youth Center. The only way to get on the Junior Council is by being a member of the 100 Club. The first meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. today in the Youth Center. The second meeting will be Aug. 28 same time, same place, to elect officers. BE THERE!!!

Some of you unfortunate sophomores may have missed an evening of wonderful entertainment put on by the Student Council at orientation. Many informative topics were discussed:

- (1) different school organizations and
- (2) penalties for tardies and absences.

Sophomores, don't be fooled by a junior selling elevator tickets because the elevators are for Seniors only.

Mary Rasche, president of the Junior Council, and Mr. Rascoe, director of the Y.C. thanks all of the hard workers who came and helped paint the Y.C.

How was your summer? Some people found plenty to do. Jay Poe got lots of exercise and rediscovered his bicycle. Watch your step, many high school boys have spent their summer digging a hole. Waste of time? Kathy Macina had a job in the police department. Hope none of you visited her on the job.

Don't blink! You might miss Mike Dardin, a M.H.S. track member getting into shape for the season. Some people weren't satisfied with all Midland had to offer, so they went abroad. Three M.H.S. students joined the People to People tours, they are Alice Ashmore, Lynn Cowden, and Shannon Dillard, with Mr. Buchanan as their sponsor.

M.H.S. welcomes Ingeburg Kraft. She is the Y.F.U. exchange student from Norway and will be living with the Robert Spears.

Jeff Webb, our foreign exchange student to Germany, will be returning in about 10 days. Further information about President Jefferson Cornelius Webb's arrival will be released in the next Chatter.

Don't worry, all you faithful Chatter readers. This is only our first time. Try us again next week.

Agence France-Press
TAIPEI — A computer with Chinese character input and output systems will shortly be developed. President of the Republic C. K. Yen told an international computer symposium here Wednesday.

Success in the design of such equipment is now at hand, he said, as a result of work by Chinese scientists in Taiwan. He did not give a date for the emergence of the new computer.
