

Ford, 16 Governors Talk Natural Gas Problems

By HOWARD BENEDICT WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford was meeting with 16 governors on ways to ease an expected natural gas shortage...

The President was expected to call for voluntary conservation policies by the states and to consider various legislative moves the government and the states might make.

Under the administration-sponsored legislation, interstate pipeline operators would be free to pay much more to producers to bid new gas away from unregulated intrastate consumers...

Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Iowa, Kentucky and Delaware. The governors of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana were invited because their states are major natural gas producers.

In their respective roles as chairman of the National Governors Conference energy committee and chairman of the Democratic Governors Conference...

Aug. 31, but the bill has not been sent to him yet. One Senate source said, "Discussions are still going on... They are still hopeful of working out a compromise."

If price controls end at midnight Sunday, the current $5.25-a-barrel ceiling on about 60 percent of U.S.-produced oil would be lifted and the price of that oil is expected to rise to the unregulated world level of around $12 a barrel.

Pair Of Devonian Projects Slaked In Lea Sectors

An attempt will be made to reopen two Devonian oil fields in Lea County, N.M., with the scheduling of two 14,000-foot tests.

American Quasar Petroleum Co. of New Mexico staked site for No. 1 State, 3/4 mile northeast of the depleted opener in the Denton, South field, eight miles southeast of Prairieview.

Second Project Kirby Exploration Co. of Houston staked No. 1 Hudson-Federal, one mile north and slightly east of the depleted Devonian opener in the Maljamar pool.

That discovery was Buffalo Oil Co. No. 12-B Baish, and was completed in January, 1952, for 578 barrels of oil daily, through perforations at 13,554-13,573 feet.

West Texas Areas Gain Wildcat Sites

Exploration has been scheduled in Culberson and Mitchell counties.

L. B. Lyons, Odessa, will drill a 750-foot try in Culberson, 32 miles southwest of Orla. It is No. 1-16 Covington-State.

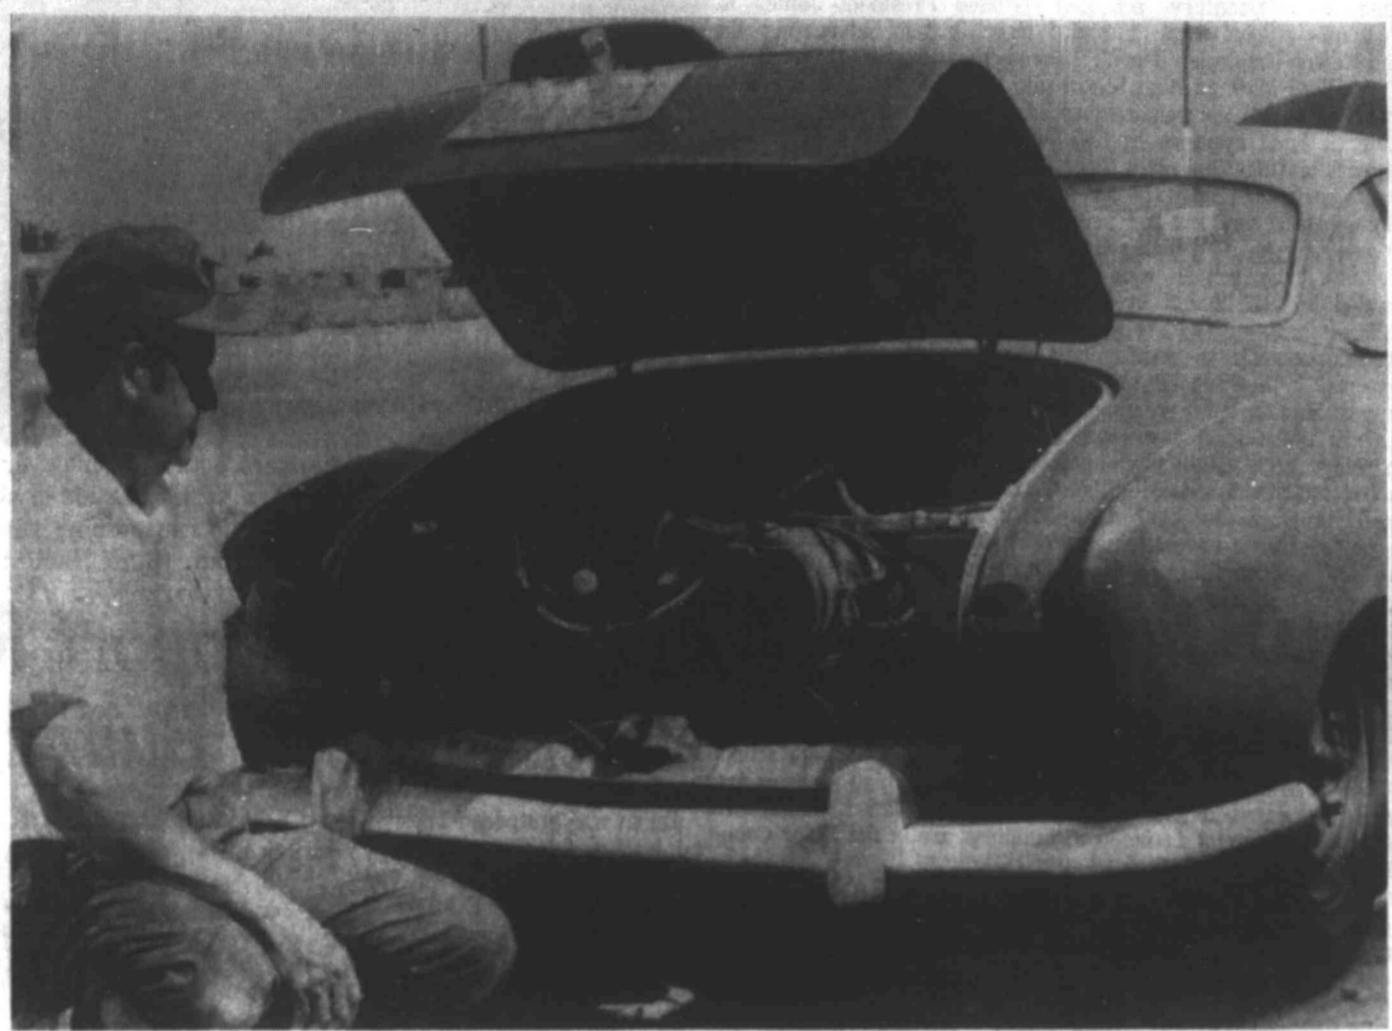

Mitchell Probe Clifton Thomas of San Angelo has staked another project in Mitchell, in attempt to reopen the Hurlbut (130 Sunflower sand) field.

Deep Marlin Pool Gains New Tester

RK Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill No. 1 Exchange as a 3/4-mile south stepout to the two-well RK (Devonian) pool of North Central Martin County.

Dalport Finals Chaves Project

Dalport Oil Corp., Dallas, has completed its No. 2 Toddhunter-Federal as the second oil project in the Chaves field.

Ernest Briggs, 1222 S. Big Spring St., explains how he converted a Carmen Ghia into an electric car.

Midlander Fights Private Gasoline War

By COURTNEY BARBER One Midland man is fighting a private war against gas shortage, inflationary pump prices and the oil industry in general.

Ernest Briggs, 1222 S. Big Spring St., built a car which doesn't need gas, oil or antifreeze. He used the frame, transmission, wheels and steering systems of a foreign car and two motors from electric golf carts.

Briggs said, "I've used it for two months to run around town and have charged it three or four times. It'll run 45 miles per hour at top speed with both electric motors, but I wouldn't recommend taking it out of town, because there's just enough juice (current) to run for an hour or an hour and one half continuously."

"It cost 25 cents each time I recharge it. I plug it in before I go to bed, using a charger engine was once housed, and which has two cords, one for the car connection and the other goes into an electrical house-type socket. Then the charger cuts off automatically when the batteries are recharged."

SWIFT APPEAL EXPECTED

Kent State Defendants Absolved

CLEVELAND (AP) - A swift appeal is expected of a federal jury's decision denying $46 million in damages to the wounded and the survivors of the dead in the Kent State University shootings of 1970.

The last day of the Kent trial has not occurred, plaintiffs' attorney Joseph Kerner said Wednesday after the jury absolved Gov. James A. Rhodes and 28 other present or former state officials and Ohio National Guardsmen of liability in the shootings.

Kerner predicted that the jury's verdict, announced on the fifth day of deliberations of the 15-week trial, would be reversed by a higher court.

U.S. District Judge Don J. Young and attorneys for the 29 defendants, as well as some of the defendants themselves, acknowledged that the case probably had not been finally resolved.

Air-Conditioning Bond Approval Would Push School Debt Above $14.6 Million

The bonded indebtedness of the Midland Independent School District would be increased to more than $14.6 million should a $4.2-million bond proposal to air-condition public school buildings here.

Currently, six of the system's 26 schools in 28 buildings are air-conditioned. Pupil-wise, that means an estimated 10,000 of the schools' 16,000 students are without benefit of refrigerated air.

Should voters sanction the air-conditioning proposal, the schools' indebtedness would approach to within $4 million of the school system's $18-million budget for 1975-76.

The city's two polling places in county voting precincts 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 12, 14, 16, Midland High. Alternate judges will be Mrs. R. J. Lewis and Mrs. Mel Butler.

The voting precinct assigned to each voter is listed in the "voting box" slot on the voter registration certificate.

The certificates are issued through the Midland County voter registrar's office in the tax office in the basement of the county courthouse.

Approximately 29,400 are registered to vote in the county-wide election. The 300 or so additional voters living within the rural Greenwood Independent School District southeast of Midland are not, however, eligible to cast ballots in the Sept. 18 election.

Portuguese Communists Face Increasing Pressure

By STEPHENS BROENING Associated Press Writer LISBON, Portugal (AP) - The Communists brought out a crowd of 35,000 in Lisbon to demonstrate in support of Premier Vasco Goncalves, but the Socialists mustered 50,000 against him in the northern city of Porto.

A Lisbon newspaper reported that army officers on Madeira, the Portuguese island 600 miles southwest of Lisbon, had advised Costa Gomes the population there was likely to declare independence of Portugal if the "minority unpopular central government continues in office."

A similar independence movement is already strong in the Azores, Portugal's other Atlantic islands. In Vienna, Austrian authorities impounded a shipment of 1,000 submachine guns ordered by the government of Czechoslovakia. Airport sources said a private Boeing 707 jet arrived from Lisbon to pick up the guns, and Austrian newspapers speculated that the Czechs ordered them for the Portuguese Communists.

Mideast Agreement May Be Finalized Sunday Or Monday

By BARRY SCHWEID JERUSALEM (AP) - Most of the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement is settled, a senior American official reports, and the pact may be initiated by the two governments Sunday or Monday.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned to Jerusalem from Alexandria on Wednesday night for more talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the rest of the Israeli negotiating team.

Israel is insisting on the presence of the Americans to avert a recurrence of Egypt's expulsion of the United Nations buffer force in the Sinai Desert just before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Under the new agreement, the U.S. staff would be removed only if both Israel and Egypt approved.

Arab Campaign Against Israel Apparently Fading

LIMA, Peru (AP) - Arab attempts to get the nonaligned nations conference to call for the suspension or expulsion of Israel from the United Nations appeared bogged down today.

Many African and Latin American members of the 22-nation conference urged caution so as not to imperil the Israeli-Egyptian agreement which is near completion and expected to be signed this weekend.

A special ad hoc Middle East Committee was to have been established Wednesday, the third day of the conference's five-day schedule, but was postponed. Non-Arab nations expressed hope Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations in Cairo and Jerusalem would succeed and showed concern that there be no interference.

Stretching Food Dollar A Challenge For Shoppers

By BARBARA RADER
Newsday

Stretching the food dollar always is a challenge for shoppers; coming up with a supper-party meal is even more of a challenge when the budget for six persons, including a bottle of wine, is less than $15.

The following meal starts with a tangy anchovy-egg spread for crackers and continues with a second-course salad, followed by the main course of stuffed eggplant. Three eggplants are cut in half the long way, parboiled for a short time, scooped out and filled with sauteed Italian sausage, chopped meat, onions and eggplant.

Instead of a commercial tomato-sauce topping, a large can of chopped plum tomatoes is simmered slowly with additional fresh tomatoes and a bit of sugar (to bring out sweetness), plus some herbs. That is spooned over the eggplant halves, and bits of skim-milk mozzarella (much less expensive than the whole-milk variety) are added for top garnish.

The finale of the meal is a dish of baked peach halves. Since this is intended as a supper party meal, everything is assembled ahead of time, thus allowing plenty of time to be with guests.

Here's the menu, a time schedule for assembling it, and the recipes:

THE $15 SUPPER FOR SIX
Anchovy-Egg Spread
Crackers
Tossed Green Salad
Vinaigrette Dressing
Stuffed Eggplant Sicilian Style
Garlic-Buttered Italian Bread
Peaches in Port Wine
Iced Coffee-Iced Tea
Hearty Mountain Burgundy (optional)

Day Ahead Of Time: Make anchovy-egg spread and refrigerate, covered, so flavors can blend. Bake peaches in port wine, allow to cool, then refrigerate, covered, until about an hour before serving time.

Morning Of Supper Party: Parboil eggplant, make filling, fill eggplants and refrigerate, covered, until ready to bake. Also, simmer tomatoes ahead of baking time, so they have a chance to thicken somewhat and blend with additional herbs.

Just Before Serving: Split Italian loaves and spread with garlic butter (garlic chopped fine and mixed with butter or margarine, about 4 cloves to a quarter pound), spoon tomato sauce onto eggplants; dot with bits of mozzarella cheese and bake.

ANCHOVY-EGG SPREAD
1 jar (2 ounces) anchovy pate (about 3 tablespoons)
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Dijon-type mustard
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon fresh-ground pepper
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
4 hard-cooked eggs, sieved
1. In small mixing bowl, stir together all ingredients. The hard-cooked eggs may be sieved right into the mixture. Stir well to mix.
2. Place in a tightly covered jar or bowl at least overnight, so flavors can blend. Serve on crackers (or toast) as an appetizer spread. Makes about 2 cups.

STUFFED EGGPLANT, SICILIAN STYLE
3 small eggplants, each about 1 pound
Boiling water
3 cloves garlic, crushed
3 tablespoons olive (or vegetable) oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 pound Italian sausage, taken out of casing
1/2 pound chopped chuck (Additional oil)
(Cut up interior of eggplant)
1 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 cup fresh bread crumbs (from Italian bread)
1 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon fresh-ground pepper
1 can (28 ounces) chopped Italian plum tomatoes
2 to 3 fresh tomatoes (about 1/2 pound), chopped
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 leaf fresh basil (1/4 teaspoon dried)
4 ounces (1/2 package) skim-milk mozzarella, sliced
1. Cut tops off eggplants, then cut each in half the long way. (Leave vegetables unpeeled.)
2. Place in boiling water (two halves at a time so they have plenty of room), allow to boil for about 5 minutes; drain. Using a sharp knife, cut out the interior of the eggplant, leaving about a half-inch rim of vegetable. Fine-chop the interior eggplant, then set aside.

3. In skillet, saute garlic in oil until brown; remove and discard garlic (it will be bitter if left in skillet).

4. In garlic-flavored oil, saute 1 cup onion slowly until golden, but not burned. Remove and set aside.

5. In same skillet, saute sausage, breaking it into small pieces, then add chuck and saute until it loses color; drain.

6. Place cooked onions and meat in mixing bowl.

7. Return skillet to heat, add more oil if necessary. Saute cut up eggplant and second cup of onions until golden; cover and allow vegetables to steam for about 10 minutes or until soft. Add to the meat in mixing bowl.

8. Add parsley, bread crumbs, oregano, salt and pepper, stirring well to blend.

9. Use this mixture to fill eggplants, mounding up mixture to make a full stuffing. At this point, eggplants may be refrigerated, covered, until ready to bake at a later time.

10. Meanwhile, in saucepan, heat chopped tomatoes, both canned and fresh, with sugar, oregano and basil, allow to simmer at least a half hour, until it becomes sauce.

11. Just before baking, spoon the tomato sauce onto tops of stuffed eggplants. There is plenty of sauce, be liberal.

12. Add slices of mozzarella on top, then sprinkle with a bit more oregano.

13. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 45 minutes or until cheese melts and vegetables are hot. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. Peron Replaces Argentine Army Chief

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Generals opposed to military participation in President Isabel Peron's government forced her to accept the resignation of the army chief and prevented her from maneuvering them into retirement.

After 24 hours of tension, rumors of an impending military coup and intensive negotiations, Mrs. Peron accepted the resignation of Gen. Alberto Numa Laplane Wednesday night and named Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla, the head of the joint chiefs of staff, to replace him. Videla, 50, was one of the generals who forced Laplane to quit. He also is reported to have initiated the investigation that linked Mrs. Peron's former chief adviser, Jose Lopez Rega, to the right-wing assassination squads that have been active in recent months.

The president reportedly hoped to force the dissident generals into retirement by replacing Laplane with an officer junior to them. But with all army units on full alert and the generals meeting at a nearby army base, she abandoned her plan and agreed to Videla.

The latest crisis in Mrs. Peron's 13-month-old regime stemmed from her appointment of a military man, Col. Vicente Damasco, to be interior minister on Aug. 11.

Some of the generals immediately demanded that Damasco resign his cabinet post or retire from the army so that there would be no suggestion of military responsibility for Mrs. Peron's tottering government.

The generals turned their fire on Laplane after he supported Damasco and said he could stay in both the army and the cabinet.

Laplane submitted his resignation Tuesday night, but Mrs. Peron refused to accept it. The army's division commanders put their troops on the alert; civilian leaders united behind Mrs. Peron, and the dissident generals gathered at the Campo de Mayo army base 16 miles north of Buenos Aires under the leadership of Gen. Carlos Delia Larroca, the commander of the 3rd Division.

Reconstruction Takes Hold In North Vietnam

By JEAN THORAVAL
Agence France-Presse
HANOI — North Vietnam is rising fast from the ashes of 30 years of war, which included eight years of American bombing raids.

You need only take a trip through a few of its provinces or cast your eye over the photographs published from day to day in the press here to see the change.

Industrial and farming life has become more or less normal where, three years ago, there were ruined buildings, cracked factory walls, half-demolished blast furnaces, cement works razed to the ground as well as a mass of wreckage, bridges knocked out and roads wiped off the map.

Only those who have spent the past three years in this country can fully appreciate the enormous achievement of the North Vietnamese in getting their economy going again.

Large hydroelectric dams have been built like that in Yen Bai Province at Thac Ba Engineering factories like the one at Cam Pha, taken underground during the air raids have grown tenfold in size.

These factories are also said to have increased their output tenfold in their efforts to meet the requirements of the forestry, building, farming, mining and other sectors.

Output of coal, one of the main resources, is officially put at five million tons this year against 1,500,000 tons in 1957.

Foundries like that in Gia Sang, in Bac Thai Province northwest of Hanoi, are producing steel and castings, and the modernized Haiphong cement works is bigger than before.

Baby's Heart Is Rebuilt

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — A seven-pound boy was chilled into hibernation, his body drained of most of its blood and his heart stopped for 63 minutes while surgeons rebuilt it in a rare life-saving operation recently at Children's Hospital here.

The operation was performed Aug. 7 on William Brown who was then less than three months old and dying of congenital heart malformation. Dr. Frank N. Midgley, who headed the operating team, called the procedure "an overwhelmingly dramatic case." At a press conference Wednesday.

Doctors said William is the second smallest baby to ever undergo this procedure which combines several of the most daring techniques of heart surgery. By all evidence available, doctors said, they were able to save the child, and he is now home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Washington, D.C.

In disclosing details of the operation Wednesday, doctors said that lowering the child's body temperature to 64 degrees—from the normal 98.6 degrees—halted the heart and other body functions. This is what allowed the heart to be stopped so long without causing brain damage.

The child, who was anesthetized, was first placed on a cold mattress filled with fluid, and plastic bags of slush were packed around his body. When the temperature dropped to 84 degrees, the bags were removed and blood vessels were attached to a heart-lung machine that drained most of the blood from his body and further chilled his body to 64 degrees.

"This meant we could work without any encumbrance inside a bloodless, motionless heart," Midgley said, calling it "a devastatingly quiet operating field." Midgley explained how the team of surgeons then built a complex new wall inside the child's two and a half-inch long heart.

Extensive reconstruction of the wall allowed the surgeons to correct a defect that affected William, as it does one in every 4,000 babies.

When William was born the positions of two large blood vessels, the pulmonary artery and the aorta, were reversed, so that the child's used blood was not being pumped to the lungs for renewed supply of oxygen. The blood instead circulated through the chambers of the heart and then went back into the blood stream, without going through the lungs and getting a fresh supply of oxygen.

The blood instead circulated through the chambers of the heart and then went back into the blood stream, without going through the lungs and getting a fresh supply of oxygen.

Mrs. Brown and the baby were both present at Wednesday's press conference. "He's a wonderful baby," she said, holding him. "He's active, he laughs, he talks. He's just like any other baby."

She said, however, that when the child was born May 17 at the Columbia Hospital for Women "he was blue. They had to start giving him oxygen. The next day the doctors came around to talk to me. I knew something was wrong."

Twice—first on May 18, then on July 27—a Children's Hospital team threaded a balloon into his heart through a vein and then blew the balloon up in a desperate attempt to tear an opening between the two sides of his heart. Doctors hoped to get some fresh blood pumping through his body that way. But, they said Wednesday, by the first week of August it was obvious that the attempt was not successful.

Stretching Food Dollar A Challenge For Shoppers

By BARBARA RADER
Newsday

Stretching the food dollar always is a challenge for shoppers; coming up with a supper-party meal is even more of a challenge when the budget for six persons, including a bottle of wine, is less than $15.

The following meal starts with a tangy anchovy-egg spread for crackers and continues with a second-course salad, followed by the main course of stuffed eggplant. Three eggplants are cut in half the long way, parboiled for a short time, scooped out and filled with sauteed Italian sausage, chopped meat, onions and eggplant.

Instead of a commercial tomato-sauce topping, a large can of chopped plum tomatoes is simmered slowly with additional fresh tomatoes and a bit of sugar (to bring out sweetness), plus some herbs. That is spooned over the eggplant halves, and bits of skim-milk mozzarella (much less expensive than the whole-milk variety) are added for top garnish.

The finale of the meal is a dish of baked peach halves.

Since this is intended as a supper party meal, everything is assembled ahead of time, thus allowing plenty of time to be with guests.

Here's the menu, a time schedule for assembling it, and the recipes:

THE $15 SUPPER FOR SIX
Anchovy-Egg Spread
Crackers
Tossed Green Salad
Vinaigrette Dressing
Stuffed Eggplant Sicilian Style
Garlic-Buttered Italian Bread
Peaches in Port Wine
Iced Coffee-iced Tea
Hearty Mountain Burgundy (optional)

Day Ahead Of Time: Make anchovy-egg spread and refrigerate, covered, so flavors can blend. Bake peaches in port wine, allow to cool, then refrigerate, covered, until about an hour before serving time.

Morning Of Supper Party: Parboil eggplant, make filling, fill eggplants and refrigerate, covered, until ready to bake. Also, simmer tomatoes ahead of baking time, so they have a chance to thicken somewhat and blend with additional herbs.

Just Before Serving: Split Italian loaves and spread with garlic butter (garlic chopped fine and mixed with butter or margarine, about 4 cloves to a quarter pound), spoon tomato sauce onto eggplants; dot with bits of mozzarella cheese and bake.

ANCHOVY-EGG SPREAD
1 jar (2 ounces) anchovy pate (about 3 tablespoons)
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Dijon-type mustard
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon fresh-ground pepper
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
6 hard-cooked eggs, sieved

1. In small mixing bowl, stir together all ingredients. The hard-cooked eggs may be sieved right into the mixture. Stir well to mix.
2. Place in a tightly covered jar or bowl at least overnight, so flavors can blend. Serve on crackers (or toast) as an appetizer spread. Makes about 2 cups.

STUFFED EGGPLANT, SICILIAN STYLE
3 small eggplants, each about 1 pound
Boiling water
3 cloves garlic, crushed
3 tablespoons olive (or vegetable) oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 pound Italian sausage, taken out of casing
1/2 pound chopped chuck (Additional oil)
(Cut up interior of eggplant)
1 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 cup fresh bread crumbs (from Italian bread)
1 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon fresh-ground pepper

1 can (28 ounces) chopped Italian plum tomatoes
2 to 3 fresh tomatoes (about 1/2 pound), chopped
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 leaf fresh basil (1/4 teaspoon dried)
4 ounces (1/2 package) skim-milk mozzarella, sliced

1. Cut tops off eggplants, then cut each in half the long way. (Leave vegetables unpeeled.)
2. Place in boiling water (two halves at a time so they have plenty of room), allow to boil for about 5 minutes; drain. Using a sharp knife, cut out the interior of the eggplant, leaving about a half-inch rim of vegetable. Fine-chop the interior eggplant, then set aside.

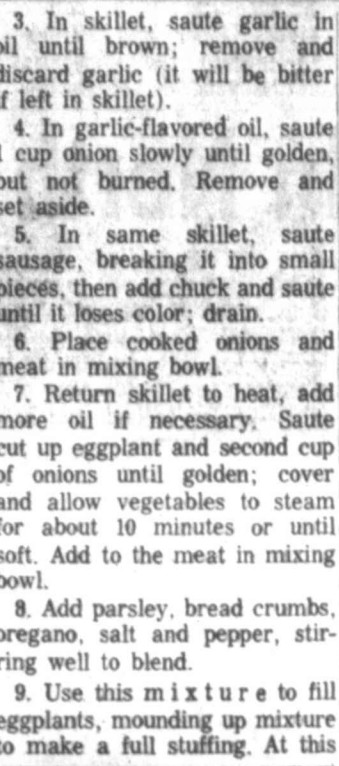

3. In skillet, saute garlic in oil until brown; remove and discard garlic (it will be bitter if left in skillet).
4. In garlic-flavored oil, saute 1 cup onion slowly until golden, but not burned. Remove and set aside.
5. In same skillet, saute sausage, breaking it into small pieces, then add chuck and saute until it loses color; drain.
6. Place cooked onions and meat in mixing bowl.
7. Return skillet to heat, add more oil if necessary. Saute cut up eggplant and second cup of onions until golden; cover and allow vegetables to steam for about 10 minutes or until soft. Add to the meat in mixing bowl.
8. Add parsley, bread crumbs, oregano, salt and pepper, stirring well to blend.
9. Use this mixture to fill eggplants, mounding up mixture to make a full stuffing. At this point, eggplants may be refrigerated, covered, until ready to bake at a later time.

10. Meanwhile, in saucepan, heat chopped tomatoes, both canned and fresh, with sugar, oregano and basil, allow to simmer at least a half hour, until it becomes sauce.
11. Just before baking, spoon the tomato sauce onto tops of stuffed eggplants. There is plenty of sauce, be liberal.
12. Add slices of mozzarella on top, then sprinkle with a bit more oregano.
13. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 45 minutes or until cheese melts and vegetables are hot. Makes 6 servings.

Paint Finance Picture Early

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many retired people who have learned the lesson are quick to advise younger people to keep abreast of their financial picture as it affects their future. Know where you are headed is the message — if you want to live happily ever after in a house and location you love.

At 35 and 40 one should begin to assess such a picture realistically, retirees will say. Sad but true, when people are in their prime they must concern themselves with old age. As one man says, "The lesson is here. The existing economy caught many of us unawares. Often a few dollars may be the difference in living in the old house or giving it up."

He and his wife are a couple who had to sell a house they love. They also had to adopt a new standard of living — far below what they'd known. In his opinion it could have been avoided with forethought. Twenty years before he could have planned the whole thing for comfort, if he had given it some thought.

"We depended too much on pension, social security, dividends," he says. "But we didn't reckon that in this economy the pension would be infinitesimal, the dividends meaningless. Our biggest mistake was refinancing our house too late for too long a term."

He offers this advice to young people:

—Your house is an important cog in your happiness whether it is the one you are in now or one that comes later. Do anything you can to avoid saddling yourself with mortgage payments that will run after you retire, or taking on huge payments just before retirement. (He made long-term commitments on money to pay three college tuitions. A little belt-pulling would have let him pay off his mortgage sooner.)

—Keep your home in prime shape. When you are young it is easy to do the work and to keep ahead of crab grass and corrosion. It is also less of a strain to pay for the work. If you can't do it, hire someone who can, but keep it up. (His house was at the multiple-repair stage when he retired. It needed roof repairs and new oil and water tanks. Disrepair devalued the house. "We spent $3,000 of our small retirement cushion in savings bonds before we could even sell the house," he says.)

—Ten years before retirement one should add up the financial burdens that will exist upon retirement — mortgage, if any, taxes, insurance, fuel and heat and maintenance. Include an amount for emergency expenses and get a percentage escalation tax figure from your town hall. Most towns and cities make long range, fairly accurate assessments on the town's future probable taxes. Insurance costs rise and so on. (You can determine from all this how much it will cost to hold on to your house — something this man didn't do in good time.)

—If you must refinance your house, make every effort to pay it off early. There may be a difference of only a few dollars in paying off a mortgage years before. When you are still young it is far easier to make a few sacrifices.

—While time is on your side make sure you are with the right firm. Keep aware of your salary in relation to your pension. You have the opportunity to change your job before you get locked into one company for financial security. Your income should reflect changes in the economy. This man stuck it out and that was the first mistake — he might have made far more elsewhere.)

—Be sure the firm's pension plan is a good one. Don't be content with percentage figures if you don't understand them. Find out how much you would get when you retire at the age set based on earnings you choose as an example. It will give you some idea of how much you will need to earn in that company to retire and live in financial comfort.

Stock Market Fills Gap

By HELEN L. CALL
Copley News Service

Chartists believe the stock market has a long memory and that when the averages "gap" (skip a couple of prices on the way up or down) they will, sooner or later, come back to fill that gap.

One technician sees the Dow average settling down toward just such a gap at around the 675 level, intent on filling it before a strong year-end rally. Between now and then, "there could be a very good trading rally, lasting a week or two," said Harry Laubscher, chief technician for Blyth Eastman Dillon. "Then I look for a resumption of the down trend."

Traders might get mileage out of glamor stocks; long-term investors "will be better off buying income stocks," Laubscher said in an interview.

In the meantime, the bond market looks good for the first time in 20 years. "The long-term bear market in bonds, which began in 1946-47, may be ended," Laubscher said. "Based purely on technical analysis we may be headed for a bull market in bonds over the next several years. With yields of 8.5 to 10.5 per cent on the highest quality bonds, it is too good to pass up."

Richard Russell, publisher of Dow Theory Letters, currently reviews closed-end bond funds which trade like other stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. He writes, "I consider these funds to be outstanding values."

The bond funds are not only selling under net asset value but are yielding 9 per cent to 10 per cent on their dividends. He lists three: Drexel Bond C Debenture Fund, Pacific American Income Shares, Excelsior Income Shares.

Reynolds Securities has prepared a list of stocks with dividends paying more than 6 per cent which have listed options, for investors who want to write options as a defensive way to increase income.

At mid-August prices, the list: AMP, American Cyanamid, American Electric Power, American Telephone, Bethlehem

Steel, Chase Manhattan, Commonwealth Edison, Exxon, Ford, General Telephone, Goodyear, W.R. Grace, Greyhound, Gulf Oil, INA Corp., International Harvester, International Telephone, Mobil Oil, Phelps Dodge, Standard Oil of California, Tenneco, Texaco, Virginia Electric Power, Westinghouse, Woolworth.

A study of utilities by Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes reviews the uncertainties facing the utilities industry in coming years. "Accounts requiring preservation of capital and secure income should restrict their holdings to the highest quality issues." Nine meet the requirements for total return — income and growth: Central & Southwest, Florida Power & Light, Houston Lighting, Northern Indiana Public Service, Oklahoma Gas & Electric, Public Service of Indiana, Tampa Electric, Texas Utilities, Wisconsin Electric Power.

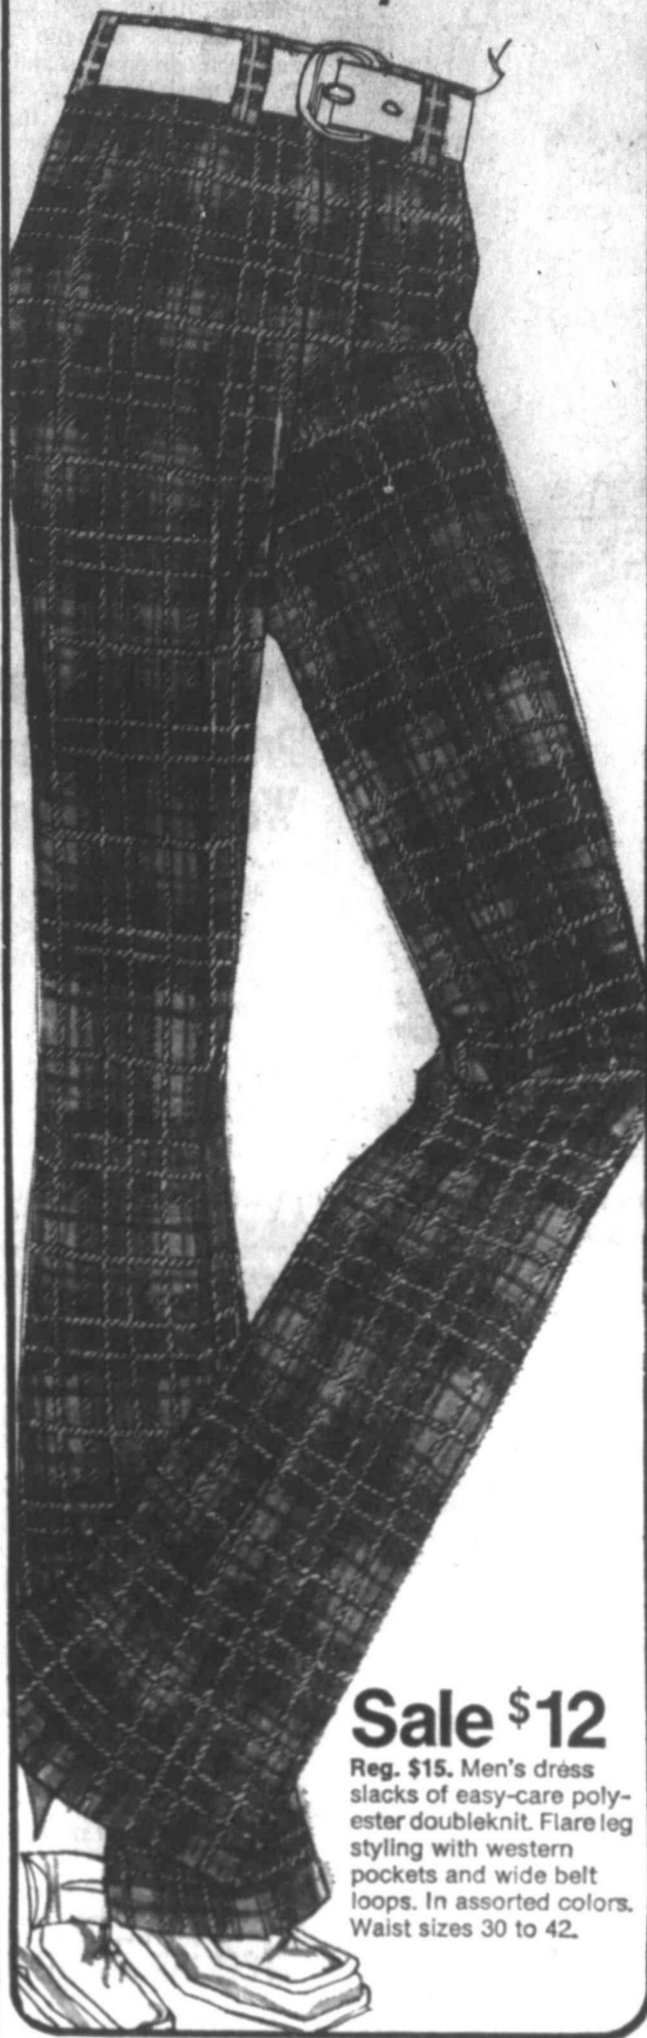

In the commodities end of the investment picture, Hornblower's Bob Robens is advising hanging in there with pork bellies, even though shorts have been caught in a squeeze. "We haven't seen the end yet," says Hornblower, recommending long positions at current levels in February bellies.

Soybean meal, says Robens, "is probably the new bull market on the Chicago Board of Trade floor." Buy December meal at present prices, under $160, he says, for price objectives exceeding $200. Robens sees a bull market for grains.

Rattlesnake Bite Rarely Fatal

SILVER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Rattlesnakes are not as deadly as most people think. According to statistics gathered at the Reptile Institute here, fewer than one per cent of the snakebite victims die. The venom, however, causes extreme pain and swelling of the joints. Reptile experts here extract venom from rattlesnakes for use as antivenin for snakebite victims.

Millipedes Infest Town In Indiana

FLOYDS KNOBS, Ind. (AP) — Millions of millipedes have invaded Floyds Knobs, crunching underfoot and forcing residents into an almost military defense of their homes.

The many-footed insects appeared two months ago, crawling out of the wooded hills that gave this Indiana community of 375 its name.

It got so bad that one resident, Thomas Pickett, said he could look up from his dinner table and see them on the ceiling.

No Injuries, Damage

There have been no injuries or damage. The insects feed on decaying matter such as dead leaves and bark and neither bite nor sting.

The worst infestation has been around a dozen homes nestled at the foot of the hills. Residents have dug trenches around the homes, filling the ditches with turpentine, oil and kerosene. The mixture doesn't kill the millipedes, but it keeps them from trespassing.

Ray Seifert, Floyd County farm extension agent, said insecticide spray is effective, "but of course you kill them and the next day the replacements arrive."

Seeking Food Moisture

Dr. John Kethley, head of the insect division of Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History, said the millipedes probably are searching for moisture and food.

Kethley said they survived a mild winter, and the hot and dry summer apparently drew them out of their natural habitats beneath logs and forest litter.

Per Capita Cigarette Consumption Declines First Time In Five Years

By JOHN STOWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. per capita cigarette consumption dropped slightly in 1974 to mark the first decline in five years, although the industry spent more for advertising last year than any year since 1970, the Federal Trade Commission said today.

At the same time, the FTC told Congress that domestic sales were up about 1.7 per cent to 594.5 billion cigarettes last year. That was a record, surpassing the old high of 584.7 billion cigarettes sold in 1973, but indicating a slowdown in the recent trend, the FTC said.

However, consumption on a per capita basis among U.S. residents and overseas military personnel 18 years of age and older was 4,110 cigarettes in 1974, compared with 4,112 in 1973 and 4,286 in 1963.

Cigarette manufacturers spent $306.8 million on advertising last year, the highest since $314.7 million in 1970 before Congress banned cigarette commercials on radio and television, the FTC said.

The advertising included $114.6 million in magazine ads, $80.5 million in newspapers, $71.4 million for billboards, $31.1 million in direct advertising promotions and $9.2 million in other media.

The industry spent $247.5 million for cigarette advertising in 1973.

The new report to Congress said filter cigarettes and mentholated varieties continued the long-term trend of claiming a larger share of the market. Filter cigarettes accounted for 86 per cent of sales in 1974, a gain of one percentage point at the expense of nonfilter brands. In 1963, filter cigarettes represented 85 per cent of sales.

The FTC said 27 per cent of cigarettes sold last year were menthol, up 2 per cent from 1973 and almost double the 16 per cent in 1963.

Twenty-nine per cent of cigarette sales in 1974 were for extra long brands of 95-to-120 millimeters, up 5 per cent. Sixty-five per cent were king size and 6 per cent regulars.

The FTC said this may be explained by the showing that 46 per cent of advertising dollars were spent to promote the extra long cigarettes last year, up from 29 per cent in 1973.

Advertising outlays for "safer" cigarettes, those with 15 milligrams of tar or less, fell from 17.8 per cent in 1973 to 15.2 per cent last year, the report said.

Parr Just Another Prisoner, Declares Warden In Indiana

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — The warden at the federal penitentiary here says former Duval County Judge Archer Parr will receive no special treatment while serving a 10-year sentence for perjury.

Warden Charles Benson said reports that Parr would live in a private house during the prison term which started last week are "far-fetched."

"We do not have private living quarters for inmates," Benson said. "The idea is far-fetched. We do not do things like that."

Parr, 49, was convicted May 9, 1974, for lying to a grand jury about his collection of $121,500 from a water district in Duval County, Tex., where he was county judge 15 years.

Parr was denied release on a $121,500 bond last week by a federal judge at Midland. Parr had sought release during his appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Benson said Parr might be transferred to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., "but while he is here, he is another prisoner. That is final."

East Texas Drive Nets 204 Aliens Working Illegally

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP) — A U.S. Border patrol spokesman says every attempt was made to return wages and belongings of the 204 aliens found working illegally in East Texas in a special one-week operation.

"For every two hours we spent picking up aliens, we spent five to six hours picking up belongings and wages," said Ron Weller, head of the border patrol operation which concluded its activities Wednesday.

Agents were sent here from Lake Charles and Baton Rouge, La., Gulfport, Miss., and Little Rock, Ark.

The men picked up illegal aliens ranging in age from 16 to 55 in Gregg, Panola and Smith counties, Weller said. The aliens, who included five women, are being bused back to Mexico.

The aliens were found working in the area in foundries, restaurants, meat packing plants, sawmills, construction and farms.

"We were surprised to find so many in industries," said Weller. "We had expected to find them employed in agriculture and at local ranches."

Fifth Man Sought In Crude Oil Theft Ring Surrenders

SAN ANGELO, TEX. (AP) — Boyce Cox, identified as an oil lease broker, surrendered to police Wednesday on felony theft charges arising from what Dist. Atty. Royal Hart called an interstate oil theft ring.

Hart said Cox, with home addresses in Dallas, Abilene and Houston, posted a $25,000 bond. Four other men were arrested earlier.

Hart said last week he has evidence that several persons involved in the ring may live in other states, but the operation has been limited to Texas and Louisiana.

He said records of Texas City Refining Co. in Texas City are being reviewed to determine how much stolen oil may have been purchased by the refinery. A company spokesman said the refinery has never knowingly bought stolen crude oil.

The district attorney said the ring operated by locating full oil storage tanks in the central West Texas Towns, then emptying them into tank trucks for transportation to other points for sale.

Democrats Select New York

UP, UP AND AWAY — The YC15, prototype of a new cargo plane for the Air Force, takes off from the Long Beach Airport on its maiden flight. Angry Busing Foes Accuse Bentsen

DUNCANVILLE, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen here for a ceremony opening a new section of Interstate 20 was confronted by angry opponents of busing who charged the senator with "selling out their cause."

About forty placard-carrying members of Citizens for Neighborhood Schools were among the 1,000 people attending the dedication, waving signs denouncing Bentsen and touting the candidacy of Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Bentsen said afterwards he has always opposed compulsory busing of school children and the demonstrators "had the wrong idea."

The confusion over his stand apparently has arisen, Bentsen said, because of his vote to soften an antibusing amendment offered in December, 1974, by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

While the amendment was widely regarded as an antibusing measure, Bentsen said he could not support it because "it went much further than that."

The Helms amendment also would have prohibited using federal funds to gather information on the existence of sexual discrimination in school systems, Bentsen said, as well as the racial make up of a school system.

"You've got the wrong man," Bentsen told the people wearing antibusing hats and T-shirts. "I've voted against it every time."

But Mrs. Shirley Barnes, a member of the Neighborhood Schools group, said she was not impressed with Bentsen's explanation of his Helms amendment vote.

"We're not going to let him do one thing up there and then try to explain it away when he's here," she said. "This is too important to our children."

Aside from waving their banners as Bentsen spoke, the protesters did not interfere with the 1-20 dedication ceremony.

The newly completed 23-mile stretch of highway connects Loop 620 in east Fort Worth with Loop 635 in Dallas.

Bentsen said the $98 million project, which has been planned since the late 1950's, represents the best kind of cooperation between government and business.

Regarding the labor boycott of Russian grain shipments, Bentsen took issue with President Ford's apparent feeling of urgency to help the U.S. balance of payments.

"I think what we ought to do is wait and see what happens to this corn crop and see what the drought does to it," he said. "I would think that within the next 30 days you would know."

Stafford To Head Air Force Testing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, commander of the recent Apollo-Soyuz space mission and a four-time veteran of space missions, is returning to the Air Force to become commander of the U.S. Air Force Test Center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Space agency officials announced Wednesday that Stafford, who holds the rank of major general in the Air Force, will assume his new duties on Nov. 1, 1975.

"I am looking forward to continuing my Air Force career using my background in flight test," said Stafford.

Ouster Petition Offered At Cisco

CISCO, Tex. (AP) — A petition bearing 499 signatures was presented city commissioners Tuesday night criticizing a number of city policies and calling for the ouster of City Manager Denton Miller.

Grievances listed include bad streets, poorly kept city cemetery and closing the Lake Cisco swimming pool.

Judge Rules Against Longshoremen

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge has told longshoremen from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., that they can "picket the White House" but they cannot interfere with the loading of grain sold by the United States to the Soviet Union.

Noted Texas Polio Fighter To Retire

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A quiet, soft-spoken doctor and scientist who is known nationwide as one of the greatest battlers of paralytic polio retires Friday as health commissioner of Texas.

"My health just won't permit me to continue," says Dr. James E. Peavy after 36 years with the State Health Department. He has been commissioner since 1959.

Actually the entire status of the department is changing because the last legislature put all former statutory powers of the commissioner into the hands of an enlarged Texas Department of Human Resources board. There will be no more commissioner but a director, now Dr. Fratle E. Duff, acting.

Satisfaction In Job

"You know, you don't make as much money as a regular physician but there are a whole lot of satisfactions in this job," said Peavy, 65.

Outstanding in Peavy's memory were his years as director of the communicable diseases section of the state when there were statewide outbreaks of polio every summer.

In 1955, 234 persons died in Texas from diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles or polio.

"What was so frustrating was that we had vaccines for most of these diseases—we just couldn't get people to come in and take them."

Frightening Killer

But polio was the frightening killer that caused near panic. "People didn't know what to do, they were terribly frightened."

"In the summer months, during the epidemics, we would get reports of 250 new cases of paralytic polio per week," he said.

At first, the major treatment was to isolate those afflicted, but the widespread use of Salk vaccine in 1955 and 1956 brought a quick improvement in the situation.

"We're very proud of our record with polio," Peavy said. "Until a case was reported recently in El Paso there had

Settled By Aboriginal Tribes

Arizona, the "Grand Canyon State," was first settled by aboriginal tribes of advanced culture. Ruins of buildings, pueblos and irrigation canals provide evidence.

ILA officials said they will appeal the ruling because a boycott is not a labor conflict, but a political act.

The longshoremen had returned to work Aug. 20 after a two-day work stoppage under a federal restraining order requested by the Gulf Maritime Association and granted by a Galveston federal judge.

The longshoremen said they had stopped loading grain aboard Soviet Union bound ships following resolutions passed by the ILA and the AFL-CIO. They said they wanted assurances from the U.S. government that the sale of grain to the Soviet Union would not mean an increase in domestic food prices.

Cox, who heard the case here after it was moved from Galveston, set a hearing for Sept. 30 on the shippers' request for a permanent injunction.

The judge agreed with the shippers' argument that the ILA should abide by the labor contract.

He said he "was not concerned with the pros and cons of shipping grain to the Soviet Union. Whether to do so is good or bad is for someone else to decide. They (the longshoremen) can picket the White House, picket Congress, but they cannot violate the contract."

Warner F. Brock, lawyer for the ILA said Cox' ruling will be appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

Brock said a labor union has a right to be politically oriented and added: "This is no labor dispute. It is purely political."

AFL-CIO President George Meany had defended the boycott last week saying that American consumers must be protected from higher food prices which could result from Russian grain purchases.

President Ford met Tuesday with Meany and other labor leaders, but the 90-minute meeting produced no solutions.

Meany, who said boycotts would continue, noted that flour prices increased after last month's Soviet grain purchases and that the same thing occurred in 1972 after another big Russian grain deal.

Ford said that the nation needs to make large grain sales abroad to improve its balance of payments.

The Russians bought nearly 10 million metric tons of American grain last month. A metric ton is about 2,200 pounds.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said Tuesday the grain exports will hike U.S. food prices about 1.5 per cent, but Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said food costs may jump as much as 2.5 per cent.

Mrs. Paul's asks:
Are there natural onion rings in the onion rings you buy?

This is the real, genuine onion ring made by Mrs. Paul's. Because inside the delicious outer covering, is a real, genuine natural onion ring. Mrs. Paul's makes onion rings only one way. The same way you would: with all natural ingredients. Just read our list of ingredients. You'll find that each one starts out with a thick, juicy natural onion ring. Then it's dipped in a delightful batter and deep fried to perfection.

Mrs. Paul's goes to the trouble of making onion rings the natural way for a very good reason: taste. We guarantee your satisfaction or your money back.

On the surface this looks like an onion ring. But inside there isn't any natural ring of onion. If you read the ingredients panel on their package, you'll find that their "onion ring" is really diced, chopped onions mixed in a batter and shaped like an onion ring. It looks pretty good. But it won't taste like a natural onion ring. Because there isn't a natural onion ring inside.

Buddy Rich's Daydream Becomes Reality

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

One daydream of the jazz musician is to open his own place, where musicians would be treated right — he'd know what that means — and high-quality jazz would reign. Also, he'd play there himself and not have to be traveling all the time.

For Buddy Rich, that daydream is a reality. He opened Buddy's Place, in New York, seating 200, closed it after about a year and then in April opened Buddy's Place again, this time in the Penn Station area, seating 375.

For this one, he had a band contractor put together a 16-piece band of young musicians. He got them from a Broadway show, a TV show, from recording and jingle work. Rich is a happy man. He says it's the best band he ever has led and he's playing drums better and better. "I don't go to work any more. I go to play."

"These guys have great pride in their musicianship. They've been locked up in recording studios. They want other people to know how good they are. At the end of the night somebody always says, 'Let's play some more.'"

The band has a new record album out, "The Big Band Machine," on Groove Merchant, Rich's fifth with that label. His recordings stretch far back, over many labels. "The Roar of '74" also was with a big band and the three prior to that were with combos. Big bands sound better, Rich says.

Rich is described in the "Encyclopedia of Jazz" as having "phenomenal technique and dynamically swinging style on the drums and an electric personality."

About the personality, which also has been described in other terms, Rich says, in the crisply rapid way in which he talks, "I'm nicer now, than I used to be. I enjoyed being rotten when I was rotten. And I enjoy being less rotten now."

Rich announced at the end of his set at the Newport Jazz Festival that this was the best band he'd ever led. "I think they should hear it. I go back to the school of band leaders who never talked to the musicians. I'm a leader who's also part of the band."

Rich, now 58, who started with his parents' vaudeville team, Wilson and Rich, when he was 18 months old, goes back to the Bunny Berigan Band in 1938, and bands of Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey, Benny Carter and Harry James, being in some of them more than once. He led his own first band in 1946.

His present young band members, who know those people as legendary names, from reading

Skateboarding: Fun And Transportation

By CAROL OLTEN
Copley News Service

Skating away on such sophisticated equipment as fibreflex boards of three-ply maplewood laminated with bowtuff and mounted on urethane wheels guaranteed to grab the asphalt like tiger claws—are thousands of Americans.

Most of them are between the ages of 10 and 20—although one occasionally may spot a middle-aged businessman, at-tache case in hand, skateboarding to work. Or, a pair or two of senior citizens zipping around the park practicing nose wheelies.

Why?

Thrills and the great feeling of wind in your face, say the aesthetic among the lot.

Transportation, says Mike Day, who rides his board to school every day and uses it to run errands to the grocery store.

"Places I'd take a half hour to walk to, I can reach by skateboarding in eight minutes," says Day.

Chuck Torres skateboards for pleasure—barefoot, because he likes to feel the ground. And he pointed out on a recent afternoon that his broken arm was the result of a motor bike accident, not a wipe out on a skateboard.

Dean Bradshaw skateboards to practice balance for a related sport—surfing.

Regardless of who is skateboarding on whatever there is to be ridden, one thing is certain, says Bob Bahne of Encinitas, Calif., the man behind the manufacturing of the Bahne Board and the Schwimm of the skateboard magnates—"within the last year and a half skateboarding has become a revolutionary new industry, changed completely from 1965 when Jan and Dean sang about 'sidewalk surfin' with me.'"

The revolution has to do mainly with urethane, a plastic-like material that most skateboard wheels are made of now. Not only does it make bone-busting a little less likely since it is a soft substance which mellows or tracts onto asphalt and concrete but it also encourages skateboards to make a lot less racket.

The revolution also has to do with a few other things such as layered fiber glass, molded fiber glass, fibreflex and other related materials skateboards now are being made of in lieu of old-fashioned boards on roller skates, as well as the refinement of trucks—the metal point, axle and base which holds the wheels on the board.

As for the wheels, they're a whole new scene, too, says Chris Yandall, winner of several skateboard competitions. The news is stokers. They are the biggest wheels on the market, a quarter-inch larger in diameter than the usual one and three-fourths inch, and give you the best high-speed traction in the world, Yandall says.

The current official high-speed record for skateboarding is 45 miles an hour, although one rider once clocked himself at 58, he adds.

Records of this sort are established at meets usually sponsored by the major makers of skateboards, who include, besides Bahne, Zephyr, Logan, Gordon & Smith, Hobie (the same folk who make Hobie-Cats), Hang-Ten (surfboards), and Nona (who branched out into skateboards from canoes, kayaks and paddles).

Yandall anticipates competing in about 20 such contests this year.

Although skateboarding is gaining popularity in the East and Midwest, it remains largely a West Coast phenomenon. The reason is that most guys who surf and/or ski, also skateboard, Yandall says.

Girls skateboard, too, but they usually do a "ballet" style instead of a lot of heavy-handed tricks such as nose or tail wheelies (riding with only one foot aboard the front or end, respectively, of the board), spinners (turn arounds), head stands and 360s (complete spin arounds with one foot on the board). Tricks, incidentally, are almost always done on wooden boards. Fiber glass, strong and flexible, is considered best for the slalom.

The Constitution Of 1876

"All political power is inherent in the people, and free governments are founded on their authority, and instituted for their benefit. The faith of the people of Texas is pledged to the preservation of a Republican form of government, and, subject to this limitation only, they have at all times the inalienable right to alter, reform or abolish their government."

ment in such manner as they may think expedient."

— Section 2, Bill of Rights Restored in Constitution of 1876

A lengthened and strengthened Bill of Rights set the tone for the Constitution of 1876. Texans were fed up with a strong, centralized state government. They had suffered indignities and financial ruin at the hands of a dictatorial power and they meant to make certain it would never happen again.

Delegates to the convention were representative of the people of Texas at that time. The majority were rural landowners, farmers and ranchers. The few who lived in towns or cities were largely country-raised and directly dependent on the welfare of farmers and ranchers for their livelihood. A stubbornly independent breed, they firmly believed "Those who are governed least are governed best." Throughout this constitution they cut back the powers of the state government and expended those of county and city, limiting all of them from infringement on the rights of the individual.

Another major influence was that of the Old Texans who had rebelled against Santa Anna and won their independence as a nation. In the Bill of Rights they expanded the freedom of the individual to follow the religion of his choice and added that "No money shall be provided for the benefit of any sect, or religious society, theological or religious establishment."

seminary; nor shall property belonging to the State be appropriated for any such purpose."

Many of the new provisions of the Bill of Rights were a direct result of Reconstruction and the abuses of the Davis regime:

"The writ of habeas corpus is a writ of right, and shall never be suspended. . . . All courts shall be open, and every person for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person or reputation shall have remedy by due course of law. . . . No person's property shall be taken, damaged or destroyed for farmers and ranchers. The few or applied to public use, unless by consent of such person. . . . No person shall be outlawed or deprived of life, liberty or property without the right to keep and bear arms in the lawful defense of himself or the State. . . . The military shall at all times be subordinate to the civil authority. . . . No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in the house of any citizen without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner described by law."

Of the 217 amendments to the constitution since its adoption, only five have been to the Bill of Rights and none of these has weakened its strongly individualistic tone. When the people of Texas, in 1972, authorized the freedom of the commission and convention to propose revisions of the constitution, it was specifically provided that "The Bill of Rights shall be retained in full."

God Looked The Other Way For Actress Patricia Neal

By BOB THOMAS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Neal died at 7 after a sudden attack of "Little House on the Prairie." She was hit by a taxicab on a morning of sitting in bed with a wry smile. "I think derwent a series of brain operations that God must have been looking after her." Neal was starting a new film when she was hit by a taxicab that almost killed her. She returned from paralysis that she never allowed herself to indulge in self-pity, neither is she a Pollyanna. She is a realist. "In everyone's life a lot of bad things happen," she remarked. "I just seemed to have a larger dose of the bad than most things."

By WAYNE WARGA
The Los Angeles Times
BILLINGS, Mont.—"This will go down in history as the longest wait," complained one crew member. "First time I've ever seen a picture held up for group therapy," complained another. And no wonder they were complaining. Since 8 in the morning, the entire crew of "The Missouri Breaks" had been standing around in the middle of nowhere under the gaze of the relentless Montana summer sun waiting to begin the day's filming. It was now 4 p.m.

One of three press agents on the film—and there is usually only one—speculated that Marlon Brando, Jack Nicholson and Arthur Penn, the stars and director of the picture, were "having a discussion." The film was fabricated by producer Elliott Kastner, who commissioned novelist and aspiring film director Thomas McGuane ("Ninety-Two in the Shade") to write an original screenplay. McGuane came up with a story about an affable horse thief and an enforcer, a frontier term for a hired killer. McGuane's script has the potential for character shadings and nuances. It has also been rewritten a number of times.

At first there was only one confrontation between the horse thief (Nicholson) and the enforcer (Brando) and now there are three. Kastner used the script—and the possibilities it represented—to attract the expensive services of Brando, Nicholson and Penn, all of whom were intrigued by the prospect of working with one another. And well they might be. Brando is being paid $1.25 million plus a percentage for an estimated five weeks of work. Nicholson is being paid similarly, but for 10 weeks of work. The budget of the picture is $8 million plus. What with all that charisma and cash, there was bound to be anxiety and pressure.

It intensified shortly after Brando arrived, began work and then decided on some modifications of his character. The discussions between Penn and Brando held up production and, once Brando's modifications—the addition of an Irish brogue and a chance for Brando to stretch the character into some nether reaches of insanity—are accepted: two days of retakes were necessary. And so the pressure remained high although work went smoothly from then on. Until, that is, it was time to shoot the first confrontation scene between Brando and Nicholson.

Two rehearsals later—with Brando's Irish brogue lilting across the empty space and neither Penn nor Nicholson audible—everything was ready. Then the clouds came, and a hesitant rain. And then a wind, the sort of wind which textures grass so perfectly in Andrew Wyeth's paintings. It was, on the one hand, a beautiful, sight and sound, and on the other a confounding one, for there would be no way to match up subsequent shots to this particular moment. Penn, undaunted, completed four takes of the scene before calling it a day. It was, he said later, his intention to keep the actors in the mood for the scene. He did not ask for any of the takes to be printed.

Shortly after 4, Penn, Brando and Nicholson appeared, taking up positions in the vegetable patch while the crew remained a respectful distance away. Only Butler, who had to hear the conversations to position his cameras properly, remained close.

Two rehearsals later—with Brando's Irish brogue lilting across the empty space and neither Penn nor Nicholson audible—everything was ready. Then the clouds came, and a hesitant rain. And then a wind, the sort of wind which textures grass so perfectly in Andrew Wyeth's paintings. It was, on the one hand, a beautiful, sight and sound, and on the other a confounding one, for there would be no way to match up subsequent shots to this particular moment. Penn, undaunted, completed four takes of the scene before calling it a day. It was, he said later, his intention to keep the actors in the mood for the scene. He did not ask for any of the takes to be printed.

As for Penn, he would only comment that, "The film started shooting a trifle unprepared. We're vamping a bit. American stars are such enormous enterprises in their own right they seldom avail themselves of the collaboration until they're ready to shoot. And that's usually too late—except for some stars." "The Missouri Breaks" is slightly behind schedule and over budget, a condition Penn dismisses by saying, "Our schedule is one of the greatest fantasies of all time. It was made up in a board room someplace."

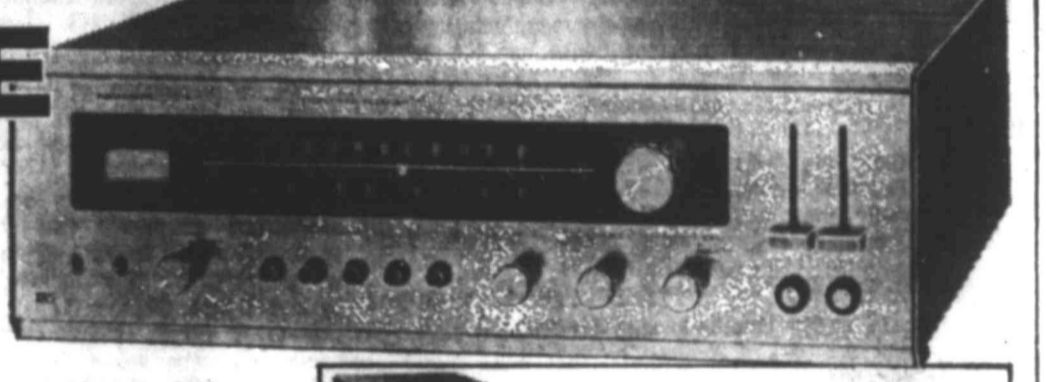

Nicholson, who quit smoking a week earlier, is nevertheless a calm and affable. Perhaps more than any other major actor, he retains an easy and gracious manner and a keen sense of humor about himself. "It's a great character," he says of his part. "Very sound, logical but with unpredictable movements. His state is the story. It's the main indicator of what the story is." At the end of the day Nicholson breaks into a mischievous grin, dusts himself off and quips, "Well, another day, another 20 grand."

Brando, too, for all his reputation as a difficult and aloof actor, is affable on the set. His first day there he introduced himself to the crew and insisted they call him Marlon. While all the others are living in Billings, Brando is staying on the set—some 15 miles out of town—living in a mobile home and spending his evenings riding a Hooda trail bike around the mountains.

VALDEZ STORAGE TANKS - Crude oil storage tanks take shape at the Valdez, Alaska, terminal site for the trans-Alaska pipeline. Eighteen of the half-million barrel capacity tanks will be built to handle the pipelines initial 1.2 million barrels per day. Each tank will hold an internal steel structure, being erected in front left tank, to support a cone-shaped roof required for heavy winter accumulations of snow. (AP Wirephoto.)

New Cub Leads Midland Victory

The Midland Reporter-Telegram SPORTS 1C—THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1975

Unusual Quirk Puts TL West In Scramble

By The Associated Press
An unusual statistical quirk has arisen with five days left in the Texas League baseball season.

Shreveport lost to Midland 6-2 Wednesday night and fell one-half game behind the Cubs in the TL West championship race. However, the Captains hold a one percentage point lead and are still officially in first place.

Shreveport has lost three fewer games than Midland but also has won four fewer contests, putting the Caps one-half game in arrears. However, those extra three losses by Midland have a greater effect percentage-wise than four extra victories.

In other games, Alexandria beat Arkansas 5-3 in the first game and lost the nightcap by forfeit, and El Paso beat San Antonio 7-6. Jackson at Lafayette was rained out.

recorded a wild pitch for one run and after a walk to Steve Clancy, Ortiz singled through short for another tally.

The win gave Midland the season's series with a 19-12 edge and inflicted 58 per cent of their season's losses on the Captains. If anyone else had beaten Shreveport half as many times, the Cubs would be runaway leaders.

Mike Krukow, 12-6, will pitch the opener at El Paso tonight, which will be aired on KCRS radio. The Diablos will be without the services of TL hitting and slugging leader Paul Dade. Dade was promoted to Salt Lake City, PCL, where he hit a three-run homer the other night to put the Gulls within a half game of first...Midland's

"HEY, HONEY, YOU'VE GOT MORE BARBECUE THAN I HAVE" — Midland High assistant Coach Pat Honeycutt appears to be inspecting his wife's barbecue rations and wondering who got the most. No one went away hungry, however, as the Midland Booster Club held its annual preseason football feed at Memorial Stadium Wednesday. (Photo by Johnny Virden.)

Pack Opens With Rally

"We'll be young, experienced and small, but we'll be slow," Coach John Heddell told an enthusiastic crowd of Midland High rooters at the annual preseason Booster Club barbecue rally Wednesday night at Memorial Stadium.

Then, he took his tongue out of cheek and commented, "But that's all right. We're used to being picked sixth or seventh in the pre-District 5-4A polls. It just makes us try that much harder to make the pollsters wrong."

"Defensively, we'll try to scare people with James Zachery (middle linebacker) in the middle and chase them to the outside where we have some quick people, who, we hope, will chase them back inside."

The Bulldogs take their 1975 show on the road for a sneak preview at Snyder Friday when the junior varsity will scrimmage the Tigers at 5 p.m. and the varsities will scrimmage at 7 p.m.

die. Snyder already has one scrimmage under its belt plus an extra week's practice in pads.

The Bulldogs open their home season against Amarillo Tascosa Sept. 5 at Memorial Stadium.

John Scott and Jerry Stone had two-run homers as Alexandria beat Arkansas in the first game. John Young and Mike Potter accounted for Arkansas' runs with homers. In the second game, Alexandria's reserves were ordered off the field by the two umpires for continuing to argue about a decision in the first inning. When they refused, Arkansas was awarded the decision by forfeit.

The subject is money. And the question is the first and most frequently asked when the size of the purse for the All-American Futurity is made known to those less than familiar with quarter horse racing.

"People usually are stunned," said Dick Alwan, director of public relations for Ruidoso Downs, the little mountain track that will host the Labor Day race. "The sheer enormity of it either excites them or overwhelms them," he said.

gambling instincts of the owners, the men who think they have a fine bloodline going," Alwan explains.

Midland CC Holds Club Championship

Andy Shapira will begin the defense of his Midland Country Club golf championship Friday as the annual tournament begins a four-day run.

Montefusco Burns Expos

By The Associated Press
John Montefusco is coming up in the world. He may be taking the elevator to the penthouse pretty soon.

The San Francisco Giants' rookie right-hander had a pretty tough act to follow when he took the mound Wednesday. "Ed Halicki got me no-hitter Sunday and then Pete Falcone struck out 12 Tuesday night, so I had to do something," he grinned.

What he did was get 14 strikeouts, tops in the National League this year, and breeze to a 9-1 rout of the Expos.

"I finally did it, something better than anyone in the National League!" Montefusco crowed after finally achieving a month-long goal—getting his 11th victory of the year.

"There's a lot of competition among young pitchers... There's definitely more incentive when we're all going good," he said. "Halicki has been getting the ink lately and I want some more. He's my roommate, so I guess we'll be getting a penthouse on the road."

With his 14 strikeouts, Montefusco boosted his season total to 166, one shy of John D'Aquisto's year-old club record for a rookie.

Table with columns for pitcher, team, and statistics. Includes names like Little, Dwyer, Ferguson, etc.

Mets 7, Padres 0
Tom Seaver became the NL's first 19-game winner and edged within five strikeouts of a major league mark while riding homers by Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub to his victory over the Padres.

Seaver, who hurled a six-hitter for his fifth straight victory, struck out 10 batters and needs just five more to become the first major leaguer ever to fan 200 or more batters eight seasons in a row. With the victory, the fourth-place Mets edged within five games of the front-running Pirates in the East.

Braves 6, Pirates 2
The Braves held hitless John Candelaria for 6-2-3 innings, broke through for a pair of unearned runs in the seventh inning before Ralph Garr's tie-breaking single in a four-run ninth beat the Pirates.

Willie Horton scores on Glen Oglivie's single when Texas Ranger catcher Jim Sundberg failed to come up with the throw in a sixth inning play. (AP Wirephoto.)

Jenkins Adds 16th To Record

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins readily acknowledges that the biggest thing the Texas Rangers pay him to do is to post 20 victories yearly. And despite a less than spectacular season thus far, the veteran right-hander is zeroing in on his eighth such season in nine years.

Jenkins picked up No. 16 Wednesday when he worked the first seven innings of the Rangers' 8-2 romp past the Detroit Tigers. He turned things over to reliever Steve Foucault for the final two innings because his shoulder tightened up in the seventh.

"It's nothing serious," said Jenkins, "but we had a big lead and Foulke was ready, so there was no need in taking any chances. I don't think I'll miss a start."

Missing a turn in the pitching rotation at this stage of the season would be a blow to Jenkins' chances for winning 20.

"I figure I've got maybe seven more starts left, and if I get that many I should win 20," he said. "To win 20 games is my job. That's what they expect of me and that's what they pay me for."

Wednesday's game ended the season series between the Rangers and Tigers with Texas winning 11 of the 12 meetings. The only Rangers loss to the AL East cellar dwellers was back on May 17 at Arlington Stadium as Jackie Brown, then with Texas, faltered against Tigers rookie Vern Riffe.

"Sometimes you run just against a team you just feel confident against," said Rangers shortstop Toby Rauh. "It's been that way for us against the Tigers all year."

"I remember one game earlier this year we were in extra innings and they scored three runs in the top of the 12th. But we came right back and scored three ourselves in the bottom of the inning, then won it the next inning. We haven't made many mistakes against them this year."

First baseman Jim Spencer clouted a double and three singles and Jeff Burroughs, Tom Grieve and Roy Howell each drove in two runs to lead the Rangers' attack.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Rangers and raised their record under Manager Frank Lucchesi to 23-16. The club was seven games under 500 when Lucchesi took over from Billy Martin July 21. It is one game under 500 now.

Table with columns for pitcher, team, and statistics. Includes names like Little, Dwyer, Ferguson, etc.

York Cools Cards As Astro Starter
ST. LOUIS (AP) — The forgotten man of the Houston Astros' pitching staff, Jim York, may have launched a new career.

At least that's what the 6-foot-3 right-hander hopes after celebrating his 28th birthday with a 5-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

"I was very surprised," conceded York, 2-2, who until last week had pitched in 161 major league games, all in relief, during parts of seven seasons.

Blyleven Scorches Brewers In 11, 1-0

By The Associated Press
Roger Blyleven took his 11-inning, 13-strikeout performance in stride. "I felt pretty good," said the Minnesota Twins ace. "I thought if I kept them from scoring, we'd win eventually."

He did and they did. The 6-foot-3 right-hander walked only one batter Wednesday night, got all the support he needed from Tony Oliva's pinch-single in the 11th, and could have pitched a few more innings if he'd needed to.

"I wasn't getting tired," he said after the six-hit masterpiece. "I just kept mixing fastballs and curves in order to stay in there until we got around to scoring a run."

It took a while, but Oliva's single delivered pinch-runner Steve Brye with the run that gave the Twins a 1-0 triumph and left the Brewers in awe.

"Blyleven is one of the premier pitchers in the game," marveled Milwaukee Manager Del Crandall.

"The guy is so tough he makes everything look simple," added losing pitcher Bill Travers, who pitched four-hit ball for 10-13 innings—his longest stint since his high school days.

Travers also took part in a dubious achievement. He put Craig Kusick in the record books along with 17 others by hitting the first baseman with a pitch three different times.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Rangers and raised their record under Manager Frank Lucchesi to 23-16. The club was seven games under 500 when Lucchesi took over from Billy Martin July 21. It is one game under 500 now.

Red Sox 5, Angels 2
Roger Moret allowed eight hits and walked seven but raised his record to 11-2 as Boston whipped California before 34,239 at Fenway Park.

White Sox 2-0, Indians 6-5
Jorge Orta and Bill Melton smashed homers to give the White Sox a 2-0 victory in the first game before Fritz Peterson's four-hit and John Lovensein's home run powered the Indians in the nightcap.

Orioles 4, Royals 2
Six extra-base hits, including a key two-run double by Ken Singleton in the fourth inning, lifted Baltimore past Kansas City.

Rookie Shakes Amateurs

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A port, Conn., 37, playing in his 15th U.S. Amateur, was ousted 1 up by Bruck Ziemski of Dudley, Mass.

Tom Kelley of Fort Wayne, Ind., who whipped 1964 champion Bill Campbell on Tuesday, found his fame short-lived when he, too, was defeated. So was John Kircher, 16, who had won his first-round match.

It was left for 59-year-old Bill Hyndman III of Huntingdon Valley, Pa., John Grace of Fort Worth and Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., all former runners-up, to uphold the role of the establishment against the attack by the young Turks.

Collegians Andy Bean, Curtis Strange and Lance Ten Broeck, also young but better known than the first-timers, advanced to today's third round.

No Major Sport Has More Fan Violence Than Soccer

Will Pele Bring Fan Riots With Him?

Fans fight after Manchester United team beat Cardiff City in second division soccer match at Cardiff, Wales, in 1974. Police arrested scores of people involved in fights at the soccer grounds and in town. Crowd disorders have plagued soccer since its inception. (AP Wirephoto.)

Riot.

Like many four-letter words in our society, it carries an ugly connotation.

The word, or variations of it, have been appearing with increasing frequency in recent weeks in the sports pages of newspapers across the United States as more and more people turn their attention to professional soccer, a global sport newly popular in this country.

Stramless KC Begins New Era

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs are definitely a question mark starting the new National Football League season.

Only one thing is really certain: Hank Stram, the dapper coach who guided the Chiefs through all of their previous years, won't be peering the sidelines with a program rolled up in his hand.

The Stram era is over. Stram was fired last winter after a dismal 5-9 season, the worst in the Chiefs' history. Paul Wiggin, plucked from the coaching staff of the San Francisco 49ers, is the new boss.

The Chiefs hired the energetic, personable, 40-year-old Wiggin to try to return the team to respectability on the field and to restore the club's public image which sagged to rock-bottom in the waning years of Stram's regime.

Wiggin says the new coaching staff and the players are "trying to adapt to one another. There's still a lot of apprehension. We need some success now. Our big area of concern is our offensive line."

Looking Up

Wiggin figures the Chiefs have no place to go but up. How fast they can accomplish this, he won't predict.

"I won't say we'll finish 8-6," Wiggin said. "I won't say we'll have it in three years. We're going to struggle and fight to be a winner."

Wiggin doesn't relish the thought of building his team around 40-year-old Len Dawson, who quarterbacked the Chiefs to a Super Bowl victory as the climax to the 1969 season and since has watched the team gradually decline.

"I hope somebody beats Dawson out of the quarterback spot," says Wiggin.

If anybody beats Dawson out, and that isn't likely, it will have to be Mike Livingston, his understudy; Greg Cook, a rookie star with Cincinnati in 1969 but since plagued by shoulder problems, and Tony Adams, who led the World Football League in passing last season with the Southern California Sun.

ly groving at amateur and professional soccer matches here, the public is becoming increasingly aware of the darkest aspect of this spectacular game—riots.

When the Cosmos signed Pele, they wanted to increase fan interest, certainly not fan violence. But it looks like they may have gotten both.

On June 20 at Boston University's Nickerson Field, Pele was mobbed by enthusiastic spectators during the second period of an NASL game between Boston and New York. The 34-year-old "Black Pearl" received minor injuries and a healthy scare when the crowd swarmed over him, while the American public was provided with a small glimpse of the kind of crowd disorders that have plagued this sport since its inception.

Contingents of mounted police armed with rifles, tear gas and guard dogs are seldom present at sports contests in the United States, but they have long been fixtures at many soccer games around the world, along with moats and high chain fences protecting players and spectators from each other.

Bloody riots and disturbance-related tragedies have marred soccer matches in such countries as Mexico, Scotland, Ireland, Ghana, Bulgaria, Egypt, Italy, Peru, France, Nigeria and India.

Lima Tragedy

The worst sport-oriented catastrophe in history occurred on May 25, 1964 in Lima, Peru during the closing moments of a soccer game between Argentina and Peru.

The score was 1-0 in favor of Argentina with less than two minutes to play when Peru scored a goal. The deafening exultation of the hometown crowd, estimated at 50,000, turned to unbridled outrage, however, when the Uruguayan referee nullified the tying goal, charging rough play by Peru.

A numbing roar of anger rocked the stadium and then a huge man known as La Bomba, who had incited three previous soccer riots, leapt down into the arena in pursuit of the referee. Thousands followed at his heels.

Tear Gas Wave

Police released waves of tear gas and attempted to guide the frenzied crowd toward the exits when their Alsatian dogs, but many of the gates were locked to keep out throngs attempting to crash the game. In the panic that ensued, one policeman was thrown fifty feet to his death; another was strangled to death with his own tie and his guard dog disemboweled.

Hours later, 328 lay dead, their trampled bodies strewn across the field and piled 10 feet high at some exits, while outside the stadium, stores had been looted, cars overturned and buildings set afire as hundreds more were injured.

No soccer calamity has equaled the scale of the 1964 "disorder" in Peru, but outbreaks of violence, many resulting in fatalities, have become commonplace at matches around the world.

And the ugly behavior is not confined to the fans. Assaults on referees by players are numerous, and many national and international matches have deteriorated into brawls between opposing teams. In Toulouse, France on March 7, 1960, a player's ear was bitten off during a heated scrimmage between two French squads.

Experts believe part of the problem is the unabated tension in soccer—a non-stop, running game with few opportunities for spectators and players to calm down. Moreover, international soccer matches are frequently manipulated to serve as nationalistic statements, or outright battles.

Sheer Size

There are other reasons for soccer's inherent violence, among them the sheer size of soccer audiences. Soccer stadiums are the largest in the world, many with seating capacities of 100,000 or more. Some, like the Maracana Stadium in Brazil, are capable of holding over 300,000.

Bryant Hates Squad Cut, But, Oh, That Home Field

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama is still disgusted with some of the recently adopted financial cut-back measures by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

One that especially rankles the game's winningest active coach is the reduction in dress-out squads — 60 for home games and 48 on the road.

"When we recruited a kid we didn't tell him that when we went to Knoxville they (Tennessee) were going to have not only the home field advantage, but 12 more players," Bryant said.

The crusty old coach picked the wrong team to make his point. Alabama, driving for a fifth straight Southeastern Conference championship and a national crown that has slipped from his grasp in bowl defeats, will have the 12-man advantage against the Vols this fall when the two perennial powers collide in Birmingham Oct. 18.

And, even though Bryant has been using up to 70 players in games while compiling a 41-3 regular season standard in the last four campaigns, Alabama stands alone as THE preseason football power in the South.

The Tide's major challenge from within the SEC should come from Auburn, entering the final year of the Snug Jordan era. Jordan has announced he will retire as coach after this, his 25th year.

Florida and Tennessee are the darkhorses in the SEC race. North Carolina State and Clemson, led by All-American tight end Bennie Cunningham, are the teams to beat in the Atlantic Coast Conference, still basking over producing a trio of bowl teams in 1974. Duke is the ACC darkhorse.

The Southern Conference expects a stemwinder that could go down to the final week. VMI is the defending champion and a slight favorite, although East Carolina and Appalachian appear capable of making a title run.

Pepper Rodgers, the flamboyant Georgia Tech coach, has the Yellow Jackets back on the path of power. Tech is the strongest independent and should make a pretty good pitch for a bowl bid this fall.

Miami of Florida also has a capable club but has a vicious schedule that includes Notre Dame, Nebraska and Oklahoma, last year's national champion.

The South normally produces outstanding college division teams and this year should be no exception. Among the potential powers are Elon, Alcorn, Grambling, Eastern Kentucky, Jacksonville, Alabama State, Delta State and Western Carolina.

Bryant, who sends his Tide against Missouri in a Sept. 8 nationally televised battle from Birmingham, says he probably has 15-20 players who felt they had a chance to play on specialty teams, but probably won't play at all because of the squad reduction ruling.

"That has to be demoralizing," says Bryant. "The biggest thing is that never once did I read where they considered the athlete. They are making liars out of us (recruiters)."

Alabama has tremendous depth, especially in the offensive backfield where Bryant has used numerous runners in the wishbone offense.

Standouts at Alabama include All-American defensive end LeRoy Cook, linebacker Woodrow Lowe, quarterback Richard Todd and running backs Willie Shelby and Calvin Culliver.

Auburn offers a new look this fall, fielding an experienced offense geared to junior quarterback Phil Gargis and running back Sedrick McIntyre. The War Eagles normally are stronger defensively, but must rebuild that unit this time.

Area independents also feature such standouts as halfback Davis Sims and linebacker Lucius Sanford of Georgia Tech, wide receiver Keith Wright of Memphis State, running back Walter Peacock of Louisville, quarterbacks Jeff Bower of Southern Mississippi and Jeff Grantz of South Carolina, guard Bert Gamut of Miami and linebacker Ron Cheatham of Southern Mississippi.

Littleton Symbolic Of TCU Hard Times

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Perhaps Ronnie Littleton is symbolic of the hard football times at Texas Christian.

Littleton came out of Wichita Falls High School four years ago as a schoolboy All-American running back. He was highly courted by colleges from coast to coast.

Littleton Symbolic Of TCU Hard Times

can't fight. I've got surgeon's scars on my left knee, my shoulder and my right knee (twice).

"I've been running well this fall and I don't think about my knees much anymore. We've got some new, big offensive linemen and that helps."

Littleton's high school credentials were awesome. He was twice all-state both offensively and defensively. He rushed for 1,807 yards his senior year and scored 26 touchdowns.

"I think Ronnie suffered from his high school reputation," said Coach Jim Shofner. He was so highly touted that he had the pressure to do something great every time he stepped on the field. Then the injuries came along and he's never really had a healthy year."

Littleton is lined up as TCU's No. 1 starting halfback and he has vowed not to worry about what happens in his final year as a Horned Frog.

"I've decided to hell with it and I'm just going to relax and play my game," he said.

Encephalitis Breaks Out In Illinois

By The Associated Press
Encephalitis has broken out in Southern Illinois, and state Public Health Director Dr. Joyce Lashof says her department is "gearing up to prevent an epidemic."

Dr. Lashof said there "is a potential for epidemic—especially in Southern Illinois, but we think we can avoid it if we eradicate the mosquitoes which spread the disease."

The disease, which is also known as sleeping sickness, has already reached epidemic proportions in west Mississippi and cases have been reported in Louisiana, Alabama and North Dakota.

Health officials in East St. Louis, Ill., said 14 suspected cases and 2 confirmed cases of the St. Louis strain of encephalitis were reported since mid-July. Three deaths have tentatively been attributed to the disease.

Dr. Lashof said encephalitis reached epidemic proportions earlier this summer in southern Illinois. She said 90 cases were reported, with a fatality rate of just under 10 per cent.

Illinois officials said the disease has been found in several species of birds, including sparrows, starlings and grackles. The St. Louis strain is spread to humans from birds by mosquitoes and the elderly are especially susceptible.

The disease has no known cure. It is marked by fever, stupor, disorientation and, occasionally, convulsions.

Dr. John Bryan, a spokesman for the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said the cases outside Mississippi so far have been "sporadic, not a great deal more than we usually see."

Health officials have been fighting the outbreaks with anti-mosquito spraying and may get some help from the cold weather, says Bryan. "The frost is on our side," he said.

He said cold weather which kills the mosquitoes usually signals an end to encephalitis outbreaks for the year.

More than 200 cases have been reported in Mississippi, and the most recent cases of the St. Louis strain were reported Tuesday in Jefferson County in north Alabama and in Southern Illinois.

In Alabama, Dr. George Hardy of the Jefferson County Health Department said four persons are listed as "presumptive cases," with final tests due later this week from the CDC.

There are six other "suspect" cases in Alabama, he said. Two cases were reported in Monroe, La., and officials there said they will step up efforts to get rid of mosquitoes by spreading fuel oil on standing water which serves as a breeding ground for larvae.

Similar efforts are under way in Mississippi, Alabama, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois and North Dakota.

Hepatitis Epidemic Feared In Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — As many as 5,000 persons who dined at either of two fashionable restaurants here over the past six weeks may have been exposed to infectious hepatitis, Multnomah County health officials say.

An epidemic alert was issued here and mass immunizations were started after 32 confirmed or suspected cases of the contagious, serious liver ailment turned up among employees and patrons of the restaurants, officials said. Some of the victims were hospitalized. In less than six hours Tuesday, more than 1,000 free vaccinations of gamma globulin were given, health officials said. They said vaccination is the only way to curb a possible epidemic.

Officials identified the restaurants as the Hungry Horse and Oliver's Posh London Pub in the Georgia-Pacific building. Dr. Hugh Tilson, director of the Multnomah County Health Division, said the illness apparently started to spread about July 10 from an employee of one of the restaurants who was unaware he had the disease. The restaurants, which share food storage facilities, closed voluntarily Aug. 22 as soon as they were aware of the problem, Tilson said. He said there was no health problem with the food or water in either restaurant.

Health officials advised any tourists who may have eaten at either of the restaurants to consult their physicians.

The disease is marked by beginning flu-like symptoms of weakness, drowsiness, lack of appetite, nausea, abdominal discomfort, fever and headache. Jaundice may then develop, although most persons with infectious hepatitis do not progress to jaundice. In some persons, the symptoms are mild enough that the disease is not diagnosed.

Incubation periods for the disease vary from two to seven weeks, and the gamma globulin shots will lessen the symptoms of a person incubating the illness.

Attempted To Forestall Crisis
In a move masterminded by Henry Clay, Congress attempted to forestall the first crisis over extension of slavery by admitting Maine as a free state in 1820 and Missouri as a slaveholding state in 1821. Slavery was barred in the rest of the Louisiana Purchase.

Yesterday's Late Market Report

Oil Price Control Dispute Doesn't Hamper Legislation

By PAUL E. STEIGER, The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—While President Ford and his Democratic opponents have been holding the spotlight recently with their dramatic dispute over oil price controls—now scheduled to expire Aug. 28.

The outcome of that vote could trigger other immediate energy legislation. If the President's veto is sustained, for example, there may well be an effort to pass a windfall profits tax on oil companies, along with tax cuts or cash payments for consumers to cushion the blow of higher oil costs.

Some—such as measures to remove the $3 excise tax from gas-saving radial tires or grant a $750 tax refund to buyers of experimental electric automobiles—promise only modest benefits to American pocketbooks and energy supplies.

But other issues scheduled for congressional consideration when the lawmakers return Sept. 3 from their month-long recess could have a monumental impact, rivaling or even exceeding that of the price control debate.

These include how much the public should pay for natural gas, whether U.S. utilities now burning oil or natural gas should be forced to switch to coal, and what emergency powers the President should be given to deal with any new oil embargo.

In a surprising number of cases, the positions of the White House and congressional Democrats appear close enough to permit compromise. "We're at least within shouting distance of each other on some pretty major points," said one administration lobbyist.

President Ford and leading Democrats agree, for example, that the nation should dig deeper and faster into its 200 year supply of coal as a way of reducing dependence on costly oil imports.

Both sides also agree that oil from military reserves at Elk Hills and Alaska should be made available for civilian use, that a strategic reserve of a billion barrels or more of oil should be created to reduce the risk of foreign blackmarket, and that homes, automobiles, appliances and manufacturing plants should be induced to conserve energy.

But whether these and other points of agreement or near-agreement can be crystallized into compromises on major legislation is another matter.

For one thing, even when they agree on basics, the President and congressional Democrats almost always differ on details.

For another, there are sharp, almost implacable differences on the intensity of the disputes on these points tends to spill over and poison the compromise attempts on other matters.

Mr. Ford thinks higher prices are the best way to discourage oil imports, while Democrats lean toward import quotas. Democratic senators push for a National Energy Production Board to compete with the oil industry in finding and importing oil, a prospect that is anathema to the White House.

The President wants to remove price controls from natural gas; many Democrats want to keep the controls and extend them to supplies now exempt from regulation. The administration would ease air pollution laws for the sake of fuel economy; the congressional majority wants to tighten them.

Possible Impediment Still another potential impediment to compromise is the increasing awareness by both the President and members of Congress that the 1976 elections are approaching. To White House political advisers, the advantages of congressional inaction on energy as a convenient campaign whipping boy may begin to outweigh the virtues of an agreement on legislation.

To Democratic lawmakers, the attractions of a "no" vote on an unpopular energy conservation, easure may override any convictions they have on the need to save oil.

Nevertheless, compromise efforts will be made, and legislative strategists in both Congress and the Administration and the Administration

Words Not What They Used To Be

By JACK SMITH
The Los Angeles Times

Recently we lamented the passing from American life of certain sounds, such as the hiss of steam locomotives and the cries of street vendors, and certain smells, such as the smell of leaves burning in the street, all of which produce a powerful nostalgia in those who remember them.

But worse may also become outmoded, I am reminded by a reader, Roslyn Gaines of Highland Park, and they too, have a nostalgic effect on people for whom they once were a part of everyday living.

Mrs. Gaines has been keeping a list of such words, among them icebox, slacks (for ladies), undertaker, galoshes, grocery store, rumpus room, pokerbook, gear shift and skyscraper.

It's true. As our language accumulates new words—at a rate so fast the dictionaries can't keep up—it is inevitable that some of the old words that have served us well are discarded, or wither away from lack of use. They hang in the dictionary like dead leaves on a tree; nobody bothers to blow them away. In time they simply fall, unheard, unseen, unremembered.

Let us mourn a little. Mrs. Gaines strikes home when she lists icebox among outdated words. Not only do I remember when we all had iceboxes in the house, and were dependent on the daily delivery by the man we called by the name that is also gone—the ice man; I still call it the icebox, even though it operates on electricity and never has enough ice in it for more than half a dozen highballs.

The word icebox is simple, graphic and evocative. How did we ever get coaxed out of icebox and into refrigerator? No doubt that sesquipedalian monster was dropped on us by the manufacturers of the first electric iceboxes, which came along when we were all enamored of the new technology and every new product, from aspirin tablets to iceboxes, had to have a name that sounded scientific.

I'm not sure about some of Mrs. Gaines' other nominations. Slacks, evidently, has been ousted by pants in the women's wear world, but exactly why that is I am unable to guess; a symptom, perhaps, of the vogue for unisex?

The work undertaker is gone, of course, buried by the morticians in the name of euphemism, just as mortician itself, I suppose will give way in time to yet some newer euphemism, once people find out that a mortician is really an undertaker in linguistic disguise. Grocery store is almost gone, or at least is rare enough to sound quaint. I live in an old section of town where we still have one or two grocery stores, ma and pa institutions where children still get a sack of gumdrops when their parents pay the bill. But even these anachronisms like to call themselves "little supermarkets," and everything they sell is hermetically sealed in plastic, so we are denied the aroma of coffee, pickles, licorice and spices that made the old grocery store a haven of sensuous delight.

The gear shift has been replaced not only as a word but, in most American cars, as a fact. We all have automatic transmissions now, at least those of us who still call refrigerators iceboxes. And among those who still enjoy a sense of mastery over their cars, the gear shift is a stick.

Rumpus room seems to have become family room, I gather from the classified ads; skyscrapers are turning into high rises; and movies into films.

My own list would include croon and crooner. Here is a word that defined a whole generation of idols; and suddenly, overnight, they were buried under an avalanche of rock, set loose by a group of upstarts out of Liverpool, who not only didn't croon, but sang in a way to wake the dead, or at least a generation of sleeping teenagers.

In our passion for the new we have thrown out some very good things. Let's have the marcel back, and the slow ball, and running boards.

WANTS A WIFE — Henry Moncrief of Roberta Ga., stands beside his "wife wanted" sign he placed in front of his home on Georgia Highway 137. Since Moncrief put up the sign last week, he has been receiving calls from prospective mates in various Georgia towns. He says responses have been mostly from divorcees, and he takes their names, ages, addresses and phone numbers. He says he's not the kind of guy who rushes into marriage. (AP Wirephoto.)

Option Trading Sweeps Country

Copley News Service

The hottest money game sweeping the country these days is option trading. Buying and selling.

Although the Chicago Board Options Exchange has been dealing in options for a couple of years, the trading public in recent months has turned to the new game in increasing numbers.

An option gives the buyer the right or option to purchase a particular stock at a particular price within a certain time limit.

For example, a buyer can pay as little as $350 for the right to purchase 100 shares of General Motors at $50 a share.

Should GM rise to $60, the buyer exercises his option, buying the stock at $50 and sells immediately at $60 for a $1,000 profit. He can do this by venturing only $350.

The only added factor is that options involve an expiration date which is the last day the buyer can exercise his option and purchase the stock.

David J. Valle of Dean Witter says that "when I started with options, I thought that most of my clients would want to sell options. Selling is the conservative approach for the sophisticated investor."

"But I found that most wanted to speculate and buy options. Buying is for the speculative who want to put down a small amount, say $400, and buy a Disney option at $50. They are willing to take a chance with that small amount that the stock will go up and they can make a bundle," he said.

For the seller, he noted that the following is one example of protecting profits.

"A client may buy 100 shares of a stock like Polaroid for $30 and if it goes to $28, he will sell an option at $30 which can put $300 in his pocket which guarantees his profit."

"Even if the stock goes up higher and the buyer exercises his option, the seller still makes a healthy profit. It in essence is equal to selling the stock for $33."

Had the stock dropped back to $20 the option wouldn't have been exercised and the buyer would still have the $300. He would be, in fact, still ahead of the game until the stock dropped to lower than $17.

Harris, Upham's "Market Interpretations" also gives details of the strategy of selling call options.

"When the striking price (exercise price) is above the current price, the investor who writes options can gain from moderate appreciation in the stock as well as from the premium received from the option."

With this strategy, says Harris, Upham, "the astute investor need not be inactive simply because a relatively flat market trend is in force."

Robert Sweeney of Hutton says that business in options has been brisk recently. However, he had a stern warning for those who anticipated jumping into the game.

"Before an investor goes out and buys stock and then decides to sell options on it, he had better take a good look at the tax ramifications of his dealings. There are long- and short-term gains, capital gains and a multitude of other tax angles to consider."

Options trading is anything but new, but the establishment of a separate options trading exchange occurred only two years ago with the formation of the CBOE. Since then, the American Stock Exchange and the PBW in Philadelphia have begun options trading. In addition, the Pacific Exchange has approved adding an options market and has submitted a plan to the Securities and Exchange Commission for approval.

The CBOE started out with 30 companies listed and now is up to 67. The AMEX has 40 and soon will be adding 14 more.
