Motley, Dawson Get Sites For New Wildcat Work

Wildcats have been staked in Dawson and Motley counties, and a wildcat reentry is planned in Gaines.

Cosuma Oil Corp. will drill No. 3 Holton as an 8,500-foot wildcat in Dawson, four miles west of Lamesa and one location south of the firm's No. 1 Holton, recent opener of the Gin, North (8,000) field.

Location is 3,825 feet from south and 1,787 feet from east lines of labor 1, Taylor CSL survey.

No. 1 Holton was completed in August for 168 barrels of 42-gravity oil per day, through perforations at 8,017-8,029 feet.

Motley Venture

Cotton Petroleum Corp., Oklahoma City, will drill No. 1 Webb as a 6,500-foot try in Motley, 1/2 mile north of the Roaring Springs, North Permian-Pennsylvanian field.

Location is 1,900 feet from south and 600 feet from east lines of section 1, block 0-4, WTRR survey, two miles east of Roaring Springs.

Games Workover

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. will reenter and plug back to 11,900 feet at No. 1 Opal OK, former Devonian producer and Wolfcamp discovery in the Base field of North Gaines.

Location is 167 feet from south and east lines of section 27, block 0, OCSM/RNNG survey, 12 miles southwest of Seminole.

Morrow Wells Final In Eddy

Morrow gas has been produced in Eddy since 1934.

Western Oil Properties Inc. No. 2 Eddy gas production in the Morrow field is expected to be a significant amount, estimated at 1,000 to 1,200 barrels per day.

Production is expected to be 1,000 to 1,200 barrels per day.

The section has been drilled with an unreported amount.

Drilled as a wildcat, it has 4,400 feet set at 8,400 feet, the plugged-back depth.

Location is 1,800 feet from south and 600 feet from east (Continued On Page 5A)

Yates Petroleum Corp.

Yates Petroleum Corp. has reported a flow gauge of 1,200 million cubic feet daily at its No. 2 Eddy gas production in the Morrow field.

Flow was through perforations at 8,710-8,720 feet, which had been acidized with an unreported amount.

Drilled to 9,000 feet as a wildcat, it has 4,400 feet set at 8,800 feet, the plugged-back depth.

Location is 1,800 feet from south and 600 feet from east

Kissinger Says Nixon 'Odd, Artificial, Unpleasant'

SPECIAL TO THE WASHINGTON POST BY HENRY A. KISSINGER

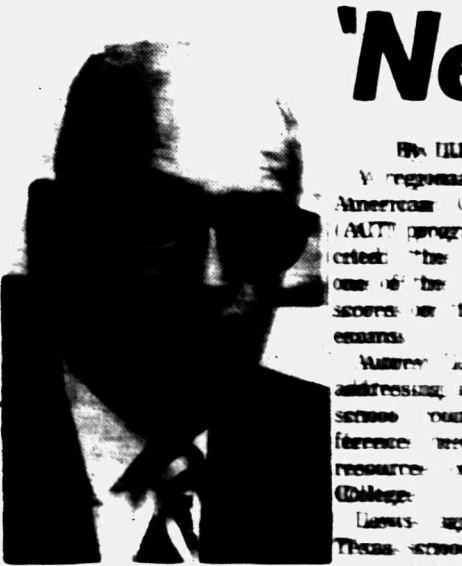

OTTAWA — The private side of Kissinger's comments were the talk of Henry A. Kissinger pointed up by a microphone that he said the secretary of state was used to treatment by the State Department. Kissinger said that Nixon was "one of our artificial and unpleasant men."

Kissinger said his former boss went to the heart of the problem during the dinner. Kissinger was seated next to Albano Morn, a Quebec member of Parliament from Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's governing Liberal party. He was chatting with her and across the table to MacFadden who was seated next to Kissinger's wife, Nancy. "In the sense that when he ple... He hated to meet new people. Kissinger had nice words for the Kennedy family, especially on very carefully, so nothing was spontaneous. He didn't enjoy meeting people and people sensed it. And that made them across so poorly on television. He was so nervous on television. It took such an effort for him to be on television." Kissinger said.

Another factor with an impact on the lower ACT scores is the increasing numbers of junior or community colleges. Lewis pointed out that often the students who attend the community colleges go into fields or programs that are not heavily dependent upon the "3 Rs" skills.

Too, he said, the community colleges are attracting the "high risk" student with borderline academic achievement who may (See TESTS Page 2A)

Pete E. Turner, 64, Dies; Services Pending

Pete E. Turner, 64, of 409 was a resident of Dallas before he died Wednesday night at the University Hospital in Big Spring.

Services are pending at the University Hospital. Turner was born March 28, 1911, in Abilene. He graduated from Houston law school and was a long-time member of the Texas and Midland bar associations. He came to Midland in 1959 from Abilene as manager of Western Farm Services. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and returned to Midland to set up a private law practice which was discontinued in 1964.

Turner was a member of the Midland Rotary Club, the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Country Club. He was a past president of the Midland Rotary Club and the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Oilman Says EPA Rule Could Shut Down Many Texas Fields

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A prominent oilman here says a new EPA rule could shut down many Texas oil fields. The rule, which requires the injection of water into reservoirs to increase oil recovery, is being opposed by the oil industry.

'New Illiteracy' Cause Of Lower Scores?

By WILLIAM O'BRIEN

Although designed to "liven up" the English classes, the new ACT method apparently resulted in lower scores. The test is more lenient grading and standardized test we need to know more about it. It measures and is applicable.

The ACT official asked the counselors, "Does that the test measures actual educational experiences 'up to a point in time'?" It indicates preparation for a typical freshman year in college and the competition for admission to a large number of colleges and the competition for admission to a large number of colleges.

Lewis said because the ACT scores could be used to measure the curriculum of the individual schools. The ACT scores could be used to measure the curriculum of the individual schools. The ACT scores could be used to measure the curriculum of the individual schools.

Plane Missing In Area

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Air Patrol planes began a search today for a missing P51 World War II privately owned plane with a Florida man aboard missing since Wednesday afternoon while on a flight from Big Spring to this West Texas city.

The plane was the second WWII vintage plane that did not reach its destination Wednesday. Earlier in the day, another P51 crashed near here killing its pilot, Capt. Donald J. Plumb of Windsor, Ont., Canada.

THE PLANES were coming here after participating in an air show in South Texas with the Confederate Air Force, a private group devoted to the preservation of World War II military aircraft. The planes, however, did not belong to the CAF.

Shortsighted, Indeed

Municipal labor unions in New York City surely must be about the most short-sighted and the most selfish of any group anywhere.

New York City is in an almost impossible financial situation... faced with a $600 to $800 million deficit.

Mayor Abraham Beame Wednesday submitted to members of a state-controlled board his plan to curb expenditures, promising budget cuts of $200 million, including a wage freeze and the possibility of further layoffs of city employees.

His proposal would eliminate the deficit in a three-year period.

And this is where the union leaders entered the scene. They threatened a general strike in response to the mayor's plan.

They surely must realize that the excessive number of employees and the high salaries being paid them are among the major causes, along with welfare, for the city's shaky fiscal position.

The city also announced last week that 7,000 educators have been laid off since the beginning of the school year.

The president of the United Federation of Teachers said the proposed general strike involves everybody.

This threatened strike business certainly does not help New York City's plea for financial assistance from the state, federal government or any other source in the eyes of many persons and groups.

It would seem that the union members would be willing to do their part, sacrificing perhaps with other New Yorkers, as the municipality strives to work its way out of the fiscal dilemma, staying off default on its debts.

Gov. Hugh Carey of New York State, meanwhile, told the American Bankers Association convention that the state "has done all we can to help New York City." He asked for the bankers' support, and sounded a plea for federal aid.

A representative of a respected investment rating service is quoted as saying that without massive federal aid the city could face fiscal default "within a month, perhaps."

The situation is anything but bright. The federal government so far has turned a cold shoulder to requests for aid. The Congress, however, is considering several bills on the subject.

Many persons perhaps would be more sympathetic to New York City's plight if New Yorkers would admit the error of their city's fiscal ways and would take definite steps to solve its problem. It would do little good to bail out the city if it doesn't intend to alter its excessive spending habits.

The federal government itself also should take a lesson from New York City as to the end result of continued deficit spending.

'You B-B-Better Get Used To It!'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Chile's controversial military dictatorship appears to have an inside track in Washington. At least two top-level representatives of the junta have paid recent visits to the nation's capital where the red carpet was rolled out for them.

The most notorious of the Chilean visitors was Col. Manuel Contreras-Sepulveda, head of the infamous National Intelligence Directorate, known as DINA. It is this military organization — a Latin American version of the CIA, FBI and Defense Intelligence Agency all lumped together — which has been directly responsible for the arrests and torture of hundreds of political prisoners over the last two years.

Before coming to Washington, Contreras stopped off in New York. He paid a quiet visit to the United Nations, where officials are preparing a report on human rights violations in Chile. Three months ago, a U.N. working group on human rights attempted to visit Santiago for an on-the-scene investigation, but the junta abruptly cancelled its invitation.

Contreras then hopped down to Washington, where his goings-and-comings were considered so secret that even the Chilean embassy was kept in the dark. We have learned, however, that the colonel stopped off at the CIA where, say our sources, a private chat was arranged with the deputy director, Lt. Gen. Vernon Walters.

The State Department, meanwhile, was officially asked to suggest a few people Contreras might see. The department cooperated but scrupulously recommended the colonel visit some senators and congressmen who are critical of the junta. On Capitol Hill, Contreras found his only unfriendly audience. He wandered into the offices of Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, but could find no one to talk with. Staffers recall him as a "short, round" man who appeared "bizarre and somewhat disoriented."

Contreras also visited the House International Organization subcommittee, headed by Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn. There he was sternly interrogated by a subcommittee staff member about human rights violations in Chile. The colonel responded with the familiar claim that reports of the killing and torture of political prisoners were a Marxist plot to embarrass the junta.

Another prominent Chilean who passed through Washington, shortly before Contreras came to town, was the junta's press attaché, Federico Willoughby. He suffers from a chronic kidney problem and came to the United States primarily for medical tests at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. During his 10-day stay, however, Willoughby visited the CIA, the State Department and several congressmen.

But Helms' real reasons are unsupported charges made against Sonnenfeldt in 1973, when he was nominated by then President Nixon as Under Secretary of the Treasury, that he had leaked national security information. Helms was a key witness against Sonnenfeldt, who was strongly defended by conservative Republican James Buckley of New York after making his own investigation.

The Senate Finance Committee approved Sonnenfeldt's nomination following months of delay, but Kissinger brought him into the State Department as counselor before the Senate acted on the Treasury nomination. The Foreign Relations Committee is now studying Kissinger's reply to Helms, contending that promotion procedures agreed to between the State Department and AFSA give AFSA no right even to be consulted on career minister nominations, much less any right of veto.

After keeping the nominations from the Senate floor in early August, Helms finally wrote Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Oct. 2. Because the quasi-official American Foreign Service Assn. (AFSA) had not been consulted, Helms contended, the nominations were illegally submitted to the Senate. AFSA is headed by right-winger John Hemenway, who was routinely "selected out" of the foreign service several years ago.

Helms' letter to Kissinger claimed the State Department violated foreign service "procedures" when President Ford nominated Sonnenfeldt and the seven other diplomats — including Assistant Secretary of State Arthur Hartman — to the highest foreign service rank.

Oh, Dad, Poor Dad— Even In White House

WASHINGTON — Poor President Ford. With all he's got to worry about he also has to contend with everyone in his family speaking his or her own mind.

Any father can sympathize with what Mr. Ford has to go through every night. I can just imagine the conversation at dinner time in the White House when only the immediate family is there.

President Ford says "Whew, what a day. I vetoed 10 congressional bills, made three Republican fund-raising speeches, and had to show the Emperor of Japan every bush in the Rose Garden."

Jack Ford says, "Dad, I have to tell you something." "What is it, Son?" "Last summer I went skinny-dipping with a bunch of kids at Aspen."

"Was this before or after you smoked pot?" the President asks. "I don't remember. I think it was after."

"This is too much. How does it look for the President of the United States to have a son that goes skinny-dipping?" "But Dad, you always told us to be frank with you and tell you exactly what we had on our minds. That's what holds this family together."

"I know that and I respect you for leveling with me. But I have a tough election coming up and there are a lot of people out there who don't approve of mixed skinny-dipping."

Jack says, "Mom said it was okay with her."

The President says, "Can't I read about it in the paper tomorrow morning?" "Mom said it was okay."

Mrs. Ford says, "It was an assignment for The Associated Press and David Kennerly was with her."

"Good grief," the President cries. "Don't you people have any secrets you can keep from me?" Do I have to know everything you do?"

"Well," says Jack, "if you want us to have private lives we will, but I don't see how you can trust your family if we can't take you into our confidence."

"Jack's right," Mrs. Ford says. "Some fathers don't even know when their daughters are taking the Pill."

"Who's taking the Pill?" the President asks. "Nobody," Mrs. Ford says, "but if Susan were it would be nice if we knew about it."

"I suppose you said that to The Reader's Digest too?" "I did not," Mrs. Ford says. "I told it to Good Housekeeping."

He thus has managed to offend top Ford aides, who feel that a photographer's opinions on profound domestic and world affairs are scarcely worth listening to. Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen, say our White House sources, is particularly upset with Kennerly's antics.

In an effort to ease him out, therefore, top White House officials have begun spreading stories about Kennerly. One of the tales they have been whispering is that he accepted a $700, leather-encased edition of a new game called "Petropolis" from rock music superstar Mick Jagger.

This would be a gross violation of a White House regulation which forbids any official from accepting a gift valued in excess of $25.

We checked the story and found it to be only partially true. Kennerly was indeed given a Petropolis game worth $700, but not by Jagger. It came instead from Baron Arnaud de Romay, another international socialite and the inventor of the game. Kennerly, to his credit, realized it would be improper to accept the gift, so he returned it.

MONOPOLY IN MOSCOW: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats stiffly have refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothers, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent Communist leader.

Any top Communist — Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-Lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro — would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the detente with Communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems, have it on their boycott list.

Introducing the game behind the Communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist country.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1959 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, the company's landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.

INSIDE REPORT

Drying Up Intelligence Sources Is Costly

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Overshadowed by congressional emasculation of the CIA but perhaps even more damaging to the national interest is the sudden drying up of valuable intelligence through exposure of National Security Agency (NSA) techniques.

Formerly super secret methods used by the NSA in monitoring commercial international phone and teletype circuits became common knowledge soon after they were given to congressional investigations of the intelligence community. Thus forewarned, foreign users of commercial channels for transmitting information of great interest to the U.S. government switched to more secure means.

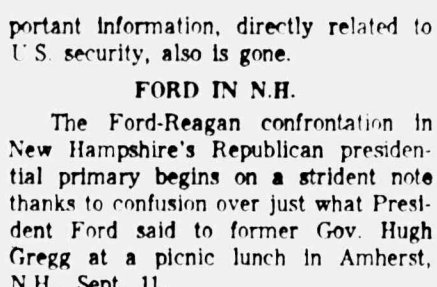

Losing this information is viewed at the Pentagon as considerably more serious than Defense officials care to admit. While lacking hard proof of who leaked the NSA information, these officials believe it almost surely came from the staff of the House Intelligence Committee, headed by Rep. Otis Pike of New York.

"I firmly believe none of this came from our staff," Pike told us. The fact remains, however, that descriptions of NSA monitoring techniques appeared in public prints (including a long account in the Sept. 8 Newsweek) soon after the secret material was handed over to Pike's staff.

Several foreign nations who had been using commercial channels switched to private couriers. One result: the U.S. government has lost valuable information about Arab strategy in international oil price manipulations. But even more im-

FORD IN N.H.

The Ford-Reagan confrontation in New Hampshire's Republican presidential primary begins on a strident note thanks to confusion over just what President Ford said to former Gov. Hugh Gregg at a picnic lunch in Amherst, N.H., Sept. 11.

Gregg got the distinct impression the President asked him to run his campaign there. Ford campaign sources say the President informed them he made no such offer. Former Sen. Norris Cotton, an old friend of the President who introduced him to Gregg in Amherst, was present for part of the conversation and remembers Mr. Ford talking about Gregg being a good man to "take hold" of his New Hampshire campaign.

There was no follow-up to the picnic conversation, and Gregg ended up as Ronald Reagan's state chairman. Ford sources say Gregg went with Reagan only because he could not run the Ford campaign; Gregg contends the President's men reneged on the President's offer. Thus, another New Hampshire primary begins with the sour

Midland Jaycee-Ettes Elect Judy Howard Club Veep

Mrs. Judy Howard was elected vice president of the Midland Jaycee-ettes at a special election held in the Community Room of Commercial Bank and Trust Co.

Honorees were Mrs. Todd McAnner and Mrs. Howard.

Jaycee-ettes of the Month for September was awarded Mrs. Sue Stagner. Other members honored were Mrs. Candy Kautz and Mrs. Pat Moore, who were presented certificates of appreciation for their service to the club.

Guests included Mrs. Barbara Greer and Mrs. Jan Outbert, M. Monahan and Mrs. Fran Jarger. Mrs. June Ocher was welcomed as a new member.

A film, "Lady Beware", was presented by Sgt. Fred Johnson of the Midland Police Department. This was followed by an informative question and answer period.

Under Aid to Jaycees activities, Mrs. Georgia Reed announced the Jaycee-ettes will assist the Jaycees with health, education, Mrs. Sandy Williams reported on the afternoon social.

With regard to civic projects, reports were given on the Mid-Say at Home Party, Big Spring Christmas basket and subscription at the Midland Community Theatre. It also was announced the club donated funds to the Camp Fire Girls to pay dues for a 40-year-old project.

Members Mrs. Jan Williams reported on the Monday night social for the Permian Basin Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The Jaycee auxiliary is continuing to collect canned goods for Teen Challenge-Outreach.

A Halloween carnival, under the direction of Mrs. Kautz, is being planned for the entertainment of children of Jaycee-ettes.

Concerning the state director's report, Mrs. Stagner awarded Mrs. Cathy Murphy and Mrs. Kathy Crockett, president, their "Hopping Bear" patches.

Workshops are being scheduled for SPOKE, "Feather Four Cap" and LD&PD in preparation for competition at a convention to be held Oct. 20-25 at Peoria. Other area workshops are being planned for November and will include the Cross and Oshum Jaycee-ettes.

At this time, a specific date for next month's meeting has not been announced because members voted to investigate monthly meetings to be started by November.

There Are Million Ways To Use Those Tomatoes

By EMMIE WELLS

"My tomatoes," wailed the woman on the telephone, "are rotting faster than I can make them. How else can I use them?"

Fortunately, tomatoes being the versatile little fellow they are, there are a lot of ways to use them.

Try this to get your eyes open to the many uses for tomatoes and average to cover a sizeable and do not combine with ... Sprinkle with herbs or shells with bread mixture and cheese and broil until tomatoes dot with butter.

... Bake until tomatoes are hot and tossed through and topping. Bake until tomatoes are hot through and top of stuffing is browned. (You can vary the stuffing by using instant rice instead of precooked rice instead of mix pulp with soft bread crumbs, salt, minced onion and cheese stuffings to turn the tomato leaves. Fill tomato tomatoes into a main course.)

Family Resemblance Comment Causes Rift

DEAR ABBY: I am 40 and everything I've been doing was seriously dating Ernie, a 60-year-old widower, when the following rift developed in our relationship.

One day Ernie suddenly turned to me and said, "You look like your father."

I immediately countered with, "You look like Sylvia Singer." Sylvia Singer is a mutual friend who, like Ernie, has light blue eyes and is prematurely gray.

At this point, Ernie became so infuriated, he cursed, which he seldom does.

I then said, "You don't mind telling me that I look like a man, but you become infuriated when I tell you that you look like a woman. Why?"

He said, "It's different when you tell a woman she looks like her father."

I said, "There is no difference. You are still telling a woman that she looks like a man."

He never called me again. I tried all my efforts to re-establish communication by phone and mail have failed.

Do you think I was wrong? And how can I patch things up?

Abilene's Speed, Defense Pose Challenge For Bulldogs

ABILENE — Midland High's Bulldogs travel to Abilene Friday night for what a few years ago was the Purple Pack's annual ordeal.

In a 20-year span of AAAA competition, Midland had managed just two victories over the Eagles. In one, back in 1959, it was 6-0. Midland stopped Abilene four downs on the one and the drove 99 yards for the lone touchdown, which graphically illustrates that victories over the Warbirds came through blood, sweat and many tears.

Then along came John Reddell and the Bulldogs have made winning over Abilene a habit, three straight, in fact.

However, this year's Abilene team even has Reddell worried. The Eagles, 3-2, just like the Bulldogs, not only are explosive on offense, but have a rugged defense.

Comparisons against two common District 5-4A opponents really doesn't clarify the issue. Abilene beat Big Spring, 30-6. Midland trounced the Steers, 53-25.

Against Permian, Midland bowed 14-0 and Abilene lost 23-13, but became the first team to cross the Panthers' goal line this season. The Eagles actually played the Panthers a closer game than the score indicates.

Fumbles set up 20 and 28 yard TD drives for the Panthers, who had to settle on field goals on three other threats. That's enough to cause concern over the Abilene defense.

Offensively, it's Abilene's breakaway backfield speed as exemplified by 9.6 sprinter Donnell Baldwin that everyone worries about, but last week Rucky Felts and Tony Fields hooked up on 47 and 36 yard passes that set up the Abilene TD's.

Because of Abilene's speed, the Eagles possess the most dangerous running attack Midland's feisty defense has faced this year.

Midland's ground-oriented Wishbone gave future opponents something to think about against Big Spring with the quarterback Kevin Widner-halfback Phillip Ward passing combination that clicked on four completions for 143 yards and three touchdowns.

The ground game, however, continued to function effectively as tackle Mike Sanders, guard David Hamilton, end Clellan Pearce and center John Newberry provided important blocks up front. On one two-play TD drive, Ward got the key block that sprung halfback Kim Madden for a 33-yard gain.

The real pressure will be on a defensive unit that must gear itself for both the pass and run. However, middle linebacker James Zachery, tackle James Ponder, ends

Chris Gaddy, Grady McGowan, and company survived Lubbock Monterey's Scott Gardner and, except for lapses on two plays, effectively shutdown Permian. Friday's game will be one of those must-win contests. Both teams are 1-1 in district and can ill afford another loss.

Still, the situation is better than a week ago. There were four unbeaten. Now there are just two ahead of the Bulldogs and Eagles.

Odessa-Midland Tilts Set Payoff Record

Midland College's basketball Chapparals get their first taste of outside competition Saturday in Alpine against Sul Ross University.

Other preseason scrimmages include Weatherford JC at Abilene's Moody College Oct. 23, Wayland College at Lamesa Oct. 28 and Abilene Christian College at ACC Oct. 31.

The season's opener isn't too far off. Nov. 7 at Hillsboro, when the Chaps face Texas State Technical Institute and the next night will go against Hill County College, a team that has been to the national juno tournament the last two years.

The home opener will be Nov. 13 against Cisco JC.

In an intra-squad scrimmage at Midland last week, Coach Chester Story started what he felt were his top five players on the Green team. That unit included 62 Ricky Daniels, Louisville, Ky., 6-8 Dan Vanderzee, Hereford, 6-3 Jackson Pace, Lubbock Monterey, 6-0 Tommy Parks, Fort Worth Poly, and Crawford Williams, Andrews.

Story said that several members of the Gold team were capable of breaking into the starting lineup. This team consisted of Sam Nickerson, Fort Worth, 6-7 Scott Parker, 6-5 from El Paso, Irvin, Jeff Chinn, Louisville, Ky., and Scott Stamp, Carrollton, Turner.

Midlanders will participate in National Jogging Day Saturday and Dr. James Bozell and Rev. Elbert Smithen have lined up a program at Memorial Stadium starting at 9 a.m. Saturday.

"For all people interested in jogging, we are emphasizing participation, not competition." Rev. Smithen pointed out. "However, for those who would like a little competition, we are having one, two and three mile jogs for those over-40 and those under-40."

When Midland High hosted Odessa Permian in Memorial Stadium before 8,000 fans and Midland Lee traveled to Odessa the same night a couple of weeks ago, the athletic departments of both schools systems split $29,000.

"That's the best we've ever done in two games with the Odessa schools," beamed Midland Athletic Director Thurman "Tugboat" Jones.

Like most press boxes, Texas Tech warns occupants of the third level of the Jones Stadium press box, that it is for the working press and no rooting or displays of enthusiasm will be tolerated.

On the elevator to the press level the other night, John Conley, assistant athletic director at Tech, was complaining to a friend, "Ralph (Sports Information Director Ralph Carpenter) put me on the same level with the writers and I can't even cheer. The other night I got a little excited and he almost had me thrown out of the press box."

WISHBONE FULLBACK — Midland High's Terry Whitaker will be at fullback when the Bulldogs invade Abilene for a District 5-4A game Friday night. Whitaker, a senior, is one of the Purple Pack's leading rushers.

Cubans Only Part Of U.S. Pan-Am Problems

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States may not officially recognize Cuba, but it's getting hard not to recognize the Cubans at the VII Pan American Games.

They're the ones with all the gold medals.

The insurgent, imperturbable Cubans seem to be one of the few islands of solidarity in an increasingly confusing and fouled-up scene here. It could be days before perplexing problems of Wednesday, the third day of competition, are laid to rest.

As a lighter, and hopefully less hectic, schedule began today, the Cubans had padded their gold medal total to 22. The well-financed American effort trailed with 18 golds, but led in overall medals with 16 silver and 14 bronze for a 48-41 edge over Cuba. Canada was next at 44-10.

Of the events held Wednesday in 15 categories, at least half experienced maddening, some times classic, foul-ups.

A mini-not-complete with unruly mobs and armed troops broke out when Canada's Brad Farrow was declared winner over Cuba's Hector Rodriguez on a disqualification in semi-lightweight judo. The Cuban delegation was so incensed Rodriguez' silver medal was refused.

When a controversy cropped up in one of the shooting events, somebody got the bright idea to count all the bullet holes in the targets.

Whether or not the problem fraction earlier.

Even though the right names were eventually matched with the right faces, officials held that Davidson should be disqualified since he quit in the middle of his run. American team members went into an indignam rage, no one would predict if the officials would be willing to lose face, admit their mistake, and let Davidson have another chance.

In track and field, the American won 19 of 23 gold medals during the 1971 Pan Am Games at Cali, Colombia. But the U.S. has already lost seven hard-fought gold medals in the 1975 Pan Am Games. He was easily the top performer for any country in the Games. The United States so far has won 16 gold, 16 silver and 14 bronze for a 48-41 edge over Cuba. Canada was next at 44-10.

The Americans still struggle along in track and field. A protest over the re-eligibility of a Cuban runner in the 100-meter dash was argued using a track 800-meter run.

Robert Napier achieved a singular distinction in the triathlon when he became the first in 15 years to beat out a Cuban for a weightlifting gold medal. The American, Bruce Davidson, won the 308-pound class in the opening segment of the competition.

Margaret Murdock, a nursing student from Topeka, Kan., set a Pan Am record of 1:06.0 in the individual small bore rifle (finals) in center fire pistol shooting.

Tiant's Houdini Act Thwarts Reds, Squares Series

CINCINNATI (AP) — The magic of the Cincinnati Reds at Riverfront Stadium is nothing compared to the magic of Luis Tiant.

The tricky Boston right-hander squirming out of more jams than a Houdini. Tiant tamed the Reds 5-4 with a remarkably courageous performance, and led the buoyant Red Sox into a 2-2 tie in the best-of-seven Series.

THE MAN has done the job all year long, said Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, who will start Reggie Cleveland against Cincinnati's Don Gullett in Game 5 tonight. "He was out there at the end tonight and he did the job again."

The Reds have been almost impossible to beat at home this year. They had a 6-17 record before Wednesday night's game. At first it looked like they were going to continue their dramatic domination at Riverfront against Tiant.

Boston's star pitcher, who had shut out Cincinnati at Fenway Park in the Series opener last Saturday, was obviously not himself with only three innings rest. The Reds gave the visiting Riverfront fans a lift with two quick runs off the chunky right-hander in the first inning.

My breaking ball was not as good as it was in Boston, Tiant, stroking his famous Fu Manchu mustache, told the press tonight. "I used my fastball more tonight. Also, the mound is higher here than in Fenway Park, that bothered my control."

pitching a typical Luis Tiant game. He had better control in the opener at Fenway. His breaking ball just wasn't working.

Johnson said, however, that he had no intention of taking his best pitcher out of the game.

Luis did seem to have a break with the ground ball couple of times. Johnson said, "But it took a couple of hitters for him to straighten himself out, and he was on his way again."

Magnificently Tiant worked out of the jam in the fourth. The right-hander also had nervous times in the fifth, gave up hits in the sixth and eighth and then found himself in big trouble in the ninth.

Tiant gave up a leadoff single with the tremendous shot of Cesar Geronimo and then a Griffey's bat.

"I knew if the ball would stay in the park he would get a run in scoring position," Johnson said, "Working with extreme care to see the dangerous Pete Rose walked him to put men on first and second with one out. Then Griffey hit one of Tiant's pitches, was back in after he had struck Fred Lyle, and back to work. Tiant did a great job of making a stunning catch over his head to straighten himself out, and he was on his way again."

Johnson himself kind of thought that the young Boston thoroughbred would catch up to Cesar Geronimo and then a Griffey's bat.

Midland Harriers Face Toughest Test To Date

Midland High's cross-country team has a string of four straight victories going, but Coach Edwin Nixon fears it all could come to an end this Saturday.

This is the weekend we find out how good we are," says Nixon, whose Bulldogs run in the El Paso Burges meet, one of the better runs in the state.

A field of around 16 teams is expected and as Nixon pointed out, "They take their cross-country seriously out there. Somebody from El Paso has won state every year except one since they've made

Area Grid Elevens Load Up With Live Ammo This Week

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The only way you can describe the remaining weeks in area high school football action is as crucial. There are no non-conference games left on the slate.

What is expected to be a heated five-team race in District 7-AA will unfold Friday. Pre-season favorite, Crane (3-3), will host Sonora (4-2) in the key contest.

Crane owns two losses to AAA schools, and the other came at the hands of Class A Mason when the Birds were forced to play without leading rusher Willie Neal. Neal is expected to be back in form for the 7-AA opener Friday.

The other key battle in 7-AA will come in Ozona where the Lions will host the Reagan County Owls. Reagan County is 3-3 on the year while Ozona is 4-2. Both have losses to highly ranked Ballinger and both own wins over Brady. This could be a real thriller.

Defending champion McCamey takes the week off after posting a surprising 5-1 non-loop record to lead the league.

District 2-AAA also faces an important week with two unbeatens facing each other in Monahans. The third ranked Lobos will host undefeated Seminole in a key battle. Monahans is 6-0 on the year and Seminole is 5-0. The loser will be hard pressed to keep in the 2-AAA race.

District 3-AAA continues district action Friday with an important tilt in Snyder where the Tigers host undefeated Lake View Snyder, the defending champion, is 1-1 in league warfare while Lake View is 2-0. Snyder will have to win to keep pace with the loop leaders Lake View and Lubbock stacado, who the Tigers lost to 17-16 last week.

District 3-AAA action opens tonight, however, when the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes travel to Lubbock. Dunbar is 1-0 in league play while Lamesa appears to be out of it already with an 0-2 record.

Another tight race is expected in District 6-A where Balmorhea, Iraan and Rankin are expected to make a run for the crown. Things will start fast in this loop since Balmorhea travels to Iraan to open district play Friday.

Rankin, meanwhile, will mark time in a game against Wink on foreign soil. Defending champion Seagraves, the top ranked Class A team in the state, will open District 5-A play against winless Shallowater. This district will probably decide a playoff berth next week when Stanton entertains Seagraves. Stanton draws the open date this week to prepare for that big contest.

Royal Fears Hog Offense

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — There's bad news, and then there's some more bad news. Texas Coach Darrell Royal has told the Longhorn Club as the University of Texas prepared to meet the Arkansas Razorbacks next Saturday at Fayetteville.

First, the bad news: "I think Arkansas is every bit as good an offensive team as Oklahoma. They don't have as good a defensive team as Oklahoma, but then, no one else has one either," Royal said.

Now, more bad news: "We haven't snapped back in practice like we would have from a victory," he added before showing film of last Saturday's 24-17 loss to Oklahoma.

Arkansas will have a tremendous psychological advantage in the regionally telecast game, Royal said, explaining that the Razorbacks are coming off a 41-3 thumping of defending Southwest Conference champion Baylor. Even more bad news: Arkansas will be playing before the howling and hooting of the Longhorn fans in Fayetteville. "I think it is a tossup ball game," Royal said.

The Texas coach praised Tim Campbell, little brother of full-back Earl Campbell for his frenzied play against OU Saturday.

"You can tell what kind of stock he comes from; he is going to be one fine football player," Royal said while the OU screen showed the 190-pound defensive end bounding off the ball like a shot from a quarterback Steve Davis.

"He makes mistakes," Royal bemoaned, referring to the Oklahoma game. Royal said, "They deserved to win, but Lady Luck had something to do with it." The Sooners recovered nine of the 12 fumbles in the game. One of the fumbles came on the first play after Texas punted to the OU eight in the final minutes of the game. A hard tackle sent the ball like a shot from the runner to the only Oklahoma player in a crowd of said, "He made a costly one at Longhorns."

Eckwood Leads Assault On SWC Rush Record

DALLAS — At the rate they're going through the first five games, five runners will be among the top 12 in the 61-year history of Southwest Conference football by the season's end.

Arkansas' Jerry Eckwood is gaining ground at a recordbreaking pace and he may have to break the SWC record to finish ahead of Texas' Earl Campbell, Texas A&M's Bubba Bean, Baylor's Cleveland Franklin and teammate like Forte.

Fourteen times in SWC history players have gained more than 1,000 yards in a season. Taking the five-game totals of those 14, this year's crop ranks among the 12 leaders with Eckwood picking up yards at a rate that would put him 184 yards over the record 1,415 set by Texas

Roosevelt Leaks two years ago.

Eckwood's 92 yard average per carry is the best of the 19 runners. Bean's 8.8 norm is second best and Campbell's 7.0 ranks fourth behind the 8.1 yards TCU's Jim Swink averaged in 1956. Forte ranks ninth on the average list with a 5.4 norm and Franklin ties for 10th with 5.0.

Meanwhile, Texas A&M's defense continues to turn in defensive stats not seen in the SWC for decades. The Aggies have yielded 30 points in five games, best since Arkansas gave up 27 to its first five games in 1969.

Cubans Only Part Of U.S. Problems—

Marvin Black of Columbus, Ga., and Anderson finished one-two in the individual section and added the team to another gold medal.

Roberto Urrutia and Tania Guanche brought home two golds between them in weightlifting and their countryman Jose Bonzo added another in the second judo final.

The other Cuban golds Wednesday went to Manuel Ortiz in fencing's sabre final, and Luis Medina with a time of 1:47.98 seconds in the 800 meters.

Juan Davera, a newcomer to the Olympic jump, made his mark a world mark in winning the competition Wednesday.

day. The young Brazilian army corporal cleared 54 feet, 8 1/2 inches on his third attempt of the day.

In round-robin team events, the U.S. women downed Puerto Rico 3-0 in volleyball and Mexico, 99-65 in basketball. The men, meanwhile, managed to lose in field hockey, 5-0, to Argentina, and 3-1 to Mexico in soccer.

Writers Urge Lynching—

They see it that way but, accident or not, he (Armbrister) certainly obstructed Fisk in his attempt to cleanly retrieve the bunt and make a throw. The 'bump and run' has now been introduced to baseball.

Sports Editor Bill Tanton of the Baltimore Evening Sun said "Barnett was at least decisive in ruling that Armbrister did not interfere with Fisk. It is important that officials in all sports be decisive. It is more important for them to be right. I don't think Barnett was right last night."

And Chicago Daily News columnist Dave Nightingale wrote "What the Armbrister-Fisk bumpy-bump really masked is that the Reds are thoroughly in command of the Series at this point because of their magnificent defense."

Tiant's Act—

in broad brush strokes "You didn't know until the last out who was going to win. And that's the way a World Series game should be played."

Doubles by Griffey and Johnny Bench in the first inning produced two Cincinnati runs before the Red Sox came back with their game-breaking inning in the fourth. Evans tripled home two runs to tie the game and Rick Burleson, a defensive giant all Series, doubled home another to give the Red Sox their go-ahead run.

Then they wrapped it up as a fourth run scored with the help of an infield error and a fifth on Yastrzemski's single. That made it 5-2 Boston before the never-say-die Reds came back in their half of the inning on run-scoring hits by Dave Concepcion and Geronimo.

The Red Sox' victory insured that the series will go back to Boston for at least a sixth game on Saturday.

"We've earned some respect from the Reds, I think," said Fisk.

And now the Red Sox have a good chance to earn a World Series.

PRO BASKETBALL — Wilt Chamberlain and New York Knicks President Michael Burke will meet Friday to discuss a contract for the 7-2 center to again play in the NBA.

Wilt's attorney Sy Goldberg said, "It's now a question of motivating Wilt to play ball again. We never said Wilt was going to play again. What we wanted was the freedom to choose what to do."

"I had a bad back until yesterday," said the Knicks' Walt Frazier. "But the contract made me better. Now I'm ready to play 82 games." Frazier had just signed a five-year NBA contract for slightly less than $3 million. "It's a lot of money, but I've also had problems of spending a lot. It gives me financial security for the rest of my life unless I'm an idiot."

Meanwhile, Walter Dukes, an All-American basketball player at Seton Hall in 1953 and later a star with the Knicks, was convicted of practicing law without a license.

BASEBALL — Pitchers Andy Messersmith, Los Angeles Dodgers, and Dave McNally, Montreal Expos, want to follow Catfish Hunter's lead and become free agents. The Major League Baseball Players' Association says a grievance has been filed asking that both Messersmith and McNally be declared free agents because they have played out their option year in their contracts.

Experimental Use Of Pumping Devices To Aid Heart Wins Approval

By JOHN STOWELL. The goal of artificial heart im- patients before permanent WASHINGTON (AP) — In a plants, since the sophisticated pumps operate on the same principle to circulate the blood. The Texas Heart Institute in Houston and the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston have been given approval to implant the blood pumps, the pumps could be life savers for many patients entering the critical recovery period after surgery, and perhaps for high-risk coronary occlusion surgery.

About 50,000 open-heart operations were performed last year, half of them coronary artery bypass procedures with mortality rate of between 2 and 8 per cent. Many others involved heart valve replacement. The device is implanted in the abdominal cavity and connects the heart's left ventricle to the descending aorta, the body's largest artery. They are stainless-steel cylinders about four inches long with a polyurethane inner surface with polyester fibers which react with blood to form fibrous or scar tissue incompatible with blood flowing through it. Under the federal guidelines the device is to be implanted for a matter of weeks, at most in selected patients whose weakened hearts need help recovering from the stress of open-heart surgery. Developments of a reliable long-term LVAD is two years away. "This is an assist device. It does not replace the heart," said Dr. Peter L. Frommer, the NHLI official who heads the cardiovascular devices branch. "It is designed to take over a fraction of the main pumping chamber of the heart for periods up to several weeks." When the patient no longer needs the boost, the pump's external power supply will be removed. The device will remain in the abdominal cavity but will cease functioning as the heart's natural pumping takes over.

Humphrey Waiting For Winds To Shift

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — As a matter of logic, Hubert H. Humphrey should be finished with his Senate re-election campaign as a Democratic presidential candidate. As a matter of fact, he may just be starting.

The Minnesota senator who ran so hard, for so long, in futile quests for the White House has discovered the joy of being a noncandidate — with political sails unfurled in case there's a draft.

More than a few Democrats think it could happen. Humphrey himself says it's unlikely. But he's ready. "If the convention did ask me to run, I would accept the challenge and I would do it," he said.

But until then, he's waiting it out. "You have a big field of candidates," he said. "The last thing we need is for me to get into it. I don't intend to do it."

"I think the best politics is for me to do my job. I'm very content being a senator."

That also would appear to be the best strategy for the Democrats' most durable campaigner. He carries some political scars and liabilities that would be the undoing of most potential candidates but, from the campaign sidelines, he can discuss the issues without becoming one himself. "If I'm not a national man now, I'll never be one," he said.

The fact that there is speculation about another Humphrey nomination is evidence of Democratic dissatisfaction with the field of 10 active candidates. But the season is early; the presidential primaries don't begin for five months and Humphrey says that, when the voting begins, one of the declared candidates is likely to emerge from the field and take command.

"I am not an active candidate," said Humphrey. "I am not entering these primaries. I surely don't want to be charging all over the country giving six or eight speeches a day."

Instead, he's picking his spots, sorting through the speech-making invitations that come in at the rate of up to 350 a week, declining all offers of presidential-campaign support.

For example, there are the calls and letters from Democrats volunteering to run for seats at the national convention as delegates supporting Humphrey. "We can't let that happen," said David L. Gardner, Humphrey's administrative assistant.

If it did, Humphrey would be a candidate in the eyes of the Federal Elections Commission, subject to rigorous record-keeping and reporting requirements which he is not organized to handle.

His only organization is a Senate re-election campaign committee in Minnesota. Humphrey's Senate term expires next year, and Minnesota legislative leaders had offered to push a bill to let him run for the Senate and President at the same time. Humphrey says he told them not to do it. "I didn't want to give any indication that I was playing games," he said.

"My office is a de-politicized office," Humphrey said. "I do not have a politician in this office."

Nonetheless, when offers of presidential support come in, to get the standard response that Humphrey is a desirable non-candidate, the names and addresses are carefully filed away, just in case it happens and there's a need for volunteers next summer.

The talk of a Humphrey revival has come from widely divergent political quarters. Among them are Sen. George McGovern, President Ford and the liberal Village Voice of New York, which called him a war criminal while forecasting his nomination and election.

The name figures in almost every conversation about the Democrats and their candidates. Humphrey ranks second to Gov. George C. Wallace, but ahead of all eight declared candidates, in the Gallup Poll.

"It's nice," says Humphrey. "I consider it a compliment."

He has a physical examination every six months and says his doctors tell him he's in his best shape in years.

And Humphrey does maintain the hectic pace that has been his trademark, around the Senate and around the country.

Humphrey does seem to have mellowed a bit, however. He's stopped dyeing the gray out of his hair.

And he says the role of the noncandidate is a comfortable one. "I don't want to have to look over my shoulder — it's much easier this way."

In the Senate, Humphrey has become a leading Democratic spokesman on the economy, pushing for public-service jobs programs, national health insurance, long-range economic planning. He also is into foreign policy, farm policy. Name it, and Humphrey has a position on it. Sometimes he's had more than one, as in his transition from hawk to dove on Vietnam.

Humphrey says the hostility of 1968 is behind him now, that his campaign efforts for McGovern in 1972 helped convert some old foes and that his activist role in the Senate won that has no reflection on me personally.

It doesn't seem to have tarnished his image. "Everybody knows Hubert is honest," one Democratic politician said. "The only problem is that he can't say no."

Billed for back taxes because of a disallowed deduction of nearly $200,000 for his vice-presidential papers. There was no allegation of negligence or fraud.

Burdened by nearly $1 million in leftover debts from his futile 1972 bid for the Democratic nomination.

Treated for a bladder tumor, which may or may not have been cancerous. His doctors said it was borderline, meaning they could not determine whether or not the tiny tumor was malignant, and Humphrey underwent some 25 X-ray treatments late in 1973. He says the tumor is gone and his health is excellent.

"If I should run — which I have no intention of doing — I'll make available all my health records," he said. "Before that, the guys that are asking me about it, they'll have a nervous breakdown following me. My health is too damn good."

Humphrey doesn't minimize the illness. "Once you've had a scare like I've had — it's like Lyndon Johnson with his heart attack — you always know that it could happen again."

He has a physical examination every six months and says his doctors tell him he's in his best shape in years.

Urban Indians Lack Identity

By CHRIS J. HARPER
The Indians ventured to the cities for jobs, but as the Thirteen years ago Dorothy Demarris left her home in Taos, N.M., and became a migrant in her own country. "When recession comes who set to go back home" recalled the 28-year-old Pueblo Indian whose travels ended in a dingy room hotel in Chicago. Many Indians made similar town area journeys in the 1950s and 1960s under the Bureau of Indian Affairs' Relocation and Employment Assistance program. Today, about 45 per cent of the nation's 800,000 American Indians live in the cities.

Mrs. Demarris found work as a secretary, but many other urban Indians are unemployed. The Indian population in metropolitan areas has doubled in the past 15 years, and there has been a corresponding increase in problems of employment, inadequate housing and health care. The federal Bureau of Indian Affairs provides a variety of services for Indians living on reservations, but does not provide funds for job training and health services. Education and Welfare pumps some money into health services and other programs. Congress also has appropriated money for city schools with Indian children. The transition from reservation to city life is often a shock. "The only thing I can relate to is going to a foreign country," said Helen Whitehead of the American Outpost in Chicago. "At least on the reservation the pace is slower and the people are friendly." Indians centers in a number of cities attempt to help the grants adjust to their surroundings. But many centers are "band-aid operations" with small staffs, says one Indian center official. Thirty-five cities report populations of more than 1,000 Native Americans. The largest metropolitan number is 50,000 in the Los Angeles Long Beach area. Tulsa, Oklahoma City, New York, San Francisco, Phoenix, Minneapolis and Chicago all list more than 10,000 Indians apiece. Native Americans tend to congregate in poorer neighborhoods like Chicago's Uptown area. A federal study reported that about 19 per cent of urban Indians live in overcrowded or severely overcrowded housing, compared with a national average of 7 per cent. More than eight per cent of urban Indians live in housing without toilets, 14 times the national average.

Urban Indians often lack the political clout to solve their difficulties. In many instances their problems have been overshadowed by those of the larger black and Spanish-speaking populations in metropolitan areas. "We lack identity because we don't have Watts," said Wee Ford, director of the South Phoenix and Chi-Bay Indian Services Center in Long Beach, Calif. Sometimes internal battles within the Indian community have hampered progress. The Seattle area is currently referred to as the "snake-bitten" of the nation, admitted Greg Frazier, director of the housing center. "General population of the urban Indian is the most politically active ethnic group live while at the same time the most politically ineffective. We fight each other all the time."

Black Teacher Backs Troubled Neighborhood

BOSTON (AP) — When the black youngsters who have knives came out at South Boston High last year, when the pupils started hurling words and punches at each other, Adrienne Weston was in the thick of it. She is a white teacher at the 12th grade level. She said, "I didn't know I was a defender of that neighborhood. I've been to Selma and to Washington. They're not racist," she said. "I used to be able to walk this street now. What some call racism, all this (busing) started. They had plenty of chances to get me if they wanted to." She doesn't like forced busing. She goes to work and to the movies and to the city and to the city don't get into fights.

As a Howard University student in the late 1960s she was up that damn hill I was scared among the blacks and a mover in the St. Louis from a security meeting. Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. "We did those things in the 60s. I've been to Selma and to Washington. They're not racist," she said. "I used to be able to walk this street now. What some call racism, all this (busing) started. They had plenty of chances to get me if they wanted to." She doesn't like forced busing. She goes to work and to the movies and to the city and to the city don't get into fights.

Butz Loses Much Of Power To Formulate Food Policy

By DAN MORGAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the last two months, senior members of the Ford administration have quietly stripped Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz of much of his power to formulate food policy and make grain export decisions on his own.

As a result, some senior Agriculture Department officials are angry. They say that foreign agricultural policy is influenced more and more by "instant experts" at the White House of "striped-pants" diplomats at the State Department.

Court Overturns Odessa's Murder Conviction, Term

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Henry Wade Clinton won reversal of his murder conviction in the Dec. 22, 1973, shooting death of his ex-wife today because a prosecutor reminded jurors he could be paroled.

Clinton was convicted of killing Stella Jean Clinton in an Odessa home. He claimed it was an accident.

In the punishment stage of the trial, the prosecutor had announced that Clinton would be paroled in eight years if he were found guilty.

Feds Check Teamsters Pension Fund For Signs Of Mafia Ties

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of Labor Department auditors is combing federal records of the biggest Teamsters union pension fund to determine whether the billion-dollar retirement plan is controlled by gangsters.

Records from the Justice Department and the Internal Revenue Service have been turned over to Labor Department investigators as part of a coordinated government review of the $1.4 billion Central States Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund.

950 Lawyers To Be Sworn In
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A total of 950 new Texas lawyers will be sworn in Oct. 21 in the Austin Municipal Auditorium under auspices of the Texas Supreme Court.

The new attorneys were those successfully passing State Bar examinations in July.

State Bar President John M. Lawrence III Bryan, who was sworn in as the new attorney general, said the profession is "in a state of transition."

Some investment groups have suggested that Hoffa may have disappeared because he was "too big" for the pension fund.

officials who have gained a major voice in decisions involving policy; presidential assistant for economic affairs L. William Seidman, and Paul McAvoy, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

On Sept. 9, the President set up a new food committee under the National Security Council and Economic Policy Board.

Hoffa raised serious allegations against the current Teamsters leadership, charging that the union has been sold out to mobsters and known rackets.

At the time of his disappearance, Hoffa was waging a campaign to win back the presidency of the 2.2 million-member union, the nation's largest. Hoffa's family believes he was murdered.

The Teamsters union has been notified by the Labor Department of its preliminary investigation.

Inflation Cited In HL&P Request For Rate Boost

HOUSTON, AP — A Houston-based utility company has asked the Public Utility Commission to raise rates because of inflation.

The Public Utility Commission has rejected the request, saying the utility's costs are not too high.

Pierce Plans Return To Country Music

By BILL HANCE
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fifteen years ago, Webb Pierce decided he had just about had it in the music business. He turned to the business world, investing $12,500 in a small radio station in Georgia. Over the years, Pierce expanded his interests and purchased three more radio stations. Pierce says he has sold out and his initial investment is worth about $4 million. Pierce says his next move is to go back into country music. He is going to produce a new album and write the songs. He is also going to produce a new record. Pierce is not as flashy as he once was. In the early 1950s, he was known for his flashy western suits and he drove a Cadillac lined with silver dollars.

Hall Of Fame Dinner Set For Tuesday

Two Midland civic leaders, John P. Butler and W. Arthur Yeager, will be among 11 persons who will be formally inducted into the Permian Basin Petroleum Hall of Fame Tuesday night.

Home Heating Fuel Price May Go Even Higher

Supplies will probably be adequate unless a severe natural gas shortage causes a massive switch from gas to oil by large industrial users, they say. Major uncertainties regarding prices are whether Congress and President Ford agree to extend price controls beyond Nov. 15 and whether Ford will decide to drop a $2-a-barrel tariff on imported crude oil.

With controls in place and the tariff on the Federal Energy Administration predicts a rise of about two cents a gallon in heating oil prices by December. With controls and the tariff off, the FEA says the price could rise about six cents a gallon, or to 38 cents a gallon wholesale.

The price of home heating oil has risen steadily since just before the 1973 Arab embargo when it sold for around 20 cents a gallon wholesale.

This past summer, despite slack demand and abundant supplies, heating oil prices continued to rise. Since May, for example, Mobil Oil Corp. has raised prices four cents and Texaco Inc. 46 cents a gallon.

Now, with winter approaching, many companies are shifting price pressure to heating oil from gasoline.

On Tuesday, Exxon Corp. announced a penny-a-gallon rise in the price of heating oil.

According to FEA, retail heating oil prices have risen from 25.4 cents a gallon in October 1973 to 37.9 cents a gallon in August.

Location is 3,300 feet from south and 1,900 feet from east lines of league 258, Briscoe CSL survey, and in labor 70.

Blowing Well Is Capped

HOUMA, La. (AP) — Shell Oil Co. has capped and killed a natural gas well which blew out last Saturday, spewing forth one million cubic feet of gas daily.

With the well capped, traffic was resumed on U.S. 90 Wednesday night and a school near the well was being reopened.

Divestiture Legislation Gets Strong Washington Support

By CLYDE LA MOTTE Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON — There is a distinct possibility that one day in the not too distant future Congress will pass legislation breaking up major integrated oil companies.

This would mean that the Exxons, the Texacos and other "big" would have to choose one segment of the industry in which they wanted to continue to operate and would then have to divest themselves of their holdings in other segments.

Union Texas Hits Oil In Gaines Test

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. was drilling ahead below 10,705 feet on a 13,000-foot wildcat contract at No. 1 E. D. Moore Gaines County test, after it reversed out oil on a drillstem test in an unidentifiable formation.

Exxon Will Dig Chaves Project

Exxon Corp. will drill No. Robert H. Hannin as a 2-mile west steepwell to the two-well May Gates (Abo) field of Chaves County.

Camera Club Plans Program

Steve Anick will present "Fun in Photography" at the Monday meeting of the Midland Camera Club, scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in the Midland Nature Planetarium in Haley Park.

vote that he was sympathetic with the objectives of the proposed legislation "and fully share the view that if we are going to have deregulation of oil and gas prices, then we must take steps to assure there is competition within the industry."

However, he said, the Abourezk amendment "is unprecedented in its scope, requiring divestiture on a scale without parallel in this nation's history. Frankly, that concerns me."

A question Eagleton raised was what organization outside of the major oil companies would have the capital necessary to take over the relinquished operations. Also, he asked what impact the action would have on the nation's ability to produce and distribute petroleum in the critical years ahead.

Supreme Court Rules Out Best Supply Hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a growing natural gas shortage expected this winter, the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled out a tactic which the Federal Energy Commission considered its best hope of providing any immediate relief.

By barring 180-day exemptions from federal price controls on natural gas, the court left it squarely up to Congress to decide whether to permit such exemptions which in effect temporarily lifted price controls that are blamed for the natural gas industry's shortages.

Even if Congress takes action later this year to permit the exemption, however, that would provide only partial relief for the expected shortages.

serious questions that trouble me and I do not believe we should embark on such an intricate undertaking until we have better answers than those I have seen. I feel compelled to vote against the amendment."

Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) took the position that while some type of legislation might be desirable to limit the oligopolistic structure of the industry, he felt that the Abourezk amendment would apply too rigid a rule of vertical divestiture for all oil and natural gas companies above a certain size. He suggested that courts would have some discretion in ordering divestiture. So he voted against the amendment.

Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) was another who voiced support for restrictions on major oil companies to guard against too much concentration of power.

possible for interstate pipelines to buy an additional 200 billion to 400 billion cubic feet of gas this winter at unregulated prices up to three or four times as high as the federal ceiling price.

But this is only a fraction of the total shortage, forecast at about 2.9 trillion cubic feet.

Meanwhile, concerned about suspensions that some producers or pipelines may not have been trying as hard as they could to meet their contract obligations for gas deliveries, the FPC announced Tuesday that it will crack down on any who are unnecessarily reducing their deliveries.

The FPC did not cite any specific examples, but said such questions have arisen through congressional hearings "as well as in the day-to-day administration of the Natural Gas Act by the FPC."

We're building power plants that use lignite coal.

It's our answer to the rising price of natural gas.

This power plant is being built in East Texas at Martin Lake near Henderson. It will make electricity by burning lignite coal.

We have to build lignite plants because we're running out of low-cost natural gas, our main fuel today. New supplies are hard to get and very costly.

Lignite plants cost more than twice as much to build as comparable gas-fired plants, and that means electricity will cost more. But expensive as they are, lignite plants will still make electricity more cheaply than plants using high-priced gas.

That's because our large lignite supplies, acquired many years ago, are much cheaper than new supplies of gas. And using cheap fuel is one way we're keeping your electric bill as low as possible.

The average bill for Texas Electric customers is already 27 per cent below the national average, and we're working to keep it that way.

Museum Plans Extensive Membership Campaign

As Midland's Museum of the Southwest prepares to embark on its second decade as a viable educational, recreational and entertainment force in the Per-mian Basin, it is planning the most extensive membership campaign in its history.

Because the museum is a non-profit educational institution, dues are tax-deductible. There are numerous categories of membership available. The most popular ones include the $5 membership for single persons, the $10 one for couples, and the $25 category for family groups. A student membership (for bona fide students) costs only $1. In addition, there are a number of special categories among them the contributing membership at $50, the supporting membership at $100, the sustaining or business membership at $250 and the patron memberships at $1,000.

Pierce Plans Return To Country Music

By BILL HANCE

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fifteen years ago, Webb Pierce decided he had just about had it.

"People come from all over the world to see that. Me and that pool have been in every major magazine here and abroad," he said.

Although he sold more than 68 million single recordings, it was time to store the guitar in a closet.

The singer said his major goal now is to write a song which will be accepted by the public.

He turned to the business world, investing $12,500 in a small radio station in Georgia and over the years expanded can hear his music today. Take John Denver. He sounds just like me."

He said he and Denver, who was named entertainer of the year by the Country Music Association this week, met about 10 years ago.

Abilene's Speed, Defense Pose Challenge For Bulldogs

ABILENE — Midland High's Bulldogs travel to Abilene Friday night for what a few years ago was the Purple Pack's annual ordeal.

In a 20-year span of AAAA competition, Midland had managed just two victories over the Eagles. In one, back in 1958, it was 6-0. Midland shipped Abilene four downs on the one and the drove 20 yards for the lone touchdown, which graphically illustrates that victories over the Warbirds came through blood, sweat and many tears.

Then along came John Reddell and the Bulldogs have made winning over Abilene a habit, three straight, in fact.

However, this year's Abilene team even has Reddell worried. The Eagles, 3-2, just like the Bulldogs, not only are explosive on offense, but have a rugged defense.

Comparisons against two common District 5-4A opponents really doesn't clarify the issue. Abilene beat Big Spring, 20-6. Midland trounced the Steers, 53-25.

Against Permian, Midland bowed 14-0 and Abilene lost 23-12, but because the first team to cross the Panthers' goal line this season, The Eagles actually played the Panthers a closer game than the score indicates.

Possibles set up 20 and 28 yard TD drives for the Panthers, who had to settle on field goals on three other threats. That's enough to cause concern over the Abilene defense.

Offensively, it's Abilene's breakaway backfield speed as exemplified by 9.6 sprinter Donnell Baldwin that everyone worries about, but last week Ricky Felts and Tony Fields hooked up on 47 and 36 yard passes that set up the Abilene TD's.

Because of Abilene's speed, the Eagles possess the most dangerous running attack Midland's feisty defense has faced this year.

Midland's ground-oriented Wishbone gave future opponents something to think about against Big Spring with the quarterback Kevin Widner-halfback Phillip Ward passing combination that clicked on four completions for 143 yards and three touchdowns.

The ground game, however,

continued to function effectively as tackle Mike Sanders, guard David Hamilton, end Clellan Pearce and center John Newberry provided important blocks up front. On one two-play TD drive, Ward got the key block that sprung halfback Kim Madden for a 33-yard gain.

The real pressure will be on a defensive unit that must gear itself for both the pass and run. However, middle linebacker James Zachery, tackle James Ponder, ends

Chris Gaddy, Grid McGowan, and company survived Lubbock Monarchs' Scott Gardner and, except for lapses on two plays, effectively shutdown Permian. Friday's game will be one of those must-win contests. Both teams are 1-1 in district and can ill afford another loss. Still, the situation is better than a week ago. There were four unbeaten. Now there are just two ahead of the Bulldogs and Eagles.

Odessa-Midland Tilts Set Payoff Record

The season's opener isn't too far off, Nov. 7 at Hillsboro, when the Chaps face Texas State Technical Institute and the next night will go against Hill County College, a team that has been on the national juro tournament the last two years.

The home opener will be Nov. 13 against Cisco JC.

In an intra-squad scrimmage at Midland High last week, Coach Chester Shary started what he felt were his top five players on the Green team. That most included 6-2 Ricky Daniels, Louisville, Ky. 6-4 Dan Vandierce, Hereford, 6-4 Jackson Pace, Lubbock Monterey, 6-4 Tommy Parks, Fort Worth Poly, and Crawford Williams, Andrews.

Shary said that several members of the Gold team were capable of breaking into the starting lineup. This team consisted of Sam Nickerson, Fort Worth Wyatt, Scott Parker, 6-5, from El Paso Irvin, Jeff Chan, Louisville, Ky. and Scott Stamp, Carrollton Turner.

The athletic departments of both schools systems split $23,000.

"That's the best we've ever done in two games with the Odessa schools," beamed Midland Athletic Director Thurman "Tagboat" Jones.

Like most press buses, Texas Tech warns occupants of the third level of the Jones Stadium press box, that it is for the working press and no rooting or displays of enthusiasm will be tolerated.

On the elevator to the press level the other night, John Conley, assistant athletic director at Tech, was complaining to a friend, "Ralph (Sports Information Director Ralph Carpenter) put me on the same level with the writers and I can't even cheer. The other night I got a little excited and he almost had me thrown out of the press box."

Midland College's basketball Chaparrals get their first taste of outside competition Saturday in Alpine against Sul Ross University.

Other preseason scrimmages include Weatherford JC at Abilene's Moody Coliseum Oct. 23, Wayland College at Lamesa Oct. 28 and Abilene Christian College at ACC Oct. 31.

WISHBONE FULLBACK — Midland High's Terry Whitaker will be at fullback when the Bulldogs invade Abilene for a District 5-4A game Friday night. Whitaker, a senior, is one of the Purple Pack's leading rushers.

Cubans Only Part Of U.S. Pan-Am Problems

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States may not officially recognize Cuba, but it's getting hard not to recognize the Cubans at the VII Pan American Games.

They're the ones with all the gold medals.

The insurgent, imperturbable Cubans seem to be the few islands of solidarity in an increasingly confusing and fouled-up scene here. It could be days before perplexing problems of Wednesday, the third day of competition, are laid to rest.

As a lighter, and hopefully less hectic, schedule began today, the Cubans had padded their gold medal total to 22, with 11 silver and eight bronze. The well-financed American effort trailed with 18 golds, but led in over-all medals with 16 silver and 14 bronze, for a 48-41 edge over Cuba. Canada was lodged a protest over the results in the discus, where a Cuban who won the silver medal 20 minutes, 4.95 seconds in the experienced maddening, sometimes classic, foul-ups.

A mini riot — complete with unruly mobs and armed troops — broke out when Canada's Brad Farrow was declared winner over Cuba's Hector Rodriguez on a disqualification in semi-lightweight judo. The Cuban delegation was so incensed, Rodriguez' silver medal was refused.

When a controversy cropped up in one of the shooting events, somebody got the bright idea to count all the bullets in the targets.

Even though the right name were eventually matched with the right faces, officials held that Davidson should be disqualified since he quit in the middle of his run. American team members went into an indignant rage, no one would predict if the officials would be willing to lose face, admit their mistake, and let Davidson have another chance.

In track and field, the Americans won 19 of 23 gold medals. Herschel Anderson, a native Tennessean now an army sergeant at Columbus, Ga., added a gold medal and a silver medal to his tally, giving him five with 13 gold medals in all.

Two of three U.S. golds in the top performer for any country in the Games. The United States so far has won golds in 10 of 12 firearms categories. Third-place Jay Silvester of Utah said the Cuban, Julian Morrison, sneaked under the platter in under the winner over Cuba's Hector Rodriguez on a disqualification. American Bruce Davidson, the current world champion in the three-day equestrian competition was disqualified by officials in the middle of an impressive ride. It turned out that erstwhile officials had the wrong man.

They wanted to disqualify Canadian Jim Day — not David — for a minor rules infraction earlier.

Tiant's Houdini Act Thwarts Reds, Squares Series

CINCINNATI AP — They broke Cincinnati's home game at first, with some slight of hand Wednesday night and compared to the magic of Luis Tiant.

The tricky Boston right-hander Squaring out of more joints than a Houdini, Tiant lamed the Red Sox with a remarkably courageous performance and led the basant Red Sox into a 2-2 tie in the best-of-seven Series.

"THE MAN has done the job all year long," said Boston Manager Darrell Johnson who will start Reggie Cleveland against Cincinnati's Don Guilett in Game 5 tonight. "He was out there at the end tonight and he did the job again."

The Reds have been almost impossible to beat at home this year. They had a 6-17 record before Wednesday night's game. At first it looked like they were going to continue their dramatic domination at Riverfront against Tiant.

Boston's star pitcher, who had shut out Cincinnati at Fenway Park in the Series opener last Saturday, was obviously not himself with only three days' rest. The Reds gave the roaring Riverfront fans a lift with two quick runs off the chunky right-hander in the first inning.

"My breaking ball was not as good as it was in Boston," Tiant stroking his famous Fu Manchu mustache, told the press later. "I used my fastball and Fisk thought for a moment that Tiant would be driven to shelter."

"I thought we lost him," said the catcher. "He just wasn't pitching a typical Luis Tiant game. He had better control in the opener at Fenway, breaking ball just wasn't working."

Johnson said, however, that he had no intention of taking the dangerous Pete Rose, Tiant's best pitcher out of the game.

Luke did seem to have a breakdown with the mound, a couple of times. Johnson said, "But it took a couple of hitters for him to straighten himself out and he was on his way again."

Magnificently, Tiant worked the jam in the fourth. The right-hander also had nervous times in the fifth, gave up his sixth and eighth and then found himself in big trouble in the ninth.

Tiant gave up a leadoff single to Cesar Geronimo and then a sacrifice bunt to Ed Armbrister that moved the potential tying run into scoring position.

Working with extreme care to avoid the dangerous Pete Rose, Tiant walked him to put men on first and second with one out. Then a Griffey hit one of Tiant's pitches way back in center field and seek Fred Laro raved back to make a stunning catch over his head.

"HE DIDN'T get that good a jump on the ball, but I thought he would catch it," right fielder Dwight Evans said of his teammate's gorgeous catch. "He's a great outfielder."

Johnson himself kind of thought that the young Boston thoroughbred would catch up with the tremendous shot off Griffey's bat.

"I knew if the ball would stay in the park he would get like part of his all season," noted Johnson.

Then Tiant faced Joe Morgan, the Cincinnati sparkplug who was the Reds' hero Tuesday night and got him on a harmless pop to Carl Yastrzemski at first. That did it, everything Yastrzemski said, "It was one helluva game." The winnery's smile painted on his face back and hugging the extraorinary Cuban who made 163 pitches in nine tireless innings.

"It was a great effort on his part," said Fisk. "It was a tough situation to walk out of alive. He was really aggressive out there tonight."

TIANT WORKED his wonder magic in a splendid World Series setting. The game had everything — Yastrzemski, Boston captain, said, "It was one helluva game." The winnery's smile painted on his face back and hugging the extraor-

Midland Harriers Face Toughest Test To Date

Midland High's cross-country team has a string of four straight victories going, but Coach Edwin Nixon fears it all could come to an end this Saturday.

This is the weekend we find out how good we are," says Nixon, whose Bulldogs run in the El Paso Borges meet, one of the better runs in the state.

A field of around 16 teams is expected and as Nixon pointed out, "They take their cross-country seriously out there. Somebody from El Paso has won state every year except one since they've made it a UIL approved competition."

The run Saturday at 10 a.m. will be over a two mile course in historic Chumazal Park.

Making the trip for the Purple Pack will be Robert Wilson, Mike Darden, Harold Stewart, David Wolfe, Richard Brown, Pat and Paul Darden and Chuck Stump.

In meets to date, Midland won the West Texas Running Club meet at Odessa, the Abilene Invitational, Odessa College meet and last week's San Angelo Invitational.

The Boston Red Sox were the victims of "the best, photographed robbers in history," Boston Evening Globe columnist Leigh Montville said of the 10th-inning bunt controversy in Tuesday's third game of the World Series.

Search Under Way In Area For Missing Aircraft

SAN ANGELO (AP) - Civil Air Patrol planes began a search today for a missing F51 World War II privately owned plane with a Florida man aboard missing since Wednesday afternoon while on a flight from Big Spring to this West Texas city.

Wednesday Earlier in the day, another F51 crashed near here killing its pilot, Capt. Donald J. Plumb of Windsor, Ont., Canada.

The planes were coming here after participating in an air show in South Texas with the Confederate Air Force, a private group devoted to the preservation of World War II military aircraft. The planes, however, did not belong to the CAF.

Investigators said the missing plane was piloted by Johnny Bolton of Maitland, Fla., who has a firm that specializes in restoring World War II planes.

A third plane, piloted by Jim Lewer of Ocala, Fla., landed here, and a fourth, piloted by Robbie Roberts, of Maitland, landed at Brady, west of here.

Maj. Gillman said the plane was reported missing late Wednesday afternoon, but that showers in the area kept planes from going out on search missions.

He said a special CAP Air and Rescue Service unit from St. Louis will participate in the search.

Capt. Plumb's plane crashed a few miles northwest of San Angelo. Witnesses said his plane came in at a sharp angle and hit the ground digging out a crater about two feet deep. His flight jacket was found a short distance away hanging from a tree. Pieces of the aircraft were found a quarter of a mile away from the scene of the crash.

'New Illiteracy' Cited As One Cause Of Dropping College Entrance Test Scores

By LUANNA CROW

A regional executive for the American College Testing individual schools (ACT) program Wednesday cited "the new illiteracy" as a cause of dropping college entrance with lowered scores. They discovered, however, that the scores on the college entrance with lowered scores. They discovered, however, that the scores on the college entrance with lowered scores.

Aubrey Lewis of Austin was addressing a group of area high school counselors in a conference held in the learning resource center at Midland College. Lewis agreed with another Texas school administrator who charged that too often educators fail to stress reading in the learning process.

Without language we can score neither learn nor think," he stated. The executive told the group that the ACT scores could be used that a larger number of with the world as it is structured. A regional executive for the American College Testing individual schools (ACT) program Wednesday cited "the new illiteracy" as a cause of dropping college entrance with lowered scores.

Among the trends he has observed in the people taking the ACT, Lewis noted that the proportion of women to men and "women's lib" began picking up steam. The availability of governmental financial aids has resulted in a higher proportion of lower income groups taking the college and the competition for the grades in the classroom.

Another factor with an impact on the lower ACT scores is the increasing numbers of junior and community colleges. Lewis pointed out that often higher because the test deals with the world as it is structured. Oilman Says EPA Rule Could Shut Down Many Texas Fields

By MAX B. SKELTON

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) - A top spokesman for the Texas petroleum industry said today heavy-handed federal regulatory proposals jeopardize the recovery of billions of barrels of Texas oil.

Sherman Hunt, a Dallas independent, was critical of proposals by both the Environmental Protection Agency and the Federal Energy Administration. He said a very significant portion of Texas oil fields may be shut down if an EPA requirement involving injection or secondary recovery wells is enforced as written.

Hunt made his remarks as he stepped down after two years as president of the 3,100-member Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, a trade group that represents about 90 percent of the state's petroleum industry.

Secret Service Official Hints Police At Fault In Accident

By LEE BYRD

WASHINGTON (AP) - Presidential motorcades often move swiftly and under police escorts, but a Secret Service spokesman says "it's certainly not standard procedure" for a motorcade to run a red light at an intersection that police left unguarded.

But President Ford's car, driven by a Secret Service agent and led by a police motorcycle and a police cruiser, did just that in Hartford, Conn., Tuesday night. Ford's car was struck broadside by a vehicle which had the green light.

Although White House staff coordinator Donald Rumsfeld has asked the Secret Service to explain how it was possible for while police finished clearing the regular traffic from the freeway, the accident remained unreported.

Lynch refused to discuss any details of the Secret Service's logistical planning for the Hartford trip. But his repeated referrals to the police there seemed to suggest he thought they - if anyone - bore the brunt of responsibility.

And a Hartford police spokesman conceded, "We just goofed. We didn't have enough guys out."

Police used stationary patrolmen to control a few intersections, but left others for leapfrogging motorcycle officers to clear.

Because it helps circumvent manpower problems, many cities use the leapfrog method for motorcade control. Police officials have mixed enthusiasm about the method. It works with just a few officers, usually motorcycleists, who stop traffic at one intersection, for the motorcade to pass, and drive at breakneck speed to head again and clear another intersection.

500 Participate In Tour Of UT Lands In West Texas

By JOE SALMAN

More than 500 persons boarded 12 buses here Wednesday for the 1975 Land Day Tour of University of Texas Lands.

The touring Texans from almost every corner of the state, including many state and school officials, traveled up approximately 100 miles in Crane and Ector counties viewing agriculture, improvements, and University Lands.

The bus riders were greeted by hosts during most of the trip and were treated to a barbecue before eating barbecue at noon.

West Texas Towns Get October Rain

Measurable rain has been recorded in several West Texas towns during October. Midland Regional Air Terminal recorded 16 inches in the official rain gauge, boosting the year's total to 20.17 inches.

Debate Brewing Over Alcoholism Vs, Drunkenness

By JOHN CASHMAN
Newsday

NEW YORK — The problem of drunkenness is at least as old as civilization. Like the cockroach, it has survived the human march through time with remarkable tenacity. But while a cockroach is still called a cockroach, drunkenness has evolved into alcoholism, which is called a disease.

There are those observers who see calling alcoholism a disease as more a matter of nomenclature than of insight into the problem of drunkenness. They would suggest that it is akin to calling a cockroach a bluebird and expecting it to fly away.

More important, evidence has accumulated suggesting that calling drunkenness a disease not only has changed the name of the condition, but has complicated and mystified the problem. Some recent studies even indicate that the alcoholism conception ultimately may be harmful to individual drunkards trying to bring their drinking under control.

Gradually, but with increasing regularity of late, certain basic assumptions vital to the disease view of drunkenness have been called into question. Is the condition really incurable? Is it really impossible for a confirmed drunkard to drink again in moderation? Does being a "diseased" person make a drunkard more socially acceptable? Is it true that once a person becomes a drunkard, he or she is always a drunkard?

The questions are tough and challenging, but research shows they are fair ones. In a field where so little is known for sure, there has been a tendency to accept much on faith. And if hard answers have yet to be found, the hard questions are being asked.

The "disease" that is called alcoholism is said to be made possible, but not caused, by alcohol. Victims of the disease usually are called alcoholics. An alcoholic is defined, by almost everybody working in the field, as a person who can't resist using alcohol, although its use invariably leads to involuntary abuse.

It is estimated that there are 9 million such persons in this country, most of whom vehemently deny that they are "alcoholics." This is seen as one of the sure signs that they are suffering from the disease of "alcoholism."

There are various, often conflicting, definitions of the disease, but there is general agreement among the definers is that it is a disease and that there is no known cause of the condition, no treatment of choice and no known cure.

THE QUEST for an ultimate definition has been a sporadic exercise in semantics ever since Trotter physician Thomas Trotter suggested that drunkenness might be considered a disease almost 200 years ago. But for the last couple of decades, it has become almost a mania in the words of psychologist Leon Greenberg: "Trying to define alcoholism has become in itself a disease."

There are simple definitions: "Any use of alcoholic beverages that causes damage to the individual or society of both," E. M. Jellinek, author of "The Disease Concept of Alcoholism."

Complicated definitions: "Alcoholism is a chronic disease... involving psychologic, social and physical factors. If not arrested, it progresses to further serious involvement of the organism at all levels of integration, with the development of a multitude of characteristic complications — medical, neuropsychiatric, psychologic and social," Dr. H. D. Kruse, in a New York state report on alcoholism.

Hedging definitions: "Alcoholism may be considered a type of addictive disease, sometimes, but not always, based upon an underlying emotional illness... There are physical factors involved, but as yet these physical factors as etiologic entities have not been identified," Dr. Marvin A. Block, former chairman of the AMA alcoholism committee.

Obvious definitions: "A diseased condition caused by excessive drinking," Mark Keller, editor, Journal on Alcohol Studies.

Evolutionary definitions: "Alcoholism is a symptom that has become a disease," Dr. Harry M. Tiebout, psychiatrist and early supporter of lay therapy for alcoholics.

To make the situation even more perplexing, there are those professionals in the field who don't believe alcoholism is a disease at all. The foremost is Dr. Morris Chafetz, who recently retired as director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAA).

"I DO NOT believe," Chafetz said in 1964, "that there exists a disease, alcoholism, nor a particular set personality traits we label alcoholic."

Commenting recently on that statement, Chafetz explained: "I understand how many organizations and individuals use alcoholism as a disease as a means of communication with the public. But on terms of my frame of reference as a physician, and understanding the labeling of disease, I prefer to refer to it as an illness and not a disease." Most people use the term illness to refer to it as an illness and not a disease. "Most people use the term illness to refer to a less specific malady than a disease."

Chafetz is not alone in this. Dr. R. E. Reinert, then chief of staff at the Topeka, Kan., VA hospital, said, "alcoholism as bad habit" fits the condition "better than any other conception." Dr. Moore views it as a "form of self-treatment... a solution to frustrations, anxieties," Dr. Leon Salzman views it as compulsive behavior, and groups it with gambling, obesity, masturbation and kleptomania.

At issue in the definitional dispute are two bedrock assumptions of the alcoholism-as-disease viewpoint. The first is that "alcoholics" cannot control their intake of alcohol because of an unknown physical or mental malfunction. The second is that an "alcoholic" can become abstinent, but can never again use alcohol without prompting relapse, which is usually stated as: "Once an alcoholic always an alcoholic."

But clinical studies over the past several years show no apparent factual basis for either assumption. Further, recent surveys of older studies indicate that serious questions have been gnawing at the foundations of alcoholism-as-disease for more than 30 years.

Some observers have noted similarities to drug addiction within the many definitions of alcoholism. But alcoholism is not considered drug-addiction despite the habit-forming, mood-changing nature of alcohol.

More than 50 years ago, Dr. Abraham Myerson, one of the pioneers in the modern treatment of drunkenness, said: "There is a large group who find alcohol relief from the burden of their moods, who find in its real effect the relief from inhibitions, a reason for drinking beyond the reach of reason."

MORE RECENTLY Dr. Dwight L. Wilbur, a former AMA president, put it more succinctly: "If alcoholic beverages were invented today, they would be immediately outlawed, just as this nation has outlawed... other dangerous drugs."

But Dr. Wilbur was quick to add: "It is difficult to condemn alcohol now after all the generations that have enjoyed it and turned their backs on the problems it caused..."

That is the general view of alcoholologists, who rarely, if ever, discuss alcohol in terms of drug addiction. Two Scandinavian investigators, Nils Christie and Ketil Bruun, characterize this double standard as one of "bad users as opposed to bad substances."

"To stress the resemblance between alcohol and (other) drugs," they say, "could interfere both with pleasures and other functions of alcohol in society... If the bad drinkers can be identified, the good ones can continue in comfort and peace."

Those "bad" drinkers are, presumably, those drinkers who suffer from alcoholism. Unfortunately identifying alcoholics is difficult because of the existing definitional morass, which Dr. Jack H. Mendelson of the Harvard Medical School characterizes as a "healthspeak."

Indeed, while alcoholics are said to "recover," they are never "cured." That, too, is on like wildfire. The phrase "alcoholism is a disease" became zealously guards the anonymity of its members. There are a number of reasons for this.

THE DIFFICULTY is that AA zealously guards the anonymity of its members. There are a number of reasons for this.

First, as explained in the pamphlet "The AA Group," there is the matter of being identified as an alcoholic. "Most of us do not want to cater to the cruel stigma unjustly attached by ignorant people to the disease of alcoholism. But we have to face the fact that the stigma exists, and that people suffer from it."

Second, AA says that its clinical studies at the Coatesville VA Hospital, the University of Minnesota, the University of Washington, among others, have challenged the orthodox assumptions that alcoholics cannot drink any alcohol without craving more and that, once drinking, alcoholics cannot control the amount consumed.

ON THE OTHER HAND, AA which takes no part in public discussions of the problem, nor in any research into alcoholism, treat alcoholics or by shunning them off to Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), which is clearly an exercise in logical circularity.

Before the AMA designated alcoholism as a disease, this... at this particular point in history, has God chosen exclusive property of AA, which to communicate His healing grace to so many of us? Who can say what this... communication actually is... so mysterious and yet so practical? We can only realize what we have received.

In the AA pamphlet "Alcoholism: The 11th Step," Wilson describes the essential AA approach to a prospective member.

The more utterly we can smash the delusion that the alcoholic can get over alcoholism on his own, or that someday we may be able to drink like a gentleman, the more successful we are bound to be. If fact we aim to produce a crisis to cause him to hit bottom as AA's say. Once he has accepted the fact that he is powerless to recover unaided, the battle is half won. He is hooked."

This reduces him to a state of complete dependence on whatever or whoever can stop his drinking. Under these conditions, accepting the spiritual implications of the AA program presents no difficulty even to the sophisticated. It is once this stage is completed, the program consists of associating with other AA members, attending meetings, either listening to or reciting "drunkalogues" (recounting of one's drinking experiences), and the seeking "through prayer and meditation to improve our conscious contact with God as we (understand) Him, praying only for knowledge of His will for us and the power to carry that out."

There are those who say that AA has saved more drunks from the gutter than all other approaches to the problem of drunkenness combined. This is more a statement of faith than of fact.

There are unquestionably thousands of AA members soberly walking the streets, but there is no way of knowing how many thousands, nor is there any way of determining how many AA drunks have fallen back into the gutter or have been pushed there by the same techniques that apparently have reclaimed the others.

Hughes of Iowa, himself a recovered alcoholic and the man most responsible for the formation of the NIAAA, to comment: "Alcoholism is the only disease I know of where when the treatment fails, we blame the patient."

ANOTHER paradoxical aspect of most treatment programs is the demand that patients immediately stop drinking, which is presumably the very thing they came into treatment because they couldn't stop.

It is on that point, and several others long considered sacrosanct in the field of alcoholism, that serious questions have been raised in recent years, culminating with dramatic and controversial suggestions that alcoholism may be more a learned behavior pattern than a disease entity.

The most publicized of several research studies examining the behavioristic approach to drunkenness is the one carried out at Patton State Hospital in California. As reported by psychologists Linda and Mark Sobell, 70 alcoholics were divided into treatment groups, with 40 of them "taught" — by use of electric shock, within simulated drinking environments and by therapy — to drink without problems.

The results, after a two-year follow-up, were shown to be about twice as effective as any conventional therapy where abstinence was the sole criteria of success. Similar results with so-called controlled drinking programs have been reported from the University of North Carolina, the Baltimore City Hospital, and several private treatment programs, as well as from programs in Australia and Finland.

In addition, a lay group called Drinkwatchers, formed last year to foster controlled drinking among its members, was inaugurated with more than 8,000 requests for information following some national publicity.

Although not formed as an alternative to AA, many of the letters were from former, failed or current members of AA.

At the same time, various clinical studies at the Coatesville VA Hospital, the University of Minnesota, the University of Washington, among others, have challenged the orthodox assumptions that alcoholics cannot drink any alcohol without craving more and that, once drinking, alcoholics cannot control the amount consumed.

THE REACTION from what sociologists Harrison Trice and Paul Roman call "the alcoholism industry," has been guarded at best. Despite the lack of answers, and despite reports going back to the mid-1930s that show "normal" drinking in alcoholics well may be possible, the new research apparently is unacceptable to those committed to the disease concept.

The NIAAA has called for "rigorous evaluation" of the recent research. The NCA characterizes the published reports as "misleading and dangerous."

AA, which takes no outside position on anything to avoid being embroiled in controversy, has no official stand. However, its official magazine, "AA Grapevine," has run several articles by members over the past couple of years either making fun of the new ideas or stressing that normal drinking out at Patton State Hospital in California. As reported by psychologists Linda and Mark Sobell, 70 alcoholics were divided into treatment groups, with 40 of them "taught" — by use of electric shock, within simulated drinking environments and by therapy — to drink without problems.

says: "There is no such thing as being a little bit alcoholic."

And Chafetz comments: "I don't think that without prayers we will prevent a single case of alcoholism from developing."

Second, forced into a treatment goal of abstinence because controlled drinking has been rejected, any problem drinker who continues to drink in any manner must be considered a treatment failure. This leads to poor results in treatment evaluations, something the NIAAA can ill afford in assessments of treatment programs it supports.

One such evaluation was completed this summer by the Stanford Research Institute (SRI) at the request of the NIAAA. The SRI survey was a follow-up on more than 2,000 persons treated at eight NIAAA-funded alcoholism centers around the country.

According to SRI's final report, only 26 per cent of the patients remained abstinent six months after treatment. However, if the criterion for successful treatment is broadened to include "drinking at low levels of impairment," the recovery rate jumps to 78 per cent.

THERE IS a dilemma in that for the NIAAA. On the one hand, it supports the "incurable, but treatable by abstinence" disease conception. On the other hand, it has Congress to deal with in matters of funding. And Congress would like to know what it's getting for the taxpayer's money.

The latest word from the NIAAA "We are examining the SRI report carefully. There are some surprising findings in it." There is much riding on the SRI report for the NIAAA, which was created in 1970 by the Congress to deal with the growing alcoholism problem. Chafetz, its first director, when asked at the time what his first move would be said "Get money. Money buys respectability."

First, while the NIAAA stresses early intervention and prevention, both are particularly difficult when the frame of reference is an incurable disease. As AA often

Shortsighted, Indeed

Municipal labor unions in New York City surely must be about the most short-sighted and the most selfish of any group anywhere.

New York City is in an almost impossible financial situation . . . faced with a $600 to $800 million deficit.

Mayor Abraham Beame Wednesday submitted to members of a state-controlled board his plan to curb expenditures, promising budget cuts of $200 million, including a wage freeze and the possibility of further layoffs of city employees.

His proposal would eliminate the deficit in a three-year period.

And this is where the union leaders entered the scene. They threatened a general strike in response to the mayor's plan. How shortsighted can they get?

They surely must realize that the excessive number of employees and the high salaries being paid them are among the major causes, along with wearare, for the city's sticky fiscal position.

The city also announced last week that 7,209 educators have been laid off since the beginning of the school year. This reduced the city's payroll to 263,311, its lowest level since 1968.

The president of the United Federation of Teachers said the proposed general strike "involves everybody."

This threatened strike business certainly does not help New York City's plea for financial assistance from the state, federal government or any other source in the eyes of many persons and groups.

It would seem that the union members would be willing to do their part, sacrificing perhaps with other New Yorkers, as the municipality strives to work its way out of the fiscal dilemma, staying off default on its debts.

Gov. Hugh Carey of New York State, meanwhile, told the American Bankers Association convention that the state "has done all we can to help New York City." He asked for the bankers' support, and sounded a plea for federal aid.

A representative of a respected investment rating service is quoted as saying that without massive federal aid the city could face fiscal default "within a month, perhaps."

The situation is anything but bright. The federal government so far has turned a cold shoulder to requests for aid. The Congress, however, is considering several bills on the subject.

Many persons perhaps would be more sympathetic to New York City's plight if New Yorkers would admit the error of their city's fiscal ways and would take definite steps to solve its problem. It would do little good to bail out the city if it doesn't intend to alter its excessive spending habits.

The federal government itself also should take a lesson from New York City as to the end result of continued deficit spending.

Drying Up Intelligence Sources Is Costly

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Overshadowed by congressional emasculation of the CIA but perhaps even more damaging to the national interest is the sudden drying up of valuable intelligence through exposure of National Security Agency (NSA) techniques.

Formerly super-secret methods used by the NSA in monitoring commercial international phone and teletype circuits became common knowledge soon after they were given to congressional investigations of the intelligence community. Thus forewarned, foreign users of commercial channels for transmitting information of great interest to the U.S. government switched to more secure means.

Losing this information is viewed at the Pentagon as considerably more serious than Defense officials care to admit. While lacking hard proof of who leaked the NSA information, these officials believe it almost surely came from the staff of the House Intelligence Committee headed by Rep. Otis Pike of New York.

"I firmly believe none of this came from our staff," Pike told us. The fact remains, however, that descriptions of NSA monitoring techniques appeared in public prints (including a long account in the Sept. 8 Newsweek) soon after the secret material was handed over to Pike's staff.

Several foreign nations who had been using commercial channels switched to private couriers. One result: the U.S. government has lost valuable information about Arab strategy in international oil price manipulations. But even more im-

FORD IN N.H.

The Ford-Reagan confrontation in New Hampshire's Republican presidential primary begins on a strident note thanks to confusion over just what President Ford said to former Gov. Hugh Gregg at a picnic lunch in Amherst, N.H., Sept. 11.

Gregg got the distinct impression the President asked him to run his campaign there. Ford campaign sources say the President informed them he made no such offer. Former Sen. Norris Cotton, an old friend of the President who introduced him to Gregg in Amherst, was present for part of the conversation and remembers Mr. Ford talking about Gregg being a good man to "take hold" of his New Hampshire campaign.

There was no follow-up to the picnic conversation, and Gregg ended up as Ronald Reagan's state chairman. Ford sources say Gregg went with Reagan only because he could not run the Ford campaign; Gregg contends the President's men reneged on the President's offer. Thus, another New Hampshire primary begins with the sour

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Chile's controversial military dictatorship appears to have an inside track in Washington. At least two top-level representatives of the junta have paid recent visits to the nation's capital where the red carpet was rolled out for them.

The most notorious of the Chilean visitors was Col. Manuel Contreras-Sepulveda, head of the infamous National Intelligence Directorate, known as DINA. It is this military organization — a Latin American version of the CIA, FBI and Defense Intelligence Agency all lumped together — which has been directly responsible for the arrests and torture of hundreds of political prisoners over the last two years.

Before coming to Washington Contreras stopped off in New York. He paid a quiet visit to the United Nations, where officials are preparing a report on human rights violations in Chile.

Three months ago, a U.N. working group on human rights attempted to visit Santiago for an on-the-scene investigation, but the junta abruptly cancelled its invitation. In his talks with U.N. officials say our sources, Contreras attempted to convince them the U.N. group was barred only because it consisted of Marxists, assorted leftists and troublemakers.

Contreras then hopped down to Washington, where his goings-and-comings were considered so secret that even the Chilean embassy was kept in the dark.

We have learned, however, that the colonel stopped off at the CIA where, say our sources, a private chat was arranged with the deputy director, Lt.

He managed to see Sen. Church, who told our associate Joe Spear that he gave the Chilean a long, stiff lecture on human rights.

This Friday, the junta's minister of justice, Miguel Schweitzer, is scheduled to arrive in Washington. His main mission, say our sources, will be to lobby in favor of a resumption of U.S. military aid to Chile, which was cut off by Congress last December.

KENNERLY CONTROVERSY: The most controversial figure in the White House is turning out to be David Hume Kennerly, the former United Press photographer whom President Ford personally chose to be his official lensman.

Kennerly, who is close to the Ford family and members of the international jet set, has brought some of the world's most glamorous figures to the White House, creating a few minor scandals in the process. He also is brash and does not hesitate to express his unsolicited views in White House policy councils.

He thus has managed to offend top Ford aides, who feel that a photographer's opinions on profound domestic and world affairs are scarcely worth listening to. Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen, say our White House sources, is particularly upset with Kennerly's antics.

In an effort to ease him out, therefore, top White House officials have begun spreading stories about Kennerly. One of the tales they have been whispering is that he accepted a $790, leather-encased edition of a new game called "Petropolis" from rock music superstar Mick Jagger.

This would be a gross violation of a White House regulation which forbids any official from accepting a gift valued in excess of $25.

We checked the story and found it to be only partially true. Kennerly was indeed given a Petropolis game worth $790, but not by Jagger. It came instead from Baron Arnaud de Rosnay, another international socialite and the inventor of the game. Kennerly, to his credit, realized it would be improper to accept the gift, so he returned it.

MONOPOLY IN MOSCOW: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats stiffly have refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothers, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent Communist leader.

Any top Communist — Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-Lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro — would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the détente with Communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign

ART BUCHWALD

Oh, Dad, Poor Dad— Even In White House

WASHINGTON — Poor President Ford. With all he's got to worry about he also has to contend with everyone in his family speaking his or her own mind.

Any father can sympathize with what Mr. Ford has to go through every night. I can just imagine the conversation at dinner time in the White House when only the immediate family is there.

President Ford says "Whew, what a day. I vetoed 10 congressional bills, made three Republican fund-raising speeches, and had to show the Emperor of Japan every bush in the Rose Garden."

Jack Ford says, "Dad, I have to tell you something."

"What is it, Son?"

"Last summer I went skinny-dipping with a bunch of kids at Aspen."

"Was this before or after you smoked pot?" the President asks.

"I don't remember. I think it was after."

"This is too much. How does it look for the President of the United States to have a son that goes skinny-dipping?"

"But Dad, you always told us to be frank with you and tell you exactly what we had on our minds. That's what holds this family together."

"I know that and I respect you for leveling with me. But I have a tough election coming up and there are a lot of people out there who don't approve of mixed skinny-dipping."

Jack says, "Mom said it was okay with her."

"I'm aware of it," the President replies. Mrs. Ford says defensively, "Well, I would rather we know Jack goes skinny-dipping than have him sneak around and do it behind our backs. At least he's not a hypocrite."

"I agree," the President says, "but if this gets out in McCall's magazine it's going to raise quite a ruckus."

"It won't get out in McCall's," Mrs. Ford says.

"How can you be so sure?"

"Because the only one who knows about it is the Reader's Digest."

"You told Reader's Digest that your children go skinny-dipping?"

"I didn't tell them until they asked me. I'm certainly not going to lie to Reader's Digest," Mrs. Ford says.

"Why does the public have to know everything we do in this family?" the President asks.

"Because that's the way you brought us up," Susan Ford says.

"Do you want to know what I did last night?"

The President says, "Can't I read about it in the paper tomorrow morning?"

"I photographed a topless waitress. Mom said it was okay."

Mrs. Ford says, "It was an assignment for The Associated Press and David Kennerly was with her."

"Good grief," the President cries. "Don't you people have any secrets you can keep from me? Do I have to know everything you do?"

"Well," says Jack, "if you want us to have private lives we will, but I don't see how you can trust your family if we can't take you into our confidence."

"Jack's right," Mrs. Ford says. "Some fathers don't even know when their daughters are taking the Pill."

"Who's taking the Pill?" the President shouts.

"Nobody," Mrs. Ford says, "but if Susan were, it would be nice if we knew about it."

"I suppose you said that to The Reader's Digest too?"

"I did not," Mrs. Ford says. "I told it to Good Housekeeping."

languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems, have it on their boycott list.

Introducing the game behind the Communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist countries.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1969 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, the company's landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.
