Rockefeller Steps Down As Ford's Running Mate

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller declared today that he does not want to be President Ford's running mate in 1976, stepping aside in a surprise move that dramatically altered the Republican campaign outlook.

He did so without explanation, saying only that: "After much thought, I have decided... that I do not wish my name to enter into your consideration for the upcoming Republican vice presidential nominee."

The move opened a potential scramble for vice presidential selection next year. It could cut into the planned White House challenge of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has gained support from some conservatives unalterably opposed to Rockefeller.

It left the vice president's own political plans a giant question mark. There was no hint of discord in Rockefeller's letter to the President.

Rockefeller, 67, had run for the presidency three times himself, before becoming Ford's vice president.

His withdrawal from the Ford ticket led to immediate speculation that Rockefeller himself might once again go after the White House nomination.

A Rockefeller spokesman said he knew nothing of any such plan.

A Rockefeller aide said the vice president had discussed his decision with Ford in advance. The aide said he doubted the letter made public today came as a surprise to the President.

The aide declined to speculate as to whether Rockefeller made his move believing it would help Ford's election prospects next year.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford and Rockefeller had discussed the matter during the past few days and "are in complete understanding."

He said Rockefeller took the action at his own initiative, and that Ford had not asked him to step aside.

The Rockefeller announcement came a day after disclosure of a major shakeup in the top ranks of the administration.

Ford scheduled a nationally-televised news conference at 6:30 p.m. CST, with Rockefeller and the ouster of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby certain to be the dominant topics.

Rockefeller was nominated for the vice presidency on Aug. 20, 1973, and sworn in, after lengthy congressional confirmation hearings, on Dec. 19.

Rockefeller's announcement was relayed by his press secretary Hugh Morrow, who said at the vice president was delivering the letter to Ford today.

Rockefeller, four times elected governor of New York, has advocated federal help for the city to avoid bankruptcy, but Ford has adamantly opposed any loan guarantees to back the city's debts.

Rockefeller, now 67, resigned as governor of New York in December of 1973, in what was then considered a move to position himself for a final presidential bid of his own in 1976.

Texans To Write Decision On New Constitution Tuesday

Polls in Midland County will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday in the election on the proposed new state constitution.

County Clerk Roselle Cherry said, "If absentee balloting is any indication, and I think it is, voter turnout tomorrow will be greater than that in the past for constitution revision elections."

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and County Republican Executive Committee Chairman Robert L. Monaghan have come out in opposition to the proposed new document. State Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland and League of Women Voters action coordinator Evelyn Gould have expressed their approval of the document.

Although Midland County officials expect a good voter turnout Tuesday, officials statewide predict only 20 to 25 per cent of Texas' five million voters will cast their ballots in the election.

The battle lines were slow in forming but toward the end of the issue interest sharpened along generally conservative and liberal philosophies.

But even one of the state's best known liberals, former gubernatorial contender Frances Farenthold, has opposed the new document.

The issue has divided Gov. Dolph Briscoe and his lieutenant, Bill Hobby. Briscoe has stumped across the state calling for defeat of all eight propositions related to the constitution while Hobby has been in the forefront for the constitution.

Opponents of the constitution say it gives state government too much power. Proponents say it provides much needed streamlining, and addresses itself directly to life in the 1970s. The present constitution was adopted in 1876.

The most controversial of the eight propositions on the ballot has been No. 1, which includes an article calling for annual sessions of the legislature. Another facet gives the governor more power to control agency operations and budgets.

Perhaps the two articles which have generated the least fuss are No. 2 and No. 6. The first would merge the state's highest appeals courts to handle both civil and criminal cases. The second would give voters the authority to banish, combine or create county offices with county commissioners and enforce ordinances.

Ford Plans To Name Bush Intelligence Agency Chief

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford told congressional leaders today he plans to name White House Chief of Staff Donald Rumsfeld as secretary of defense and George Bush, now U.S. representative in Peking, as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Word on those appointments came even before Ford formally announced the ouster of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby.

Pentagon sources, reporting this shakeup in the top echelons of the administration, also said that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will relinquish his second job as chairman of the National Security Council.

A Republican source said Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Kissinger's deputy and protege, will replace the secretary of state as NSC chairman.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Ford called him at mid-morning with word of the Bush and Rumsfeld appointments. He said the President denied that Kissinger, who has been at odds with Schlesinger, was behind the shakeup.

"The President told me what he did he was doing on his own," Mansfield said. "He said that for some time he had wanted to set up his own team."

Mansfield also said he considers Rumsfeld and Bush to be excellent choices.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott is a prime prospect to succeed Bush as the U.S. emissary to China. Scott said he had not been offered the job.

Scott faces a difficult race for re-election in Pennsylvania next year, is a noted collector and historian of Chinese art, and has made no secret of his interest in some day representing the United States in China.

There have been longstanding differences between Schlesinger and Kissinger over detente. Kissinger has designed and supported detente with the Soviet Union while Schlesinger often has expressed a more skeptical attitude toward that policy.

Democratic critics indicated that Schlesinger's dismissal resulted from this friction between him and Kissinger and that Kissinger has emerged the winner in a power struggle.

Colby's replacement as CIA chief has been predicted for some time. He has been criticized for his stewardship at the CIA, although many of the misdeeds the agency has been accused of occurred before he became its head.

The Pentagon officials said Schlesinger was surprised to learn Sunday morning at a White House meeting with Ford that he was being fired. Schlesinger had spent 90 minutes with Ford on Saturday in a wide-ranging policy discussion described as "cordial" by Pentagon officials and there was no

New $2 Bill To Become Reality Next April 13

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government officially announced today it will issue a new $2 bill on April 13, 1976. The date will be the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, whose portrait will be on the bill.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said he hopes Americans will make wide use of the new bill, since it is intended both to save the government $4 million a year in printing costs and also to reduce the volume of currency Americans carry.

The $2 bill, which dates back in the nation's history to 1776, was removed from circulation in 1966 because of a lack of interest by Americans, who preferred using the $1 bill in preference to the $2.

Jefferson, the third President of the United States, also was on the front of the last issue of the $2 bill.

Treasury officials said they also considered other prominent persons, including civil rights leader Martin Luther King and suffragette Susan B. Anthony, but decided Jefferson was the most appropriate.

There will be a change in the back of the bill. It will feature a rendition of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, as painted by John Trumbull after the American Revolution.

Although the bill is being issued in connection with celebration of the nation's 200th birthday, Simon said it is intended as an important and continuing piece of national currency.

He said about 225 million of the new bills will be available for circulation by banks in time for the April 13 release date, and he said annual production will be about 400 million.

Officials said they anticipate few problems in the retail and banking business because of the new bill. They said a similar bill circulates in Canada without causing any problems in handling by businesses.

In the nearly 10 years since the bill was withdrawn from circulation, the value of a dollar has declined to 61 cents of what it was then. That means the two-dollar bill would be worth only $1.22 cents of its 1966 value.

In fact, the inflation of recent years is a major reason for bringing back the bill.

James Conlon, director of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, which prints U.S. currency, said that to meet the burgeoning demand for currency, the bureau lately has been printing 1.8 billion $1 bills annually.

Municipal Court Misses On First Record Attempt

By ED TODD
The Municipal Court of Record never got on the record this morning.

The teen-age defendant in a running-the-stop-sign case failed to show up for his 9 a.m. appointment with Judge William B. Ahders, Prosecutor Scott C. Shelton, and D. B. Shearod, the Midland police patrolman who had issued the ticket.

At 9:11 a.m. on the court's first day as a court of record, Shelton moved that the accused's bond be forfeited. The judge so ordered. Minutes later, Judge Ahders said the youth's no-show would be equivalent to a "nolo contendere" — no contest — plea. By law, such a plea begs mercy from the court, but generally ends up in the guilty column.

The court's stenographer, June Ocker, had the court's reel-to-reel recording system readied for the contested case. "We're getting real good sound from it," she said.

During the suppressed excitement leading up to the trial that never came off, Linda Hardin, one of the court's deputy clerks, bustled in and out of the Municipal Courtroom to give "pink slips" — copies of citations — to the prosecutor.

Some minutes later, after Shelton's motion, the courtroom was emptied. But Judge Ahders gave assurance that Tuesday morning's slate would offer at least three chances for someone's testimony to be the first to go down on record in the Municipal Court of Record.

Outside the courtroom, folks were waiting in line to pay fines. Mrs. Hardin again was bustling. And so were the other deputies and Chief Clerk Jean Jones behind the Court Clerk's glass windows.

Connally Urges Cut In Capitol Hill Power

BARRE, Vt. (AP) — Urging a return to a less centralized government, former Texas Gov. John B. Connally proposes phasing out federal aid to education and curbing the "congressional ruling class."

Addressing Vermont Republicans at a $50-a-plate fundraiser Sunday night, the former secretary of the treasury told an estimated 1,000 party faithful the nation was being "over-regulated to the point of the absurd."

To reduce legislative bureaucracy in Washington, Connally proposed constitutional amendments to limit U.S. senators to two six-year terms and electing congressmen for a maximum of three four-year terms.

"If it is bad for a president to hold power for an unlimited time, it is equally bad for an entrenched member of Congress to hold power so long that he may forget his responsibilities," said Connally, who travels to New Hampshire today to address a GOP fundraiser in Concord.

At a news conference earlier Sunday, Connally reiterated he was not a candidate for president.

He predicted former California Gov. Ronald Reagan would make a strong bid for the nomination and pose a serious challenge to President Ford in New Hampshire, where divisiveness is already evident in the state GOP.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson has spearheaded a drive for Reagan's candidacy while the more moderate element of the New Hampshire Republican Party backs Ford.

On the Democratic side, Connally predicted the presidential nominee would not be from the announced field.

"If Sen. (Edward) Kennedy wants it, it's his," said Connally, adding Democrats would turn to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey if Kennedy bows out.

During his speech at the dinner designed to bolster party coffers, Connally also said he favored a constitutional amendment requiring any member of Congress who is running for president to resign his seat by Jan. 1 of the year preceding the national convention.

He said it would halt congressmen "using committee chairmanships as a vehicle to fulfill White House aspirations."

In urging federal aid to education be ended, Connally said unless schools are returned to "full local direction" the time will come when curriculum control is "in a centralized authority in Washington."

"I have not seen one shred of evidence that federal aid has increased the quality of education that the American child receives," he said.

In a wide-ranging speech, the former Democrat also proposed constitutional amendments to limit the president to a six-year term, impose mandatory retirement of federal judges at age 70 and require reconfirmation by the senate of each judge every 10 years following his appointment.

Adopting a single six-year term for president would "reduce the political atmosphere" of the office, while a more elaborate system of evaluating judges would assure greater accountability, Connally said.

Use Of Solar Energy Still Unexplored In Midland

By DEBBIE PIERCE
 Today's increasing costs of fuel show little indication of reduction in the future, so energy conservationists and consumers throughout the country have turned their attention to the sun.

Solar energy advocates have been present throughout history, but only in these times of high fuel prices has energy from the sun been so feasible.

A number of solar energy construction projects are under way in Texas, but active notice of the sun's energy has yet been taken in the City of Midland. City Planning Director Robert Giles said he expects technology to advance very rapidly in the use of solar energy but that no one has explored the city's building code requirements to determine possible problems for the future.

"Nothing along these lines has ever been envisioned before, so we have no laws making provisions for solar energy units," Giles said. "Two or three years ago, you could count on the fingers of one hand the number of companies in the country which were actively manufacture solar energy units, but now the number is 50-100. Anything like this would require a lot of talk, and anything beyond something small would require considerable study and evaluation since the effects are really unknown as far as light and radiation are concerned."

City Attorney Joe Nuessle said there is nothing in the city's zoning codes to prohibit having a home in a single-family district fueled by solar energy. He said the prohibition against homes fueled by solar energy would come if there were something about the unit's construction inherently dangerous or in violation of the city's building code.

Planning Director Giles said solar energy units "will ultimately look like nothing ever seen by the American eye." He said the units would look unconventional to Americans and would be a departure from the accepted external building standards. This will require adaptation and acceptance on the part of the public, he added.

Four major problem areas, in addition to lack of technology, must be solved before solar systems can be self-supporting and available to the average home owner, according to The University of Texas' Bureau of Business Research. The problems include cost of the systems, lack of standards for solar equipment, lack of laborers with the proper training to work on the equipment and wide differences in building and zoning codes.

City Atty. Nuessle said those seeking to set up solar energy units should first bring their plans to the city inspection department who will check to determine if they comply with city building requirements. The city inspection department said they have issued no permits yet for those wishing to install solar units.

In nonresidential construction in Texas, solar heating is used by some swimming pools in El Paso and parts of a racquet club in Garland. A San Antonio savings and loan association has installed solar roof panels in its building, and a study is under way in Dallas to determine the feasibility of equipping a new fire station with solar energy, according to UT's research bureau.

Solar energy residential projects are under construction or are in use in Arlington, Richardson, Plano, San Antonio and the Austin area.

Since federal government officials do not agree on just how prominent a role the sun will play in this country's energy future, definitive action has come slowly. States using or actively planning use of solar energy so far include Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, California, Iowa and Connecticut.

Midland's Giles said the southern part of the U.S., especially has immense exposure to the sun which could be utilized for energy. He said solar energy proponents are looking at both power and heat generation from the sun.

"Solar energy will free businesses and residences of total dependence on commercial power sources such as coal and electricity," Giles said. "This would probably only be a quantitative reduction, though, since we may always have some dependence on present sources."

Rains Dampen Midland Area

Saturday night rainfalls were scattered and varied with West Texas towns registering heavy to light precipitation as the thunderstorm danced across the plains.

Midland reported a varied amount of rainfall with the Cowden Park area receiving the brunt of the rain, 2.3 inches. East of Midland on U. S. 80 registered 1.29 inches. South of Midland on Rankin Highway had 3 inches. Downtown received an estimated 2 inches. South of the city, 13 miles, registered 1.3 inches.

Light rainfall was reported in Sanderson as they had .13 of an inch. Odessa and McCarney received 1.5 inches. Fort Stockton had .74 inch with Kermit topping them by 1/100 of an inch. Alpine registered .37 of an inch. Lamesa received .9.

Andrews received 1 inch of rainfall. Monahan reported 1.84 inches, while Crane surpassed them with 2 inches. Stanton and Rankin indicated 2 inches of rainfall. Big Spring had 1.5 inches, while Big Lake received 2.25 inches.

Raincoats and umbrellas have been stored today as the sun came out to dry up the moisture with temperatures reaching into the mid 70's.

A sweep across the state was ending in Southeast Texas today for rains which brought badly needed moisture across a big chunk of the state.

Skies cleared quickly behind the cold front which set off Sunday's rains and early morning temperatures dropped as low as 27 degrees at Marfa in the mountains of far West Texas. The Associated Press reported.

As much as 4.55 inches of rain fell around Ozona in West Texas as some areas received their first appreciable moisture in more than a month. Amounts topping 3 inches were reported near San Angelo, and many points measured more than an inch.

Some lowland flooding occurred along the Concho and Devils rivers in Southwest Texas, and also around Galveston Bay on the coast where stiff south winds whipped tides 3 to 5 feet above normal.

Early morning temperatures at other points ranged from 36 degrees at El Paso in far West Texas and 40 at Dalhart in the Panhandle up to 60 at Galveston on the coast and 72 at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Top marks Sunday went as high as 86 at Alice and 89 at McAllen in the south.

WHERE'S THE FINISH LINE? — Shane Stewart leads the pack in Sunday's Cyclethon at Midland College. The event, sponsored by the Midland Heart Association, drew approximately 17 participants and raised about $1,000.

Survey Shows Steady Grocery Bills

By LOUISE COOK
 Associated Press Writer
 Supermarket shoppers found over-all grocery bills stayed fairly steady during October, an Associated Press market basket survey shows. Increases in the price of chopped chuck, frozen orange juice and butter were balanced by declines in the cost of eggs, hot dogs and sugar.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

During October, the market basket total at the checklist store increased in six cities, up an average 3 per cent, and decreased in seven cities, down an average 2 per cent. Over-all, the bill at the start of November was about a third of one per cent higher than it was a month earlier.

The situation was similar to that in September when the bill also increased at the checklist store in six cities and declined in seven.

The biggest price fluctuation so far this year has been in sugar. At the start of 1975, a five-pound sack cost about $3. Prices have declined steadily since then and now average about $1.40 for a five-pound sack.

If sugar is included in the total, the AP survey shows the market basket bill has declined since the start of the year at the checklist store in 11 cities. If sugar is not included, however, the survey shows the market basket bill has increased at the checklist store in every city, up an average of 8.9 per cent.

Among other findings in the latest survey:

- The price of chopped chuck increased at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed, reflecting higher milk prices.
- Frozen orange juice prices, which have stayed steady for more than two years, increased last month. The price of a six-ounce can of frozen orange juice concentrate went up at the checklist store in seven of the cities surveyed.
- The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.
- The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.
- Egg prices, which had been rising in recent months, dropped again. The price of a dozen eggs declined at the checklist store in nine of the cities surveyed and increased in only one — Albuquerque, N.M. The price was unchanged in the other three cities.
- The price of a pound of but-

Police Looking For Suspects

GARLAND, Tex. (AP) — Police proceeded today with searches around this Dallas suburb and in the Houston area for three men suspected of taking $6,000 in a food store holdup here and kidnaping a Garland man from his home.

Garland officers said the search centered in Houston for a gunman who abducted Donald Combest, 53, of Garland and later freed him at Madisonville after forcing his captive to drive there in the Combest car and traveling to Huntsville by bus.

They reported the wanted man rode a taxi from Huntsville to Conroe and went on to Houston by bus.

Detectives arrested a man Saturday as he sought to report the theft of a rented car which they said was used in the Safeway store holdup. Questioners said he had refused to talk except to tell them he hitchhiked to Dallas while hunting a job.

In addition to the man sought at Houston, officers said Sunday they were seeking a third man fitting the description of a supposed customer seen in the store and later in a car from which they recovered guns and a walkie-talkie radio at Dallas. They said that car, licensed in Investigators said clues to the identity of the well-dressed man who kidnaped Combest led them Sunday to a Houston apartment where police found money wrappers from the Safeway store. They reported there were no leads, however, to his whereabouts.

Police said they also had recovered about $900 of the money, including $500 which Combest told them his captor handed over as a bribe to keep quiet.

Officers said they believe that the three men suspected in the case drove to Houston from Dallas before the man in custody rented a car here.

Noted Architect Roscoe DeWitt Dies

DALLAS (AP) — Roscoe P. DeWitt, the architect who designed the new Library of Congress building, died Sunday. He was 81.

Director Orders Series Of Raids On Texas Bars

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The new director of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC) has ordered a series of statewide raids to vigorously police Texas bars which violate the state's liquor control laws.

"We're going to stay with it as long as we have to," says Luke Robinson, a Church of Christ leader who looks over the reins of the ABC on Oct. 1.

"I'm not a prohibitionist, but I believe in enforcing the law the way it was written."

Since his crackdown began

Director Orders Series Of Raids On Texas Bars

three weeks ago, Robinson's agents have arrested 294 drunks and slapped 71 bars with administrative citations.

An Oct. 24 strike in Dallas resulted in 38 arrests and 26 cases against licensed liquor establishments.

"We were in Dallas last weekend, and we'll be back from time to time until I can get this mess straightened out," Robinson, a lawyer, told the Austin bureau of The Dallas Times Herald.

ABC legal advisers are currently studying the law to determine if topless go-go establishments and other "skin houses" that sell liquor are vulnerable to Robinson's raids.

"We're definitely going to look at establishments that permit exposure of an individual's person," Robinson said. "It's a violation of the Texas Liquor Control Act to permit any lewd, immoral conduct. It's going on in Texas, and I'm going to root it out."

The raids haven't been without incident. One ABC agent was bitten on the arm during a raid in Amarillo in the Panhandle, and another agent found his car tires slashed.

"I have no objection to people drinking," says Robinson, stressing that his agents are out only to arrest those who drink to excess. "We like to think we got those 294 (arrested drunks) before they got on our highways and killed someone. We're going to continue this crackdown."

Dear Abby Dogs Interpret Humans?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe that dogs can understand human language? My sister, Carol, insists that they can. At least she says her poodle can.

Carol went on a three-week vacation and left "Pisher" in a kennel. When she returned she said Pisher was so furious with her that he wouldn't look her in the face for five days.

She claims the poodle looked at her with love and understanding and actually nodded his head as if to say, "Yes, I forgive you."

DEAR ESTHER: When it comes to dog lovers, I can't tell you how many I know who are convinced that dogs can understand human language.

He keeps telling me that as soon as he can afford it we will get a place of our own, but I don't believe he really wants one.

He comes to see me maybe once a week for an hour and then he takes off. I just sit and cry. Please help me. I don't feel married anymore.

DEAR MISERABLE: Married people belong together. If you can't afford a place of your own, you should live with your parents or Rick's.

DEAR ABBY: I identified with the fellow who preferred not to broadcast the line of work he was in.

I am a Roman Catholic priest, and every time I get to a town where I'm not known, I take off my collar and put on a sport shirt.

DEAR ABBY: Rick and I were both underage and needed our parents' signatures to get married. It was pregnant at the time, but after we got married, I lost the baby.

Enjoy Own Thoughts Alone To Avoid Boredom, Self-Pity

This is to the woman in your column whose 4-year-old son wanted to know how to play with "nothing."

One way of playing with nothing is to examine what you see in front of you - the grain in the wood, the spots, marks, humps and bumps on a wall, the dirt and water spots on windows and mirrors, the marks made by chipped paint on furniture.

Another way of playing with nothing is to imagine you've got something to play with, and doing it in your mind, without moving a muscle.

Explosive expressions of anger and fear on the part of the parent tend to make the creative child either withdraw into himself, or rebel against what he considers to be an injustice - depending upon his temperament.

When you want to go somewhere, pretend to climb on a horse, and the up and down motion of your walking is the horse galloping.

Confederate Descendants In Brazil Preserve Memory Of Old South

The Washington Post AMERICANA, Brazil—U.S. confederates who fled the country rather than abide by the outcome of the Civil War founded this small city in southeastern Brazil just 100 years ago.

Confederate descendants are in their sixth generation here. And although they're thoroughly Brazilian, they still make a point of speaking English — with a Southern accent — at home and preserving the memory of the Old South.

"We must never forget what happened in the South," says Judith MacKnight Jones, an American native who has written a history in Portuguese. Brazil's national language — of the Confederate settlement here.

"We must give credit to those people who had the courage to come to Brazil to try to rebuild what they thought they had lost in the United States."

"My husband's great grand-daddy was 65 when he came here. He didn't know anything about Brazil or the language. But he was mad enough to want to try to make a go of it."

The great-granddaddy in question was Col. William Hutchinson Norris, who was born in Georgia, moved to Alabama where he became a state senator — and set out for Brazil in 1866, a year after Lee surrendered to Grant. Norris settled on farmland in Sao Paulo state and turned a profit growing cotton and watermelons. Other U.S. Southerners — many of whom had tried the year before to establish themselves in other parts of Brazil but failed — soon learned of Norris' good luck and moved to this region to join him.

On Aug. 27, 1875, the emperor of Brazil, King Pedro II, inaugurated an extension of the railroad from the city of Sao Paulo to the area where the Confederates were living. The place became known as Vila Americana — Portuguese for American Town. Later it officially became incorporated as the city of Americana.

"The American Southerners saw Brazil as a land where they could live with dignity," noted Americana City Councilman Vincente Sacilotto Netto in a speech marking Americana's 100th anniversary. The council officially cited Mrs. Jones (in Portuguese her name is pronounced "Zho-DEET-chee Zhon-eez") for her local historical research and presented her with a bouquet of flowers.

VILA AMERICANA was a pleasant place for Americans who were used to the antebellum South's way of life. The climate was mild and good for cotton. Land and labor were cheap, and Brazil retained slavery until 1888. People were easygoing, and whatever couldn't be done one day could always be put off until "manana" or tomorrow. Confederate migration continued into the Americana region until the early 1900s. In the colony's heyday there were an estimated 500 Southerners away from Americana, to other parts of Brazil and even back to the United States.

The American families' children began intermarrying with non-Confederates and some moved away from Americana, to other parts of Brazil and even back to the United States.

Regular readers will have no trouble making five diamonds on today's hand. After all, why bother to finesse when a king is singleton? When the hand was actually played, in a match between Norway and the Netherlands a few months ago, South didn't have our advantage of seeing all 52 cards.

Declarer took dummy's ace of hearts and led the queen of diamonds. East played low, and South agonized but played the ace to drop the singleton king.

South now drew another trump with the jack, ruffed a heart in dummy and led the jack of clubs for a finesse, losing to the singleton king. West promptly shifted to the queen of spades, and the defenders took two spade tricks to defeat the contract.

It looks like bad eyesight or bad luck to lose a finesse to a singleton king, but actually it was bad bridge.

No Danger
There is no danger if East wins a club trick. If East then leads spades, dummy's king will win a trick; and if East doesn't lead spades, South can discard a spade on dummy's fifth club.

There is danger (as South found out) if West wins a club trick. South cannot prevent this if West has the guarded king of clubs, but he need not lose to a singleton king.

South should play the ace of clubs, expecting to lose the next club trick to East (which he can afford). As it happens, the king will drop and South makes his contract with ease. If the play goes this way, incidentally, each of the four kings is captured by the ace of its suit.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-A 8 7 4, H-10 7 3 2, D-10 2, C-6 4 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. You have only 4 points for the ace and 1 point for the doubleton, and you promise at least 6 points for the raise; but it pays to stretch a point or so when you have four-card support for partner's major suit.

Edwards Wins New Term In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards, as expected, was re-elected to a second term as Louisiana's chief executive Saturday with more than 60 per cent of the vote.

With 2,722 of the state's 2,727 precincts reported, Edwards had 744,009 votes, or just over 62 per cent.

State Sen. Bob Jones, son of a former governor, was second with 289,554 votes, or just over 24 per cent.

Veteran Secretary of State Wade O. Martin ran third with 145,571 votes, approximately 12 per cent.

Three other candidates — Ken Lewis, Cecilia Pizzo and Roswell Thompson — had less than one per cent each.

An even more overwhelming victory, however, was scored by Lt. Gov. James Fitzmorris who served notice he would try to use his strong showing to move up to the governor's chair in four years.

He was re-elected this year with 905,782 votes, or just under 62 per cent.

Three other candidates — Republican Lance Britton, William Bowen and Frederick Perkins — had roughly six per cent each.

Mayors' Races Highlighted In Elections

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Some of the nation's largest cities elect mayors Tuesday, but political analysts hoping to find national trends may have to do some quick post-election improvising.

From Boston to Indianapolis to Houston to San Francisco, from Philadelphia to Cleveland to Minneapolis to Phoenix, the issues are local or involve personalities. Even in areas where local problems are potentially national — busing, high property taxes or municipal salary scales — the campaigns approach them from the local angle.

In Boston, for example, a year and a half of school busing has led to controversy and violence. But the issue has been muted and anti-busing groups supported neither Mayor Kevin H. White nor State Sen. Joseph F. Timilty. Both oppose busing but say the law — the court order mandating busing — must be obeyed.

In Cleveland, Minneapolis and Houston, the races are reruns of previous campaigns; in Philadelphia, the principle issue is Mayor Frank Rizzo; in San Francisco, there are 10 candidates and almost as many issues; in Phoenix, the main contest is over the future of the "charter" government, which has run City Hall since 1949; in Baltimore, the election is to ratify the results of the primary.

In Boston, White won a primary that narrowed the field to two candidates. He got 54 per cent to 39 per cent for Timilty.

Since then, the race has developed slowly, partially because the sports-conscious city was preoccupied with its Red Sox, who took the Cincinnati Reds to the seventh game of baseball's World Series. And when the campaign did develop, the major debate has been over allegations of shady fund raising transactions involving White, who was considered as a Democratic vice-presidential candidate in 1972.

White has stressed that the tax rate has remained stable for four years and says the city is in good health fiscally. He denies any knowledge of wrongdoing: "I have never condoned illegal activity in my administration. I have never asked any person to make illegal contributions to my campaign or anyone else's."

The Cleveland election is a rerun of the 1971 contest between Mayor Ralph Perk and Arnold Pinkney, president of the school board. Cleveland is the largest city in the nation with a Republican mayor, though the election, like many municipal elections, is non-partisan.

Early Losses Won't Hurt, Ford Men Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign strategists contend he can absorb defeats in two of the first three presidential primary elections of 1976 and still beat Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination.

They say they do not expect Ford to lose in New Hampshire on Feb. 24 or in Florida on March 9, but that it won't be politically fatal if he does. There is concern and some pessimism in the Ford camp about those two states because Reagan has special advantages in both.

In part, these assessments may be an exercise in campaign gamesmanship, since it is to a candidate's advantage to start with low expectations and exceed them rather than to promote optimistic forecasts that don't pan out.

As the incumbent, although by appointment rather than election, Ford goes into the campaign as the favorite, and any defeat by Reagan will therefore be magnified.

But Ford's managers say the race shouldn't be read that way because the President has not been the electoral route before. They also say that as a challenger, Reagan can pick his spots and run in states where he is strongest, while the Ford campaign will be active in every state, spreading its resources thinner.

Reagan has not yet declared his presidential candidacy yet, but sources familiar with his plans say he will do so in Washington the week of Nov. 17.

Stuart Spencer, director of political operations for the President Ford Committee, said he is satisfied with progress in organizing for the President in New Hampshire and Florida, with chairmen and campaign professionals at work and a direct-mail appeal for Republican support due to go out in November.

Howard H. "Bo" Callaway, the Ford campaign manager, has said he is confident the President will win both primaries.

Spencer said Reagan's advantages in the two states include the support of New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the Manchester Union-Leader, that state's largest newspaper, and the strength of GOP conservatives in Florida.

"If we can beat him in New Hampshire and Florida, I think he's dead," Spencer said. "If he beats us in New Hampshire and Florida, I don't think we're dead. It's just a long, hard winter — or spring."

He acknowledged that he can't measure the psychological impact the Ford campaign would suffer if Reagan won in those early tests.

Spencer also said the President's forces are confident they can beat Reagan in the Massachusetts primary on March 2, in Illinois on March 16 — although some other Republicans say Ford could have trouble there — and will win in Wisconsin and New York on April 6.

Along with the questions of strategy, there is the problem of internal discord at the Ford campaign committee. It surfaced again with the resignation of David Packard as finance chairman, following the departure of Lee Nunn as director of operations.

In both cases, the resignations stemmed from differences with Callaway. A spokesman said Ford still has total confidence in Callaway's management. And a campaign official said that with those resignations, the in-house problems at Ford headquarters should be over.

Republicans Dispute Subcommittee Report On Field Development

By MORTON MINTZ
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Two natural gas producers delayed development of a large southern Louisiana field unnecessarily "and probably in violation" of the Natural Gas Act, the House Commerce Oversight subcommittee charged in a report Saturday.

Dissenting two subcommittee Republicans contended that the report's findings and recommendations "in no way accurately reflect the evidence gathered at hearings."

Subcommittee chairman John E. Moss (D-Calif.) denied their contention and retorted in a separate paper that the minority was guilty of at least one "misstatement of fact."

The remaining three subcommittee Republicans did not join the dispute.

While the controversy involves technical issues and disputed interpretations of fact, both sides emphasize economic and political issues, such as whether expectations of deregulation of well-head prices and consequent higher profits have induced producers to hold back supplies and thereby cause gas shortages.

The GOP dissenters, James M. Collins (Texas) and Samuel L. Devine (Ohio), said, for example, that producers need a higher price as an "economic

Midland Concern Reports Discovery

Coquina Oil Corp., Midland-based oil and gas exploration and producing firm, reports an oil discovery in Cooke County.

The exploration, part of the Coquina 75-A Exploration program, is N. 1-B Harrison Estate.

The well flowed oil at the rate of 600 barrels per day, plus 820,000 cubic feet of gas per day, from the Oil Creek zone at 10,774 feet. The flow was through a 16-64-inch choke.

The project is located on a 4,730-acre drilling block, Pomeroy Smith, chairman of the board of Coquina, said.

Pecos Gas Field Draws Extension

Continental Oil Co. has completed No. 2-3-170 J. E. Allison as a 1 1/2-mile southeast extension to the Elsinore (Devonian-Fuselman) field of Pecos County, about 35 miles south of Fort Stockton.

It gauged a calculated absolute open flow of 6.2 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 13,495, 13,518 feet, after acidizing the section with 5,000 gallons.

Slated as a project in the GMW (Montoya) field, it was drilled to 14,241 feet, where 5 1/2-inch casing was sealed and plugged back to 13,526 feet.

Location is 50 feet from north and 2,486 feet from west lines

Amoco Chemical Facility To Open

HOUSTON-Amoco Chemicals Corp. will open its new distribution center at Seminole Thursday and expects to have it completely operating by the end of November.

G. E. Light, manager of the Oil Production Chemicals Division of Amoco Chemicals, with headquarters in Houston, said Amoco is in the process of hiring a terminal supervisor, a laboratory technician and three truck drivers for the Seminole facility.

Included on the 1.6-acre site, 706 N. Main St., is a 9,400-square-foot building for warehousing of dry chemicals, and 90,000 gallons of tankage for liquid chemicals.

Rodman Supply Changes Name

TULSA, Okla.—Rodman Supply Co. has changed its name to Whitney Supply Co., William H. Richards, president of the Tulsa-based oil field equipment supply firm announced.

"The name change has been made for two basic purposes — to reflect the firm's commitment to supply goods for the expanding search for vital energy sources, and to reflect the ownership position of J. W. W. Whitney Jr., who has served as chairman of the board for almost five years since his purchase of the company," Richards said.

The company was founded 40 years ago by E. G. Rodman at Odessa.

Cost For Ford's Synthetic Fuel Plan Almost Doubles

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The $6 billion White House plan to create a synthetic fuels industry in the United States has become an $11.5 billion plan since it was sent to Congress three weeks ago.

The $5.5 billion that has been tacked onto the original scheme does not increase the size of the 350,000 barrel-a-day industry the White House wants to create. The extra money is for construction grants, for price supports and for help to rural regions so they can absorb some of the costs of locating synthetic fuel plants in their communities.

The new money has been requested by the Energy Research and Development Administration in the last 10 days. Last week the agency asked for $600 million to help industry construct synthetic fuels plants, then on Tuesday requested $4.5 billion to support the prices that industry will get for the synthetic fuels it produces.

These guarantees will return to private industry whatever money it spends or borrows in constructing synthetic fuels plants that turn out to be inefficient, unproductive or money losers.

In response to Hechler's criticism, Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), chairman of the Public Works Committee, says that hearings on the loan guarantee provision were not necessary since the Senate has studied federal aid to energy projects for the last five years.

"Enactment of this loan guarantee program at this time," Randolph said, "would be consistent with national efforts to promote greater energy self-sufficiency at the earliest date."

The purpose of the open House committee, hearing Thursday was to debate the bill the Senate has already passed, so that House conferees will have the benefit of that debate when they talk with their Senate counterparts.

Rep. Mike McCormack (D-Wash.), who favors quick action

Mesa Announces New Supervisor

AMARILLO — Mesa Petroleum Co. has employed Stanley E. Dobler as drilling and production supervisor for the Central and Permian Basin divisions.

He will headquarter at Amarillo.

Dobler is a member of the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers and the American Petroleum Institute. He served as president of the Amarillo Chapter of AIME in 1973.

Dunigan Promotes Midland Employee

Charles Cunningham, Midland sales representative for Dunigan Tool & Supply Co., Inc., has been promoted to district manager.

He will continue to headquarter in Midland and will not be transferred to Dallas as reported earlier.

Cunningham has more than 15 years experience with tool and supply merchandising. For 13 years, he held store managerial and sales representative positions with Republic Supply.

Fortunes Still Rise, Fall In Nation's First Oil City

Oil City, Pa. — It is not the place it used to be — and probably never will be again — but fortunes still rise and fall by the liquid barometer of oil here near the spot where it all began.

Just a couple of Allegheny foothills away, about 15 miles up a road now lined with fat, round, bulk oil storage tanks and the stacks of refineries, is the site of the world's first oil well, a 2,900-barrel-a-year producer when it was drilled in 1859 by an unemployed railway conductor, Edwin Laurentine Drake.

Since Drake's momentous find there have been good times and some bad times here. Now, with oil bringing more than $12 a barrel, things are once again looking up in Oil City.

There is new construction under way, including a multi-tiered parking garage and a $6 million building for the Quaker State Oil Refining Corp., one of two refiners with headquarters here.

Last year Quaker State drilled 444 wells in a swatch known as the Penngrate area, running from western New York to West Virginia and Ohio. Oil exploration and production have kept the unemployment level here at 6.7 per cent, less than either the state or national average, and orders are flowing in to local businesses for more supplies.

A general air of optimism prevails as a result of the sprucing up in this grimy little city into the synthetic-fuels industry. These guarantees will return to private industry whatever money it spends or borrows in constructing synthetic fuels plants that turn out to be inefficient, unproductive or money losers.

In response to Hechler's criticism, Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), chairman of the Public Works Committee, says that hearings on the loan guarantee provision were not necessary since the Senate has studied federal aid to energy projects for the last five years.

thousands of shallow wells that have been punched down through the hillsides and stands of white oak that surround this area, rising to the surface at an average rate of a quarter of a barrel a day.

Pennsylvania crude oil is high in paraffin and lubricants unlike Western oil, which is primarily composed of an asphalt base and is low in lubricants. Most Western oil goes into the production of gasoline, but here the oil usually ends up being refined as motor oil and machinery lubricants.

There are no million-barrel gushers here, raining down black gold on the heads of dancing wildcaters. Instead, oil wells discreetly scattered across the countryside are known as "strip wells," and they are tapped about the way a Vermont farmer taps his sugar maples — a trickle at a time.

Quaker State, the most active oil producer in the area, relies on these strip wells for more than 90 per cent of the 20,000 barrels it refines daily.

Rep. Mike McCormack (D-Wash.), who favors quick action on synthetic fuels, said "This bill (the Senate version) may have its problems, but this is a vehicle which we probably will not have again. I think the time has come to get to the building of these plants."

But Hechler argued, "Since we started this exercise almost a month ago, something new has come in every day." "I believe we have not received sufficient evidence that the administration has come to grips with the situation, and I for one will have no choice but to fight this from the floor (of the house)."

'Should Have Made A Deal,' Vesco Says

By STANLEY MEISLER
 (C) 1975, The Los Angeles Times
 SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Relaxed and laughing, but with sarcasm revealing his bitterness, Robert L. Vesco describes himself as a retired businessman persecuted by the U.S. government because "I'm the only Watergate figure they haven't got."

In a rare interview last week in his haven in Costa Rica, Vesco, who has refused to return to the United States to face various indictments and accusations, said, "I'm just relaxing and enjoying life and spending 100 per cent of my time defending myself against the United States giants."

The controversial financier, who will be 40 Dec. 4, talked for 90 minutes in his office on the grounds of his San Jose home. He was dressed casually, in an open-necked shirt, a denim jacket, blue slacks and loafers without socks. The bookshelf over his head displayed a copy of an unflattering biography by Robert A. Hutchison that calls Vesco "the largest international swindler of our time," but Vesco, in the interview, insisted that he had not swindled a single cent.

Vesco spoke quietly, in a disarming and persuasive manner. But many of the things he said were so contrary to what U.S. officials have said and financial writers have written that there was no way to reconcile the views. Almost glibly, he dismissed as false the main accusations against him: the civil complaint by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) that he and his associates had manipulated $224 million out of International Overseas Services (IOS), and the federal criminal indictment that he had conspired with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans to try to stop the SEC investigation by secretly contributing $200,000 in cash to the 1972 campaign fund of President Richard M. Nixon.

While Vesco remained out of the country, both Mitchell and Stans were tried on the indictment and acquitted. Although some U.S. officials blame their failure to convict all these defendants on the absence of Vesco, Vesco looks on the verdict as a vindication of himself. The SEC suit has still not gone to trial.

Vesco threw up a hand and rolled his eyes over this delay, as if to imply that if the SEC really had evidence against him, they would have been a trial long ago. The SEC says the case eventually will go to trial and that Vesco — one of 21 individuals and corporations charged in the case — has been represented by attorneys throughout the pretrial proceedings.

As Vesco painted the picture, the specifics of the charges did not matter anyway. According to Vesco, U.S. agencies, "with all these funny guys sitting in little offices looking for something to do," were out to get him because, at an SEC hearing a few weeks before the 1972 election, he invoked the Fifth Amendment — rather than testify about the campaign contributions.

"You figure out what chance I would have if I went back," Vesco said in the interview. "They would do anything, they would even concoct a traffic violation, just to get me."

"I was stupid," Vesco went on. "You don't fight city hall. I should have made a deal with them. I should have played a John Dean. I should have cooperated. But I'm not built that way."

"I could still make a deal with them. But who would want to now? We've gone through the war already."

These statements implied that Vesco had and still has much to reveal about Mr. Nixon and the controversies that surrounded his administration. But everytime he was asked about this, he was, by his own admission, evasive. "Those are the kind of questions," he said, "that prosecutors would like to know the answers to."

Since 1972, when he set up residence in Costa Rica, Vesco has battled with the American Embassy over U.S. attempts to bring him back to face trial. Name-calling has intensified in the last few weeks, with Vesco publicly accusing the embassy of using a "hit-like" technique and the embassy publicly accusing Vesco of spreading smokescreens.

Massachusetts Facing Possible Bond Default

The Washington Post
 BOSTON — While New York City strives to avoid a financial collapse, Massachusetts bankers and legislative leaders say that the threat of default on state bonds is growing dangerously near here also.

Hill is attempting to form a syndicate of 75 to 100 underwriters across the country to purchase $131 million in new, short-term notes to pay off or "roll over" the original bonds. "The underwriters tell us that it won't be possible unless there is a credible, honest budget," he said.

Another $377 million in bond is due in December also, but bids for the housing bonds are being sought first — this Thursday — because of the firm need to get approval of local housing authorities across the state for the proposed bids and interest rates. The success or failure of the housing bonds will affect the threatened bankruptcy of New York City because of $450 million in bonds already issued by Massachusetts this year to cover a deficit in the last fiscal year's budget.

Terrace A. Todman, seems more determined than previous American diplomats to get him back to the United States.

Vesco is far ahead in the battle. At the moment, there is little chance that Costa Rica will expel or extradite him.

Earlier this year, a group of prominent Costa Ricans demanded that the government expel Vesco as an undesirable foreigner, but President Daniel Oduber replied that, while he did not think much of him, Vesco still had a legal right to remain in Costa Rica. The demand has not been renewed.

Vesco can withstand such attacks easily because he has the blessing and protection of former President Jose Figueres, a national hero and still the most powerful politician in the country. The 69-year-old Figueres, known as Don Pepe here, was president when Vesco arrived and even took to national television to defend him in a special broadcast.

Some critics believe Don Pepe has been snared by Vesco's money. But Vesco, in the interview, said such talk irritated him. "You couldn't buy Jose Figueres with a million dollars," Vesco said. "He's not that kind of a person."

But both have acknowledged that an IOS fund, once controlled by Vesco, loaned more than $2 million to Don Pepe's private business when it was in difficulty in 1972.

Vesco said he owned a cattle ranch and some other properties in Costa Rica but had no other business interests here or elsewhere in the world. He described himself as retired. He said his wife had some small investments in Costa Rica. And, he added, there were investments by some of his old companies, but he was no longer associated with them.

In the past, the SEC has accused Vesco of keeping control through associates of companies that he supposedly has given up. But Vesco said there was no such thing as a "Vesco group" controlling companies. He did acknowledge that Normay LeBlanc, the Canadian accountant accused by the SEC of planning many of the IOS manipulations for Vesco, was in Costa Rica. "He's out here doing his own thing," Vesco said.

Vesco, who once jetted about the world in a corporation-owned Boeing 707, said that he had not left Costa Rica in more than a year.

"This is my home," he said. "I live here. My children go to school here. I don't plan to go anywhere else. I don't plan to go back to the United States, period."

Vesco said he had renounced American citizenship and that he, his wife Patricia and their four children plan to become Costa Rican citizens as soon as they fulfill their five-year residence requirements.

The SEC civil fraud complaint has been most responsible for the branding of Vesco as one of history's most notorious swindlers.

But, according to Vesco's interpretation, the SEC only charged him for failing to follow "certain forms and procedures" that he believes should not have been followed.

"Their greatest concern at the time," he said, "was that a hell of a chunk of money was leaving the United States. They have never charged that I received a penny."

In fact, Vesco went on, he had protected the IOS investors by selling the securities before the American stockmarket plunge. The $224 million, according to Vesco, is now "sitting in cash in banks, and always has been in the proper names of the proper owners."

Vesco parried questions about his relationship with former President Nixon. Asked if his relations with Mr. Nixon had been close, Vesco replied, "How close is close? Was anyone ever really close to President Nixon?"

But he said that he had not spoken to Mr. Nixon since his resignation. "I'm sure all he needs is a call from me on my tapped phone," Vesco said.

Asked about reports that he had met with Mr. Nixon in Salzburg in 1972 when the President was en route to the Soviet Union, Vesco replied, "Why don't you ask him?"

Asked about his present relationship with Mr. Nixon's nephew, Donald A. Nixon, once his administrative assistant, Vesco smiled and said, "He's down here. That's what you call an evasive answer. He does not work for me, per se."

Cileila twists to the right

Belly dancing can be very relaxing, as Cileila shows.

47 Attend Belly Dance Convention

The Central YMCA echoed with the sounds of Middle Eastern music and finger cymbals Saturday as 47 women from Midland and Odessa attended the first West Texas Belly Dancers Convention.

Instructors from Lubbock and Austin showed the area dancers various movements and discussed costumes.

Scheherazade and Cileila, their professional names, were the instructors and they performed during a demonstration to climax the session.

Joe Ellis Jr., Central YMCA executive director, said the convention was a success and said he was surprised at the amount of interest shown by area women.

Was it a mistake?

It's good exercise, too

WHAT IS THE TRUTH?

"Thy Word Is Truth" (John 17:17)
by Bryan Post

God has formulated a plan of salvation for man. Man is lost in his sin, and only God can save him. God has provided salvation through his Son, Jesus Christ. Jesus came to the earth and lived as a man, died on the cross, and was raised from the dead. His death and resurrection provides the means of our salvation: his blood cleanses us of our sin. We are saved when we have faith in Christ and our faith prompts us to obey him. The plan of salvation will be climaxed when Christ comes again and every person is judged by the Lord. Those who have lived in faithful obedience to Christ will be with God forever in heaven; those who have refused to obey him will be forever separated from God in the terrors of hell. God's desire is that "none should perish, but that all should reach repentance." (II Peter 3:9), that obey him now before it is everlastingly too late.

Man's problem is sin. God has furnished the remedy to the problem. Why did he do it? Because he loves us so much that he wants us to be with him. The New Testament word that completely describes God's attitude toward us is grace (unmerited and undeserved favor to us). When we obey our God, then we know the meaning of the words of the song, "Amazing grace - how sweet the sound - that saved a wretch like me."

Washington Items Slated For Auction

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — A Bicentennial buff's dream, the auction of a collection of items owned by George Washington or by his wife, will take place Nov. 8 in New York as part of Sotheby Parke Bernet's annual American Heritage Society auction of Americana.

The 41 items to be sold belong to Mrs. Walter Peter Jr. of Washington, whose late husband was a direct descendant of Mrs. Washington. A Peter married Mrs. Washington's great-granddaughter in 1795.

A mahogany and leather camp stool owned by Washington, with a folding, X-shaped design, has been appraised by Parke Bernet at $2,000 to $2,500. Tradition has it that Washington may have used the stool at Valley Forge. The silk slippers that Mrs. Washington wore to her wedding — complete with sequins and lace — are also being offered for sale. Her glasses of tortoise shell, several of her fans, some beads, earrings and chains, snuff boxes and pin cushions also will be auctioned.

Martin County Judge Plans To Resign Post

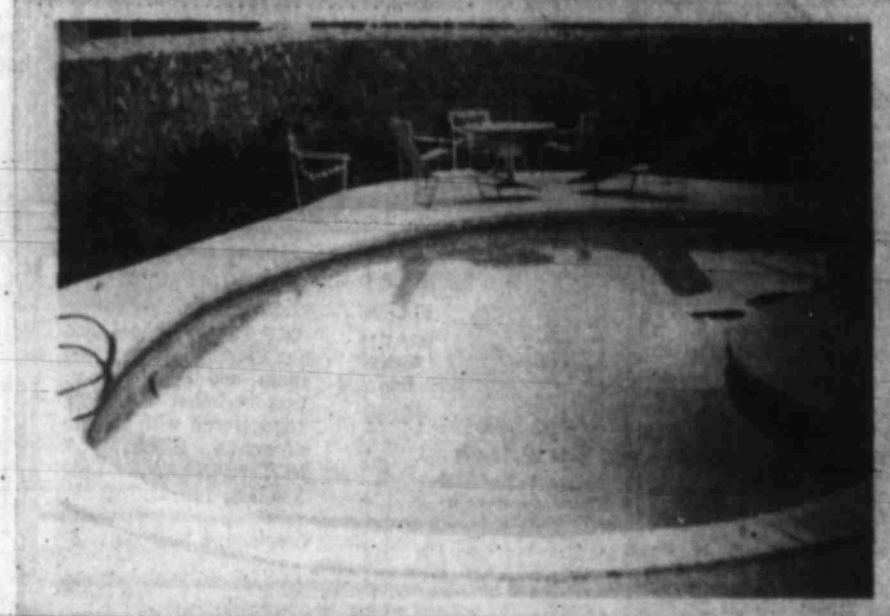

STANTON — Martin County Judge Carrol Yater will submit his letter of resignation to the Martin County Commissioners when they meet next month. It is to be effective after the commissioners name a successor.

Yater cited "business and personal commitments" as reasons for resigning. He was re-elected last year unopposed. For the past five years, Yater has served as judge. He was first elected in 1971, winning a runoff from a field of five opponents. Whoever the court appoints will serve until January when candidates can file for the 1976 election.

Steelers Knock Off Cincy

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

A desperate Ken Anderson was tearing apart the Pittsburgh defense with his passes, trying to bring the Bengals back from a 23-3 deficit which he had slashed to 23-17.

But with the Bengals on the Pittsburgh 14-yard line and oh, so close to taking the lead with less than five minutes to go, a holding penalty on Cincinnati tight end Bob Trumpy moved the Bengals back to the 35.

One play later, Mike Wagner made his second interception of the game and returned it 65 yards to Cincinnati's 18. That set up another Pittsburgh touchdown and the Steelers prevailed 30-24.

"This game gave us a big lift," quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after his Steelers knocked off previously unbeaten Cincinnati and joined Cincinnati and the Oilers in a three-way tie for first in the American Conference's Central Division. Bradshaw passed to Lynn Swann for touchdowns of 37 and 25 yards, then piled in from the one for what proved to be the deciding touchdown.

Franco Harris bulldozed for 157 yards to lead the Pittsburgh ground game. "We seem to come alive when the big guy is running like that," Bradshaw said. "Franco ran his best this year, which is a big plus for us because we can play more of a possession game... It's certainly our biggest win to date."

Cardinals 24, Patriots 17

Terry Metcalf scored on runs of one and seven yards from scrimmage and on a 69-yard sprint with a punt to carry the Cards past New England. Mel Gray's punt returns of 19 and 27 yards set up Metcalf's two short scoring bursts.

Vikings 23, Packers 17

Minnesota, trailing 17-14 on two Packer touchdowns by reserve running back Bertie Smith, rallied to win on Fran Tarleton's fourth-quarter touchdown passes of 19 yards to John Gilliam and 10 to Chuck Foreman. "It wasn't pretty, but we got the ball into the end zone," said Coach Bud Grant, whose Vikings are now the league's only unbeaten team.

Bills 24, Jets 23

With a 23-17 lead, about five minutes to play and a fourth-and-one on the Buffalo 20-yard line, New York Coach Charley Winner decided to go for the yard instead of the field goal. It didn't work.

The Bills stopped John Riggins at the line, then took over—and less than two minutes later, Joe Ferguson clicked with O.J. Simpson on a 64-yard touchdown pass for the victory.

It was Ferguson's third scoring strike of the game. Simpson rushed also rushed for 94 yards, giving him 1,005 for the year and 7,283 for his career, vaulting him past Leroy Kelly and into fourth place among the NFL's all-time rushers.

Dolphins 46, Bears 13

Bob Griese passed for 288 yards, including touchdowns of 20 yards to Norm Bulahch, 79 yards to Nat Moore—and 58 yards to Fred Solomon in Miami's rout of the Bears. "It's never easy but I have had tougher days," Griese said.

Cleveland's offense, keeping the Browns winless.

Giants 35, Chargers 24

Craig Morton passed for two touchdowns and Joe Dawkins ran for two in the Giants' Saturday victory that handed the Chargers their seventh loss without a victory.

Aggies Entertain Dangerous SMU

By The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies and the Texas Longhorns, the only remaining unbeaten teams in Southwest Conference play, have blood debts to pay this week and both teams know it isn't going to be easy.

The fifth-ranked Aggies, who trail the Longhorns by a half game in the SWC standings but are unscratched for the season, host Southern Methodist which bushwhacked the Aggies in Dallas last year.

Aggie Coach Emory Bellard and assistant Melvin Robertson were present Saturday when SMU and Wayne Morris scored Texas Coach Darrell Royal's eighth-ranked outfit before falling 30-22.

Bellard and Robertson noted that SMU's Wishbone carved huge chunks out of the Longhorn hide, including 202 steps by Morris. A&M leads the nation in defense against the rushing.

The Aggies play defense with a different philosophy than the Horns. Behind All American linebacker Ed Simonini, the Aggies have a tendency to gamble with stunts that has paid off in seven victories. Texas plays more of a standard defense.

Texas, owning a 4-0 SWC ledger to 3-0 for A&M, barely gets a chance to breathe before the Baylor Bears come to town.

You remember the Baylor Bears. They won the SWC title in 1974 and the title fire was lit when the Bears whipped Texas.

34-24 after trailing 24-7 at halftime.

Baylor has fallen on hard times this year. Coach Grant Teaff's Bears finally broke into the SWC win column with a 24-6 victory over winless Texas Christian Saturday and quarterback Mark Jackson hurt his left shoulder again in the process.

Jackson was expected to play against the Longhorns with Charlie Parker ready in a substitute role.

The SWC race behind Texas and Texas A&M looks like this: Arkansas 2-1, Texas Tech 2-2, Baylor, and Rice 1-2, SMU 1-3 and TCU 0-4.

Texas Tech nudged the luck-less Rice Owls 28-24 Saturday when the Owls couldn't score from the four in the dying seconds of the game.

And, speaking of Rice, idle Arkansas must meet the Owls in Houston Saturday where Coach Al Conover's crew has given them fits in recent years.

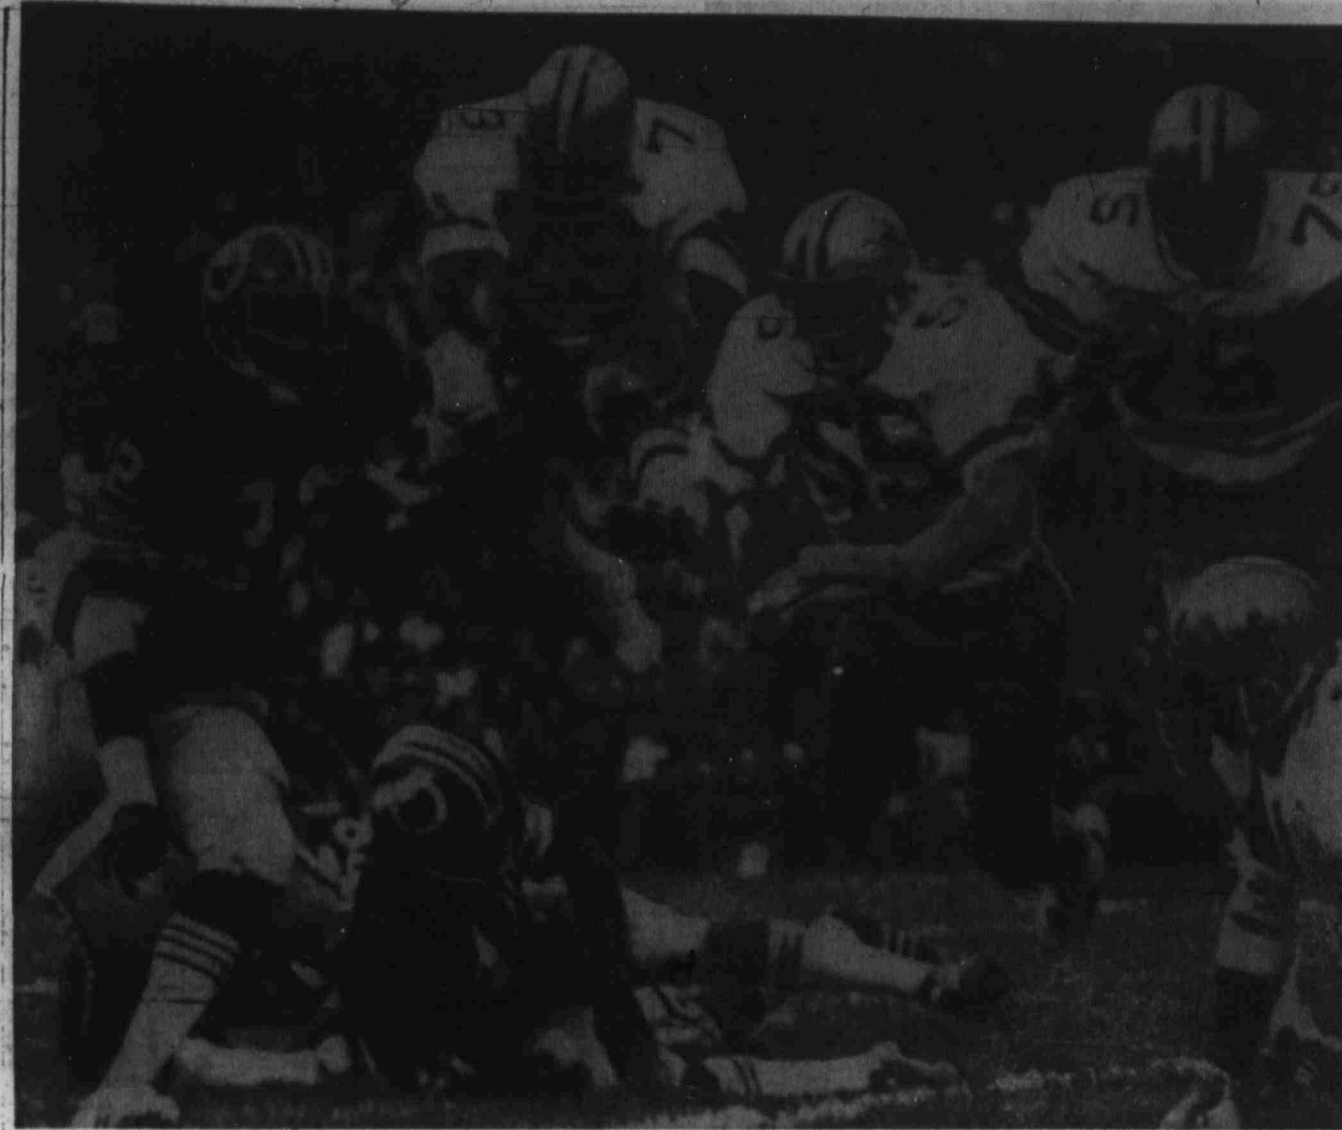

Texas Christian tries to break its 18-game losing streak at home Saturday against Texas Tech.

Cowboys Lose In Overtime To Washington By 30-24

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dallas Quarterback Roger Staubach lost his cool in sudden-death overtime and the Washington Redskins took advantage of the lapse to outlast the Cowboys.

Quarterback Billy Kilmer of the Skins, who called the mistake crucial, jumped over the middle from a half-yard out for the winning touchdown at 6:34 of the extra period that gave Washington a 30-24 National Football League victory over the Cowboys Sunday.

The Redskins' overtime drive began when linebacker Chris Hanburger hit Roger Staubach, attempting to pass at midfield.

The ball wobbled into the hands of Ken Houston of Washington, who ran it back to the 50-yard-line. The frustrated Staubach, a perennial candidate for good conduct honors, hauled off and slugged Redskin cornerback Pat Fischer, giving Washington the ball and an extra 15 yards for the personal foul.

It was Staubach's only interception for the game; Kilmer threw four.

"I just did a stupid thing," Staubach said later. "The play was over. Fischer had thrown a good, clean block on me. I took a shot at him."

Kilmer, who completed 21 of 39 attempts for 301 yards, said, "That's the thing that gave us the impetus. Roger just lost his cool."

The Redskins, now with a 5-2 record at the midpoint of the season, moved into a three-way tie for top spot in the Eastern Division of the NFC Sunday with Dallas and the St. Louis Cardinals, who beat the New England Patriots.

Kilmer passed the Skins to within one point of a tie when with 1:52 left in regular time with a seven-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Smith. Mark Moseley's conversion lied it up.

Kilmer himself was an earlier candidate for goat when he threw a fourth-quarter interception to the Cowboy's Cliff Harris with the score tied at 17-17. Harris scrambled 27 yards for a Dallas touchdown.

But Washington came right back to tie it again on a long march capped by Kilmer's seven-yarder to Jerry Smith.

"I really had the crowd on a string," the Washington quarterback said of the 55,004 partisan fans. "It was 'yea, boo, yea, boo.' But if I let that bother me, I'd have to go back to pressing pants with my old man."

Dallas' last chance to win the game in regulation time came with a field goal attempt with 14 seconds left. But Toni Fritsch missed the 38-yard kick, booting the ball a few yards wide of the goal post.

Fritsch claimed that "somebody got a finger on it," but the Redskins said it was just a bad kick.

Oilers Down Chiefs 17-13

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bob Atkins doesn't score touchdowns or pass or run with the ball. Not very often, at least.

Atkins is a second-string free safety for the Houston Oilers. One of his roles is to try to prevent touchdowns. He did exactly that Sunday and still had time to do a little running, too.

Atkins drifted in front of a pass thrown by Mike Livingston, grabbed the ball at the Houston four-yard line and romped 70 yards to the Kansas City 26, preserving a 17-13 victory for the Oilers over the Chiefs.

The theft came with less than five minutes left when the Chiefs were knocking on the Oilers' goal line. Houston Coach

Bum Phillips was so overcome by Atkins' gesture he gave him the game ball despite the aerial show put on by Dan Pastorini and Kenny Burrough.

Pastorini, the quarterback, and Burrough, the wide receiver, teamed up for both Oiler touchdowns. Pastorini tossed a 17-yard bomb in the first quarter and a screen pass good for 97 yards in the third, both to Burrough.

"Kenny Burrough can fly," Phillips said. "He is extra gear for the big play. He has an extra gear to shift it in. The defensive back will think the quarterback is being sacked, then Kenny will shift into overdrive and you are beat."

Jan Stenerud kicked a pair of 37-yard field goals for the Oilers, and Jeff Kinney capped a 51-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown run that lifted Kansas City into a 13-7 halftime lead. Pastorini's screen pass to Burrough erased that early in the third period.

The victory raised Houston's record to 6-1 and turned the American Conference Central Division race into a three-way tie involving the Oilers, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. "If someone had asked me if I would take a 6-1 record after seven games at the beginning of the year," Phillips said, "I would have said, 'Yea.'"

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association say Austin Carr is healthy again and will accompany the team on their two-week road trip starting Tuesday in Washington.

However, Coach Bill Fitch says he isn't sure when Carr will be reactivated.

Carr is recovering from knee surgery. He will remain on the injured reserve list but will work out with the squad, Fitch said after the Cavaliers lost 103-91 to the New Orleans Jazz Saturday night.

"He's healthy, but hasn't even scrimmaged yet," Fitch said. "I don't know when he'll be playing."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles Coach Mike McCormack says the toughest day before a Monday night nationally-televised National Football League game is Monday.

McCormack's Eagles, 1-5 and in the cellar of the National Football Conference East, meet the Los Angeles Rams in a TV game tonight. The Rams, 5-1 and comfortably in first place in the NFC West, are at least a one-touchdown favorite.

Tech SWC Cage Favorite

DALLAS (AP) — A wide-open race was predicted by the nine Southwest Conference basketball coaches Sunday at their annual pre-season press conference in Dallas.

The consensus of the coaches was that seven teams—Texas Tech, SMU, Arkansas, Texas A&M, Baylor, Houston and Texas—could contend for league honors.

Texas Tech was named by five of the other coaches as a possible front-runner and SMU was mentioned by four head men.

Davis To Sign

TORONTO (AP) — Anthony Davis, the leading scorer runner and pass receiver in the now-defunct World Football League, will be signed by the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, a local newspaper reported Sunday night.

The Globe and Mail said Davis, who graduated from Southern California last year after a sensational career with the Trojans, legally became a free agent Sunday, after the Sun, his WFL team, failed to play two scheduled games in row.

Arkansas State Leading League

By The Associated Press
Arkansas State is 8-0 and Lamar University is 0-8 and the difference between the two Southern Conference football schools is offense. Lamar just doesn't have any.

Arkansas State overwhelmed Tennessee-Chattanooga 49-0 Saturday while Lamar could gain but 54 yards—a school record for offensive futility and the second lowest output by a SLC school—in a 43-3 loss to Southern Mississippi.

Arkansas State tailback Dennis Bolden collected 109 yards on 12 tries which was twice more than the team output for Lamar.

Louisiana Tech, 6-1 for the season, got a scare from Southwestern Louisiana before tumbling 33-20. Heavily favored Tech had to rely on a 11-yard touch-

Stripper Well Survey

Production of crude oil from stripper wells increased last year for the first time since 1947.

The number of stripper wells in the United States also reached its highest level since 1968.

U.S. stripper well production amounted to 411,936,033 barrels, an increase of approximately 26 million barrels over 1973 production.

This is a most encouraging report, proving beyond a doubt that the free market price received for such production is having a beneficial effect on production.

Stripper wells are those marginal wells which produce less than 10 barrels a day. The free market price has made production of these small wells worthwhile. Otherwise, this good oil—badly needed in this time of energy shortage—would be left in place, and the nation's oil production would be just that much shorter.

Results of the annual stripper well survey were released last week by the Interstate Oil Compact Commission and the National Stripper Well Association.

The figures show that stripper well production last year was up 7 per cent from the previous year.

The number of stripper wells increased in 1974 to 366,099, or approximately 3 per cent above the 355,229 in production the previous year.

It is interesting to note that per well production last year was 3.08 barrels a day, according to the IOCC survey. This was a slight increase over production of 2.97 barrels per day per well in 1973.

This figure, incidentally, has increased only three times during the last 10 years, the IOCC reported.

This is the very thing which is needed today, more so than ever before. Every drop of available oil must be recovered. This oil helps meet the demand for domestic crude. But, as has been said many times before, the price received for the crude oil must make it worthwhile to produce.

Price regulations very definitely should be removed from all oil and gas production.

Boys Rejected!

So, the Girl Scouts have voted overwhelmingly not to admit boys into their organization!

And chances are that this suits most boys, just fine.

The Girl Scouts did say, however, that boys will be able to participate in Girl Scout activities when invited.

You may recall that last year the Boy Scouts voted to admit girls aged 14 to 21 to their Explorer Division. This apparently is working out satisfactorily, although we have no idea how many girls have taken advantage of the opportunity.

The Girl Scouts apparently had quite a debate on the subject at their national convention held at Washington, D.C.

Some of the delegates, perhaps depending on age, spoke out strongly for admitting boys into their organization, but the majority ruled, and the decision was "no."

This perhaps is just as well and it is likely that both organizations will get along just fine as is.

A 17-year-old Chicago girl argued that boys will try to dominate girls when they go on camping trips. "They'll try to tell us how to build campfires and stuff," she said.

This very well could be... at this stage of the game!

Strengths, Weaknesses Revealed In Tour

By ROWLAND EVANS

And ROBERT NOVAK

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. — After three days of fumbling and stumbling through the Northeast, Ronald Reagan finally showed here recently why he is political headliner No. 1 at the White House: his ability to entrance regular Republicans whose loyalty to President Ford is waning.

When Reagan began addressing a $100-a-plate Suffolk County Republican dinner here at Long Island's eastern tip, the 2,000 Republican faithful seemed evenly divided between the President and his prospective challenger. After 35 minutes of Reagan rhetoric, the balance appeared to shift toward Reagan. Indeed, if Reagan wins some early primaries, he may collect delegates from this highly conservative county and elsewhere in New York — a state the White House counts as irreversibly locked up for Mr. Ford.

Thus, Reagan's Northeast swing reveals strengths and weaknesses one month ahead of his expected announcement of candidacy. He is still unprepared for the demanding change from banquet speaker to presidential candidate. Nevertheless, he is ideally suited to exploit discontent with Mr. Ford not far beneath the surface among Republicans.

That discontent was obvious as Suffolk County Republicans devoured a lavish pre-dinner buffet at the gaudy Colony Hills Inn. Asked their opinion of Mr. Ford, the typical response was shrugged shoulders and outstretched palms. Through two hours of speechmaking, the name of the Republican President of the United States was never mentioned (partly, to be sure, in deference to Reagan).

Reagan even appeared here irritated state Republican leaders, still closely connected with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. Rockefeller can still deliver New York's key Republicans and convention delegates to the President, but not with the near unanimity with which they backed his own presidential campaign.

In this setting, Reagan repeated his "Let the People Rule" speech first given in Chicago Sept. 26 — proposing turning over to local government $90 billion in federal social welfare. The crowd listened attentively for the full 35 minutes. "That's the first time I've ever seen these guys keep quiet for anybody more than 10 minutes," said one Suffolk County Republican (though substituting wine for the customary whisky on dinner tables, at the urging of Reagan aides, undoubtedly helped). Nor could anybody remember a political speaker here so mobbed for post-dinner autographs.

But this triumph followed a succession of stunningly inept performances by Reagan, revealing mainly organizational deficiencies but also some candidate problems.

To begin with, he learned belatedly he was supposed to open his Northeast trip with the major speech — not just

GOP Seeks Senator From California

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Copley News Service

California Republicans seem uncertain how to prevent the reelection of Sen. John V. Tunney.

At present California is represented in the Senate by two Democrats, and a majority of its representatives in the House are Democrats. The state government is firmly in the hands of young Democrat Jerry Brown and his followers.

Tunney and Sen. Alan Cranston are two of the biggest spenders in Washington. Both are consummate politicians.

Both take positions against the excessive spending of the Ford administration and they list bills which they have opposed.

But they say nothing of the billions of dollars of pork barrel and class legislation they have supported, which has been defeated in committee, in one of the two houses or vetoed by the President. Cranston recently increased the cost of his Senate staff by $200,000 to $1.2 million annually. He constantly has expanded his staff and now has 69 assistants.

A frank appraisal of Tunney and Cranston would list them as lightweights.

But despite all this the Republicans seem unable to settle on a candidate who has a chance to unseat Tunney. He generally is considered the more vulnerable of the two Democrats because he does not have the political machine behind him which was built by Cranston when he was state controller and during his first term in the Senate.

Tunney and Cranston usually are against military expenditures or moves which would give the United States added strength and security. They feel there are far more votes to be gained from the elderly, minority groups, organized labor, the left and solid Democratic Party followers from handout measures they champion.

Cranston is strongly against establishing U.S. naval bases in the Indian Ocean on Diego Garcia, despite our loss of bases throughout the world.

In the beginning both Tunney and Cranston made speeches in Southern California to aerospace groups favoring the supersonic transport. Then, as popular sentiment began to turn against the project because of ecology, they constantly held their dampened fingers up to the political winds to see on which side of the street they should walk.

When it became apparent that the SST would be rejected, they withdrew their support and became ardent advocates of saving the ecology and giving people relief from the "noise and fumes" brought on by the flying of such craft.

Now that there appears to be less resentment against the SST and growing support for the same, Tunney and Cranston are saying that they should not relinquish our lead in commercial aviation and that with proper controls the SST is a legitimate and worthwhile undertaking.

Thus far the only likely candidates as the Republican nominee are Robert Finch, former lieutenant governor of California and secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in the Nixon administration, and U.S. Rep. Alphonzo Bell, who serves people of the coastal area around Santa Monica and Beverly Hills.

For awhile it was thought that Houston Flournoy, former state controller, who campaigned against Gov. Brown last fall, might run. He would have been a strong candidate.

Dr. William Banowsky, president of Pepperdine University and a national Republican committeeman, has been mentioned, too. He is articulate, a splendid speaker, has charisma and is handsome. Otherwise the party seems bereft of anyone who is willing to or capable of making a race against Tunney.

What the Republicans need is some qualified, capable person who has political charisma, such as former Sen. Tom Kuchel possessed. The Republican Party split over Kuchel seven years ago when the conservative wing backed Max Rafferty instead for the GOP senatorial nomination. It was a tragic mistake.

Rafferty won the nomination but took a terrible beating from Cranston in the runoff. Kuchel, despite an over-all high rating, failed to campaign sufficiently in California and he lost because of this and the extreme right-wing support for Rafferty.

THE BIBLE

Can you quote it?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

- The word "door" is used metaphorically as many entrances and is referred to in Scripture more than 100 times. Also, it is used as a synonym for "opportunity." A very comforting thought is that God never closes one door, without opening another. This is taken from Rev. 3:8. Complete: "Behold, I have set before thee an —" 3:8-9
- How does Jesus describe Himself as being "a door" in John 10:7?
- How is rejection to God's kingdom used in connection with a door? Luke 13:25.
- How anxious is God to come into our lives? Rev. 3:20
- "I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than —" Psalm 84

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON
With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — All too often, legislation is shaped more by the hidden pressures than the public debates. Big Business is concentrating pressure on 54 congressmen, for example, to kill the consumer protection bill.

The Senate already has adopted the bill, which would establish a special agency to fight for consumers' rights. The House is expected to give its approval on Wednesday.

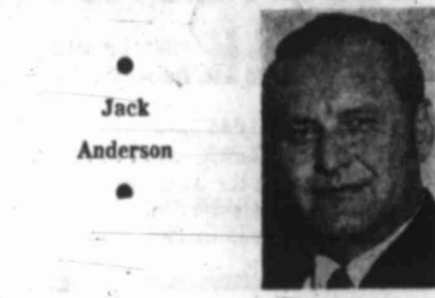

But President Ford has threatened to veto the bill. The real question, therefore, is whether the advocates can muster enough votes on Wednesday to override a veto.

The issues will be debated on the House floor, but the struggle will be decided in the backrooms.

Business groups have sent their pitchmen and pleaders to Capitol Hill to whisper blandishments in congressional ears. To guide them, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has circulated confidential "target lists" of congressmen who may be undecided on the bill.

Of the 190 names on the lists, 54 are marked for a special effort. They are feeling the pressure from such groups as the National Association of Food Chains, National Association of Manufacturers and Business Roundtable, not to mention such individual corporations as General Motors, Ford, Sears and General Electric.

We have obtained the confidential lists and have identified the marked members. Among them are such powers in the House as Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., Republican Whip Robert Michel,

Jack Anderson

R-III, Republican Conference chairman John Anderson, R-Ill., Budget Chairman Brock Adams, D-Wash., and Ways and Means chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore.

Other key congressmen on the lists are William Cohen, R-Me., Silvio Conte, R-Mass., Pierre DuPont, R-Del., Marvin Esch, R-Mich., Ben Gilman, R-N.Y., Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., Abraham Kazen, D-Tex., Gillis Long, D-La., Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., Tom Railsback, R-Ill., Tom Steed, D-Okla., Sam Stratton, D-N.Y., Burt Talcott, R-Calif., Ray Thornton, D-Ark., and John Wydler, R-N.Y.

Our own spot check of congressional offices indicates they are getting heavy pressure, both by mail and in person. The food industry has been particularly active in fighting the consumer protection bill.

Footnote: A spokesman for the food chains confirmed that his group has used one of the confidential lists. A Chamber of Commerce spokesman said his group had compiled the first but not the second list. Our sources insist both lists originated at the Chamber.

ELDERLY VICTIMS: The most pathetic victims of the economic squeeze are the elderly, who have worked hard all their lives for pensions that were supposed to take care of them during their sunset years.

Inflation has stripped these pensions of their value and has left hundreds of thousands of retired workers desperately impoverished. Even more hopeless are those without pensions who must survive on starvation Social Security benefits.

On Capitol Hill, the new House Select Aging Committee is supposed to be solving the problems of the elderly. The committee has spent more than $145,000 this year to seek solutions. Yet it hasn't prepared a single official report nor made a single formal recommendation.

One reason is that Chairman William Randall, D-Mo., has turned the committee payroll into a refuge for witch hunters from the extinct House Internal Security Committee. At least four of the Aging Committee's top staff members, including staff director Bob Horner, are retirees from the Internal Security Committee.

Their experience with geriatrics, except possibly from some elderly communists, is non-existent.

Our inquiries stirred Chairman Randall to rush off an emergency memo to his colleagues on the committee. Warned the chairman:

"Bob Horner, staff director of the Committee on Aging, was interviewed by Bob Owens, a member of the staff of Jack Anderson, the columnist... Owens had in his possession a memorandum written by Mr. Horner to the staff..."

"I think we can anticipate that there may be some critical comments concerning the Select Committee in the Anderson column. As member of the committee, you may receive press or constituent inquiries if there is such publicity. I felt it was my responsibility to notify you in advance of this eventuality..."

Randall insisted in his memo that "I am not in the least concerned about possible criticism, provided the criticism is accurate and constructive. I have no apologies to anyone for my administration to the Committee on Aging."

"As with any new venture of this kind, there are 'growing pains,' readjustments and problems. Progress may at times seem slow. On the other hand, I am confident that our staff is competent. Given a reasonable time, they will produce worthwhile results."

Randall admitted that he had hired the retirees because "they were highly recommended to me by my fellow Missourians, Dick Ichord, the former chairman of the Committee on Internal Security."

Meanwhile, the committee has shown more interest in staging roadshow hearings to get publicity for the members than in seeking serious solutions to the problems that are crushing the elderly.

Footnote: Randall insisted to us that the committee has started moving forward. He also pledged to return as much as half of his authorized funding to the Treasury.

Audience Sound Sets Mood

By ROBIN WELLES
Copley News Service
HOLLYWOOD — There's nothing quite like the mass hysteria at a rock concert, especially during those magic moments, usually in darkness, before a famed act comes on. First, there is the hush as the lights dim, then the nervous laughter and feet scuffling. Then an undercurrent of sound builds, a muted roar that starts low and steadily picks up volume until the first screams are heard. Then it's bedlam—hysteria. It's a hard mood to catch, but the producers of Grand Funk Railroad's latest live album for Capitol, called "Caught in the Act," have done such a remarkable job with the entry that it's hard not to get caught up in it even though you know it's just on your stereo.

The sound builds for nearly three minutes. At first it's kind of annoying as you hear the assorted clinks and scuffings and throat-clearings, but the mood gets you as that undercurrent starts coming alive. When the sound has risen to screaming proportions, it comes the wild, driving bass of Mel Schacher as Grand Funk drives into "Foot Stompin' Music."

Often, audience sound is a nuisance on albums, but not on this one. Grand Funk, which has made a world tour this year, has some of its best things on this two-record album: "Rock & Roll Soul," "Heartbreaker" (more than seven minutes of it), "Black Licorice," "Closer to Home"—all these and "Foot Stompin'" composed by guitarist Mark Farner—plus Mick Jagger's "Gimme Shelter" and more than 12 minutes of "Inside Looking Out."

Despite sneers from the rock critics, Grand Funk, which was put together only six years ago, has shouldered its way into the top ranks of the rockers. Farner & Co. SELL. Is that bad?

Music of a much mellower sound is being produced these days by a rising team of guitar-vocalists billed as Cecilio & Kapono.

Henry Kapono Kaahue, 26, is from Hawaii and Cecilio Rodriguez, of Mexican-Indian heritage, grew up in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Kapono was performing solo at a Walkiki club in 1972 when a friend suggested he team up with Cecilio who at that time was touring with Little Anthony back on the mainland. The team clicked in Hawaii, and possibly could achieve star status also on the mainland. Cecilio & Kapono can be heard on a new Columbia album called "Ehua," which means together.

Another team, Loggins & Messina, is out with a new Columbia album that their fans may or may not like.

It's a strange one consisting of Loggins & Messina versions of songs made famous in previous decades: "Hey, Good Lookin'"—Hank Williams, 1951; "Wake Up Little Susie"—Everly Brothers, 1957; "Honky Tonk Part II"—Bill Doggett, 1961; "Spish Splash"—Bobby Darin, 1958; and so on.

It's dangerous to record a song someone else made famous because anyone who has heard it will remember the way I first heard it, and later versions will suffer by comparison. Even when they are tongue in cheek, as these are.

Judicial Panel Starts Closed Carrillo Hearings

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission was to begin hearing evidence today on charges against suspended District Court Judge O. P. Carrillo of Benavides.

The closed hearing was scheduled for the 13th Court of Civil Appeals Court before District Court Judge James R. Meyers of Austin, a specially appointed master.

The judge will report to a nine-member state commission which will decide whether to recommend Carrillo's ouster. If the commission recommends Carrillo be removed from office, it would be up to the Texas Supreme Court to take that action.

Goldie Hawn Ready To Try It Again

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service
HOLLYWOOD — Goldie Hawn, simply clad in a ratty white corset and tattered fishnet hose, her face bizarrely painted to convert her into a 19th Century Barbary Coast tart, dabled with her chicken noodle soup and raw carrot and answered a very personal question.

"What's this with you and Bill Hudson?" "How did you know about me and Bill?" Goldie parried at first.

Then her face almost split with a smile as she unthinkingly declared, "I'm in love."

Goldie was in Central City, Colo., a 19th Century mining town doubling for San Francisco, where she and George Segal were starring in "The Duchess and the Dirt Water Fox" for writer-director Melvin Frank, and she confessed that her separation from Bill was costing her sorely.

"But he's coming up this weekend," she beamed.

Central City straddles a gulch formed by mountains riddled with played-out mine shafts. Most of its buildings are very old, among them the Belvidere Theater (built in 1882) in which Goldie and George were working.

She was playing a dance hall girl and George a satin-vested swindler in the tradition of some of the most entertaining western pictures ever made.

As Goldie talked about Bill, Baptists Urged To Back Orderly Desegregation

DALLAS (AP) — A social agency of the Baptist General Convention of Texas has urged the church's more than two million Texas members to work for orderly desegregation of housing and schools.

The report from the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission also asks members not to abandon city neighborhoods "in a panic of white flight."

The recommendations came in the commission's annual report which was approved during the annual meeting of the Baptist General Convention of Texas in Dallas last week.

Dr. James Dunn, secretary of the commission, said the suggestions were made in an effort to maintain quality public school education in "this time of educational crisis."

The report also calls on Christians to avoid rallies expressing bigotry and hatred, to work to overcome racism no matter how subtle, to serve as volunteers in public schools and to work through the democratic system to implement change.

Testimony Slated In Corley Trial

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Prosecutors planned to read a statement by Edward E. Corley to a jury here today in their efforts to send him to the electric chair for one of four East Texas slayings in which he is accused.

Attorneys spent last week selecting a 12-member jury to determine whether Corley is guilty of capital murder in the September 1974 shotgun slaying of Vicki Morris, 20, an organist who was kidnaped from a church near Tyler.

District Court Judge C. C. Anderson scheduled testimony to begin today.

Rocky Undecided On '76 Candidacy

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller says he hasn't made up his mind yet about whether he wants to be elected to a full term. In an appearance on ABC's "Issues and Answers" on Sunday, Rockefeller said he will not fight any attempt to replace him as vice president on the GOP's 1976 ballot.

"I'm not a candidate," Rockefeller said. "I haven't even committed myself as to whether I'm available. Fight for the job? No. If you're not a candidate, you don't fight."

New 'Cowboy' Ballet Will Have Premiere In Houston

Houston — A new ballet with its roots in the West Texas high plains will be premiered by the Houston Ballet this week.

The ballet is "Charlie Rutlage: A Cowboy Dreams of Heaven," and it will have performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Jones Hall for the Performing Arts in downtown Houston.

The trio of performances, which also will feature famed dancer Edward Villella in George Balanchine's "Prodigal Son," as well as two other ballet works, make up the second repertory program of the Houston Ballet's 1975-76 season, a season which was launched last month with world premiere performances of a new ballet suite titled "Texas Trilogy."

Recital Slated At Texas Tech

LUBBOCK — Acclaimed young pianist Francisco Aybar will be heard in recital Friday night in the Texas Tech University Center ballroom.

Performance time is 8 p.m. Aybar has been called "one of those rare pianists who, from first note to last, gives off a sense of musical ease and security — he gives the feeling that he is warmly fond of the music he plays and understands it completely."

Born in the Dominican Republic, Aybar was educated in the U.S., holding degrees from Fordham University and the Manhattan School of Music in New York City. Following his 1969 debut performance in Carnegie Hall, he was appointed affiliate artist at the University of Denver under a grant from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

In 1971 he received a grant from the Martha Baird Rockefeller Fund for Music, enabling him to make his European debut with a series of performances in Berlin, Vienna, Amsterdam, Oslo and London. He has given three recitals in Alice Tully Hall of New York's Juilliard School.

Tickets for the Friday recital here are $2.25 for the general public, $1.50 for Tech faculty, staff members and area students, and 75 cents for Tech students holding current ID cards.

choreographed by James Clouser, acting artistic director of the Houston Ballet. It is based on an anonymous poem written by one cowpoke about another while they were working on the vast XIT Ranch spread in the Texas Panhandle back in the early 1900s. The poem was put into rousing folk ballad form in about 1920 by American composer Charles Ives. Clouser utilized both poem and ballad to create a ballet recounting the people who most influenced Charlie Rutlage's life. The new production here has been made possible through grants from the Mobil Foundation Inc., and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Artist Hib Sabin, now a resident of Austin, has created the unusual stage setting for the ballet, utilizing movable and manipulable lifesize figures of the "horse" which plays a recurring theme and the three cowpokes "caricatures." Villella, acclaimed star of the New York City Ballet returns to Houston in an encore of Balanchine's 1929 "Prodigal Son," originally staged by Frederic Franklin to music by Sergei Prokofiev. II

Piano Students Give Recital

A recent recital by piano students of Mrs. Hans Roweck featured duet and trio selections.

Recitalists were Penny Sutcliffe, Brenda Johns, Eric and Sean Norton, Angela Glossop, Melinda Guidry, Blake and Brent Batte, Alan Collins, Chris Sullivan, Robby Glossop, Cindy Linton, LaDonna Callahan, Joan and Janelle Thummel, Tommy Nunez, Doug Daehling, Debbie Jones, Karen McNutt, Marcia Norton, Gina Adams, Karen Kuykendall, Maria Francis, Toni Anthony, Nica Foreman, Debbie Hunter, Jimmy O'Neill, Lori Westbrook, John Heard, Kathy Davis, Susan Sneed, Susan Peek, Judi Ottman, Lisa Hildreth, Darci Daehling, Tammy James, Susan Kysar, Teresa and Morgan Brown.

was the last ballet to be presented by the famed Diaghilev for the Ballet Russe. Also programmed for the trio of concerts are "The Gershwin Songbook" and Balanchine's "Waltz and Variations."

"Songbook," choreographed by Clouser, premiered here last season. The new production will feature Barbara Pontecorvo, a principal dancer with Houston Ballet, and five male members of the company dancing to nine popular Gershwin works (including "Somebody Loves Me" and "I Got Rhythm").

"Waltz and Variations" contains some of Russian composer Alexander Glazounov's finest ballet music from his "Raymonda."

'Invisible Ink Caper' Stuns National Observer Editor

By BRYCE NELSON
The Los Angeles Times
CHICAGO — Henry Gemmill, editor of the National Observer, is "stunned and angry" about what he calls "the invisible ink caper."

LOOKING FOR OPERATOR — The City of Los Angeles is looking for an operator to program and operate its new Triforium, a six-story musical light tower with rainbow-colored prisms. The Triforium will have its debut in December, when the multi-million-dollar mall is dedicated. (AP Wirephoto.)

own newspaper and many other publications have been using "confidential questionnaires" coded with members in invisible ink. These could be used to identify the individual respondents.

The questionnaires, often sent to readers by research firms acting for the publications, may ask about such personal matters as income and drinking habits. Because the reader gives neither his name or address, he presumably answers with the assumption that his anonymity will be protected.

Gemmill calls it "a piece of slick trickery."

His newspaper, the National Observer, is a respected weekly published by Dow Jones and Co. Inc., in Silver Spring, Md.

Other publications that told the Observer that they used the invisible coding technique include other Dow Jones publications — the Wall St. Journal and Barron's — plus the Reader's Digest, Time, Fortune, the Saturday Review, Scientific American and New York magazine. A Newsweek spokesman told the Observer that Newsweek had used invisible coding until "we had a similar flap back in 1969."

U.S. News and World Report uses a visible printed code at the bottom of the last page of a questionnaire, the Observer said.

Speaking of invisible coding, a spokesman for Forbes Magazine told the Observer, "As far as I'm concerned, it's a fairly standard operating procedure."

A Business Week spokesman told the National Observer, "If you're smart, there are other ways of doing it."

The Observer found some of the other ways — printing the code under the flap of the return envelope, printing it under the postage stamp or cutting the questionnaire paper in special ways to identify the person responding.

Paul Erdos, the president of Erdos and Morgan, a research firm that handles questionnaires for Dow Jones publications, told that newspaper that invisible coding was "an accepted practice being done for all publications."

Erdos and Morgan said that the purpose of the keyed mailing was to find out who had not answered the questionnaires so that a second mailing could be sent to them.

Arthur J. Morgan, executive vice president of Erdos and Morgan, told the Observer "invisible keys are needed because many people do not answer visibly keyed sheets. We never claim the questionnaires are anonymous; we do state that all individual information is confidential, and we strictly adhere to this statement."

Questionnaires are often used by publications to provide information that is helpful to their advertising and circulation department. The information may, for example, allow an advertising director to present a profile of a publication's readers to prospective advertisers.

Gemmill said the National Observer's eight-page questionnaire included questions on such items as total household income; net worth, including securities, real estate, cars and jewelry; travel plans; liquor and smoking preferences, and plans to buy appliances and insurance.

The practice of invisible coding, which seems little known to the press and public, might have remained obscure if an alert reader had not protested to Gemmill after receiving a questionnaire from the Observer.

James Weinman, a professor of optics at the University of Wisconsin, was in his laboratory one evening, thinking that the Observer questionnaire in his anybody used it," said Gemmill pocket "asked me an awful lot in a telephone interview.

Researchers Say High Dose Of Artificial Vitamin A May Prevent Some Cancers

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — High doses of artificial vitamin A may help prevent cancers caused by environmental substances and some forms of lung cancer, researchers say.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists said that based on preliminary data from animal testing, it also appears that Vitamin A deficiency may increase the risk of colon cancer.

Dr. Paul M. Newberne, professor of nutritional pathology, said in an interview that vitamin A's role in these cases appears connected to its effect on epithelium, the layer of membrane tissue covering most internal organs and surfaces and comprising part of the outer skin.

"Vitamin A or its analogue (artificial substitute) are essential to maintenance of normal epithelium," Newberne said, "if it does not have enough vitamin A, it can't function as it should."

Newberne warned that vitamin A is toxic in large quantities and builds up in the body with high doses. There is no evidence that taking extra vitamin A in its available forms has any value in preventing cancer, he emphasized.

He said a person receives a normal amount of vitamin-A through a balanced diet which includes yellow and dark green vegetables and liver products. However, he estimated that one of every four Americans has deficiencies in the vitamin.

Newberne said the "very promising" studies now being conducted with animals on preventing lung cancer use high doses of vitamin A substitutes which are nontoxic, but still experimental.

Analogues are synthesized in chemical laboratories and have a slightly different molecular structure than the natural vitamin, he said.

Because of results with rats, Newberne said he and his colleagues, Drs. Adrienne E. Rogers and George Wolf, are beginning a study of vitamin A deficiency and human cancer of the colon, the section of the large intestine extending to the rectum.

A study showed that three out of 48 rats fed normal amounts of vitamin A got cancer of the colon. However, 31 of 108 rats

High-Powered Help Cleaning Up Post

By DON SHANNON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — There's been a new pusher "manning" one of the brooms in the pressroom of the Washington Post lately — Publisher Katharine Graham. Up on the sixth floor, Editor Benjamin Bradlee takes classified ads on the phone and down in the mailroom, $45,000-a-year vice presidents toss 50-pound bundles of newspapers on to the conveyor belts that load delivery trucks. Together, they have kept the Post in business ever since pressmen went on strike Oct. 1 and inflicted heavy damages on the presses as they left.

Mrs. Graham confessed that she had never realized the importance of cleaning up the scraps of newsprint that accumulate around presses.

"It has to be done, so I did it," she explained on a night off Thursday when she appeared at Ohr-Kodesh synagogue in suburban Maryland to accept a "Profiles in Courage" award from the B'nai B'rith. The award honored her newspaper's role in the investigation of Watergate rather than the resistance to the strike, but pressmen staged a brief demonstration as she entered the building.

Friday morning, Bradlee showed a visitor where he has been filling a place in the classified ad phone room.

"I'm Miss Drake," he said, pointing to the desk, but declining to show off his new found skill.

"What kills me is that after you take down the copy and read it back, the caller says 'Gee, you got it right,'" Bradlee said.
