World Series Drama Unfolds

An old friend of mine was a famous pitcher a few years back when the Dodgers were in Brooklyn. Carl Erskine made a record for the most strikeouts in World Series play, a record that stood up for a good many years. I often talked with Carl about the relationship of hard trying and the danger of over-pressing, as one tended to tense up under pressure.

He pointed out the importance of the mental ability to "go away in thought" momentarily into an atmosphere of calm even while in the midst of a hard-fought game. He told of one occasion, an extremely hot day when the pressure mounted and he became very tired.

While he walked about the pitcher's mound picking up dirt and wiping his hands on his pants, he returned in memory to a misty morning when he and another pitcher were fishing and from across the water came the sound of singing at a morning prayer meeting. The song was an old hymn of peace and quiet. In a few seconds of this "memory trip," Carl recovered strength and poise and performed effectively and with energy to spare.

At another time it was the fifth inning of the fifth game of the World Series and Erskine was on the mound for the Dodgers. That day also happened to be Carl and Betty's fifth wedding anniversary. Carl was going good and had amassed a three-run lead, the score standing at 5 to 2 in favor of the Dodgers.

Perhaps the pitcher was trying too hard and over-pressing, the result of which is often to throw him off his rhythm. Whatever the cause, suddenly the opposing team came up with a barrage of hits and the bases were loaded. Tensed up, Carl threw a fast ball straight over the plate. The batter connected with it. The ball sailed over the fence into Bedford Avenue for a home run and four runs came in, changing the score to 6 to 3 against the Dodgers.

In the ensuing bedlam the Brooklyn manager, Charlie Dressen, walked slowly away from the dugout to the pitcher's mound, where Carl waited rather despondently. Dressen took the ball from Carl, tossed it up a couple of times, kicked the dust, then said, surprisingly, "Carl, isn't this your fifth wedding anniversary?" Astonished, Carl replied, "Yes, Mr. Dressen, this is our fifth wedding anniversary."

"Well," continued Dressen, "aren't you going to take Betty out to dinner tonight?"

I think all of us have wondered what is said in those dramatic conferences between pitcher and manager in crisis moments of a baseball game. Carl himself was amazed.

Dressen handed the ball to Erskine. "You're my man, Carl. Finish this game before dark." In the four innings that followed in that World Series game, 12 opposing players came to bat but not one got to first base. The Dodgers drove in two more runs and the game ended in a victory for Erskine by a score of 7 to 6.

Ford Brings Urgent Plea For Oil Price Decontrol Legislation To Midland

By JOE SALMAN
President Ford took several shots at Congress here Saturday as he hammered away for his crude oil decontrol program and other legislation that would "keep this oil and this natural gas flowing from this region."

The President, in Midland to make the dedicatory address for Midland's new Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, said he now has hope that the nation finally is on the road to energy independence.

"The vote in the United States Senate this week sustaining my veto of an extension of the oil price controls has paved the way for decontrol," the President said.

"We have a long way to go, but between January of this year, and even this past week, we had made virtually no progress whatsoever, but we got 39 staunch and strong people in the United States Senate to stand up and say something had to be done. If we had lost that vote I doubt if we could have gotten off dead center for the next year and a half."

Almost 400 invited guests heard Ford, the first incumbent president ever to visit Midland, take a strong stand for deregulation of natural gas. His remarks were greeted with enthusiastic applause.

"Natural gas in one of the most environmentally acceptable forms of energy, but despite the many pluses of natural gas — and they are wonderful by any standard — the history of the federal government's policy toward this valuable asset has been a very sorry one," the President said.

"Over the past 20 years, the Federal Power Commission, as required by Congressional legislation, has kept interstate prices at an artificially low level, and that has seriously hampered exploration and development.

"I think—and I say this quietly, but with firmness and determination — we must stop federal regulation of prices on new gas for interstate use."

The President made several references to the Permian Basin's role in the nation's energy picture.

"The enterprise and the spirit of hard-working people in West Texas show to me the great productivity of this region, the land, the people, the mind, the physical effort this area furnishes the nation — cattle and cotton, oil, natural gas, but also the genius of people, both in effort and in mind," he stated.

"You have also demonstrated how much Americans can accomplish with the right incentives — incentives are the fuel of the free market system and the energy West Texas helps to supply is the fuel of our nation's economy."

"The Permian Basin produces 25 per cent of the nation's domestic oil and 20 per cent of the United States' natural gas production. How fortunate the rest of us are that this great region is a part of our country."

The President took one shot at Congress when he expressed his disappointment that the rose-sprinkling ceremony over Santa Rita No. 2 had to be cancelled due to the rain.

"I am particularly pleased to take part in the dedication of this very fascinating petroleum museum. I just wish that the ceremony could have been held outdoors because I was honestly looking for that shower of rose petals from the top of the rig."

"Believe me, in the last year, when it comes to oil from the Congress, I have had very little roses coming up."

The original rose petal ceremony was performed at Santa Rita No. 1, discovery well of the Big Lake field, which generated speedy development of the Permian Basin petroleum industry.

Eastern investors in the operation had requested the late Frank T. Pickrell, promoter of the well, to climb to the top (See FORD Page 4A)

Officials, Citizens Impressed With Ford's 'Warmth,' Message

By GEORGE MASSEY
"He's a man's man," was the way one of Midland's most prominent citizens, Clarence Scharbauer Jr., described President Ford after the country's chief executive completed a whirlwind visit to the Permian Basin.

"The President's visit and dedication of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum meant as much to Midland as anything that's ever happened here. I've been a supporter of Ford's for a long time, and I'm going to continue my support," Scharbauer said.

Emil C. Rassman, chairman of the Board of Executors of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, said, "The President made a fine speech. He honored Midland and this museum. There just aren't many museums that can claim to have been dedicated by the President of the United States."

"I just wish the President's scheduled had permitted more time for him to meet the people of the West Texas and Permian Basin area — he would have carried a more solid picture of us back to Washington if he would have had more time," Rassman said.

"The President noted his efforts at decontrolling the petroleum industry and bringing about real incentives to attract risk capital into the petroleum exploration operations — those things are very important to us," Rassman said.

"The dedication was honored by the presence of Congressman George Mahon, U.S. Sen. John Tower, Rep. Richard White and Ambassador George Bush," Rassman said, "and it was a great day being that George T. Abell, founding father of the (See MIDLANDERS Page 4A)

Crowd Gets Little More Than Glimpse Of Ford

By LUANNA CROW
The estimated 7,000 to 10,000 West Texans who braved the drizzling rain here Saturday to catch a glimpse of the President of the United States got precisely that.

The crowd formed at Midland Regional Air Terminal to greet President Ford after rainy weather scratched plans for a public dedication of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame.

In lieu of full-scale ceremonies at the museum site, the public was privy only to a few handshakes and a brief greeting by the chief executive at the air terminal. Despite the soggy weather, the crowd gave the President a warm welcome as he deplaned from Air Force One a half-hour past the scheduled time of arrival. Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo was the first to shake his hand.

A diversified crowd—Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, ROTC drill teams, Midland Chamber of Commerce personnel, high school bands and mothers toting babies — huddled under umbrellas in the 52-degree weather as the President skirted the spectators' perimeter, shaking hands as he moved toward the speaker's platform.

Speaking no more than five minutes, he first made a campaign plug for U.S. Rep. George Mahon, who introduced him Saturday, telling the crowd it was "a great privilege and pleasure to come and see the many constituents of Congressman Mahon."

He excused "this little sprinkle you're having," thanking the West Texans for turning out in the inclement weather to give him "a very, very warm welcome."

Thanking the mayors of both Midland and Odessa for their hospitality, the President also expressed "deep appreciation" to the bands of both the Odessa High School Broncos and the Lee High School Rebels and noted there "seems to me there might be a little competition between the two."

Ford concluded his address, telling the crowd, "I love you and I thank you and I wish you the very best as I would my friends from my own home town."

After shaking a few more hands, he was whisked off to the private dedication of the petroleum museum.

The spectators appeared largely disappointed at the brevity of the President's comments and many com- (See CROWD Page 4A)

Day Worth Wait Outside Museum

The umbrellas were scarce and mostly lacking. The drizzle was constant and a bit annoying. It was an unusual afternoon: Boredom had eluded the crowd.

For the scores of West Texans awaiting a first glimpse, perhaps even an absorbing look, of the President, suffering through the dampness of the overcast day was worth the wait.

Aside from the glimpse, there was the off-chance of a handshake with the President. And many got both, as Gerald Ford — liberally covered by Secret Service agents — made his way Saturday into the Permian Basin Museum, Library and Hall of Fame. About an hour later, he was out.

"How are you? Nice to see you," the President said gently but firmly to the people who were strangers to him. Relatively few were at the museum to greet, and just to say they had seen, the President.

The multitude had seen him earlier. That was when up to 10,000 folks saw Air Force One, (See WAIT Page 4A)

Moynihan Says Accord Near On Economic Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — "We've got 90 per cent agreement," U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan said Saturday as United Nations delegates planned to continue negotiations through the weekend to finish a new document on economic help to developing countries.

"The two-week special economic session of the General Assembly, originally scheduled to finish Friday, was expected to wind up with adoption of the document at a meeting Monday morning. The assembly's 14-week annual session begins the next day.

"I think we are agreed on about all except point one — trade," Moynihan said in reference to the six points on the agenda.

The agenda, on the general subject of "development and international economic cooperation," includes international trade, development aid, science and technology, industrialization, food and agriculture and restructuring the United Nations — all for the primary benefit of developing countries.

Despite some behind-the-scenes clashes, diplomats generally held that a spirit of compromise between the Third World and the industrialized countries had marked the session.

Benavides School District Stripped Of Accreditation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Board of Education stripped the Benavides Independent School District in Duval County of its accreditation Saturday, but the district can get it back, plus $46,000 in vocational funds, if it meets standards by Oct. 15.

Even if it fails to meet that deadline, the district can get accreditation for its college-bound students and also retroactive payments of the vocational funds by meeting those standards sometime during the school year.

The board noted that the district's board has continued to violate state law in several respects, especially in the matter of discussing and voting on items not listed on its agenda, despite the recommendation July 14 by the State Commission on School Accreditation that the district lose its accreditation for just such violations.

In other action Saturday, the board "by acclamation" appointed Mary Ann Leveridge of East Bernard to succeed Duane McCullough on the board. McCullough moved from Victoria to Houston, taking him out of the 14th Congressional District, which he represented on the board.

The board upheld Education Commissioner M. L. Brockette's refusal to hear an appeal from Gerald E. Jordan, whose teaching contract was not renewed with the school district that serves the prison system at Huntsville.

Man, 79, Held In Wife's Death After Sex Quarrel

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A 79-year-old man who believed his 70-year-old common-law wife was feeding him a sexual repressant has been booked for investigation of murder in her death, police said Saturday.

Officers said Deservee Sutton and Mabel Horton quarreled Wednesday over sex problems and Sutton accused her of mixing salt-peter in his food for the last four years. Salt-peter, used in the making of fireworks and gunpowder, was at one time reputed to reduce sexual drive.

The woman then stormed out of the house in the company of an unidentified neighbor, officers said. They said she got to the porch when Sutton, partially crippled, allegedly took aim from a chair in the bedroom and fired a 20-gauge shotgun.

Miss Horton was dead on arrival at Merritt Hospital.

In addition, Rockefeller maintained that Ford can beat inflation if Congress would cooperate.

Maryland Town To Celebrate Mother Seton's Canonization

By TERRY COLVIN
EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — About 20,000 people are expected in this hamlet of small brick row houses and narrow winding streets today to celebrate the canonization of Elizabeth Ann Seton, America's first native-born saint.

Emmitsburg, 10 miles south of Gettysburg, Pa., in the shadow of the Catoctin Mountains, was chosen by Mother Seton in 1809 as the place to found the Daughters of Charity of St. Joseph.

All day today, prelates from throughout the East will celebrate mass in honor of her canonization in Rome by Pope Paul VI, culminating a 94-year effort to bestow sainthood on Mother Seton, who died in 1821.

Cardinal Lawrence Shehan, former archbishop of Baltimore and William D. Borders, the present archbishop, will join some 6,000 other Americans at the Vatican for the veneration.

Beginning at 11:50 a.m., the Pangborn Memorial Carillon at Mount Saint Mary's College in Emmitsburg will be rung for 10 minutes. Following each mass, to be said in the chapel in which the saint's remains are enshrined, a relic of Mother Seton will be venerated by the priests.

Sister Mary Clare Hughes, provincial superior of the Emmitsburg Province of the Daughters of Charity, and one of Mother Seton's boosters, says, "I am overjoyed at the thought that canonization will take place this year — a holy year and the year of woman."

seph. A year earlier, she had started the first parochial school in the nation in Baltimore.

It is here also that her remains are enshrined, and the imposing red brick headquarters of her order overlook the village.

One of them, Anne O'Neill Hooe, 27, of Severn, Md., will be in Rome for the canonization. Her father, William O'Neill, will bring her four children here to attend one of the masses.

Ann O'Neill, the beneficiary of the second of the three miracles, was 14 when she was confined to St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore suffering from what doctors said was terminal leukemia. A nun at the hospital told her mother about Mother Seton, and she began praying for "divine intercession" to spare her child's life.

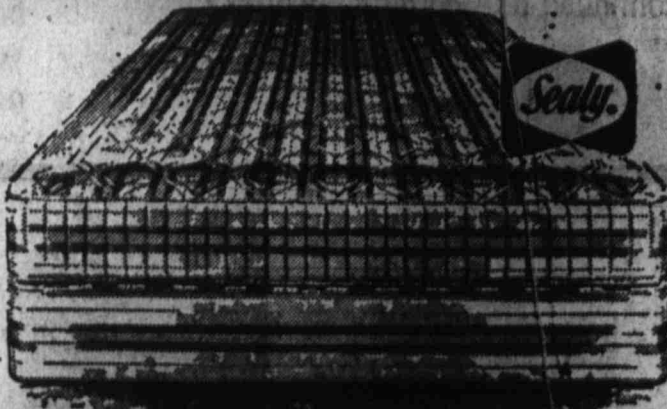

Besides the O'Neill case, Mother Seton is said to have cured Sister Gertrude Korzenk of New Orleans of pancreatic cancer in 1894 and Carl Kalin of New York City of brain cancer in 1963. The Kalin case was verified by a Vatican Tribunal last year and prompted the canonization decree.

The Daughters of Charity now include six religious communities with more than 11,000 members in the United States and seven foreign countries.

25 Texas Schools Win Market Value Tax Figure Cuts

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Twenty-five Texas schools will have their market value tax figures reduced as a result of their appeal to the special adjustment panel, the Texas Education Agency says.

A total of 149 schools appealed to the committee of school officials and tax experts protesting the market value figures assigned them by the governor's office under new school financing plans.

Dr. M. L. Brockette, state commissioner of education, said the cuts granted the 25 districts total $1.3 billion, compared to the statewide valuation of $161 billion.

He said the changes were granted because of shifts in economic conditions or errors in original data. Brockette said the schools districts granted reductions included Milford, Commerce, Rochelle, Martins Mill, Frankston, Rochester, Kenedy County, Chico, Westphalia, Richards, Mount Pleasant, Hereford, Goliad, Johnson City, Whitesboro, Malakoff, Valley Mills, Aransas County, Runge, High Island, Brenham, Three Way, Lubbudie, Willis and Gause.

U.S. Circuit Court Rules Hair No Sign Of Revolutionary

By BILL CRIDER
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Chief Judge John R. Brown of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals says the time has finally come when the general public no longer sees a revolutionary behind every beard or bushy mane. And he thinks it's about time.

Airline Sues Two Senators

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and the estate of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were sued by American Airlines Friday for a total of more than $359,000 in unpaid bills.

"It was something we regretted to do, but we had an obligation to our stockholders to collect the money," an American spokesman said.

The charges were incurred during the 1968 presidential primary campaign, during which Kennedy was slain. However, the suit against Humphrey said he owed $90,168 for plane fares through last Sept. 3.

The suits were filed in state Supreme Court in Manhattan. They are answerable in 20 days.

Check Belts
The National Automobile Club points out that a car's belts and hoses need checking and perhaps replacing every two years or 24,000 miles.

the reinstatement of a college teacher fired for having a beard.

"I write only to record with a sense of relief and common sense that the federal courts are now out of the hair business..." Brown wrote.

Brown noted that court decisions now specify a "clippers-razors off policy" for college students and faculty. He added that it is possible that suits could now arise involving hair in kindergarten through the primary grades — but said he thinks hair no longer stirs such emotions.

The public "has come to its senses and does not see in such variations the seeds of violence and revolution," he wrote.

The decision came in a legal battle that began in 1971 when San Jacinto Junior College in Pasadena, Tex., fired Lionel Hander because he wouldn't shave.

U.S. Dist. Judge Carl O. Bue Jr. of Houston ordered Hander reinstated, paid $11,321 in back pay, and awarded $5,112 in lawyers fees.

In appealing, San Jacinto had argued that teachers in public institutions have no constitutional right to wear beards, and that the Constitution bars recovery of back pay and lawyers fees.

The appeals court said some public departments may impose grooming restrictions on employees, but it said college teachers "simply do not have the exposure or community-wide impact of policemen and other employees who deal directly with the public."

Even Simple Bids May Cause Trouble

You don't have to play a complicated bidding system to have trouble with your partner. You can stick to simple bids and still run into misunderstandings.

For example, suppose you open with one spade after three passes. Your partner jumps to two notrump, and you bid three spades. The opponents continue to pass. Exactly what does your bid mean?

Possibly your bid is forcing to game. Your partner is supposed to choose either three notrump or four spades as a game contract. If you didn't want to get to game you would pass your partner at two notrump.

Then there is the opposite view: Your bid of three spades urges partner to pass. If you had a good hand you would bid a new suit, raise partner or jump to four spades. Your bid of only three spades is a sign-off.

Either interpretation is playable. The important thing is for both halves of the partnership to agree on what the bid means.

Do you have a firm agreement on this point with any of the partners you play with regularly?

Partnership confidence is needed in defensive play as well as in the bidding. You must rely on your partner to tell you what he can when he knows that the information will help you more than it will help declarer. If you were East in today's hand, would you be able to trust any of your regular partners as he did?

West opened the jack of spades, which rode around to declarer's king. South immediately tried a finesse with dummy's ten of diamonds.

East didn't seem to be thinking as he played a low diamond, but he had noticed that his partner played the deuce of diamonds. Failure to high-low in diamonds promised an odd number of cards in the suit, clearly three cards.

East could be sure of the signal because West could not hold a high diamond to protect and therefore could afford to concentrate on helping his partner. South could not rely on the signal because if West had the king of diamonds he would concentrate on keeping South in the dark rather than on helping East.

Repeats Finesse
South got to his hand with the ace of hearts and led another diamond, this time finessing with dummy's jack. Once again East played a low diamond.

East could risk this second hold-up because he trusted his partner. He knew that South held exactly three diamonds and that South would need as many diamond tricks as possible. It was reasonable for South to try a third diamond finesse.

South got to his hand with the king of hearts and tried a third diamond finesse, this time with the queen. And this time East took his king.

Now declarer was limited to the two diamond tricks he had already taken. He was lucky to go down only one trick.

Would Make Contract
South would make the contract if East took the first or second diamond trick. For example, suppose East takes the second diamond and returns a club (the best defense).

South wins with the ace of clubs, takes his diamond tricks, cashes the king of hearts and gives East a heart. East cannot make a damaging return, and South wins one spade, three hearts, three diamonds and two clubs.

East's actual play is brilliant and spectacular, but beware of copying it with unreliable partners. If South turns out to have only two diamonds, he must take dummy's ace after trying two finesesses, and then the king will drop. Or if South has four diamonds, he will naturally lead out the ace after succeeding in two finesesses.

And then your partner will sneer at you for being a smart aleck. "A player like you should simply take a trick when it is offered to you," he will say condescendingly. "Tiny steps for tiny feet."

Texas Plans To Appeal Unfavorable Extended Voting Rights Act Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal court has turned down a request by Texas officials for a closer look at census figures that are the first step in implementing the extended Voting Rights Act in Texas.

Texas Secretary of State Mark White, who with Gov. Dolph Briscoe requested a hearing before the director of the U.S. Census Bureau, said he will appeal Friday's ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell.

White said, "The effect of this ruling is that if we do not appeal, then we will have federal attorneys general telling the people of our state where they can have polling places, and how they can change precinct lines, and effectively take over every political decision made in the State of Texas."

The Texas suit challenged a census finding on the number of Spanish-speaking Americans in Texas counties, and a determination that fewer than 50 percent of the state's voting age population registered and voted in the November 1972 general election. Census bureau figures showed only 46.2 per cent participated in that election.

Atended that the census had included in its voting age population aliens, temporary residents, convicted felons who were not entitled to vote and mental incompetents. It said that aliens were included in the Spanish-speaking population.

Gesell said that the Voting Rights Act does not require public hearings or detailed evaluation of the voting age population. Justice Department lawyer Brian Landsberg said Congress specifically voted down provisions that would have required such hearings and evaluations.

Gesell noted in his ruling that the statute is designed to avoid judicial delays in the early stages of its implementation.

Gesell said that Texas and federal officials are trying to work out agreeable implementation of the Voting Rights Act before Texans vote on a new state constitution in November.

During the two-hour hearing Friday, White said that it cost an extra $10 million dollars to supply every Texas household with copies of the proposed constitution in both English and Spanish, as the Justice Department has suggested.

The Voting Rights Act was extended by Congress this year to states with large language minorities and low voting participation. Its provisions include federal supervision of elections as well as municipal annexations and the drawing of voting boundaries.

The Southwest Regional Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights had recommended that the act be extended to Texas because of complaints of discrimination against Mexican-American voters.

Constitution Fight Starts This Week

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — This week will see the beginning of determined drives by both pro and con groups to influence voters in the Nov. 4 constitution election.

Robert W. Calvert, former Texas Supreme Court chief justice and chairman of the Citizens for the Texas Constitution, said a statewide kickoff meeting of those pushing for passage of the proposed new constitution would be held Saturday in Austin.

"The Saturday meeting will be the official beginning of our six-week public information campaign to inform all Texas voters about the contents of their new constitution," Calvert said.

"These improvements go a long way to stop wasteful spending in our state government and provide equity."

Joe Brigrance, Brazoria County commissioner and incoming president of the Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association, said he would urge the Texas Association of Counties next week to oppose the entire proposed new constitution.

"I'm not surprised to see so many lawmakers out stumping for the new constitution," Brigrance said. "They see it as a quick and easy way to get some of the things they've been denied before by the voters—specifically, annual sessions and salary increases. . . the proposed new constitution, giving so much power to the legislature, could create chaos . . . upsetting the state government's philosophy and operations every two years."

Mother, Four Children Die In San Angelo Fire

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Five members of an Air Force family were killed early Friday when fire struck their three-bedroom apartment at Goodfellow Air Force Base here.

The father, S.Sgt. Alan Ashby, was on temporary duty in Maryland at the time, the Air Force said.

The victims were identified as Lenora Hubbard Ashby, 34, and daughters Lucy, 12; Kaylia, 8; Vanessa, 6, and Jacqueline, 4.

A neighbor who asked not to be identified said she spotted flames at about 8:30 a.m.

"I saw the blaze coming out of the window. The flames were just roaring. I knew that if anyone was in there they were dead. I saw them take three kids out. The ambulance didn't take off fast so I knew they were dead. One guy (fireman) looked like he was crying. Then they brought the mother out and wrapped her in a blanket. I couldn't take any more so I left," the woman said.

She criticized what she called dangerous heaters in the non-commissioned officers' quarters where the family lived.

Base authorities said a sophisticated smoke detection system is planned for base housing units but has not yet been installed.

Air Force firemen said it appeared the family died of smoke inhalation. Mrs. Ashby, who celebrated her 34th birthday Wednesday, and two of her daughters were dead at the scene. Two other girls were dead on arrival at Shannon Memorial Hospital.

Sectarian Warfare Turns North Lebanon City, Hills Into Bloody Battlegrounds

By EDWARD CODY
TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Abdul Razak raced through the streets of Tripoli in a commandeered city ambulance, his Soviet-made AK47 assault rifle between the knees, the siren wailing and the red light flashing.

"We are the government," he howled. "We are the government."

Razak carried a .45-caliber automatic on one side of his web belt, a dagger on the other. Hanging on his chest were a bulging cartridge pouch and an anti-tank grenade.

Razak, 30 years old with a wife and two daughters, used to be a house painter. But for the last nine years he has been, in his words, "a revolutionary," code-named "She-Bear."

summed it up: "Most of the poor people happen to be Moslems, and most of the rich people happen to be Christians."

Tradition divides Lebanon's three million residents about 50-50 into Christians and Moslems. But the last reliable official census dates from 1932. Experts estimate that since then the balance has shifted to 60-40 in the Moslems' favor.

New Pact Sought

But power has not shifted accordingly. The president has to be a Maronite Christian under an unwritten national pact. Other positions are distributed similarly and Moslems feel it's time for redistribution.

"We want a national pact that translates the new situation here," Mokaddem said. "Our people are fighting against the goons of President Franjeh and the ruling class."

The internal tension has been fueled by the presence of 250,000 Palestinian refugees in Lebanon, including about 12,000 heavily armed guerrillas.

The Palestinians appeal for support in what they claim is a pan-Arab battle against Israel.

But many Christians feel the Palestinians' fight is not theirs. And the pro-Soviet Palestinian politics would only get in the way of the free-wheeling Lebanese rush for money in which Christians have the lead.

On the fighters' level the battle is an explosion of bitter frustrations never far below the surface in Lebanon.

The buildup of the Palestinian guerrilla movement has moved many of the big arms into this tiny Mediterranean country. Beirut dealers can arrange purchase of anything from a Beretta pistol to a Soviet-made 20mm Dushka cannon, along with crates of ammunition.

Four Violent Explosions

These arms have been used in four major explosions of violence since the beginning of the year, leaving 2,000 dead by official count.

The country's 18,000-man army stood aloof from the first three clashes. Troops moved into a buffer zone between Tripoli and Zagharta on Thursday only after a change of commanders and protracted debate between Franjeh and Karami.

Karami's reluctance to send in the troops stemmed from longstanding Moslem fears that the officer corps is pro-Christian. The Moslem militia has refused to allow soldiers near

130 Persons Killed

She-Bear's revolution has turned Tripoli and the surrounding hills into guerrilla battlegrounds for the last 11 days, erasing local authority and forcing the government to send in army troops to man a buffer zone.

It has killed about 130 persons by conservative estimates and wounded twice that many. Tripoli's water system has been so disrupted that tanker trucks are used to supply some neighborhoods. Dozens of downtown shops have been bombed out. Residential quarters are shuttered tight for fear of shrapnel from mortar blasts.

The nature of the "revolution" has made Lebanon's rulers shudder because the fighting has pitted Moslem militiamen like Razak against Christians from the hill town of Zagharta five miles inland from this coastal city 50 miles north of Beirut.

Zagharta is the traditional fief of President Suleiman Franjeh, a Maronite Christian. Tripoli is the home territory of Premier Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem. The two are longtime rivals, separated by religion and politics.

Social War, Also

"Confessional war has broken out in some areas, leaving behind it devastation and hatred," said Patriarch Antonios Khreish, Lebanon's top Maronite prelate.

But the religious war also is a social war, a struggle by the poor classes to grab a larger share of Lebanon's spiraling wealth from the rich who run the country from air-conditioned offices.

"It is not a war between Tripoli and Zagharta," said Farouk Mokaddem, leader of the well-organized and well-armed Moslem fighting force in Tripoli.

"It is an armed insurrection against the false princes who run the country from Beirut. This insurrection has of course taken a religious direction, but fundamentally it's a social problem, an economic problem."

Tripoli and the Moslem-held hills around the city are bare of soldiers.

Texas Pilot, Young Wingwalker Killed At National Races

RENO, Nev. (AP) - With some 10,000 people watching, a young wingwalker and a racing pilot were killed in separate accidents 25 minutes apart at the National Championship Air Races.

Gordon McCollom, 23, a Huntington Beach, Calif., high school teacher, was killed Friday when he hit the ground while dangling from the wing of a biplane flying upside down.

A short time earlier, M. D. Washburn, 40, of Houston, Tex., was killed when his AT6 plane hit a 500-foot tall pylon during a race.

The accidents occurred in front of 10,000 persons who had filled grandstands for the first day of racing at the Stead Airport 12 miles north of here.

Air race spokesman Bob Alessandrilli said McCollom and pilot Joe Hughes were making a final pass in front of the grandstand at the conclusion of their act when McCollom was killed.

The finale called for McCollom to make an inverted pass in front of the grandstand and pick a ribbon off the ground.

A downdraft apparently caught the plane, forcing it near the ground, Alessandrilli said. Hughes managed to land the plane while McCollom, wearing a harness, dangled from the craft.

Washburn was on the first lap of a heat race when his plane clipped a pylon while making a turn.

League Of Women Voters Prepares For Year

VOTERS' SERVICE — Important functions of the Midland League of Women Voters are education and service. English, center, and Mrs. Kelly Bell, voter service chairman, confer with Elmo Linebarger, Midland County tax assessor-collector, about league plans for a voter registration campaign.

PROGRAM — League members study selected current local, state and national issues at monthly unit meetings. If, after thorough study, a consensus is reached, action is taken on an issue. Among the issues selected for study this year are a survey of the housing needs in Midland, administration of justice and an evaluation of the role of the executive branch. Mrs. Frank Samponaro, left, Mrs. Tom Christensen, standing, and Mrs. Norman Gould are chairmen of a study item committee.

MEMBERSHIP — Both men and women of voting age are eligible to join the Midland League of Women Voters. Information on a league study item is presented and discussed at day unit meetings on the second and third Thursdays of each month. The same program is presented at night unit meetings on the second and fourth Mondays. Working on plans for the fall membership drive are Mrs. William T. Porter, left, first vice president, and membership chairman Mrs. Harry Dorsey.

OBSERVER CORPS — Members of the Midland League of Women Voters attend meetings of the city council, school board and county commissioners and then report to the league major agenda items discussed and action taken. Mrs. Lawrence Monlay, left, and Mrs. George Keys prepare to enter City Hall.

SPEAKERS BUREAU — Each year members of this group present programs on all levels of government to other organizations and groups in Midland. Mrs. Gail Stoddard, left, Mrs. Ken Carpenter, center and Mrs. Charles Linehan are discussing topics available for public presentation.

Diamonds Remain Best Of Friends

By DOROTHY McCARDLE

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Don't turn up your nose at the old-fashioned jewelry Grandma may have left you, because it just could represent a mini-windfall, maybe even enough to pay your taxes or to round out the down payment on a house.

Prices for older gems are soaring, say Washington jewelers who tell of some amazing money being paid today for out-of-style necklaces, rings, brooches and bracelets.

"To many people, this is the answer to their need for instant funds in these depression times," says Robert M. King, vice president and general manager of Charles Schwartz & Son, one of several local firms that buy and sell "second hand" or antique jewelry.

Not everybody, of course, had a Grandma whose jeweled trinkets were worth passing along. Even an old-fashioned pocket watch of the type Granddad used to wind up nightly before retiring may prove to be as good as money in the bank.

According to John F. Shaw, his shop is virtually flooded with old jewelry "around income tax time."

"Many people are looking for ready cash to pay their taxes," he says. "So they scrounge around and come up with all the old jewelry lying around the house."

He says that there have been some great pieces offered at times like that, and that despite all the changes in new watches, there is still a great demand for old-fashioned timepieces.

In one window was a 14-carat gold "keywind watch," dated on the back of the case, "Dec. 1855." The price: $385. A newer Elgin watch, dated 1920, was offered for $385.

Shaw says that many people regard diamonds as a sound investment, and he agrees. He tells of a client who once asked him to assemble for her a group of "loose diamonds" because she had $15,000 to invest. He subsequently selected for her a group of one and one-and-a-half carat diamonds.

Since then, values in diamonds have jumped from $1,000 a carat to $3,000 and, according to Shaw, "that $15,000 worth of diamonds which my client keeps in her bank would bring at least $30,000 today — and probably much more. She was a very smart woman and sound investor."

A majority of the antique or second-hand jewelry sales involves banks or executors of estates. But increasing numbers of individuals are liquidating their jewel-boxed holdings.

The firm of Charles Ernest recently paid $30,000 for an emerald purchased for between $8,000 and $9,000 about 15 years ago.

According to Alan Sherman, one of the firm's partners, black opals currently are in such great demand that "we would like to buy one of these gems every day."

On the national gem scene, Glenn Nord of the Gemological Institute of the American Gem Society in Los Angeles says that prices for fine quality gems have skyrocketed in the past two years and are continuing to rise. Buyers from Japan, Europe and Arab countries "know no price limits."

After last year's economic hardships in Japan, however, the Japanese are not as avid buyers as they once were, says Nord.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Work Of Devil?

DEAR ABBY: My sister's boyfriend died last year and she and I have been talking to his spirit on a Ouija Board ever since. We have also talked to two other spirits on the Ouija board.

My aunt says that we shouldn't use the Ouija board because it is the work of the devil.

Can you give me any information about Ouija boards? Are they bad or not?

J.B. IN OLEAN, N.Y.
DEAR J.B.: The only way one can "talk" to a spirit is through prayer. And you don't need a Ouija board for that. A Ouija board is all right to use as a "game," but don't take it seriously.

DEAR ABBY: I have an unusual problem. I look pregnant, although I'm not.

I've always had a large, protruding stomach. Then I became pregnant and foolishly gained 57 pounds. My son is now 18-months-old, but I'm about 20 pounds overweight and look like I'm seven months pregnant no matter how I dress.

Needless to say, people are always saying to me, "Oh, you're having another one!" When I say, "No, I'm not pregnant," an awkward silence follows.

Abby, if anyone can come up with a better response to the endless comments, it's you.

LOOKS P.G. IN FLORIDA
DEAR LOOKS: A more satisfactory solution is what to DO, not what to SAY. I know it's easier said than done, but if you would trim off that excess weight and buy yourself a good foundation garment, you'll lose that pregnant look.

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago I met a pleasant, middle-aged married woman while visiting a mutual friend in another city.

After returning home, I was surprised to receive a little gift from her. Nothing costly; just a trinket with a friendly note, "I loved meeting you. Keep in touch."

I wrote and thanked her for her thoughtfulness. A few weeks later, along comes another little gift from this woman. Again I wrote to thank her.

Then she sent a store-bought card for no special occasion with the message, "It's nice to have a special friend like you."

I acknowledged the card only because I would have felt guilty if I didn't. Abby, I am a busy, professional woman, and I wish this woman would leave me alone. It irritates me to have to write these thank-you notes to someone I hardly know.

Why would a person persist in keeping up a contact without any encouragement whatsoever? And how do I get off the hook?

BAFFLED
DEAR BAFFLED: Obviously she wants to maintain the contact. Chill the relationship by making your "thank yous" brief and formal. Unkind? Not really. She's subtly trying to obligate you.

League Showing Protection Film in City Schools

The film service committee of the Junior League of Midland, Inc., is showing child protection films to the city's public and private school children.

Committee members will visit 20 public schools and four private schools.

The film service shows a film designed to teach children how to conduct themselves properly and safely when confronted with strangers. The name of the film being shown this year is "Meeting Strangers-Red Light, Green Light." It will be shown to all kindergarten through fourth graders.

Members of the committee are Mrs. M. McDonnold, chairman, and Mrs. Davidson Claiborne, Mrs. Nicholas Taylor and Mrs. Julian Ard.

Use The Spare

If you are crowded for space when drying sweaters or other items which must lie flat, use a spare bed. Cover the bed with a plastic tablecloth so that no moisture can seep through, then spread the garments out to dry.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Good judgment is needed to handle any problems in early evening, you can get the goodwill and active assistance of one who has considerable influence. Later you need a good rest. Build up energy today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Don't contact those persons with whom you could argue; avoid trouble. Try to get on better terms with a neighbor, though.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't rush off to some new place in a.m., but plan for a new course of action later in the day. Don't argue with a stranger.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Your intuition is not working right in a.m., but later they are more accurate than your judgment, so make good use of them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Study what is expected of you early, then let others have your decisions. Get into some civic work that requires experience.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Get busy at work that must be done, though you don't like it. Then put wardrobe in fine order. Take needed health treatment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Making plans early for recreation is wise, then all goes well. Try to spend more time with one who means much to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Ideal day to get your home in the kind of order that pleases you. Then you can make big headway at a project you enjoy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Get into the philosophical studies you like early in the day. Later meet with consultants for special activities. Correspondence.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to avoid the temptation to make sudden changes that appeal to you. Maintain a poised manner and later you can accomplish difficult tasks. You can please a close friend.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Don't rely so much on good friends for assistance today, since they are busy handling their own affairs. Be honest with yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You have to be particularly careful where business is concerned today. The planets are not favorable for civic matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Changing attitudes with others is good now, but do not make any radical changes. A stranger could be troublesome.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You have to be conscientious in the handling of your affairs today. Take steps to have better rapport with mass.

3 Killed When Gas Line Explodes On Rig In Gulf

HOUMA, La. (AP) — Clouds of dangerous fumes prevented rescuers from reaching three men killed on a Gulf of Mexico drilling rig when a natural gas line exploded in their faces, officials say.

"They tried to get to them but the fumes drove them back and they had to pull out," said M. M. Thompson, a Placid Oil Co. superintendent.

A 12-inch pipe which carries natural gas from the platform 80 miles to shore ruptured and exploded late Friday. There was no fire and 27 other men aboard the rig managed to escape safely to rescue boats.

Depression Due To Bring Rain To Southeast

MIAMI (AP) — A weak tropical depression formed Saturday in the Atlantic Ocean and was expected to bring rain and gusty winds today to the Windward and Leeward Islands, forecasters said.

At 6 p.m. EDT, the depression was located about 375 miles east-northeast of Antigua, the National Weather Service said.

Forecasters said the storm was moving west-northwest at 14 miles an hour, and was expected to cause thundershowers with locally gusty winds of 30 to 35 m.p.h. over the northern Windward and Leeward Islands starting this morning.

Thompson said stiff sea breezes finally helped disperse the fumes early Saturday, permitting workers to recover the bodies. The dead were identified as C. C. Turnbull of Hammond, La.; Marty Holden of Ponchatoula, La.; and Bob Jackson of Bay St. Louis, Miss.

"Most of the men were in the living quarters when they heard the blast," Thompson said. "By the time they got to the top deck there was nothing they could do but get out fast."

The workers were repairing the gas line when they were killed. Thompson said most of the damage was confined to one of the rigs three platforms, each connected by 60-foot catwalks.

There was no indication what caused the blast. The rig is about 80 miles south of Houma. Emergency valves sealed off the platform's 24 oil and gas wells. There was no damage estimate.

"We've already begun trying to make repairs," Thompson said. "It might be awhile though before we know what ignited that gas."

Four TVs, Stereo Stolen From Store

Four 19-inch color television sets and a stereo unit valued at $2,441.90 were burglarized from Lee Reese Discount TV Store, 900 S. Garfield St., between 6 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday, police said.

Officers J. C. Tension and D. Dove said other merchandise was damaged by glass when a piece of concrete was thrown through the front window.

Isabel Peron Leaves Office For Month — Perhaps Forever.

By MORT ROSENBLUM BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron left office Saturday for a month and perhaps forever, resting from the heavy strain which has shown in her rare appearances.

She turned over power to Senate President Italo Luder, 58, a traditional Peronist, in a simple ceremony Saturday evening. She was to leave today for a holiday in the mountains of Cordoba Province.

An official statement said she would return to work by Oct. 17, the anniversary of the day in 1945 that her late husband, Juan D. Peron, left political prison to begin the Peronists' off-and-on rule of 30 years.

Though there was no substantiation, many Argentines told each other that their 44-year-old leader will not come back to finish the 19 months left of her term.

Mrs. Peron has spent 105 days of 1975 at her desk at Government House as crises swirl around her and the nation.

Since July 19, when political opposition forced her to fire Jose Lopez Rega, the former policeman and astrologer who became her virtual prime minister, she has left her suburban estate only a dozen times to come to the office.

The president was bedridden with what doctors called flu for several weeks. But visitors described her as often under too much nervous strain to maintain a normal conversation.

For months there has been pressure on Mrs. Peron — by cabinet ministers, generals and other leaders — to take a rest while someone else attempts to bring some order to Argentina.

She has resisted, say Government House sources, in the apparent fear that opponents might remove the remainder of her power base and turn the Peronist movement away from what she feels Peron himself wanted.

"They will have to hang me in the Plaza de Mayo," provincial governors quoted her as saying recently, referring to unnamed enemies who she said wanted to hound her out of office.

This month, in a voice that quaked and broke, she told sugar workers in northern Argentina:

"God and the people are my only judges ... If I am good, I will stay. If I am no good, let someone else govern ... I am a woman, but I am making it clear that only death can stop me from my defense of the humble."

Luder, who defended Juan Peron against 1955 treason charges after the military ended his first period of rule, was elected Senate president and next in line to the presidency by legislators in July over the objections of Mrs. Peron. She

Samaritan Gives Half Of Income To Fight Hunger

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Walker L. Knight says his tiny Peachtree Street restaurant pledges half its income on the 13th of every month to fight world hunger.

The Common Cup, a 70-seat nonprofit restaurant operated mostly by volunteers from about 20 churches, began as a mission project.

"Our purpose is that we want to be in the market place, not so much for evangelism, but just being present where the people are," said Knight, its president.

Knight said the restaurant chose the 13th of the month for its hunger contribution "because that is an easy date to remember."

Items Worth $1,060 Stolen From Jeep

A rifle valued at $600, a citizens band radio valued at $360 and a 20-gauge shotgun valued at $100 were burglarized from the Jeep of James Kessler of Big Lake, police said.

Kessler told police his vehicle was parked at the Star Lite Lounge, 1915 Garden City Hwy., police said.

Julie Eisenhower Putting Her Life Together Again

By ANN BLACKMAN WASHINGTON (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower is putting her life together again.

Thirteen months after her father, Richard M. Nixon, resigned the presidency, Mrs. Eisenhower, her father's staunchest public supporter, is having some fun.

She says her marriage is closer now and the pressure to perform publicly has lessened. She has written a cookbook and designed embroidery kits to be mass produced. She is considering a television career.

And she is beginning to feel free.

"It's been a different year because, for one thing, I'm not guarded," Mrs. Eisenhower said in an interview in her Washington apartment. "I don't think anyone can know what it's like to have 24-hour protection for six years. I don't think David and I ever had a normal situation."

"In the last year, we've kind of discovered having fun again and being free, being able to pick up and do things and go places. I think that's the major happy thing in our lives."

"It's nice not to be under pressure to try and answer questions on every topic of the day, especially if you don't think people care what your view is on whether we should send more aid to South Korea. I just really value being able to be my own person."

The Eisenhower's two-story apartment, which overlooks a busy intersection not far from the Kennedy Center, is furnished simply with small sofas and high arm chairs. A beaded flower arrangement, a wedding gift from sister Tricia, sits on a table. A small picture of her father, taken recently in California, sits on a shelf in the foyer.

Mrs. Eisenhower requested that no questions about Watergate or her parents be asked, explaining, "I'm really tired of talking about it."

What she enjoys most these days, she said, is spending more time with her husband. "We were so caught up in political events that we really didn't have a life of our own. Now we have more time with each other, time to talk about our future and what we want out of life ... I've come to the conclusion that in marriage, you really have to concentrate and give a lot. And I've found that when both partners are involved with something they enjoy, that's when there's happy sailing."

At 27, after years of shaking hands and giving speeches in the name of the Nixon administration, Mrs. Eisenhower is trying to establish her own identity. "I enjoy working, I really do. If I hadn't had any interest or work goals when my father left office, my life would have been very empty. Having these things going has been very important during the first year he has been out of office."

She has written "Julie Eisenhower's Cookbook for Children," a volume of recipes collected from friends. Included are such items as "Pink Panther Soup," and "Daddy's Favorite Steak Sauce."

The recipes range from inedible but decorative play-dough cookies to a more difficult, somewhat spicy Kima curry. Mrs. Eisenhower said she now regrets not calling it a cookbook for children and their parents.

A series of anthologies she has edited for the Saturday Evening Post comes out next year. Her needlework kits, which she designed and which are being marketed by a large needlecraft company, will be on sale in major department stores in January.

Airplane Sprays Birmingham With Insecticide To Fight SLE

By The Associated Press
A low-flying airplane sprayed 1,900 pounds of insecticide over Birmingham, Ala., Saturday in an effort to halt an epidemic of St. Louis encephalitis, but a similar spraying program scheduled for Cleveland, Ohio, was postponed due to the weather.

A Lockheed 749 Constellation started some Birmingham residents as it traveled east and west over Jones Valley at altitudes less than 200 feet and at times flew past buildings higher than it was flying.

"There is a plane flying around here that looks like it sure needs an airport," one woman telephoned the Birmingham News.

The craft made 20 passes over Jefferson County, dropping a fine mist of malathion over a 120-square mile area.

The county health department conducted the $50,000 program, which is expected to kill between 70 and 90 per cent of the adult Culex mosquito population, the encephalitis-carrier.

A spokesman said that despite some odor, the insecticide was harmless to people and pets.

Twenty-eight suspected, presumed or confirmed cases of the disease have been identified in the Alabama county this year, and one woman with a presumed case died Tuesday. In Cleveland, city officials had planned to blanket the city with mosquito spray on Saturday, but the operation was delayed because of cool weather.

City Health Director Ruth Miller said temperatures must be above 60 degrees for the malathion spray to be effective. She said high winds or rain also could wash out the operation.

St. Louis encephalitis has also been reported this year in Mississippi, Illinois, Tennessee, Texas, North Dakota, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Louisiana, Arkansas, New Jersey and Georgia.

POPULAR BOOTH — Hot cocoa stand draws several early visitors Saturday at St. Ann's Family Fair. Cool, damp weather didn't dim the enthusiasm of fair visitors.

Jack Anderson To Speak At UTPB

ODESSA — Jack Anderson, "Washington Merry-Go-Round" columnist, will be the first participant in The University of Texas of the Permian Basin's (UTPB) "Great Issues Series." Anderson will speak to the public at 8 p. m. Monday and will be keynote speaker at a communications seminar for area junior college and high school journalism students at UTPB Tuesday.

In his speech Monday, Anderson will discuss his experiences as a self-acknowledged "muckraker."

His column is syndicated in more than 940 of the 1,750 daily newspapers in the United States. Some of his scoops have brought Anderson national recognition and spurred Congressional investigations.

In 1972 he was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for his expose concerning the Nixon administration's policy during the Bangladesh controversy.

Anderson has been at the bottom of some of the biggest exposes to come out of Washington. His stories, many of which were written with the late Drew Pearson, founder of the column, have resulted in convictions of tax violators, embezzlers and many others.

In the 1960s Anderson was an aide to Sen. Joe McCarthy during his probe into communism in the U. S. Anderson quickly became alarmed over McCarthy's methods and concluded his shotgun charges were helping, not hurting the Communist cause.

Anderson began investigating McCarthy and summed up his findings in his first book, written with Ronald May, entitled "McCarthy, the Man, the Senator, and the Ism."

Anderson's research played an important role in three Congressional investigations of McCarthy.

In his speech to student journalists Tuesday, Anderson will explain his experiences as a journalist and will provide tips and hints for the young journalists.

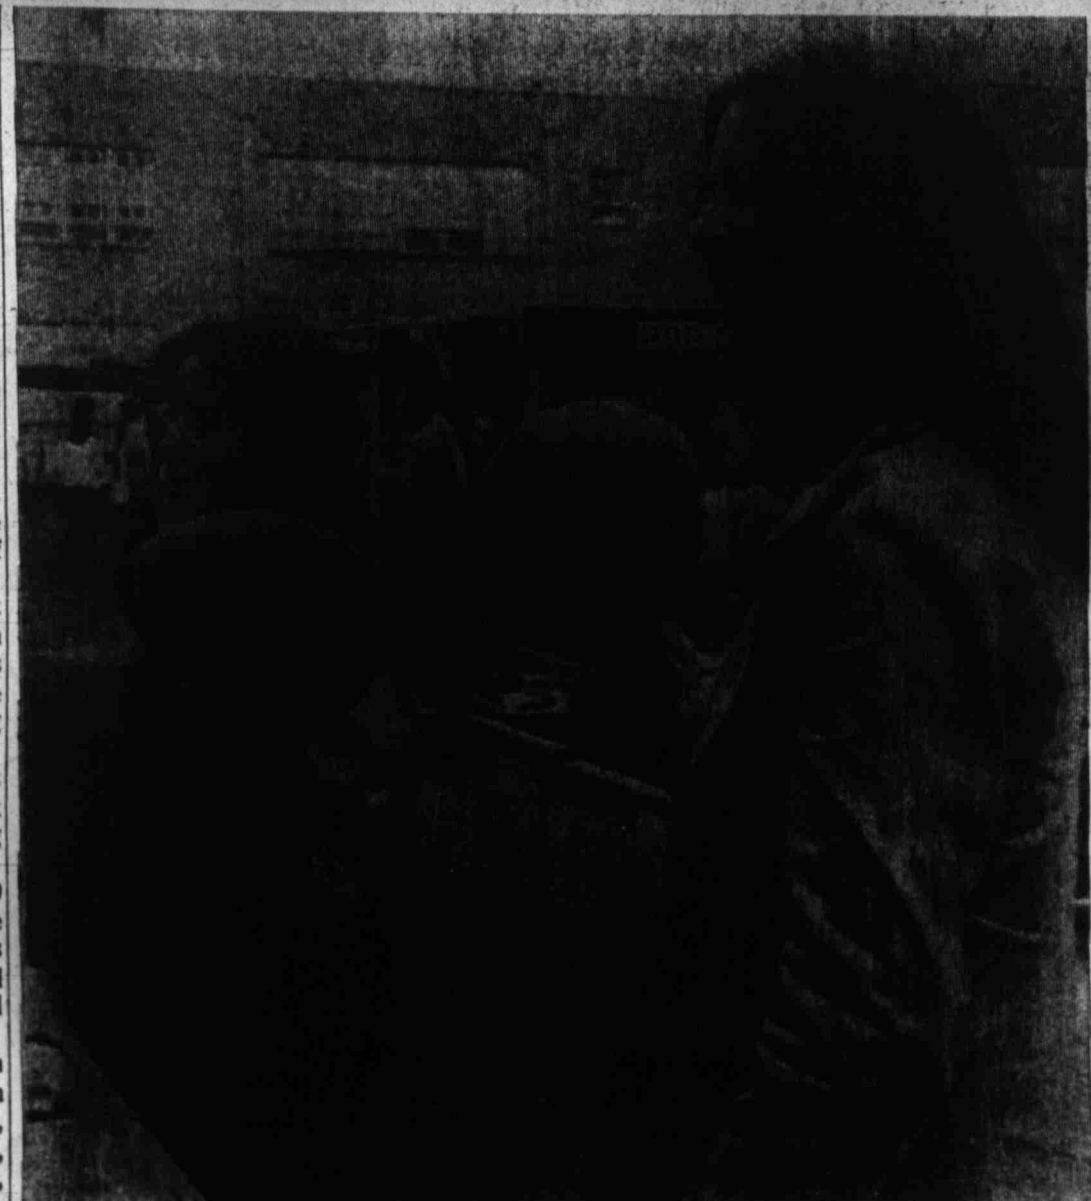

Following his speech, students will be given a chance to ask Anderson questions, a training in itself for young journalists.

The seminar will begin at 9 a. m. Tuesday and will conclude at 4 p. m. Student journalists from area high schools and junior colleges have been invited to attend.

Fifteen Midland High journalism students, along with Calvin Baker, faculty adviser, and 10 Midland College students, along with Jo Calverley, adviser, will attend Tuesday's seminar.

Tickets for Anderson's lecture Monday are free to UTPB students, faculty and staff members. Tickets for the public are $1 in advance and $1.50 at the door.

Tickets may be picked up in advance in the UTPB student lounge.

Bomb Explodes In West German Railway Station

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — A bomb exploded in Hamburg's main railway station Saturday afternoon, injuring several persons, police reported.

Fearing more bombs in the terminal, police cleared the building of an estimated 2,000 shoppers and commuters and ordered arriving trains rerouted to suburban depots.

Witnesses said the bomb exploded in a coin-operated luggage locker next to a bakery shop. Among the injured were a saleswoman in the shop and a railway policeman, they said.

Bentsen To Decide Late This Fall On '76 Race

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said Saturday he will decide late this fall which primaries to enter in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He told newsmen his Senate obligations will be his "number one priority" in the coming months rather than his desire for the country's top elected position.

Speaking at an informal news conference in his office here, Bentsen said the assassination attempt on President Ford has not caused him to change his own campaign plans.

"That's one of the things you accept in public life," Bentsen said. However, he criticized the

Tiger Gives Birth To Three 'Ligers'

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Tama, a four-year-old tigress at Osaka's Tennoji Zoo, has given birth to three "ligers," a rare mixed breed of lion and tiger, a zoo spokesman said Saturday.

Two of the cubs died within three days of birth but the surviving cub, now in an incubator, is likely to survive as the world's only known living "liger," the spokesman said.

Three ligers were born in Germany before World War II and another in the United States in 1973 but all of them died, the spokesman said.

The liger has a tiger's head and a lion's body.

U.N. Working Overtime On Economic Manifesto

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — United Nations delegates worked overtime today to translate what many termed "a new spirit of cooperation" into an economic manifesto acceptable to all countries — rich, poor, advanced, underdeveloped, capitalist and Communist.

of resources and technology, monetary fluctuations, debt adjustment, transnational corporations, tariff preferences and agricultural development. The main task was to merge into one acceptable document sets of negotiating proposals submitted by the developing countries, the nine European Common Market nations and the United States. The predominant mood seemed to be determination to take advantage of the momentum achieved so far in the 13-day-old session and finish the job before the regular General Assembly convenes Tuesday for three months of debate on mostly political issues. Despite considerable agreement on many items, diplomats reported difficulty finding common ground on a Third World demand for linking raw material and industrial prices, long opposed by the United States and West European nations, and on the general issue of goals and deadlines for aid from the wealthy to the impoverished nations. The United States has opposed proposals for a deadline on an aid contribution of seven-tenths of one per cent of gross national product by wealthy countries, long a U.N. target for the current decade. A nation's gross national product is the total value of the goods and services produced in the country in one year. Another source of delay was the sheer complexity of the issues and their translation into six U.N. official languages. Substantial agreement was reported on agriculture, development and its financing and the transfer of technology to poor countries. The conciliatory spirit and desire for consensus were a big change from the confrontation of the May 1974 economic session when the developing countries rammed through a declaration on a "New International Economic Order" over the opposition of the United States and other industrial powers.

The General Assembly's special economic session, scheduled to finish Friday, was extended through the weekend and may not adjourn until Monday in order to meet demands for the broadest possible consensus on guidelines to improve international trade and investment systems.

"The chances are 60 to 40" of achieving that consensus, Netherlands Development Minister Jan Pronk, chairman of the main negotiating committee, told a reporter during a pause in the closed-door talks Friday night.

The 138-nation assembly has split into smaller contact groups seeking agreement on such complex issues as commodity trade stabilization, international investment, transfer

FNB Directors Vote Dividend

At their regular September board meeting directors of The First National Bank of Midland voted a quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share to stockholders of record as of Sept. 23, payable no later than Sept. 30.

Wilbur A. Yeager Jr., president, noted that at the end of August the bank had reached record levels in deposits, loans, assets and earnings.

"We are extremely proud of our customers throughout West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico who have been largely responsible for the increase in deposits over the past 12 months. This increase, of over $50 million, is a most noteworthy achievement and reflects the energy, drive and hard work characteristic of the people of this area." The deposit increase represents the largest gain ever for any 12-month period in the 86-year history of the bank. "First National is now the largest bank in Texas and New Mexico not affiliated with a holding company," Yeager added.

Directors of First National are John P. Butler, C. J. Kelly, Frank Cowden, Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Paul L. Davis, Barron Kidd, Foy Proctor, A. N. Hendrickson, J. T. Baker, Frank Cowden Jr., J. Harvey Herd, J. Hugh Liedtke (advisory), W. B. Yarrow, Richard S. Brooks, Harvin L. Landua, Robert M. Turpin, William B. Blakemore II, Wilbur A. Yeager Jr., Joe Mabee and James N. Allison Jr.

JAMES N. ALLISON (1903-1975) PUBLISHER

EDITORIALS A Great Dedication

And the rains came Friday... just hours ahead of the Saturday afternoon visit of the President of the United States to the Tall City.

Although heavy rainfall caused some last minute changes in the advance planning, it did not dampen in the least the sparkling spirit of President Gerald Ford, or the enthusiastic greeting extended him by the large crowd of Midland and area residents on his arrival at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

It was a real West Texas WELCOME and the President responded with like enthusiasm, much to the delight of those on hand to get a glimpse of their President. They appreciated also the fact that he took the time to mix and mingle, as is his usual custom.

Following his airport visit, he was whisked to the Museum, where he was greeted with like enthusiasm by several hundred persons who had been invited to attend a reception in his honor; in the foyer of the edifice. He later toured the million dollar-plus facility with which he appeared to be much impressed.

Midlanders with whom he came in contact certainly were much impressed with their President's friendliness, his good humor, his overall interest and his cooperative spirit.

It was one of the greatest things ever to have had him in Midland on this particular occasion, with a generous amount of rainfall thrown in for good measure.

Other distinguished guests from Washington included Congressmen Richard White of El Paso and Harold Runnels of New Mexico, among others. They were among the many visiting dignitaries from petroleum and other industries across the land.

The entire program of dedication, of course, was to have been held on the grounds adjacent to the museum building, but the parking areas as yet have not been paved, and the bountiful rainfall placed them "off limits" for the time being. Plans had to be altered and the one adopted appeared to be the best for all.

Meanwhile, however, thanks again to President Ford, Senator Tower, Congressman Mahon, Ambassador Bush and all others who had a part in making the historic occasion such a joyous and successful one.

'Weren't You In My Old Outfit In Vietnam?'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN WASHINGTON — In the seclusion of San Clemente, Richard Nixon is beginning to question whether his slavish former staff chief, H. R. "Bob" Haldeman, always leveled with him.

He has started to question former aides to help refresh his memory. The deeper he has delved, the more he has wondered aloud whether Haldeman kept him fully informed about crucial matters.

While Nixon was President, he had a desire for solitude and a craving for an orderly environment undisturbed by trivial interruptions or interneeine discord. He sought to encapsulate himself from unnecessary turmoil and to gain the information he needed by reading, not rapping.

The hard-nosed Haldeman protected him from intrusions. Nixon now has begun to question whether he was overprotected. He has dropped remarks indicating he has deep misgivings about Haldeman.

Joseph laid the evidence of GSA's illegal hirings before his superiors. He warned that many of the files apparently had been stripped of their contents. In fact, he suspected the files were being pruned while he was reviewing them.

Allegedly, Scott told Joseph that the investigation would be awkward for Civil Service Chairman Robert E. Hampton. Indeed, the investigative files indicate that the GSA gave preferential treatment to at least two applicants referred by Hampton.

CRIMINAL COVER-UP: A young lawyer in the Philadelphia Special Prosecutor's office has evidence of illegal political hirings within the federal civil service. But no one in Washington wants to hear about it.

INSIDE REPORT—The Other Detente Produces Dividends

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK PARIS — A mood of "detente," unimaginable a year ago, between the U.S. and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is producing political dividends despite major underlying tensions, most particularly the sharp contradiction between Paris and Washington over the future of Europe.

"We have a detente now with President Ford," French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues told us at the Quai d'Orsay. "We both need it even though our interests cannot be identical."

A career diplomat and intimate of the French president, Sauvagnargues has helped end the rancid mood of suspicion and mutual recrimination which poisoned relations between his predecessor, Michel Jobert, and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Early returns from this new civility show visible gains, of which an important part is increasing French cooperation with the military structure of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), which France deserted nine years ago, although staying in the alliance.

At NATO's Brussels headquarters, French liaison officers are more closely involved in all aspects of NATO planning, a change that Gen. Alexander Haig, the NATO commander, is carefully cultivating.

One example: with the full backing of Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, Haig now provides France and other NATO allies with superior American intelligence, thus voiding — or trying to void — the dangerous knowledge-and-consultation gap which split the U.S. from Europe during the 1973 Middle East war.

More tangible evidence of France's new cooperation with NATO were the U.S. maneuvers on the coast of France near Toulon several months ago. "This would not have been permitted in the bad old days," a U.S. diplomat told us.

There are other examples: growing French contribution to NATO in the form of essential communications across Europe and complete cooperation of France as vital storehouse for NATO's logistics back-up.

There was much satisfaction here over the U.S. decision to buy the Roland II, developed by the French with West German help, as the new, low-level anti-aircraft missile for the U.S. Army in forward battle zones.

None of this means Giscard is thinking of rejoining NATO's military organization. His political base is firmly anchored to Prime Minister Jacques Chirac's powerfully-revived Gaullist party, which would regard any such change as heretical. Moreover, even pro-American diplomats quietly reinstated in policy positions at the Quai d'Orsay by Giscard after years of Gaullist disfavor now strongly oppose reintegration.

Thus, despite the warming trend, the fundamental conflict between Washington and Paris is far from solution. That conflict is over U.S. policy toward Western Europe and what one official here calls "America's insistence," led by Kissinger, "that Europe's role must be as a satellite revolving around the American sun."

BROADSIDES

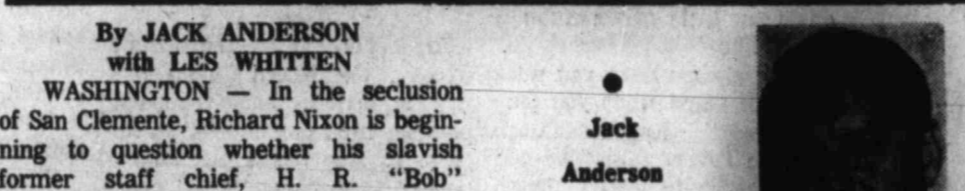

NICK THIMMESCH Prime Minister Henry Kissinger? Why Not?

WASHINGTON — It is with the utmost solemnity that this important question be asked. Has not the time come for the principals in the Ford Administration, indeed, the American people as well, to honestly conclude that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger be proclaimed Prime Minister of the United States?

Perhaps the title for the new office, whose constitutionality could be worked out, should be "premier." No matter. For many months now, Dr. Kissinger has manfully filled the role, and his labors should be rewarded with the title.

For almost two centuries, the republic has struggled along without a prime minister. We are a people slow to change our government structure. But in recent years historic firsts have filled the air.

If a President can be forced out of office for the first time, why can't we arrange the modest change of installing a prime minister?

'Give 'Em Hell, Harry' To Be Presented Here

FORT WORTH — A series of Texas performances of an acclaimed new play will include a Midland presentation in late November.

Montoya Denied Change Of Venue, Delay In Trial

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A motion to move Rep. Greg Montoya's theft trial out of Austin has been denied.

District Court Judge Mace Thurman denied the change of venue Friday after an all-day hearing.

Thurman set the trial for 9 a.m. Tuesday despite the arguments of Montoya's lawyers, Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, that a combination of three things prevents Montoya from receiving a fair trial in Austin: Montoya is a politician, is from South Texas and is a Mexican American.

All of these work to his disadvantage at a time when an other South Texas politician, who is a Mexican American, District Judge O. P. Carrillo, is being tried before the Texas Senate on impeachment charges, Washington said.

Harry! is about the nation's 33rd President, the late Harry S. Truman, and in the words of The Associated Press, "Harry would have loved it!"

The production, now beginning its second transcontinental tour, will have its first Texas performances in Fort Worth on Nov. 18 and 19, followed by presentations at Arlington (Nov. 20), Dallas (Nov. 21-23), Wichita Falls (Nov. 25), Austin (Nov. 26), Amarillo (Nov. 27), Oklahoma City (Nov. 28) and Midland on Nov. 29. The final Southwestern performance will be in Lubbock on Nov. 30.

Portraying Harry S. Truman on the current tour is Ed Nelson, well-known character actor who has more than 1,500 TV appearances and some 20 motion picture roles to his credit. On television, he is probably best-remembered for his continuing role of Dr. Rossi on "Peyton Place." His movie credits include roles in "Judgment at Nuremberg," "Elmer Gantry" and "Airport '75." He also has numerous stage appearances to his credit.

"Give 'Em Hell, Harry," which was termed "superb" by President Gerald Ford at the premiere last April at historic Ford's Theater in Washington, is a full two-act play with a complex set, imaginative lighting and several costume changes. There are scenes in the famous Oval Office in the White House, in the yard of the Truman home in Independence, Mo., in the Vosges Mountains of France, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington and other places. The production has been directed by Peter H. Hunt who directed the Broadway musical hit, "1776."

The new play is being toured under the aegis of Dacus-Shurr Productions of Fort Worth. The Midland performance will be in the auditorium of Lee High School in that city.

FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS
By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Agent

For most of the past week the weather was warm and ideal for the maturing of farm crops. Then the front and rain moved in, dropping temperatures and bringing physiological processes to halt on crops like cotton. A great amount of the cotton acreage in Midland County is late planted and still needs a large number of hours above 65 degrees to complete its 65 degrees to develop.

The good rains are timely for planting of winter annual forage crops. September is an ideal month to plant these crops in Midland County. Small grains are probably the best choice of the cool season annuals to plant here and these include oats, wheat, barley and rye. These four are about equal in forage quality when immature and give similar animal performance. There are differences in palatability in the following order from the most to the least palatable: oats, wheat, barley and rye.

These differences present no problems unless cattle are given a choice of small grains within the same pasture. For this reason these grains should not be mixed in a planting. Oats are used widely for forage production.

For the best results with oats for winter grazing, plant early, allow them to reach at least 8 inches in height before turning in livestock and rotate grazing when 75 per cent of the plants have been eaten to allow recovery. Continuous, close grazing weakens the root system and greatly reduces forage yields on any type of small grain. Oat varieties recommended for our area include Alamo-X, Ora, Nora, Moregrain, New Nortex, Bronco and Cimarron. Cimarron and Bronco are the most cold tolerant within this group. Wheat generally is more drought tolerant and winter hardy than oats, but produces less early forage. Wheat varieties also differ in cold tolerance and early growth habit. Wheat varieties recommended for the Midland area include: Caddo, Tascosa, Sturdy, Caprock, Scout 66, Kaw 61, Improved Triumph, Triumph 64 and Crockett. Tascosa and Triumph are favored for grain production; the Sturdy is said to be very good for grazing. There are some spring type wheats that are promising for grain production in Midland and must not be planted before December. They are for grain only and cannot be grazed. More will be written about these later. Barley also is more drought tolerant and winter hardy than oats and generally matures earlier. Barley varieties are the most salt tolerant of the small grains. Varieties adapted to our area are Will Rogers, Cordova, Era, Tokak, Tambar 401, and New Mexico Winter. Rye varieties generally have excellent winter hardiness and provide good fall and late winter forage production but mature earlier than other small grains. Elbon and Bonel varieties generally have performed well in West Texas and more recently several synthetic varieties have been released such as Vitagraz, Acco 811, Wintergrazer, Winter-More, Gro-Green and others which seem to be satisfactory.

After the past couple of seasons many home gardeners in Midland have a greater respect for the growing of fruits and vegetables. They probably have compared their garden produce with that found in local supermarkets. They are more than likely wondering if farmers have the same insect and disease control problems with which they are forever confronted. The answer is easy. They do have problems. The main difference between garden problems and farm problems is economics. When gardeners fail, they go to the grocery store; if farmers fail, we will all go hungry. Often the most precious things are taken for granted.

Hopefully, gardeners and "tillers of the earth" are never guilty of taking for granted the many comforts which farmers and farming make possible. Remember, Americans buy their food for a smaller percentage of income than people in any other part of the world — about 16 per cent here compared to 50 per cent in Europe and 80 per cent in most of the rest of the world. It's the farmer who puts two cars in every garage, who supplies those color televisions, who provides all that leisure living. Agricultural producers number one per cent of our population. Yet, they have made us the best fed, best clothed nation.

Entex Files Suit Against Lo-Vaca

HOUSTON (AP) — A suit alleging $9.4 million in alleged overpayments for natural gas called for in a 1968 contract has been filed by Entex Inc. against Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. and Coastal States Gas Producing Co.

The state district court suit, filed Friday, alleged that Lo-Vaca and Coastal States were obligated by the contract to supply Entex's requirements for natural gas for resale and distribution throughout the Houston-based gas company's distribution system until 1968. The petition claimed that the system involves about 67,000 customers in 39 south Texas towns.

The suit said that when Lo-Vaca could not supply the gas for the prices in the contract it received permission from the Texas Railroad Commission in 1973 to obtain more gas for Entex at a higher rate.

Nixon's Attorney Fees Near $500,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmer President Richard M. Nixon and allies in his fight to gain custody of his White House tapes and documents have paid $250,000 in legal fees, but bills still owed amount to nearly that amount, says Nixon's chief fund raiser.

"I had hoped at one time that the total bill wouldn't exceed $500,000," Rabbi Baruch Korff added Friday, but he feared the court fights still ahead in the complex constitutional case will push the eventual cost above that total.

Trapped Oil

gases ahead of it, causing heavy oil to flow more easily.

Another method is carbon dioxide flooding. The carbon dioxide gas is forced into the reservoir where it dissolves into the oil, forcing it to the well.

Another promising method is micellar-polymer flooding. A detergent (micellar fluid) is pumped into an injection well. It sweeps through the reservoir, cleaning oil from the rock grains. Then a second substance — a thickened water, gel or polymer — is injected to move the detergent and oil forward.

Theoretically, according to Petroleum Today, 85 to 95 per cent of the oil in a reservoir could be recovered by the use of detergents, so much of today's research is aimed at developing this method. But it is expensive. While crude oil is currently worth about three cents a pound, detergents may cost anywhere from 27 cents to $2 a pound.

The industry, primarily the major oil companies, has been researching ways to get more oil out of known fields for more than half a century. The lead time for such development is long. New techniques must be developed and tested. The economic climate must be favorable. At the earliest, oil from the new enhanced recovery projects will reach the consumer about five years from now.

This is a portrait of Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, who was to be canonized today by Pope Paul VI. She will be the first U.S.-born Roman Catholic saint. (AP Wirephoto.)

Army Of Workmen Sets Stage For Vatican City Ceremonies

By JULIE FLINT Associated Press Writer VATICAN CITY (AP) — An army of workmen hung a huge tapestry of Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton from St. Peter's Basilica on Saturday and set up more than 20,000 seats for the first canonization of a native-born American.

Mother Seton will take her place Sunday among the Roman Catholic Church's company of saints 154 years after her death in the convent she founded, the Sisters of Charity, in Emmitsburg, Md. Pope Paul VI, concelebrating a canonization mass with eight cardinals, archbishops and bishops — all but one American — was returning from his summer retreat south of Rome to prepare for the ceremony in St. Peter's Square. The 77-year-old pontiff spent much of the summer studying the life of Mother Seton, who was born into an upper crust Protestant family in New York two years before the Declaration of Independence.

"His secretary has been reading him my book in the Vatican gardens," the Rev. Joseph Dirvin, Mother Seton's biographer, said Saturday. "He asked for a second copy just recently so the Pope could follow the text to improve his English. "He is very impressed with Mother Seton's life." About 500 workmen moved into St. Peter's Square to prepare for the ceremony. The tapestry they hung from the loggia showed Mother Seton, clothed in a black habit, standing over a globe with the United States illuminated by rays of sunlight.

The Vatican disclosed that women from four nations were chosen to illustrate four phases of the new saint's life in the canonization ceremony, third of six this Holy Year. The pope had earlier declared Sunday "Women's Day."

The 17-year-old daughter of the French ambassador to the Holy See, Ines Amarich, was to make a brief address about Mother Seton's childhood; Mrs. Lidice Maria Gomez, a Spaniard, was to illustrate her married life; Gina Faccini, an Italian widow, her widowhood; and an English Sister of Charity, Katherine O'Toole, mother-general in Halifax, Canada, her religious life.

More than 500 priests and 80 bishops from the United States and Canada flew in for the ceremony. The canonization — a 20-minute ritual inserted in a solemn Mass — crowned a 93-year campaign by the Sisters of Charity. It followed a lengthy Vatican investigation that found Mother Seton's life perfectly pure, verified three miracles attributed to her and judged her "a true physical beauty, unmarred by vanity." The canonization follows Mother Seton's beatification in 1963 by Pope John XXIII, who proclaimed her "blessed" in heaven. It recognized her as having powers of intercession with God.

Beatification requires the identification of two miracles. Canonization needs two more, but Pope Paul waived one of them for Mother Seton in order to sanctify her during Holy Year. Born in 1774, Elizabeth Bayley was the daughter of Richard Bayley, New York's first health officer, and Catherine Charlton, daughter of an Episcopal rector. She had an upper class education, loved theater and dancing, and at age 19 married into a wealthy shipping family.

However, William Seton contracted tuberculosis and died in 1803 during a trip to Italy. His penniless widow converted to Roman Catholicism soon after her return to New York — to the dismay of family and friends. Mrs. Seton moved to Baltimore and then to Emmitsburg, where she took vows, founded her order and established a school from which the parochial system evolved. She died in 1821. In 1882, James Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore launched her candidacy for sainthood.

Although the first native-born American saint, Mother Seton was not the first saint from the United States. Italian-born Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, founder of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and a naturalized American, was canonized in 1947, 30 years after her death.

Boston Expected Trouble, But The Blowup Never Came

By PETER ARNETT
BOSTON (AP) — They expected trouble. Last year just part of the city was affected. This year kids from all over Boston would be on those buses. They expected trouble all right.

But the blowup never came. Sure, there was violence, but it was scattered, isolated vandalism during the night and limited to certain neighborhoods. The city was quiet on the whole.

How did Boston avoid violence after last year's flareups?

over a less extensive busing plan? The answer seems to lie mainly in the massive marshalling of city, state and federal power which preceded the rolling of the buses.

Now there are indications in this still-tense city that what was billed as the most critical school desegregation showdown in years may be resolved with a minimum of violence and disruption.

Boston city officials and police still are nervously watching the new school year unfold because they vividly remember last year's violent opening which saw angry neighborhoods stone the first children ever to be bused for integration here, injuring some. And the potential for serious incidents remains as mobs roam some areas at night, tangling with police.

But the likelihood that such incidents would seriously interfere with the smooth running of school busing in Boston is seen as unlikely for these reasons:

—Contrary to last fall's incident, Bostonians were warned sternly in advance by their mayor, the governor and the federal government that lawbreakers would be arrested and quickly punished.

To put teeth into the official stand, police guards were quadrupled to a total of 2,100 around critical schools and bus routes. In addition, federal marshals and National Guardsmen were brought to Boston. A U.S. Army paratroop division was made available.

—The steam seems to have gone out of key areas and organizations that opposed busing on the streets last year, leaving only one neighborhood, Charlestown, to vocally and violently resist, with no backup from anywhere else in the city.

—Some white parents who held their children out of school last year because they feared for their lives, are sending them back this year. Parents and National Guardsmen were participation during the summer in biracial councils and a paratroop division was made available.

—What is significant—and a great relief to city authorities—is that no one is on the streets anywhere in South Boston protesting busing. This is partly due to a mood of resignation in the neighborhood.

Another reason is that South Boston's militants have decided on a different tack.

"Today, we are more educated, more sophisticated than we were a year ago," said Mrs. Gaul. "We were focusing more on private education for our children... We are pressing for a constitutional amendment to reverse the courts and give us our schools back."

What about South Boston's cousins in Charlestown who have taken to the streets to protest? Replies Mrs. Nancy Yotts, director of the South Boston information center and a veteran of the streets: "Well, it's their first year, you know."

There are 15,000 people in Charlestown, and this school year 350 children were ordered bused out, with 1,200 coming in.

The people of Charlestown wanted none of it. Boston authorities feared the worst at Charlestown, because the community had many unemployed and a high crime rate. And the mothers of Charlestown sounded as militant as those that endangered the streets of South Boston last year. They formed an antibusing organization called Powderkeg ("Because we have a short fuse") and each day several score of women march up Bunker Hill chanting "Hall Marys" and reciting the "Lord's Prayer" to show their defiance.
