Arthur Burns may urge New York aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns said today he will recommend federal help for New York City if the nation's financial markets begin deteriorating noticeably.

Burns told a meeting of the House Republican Conference that he is probably closer now than ever before to feeling federal help will be needed for the nation's largest city, but that he still has not concluded help is necessary.

Burns also said he was pleased to learn New York Gov. Hugh Carey has decided to increase taxes to help with state and city financial problems, and said Carey should have done it earlier.

Carey has drafted a complex proposal involving new state and city taxes and help from banks and the federal government to keep New York City from default and stabilize the state's own shaky finances.

Burns said that New York City's financial problems have "cast a dark cloud over the entire market for municipal securities," which he said undoubtedly has resulted in a slowdown in spending plans by local governments throughout the country.

Other financial markets are holding up well, Burns said, adding that he will not change his position on New York aid "unless or until I see markets deteriorating noticeably."

Burns said nobody can predict with any certainty just what will happen if and when New York City defaults on its debts. "I am struggling with this problem; my concern has deepened," he said.

"Every fair-minded person believes New York has done a great deal," Burns added. "I for one think they haven't done enough, but they have done a great deal."

Meanwhile, New York City's special default attorney said there is no question that the federal government will have to pump billions of dollars into the city. The only issue is how much money and for how long, said Ira Milstein.

Speaking at a news conference,

Milstein said the city will not be able to raise its own money through bond sales in many states for at least a generation.

"Regardless whether we default or not, we're going to be here in Washington seeking help," Milstein said. "You can be sure the federal government is going to become the parent of the city."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said New York City will be short $500 million next month and $1.2 billion short through March.

Asked about chances for loan guarantee legislation winning approval in the Senate, Proxmire said he now believes there are enough votes to shut off an expected filibuster by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., and to win passage of the bill.

Under Carey's new proposal to avoid default, New York City residents, who already have the highest sales taxes in the country, would be faced with a one-cent sales tax increase, to nine cents on the dollar.

Andrews youth found hanged Aussies in uproar

ANDREWS — A 15-year-old Andrews youth apparently hanged himself with his bootlaces early Monday morning in his Andrews County jail cell.

Roy Sellers was found dead in his cell about 9:15 a.m. by Deputy Jack Ramsey who was making his regular rounds before breakfast.

Justice of the Peace G. A. Ragsdale ruled the youth's death as self-inflicted strangulation.

A sheriff's office spokesman said Sellers apparently tied his bootlaces together before securing one end to a clothing hook on the wall. The other end was tied around his neck.

His feet, Ramsey said, never left the floor of the cell.

Sellers had been jailed Oct. 24 following an incident in an Andrews restaurant where he allegedly threatened to do bodily harm with a knife. He had moved to the city with his family from Farmington, N.M., about six weeks ago.

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Strikes hit Australia's waterfronts today in protest against Governor-General Sir John Kerr's unprecedented dismissal of Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and his Labor government.

Seaman walked off ships and dock workers quit work.

Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, said violence in the streets was a "real possibility." He appealed to the unions for restraint.

Hundreds of people appeared outside Parliament House, chanting, "We want Gough! We want Gough!"

Some of them beat angrily on the automobile of conservative opposition leader Malcolm Fraser, who was appointed caretaker prime minister by Kerr until a general election can be held.

It was the first time a governor-general had fired a prime minister in the 75 years since the formation of the Australian Commonwealth. Kerr's action compounded a constitutional crisis which began 28 days ago with the refusal of the opposition majority in the upper house of Parliament to approve the Labor government's budget. That, too, was a first in Australian history.

CHICAGO (AP) — The chairman of the American Petroleum Institute says motorists should forget about reports gasoline prices will climb to $1 a gallon.

Zionism vote raises retaliation possibility

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly's adoption of a resolution declaring Zionism a form of racism and racial discrimination raised the threat today of U.S. financial retaliation against the United Nations and the supporters of the resolution.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., suggested withholding American aid from nations that voted for the resolution Monday. President Ford's plans to ask Congress for $848 million for Egypt, one of the Arab sponsors of the resolution, appeared a likely target.

Another candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, said the assembly vote may result in a "full reappraisal of the United States' participation and its role in funding the U.N."

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., said the assembly action was "an irresponsible action and a victory for no one."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the vote compromised the principles on which the United Nations was founded.

The vote on the resolution, which Cuba joined the Arabs in sponsoring, was 72 to 35 with 32 abstentions and three nations absent. The declaration has no binding force, but the United States and other critics warned that it could provide some countries a legal excuse for reviving anti-Semitism.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who never comments on assembly votes, took the unusual step of declaring that the passions aroused by the Zionism issue brought the United Nations to "a critical situation" that could be resolved only through urgent settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog said Israel regards the declaration as "no more than a piece of paper." The issue is not Israel or Zionism, he said, but "the continued existence of this

Police officers air grievances at meeting

BELFAST (AP) — A young man was shot to death at a bus stop here today in what authorities said was a continuation of feuding between rival branches of the Irish Republican Army.

By COURTNEY BARBER

Three major points of grievances were discussed by Midland Police Department officers with Fred Poe, assistant city manager Monday afternoon with over half of the force attending the meeting.

Officers talked about the ineffective maintenance of patrol cars, pay raises and vested rights.

James Brown, city manager, had been asked to attend the meeting, but could not make it. Police Chief Harold S. Wallace declined the invitation.

"Three weeks ago an officer had an accident (in his patrol car)," patrolman J. D. Luckie said. "He had had eight hours sleep in three days due to holding down another job."

"We've lost 12 officers on the force. It cost $4,000 to train them and they move on after a year or two," Luckie said, because of the pay. "The city has lost $48,000."

Officers are wanting pay increases of $156 a month to "bring us up to the level of a patrolman working for the Department of Public Safety. Sgt. Vince Conklin said a MPD Patrolman II earns $823 and has three years experience, as compared to a Patrolman I for the DPS, who earns $976 a month, which is $5 a month more than a lieutenant on the police force.

Poe said he and Brown "first started looking at a 10 per cent across the board pay increase, however, there was a slowdown back in May or June" in the rise in the cost of living.

"We project five months ahead. Unfortunately, the increase in the cost of living turned the other way."

"Because of the slow down, we tried to sell the council on a nine per cent increase," Poe said. City employees received 7.5 per cent increase.

"We probably spent more time on it than on the other things combined. I don't think the council would mind going over it again."

Luckie pointed out policemen's insurance rates had "increased by 40 per cent. We pay more for insurance than we are putting in for our retirement. You gave it to me, but you took it back."

Poe responded saying, "I know we were weak in our budget planning. They (other city employees) may have broke even on it (the pay increase), where you had to dig into your pocket.

safety sticker, knowing his patrol car was as unsafe as it was."

"We're not demanding, Mr. Poe, we're asking," Luckie said.

Sgt. Joe Carr said, "I'm not chunking down my badge, joining a union or going to leave Midland, if I don't get a raise."

"We don't want to strike, form a union or bargain collectively," Conklin said. "We want to form an association to work through and stay within the proper channels."

"I don't see any objection to an association," Poe said. "I'm sure the council wouldn't object either as long as you keep the outside influences out."

Poe added he would be glad to sit and visit with the officers. "If we've got problems, we certainly want to correct them. We do not want a citizen or you either to get hurt."

He said they had been working or vested rights and had developed several "options" including dropping vested rate from 28 years to 20 however, this matter was still being studied.

Officers and Poe agreed to meet again when they can provide figures on vested rights, the need for pay increases and specifics on patrol car maintenance problems.

Mahon opens office here

Rep. George Mahon's Midland office officially opened today.

Mahon, whose main office is in Lubbock, said Miss Laura McElroy, a graduate of Texas Tech, will be in charge of his Midland area office. Miss McElroy has worked for Mahon for three years in his Washington and Lubbock offices.

The office is located in Room 208 of the Federal Building on Wall Street. The office will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"I believe the Midland office will prove helpful to me in serving the needs of the people in the area," Mahon said.

Judge orders Karen Quinlan's life sustained by respirator

By B. D. COLEN
The Washington Post

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — Karen Ann Quinlan's father may not order his daughter's life-sustaining respirator turned off, a New Jersey Superior Court Judge ruled here Monday.

The decision to continue to maintain Miss Quinlan with a respirator, after she has been in a coma for almost seven months, must ultimately be made by doctors, and not by a court of law, ruled Judge Robert Muir.

Such a decision, he said, may "be concurred in by the parents, but not governed by them."

While Muir ruled that the decision to turn off the respirator is a medical decision, he also said that the permission sought by Joseph Quinlan "would result in the taking of the life of Karen Quinlan such as the law of the state indicates that such an authorization would be homicide

... It is a reasonable construction that the law of this state would preclude the removal of Karen Quinlan from the respirator, the judge said.

Joseph Quinlan filed suit here in September asking that he be named Karen Quinlan's guardian for the express purpose of ordering doctors to turn off her respirator.

In turning down Quinlan's request, Judge Muir named Daniel Coburn, Miss Quinlan's court-appointed attorney, as guardian of the 21-year-old woman.

"Mr. Quinlan impressed me as a very sincere, moral, ethical and religious person," said Muir in his 44-page written decision. "He very obviously anguished over his decision to terminate what he considers the extraordinary care of his daughter.

"That anguish would be continued and magnified by the inner conflicts he would have if he were required to concur on the day-by-day decisions on the future care of his daughter," said Muir, explaining why he was naming Coburn guardian.

In the first case in which a court has been asked to allow an act which will cause the death of a terminal patient, Muir ruled that while Miss Quinlan's condition is irreversible, and while she has been described medically as being "vegetative," there is an obligation to sustain her life.

"There is a higher standard, a higher duty, that encompasses the uniqueness of human life, the integrity of the medical profession and the attitude of society toward the physician and therefore the morals of society," he wrote.

"A patient is placed, or places himself in the care of a physician with the expectation that he (the physician) will do everything in his power, everything that is known to modern medicine, to protect the patient's life. He will do all within his human power to favor life against death."

The Quinlan case has attracted international attention because the dilemma of the Quinlans has become a common one in an age in which almost any life can be sustained by machines.

Decisions to terminate care in hopeless cases like that of Karen Quinlan are made in hospitals every day, but the doctors and relatives who make those decisions do so knowing they may someday have to face criminal charges if their action results in the patient's death.

Muir's decision does not appear to do anything to make the dilemma any less difficult. On the contrary, simply because the question has been aired in court, and because Muir rejected the request, such decision-making may be more difficult in the future.

Ship believed sunk in storm

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — An oil slick, two empty lifeboats and debris were spotted today on Lake Superior near where the ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald was believed sunk in a storm with 29 crewmen aboard, the Coast Guard said.

Oglebay-Norton Co., owner of the 17-year-old freighter, identified the Fitzgerald's captain as E. R. McSorley of Toledo, Ohio, and said 28 others, including a cadet sailor, were aboard.

"In all probability we're assuming the vessel has sunk," said Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer Laurence Robbins.

Some debris was reported washed up at Pancake Point on the Canadian shore near Batchawana Bay, about 50 miles northwest of Sault Ste. Marie. Ontario police were dispatched to the area to search for possible survivors.

"We're finding a lot of debris and we've found a couple of lifeboats. But we haven't found any people alive or dead," said Chief Jere Bennett of the Coast Guard air rescue station at Sault Ste. Marie in Michigan's eastern Upper Peninsula.

"There's a lot of debris, but we haven't found anything that would have washed off," he said.

competition will maintain reasonable and realistic levels.

Such controls are to end Saturday night unless Congress and President Ford agree upon an extension.

Spahr suggested Ford veto a conference bill now under consideration in that "it is far from objective. The bill would cause greater dependency on foreign oil supplies in that it fails to include any incentives to raise the capital needed for boosting domestic supplies," Spahr said.

Spahr spoke at Monday's concluding session of the annual meeting of oil's largest trade group. His report concluded two years as head of the group. He is to be succeeded by Maurice F. Granville, chairman of the Texas Oil Co.

Spahr said competition among refiners and marketers has caused recent gasoline price reductions in Chicago and across the nation.

"You are seeing the effects of current excess refining capacity compared with demand," he said, adding that refiners and retailers are sacrificing prices while trying to sustain sales volumes.

"There is plenty of refining capacity and plenty of dispensing capacity under today's conditions," he said. "Those facts are the kind that lead to price competition that benefits the public."

He said prices, in the longer run, will have to increase as costs go up.

Cold snap approaches

Some of the chilliest weather so far this season headed into Texas from New Mexico today.

Skies cleared throughout the state and gusty south winds raked the High Plains as the new cold snap approached, hard on the heels of a weaker one which finished sweeping across the state early Monday, the Associated Press reported.

At the same time a tropical depression, still a little short of storm stature, idled for a second day in the Gulf of Mexico. It was reported about 350 miles south-southeast of New Orleans and edging toward the north.

Observers advised interests in the central and east parts of the Gulf especially to be on guard against the potential storm. There was no indication whether it might alter course and point for the Texas coast.

Forecasters promised a fresh surge of cool, dry air across the state toward the southeast as the latest front was progressing through Northwest New Mexico. Overnight temperatures down to the lower 20s were predicted in the Texas Panhandle and a freeze warning went up for the South Plains.

Except for increasing clouds and a possibility of showers and thunderstorms near the coast and in parts of East Texas, generally fair weather was expected to continue.

PBRPC to open ambulance bids

Bids will be opened on 10 Emergency Medical System (EMS) ambulances when the board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission meet in regular session at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Directors will also appoint a committee to study the EMS bids and make awards.

The EMS ambulance program is expected to continue over the next four years, according to Andy Anderson, EMS systems engineer. Eventually, it will cost about $2 million. The program is for the Permian Basin region and hopes to train 400 persons as Emergency Medical Technicians.

Board members will consider a resolution on the application of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation for continued staffing of the Midland Center. The Centers are requesting $29,952 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and $59,406 from the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in their application. A local match of $10,483 brings the project total to $99,841 in this continuing grant.

Approval is expected to be given to three appointments to the Drug Abuse Advisory Committee and three to the Alcoholism Advisory Committee. David Norwood, Dr. James Snedeker and Mrs. Bob Jones are nominees from Winkler County to the Drug Abuse Advisory Committee, while Winkler County appointees to the Alcoholism Advisory Committee are E. B. "Buck" Haggard, W. E. Henrich and Curtis Simpson.

PBRPC directors will consider recommendations from the Government Application Review Committee for approval of three applications from the City of Big Spring, Mortgage and Trust Inc. and the Trans-Pecos Resource Conservation and Development Area.

The request from the City of Big Spring is a 701 Planning and Management Program application for $40,000 from the State with a local match of $20,000 to equal $60,000. Funds will be used to set up a new Master Plan for the city.

Mortgage and Trust Inc. of Midland's request is for federal assistance to develop a subdivision in the 3600 and 3700 blocks of W. Ohio.

The Trans-Pecos application is for Resource Conservation and Development project assistance over an eight-county area.

In other business, directors will consider a request by Ector County for $113,585 from the Office of the Governor, Criminal Justice Division, for continued funding of the Regional Youth Center.

A request by Ector County for $20,000 from the Criminal Justice Division for a pre-architectural design for its jail.

A request by the 83rd and 112th Judicial Districts for $73,238 from the Criminal Justice Division for continuation of their probation project.

Approval of the by-laws and an amendment to the by-laws of the Manpower Advisory Committee;

Recommendations of the Health System Agency Steering Committee, and

A proposal from the Manpower Advisory Committee for a non-financial cooperating agreement between the PBRPC and the American GI Forum.

GOP chairman names Angelo, Max Preston

AUSTIN — Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Max Preston of San Angelo have been named to a new 15-member Republican Executive Campaign Committee by GOP State Chairman Ray Hutchison.

At Hutchison's recommendation, the Sunday meeting of the State GOP Executive Committee adopted a resolution establishing the Campaign Committee. The group is authorized to channel funds "to targeted candidates which it judges have good chances of winning their races."

In selecting Angelo to the committee, Hutchison picked a recent rival for the state party chairmanship. Bob Flournoy of Lufkin was designated vice chairman of the group.

Republican committee members also accepted a resolution creating a central campaign fund to aid members under a new program to win elective offices from the county and municipal level up to state and national offices.

Sen. John Tower told the group that the new political focus was the only way Republicans could play a meaningful role in Texas politics.

Local government to be meeting topic

How to provide the best public education on county government will be the discussion topic during the seventh in a series of neighborhood meetings, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Park Center YMCA, 1509 Orchard Lane.

The meeting series is sponsored by the Human Relations Council of Midland in conjunction with the Texas Committee for the Humanities and Public Policy under the auspices of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Tuesday's session is the seventh in a series of eight meetings held throughout the city to improve communications between citizens and local government agencies.

The meeting will bring together Midland County representatives and several local teachers who specialize in social studies, history or government.

It is open to the public and persons interested in further information may contact Rodrigo A. Lopez at the Human Relations Council, 606 W. Ohio St., 684-5866.

Constitution election made official

By DEBBIE PIERCE
Midland County's votes in 4 last Tuesday's constitutional election were canvassed yesterday in the regular session of Midland County Commissioners Court.

The official election results showed that 7,645 county residents cast their ballots in the election and defeated all eight propositions by a ratio of 8-to-1.

The official returns were:
Proposition 1 — for 862, against 6,677;
Proposition 2 — for 1,046, against 6,474;
Proposition 3 — for 973, against 6,551;
Proposition 4 — for 886, against 6,751;
Proposition 5 — for 773, against 6,638;
Proposition 6 — for 879, against 6,674, and Proposition 7 — for 954, against 6,554.

A request by Dwayne Casbeer for rental of the County Exhibits Building was narrowly approved 3-to-2 by the court. Casbeer had sought use of the building for a Western dance to be held Dec. 6. He said he also planned for tickets to be sold at the door to help defray costs of the dance.

Commissioner John Thomas, speaking against Casbeer's request, said he didn't see "how this could be for the good of the community." He added that he was not against the event in itself, but he didn't think the county building would be an appropriate site for a dance where alcoholic beverages would be sold.

Casbeer said the dance would cater mainly to the people under 30, "who need to have something to do." He added that Midland has been trying to keep its young people in the city rather than going to area cities for various activities.

Commissioner Durward Wright said his main concern was the "cleanliness" of the operation of the dance. Casbeer assured the group six policemen would be on duty to prevent trouble from arising.

The request was accepted with County Judge Barbara Culver casting the tie-breaking vote. Commissioners Wright and Win Brown voted their approval, while Commissioners Thomas and Charlie Welch dissented.

In other action, the court learned they were invited to a meeting of elected officials to study transportation planning at 10 a.m. Nov. 13 in Odessa. The meeting is being sponsored by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Commissioners recessed their meeting until a later date.

DEAR ABBY

Respect vs. proper

By Abigail Van Buren
 DEAR ABBY: I have a problem with my mother-in-law. She and my husband believe that it is a matter of "respect" to let her sit in the front next to her son when we're in the car together. Of course that means I have to sit in the back.
 I have tried to tell my husband that this has nothing to do with respect and that I should sit next to him. It burns me up, and they both know it.
 His mother is 47 and has no disabilities, so there is no good reason for her to sit next to my husband.
 I always thought that once married, your spouse becomes the most important person in your life and his family comes next.

It's gotten to the point where if his mother is going along, I just refuse to go. She doesn't drive and won't learn, so you can see that this poses a big problem.
 There is no use talking to her because she already knows how I feel. She just thinks I should show her respect and get in the back.
 What do you think is the respectable and proper thing to do?

 Q. How many people are there who are born with their hearts on the right side and how long do they live?

A. Actually there is about as much heart tissue on the right side of the chest as on the left. However, there are people with the apex or tip on the right side instead of the left. This is rather rare. If there are no other abnormalities, it generally does not interfere with life expectancy at all, and is frequently discovered accidentally.

Driver's excuses

By Erma Bombeck

Years ago, I stopped apologizing for the condition of my house. Those who knew me understood why I had a basketball in my bathroom and those who didn't know me didn't want to know they really saw it.

I still indulge myself in the great American pastime, the making-excuses-for-the-condition-of-your-car number.

I have never climbed into a car in my life that the driver wasn't ready with an alibi. Everyone does it. A few weeks ago I entered a car that had nothing in it but a piece of lint and an umbrella and the owner turned ashen and said, "I must apologize. We have children."

"No need to apologize," I said. "What you do on your own time is your business."

"I mean the car," he said.

"If my car was this clean, I'd turn it into a mobile X-ray unit."

I drive a 1971 Dirmobile and frankly I'm running out of excuses. My husband opened the door on the passenger side a few weeks ago and a potato rolled out.

"What happened?" he asked.

"Would you believe we're decorating?"

"This is disgusting! Why do I smell onions?"

"Because the ashtrays are full and they overpower the pickles."

"What is that beneath your accelerator?"

"A tennis ball."

"Why is there an umbrella fully opened in the back seat? Don't you know it brings bad luck?"

"We noticed that when we couldn't get it down and we couldn't get it out of the car."

"Is... is dashboard full of dust?"

"We like to think of it as a message center."

"When was this car last serviced?" I opened the door and read, "MC-MLXXII."

"This is a real dump. Stacks of newspapers, ball gloves, candy wrappers, books, thermoses, old gym clothes, empty bottles, a sleeping bag, bicycle pump and not one inch of space on the floor to put your feet. Why?"

I looked over at him as his hairy legs dangled awkwardly from the car seat. "How about, you can't get decent help these days?"

Retired man makes furniture

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
 Associated Press Writer
 DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Don't tell Davy Jones, but Monkota Karnes has been raiding his locker to furnish a central Illinois living room.

Karnes, 61, a retired mailman, converts fragments of ships sunk in the 1800s on the Great Lakes into fashionable tables and lamps.

He leaves the diving to his son, Monty, a high school teacher from Flint, Mich., who retrieves the planks, rusty dead-eyes and porthole fixtures from sunken hulks and sends them to his father.

"I was surprised how well the water seems to have preserved the wood," Karnes said as he showed a reporter a table he had made.

Two planks taken from a ship called the Jacob Bertschy, sunk in 1879 off Port Austin, Mich., were used to make the table top. The planks are two inches thick, punctured with knotholes but sturdy.

The legs of the table were made from the ship's anchor chain. The 14 chain links, which are so heavy Karnes had to remove them one link at a time from a car trunk, were welded together and painted black after the rust was removed.

A dead-eye, an elliptical arrangement of wood and metal used to keep the ropes to the ship's masts in place, was scraped and converted into a three-foot-tall lamp.

'Without new taxes'

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, with whom a vast majority of Texans last week rode roughshod over the proposed new state constitution, now expresses the opinion that the people are better off with less government and that the need for new taxes is not now apparent.

And with these two significant opinions, most Texans will agree wholeheartedly.

He said further, in addressing the annual meeting of the Texas Research League at Austin, that the time has come when Texans must decide what kind of state government they want.

"We have been living in an era when the predominant thinking in government has been that any problem could be solved just by spending more money," the governor said.

He told his listeners that a close look must be taken at state spending on school education, both secondary and higher, and at the fast-growing state government payroll.

"I personally believe," he said, "that it is time to recognize that the people of this country are better off with less government — not more government.

"And with the voters of our state again expressing their desire that we remain on a two-year budgetary cycle, I am convinced that once again — in 1977 — we can finance state government without new or additional taxes."

He pleased most Texans by taking and holding that stand prior to and during the last session of the legislature, and it is hoped that he can and will do it again.

Briscoe said that during the last 10 years the state budget has increased 250 per cent with spending on higher education five times the 1966-67 level.

He called for a redirection of elementary and secondary education within the framework of career education, so that each high school graduate will have a salable skill enabling him or her to become a productive, contributing citizen.

He also advocates taking a new look at state employment which has increased from 45,000 in 1957 to 135,000 in 1974.

Howdy, Sun Oil group

Top executives of Sun Oil Co. are special guests in the Tall City today and Midlanders are as proud as can be to have them here.

—It always is great to have distinguished businessmen, particularly leaders in the petroleum industry, in Midland, and the Sun Oil group certainly is no exception. It is hoped that their stay here will be both profitable and enjoyable from every standpoint.

The Sun officers and directors will be the guests of the Midland Wildcat Committee at a reception given in their honor from 5 to 7 p.m. today in the Petroleum Club.

Chairman Robert L. Wood of the host organization said a large crowd of Midlanders will be on hand at that time to greet the visitors and to make them feel perfectly at home in this Headquarters City of the Permian Basin Empire.

Sun Oil Co. has been a good corporate citizen of the Tall City for a good many years now, and it and its personnel are respected and appreciated for their support of and participation in various community affairs.

A warm and most cordial, typically West Texas WELCOME is directed to H. Robert Sharbaugh, chairman and president of Sun Oil Co., and his associates on this occasion. It is hoped that they will come back to see us soon and often.

ART BUCHWALD

'I lost my job, but I'll find something'

By ART BUCHWALD
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The first thing that came to my mind last week when I heard about all the different changes in President Ford's "team" is what a blow it must have been to the Rockefeller.

In the last few months the Rockefeller have been throwing party after party to introduce everyone to the new vice-presidential residence on Massachusetts Ave., and it cost them a pretty penny. I'm certain they wouldn't have gone to all that expense if they had any idea that President Ford was going to push Rocky off the ticket in 1976.

As a matter of fact I wouldn't have wanted to have been in Rocky's shoes the night he came home and broke the news to Happy.

"Rocky, you looked bushed. Have a dry martini. I've been making up the guest list for our next party to show people the new vice-presidential mansion."

"I wouldn't do that if I were you, Happy."

"Why not?"

"I don't think we're going to be living here much longer."

"You mean you've been fired?"

"Not exactly. But Gerry doesn't want me on his new team."

"That's awful. What are we going to do? How are we going to make a living?"

Art Buchwald

"Don't worry. I'll find something. My brother David knows a lot of people and I'm sure one of them will give me a job."

"How could he do it to you? You've worked so hard and you've been so loyal."

"That doesn't count when you're a Vice President. Gerry's worried about his own job, and he figures if he gets rid of me the Republican board of directors will get off his back."

"But the least he could have done was tell you before we gave all those parties. We used up our life savings entertaining the very people Gerry is trying to placate."

"Don't be too harsh on him, Happy. He hit his head on a swimming pool a few days ago, and that might have had something to do with his decision."

"Well, you can take it with equanimity, but I'm the one who has to make ends meet. We've still got the children to educate and we'll have to move and we still have the caterer's bill to pay."

"David will help us with a loan. Happy. It could be worse. Gerry fired Jim Schlesinger and Bill Colby today as well. We're still on the payroll until December 30, 1976. Those poor guys have to apply for unemployment insurance next week. They took one of Henry's jobs away, too."

"It's disgraceful. I think you should write Gerry a letter and tell him what you really think."

"I have to write him a letter, but I don't think I better tell him what I really think."

"Why not?"

"I might need him for references in case someone offers me a job."

"What I don't like about it is that he kept saying you were the greatest Vice President he ever had. If he thought so highly of you, why didn't he want to keep you?"

"Maybe it's because I'm a New Yorker. He's had it in for New Yorkers for the last six months. He makes jokes about us all the time."

"Oh, Rocky, what are we going to do?"

"I don't know. I guess you better call the caterer and tell him we may have to default on his bill."

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Plots to kill columnist cited

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Winston Churchill once said that nothing is more exhilarating than to be shot at — and missed. It is in this spirit that I look back upon the White House plots to ploy me with poisons and hallucinogens.

To be sure, these conspiracies had a Maxwell Smart quality. But an organized attempt by the White House to destroy or discredit a reporter should not be airily dismissed because it failed or because the results had a comic side.

No President should be permitted to marshal the awesome powers of government against a reporter, not even for the grievous offense of embarrassing the White House.

I would prefer to write this story about someone else. But since I was the unhappy object of Richard Nixon's revenge, it is my story. The full facts, I now feel, should be placed on the public record.

From sources and documents made available to me, here is the incredible story. It can best be told in chronological order:

OCT. 6, 1970: President Nixon, who had groused about earlier stories I had written, positively exploded over a column about his backstage efforts to get a higher presidential pension. Not long afterwards, staff chief H. R. Haldeman assigned a special White House investigator, Jack Caulfield, to investigate me.

FEB. 11, 1971: In a confidential report to Haldeman, Caulfield revealed that I had "access to intelligence digests and ... private presidential memoranda." He called for "an overt firing of a person directly connected with a leak." This would make "the ability of the Andersons of the world to gain White House information both difficult and hazardous," he suggested.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER: One witness recalls that Haldeman wanted not only to fire but to jail anyone caught leaking information to me.

SUMMER, 1971: The wrong man, Gene Smith, a $13,500-a-year Pentagon clerk, was fingered and dragged before a grand jury. The charges eventually were dropped.

NOV. 11, 1971: White House aide Charles Colson came up with a preposterous charge that I had been paid $100,000 to write favorable stories about the erstwhile Cuban dictator Batista. "It now appears," wrote Colson in a confidential memo, "as if we have the opportunity to destroy Anderson's credibility."

DEC. 14 or 15, 1971: President Nixon, furious over my stories that he had lied about his India-Pakistan policy, unleashed the notorious White House plumbers against me.

LATE DECEMBER, 1971: The plumbers discussed coating my steering wheel with an exotic poison that they intended to scrouge from the Central Intelligence Agency. This was supposed to penetrate my skin as I was driving home, causing a fatal accident. They got the idea, my sources suggest, from a possible offhand remark by Colson that he'd "like to slip Anderson a mickey." But no assassination order, so far as I can learn, was actually issued to the plumbers.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER: White House aide Jeb Stuart Magruder, referring to me at a staff conference, grumped: "Boy, it'd be nice if we could get rid of that guy." Plumber G. Gordon Liddy thought he had been instructed to kill me. He was stopped, mercifully, after an aide apprised Magruder of Liddy's intent.

JANUARY, 1972: The CIA, in violation of U.S. law, sent men with binoculars and walkie-talkies to keep my house under surveillance. They also tailed me and kept two of my reporters under observation.

MARCH 9 or 10, 1972: President Nixon told aides at a meeting in the oval office: "We have got to get the goods on Jack Anderson." He instructed John Ehrlichman to call FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover and ask for any dirt the FBI might have on me.

MARCH 18, 1972: White House counsel John Dean delivered to the President an FBI summary of its Jack Anderson file. Nixon was so disappointed that he scribbled a handwritten, "Dear Edgar" note to the FBI director, asking for more details. Additional information was furnished.

MARCH, 1972: The Justice Department's Internal Security Division, Republican National Committee and Committee to Reelect the President were enlisted in the campaign against me.

SUMMER, 1972: H.R. Haldeman sent a message to the Justice Department urging that I be nailed for some crime, any crime. Officials decided they might be able to make a case out of our access to government documents constituted "possession of stolen goods." They discussed a raid on my office but decided against it.

NICK THIMMESCH

Something to cherish, not fight about

EUREKA, Calif. — This is redwoods country where stands of these majestic trees serve both as places of nature worship and as a valuable, highly replenishable resource in a world where irreplaceable commodities dwindle.

As usual, with the holy tree, there is an emotional battle going on between those calling themselves environmentalists and the timber companies harvesting redwoods and other big trees on their own tracts of land.

This isn't a fight over the redwood tree we all saw in schoolbooks, the one with the car being driven through, the "Sequoia Gigantea," preserved in national parks and forests, and never logged. No, the fight is over the world's tallest trees, the redwood called "Seervirens," which can reach a height of 367 feet; they are a splendid lumber product.

Substantial tracts of these tall redwoods are preserved in three California state parks, and in the Redwood National Park, comprising 56,000 acres, and established in 1968. Timber companies still own some 425,000 acres in the area, but now comes that West Coast ideologue, Rep. Philip Burton, with a bill to acquire another 74,000 acres from the timber companies and expand the Redwood National Park.

Burton, who relies almost entirely on the Sierra Club for his research and inspiration, is adamant about the bill, and only marks time until fellow committee members visit the Redwoods area for a look-see. Burton hasn't set foot in the Redwoods in his adult life. He feels it unnecessary for himself to make the pilgrimage or to hear the views of the timber companies.

"I visited the Redwoods when I was 13 years old," Burton says. "I remember what they're like. As for the timber companies, I've never asked their best judgment on anything and never will."

Right on! That's the spirit, Burton.

keep our resource problems right there on the adversary level. Keep it emotional for those millions of voters down there in the big urban areas of California and, heaven forbid, don't try to develop a rational policy for our resources.

In his House speech introducing the bill last spring, Burton routinely scored the timber conies as the ravagers of nature, claimed the Department of Interior is indifferent to protecting timber stands and thumped for quick action, less the redwoods "simply slide down and be washed into the sea over the course of time."

Burton is far quieter about the cost of his proposed acquisition. Interior Department officials estimate that it would be upwards of $300 million and figure there are better ways to spend this large sum. The purchase cost of the original park was supposed to be $92 million, but since negotiations have dragged on for seven years (with 6 per cent interest accumulating) the final bill may double.

Even so, if timbering operations threatened the nearby federal and state parks or covered such a large area as to deny the public access to these marvelous stands of forest, the expenditures would be worth it.

But so much of the impetus for environmentalism is based on this brand of hysteria. A statement by G. Gordon Robinson of the Sierra Club of the effect of timbering near Redwood National Park charged that the companies "are heavily engaged in the most destructive logging operations that have ever occurred in human history."

Well, even a tenderfoot like me knows that is so much rubbish. The logging operations of the 19th century in this area laid the hills bare for as far as a man could see, and that simply isn't the case now. Anyone who visits this area—as Rep. Burton hasn't and apparently won't—can see that timbering, or tree farming, as the companies like to call it, is a scientifically developed and highly regulated enterprise.

The timber companies certainly aren't saints, but they are smart enough to use modern forestry practices—reseedling, replanting, fertilizing, selective cuttings and thinning. Moreover, the young foresters I met are hardly exploitation minded. They are part of the "now" generation, as truly environmental minded as, say, the Beverly Hills Sierras set who might only see the redwoods in pamphlet form.

Even those huge areas ravaged by greedy loggers anywhere from 40 to 100 years ago have grown back. The redwood has survived fires, floods, exploiting companies and mindless loggers. It is remarkably renewable, can sprout new trees from stumps and just won't go away.

Sure, there are legitimate squabbles over the redwoods (and Douglas firs, too), such as the current one centering on Redwood Creek where, it is charged, slope logging practices have caused erosion and sedimentation which threaten to undercut unusually tall trees in a flat section of the nearby Redwood National Forest. The timber companies argue that Mother Nature, not logging operations, caused the heavy stream flow. Environmentalists blame the companies. There are studies backing each argument; still another is expected soon from the U.S. Geological Survey.

If it is demonstrated that the companies are at fault, then they had damned well better stop logging operations on the slopes. This is the kind of reality both sides should recognize.

There are some other realities to ponder about the redwoods. Indeed, about all our great natural resource areas. The Europeans have carefully managed their forests for centuries, providing nature lovers and industry with a timeless resource, and there's no reason the same can't be done here. The Redwood National Park, for all its ballyhoo, has recorded light attendance since it opened in 1968. It's a 16-mile round-trip hike to see the world's tallest tree at Redwood Creek. Despite hundreds of more convenient opportunities to see and walk among the majestic redwoods. One is the famous Lady Bird Johnson Grove off Bald Hill Road. Most people like to know the redwoods are around, but that doesn't mean they want to wander miles through them.

Clearly, timber is a replenishable resource that we should not fence off from our economy. We should be grateful there is an environmentalist movement, though it sometimes flays more than it reasons, just to keep the timber companies honest. But the day is coming in America when we must learn to resolve these kind of disputes in consensus fashion, rather than fighting them out winner-take-all style in courts or legislatures.

Dallas, 5-3 for the year, sank a game behind Washington and St. Louis in the National Conference East.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach's nine-yard touchdown run and a 31-yard Toni Fritch field goal gave Dallas a 10-3 lead after Jan Stenerud's booming 51-yarder.

Richards snared a 47-yard bomb from Staubach to even matters in the third period before Stenerud kicked a 44-yarder for a 27-24 lead.

Sails ready to fold

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Diego Sails, the latest trouble spot in the American Basketball Association, may be ready to fold.

If the San Diego franchise is dropped Sail players will most likely be distributed among the other clubs in a dispersal draft similar to the one held in the wake of Baltimore's demise.

Robinson, a former Southern Cal assistant coach, faces a tough assignment. He replaces a man who has coached more USC victories than any other and gone to the Rose Bowl on eight occasions, winning four.

Robinson said he considers himself a disciple of McKay, whom he has known for 20 years.

Now it's the Nebraska Cornhuskers who own second place. And what was a tight battle for first place in The Associated Press poll has become a comfortable cushion for Ohio State.

Southern California got a new head coach for next season in John Robinson. But the Trojans, with John McKay still at the helm, lost for the second straight week.

ABA owners will meet here today to decide what to do with the franchise which has failed to stimulate much interest in Southern California.

Despite their poor record, the Sails have some fine personnel including center Caldwell Jones, who has signed a future contract with the National Basketball Association Philadelphia 76ers, guards Bo Lamar and Kevin Joyce and forwards Dave Robisch and Mark Oberding.

Also McKay, a halfback, played in the Cotton Bowl with Oregon in 1949 and Robinson, an end, was in the Rose Bowl in 1958.

Robinson was an assistant in charge of the offensive backfield at USC from 1972 through 1974.

A week ago, Coach Woody Hayes' troops held a slender 49-point edge over Oklahoma in the balloting. Now, owning 49 of the 58 first-place votes cast by the nationwide panel sports writers and broadcasters...

Rounding out the Top 20 were Florida, down from 11th to 14th with 111 points; California, up from 18th to 15th with 107; Miami of Ohio up from 17th to 15th with 88.

Some ABA officials would rather operate with eight strong franchises than carry a weak one and the Sails have been weak since they came into the league in 1972 under the ownership of Dr. Leonard Bloom.

The elimination of the San Diego would save money for the rest of the clubs, enabling them to cut down on travel expenses since the Sails are the league's only West Coast franchise.

Hubbard announced that Dr. Richard H. Perry, 46, a former head basketball coach at Long Beach State, will be the athletic director.

Robinson said he had asked all the USC assistants to stay with the new regime.

OSU's 40-3 rout of Illinois helped—but more help came from Kansas' 23-3 upset of the Sooners. That dropped Oklahoma down from second to sixth place in the poll.

San Diego State, 13th a week ago, Maryland, 16th last week, and Pitt, 20th in the previous balloting, fell out of the Top Twenty.

Dr. Bloom failed to meet league obligations and the ABA took over the club last February, then turned it over to local businessman Frank Goldberg in June.

Tech, Baylor contest to be aired Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV announced Monday that five college football games to be televised regionally on Saturday, Nov. 15.

Terms of the contracts with Robinson and Perry were not divulged although the football coach is believed to have at least a three-year agreement.

Hubbard said of Robinson: "As an ex-USC assistant coach for three years, he's familiar with the elements that make up the university."

Nebraska, which received eight first-place votes and 1,054 points, moved from third to second by virtue of its 12-0 whitewash of Kansas State.

Table titled 'The AP Top Twenty' listing college football teams, points, and records.

Goldberg shook things up, changing the name to Sails and bringing in Bill Musselman from the University of Minnesota to coach. But the Sails have won just three of 11 outings this year and attendance has continued to sag.

They are Harvard-Brown and Auburn-Georgia at 1 p.m., EST; Colorado-Kansas and Baylor-Texas Tech at 1:30 p.m., EST, and San Diego State-San Jose State at 4:30 p.m., EST.

Perry, eight years on the USC faculty, will begin his new job immediately with no wait until McKay leaves.

Hubbard said of Robinson: "As an ex-USC assistant coach for three years, he's familiar with the elements that make up the university."

Michigan's Wolverines, sixth a week ago, clawed their way into fourth by ripping Purdue 28-0 and, for their efforts, receiving 721 votes. Alabama's Crimson Tide had to struggle before downing Louisiana State 23-10 and stayed fifth in the balloting with 687 votes.

Should the league decide to fold up the Sails, it will be the second ABA team to bite the dust this year. The Baltimore Claws were the first, closing down due to financial problems just four days before the season began.

Providence, R.I. (AP) — The touring Russian national basketball team travels to Syracuse Thursday night to try to improve a 2-3 record after the first five games of its 14-game tour.

Atlanta signed the star forward three years ago, ignoring the fact that he was drafted by the Milwaukee Bucks. Erving played two exhibition games with the club in 1972 but eventually wound up with the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Podolak receives game ball

DALLAS (AP) — It was not his best performance or his first game ball but Ed Podolak, Kansas City's all-purpose seven-year running back, says he has never had a more satisfying game than he had Monday night in the Chiefs, 34-31 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Podolak's performance, in which he also rushed for 88 yards and caught three passes for 26 yards, came although he said he "felt bad before the game. That shows how bad an indicator that is. I just can't explain things like this."

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The touring Russian national basketball team travels to Syracuse Thursday night to try to improve a 2-3 record after the first five games of its 14-game tour.

Erving fine reduced by NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — It hasn't been the most successful year for the Atlanta Hawks, but there was good news Monday.

Atlanta signed the star forward three years ago, ignoring the fact that he was drafted by the Milwaukee Bucks. Erving played two exhibition games with the club in 1972 but eventually wound up with the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

The Nets and Denver applied for membership in the NBA in September and everyone else joined them in October.

Podolak is best remembered for his effort in Kansas City's double overtime 1971 playoff loss to Miami when he gained 350 total yards, but he said, "That meant nothing really since we lost. I've won game balls before but never in as big a victory as this, because we were supposed to be rebuilding this year."

He scorched the Dallas defense Monday night for three touchdowns, including a gamewinning five-yard pass reception from quarterback Mike Livingston with 10 minutes left. The other two came in a 43-second span of the second quarter on runs of 1 and 11 yards.

The third defeat came at the hands of Providence College Monday night when Joe Hassett's 19-foot jump shot gave the Friars a 76-74 victory in the final three seconds.

Atlanta signed the star forward three years ago, ignoring the fact that he was drafted by the Milwaukee Bucks. Erving played two exhibition games with the club in 1972 but eventually wound up with the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Last June, the Board lowered the boom on the Hawks, ruling they had to pay the league $250,000 and the Bucks $150,000, in addition to surrendering their two second-round draft choices next year to Milwaukee.

O'Brien named a five-man advisory board to work with him on the case. The group is headed by chairman Bill Alverson of Milwaukee and includes Mike Burke of New York, Abe Pollin of Washington, Bill Wirtz of Chicago and Richard Bloch of Phoenix.

The winning TD was scored on third down with the Chiefs trailing by four points. Dallas rushed in with a blitz and Podolak slipped into the flat, cut inside linebacker Lee Roy Jordan and scooted across the goal line.

"Wilson was super, especially on those last two," said Wiggin. "And Stenerud—what can you say? He's the best. You never worry when he's in there."

Providence put on a full-court press after intermission as Hassett pumped in 16 points to add to his five of the first half and lead the Friars in scoring.

Atlanta signed the star forward three years ago, ignoring the fact that he was drafted by the Milwaukee Bucks. Erving played two exhibition games with the club in 1972 but eventually wound up with the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

The meeting was to have lasted two days but was cut to one.

"The ball was thrown behind me and I think that helped score the touchdown because Jordan overran the ball," Podolak said.

"Fumbles beat us more than anything else," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "We were lucky to escape with anything. This is our first real bad game after seven good ones."

Providence tied it 74-74 on a basket by Bruce Campbell with 51 seconds left. Eight seconds later, the Soviets were hit with a traveling violation, giving Providence the ball for good.

Bowl committees to go very slow

Now that the National Collegiate Athletic Association has reinstated its restriction on bowl invitations, very few bids are likely to be handed out at the first opportunity anyway.

The respective bowl committees will fan out to college football games across the country Saturday. But instead of bearing invitations, in most cases they'll be traveling empty-handed.

However, one week later there may be a stampede to line up the best possible postseason attractions.

"It's very confused," one bowl spokesman told The Associated Press Monday. "The same teams are in the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowl pictures. And there are so many things to be decided."

Like the Big Eight championship between Nebraska and Oklahoma on Nov. 22, with the winner going to the Orange Bowl, the Southwest Conference race to determine whether Texas A&M, Texas or Arkansas will be the host team in the Cotton Bowl, and the Big Ten (Ohio State-Michigan) and Pacific-8 scrambles to decide which also-rans will be grabbed by someone other than the Rose Bowl.

Out in Pasadena, the Rose Bowl is sitting pretty. They don't have to scout anyone since they automatically get the Big Ten and Pac-8 champs.

The other bowls are considering the following teams:

Orange: Big Eight champion (Nebraska or Oklahoma) vs. Alabama. Florida, Georgia, Michigan, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Southern California, Texas, Texas A&M.

Cotton: Southwest Conference champ vs. Alabama, Michigan, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Southern Cal. Two from that crowd also are Sugar Bowl possibilities, along with the loser of the Nov. 28 Texas-Texas A&M game.

Gator: Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Penn State, Texas, Texas A&M.

Liberty: Arkansas, California, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Navy, Oklahoma, Southern Cal, Tennessee, UCLA.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: "We're looking at the same teams most of the other bowls are looking at," according to Weldon Humble, chairman of the selection committee. The Bluebonnet would love to have the Southwest Conference runner-up against Colorado.

Fiesta: Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Southern Cal, Texas, Texas A&M, UCLA.

Sun: Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina State, Penn State, Pitt, Texas A&M, UCLA. Pitt would have received an invitation had the Panthers not lost to West Virginia last weekend and they could be right back in the picture by beating Notre Dame Saturday.

Peach: Arkansas, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Maryland, North Carolina State, Tennessee.

Tangerine: Miami of Ohio is in as the Mid-American Conference champion. Opponents under consideration are Colorado, Georgia Tech, Maryland, Navy, North Carolina State, Pitt, South Carolina and Tennessee.

An educated guess would be to look for the following: —Alabama vs. Nebraska in the Orange Bowl if Nebraska beats Oklahoma. Otherwise, Alabama to the Sugar Bowl, Oklahoma against the Big Ten runner-up in the Orange and Nebraska to the Cotton. In addition, Field Scovell, chairman of the Cotton Bowl selection committee, says the weekend's rash of upsets put Notre Dame "rather strongly into things." Oklahoma will not go to the Cotton no matter what happens.

—Georgia or Florida as one of the Gator Bowl teams.

—Navy to the Liberty Bowl if the Midshipmen beat Georgia Tech on Saturday. The Liberty Bowl has been designated an official Bicentennial event—and A.F. "Bud" Dudley, executive director, calls Navy "a glamor Cinderella team which would go hand-in-glove" with the Bicentennial celebration.

Death knell near for young Spirits

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The death knell has not yet sounded for the young Spirits of St. Louis franchise. But if turnstiles continue silent this season, the American Basketball Association team will likely be hunting for its third home in four years.

"We're not throwing in the towel," said Spirits' President Harry Weltman. "Basically, it's up to the fans. We cannot exist with the few people that are coming out for the games."

Weltman's remarks came last week after the head of Cincinnati's new Riverfront Coliseum said he had been in "preliminary contact" with St. Louis owners about possibly moving the franchise to Cincinnati.

No meetings have been scheduled, Weltman maintains, and the contact with Cincinnati consisted of a five-minute telephone conversation originated by Cincinnati officials.

Rumor or not, the fact remains that Spirits' attendance in five home games this season is averaging just under 3,000—some 1,600 below the average last season in which Weltman and other owners suffered a reported $1.5 million to $2 million loss.

"We still intend to make it here in St. Louis," Weltman said. "But we can't force people to come out to the games. And it gets down to the point of how long can anyone keep taking a bath financially."

Weltman has indicated that to remain here, the team must average 6,000 fans this season. Otherwise, this metropolitan area of 2.5 million—10th largest in the country—will lose a professional basketball team for basically the same reason it lost the St. Louis Hawks to Atlanta in 1968: poor attendance.

Of the various reasons put forth for the lack of fan support, none has centered on the team's ability. Composed of young players, with the three frontcourt starters only in their second year, the Spirits have jumped to a 6-4 record, 1 1/2 games behind Kentucky in the ABA's Eastern Division.

There is no lack of color or talent in the person of Marvin Barnes, the ABA's Rookie of the Year last season. The backcourt features two stabilizing veterans, Freddie Lewis and Don Chaney, acquired from the Boston Celtics.

But the team plays to its largest audiences on the road.

Two of the most commonly accepted reasons for the dismal attendance at the 18,000-seat Arena are ticket prices and race.

The ticket prices—ranging from $7 to $3—are at a par with other ABA teams, Spirits' officials say. But the racial question, acknowledged by Weltman as one reason for the attendance problem, is not so easily explained.

Of the Spirits' usual starting line-up of Chaney, Lewis, Maurice Lucas, Gus Gerard and Barnes, only Gerard is white. Eight players on the roster are black—a predominance not uncommon with professional basketball teams.

"I basically support the black-white issue as one reason," Weltman said. "Before the playoffs last year, we cut two white players and signed two black players who were better. And we won. But if the people don't want to come for that reason, that's their prerogative."

The population of St. Louis is 41 per cent black, while the metropolitan area is 16 per cent black.

Black members of the Spirits are appalled to hear that people are not turning out possibly because of race.

"That's the worst statement a person could hear," said Chaney. "If a person wants to come to the game and count how many white players are there and how many black players are there, then he is not coming to enjoy the game."

Barnes said, "What difference does color make? I thought that stuff had played itself out. I guess it didn't."

Another reason forwarded for the poor attendance is the city's proliferation of sports, especially in the fall when the football Cardinals, hockey Blues and Spirits compete for the sports dollar.

The appearance of the football Cardinals here in 1960 has been mentioned as the start of the decline of the basketball Hawks.

But the relatively new Blues have been one of the top-drawing teams in the National Hockey League, averaging about 18,000 fans in 40 home games last season.

The Spirits, the newest of the three clubs, came here last season as a remnant of the disbanded Carolina Cougars franchise.

A final theory is that the ABA is not of the same performance caliber as the older National Basketball Association. Weltman points out, however, that the ABA won 31 of 50 games between the two leagues in preseason play this year. And, he added, "There's no one more exciting in basketball than Julius Erving, unless it's David Thompson. And they're both in the ABA."

Erving and the New York Nets have drawn an average of 5,000 fans in their two appearances here. Thompson and his Denver Nugget club will come in for the first time on Nov. 19.

"That's a date we'll look at real hard," said Weltman.

Texas' top pros honored Monday

DALLAS (AP) — Most of them are well past their playing days, but few would argue that in their prime the 25 players of the Texas All-Pro football team would make a pretty good nucleus for a Super Bowl squad.

The team, made up of professional stars who once played college football in Texas, was chosen by fans in statewide balloting and was introduced at halftime of the Kansas City-Dallas game here Monday night.

Five of the players still are active. All of them, as well as Forrest Gregg, the current Cleveland Browns' coach, and former Green Bay and Southern Methodist lineman, were present although their respective teams are in the middle of their National Football League season.

The five are offensive lineman Gene Upshaw of Oakland and Texas A&I, defensive lineman Joe Greene of Pittsburgh and North Texas State, linebacker Tommy Nobis of Atlanta and Texas and defensive backs Bill Bradley of Philadelphia and Texas and Ken Houston of Prairie View and Washington.

The only Texas All-Pro player missing the festivities was defensive end Bill Glass of Baylor and Cleveland, who was preaching at a religious crusade in Hawaii.

For the active players, it was a chance to be honored alongside players who were their childhood heroes. For the oldtimers, it was a chance to reminisce.

"You take O.J. Simpson and you take Bobby Layne," said former quarterback Layne, of Texas and Detroit. "You take them all and that man right there is the all-time greatest. He's got more class than any of them."

Layne was pointing to quarterback Sammy Baugh of Texas Christian and Washington, who beat out Layne by only 402 votes out of 69,381 cast. Layne made them as one of three wild card selections.

But the biggest applause at halftime was given to another former TCU star who was the only former Cowboy on the team, Bob Lilly.

The biggest landslide winner on the team was Clyde "Bulldog" Turner, who starred in the 1940s for the Chicago Bears after a college career at Hardin-Simmons.

Commenting on today's brand of pro football, Turner said, "From what I see, the biggest change now is the passing game. The coverage and the passing is more elaborate. Of course, there's the artificial turf. I can't say I like that. I just don't think the game should be played on carpet and tennis shoes."

Others chosen for the squad are receivers Raymond Berry and Kyle Rote of SMU and Del Shofner of Baylor; offensive linemen Jim Ray Smith of Baylor and Harley Sewell of Texas; running backs Doak Walker of SMU and John Crow of Texas A&M; defensive linemen Bud McFadin of Texas and Charlie Krueger of Texas A&M; linebackers Bill Forester of SMU, E.J. Holub of Texas Tech and Jack Pardee of Texas A&M; and defensive backs Yale Lary of Texas A&M and Bobby Dillon of Texas.

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' all-time professional football team, as selected by public ballot, was honored Monday night at halftime of the Kansas City Chiefs-Dallas Cowboys National Football League game.

The ballots, which were certified by the Texas Sports Writers Association, included:

OFFENSE
BACKS—Doak Walker, Southern Methodist; John David Crow, Texas A&M.
RECEIVERS—Raymond Berry, Southern Methodist; Kyle Rote Sr., Southern Methodist; Del Shofner, Baylor.
TACKLES—GARDIS—Forrest Gregg, Southern Methodist; Jim Ray Smith, Baylor; Harley Sewell, Texas; Gene Upshaw, Texas A&I.

Redskin's Kilmer injured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Bill Kilmer of the Washington Redskins suffered a mild separation to his right shoulder against the New York Giants and will be reexamined Tuesday to determine his playing status, Coach George Allen said Monday.

Kilmer was injured Sunday when he was hit from the blind side by Giants defensive end Jack Gregory. He was replaced by Randy Johnson, who led the team to a 21-13 victory.

Allen said he had talked to Kilmer, whose X rays showed that there was no break, and said the quarterback was in good spirits despite the injury.

"He feels good," said Allen. "He will find it difficult to throw and he will have to take it easy for two or three days."

"He's a competitor, he's tough. We'll have to play the situation by ear. He will be back, but the big thing is how effective he will be with that shoulder."

A team spokesman said Kilmer showed up at Redskins Park Monday morning and "had good range of movement in the arm, but it is very painful."

Royal fears upset bullet from TCU

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Coach Darrell Royal of Texas says he hopes his powerful Longhorns "can dodge the (upset) bullet" in their match with winless Texas Christian University Saturday.

Royal told his weekly news conference Monday TCU, losers of 18 straight since an opening game victory over Texas-Arlington in 1974, "is the type of team that can pull a big upset because they throw the ball."

"That combination has come up before," Royal said, but he added, "If we play our game and are consistent, we should win."

He recalled, however, "We have lost to them before when we were 27-28 point favorites." Texas' last loss at Memorial Stadium—the scene of Saturday afternoon's game—was a 24-17 upset by TCU in 1967. The Horned Frogs also upset Royal's teams in 1959, 1961 and 1965 but has not beaten Texas since 1967.

Since the TCU loss, Texas has won 39 consecutive games at Memorial Stadium.

Last year, Texas routed TCU, 81-16, in Fort Worth, the most points a Southwest Conference team has ever scored against another SWC team.

Analyzing Texas' 37-21 victory over Baylor last Saturday, Royal said the game was "one of field position. Ours was good and theirs was bad."

Texas drove 86 yards for one of its five touchdowns, but its next longest scoring march was 56 yards. On Baylor's first 13 possessions, the Bears in top shape for its never got the ball closer nationally televised Nov. than 60 yards from the 28 contest with undefeated Texas goal line. On its last Texas A&M at College possession, Baylor scored Station.

Royal said defensive halfback Raymond Clayborn "really played an outstanding football game" against Baylor. "He was making tackles with blockers on him, and he had an outstanding interception."

"I hope we come out of the TCU ball game in as good physical condition as we did the Baylor and SMU games," Royal said.

Pecos, Seagraves earn early playoff berths

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

There is only one weekend of area high school football action left on the slate, but only Pecos of District 2-AAA and Seagraves of 5-A own a sure playoff berth heading into Friday's last round.

Pecos wrapped up a playoff position against Perryton in the bi-district round by defeating Odessa Ector, 24-0, Friday. Pecos was last in the playoffs three years ago.

Seagraves won the 5-A title going away Friday by bombing Plains by a murderous 55-7 count. It was a repeat championship for the Eagles. Seagraves will meet the winner of District 6-A, which will be either Rankin or Iraan.

Pecos and Seagraves are the only undefeated teams left in the area, both holding 9-0 season marks.

The Ozona-Lions of District 7-AA missed a chance at winning the loop crown Friday when they dropped a 20-14 thriller to the Crane Golden Cranes. Ozona has finished regular season play, but Crane, undefeated in district play, still has a game with once beaten Reagan County. Crane can win the championship outright Friday by defeating the Owls. Reagan County can earn a three-way tie with a victory over Crane. So, it will be a big week for 7-AA.

The Lake View Chiefs of District 3-AAA also missed a chance at winning a playoff berth by losing, 20-7, to surprising Lubbock Estacado.

Estacado can now win the whole thing this week with a victory over Lubbock Dunbar, but a Panther victory could throw the loop into a four-way tie with Snyder, Lake View, Estacado and Dunbar. The possibilities are almost limitless unless Estacado decides to make things simple with a win.

District 6-A teams cleared the air a bit last week when Wink upset Balmorhea, 19-14. Balmorhea's loss eliminated the Bears from title consideration, so Rankin and Iraan will fight for the playoff berth this week when the two top teams meet head-to-head in Iraan.

Rankin is seeking its fourth straight 6-A championship, and Iraan was the last team to beat the Devils out of the title. Iraan has one loss in loop play, but Rankin is undefeated with a 4-0 record. An Iraan victory, however, would send the Braves to the playoffs by virtue of a win over Rankin.

All of the playoff berths will be decided by Saturday, but as it stands now, only Pecos and Seagraves will have the luxury of coasting during the last night of play. Both have high state rankings at stake, however.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK: Crane's Steve Holfield earned top honors this week. He rushed for 106 yards on only nine carries, scored a touchdown, intercepted a pass and punted three times for a 45-yard average. Holfield's performance helped the Cranes take over the 7-AA lead.

Judy Rankin golf meet draws major colleges

Chaps eye Cisco Thursday

Six strong women's golf teams will be competing in Midland Thursday and Friday for the first annual Judy Rankin Intercollegiate Invitational Golf Tournament.

Sponsored by Midland College, the 36-hole medal play event will be played at Ranchland Hill Country Club. The tourney is named for Midland's Judy Rankin, a touring professional. Mrs. Rankin will be on hand to present team and individual trophies to the winners Friday.

Teams participating will include

SMU, UT-Austin, Oklahoma, TCU, Texas Tech and Midland College.

"These are some of the strongest women's teams in the Southwest," noted Ron Mayberry, MC coach. "Based on their play this year, SMU, Texas, and Oklahoma would have to be favored."

The Texas squad is particularly strong, based on their play last spring when they captured the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Women's state title and finished third in the national championships.

Tee-off time is 9 a.m. each day with the public invited to watch at no charge.

Midland College will have to play the tournament with only four players since Brenda Maxwell injured a wrist in a volleyball match this week. A team usually consists of five members with the best four scores counting toward the championship.

Trophies will be presented to the first and second place teams, to the tournament medalist and runner-up and to the first and second low-ball teams. There will also be awards to the best golfers in the long-driving and putting contests and closest to the hole.

Tennis tournament for junior buffs

The Midland Junior Tennis Association will hold a tennis tournament at the Lee courts Saturday at 9 a.m. for beginners and intermediates.

Youngsters 14 years and under are eligible to enter. Entry fee is 25 cents. All entries must be called in to Jean Nail, 694-0702 or Yvonne Garton, 694-8165 by Wednesday night.

Balls will be furnished by the Midland Junior Tennis Mixed Doubles Benefit. Players are requested to bring their own racquets.

Midland High, Lee boosters to meet

The Midland High Bulldog and Midland Lee Rebel Booster Clubs will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in their respective cafeterias to view films of last week's games.

Lee took a 14-7 victory over Abilene while Midland dropped a tough 14-8 decision to Abilene Cooper.

The Bulldogs and Rebels tangle in Memorial Stadium Friday night with the Purple Pack still having a chance to share the District 5-4A crown if they beat Lee, Cooper defeats Abilene and Odessa Permian loses to Odessa High.

San Francisco back injured

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Francisco 49ers' defensive back Ralph McGill has been suffering "a monstrous headache," but no apparent complications, a St. Vincent's Hospital spokeswoman says.

McGill was hurt in Sunday's 49ers-Rams National Football League game when he tried to block a field goal attempt and was kicked in the head by Los Angeles' Tom Dempsey.

Wallace ready for last try at top

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, entering what probably will be his last presidential campaign, has a big political bankroll, a strong organization and a set of problems that surely would keep a less combative politician out of the race.

It is the fourth national campaign for Wallace, 56. It's his first from a wheelchair. He says there will not be another unless he wins the White House in 1976 and seeks re-election in 1980. That is not likely.

No political leader outside the Wallace camp suggests that he has a chance of winning the presidency. But he is as usual a force for the Democrats to reckon with, more formidable than ever given the party's big field of candidates. On a crowded presidential primary ballot, a minority often is enough to win, as Wallace showed the Democrats four years ago. His name has led the divided field in early polls.

Wallace's campaign manager, Charles S. Snider, says the governor is better organized, better financed and better prepared than before.

"We're probably in as good a position as the governor's ever been in," Snider said in a telephone interview as Wallace prepared for Wednesday's news conference in Montgomery, Ala., where he is to formally announce his candidacy. The formal announcement is almost redundant. The campaign has been going nonstop since the last one ended.

Paralyzed from the waist down, frequently in pain, facing constant questions about his health, Wallace is likely to encounter more searching scrutiny than ever before on his proposals for dealing with national problems and his formula for foreign policy.

In past national campaigns, his platform consisted largely of opposition to the things frustrating voters. This time, pressure is on candidates to talk about solutions and not just hit at problems.

Wallace could have problems matching the record he made in winning a half-dozen primaries four years ago. Any time his performance falls short of his 1972 showing, it will be read as evidence he's slipping.

There are reports of dwindling blue-collar support for Wallace in parts of the South, once the base of his power. There are two Southern rivals waiting to take him on, each hoping to win national spurs by beating George Wallace in his own neighborhood.

Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford tried and was trounced in his home state in 1972. He now seeks a rematch. Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is showing signs of headway in his first presidential race.

Health, of course, is the big question for the Wallace candidacy now. He was shot as he campaigned in Laurel, Md., on May 15, 1972, and is paralyzed from the waist down. He takes medication to ease his pain. But Snider says reports of his health problems are exaggerated.

National Democratic leaders are, as always, solidly against Wallace. But instead of open opposition that would hand him an issue as it did in 1972, national party leaders are trying to quiet him with kindness.

"We don't want him to be able to go off campaigning against the national Democratic party," one party official said. "He can't legitimately attack us for having excluded him in any way."

Patty Hearst ordered to stand trial Dec. 15

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, her thoughts still wrapped in silence, was ordered to stand trial Dec. 15 on bank robbery charges while her attorneys launched a fight for more time to cure the mental traumas they say she suffered while a captive of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Insisting that Miss Hearst is incompetent to stand trial — despite a judge's ruling to the contrary — attorney Albert Johnson prepared to summon psychiatric experts to tell of their secret proings of Miss Hearst's psyche.

He also began drafting on Monday an appeal to a higher court on the question of how soon the law requires the Hearst trial to begin.

Johnson said he will subpoena three psychiatrists and one psychologist who spent some six weeks examining the heiress in her jail cell. Their sworn testimony, if admitted by the judge, would be given at a hearing set for Nov. 20.

Johnson says he is sure the four would disagree with the ruling of U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter that Miss Hearst is able to aid in her defense.

Meanwhile, at a hearing Monday, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst sat pale and mute, refusing to enter a plea to bank robbery charges. The judge entered a plea of innocent for her.

"If Miss Hearst stands mute, then the court will enter a plea of not guilty to the indictment on these charges," Carter said. He then ignored defense protests and set the trial to open Dec. 15.

She stands indicted on two federal counts — one of bank robbery, the other of using a firearm to commit a felony — in the April 15, 1974, robbery of a Hibernia bank branch in San Francisco by members of the terrorist SLA, which had kidnapped Miss Hearst seven weeks before.

The stocky, dark-haired Johnson, standing at a lectern in the jammed courtroom, raised the competence issue as the hearing began. He indicated that he and his partner, F. Lee Bailey, were stunned by the judge's ruling Friday that Miss Hearst is competent to stand trial.

The judge, who offered an opportunity for cross-examination of the doctors before his ruling, did not say immediately whether he would now allow Johnson to call them to testify.

Speaker urges church unity

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — The president of the Georgia Baptist Convention said Monday that Christianity and the church are under serious attack and must "unite in spirit and purpose to survive."

Dr. James W. Waters of Macon told nearly 1,500 persons attending the 154th annual convention "with our nation and the whole world at a turning point we have a great opportunity...to win the world for Jesus Christ."

Dr. Jaroy Webber, president of the Southern Baptist Convention and pastor of the First Baptist Church in Lubbock, Tex., agreed, saying, "Let's not remain silent, but rise to the great occasion before us. We can win the world."

The convention, which represents more than 2,900 churches and one million Baptists in Georgia, was scheduled to consider today a proposed annual budget of $8.9 million.

Antiques auction set

PARIS — Rare antiques and works of art from the collection of the 79-year-old tin multimillionaire Antenor Patino will be auctioned here on Nov. 28.

Patino, who was born in Chile, has mining interests in Thailand, Nigeria, Spain, and New Caledonia.

It is thought here that proceeds from the sale of part of his collection will help finance tourist development in Mexico.

Backers of labor measure hoping to invoke cloture in Senate today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor is making a strong effort to win approval of a controversial bill that would give individual unions the power to close down entire construction sites in disputes with subcontractors.

The measure, passed by the House in July, which would effect a Senate filibuster, but backers of the measure hope to invoke cloture on a vote today to get the bill to the Senate floor for consideration.

The bill, which would in effect overrule a 1951 Supreme Court decision, would allow building trades involved in disputes to picket an entire construction site and not just the subcontractor involved in the dispute. The high court ruled 25 years ago that such action constituted an illegal secondary boycott.

Labor leaders backing the bill with both lobbying and thousands of dollars in campaign contributions for congressmen argue that a general contractor and subcontractors are engaged in a single coordinated enterprise and should be treated as one entity in disputes.

AFL-CIO unions have made thousands of dollars in political donations to supporters of the measure. An Associated Press tally of 1975 political donations by 18 AFL-CIO political committees, including all those affiliated with the federation's Construction Trades Department, showed labor's early pre-election donations going mainly to supporters of the controversial measure.

The AP tally showed that the 18 committees gave a total of $93,495 to 78 House members who supported the bill last summer. In the Senate, $15,000 went to Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., who is head of the Labor Committee and a sponsor of the bill.

In the House, $9,000 was given by the unions to congressmen who did not support the measure.

The Senate filibuster to keep the bill from floor consideration is being mounted by Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev. Senate passage of the measure seems assured if its supporters can mount the 60 votes needed to shut off the filibuster.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., supported the bill and criticized the National Right to Work Committee for making "gutter charges" that building trades unions are "scandal ridden" and "mobster tainted."

Ikard says consumers will lose in breakup

CHICAGO—The nation's consumers will be the real losers if Congress dismembers the oil industry, the president of the American Petroleum Institute said Monday. In an address to the API's annual meeting, Frank N. Ikard urged everyone in the industry to take part in an all-out effort to counter and correct the ill effects of "mindless, inaccurate, destructive criticism" and to restore "sanity and fairness to the national debate on energy."

by a battalion or two of bright, young self-anointed experts who are convinced they have the secret map to the Promised Land. Little, if any, consideration is given to whether the execution will help the consumer or hurt him, improve our economy or disable it, strengthen the philosophical foundations of our American economic system or knock them over in a heap. "We must fight back. We must do it now."

energy sources. Many advocates of divestiture use the false argument that breaking up integrated oil companies would increase competition, Ikard said, adding: "Its interesting that the stated purpose of most of the proposals is not to help the consumer — he's hardly ever mentioned — but to create an advantage for part of the industry."

Stonewall, Crockett sectors gain deep wildcat explorers

Exploratory tests have been scheduled in Stonewall and Crockett counties. Terra Resources, Inc. of Houston, will drill No. 1 Dieckmeier, a 6,800-foot Ellenburger venture in Stonewall County, 2 1/2 miles east of Swenson townsite. It is 1/2 mile northwest of the depleted Ellenburger discovery and 5/8 mile northwest of Bend conglomerate production in the Schick, Westfield. Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 154, block D, H&T survey. Ground elevation is 1,709 feet. The Ellenburger strike, American Petrofina Co. of Texas No. 5 W. I.

Shadle, was potentiated for 105 barrels of 42-gravity oil per day, through a 10-64-inch choke and open hole at 6,283-6,287 feet. Crockett Venture Continental Oil Co. plans to drill an 11,000-foot prospector, No. 1 Baggett Unit, 15 miles south of Ozona, in Crockett. Drillsite is eight miles north of the Miller field which produces gas from the Canyon, Strawn and Ellenburger zones, and 2 3/4 miles south of the Hunt-Baggett (Strawn) pool. Location is 1,320 feet from north and 1,580 feet from east lines of section 1, block NG, GC&SF survey, about five miles east of Canyon production in the Ozona field.

Three projects staked in King

Three new projects, for tests of the conglomerate pay, have been staked in the Anne Tandy field of King County, by Taubert, Steed, Gunn & Medders of Wichita Falls. No. 13-N S. B. Burnett Estate, 1/2 mile northeast of conglomerate production, spots 1,980 feet from southeast and 660 feet from northeast lines of section 9, block X, R. M. Thomson survey. No. 14-N S. B. Burnett Estate, 1/2 mile north of production, spots 1,980 feet from southeast and 2,220 feet from northeast lines of section 9. Both of the above tests have a projected bottom depth of 5,900 feet. No. 28-Y S. B. Burnett Estate, scheduled to 5,000 feet, is 1,000 feet from southeast and 2,000 feet from southwest lines of section 1, block X, R. M. Thomson survey, 1/2 mile southeast of production.

WORKERS MEASURE A rock core as it is extracted from a well located in Gratiot County, Mich. Scientists hope the core will help to determine where Michigan lay millions of years ago in relation to the ancient North Pole.

University scientists study core taken from deep hole in Michigan

ITHACA, Mich.—Scientists hope that a 57-foot rock core extracted from more than three miles below the ground will provide a "tape recording" of a very ancient segment of Michigan geologic history and will help to determine where millions of years ago Michigan lay in relation to the ancient North Pole. The core was extracted from a 17,400-foot well — deeper by nearly 4,500 feet than any well previously drilled by the oil industry in Michigan — where a team of university scientists under the auspices of the National Science Foundation is working with the oil industry in conducting the scientific tests. The well is located in Gratiot County, just outside Ithaca, and in the heart of the Michigan Basin, a geologic province that underlies Michigan and parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and western Ontario, Canada. McClure Oil Co., operator of the well, and Amoco Production Co., a participant in the operation, are working with scientists from the Universities of Wisconsin, Michigan, Northwestern and Purdue in the extraction of the core and a number of geological and geophysical tests. This marks the first time members of the industry, academic and governmental bodies have cooperated in conducting scientific tests at an active wellsite in this area. Sixteen months of drilling operations at the McClure, Sparks and Eckelbarger No. 1-8 Whightsil failed to show evidence of oil and gas. Oil company scientists will study portions of the 57-foot core to gain further knowledge of the Michigan Basin as it pertains to oil and gas accumulations. "Even though we didn't find oil and gas, these scientific studies will benefit all involved," said Harold M. McClure, president of McClure Oil Co. "This is a fine example of the good that can result when the industry, the academic world and the local community take part in cooperative efforts." "Basin research on the ancient geologic history of interior basins like the Michigan Basin can provide important information for evaluating the potential for hydrocarbon generation and entrapment in largely untested areas where major deep onshore reserves may ultimately be found," said John Phenice, vice president for Amoco Production at Houston. Members of the academic community hope this type of cooperation can continue. "We hope this will serve as a precedent to encourage other cooperative efforts between oil companies and scientists," Dr. Herb Wang, assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin, said. In addition to the extraction of the 57-foot core, scientists and oil company representatives will conduct logging, hydraulic fracturing and borehole gravimeter tests at the wellsite to determine the physical properties and characteristics of the rock from the heart of the Michigan Basin. "The rock will provide us with a tape recording of the Michigan geologic history," said Dr. Rob Van der Voo of the University of Michigan. "For instance, we will be able to date the rock and by studying the magnetism of the rock determine where millions of years ago Michigan lay in relation to the North Pole." The National Science Foundation awarded a grant of $250,000 to the University of Wisconsin for a team of seven scientists to conduct studies at the wellsite and in university laboratories. The team includes Drs. Benzalel Haimson and Herb Wang, University of Wisconsin; Drs. Marry Pollack and Van der Voo, University of Michigan; Drs. Larry Sloss and Norm Sleep, Northwestern University, and Dr. Bill Minze, Purdue University.

Fuller slates Scurry tester

William M. Fuller of Fort Worth filed application to drill a 1/2-mile southeast stepout to the Earnest (6,500 Pennsylvanian sand) field of Scurry County. It is No. 1 W. L. Halford. Location is 1,161 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 11, block 3, H&GN survey, four miles southwest of Hermleigh. Planned depth is 6,950 feet.

Vandals set fire to tires on truck

Burning oil flares placed under three Armor Supply Corp. trucks destroyed four 12-ply tires but failed to set afire the two tank trucks and a drilling unit. Midland police reported Monday. Don Warr, ASC's manager, told police the trucks were parked at 1100 N. Godfrey St. He placed a $520 value on the tires. Police said they found imprints of two pairs of tennis shoes near the trucks.

Fired Schlesinger departs Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Schlesinger, fired last week by President Ford as defense secretary, got a round of applause from 4,000 people who worked under him as he left the Pentagon for the last time. Schlesinger reviewed a military honor guard Monday and was honored with the applause of the military officers, civilian officials and other Defense Department workers at the ceremony.

Lario stakes test in Yoakum sector

Lario Oil & Gas of Midland has made plans to drill a 7,000-foot wildcat in East Central Yoakum County as No. 1 Cadenhead. Drillsite is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 503, block D, J. H. Gibson survey, eight miles southeast of Plains and on the west side of the Ownby field.

Dallas suicide rate above U.S. average

DALLAS (AP) — The suicide rate in Dallas has climbed sharply in the past few years and now is above the national average. The Dallas Health Department reported recently that from October 1974 until September 1975, 157 Dallas residents killed themselves, compared with 111 for the previous 12 month period. That is an rate of 17.64 per 100,000 population, while the national average is 12.5. Dr. Seymour Perlin, an authority on suicide, said in a recent interview that the Dallas rate "was surprisingly high. It tells you something is happening in the community. It says people are giving up on the community or the community isn't responding."

Zumwalt assails Schlesinger firing

SEATTLE (AP) — The firing of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger was a "frightening development" that removes from government the only man telling the public about the pitfalls of detente, retired Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr. says. "Detente is a catastrophic failure," and Schlesinger was publicizing that fact, Zumwalt said in an interview Monday. Zumwalt said that while the United States sells Russia new technology and wheat because of detente, the Soviets "use the unspent funds for military buildup."

Illegal contributions suit filed against Gulf

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal suit alleging Gulf Oil Corp. used money to set up a secret fund to contribute illegally to political campaigns has been filed here. The suit, filed Monday by a representative of a trust fund set up for two Houston children, names nine Gulf board members and officers and Price Waterhouse & Co., accountants. The suit was filed by C. Leonard Benckenstein, trustee for Jerome Howard Tarnopol, 13, and Marcia Renne Tarnopol, 12, children of W. S. Tarnopol who the suit said set up a trust fund in 1974 of 400 shares of Gulf common stocks. The suit alleges that from 1960 to 1973 about $10 million of Gulf funds was diverted to a former subsidiary, Bahamas Exploration Co., Ltd., and that more than half that amount was converted into cash and returned "clandestinely" to this county as a secret fund used illegally in campaign contributions. The plaintiffs ask $21 million in damages and an account of the amount of corporate funds allegedly improperly expended. Officials of Gulf and Price Waterhouse declined comment on the suit.

THEY SHALL not lay a pipeline, says Glenn O. Young, an 80-year-old retired special judge who sits on the front porch of his home at Sparks, Okla., armed with a shotgun. Young says he will use the gun to keep an oil company from laying an oil pipeline across his property. (AP Wirephoto)

Hope everyone enjoyed "vacation" and recovered from exams over the weekend, because at 8:10 a.m. Wednesday, we start off the second quarter in preparation of the Bulldogs bruising Friday night. School started Monday, as usual, for our mighty Rebel football team as the Rebs, too, get ready to bulldoze the Bulldogs this weekend. Ask the Abilene Eagles about the Rebel Power because they know about all our strength.

The Maroon Platoon edged the Eagles with a 14-7 victory. Way to go big Rebs! This was just a sample of what is in store for those puny Puppies. We want to see all you Rebel fans at Memorial Stadium Friday night to support the Maroon Mean Machine in its last football game of the 1975 season. We are real proud of you, Rebs, Thanks to the fans, Rebelettes, band, and cheerleaders for making this such an outstanding season in so many ways. The Rebel Pride still Prevails!!!

WE ALSO want to see all you Rebel fans at the Stadium Thursday night to see our mighty JV beat a Bulldog. The battle starts at 7:30, so grab a bite to eat, pick up a friend, and get there early for a ringside seat to witness a Bulldog massacre.

HEY, REBELETTES, along with the band, football team, and cheerleaders, we have lots of work to do too before the Bulldog funeral Friday night. Wednesday night we are gonna paint enough signs to cover every wall at Lee High School so we need every Rebelette possible to be at the YC at 7 p.m. Wednesday. We are really gonna show those people across town what Rebel Spirit is all about. Also, remember that squad meetings are at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday see ya there.

AFTER THE game Friday night, we're gonna have a dance sponsored by the Super Sophs to celebrate our last victory of the season. Everyone come out as soon as possible after we down the Dogs and boogie to the music.

THAT'S ABOUT all for this week. Short week—short chatter. See ya'll Friday night!!!

LOVE,
LISA, JOLEE,
and JANA

P. S. Sorry about your head, Bitsy. Hope you are feeling much better. We hope Carol Birdwell is feeling better after her surgery. Hang in there, you two.

P.P.S. Happy Birthdays go out to David Mitchell, Mike Sherrod, Mark Deer, Brian Crowel, Steve Sledge, Patti Roper, Kent Sutton and Kevin Clark.

P.P.P.S. Come on, Big Rebs, show those Dogs who is boss in Midland, Texas!!!

Turtle woman protects species

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Ila Loetscher is believed to be the only person outside a laboratory, zoo or museum who has both a state and federal permit to keep sea turtles in captivity.

Mrs. Loetscher is active in a movement to save several endangered species of sea turtles. She and those working with her hope to bring one species—the Atlantic Ridley—back to the Texas Gulf Coast where once there were many.

She also operates the only clinic and "nursing home" dedicated to restoring injured or sick sea turtles to health.

Many fishermen and other persons on the Gulf know her interest in injured turtles and bring them to her.

Bush looks ahead

By WILLIAM SHAWCROS
The Washington Post
PEKING — For George Bush, one of the main requirements of his new assignment as head of the Central Intelligence Agency is discretion, and not just because the CIA's operations are supposed to be super-secret. Shortly after he was informed of his nomination by President Ford, Bush pointed out that as an ex-congressman he knows that the Senate does not like to read about a nominee's intentions before he comes up for confirmation.

It was Sunday morning a week ago, and he was bicycling home from church, that Bush says he first heard of Mr. Ford's new plans for him. Asked if that means his bicycle is already wired for satellite reception, he replied, "It has a very long antenna."

There have been stories out of Washington that Kissinger informed Bush of what diplomats here call "Ford's coup" during his trip to Peking last month, but Bush insists that that is not true. "There was no mention whatsoever" Bush said in an interview. "No change-over was discussed with me. Kissinger didn't mention it at all. I knew nothing" until the White House message.

BUSH REFUSES to say what he discussed with Mr. Ford that Sunday afternoon, what undertakings he requested or was given before he agreed to accept. "No timeframe the job was mentioned," he said.

Bush claims to have very strong feelings about the role of an intelligence agency in the making of foreign policy. "I believe in strong intelligence capability, both to provide advance information and to analyze existing information," he said. But he does not say just how strong or independent it should be. The relationship between covert operations and intelligence-gathering interests him, he says but it will interest the Senate more.

The Ford announcement aroused intense interest in Peking, where Bush serves as head of the U.S. liaison mission, and last Monday the Soviet ambassador but-tooled a colleague and asked, "What's the meaning of our friend's promotion?" "I don't know," was the reply, "but do you know where your government will send you next?"

Most speculation surround the reaction of the Chinese. Some officials here laughed when asked about it, others said it is an internal American affair. One junior official said spontaneously, "My goodness, that's terrible. That must mean he has been in the CIA all the time he was at the United Nations and in Peking." When this remark was relayed to Bush, he seemed fascinated. "That's the first Chinese comment I have heard," he said. "and that just shows you part of the problem... Do you mind if I report it to Washington?"

BUSH AND his wife had expected to remain in Peking almost another year, barring political offers. He said his time here has been "exceptionally pleasant and hopefully productive. In a job like this, it is a little egotistical to suggest any accomplishments have been mine. There has been nothing earthshattering, but we have had some good contacts. I accept the Chinese judgment that our relationship is in reasonably good shape. It has its twists and turns, but it's about the same as when I got here."

Demarest still going strong after years in show business

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — William Demarest at 83 was itching to be on the Palm Springs golf course.

But an old picture in brand-new release and a new picture about to begin were infringing upon his leisure.

The old picture, just rereleased, is "The Jolson Story," and Demarest had torn himself away from his Palm Springs home to come into Los Angeles to promote it.

His new picture, just going into production, is "Won Ton Ton, the Dog That Saved Hollywood," a Paramount film inspired by Rin Tin Tin, the wonder dog of early Warner movies.

"I remember when Darryl Zanuck was writing those Rin Tin Tin pictures," Demarest said reminiscently. "Then I woke up one day and found out he'd been made head of 20th Century Fox."

The veteran star remembers so many of entertainment's "greats" early in their careers.

Born in 1892 in St. Paul, Minn., he began his own show business commitment in 1905, appearing in vaudeville with his brothers, Reuben and George.

He worked in carnivals, appeared with stock companies, played the Palace and, of course, starred on Broadway all well before he made his first movie, back in 1927. He's done a lot and knows a lot.

"But the one thing I'm most proud of," Demarest said, "is that in 1905 I was on the bill at the Terrace Garden in New York City with Marie Dressler."

"I stood in the wings and watched her as she sang a song I still remember.

"Oh, a great big girl like very truly yours..." he sang a few bars.

"She took 25 curtain calls."

Demarest was not only in "The Jolson Story" but was part of the real thing since he worked with the singer-actor in "The Jazz Singer," the film which made sound a permanent part of Hollywood.

"You may think 'The Jazz Singer' was the first talking picture, but it wasn't. Byrne E. Foy made the first 100 per cent talkie two months earlier. It was called 'The Lights of New York.'"

Demarest is such an unabashed fan of the late Larry Parks, who played Jolson in "The Jolson Story" and "Jolson Sings Again," that it's a wonder he didn't ask for an autograph when they were working together.

"Parks was just sensational!" Demarest declared. "Naturally the singing voice in the picture was Jolson's, but I'd be standing no more than a foot and a half away from Parks while he was mouthing the lyrics, and I could have sworn the songs were coming from his mouth."

"I don't think he ever received enough credit for what he did."

"Sidney Skolsky was responsible for getting 'The Jolson Story' to the screen. He produced it."

"We had Jolson barred from the set, because every time we were doing a scene he'd get behind a lamp and play it too."

"This was so distracting we told Sid we thought it would be better if Al stayed away."

"Jolson was very eccentric."

"Offscreen, there was absolutely no similarity between him and Larry Parks."

"I'm 83 years old and feel great. My only physical problem is that I don't have direct vision, so I have to learn my lines from tapes."

"I've lived in Palm Springs for 10 years and play golf at the Canyon Country Club as often as I can."

Demarest, who played Uncle Charley on the television series "My Three Sons," is aided in his golfing by an "Uncle Charley" golf cart, an 80th birthday present from the show.

"My wife and I have to get back to Palm Springs to play in a tournament this afternoon," Demarest said.

"She and I met at a performance of 'Tobacco Road' when she asked me for a match during intermission, and we've been married 37 years."

"How do you stay happily married so long?"

"Well, if you're a man I can tell you. Don't ever say 'don't' to your wife and you'll get along just fine."

William Demarest...still going strong.

Los Angeles winery gives tour for visitors

Washington Post

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Among the distinctive tourist sites of California are its wineries. Nearly 90 per cent of our domestic wine is produced in this state. But wineries and vineyards are in the country. What is a carless, city-bound visitor to do?

In this city, unbeknownst to most of its residents, you need venture no further than a long stone's throw from City Hall or Dodger Stadium. Tucked away at the edge of some Union Pacific railroad tracks off North Main Street is the San Antonio Winery.

"It's not well known," said a native Angeleno, "and hard to find. The first time I heard there was a winery there I didn't believe it. It's the kind of place each person who comes believes he discovered it himself."

At a minimum the discovery is a pleasant surprise. For those who are thirsty or hungry, it proves a delight.

San Antonio produces about 100 wines, ranging from well-blended, reasonably priced varieties to fruit wines to liqueurs for the sweet-toothed. Nearly 70 per cent of the firm's sales are made at the winery or in a series of tasting rooms scattered about the city. Tasters are welcomed and the welcome usually is a personal one from the owners.

It's a family business. While Steve Riboli and his 28-year-old son, Santo, run the winery, Maddalena Riboli, Steve's wife, supervises the excellent delicatessen counter she instituted two years ago. A daughter, Cathy, or another son, Steve Jr., may be making sandwiches or pouring samples for tasters. At 12, Steve Jr. has a big jump on his generation as an apprentice oenophile.

Despite the urban location, San Antonio is a real, working winery. About 200,000 gallons were made last year from grapes the Ribolis purchased. A dozen workers prowled about the dimly lighted interior amid giant redwood tanks and barrels filled with aging wine.

A self-guided tour gives the visitor a wine-making primer and fills the nose with the distinctive, musty odor of fermentations past. There are displays of corkscrews and antique casks and, away from the tour, some old walls made from box car siding are visible.

These last aren't beautiful. They are, however, historically significant. Santo Cambianica, an Italian immigrant who had found work on the railroad, used the discarded wood to construct the original winery in 1917.

Grand Ole Opry notes anniversary

By JOHN CARMODY

WASHINGTON — ABC's star-packed tribute to the Grand Ole Opry tonight (8:30 p.m. EDT) will mark considerably more than the 50th anniversary of a durable show business landmark.

The Nashville institution has been a major influence on popular U.S. musical tastes from its birth in 1925 in a tiny studio at station WSM, through its growing success in a series of worn-down theaters, to its present eminence in plush quarters in the Opry House at Opry Land.

A good case can be made, in fact, that the Opry has probably been the single most important factor in the long national love affair with country and country-western music.

It was a little-known romance at first, and was most apparent to the Saturday night radio listeners in the Deep South and Midwest in the 1920's and 1930's.

But, by 1939, NBC was sending half-hour segments of the Opry, broadcast from the stage of the War Memorial Auditorium in Nashville, around the U.S.

Nobody knew how serious the romance was, however, until World War II, when millions of servicemen discovered that it was as much fun to listen to an Opry star like Ernest Tubb singing "I'm Walking the Floor Over You" as to the latest Sinatra 78.

Tuesday evening's jubilee is hosted by Hal Holbrook, a real good ole boy.

Ernest Tubb and Roy Acuff, whose "Wabash Cannonball" was another staple of service life in the early 1940's, will be on the telecast.

Minnie Pearl, who was plain Sara Ophelia Colley when she made her first, and not very impressive, appearance at the Opry in 1940, will render her famous "How-DEE!" on the program also.

So will such all-time Opry favorites as Grandpa Jones, Bill Monroe, and even the remnants of the Fruit Jar Drinkers, a group that goes back to the mid-1920's on WSM.

Count on partner for correct defense

Opening lead — ♦K

Suppose you are West. You open the king of spades, and your partner plays the queen. What does this mean, and what do you play next?

The queen means: "This is either a singleton or from the queen-jack. Lead a low card next."

If you trust your partner, you continue with the deuce of spades. East wins with the jack.

East returns the five of spades, and you win with the ace. This cleans up all of the missing spades. What next?

Temptation

You are tempted to lead the king of clubs. It won't give declarer a trick he couldn't win by his own efforts. (From East's failure to lead the ace of clubs you are quite sure that he doesn't hold that card.)

The only hope is that East has a trump as high as the nine. Lead your last spade instead of the king of clubs.

Dummy discards, and East must rely on you to know what you are doing. He ruffs with the nine of hearts, hoping that this will promote a trump trick for you.

And so it does. South must use the queen, and now you are sure to take the setting trick with a good trump.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-QJ5; H-93; D-9653; C-7642. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. You have only 3 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton. This is not really enough for a response.

Lamas' career turns to more than acting

By NANCY ANDERSON

Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Fernando Lamas, "Ester and I have a very successful marriage, because, in the first place, she's a very good-natured girl," the suave South American, said of his wife, Esther Williams.

"In addition to that, when we first married, she asked me, 'Is it possible for a woman to have a successful motion picture career and a successful marriage?' And I said, 'It's very difficult.'"

"So she said, 'In that case, if you'll support me, I'll quit work.' And that's what she did."

Shapely Miss Williams' marriage to Lamas robbed the screen of its prettiest mermaid.

Since the wedding, she's preferred to stay home.

His career, however, has continued to flourish; though it's taken him considerably afield from the stereotyped Latin lover roles he dashingly played when he first came to Hollywood.

He's been doing more "Murder on Flight 502," directing lately than "I can't tell you what he's doing the latter on Nov. 21 show, because that would be an ABC-TV drama, give away the plot."

He met with fellow directors, William Wyler, Billy Wilder, William Friedkin, and toured the J. Paul Getty Museum in Pacific Palisades. "Quite a setting for a crazy picture," he said speculatively.

Most memorably, he attended the Artur Rubinstein concert at the Music Center — "one of the most exciting spiritual experiences of my whole life," he said.

"At the end there were 3,000 of us screaming, crying, relaxed, happy...an incredible scene. He played the Waldstein sonata at the beginning, and you could close your eyes and think it was a man of 25 years, playing with such fire, and it was this tiny man with all his wisdom."

"If you live on that island of mine (Faroe, in the Baltic Sea), it can be healthy to come off and contact the reality of other space. Hollywood seems quite unreal, but perhaps it has to do with the time gap."

A visitor explained that in the sense the time gap in Hollywood never wears off entirely.

Film reaction dismays DPS

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "Sugarland Express," a critically acclaimed film shown Saturday on NBC, is a good yarn but shouldn't be taken as an accurate account of the events on which it was based.

And the Texas Department of Public Safety is upset, to put it mildly, over the way in which it and its officers were portrayed in the movie.

Evidently a number of Texans took the film as a factual account of the kidnaping of a state trooper in 1969. Col. Wilson Speir, DPS director, said his agency had been "flooded with phone calls." The callers, he said, criticized the DPS for things that happened in the movie.

"It is my belief that NBC did law enforcement in general, and the DPS in particular, a serious disservice by broadcasting this film without noting before and after that it was fiction," Speir said in a statement.

The "Poplins" of the movie, shown by NBC stations Saturday night, were Robert Samuel Dent, 22, and his wife, La Faye, 21. They abducted Highway Patrolman J. Kenneth Crone on May 2, 1969, and used his car for a meandering six-hour, 300-mile drive through East Texas.

According to newspaper stories and DPS records, Capt. Jerry Miller of Beaumont—the "Capt. Tanner" of the movie—used patrol car radios to urge Dent to surrender.

Dent refused, but at one point said he would free Crone unharmed if given a 15-minute head start so he could visit his children at his father-in-law's house in Wheelock, near Bryan.

Officers were waiting in the father-in-law's house, into which Dent marched Crone with a shotgun at his back. As Crone passed a doorway, he saw someone, and ducked and rolled away.

Robertson County Sheriff E. T. Elliott and FBI Agent Bob Wiatt of Bryan opened fire. Elliott used a shotgun, and Wiatt used a pistol, the records show, and Dent was not wounded with a shot from a rifle with a telescopic sight from a distance of about 40 feet as depicted in the movie.

Dent died in a Bryan hospital shortly after he was shot, not behind the wheel in a continuation of the chase.

Records show the incident began when Dent fled from a Port Arthur police unit that had attempted to stop him for a traffic violation. Other officers joined the pursuit, but Dent's car was lost near Winnie.

Crone later answered a call from a ranch, saying two persons had been beaten by hitchhikers and needed help. When he arrived, Dent pulled a pistol and disarmed Crone.

Miller located the car after it passed through Beaumont. With Crone driving, Dent fired three shots at Miller, DPS records show.

The Dents and Crone, trailed by about 50 carloads of police and reporters wound through Beaumont, Houston, Dayton, Cleveland, Conroe, Navasota and Bryan before ending their flight in Wheelock.

A helicopter kept track of the fugitives' position and radioed ahead that Dent was going to his father-in-law's home.

Nothing in the record supports the film version that Dent had escaped from Huntsville State Prison with help from his wife, that the couple spent a night of the chase in a motor home on a used car lot, where they were attacked by rifle-toting civilians, or that their whole object was to remove their baby from a foster home.

A DPS spokesman said the film's makers once showed the script to agency officials, who said it was inaccurate. "They changed the script somewhat, but never came back," he said.

The DPS cars shown in the film were surplus clunkers that the producers of the movie obtained by bidding high when the vehicles were auctioned off, the spokesman said.

Miller is now a major and regional commander of the highway patrol at Houston.

Crone, 27 at the time of his abduction, remains on the force as a highway patrolman stationed at Winnie, near Beaumont.

Mrs. Dent was sent to prison Sept. 10, 1969, after being convicted on charges of forgery and armed robbery. She was paroled on Aug. 19, 1970, and was discharged from supervision on June 13, 1973, a spokesman for the State Board of Pardons and Paroles said.

Carrillo trial date to hold

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The twice delayed Senate impeachment trial of State District Court Judge O. P. Carrillo apparently will get under full steam Nov. 18 without further postponements.

Both sides said Monday they will not ask further postponement of the trial when the Senate session resumes Nov. 18.

Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, head of the House group bringing impeachment charges against Carrillo, said the House will be ready to resume the Senate trial Nov. 18 if Carrillo is ready.

Arthur Mitchell, Carrillo's Austin attorney, said earlier Monday he wanted no part of any move to further delay the Senate trial.

"I'm ready to go to trial," said Mitchell, who will be defending the Duval County politician from charges of official misconduct.

Butz says meat prices should drop next year

HOUSTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz says a record corn crop could mean a drop in meat prices a year from now but is expected to have little or no impact on food prices during the next six months.

"We don't eat corn," Butz said, "so the 5.8 billion bushel corn crop will reflect itself a year hence in more adequate livestock." We're moving cattle back into feedlots more than we were a year ago.

He said the corn crop will provide important raw material for producing the nation's meat, poultry and dairy products in the coming year. In addition, he said, the corn will be in great demand abroad.

Butz appeared at a news conference Monday and addressed the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Butz said the only long range hope for lower food prices "is by putting a little profit out there in the field."

"Farmers have to make a profit to be able to buy fertilizer, to improve water management systems, to improve plant efficiency and to improve pest control," he said.

He said the people of the United States are the world's best fed at the lowest percentage of take home pay.

"We eat right now at something less than 17 per cent of our take home pay," he said.

He said the total sales of grain to Russia meant perhaps a two per cent increase in the cost of food to the consumer.

"On the other hand," he said, "sales to Russia have no more impact than the sales to Japan and India. The sale of a million tons to the Soviets has identically the same impact on the cost of living as the sale of a million tons to Japan or India or anybody else. Before the temporary embargo, we had sold more wheat to India for cash than we had sold to the Soviets but that never got in the papers around here because it wasn't 'evil politically.'" anybody else. Before the temporary embargo, we had sold more wheat to India for cash than we had sold to the Soviets but that never got in the papers around here because it wasn't 'evil politically.'"

Butz said the United States sold 22 billion dollars worth of farm products abroad last year.

"That was our number one source of foreign exchange," he said. "We are now so productive we simply have to export two-thirds of our wheat because we produce three times what we need at home."

"We have to export 25 per cent of our feed grains, half of our soybeans and 40 per cent of our cotton because we produce that much more than we can possibly use at home."

Police rap state raids

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Blitz raids on bars such as those recently mounted by the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission (TABC) went out of style 10 years ago, says Capt. James Despres, head of San Antonio's vice squad.

Despres verbally attacked new TABC administrator Luke Robinson on Monday in response to last week's raids on 164 bars in which 48 persons were arrested.

"Apparently the new (TABC) head doesn't think the cities are doing their jobs," Despres said. "We feel we have done a pretty good job. I resent this."

"I can't see how a raid a month can possibly accomplish anything. We've got over 3,000 places that serve alcoholic beverages."

He added, "These raids went out 10 years ago." Despres said he resented the implication that local police "aren't doing their job."

Harlingen Kika fete

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — A "muchas gracias Kika" appreciation day celebration was to be held here today for U.S. Rep. Eligio (Kika) De La Garza, D-Mission.

A reception, barbecue dinner and a "Dean Martin style roast" will be held to honor the South Texas congressman.

Chris Aldrete, executive assistant to U.S. Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., D-Tex., Maurice Pipkin, former state representative and current director of the Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission, and former Texas House Speaker Homer Leonard of Austin are to be among the speakers at the "roast."

Think equality, women advised

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas addresses the "Women in Public Life" conference this morning at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library.

The three-day conference concludes today. Monday, Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., told the conference women must think they are equal before men will accept them as equal.

"The problem is we fail to define ourselves in terms of whole human beings," she said. "Somewhere in the back of our minds is the thought that we really aren't quite equal."

"What are we going to do about it? How are we going to reverse the trend?" she asked. "It will take long, hard, tedious work, and we begin with ourself."

Briscoe will not testify

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe will not be required to testify in the funds misapplication trial of Austin lawyer and former milk industry lobbyist Jake Jacobsen.

State District Court Judge Curt F. Steib quashed a motion Monday that would have required Briscoe to appear as a witness in the trial, which is scheduled to begin Jan. 12.

Preliminary motions were heard in Steib's court Monday.

Jacobsen is charged with misapplying $825,000 from the First Savings and Loan Association of San Angelo, where he was an officer at the time of the alleged misapplication. The association is now under new management.

Earlier this year, Jacobsen was the chief prosecution witness in the bribery case against former Texas Gov. John Connally.

Connally was acquitted of a charge that he accepted a bribe from Jacobsen, who was then a lobbyist for the Associated Milk Producers Inc., a San Antonio-based dairy cooperative.

Woman claims 'lemon,' pickets auto dealer

DALLAS (AP) — Candy Ermels has spent most afternoons for the past three weeks picketing across the highway from a local Chevrolet dealership.

The 37-year-old divorced mother of two said she decided to picket after her 35th trip to the dealer for repair work on what she calls her 1975 Monza "lemon."

Across the highway, Arvel Rodgers, general manager of the dealership, said, "General Motors wouldn't accept the theory that a lemon could be manufactured."

"Besides, I've never seen a car that couldn't be fixed," said Rodgers, who added his records indicated Mrs. Ermels' car had been in for repair seven times.

"If I could just talk to her I think I could correct her car, but she won't even tell me what it is she wants," he said. "We're ready to call it quits and do anything reasonable."

Mrs. Ermels said it all started last February, the first day she had her car. She returned to the dealer three times because the car's cooling system warning light was on and her speedometer needle jumped. She said the repairmen told her the problems would correct themselves soon.

She said the first weekend she had the car, which listed for $5,263, she drove 240 miles to Houston. On the way, she received a $32 speeding ticket because of her speedometer, she said.

In Houston, she said she was told at a Chevrolet dealership the reason her cooling system light was on was because the car needed water. They also said her the emission control system had never been hooked up.

Since then, she said she has had problems with exhaust fumes, the air conditioner, the radio, the brakes, the electrical system and the bumpers.

"I don't claim every car built by General Motors is a lemon," Mrs. Ermels said, "but the one they sold me is. They should just admit it and take the car back."

Last month Mrs. Ermels met Bill and Wanda Stansbury, two self-styled consumer advocates. They suggested Mrs. Ermels cover her car with paper lemons and take a stand in front of the dealership.

Rodgers said the Stansburys try to use the threat of pickets any time a person has a complaint against a company.

"We're not angry at Mrs. Ermels because she has the perfect right to do what she's doing," Rodgers said. "She's just being misled by the professional pickets."

"Eventually they will get tired of walking up and down the road, I hope," he said.

Mrs. Ermels said she is not about to quit her activity. "I've already filed a lawsuit against them, and I'm not going to compromise my case by going over to see them now," she said.

"Besides if they couldn't fix the car in 35 trips, they can't do it now," she added.

"I'm going to keep picketing for all those little people in the world who have been sold lemons," she said.

Jury hands down death sentence for murderer

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Convicted murderer Edward Eldon Corley, a 31-year-old Tyler construction worker, has been sentenced to die in the electric chair for the slaying of Vicki Lynn Morris.

A state district court jury here deliberated for one hour and 15 minutes Monday evening before deciding the sentence in the punishment phase of Corley's capital murder trial.

The same jury found Corley guilty last Friday in the kidnaping, rape and shotgun slaying of the 20-year-old Mrs. Morris, a Chapel Hill housewife. Defense attorneys filed notice that the conviction will be appealed.

The prosecution called 10 witnesses to the stand in Monday's punishment phase, the defense only one.

Mrs. Morris was abducted from the Hebron Baptist Church near Tyler on Sept. 14, 1974. She was at the church practicing church music on the organ.

Her body was found later on a dirt road a few miles from the church. Authorities said she had been raped and shot twice in the head with a shotgun.

Corley also is charged in three other East Texas slayings.

OUR STARS AND STRIPES FLAG SAYS--- 'DO YOU REMEMBER ME?'

Hello, Remember me? Some people call me Old Glory, others call me the Stars and Stripes; also I have been referred to as the Star Spangled Banner. But whatever they call me, I am your flag or, as I proudly state, the flag of the United States of America. There is something that has been bothering me, so I thought that I might talk it over with you. Because it is about you and me.

I remember sometime ago—I think it was Memorial Day—people were lined up on both sides of the street to watch the parade. The town's high school band was behind me and naturally I was leading the parade. When your daddy saw me coming along waving in the breeze, he immediately removed his hat and placed it against his left shoulder so that his hand was directly over his heart. Remember?

And you—I remember you. Standing there as straight as a soldier, you didn't have any hat but you were giving the right salute. They taught you in school to place your hand over your heart. Remember little sister—not to be outdone, she was saluting the same as you. I was very proud as I came down your street. There were some soldiers home on leave and they were standing at attention giving the military salute. Ladies as well as men all paying me the reverence that I deserve.

Now I may sound as if I am a little conceited. Well, I am. I have a right to be. Because I represent the finest country in the world, the United States of America. More than one aggressive nation has tried to haul me down but they all felt the fury of this freedom-loving country. You know. You had to go overseas and defend me.

What happened? I'm still the same old flag. Oh, I have a couple more stars added since you were a boy. A lot more blood had been shed since the Memorial Day so long ago. Dad is gone now. The old home town has a new look. The last time I came down your street I saw that some of the old landmarks were gone, but in their place, shining majestically in the sun, were a number of new buildings and homes. Yes sir, the old town sure has changed.

But now I don't feel as proud as I used to. When I come down your street, you just stand there with your hands in your pockets and give me a small glance and then look away. When I think of all the places I have been, Anzio, Guadalcanal, Korea—and now Vietnam. Then I see the children running around and shouting. They don't seem to know who I am. I saw one man take his hat off and then look around. He didn't see anybody else with theirs off so he quickly put his back on.

Is it a sin to be patriotic anymore? Have you forgotten what I stand for? Have you forgotten all the battlefields where men fought and died to keep this nation free? When you salute me, you are actually saluting them.

Take a look at the Memorial Honor Rolls sometime. Look at the names of those that never came back. Some of them were friends or relatives of yours. Probably went to the same school with some of them. That's what you are saluting. Not me.

Well it won't be long until I'll be coming down your street again. So when you see me, stand straight, place your hand over your heart and you'll really see me waving back—my salute to you. And I'll know that you remembered.

Banks could survive Default by New York

By JACK EGAN
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Whether a New York City default will produce serious financial side-effects depends in large measure on its impact on the banking system and, in particular, on the pivotal New York City banks.

The six largest New York banks — First National City, Chase Manhattan, Manufacturers Hanover, Morgan Guaranty, Chemical and Bankers Trust — together hold an estimated $1 billion in city notes and bonds and another $800 million in Municipal Assistance Corp. (MAC) bonds.

These banks also happen to be among the largest in the world, aggregating $193 billion in banking assets as of last Sept. 30. About $250 billion in transactions goes through these banks weekly. They serve as correspondent for thousands of domestic and international banks. And they are major participants in the foreign exchange and Eurodollar markets.

Even under the "worst case" scenarios that some have sketched, nobody claims the solvency of these banks will be put in jeopardy by a New York City default. They are simply too large and too important to the national and international financial system.

And the Federal Reserve Board has stated emphatically that it will supply virtually unlimited funds through its discount window to any bank which runs into liquidity problems as a result of a New York City bankruptcy.

But bank analysts believe that a city default could create some definite problems for these banks, with the effect varying from institution to institution depending on their exposure and their earning power.

Depending on the degree of write-down eventually required on any defaulted securities they hold, a city bankruptcy could put a serious dent into the earnings of some banks at a time when they are already experiencing the largest volume of loan losses since the 1930s.

"The major concern," claims one bank analyst "is the fact banks have other exposures in addition to New York City. When you see all of these things coming up at once — W. T. Grant, the REITs (Real Estate Investment Trust), etc. — it could be very damaging to bank earnings and bank capital accounts."

Chemical, Bankers Trust and Chase Manhattan could all conceivably suffer actual losses for one or more quarters as a result of a default, analysts say. The other three banks would probably stay in the black but find their potential earnings reduced.

The difficulties could be worsened considerably if a city default triggers a default by New York State, its agencies or another big state like Massachusetts, as some have predicted. This would raise the crisis one order of magnitude.

One immediate result is that the big New York City banks are paying a premium to obtain funds when they sell large-size certificates of deposit (C.D.'s). In the last few weeks, as default seemed more imminent, rates in C.D.'s have been increasing although general money market rates have declined.

In the week ended last Wednesday, 90-day bank C.D.'s traded at a 6.45 per cent average interest rate, up from 6.16 per cent the week before. Conversely, 90-day commercial paper issued by corporations to raise funds dropped to 5.88 per cent from 5.93 per cent in the previous week.

Additionally, the New York City banks, which usually pay a lower C.D. rate than the major banks outside New York, have found that the differential first disappeared and now has been reversed as investors seem to prefer the regional banks in what is being termed a "flight to safety."

One mitigating factor, however, is that the New York City banks have been aggressively increasing their C.D.'s in the face of weak loan demand to insure that they are liquid in the event of a default. This has tended to increase interest rates.

"It isn't like the banks aren't prepared for his situation because they are," says Mark Biderman, bank stocks analyst at Oppenheimer & Co.

As to the foreign perception of the impact of a city default, a survey of 18 foreign bankers attending an American Bankers Association conference in New York City recently revealed that 68 per cent feared a major negative impact in international financial markets whereas only 19 per cent saw minimal impact.

The foreign view is considered extremely important because of concern that a city default might be misunderstood abroad, leading to large-scale withdrawals from the European branches of the New York City banks where billions of dollars are on deposit.

A major uncertainty now as to any impact default will have on bank earnings involves what kind of write-offs accountants will decide have to be taken.

Under current rules, a bank may keep securities in its investment account at the original purchase price or "book value" even if the market price has subsequently declined.

But a defaulted security is supposed to be written down in asset value. The degree of the markdown depends on how much the security has been impaired, reflecting any loss or reduction in interest or principal and reflecting the likelihood the issuer will eventually make good on that piece of debt through some kind of restructuring arrangement.

In this case, the Fed and other bank regulators have agreed to give banks up to six months to take any markdown. This is done to cushion any sudden impact on banks' capital from a default and in the expectation that New York City will come up with a repayment plan which will minimize or even eliminate the need for any write-offs.

Fed governor George Mitchell, in a meeting with bank analysts in Washington last week, told them no writeoffs would probably be necessary, according to several individuals at the session.

But bank accountants and the Securities and Exchange Commission, which regulates reporting and disclosure by bank holding companies, have both indicated that they will require write-downs in the quarter during which the default occurred.

Should the default occur in December, as now seems quite possible, the write-downs would have to be reflected in financial statements for the fourth quarter and for all of 1975 which would normally come out by the middle of next January.

Perhaps the most comprehensive analysis has been done by Keefe, Bruyette & Woods, the research firm that specializes in bank stocks. In an August report, the firm concluded that even in a highly improbable 100 per cent loss scenario where a bank's city and MAC paper were marked to zero, none of the six banks "would be hopelessly impaired."

However, Chemical would experience a 14 per cent drop in its capital position in 1975, according to this scenario, as the bank with the largest exposure, followed by Bankers Trust with a 7 per cent decrease.

Solah pleads innocent

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Steven Solah, with whom Patricia Hearst said she once lived, has pleaded innocent to a charge of bank robbery. A woman customer was killed during the crime.

Solah, 27, uttered only two words Monday when entering his plea before U.S. District Court Judge Phillip C. Wilkins: "Not guilty."

The judge set a Jan. 8 hearing for confirmation of a Jan. 20 trial date.

The trial was first assigned to U.S. District Court Judge Thomas McCabe.

Solah, a housepainter, is charged with participating in a $15,247 robbery of a Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael April 21. During that robbery, Myrna Shoptahl, 42, was slain by a shotgun blast.

SHERIFF'S SALE
THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF MIDLAND
WHEREAS, on the 20th day of August, 1975, in Cause No. 7-1789, in the District Court of Midland County, Texas, wherein Midland Independent School District, City of Midland, Texas, the State of Texas, and the County of Midland, Texas were Plaintiffs, Impleaded Party Defendants, and Intervenor, and recovered judgment against Warren G. Henderson, Defendant, for taxes, penalty, interest, and cost against the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, on the 8th day of November, 1975, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof the Clerk of the above mentioned District Court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale commanding me as Sheriff of said county to seize, levy upon, and sell in the manner and form as required by law, the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof, I did on the 8th day of November, 1975, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant the following described property, situated in Midland County, Texas, to-wit:

Lot 5, Block 36, Greenwood Addition, an addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas as shown by deed from V.A. recorded in Vol. 52, Page 265 of the Deed Records of Midland County, Texas as dated: 9-28-70.

And I will, on the first Tuesday in the month of December, 1975, the same being the 2nd day of said month, proceed to sell all the right, title, and interest of the defendant in and to said property at the Court House door of said county in the city or town of Midland, at 2:00 P.M. to the highest bidder for cash; provided, however, that none of said property shall be sold to the owner or to anyone having an interest therein or to any party other than a taxing unit which is a party to this suit for less than the amount of the adjudged value of said property or the aggregate amount of judgments against said property in said suit, whichever is lower, subject also to the right of the Defendant to redeem same in the time and manner provided by law and subject also to the right of the Defendant to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole.

Said sale is to be made by me to satisfy the judgment rendered in the above styled and numbered cause, together with interest, penalties, and cost of suit; and the proceeds of said sale are to be applied to the satisfaction thereof, and the remainder, if any, to be applied as the law directs.
