

Texans Flock To Defense Of Old Constitution

By JIM BRIGANCE Associated Press Writer Armies of Texans defended their century-old constitution Tuesday, beating back with cannonades of votes costly and heated efforts to revise the aged document.

Unquestionably voters smashed the proposed constitutional revision with broad sides ranging from 5-1 opposition in rural areas to 2-1 in metropolitan districts.

It was a balloon launched in part by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who conceded early in evening vote counting that the issue was going down in flames.

The voters of Texas have rejected five years of effort directed toward constitutional revision by as decisive a margin as anyone could imagine," Hobby said. "It was a good fight but we lost."

With 1,111,712 of the expected 1.2 million statewide votes counted, the measure was down by a 3-1 margin. Although rural area voters voted against the constitution proposal in greater numbers, the opposition was evident in metropolitan and rural areas alike from the Gulf Coast to the northern blackland prairies, from the desert west to forested eastern sections of the state.

These are the final returns today from the Texas Election Bureau with 254 of 254 counties reporting, 250 complete: Prop. 1 (legislative-executive) — for 300,466, against 863,090.

Mississippi Democrat Wins Race

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF Associated Press Writer Democrat Cliff Finch was elected governor of Mississippi by overcoming the state's strongest Republican challenge this century and Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll survived an anti-busing backlash threat in off-year elections.

Women were elected lieutenant governors in both states.

With 1,900 of 2,133 Mississippi precincts counted in unofficial returns, Finch had 51.3 per cent of the votes, leading Republican Gil Carmichael 318,211 to 294,553.

Black independent Henry Kirksey of Jackson trailed with 16,951.

Stunning Setback The voters in both Kentucky and Mississippi picked women as lieutenant governors Tuesday. But the women's rights cause suffered a stunning setback when voters in New Jersey and New York rejected state versions of the federal Equal Rights Amendment.

With New York's fiscal problems on the minds of voters, a number of large bond issues lost, including a record $4.5 billion package in Ohio, $922 million in New Jersey and $250 million in New York.

The Democrats kept legislative control in four states: Kentucky, Mississippi, New Jersey and Virginia.

As is usual the year before a presidential election, Tuesday's widely scattered contests produced mixed results. There were no national trends and few surprises.

Major Emphasis The Republicans had placed their major emphasis on Mississippi. Carmichael, a 48-year-old Meridian businessman, ran a strong race there against Sen. James O. Eastland in 1972.

Finch, a Batesville attorney, had been the surprise winner of two rounds of Democratic primaries.

The state's lieutenant governor contest was more one-sided as Democrat Evelyn Gandy, 55, now insurance commissioner, whipped Republican Mayor Bill Patrick of Laurel.

In Kentucky, Democrat Carroll easily won a full four-year term in the post he inherited when his predecessor, Wendell Ford, went to the U.S. Senate.

The 44-year-old Carroll, a Paducah attorney and racial moderate, piled up big margins in predominantly Democratic rural areas and held down Republican Robert Gable's expected big margins in the suburbs surrounding Louisville.

Backlash Not Evident Both candidates had deplored the court-ordered busing that rocked that city this fall. But the anti-incumbent backlash feared by Carroll supporters never materialized.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Thelma Stovall, 56, now secretary of state, defeated her male Republican opponent, businessman Shirley Palther-Ball.

Early Returns Told Story Of Overwhelming Defeat

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

There wasn't any doubt from the first. The proposed new Texas constitution was doomed for defeat as the early returns came in, and the margin grew greater, as each county, both urban and rural, reported.

Political observers said many voters feared the new constitution could lead to a state income tax and put too much power in the hands of the legislators and this is what turned them off.

The eight propositions were beaten by about a 3-1 margin in a far heavier turnout than predicted.

The rural vote was 5-1 against; the city vote 3-1 and the metropolitan vote, including the population centers of Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Austin, was 2-1.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, one of the few top state officials who actively opposed the changes, said Tuesday night. "The people of Texas have shown their faith in the constitution that has served them well in the past and will serve them well in the future."

"I am pleased with the outcome of today's election. But I think all Texans should understand one thing: This election was not a test of personalities or individuals. There were no winners nor losers; no heroes nor failures. Men and women of intelligence and good will differed over each proposition; but there were honest differences of opinion."

Li. Gov. Bill Hobby, a strong backer of the new constitution, said, "The voters of Texas have rejected five years of effort directed toward constitutional revision by as decisive margin as anyone could imagine. It was a good fight, but we lost."

A voter in Central Texas said, "I was just scared of what might happen if we let the legislature do what they wanted. I voted against all eight of those changes and I told everybody I knew to do the same."

That feeling apparently embraced all of Texas, where voters decided to stay with a constitution written 99 years ago rather than take a chance on something new.

In the past there has been a vast difference in how West Texans and East Texans voted and how the big cities and the country voters stood on an issue. That wasn't the case this time around.

It was east and west and north and south and metropolitan and rural and most were voting "no."

House Speaker Bill Clayton said, "I doubt that this will be a serious issue in the next legislature unless there is a groundswell from the citizenry. Sooner or later it will come up again, but it will be a movement by the people when it comes. . . I would have hoped we would have had a new constitution by Wednesday morning, but I abide by their decision. The voter turnout was disappointing, but the margins reflect the feeling of Texas."

Only two of Texas' 254 counties supported the constitutional changes — El Paso by a narrow margin and Duval, where political trouble is a way of life, by about a 2-1 margin.

Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, a prominent campaigner against the new document, said, "If there is a lesson we should have learned from this election it is that the people have a right to impose restraints upon their government and they still want to do so. The people of Texas do not want a full-time legislature or a little Congress."

Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler, chairman of the Citizens to Preserve the Texas Constitution, said, "It is indeed gratifying that the voters of Texas share my belief that our present constitution is far superior to the one produced by the legislature."

The election turnout on a sunny and cool fall day was boosted by a Houston city election that brought out some 45 per cent of the registered voters. While the residents of Texas' largest city were picking their favorite candidate for mayor, they also were turning thumbs down on the constitutional changes.

It was the same out in little Loving County in far West Texas, where the vote was 44 against and 2 in favor.

"THE INDWELLING OF THE HOLY SPIRIT"

A most declarative statement is made by the Apostle Paul when he said, "But ye are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. But if any man have not the Spirit of God he is none of his." [Ro.8:9] The Spirit of God and the child of God dwell in the same house, and suffice it to say that there is little room for one to question such an affirmation. (see Ro.8:10,11; 1 Co. 6:19,20; 1 Co. 3:16,17)

The question is not DOES the Holy Spirit dwell in the Christian. The Bible says He does! The question of concern is, HOW does He dwell in the saint? Does the Holy Spirit dwell in the Christian independently of the word?

As I write this article I am alive. My spirit dwells in me. If you should ask me how I know, I could not fully explain, but there are certain conditions for the abode of my spirit in my mortal body. When I die my spirit no longer lives within me. Likewise, there are certain conditions upon which the Spirit of God dwells in me.

To be cognizant of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is not based on physical manifestations. Neither is His presence known by "feelings," or a "better-felt than explained" experience. The Christian knows that the Holy Spirit dwells in him the same way he knows that Christ dwells in him and just as he knows that he has received the remission of sins. This is by faith. Hear Paul again: "that we might receive the promise of the Spirit by faith." (Ga.3:14) The same writer declared that "faith comes by hearing and hearing by the word of God." (Ro.10:17)

In Ephesians 5:18 we are told to, "Be filled with the Spirit." The same writer admonishes us to, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly." (Co.3:16) To be filled with the Spirit is, therefore, to have the Word of Christ dwelling in me richly."

Ladies and gentlemen, God speaks to every man today. He does so by the Holy Spirit, and in such a way that man cannot be confused. The Holy Spirit moves the mind and convicts the soul of man today, but not independent of the Word. The GOSPEL of Jesus Christ is God's POWER to save. When man hears and obeys the gospel he hears and obeys the Spirit of God. Hence when one is saved from sins and becomes a child of God he is filled with the Spirit when he is filled with God's Divine Revelation."

Revisionists Don't Know Why Decade-Long Effort Fizzled Out

By GARTH JONES
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Almost a decade of efforts to extensively revise Texas' much-amended constitution went down the drain Tuesday, and the revisionists don't know why.

But they agree it probably will be a long time before constitution revision will again stir public sentiment as it did this year.

"I don't expect to see a whole new constitution on the ballot again in my lifetime," said one grieving state official.

Some revision efforts may be made in the 1977 legislature but the big drive is gone.

"After a massive reaction like this we must conclude that a number of factors brought it about," said Atty. Gen. John Hill, one of the most active campaigners. "Until we know what these factors are, and we don't now, I don't think we can make a fair assessment."

"I hope this vote will convince the legislature that any changes in our basic constitutional system should be made by the orderly process of

Houston Mayor Forced Into Runoff

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Fred Hofheinz, seeking a second two-year term, will face former Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe in a Dec. 2 runoff election.

Hofheinz, son of a former mayor, led from the start Tuesday and gradually increased his margin but failed to gather the 50 per cent plus majority needed to avoid a runoff in the election that attracted 44 per cent of the city's nearly 600,000 eligible voters.

Dick Gottlieb, 51, a former city councilman who narrowly lost to Hofheinz in a runoff two years ago, ran third. Two other minor candidates trailed far behind.

Houston voters joined others in Harris County to defeat the proposed new state constitution by nearly a 3-1 margin.

Seven of eight city councilmen were re-elected and the eighth place will be decided by a runoff. Three incumbents had no opposition.

Pete Hendrickson says his idea is working.

Hendrickson offers a $10 a week raise.

But, Heaven help those who fall off the wagon. They lose the raise — and an additional $10 a week.

IRS Chief Lashes Out At Probers

By GAYLORD SHAW, Revenue Service Commissioner
The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — Internal is being maligned by "a small goon squad of congressional investigators" and demanded an impartial inquiry of "this scurrilous batch of dung."

But Alexander said in an exclusive interview with The Los Angeles Times Monday that he would not step aside temporarily while such an inquiry was under way because "that's exactly what the purveyors of these lies would like to have happen ... these creeps."

The commissioner's bristling comments came in response to questions about a continuing string of allegations that he has misused his power as the nation's chief tax collector.

Meanwhile, a congressional subcommittee delving into Alexander's actions questioned behind closed doors an IRS agent and an undercover informant who spearheaded a Caribbean tax haven investigation suspended for 10 weeks by IRS headquarters.

The major tax probe, known variously as Operation Tradewinds and Project Haven, is aimed at cracking down on tax evasion schemes involving secret bank accounts in the Bahamas and elsewhere by some wealthy businessmen and some organized crime elements.

It was halted in August, but was partially resumed a week ago when 250 investigative leads were distributed to IRS field offices. IRS officials said another 125 leads were sent to the field Tuesday.

Published reports that investigators had found a possible link between Alexander's former Cincinnati law firm and a Nassau bank suspected of aiding the tax haven schemes were among the items that triggered Alexander's verbal attack on congressional probers.

Both the commissioner and his former law partners have denied any connection with the Bahamian bank, and Alexander declared in the interview, "I'm tired of all these stinking allegations."

The storm surrounding Alexander has been building for months.

Early this year, amid reports that IRS agents were spying on the drinking and sex habits of prominent Florida taxpayers, the commissioner suspended all IRS intelligence-gathering operations. He later allowed them to resume, but only under strict controls on use of informants and other investigative techniques.

Some IRS special agents complained that Alexander's edicts had wrecked their attempts to crack down on organized crime and wealthy tax evaders.

Especially galling to these agents was an Alexander order that they disclose to their superiors the names of their informants. Six agents have filed suit in federal court in Brooklyn, N.Y., to block this order.

In August, Alexander's aides suspended the decade-old Tradewinds-Haven program, saying they had learned some of the evidence was obtained by pilfering the briefcase of a Bahamian bank official while he was with a woman companion arranged for by an IRS informant.

Alexander's critics charged, however, that the commissioner was acting to protect his wealthy friends — an allegation Alexander called "a damn lie."

Although the IRS has yet to make a final ruling on whether it can use evidence obtained in the so-called "briefcase incident," the agency has resumed distribution of investigative leads gathered in other phases of the Tradewinds-Haven operation.

Two key figures in the incident, IRS Special Agent Richard Jaffe of Miami and an IRS confidential informant identified only as TW-24, testified for more than four hours Tuesday before the Rosenthal subcommittee.

DEAR ABBY

Pill Hard To Take

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old bachelor. For the last year I've been going with a very pretty, 23-year-old school teacher. I have asked her to marry me, but she says she is not in any hurry to get married.

She told me that she has been taking birth control pills for the last four years "in case she gets raped."

"We have never been intimate. Don't get me wrong. I'm no angel. I've tried, but she won't let me. She claims she is still a virgin. As far as I know, she doesn't date anyone else. How do you figure this pill business?"—LEARY

DEAR LEARY: It's possible, of course. But I find it a little hard to swallow.

DEAR ABBY: With Christmas approaching, my in-laws have already started to buy presents for our son (their only grandchild), which presents a problem.

Even though they know that we bought him a small tricycle for his third birthday last month, they have already bought him a racing car and a firetruck to drive. In addition to that, they've bought him a sled, a desk and chair set, an elaborate aquarium and a cowboy outfit, complete with a wooden "horse" to ride. And they are still buying!

We know they enjoy shopping for their only grandson, but showering him with presents creates problems. Our gifts and the gifts of the other grandparents who can't afford much will look like nothing. Also, our son will not be able to appreciate anything.

Abby, do we have the right to limit the amount of gifts my husband's parents give our child?

My husband says we shouldn't deprive them of this pleasure. I disagree.—AWAITING WORD

DEAR AWAITING: I vote with you. If your parents want to indulge the child, suggest that they buy him one gift and start a savings account for him. The boy may not appreciate it now, but he will when it's time to go to college.

MOBIL WIVES' SHOW — Mrs. William Henry, left, and Mrs. George Eng, right, will be models for the fashion show to be held by Mobil Wives Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Midland Country Club. Mrs. Phil Terry, center, is a club member. Yvonne's will furnish the clothes, and Linda's Place will provide decorations. Mobil wives and guests are invited. Reservations should be made by Thursday by dialing 694-3287 or 694-4678.

It is also still used as a fixative for perfume.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise: Good Day! I wanted to drop you a line and tell you about a time-saving idea.

While making throw pillows for our sofa, I was down to the filling with shredded foam parts.

I started with two handfuls and decided that there had to be a better way.

I took an old pair of pantyhose and cut out the legs and crotch. Then I pinned the remaining part around the edge of the pillow opening, putting about one inch inside the pillow.

I then took a clean plastic trash can about two feet tall and put the pillow inside.

I stretched the top of the pantyhose around the top of the trash can.

Now, just pour and stuff. You can always take it off and test for fullness, then put it back.

It sure saves a lot of time, and with a 10-week-old baby, I need to save all I can.

Dona Wicker

Dona, I have stuffed a lot of things in my life and it always was a hilarious mess.

If I had only known this I could have saved a lot of foam that ended up everywhere but in the pillow.

That really is another good use of those multi-purpose pantyhose. What were they originally for?

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I had cataract surgery on both eyes and had so much trouble threading the sewing machine as my glasses are ground to look straight ahead.

One day I had the needle out of the machine and threaded it before putting it back.

It was so simple, I wonder why I didn't think of it sooner! Now I take the needle out, thread it and replace it.

Nell Altman

Dear Heloise: Do you know how to open a ketchup bottle and have the ketchup come right out without having to beat the bottle to death?

Before you take the cap off, simply give the bottle a good shake with the neck down.

Now open the bottle and the ketchup is right there.

Midland Church Women Couple Honored To Celebrate World Event At Dinner Party

Church Women United in Midland Friday will celebrate World Community Day at 10:30 a.m. in Hope Lutheran Church. On this day, thousands of church women will gather in their local communities to commit themselves to work toward a global society in which all persons have an opportunity to realize their aspirations in "One Community Under God."

A year ago, women from every state and many nations came together in the triennial Ecumenical Assembly of Church Women United to consider the enormous problems of today's world, to identify the barriers which prevent a majority of the earth's people from living freely and fully, and to rededicate themselves as a body, to work for a global society based on human values instead of economic ambition.

Midland Woman On Zone Program

PLAINS — Mrs. J. Keith Somerville of Midland, director of District I of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., will participate on the program at the 20th annual Central Zone Meeting of District I Thursday in the Yoakum County Park Party House.

Members of the Plain Dirt Gardeners Garden Club will be hostesses.

Mrs. W. M. Overton, Central Zone chairman, will preside at the general session.

Try Sponge
There are always bits of thread left on the floor after sewing. These may quickly be picked up with a damp sponge.

They realized that today's human society is inseparably interwoven and that the massive problems of the world — hunger, poverty, war and depletion and misuse of natural resources and sources of energy, the destruction of the environment and the deprivation of human rights — can best be approached as problems confronting the entire global village.

The program at Hope Lutheran will be led by Mrs. Estelle Hill, Mrs. Kay Burrall, Mrs. Sharon Shaw and Mrs. Judy Kible. Special guest speaker will be Elmer E. Burrall, pastor of Hope Lutheran Church. He will present a series of slides concerning world hunger. Rev. Burrall and his wife served on the mission field in India for 15 years. The presentation will include slides collected from India and other parts of the world.

A salad luncheon will follow the program at 12 noon.

All women of the community are invited to join CWU, participate in the World Community Day program and stay for the luncheon.

A nursery will be provided. Children should bring a sack lunch.

Rumsfeld Has Reputation As Man With Ambition

By RUDY-ABRAMSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — To the surprise of no one at the White House, Donald H. Rumsfeld emerged Monday as the chief personal beneficiary of the upheaval in the Ford administration.

Picked by the President to succeed James R. Schlesinger, the ousted secretary of Defense, Rumsfeld for the last year has controlled the Ford White House as systematically as H.R. (Bob) Halderman ran the Nixon staff.

His influence has extended from operation of the White House dining room to the design of economic policy and the plotting of presidential campaign strategy. He has been the chief power broker, the President's trouble shooter, and ranking adviser.

With details of the sudden shakeup still being pieced together, some knowledgeable administration sources quickly judged the ouster of Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby to be Rumsfeld-inspired.

Almost from the day Rumsfeld arrived to become Ford's staff coordinator, avoiding the Nixon administration label "chief of staff," it has been accepted by administration sources that he wished to be secretary of defense or secretary of state, at least.

A political associate, who has known Rumsfeld from his days as a congressional aide in 1968 and 1969, has been convinced for years that Rumsfeld harbors ambitions to be president.

"HE IS not a man without principles," the associate said. "But I distrust his ruthless ambition. He wants to be president. He can smell it, and there's no way for him to get there."

Rumsfeld's most ardent admirers, like acquaintances of his ambition, characterize him as an achiever, ever looking toward new challenges — and opportunities.

Rumsfeld is unorthodox for a man who has enjoyed a political career that has taken him from congressman to presidential counselor and executive agency head, to ambassador, and director of the White House staff.

He has a pre-occupation with management and management technique, seemingly viewing problems as an engineer or military officer rather than a politician. Despite his 18 years in Washington, it is difficult to find an associate who feels that he knows Rumsfeld well.

"I have worked very closely with him for seven months," a senior White House official said. "I don't think I know him, and I have absolutely no idea what he thinks of me. He is a very, very controlled man — far more than I am, far more than I ever want to be."

Replacing Gen. Alexander Haig as head of the White House staff, Rumsfeld eliminated many of the titles that proliferated in the Nixon administration, organized the President's schedule almost into a daily ritual, wrote a code of ethics for White House staff members, and organized the Presidential staff so each senior staff member had a deputy who was interchangeable with him.

According to White House sources, Rumsfeld has been the dominant voice in administration personnel decisions. His associates are spread throughout the top ranks of the administration from the White House to the Pentagon.

He is credited with a large role in bringing Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., and Atty. Gen Edward H. Levi into the administration.

SHORTLY AFTER his arrival at the White House, Rumsfeld, through his staff reorganization, limited the influence of presidential counselor and long-time Ford friend Robert T. Hartmann, who had been Ford's vice presidential chief of staff.

Rumsfeld brought his one-time congressional colleague Howard H. (Bo) Callaway aboard as director of the President's campaign committee, and personally assumed the responsibility for liaison work between the campaign and the White House.

With Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, Rumsfeld shares the distinction of being an official member of the administration as well as the "kitchen cabinet" which engineered the transition of the presidency from the Nixon to the Ford administration.

Outwardly, Rumsfeld has portrayed himself as an administrator first and foremost, whose interest has been to get all points of view and options before the President when decisions are pending.

White House and congressional sources give Rumsfeld far more credit than he gives himself for influencing administration policy and programs.

He was said to have been a leader in putting together the administration proposal to link a $28 billion tax cut to a congressional commitment to hold down government spending.

Another source said Rumsfeld — with press secretary Ron Nessen and others — substantially rewrote Ford's state of the union speech early this year after it had been completed by White House speech writers.

He and Kissinger differed over Ford's state of the world message, which came just before the collapse of South Vietnam. Rumsfeld reportedly worked on the speech for hours only to have Kissinger get the draft and make it half an hour longer. The President apparently decided on the Kissinger version.

There have been, throughout the months of the Ford administration, suspicions that Rumsfeld and Kissinger have had continuing disagreements arising from Kissinger's free-wheeling style and Rumsfeld's determination to structure White House operations.

EVERY TIME reports have come out of the White House that Kissinger's foreign policy role would be diminished, Rumsfeld has denied involvement.

There were reports earlier this year, that Rumsfeld wanted Treasury Secretary William Simon out of the administration, and some Simon associates still believe Rumsfeld was behind stories of administration unhappiness with him.

There have been further rumors that Rumsfeld sought to undercut Vice President Rockefeller.

His disagreements with Hartmann are understood to have continued since Hartmann's office was essentially left out of a campaign role. In the latest incident, the task of writing the President's speech on his tax cut proposal, was turned over to a Treasury Department aide rather than to Hartmann's speech writing staff. The initial draft of the Ford's speech to the National Press club on the New York City financial crisis was also drafted at the Treasury Department.

Long-time friends of Ford's are not surprised that Rumsfeld was able to win at bureaucratic in-fighting at the White House. He began proving himself a master at that not long after his arrival in Washington as a 30-year-old congressman from Chicago's North Shore.

Frustrated at the seniority system in the House, Rumsfeld began to disagree with Rep. Leslie C. Arends (R-Ill.), the dean of the Illinois delegation.

"Rummy was very young, from a safe district, and extremely ambitious," said a former aide to an Illinois House member. "He has his own ideas about what he wanted and when he wanted it. But Les Arends favored members with seniority, and he didn't look with favor upon Mr. Rumsfeld."

In 1965, three years after his first election, Rumsfeld joined a movement led by Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Wis.) and others, which ousted Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.) as House minority leader and installed Rep. Gerald R. Ford (R-Mich.) in his place. Rumsfeld also supported an unsuccessful effort to replace Arends as minority whip.

FORD'S LOYALTIES to the inner circle that helped him to the minority leadership have been unwavering.

When Richard M. Nixon began moving in 1969 to close down the Johnson administration's "war on poverty," Rumsfeld was the choice for the job.

Washington lobbyist Bryce Harlow, a friend and adviser to both Mr. Nixon and Ford, recruited Rumsfeld out of Congress.

Rumsfeld was the choice, Harlow said, because he was "rough and ready, willing to tangle."

"He was the kind of guy who would walk on a blue flame to get a job done," Harlow said. Subsequently, Rumsfeld became a White House counselor, and later head of Nixon's Cost of Living Council.

When Watergate finally brought an end to the Nixon administration, Rumsfeld was off in Brussels as the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

When he heard of Nixon's resignation, he was on vacation in the south of France but rushed to Washington to help his friend Gerald Ford take over from his friend Richard Nixon.

One of Rumsfeld's non-admirers, a Republican on Capitol Hill, looked with some disdain on Rumsfeld's crossing of the political minefields of the Nixon years and his elevation to the top of the Ford administration.

"There isn't anything you can point to," he said, "and say Rumsfeld did this or Rumsfeld did that. He doesn't have anything that he can point to politically."

BESIDES ALL his other duties for Ford, Rumsfeld has taken an active role in congressional liaison, an area where the Ford administration continues to have troubles despite the President's quarter of a century in Congress.

There is particular disenchantment in the Senate where there is an acute awareness that Ford and his closest advisers are more House-oriented.

"When there's trouble, Rumsfeld calls to put out the fire," said a Senate aide. "But they like to do everything down there at the White House. The Nixon administration had a total disdain for Congress, and part of that still exists. In handling appointments, for example, they still lack basic, fundamental courtesies."

In an interview while he was Vice President, Ford suggested he might not, if President, keep Schlesinger in the Cabinet because he doubted Schlesinger's ability to deal with Congress.

And some observers of the shakeup Monday attributed part of Schlesinger's downfall to budget problems on Capitol Hill.

Sources further suggested that one of the reasons the President picked Rumsfeld for the Pentagon was to improve relations between the Defense Department and Congress.

Rumsfeld acquaintances, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said, however, that William E. Colby, who was fired as CIA director a few minutes before Schlesinger was relieved as Defense Secretary, will continue to run the intelligence agency until George Bush is confirmed to succeed him.

Certainly from the boss, grasping for the next rung on the ladder, believe he wanted a Cabinet job to give him more visibility and a better base for re-entering politics in his own right.

By going to the Pentagon now, he also left another high risk job with generally good marks.

Fromme Fires Attorney After Plea Turned Down

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Lynette Fromme, denied permission to change her plea from innocent to no contest, will argue her own case against the charge that she tried to kill President Ford.

Miss Fromme fired her court-appointed co-counsel Tuesday on the first day of her trial after he, the prosecutor and U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride refused to accept the plea switch.

MacBride then told the 27-year-old Manson devotee that she would have to question witnesses herself and make her own opening and closing arguments with a "stand-by attorney" to advise her.

"I think she's foolish to try to represent herself," MacBride told Miss Fromme's co-counsel, John Virga. "But if she wants to do this it is certainly within her rights."

Miss Fromme is accused of attempting to assassinate Ford as he walked to the state Capitol Sept. 5. Officers say they took a loaded .45-caliber pistol away from her after she pointed it at the President from about two feet away.

She is the first person to be charged and tried under a 1965 federal law against attempted murder of a president. The law was passed after the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy. If convicted, she could be sentenced to life in prison.

MacBride ruled at a pretrial hearing that Miss Fromme

Quiet Night Rarity For Police

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — It really happened one night recently in Walnut Creek. The police reported that for the first time in months the midnight to 8 a.m. shift had no cases.

No one called in for help from the police. There were no reported family fights, drunk drivers, mental cases or any other routine occurrences that are the meal-and-potatoes of suburban police work.

Police can recall about eight instances of caseless shifts during the past several years.

could act as her own attorney, but he named Virga as her co-counsel. Virga had handled most of the case since then.

But shortly after jury selection began Tuesday morning, Miss Fromme rose from the defense table and approached MacBride's bench.

"Your honor, these people cannot judge me," she said of the potential jurors. "They can only judge themselves."

"My family judges me," she said, referring to her association with the Charles Manson clan.

After a pause, she told a stunned courtroom, "I find it necessary to change my plea to no contest."

A no contest plea is the equivalent of accepting a conviction and its penalties without formally admitting guilt.

She did not elaborate on why she wanted to make the change, but her roommate and sister Manson follower, Sandra Good, told reporters:

"To go through the trial is just a farce. Society threw away to right to a fair trial" when Manson and four followers were convicted of murdering actress Sharon Tate and six other persons.

Miss Good said that Miss Fromme wanted to use her trial to give the Manson clan a chance to defend itself against the slayings and wanted MacBride to represent her.

It was not known if Miss Fromme had asked MacBride to alter Manson to take part in the trial.

MacBride and U.S. Atty. Dwight Keyes both refused to accept the plea change. Keyes said it and the judge would have had to agree to the no contest plea before it would have been allowed.

Virga said he had not been told Miss Fromme that she planned to request a plea change, but he said he, too, opposed it.

"It's not applicable," Virga said of a no contest plea. "It's designed for a civil case where you're trying to avoid civil liability."

Commercial Fishing Ban Expected In Hudson

Newsday
GARDEN CITY, N.Y. — Concentrations of toxic industrial chemicals, known as PCBs, in many species of Hudson River fish have reached levels considered so dangerous to human health that New York State will have to ban most, if not all, commercial fishing in the Hudson early next year. The ban is considered inevitable by state and federal experts, but the state's official position, for now, is that Environmental Conservation Commissioner Ogden Reid does not have to impose the ban immediately because the commercial fishing season along the river is over. Unofficially, department sources say the concentrations of PCBs in both the river's water and sediments are so high and the pollutant so long-lived, that commercial fishing may not be permitted there again for generations. PCBs, or poly-chlorinated biphenyls, are a family of chemical compounds that have come into everyday use all over the world because of their resistance to heat (one key use is cooling transformers). Like their chemical cousin, DDT, the PCBs accumulate in the fatty tissues of animals (including humans) and produce a variety of ills, from acne (at minimum doses) to severe liver disorders, including cancer in test animals. The PCBs are even more resistant to decay than DDT once released into the environment, where they may persist for generations. Statistical evidence gathered by federal scientists indicates PCBs are on the rise in the environment, even though their use in this country has been severely curtailed. Recent scientific findings indicate that PCBs produce toxic effects in primates at very low levels have stirred widespread alarm among Food and Drug Administration and Environmental Protection Agency scientists. The FDA standard for PCB concentrations in fish is 5 parts per million. Laboratory monkeys, in a recent study, showed severe symptoms (including miscarriages and deformed babies) when they received doses as low as 2.5 parts per million daily. Studies on primates are believed to give a good indication of what effect similar dosages would have on humans. Many species of fish, both in the Hudson and other New York

State rivers, now exceed the figures, is not an important industry. The striped bass catch last year was worth $12,000 and other species were worth even less. However, two migratory fish that spawn in the Hudson, striped bass and shad, do form the backbone of a considerable commercial fishing business in the Northeast region. WASHINGTON — The secretary of commerce appointment will be Elliot L. Richardson's fourth Cabinet post, but the Republican hero of Watergate is best remembered for the equally rare step of resigning on principle.

quaintances regarded as a form of political exile — service as U.S. ambassador to Great Britain. And judging from Richardson's past performance — as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, secretary of Defense and attorney general — he is likely to overhaul the Commerce Department so that it becomes much more active and less of a one-interest agency. The return of Richardson to the Cabinet conflicts with what some said in this cynical city when Mr. Ford sent him to the Court of St. James's: That the new President was shipping a possible competitor out of the country — and thus out of the headlines.

That thought was generated in part by Richardson's resignation as attorney general Oct. 20, 1973, rather than obey then President Richard M. Nixon's order to fire his chief nemesis at the time, Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Richardson's departure from the attorney generalship, the cabinet job he seemed to thrive in most, gave him some genuine political sex appeal. His return to the United States also will allow him to make another 1976 assessment from a near-the-scene vantage point. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) will be up for reelection that year, and Richardson is the home state Republican that some Massachusetts observers think could give Kennedy a real run for it. Richardson, who served as attorney general of Massachusetts, returned to Washington at the start of the Nixon administration as under secretary of state. A cum laude graduate of both Harvard college and law school, he had served earlier in the capital as assistant to Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), assistant secretary of HEW and acting secretary of the agency during the Eisenhower administration. Before launching his political career, Richardson enlisted in the Army in World War II as a private and landed in Normandy on D-Day as a litter-bearer platoon leader. He won the Bronze Star and a Purple Heart with an oak leaf cluster.

In the Nixon administration, Richardson served for nearly three years as HEW secretary and, during the second term, as defense secretary for three months. He became attorney general when Richard G. Kleindienst resigned that post. Though he headed the Justice Department for less than six months, he initiated a sweeping reorganization plan for the Watergate-battered agency, including steps he thought were needed to divorce the department from politics. His successors, however, have seen problems with the reforms and demonstrated mass appeal as a politician, does not speak with simple sentences. His phrasing is complex, and many an interviewer has been distracted by Richardson's habit of crumpling a piece of paper on which he has been doodling into a missile which he then attempts to sink in a tiny basket inserted in his waste paper receptacle.

Texans Decide Old Constitution Good Enough For Them

(Continued From Page 1A) spoke often and loudly. On learning of its defeat, he said, "If there is any lesson we should have learned from this election it is that the people have a right to impose restraints upon their government and they still want to do so." The issue of a new state constitution in many ways boiled down to simple conservative and liberal politics. Conservatives fearful of more governmental authority and more state spending tended to shy away from the idea of revising the constitution. Liberals who expect and demand more governmental activity tended to favor revision. But there were clear cut ironies: Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, one of the state's best known liberal apostles, opposed the constitutional change. Yet, law and order defender Atty. Gen. John Hill favored it. Perhaps the most controversial aspect of the revision was the proposal to recreate state agencies every 10 years, giving the governor and the legislature more control over some 200 state agencies. McKnight argued forcefully that each agency would be in a position of lobbying to keep its agency in existence rather than devoting energy to performing the agency's primary tasks. The present constitution was approved in 1876 and represented the will of a people climbing from the abyss of reconstruction following the Civil War. Texans, victimized and frustrated under carpetbagger rule, took the first opportunity to create a government with as little authority over their lives as possible. Gov. Dolph Briscoe said in Dallas last week that 25 years ago — as a much younger man — he favored revision of the constitution but came later to the inclusion that Texas had grown and prospered under the constitution through the 1950s and 1960s. The proposals called for annual, rather than biennial, sessions of the legislature. Former Texas Supreme Court Justice Robert V. Calvert said it makes no sense to budget two years in advance for a $6 billion-a-year government. But on the lips of many Texans was an old quotation: "No man's life, liberty or property are safe while the legislature is in session." Hundreds of thousands of Texans repeated it at the voting booths Tuesday.

Marines Launching Annual 'Toys For Tots' Program

With Christmas little more than six weeks away, the U.S. Marines again are launching their war on the disappointment of a bleak Yuletide season for the less fortunate children across the nation. The Marines' "Toys For Tots" program last year collected 14,500 toys for 3,800 needy children in Midland and Odessa. Conducted locally by the Marine Corps Reserve at Midland Regional Air Terminal, this year's drive is scheduled from Nov. 14 to Dec. 15 in both cities. Toy collection containers bearing the "Toys For Tots" poster will be distributed at numerous locations in Midland and Odessa for the month-long campaign. The collected toys are transported to the local Salvation Army warehouses where they are sorted and labeled according to what age group the items are best suited. Midland and Odessa firemen repair the toys, and distribution to needy families is done by local Salvation Army agencies. New, unappreciated toys are preferred, but used toys in good condition also are welcomed. Groups or individuals desiring to make large donations may call the Marine Corps Reserve Center at 563-1550 or leave donations in the gold and yellow collection barrels placed throughout the two cities.

Texas Skies Mostly Clear

Scattered showers dotted an area near Seymour, Vernon and Wichita Falls and there were a few patches of clouds elsewhere in North Central Texas this morning. Skies were generally clear over the rest of the state and expected to stay that way. There was fog here and there, however, in the Lower Rio Grande and on the South Plains near daybreak. The Associated Press reported.

In San Francisco, state Sen. George Moscone led an 11-candidate field, clinching a spot in the Dec. 11 runoff. Pre-election favorite Dianne Feinstein, president of the county-board of supervisors, was running slightly behind Supervisor John Bargerata for a spot in the runoff against Moscone. In Indianapolis, Republican William Hudnut, a former congressman, defeated Democratic businessman Robert Welch for the post now held by retiring GOP Mayor Richard G. Lugar. In Gary, black mayor Richard G. Hatcher won another term.

Temperatures near dawn sagged to the 30s and 40s in the Panhandle and far West Texas while readings elsewhere ranged up to 65 degrees at Galveston on the coast. Top marks Tuesday went as high as 85 at Alice and McAllen in South Texas. Midland, Andrews, Lamesa, Crane, Big Lake and Big Spring reported sunny weather conditions with the temperature hitting the mid 70s.

Pressure Mounts For Peron To Quit

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Calls for President Isabel Peron's resignation grew more insistent today. New violence and the reported loss of backing of the labor movement heightened the tension around the hospitalized chief of state. The Argentine labor relations manager for Ford Motor Co., Dardo Brignone, was shot and wounded in the leg in one of many labor disputes despite a general raise announced Tuesday night. A 25-year-old woman guerrilla was shot dead early today, with six others wounded, in a gunfight with police on the outskirts of Buenos Aires. Later, a police sergeant was shot and killed by three presumed terrorists.

'Paycheck Truce' In Effect

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — War-weary Lebanese emerged from their homes despite some sniper fire today to take advantage of a "paycheck truce" in Beirut's Moslem-Christian street war. Traffic built up downtown. Security forces joined gunmen of both sides in tearing down roadblocks and supervising the withdrawal of mortars and recoilless rifles. But few expected the cease-fire — now in its third day — to last. The Lebanese central bank opened for the first time in a month. Within two hours it paid out $15 million in government payrolls and transfers to other banks. Other banks were scheduled to open Thursday. Government ministries resumed work with skeleton staffs, but many workers stayed home to see if the cease-fire lasted. Many shops also remained closed, and there was no word of schools reopening.

Search Continues For Ector Woman

ALPINE — Law enforcement agencies are continuing a fullscale search for Phyllis Berry, a 21-year-old Odessa resident, who had traveled to Terlingua with two friends in Miss Berry's car. Miss Berry reportedly was last seen at the 9th Annual World Championship Chili Cookoff around 11 p.m. Saturday night. The Alpine Sheriff's Department, who is coordinating the extensive search, said, "Two Border Patrol planes, a Department of Public Safety helicopter and ground rescue squads have searched unsuccessfully for Miss Berry since Sunday, the sheriff's office said. Miss Berry's car was found at Terlingua, but she never returned to it, officials said.

Registered voters in the county numbered 38,173, but only 6,818 voted in the election. A separate absentee count was not available. # Israelis Soon To Leave Occupied Field

By YUVAL ELIZUR, The Washington Post

ABU RUDEIS, Sinai — In about three weeks the last Israeli-occupied field that since the war of June 1967 has supplied about two thirds of Israel's oil needs. Now, however, the field is still operating at full capacity, supplying about 100,000 barrels a day.

"Our last act will be to send out the final tanker to the Israeli port of Eilat," says Dr. Michael Kisch, manager of the Israeli company that has been operating Abu Rudeis for the past eight years.

Kisch admits that if he had his choice, he would have slowed down production gradually and transferred the field back to the Egyptians after reaching a standstill. However, the Egyptian had other plans and in the talks between Israeli and Egyptian representatives in Geneva two months ago, Kisch was overruled.

"I feel like a racing driver who is asked to give up his seat while the engine is running at full speed," says Kisch, whose father, a brigadier general in the British army, was killed in the western desert during World War II, when he was chief engineer of Field Marshal Montgomery's Eighth Army.

Until now, only 100 of the 550 Israeli workers here have been dismissed. Another 100 will be leaving this week, and the rest will remain until the field is handed over Nov. 30. Most of the workers already have found jobs elsewhere. Some will be taking part in the recently expanded oil exploration projects now underway in Israel.

Netivei Nepti, the government-owned company that operated the Sinai oil fields since 1967, will cease operations. Kisch, a mining engineer, plans to take an extended vacation.

According to Kisch, most of the 90 producing wells of the Abu Rudeis oil field — 13 of them are at sea along the coast of the Gulf of Suez — are in excellent condition. Although the field is relatively "old" — it has been in production for 20 years — it can yield 100,000 barrels a day for at least 12 more years. However, he added, this may require ever-increasing investments, which the Egyptian operators will have to make.

Abu Rudeis passed its maximum production capacity in 1972, when it yielded 120,000 barrels a day, Kisch revealed. He also said that Israel has invested "many millions of dollars" for the proper maintenance of the field, for the construction of a new tanker farm, two pumping stations and a topping unit producing 50,000 tons of fuel oil annually.

One of the problems that still remains unsolved is the supply of 700 cubic meters of fresh water, which the Egyptians will need for the desalination process that the crude oil has to undergo before it can be shipped by tanker or by pipeline. Israel controls the only fresh water wells in Sinai. The Egyptians will thus have to come to an agreement with the Israelis or bring the water by tanker from Suez, more than 100 miles to the north.

Judge To Rule Friday On Patty Hearst's Mental State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, described by her attorney as mentally "crippled" and by a prosecutor as "fully competent," awaits a judge's ruling on her mental competence to stand trial.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter calls it "a most difficult and most complex question to decide," but he promises to make the decision by Friday.

In the interim, Carter said he will re-examine "in great detail" three voluminous reports by the psychiatric panel which examined Miss Hearst. He called the documents "complex and extremely verbose."

One report concludes that Miss Hearst was "literally a prisoner of war for 20 months" and is suffering from a "traumatic neurosis," her attorney said.

But U.S. Atty. James Brown Jr. insisted that none of the reports showed her to be incompetent to stand trial immediately on federal charges of taking part in a bank robbery while she was a fugitive with the Symbionese Liberation Army. Miss Hearst has not yet entered a plea on the charges.

Miss Hearst, in court for the first time in six weeks for her competence hearing Tuesday, was pale but alert. She wore a plain brown pants suit and her hair hung limply to her shoulders. Blank-faced at her previous court sessions, she was more animated Tuesday, whispering and chatting with her attorneys.

Miss Hearst's parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, sat in the front row of the courtroom with daughters Vicki and Ann. But Patricia, seated at the counsel table, showed no reaction to their presence.

"She is making progress, visible progress," attorney F. Lee Bailey said later.

Bailey, in his first court appearance for the newspaper heiress, read the "prisoner of war" description from the report by Dr. L.J. West, a specialist in brainwashing after-effects.

The psychiatric reports themselves remain secret but were open to court discussion.

Bailey disclosed that West recommended three to four months of psychiatric treatment for the 21-year-old defendant. Another panel member, Dr. Seymour Pollack of the University of Southern California, were not disclosed. Clinical psychologist Margaret Thaler Singer also filed a lengthy report on clinical tests conducted on Miss Hearst.

Bailey urged the judge to commit Miss Hearst to a mental hospital for at least 30 days until 1976. She faces another federal charge of kidnapping, as well as robbery of the Hibernia Bank branch here in April 1974 and other crimes.

FBI Director Tells Lubbock Chamber Agency Needs Trust

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says his agency must have the trust of Americans if it is to function effectively especially in the area of domestic security.

Kelley told the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday that FBI intelligence-gathering tactics and investigations of militants have thwarted numerous bombings and terrorist activities in the United States.

But, he added, "We are concerned that the highly publicized scrutiny and criticism of our domestic operations in recent months will undermine the trust Americans traditionally have placed in the FBI."

He said much of the criticism was "well intentioned" and some "perhaps justified."

"Yet in the vast majority of instances such criticism stems from functions the FBI took many years ago in extraordinarily turbulent times," he said.

Kelley told his audience that critics of the FBI have ignored the success of intelligence-gathering operations.

"In the flow of news emanating from Washington, too often a misuse by an FBI agent is inflated to represent a massive assault on individual rights by the bureau," he said. "There have been assaults on the rights and tranquility of people, but not by the FBI."

He cited 18 bombings this year for which terrorist organizations have claimed responsibility.

He said FBI intelligence work stopped a plan to bomb the Internal Revenue Service building in Washington and two blocks in an unidentified city. Kelley said "a white-hate activist" had planned those bombings and that the person was arrested in New Jersey.

The FBI learned of the plan in June 1974, Kelley said.

The director also claimed that FBI intelligence work stopped another plan to burn a dwelling occupied by 18 persons and a separate plot to dynamite the home of the head of the Anti-Defamation League in New Orleans.

"I could list accomplishments such as these from now until midnight, with some left over," Kelley said. "But suffice it to say prevention of bloodshed and destruction, the maintenance of order and the stability of our government are the priority objectives of our domestic security work."

Declaring that the FBI "has no desire to oppose legitimate dissent," Kelley said, "it is the extremist who preaches a litany of violence against government, against private enterprise, against ethnic groups, against religious orders, who is the target of these investigations."

Kelley repeated that he welcomes "impartial evaluations of our operations and policies."

But he argued that an impartial review is "considerably different from the relentless bombardment we have been subjected to in the public forum for so many months."

Appeals Judge Blocks Mailing Of Notifications

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice in Tyler kept the state from putting the new voting registration law into effect.

The stay has been asked by the Texas Attorney General's office along with a request that a panel of 5th Circuit judges hear the case on an emergency basis.

Gee later modified his stay order Tuesday by giving instructions to Secretary of State Mark White to notify all 254 county tax assessor-collector not to mail out the re-registration notices until further court action.

Beame Accuses Ford Of Offering Cop-Out, Not Cure

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Mayor Abraham Beame accused President Ford today of offering "a cop-out, not a cure" for New York City's fiscal ills. He said the President's attacks on New York have "triggered hatred, disunity and confusion."

The mayor said Ford, in criticizing New York, ignored the city's budget-cutting record. He listed payroll deductions, halts in city construction and closings of municipal facilities. He promised further money-saving measures, including a change in the free university system's financing and more hospital closings.

The mayor made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery before the National Press Club, one day after the disclosure that state officials had come up with enough money to avert default next week.

Beame said that he sought federal guarantees of future loans, but no tax dollars, from the government.

"New York is not asking the federal government or the public for one cent," he said. "On the other hand, default will cost America billions."

Beame's appearance at the club was designed to answer a speech Ford gave there one week ago when he outlined his plan for changing bankruptcy laws to enable the city to continue basic services in the case of a default.

Referring to that speech and other Ford attacks on New York City, Beame said, "The President's response to New York City reflects a kind of bumper sticker philosophy."

"He has used the city of New York as a foil for political slogans from Belgrade to San Francisco and back."

Beame added that this has set urban residents against rural Americans and Easterners against Midwesterners.

"The President's prescription for an economic and spiritual purge is a 17th Century remedy," the mayor said. "In 20th Century parlance, it's a cop-out, not a cure.

"Subjecting America's largest city to humiliation and impoverishment does not enhance either the economy or the moral fiber of our nation. The best cure for our financial ills is to have an opportunity to recuperate under a strictly supervised regimen of reform and retrenchment. A guarantee would permit that."

Beame said Ford has failed to take into account the effect a default by New York would have on the rest of the nation.

He referred to a report prepared by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress estimating that federal tax receipts would be reduced by $3.5 billion and expenditures for unemployment compensation, food stamps and other programs would increase by $500 million.

He said a default would jeopardize payment for more than $1 billion in goods from around the nation.

Beame's speech followed New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey's announcement Tuesday that enough money was found to put together a $750 million package to keep the city from default on Nov. 14. Carey did not reveal details.

"We received notice today that all commitments needed will be delivered by Monday," Carey said.

Monday is the day when the city expected to know whether it would have the funds to meet obligations due Nov. 14. But Carey warned that "Dec. 1 is the date beyond which we cannot stretch at this time."

The $750 million package had been pledged to get the city through November without defaulting, but before Carey's announcement a shortfall of $150 million had threatened to block the arrangement.

Beame frequently has been in Washington to testify before congressional panels. He decided to address the club a week after Ford to give the same forum his side of the city's fiscal crisis.

While Beame sought support for legislation to help the city regain access to the investors, Senate Democratic leaders said they were delaying a decision on bringing to the Senate floor a bill authorizing $4 billion in federal loan guarantees for New York.

GOP leaders predicted the only bill that would be enacted before the city defaults would be Ford's proposal to revise bankruptcy laws.

"As far as a New York City default is concerned, it has become apparent that there really isn't a chance that any of the legislation being considered can become law before the city defaults except the bankruptcy bill," House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said after he and Sen. Robert P. Griffin, D-Mich., met with Ford.

The House Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights hoped to finish work on the bankruptcy bill today.

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., said the House would take up a bill offering $7 billion in loan guarantees. He and House Banking Committee Chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., predicted an uphill fight for the bill, but Reuss said, "We may be able to pull it off."

14,000 Suppliers Wonder If They'll Collect For Goods

NEW YORK (AP) — Phones are ringing busily at City Hall with 14,000 suppliers from across the country calling to find out if financially hard-pressed New York will be able to pay for the $500 million worth of goods it has on order.

That doesn't count such capital items as $300 million worth of subway cars being built by the Pullman Co. in St. Louis.

"So far there's no panic, but there's an awful lot of anxiety," said a spokesman for the Municipal Services Administration.

Among the most anxious was Dave Koepfel of Airport Motors in the New York City borough of Queens. Koepfel has 25 Plymouth police cars on his list waiting for delivery to the city and is unsure what to do since, he says, the city already owes him $1.5 million. The contract is worth $6 million a year.

"If we don't get paid, the car people in Michigan don't get paid and the glass people in Pittsburgh don't get paid and the tire people in Akron don't get paid and so forth," Koepfel said.

"But we got faith. We got faith the money will come from somewhere, because if it doesn't, an awful lot of people in an awful lot of towns are going to suffer."

Koepfel said this shipment at least will go through and added he's already used his own money to pay for them.

Thomas Cecil, president of Swift & Co. in Chicago, telephoned purchasing commissioner Robert I. Cohen the other day dunning him for a $605,000 unpaid food bill. Cohen said Cecil told him if the city doesn't pay, the company would have to close a section employing 110 men, the largest single loss in the history of the meat packing firm.

"This thing is national in scope," Cohen said in an interview. "And it works two ways. If we can't pay the bills, they're not going to deliver. What are we going to do for water if we can't pay for the chemicals to purify it?"

"Some of the smaller firms will go bankrupt if New York City goes bankrupt," Cohen said.

City officials said big firms would not be hurt over-all, but sections devoted mostly to supplying New York would be.

For instance, there is a $12.5 million a year contract with International Harvester for Sanitation Department equipment made in Springfield, Ohio, and Fort Wayne, Ind.

IBM supplies $1.5 million a year worth of goods from Boca Raton, Fla.; Rochester, Minn.; Boulder, Colo.; and Raleigh, N.C.

Xerox has another $1.5 million annual contract in which Rochester, N.Y., is interested.

Russians Possibly Catching Up To U.S. In Submarine Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have tested what could be their first submarine-launched missile equipped with multiple warheads that can be aimed at separate targets.

If the Russians have achieved such warheads for their submarine-fired missiles, they will have caught up with the United States in one of the few facets of the missile race in which they have trailed until now.

U.S. intelligence sources report that a new Soviet missile for submarines was test-fired for the first time on Oct. 25 from the remote White Sea area.

The missile traveled nearly 3,500 miles to the Kamchatka Peninsula in the Pacific, the sources said.

According to U.S. observations, the new missile carried multiple warheads.

But American technical specialists are not certain whether these warheads were the less sophisticated MRV's (multiple re-entry vehicles) or the much more advanced MIRV's (multiple independently targetable vehicles).

The difference is important. MRV's are fired in shotgun fashion, usually against a single target. MIRV's can be aimed with precision against widely separated targets.

U.S. intelligence expects to get more definite information by monitoring future Soviet tests of the new missile.

Analysts believe the new weapon is intended for the advanced Delta class submarines which now carry 4,900-mile range weapons armed with single warheads.

By mounting MIRV's on submarine-launched missiles, the Russians could add thousands more nuclear warheads to their strategic forces.

The Soviets already are deploying three new types of powerful land-based intercontinental-range missiles, two of them equipped with MIRV's and the third believed capable of carrying them.

The 1972 strategic arms limitation agreement, while curbing the number of missiles, placed no restriction on the number or size of nuclear warheads. A new U.S.-Soviet agreement now being negotiated also lacks any such curbs. This has caused critics to argue that the SALT agreement fails to put a cap on a vital element of the arms race.

In recent years, Russia has outstripped the United States in numbers and size of land-based missile launchers and has pulled ahead of this country in modern missile-firing subma-

Eagles' Speed Worries Rebs

The film of the 10-0 loss to Odessa Permian was shown Tuesday night at the weekly Lee Rebel Booster Club meeting with Coach Jim Acree narrating the action.

"I was proud of the way the team played and we even had a chance to win it," commented Acree. Acree pointed out that the game was clean and well officiated. "I think there was a better feeling after the game between the two schools than in the past, at least the six years I've been here at Lee," added Acree.

Turning to this week's opponent — Abilene, Acree said that the Eagles have speed to burn and it will be especially tough to defend them. "Abilene has 10 kids that run the 100-yard dash under 10-flat, so you can imagine their speed." Acree also was quick to point out that it was Abilene that scored 13 points on Permian's great defense. "It could be a long night for us if they get their speed to the outside," added Acree.

Defensive end Bill Murrell received plenty of praise from Acree for his play in the Permian game. Acree also praised his tailback, Clyde Gary, who rushed for 112 yards against the Mojo defense. "Gary is a great back and is finally back to full speed," said Acree.

A report on the junior high and junior varsity was given before the fans sat back to watch the Lee-Permian film.

Palmer Skips Golf To Wait By Phone

BALTIMORE (AP) — A warm, sunny day in the offseason usually finds Jim Palmer on the golf course.

But while the skies were bright and temperatures reached the mid 70s Tuesday, the Baltimore Orioles' right-hander stayed in his backyard garden, waiting for the telephone to ring.

The choice paid off. Late in the day, Palmer received a call telling him he had been named winner of the Cy Young Award as the American League's top pitcher.

"I was out in the garden spreading mulch when I found out," said Palmer, a Cy Young winner for the second time in three years. "Normally on a day like this I would have been playing golf, but I knew the award was supposed to be announced so I decided to stick close to home."

Palmer, who came back from an injury-plagued 1974 season to post a 23-11 record this year, outdistanced Catfish Hunter of the New York Yankees in voting by a special 24-member panel of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The only pitcher named on all 24 ballots cast, Palmer finished with a total of 98 points including 15 first-place votes. Hunter—who won last year's Cy Young Award with the Oakland A's—finished with 75 points including seven first-place ballots. Hunter was named by 22 voters.

Rollie Fingers of Oakland was third with 25 points, including two first-place votes. California's Frank Tanana and Chicago's Jim Kaat had seven points apiece, followed by Oakland's Vida Blue and Chicago's Rich Gossage, each with two points. Boston's Rick Wise received one point.

First place was worth five points, second place three points and third place one point. The balloting, with eight pitchers receiving votes, was the most diversified since the award was first presented in 1966.

Palmer's 23 victories in 1975 give him a career win-loss record of 152-80 for a .655 winning percentage, the "best among active pitchers."

"I felt I could have won 30 games if the club had hit behind me," said Palmer, who was involved in several 1-0 and 2-1 losses. "But when you win 23 games, you ought to be satisfied."

Only four other pitchers have won two Cy Young Awards, including Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, Bob Gibson of St. Louis, Denny McLain of Detroit and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles. Koufax is the only three-time winner.

Dallas Lynching Mob Wants Howie

DALLAS (AP) — There's every indication the Dallas Cowboys will be trying to impress more than just the Kansas City Chiefs when the teams tangle Monday night in a National Football League game.

Sensitive Dallas fans have bombarded the Cowboy office, NFL headquarters and ABC-TV headquarters with telephone calls and letters since broadcaster Howard Cosell questioned the running talents of Dallas fullback Robert Newhouse.

Cosell said Newhouse was a "bad runner" and couldn't understand why Detroit couldn't stop him last month in a Monday night game Dallas won 36-10.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday, "I told 'house to get ready for his duel with Cosell."

"We Want to Hear It, Howie," Landry laughingly added, "I doubt Cosell will come down out of the booth."

Cosell called Landry perhaps the "most innovative coach" in professional football during Monday night's Los Angeles-Philadelphia game and Landry laughed again.

He said, "Cosell's not dumb. He'll probably have Newhouse running like Jimmy Brown when he comes to town."

Landry went out of his way Tuesday to praise the toy Cowboy fullback who is averaging almost four yards per carry and has caught 16 passes for an average of eight yards per catch.

"The 'house is running well and blocking well," said Landry.

T. Bynum Hatley, the mayor of Newhouse's hometown in Hallsville, has called for a public apology from Cosell this Monday night. A resident has written a song asking for Cosell to back down, calling the tune, "We Want to Hear It, Howie."

Newhouse himself has kept mostly silent on the matter, saying "I'm not that much interested in what people say."

ONE THING and another, who was the last player to win the league batting title the year his team won the pennant? ...

With the loss of Calvin Hill, Walt Garrison, Bob Lilly, Dave Manders, John Noland, Pat Toomay, Craig Morton and Cornell Green over the past year, there were plenty of reasons for the Dallas Cowboys to stub their toes this year.

Pack Finds There's No Rest For Weary

If the Midland Bulldogs are weary after successive outings against Abilene, San Angelo and Odessa, they can't afford to show it this Friday night in Memorial Stadium.

According to JV Coach Roy Blair, who has scouted Abilene Cooper the last two weeks, "The Cougars are capable of playing as good football as anyone in the league. Their interior line averages 200 pounds."

Cooper, long known for its defensive tenacity, is throwing the ball more this year and has the offensive weapons to put points on the scoreboard in "quarterback Kelly Gill, 190, a power runner, and tailback Mark Allen, a 190-pounder with good speed."

GILL LEADS District 5-4A in passing and Allen in running. Top receivers are split end Rusty Hamric and tight end Jim Woods.

"Cooper takes a lot of pride in its defense," Blair noted. "They run a Monster-Five and they are good, strong and tough. Yardage comes at a high price."

Coach John Reddell added that Cooper's size is one reason they were able to play Odessa Permian to a standoff, although losing 5-0.

The Bulldogs notched their sixth win in eight starts with a good 28-8 effort over dangerous Odessa High last Friday.

THE BULLDOGS took a 19-0 halftime lead. "In the first half our offensive line was coming off the ball in unison and our backs were running hard. I think we cooled off at half, however," Reddell said.

Reddell added he was proud of Mike Sanders, the 290-pound senior tackle, "not only (Continued On Page 3B)

'Mature' Duane Thomas Wants Shot With Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Duane Thomas wishes to forgive and forget. He wants a job carrying a football for a professional football team.

"I'm 28 but I feel 15... I'm quicker... I'm faster... I'm smarter..." says the controversial former West Texas State star who was once the premier running back in the National Football League.

Thomas works out daily at Onby Stadium on the Southern Methodist campus. He runs up and down the stairs. He skips rope. He stands on his head.

"I'm about 215 pounds and in the best condition of my life," says Thomas, whose last football adventure was a brief stay with Hawaii of the now defunct World Football League.

Thomas has appeared at the offices of the Dallas Cowboys where he had a chat with Coach Tom Landry, a person he once called "The Plastic Man." Landry put his arm around Thomas.

Asked if Dallas wanted him to come back, Thomas said "They didn't say they didn't want me back."

Thomas says, "I have reached a new maturity level. I didn't anticipate the press coming at me that strong. I had prepared myself for football... I'm ready for you (the press) now."

He has had contact with former employers such as Washington and Houston.

Thomas' office is also trying to reach Southern California Coach John McKay, who takes over as the head man for the new Tampa NFL franchise.

"I want to play for the people of Dallas and I would like to stay in this area but I really am ready to play the game for a team that needs a good running back," said Thomas. "I'm out of the baby stage...."

Asked if he thought he could get along with teammates, the sometimes aloof Thomas said, "I just want to do a job. I've never had any ill feelings with another player. There haven't been any confrontations."

Thomas said he'd like to see the Cowboys draft Wayne Morris, the leading ground gainer in SMU's history.

"That would be the greatest if Wayne and I could play in the same backfield... if they (Dallas) did something like that then I would really know they had their heads on straight."

Thomas was the catalyst on Dallas' Super Bowl VI championship team which whipped Miami 24-3 at New Orleans.

He once said the Super Bowl wasn't the ultimate game "because they play another one next year don't they?"

Now, with the age of 30 fast approaching Thomas, a gifted, gliding runner with powerful legs, just wants a chance to play.

McKay Lauds All-Star Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Coach John McKay says he's pleased the National Football League renewed the contract to play the college All-Star game for the next two years.

"They should play the game," said McKay. "It's meant a lot to pro football and basically it doesn't hurt any player—unless he gets injured, and there's nothing sacred about getting injured."

McKay has been selected to coach the college all-stars for the past three years but he wound up missing a coaching job in 1974 because of the NFL strike. McKay said he tried to make the game fun.

"We made a determined effort to keep every player from getting hurt. They had a tradition back there where the all-stars would scrimmage against the Chicago Bears. They (the sponsors) told me it was to teach the kids they can play against the pros. I said, 'What if you find out they can't play against the pros? Cancel the game?'"

"We held practice once a day for an hour and a half. They were light and if a player gets hurt, it's gonna be a miracle. And I told the players, 'You're all gonna play. I don't believe in bringing a player back there and wasting his time for two weeks if he doesn't play."

Steers Claim SMU's 'Hands' Best

COLLEGE FOOTBALL — SMU charges that Texas twice had 12-men on the field in Saturday's SWC game brought countercharges from Longhorn defensive linemen, who claimed SMU's offensive linemen have some of the best hands in the business.

"SMU's Guy Thomas and Henry Shepherd are about the best I've seen," said UT defensive tackle Robert Rickman. Brad Shearer, UT defensive tackle, added, "From the films I saw he just wrapped his arms around people."

At his news conference Monday, Coach Darrell Royal was asked if SMU ran standard plays to amass their 351 yards. "They are standard plays. They just grabbed the man closest to him and headed north and south," Royal said.

Jeff Weston, whose 22 tackles and 53-yard TD run on a pass interception, earned the 248-pound sophomore tackle AP Lineman of the Week. Weston's play sparked Notre Dame ton's 31-10 win over Navy last week.

Texas quarterback Marty

Akins, who has gained 1,064 yards, doesn't believe it will happen, but he just might become the first wishbone quarterback to make All-America.

"It's always made me mad and ticked me off," Akins said before the season, that southern quarterbacks, especially wishbone quarterbacks, are overlooked in choosing All-American teams.

Coach Darrell Royal said, "I think wishbone quarterbacks are every bit as deserving of All-American honors as people that throw 35 passes a game." "I told the team that their encouragement to go for it and the fans' yelling had nothing to do with it," said New York Jets Coach Charley Winner. Referring to his decision to pass up a field goal and go a first down against Buffalo Saturday, he said, "It was entirely my decision and I'd do the same thing again."

The Bills stopped the Jets' bid and then drove to a touchdown for a 24-23 win. Winner said he didn't mind the second guessing. You expect

"You expect that especially in New York." Randy Rhyno, former Georgia Tech All America and more recently a kick return specialist for the Charlotte Hornets of the defunct NFL, has signed with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

USC Coach John McKay says called the details of his pro contract with Tampa "ridiculously out of line" and makes his job five times as difficult. A lot of pro coaches will read that and go to their owners and try to get a million. I wouldn't pay that kind of money for five football coaches with Jim Brown thrown in."

Aeros, Rockets Finally Reach Top

HOUSTON (AP) — The Summit, the latest sports-entertainment complex to take its place in the Houston skyline, recently opened its doors, complete with television screens and loudspeakers to promote for its first two tenants — the Houston Rockets and Aeros.

Two events already held in Rockets of the National Basketball Association hosted the Milwaukee Bucks in the first time tonight.

Officials for both pro franchises look to the Summit as the solution to their attendance problems.

The Aeros have played the past three seasons in aging Sam Houston Coliseum in the downtown area where parking is scarce and poor seating kept attendance and season ticket sales below what Aero officials expected.

The Rockets, despite making the NBA playoffs for the first time ever last season, had the worst attendance in the NBA. Rockets General Manager Ray

Aeros, Rockets Finally Reach Top

Patterson feels the location of the Summit in Greenway Plaza will be more convenient than Hofheinz Pavilion on the University of Houston campus.

The crowning attraction of the Summit will be two 20-foot wide, 15-foot high telecreens above the scoreboards at each end of the arena.

Summit officials say no spectator will be more than 128 feet from the floor and that includes fans in the 20 private suites above the plush multi-colored theater seats.

Midland Girls Defeat Odessa

The Midland High volleyball team kept their District 5-4A unbeaten record in tact Tuesday night in the MHS gym, but they had to do it against an aroused Odessa High squad, 15-12, 18-16.

Midland High is now 29-4 on the year and 5-0 in the second half of the 5-4A race. Midland High already owns the first half championship. The Bulldogs are one game ahead of Big Spring, but the Steers have already lost to Midland High.

The MHS junior varsity also had a tough time with Odessa before capturing a 16-18, 15-3, 15-3 win. The JV is now 12-1 in district play.

The Bulldogs will host their last home game of the year Thursday against the Abilene

Curci Feels Point-Sharing Rumors To Hurt Recruiting

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — over Michigan or Tennessee University of Kentucky football coach Fran Curci says his school stands to suffer from the unshared rumors of point shaving which placed a lingering cloud of suspicion over the Lexington campus.

"I'm very concerned about our recruiting," says Curci. "Parents are usually very particular about what college their sons go to. And often it's often some small thing which convinces a kid to go to Ohio State."

Cal's Muncie Catches Bouquet

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The University of California's Chuck Muncie has turned on all his power as a running back this season. And the improvement, which culminated in a 143-yard performance last week against Southern Cal, earned Muncie The Associated Press Back of the Week honors.

"He's a much more intense runner than a year ago," Coach John McKay of Southern California said of the tailback who also caught five passes for 62 yards in Cal's 28-14 upset victory over the Trojans.

Muncie's performance helped the Bears take over the Pacific 8 lead and threw the previously unbeaten Trojans into a four-way tie for second place.

"Chuck is a violent runner now. He's running through people. That's what John McKay means," said Cal Coach Mike White, adding that Muncie was one of college football's best running backs even before he changed his style.

In 1974, as a junior, the 6-foot-3, 220-pound player from

Trinity Captures Homecoming Win

Trinity romped to a 26-6 homecoming football victory over the San Jacinto 8th grade B-team Monday as Tom Deane ran for two touchdowns.

Bryan Mayers returned an interception for a touchdown and Joe McSpadden scored on a long pass play.

BULLDOG BITES — Split end Clelland Pearce did an outstanding blocking job. On one long run by quarterback Kevin Widner, he downed the opposing end at the line and then hustled 30 yards downfield to knock down a defensive back. . . On Paul Beique's TD-preventing interception at the goal line in the third quarter, linebacker Roger Shelburne's pressure forced Shepard to throw before he was ready.

In addition to four sack jobs, linebacker James Zachery also deflected a couple of passes. Cornerback James Wortham, in addition to his outstanding pass defense, wound up as the Pack's leading tackler.

Bush Gets New Post

George Bush is a person who can handle most any job, situation or assignment . . . and handle it well.

His disposition, his attitude, his personality, and his willingness to serve his country and his political party when and wherever called, make him a most valuable, useful public servant.

He has the ability to get along with people, plus the God-given talent of being able to analyze and solve difficult problems.

It is no wonder, then, that he has been named to difficult assignments at various times during his political career.

Neither is it surprising that he has been named by President Ford to succeed William Colby as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Bush has been serving as the United States representative in Peking, a post to which he also was appointed by President Ford.

Bush has done a noteworthy job in his China assignment and there is no doubt he will perform admirably and with distinction in his new position, restoring the CIA to its rightful place of honor and significant service, acceptable to the American public.

George Bush previously has served faithfully and well as a U.S. congressman from Houston, as the United States' ambassador to the United Nations, and as chairman of the Republican National Committee. His achievements in these assignments were noteworthy and commendable.

Few men perhaps have had the opportunities of public service accorded George Bush. His willing, enthusiastic, unselfish performance is the mark of a great American.

Bush, of course, is well and favorably known in Midland, where he previously resided, and throughout West Texas and the Lone Star State. He made his mark in the business world, as a young man just getting started, in the Tall City of Midland, while also gaining widespread recognition for his leadership in civic, church, youth and cultural affairs.

Midlanders, not at all surprised at his rapid rise to fame in national and international affairs, nevertheless have watched his political career and his successes with interest and appreciation. They also share the opinion that this is not the end of the line for him.

Bush's last visit to Midland was in September when he accompanied President Ford here to formally dedicate the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame. A son, George Bush Jr., is a Midland resident.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in commenting on Bush's new appointment, said, "I think a lot of Bush. Bringing Bush back from China is a logical step . . . I've always advocated a man like George Bush. I think he'd be an excellent vice president."

U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, R-Dallas, commented that Bush "came through clean and straight from the Republican chairmanship and went to China and still maintained his equilibrium. George must be the most capable administrator in Washington."

Right now, however, Bush's major interest and effort will be in and with the Central Intelligence Agency. He will give the assignment his full attention, as always.

What the future holds for the former Midlander is unknown, of course, but whatever it is, George Bush may be counted on to serve to the best of his ability and in a sincere, honest, straightforward, gentlemanly manner for the best interests of all. George Bush is this type of person.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

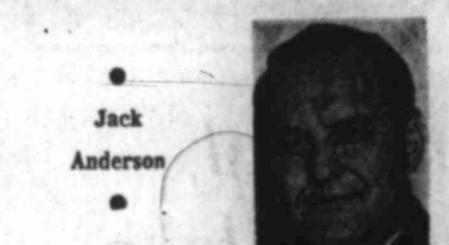

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten WASHINGTON — In these uneasy times, the Navy may be alerted any day to airlift endangered Americans from some trouble spot.

The Navy seems able to find funds when an admiral wants his quarters refitted or an ex-admiral applies for a contract as a consultant. Yet there isn't enough money, apparently, to maintain the rusty, leaky tubs which are supposed to be ready for any emergency.

We began investigating conditions aboard the helicopter carriers a year ago. But the Navy, we found, had swept the embarrassing facts under the secrecy stamp. Not that there is anything legitimately secret about the Navy's neglect. It is merely a Pentagon habit to censor embarrassing news by classifying it.

We were able, nevertheless, to get the classified inspection reports, and on Nov. 11, 1974, we described the deplorable conditions aboard the Okinawa and, later, the Iwo Jima. The other five helicopter carriers, we suggested, weren't in much better shape.

At one closed meeting, the participants were advised that the newer classification and special security precautions were necessary to "keep the reports out of Jack Anderson's hands."

Despite the cover-up, however, we have obtained copies of the latest inspection reports. One lengthy report describes conditions aboard the New Orleans.

Some vital electronic gear was installed on this helicopter carrier more than 18 months ago. Yet Bulkeley's boys found that "complete documentation is still not aboard ship."

The passive electronic warfare capability for gathering seaborne intelligence and other information "is degraded," the report charges. Even the "jib cranes," used to lift small boats and supplies onto the deck, "are in a deteriorated condition with one out of commission," the report adds.

CRIME STORY: We have warned

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE—

Campaign Gimmicks Face Close Scrutiny

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copy News Service

WASHINGTON — News reports of Sen. Birch Bayh's announcement that he will be a presidential candidate were accompanied in both Washington papers by a photograph of the Indiana Democrat hugging Inez Skelly, his former high school English teacher.

At an early morning meeting with Vigo County Democrats in Shirkeville, Ind., Bayh let it be known that he felt "closer to God and I felt more fulfilled here in these fields than anything I've done in my life."

No one here knew exactly what he meant, but everyone knew what he was doing posing with Inez Skelly, saying he felt closer to God in the fields and calling for "moral leadership" by presidents. Jack Germond, a veteran Washington political writer who has seen and heard it all before, knew that Bayh was "butting his politics with piety."

Nothing wrong with that. It's all in the grand old tradition of American political campaigns, which is rooted in the theory that politicians seeking public approval should give the public what it wants.

But does the public any longer want corn-pone campaigning?

Most candidates worthy of election would prefer to discuss the serious issues seriously, but for all the wrong reasons they smilingly eat blitzes on New York's Lower East Side, wear cowboy hats in Wyoming and shake hands at factory gates. Most of it is done at a time and place convenient for television camera crews.

As we brace ourselves for the upcoming year of pieties, homilies, banalities, hyperboles and occasional revealing truths uttered by candidates, along comes John Gardner, chairman of Common Cause, to ask a disturbing question—why do Americans put up with it?

"The real problem," Gardner writes in a statement distributed to (and aimed at) the press, "is that under the hand of the modern political manager, the presidential campaigns are becoming enormously skilled exercises in image manipulation and issue evasion."

"Too many citizens doubt that their concerns will be answered by any candidate and as a result, turn away from politics and voting," Gardner says.

"The candidates, who should be engaged in robust debate with one another and lively dialogue with the voters, all too often dodge the crucial issues and avoid genuine give-and-take with citizens."

Gardner depicts the media as willing accomplices in this process (Bayh knew from experience that the photo of him hugging Inez Skelly—their meeting was no accident—would get good play), and Gardner believes the public should demand much more from the press and the candidates.

"What the candidate does or doesn't do, whether he or she faces an issue or evades it, whether or not he or she has press conferences, are all decisions made with Machiavellian shrewdness," Gardner says.

"The shape of the campaign isn't an act of God, it's an act of political managers. If the citizens play doormat, the citizens are going to get walked on."

So Common Cause intends to make "smoking out the candidates" a major item on its 1976 agenda. It wants to reshape not the face but the body of political campaigns. It thinks the days of hugging former teachers for the camera instead of grasping serious questions from informed voters in face-to-face forums should be numbered.

It is an admirable goal, but one that seems unreachable. According to public motivation polls, more voters would prefer to see a presidential candidate acknowledge a teacher than would want to hear him discuss the harsh realities of life in depressing detail.

But one hesitates to dismiss too quickly a major project of Common Cause. It will have to be considered a successful first step if, as a result, just one major presidential candidate rejects his strategists' advice to enter the con-shucking contest at the Iowa State Fair.

INSIDE REPORT:

Wallace Bears Burdens In Massachusetts

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

QUINCY, Mass. — In Catholic white working-class neighborhoods of Greater Boston where Gov. George C. Wallace seeks votes from anti-busing fervor, he instead risks an early disaster in his quest for Democratic national convention delegates.

That surprising conclusion is drawn from our interviews, conducted with Patrick Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, in two lower middle-income precincts of suburban Quincy. Although these predominantly Democratic voters hate the racial school busing, that does not translate into support for Wallace here as in other Northern cities. Typical is one 24-year-old auto mechanic, who told us: "I don't like busing, but I don't like what Wallace says against blacks."

This undercuts Wallace's tentative strategy: open his campaign this month with a Boston rally, skip the Feb. 24 New Hampshire primary and instead go into the Massachusetts primary a week later to ride the anti-busing wave in the only state carried by George McGovern. But our interviews suggest Wallace bears burdens in this state which afflict him nowhere else and might be relieved only by spectacularly successful campaigning.

Accompanied by pollster Caddell, we interviewed 78 registered voters in anti-busing country of the kind Wallace must sweep to compensate for liberal upper-income neighborhoods. Although Quincy has no busing, the voters interviewed have absolute empathy for their bused neighbors in Boston. Only two voters supported busing; 39 voters, exactly half, declared they would break the law to oppose busing; one out of three vowed opposition to any presidential candidate who supports busing.

But these same voters give Wallace a favorable rating of only 33 per cent—scarcely higher than the 26 per cent for federal Judge W. Arthur Garrity, Jr., father of Boston's busing. The voters interviewed approved President Ford by 75 per cent, Sen. Henry M. Jackson by 72 per cent and Sargent Shriver by 57 per cent.

As an independent candidate, Wallace runs as a poor third (with 9 votes in a Ford-Jackson race, 13 votes in a Ford-Shriver race). When opposed to six liberal Democratic candidates with pro-busing records (excluding anti-busing Jackson), Wallace is favored by only 12 of 54 registered Democrats—far below his needs in these precincts. Finally, he is volunteered as first choice for the Democratic nomination by just two voters.

Precisely half the voters said they would not vote for Wallace under any conditions, but none cited his physical disability. Rather, these were the anti-

Wallace complaints: "extreme," "radical," "arrogant," "blow-hard," "ignorant," "bigoted."

Rational explanations for being both anti-busing and anti-Wallace were given by a few voters, including a young electrician who told us: "I think he's a bit of a racist. I'm against busing, but I believe in equal opportunity."

However, many more voters here derive opposition to Wallace from xenophobia. "He's a redneck," a 24-year-old janitor told us. A 69-year-old widow objected to Wallace as a "true Southerner." In a decade of interviewing Northern whites about Wallace, this is the first anti-Southern hostility we have encountered. Unlike their counterparts in Chicago or New York, Greater Boston's ethnic voters may still be fighting the civil war.

Another sentiment we newly encountered was the feeling here that the political wizard of Montgomery is not quite bright. While commending Wallace as "a very courageous person," a plumber's wife told us he is "not smart enough to be President."

Beyond Wallace, these voters failed to correlate busing and presidential politics. A 49-year-old newspaper pressman vowed he would never vote for a candidate who supported busing but then volunteered Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, foe of Senate anti-busing amendments, as his choice for President.

Other fervent anti-busers expressed hope that the Senate's most fervent buser, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, would run for President after all. Kennedy's name was volunteered most often by the 54 Democrats (9 times). Most frequently selected (by 14 Democrats) in the contest between the six liberals and Wallace was Shriver, who is vaguely pro-busing.

This might change if Wallace, who has never campaigned extensively in Massachusetts, comes here to assail pro-busing records of his opponents as in the 1972 Florida primary.

But Massachusetts is not Florida—or even Michigan, Pennsylvania or Maryland. Liberal-oriented media, great universities and the abolitionist tradition help produce the anti-busing voter repelled when he sees his own passions reflected by George Wallace. A 53-year-old school janitor, ready to defy the law to oppose busing, says he cannot vote for Wallace, adding: "Sure, he's against busing, a little too much against busing."

American Fans Didn't 'Gub' Rollers On First Trip To U.S.

By MARY CAMPBELL, AP Newsfeatures Writer

The Bay City Rollers, the fresh-faced rock quintet from Scotland, didn't get gubbed on its first trip to America.

Gubbed is the word they made up for the phenomenon of having a girl jump on stage, fling her arm around a Roller's neck, a guard pulling her, she pulling the Roller and the choking Roller only able to say, "gub, gub."

In recent months, when the Bay City Rollers arrived in a town or gave a concert in Britain, Scandinavia or Germany, Rollermania ensued — complete with fans screaming, dressing like the Rollers in clothes trimmed in plaid, and girls trying to gub a Roller.

It didn't happen on their recent first trip to America, a trip for publicity and one TV appearance. On their arrival at Kennedy Airport, Eric Faulkner says, "There were more fans there than I expected. We got pulled and scraped — the usual."

No, says Alan Longmuir, founder of the group some 10 years ago. "We could never have walked out if it was the usual. We just got pushed and pulled a bit." Only a half dozen fans were camped out most times in their New York hotel lobby and response from the audience at the TV show was enthusiastic but not hysterical.

They even walked a bit on the streets of New York, which they haven't been able to do in most cities they've visited. None of them seem to mind the loss of freedom, saying it has just become a way of life. Usually, they rent films and projectors and watch movies inside their hotels, play guitar, write songs and never go out.

Besides Faulkner, 21, and Alan Longmuir, 26, there is his brother, Derek Longmuir, 23, Leslie McKeown, 19, and Stuart "Woody" Wood, 18.

On one day in New York, the group is in a hotel suite, holding a kind of drop-in open house for photographers and writers, two or three Rollers talking with one person a bit, then, with apparent cheerfulness, answering the same questions again for the next reporter.

Yes, they're named for an American city. When the group, known as the Saxons in 1973, wanted a new name they put down a pin into a U.S. map and hit Bay City, Mich. Rollers was added for obvious reasons.

Yes, they wear pants cut off at mid-calf and cuffed with plaid, plaid stripes sewn on the outside pant seam and plaid-trimmed shirts every day. Those are the only clothes they have.

They've started a mail order business back home to sell Roller-inspired socks, T shirts, and thought their fans should be able to get them cheaper.

They don't like the idea that their success is based on a hype — massive hypodermic injections of publicity. Faulkner says, "A lot of people feel 100,000 pounds was spent to make us an overnight success. It's the exact opposite. We've been in debt; our equipment was taken away by finance companies. We've done more work on the road than most troupes have done."

"A lot of people feel like we're like the Monkees — we've just been put together and somebody else is cutting the records in our name. Not at all. I'm annoyed when people say, 'You're a big hype.'" Alan Longmuir says, "When we did our first big tour in Britain, the newspapers never covered it that well. We'd had a lot of fans in Scotland but in England they didn't expect it."

"When it was starting to happen in England," Faulkner says, "we were doing ballrooms and clubs. We used to arrive at a place. We had started to get fans. We'd say, 'You've got to get a safer barrier up.' They'd tell us they'd had this group and that group and never had any trouble. Then we'd see that same guy trying to keep the fans back. We'd say, 'We told you so.'" The fans of the group are young and the Rollers say they don't mind that. When the Beatles and the Rolling Stones were first making it big, their fans were the teenyboppers, too. Rollermania is squarely in the tradition of Beatlemania.

ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE — Midland fourth and fifth graders attending the first youth concert of the new season Monday were an attentive audience for the jazz program presented by instrumentalists of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and conductor Dr. Thomas Hohstadt. The event in Lee High auditorium was sponsored by the Midland Symphony Guild and the Midland Independent School District. The orchestra will repeat the concert in Odessa Nov. 11 for selected students in that city.

Larry Gatlin Returns Home To Odessa

ODESSA — Singer and guitarist Larry Gatlin will return to his home town this week to present a Friday performance in the Odessa College auditorium.

The 8 p.m. event will be open to the public, with tickets available through today at the college bookstore, as well as the auditorium doors on performance evening. Admission will be $2 for adults, $1 for area students. OC students may attend free by showing current ID cards.

Gatlin, 26, was born in Seminole but grew up in Odessa. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Gatlin, still reside here.

While a student at UH that he got his start as a professional vocalist, singing with the Imperials, a gospel group. He worked with the group on the road and in performances at Las Vegas. It was while there that he had the opportunity to join the Dottie West group as a songwriter. He traveled with that ensemble for awhile, then was signed by Monument Records, which produced Gatlin's first LP in early 1974. Gatlin's star has been in steady ascendency since that time.

In addition to singing, he has a new hit single LP, "Sweet Becky Walker," which has vocal backing by Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge. As a performer he has been featured on several Johnny Cash shows on stage, and in a recent TV special. Even before recording his first LP on the Monument label, Gatlin ranked among the best of the contemporary songwriters on the American scene, and his tunes have been recorded by such luminaries as Cash, Dottie West, Ray Price and Elvis Presley.

Gatlin attended Odessa College, then enrolled in the University of Houston. It was

Immunity Vital, Prosecutors Claim

The Los Angeles Times (Pachtman, 74-5435) will almost certainly lead to a landmark ruling on the immunity of prosecutors, an issue that has recently stirred the legal community because of an upswing in the number of inmates' suits against prosecutors who sent them to prison.

Los Angeles Dep. County Counsel John P. Farrell, representing Pachtman, urged the justices Monday to grant state prosecutors absolute immunity, modeled on the absolute protection already accorded judges and legislators.

Anything less than absolute immunity, Farrell said, would open up prosecutors to vexatious and often baseless suits from disgruntled defendants and force prosecutors to spend valuable time defending themselves, perhaps at the expense of their official duties.
