Pecos Field Gains Strike, Extension

Devonian gas pay has been opened, and Ellenburger pay extended 1/4-mile northeast in the Rojo Caballos, South field of Pecos County, with dual completion of Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 2 State-McIntyre Unit.

From the Devonian, it gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 3.6 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 17,820-17,963 feet, which had been acidized with 50,000 gallons.

Fifth Ellenburger well in the field, it rated a calculated, absolute open flow of 9.693 million cubic feet daily, from that zone, through perforations at 21,487-21,613 feet, which were treated with 52,000 gallons of acid and 50,000 gallons of fracture fluid.

Drilled to 21,650 feet, it is plugged back to 21,616 feet, in a 5-inch liner hung from 17,000-21,650 feet.

Under ground elevation of 2,764 feet, the following tops were picked: Delaware, 5,235; Cherry Canyon, 5,940; Leonard, 7,969; Bone Springs, 8,085; Wolfcamp, 9,924; Pennsylvanian, 14,890; Woodford, 17,495; Devonian, 17,715; Silurian, 18,150; Fusselman, 18,260; and Ellenburger, 20,902 feet.

Wellsite is 1,170 feet from north and 1,270 feet from west lines of section 30, block 48, T-8, T&P survey, nine miles southwest of Coyoana.

Leeper Completes Hockley Extender

Alan B. Leeper, Midland, has completed his No. 3 John Givan as an extension to Glorieta pay in the Leeper multipay field of Hockley County, six miles southeast of Sundown.

It pumped 140 barrels of 30.8-gravity oil and 15 barrels of water on 24-hour potential test, from open hole at 5,868 feet, where 4 1/2-inch casing is seated, and 5,928 feet, total depth. The section had been acidized with 10,000 gallons. Gas-oil ratio measured 240-1.

Wellsite is 440 feet from south and west lines of Gordon Preemption survey, section 16, block X, PSL survey.

National Finals Val Verde Strike

National Exploration Co., Houston, has announced the successful completion of its No. 1 T. L. Drisdale, reentry operation, as a Strawn gas strike in North Val Verde County, 30 miles east of Ozona.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 4.636 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 10,223-10,495 feet, after treating with 15,000 gallons of acid.

The project originally was drilled by Union Oil Co. of California, and abandoned at 12,185 feet, in 1956.

Foy Boyd & Associates of Midland filed application to reenter the project last February, and it was taken over by NEC and was tested "tight." Location is 1,425 feet from (Continued On Page 16B)

Man Shot, Killed On Russian Jetliner

LONDON (AP) — A Soviet Aeroflot airliner landed here today from New York with a dead man aboard shot through the right temple, police said. A diplomatic wrangle appeared likely over investigation of the incident.

Sources close to the police said the dead man was a Russian and that Soviet crewmen on the aircraft claimed he had committed suicide.

British security men surrounded the jet, an Ilyushin 62, immediately after it touched down, and Scotland Yard officers raced on board.

Police said the victim was dressed in trousers and socks and his head was bandaged.

Police withheld an official statement until they had questioned the passengers and crew.

The 102 passengers were herded into an airport building and kept under wraps for more than five hours while they were questioned.

British government and Soviet Embassy officials met for talks on what to do next.

It appeared likely, according to sources close to the talks, that there could be an international wrangle over such questions as whether the plane and passengers could leave for Moscow, who would investigate the shooting and what would be done about the body.

A police spokesman said: "We are unable to make any comment at the present time. This is a diplomatic incident and we have to treat it very carefully."

Fanne Drops New Bombshell

NEW YORK (AP) — Fanne Foxe, the Washington stripper whose affair with Rep. Wilbur Mills created one of last year's scandals, she became pregnant with Mills's child late in 1973. Mills supposedly was 'overjoyed' when he heard, but Fanne had an abortion anyway.

"This all happened, she says, several months after she and Mills (both of them already married) conducted a 'wedding' ceremony for themselves, complete with traditional vows and exchange of rings."

Mills, reached at his Washington home early today, said: "I won't comment. Let me read it first."

The link between Mills, an Arkansas Democrat, and Miss Foxe, whose real name is Annabel Battistella, first became known when she jumped from Mills' car into (See FANNE Page 8A)

Gunman Surrenders After Releasing Hostages

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — A gunman who took seven hostages after a gambling dispute surrendered today after police fired tear gas into the apartment where he was holed up.

James Locklear, 24, with his hands in the air, walked out onto a balcony shortly after 8 a.m., ending an 18-hour siege during which four hostages escaped and another was fatally wounded.

Officers immediately took him into custody, removing three handguns that were tucked into his belt.

Locklear's surrender came shortly after passage of a dawn deadline set by police. Locklear earlier had freed the last two of seven captives and told police he wanted "to do some writing" before turning himself in.

Authorities also reportedly agreed not to prosecute his brother, Wayne, in the incident arising from the gambling dispute.

One of the hostages held in the Kelmont Arms Apartments in this Sierra Nevada resort was killed when he attempted to escape. He was identified as George Staedler, 21, of Hayward, Calif. Police said it was not clear whether the fatal shots were fired by officers or the armed men inside the apartment.

Four other hostages, including one woman, escaped unharmed, authorities said.

The released hostages — Craig Smith, 20, and Albert Lauro Jr., 34, both of South Lake Tahoe — emerged from the second-story apartment around 2:30 a.m. PDT with Wayne Locklear, who was acting as an intermediary. All three were taken immediately into protective custody.

Smith and Lauro were treated for facial cuts at a hospital, police said.

"James asked if we would give him until dawn, saying he wanted to do some writing. We will respect what he has asked for and we will give him until dawn," said El Dorado County Dist. Atty. Terry Finney. South Lake Tahoe Police Chief John Crow had reported earlier that James Locklear was writing his will.

Police Det. Paul Habelt, who went to the apartment house to investigate, suffered four gunshot wounds in the neck, head and shoulder when he was gunned down as he opened the front door.

Habelt, a former Oakland policeman with a wife and two children, was reported in stable condition at a nearby hospital.

The other hostages who escaped were identified as Kim Shelley and Kimmo Evans and an unidentified man.

Dry Trenton At Standstill

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Schools were closed and an estimated 40,000 workers in government and private industry remained at home today as the City of Trenton tried to cope with a critical water shortage.

The absence of the workers and the shutdown of major industries in New Jersey's capital enabled authorities to keep some water flowing into the city and its neighboring communities.

More than 250,000 persons were threatened Tuesday with a total water cutoff after a pump broke at a filtering plant.

City officials said that in the 24-hour period ending 7 a.m. today the communities using the Trenton water system drew 15 million gallons, compared to (See TRENTON Page 8A)

SURVEILLANCE PREDATED CHAMBERS CASE

FBI Kept Eye On Hiss

By RONALD J. OSTROW
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The FBI kept State Department official Alger Hiss under electronic surveillance for nearly two years, well before he was accused in 1948 House hearings of being a Communist, newly released documents in the case disclosed Tuesday.

The electronic eavesdropping, coupled with physical surveillance, produced "no indication of any kind that Alger Hiss was acquainted with or had knowledge of" Whittaker Chambers," his chief accuser, an FBI summary reported.

"The FBI document is the first official corroboration of Hiss' claim that he has been the subject of lengthy wiretapping. But 31, 1948, internal FBI memorandum to then Director J. Edgar Hoover. The memorandum scant effect on Hiss' bid for reversal of his 1950 perjury conviction for denying he had passed government documents to Chambers, an admitted Communist courier.

Allen Weinstein, a history professor at Smith College who brought suit to force release of the documents, said one could draw no "firm conclusions" about the much debated case on the basis of the 350 pages of documents released by the FBI.

Weinstein, in an interview, said: "There's no smoking gun here. Neither is there any exculpatory document. I want to see all the remaining material before I come to any firm conclusions."

Acknowledgement of the wiretapping came in an Aug. 31, 1948, internal FBI memorandum to then Director J. Edgar Hoover. The memorandum sought to explain why Hiss' association with Chambers, disclosed by the House Un-American Activities Committee, had not been established by the bureau.

The memorandum noted that the FBI began an investigation of Hiss, then a State Department official, on Nov. 30, 1945, in response to allegations by Elizabeth Bentley, an ex-Communist informant for the FBI.

"The usual investigative techniques, including physical surveillance, and technical surveillance, were pursued until Alger Hiss and his family left Washington, D.C., for New York City on Sept. 13, 1947," the memorandum stated. (Hiss left his State Department post, where he directed the office responsible for proposing America's United Nations policies, to become president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.)

The term "technical surveillance" has long been used in FBI memoranda to refer to wiretaps or bugs, and sources close to the bureau said Tuesday that it had been so applied in the Hiss investigation.

Hiss, who could not be reached for comment Tuesday, explained his basis for believing he had been wiretapped in his book, "In the Court of Public Opinion," published after his release from prison.

He wrote there that an FBI agent, seeking support for Chambers' charges, "had told William Marbury, my Baltimore attorney, that the bureau had file drawers of transcripts of my telephone conversations for years' taken without my knowledge. . . . This disclosure carried the plain implication that the wiretapping failed to support Chambers."

Marbury, in an interview, said (See HISS Page 8A)

Volunteers Vital To United Way

By ED TODD

Volunteers within the core and on the fringes of the 19-agency United Way of Midland are indispensable.

"Without them, there's no way it would work," said Jan Foust, one of nine volunteers on the United Way's visitation committee.

The committee, led by chairman William P. "Bill" Slater, is United Way's "watch-dog." Its members routinely evaluate each agency's program and consider the agency's needs: Are they being met, if not, why and how?

The visitation committee is one of five that help maintain the United Way's lifeblood: year-to-year funding for self-governing service organizations supported by the United Way of Midland.

United Way volunteers will be working in concert again this year to meet and exceed the campaign organization goal. For 1975, the goal is $605,000 — more than 12 per cent over last year's goal of $538,400.

And last year's campaign effort, headed by W. H. Malone, paid off handsomely: the campaign grossed $564,388.

The fund-raising campaign this year will rise to the fore on kick-off day Sept. 17.

Cecil Bybee has succeeded Malone as campaign chairman. Malone is the 1975 United Way president.

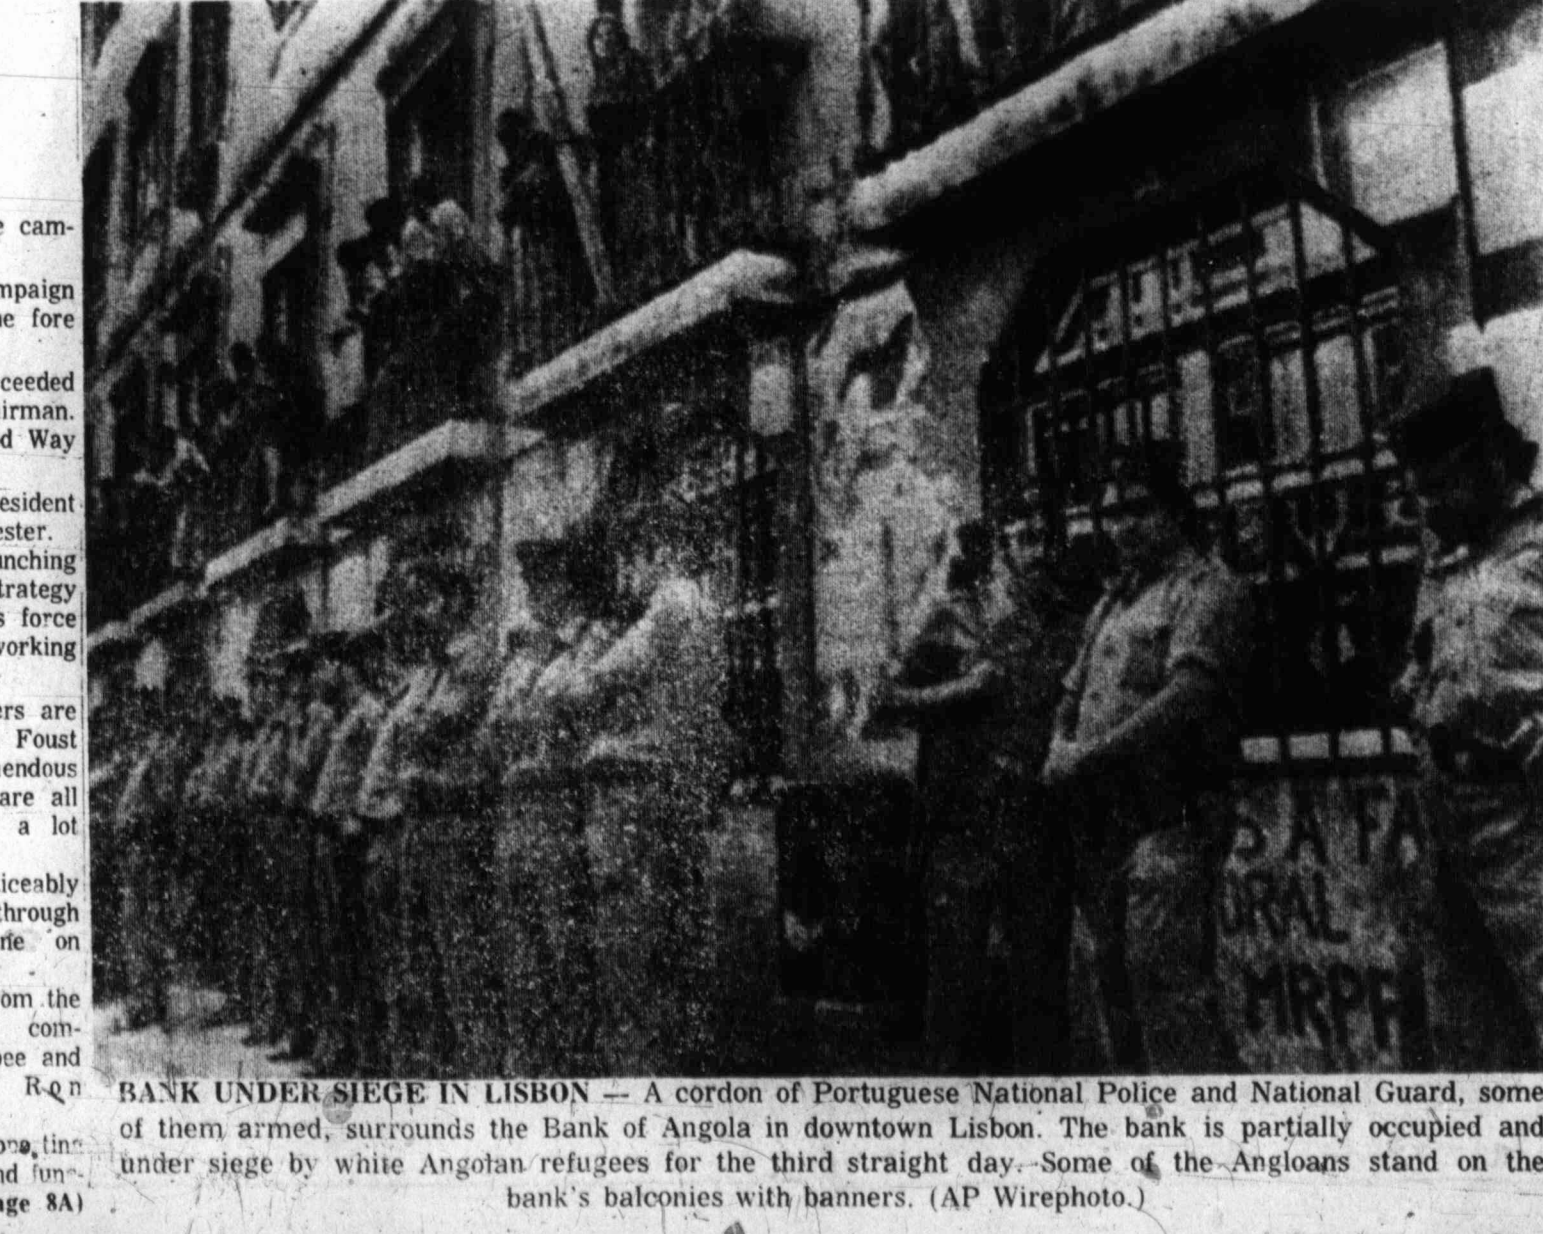

United Way's 1974 president was E. D. "Dave" Dorchester. By the Sept. 17 launching date, the United Way's strategy will have been fixed. Its force will be in the hard-working volunteers.

"Our volunteer members are just tremendous," Jan Foust said. "They do a tremendous amount of work. They are all dedicated. They put in a lot of time."

Volunteers will be noticeably united and in concert through the campaign's deadline on Nov. 21.

Volunteers will flow from the campaign organization committee managed by Bybee and the associate chairman R. Q. Schwisow.

Carrillo's Car Breaks Down At Jourdanton

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate met today to conduct the impeachment trial of District Judge O. P. Carrillo, but car trouble south of San Antonio kept the judge from appearing for the start of the proceedings.

Although the 31 senator-jurors handled preliminary business, such as notifying Gov. Dolph Briscoe that they had convened, the motion to resolve the Senate into a court of impeachment was delayed until this afternoon.

The administration committee scheduled a 1 p.m. session to discuss proposed rules for the impeachment trial, Texas' first in 44 years. Carrillo was to file his response to the impeachment charges at 2 p.m., and one of his lawyers, Arthur Mitchell of Austin, said the judge should be here by then.

Mitchell said Carrillo's car broke down near Jourdanton, 36 miles south of San Antonio, just before 8 a.m.

There were only a few spectators on the balcony as the 10:30 a.m. Senate session began, but it was filling up when the Senate quit until 2 p.m.

Egypt Ready For New Effort To Regain More Of Sinai

By JACK FOISIE
The Los Angeles Times
ALEXANDRIA—With very little waiting after the newly agreed Sinai disengagement accord with Israel is implemented, Egypt intends to start a new effort for further recovery of its Sinai area still occupied by Israel.

This appears to be Egyptian policy, and in Egyptian minds the test of Israeli sincerity to live in peace with all its Arab neighbors will be its ready compliance with the terms of the new pact, and a willingness to continue, in the Sinai and elsewhere, a steady withdrawal to its 1967 borders.

Otherwise, it is governmental thinking here, the bloom is already off the just-concluded pact, engineered by Dr. Henry Kissinger.

The intentions of both sides toward making a smooth beginning will be tested at Geneva almost immediately. After a signing of the documents, slated for Thursday, Egyptians and Israelis will hold their first face-to-face meetings on how the pullback of Israeli forces along a 110-mile front will be conducted. And how the limited advance by Egyptian forces will follow. And how the introduction of U.N. peacekeeping forces and American electronic surveillance technicians will be carried out.

Although no deadline has been set, it is hoped the work at Geneva can be accomplished in two or three weeks. If it drags on after that, Egyptians will be suspicious that the Israelis are going to be difficult throughout the life of new agreement. President Anwar Sadat has only publicly committed himself to honoring the pact for two years from this coming Oct. 24.

It is also apparent that Egypt has other reasons for wanting quick implementation. As part of the accord, Israel is to return the Abu Rudeis oil fields, and Egypt wants to regain this valuable area as soon as possible.

"Every week Israel delays the turnover, they get the oil and we don't," an official said.

Egypt does give political concessions in return for the Israeli pullback, and Sadat's trade-offs are going to embarrass him. But he has made the bold decision not to keep the knowledge from his own citizenry.

To the surprise of Western observers, who remember how the original disengagement pact with Israel in January 1974 was incompletely disclosed to the Egyptian public, the signing of documents Monday here in Alexandria was on Egyptian television. And Tuesday the full text of the main agreement and annexes were published in Cairo newspapers.

Sadat is trying to get the country behind the agreement, and it seems certain the document has popular acceptance.

Pro-Soviet Egyptians, however, will object to having American civilian technicians manning, or overseeing, electronic monitoring devices in the buffer zone. It enhances American political presence in the Middle East and the more political and vocal student groups will object to the published acknowledgement in the agreement that Israel cargo (but not Israel ships) can be carried through the Suez Canal.

Budget Board Blasts Hill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Legislative budget writers took the first step Tuesday to stop state agencies from having a free rein with money appropriated by the legislature for specific purposes.

Much of the Legislative Budget Board's first session of the state's new business year was spent sounding off against an attorney general's opinion they said would let state agencies consider any appropriation as a "lump sum" to be spent any way the agency chooses.

"This is flying in the face of just what we tried to do last session," complained Speaker Bill Clayton at a meeting of the new Legislative Budget Board, which makes fiscal recommendations to both houses.

"This means they can transfer any money we give them from one program to another just as they please," said Sen.

Theater Chain Suing Bullock

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Interstate Theaters Inc. have sued Comptroller Bob Bullock, challenging his authority to collect theater admission taxes.

A hearing date has not been set.

The suit seeks to recover $230,906 in admission taxes paid to the state during April, May and June. The tax was paid under protest but the protest was denied by Bullock following an administrative hearing.

The petition filed by the theater chain claims a 1962 ruling of the Texas Supreme Court held that the admissions tax was unconstitutional.

A similar suit against the state by Paramount Theaters, Austin, is still pending.

A. M. Alkin, D-Paris. "I don't agree with it one minute."

The board discussed at length an opinion from Atty. Gen. John Hill which told the Public Welfare Department that it could "transfer appropriated funds among programs," without specific authorization from the general appropriations bill passed by the legislature.

"This just means we are making a lump sum appropriation and they can do what they want with it," said Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells.

The board unanimously adopted a motion that the Legislative Budget Board sent Public Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell, who asked the opinion, a letter instructing him to "let us know before he makes any transfers of funds and why he needs to do it."

The staff of the board also was instructed to prepare a proposed bill that will be presented the next legislative session which would allow transfers of appropriated funds within a program but not from one program to another.

In other action the board authorized the staff to go ahead with a survey requested by both houses of the 64th Legislature to determine how much the proposed constitution would cost Texas taxpayers, if adopted. The study will be presented to the Legislative Budget Board in late September for approval before being released publicly.

Bullock Backs Off From Earlier Estimate Of Constitution Cost

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Backing away from an early estimate that the proposed new constitution would cost Texans more than $11 billion, Comptroller Bob Bullock says the document's financial impact will depend entirely on future decisions by lawmaking bodies.

The document "would give elected governing bodies all the free rein the voters and the taxpayers will let them have," Bullock said in a new financial size-up Tuesday.

He omitted references to the multi-billion dollar Texas Water Plan and the Trinity River Canal that appeared in his first estimate in May.

But he found minimal cost items totaling $82 million a year, mainly through an "equal educational opportunity" requirement.

"Even without the constitutional mandate, the 64th Legislature set in motion a $100 million spending program for equalization aid for a two-year period. That should be considered only a minimal example," Bullock said.

Restructuring of the court system, absorbing more judges within the state-financed part of it, would add $3.6 million a year, he estimated.

Adding "instructional materials" besides textbooks to items for which the Available School Fund may be spent would "cost $20 million a year as net result of money being spent from the Available School Fund causing further demands on general revenue fund money," the report said.

Sales tax revenue would decline because of a proposed constitutional exemption for food, Bullock said. He said some food items such as soft drinks, diluted juices and candy are now taxed "but the language of the proposed constitution could prohibit this."

The comptroller, while not specifically mentioning any project such as the water plan, said the proposed constitution mandates environmental protection and water storage.

"The language of the proposed constitution is clearly mandatory enough to lead to increased state expenditures—whether direct costs, state bond issues or revenues bonds—of significant, long range proportions," Bullock said.

Meany Affirms Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany, affirming continued support of a boycott of grain shipments to the Soviet Union, says critics of the boycott have tried to portray maritime unions as enemies of the American farmer.

Meany said Tuesday the boycott "is aimed hot at farmers but at government action and inaction that benefits only commodity speculators and the big grain dealers and that rips off the American consumer in the

KKK Members Found Innocent

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Texas grand dragon of the United Klans of America and an associate have been acquitted of charges of illegal possession of dynamite.

Jemison David Humber, 63, a one time grand dragon, and George William Branch, 49, both of Houston, were found innocent Tuesday by a federal court jury after a three-week trial.

They were indicted in January on charges of illegally possessing 98 sticks of dynamite and 10 blasting caps and storing them in a vacant building in 1974.

CONROE, Tex. (AP) — The Montgomery County Commissioners Court has appointed Jerry Winfrey, 34, assistant district attorney for the 9th Judicial District, Winfrey, an assistant county attorney for the past 2½ years, was named to the position Tuesday to fill the position vacated by James H. Keehan Jr., who was sworn in as district attorney Monday.

interest of so-called detente. Administration officials have estimated the sales will result in a 1.5 per cent rise in food prices.

Meany and six maritime unions called the boycott July 31. Federal judges in New Orleans and Texas have granted a shipper's requests for court injunctions, allowing continued loading of ships bound for the Soviet Union, while legal issues of the boycott are decided.

But as the U.S. grain harvest begins reaching other ports, including the Great Lakes, Meany has said the boycott will be extended.

The spirited rhetoric surrounding the boycott was to resume today when Meany addresses a convention of the AFL-CIO Seafarers International Union, one of the unions carrying out the boycott.

Meany has said the boycott will continue until the Ford administration takes steps to assure a large role for U.S. shipping to transport the grain and to protect U.S. consumers against increased food prices brought on by the grain exports.

In a letter to AFL-CIO state organizations, Meany said opponents of the boycott are "trying to drive a wedge between the labor movement and its traditional allies, America's family farmers."

Meany said the Soviet Union was being permitted to buy grain at reduced prices.

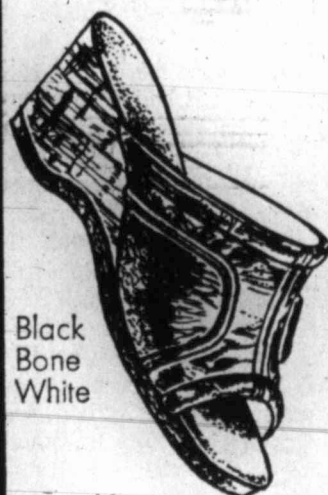

"Those farmers who had sold their crops before the Soviet deal was announced were deprived of a better price for their products, but the grain dealers handling the sales lined their pockets with profits," Meany said.

The union leader said, "The inflation this deal is already causing is intolerable."

He said, "The government can ... prevent his catastrophe. Until it acts, the AFL-CIO support of the ILA boycott will continue."

toward making a smooth beginning will be tested at Geneva almost immediately. After signing of the documents, slated for Thursday, Egyptians and Israelis will hold their first face-to-face meetings on how the pullback of Israeli forces along a 110-mile front will be conducted. And how the limited advance by Egyptian forces will follow. And how the introduction of U.N. peacekeeping forces and American electronic surveillance technicians will be carried out. Although no deadline has been set, it is hoped the work at Geneva can be accomplished in two or three weeks. If it drags on after that, Egyptians will be suspicious that the Israelis are going to be difficult throughout the life of new agreement. President Anwar Sadat has only publicly committed himself to honoring the pact for two years from this coming Oct. 24. It is also apparent that Egypt has other reasons for wanting quick implementation. As part of the accord, Israel is to return the Abu Rudeis oil fields, and Egypt wants to regain this valuable area as soon as possible. "Every week Israel delays the turnover, they get the oil and we don't," an official said. Egypt does give political concessions in return for the Israeli pullback, and Sadat's trade-offs are going to embarrass him. But he has made the bold decision: not to keep the knowledge from his own citizenry.

To the surprise of Western observers, who remember how the original disengagement pact with Israel in January 1974 was incompletely disclosed to the Egyptian public, the signing of documents Monday here in Alexandria was on Egyptian television. And Tuesday the full text of the main agreement and annexes were published in Cairo newspapers.

Sadat is trying to get the country behind the agreement, and it seems certain the document has popular acceptance. Pro-Soviet Egyptians, however, will object to having American civilian technicians manning, or overseeing, electronic monitoring devices in the buffer zone. It enhances American political presence in the Middle East and the more political and vocal student groups will object to the published acknowledgement in the agreement that Israel cargo (but not Israeli ships) can be carried through the Suez Canal.

Meany Affirms Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany, affirming continued support of a boycott of grain shipments to the Soviet Union, says critics of the boycott have tried to portray maritime unions as enemies of the American farmer.

KKK Members Found Innocent

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Texas grand dragon of the United Klans of America and an associate have been acquitted of charges of illegal possession of dynamite. Jemison David Humber, 63, a one-time grand dragon, and George William Branch, 49, both of Houston, were found innocent Tuesday by a federal court jury after a three-week trial.

Theater Chain Suing Bullock

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Interstate Theaters Inc. have sued Comptroller Bob Bullock, challenging his authority to collect theater admission taxes. A hearing date has not been set. The suit seeks to recover $230,905 in admission taxes paid to the state during April, May and June. The tax was paid under protest but the protest was denied by Bullock following an administrative hearing.

Meany said the Soviet Union was being permitted to buy grain at reduced prices. "Those farmers who had sold their crops before the Soviet deal was announced were deprived of a better price for their products, but the grain dealers handling the sales lined their pockets with profits," Meany said. The union leader said the inflation this deal is already causing is intolerable. He said the government can prevent his constituents

Budget Board Blasts Hill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Legislative budget writers took the first step Tuesday to stop state agencies from having a free rein with money appropriated by the legislature for specific purposes. Much of the Legislative Budget Board's first session of the state's new business year was spent sounding off against an attorney general opinion they said would let state agencies consider any appropriation as a "lump sum" to be spent any way the agency chooses.

Bullock Backs Off From Earlier Estimate Of Constitution Cost

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Backing away from an early estimate that the proposed new constitution would cost Texans more than $11 billion, Comptroller Bob Bullock says the document's financial impact will depend entirely on future decisions by lawmaking bodies. The document "would give elected governing bodies all the free rein the voters and the taxpayers will let them have," Bullock said in a new financial size-up Tuesday.

Congress, Ford To Renew Energy Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress returns from a month-long vacation today, Democratic leaders are testing congressional reaction to a possible compromise with President Ford on oil prices.

The compromise proposed last week when House Speaker Carl Albert and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield met with Ford started coming apart at the seams Tuesday as some leading Democrats expressed doubts or downright opposition.

Albert was to meet with Reps. Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., and John D. Dingell, D-Mich. Staggers is chairman of the House Commerce Committee and Dingell heads the energy subcommittee. Mansfield said the Senate Democratic Caucus will discuss the proposal Thursday.

Earlier, Dingell joined Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., in declaring that one of their first priorities is to override Ford's planned veto of a bill extending domestic oil price controls for six months.

Controls on some 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil expired at midnight Sunday. The extension bill now before Ford would continue the price-control ceiling of $5.25-a-barrel for another six months. Ford has delayed his planned veto while the Democratic leaders try to win support for a gradual end to price controls.

Mansfield and Albert said after meeting Ford last week that the President would consider phasing out price controls over the next 39 months, while allowing prices to rise gradually during that period.

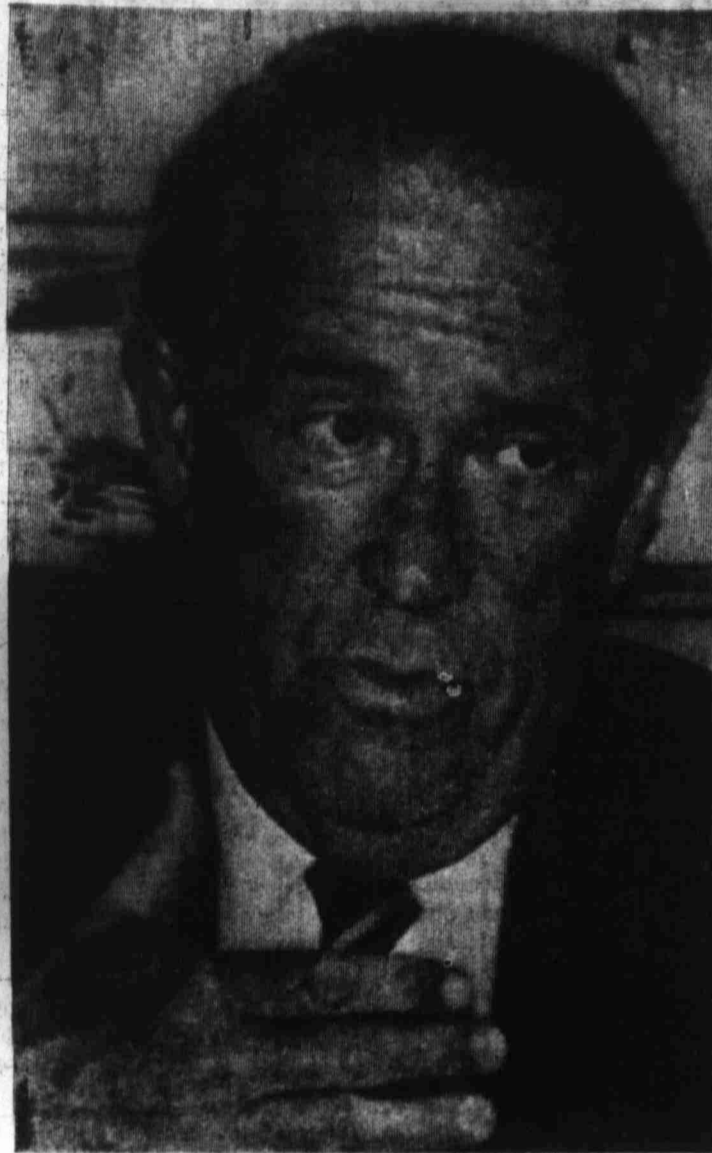

"There is nothing new or different in the administration's position," declared Jackson. "The administration is still where it was in July." He said what the White House now is offering was rejected by the House 228-189 on July 30.

Meanwhile, a Mansfield aide said the Senate should try to override the extension veto first. "Then perhaps the atmosphere will be less frantic in which to work out something that makes sense," he said.

Under the Albert-Mansfield Ford plan, an $11.50-per-barrel ceiling would be placed on most of that 40 per cent of domestic oil production that was not subject to price controls. Prices on the 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil that has been under price controls would be increased monthly from the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling so that at the end of 39 months, all U.S.-produced oil would sell for the same price.

Jackson told a news conference that he has obtained Federal Energy Administration figures showing that the nation's five largest producers of "old profit figures jump to $16.6 billion a year, Jackson said.

When all producers of "old" oil are taken into account, which had been subject to price controls, "Old" oil is that price lids. "Old" oil is that which had been subject to price controls.

Raymondville Asks For State Aid In Dealing With Flooding

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Mayor Ralph Cisneros stood on the porch of his home, water lapping at the front door, and looked down a flooded street into a downtown section that was under at least two feet of water.

"We are declaring a state of emergency and we will call Austin to see what the state government can do to help us," said the mayor of the South Texas city hardest hit by the rains unleashed by Hurricane Caroline during the weekend.

Pumps chugged away steadily Tuesday in an attempt to lower the water level, the result of 15 inches of rain, from downtown and the northwest section of town. Several inches of rain were reported inside some of the stores downtown.

The downtown area was roped off to keep sightseers from driving through and creating waves that would push more water into the stores.

A Red Cross spokesman said 57 families moved out of their homes into a Red Cross shelter and that incomplete surveys indicated that about 265 families had suffered flood damage to their homes.

City Secretary Mike Crowell said the city received an estimated 500 million gallons of water and that the flooding was caused by the rains in the area and by water pushing into the city from surrounding areas.

"We are built in a pothole," Crowell said explaining the city is at a lower elevation than the surrounding area and has no natural drainage.

As the waters began to recede Tuesday night, some showers fell in the area, but city officials said they did not make the situation any worse than it was.

"A little more is not going to hurt us," a city spokesman said.

Crowell and Civil Defense coordinator Felix Longoria said damage to city owned facilities alone will be at least $31,000.

Crowell said it would take several days "to get everything cleaned up."

Then he pointed to another problem residents will face as the waters recede.

"The mosquitoes will eat us up in about 10 days," he said.

Mosquitoes created serious problems in several cities last month after steady rains flooded sections of the mid-Valley.

Other cities in the Valley also received some rain as Hurricane Caroline spent itself, but there were no reports of severe damage.

'Bill Moore Day' Scheduled Oct. 14

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — An old fashioned barbecue and a general entertainment program will mark "Bill Moore Day" Oct. 14 at Washington-on-the-Brazos, sponsors said Tuesday.

Sen. William T. (Bill) Moore, D-Bryan, will be honored at the tribute to Moore's 26 years in the Texas Senate.

General chairman for the event will be Dr. George J. Beto of Huntsville and general chairwoman is Dr. Florence Low of Bryan.

An open invitation was issued to all of Moore's friends in the 19 counties of his Fifth Senatorial District.

Dallas Police Seeking Man In Woman's Death

DALLAS (AP) — Police say they are looking for a man in his late thirties in connection with the slaying of Joni Barnes, whose body was found under a wooden bridge on a rural road near Cooper, Tex., about 80 miles northeast of here.

Officials said Mrs. Barnes, 18, was identified through dental records.

Mrs. Barnes, who disappeared last Thursday from a Dallas drive-in photo booth, was clad only in a pullover red sweatshirt, police said. She had been shot once in the head.

Mrs. Barnes was last seen leaving the booth in a late model car accompanied by what witnesses described as "a neatly dressed man in his late thirties."

Earlier, Mrs. Barnes telephoned a friend, Vicki South, 20, and said she had been ordered to leave her booth by a man who identified himself as a company executive. Miss South said she had urged her friend not to leave and heard a man's voice in the background saying, "Come on."

Mrs. Barnes' family said she had received several obscene telephone calls prior to her disappearance.

Boren Won't Back Harris Next Year

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. David Boren wasn't giving many hints Tuesday about his preference for the Democratic presidential nomination, but he did make it very clear that he doesn't plan to support former Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris.

"I haven't made any decision at all," Boren said. "It's much too early to tell who will be a viable candidate."

But the governor said 1976 will "be a disaster" if his fellow Democrats don't nominate someone who can "halt the runaway growth of government," spark a loosening of investment capital and "get a handle on the bureaucracy."

He mentioned former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey as good candidates.

Asked if there was any reason he did not mention Harris or Alabama Gov. George Wallace, Boren said, "I do not support Sen. Harris. Regarding Gov. Wallace, there are some grave doubts his health will permit him to run."

Streamline Small Bedroom By Elimination Of Clutter

By ADELE FAULKNER
Copley News Service

It is a fact of life that bulky bedroom sets and small apartment bedrooms simply don't mix.

This is readily apparent from the moment the movers try to squeeze a king-size bed, matching bed stands, lamps, chairs and dressers into a room the size of an overgrown closet.

Something's got to give. It is the heavy massive furniture. Streamline the room by eliminating much of the clutter—even if it means breaking up a bedroom set.

One place to start is in the bedroom closet.

Although newer apartments and condominiums often feature wall-to-wall closets or those great walk-in wardrobe rooms, older buildings are tight on space.

The available closet space can be doubled by raising the pole and moving the top shelf closer to the ceiling. This makes room for a second pole which can be installed underneath. The lower pole, built 59 inches from the floor, is ideal for hanging dresses and trousers, while the top pole can be used for short coats and blouses.

Instead of heavy furnishings, cabinets can be built-in to give a more streamlined appearance. Working with a cabinetmaker, one entire wall of the bedroom can be turned into storage space. On the wall where the bed will be placed, build low drawers which come right below the windows.

The drawers extend the entire length of the wall with room left in the center for the bed.

This eliminates the need for a headboard and tables beside the bed, while providing plenty of room for storage. The cabinets can be extended for about 30 inches on one of the adjacent walls. Above the 30-inch wide cabinet on this wall, a large mirror can be installed. The mirror not only is functional, but it also enlarges the look of the room. Depending on how much storage is needed, a floor-to-ceiling cabinet could be built next to the mirror to provide added height.

The cabinets should be painted to blend with the wall color. The use of the same color scheme also makes the room appear more spacious. The hardware selected for the cabinets should be in keeping with the room's decor.

Instead of draperies, shutters, grills or mini-Roman blinds could be selected for the window treatment.

Soft neutral colors selected for the bedspread and wall covering are restful in a bedroom and do much to visually enlarge the room.

By replacing the bulky furniture with the more compact built-ins, the storage space hasn't been compromised.

Dear Heloise: nylon net is wonderful to use. Did you know that nylon net I don't think it would stop a is a wonderful garden helper? German shepherd.

Last year I wanted to put a mini-garden in an area my dog considered his.

I priced fencing and it was $1.10 a foot, so I decided to try nylon net which was much, much cheaper.

I split it in half and stapled it to some stakes and left enough at the bottom to be weighted down with stones.

The opening was fastened with bread twisters so I could get in and out.

It worked so well but I don't think I would have tried it if I hadn't read all the uses you and others have found for this versatile material.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: One of my granddaughters is a second grade teacher and today, while visiting us, she mentioned a neglect to youngsters that I'm sure is often unintentional and does damage to the youngster.

Parents, do take time to look at the children's papers they bring home for your approval.

One of her "bright" pupils refuses, listlessly, to take his papers home as he says his mother is too busy with outside activities to show an interest in her own son.

Mothers, take notice. Now is your opportunity to build character, respect and love.

The teacher can go only so far. It's up to you.

Wife Disapproves Of Terpsichore

DEAR ABBY: I am 62 and the wife is 59. I like old-time dancing, polkas, schottisches and square dancing.

My wife never did care much for dancing so she quit going with me about 15 years ago. She is not handicapped in any way and could dance if she wanted to.

My problem: I would like to go stag to a public dance once a week. It's great fun and good exercise. My wife is very opposed to my going to a dance without her—yet she refuses to go. Is that fair?

To me, going to a dance once a week is no more wrong than playing poker or bowling. Old-time dancing is not the romantic kind where partners hang on each other in close embrace. I maintain that it's healthier to dance than sit around playing cards.

I do not intend to get involved with other women. Am I being unreasonable?

DEAR C.: No! I'm convinced. Now all you have to do is convince your wife.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

AP Marketbasket Check Shows Surge In Price Of Basics

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans who have been paying attention to food price predictions found few surprises at the grocery store during August. An Associated Press marketbasket survey showed higher costs for basics like butter and eggs and a new surge in sugar prices.

On the plus side, there were signs that beef prices are beginning their expected decline, although most of the savings are limited to hamburger.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The latest check was made just before the Labor Day weekend, but there were few signs of holiday bargains.

The increases had been anticipated: sugar refiners have been slowly upping their prices; dairy products are on the rise as supplies decline; poultry farmers had been arguing that they were losing money because egg prices were too low.

The trends generally reflect prices at the farm level. The Crop Reporting Board of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said that prices paid to farmers for wheat, milk, hogs, corn and eggs, for example, increased during June and July, while prices for beef cattle decreased.

On an over-all basis, the AP survey showed the marketbasket total went up during August at the checklist store in 10 of the 13 cities covered, with an average increase of almost 3 per cent. In the remaining three cities, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store declined by an average of just under 1 per cent.

Comparing prices at the beginning of September with those at the start of the year, the AP found the marketbasket total at the checklist store declined in 10 cities and increased in three.

The USDA has estimated food prices will go up about 9 per cent this year compared to a 14.5 per cent increase last year. That estimate is higher than anticipated earlier in the year, partly because of grain sales to the Soviet Union and partly because of bad weather that trimmed the size of U.S. crops.

The AP survey found that the price of chopped chuck, which rose earlier in the summer, declined at the checklist store in seven cities and was unchanged in six. The decrease reflected increased supplies of cattle, particularly those fed on grass. Pork prices remain high with supplies running 20 per cent below last year's levels.

Egg prices were up at the checklist store in 10 of the cities surveyed, but things may improve slightly in coming months. The USDA has estimated that egg production for the fourth quarter is expected to be up slightly from the third quarter, although it will still be behind 1974 levels.

The price of a pound of butter, which had remained steady for most of the year, went up at the checklist store in 11 of the cities surveyed, with increases ranging from 1 per cent in Salt Lake City to 42 per cent in Dallas.

Sugar prices also went up in 11 of the checklist stores although they remained well below the record levels of 1974. The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Ex-Houston Police Chief, 3 Others Being Investigated

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post said today former Houston Police Chief Carroll Lynn, a business associate of Lynn and two other police officers are being investigated by a state grand jury concerning allegations of a gambling protection scheme.

The newspaper said Lynn, who resigned last June, was aware of the investigation and quoted him as saying, "I know I've done nothing wrong and I would welcome the opportunity to appear before the grand jury."

Asked to comment on the alleged protection scheme, Lynn replied, "I don't have the power to fix a traffic ticket. It's just ridiculous."

Lynn was transferred Friday from supervision of the vice and narcotics divisions to his present position as deputy chief over recruiting.

Acting Police Chief Joe Clark denied this move was a result of the grand jury probe.

The Post did not identify the Lynn business associate and the other two police officers allegedly being investigated by the grand jury.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance declined comment on the investigation.

The Post said it had learned that the allegations against the former chief came from uncorroborated testimony of at least two bookies.

The newspaper said that according to its sources, the bookies claim that the business associate of Lynn told them they could have "protection" from police interference during the football betting season.

The price for the "protection" was to be $2,000 plus an amount each week during the season, the Post quoted its sources as relating.

The sources gave no details as to how such "protection" could be provided, it said.

Defenders of the former chief have claimed that various accusations and allegations against him have been politically motivated.

Another grand jury spent almost six months investigating, among other things, Lynn's business dealings and allegations of an alleged coverup of a narcotics probe involving electronics technician J. L. Patterson.

That grand jury indicted Patterson on a charge of possession of morphine and cleared Lynn of any wrongdoing.

Caroline Helped Keep Texas Death Toll Fairly Low

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas had a low traffic toll during the Labor Day weekend partially because of Hurricane Caroline, the Department of Public Safety says.

A total of 27 traffic deaths were reported by the DPS Tuesday, instead of the 42 predicted beforehand. It was the lowest since 1966. The 1974 Labor Day weekend resulted in 51 traffic deaths.

DPS traffic experts credited part of the reason for the low death rate to Hurricane Caroline which threatened the lower Texas Gulf Coast before turning into Mexico below Brownsville. "We think a lot of motorists heard about the storm and decided to stay home instead of driving to the coast," said a spokesman.

The DPS said another reason was that motorists apparently were driving safer because of intense media campaigns and paid more attention to the 55 mph speed limit.

Showdown Due Friday In Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Francisco da Costa Gomes met political leaders today in an apparent bid to find a way out of the growing crisis over his nomination of pro-Communist Gen. Vasco Goncalves as commander of the armed forces.

Costa Gomes conferred separately with Socialist leader Mario Soares and Communist general secretary Alvaro Cunhal at the presidential palace.

Soares, whose Socialist party won most votes in elections last April, has made Goncalves' removal from power a condition for his participation in any government.

Costa Gomes has staked his personal prestige on the former premier's appointment as chief of staff and if he fails it could undermine his own position as president.

Air force leaders were to meet later today to discuss the issue and were expected to follow Tuesday's line taken by the army.

Unconfirmed reports said that despite a personal appeal from Goncalves, some 240 army officers ended a 15-hour emergency meeting at a barracks 80 miles north of Lisbon by voting against his installation as chief of staff of the armed forces.

Goncalves returned to Lisbon. He was to have been sworn in Monday, but this apparently was being delayed until after a showdown meeting Friday of the Armed Forces Movement, the assembly of the officers responsible for the overthrow last year of the fascist dictatorship.

News men were barred from the army meeting at a barracks in Tancos, but one military source said it was stormy. It was attended by influential opponents of Goncalves who had been the driving force behind President Francisco da Costa Gomes' decision Friday to replace him as premier.

The dissidents fear Goncalves will use his new position to increase Communist influence in the armed forces.

Judge Orders Reversal Of Insurance Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled today that the 1969 merger of two insurance companies in the fidelity and surety bond markets may substantially lessen competition.

Judge Montgomery K. Hyun issued an order which would require American General Insurance Co. of Houston, Tex., to divest acquired stock of Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Baltimore, Md., and not make any more acquisitions in the fidelity and surety markets for 10 years without prior FTC approval.

The judge's ruling is not final and may be appealed, stayed or docketed for review.

American General acquired F&D on July 1, 1969, for stock valued at $107.5 million. An all-lines insurance company operating in all 50 states, Canada, Western Europe and other countries, American General had competed with F&D for underwriting business in the fidelity and surety markets before the merger.

The FTC challenged the acquisition in a complaint on July 17, 1971, and threw out a hearing examiner's initial decision the following March 7 which dismissed the complaint.

Hyun, in the new decision, said the acquisition made the American General group the top ranking firm in the $366 million a year surety market and the $177 million fidelity market.

In the year of acquisition, the judge said, American General controlled 12.3 per cent of the surety business and a sizeable chunk of the fidelity market.

As a result, the four largest firms in 1969 accounted for 35.3 per cent and 35.9 per cent of the fidelity underwriting, he said.

Charging that the surety and fidelity markets are now approaching advanced oligopolies, the judge said that "the challenged acquisition cannot be sanctioned without doing grave violence to the clear congressional mandate that the commission should arrest anticompetitive tendencies in their incipency."

Another grand jury spent almost six months investigating, among other things, Lynn's business dealings and allegations of an alleged coverup of a narcotics probe involving electronics technician J. L. Patterson.

That grand jury indicted Patterson on a charge of possession of morphine and cleared Lynn of any wrongdoing.

Beaumont Man Charged With Murder, Arson

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — A Beaumont man was in custody here today on charges of murder and arson in connection with the death of a 71-year-old woman whose body was found Sunday outside her burning residence.

Police said that charges of capital murder and arson were filed against L. J. Dotson, 34, who was arrested while watching the firemen fight the blaze at the home of Mrs. Alice Roberts.

Beaumont firemen found the body of Mrs. Roberts while putting out a fire at her one-story frame duplex early Sunday. Investigators said they found evidence that four separate fires had been started in the residence.

School Enrollment Tops 180,000

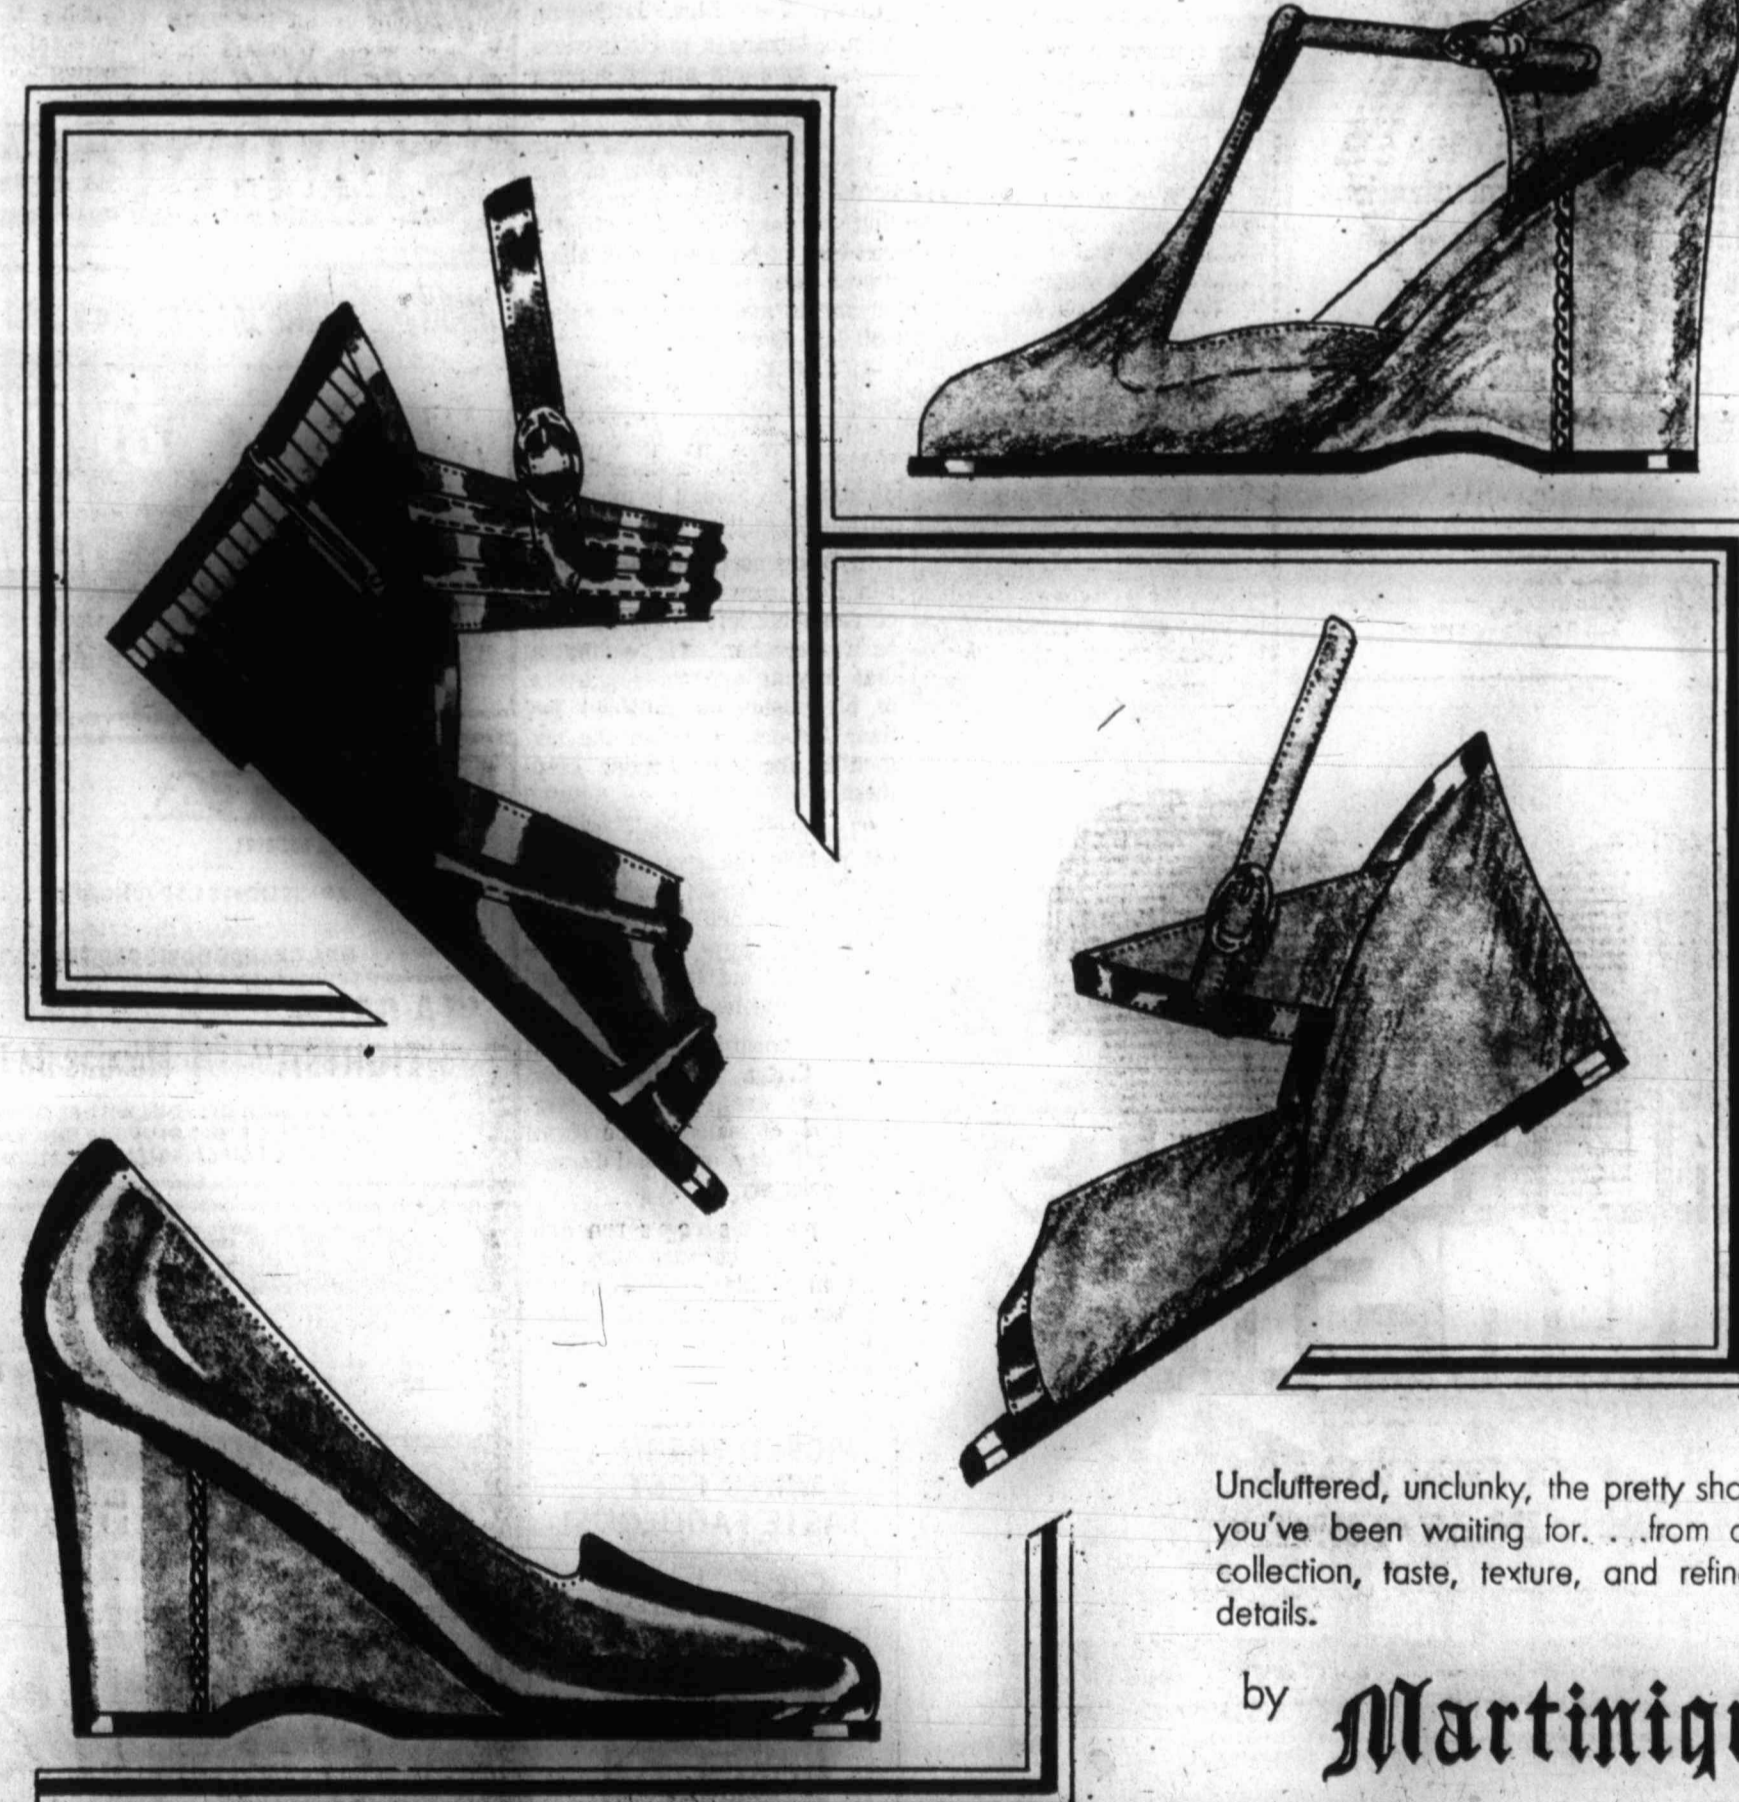

HOUSTON (AP) — Enrollment in the Houston Independent School District totaled 180,197 today.

The total following the first day of school Tuesday was 1,059 fewer than the first day last year although none of the buses to transport children to magnet schools rolled the first day.

Bus routes for the 1,874 children granted transfers to attend 34 magnet schools were issued Tuesday and school officials said most of those buses were to run today.

Peak enrollment is not expected until mid October.

'Electrified' Earl Scruggs Finding Many New Fans

By JAMES CARRIER
WILLIAMANTIC, Conn. (AP) — Thirty years after his rolling, syncopated banjo established the standard against which all future banjo players would be measured, and defined a form of music that didn't yet have a name, Earl Scruggs is no longer "into" blue grass music.

At 52, Scruggs is the Godfather of the Scruggs Revue, a six-piece boogie-blues-blue grass group seen more often in rock clubs and on college campuses than at blue grass festivals.

At its center stands Earl, his black hair still slicked straight back, but now tickling his shoulders. White doves and peace symbols climb his bright blue banjo strap.

Below the tallpiece of his banjo, a small wire emerges and falls to the floor, trailing off to a bank of amplifiers behind him. It is this connection, the electric plug, that symbolizes the new Scruggs sound and the sparks it has created among many of his old fans.

In the 1940s, Scruggs refined and made popular a three-finger style of picking that now bears his name. When he joined Bill Monroe's band, the Blue Grass Boys, the new banjo style became the key element in the sound later known as blue grass.

Most blue grass bands still use the instruments Monroe assembled: acoustic guitar, mandolin, fiddle, banjo and string bass. And traditionalists think it should stay that way.

But following his 1969 break-up with Lester Flatt, Scruggs formed a band with his three sons, using electric guitars, drums and piano. The idea originated nine years earlier, during rehearsals for a TV concert when Scruggs jammed with fellow guest King Curtis, the late blues saxophonist.

"I saw where the banjo was more versatile than just straight blue grass, and it sounded so good to me until I just couldn't get it off my mind," Scruggs said in an interview.

Jamming his Nashville home with combos put together by his three boys, Randy, Gary and Steve, the youngest at 17, Scruggs said even the old tunes sounded better to him with a heavy beat behind them.

"I remember back in the old days, when groups didn't even carry a bass fiddle. But the guitar player would take the deepest guitar that put out the fullest, deepest, bassiest sound for his vocal. And also they would stomp their feet quite a lot to add a beat to the group. So I thought that a good drummer and a set of drums would make a much better sound than a group of people pickin' and stompin' their feet against the floor," he said.

"I didn't know how it would work, but it sounded too good not to try it. I just needed something to stimulate my feelings," said Scruggs who felt bored and unhappy after 20 years of playing the same music with Flatt.

"I feel I'm pickin' a better banjo now than I ever did," said Scruggs. "I feel I'm doing a better job than I would be if I was playing back (with Flatt) because I wasn't mentally into it. Therefore I just got to where I was not playing as good ... I just got tired of playing the same routine.

"I just don't think you can stay with the same songs all your life without going along with the times. You've got to keep working on your material, doing them different ways or you just get out of the ball game, that's all."

The Scruggs Revue plays tunes as varied as the fiddle tune "Old Hen She Cackled" or the blues "Be my Woman Tonight." And while many of his numbers are old blue grass standards, his contracts with promoters specifically forbid them from using the term "blue grass" in advertising.

"It got to the point where a lot of buyers thought blue grass was what was making the group so hot," said Scruggs. "And we're not playing blue grass, full blue grass music ... We were drawing some people who thought that we were still playing the same stuff that they heard me do 15 years ago."

If Scruggs has lost fans he has gained thousands more, especially among the young. Last year Scruggs grossed more than any year in his show business career.

Up close, Scruggs comes across as an extremely modest, quiet man, not the living legend he is. "I think it's the nicest thing in the world for somebody to want to pick with me," he says.

Jamming with other people led to several non-blue grass records and the well-known

"Will the Circle Be Unbroken" album with the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, on United Artists Records, the Dirt Band's company. Scruggs is celebrating his 25th anniversary on Columbia Records with the Scruggs Revue's newest album, "Anniversary Special, Vol. 1."

Scruggs knows that not everyone is happy with his change in musical direction.

"There are certain people who will not accept change. To me, that's their problem," he said. "Because I've got to live my life. If I'm not happy with the kind of work I'm doing, I'm cheating myself and the public too."

"There are people who really kinda expect you to do the same thing that they heard you do in 1945 or 1948 or something like that, and you can't roll back the page like that."

"That's what makes the world go 'round, people liking different things."

Contest Seeks 'Great American Face'

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Attention all amateur photographers: there's a national manhunt now in progress for snapshots of the "great American face." It could be your brother or sister, your son or daughter, your mother or father, your grandfather or grandmother ... or it could be yourself.

The search started some weeks ago in Washington, D.C., when government representatives gathered at Kennedy Center. They saw a special collection of "Memorable American Faces" taken by capital notables and heard an announcement of the "Great American Face Photo Contest."

The contest was launched as a Bicentennial project for amateur photographers across the nation to illustrate the American credo, "We, the People ..."

There are places in the winners' circle for people of all ages, all occupations, all origins and from all sections of the country. The sponsor seeks photos of memorable American faces which portray those qualities of individuals which collectively form the backbone of our country — qualities such as humanity, sincerity, warmth, engaging personality, courage and integrity.

There will be 12 winning photographers from each of four regions (Northwest, Northeast, Southwest and Southeast) or a total of 48 regional winners. Each region's 12 winning photographs will consist of a male and a female subject in each of six "family" categories: 1-Grandparents; 2-Parents; 3-Young Adults; 4-Teens; 5-Pre-teens and 6-Babies.

Finally, from the 48 regional winners, 12 national prize winners will be chosen. The prizes include trips to Los Angeles and New York, electric typewriters, TV sets, record players, wardrobes and cameras among other items.

The contest is limited to amateur photographers who may enter photos taken within the past year. An amateur is one who does not earn more than half his income from photography. The subject should be a close-up portrait study of one person. An entry may be either a black-and-white or a color print which cannot be larger than 4 x 5 inches, maximum size.

Entries are not eligible if they have been published previously.

Negatives should not be sent with prints; they will be required only when prints are judged to be winners.

Each print submitted must be enclosed in an official contest envelope and a participant is limited to three separate entries, one per envelope.

Official entry forms must be signed by both photographers and their subjects (or parents or guardians if under 21 years of age), permitting the sponsor to use the entries for promotion, exhibition or any other purpose.

The deadline for entries is Oct. 15.

Although the rules say that all entries become the property of the sponsor for all purposes, a contest official agreed that only winning photographs will be used in promotion or advertising in connection with the contest.

Those who wish to participate may obtain official contest envelopes and rules by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope (5 x 9 inches or larger) to: Great American Face Photo Contest, 233 Broadway, New York, N. Y. 10007.

A panel of judges will be headed by John Durniak, picture editor of Time, and Charles Reynolds, picture editor of Popular Photography, both highly qualified photojournalists. They will be joined by experts in art, anthropology and communications when judging starts. They must react not only to the character and emotion of each individual portrayed but must determine how well each represents his group classification. A winner must symbolize a grandmother or grandfather, a mother or father, a young man or woman, a teen-age boy or girl, etc.

Winners will be announced after Nov. 1 and before the year ends and exhibitions of the prizewinning photos are scheduled for display at the California Museum of Science and Industry in Los Angeles and the Morris Museum of Art and Sciences in Morristown, N.J.

Since this contest is within the scope of most amateur photographers and because the deadline is so close, would-be participants must immediately write for the official entry forms, then study and follow the rules. Keep in mind that color slides and pictures that show more than one person are ineligible.

Concentrate on each member of your family, relatives, friends and neighbors and consider whether any of them strike you as a possible model for a great American face. He or she should emanate wholesome appeal, good character and a strong, likeable personality.

Then it's up to you to capture those qualities in a snapshot.

Work at the closest distance your camera — or a telephoto lens — allows, to get the largest-size face in the picture frame. Select a plain, unobtrusive background and lighting that illuminates the features without being harsh or so bright the subject squints. Be alert for natural, spontaneous expressions and honest emotions that convey sincerity, humor or strength of purpose. Shoot enough to make a good selection and get them post-marked in time.

Even if yours isn't a winner, it will have been good experience, will have improved your photo thinking and added your contribution to the collective conceptions of the "Great American Face."

Pawn Shops Feel Pinch

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The pawnshop, a dwindling feature of the cities, is having trouble turning a profit because fewer customers are reclaiming possessions they pawned for loans, several operators say.

Steve Crist, operator of one of the few pawnshops here, said that not long ago only about 7 per cent of his customers abandoned the rings, musical instruments and other items they had left as security.

In today's tight economy, about one-third of them don't come back with their pawn tickets, he said, apparently indicating the money is more important than the item.

In Bridgeport, pawnbroker Irwin Peck also said the amount of valuables left in "hock" has been increasing. He estimates that a year ago three-quarters of his customers returned for their belongings within the six months the shops must keep them.

"There's no question they're not picking the stuff up," echoed a spokesman for a New Haven pawn and loan shop. "I don't know how long we can keep giving out money without getting some back."

The pawnshop operators agreed that a majority of their customers are regular visitors in search of loans to tide them over until pay or Social Security checks arrive.

The pawnshops run into trouble, too, because they depend on a balance between the number of pawners and redeemers to make a profit, Crist noted.

Cleaning Up After Vietnam War Causing Headaches

By GEORGE McARTHUR
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The bureaucratic process of tidying up after the Vietnam war has already saved the taxpayer about $120 million dollars. This is little cause for joy, however, in the face of continuing payments for everything from hair dryers and hi-fi sets to warehouse charges for birth control pills.

In short, the immediate administrative hangover left by Vietnam is a whopper — quite apart from the refugee problems and veterans costs that will go on for decades.

Three months after the evacuation of Saigon, the bureaucrats are only now getting a handle on many problems. The government is still not sure, for example, just what it has in warehouses in Manila, Hong Kong, Singapore and Bangkok.

A harried civil servant pool-pooched reports these warehouses contained vast stocks of vaginal jelly diverted at the last minute from Vietnam ports. They do contain large amounts of "population items," which is Washington talk for birth control pills and devices.

Officials also have only imprecise estimates for the claims that are coming in from American officials and their families evacuated from Saigon in those last hectic days. In those days most people left with one suitcase, abandoning cars, household goods and personal belongings. Some people had to abandon sizeable collections of art works and items amassed over long diplomatic careers.

Counting diplomats, State Department employees, military officers and Pentagon civilian employees, perhaps 1,500 people could be eligible to file claims of one sort or another.

There is a legal limit of $15,000 for individual claims. Thus the maximum estimates of such claims could amount to $22.5 million. Actually, officials in charge of the various agencies making payments say it will be much less than that.

The claims that have already been paid — perhaps one quarter of the overall number of those possibly eligible — have been averaging about $3,500 each.

But one employee of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) has asked more than $8,000 for hi-fi equipment alone. There have been other inflated claims from AID employees, prompting officials to start several investigations.

"You will always have a few people trying to take advantage of any situation like this," one AID official acknowledged.

The State Department — which is processing claims in only two to three weeks — reports no such difficulties.

The Pentagon hasn't really gotten started on its program yet.

Meanwhile, many people are still awaiting word on whether their belongings did in fact get shipped out. There was a warehouse fire in Saigon just before the end and shipping was chaotic already.

"We expect the large claims to start coming in when people are sure of what they have lost," one State Department official said.

One of the biggest single savings came to the Pentagon as a result of undelivered military aid. A Pentagon spokesman estimated that between $80 million and $100 million in ammunition and equipment bound for Vietnam was diverted at sea and has gone into depots in the Pacific.

In addition, the Pentagon got back about 75 planes and helicopters of various sorts flown out by Vietnamese pilots through Thailand and Singapore. Some of these planes — particularly the jet F-5 freedom fighters — will go into other military aid programs and represent a saving of many millions of dollars. Some of the other planes, however, are old prop-driven skyraiders worth virtually nothing. In any event, the saving was piddling indeed compared to the estimated loss of $5 billion in military equipment in South Vietnamese hands at the end.

West Virginia School Textbook Battle Flares Again

The Washington Post

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Two weeks ago, Rev. Ezra Graley, a self-ordained fundamentalist minister, walked into the office of West Virginia State School superintendent Daniel B. Taylor and announced he was prepared to die to save his children from the evils of Godless communism in the public schools.

To some, who believe that Graley and other textbook protesters won last year's celebrated battle of the books in Kanawha County, his vow to continue fighting might seem odd.

But few people are more convinced that they lost that battle than the church leaders and school board members who led the fight. Now, on the eve of the opening of public school here, the churchmen are threatening to reopen the struggle.

School for an estimated 46,000 children in the county opened Tuesday, said School Supt. Taylor.

But as small rallies staged in the industrial town of St. Albans, 15 miles west of here, Graley and others have been laying plans.

"If I have my way, I'll never have a school opening in Kanawha County," Graley shouted to about 150 followers at a roadside park Saturday night.

The protesters, claiming that "dirty books" remain in public schools here, are calling for a boycott of schools, similar to the protest which last year forced closing the schools, mines, bus lines, warehouses and chemical plants in the Charleston area.

Despite their seemingly small number, the protesters have twice this past week tangled with authorities in demonstrations they say are forerunners of more massive demonstrations still to come. And they have added some new tactics to their strategy, including a $6 stereo record album entitled "Textbook War" which attacks "liberals," the National Education Association, Communists, and Supreme Court justices with banjo-plunking tunes.

The record and much of the protest is now being directed by Avis L. Hill, 31, a 5-foot-6-inch plumber who earlier this year gave up his wrenches and a house to spend full time fighting the books.

"If they think this protest is over, they've got another thing coming," Hill told a rally at St. Albans. "It's just beginning."

A slim, dark-haired man with a slightly cocked left eye, Hill is known as "Little Avis" to his followers. Working with a chrome microphone in one hand and jabbing as if at an imaginary foe with another, Hill quickly-worked the rallies into cheers and choruses of Amen.

In many ways Hill's battle this year is more difficult than the one the textbook foes waged last year, when they succeeded in forcing the county school board to remove elementary school English books the protesters said were obscene.

Although the protesters seemingly won in the classes, they lost badly in the courtroom.

The Rev. Marvin Horan, a fundamentalist minister who was in the fore of last year's movement, was convicted in April of conspiracy to bomb two elementary schools in the county.

U.S. District Judge K. K. Hall, calling Horan "the leader of the conspiracy," gave him a three-year prison sentence. Horan, 36, is free on bond pending an appeal and has disappeared from the movement.

The victory which the protesters believe today also sapped some of the strength of their movement. Not only did they keep the English books out of the classroom, but they won guidelines for new textbooks that the National Education Association has warned could "destroy public education in Kanawha County."

In a report earlier this year on the dispute, the NEA said the guidelines "if given the interpretation obviously meant by their proponents, would not only bar the disputed books from Kanawha County, but would proscribe use of any language arts books including McGuffey's Readers and would permit very little learning."

School board members Mrs. Alice Moore, the wife of a Baptist minister here, who has been called the "patron saint" of the movement, disputes the NEA's claim. Unhappy that some of the 326 books she challenged still remain in school libraries, she says the work of the protest remains unfinished.

School officials are "afraid of" the current wildcat coal strike here and are fearful that the miners will join the textbook foes as they did last year, Mrs. Moore says.

Last year an estimated 3,500 miners walked off their jobs in sympathy to the textbook protest.

Mrs. Moore says a school official has pleaded with her to issue a statement saying the current coal strike is unrelated to textbooks but she has refused. Hill himself seems unaffected by the financial hardship the protest has brought him.

"If I go plumb down to the shirt on my back, it doesn't bother me," says Hill's wife. "I'm working for God."

Hill vows he will have no part of public education in the county and says he will open a "Christian school" for 50 elementary school students at his storefront home.

To do that will require money and as Hill admitted at his

Saturday night rally the movement is running short of funds. Last year it collected thousands of dollars in a local telephone, but recently the gifts have slowed down, he has said.

However protest movements here have a reputation for spreading as quickly as coal dust explosions in the underground coal mines and Hill is clearly banking on a hope that the boycott of school Tuesday will mushroom as it did last year.

Jail Bond Issue Is Up For Vote

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Judge Jon Lindsay says he hopes to convince U.S. District Court Judge Carl O. Bue Jr. to allow the county to go ahead with its proposed $15 million jail bond election.

Harris County voters will vote on a $175 million bond issue Sept. 27. It includes $15 million for renovation and expansion of jail facilities.

However, Bue has told the county that it has failed to give him a definite plan on corresponding programs such as pretrial release which are designed to reduce the jail population. He said that without successful implementation of pretrial release and other operational procedures, the $15 million bond issue is wholly inadequate.

The Court System Revised

The convention turned one of its toughest jobs, the revision of the court system, over to a committee headed by elder statesman John H. Reagan. In Texas since 1839, he was a successful lawyer, who had served as a legislator, district judge, member of the U.S. Congress and in the cabinet of the Confederacy. Other distinguished members of the committee included W. P. Ballinger, a Galveston attorney and former U.S. district attorney; Charles DeMorse, adventurer and newspaperman, who had served in both the army and navy of the Texas Republic as well as the Confederacy; W. B. Wright, east Texas lawyer and railroad executive who had served in the congress of the Confederacy; Lipecomb Norvell, a leading east Texas lawyer and Stockdale, former member of the legislature, lieutenant governor and governor of Texas.

Texans of 1875 saw in the courts their strongest defense against dictatorial or corrupt officials and general lawlessness. After limiting the executive and legislative branches of government, they expanded and strengthened the judicial. In the past, justices of the supreme court and district judges had been appointed by the governor for long terms of office. Insulated from direct responsibility to the people, they had been suspected of subservience to the executive and indifference to the need for prompt and equitable decisions. In the supreme court alone, a backlog of 1,600 undecided cases had built up.

The entire court system was revised, with justices and judges made elective and terms shortened. The lower courts were strengthened, with establishment of the county courts and provision for justice.

The most significant change was the creation of a court of appeals, to take some of the load off the supreme court. This new court, unlike anything in other state judicial systems, served as an appellate court for all criminal cases as well as for civil cases from the county courts. Criminal cases could be appealed to the supreme court, too, along with civil cases from the district courts. Re-

"THE CHURCH OF CHRIST" NO. 5

Having established in previous articles on this subject the fact that the universal church of Christ is a body of people who have been brought into fellowship with Jesus Christ, it is the burden of this article to show how such is achieved. John declared, "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." (1 Jn. 1:7)

This passage readily affirms that our fellowship with God is brought about as a result of our walking in the light. This is the only way that God has chosen for the blood of His Son to cleanse man from sin. How could a man expect to be saved from sin and become a child of God if such a man refused to "walk in the light"? The answer ought to be obvious to those who approach such a weighty subject with candor.

The Bible plainly teaches that mental acknowledge, and a confession that Jesus is the Son of God, is not enough to meet the demands of Him who has every right to lay down the terms of pardon. James put it this way: "Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well; the devils also believe and tremble." (Ja. 2:19) When the sincere seeker of truth turns to Hebrews 11, he will read how faith saves a man. Faith saves men when such trust motivates one to obey the Will of God. Who dare be so brazen, or void of Biblical knowledge, as to assume that sinners can be saved without obeying God Almighty?

The Christ of God said, in the sermon on the mount, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." (Mt. 7:21) An attempt to render a detailed exegesis of such a plain and positive statement would be an outrageous insult to my good readers. Christ meant just exactly what He said!

Neighbor friend, it should be your ardent desire to do what you can to please Jehovah. No man can please Him and refuse to obey Him. He has declared that all men who believe that Jesus is the Son of God, repent of their sinful living (Lk. 13:3), and be immersed in water "for the remission of those sins" (Ac. 2:38)

Cleaning Up After Vietnam War Causing Headaches

By GEORGE McARTHUR
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The bureaucratic process of tidying up after the Vietnam war has already saved the taxpayer about $120 million dollars. This is little cause for joy, however, in the face of continuing payments for everything from hair dryers and hi-fi sets to warehouse charges for birth control pills.

In short, the immediate administrative hangover left by Vietnam is a whopper — quite apart from the refugee problems and veterans costs that will go on for decades.

Three months after the evacuation of Saigon, the bureaucrats are now getting a handle on many problems. The government is still not sure, for example, just what it has in warehouses in Manila, Hong Kong, Singapore and Bangkok.

A harried civil servant pool-pooled reports these warehouses contained vast stocks of vaginal jelly diverted at the last minute from Vietnam ports. They do contain large amounts of "population items," which is Washington talk for birth control pills and devices.

Officials also have only imprecise estimates for the claims that are coming in from American officials and their families evacuated from Saigon in those last hectic days. In those days most people left with one suitcase, abandoning cars, household goods and personal belongings. Some people had to abandon sizeable collections of art works and items amassed over long diplomatic careers.

Counting diplomats, State Department employees, military officers and Pentagon civilian employees, perhaps 1,500 people could be eligible to file claims of one sort or another.

There is a legal limit of $15,000 for individual claims. Thus the maximum estimates of such claims could amount to $22.5 million. Actually, officials in charge of the various agencies making payments say it will be much less than that.

The claims that have already been paid — perhaps one quarter of the overall number of those possibly eligible — have been averaging about $3,500 each.

But one employee of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) has asked more than $8,000 for hi-fi equipment alone. There have been other inflated claims from AID employees, prompting officials to start several investigations.

"You will always have a few people trying to take advantage of any situation like this," one AID official acknowledged.

Chicago Teachers Strike

By The Associated Press
The first major strike of the new school year began today as teachers began manning picket lines at Chicago's 600 public schools, forcing the cancellation of the first day of classes.

In New York City, negotiations between the Board of Education and the United Federation of Teachers, which represents 60,000 faculty members in the public schools, adjourned with an impasse early today.

Current salaries range from an entry-level of $8,000 to $15,200 for a Ph. D. after 13 years.

They have threatened to strike when schools open Sept. 10.

Carrillo Trail Begins Today

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "It is time," says District Judge O.P. Carrillo, "I said something in my defense."

The time starts today, with 31 senators sitting as jurors in Carrillo's impeachment trial, the first in Texas in 44 years.

generated by the impeachment trial would mean "total destruction of a trial atmosphere" and that the impeachment trial would mean double jeopardy for the judge.

Assistant U.S. Atty. George Kelt argued that Carrillo's impeachment trial is not a criminal matter.

Skies Clearing Across Texas

Unwelcome rains stopped in flooded areas of the Lower Rio Grande — Valley and skies cleared across most of Texas today.

Residents were particularly heartened at Raymondville, where two feet of water or more covered part of the downtown district and rose several inches in some stores after 15 inches of rain poured down.

The Duval County grand jury and Benavides school board.

Under the proposed rate hike summer residential rates which now carry a minimum charge of $1.50 would increase to a minimum charge of $1.65.

Grand Jury Meets Monday

The Midland County Grand Jury for the semi-annual September term of 142nd State District Court will be empaneled at 9 a.m. Monday by the court's presiding judge, Perry D. Pickett.

A split between the Parr and Carrillo families, close political allies for 50 years, is thought to have triggered Carrillo's impeachment. Archer Parr's former lawyer, Rep. Terry Canales, D-Premont, in adjoining Jim Wells County, introduced the impeachment resolution.

Under the proposed rate hike summer residential rates which now carry a minimum charge of $1.50 would increase to a minimum charge of $1.65.

Costs for 50 kilowatts would go from $4.80 to $5.50, Choate said.

Hiss

Official observers said funnel clouds also span across the sky about five miles from the Corpus Christi airport Tuesday afternoon.

he could recall having only one conversation with an FBI agent regarding Hiss and that Hiss was present. He said he had no independent recollection of the agent's discussing the wiretap, but noted that nearly 30 years had passed since that conversation.

They are soprano Linda Healy of Sheboygan Falls, Wis., who received $2,000; tenor Roger Bryant of Ft. Worth, Tex., who received $1,000; baritone Craig Fields of Newhall, Calif., who received $500, and soprano Elaine Pavlick of San Diego, who received $250.

The panel discussion on criminal legislation will be Friday afternoon.

Expert Spikes Myth Of Full Employment

Copley News Service
(EDITOR'S NOTE: Richard F. Schubert, undersecretary of labor, says that unemployment might be "in the 4 or 5 per cent category... that's the optimum" by 1977. Schubert, who also has held positions with Bethlehem Steel, met recently with a board of Copley editors. Following are some of his comments:)

Question: Will the United States ever have full employment?

Answer: The first problem is one of definition. If by full employment we mean 3 per cent unemployed, that's a long way off.

If we can avoid the inflation-recession syndrome that some project for 1977 and 1978, by '77 we might be in the 4 or 5 per cent category. And very candidly, I think that's the optimum.

There's still a great deal of structural and frictional unemployment that seems to be inherent in the economy, and we probably have to provide for that in unemployment insurance compensation.

Frictional, Structural
Q. What's frictional and structural unemployment?

A. Structural relates to changes that occur as society shifts and changes its priorities. The move away from large automobiles may have some deleterious impact on unemployment, for example.

Frictional unemployment relates to technological shifts that occur in society as an industry becomes obsolete, outmoded and is supplanted by competitive products.

We have to be prepared to help people who are adversely affected.

Q. What do you think of government programs to create jobs?

A. The key to reactivating the economy is with the private sector. Public service jobs often are only temporary, assisting areas that are experiencing the high unemployment. It's an infusion of economic activity and it does help the unemployed.

It must be recognized that the program is going to stop, and that it must be absorbed by the private sector. Anything else is but a substitution of federal money for state and local money—and that accomplishes nothing.

The defenders led three rounds of diamonds, and South ruffed the last. He cashed two top spades and ruffed a spade with dummy's jack of hearts.

ANSWER: Bid 2-NT. This bid promises 8 or 9 points in high cards. In this case you have only 8 points but should count something extra for the two tens.

ace of clubs and a diamond to take the last two tricks.

ATTEMPTED STEAL

South tried to steal a club trick by leading a trump to the ace and returning a club toward dummy. If West obligingly played low, declarer would take one club trick, draw trumps and run the spades.

West was alert to the danger. He stepped up with the ace of clubs and led the jack of spades. If dummy ruffed low, East would overruff; and if dummy ruffed with the king, East's ten of hearts would eventually win a natural trump trick.

South's correct play is to start the clubs before he touches the spades. At this stage there's no danger. South can later develop the spades, draw trumps and run his tricks. Every play is simple; it's just a matter of putting first things first.

governments are in trouble because they have exceeded budget limitations. That is a problem that has to be solved locally. The federal government can't bail out everybody in the country.

Q. How effective were cities in using funds provided by the Comprehensive Employment Training Act?

A. They had the option of spending it all at once or spreading it out. They decided to spend it immediately.

What many localities did was to push for a surge in employment. They've reached a cliff and now they're not sure how to get off that cliff.

It was good in terms of initial counter-recession impact, but there was no guarantee government spending levels would go beyond a fixed amount through June of '76.

Now cities are looking for another measure to come up with the funds.

It's just one of those situations where federal expenditures can't do everything.

Private Enterprise
Q. What's private enterprise doing to create jobs?

A. Private enterprise is attempting to weather the storm.

The steel industry, in an act of some faith, made an assessment of the market for the next 10 years to justify $30 billion in expansion to meet the domestic and world needs.

If government policy, on a number of fronts, doesn't encourage that kind of investment, the steel industry is going to be in serious trouble because it will not be able to attract necessary capital.

The industry has faith in the economy and it thinks government will be responsible with regard to treatment of business.

Q. Supposing the pessimists are right and the recession hangs on?

Deficit Spending
A. If the economy does not begin to pick up—although most signs indicate it's doing just that—we will see a continuation of significant government deficit spending.

The President and the majority of his economic advisers realize the necessity for turning this thing around.

At the same time, they don't want to start this cycle of burning inflation all over again.

Q. Do you consider a $60 billion budget deficit sound economics?

A. Under the circumstances, yes.

Q. What has to happen between now and 1977 for the unemployment rate to drop to 4 or 5 per cent?

A. Recovery depends upon a number of things, including the retail market. Recent retail sales are a very positive sign.

Another part is construction and housing starts in terms of getting the economy going again. And, traditionally, autos have been considered a significant factor. However, there is going to be some permanent change in the auto market.

Autos are not going to have the significance they have had in the past, although the industry is going to have to come back some in order for us to reach that 4 to 5 per cent unemployment level.

The really terrible intangibles and unknowns relate to what will happen across the sea at the time we begin our upturn again.

Our problems, whether economic or social, are interrelated. We can't push the balloon in on one side without it coming out in at least two other places.

What the Arabs do with the oil prices clearly will have an impact upon our ability to bounce back, on the ability of people to invest in industry again.

Long before the book and the motion picture "Jaws" kindled so much awe of man-eating sharks, marine biologists and the U.S. Navy were at work on a study on how to survive in shark-frequented waters.

Now the report, entitled "Sharks and Survival," has been published by D.C. Heath & Co. It says, among other things, that while the likelihood of a shark attack is less than the probability of being hit by a lightning bolt, nearly half of those attacked by the man-eaters die.

The study also concludes that the best way to keep from being bitten by a shark is to stay well clear of the places where 27 species have been known to assault human beings or boats.

Scientists at the American Institute of Biological Sciences teamed up with the Navy to find out that sharks can reach a length of 60 feet. The whale shark, largest of 250 species, is harmless to man because of small, nonfunctional teeth. It feeds on the sea's plankton.

The study says man-eaters grow no less dangerous because of age. Unlike humans, who resort to artificial teeth when their own are gone, sharks have several rows. The inner rows are canted inward and overlap like shingles on a roof. When front teeth are lost, the strong membrane supporting the backup teeth moves them into position as part of a continuous replacement system. Most sharks prefer water of 70 degrees or more and feed primarily at night, some in shallow waters. An analysis of more than 1,100 cases of shark attacks convinced the biologists that while sharks can be attracted by the smell of blood or food or by bright and contrasting colors, they are drawn greater distances by low-frequency vibrations like those produced by a wounded fish or a swimmer thrashing in the water. The attacking shark is most likely to strike at the extremities, the study says. When they assault a boat, it's usually the rudder or propeller. Sometimes they bite into the hull and on at least one occasion a shark leaped into a small boat with the occupants. Swimsuits of bright, contrasting shades and jewelry appear to increase the risk of a shark attack, the study warns. It offers these survival tips to swimmers, divers, surfers, fishermen, pleasure boaters and professional mariners:—Stay out of waters known to be frequented by dangerous sharks. —Swim with a companion to avoid being a lone target. —Don't swim at night or in turbid or dirty areas where underwater visibility is poor. —Remain calm—if you can—when a shark is sighted. Then leave the water with dispatch. —Since blood attracts and excites sharks, don't enter

Oldest Native Losing Phone

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP)—Mrs. Kate Tannehill, 80, Virginia City's oldest native still living in this one-time Comstock boom town, is losing her telephone and it's not because she hasn't paid her monthly bill.

The phone company has phased out all its old hand-cranked, magneto-type telephones and Mrs. Tannehill's is one of the last to go. The crank-type phones were installed in Virginia City in 1882.

Mrs. Tannehill made the last magneto call from the Sundance Hotel on Main Street to the Opera House. There, were no wreaths, but a local musician played taps in the background.

'Made In Japan' No Bargain

NEW YORK (AP)—Ships "Made in Japan" are no longer launched with bargain basement price tags, reports The Compass, a publication of MOAC, marine insurance underwriter.

"In the past, Japanese ships were being offered at 10 per cent or more below prices quoted by European shipyards," The Compass notes. This provided a major saving on an oil tanker which might cost $20 to $30 million and helps to explain the past popularity of Japan's ship exports.

But the costs of marine equipment and materials have gone up 30 to 40 per cent in Japan in the last two years.

"Japanese industry officials now admit that the rising prices have put Japanese and European ships on a price par," says The Compass.

Expert On Fish Fighting To Save Vanishing Species

FOX, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Milton B. Trautman is fighting to save the madtom, if he isn't too late. It may already have gone the way of the dinosaur and the dodo.

He is also fighting to save its home, Big Darby Creek.

"Some of us believe that we have no right to eliminate an animal," the 76-year-old fish expert says. "The madtom is a symbol."

The madtom is — or was — a tiny type of catfish he discovered Nov. 4, 1943, in a mite-size section of the Big Darby near this community about 25 miles south of Columbus.

Scientifically a Noturus trautmani, the fish takes its colloquial name from a sac of poison that lies under a spine on its back. It can deliver the effect of a bee's sting.

Only 17 have been found, Trautman having caught all but two of them. The largest was 2.2 inches long.

Trautman, professor emeritus of zoology at Ohio State University and a curator of its museum as well as author of a definitive book on the 166 species of fish in Ohio waters, says he isn't sure the madtom is extinct even though the last seen was in 1957.

"There may be a goodly population doing fine somewhere else," he said as he shifted his feet in the center of a 15-foot-square area of the Big Darby, the entire known range of the madtom.

"I think there's a greater chance of an automobile coming down stream and hitting us from behind than there is of catching a madtom," he said, hauling on a four-foot seine,

"That's why, when I'm working the stream, I always look behind me."

The U.S. Department of the Interior has proposed the fish be added to the list of endangered and threatened wildlife.

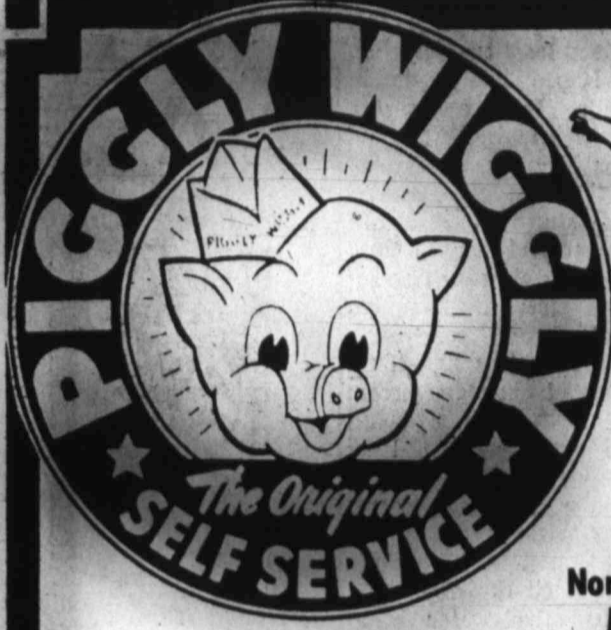

Because of the madtom as well as both other wildlife and people themselves, Trautman opposes plans for two dams on the stream.

"This is a moral obligation which has been clouded by economics," he says. "The loss of another species is not going to affect the people of the United States. But we have to stop somewhere. So why not stop with this fish?"

"I like to think that 10,000 years from now, somebody would stand in this stream and enjoy it as I do," he says, adding that, "besides being marvelously scenic, it has the largest variety of habitats of any stream in Ohio."

He has identified 91 species of fish in one mile-long section, and he says that although some species have invaded state waters in recent years, there are fewer species in the state now overall than there were 50 years ago.

Dallas Parents Give In To Problem Teen-Agers

DALLAS (AP) — There was a time when rebellious youths received extra chores around the house interspersed with a few whacks out behind the wood shed. But there is a growing tendency here to provide the rebel with his or her own apartment, car, and allowance.

In return for this unusual paternalism, mom and pop receive a promise from the teenager to finish high school. Many parents experimenting with this new form of "control" feel it is their only alternative to having runaway children. "From about the time my daughter Nancy was 13 it was just impossible to live in the same house with her. Our children are very worldly. She was also unbearable. She'd been everywhere so she thought she knew everything. It got so I couldn't stand coming home at night." This is the confession of a prominent Dallas lawyer who with his wife decided to set up their daughter in a $160-a-month apartment, along with a car and an allowance.

In return they received a promise that Nancy would finish high school and check in with them once a week.

According to social worker Mary Daniels such arrangements are now "getting to be the chic thing to do. The parents promise them anything if they finish school and stay out of their hair."

Mark, a suburban high school senior, has been living on his own since he was 15. "I was miserable at home. My father never stopped screaming at me. When my father told me to leave I think we were both relieved," Mark said.

The boy works, does as he pleases and attends school regularly, visiting his parents occasionally for dinner.

But Mark says he'd rather have a normal home. "I wish I did. I'd certainly prefer it. But the fact is, I don't."

One teacher at Hillcrest High School said there are 50 to 60 pupils who live in their own apartments. But Miss Daniels said in some cases free apartments and the freedom of adult-just isn't enough for youngsters. One mother told her that her daughter "screams at us because we don't send over the maid to clean her apartment."

Dove Works Exhibited

CHICAGO (AP) — The work of Arthur Dove, an important but neglected 20th century American artist, has been on display in a major exhibition at the Art Institute of Chicago.

The exhibition, which originated at the San Francisco Museum of Art, has also been seen in Buffalo, N.Y., and St. Louis. It moves on to Des Moines and the Whitney Museum in New York City.

Said to be the most comprehensive showing of Dove's work ever organized, it includes more than 75 works by this nonobjective painter, who lived from 1880 to 1946. The oils, pastels, drawings, assemblages and documentary photographs date from 1908 until his death.

Dove spent most of his early life in Geneva, N.Y., and later lived in Paris after graduation from Cornell University and a successful stint as an illustrator in New York City.

In Paris he came under the influence of the fauvists, who used bright colors and free forms in their paintings. Upon his return in 1909, he became one of the early abstractionists on the American scene.

To Dove, the object or scene of a painting was not so important as the spirit of the thing, and it was this he sought to capture in his work.

A painting of fog horns, done in 1929, is a superb depiction of how fog horns sound rather than how they look. Done in violets, blues, purples and grays, the rounded shapes communicate the feeling of mournful sounds through a dull mist.

Similarly, Dove painted cars in a sleet storm in which the form of the cars is indistinguishable but their immobility is communicated.

Gangsters Beat Japanese Gun Laws

By NAOAKI USUI

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese gangsters are converting toy guns into deadly weapons to arm themselves in this country where controls are so strict a "Saturday Night Special" means only a weekend TV show.

The National Police Agency reported that authorities seized 1,117 pistols and revolvers in 1974, of which 823 were model guns converted to fire actual bullets. In the first four months of 1975, police seized 380 handguns, 299 of them remodeled to make them shoot.

"Gangsters must have many more converted guns. Some say they have 6,000-7,000 in total, others say more than 11,000," a spokesman for the National Police Agency reported. "They are trying to train skillful gunsmiths to produce these guns."

There were 1,707 murder cases reported in 1973 in Japan, but only 0.4 per cent were committed with firearms. Among the 1,022 robbery cases, only 1.5 per cent were carried out at gunpoint, a National Police Agency report said. Knives, clubs and even the traditional Japanese sword are the more popular weapons.

Among the 37 murder cases with guns reported in 1974, gangsters committed 34 of them, mostly in their power struggles, police said. Over-all, nearly 90 per cent of all crimes with guns involved such crime organizations, the agency reported.

Japan's extremely strict gun control laws are credited with keeping the rate of crime with guns so low. Nobody in Japan is permitted to own pistols and revolvers except law enforcement officials, self defense forces and a small number of sports shooters.

One must get permission from local authorities to own hunting rifles, shotguns and air rifles. They are subject to an annual renewal and official inspection. Authorities refuse permission to own weapons to gangsters, ex-convicts and those with a history of mental illness.

Japanese police carry revolvers but rarely fire them. When they do, police chiefs promptly explain to the public how and why it was considered proper and necessary to use guns in each case.

Police have been cracking down on gun smuggling operations by gangsters since the end of World War II, a chaotic era in which gangsters obtained guns stolen from U.S. armed forces depots, or from the defunct Imperial Japanese Army. Now smuggling has been cut to a negligible level, police believe.

As a result, the nation's estimated 110,000 active gang members have sought any firearm available, ranging from antique, muzzle-loading, flintlock pistols to the converted model or toy guns. Many of the latter are relatively elaborate, precision products aimed more at the market of the gun hobbyist rather than the usual children's toy.

Regulations provide that barrels of model guns be filled to make them more difficult to change into a weapon that will fire.

"But we used materials too soft to resist drilling, which the gangsters are doing," one police spokesman said. "Now we are going to change the rules on this, and from this fall barrels must be stuffed with a special, extra-hard metal."

Oppose Gaslighting

In New England in the 1800s the idea for gaslighting the streets met with strong opposition. Lighting streets at night, the opponents claimed, could only lead to an "increase of allment and decrease of morals."

Bermuda Offers Uncrowded Beaches, Luxury To Tourists

By BERNIE BOOKBINDER
Newsday

SOMERSET ISLAND, Bermuda—There are maybe six people on the beach and there are, altogether, 12 beaches, just in case anyone is claustrophobic.

For those of us basking on Long Bay Beach at the Cambridge Beaches cottage colony there is a precious sense of isolation and privacy. More than just the distance of a few miles separates us from the elaborate resort hotels that in Bermuda, as in most vacation spots, draw the guests and the attention.

But we are not complaining. Talk among the newly acquainted guests turns to other accommodations and one man mentions having stopped by the luxurious Sonesta Beach Hotel the previous evening.

"What did you think?" he replies, not concealing his disdain. "We could have been in Puerto Rico."

He means no slur on Puerto Rico, he explains. "Or St. Thomas, or Jamaica, or even Miami Beach. What I mean is, if you're in a big, grand, terrific hotel, you can be in it anywhere."

Whether that was in the minds of Cambridge Beaches' founders more than a half-century ago when they transplanted the European-cottage colony to the Western Hemisphere is unknown. But what they have accomplished is clear: a resort that combines the amenities and service of a super-hotel with the charm and hospitality of a guesthouse. And perhaps even more important, they have succeeded in largely eliminating the pretentiousness and bustle of the former, without restoring to the spartan atmosphere of the latter.

One of Bermuda's many but little-known enticements is the diversity of accommodations available to visitors. Varied not only in price, but in style. Among these, cottage colonies warrant special interest because they seem to so fully meet the needs and desires of vacationers seeking respite from the pressures, deadlines and demands of their usual routines, but who prefer to create their own diversions rather than being guided or entertained.

Bermuda's Department of Tourism, which does a superior job of providing maps, rates and brochures, lists seven cottage colonies ranging from accommodations for 22 guests (Flamingo Beach Club) to 122 (Cambridge Beaches).

The others, with their capacities are: Ariel Sands (88) Horizons (77), Lantana (104), Pink Beach (110) and Willowbank (91). The tourist office's crisp description of this category states that they are "uniquely Bermudian, (most) feature main clubhouse with dining room, lounge, bar with cottage units spread throughout grounds offering privacy and luxury, pool and-or beach, limited entertainment.

All except Flamingo offer breakfast and dinner. Prices range from $20-per-day-per-person in a double room at Willowbank to $40 for comparable food and lodging at Pink Beach. There is also either a 10 per cent additional charge for service (no tipping is expected) or, in the case of Cambridge, a $3-per-person-daily fee.

These prices are supposedly in effect at least through October, but prospective guests should certainly check for themselves.

What this visitor discovered for himself, wife and three children, during a recent stay at Cambridge, and two years ago at Lantana, was the extraordinary opportunity such places provide for total immersion in the natural loveliness of the island without the distractions inherent in hotel living.

Of the two, Cambridge has the better location by far, being a 25-acre, foot-shaped peninsula extending into the Atlantic and sheltered Mangrove Bay.

Its 32 cottages are generally scattered throughout the magnificently landscaped and well-maintained estate.

Typically Bermudian, with pink walls and whitewashed, terraced roofs (to catch the precious rainwater), many of the cottages have their own gardens, besides being set amid lovely pink oleander, crimson poinciana, orange hibiscus and blue and purple morning glory, and beneath lordly palms.

NASA Seeks System Of 'Command' Satellites In Orbit

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

Except for a brief hoopla about future international cities in space, the federal space agency has presented a low-key facade since the manned U.S.-Soviet "detente" mission.

Backstage, however, NASA is moving quietly ahead on a project which could add a significant new dimension to space warfare if it ever should occur.

At NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md.,

scientists and engineers have taken the first steps toward commanding and tracking earth-orbiting satellites with other satellites instead of directly from ground stations.

Perfecting the technique could have significant military overtones, allowing ground commanders to relay instructions to fleets of armed satellites through "command" satellites hanging 22,300 miles in space.

The system already has been proved out in a unique experiment using NASA's applications technology satellite-6 (ATS-6) to track and communicate with the recently launched GEOS-3 geodetic satellite.

GEOS-3 orbits the earth at an altitude of 524 miles, while ATS-6 is in stationary orbit 22,300 miles high above the equator. (Spacecraft in stationary orbit circle earth once every 24 hours as earth turns once on its axis, thus remaining over the same point on the globe until moved by ground command.)

During the experiment conducted from Goddard, ATS-6 first was commanded by the ATS ground station in Rosman, N.C., to point at and track GEOS-3.

Distance-measuring signals then were transmitted to ATS-6 for relay to GEOS-3. The information, along with data on the spacecraft's condition, were returned to Rosman over the same communications loop.

As GEOS-3 disappeared behind earth in its lower orbit, ATS-6 continued to track a path across earth indicating the location of the geodetic satellite. And as GEOS-3 reappeared over the edge of earth, ATS-6 again locked onto it and tracked it for more than 50 per cent of its orbit.

Ground station tracking of GEOS-3 can cover only 15 per cent of its orbit.

"Despite the fact that this was the first tracking of one satellite by another, the operation went so smoothly that it looked like a simulation instead of the real thing," says Bernard J. Trudell, the satellite-to-satellite tracking experiment manager at Goddard.

Know-how collected in this and later similar experiments will contribute to eventual transition from a totally ground-based tracking system to what NASA calls a track and data-relay satellite system, according to Trudell.

While the space agency steers away from commenting on the military significance of the satellite-to-satellite system, the Air Force is watching its development closely. The technique, or one like it, obviously could be used to flash command signals to a high-flying stationary satellite which, in turn, could relay commands to a variety of armed satellites circling the earth in low orbit.

Cubs, Drillers Begin Texas League Title Squabble

The Day Of The Cubs A Year To Remember

Manager Doc Edwards was looking forward to Monday night's final game of the regular season in El Paso, the one that was rained out.

"It will be the first chance this season we've had to relax, take it easy and enjoy a game since the season started," he told a reporter after Sunday's Texas League West Division pennant-clincher.

Battle Scene

By Ted Baillus

Manager Doc Edwards architect of pennant winner

Doc looked anything but the dignified skipper of a pennant craft as he stood on the bridge. His attire consisted of a drenched sweat shirt and champagne dripped from both ears. If he'd stuck out his tongue, he could have caught the drippings from the end of his nose.

So the Cubs barge into the playoffs tonight at Cubs Stadium against Lafayette without that game to unwind after the long, hard pennant chase.

Actually, in the Cubs' marathon sprint to the flag, there never really was any sign of a team feeling pressure. Maybe they were running so hard from so back they never had time to think about it.

Doc had a different theory. "I don't think there has been much pressure because we haven't put the load on any one player to carry us. It seems like there was always someone different to come along and pick us up when we needed it."

"It was a team victory in the truest sense. No one player was indispensable, but we couldn't have done it without the contribution of every player on the roster. I'd hate to have been without any one of them."

Perhaps one of the keys was the Cubs' ability to absorb the losses of normal attrition to higher leagues with quality replacements.

When the Texas League's leading pitcher, Bernie Beckman, 9-1 when he left for Wichita, departed, Steve Hamrick arrived and took up without missing a beat. Julio Gonzalez was promoted to the Aeros and the Cubs simply replaced him with 300 hitting Mike Umfleet, fresh off the Oklahoma U. campus.

When centerfielder Joe Wallis followed, Steve Verban and Earl Chew filled the void spectacularly. And Bill Huisman's return from Wichita gave Edwards additional maneuverability in the infield, especially because of Bill's attitude.

"I'd rather play here than sit on the bench there."

"But this was a year that looked promising even when the Cubs were losing exhibition games in Scottsdale. It was a Midland team that was doing the little things it hadn't done in previous years under Edwards, a guy who knew that he was doing."

"I suppose we could have won more exhibition games," recalls Doc. "But that's not what spring training is for."

Back in March when the Midland Cubs and Lafayette Drillers were squaring off in Arizona's sunny Scottsdale and windy Casa Grande exhibition games, little did managers Doc Edwards and Denny Sommers dream that they would be meeting in September for the Texas League pennant.

One reason was that the Chicago Cub and the San Francisco Giant farmhands were so accustomed to grappling within the West Division. Up until this year, the Drillers were Amarillo Giants and the teams saw one another so often in spring and during the season, they were almost part of the family.

So although the Cubs and Drillers met only 10 times during the regular season, it won't exactly be strangers squaring off at 7:30 tonight in Cubs Stadium as the best-of-five game series gets underway.

The second game will be played Thursday at Cubs Stadium and then will move to Lafayette Saturday for any remaining games necessary.

Edwards indicated that he would stick to his regular pitching rotation for the playoff series, which means it will be Mike Krukow's turn tonight.

The 6-4, 205-pound righthander from Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, who started out as a collegiate catcher, has been Mr. Dependable of the Cubs' staff since mid-June.

Mike was struggling at 2-6 with a 5.11 earned-run average in mid-June when he began putting it altogether. He finished the regular season 13-6 with two shutouts and his last seven starts were complete games.

Chris Evert Still Waits For Challenge

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Christine Marie Evert Invitational Tennis Tournament resumes today with Australian Kerry Melville Reid scheduled to make her farewell appearance.

Miss Evert, a cool, emotionless executioner disguised as a pretty, bright-eyed 20-year-old with a movie-star smile, has turned the women's half of the U.S. Open into a series of challenge matches. And none of the challengers have done much challenging.

Miss Evert has disposed of three opponents with a minimum of fuss thus far, losing only five games. The tournament is being contested, if that is the word, on clay and Chris just doesn't lose on clay. Not much anyway.

Lee Seeks To Improve In Opener At Lubbock

A large crowd greeted the 1975 Midland Lee Rebel varsity and junior varsity teams at the Booster Club Meeting Tuesday night in the Lee Cafeteria.

New Booster Club President Roger Stephenson introduced head coach Jim Acree who, in turn, introduced his varsity staff, junior varsity staff and the two grid squads.

"We did a good job in Lamesa Thursday, but still need lots of room for improvement before we play Lubbock Saturday night in our season opener," stated Acree who has been under the with the flu bug.

Acree and his staff feel that the Rebels have some good talent, but still have their work cut out for themselves in defending the District 5-4A football title. "It may be a long, hard winter, because everybody is tough and will be gunning for us," he said.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Lowrey Field in Lubbock against Coach Tommy Stone's Westerners. Stone is a former Abilene Cooper assistant and his son, Keith Stone, a 175-pound senior, is a starter at a linebacker slot.

A total of 17 lettermen are back on this year's Westerner eleven which is determined to start off the season with a victory over the Rebels.

Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebel junior varsity doesn't open the season until Sept. 11 against Midland.

Virus Wipes Out Half Of Returning MHS Starters

Midland High lost half its returning starters as a result of the virus, Coach John Reddell reported to Bulldog Booster Club members the weekly meeting Tuesday in the MHS cafeteria.

"Kim Madden (starting right halfback) is out with the virus and he's an uncertain starter for Friday's opener against Amarillo Tascosa."

Madden is one of two returning starters and Reddell indicated if Kim is suffering from a 24-hour virus, he'll probably play. "But if it's the flu, he'll be too weak to play."

Reddell told the Boosters, "The Snyder scrimmage was excellent for helping us. We needed something that would give us confidence, something that would show whether we could or couldn't."

"It didn't take us long to find out that Snyder has a good, aggressive AAA team. Snyder handled us the first part of the scrimmage, then sometime between the first and second part, the players talked about it became a team and were tough."

As far as the Midland coach was concerned, "We got something out of it that money couldn't buy. And if we can keep it, we've got a chance."

used a 4-3 in the scrimmage and against Pampa, which also runs the Wishbone, last year. Tascosa came up with eight different defenses."

Although the Bulldogs handed Tascosa its worst defeat of the season, 24-6, last year at Amarillo, Friday's Memorial Stadium opener could be more like the game here two years ago when Midland won by foiling a two-point conversion attempt in the game's closing seconds.

Marriage Epidemic Sweeps Over Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rocky Bleier is getting married this Sunday, making him the seventh Pittsburgh Steeler to abandon single life in seven months since the Super Bowl.

"The number is surprising, but just coincidence," Bleier said after a practice Tuesday. "I just hope it's not contagious," noted bachelor Franco Harris, who plays a step away from Bleier in the Steeler backfield.

The Steelers' 1973 season ended with a playoff loss in Oakland. The team had no marriages and two divorces that off-season.

This season's turnabout was in the making even before the Super Bowl because several players already had nuptial plans.

Jack Ham and Mike Wagner took the plunge this summer. Friends organized a bachelor party billing the two as "Super Bowl Champs to Sugar Bowl Chumps."

Other Steelers to marry were Randy Grossman, Dick Conn, Loren Toews and Jim Wolfe.

Bleier met his fiancée, Aleta Giacobine, a few months before the Super Bowl while he was still seeking a starting job. She's mentioned in his book, "Fighting Back," which also details his recovery from Vietnam War wounds which threatened his career.

"We had that instant meeting of the minds, which I'd come to think was impossible," Bleier recalls in his book.

"She immediately perceived my depression over not playing regularly, not having a career outside football, and not having someone to care about me," he adds.

"She took care of the last problem right away. Then she forced me to overcome the other two. She would not tolerate self-pity."

Bleier earned a starting job in Pittsburgh's Super Bowl drive, and he's played strongly this preseason even though the Steelers take a 1-3 record into Saturday's game here with New Orleans.

"If I'd attained only the football goals, my happiness might have been hollow," Bleier says.

The wedding at the Pittsburgh Field Club will be small, just the families. Bleier's brother, Dan, will be best man.

"But I still have a heck of a lot to do," Bleier said from his locker stool.

Indeed, he has speaking engagements every night this week, and he's also finishing a house.

As he mentioned the house, a man approached. He needed Bleier's consent on what stain to use on the woodwork.

Cubs, Drillers Begin Texas League Title Squabble

The Day Of The Cubs A Year To Remember

Manager Doc Edwards was looking forward to Monday night's final game of the regular season in El Paso, the one that was "rained out."

"It will be the first chance this season we've had to relax, take it easy and enjoy a game since the season started," he told a reporter after Sunday's Texas League West Division pennant-clincher.

Doc looked anything but the dignified skipper of a pennant craft as he stood on the bridge. His attire consisted of a drenched sweat shirt and champagne dripped from both ears. If he'd stuck out his tongue, he could have caught the drippings from the end of his nose.

So the Cubs barge into the playoffs tonight at Cubs Stadium against Lafayette without that game to unwind after the long, hard pennant chase.

Actually, in the Cubs' marathon sprint to the flag, there never really was any sign of a team feeling pressure. Maybe they were running so hard from so back they never had time to think about it.

Doc had a different theory. "I don't think there has been much pressure because we haven't put the load on any one player to carry us. It seems like there was always someone different to come along and pick us up when we needed it."

"It was a team victory in the truest sense. No one player was indispensable, but we couldn't have done it without the contribution of every player on the roster. I'd hate to have been without any one of them."

Perhaps one of the keys was the Cubs' ability to absorb the losses of normal attrition to higher leagues with quality replacements.

When the Texas League's leading pitcher, Bernie Beckman, 9-1 when he left for Wichita, departed, Steve Hamrick arrived and took up without missing a beat. Julio Gonzalez was promoted to the Aeros and the Cubs simply replaced him with .300 hitting Mike Umfleet, coach of the Oklahoma U. campus.

When centerfielder Joe Wallis followed, Steve Verban and Earl Chew filled the void spectacularly. And Bill Huisman's return from Wichita gave Edwards additional maneuverability in the infield, especially because of Bill's attitude.

"I'd rather play here than sit on the bench there."

"But this was a year that looked promising even when the Cubs were losing exhibition games in Scottsdale. It was a Midland team that was doing the little things it hadn't done in previous years under Edwards, a guy who knew what he was doing."

"I suppose we could have won more exhibition games," recalls Doc, "but that's not what spring training is for."

Battle Scene

By Ted Baillis

Manager Doc Edwards architect of pennant winner

"We worked on fundamentals, hitting the cutoff man, the hit and run, the bunt and the pickoffs. Gonzalez and Jose Ortiz showed me something in the spring when they sacrificed themselves by hitting behind the runner to advance him rather than trying to pull the ball for the base hit."

It was obvious from the start that Steve Clancy was the man Doc wanted behind the plate, although he had to wait until May 21 to get him back from Key West. The Cubs were 17-22 when the University of Texas ex reported. The record since then and the fact that Midland catchers are second in nailing stealers speaks for itself.

Quality players like Al Montreuil and Bill Droegge performed up to expectations and then there were the surprises and progress of other players.

Bill Bright enjoyed his finest year as a Cub and Wayne Tyrone took to first base like a duck to water or a Hollywood stuntman to Earthquake. Although winless in the Texas League going into the campaign, Donnie Moore wound up the Cubs' leading winner.

There was the performance of Mike Krukow, 13-6, and a bullpen (Bruce Sutter, Gary Junge, Dennis Lamp and Dave Geisel) that led the league in saves and a starting staff that led in shutouts.

It was the kind of year that needs only a Texas League championship to make it complete.

Back in March when the Midland Cubs and Lafayette Drillers were squaring off in Arizona's sunny Scottsdale and windy Casa Grande exhibition games, little did managers Doc Edwards and Denny Sommers dream that they would be meeting in September for the Texas League pennant.

One reason was that the Chicago Cub and the San Francisco Giant farmhands were so accustomed to grappling within the West Division. Up until this year, the Drillers were Amarillo Giants and the teams saw one another so often in spring and during the season, they were almost part of the family.

So although the Cubs and Drillers met only 10 times during the regular season, it won't exactly be strangers squaring off at 7:30 tonight in Cubs Stadium as the best-of-five game series gets underway.

The second game will be played Thursday at Cubs Stadium and then will move to Lafayette Saturday for any remaining games necessary.

Edwards indicated that he would stick to his regular pitching rotation for the playoff series, which means it will be Mike Krukow's turn tonight.

The 6-4, 205-pound righthander from Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, who started out as a collegiate catcher, has been Mr. Dependable of the Cubs' staff since mid-June.

Mike was struggling at 2-6 with a 5.11 earned-run average in mid-June when he began putting it altogether. He finished the regular season 13-6 with two shutouts and his last seven starts were complete games.

Lee Seeks To Improve In Opener At Lubbock

A large crowd greeted the 1975 Midland Lee Rebel varsity and junior varsity teams at the Booster Club Meeting Tuesday night in the Lee Cafeteria.

New Booster Club President Roger Stephenson introduced head coach Jim Acree who in turn, introduced his varsity staff, junior varsity staff and the two grid squads.

"We did a good job in Lamesa Thursday, but still need lots of room for improvement before we play Lubbock Saturday night in our season opener," stated Acree who has been under the with the flu bug.

Acree and his staff feel that the Rebels have some good talent, but still have their work cut out for themselves in defending the District 3-4A football title. "It may be a long, hard winter, because everybody is tough and will be gunning for us," he said.

Lubbock has a veteran team which has eight offensive starters back from last year's team which wound up 3-7 and lost to the Rebels, 26-0, in Memorial Stadium in the 1974 opener.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Lowrey Field in Lubbock against Coach Tommy Stone's Westerners. Stone is a former Abilene Cooper assistant and his son, Keith Stone, a 175-pound senior, is a starter at a linebacker slot.

A total of 17 lettermen are back on this year's Westerner eleven which is determined to start off the season with a victory over the Rebels.

Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebel junior varsity doesn't open the season until Sept. 11 against Midland.

Virus Wipes Out Half Of Returning MHS Starters

Midland High lost half its returning starters as a result of the virus, Coach John Reddell reported to Bulldog Booster Club members the weekly meeting Tuesday in the MHS cafeteria.

"Kim Madden (starting right halfback) is out with the virus and he's an uncertain starter for Friday's opener against Amarillo Tascosa."

Madden is one of two returning starters and Reddell indicated if Kim is suffering from a 24-hour virus, he'll probably play. "But if it's the flu, he'll be too weak to play."

Reddell told the Boosters, "The Snyder scrimmage was excellent for helping us. We needed something that would give us confidence, something that would show whether we could or couldn't."

"It didn't take us long to find out that Snyder has a good, aggressive AAA team. Snyder handled us the first part of the scrimmage, then sometime between the first and second part, the players talked about it became a team and were tough."

As far as the Midland coach was concerned, "We got something out of it that money couldn't buy. And if we can keep it, we've got a chance."

JV Coach Stan Moore, who scouted Tascosa in a preseason scrimmage, described the Rebels as a lot like Midland. "They are young, small and inexperienced. They have four returning lettermen and six players who go both ways. They will hit you and are eager."

The Rebels run the Houston Veer offense, switching from the Walking I employed last year, but Reddell has his fingers crossed about the defense.

"Last year they used a 5-2 in the preseason scrimmage and a split-6 with a linebacker in the middle against us in the opener. This year they used a 4-3 in the scrimmage and against Pampa, which also runs the Washbone, last year, Tascosa came up with eight different defenses."

Although the Bulldogs handed Tascosa its worst defeat of the season, 24-6, last year at Amarillo, Friday's Memorial Stadium opener could be more like the game here two years ago when Midland won by flogging a two-point conversion attempt in the game's closing seconds.

Marriage Epidemic Sweeps Over Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rocky Bleier is getting married this Sunday, making him the seventh Pittsburgh Steeler to abandon single life in seven months since the Super Bowl.

The number is surprising, but just coincidence," Bleier said after a practice Tuesday.

"I just hope it's not contagious," noted bachelor Tom Harris, who plays a step away from Bleier in the Steeler backfield.

The Steelers' 1973 season ended with a playoff loss in Oakland. The team had no marriages and two divorces that off-season.

This season's turnaround was in the making even before the Super Bowl because several players already had nuptial plans.

Jack Ham and Mike Wagner took the plunge this summer. Friends organized a bachelor party billing the two as "Super Bowl Champs to Sugar Bowl Chumps."

Other Steelers to marry were Randy Grossman, Dick Conn, Loren Toews and Jim Wolfe.

Bleier met his fiancee, Aleta Giacobine, a few months before the Super Bowl while he was still seeking a starting job.

She's mentioned in his book "Fighting Back," which also details his recovery from Vietnam War wounds which threatened his career.

"We had that instant meeting of the minds, which I'd come to think was impossible," Bleier recalls in his book.

"She immediately perceived my depression over not playing regularly, not having a career outside football, and not having someone to care about me," he adds.

"She took care of the last problem right away. Then she forced me to overcome the other two. She would not tolerate self-pity."

Bleier earned a starting job in Pittsburgh's Super Bowl drive, and he's played strongly this preseason even though the Steelers take a 1-3 record into Saturday's game here with New Orleans.

"Dark walnut, I guess that's what she wanted," said Bleier.

"Gez, I'll be needing a lawnmower and everything else," he added with a grin as the man left.

There's another facet to the wedding. His wife has a 20-month-old daughter by a previous marriage, so Bleier will become an immediate father.

"Mike Wagner is in the same situation and he and I have talked about it," Bleier said. "It's another responsibility, but I'm looking forward to it."

"She and Aleta are the focus of my life."

OJINAGA, Mexico — The Midland Colts semi-pro baseball team swept a doubleheader from the Ojinaga Nationals here Sunday.

The Colts won the first game 11-10 with a 14-hit attack behind the hitting of Larry Sanchez, Clarence Zachery and Lupe Perez. Frank Rubio picked up the win.

Mike Hurt tossed a 1-hitter in the nightcap as the Colts won 5-0.

The Colts will host Ojinogo Sept. 14 at Simon Field.

St. Louis failed to keep pace with the Pirates when two errors by Larry Little helped Chicago snap a 1-1 tie with two runs in the seventh, then Manny Trillo rapped a two-run single in the eighth.

Like the Phillies, the Cards staged a comeback but it was not enough. St. Louis got RBI pinch-hits from Luis Melendez and Jerry Mumphrey in the ninth, but fell two runs shy.

Landry Rebuilds Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — With the departures of running back Calvin Hill, fullback Walt Garrison, defensive tackle Bob Lilly, center Dave Manders, and wide receiver Bob Hayes, the once-powerful Dallas Cowboys are in a massive rebuilding campaign.

Bill Gregory have been vying for Lilly's right tackle spot and the Dallas defense has been woeful against the run most of the exhibition season. Lilly's forte was his tremendous agility, which clogged the running lanes.

Landry believes Newhouse can give Dallas a legitimate ground threat. "Once Newhouse gains confidence he will gain a lot of yardage," says Landry.

1975 Grid Season Here

Don't look now, but the 1975 schoolboy football season is here once again and this corner is chomping at the bit to get things started with Midland entertaining Amarillo Tascosa Friday and Midland Lee traveling to Lubbock for a Saturday night date with the Westerners.

Looking back at last year, it was a great one with Lee winning the 5-A football crown and the predictions were also above average, at least on the season average.

In 569 games, including playoff battles, this corner hit correctly on 437 while missing 132 for a percentage of .766.

That was last year, and this is another season, so without any more hesitation here goes:

Pack, Rebs To Roll

MIDLAND HIGH's Bulldogs had a 6-2-2 record last year and started it off with a 24-6 victory over Tascosa in Amarillo. More of the same this time around as Coach John Reddell's Purple Pack pleases home crowd Friday with 26-7 victory.

MIDLAND LEE waits until Saturday night to face the Lubbock High Westerners in Lubbock, but it will be about like last year with the Maroon Platoon taking a 27-0 victory in Loyrey Field.

ODESSA PERMIAN, like Lee, has to wait until Saturday to open the season. The Panthers take on El Paso Coronado in W. T. Barrett Stadium and should post a 28-8 victory over the Border City eleven which has been in the state playoffs 13 out of the last 16 years.

ODESSA HIGH travels to the Panhandle to take on Amarillo's Golden Sandies. Darrell Shepard is a gifted athlete and OHS is small, but the Bronchos will win, 20-12.

SAN ANGELO should roll to a 34-12 victory over Dallas Roosevelt in the Bobcats opener Friday as Coach Smitty Hill shows off his 5-4A favorites to the home town fans on the Concho River.

ABILENE COOPER hooks up with AAA power Brownwood in its traditional opener, this time in P.E. Shotwell Stadium in Abilene. The Cougars always have a stout defense and this year is no exception. Cooper to win, 14-8.

ABILENE HIGH has speed to burn and the Warbirds will fly past Class AAA Sweetwater, 28-0. Abilene could pull off some surprises in 5-4A this fall.

BIG SPRING also takes on a Class AAA outfit in the Andrews Mustangs in Big Spring Friday. Got to go with Coach Bob Burris' Steers to get started on a winning note, 20-8.

OTHER PICKS

Killeen in narrow 20-7 victory over Seguin in one of the state's better games in Class AAAA 16-15; Pecos to roll past El Paso Irvin, 20-13; Lubbock Dunbar over El Paso Bowie, 14-10; Amarillo Caprock has too circles; San Antonio MacArthur to nip San Antonio Lee, much muscle and depth for Odessa Ector, say, 33-15; Hereford to take 20-14 win over Pampa Lubbock Monterey to edge Canyon, 26-20; Plainview (Lee's opponent in the third game of the year) to edge Lubbock Estacado, 27-20; Wichita Falls Rider over Class AAA Iowa Park, 20-6; Wichita Falls Coyotes to whip Lubbock Coronado, 28-8; Plano over South Garland, 27-14; Mesquite is strong again and will win, 30-13 over Dallas Samuel; Arlington Sam Houston over Dallas Kimball, 27-16; Dallas Carter in 30-0 warmup win over Dallas Spruce before taking on San Angelo Central the following weekend; John Tyler over Waco Richfield, 27-12; Bryan rolls to 34-4 victory over Beaumont Hebert; Houston Kashmere 28, Houston Sterling 0; Port Neches Groves to rip Pasadena Doble, 35-0; Brazoswood opens defense of AAAA state championship with 29-0 whitewashing of Angleton and Conroe to showcase Austin Reagan, 28-22.

San Diego 20-12 Dodgers 3

John Lemaster belted an inside-the-park homer in his first major league at bat and Von Joshua and Willie Montanez added homers to pace San Francisco's attack, while Ed Halicki struck out 12 in stopping the Dodgers.

Fisk Returns, Boston Wins

By The Associated Press
 The Boston Red Sox won their first game since the Boston Red Sox since they were back in the field. Carl Yastrzemski said Tuesday night after the Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees 7-4. "We'll be all right now," Carl Yastrzemski said Tuesday night after the Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees 7-4. "We're going to hit and our pitching looks good. All we need is a little pitching, and that's the big part of the game, and we'll do all right."

The Red Sox, mindful of last year's flop when they blew a big lead in September, begin an eight-game road trip tonight against their chief antagonists—the Baltimore Orioles. The Orioles, the ones who caught the Red Sox in last year's stretch run in the American League East, can cut off some of Boston's six-game lead in their two-game series. "We'd like a split in Baltimore," said Boston third baseman Rico Petrocelli. "Every one feels that way. The pressure is on them more than us. They can't afford to lose."

Carlton Fisk, returning to the regular lineup for the first time in 10 days, drove in three runs with a pair of singles to help Boston snap a three-game losing streak. Fisk, who suffered a split finger when hit by a foul tip on Aug. 23, lined a bases-loaded single to center to cap a four-run third inning. He then provided another run with an RBI single in the fifth.

Boston right-hander Reggie Cleveland, 10-9, allowed the Yankees a 1-0 lead on Chris Chambliss' ninth homer in the second inning. He needed relief help after giving up a three-run homer to Thurman Munson in the eighth inning.

Bob Heise, a veteran utilityman given a starting shot at third base, triggered Boston's third-inning rally with a one-out single. Heise scored on Cecil Cooper's double off the center field wall. Denny Doyle singled home Cooper. A pair of walks loaded the bases and Fisk singled for a 4-1 Boston lead. The Red Sox added single runs in each of the next three innings, shelling New York starter Pat Dobson, 11-14, in the fourth.

New York started Pat Dobson, 11-14, in the fourth. Bobby Grich singled home a run with two out in the 10th inning, giving Baltimore its first-game victory over Cleveland. Rico Carly's home run in the eighth inning gave the Indians the second game. "We've put some pressure on the Red Sox by playing .667 ball since the All-Star break," said Weaver. "If we hadn't done that, it would've been a cakewalk for the Red Sox."

Weaver will pitch 20-game winner Jim Palmer tonight against Rick Wise. Dan Ford, Rod Carew and John Briggs hit home runs as Minnesota defeated Texas. Ford gave winner Jim Hughes a 1-0 lead in the second when he hit his 15th homer of the season against Rangers starter Steve Hargan.

George Scott collected five hits and drove in two runs to lead Milwaukee past Detroit. Scott had two doubles and three singles in a 5-for-5 night and raised his season RBI count to 86—against Detroit. Jim Kolb, with relief help from Ed Rodriguez, won his 10th game against nine losses.

Leonard Gains 'Player' Award
 NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City hurler Dennis Leonard topped pitchers Jim Palmer and Catfish Hunter to gain unanimous approval as the American League Player of the Week. AL President Lee MacPhail announced today.

Leonard has won seven of his last eight starts en route to possible rookie Pitcher of the Year honors, which teammate Steve Busby claimed in 1973.

Csonka's Loss Hurts Dolphins

FOOTBALL — "They are bound to miss (Larry) Csonka's bulk and power as a pass blocker," Minnesota Vikings Coach Bud Grant said after New York. "For now I'll probably keep the grip I'm using. I just wish I could have come back Saturday or Sunday against Oakland." "Let's face it," Boston Manager Darrell Johnson said. "Fisk is the best catcher in the American League and when we don't have him we're certainly not the same team." Fisk had been sidelined with a split ring finger on his right hand.

The Dolphins gained only 132 yards on the ground, 57 of it coming on a fourth quarter sprint by Norman Bulaih. Csonka, along with Jim Kick and receiver Paul Warfield, jumped to Memphis of the NFL.

An arm injury probably will keep quarterback Roman Gabriel on the sidelines when the Philadelphia Eagles play his old team, the Los Angeles Rams, Saturday in the Los Angeles Coliseum. Some feel Gabriel already has lost his job to Mike Boryla, anyway. "When people talk about being No. 1, it's degrading you as a player. If I cared about being No. 1, I wouldn't be playing team football. This guy (Boryla) plays like I do. I'd like to think he's learned since he's been here from my presence."

Robert Sheaffer, a walk-on from Midland High, is doing the kicking for Texas in pre-season football drills.

BASEBALL — "I can't get a really good grip on the bat, but I hope things will be better soon," said Boston Red Sox

Dome Probes Solar Power

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The sun never shines on the playing field's artificial grass, but it may eventually be used to heat and cool the newly opened Superdome. The Superdome Commission agreed Tuesday to set up a committee to examine the plan's feasibility. In other business, the commission refused to ban smoking in the Dome and agreed, instead, to ask spectators to cut down on their cigarettes, cigars and pipes.

Clouds of smoke have hung like a haze over the field during professional football games, prompting some complaints about visibility and air quality. It also resulted in the commission issuing a "please cut down" policy last week. Mayor Moon Landrieu brought up the matter, but no vote was taken, just agreement to stick with the voluntary ban.

Penn St., Boston College Fire On Travel Squad Limit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's new rule on squad limits for visiting and home teams already is under fire and not a game has been played in the 1975 season. Penn State and Boston College have appealed to the NCAA because both institutions play "home" games away from home and insist they have the right to dress the maximum 60 players allowed a home team. Visiting teams are limited to 48 players.

Penn State Athletic Director Ed Czekaj said his appeal to NCAA executive assistant Warren Brown was in connection with Saturday night's contest against Temple in Philadelphia. The Penn State-Temple game is being played at neutral Franklin Field, home of the University of Pennsylvania. The game originally was slated for Penn State Nov. 15, but it was moved as part of the bi-centennial year spectacle. It's a Penn State "home game."

Ironically, Temple, which is located in Philadelphia, five miles from Franklin Field, is considered a visiting team and must limit its squad to 48 players. Temple also appealed on the ground it was not involved in any undue expense playing in its home city. Temple athletic director Ernie Casale said he was turned down. Casale said the NCAA pointed out there was a saving in pre-game meal money if 48 instead of 60 were dressed for the game. Also, wear and tear on uniforms would be less. He said it was part of the overall effort to curb athletic expenses, and Temple would abide by the rule. Czekaj was steaming Tuesday, claiming that when the rule to limit the squads was voted upon at the NCAA economic convention, universities and colleges were left under the impression there was no

The university became independent Tuesday in hopes of entering the college football Super Conference proposed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. EDITORIALS 'Shocking' Ruling!

The neighborhood concept for elementary schools long has been favored and practiced in the American educational system.

Most persons recognize and appreciate this fact. The federal courts, however, seemingly have taken it upon themselves to destroy this concept completely.

Anyway, it was quite a shock—as well as a big disappointment—when it was learned that a three-judge circuit court at New Orleans last week had issued an order overturning a lower court ruling which said that "no racial segregation or discrimination" prevailed in the Midland Independent School District.

The appellate court, however, accused Midland of using a "dual system" of education and ordered school officials "to dismantle" the system and to integrate the elementary schools.

This means, of course, discarding the neighborhood concept in favor of cross-town busing, in large part, to achieve total integration.

Midland schools, which had taken the lead in West Texas years ago in total integration of secondary schools, were of the opinion that their plan of operation for elementary schools was satisfactory. And now this!

The timing is another thing—outrageous! After all, the matter has been before the courts for three or four years. Then, all of a sudden, after years of satisfactory operation, and with a new school term just under way, comes the court order disrupting completely a smooth and successful system of operation.

It just doesn't seem right or fair! It is hoped that the public school authorities will do all in their power to retain the neighborhood concept in elementary schools. It may be that the ruling will be appealed, an action which is well justified.

Veteran school board member Gilbert Tompson, in expressing disappointment at the court order, said he thought Midland had a good plan "considering the situation peculiar to Midland." Most Midlanders undoubtedly agree with him.

Cubs: Toast Of Town

The Midland Cubs are the toast of the town... and it is perfectly fitting that they should be.

The Cubs are the champions of the Texas League's Western Division for the first time ever, and CONGRATULATIONS certainly are in order for a great, winning ball club.

The team did almost the impossible... coming from 13 1/2 games behind in June to take over the division leadership in mid-August.

Determination and team effort largely were responsible for this feat, which has won for the Cubs recognition as one of the "winningest" clubs ever in professional baseball.

Now, however, attention turns to the all-important playoffs for the Texas League pennant, with Lafayette, La., furnishing the opposition. The championship series (best three out of five) begins here tonight, with the second game also scheduled at Cub Stadium Thursday. The scene then shifts to Lafayette for the remaining game, or games, beginning Saturday.

Surely an overflow crowd of Midland and area fans will be on hand at Cub Stadium tonight to welcome their Cubbies back home from a tremendously successful road trip... and to cheer them on to victory in the opening playoff game. This would be just about the most meaningful expression of appreciation possible to a great ball club.

Meanwhile, here's hoping the "winningest" baseball team will continue its winning ways right on through the championship series, nailing down the Texas League flag for the Tall City.

ST. JOHN'S JOURNAL—

Millions Lost In Student Loan Frauds

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN

WASHINGTON — "My single overriding observation after these years in Washington," asserted outgoing Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger, "is the danger of an all-pervasive federal government. Unless checked, that growth may take from us our most precious personal freedoms. It also threatens to shatter the foundations of our economic system."

Weinberger's successor is F. David Mathews, 36-year-old former president of the University of Alabama. During his Senate confirmation hearings almost no attention was given to how Mathews intends to deal with the series of mushrooming scandals and corruption in a bureaucracy he is expected to administer.

The focus of the hearings was his position on social policy like busing.

HEW is now the largest consumer of tax dollars in the federal government, outdistancing defense spending. The dangers posed by HEW were suggested by Weinberger. "The danger is simply," he stated, "that we may continue to undermine our whole economy. If social programs continue growing for the next two decades at the same pace they have in the last two, we will spend half our gross national product for domestic social programs alone by year 2000."

President Ford's son, 23-year-old Jack, has been more outspoken than his famous father on spending for social programs. "Massive spending just kills me," he told a reporter aboard Air Force One on July 26 when he went with his father to Europe. "People are really getting tired of it after throwing money around for 20 years. It hasn't solved anything. We have all the same problems."

The President's son said his experience in college was more responsible for the above view than the influence of his father. He cited, for example, how easy it was for students to borrow as much as $350 under the HEW Office of Education Student Loan Program which, he asserted, his college friends spent frivolously. "The student loan program," he stated, "is a typical example of good intentioned, high cost programs which are being taken advantage of. It's useless."

HEW officials, according to congressional sources, have been "living with the problem for almost a decade." They have been trying to cover up the dimensions of the scandal. Its proportions are suggested by the fact that HEW has hired 200 additional collection agents to stem the rising rate of "skips" or defaults in making any payment on government-guaranteed loans to students for college or vocational schooling. Such collectors are discovering that many of the student loan applicants are nonexistent or cannot be located.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—The State Department sees a "clear possibility that terrorists will use fright weapons," such as lasers, chemicals, biologicals, radiation and nuclear arms, to blackmail and perhaps destroy nations.

Although "such use is not inevitable," according to a State Department study, the technology is available to develop scare weapons and terrorists have the ability to steal them.

Still, the State Department holds out hope that "small radical groups" cannot acquire the hideous weapons and that "larger terrorist organizations" will be deterred from using them "by what would be an extremely severe response by the world community."

World opinion, however, has not deterred terrorists from committing small-scale outrages. Since 1968, terrorists have killed 500 people and have wounded another 600 to 800. Among the victims, 16 U.S. officials have been murdered and 32 have been wounded.

The terrorists also have managed to arm themselves with deadly, sophisticated weapons, including shoulder-fired Soviet missiles capable of knocking down airliners.

The State Department study confirms our past reports that Libya has been an important source of weapons for terrorist groups. On May 25, 1974, we called Libya's Muammar Qaddafi one of the world's most irresponsible leaders for arming terrorists, without much thought for the consequences.

The Soviets have sent huge arms shipments to Qaddafi who has supplied terrorist groups from Ireland to the Philippines. Meanwhile, he is trying to get his hands on tactical nuclear weapons.

Apparently, terrorist organizations work together through an international radical underground. "We have seen cooperation among terrorist groups in Latin America," states the study. "Additionally, there are indications of increasing cooperation among the Baader-Meinhof gang in West Germany, the so-called Japanese Red Army and Palestinian terrorist groups, particularly the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine."

Kidnaping has become a favorite terrorist tactic. The State Department cites a Rand Corporation study of 63 major diplomatic kidnaping efforts. In 87 per cent of the cases, the hostages were seized successfully. In 79 per cent of the cases, the kidnapers escaped punishment.

There also have been ominous intelligence reports that the international terrorists are plotting to zero in on the United States.

Footnote: The State Department conducted the study in response to questions from the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, which will publish the results shortly.

SOVIET GRAIN CONTROVERSY: The Soviets have asked Washington for permission to purchase another 11 million tons of grain. This would more than double the 9.8 million tons which already have been sold to Russia.

The total sale, if the new request is approved, would come close to 21 million tons—almost two million tons more than the controversial 1972 wheat deal.

Farm organizations are for approval of the Soviet request. The farmers contend that the government encouraged them to increase their planting this spring. The American wheat crop, therefore, is expected to surpass two billion bushels this year. Two-thirds of this must be sold overseas, the farmers claim. Otherwise, they will be stuck with huge surplus stocks and the bottom will fall out of the market.

The sale of another 11 million tons to Russia, on the other hand, will push up grain prices. One possibility, which the diplomats are trying to work out, is to exchange American grain for Soviet oil. Our sources say the U.S. might be able to import about eight per cent of its oil requirements from the Soviet Union.

The Return Of The Imperial Congress

WASHINGTON (KFS)—The Imperial Presidency is only a memory now, a historical phenomenon brooding in San Clemente exile. But we now have a new institutional claimant to the Purple—the Imperial Congress, whose 535 standardbearers returned to Washington today.

I am reminded of the French and Italian knights of the early 16th Century, who wore so much armor that they hardly could move to fight. Indeed, this was the design—if they accomplished next to nothing, they were almost impossible to kill.

Our representatives and senators are doing the same thing, armoring themselves politically to be invulnerable to the ebb and flow of battle—known in contemporary democratic parlance as the clamor of the people and the roar of the ballot box. Instead of progressively increasing the thickness of their breastplates and helmets, they are increasing the size of their staffs (congressmen now have 18-count 'em-aides), stationery allowances, computer allowances, postage-free mailings, and so forth. It works: In the last eight years, 95 per cent of all those incumbents running for the general election have been returned to office.

The Americans for Democratic Action recently published a special report saying that a congressional incumbent seeking re-election enjoys a half-million dollar annual advantage over non-incumbent challengers—$33,725 in salaries and office space, a $120,791 communication and travel allowance, and $33,989 in miscellaneous benefits. Each year, congressmen quietly vote themselves substantial benefit and allowance increases. If congressmen do not seem to do much legislating these days, it is partly because they are busy running year-round, taxpayer-financed re-election operations.

To house this political armor, Congress needs more and more space, so the House now is planning a fourth massive office building (at an estimated cost of $200 million) and the Senate is looking for building No. 3. Rep. Charles Wilson of Texas also notes that "senior members tend to accumulate offices the way Arab sheiks accumulate wives."

What is more, Congress will tolerate no public interference with its privileges. Both the Senate and House have fought subpoenas seeking staff testimony about alleged abuse of free franking privileges by members. Nor does Congress seem willing to go along with proposals for a blue-ribbon panel to examine the entire problem of staffing, office space, patronage, ethics and the use of computers.

Likewise, Congress has ignored the general problem of reform. In the words of Common Cause Chairman John Gardner: "This is the post-Watergate Congress that promised to move us at least a few steps beyond the quicksands of special-interest manipulation. It was swept in on a wave of revulsion against politics as usual. But it has yet to enact one piece of reform legislation."

More to the point, it has yet to enact much of anything. Cushioned by thousands of staffers, backstopped by hordes of computers and communications facilities, armed with free mailing privileges, this is a Congress principally focused on the technology of self-perpetuation. As of 1975, a great orator like Daniel Webster never would bother to repeat any of his stirring speeches in the Senate—not with television unable to cover floor debate. Within a few years, congressmen may even be able to vote from their offices electronically, thereby being freed to spend even less time on the floor and even more on homestate political planning.

Like the topheavy knights of the 16th Century, congressmen are far past the days of legislative jousting and verbal cut-and-thrust. Mostly they just sit around in their castles, surrounded by expensive retinues of retainers, costing a damn sight more than they are worth.

'Spirit' Kept Woman Going On Death Valley Ride

FURNACE CREEK, Calif. (AP) — Never underestimate the power of a horse, or a 62-year-old woman, Flora Stewart said as she and her palomino finished a two-day jaunt across blistering Death Valley.

The horse had shed its orange hot pants, but Mrs. Stewart was still wearing her sequined leotard and sombrero when she reached a guest ranch Monday night to end the 62-mile journey.

"There were points where the flesh was ready to give up, but the spirit wouldn't let it," said Mrs. Stewart.

She said she and her horse had encountered temperatures that reached 126 degrees at midday and gusty afternoon winds that lifted her two inches off the saddle at one point.

Mrs. Stewart rode 18 miles Sunday from Hell's Gate to Furnace Creek. On Monday, she and her horse were taken before dawn by vehicle to Ashford Mill, 44 miles to the south, then she retraced the route back to Furnace Creek.

No one is known to have made a horseback journey across the valley before.

"I like doing things no one else has done," Mrs. Stewart said in a telephone interview Monday night. "It was a challenge."

"I wanted to prove there's still a lot a 62-year-old woman can do. And I wanted to prove what a magnificent animal the horse is. In this day of the energy crisis, the horse is not obsolete."

Her 8-year-old palomino, Son of Fire—she calls him "Sonny"—donned a pair of orange hot pants for the first leg of the journey Sunday. Lettered on either side was an advertisement for a Palm Springs clothing store where Mrs. Stewart works.

She said the hot pants were shed Monday, however, because the roads through the bleak valley were virtually deserted—which meant no one would see the commercial message on Sonny's derriere: "Hot pants for studs at Hale's on El Paseo."

Mrs. Stewart said she had been planning the trip for nine years but until now "couldn't find anybody with enough guts" to escort her. Her employer and three other persons finally agreed, following in a car to provide food and water at hourly stops along the way.

You'll be paying the bill, so let Congress know your choice!

Congress is about to make an important decision that could affect the cost and gas mileage of your car for years to come.

Since you will be paying the bill, we thought you should be aware of two major alternatives being considered by Congress right now. They concern the control of emissions from cars. Should the standards governing automotive emissions be made even stricter than they are today? Or are they strict enough now? Take your choice.

Choice 1

The President and his Administration have evaluated the pros and cons of current law governing emissions and recommend that the standards for today's cars be extended for five years.

Results

- There will be continued improvement of air quality as new cars replace old cars. (Compared to pre-controlled cars, today's standards result in reductions of over 80% for hydrocarbons and for carbon monoxide and about 40% for oxides of nitrogen according to industry data.)
- Working with current standards, automakers can meet their individual commitments to the President and improve industry-wide gas mileage between 1974 and 1980 by an average of at least 40%.

Choice 2

Present Federal Law calls for even stricter emissions standards for 1977-1978 model cars than those required today. Some members of Congress favor these stricter standards.

Results

- Stricter standards would add only marginal improvement to air quality. (California is an exception. It has a special air quality problem and has its own special standards.)
- To our knowledge no auto manufacturer yet knows how to meet the 1978 standards on a mass production basis. Current "best effort" experimental systems however indicate the following fuel economy and cost penalties:
 - your gas mileage could be reduced by 5% to as much as 30% according to publicly stated company estimates
 - the cost of your car could increase by an estimated $150 to $400 according to company estimates in statements to Congress.

Where do you stand?

These are the choices. We thought you ought to know what they are, and what they will mean to you as a customer. Your United States Senators and Representative should know what you think. Write to them.

Let your U.S. Senators and Representative know your choice.

Utilities Panel Elects Garrett Morris Chairman

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Garrett Morris, a Fort Worth lawyer and veteran of service on two state agencies, has been elected chairman of the new Texas Public Utilities Commission.

As soon as the commission met Tuesday for its first meeting, commissioners Alan Erwin of Baytown and George Cowden of Dallas said they had conferred and decided Morris should be chairman.

Morris, who is closing down his legal practice in Fort Worth, also has served on the State Board of Public Welfare and the Texas Highway Commission.

The commissioners' salaries of $40,500 per year began running the moment they were sworn in by State Supreme Court Justices Ruel Walker and Sam Johnson.

"I wish you clear vision, courageous hearts and an extremely tough hide," Walker said.

The commissioners are meeting temporarily in Atty. Gen. John Hill's conference room on the seventh floor of the Supreme Court Building and planned to gather again this afternoon.

They declared they are officially open to job applicants, and their early order of business will be to hire an administrator, general counsel and other staff. They also need office space and planned to meet quickly with the State Board of Control to arrange that.

While the commission does not begin its ratemaking duties until next Sept. 1, Hill said its time after Jan. 1 will be taken up with other regulatory matters, including providing staff assistance to cities on utility rates.

The commission assumes all of its regulatory powers except ratemaking on Jan. 1. On Sept. 1, 1976, it acquires rate authority over telephone companies and most rural utilities, except for gas service and water provided by water districts and river authorities. It also will begin hearing appeals from municipal decisions on utility rates. On Sept. 1, 1977, city governments may—by either referendum or council decision—transfer their authority over electric, water and sewer utilities to the commission.

Gas ratemaking powers remain with city governments and the Texas Railroad Commission.

The Texas Department of Safety says the state's crime rate in the first six months of this year was 17.4 per cent higher than it was during the comparable period of 1974.

Comparing the six-month periods, the DPS found the murder rate was up 10.7 per cent, rape 13.1 per cent, robbery 14.8 per cent, burglary 18.8 per cent, aggravated assault 3.6 per cent, theft 19.2 per cent, and auto theft 8.3 per cent.

Rural areas had a much higher increase in major crimes than cities, 24.7 per cent compared with 16.7 per cent.

The percentage increases are in the rate per 100,000 people, not in the absolute number of offenses.

During the first half of this year, 310,929 major crimes were committed, or 5,160.6 per 100,000 population. The comparable figures for January-June 1974 were 259,267 offenses, for a rate of 4,396.6 per 100,000.

The percentage of crimes cleared by arrest were up considerably for each category of crime. Overall, 25 per cent of all crimes were cleared, compared with 22 per cent a year ago. Eighty-five per cent of all murders were solved, compared with 77 per cent in the first half of 1974. Sixty-one per cent of all rapes were cleared by arrest, compared with 51 per cent.

Texas Crime Rate Up 17.4 Per Cent

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Department of Safety says the state's crime rate in the first six months of this year was 17.4 per cent higher than it was during the comparable period of 1974.

Comparing the six-month periods, the DPS found the murder rate was up 10.7 per cent, rape 13.1 per cent, robbery 14.8 per cent, burglary 18.8 per cent, aggravated assault 3.6 per cent, theft 19.2 per cent, and auto theft 8.3 per cent.

Rural areas had a much higher increase in major crimes than cities, 24.7 per cent compared with 16.7 per cent.

The percentage increases are in the rate per 100,000 people, not in the absolute number of offenses.

During the first half of this year, 310,929 major crimes were committed, or 5,160.6 per 100,000 population. The comparable figures for January-June 1974 were 259,267 offenses, for a rate of 4,396.6 per 100,000.

The percentage of crimes cleared by arrest were up considerably for each category of crime. Overall, 25 per cent of all crimes were cleared, compared with 22 per cent a year ago. Eighty-five per cent of all murders were solved, compared with 77 per cent in the first half of 1974. Sixty-one per cent of all rapes were cleared by arrest, compared with 51 per cent.

But solution rates on property crimes, while rising, remained low, including 20 per cent of all burglaries, compared with 17 per cent last year.

The biggest crime rate increase was posted by rural areas with more than 50 people per square mile, where the murder rate increased by 123.8 per cent and the total crime rate went up by 50.7 per cent.

Percy Foreman To Stand Trial Early Next Year

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Justice Department because they refused to allow the CIA to operate within their businesses.

They are accused of hiring private investigators to tap the telephones of their father's aides.

The July indictment alleges there was a cover up by all defendants to keep the Hunts from being indicted on the wiretapping charges.

The two pleaded innocent Tuesday at their arraignment here on the charges, which grew out of a case involving two sons of the late multimillionaire H. L. Hunt.

Hudson and Foreman were indicted in July by a federal grand jury in Dallas along with W. Herbert Hunt, Nelson Bunker Hunt and three other Dallas men. The Hunts had been indicted in 1973 on federal wiretapping charges.

Woodward told lawyers in the case all briefs must be filed by Oct. 1.

Foreman and Hudson are scheduled to be tried in Dallas while the Hunt wiretapping trial has been moved to Lubbock on a change of venue. The Hunt trial is set to begin Sept. 15.

Foreman, Hudson and the two Hunts are charged with two counts of obstruction of justice and one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

More Encephalitis Cases Reported

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston area health officials have reported four more suspected cases of St. Louis encephalitis (SLE) but authorities continue to discount the possibility of an epidemic here.

The four suspected cases are announced Tuesday include a 10-year-old boy, the first potential young victim of the disease, also known as sleeping sickness.

Since the SLE outbreak was announced last week by health authorities, there have been five confirmed cases and eight suspected cases.

City Health Director Dr. Albert G. Randall said of the 13 known and suspected cases, only one had any serious illness and this patient is responding well to treatment at a hospital.

Of the 13 combined and suspected cases, eight are in hospitals. The group ranges in age from 10 to 85.

All of the victims live in the central and eastern part of the city and officials said mosquito spraying has been stepped up in those areas.

The Hunts have claimed they are being prosecuted by the

'Spirit' Kept Woman Going On Death Valley Ride

FURNACE CREEK, Calif. (AP) — Never underestimate the power of a horse, or a 62-year-old woman, Flora Stewart said as she and her palomino finished a two-day jaunt across blistering Death Valley.

The horse had shed its orange hot pants, but Mrs. Stewart was still wearing her sequined leotard and sombrero when she reached a guest ranch Monday night to end the 62-mile journey.

"There were points where the flesh was ready to give up, but the spirit wouldn't let it," said Mrs. Stewart.

She said she and her horse had encountered temperatures that reached 126 degrees at midday and gusty afternoon winds that lifted her two inches off the saddle at one point.

Mrs. Stewart rode 18 miles Sunday from Hell's Gate to Furnace Creek. On Monday, she and her horse were taken before dawn by vehicle to Ashford Mill, 44 miles to the south, then she retraced the route back to Furnace Creek.

No one is known to have made a horseback journey across the valley before.

"I like doing things no one else has done," Mrs. Stewart said in a telephone interview Monday night. "It was a challenge."

"I wanted to prove there's still a lot a 62-year-old woman can do. And I wanted to prove what a magnificent animal the horse is. In this day of the energy crisis, the horse is not obsolete."

Her 8-year-old palomino, Son of Fire—she calls him "Sonny"—donned a pair of orange hot pants for the first leg of the journey Sunday. Lettered on either side was an advertisement for a Palm Springs clothing store where Mrs. Stewart works.

She said the hot pants were shed Monday, however, because the roads through the bleak valley were virtually deserted—which meant no one would see the commercial message on Sonny's derriere. "Hot pants for studs at Hale's on El Paseo."

Mrs. Stewart said she had been planning the trip for nine years but until now "couldn't find anybody with enough guts" to escort her. Her employer and three other persons finally agreed, following in a car to provide food and water at hourly stops along the way.

You'll be paying the bill, so let Congress know your choice!

Congress is about to make an important decision that could affect the cost and gas mileage of your car for years to come.

Since you will be paying the bill, we thought you should be aware of two major alternatives being considered by Congress right now. They concern the control of emissions from cars. Should the standards governing automotive emissions be made even stricter than they are today? Or are they strict enough now? Take your choice.

Choice 1

The President and his Administration have evaluated the pros and cons of current law governing emissions and recommend that the standards for today's cars be extended for five years.

Results

- There will be continued improvement of air quality as new cars replace old cars. (Compared to pre-controlled cars, today's standards result in reductions of over 80% for hydrocarbons and for carbon monoxide and about 40% for oxides of nitrogen according to industry data.)
- Working with current standards, automakers can meet their individual commitments to the President and improve industry-wide gas mileage between 1974 and 1980 by an average of at least 40%.

Choice 2

Present Federal Law calls for even stricter emissions standards for 1977-1978 model cars than those required today. Some members of Congress favor these stricter standards.

Results

- Stricter standards would add only marginal improvement to air quality. (California is an exception. It has a special air quality problem and has its own special standards.)
- To our knowledge no auto manufacturer yet knows how to meet the 1978 standards on a mass production basis. Current "best effort" experimental systems however indicate the following fuel economy and cost penalties:
 - your gas mileage could be reduced by 5% to as much as 30% according to publicly stated company estimates
 - the cost of your car could increase by an estimated $150 to $400 according to company estimates in statements to Congress.

Where do you stand?

These are the choices. We thought you ought to know what they are, and what they will mean to you as a customer. Your United States Senators and Representative should know what you think. Write to them.

Let your U.S. Senators and Representative know your choice.

Boren Fears 'Promoters' Moving Into Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. David Boren said Tuesday he is concerned because he has become aware that oil and gas "promoters" who "fear prosecution" in Texas are moving into Oklahoma.

Boren said he met earlier Tuesday with Dick Hewitt of Fort Worth, Tex., regional director of the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission, and Bruce Day, appointed by Boren Tuesday as director of the Oklahoma Securities Commission, to discuss the problems.

Oklahoma has no law to stop such promoters, Boren said, because they operate under "Schedule D" regulations and "these types of securities are not regulated at present."

The governor said he has asked Day to develop a proposed law for the legislature to consider when it reconvenes in January "to prevent Oklahoma from becoming a haven for such activity."

The firms, Boren said, are moving into Oklahoma because of "adverse publicity in Texas" and "fear of prosecution."

Boren and Day said the "Schedule D" regulations are designed to allow small independent oil and gas operators to raise investment capital with a minimum of federal regulation, but they said this has led to some unethical operators getting into the field.

Neither Boren nor Day would specify firms involved or the location of their headquarters, but other sources said "boiler room operations," involving 20 or more salesmen operating out of one-room offices, are in operation in Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Ardmore and Durant.

"I hate to tell you this, but these people are coming across the Red River like lemmings," one federal official reportedly told Oklahoma authorities.

The firms apparently are recruiting salesmen through classified ads in some major state newspapers, promising $25,000 to $75,000. One former salesman for one of the firms gave state officials a statement saying he was hired after answering such an advertisement.

In the affidavit, the former salesman said the firms employ salesmen who work only about 20 hours per week and earn high commissions. He said they sell only to prospects in other states.

A check on recent filings in Secretary of State Jerome Byrd's office revealed that one of the firms mentioned prominently in the Texas investigation recently incorporated in Oklahoma. One of the Texas men also reserved 27 names for possible incorporation in Oklahoma.

A state official said that is the normal way the firms operate. "That way, if somebody gets a cease-and-desist order against one firm, they just take one of the other names and they're off again," he said.

One state official said the sales pitch is more effective in states where people are not as knowledgeable about oil and gas exploration. He quoted one salesman as telling a prospect "he didn't need a geologist to tell him where to drill in Osage County because there was oil any place you sunk a well."

The former salesman who gave state officials a statement said he was told one young man made $900 in one week in the Oklahoma City operation and an older man who had previous experience in Texas made $2,200 in the same week.

He said he became suspicious when he was told the interests in proposed wells were being divided among 360 prospects who were asked to contribute about $2,000 each.

He said a friend told him it normally takes about $200,000 to $250,000 to complete a producing well.

"I got to figuring," he said, "that if they sold 360 units at roughly $2,000, you are looking at $720,000. And even if they drilled a well and spent $200,000, there is another $520,000 going someplace."

The salesman said he was instructed to try to give the impression he was a high-ranking official in an exploration firm. He said they concentrate on out-of-state prospects in northern and eastern states on the theory that they will believe anything an Oklahoman tell them about oil or gas.

Both Boren and Day said the operation would hurt legitimate small operators who traditionally finance exploration by getting friends and acquaintances to invest in wells they drill.

"We've got hundreds of legitimate operators that need that capital," Day said.

New Mexico Firm Offers To Dispose Of Texas Waste
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Albuquerque firm is offering New Mexico as a dump for chemical wastes from Texas plants, the state Environmental Improvement Agency has confirmed.

The EIA said Western Chemical Co. of Albuquerque contacted Velsicol Chemical, Inc., and Amisco, Inc., both of Beaumont, Tex., offering to dispose of their chemical waste in New Mexico.

The EIA said it is concerned because of the "lack of information about the composition of the hazardous waste, and the proposed disposal site and what environmental controls would be required."

Velsicol plant manager Scott Merchant said Western representatives, as part of a sales pitch, showed him a letter from McKinley County Sheriff Bob Bass advising the county had no regulations on industrial waste disposal.

Bass said he had researched the matter but he declined to say whether he had written the letter.

McKinley County is in West Central New Mexico.

Last Friday Gov. Jerry Apodaca ordered state law enforcement agencies and ports of entry to be on guard against any unauthorized attempt to dispose of chemical wastes in New Mexico.

The EIA said two Western representatives, Paul Harris and A.R. Ortega, were seeking disposal sites.

Carl Lee, Amisco president, said Harris approached him about a contract to dump chemical waste.

Lee said he later learned Western wasn't licensed to do business in New Mexico.

He also said, "We do not indiscriminately dispose of anything."

Merchant said his firm uses the services of waste disposal companies. But he said such contracts are researched thoroughly "because we're still liable, even if (the waste) leaves the state."

Efforts to contact Western representatives were unsuccessful.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Court Judge Peter Michael Curry has set a hearing for Friday to determine if he still has jurisdiction over San Antonio's $150 million damage suit against Coastal States Gas Corp.

Last week a state court judge in Houston issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting municipalities, including San Antonio, from further court action against Coastal.

Mainland China Oil Boom Could Loosen Mideast Crude Monopoly

BY JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A mainland China oil boom is developing that holds prospects for vast world change within a decade, including an alternate energy source for the United States, a China authority and business negotiator believes.

The boom could also mean billions of dollars of trade and thousands of jobs for Americans, said Harned Pettus Hoose, who was born and raised in China and who represents a number of U.S. companies in business dealings there.

Discoveries and developments on the mainland, including completion of a long pipeline and the deepening of harbors, already portend the emergence of the People's Republic from an oil-scarce nation to one of huge surpluses.

Among the long-range effects foreseen by Hoose, who is a voluntary, nongovernmental adviser to U.S. government departments and who helped prepare President Richard M. Nixon for his trip to the People's Republic:

"A loosening of the Mideast oil monopoly power; a hastening of the industrial development of China; a massive economic challenge to the Soviet Union in Asia and the Pacific."

Of immediate significance, he believes, is that within a few years American, Japanese and European industries are likely to be heavily involved as sellers of technology, machinery, equipment, construction materials and advice.

"When the oil boom breaks open upon world markets, probably in the very early 1980s, the People's Republic will be one of the world's great oil powers," Hoose said in a brief visit here.

"China has enough petroleum and natural gas resources to floodlight Asia and more, and to export on a large scale," said Hoose, a Los Angeles attorney who spent 23 years on the mainland prior to the republic's formation in 1949.

In 10 trips to China since 1972 — he is there now — Hoose has developed sources at the highest level of Chinese industry, one of whom told him this summer that China's proved and probable reserves are larger than those now reported for the entire Mideast.

Although China's production of crude was negligible before 1957, and self-sufficiency was achieved only in the late 1960s, a serious export program began in 1972 with deliveries of oil to Japan.

China produced 65 million tons of crude in 1974, which placed it just behind Indonesia as the world's 13th largest producer. Hoose said he was informed reliably that 1975 crude production would be about 85 million tons.

Exports of crude in 1974 were four million tons, and the Chinese claim they will more than double that figure in 1976, said Hoose, who believes the exports and their impact will steadily grow.

A knowledgeable senior official told him in late July that crude production by 1990 would exceed 300 million tons, and that exports in that year would be more than 65 million tons.

A Japanese study foresees China's crude production exceeding 450 million tons by 1990, which Hoose believes would then place it in a top five group along with the United States, the Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia and Iran.

"When I asked a senior Chinese official to comment on the Japanese study," said Hoose, "he said flatly that China will produce more than that and sooner."

International power balances and national economies are likely to be shifted by the swift transformation of the huge nation. China's economic challenge to the Soviet Union in Asia and the Pacific will be massive, said Hoose, adding:

"The Chinese plan to open their international trade doors and drown the Russian hegemonists in a sea of Chinese oil."

Oil Theft Ring To Be Discussed

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators from Texas and Louisiana were scheduled to meet today with Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill in Austin to discuss an alleged interstate oil theft ring.

The new charges involve a theft of about 400 barrels of crude oil taken on two different occasions, said Taylor County Sheriff's Capt. Otis Wiley.

Among those due to attend were David Gensler of the organized crime unit in the Louisiana attorney general's office, and Richard Cameron of the Louisiana State Police special investigations unit.

Royal Hart, district attorney from San Angelo who handled the original arrests in connection with the alleged oil thefts, also was expected to be present.

Eight men are in custody or have been freed under bond after being charged in the case. Four men remained in custody at Ballinger.

Hart has described the alleged theft ring's method of operation as locating full oil storage tanks in the West Central Texas and removing the oil into tank trucks for movement to other areas for sale.

Meanwhile, the Houston Post said it had learned that felony theft charges have been filed in Taylor County against Dennis Davis, 31, and Jackie Clough, 20, both of Abilene, and Clinton L. Wilkerson, 43, believed to be from Houston.

Felony charges were filed earlier against the trio in Runnels County, where they are in custody.
