Senate votes extension of oil controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today passed a 30-day extension of oil price controls, which were due to expire Saturday.

The legislation, approved and sent to the House by voice vote without debate, would give Congress until Dec. 15 to complete work on its comprehensive energy bill.

Without the emergency measures, oil companies would be free on Saturday to raise prices without government controls for the first time since Aug. 15, 1971.

White House spokesman Ben Nessen says President Ford has no objection to the brief extension of price controls but has not decided whether he will sign the comprehensive energy bill, with its price-rollback provisions.

A Senate-House conference committee completed work on that bill on Wednesday. The measure is so complex that it will take about a week for congressional aides to put the bill into final form for consideration by the House and Senate.

The compromise plan, if accepted by Ford, actually is expected to decrease oil prices for a number of months.

The latest turn in the 10-month stalemate between congressional Democrats and the Ford administration came Thursday night when Ford postponed any decision on the compromise plan, which Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb had recommended Ford accept.

Ford had been expected to indicate acceptance at a meeting Thursday night with a Republican congressional leader who had participated in the compromise plan.

However, after the two-hour White House meeting, Nessen announced that Ford had put off any decision until after the plan is put in written form.

Despite Zarb's recommendations, some conservatives have strongly attacked the measure for what they said was its failure to encourage U.S. oil production and its grant of new investigative powers to the energy administration.

Ford says black veep possible

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — President Ford indicated today he would consider a black running mate on the 1976 Republican presidential ticket.

"Certainly, Sen. Ed Brooke, by his record, is a person who ought to be considered," Ford said.

Ford made the statement during a questioning session with students at North Carolina Central University.

His reference was to Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., who is black. Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has withdrawn from consideration as Ford's running mate.

Ford praised Brooke, the junior senator from Massachusetts, as a capable public official with qualifying experience as state attorney general and in the Senate.

"I like him personally," Ford said, "and he has an enviable record."

The President had been asked what blacks, if any, he was considering for a running mate.

Panel holds Kissinger in contempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House intelligence committee voted today to cite Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for contempt of Congress for refusing to turn over subpoenaed documents on eight covert intelligence operations.

The contempt citation, proposed by Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., was approved 10 to 2. It now goes to the full House. If approved there, it would be turned over to a U.S. attorney for prosecution.

Conviction on a contempt citation carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. The action marked the second time this week a congressional panel has voted to cite a Ford administration cabinet officer for contempt.

On Tuesday, the House interstate and foreign commerce subcommittee voted to cite Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton for refusing to turn over names of companies the Arabs have asked to participate in a boycott against Israel.

That citation will go to the Commerce Committee for consideration.

A resolution proposed by Rep. Robert Kasten Jr., R-Wis., that would have had the full House simply direct Kissinger to turn over the subpoenaed documents rather than cite him for contempt was rejected 9 to 2.

The intelligence committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, quoted White House counsel Philip Buchen as saying President Ford intends to cite executive privilege in refusing to turn over the documents.

The committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, quoted White House counsel Philip Buchen as saying President Ford intends to cite executive privilege in refusing to turn over the documents.

The committee had subpoenaed Kissinger to turn over all State Department requests for covert intelligence operations abroad in one of seven subpoenas issued last week. Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said that "On this subpoena, we have received nothing."

"I for one am weary of this whole business of waiting and delaying, waiting and delaying on the information the committee is entitled to and needs to conduct its business," Pike said.

But McClory said Buchen had told him that many of the State Department requests for covert operations had been made directly to previous presidents and that Ford would therefore cite executive privilege to withhold them.

"He assured me the President (involved) had personally approved each of these operations," McClory said.

Pike said he understood the eight intelligence operations requested by the State Department since Jan. 20, 1961, had been approved by former Presidents John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and possibly Richard M. Nixon.

The committee's chief counsel, A. Searle Field, said that three of the eight requests by the State Department had been made directly to presidents and five had not.

The five presumably were made to the National Security Council's Committee, which is designed to consider requests for covert operations before passing recommendations on to the president.

Pike said the State Department requests for covert operations were subpoenaed for an investigation of whether those operations and covert operations approved by presidents on their own have been more embarrassing to the United States than operations proposed by the intelligence agencies themselves.

However, Field said the committee has no indication what covert operations the State Department requested.

Republican counsel Aaron Donner told the committee that only the courts, not Congress, can decide whether executive privilege is a legitimate reason for withholding the documents.

Soviet SALT violations alleged

By MYRONS WALDMAN
Newsday

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union violated the SALT agreement in at least four areas, according to a description of a letter which the House Select Committee on Intelligence has been vainly trying to obtain from the White House.

The letter in question is described as "destroyed or lost" by White House officials. It was written in October 1974 by then Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and demanded a meeting of the National Security Council to discuss the Soviet violations of the treaty.

Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.), chairman of the committee, was informed by his staff director, Searle Field, that the letter could not be obtained. However, Newsday was told of the contents of the letter by sources outside the committee. According to these sources, Schlesinger charged:

—That the SOVIETS had illegally transformed missiles designed to be used against aircraft into anti-ballistic missiles.

—That the SOVIETS had illegally taken additional steps to conceal the telemetry (high-speed digital information) on the performance of their missiles.

—That the SOVIETS had illegally camouflaged submarines under construction to make it difficult for the United States to learn how deadly they were.

—That the SOVIETS had illegally camouflaged other attack boats under construction.

The sources said Schlesinger, who was fired early last week, based his information on a CIA intelligence report he had received in September 1974. They said that after the Pentagon chief sent the letter, the National Security Council did indeed meet on the subject of SALT violations in October 1974.

But when Schlesinger arrived at the meeting, he did not find President Ford sitting in the chairman's seat. Instead, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, in his capacity as Ford's chief adviser for national security affairs and Schlesinger's old rival, was chairing the meeting.

Kissinger was to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko later that month. He disputed Schlesinger's estimate of the situation. According to Newsday's sources, Kissinger simply didn't think the violations were really all that serious.

United Way near goal

United Way of Midland volunteers learned today that a total of $568,351, or 83.9 per cent, had been received in pledges as they rallied for their last report meeting. General Chairman Cecil Bybee urged workers to push forward toward their 1975 goal of $605,000 before next week's victory celebration.

Awards of excellence were presented by associate campaign chairman Ron Schwisow to representatives of three Midland

NEVERTHELESS, the sources said, Kissinger forbade the National Security Council staff to discuss the meeting and demanded great security over what was said. At Kissinger's urging, some of the violations — which ones could not be learned — that were considered least important were turned over to SALT's Standing Consultative Commission, chaired by a State Department representative.

Other violations, more serious, he would discuss with Gromyko. The most serious violation — the illegal transformation of the aircraft missiles — was to be discussed by Ford in his meeting with Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev at the Vladivostok summit in November, 1974.

The sources said that nothing was ever done about the camouflaging of the Soviet construction of submarines and attack boats. They said that Brezhnev told Ford that in January, 1975, the Soviets would stop testing the aircraft missiles, known as SA-5s, as ABMs.

BUT THE SOVIETS, the sources continued, over an 18-month period, had already conducted 60 illegal flight tests of the SA-5s as ABMs. They said that in the United States, 30 such successful tests of a new missile would be sufficient to make it operational. So the U.S. intelligence community believes that the SA-5, originally designed to knock out high-flying U.S. bombers at up to 110,000 feet but useless against low-flying planes, is now an effective, nuclear-tipped Soviet ABM.

What decision was reached on the concealment of Soviet missile telemetry could not be learned. The only effectiveness of a missile can be gauged is by monitoring its telemetry.

The sources said that it seemed to some officials who sided with Schlesinger that the "Administration" appeared to be willing to sweep the violations under the rug.

They also said that later, Kissinger agreed that the Soviets could replace 1,100 intercontinental ballistic missiles with missiles that are 50 per cent bigger. In exchange, they said, Kissinger got the Soviets to agree to the U.S. formula on MIRV — the missile armed with multiple warheads. The formula states that any missile which has been tested as part of the MIRV system is then counted as a MIRV. This would apply even if after the test, it was decided not to use the missile in the MIRV system.

Massage revives Franco

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco's heart stopped beating early today but was revived by massage, sources close to his medical team reported. The 82-year-old general then underwent a third major operation to stop internal hemorrhaging, the informants said.

The sources said the Spanish dictator's heart gave out at 3:30 a.m. local time — 9:30 p.m. Thursday EST — but began beating again after doctors rushed to his side to administer heart massage at the government-run La Paz Clinic.

The report, confirmed by two independent sources, was not mentioned in a brief early morning statement by Franco's palace. The statement said only that the general had passed a quiet night, "without incident."

For the past 29 days, he is suffering from several heart ailments. He is also fighting kidney failure, blood poisoning and bronchial pneumonia.

The statement by his palace, issued after consultation with duty doctors, indicated the general had been untroubled by hemorrhaging Thursday night for the first time in three nights.

Treatment with an artificial respirator and kidney machine also was resumed Tuesday.

The doctors said the artificial respirator had to be switched back on after three days because without it bronchial pneumonia was affecting both the old man's lungs.

The kidney machine was reconnected because Franco's own kidney failed. Blood by his weak heart, have failed and can no longer purify his blood.

Pike says White House trying to hide allegations about Russians

WASHINGTON — House Intelligence Committee chairman Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) accused the White House Thursday of trying to conceal high-level allegations of Soviet arms-control violations despite a committee subpoena for such records.

"Either they were not telling the truth or there is a high degree of gamesmanship going on as to who has possession of the documents," Pike said of the National Security Council staff at a committee hearing Thursday.

Among the documents being withheld, Pike disclosed, is a letter that former Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger wrote in the fall of 1974, alleging Russian violations of the 1972 strategic arms limitation (SALT) treaty and demanding an NSC meeting to consider them.

The committee scheduled a special meeting for this morning at 10 a.m. to consider possible enforcement of the subpoena and two others that had not been obeyed despite a Tuesday morning deadline.

Dorchester gets Rotary award

Dave Dorchester, president of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club, Thursday night became a Paul Harris Fellow, The Rotary Foundation of Rotary International, in a surprise presentation made at the club's meeting in the American Legion Hall.

The presentation was made by Gene Minter, chairman of the club's Rotary Foundation Committee, in behalf of Rotary International and the club.

The Midland club contributed $1,000 to the Rotary Foundation in honor of Dorchester for his outstanding service. He received a certificate, medal and lapel pin.

R.O. Smith, secretary of the club, also is a Paul Harris Fellow. Paul Harris was the founder of Rotary.

Prior to the award presentation, Ralph McLaughlin of Big Spring, governor of District 573, Rotary International, addressed the club concerning the Rotary Foundation and its far-reaching benefits. He was introduced by Parker Humes.

McLaughlin explained that the Rotary Foundation is an international venture of Rotarians in approximately 150 countries. He said it seeks to further understanding and good will among people of different nations. Talented and promising young men and women study abroad with expenses paid by the Foundation.

The governor said that this year more than 1,200 young people received such awards. They are the most recent of 8,700 who have participated in the program since its beginning.

The six faces of the Foundation were listed as (1) Graduate Fellowship program; (2) Undergraduate Fellowships; (3) Technical Training; (4) Teachers of the Handicapped; (5) Special Grants, and (6) Group Study Exchange.

Mrs. Peron may return to showdown

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron has returned home from the hospital amid widespread expectation that a showdown after five months of political crisis is imminent.

Before Mrs. Peron went back to her suburban residence Thursday night, she met with her cabinet at the clinic where she had spent 11 days. It was the first known official contact with her eight ministers since she went to the hospital.

The government announced when Mrs. Peron was hospitalized that she had a gall bladder condition that was not serious. Other sources said she was in a highly nervous condition as a result of the pressure on her to resign.

The clinic announced on Wednesday night that the 44-year-old president was "totally recovered." Interior Minister Angel Robledo said she was in "good physical and spiritual condition."

Despite her inability to improve Argentina's grave economic situation or to check the political terrorism wracking the country, Mrs. Peron said in a broadcast from her hospital room last week that she had no intervention of resigning or taking another leave of absence.

Her political opponents continue to demand her resignation, and rumors of a military coup are rife in Buenos Aires, but the military remains silent. Military sources said recently that the chiefs of the armed forces don't want to take over the government again but that some of the younger officers do.

Opposition members of Congress have started a move to impeach the president on charges of corruption, made both against her and leading members of her circle. Congress is planning an investigation of the charges, and a former minister, two officials and a businessman have been arrested.

Justice Minister Ernesto Corvalan Nancareas said Thursday that Mrs. Peron and her ministers would not oppose the congressional investigation.

Mrs. Peron has appeared to be on the way out since July, when her political opponents, military leaders and leaders of the Peronist labor movement teamed up to force her closest adviser, Jose Lopez Rega, into exile.

Fair, Sunny weather to continue here

Thermometers in Midland dropped to 35 degrees and climbed steadily to produce a fair and sunny day, which is to continue through Saturday, the National Weather Service said.

The temperature in Andrews was warmer today than Thursday, but remained clear, crisp and cool.

Lamesa was clear and sunny. The temperature in Stanton was chilly and warming up to be a nice day.

Sunny and warm conditions were reported in Crane today. Temperatures were nice creating a fair day from a chilly morning in Rankin.

Big Lake's Sheriff's Office spokesman reported the north winds they received Thursday "had turned around" and were now blowing in from the south with the sun shining.

A touch of winter extended a frosty grasp well into South and East Texas today while the current cold spell relaxed its clutch a bit in the northwest part of the state.

Forecasters promised the warming trend starting in West Texas would spread eastward across other sections by Saturday. Skies stayed clear and official observers saw no prospect for moisture in the next several days, the Associated Press reported.

Early morning temperatures plunged as low as 12 degrees above zero at Marfa and 19 at Alpine in the mountains of far West Texas.

Other points in the frost belt included Dalhart and Wink 20, Amarillo 23, El Paso and Junction 24, Abilene and Lubbock 25, Wichita Falls 28, Childress 29, Midland-Odessa, Mineral Wells and San Angelo 30, San Antonio 31 and Beaumont-Port Arthur 32.

The reading at the Beaumont-Port Arthur airport tied the record low there for Nov. 14, set in 1916.

Rev. P.J. Tyler speaks to Lions

Jackie says to cool it

LONDON (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has told her daughter, Caroline, to cool it. Or at least that's what a London gossip columnist says.

Paul Callan of the Daily Mirror wrote Thursday that Caroline's grandmother, Rose Kennedy, is pressing Mrs. Onassis to bring the 17-year-old girl home following stories and pictures of Caroline at late night parties.

The columnist said Mrs. Onassis placed a transatlantic telephone call to warn Caroline not to go ahead with plans for a lavish 18th birthday party at the end of the month. Callan said Mrs. Onassis warned that otherwise she would come to London herself "to arrange a birthday party in her style — even if that may not be to Caroline's liking."

Caroline was late three times in the last two weeks for her art classes at Spothey's, the auctioneers, Callan reported.

Bar association views prospects

By MARGARET GENTRY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Bar Association is screening a list of fewer than 12 potential Supreme Court nominees and expects to report on their qualifications early next week, an administration official said.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi sent the list to the ABA on Thursday. A high-ranking official called it "a very small list" of fewer than a dozen persons under consideration for President Ford's nomination to succeed retired Justice William O. Douglas.

Levi invited the ABA to suggest additional candidates, but an ABA official said the organization is not likely to do so.

The administration has made no formal commitment to be bound by the ABA report, which will rate the potential nominees as "not qualified," "not opposed" or "the best available." But officials indicated that Ford would be unlikely to nominate someone the ABA called unqualified.

Only a handful of White House and Justice Department officials knew the identity of those on the list, and none were willing to divulge the names or other details.

No one would say whether women were included, but First Lady Betty Ford said she will continue to urge her husband to become the first president to choose a woman for the highest court.

"As a matter of equal opportunity and equal rights this would be a very fine example," she told reporters.

Some new names surfaced as lawyers and government officials continued to speculate about the possible candidates. Those women figuring most prominently in the speculation included Soia Mentchikoff, dean of the University of Miami (Fla.) law school; Betty Southard Murphy, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board; Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development; and U.S. Circuit Court Judge Shirley Hufstader.

Among the men considered leading candidates were Levi, Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman and Assistant Senate Republican Leader Robert Griffin, R-Mich.

The New York Times today reported that administration sources said the list submitted to the ABA included, among others, Griffin; Bork; Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif.; Judge Arlin M. Adams of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia; and four other federal appeals court judges — Paul H. Roney of the 5th Circuit in New Orleans, John Paul Stevens of the 7th Circuit in Chicago, William H. Webster of the 8th Circuit in St. Louis and J. Clifford Wallace of the 9th Circuit in San Francisco.

Furniture makers back to work full speed

The Washington Post
 HIGH POINT, N.C. — Rattan furniture, neutral colors, playben sofas, burl wood, pale blue suede upholstery, snap together fluorescent lights, brass tubing and freestanding storage walls seemed to be the key words at the just completed Southern Furniture Market.
 On Sunday, Oct. 26, the largest number of furniture buyers yet attended the Southern Furniture Market Center, according to spokesman Jim Casey (it closed Nov. 2). "They came in record numbers and they stayed more days than ever. They were buying very carefully, but in amounts that even surprised the manufacturers. As a result, many furniture makers, after a depression as bad as the 1930s, are going back on a 40-hour week."

 Casey said that retail sales, up 10 repeating curved forms are made on the same sort of machine that curves the front of bombe chests. The wood is mostly poplar, birch and walnut, used in a thick veneer. Jordan Stuart is the American importer.

Baker Furniture, a manufacturer of expensive period furniture, recently paid $16,000 for one log of Brazilian rosewood with an interesting sap streak. The wood, along with other rare marked Persian walnut and Burma teak, has been made into limited edition tables.

Rattan is used in Design Institute of America's sleekly modern coffee table (rattan top, brushed aluminum base). Bamboo is the base of the early Sydney Greenstreet-style sofa table and benches of Drexel Heritage's Et Cetera group. Scorch-rattened, darkened by a torch while held partly under water, is popular, as in the etagere by Asian Designs.

WOMEN'S NEWS

MC classes, Flatlanders plan show

"Weekend in the High Country" is the theme of a fashion show scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday in the Midland College Student Center.

Sponsored by the fashion merchandising classes of the college and the Flatlanders Ski Club, the show is open to the public, with no admission charge.

"This a family-oriented show featuring fashions for men, women and children," a class spokesman said.

Special prizes will be presented and coffee and spiced tea will be served.

Thirteen stores in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring will provide ski and casual apparel, with models from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and Stanton.

Narrators will be Kathleen McKenzie-Owen, fashion merchandising instructor-coordinator at MC, and Dan Mecklem, president of the Flatlanders Ski Club.

Clothes will be provided by Career Girl, Womack's, Grigsby's Rag Doll, Ski Skeller Sports, Rosslyn's Bridals, United Jubilation, S&Q Suburban, Jo-Miss Sampler and Earl Matney Shoes, Midland; Pro Sports, John's Fashions and Match Box, Odessa, and Nick's Togs, Big Spring.

Members of the MC fashion sales promotion class include Terri Burkey, Bob Corley, Chris Hanks, Chris Hayes, Manual Holquin, Alice Linster, Carol Maxwell, Larry Ortez and Deborah Willis.

per cent in the weeks before the market, were responsible for the buyers' optimistic spending.

According to the market's research, there were more early American furniture designs than anything else, but by only a few points over contemporary design. Contemporary, Casey said, has moved up strongly since the last market. Between them, early American and contemporary account for better than 65 per cent of the designs.

Prices in general are not much higher than last year, as manufacturers try to climb out of the depression. There are, of course, some price increases here and there (Simmons Co., the mattress and sofa manufacturer, for instance). Upholstery fabrics, especially those based on petrochemicals, are scarce and therefore up in price.

Wood, which started its comeback because of the high price of plastics, proved such a crowd-pleaser that it continues to be a star in the market. But a recent court decision upholding the suspension of timber sales in United States parkland in North and South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia is expected to make some woods more expensive.

Oak is the most popular wood, followed by pine, pecan, maple, walnut, cherry and mahogany.

Burled wood turns up everywhere in both traditional and modern collections.

Thayer Coggins uses olive ash burl for a canopy bed and a dining room. Parsons tables in maple burl are made by Johnson Furniture Co., a division of Directional Industries.

Some of the more remarkable, patterned wood tables are designed by John Mascheroni and made by Paolo Pasotta Co. in Italy. The wood is sometimes bleached to make the burl pattern stand out. Some of the

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Don't be square about cubes

Dear Gang:

Today I am going to run-my-mouth about something so simple yet such a good idea that I thought everyone did it. (You don't have to listen!)

I recently found out that a lot of people haven't discovered how to use the drip tray in your fridge for anything but drips!

Everytime I empty an ice tray, I empty it into that tray.

Yes, the cubes stay frozen in the drip tray. You can put as many as three or four trays of ice in there. It is so handy.

Then you can refill your ice tray immediately and start making more ice.

Nothing is more frustrating to me than to be all set for an ice cold, refreshing drink . . . and have no ice on hand.

It is so much easier to pull out the tray and grab an ice cube than to open the door, open a tray, etc.

There I go being lazy again, but see what good ideas one can come up with when you try to do things easier?

Some people say necessity is the mother of invention, but personally I think laziness is.

Look at the electric can openers. I'm not knocking them, but just start to look for easier ways to do things.

Think in terms of saving time, effort and space. We all know that it's much simpler to let oven parts soak overnight instead of wasting hours scrubbing with a soap pad, etc.

Take a good look at your household routine. Are you doing things a certain way because that's what you have always done, or your mother did it like that?

I have a friend who folds her towels one certain way even though it takes more time and space in her linen closet, just because her mother did it that way.

Like I said, I have been running-my-mouth but I hope that you got something out of it! Think, look and use your mind — also that drip tray!

Dear Heloise:

The most indispensable item in my kitchen is a wire strainer, about eight and one-half inches in diameter, that sits on its own built-in stand.

After a meal, I scrape the dishes into the strainer as I have no garbage disposal.

I also use it for draining vegetables, spaghetti or straining the grease from hamburger.

I also use the strainer for the purpose I originally bought it — sifting flour!

April Cooper

Dear Heloise

Every year it is a chore to come up with something special to give our parents for Christmas. This year I plan to surprise them with a "family calendar."

One need only go through the past year's negatives for wonderful pictures — snow scene for January, a birthday celebration in February, a fish scene, picnic, graduation, etc.

I use a commercial calendar and cover the month's picture or advertisement with colored construction paper. Then simply paste a picture on this.

I have my pictures enlarged to 5x7 and they look lovely.

I'll bet this is one calendar that isn't discarded at the end of the year!

Bella Jones

How original! What a thoughtful idea too. Anyone would certainly appreciate such a sweet gift like this.

You definitely are the star at the top of the Christmas tree.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When boiling corn-on-the-cob, add a half cupful of milk and a teaspoon of sugar to the water. The corn will taste better!

Helen Hreba

Russians reject latest U.S. arms limitation proposal

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has told the United States that the latest American proposal on limitation of strategic weapons amounts to a revision of the Vladivostok accord and is unacceptable.

The United States had proposed adding a new category of limitations to cover the American cruise missile and the Soviet Backfire-B bomber.

Soviet officials said Thursday that when Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger handed over the proposal on Sept. 21 Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko rejected it immediately. But Kissinger urged him to discuss it with the Politburo. Following the discussion, Soviet officials said, the response delivered the last week of October was still negative.

Kissinger said at his press conference Monday that the United States is still awaiting a "reasoned response" from Moscow.

But, Soviet officials say Kissinger is simply refusing to take "no" for an answer.

The Soviet position is that the ceiling of 2,400 for each nation's "strategic delivery vehicles" agreed to at Vladivostok on Nov. 24, 1974 by Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Ford should cover all strategic weapons.

a strategic weapon. Kissinger said Monday that "the Backfire, on one-way missions, flying subsonically, can reach the United States from the Soviet Union." U.S. Military officials have said the plane could be refueled in the air to give it intercontinental capability.

Soviet officials say the Backfire is not intended to be an intercontinental aircraft and that they are willing to accept limitations on refueling capability. They say that the American Phantom, which is not limited by SALT, is also capable of a one-way mission.

Cruise missiles, which the U.S.S.R. is not now developing, are equivalent to low-flying pilotless planes capable of carrying nuclear or conventional warheads or electronic sensors for reconnaissance.

Soviet officials believe they made concessions to get the Vladivostok accord, dropping their demand for limits on weapons that can reach the Soviet Union from U.S. or NATO bases in Europe and agreeing to equal totals of all weapons.

It was their expectation — and the expectation of American officials as well — that the Vladivostok accord would pave the way for a 10-year limitation agreement to be signed in 1975.

With the exception of the cruise missile-Backfire issue all other maior problems are solved, a Soviet official said.

The Russians have accepted the American proposal which would count all missiles as MIRVs that have been tested with MIRVs, Soviet

Midlander injured in accident here

A Midland man was struck by a vehicle in the 1700 block of Rankin Highway in a truck-pedestrian accident Thursday, police said.

Donald J. Sanders, of Route 1, is listed in satisfactory condition with a fractured pelvis, a Midland hospital spokesman said.

Police said the truck was driven by Chester Clyde Maxwell, of Star Route in Midland. Sanders reportedly was jaywalking when Maxwell's vehicle hit him, police said.

and American official have said. Agreement has also been reached, according to Soviet sources, on a definition of a "heavy missile."

This was one of the last outstanding issues involving how to determine whether a missile should be counted under a limit on "modern large ballistic missiles." In the

A new category, adding new weapons, they say, would lead to an upward spiral of the arms race.

"What kind of limitation is it," asked one Soviet official, "if each time you introduce a new weapon you increase the number?" He added: "What bothers us most is the trend away from limitation. If it persists what's the use of an agreement?"

The American proposal would have added an equal number of cruise missiles with nuclear warheads and Backfire bombers to the 2,400 ceiling. The proposed number has not been disclosed by either side.

The Soviet Union is demanding that cruise missiles with a range over 375 miles (or 600 kilometers) be included in the 2,400 limit. The United States claims that the backfire is a strategic bomber although the Soviet Union claims its range is too short for it to be counted

SALT I agreement a limit of 313 was put on these giant missiles. That limit is to be carried over in any second agreement.

Soviet officials say they have been told that the United States will be prepared to continue negotiations despite the onset of an election year. Earlier, American officials had passed the word privately to the Soviet Union that it would be politically impractical to pursue SALT negotiations beyond early 1976.

It had also been reported that Brezhnev hoped to get a second SALT agreement and a Soviet-American summit before the Feb. 25 Soviet Communist party Congress. But Soviet officials now take the position that Brezhnev would not suffer politically from failure to get a SALT agreement.

They say Brezhnev would need only to explain that he tried to get a SALT agreement but that the United States had reneged on the Vladivostok accord.

On the other hand, U.S. administration officials here note that unless Mr. Ford can get a SALT accord the whole issue of detente may become a major election issue.

Viet refugee housing gives Texan problems

HOUSTON (AP) — Neighbors of a Houston architect are suing him, charging that he is violating deed restrictions by housing a Vietnamese refugee family of four in a garage apartment behind his home in southwest Houston.

The architect, Jack A. Earthman, who lives in the Braeswood subdivision, charged that the state district court suit is racially motivated.

Chilton Bryan, president of the Braeswood Civic Club which filed the suit, said the subdivision's deed restrictions, adopted in 1928, permit only household servants to live in garage apartments behind Braeswood homes.

"I'm sure the objection is the race," Earthman said. "The civic club is a group of ultraconservative people who really resent changes taking place. These people are our guests. The use of garage apartments for guests is very predominant in this subdivision."

Earthman, who bought his home in 1965, said he rented the apartment to a law student for two years and added that no one files a deed restriction suit. Earthman said a club spokesman told him, "There are places in Houston for people like that (refugees)."

Bryan called Earthman's charge "pure baloney. We have Jewish people, Gentiles, Italians, all kinds here. Earthman is just blowing smoke."

These cases will be heard Dec. 9 in the court of State Dist. Judge George Miller.

Big Thicket group out to stop cutting

HOUSTON (AP) — The Big Thicket Association says hundreds of acres of the Big Thicket National Preserve are being destroyed by a tree-cutting order issued by the Texas Forest Service to control the pine bark beetle.

Association President Howard Peacock of Houston said Thursday the widespread cutting is occurring in the preserve's 4,856-acre Beech Creek unit southeast of Woodville.

Peacock said the trees are being cut under the state agency's order by two major timber companies, International Paper Co. and Temple Esatex Inc., on land which they own in the Big Thicket unit.

The association wants the order rescinded and alternate measures taken.

"We want to get a team of scientists, including of pine bark beetle biologists and ecologists, to inspect the beetle and ecological damage and recommend some alternative measures that would save at least parts of that beautiful unit," Peacock said.

"They are using heavy logmoving machines called 'skimmers' to move the cut trees out to the road and hundreds of other trees—oak, magnolia, sassafras, hickory, beech—are being split, knocked over, uprooted or fatally scarred in bringing the logs out," Peacock said.

Up to 1,000 acres of the entire unit can be wiped out if the operations authorized by the Texas Forest Service continues at the present rates for even two more weeks, Peacock said.

Bruce Miles, associate director of the Texas Forest Service, said the Beech Creek unit is "just a massive cancerous area of pine bark beetle outbreaks and ecologists, break."

Striking workers lift siege of Portuguese premier

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Shouting "Victory! Victory!" thousands of striking construction workers lifted their siege of Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo early today after keeping him a prisoner in his official residence for 37 hours.

Azevedo's office and the strike committee announced jointly that the wage schedule "proposed" by the workers would be put into effect by Nov. 27. The joint statement also promised an inquiry into the Ministry of Labor.

The demonstrators demanded wage increases ranging from 18 to 44 per cent, which officials said would total $480 million a year. They also demanded the dismissal of the minister of labor and his chief aide.

Meanwhile, another throng of 20,000 people — including Socialists, Popular Democrats and Social Democratic Centrists — demonstrated Thursday night in support of Azevedo in Oporto, Portugal's second largest city, 175 miles north of Lisbon.

"Long live the north of Portugal," the Oporto crowd chanted. Informed sources said leaders of the government had discussed moving the government to Oporto.

The siege in Lisbon began Wednesday afternoon when 20,000 construction workers marched to the parliament building and the premier's official residence next door. They were joined Thursday by more thousands of workers demanding the return of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves, who was ousted two months ago.

About 250 members of the elected assembly trying to write a new constitution were meeting in the parliament building. The crowd did not allow them to leave until Thursday afternoon and then shouted "Fascists! Fascists!" as they filed out.

President Francisco da Costa Gomes tried to calm the situation with a broadcast speech in which he said the armed forces had to defend democratic order. There was no sign of unusual military activity, however.

The Socialists and the Popular Democrats, the two largest political parties, called on their followers to mobilize to counter the siege. The parties' leaders moved out of their downtown headquarters and met at a secret location.

Question deleted from 1040

The Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON — Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander has decided he will no longer require taxpayers to disclose on their 1040 forms if they have secret foreign bank accounts. The Los Angeles Times has learned.

The unannounced ruling means that a key question about foreign bank accounts that has been on individual income tax forms since 1971 will be omitted on the 1975 returns.

The question, added to the tax form as the result of congressional hearings in 1970, was once billed as a major tool in ferreting out illegally concealed funds.

Alexander said in an interview there was insufficient space for the foreign account question on the tax form because of demands for other tax information.

But Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said Alexander's decision "clearly runs contrary to the intent of the Bank Secrecy Act" designed to curb illegal use of foreign accounts.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.), chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, noted that the question on the tax form paralleled the purpose of the 1970 bank secrecy act.

"If the declaration on the tax form is being deleted, we will certainly want to know what justification can be offered for doing so," Reuss said.

Alexander's ruling has come at a time when he is under congressional scrutiny concerning enforcement of criminal tax laws, especially alleged abuses by U.S. taxpayers of secret Caribbean bank accounts.

Missing from the 1975 form will be a section at the end which required the taxpayer to answer "yes" or "no" to this question:

"Did you, at any time during the taxable year, have any interest in or signature or other authority over a bank, securities or other financial account in a foreign country (except in a U.S. military banking facility operated by a U.S. financial institution)?"

If the taxpayer checked the "yes" box, he was instructed to attach an additional schedule giving details.

The foreign bank question was proposed by the Treasury Department in 1970 as an outgrowth of discussions with House Banking Committee members who were seeking to curb alleged widespread misuse of Swiss bank accounts by U.S. racketeers and others.

Under the Bank Secrecy Act, which passed Congress later that year, the treasury secretary was also empowered to require U.S. banks to keep more voluminous records of their domestic and foreign transactions.

Proxmire, a chief Senate proponent of the act, called Alexander's action "disappointing." A source on the House Banking Committee said:

"If we had known the foreign bank question was going to be this tenuous, we would have sought to include it in tax legislation."

Nothing dramatic expected on trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's trip to China next month isn't expected to produce any dramatic developments and probably no tangible ones.

The journey will be mostly for the sake of appearances, but that does not diminish its importance. At this stage of U.S.-China relations, appearances substitute for the traditional components of policy.

A diplomatic relationship normally is built on trade, economic aid, political and military Alexander's decision could be difficult for Congress to alter, even if Congressmen are so inclined. Already the IRS has received from the printer the first of more than 82 million Form 1040 packets that will be mailed out early next year.

Alexander told The Times the foreign account question was not mandated by the 1970 law. He said instructions accompanying the 1975 form, as in past years, tell taxpayers they must file additional documents if they have such an account.

However, two tax attorneys with former government experience said these instructions alone are not sufficient to bring criminal cases in this area.

"The beauty of the 'yes' and 'no' boxes," one said, "was that you forced a man to state under penalty of perjury whether he had a foreign account."

Final arguments set today in murder trial

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the murder trial of Walter Jennings, who allegedly shot to death police officer Leland Anderson a few blocks from the Capitol.

Jennings, 24, admitted Thursday that he had struggled with Anderson on Congress Avenue, claiming he was mad because the officer had been "disrespectful." But, he said, he didn't have the "foggiest" idea who shot Anderson.

The defense and state closed their case just before noon Thursday.

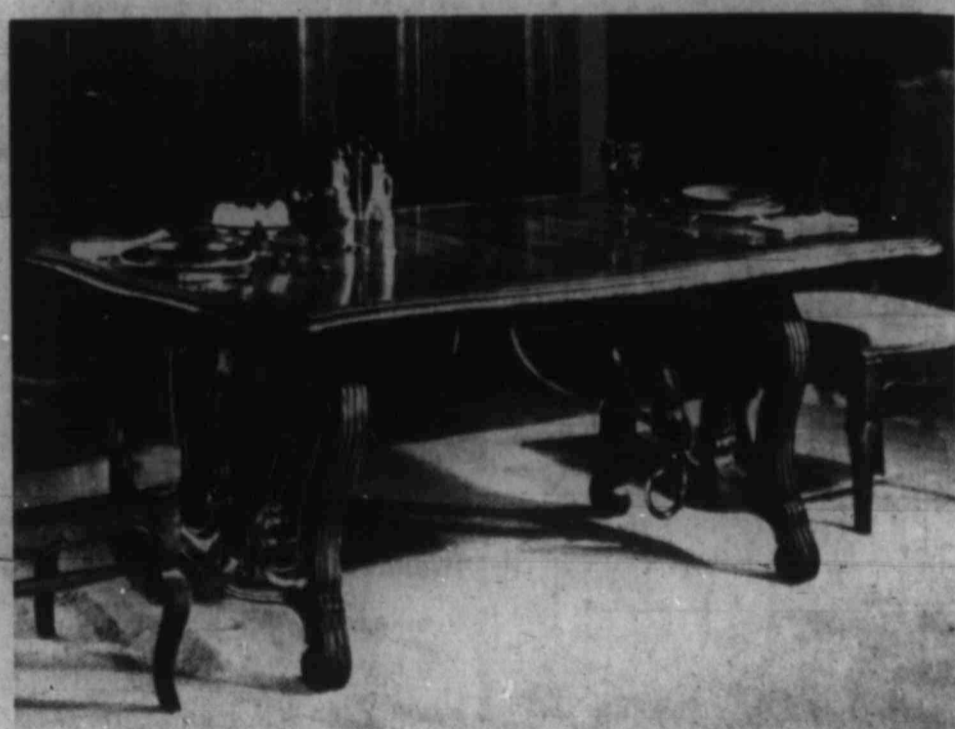

"Is it your testimony that you don't have the foggiest idea how the police officer was shot?", Asst. Dist. Atty. Larry Loden asked Jennings on cross-examination.

"I haven't the foggiest," Jennings replied.

Jennings testified he was driving down Congress Avenue, looking for two men who he had dropped off to sell copies of the Muslim newspaper when he saw one of them talking to Anderson. He said he got out and asked what the trouble was.

Jennings testified the officer reached out as if to grab the newspaper one of the other men, Harold Curtis, was holding, and that Jennings also tried to grab the papers but Anderson slapped him.

Meteorologists say man-made pollution may change weather

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heat from buildings and streets causes more rainfall and worsens pollution in cities, a meteorologist reported today.

"The change from natural, usually vegetated ground to concrete, stone and asphalt" has altered the temperatures in cities, creating what has been labeled "the urban heat island," Helmut E. Landsberg of the University of Maryland told a House subcommittee.

"In summer there is convincing evidence that the heat island initiates and intensifies showers over the urban areas and some distance downwind," he said. "About 10 per cent seasonal rainfall increases have been well documented."

"The heat island further distorts the windfield in and around the city. This may at times lead to recirculation of pollutants rather than their dispersal downwind."

The occasional beneficial influence of the heat island, he said, is a hastening of the melting of snow.

He said the influence of air pollution in urban and industrial areas is "measurable and substantial" and a list of its effects "is discouraging."

"It starts with reduced sunshine and restrictions on visual range. There are notable increases in fog. There are some influences on cloud and also on precipitation formation."

But he said "available information shows that these effects are reversible, and improvements have occurred where pollution controls have been instituted."

Other meteorologists said Thursday that man-made pollution may change long-range global weather patterns, but they are not sure what forms the changes will take. They also said there is no evidence that pollution has so far caused any worldwide changes in climate.

But Edward S. Epstein, associate administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said pollution caused acidity in rain and snow has killed fish in mountain lakes and may be responsible for weather changes that brought about agricultural failures.

Measurements indicate the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is growing and "almost certainly some climatic effects must result," Epstein said.

However, he said, scientists are uncertain about the specific nature of the effects or where they will occur.

Climatic changes can be caused by such pollutants as carbon dioxide, fluorocarbons given off by aerosol cans, nuclear fuel wastes, sulphur compounds and dust from combustion, explained Joseph Knox, reading a paper prepared by Michael MacCracken of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California.

"Mankind is on the verge, if not already capable, of being able to take actions that may noticeably disturb the delicate atmospheric balances of energy, radiation and water on the regional and, perhaps, global scale," he said.

Epstein said that atmospheric carbon dioxide is expected to increase by about 20 per cent by the end of the 20th century. By 2025, about twice as much carbon dioxide will be in the atmosphere as before the industrial era began, he said.

Knox said increased carbon dioxide, given off by burning fossil fuels, can raise global temperatures, causing the polar icecap to melt and raising sea levels.

Knox and Epstein testified before the House science and technology subcommittee on the environment and the atmosphere. The panel is considering the effects of low levels of pollution on the environment.

Board okays lawyer bill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rules and regulations on prepaid insurance for attorneys' fees have been approved by the State Insurance Board. The board announced its approval Thursday.

Fromme to present Ford's videotape first

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Lynette Fromme's attorney prepared to open her defense with the videotaped testimony of President Ford as her trial continues on a charge of attempting to kill the President.

Defense attorney John Virga said Thursday he would lead the defense presentation with the 20-minute Ford deposition, which was taped before the 27-year-old follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson went on trial last week.

The prosecution was expected to rest its case today in time for the defense to play the tape. U.S. deputy marshals rolled four large television sets into the courtroom Thursday afternoon so that the testimony could be seen by jurors, trial spectators and reporters.

Ford is the first president to be questioned as a witness in a criminal trial. Four other presidents — Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, Ulysses S. Grant and Richard Nixon — gave written depositions or supplied documents for criminal proceedings.

Ford gave his testimony Nov. 1 in Washington. Its contents have not been revealed, but it was expected to deal with his observations of Miss Fromme as she pointed a gun at him on Sept. 5 and the question of whether he heard the gun click.

Judge Thomas MacBride, who ordered Ford's sworn testimony at the request of Virga and Miss Fromme, said he would not allow photographers into the courtroom to take pictures of the President on the screen.

In urging MacBride to order the deposition, Virga said Ford might be able to help counter statements by prosecution witnesses who said they heard a click as if Miss Fromme had pulled the pistol trigger.

The President told FBI agents following the incident that he could not remember hearing a click.

MacBride has told jurors that the prosecution must prove not only that Miss Fromme pointed a pistol at Ford but also that she intended to use it.

During Thursday's session, Virga and Asst. U.S. Atty. Donald Heller debated whether jurors should be allowed to hear testimony about a statement Miss Fromme reportedly made after her arrest.

Heller quoted the defendant as saying, "But it didn't go off. I'm sorry, Sandy. They didn't know about it."

Heller said she made the comment as she was led past a police interrogation room in which two of her friends, Sandra Good, also a Manson follower, and Susan Murphy, were waiting to be questioned.

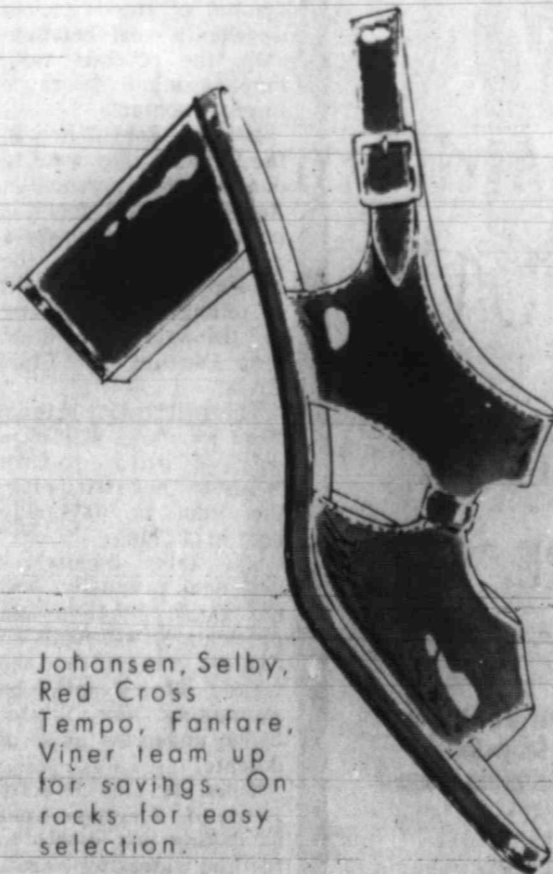

Heller did not say what the statement supposedly meant. MacBride said he would probably let the jury, which was out of the room at the time, hear testimony about the statement.

In court Thursday, Miss Fromme denied that she had told a grocery clerk that she hated Ford.

"I never said I hated Ford," she told MacBride during a brief courtroom appearance. "I never even blamed Ford."

MacBride ordered her back to a courthouse holding cell after she once again refused to agree not to disrupt the trial. She has been kept in the cell during trial sessions since an outburst last Friday in which she demanded that Manson be allowed to testify for her.

Cincinnati archbishop believes in open church

NEW YORK (AP) — A man obviously marked for the next "red hat" in American Roman Catholicism, Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, is giving the church new, distinctly open and progressive leadership.

"Commitment to people," "broad consultation," "sensitive listening," "new ways," "prophetic witness,"

"openness"—these are among the clear lineaments of his style.

"I am completely committed to an open church," he says. "We should have open processes of discussing and reaching conclusions on all issues."

As the new president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, the Cincinnati archbishop presides for the first time next week over their annual Washington, D.C., meeting, exercising a key role in the church's directions.

"The shape of U.S. Catholicism over the next 25 years depends on how he uses his power and manages the consensus of bishops," writes priest-psychologist, the Rev. Eugene C. Kennedy, of Chicago, in a close-up analysis of the bishop.

Characterizing him as "a measured man, a man in control," "patient," "open," a "southern gentleman," with "inclusive intelligence," "strong will" and "good progressive credentials," Father Kennedy writes in the U.S. Catholic:

"He seems attuned to his own psyche the way an expert mechanic is tuned to the motor's hum."

It is almost inevitable that he will be the next U.S. bishop made a cardinal. "A very modern churchman, representative of a new and alert kind of bishop," says Archbishop Jean Jadot, the Pope's representative in this country.

Archbishop Bernardin, 47, a six-foot, soft-spoken man, reared in the South, comfortable to talk with, has a gentle manner, but a forthright way of confronting thorny issues in church and society.

"The church must never hesitate to speak out on behalf of the values it espouses, even at the risk of making itself unpopular," he says.

He himself often has taken controversial stands, opposing U.S. military actions in Vietnam, condemning racism, economic injustice, anti-Semitism, urging respect for the "religious significance" of Jewish ties to Israel.

On the smouldering issues of allowing for married priests and the ordination of women, he says he doesn't see any way around the obstacles at the present time, but "we need to continue studying" the problems. "We won't abandon people, no matter what."

he emphasized in his discussion with Father Kennedy. "We are going to stick with people in their struggles. We are not going to judge them harshly or turn our backs on them."

"We want to help them find themselves and find happiness and we want to do this even with people who disagree with some of our teachings."

Quinlan visits become harder

By B. D. COLEN
The Washington Post

LANDING, N.J. — It has never been easy for Joseph and Julia Quinlan to make their twice-daily visits to their comatose daughter in the intensive care unit of St. Clare's Hospital in nearby Denville.

But last Monday night's visit was especially hard. Only hours earlier, New Jersey Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. had refused to grant the couple's plea that they be empowered to order doctors to disconnect Karen Ann's respirator and allow her to die.

As they always do, the Quinlans spoke to Karen, although doctors say she cannot hear, is not aware of her surroundings, and has absolutely no cognitive functions.

"It was a little harder Monday night," said Julia Quinlan. "I think it was the realization that we weren't going to be able to carry out Karen's wishes."

She explained, as she had in court, that her daughter repeatedly had expressed the wish that she not be kept alive by machines should she ever become critically ill.

"We always tell her we love her," said Joseph Quinlan. "I tell her we're doing everything we can for her, that we love her very much, that we're praying for her. I know she can't hear, but ..." his voice trailed off.

Doing everything possible would, at this point, seem to include an appeal of Muir's decision. The Quinlans say they have not yet made up their minds to carry on the legal battle.

At the same time, Joseph Quinlan said, "If we decided not to press this further, it would always bother us."

Judge Muir's decision did not answer the question of when a doctor and family may legitimately decide to cease treatment in a hopeless case.

Rather, Muir's decision simply left standing the existing state of confusion in which physicians may make such decisions but may face homicide charges for allowing patients to die.

In a lengthy interview, Joseph Quinlan said he is worried by the possibility of his daughter's respirator being accidentally disconnected.

"There's like an extension behind the bed, with all these outlets lined up like a metal cover, said Quinlan. "One part of it has been broken now for three or four days. I've asked a nurse if it can be fixed ..."

"I wouldn't want to see her turned off accidentally," he said. "I don't want any failure at all to happen. If this is going to be done, it's going to be done the right way, with everyone agreeing to it, and we're going to be there praying for her ..."

"It's so strange," said Julia Quinlan, because many times I've gone down (to the hospital) and the tube (from the respirator) that goes into the throat has been knocked out by her movement ... there are so many times that God could have taken her."

"I've had that tube in my hand so many times," said Joseph Quinlan, "but I've always" reconnected it. "It just pops right off. I've put it back many times, but I've never taken it off ..."

The Quinlans said they had planned to relax after the decision to clean house, enjoy the beautiful fall weather and attempt to get their thoughts together.

But from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, a steady succession of television and radio crews paraded through the living room and across the lawn of the family's modest, grey colonial home.

One after another, the crews would set up their lights, set up their cameras, ask the Quinlans the same set of questions, repack the equipment and make the dash to New York for the 6 o'clock news.

Each time there were the same shots: the small cement statue of the Virgin Mary on the lawn; the huge stack of mail from well-wishers; the family album photos of Karen as a little girl. And always, at the center, Joseph and Julia Quinlan.

Some microphones strung around their necks, and traces of smiles frozen on their faces, Joseph and Julia Quinlan stared at each other with obvious fatigue. "We have to hold this pose again," said Mrs. Quinlan quietly to her husband. "We've been doing this all day."

Hours later, when all the lights in the living room and the front of the house had been turned off to create the illusion that there was no one home, the couple sat in the kitchen reflecting about what they had been through, and how they feel now about the court.

Bicentennial funds to have big job impact

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — America's Bicentennial, thought by some to be just a birthday celebration, will be providing new federally funded jobs for the nation's unemployed.

The U.S. Commerce Department has transferred $15.8 million in federal job-impact funds to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) for parks, historic restorations and public works in areas of the country with high minority unemployment.

The money, which almost doubles ARBA's budget for grants, will finance 114 diverse projects in 34 states and Puerto Rico, providing jobs for over 4,000 persons, including totem pole carvers, construction workers, gardeners, designers and day care workers.

"Some people think the Bicentennial's untimely because of the economic situation," said ARBA administrator John W. Warner. "This shows positively how the Bicentennial can help create jobs."

The largest single grant is for $2.4 million for the Liberty State Park restoration of the coastal waterfront area in Jersey City for recreational and commercial use. The historic railroad terminal will be renovated and landscaped to provide jobs in an area that has 17.2 per cent unemployment.

The second largest grant is for $1.4 million to rescue Vermont's 1869 railroad loop, now in disrepair. The railroad, 235 miles long, would be especially used to stimulate tourism.

Major grants were awarded for projects to benefit blacks and low-income groups: $500,000 toward Detroit's inner city Science center, $295,680 to restore 18 Victorian row houses for low-income Detroit residents, $451,450 for child and elderly day care in Pennsylvania.

Almost $8 million was granted to 55 projects sponsored by Indian communities where unemployment has often reached 40 per cent.

Alaska's Auke Tribal Council will use $45,000 to carve and erect two 30-foot totem poles. Michigan's Saginaw Chippewa tribe will spend $100,000 to renovate a baseball diamond and campground. Wyoming's Wind River Indian reservation will use its $60,000 grant for a water and sewer project.

The projects' Warner said, were recommended to ARBA by state Bicentennial commissions and forwarded to Commerce for approval. Commerce, which controls $500 million appropriated by Congress for job-impact aid, then transferred the Funds to ARBA for disbursement.

Asked about the relationship of nonhistoric projects to the Bicentennial, Warner said, "My philosophy is that we're here to help the local communities do what they feel is important for their Bicentennial."

"Uncle Sam is not going to tell people what they should do. If the Indians want to improve their quality of life for the Bicentennial, that's fine."

ARBA, a relatively small agency of 239 employees has an operating budget of $10 million a year and has granted about $18 million in matching funds to the 50 states and several territories for thousands of projects.

Experts to eye cancer studies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration will convene a committee of outside experts next month to discuss four new studies that suggest heavy use of female sex hormones may contribute to a higher uterine cancer rate in older women.

An estimated 25 million prescriptions for the hormone estrogen were filled last year, primarily to ease women through the discomfort of menopause.

Dr. Donald Austin, who heads the California Tumor Registry, reported last month that the uterine cancer rate in his state has increased by about 35 per cent over the last seven years.

Noting the rise in female hormone use, Austin said his data "supports the hypothesis that estrogen given to postmenopausal women might be the cause."

Two other studies to be published Dec. 2 in the New England Journal of Medicine will suggest a statistical link between estrogens and uterine cancer, according to drug experts who have read the papers.

The FDA also has requested unpublished data from another tumor registry study by Dr. Edgar L. Makowski of the University of Colorado School of Medicine in Denver.

Dr. Donald C. Smith of the Mason Clinic in Seattle, cancer, according to drug experts who have read the papers.

Postage boost draws protest

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frieda Herrmann sends around 2,500 greeting cards every year, mostly to people she never met.

But the 55-year-old restaurant organist (currently unemployed) is worried that inflation in the form of higher postage will force her to trim the mailings which now average seven cards daily. She's asked President Ford to do what he can "to keep the price of stamps reasonable."

"I'm sure you will do the right thing," she wrote the White House in a letter that hasn't yet been answered.

First class postage is scheduled to jump from its present dime to 13 cents after Christmas, and Miss Herrmann insists "it will be a hardship."

"Unemployment doesn't pay me enough," she says. "When the price goes up I'll have to cut my mailing list, which means some shut-ins won't be receiving a note every week and to some it's the only mail they receive."

Miss Herrmann, born in Trenton, N.J., is an only child who says the only known relative she has is a second cousin "somewhere in California."

Her family is the folks she sends cards to, all over the world.

"I have a lot of friends, and that is more important than family," she says. "You are stuck with your relatives, but friends you can pick."

And she keeps in touch, for birthdays, anniversaries, holidays.

"I love people, and I like to make them happy," she says.

Most of the names on Miss Herrmann's list she obtained when she worked during the past three decades as an organist in various clubs and restaurants, pounding out organ music during and after dinner. She's handed out cards to the patrons, asking for names, addresses, birth and wedding dates.

"If anyone mentions an ill relative I get the name and send a card," she says. "You never realize how much it means to receive cards when you are sick at home or in a hospital. It brings a little bit of joy into people's lives."

Strangers, or not, they love to be remembered.

"I received a letter recently from a woman in South Carolina about cards I had sent to her mother over the years," Miss Herrmann says. "She said her mother keeps all the cards in a box."

Sometimes, of course, there's sadness, like the letter from Wilmington, Del., expressing thanks for a card for a 41st anniversary.

"The woman wrote that her husband had died a month before the anniversary," Miss Herrmann says.

Pumping halt suggested in coastal area

HOUSTON (AP) — A study by the Texas Water Resources Institute at Texas A&M University says property owners could save $11.4 million annually if all ground water pumping in the Houston-Galveston area ceased.

The study shows losses of $31.7 million to private property each year from subsidence in 945 square miles of Harris, Galveston, Brazoria and Chambers counties.

The study said the additional costs of surface water for the entire region would be more than compensated for by the reduction in subsidence damages.

Ground water costs were set at an average of $39.3 million per year from 1969-73, including costs of damages and for extracting the water. Surface water, without subsidence, would have cost about $27.9 million per year, the study said.

"The implications of this study seem clear," the report says. "Damages and property value losses associated with land subsidence in the Texas Gulf Coast are high and extensive ... The resulting costs, as estimated in this study, are so high that continued pumping of ground water at rates that cause subsidence cannot be justified."

The study was compiled over an 18-month period in 1974-75 from more than 1,100 interviews with property owners and public officials. It is an update from a 1974 study that showed losses of $14.6 million per year in a 300-square mile area surrounding Houston.

Who makes the laws?

Federal agencies last year issued 7,496 regulations.

Congress last year passed a total of 404 laws.

This can mean but one thing — Congress is being out-distanced by a marked degree in the lawmaking process.

It is reported that this fact just now is dawning on many members of Congress. It should frighten them no end.

The really surprising thing is that Congress hasn't been aware of this long before now. The business community has known it for a long time, as it has been forced to operate under orders and edicts, many of which are unwarranted, unjust, unnecessary and, yes, even impossible.

There is a move in Congress to institute a system whereby Congress has a veto power over regulatory actions.

A provision of this nature was included in the Federal Election Commission established by Congress. If the commission's actions are not suitable to members of Congress, they can strike down a regulation. This has been done on at least one occasion.

It is true that the regulatory agencies have only the power which Congress grants them. The trouble arises from the fact that Congress passes broad legislation, calling for great generalities. Congress then leaves the specifics — the interpretation, if you please — to someone not accountable directly to the voters.

This isn't the way the American system of government is intended to operate. It isn't the way the founding fathers intended it in the first place.

Some of the agency edicts actually are brutal. They can and have cost some businesses countless thousands of dollars unnecessarily. Some of the regulations have been mistakes in the first place, yet business has had to stand the cost.

It is time that something be done to correct this problem.

Congress also should and must take a second look at the sweeping-type of laws which it passes.

The responsibility rests with Congress.

He would serve!

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's announcement that he is withdrawing as a possible running mate with President Gerald Ford on the 1976 slate, has brought a positive statement on the subject from former Texas Gov. John B. Connally.

Connally said that although he is not interested in the vice presidency, he will accept the post if President Ford asks him to be his running mate next year.

"I am not going to say I would refuse to serve my country," Connally said at a news conference held at far-away Concord, N.H., where he addressed a $100-a-plate state GOP fund-raising dinner.

Spoken like a true American, governor!

Labor drives to unionize servicemen: sheer horror

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Copley News Service

Having made huge gains in unionizing government workers, including teachers, the labor bosses now are preparing an extensive campaign to organize soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Official figures show that 800,000 workers for federal, state and local governments joined unions between 1972 and 1974. During this same time unions and public employe associations increased their ranks by 1.1 million, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. Government employes accounted for 75 per cent of this growth.

Since 1964 the AFL-CIO unions of government employes have tripled their memberships.

To show how successful labor leaders have been in capturing the support of teachers, memberships in the American Federation of Teachers, which had grown from 100,000 in 1964 to 248,521 in 1972, reached a whopping 444,000 last year.

The National Education Association, largest of the public employe associations, gained 320,000 members during the last two years.

Simultaneously the American Federation of Government Employes has grown from 138,642 members in 1964 to 300,000 last year.

During the last 10 years, 14 unions each increased their membership by 100,000 or more, and the biggest gain was registered by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters with a total of 1,973,272 from 467,000.

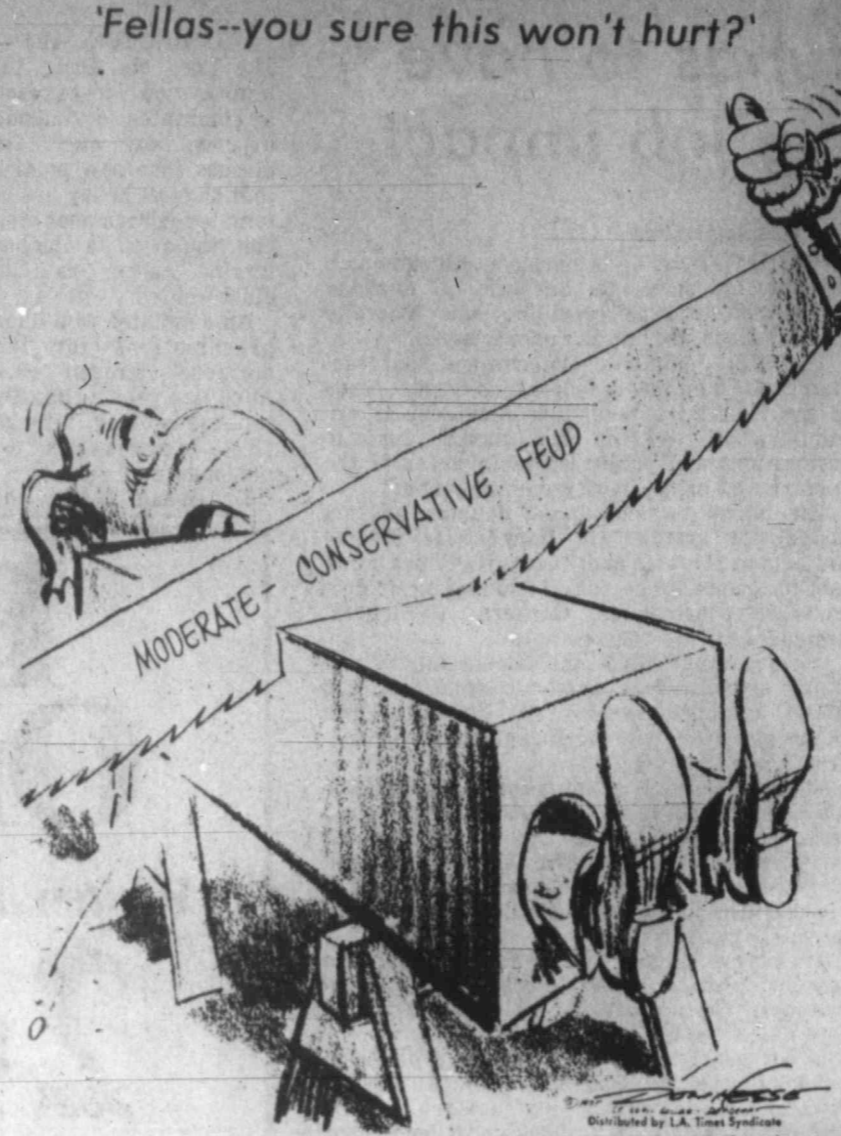

It is difficult to conceive how unionization of our military forces would be a wise or necessary move. Even some of the top labor leaders, such as George Meany, understand and appreciate the situation. One of Meany's closest assistants recently called efforts now in progress "the funniest thing I ever heard of."

Another skeptical AFL-CIO official put it this way: "I don't see how you could have the shop steward intervene when a sergeant says, 'Over the top!'"

The American Federation of Government Employes would like to unionize at least 300,000 servicemen. It would be a new source of revenue for the union bosses and their various funds, and it would give them even increased clout in national affairs.

There is some doubt that the union legally could accomplish this objective, so the union officials are saying that their role to help servicemen would be, in the beginning, limited. Of course this would only be the opening wedge.

Asked by the Wall Street Journal what the Pentagon thinks of a union plan to organize servicemen, a top Army general exclaimed, "Sheer

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Spot checks made of hospitals

By JACK ANDERSON
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A shockingly high percentage of hospitals, according to spot checks, don't meet the minimum federal standards.

The deficiencies range from inadequate fire protection and lax drug controls to unsanitary conditions and understaffing. Sloppy medical practices also have been discovered, such as the New York hospital which failed to take the proper precautions before transfusing blood.

These are the findings of the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW), which is supposed to police hospitals for the medicare program.

Spot investigations were conducted of 163 hospitals. An alarming 107 failed to measure up to the minimum standards.

In order to receive medicare money, hospitals must be accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH). This is composed of representatives from the nation's most prestigious professional medical groups.

Yet incredibly, the JCAH accredited all of the hospitals that HEW later disqualified. This has raised grave questions about the JCAH's own standards.

Most of the failing hospitals were disqualified because of safety deficiencies. The violations ranged from a shortage of exit signs to unacceptable fire protection equipment.

An HEW document, intended for official eyes only, charges that the JCAH accreditors missed the fire hazards because they "are not professionally qualified in the area of life safety."

Although JCAH conducted a thorough examination of each hospital's medical staff, the document adds, the accreditors overlooked "deficiencies in the areas of nurse staffing, dispensation of drugs, preparation of patient diets and the review of the social needs of patients."

Laundry was found in one hospital kitchen. In another hospital, the inspectors discovered that the suction device on respirators hadn't even been cleaned.

Understaffing was a problem in many hospitals, with unqualified aides sometimes doing work that doctors or nurses should perform. Tight budgets also caused skimping on food, resulting in poor dietary conditions.

The HEW survey covered only 2.2 per cent of the total number of accredited hospitals. But the hospitals were selected at random for investigation and appear to be typical.

"The validation survey," concludes HEW, "would appear to indicate substantial inadequacies with respect to JCAH performance."

Spokesmen for JCAH claimed that HEW regulations establish different standards than those used for accreditation. The JCAH complained, therefore, that the HEW survey is "meaningless and distorted" and may cause "unnecessary apprehension and confusion for the public and hospitals."

The spokesmen also charged that many HEW regulations are no more than petty, unnecessary rules imposed upon hospitals by a giant bureaucracy. For the hospitals to conform to the HEW standards, JCAH said, would cost about $101 million for 84 of the hospitals cited.

These costs, which average about $1.2 million per institution, would have to be added to medical bills, the spokesmen alleged.

JCAH has taken steps, meanwhile, to stop the disclosure of hospital survey information to the government. If this information becomes known to the patients, JCAH argued, hospitals might no longer be willing to cooperate with the surveys.

For our part, we believe the

INSIDE REPORT: Fear and anger in New York City cited

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — Delight in Wall Street and among the old Republican establishment over the follies of this liberal Democratic city has now soured to fear over the future and anger against President Ford.

While Mr. Ford's hard-line speech Oct. 29 against bailing out New York fit the national mood and was easily his most successful political venture in weeks, it has backfired here. Bankers, financiers and Republican politicians believe his hard-nosed language intensified the city's crisis. "I'm afraid," one New York conservative Republican told us acridly, "that the President got a little mixed up and thought the election is being held in 1975, not 1976."

Moreover, the hostility may soon deepen. Financiers headed by Wall Street wizard Felix Rohatyn spent the weekend trying to put together an eleven-hour package to avert default for the city and for state government agencies but requiring some federal support. Even before the weekend meetings began, however, the President reiterated to close associates that he would veto any such federal support on grounds it would wipe out all self-help efforts here.

Actually, Republicans and businessmen unanimously agree with Mr. Ford's assessment that the city's profligate Democratic leaders neither comprehend their misdeeds nor are truly repentant. But joy over the Democrats' nightmare here has been suppressed by a starker emotion: terror.

Besides the prospect of New York City default, the state housing finance agency may not be able to refinance $133 million in notes. That may be followed by failure of other state agencies to find lenders and by the ultimate catastrophe of default by the New York state government itself.

This terrifies the city's world famous banks which hold heavy amounts of city and state paper. The immediate result is scare talk about major businesses, both U.S. and European, rescuing their deposits. Even though the Federal Reserve System is pledged to prevent it, fear of a liquidity crisis runs rampant in New York today — in itself an unsettling economic phenomenon.

A post-default financial panic is generally viewed as improbable, but not remote. Even if it is averted, however, there is deep worry about long-term economic repercussions. One of Wall Street's brightest young economists sees default so tilting the balance toward personal saving and against spending as to threaten a 1976 recession. At the least, default would make permanent the severe difficulties of the tax-exempt bond market caused by New York's deepening problems over the last nine months.

Wall Street's chortling over city hall's nightmare has been stilled by voices of caution. Word has widely circulated that Dr. Arthur Burns, respected chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, was outraged by the strident tone of Mr. Ford's Oct. 29 speech. Similarly Wall Street has been quietly informed that Burns is considerably more concerned about the post-default conditions of New York banks than either the President or Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Simultaneously, previously solid New York Republican support for Mr. Ford's hard line has ended. Senate majority leader Warren Anderson, the capable upstate conservative, has made no ringing declarations. But he has privately pleaded with numerous Ford administration policymakers to ease their stonewall rigidity.

The exit of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 ticket reflects both cause and effect of the city's crisis. Opposition to the Ford policy by New York banking interests intimately tied to the Rockefeller family was the source of his break with the President. That break, in turn, contributed to establishment unease.

What is happening here confirms a private warning delivered Oct. 28 in Washington at the weekly meeting of Republican Senators by a Southern conservative, Sen. William Brock of Tennessee. Brock declared it was fine and dandy to flail the New Yorkers for their many sins, but added a Cassandra warning: if default does lead to economic distress, Republicans had better move quickly to prevent disaster. After the meeting, solicitous senatorial colleagues took Brock aside to explain that such talk would not go down well in Tennessee.

It probably will not. But in New York, Brock's warning is echoed daily by Republicans. Instead of those mopey politicians of New York City getting trapped by their own profligacy, a beleaguered President Ford may be the real political victim, blamed for national economic misery flowing from this bankrupt city.

Douglas leaves imprint on nation

By JAMES E. CLAYTON

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — William O. Douglas is one of those rare persons who has done it all. He served longer on the Supreme Court than any other justice in American history and stamped his personal imprint deeply on large parts of the nation's jurisprudence.

That is what he will be remembered for, but that is only a part of Justice Douglas. This remarkable man once ran a major regulatory agency and, at least once, came close to being President.

He has traveled all over the world and lived constantly in a swirl of controversy. He has written more books and articles than many professional authors. And he has been, at the same time, a part of the sophisticated world of the East Coast and of the mountains of the West.

It was those mountains — the Cascades of Washington state that shaped this justice's views and life. He has been just as robust as they in his belief in free speech and the other guarantees contained in the Bill of Rights. And just as rugged and freespirted as they are in his personal life.

It is hard to recall now that when Douglas came to Washington in 1936 to serve on the Securities and Exchange Commission the constitutional issues facing the country involved the power of the federal government to govern.

It was in that area that Douglas made his first major contributions to American law. He believed, unlike many of his predecessors on the Court, that the Constitution granted granted power to Congress to run the place. He put that belief into action on the SEC, thrusting it deeply into supervision of the money markets, and later on the court, where he voted consistently to uphold government regulation of business and industry. He was the champion of the small firm or investor, much like the justice he succeeded, Louis D. Brandeis.

And, like Brandeis, Douglas soon became known as an ardent champion of free speech. He and the late Hugo L. Black paired up regularly in the 1950s with dissents that paralleled those of the first great team of civil libertarians on the Court Brandeis and Oliver Wendell Holmes.

In his early years on the bench, the influence of Douglas on the rest of the New Deal Court was substantial. He knew more about the kinds of issues then before the Justice — regulation of business, corporate finance, and so on — than most of his colleagues and he frequently spoke for the majority.

Later, his influence appeared to wane and, in recent years, he has been found more and more frequently in a dissenting posture unshared by any other member of the Court.

Some of his critics have attributed this not so much to the positions he espoused as to the way in which he reached them. He had less reluctance than most justices to break out of the Court's beaten paths and to use his opinions as vehicles for comment of public, as well as legal, issues.

For some of these critics, the 36 1/2 years Justice Douglas spent on the Court have been years of unfulfilled expectations. They regard him as a man of monumental ability and energy who never devoted all he could have to the Court's work.

To other court observers, Douglas has been a fitting heir to the seat of Brandeis. They regard his unorthodoxy in legal matters and his constant grappling with problems not before him as reflective of his own search for a real sense of what the law ought to be.

Perhaps Douglas' greatest contribution to the court has been as a spur against complacency. He was ready, first, to expand the legal rights of the poor. He was always a foe of racial discrimination. And almost any case attracted his interest if it contained what he saw to be a social or political injustice.

Much of this arose, no doubt, from the experiences Douglas had in his youth. Born in Minnesota, he grew up in Yakima, Washington, in a poor family. An early case of polio led him into mountain-climbing to regain his strength and to work in the wheat fields where he encountered much of the radical rhetoric of the Wobblies of that era.

To this was later added undergraduate schooling at Whitman college in Walla Walla, Wash., the gloss of a Columbia Law School education and two years of work in a Wall Street law firm. Then came teaching at Columbia and Yale before he came to Washington as one of the bright young men of the New Deal.

These two differing views of the world came together in Douglas' eagerness both to spot injustice and to find a way to cure it. Justice Black once remarked, after working with Douglas for years, that the first cry Bill Douglas uttered when he was born "must have been a protest against something he saw at a glance was wrong or unjust."

Douglas has never stopped uttering those protests no matter how unpopular the subject or how much trouble his views will create for him. Those protests — so often spoken so violently undoubtedly reduced his influence on the Court and may have receded the prestige of the Court itself with some Americans. But they have also carved out for him in the Court's history an unusual niche and made him a hero of those whose rights he sought to protect — the poor, the powerless and the heretics.

Young pen pals bonded by fights against cancer

MIAMI (AP) — The son of a U.S. senator and the son of a Dade County policeman, bonded by their battles against bone cancer, are still pen pals even though the illnesses of both have all but been licked.

"I don't have any (other) friends who are amputees," Teddy Kennedy Jr., 14, eldest son of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., wrote recently to Steve Southerland, 15, of South Miami. "It's good to hear from a pen pal."

It's been almost two years since Teddy had his right leg amputated four inches above the knee. Doctors said the radical surgery was needed to halt the life-threatening spread of a malignancy in the tissue next to the bone.

In March 1974, Steve's left leg was amputated to halt the spread of a similar cancer. At the time, Steve, the third child in his family to suffer from cancer, was given a slim chance of survival. But he has gained weight, grown four inches and is doing well in school.

When Teddy learned of Steve's disease a little more than a year ago, he wrote the Florida youth to offer encouragement and understanding. A P.S. to the note read, "I am going skiing tomorrow."

A month ago, Teddy wrote again to tell Steve that he was finished with chemotherapy — a procedure that sometimes made him sick — and how things are going pretty well.

"I know how much it means to you and your family" to have passed the two-year milestone, Steve wrote back. "I am beginning to adjust well to my artificial leg ... and I know how great it is to be off therapy."

Steve took the drugs for 19 months. He ended up with a peptic ulcer and also suffered with liver and kidney problems. "The worst part of the whole thing is the medication," he said

Wednesday. "It makes you depressed and grouchy, and you don't know when you're going to throw up."

The Southerlands already have suffered through the death of a 4-year-old son Jeffrey, a victim of leukemia, and the spinal cancer that struck another son, Michael, now 11. Doctors say Michael, who underwent three operations, has been cancer-free for six years.

Steve, who has outgrown two artificial limbs and is working on a third, wrote that he's "the only four-legged sophomore in Killian High School."

And he says he fell in school the other day. "A girl caught me," he added. "It was fun."

Karen Silkwood's death probe doesn't satisfy her parents

By MARLENE CIMONS
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Merle and Bill Silkwood are convinced that their daughter, Karen Gay Silkwood, was murdered.

They also believe that if they don't raise hell about it themselves the case will be forgotten, and an injustice will remain uncorrected.

The Silkwoods are determined to have the investigation into their daughter's death reopened. "Why are we doing this?" says Mrs. Silkwood, crying. "The only reason is because Karen would want us to."

In this personal mission, the Silkwoods have the support of the National Organization for Women, the country's largest women's rights organization, which declared Thursday — the first anniversary of Karen Silkwood's death — Silkwood Memorial Day.

On that day, and during the following week, NOW plans to deliver petitions to the Capitol Hill offices of members of the Senate Government Operations Committee — the one committee that has shown some interest in the case — demanding a public congressional investigation of the nuclear industry and, more specifically, the circumstances of Karen Silkwood's death.

KAREN SILKWOOD, who was 28, was killed last Nov. 13 in an automobile crash. Silkwood, a laboratory technician in an Oklahoma plutonium factory, died en route to a meeting with a New York Times reporter and an official of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union. The session had been arranged to discuss safety conditions in the plant — the Cimarron facility of the Kerr-McGee Corp. near Crescent, Okla. — and her allegation that the plant had manufactured some faulty fuel rods and that inspection documents required for these rods had been falsified.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol said she had fallen asleep at the wheel and pronounced her death an accident.

Her parents and the union do not agree and want the investigation re-opened.

"Karen was not a person who got drowsy at the wheel," Bill Silkwood said. "She liked to drive at night. She was an expert driver."

He paused to light a cigarette, the first of many.

"The whole thing has been a coverup," he said. "It's been a coverup from the moment she was killed."

He was not speaking solely from grief, or family loyalty, or misdirected anger. He believes he has proof. He bases his charge on the results of a private investigation conducted three days after his daughter's death by A.O. Pipkin Jr., of the Accident Reconstruction Lab of Dallas, who was hired by the union.

Pipkin, a former policeman who has investigated more than 2,000 accidents and testified in more than 300 court trials, said he felt there was enough evidence to indicate that Silkwood's car was struck from behind by another vehicle.

THESE ARE the main facts: At approximately 7:30 p.m. that evening on Oklahoma State Highway 74, just south of Crescent, Silkwood was driving a 1973 Honda south on the highway when her car left the roadway on the east side (crossing left, over the northbound lane), traveled approximately 270 feet, and collided with a concrete culvert wing wall. She died of massive injuries.

"Here's a deal where everybody's assuming this girl just fell asleep, and I believe there's enough evidence to indicate she didn't," Pipkin told The Los Angeles Times in a telephone conversation. "I believe that there's enough circumstantial evidence to indicate there may have been another car involved."

Pipkin's report listed several reasons for this conclusion.

"The first thing was the fact that the car went off the left-hand side of the roadway," his report said. "In most one-vehicle accidents where the driver has gone to sleep, or because of impaired abilities, the vehicle has always gone off to the right because of the contour of the road, namely the crown."

The second thing, his report said, was the configuration of the tracks through the grass as the vehicle left the paved shoulder on the east side of the road. There were three tracks, rather than two or four, indicating, he said, that the automobile was out of control before it ever left the paved portion of the road. "The only way this car could have been put in this attitude was either an impact by an unknown vehicle or a combination of an impact by an unknown vehicle and driver over reacting and subsequent loss of control," the report said.

Further, it said, there was a fresh dent approximately two inches long on the left rear corner of Silkwood's bumper.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol said the dents had been caused by the car hitting the concrete wing wall when it was moved after the accident by a wrecker operator. Pipkin, however, had the bumper and fender analyzed by Dr. Gerald Greene, of Socorro, N.M., a metallurgist, and Dr. E.L. Martin of Albuquerque, a chemist, both of whom said that the dent showed absolutely no traces of concrete. "The way that dent was made, there would have had to have been concrete in it if it had hit that wall," Pipkin said. "And, there was no doubt that the dent was a fresh one — every other part of the bumper and fender was covered by a thin film of dust. There was no dust in the dent."

The one fact that lends credence to the report of the state highway patrol was that an autopsy performed on Karen Silkwood showed methaqualone, a tranquilizer, in her bloodstream, stomach and liver. This may or may not have caused sleep, but could very well have impaired her reactions.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation conducted a preliminary investigation, and declared the case closed. "In our view, there was a lack of any evidence to indicate her death was anything but an accident," said a spokesperson for the FBI.

The FBI spokesperson was asked if the Pipkin report had been studied. Pipkin said he supplied the FBI with a copy. "Let me repeat what I said: there was lack of evidence to indicate her death was anything but an accident," the FBI official said.

The events leading up to Silkwood's death contain some bizarre aspects.

Silkwood had been a active union member and, prior to her death, had been gathering documentation to support her allegations of safety violations and falsification of records within the Kerr-McGee plant. The plant was one of two commercial plutonium factories in the country. Kerr-McGee was manufacturing plutonium fuel rods to be used in an experimental liquid metal, fast breeder reactor being constructed near Richland, Wash. Plutonium, a carcinogen, is one of the most lethal substances known. It retains its radioactivity for 250,000 years.

"When I told one of Karen's old high school teachers that she was working at Kerr-McGee, he got very upset," her mother said. "He said — 'Merle, get her out of there. I wouldn't let her in there for a million dollars.' I said, 'It's ok, she wears coveralls and steel-toed shoes and special gloves. He said, 'no nuclear plant is safe. Get her out.' But she wouldn't leave. She had promised the union she would finish what she had started."

As it turned out, the protection was not enough. In circumstances never fully explained, Karen Silkwood became contaminated with plutonium on several occasions about a week before her death. So did her apartment. Some have suggested that people unhappy with her union activities were trying to frighten her. Others have speculated that she poisoned herself in an effort to discredit the company. A report from the Atomic Energy Commission says the personal contamination did not result from an accident or incident within the plant, but does not specifically say how it did occur.

"WHY WOULD she poison herself?" said her father. "She was very distraught about the contamination. And if she did, how did she get the plutonium out? That wouldn't say much for plant security, would it? I'm sure someone was just trying to scare her off. If they had wanted to kill her with plutonium, they could have done it."

He said that Karen and her roommate frequently left their apartment unlocked and that someone could easily have contaminated the apartment while they were gone. In any event, her parents said she was under considerable stress during the week the contamination was discovered. "She called me up and said she thought she was dying," Merle Silkwood said. "She was very upset."

Intra-city tiff climaxes season

Midland High and Midland Lee bring 6-3 records into tonight's intra-city football game that may be the season's last Big Hurrah for the Tall City schools.

The Rebels shared the District 5-4A title with San Angelo last year, but the Maroon is out of it this year with a 3-3 district record. However, they still hope to get a piece of second and can do it by knocking the Purple Pack out of the race.

Midland is 4-2 in district and has an outside chance at a share of the title. That's something the Purple Pack has little control over. However, with a victory, Midland could nail down a share of second and if Abilene Cooper loses to Abilene, could have it all to themselves.

On paper, it should be as even as last year's 7-7 tie.

THE SERIES stands 8-5-2 in favor of Midland.

Midland opened the season with a victory over Amarillo Tascosa and then was upset by El Paso Eastwood, 3-2. The Bulldogs bounced back the next week to upset Lubbock Monterey, 28-14. After a 14-0 loss to Odessa Permian in the district opener, the Bulldogs rolled to four straight 5-4A triumphs with victories over Big Spring, Abilene, San Angelo and Odessa before losing to Cooper, 14-8, last week.

Midland Lee breezed through its non-district schedule with victories over Lubbock, Snyder and Plainview and opened the district campaign with a win over Odessa High.

After that came losses to San Angelo and Cooper, a win over Big Spring and then a tough loss to Permian. Last week the Rebels bounced Abilene, 14-7.

BULLDOG ASSISTANT Stan Moore, who scouted the Rebels, said, "They lost some district games through mistakes, but they've stopped making those mistakes. Lee's defense was especially impressive against Abilene. The Eagles scored late in the game on a pass interference call. We know what kind of offense Abilene has, so that tells you what kind of defense Lee has."

Lee's No. 1 offense in the district is paced by Gary Clyde, the league's leading rusher. Clyde has gained 613 yards on 111 carries. Fullback Bobby Humble is Lee's No. 2 rusher with 235 yards.

Midland's No. 4 offense in 5-4A is paced by Phillip Ward's 448 yards in 75 carries. Ward ranks fourth among the rushers. Kim Madden has gained 224 yards. Kevin Widner 201 and fullback Terry Whitaker 174.

Both teams are capable of throwing the ball. Widner has passed for 416 yards and six touchdowns while Lee's David Hobbs had thrown for 235 yards and two TDs.

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. and a crowd approaching 10,000 fans is expected for the annual classic.

Chaparrals stave off Cisco JC

BY TED BATTLES

Midland College returned from a triumphant two-night march through East Texas and almost ran into an ambush in their home basketball opener Thursday night at Lee High gym.

The Chaparrals made it three in a row with an 88-83 victory over Cisco Junior College and one reason for the scare was the absence of high-scoring Tommy Parks, who spent the game in Dallas.

Parks, who averaged 25 points in the Chaps' first two games, had four wisdom teeth yanked, but is expected to return to Midland in time for MC's Monday night game against Lubbock Christian College at Midland High gym.

A COUPLE of other reasons for the scare were Cisco's 6-3 Kenneth Burns and 6-4 Dale Pond.

Burns scored 27 points and was deadly from outside all night. And if the name Pond sounds familiar, it should. He is a former Midland High cager who sat out a year and then "walked on" at Cisco last year.

"Two of our best players quit last week," he said after a 21-point performance against the Chaparrals, "so we don't have much depth, but I think we'll do all right."

Pond's scoring came in streaks and one came just before the half when the Chaparrals led 49-41 and the surge prevented the hosts from pulling out of sight.

THEN HIS basket at the end of a fast break closed Midland's lead to 86-83 with 46 seconds left and caused MC fans to squirm uncomfortably. However, the Chaps were equal to the occasion with 5-9 Scott Stamp, Ken Adams and Jackson Pace stalling the clock down to five seconds. Stamp then sewed it up with two free throws. Five Chaps scored in double figures, led by the 6-5 Pace from Lubbock

Monterey, who had 16, to take up the slack for Parks. Andrews' Crawford Williams scored 14, Stamp 12 while Adams and (Continued on 2C)

SWC wheels, deals behind closed doors

By The Associated Press
There could be as much behind-the-scenes action involving bowl deals this weekend in the Southwest Conference as there will be on the field.

Should third-ranked Texas A&M, seventh-ranked Texas and unranked Arkansas prevail as forecast, some interesting things could happen behind closed doors.

SWC executive secretary Cliff Speegle said he has discussed a package plan with "some" of the coaches—presumably Darrell Royal of Texas, Emory Bellard of Texas A&M and Frank Broyles of Arkansas.

"We are not at liberty to discuss it with bowl people until Nov. 15 but it's the only way our teams are going to get into the bowl picture...it sounds like a good idea to me," Speegle said.

There's talk the SWC runnerup would travel either to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, or the Gator Bowl with the third place team taking one or the other. The Fiesta Bowl and the Sun Bowl are also hot after SWC first division clubs.

The SWC champion, of course, hosts the Cotton Bowl but that won't be decided until well after the Nov. 15 date which opens the season for bowls hunting team. All SWC teams share in bowl revenue.

Rice, Texas Christian and Southern Methodist lurk in the shadows as the heavies. Rice is an 18-point underdog to the Aggies, Texas Christian is a 35-point underdog to Texas, and Southern Methodist is a 10-point underdog to Arkansas.

However, A&M and Arkansas must play away from home against teams which have given them fits in the last five years.

Aggie Coach Bellard is only 1-2 against the Owls and the Cadets own a narrow 30-26-3 all-time edge.

Arkansas is 24-22-4 in the alltime series with SMU but hasn't beaten the Mustangs in Dallas since 1971.

TCU knocked Texas out of the national rankings with victories in Austin in 1941, 1959 and 1961. However, Texas put an 81-16 lump of the Horned Frogs last year.

A victory by either TCU, SMU or Rice could empty a lot of smoke-filled rooms—fast.

Not to be overlooked is the regionally televised match between crippled Baylor and Texas Tech in Lubbock. The hometowners have been established four-point favorites. Baylor hasn't beaten Tech on the road since 1963.

Black schools seek new law

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals will be asked to overturn a regulation allowing Mississippi's predominantly white universities to recruit athletes signed by traditionally black state schools.

Black forces said Thursday they would appeal U.S. District Court Judge William Keady's refusal Wednesday to set aside the new rule adopted by the state College Board.

The rule gives the formerly all-white universities a recruiting advantage over the traditionally black schools, said Ike Madison, attorney for the Black Mississippians' Council on Higher Education.

Keady had held that the College (Continued on 2C)

Indiana high school cager dies

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — A 16-year-old high school freshman collapsed and died Thursday evening at the windup of a basketball practice session, authorities said.

David Patrick, 16, son of Mrs. Shirley A. Smith, was pronounced dead at a Muncie hospital. Patrick, who played on Muncie North High School's freshman football team and just started basketball practice, was running laps around the school gym when he clutched his stomach and bent over, witnesses said.

Pending results of an autopsy, the coroner said heart failure or a ruptured artery probably caused the youth's death.

THE NEWS, which said it had obtained a copy of the affidavit, quoted Hawthorne as saying, "I did in fact take the ACT (American College Testing) test in place of Steve Griffin on a Saturday during the spring of 1972."

Barnes faces law suit

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The damage suit trial of basketball player Marvin Barnes here may deny the Spirits of St. Louis the 6-foot-9 center.

The $1.5 million civil damage suit was scheduled to start Monday in U.S. District Court. It is an outgrowth of Barnes' 1974 guilty plea to a charge of attacking former Providence College teammate Lawrence Ketvirtis with a tire iron after an October 1972, practice session.

Last season's American Basketball Association's rookie of the year was absent in the Spirits' loss to Kentucky Wednesday 1974 guilty plea to a night.

Bufs head for trouble

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A former University of Colorado athlete has sworn in an affidavit he took a college entrance test for a Colorado football player in exchange for a promise of an athletic scholarship, the Rocky Mountain News said in today's editions.

The News said Vance Hawthorne confirmed he took the test for Steve Griffin, who had scored badly on the test, in an affidavit taken in connection with a civil suit filed against Colorado University Coach Bill Mallory and the school's athletic department.

The suit, filed by Griffin's parents, alleges that Mallory and the department staff arranged a stand-in to take a test and prepare a course report for their son.

THE NEWS, which said it had obtained a copy of the affidavit, quoted Hawthorne as saying, "I did in fact take the ACT (American College Testing) test in place of Steve Griffin on a Saturday during the spring of 1972."

Pearl stops Knicks' losing nonsense

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Earl Monroe has a good point: you can't score from the bench. "I only played five minutes," Monroe said, explaining why he only took two shots from the field and scored three points in the opening half of Thursday night's National Basketball Association game with the Houston Rockets.

"The Pearl" saw quite a bit more action in the final two periods, winding up with 23 points while leading the Knicks to a 109-102 victory, their first after five straight losses.

In other NBA games Thursday, Phoenix clipped Boston 110-107, WASHINGTON nipped Seattle 106-103 and Golden State defeated Chicago 98-87.

In the only American Basketball Association game played, San Antonio crushed Virginia 124-100.

Knicks 108, Rockets 102
"I got three quick fouls in the first period, so I figured I would sit out the rest of the first half," Monroe said. "But in the third period, I could go out and play my game."

Monroe, guarded mostly by Houston's Calvin Murphy, took the 5-foot-10 guard deep inside time and again, scoring on a variety of spinning jump shots.

"The closer you get to the basket, the higher percentage of shots you're going to hit," Monroe said. "And when I can get the ball down that low, somebody has to come help out, which opens up another one for other players."

New York broke a 96-96 deadlock and pulled away as Houston repeatedly threw the ball away while the Knicks took control of both backboards in breaking a five-game losing streak.

New York had a balanced attack with Bill Bradley scoring 17 points, Spencer Haywood 16, Walt Frazier 14 and John Gianelli 13. Houston's Mike Newlin took scoring honors with 26 points, while Murphy added 22 and Joe Meriwether and Rudy Tomjanovich had 21 each.

Warriors 98, Bulls 87
Held scoreless in the first period, Rick Barry exploded for 38 points to lead Golden State past Chicago. It was the Warriors' five straight victories and their seventh against two losses. Chicago challenged only once, cutting the margin to seven points at 62-55 in the third period, before Derrek Dickey and Barry moved the Warriors back out to an 11-point advantage. Van Lier paced Chicago with 26 points as the Bulls were held to just 30 points in the first half.

Mob to avoid offending Ags

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rice University band has decided that poking fun at the Aggies of Texas A&M can be harmful to your health. Two years ago the band, called the MOB for "Marching Owl Band", provided a show of Aggie satire during the halftime of the Texas

A&M-Rice football game. The show caused a near-riot, with members of the A&M cadet corps attacking the bandmen in a repeat of the last A&M visit to Houston.

"THE BAND members realized that anything like that would be in bad taste and possibly harmful to their bodies," said drum major Mike Fowler, a Rice junior from Canton, Ohio.

Fowler said Rice president Norman Hackerman "suggested" several weeks ago that the Aggies might be a good subject to avoid in MOB's halftime show.

The bite of the MOB's satire was so feared, apparently, that Texas A&M President Jack Williams called Hackerman several weeks ago.

Hackerman said Williams was worried about a rumor that the MOB was planning a spoof on the recent funeral of Reville, the Aggie mascot. "I told him it wasn't true," Hackerman said.

MOB director Bert Roth said Hackerman asked him "to be reasonable" in planning the halftime show and Roth reassured him.

"We realize that to spoof A&M would be very grave mistake," said Roth. "We don't want to provoke an incident."

North Stars' Boston frustration continues

By The Associated Press
The Minnesota North Stars are the Minnesota No-Stars in Boston Garden.

They've never won a game in Boston and continued their bitter Garden frustration by dropping a 6-0 National Hockey League decision to the Bruins Thursday night.

As usual, the North Stars couldn't do anything right up there while the Bruins were doing everything they pleased—including three short-handed goals, two by Brian Forbes.

"I don't think we extended ourselves hard tonight," said Boston Coach Don Cherry, matter-of-factly. "We'll have a better test in Atlanta Saturday night. It's on the road and they're a pretty good club."

Cherry was impressed with Forbes' work. Not only did he score the two goals, but was a valuable asset to the Bruins as a five in a row—the last penalty-killer. And there were plenty of penalties to kill.

"This could be the making of Forbes as a penalty killer," Cherry said. "The goals were just gravy. He played with a lot of confidence. When he killed penalties before, he didn't seem to have a lot of confidence."

In the other NHL games, the Detroit Red Wings beat the Kansas City Scouts 6-3; the Montreal Canadiens trimmed the Pittsburgh Penguins 5-4; the Philadelphia Flyers and Chicago Black Hawks played to a 5-5 tie and the Los Angeles Kings nipped the New York Islanders 4-3.

Bobby Orr joined in the Boston scoring parade, collecting his first goal of the season. Like Forbes' goals, it was also short-handed. Gregg Sheppard scored the other two Boston goals against the North Stars, who have lost

Braless lass tossed from volleyball team

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Esther Pena has been thrown off the Texas A&I University volleyball team because school officials say she refused to wear a brassiere.

Betty Brewer, woman's athletic director, described the 21-year-old former volleyball captain as "probably the best woman athlete ever to compete at Texas A&I University."

But Miss Pena said that Mrs. Brewer won't abide by her desires not to wear a bra and other coeds have failed to support her.

The dispute arose Oct. 22 when Mrs. Brewer told the Miss Pena to put on a bra or get off the volleyball squad.

"Esther always used a bra in past seasons," Mrs. Brewer said.

Miss Pena disagrees.

"I've never worn a bra in competition. They know that."

The three-year veteran polleyball player says the bra issue began after she made some complaints about Mrs. Brewer and a male coach.

"The whole thing was designed to keep me quiet. I'm not a woman's libber. I'm just myself," Miss Pena said.

Bullpups romp

By BOB DILLON

The Midland Bullpups stormed to an easy 33-13 victory Thursday afternoon over the Midland Lee JV in Memorial Stadium in a season-ending football game.

Scotty Jenkins and Alvin Price paved the way for the Midland attack to give the Pups a final 6-4 reading, the same as Lee.

It was the second win for Coach Roy Blair's Pups over the Stonewall Brigade. Midland took a 30-14 win in the season opener back in September.

Jenkins rushed for 138 yards in 10 carries while Price had 74 yards in nine carries for the winners who dominated the rugged contest which saw seven fumbles lost, three by Lee and four by MHS.

Jenkins had touchdown runs of 42 and 61 yards while Price skipped 47 yards for a TD. Gerald Dedrick and David Isby had the other scores for MHS.

Midland drew first blood in the opening period when on its first possession, Jenkins broke on his 42-yard scamper to pay dirt ending a 58-yard drive in seven plays. David Reddell booted the PAT for a 7-0 lead with 8:15 left in the opening period.

A short 17-yard punt by Lee gave MHS another break in the second period and the Pups scored in three plays.

Dedrick raced 20 yards for the score and Reddell's PAT made it 14-0 with 11:53 left in the first half.

Lee saw one scoring threat rubbed out at the Bullpup five when Steve Cole recovered a fumble by Marvin Iglehart. Frank Agar recovered another fumble for the Pups later in the quarter after Lee had stopped Midland.

Midland coughed up the football at its own 20 and Lee took advantage of the fumble to score in one play with quarterback Tracy Rogers racing 20 yards for the TD. Jerry Moore booted the PAT to cut the lead to 14-7 with 4:31 left in the first half.

Midland drove to the Lee two, but a 15-yard penalty moved the ball back out to the 17 and Reddell missed on a 37-yard field goal attempt.

Midland took the second half kickoff and drove 79 yards in four plays to score with Jenkins racing 61 yards for the TD. Reddell's kick was true to make it 21-7 with 10:23 left in the third period.

Price put the Pups in front, 27-7 later in the period with his 47-yard TD scamper, but this time the kick was low.

Quarterback Joe Mowles passed 40 yards to tight end David Isby for the final MHS score with the extra point sailing wide, making it 33-7.

Lee scored with 24 seconds left on the clock when Rogers hit Clarence Hearne with a 30-yard pass. The try for the two-point failed, however.

Cozza surpasses Walter Camp's Eli win total

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale football Coach Carmen Cozza is modest about surpassing Walter Camp's record for the most victories by a Yale mentor.

"I think my best record is that only four of my players have ever failed to graduate," Cozza said after topping the 67-victory record held since the last century.

Cozza won his 68th game last Saturday against the University of Pennsylvania 24-14.

Cozza teams have piled up four Ivy League titles and this year with a 4-1 record have a good shot at another. Saturday Yale goes against upset-minded Princeton and next Saturday Yale hosts Harvard.

Despite his success on the field, the 45-year-old Cozza talked Thursday about what football does for his players as students.

"A player who feels good and healthy will also perform better off the field. Many of our boys do better in the fall than they do in the spring," he said.

"Every week there isn't a player who doesn't miss a practice because he has a class or a paper due. But they make up for it with their intelligence."

Fellow coaches attribute Cozza's success to recruiting and practice programs. But Cozza said it's Yale's reputation as a leading academic institution that attracts many of his players.

He noted Yale, like other Ivy schools, offers no athletic scholarships, and awards financial aid solely on the basis of family need.

The articulate coach is also helped by other reputations — those of Brian Dowling, Calvin Hill and Dick Jauron, all former Cozza charges gone pro.

While delighted with their success Cozza, who's tutored nearly 500 players at Yale, added, "I'm not only proud of our kids who are drafted by the pros, but also of every doctor, lawyer and engineer. I think my best record is that only four of my players ever failed to graduate."

Bulldogs open season

Midland High's Bulldogs jump into their nondistrict basketball season with a game at Del Rio Saturday night and Coach James Cagle has his fingers crossed.

"Our tallest players are 6-3 and like Coach John Reddell in football had only two starters back. We are in the same boat. I just hope we come out as well," Cagle said.

Midland gets the jump on cross-town rival Midland Lee which doesn't open its season until Nov. 21 when the Rebels travel to Lubbock to face Coronado in its 1975-76 basketball opener.

Del Rio has several players back from last year's squad which impressed Midland fans with their hustle in the Tall City Tournament.

Midland hits the road again next week in traveling to the Panhandle to face Pampa on Friday and Borger on Saturday night.

The Purple Pack opens its home schedule by taking on Class AAA Pecos in the MHS Gymnasium, Nov. 25 while Lee doesn't play at home until the Tall City Tournament in the Lee Gym, Nov. 28-29.

Starters for the Pack will include Ernest Modkins, 6-3; Mike Wiley, 6-3; Tim Johnson, 5-9; Billy Shock, 6-0 and Jeff Gotcher, 6-0. Also seeing some action will be Craig Dunn, and Elvin Stewart, also 6-3.

BUFFALO (AP) — said in a prepared statement. He added, "We do not want a league commissioner of the where a clean one-on-one fight is at any time liable to erupt into a major brawl."

There was a major brawl in a league game a week ago, and referees were forced to abort a game in Quebec between the Ste. Georges de Beauce Jaros and the Mohawk Valley (Utica) Comets. Timmins earlier fined or suspended three players on each team and the Jaros coach, Marc Picard.

A spokesman for Commissioner John E. Timmins said Thursday that the new schedule, which goes into effect immediately, is the toughest anywhere in professional hockey.

"We want a tough, hard-hitting, action-packed hockey league," Timmins said.

Old man upset drives bowl committees to tears

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Whoops!
It's like that classic old movie scene where the Ming Vase sits on the pedestal in the parlor. After weathering thousands of years of Chinese history and the raucous comings and goings of the neighborhood kids, it finally gets toppled by the proud owner himself as he's trying to swat a fly. As far as the college football picture is concerned, the clumsy oaf was Old Man Upset, the fly was a team like Kansas, and the vase was really a bowl—in fact a bunch of bowls.

Last weekend's upsets of Oklahoma, Penn State, Southern California and Florida have got the various bowl committees near tears: Who to invite?

Ohio State's top-rated Buckeyes seek their 10th consecutive victim this Saturday in Minnesota, en route to a hopefully profitable encounter Nov. 22 with Michigan and then a Rose Bowl invitation.

The Buckeyes, 9-0, have worked overtime against the pass in practice this week. They hope to remain tied with Michigan for the Big Ten lead and strengthen their chances of battling the Pacific-8 king—probably California, UCLA, or Stanford—for the Roses.

Minnesota, 5-4-0, led by quarterback Tom Dungey, has an upset on its collective mind, however, after a 31-7 triumph over Iowa, a 33-9 win over Northwestern and a 28-21 loss to Michigan. But first it'll have to halt Ohio State's backfield, headed by Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin. Griffin already has passed the 5,000-yard career mark and will be looking to extend his national record of 31 games of more than 100 yards rushing.

Meanwhile, sixth-ranked

Oklahoma, still tussling with Nebraska for Big Eight honors and an Orange Bowl bid, is bracing itself for another unique experience—bouncing back after a defeat. The Sooners, who had their 28-game winning streak snapped last week by Kansas, are scheduled to visit No. 18 Missouri this weekend. If Oklahoma expects to make it to Miami, they first will have to end the costly turnover troubles they had with the Jayhawks last week.

The only other relatively sure bowl bet is that the Southwest Conference winner—Texas, Texas A&M or Arkansas, will host the Cotton Bowl.

No. 17 Kansas, the proud conquerors of Oklahoma, will clash with 10th-ranked Colorado Saturday. They enter the battle with a 6-3 record over-all and 3-2 in league play while the Buffs are 7-2 and 3-2.

In other weekend action involving ranked teams, second-ranked Nebraska tackles Iowa; No. 3 Texas A&M visits Rice; No. 4 Michigan squares off against Illinois, and fifth-ranked Alabama hosts Southern Mississippi.

Also: Texas Christian at No. 7 Texas; Pacific at No. 8 Arizona St.; No. 9 Notre Dame at Pitt; No. 11 Penn State at Colorado; No. 12 Arizona at Colorado St.; No. 13 Southern California at Air Force; No. 16 Miami, O. at Kent St.; Oregon State at No. 19 UCLA, and Auburn at 20th-ranked Georgia.

Sports crisis far from over

By Associated Press

The worst economic crisis to confront professional sports in recent history has caused the death of 12 teams and one league in the past month, and the bloodletting is far from finished.

Escalating salaries, labor problems, legal challenges and threatened intervention by Congress and federal agencies have combined with the pressures of inflation to produce an atmosphere in which more teams and perhaps another league or two will cease to exist.

The folding of the World Football

League and of the San Diego and Baltimore franchises in the American Basketball Association are part of a trend that seems certain to continue. It is the shrinking of a professional sports world that is too big, too expensive and too complex to exist on reasonable economic terms.

When the 10-team WFL ended its 18-month life in which $30 million was lost, league President Chris Hemmeter said, "We will not be the last to go." He was right. The San Diego ABA team ceased operations on Tuesday, and other teams in several sports are in trouble.

The expansionism of the late 1960s, when promoters such as Gary Davidson created leagues at will, is over. The structure of most sports is in question in the courts and their future is in question at the box office.

The average salary in pro basketball is $100,000. In pro hockey, it is $70,000. The National Hockey League lost its television contract and the National Basketball Association's ratings are weak. The other leagues—the ABA and World Hockey Association—are without TV income.

In 1974-75, 25 of the 28 pro basketball teams lost money. An estimated 15 lost in excess of $1 million. An estimated 25 of the 32 pro hockey teams lost money.

Last year, each of the 26 teams in the National Football League received a record $2.2 million in revenue from TV contracts. Yet a record eight teams lost money.

The NFL's Washington Redskins lost a reported $750,000 last year, and their prospects for new income are slim. In 1970, the Redskins sold tickets in their 55,000-seat stadium for $6, $7, $8 and $12. Now the tickets cost $9, $11, $12 and $18, and it is believed the Redskins will lose money again even though they fill their stadium at those prices.

One reason is higher salaries. A club spokesman said the average Redskin player made $25,000 in 1970. Now, the average is $54,000.

Neither the Redskins nor the NFL is likely to go under. The same can not be said for the ABA or WHA.

The Minneapolis Fighting Saints are one of 14 teams in the WHA. The club draws a good average home crowd of 9,900, yet it is one of an estimated four WHA teams which could go bust this season.

The Saints' twice-monthly payroll for 28 players and 17 other persons is $140,000. It is due on today, and the team didn't have the money to pay it until late Wednesday. "The Saints are in trouble...big trouble," said league President Ben Hatskin.

The WHA held a league meeting earlier this week and one official emerged to say, "I would not be surprised if two or three teams dropped out of our league before the end of the season."

The ABA's problems may be even more critical. As league officials work on printing their third different schedule in a month, three of the eight remaining teams are reported in some sort of financial trouble.

One of those teams is St. Louis. Last year, club officials said the team lost between $1.5 and $2 million with an average home attendance of 4,800. This year, the payroll is higher and the club is averaging less than 3,000 at home. "We can not exist with the few people that are coming out for the games," said club President Harry Weltman, who has talked of moving the club to Cincinnati.

Eighteen years ago, a mild furor was created when the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants went West. Now, teams change names and jump to other cities as if it were normal business practice.

Meanwhile, Congress and federal agencies are beginning to intervene. In the past, it has been possible for an owner to absorb losses by writing off the full cost of his franchise over a five-year period on tax returns as the depreciation cost of his players. The Internal Revenue Service, in a case it took to an Atlanta federal court, apparently has cut the amount an owner can write off in half.

Since an NFL team franchise costs $16 million, the effect of that decision could be great. And a congressional committee has approved legislation which would further restrict amounts an owner could claim as the depreciation value of his players.

Plunkett or Grogan, Patriots anxious for victory

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots coach and two quarterbacks sang the same song for the Sunday afternoon National Football League game against Dallas at Schaefer Stadium:

Win.
"If it takes Jim Plunkett to make this team a winner, it's all right with me," said Patriots signal caller Steve Grogan.

"If it takes me, that's fine too. But I want to play for a winner. I played on a losing team in college (Kansas State). I just want to play some and win some ball games."

Plunkett, fighting off injuries since midway in last year's season, said "I don't see anything wrong with having a challenge. That's what you go into this game for in the first place. The thing to remember is that we wouldn't have even had this situation if I hadn't gotten hurt."

Coach-Chuck Fairbanks said "Jim's our No. 1 quarterback and he'll play if he's healthy and throwing the ball sharply. But this is not to downgrade the potential of Steve Grogan. We're very much pleased with what he's done for us as a rookie and what he might do in the future."

Whoever calls the signals for the Patriots against the Cowboys, there is expected to be a heavy emphasis on defense.

The visitors are expected to use their shotgun offense — a direct snap to the quarterback about five yards back from scrimmage.

"The advantage of the shotgun," Fairbanks said, "is an increase of time for the quarterback to see his coverages, the defense he's facing. But it still takes the same amount of time to pass from it because the receivers have to run their distances and patterns."

Fairbanks said the disadvantages for Dallas passer Roger Staubach is limited. They have a few running plays they try to do from it, but it's primarily a passing formation."

Nolan Hutch winner

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "To be able to help the club win the championship fulfilled my greatest comeback hopes," Cincinnati Reds pitcher Gary Nolan said after being named Thursday as the 1975 recipient of baseball's Hutch Award.

The award is presented annually in memory of former major league pitcher and manager Fred Hutchinson, who died of cancer in 1964. It goes to a player who overcomes adversity and best exemplifies the spirit, competitiveness and character of Hutchinson.

"I never knew Hutchinson," said Nolan, "but from the many things I've heard of him from his days as manager of the Reds, I feel honored."

Nolan won 15 games for the world champion Reds after being sidelined 2 1/2 seasons with a shoulder problem. He pitched 200 innings and had a 3.16 earned run average.

The big right-handed pitcher edged Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk and New York Mets pitcher Tom Seaver in the vote of major league broadcasters and sports writers.

Announcement of the vote was made by Ritter Collett, sports editor of the Dayton Journal Herald and secretary-treasurer of the Hutch Fund.

Chap tennis teams travel

Midland College's men's and women's tennis team will participate in a tournament with a new twist at Southern Methodist University this weekend.

Coach Neill McClung said the tournament will involve men's and women's singles and mixed doubles play.

"We've never played mixed doubles, since that is not usually included in college competition," he said. "I'll have to put some of the players together and hope they can work as a team."

Ann-Margret still winning vast audiences

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — She'd disappear in a line of June Taylor dancers. She couldn't carry Barbra Streisand's song book. And Carol Burnett hasn't lost a wink of sleep over her one-liners.

Yet year after year, Ann-Margret Olsson Smith, the Swedish-born woman with the Saturday night look and the girl-next-door voice continues to win vast audiences in Las Vegas, Miami and Lake Tahoe.

In her annual TV specials — apparently carefully spaced to avoid too close scrutiny of a minor but pleasing bundle of talents — she draws some of the highest ratings of the season as home viewers crowd around for a glimpse of the rhinestone glitter of the nightclub acts that earn her up to $800,000 a year.

Her rare TV-hours race by as if edited by jackrabbits, so that often viewers are left with few memories of an Ann-Margret special beyond the endless parade of costume changes, almost all of them indictments of wardrobe supervisors who overdress one of the most handsome women on the screen.

A solution to the mystery of her success seems to lie in her ability to convince the viewer she's having a little fun up there.

Her durable film career — she's appeared in 23 features since 1963 — suggests that sense of an ordinary talent slightly out of focus, in a very well-managed way.

Ann-Margret, since debuting in "Bye-Bye, Birdie," has appeared in absolute dogs like "Kitten with a Whip," "C.C. & Company" and "The Pleasure Seekers."

But, beyond "Birdie," she's landed a 1971 Academy Award nomination as a supporting actress for her role as Bobbie Templeton in "Carnal Knowledge"; and she has a good chance for another as Tommy's mother in this year's "Tommy."

Viewers can resolve any doubt of just how well Ann-Margret is doing by tuning in Thursday night, when her fourth straight NBC special, this one called "Ann-MARGRET Smith" airs at 9 p.m. EST.

MIDLAND HIGH School students Boyd Walker, Russell Adams and Regan Conklin are among performers in the Indian show to be presented in the school auditorium Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Musical groups look back to earlier days

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Thousands of school bands, fife and drum corps, choral groups and community orchestras will be celebrating the nation's Bicentennial with tunes popular in colonial times.

They and the rest of the nation's 38 million amateur musicians are perpetuating an American musical tradition that predates the Revolution by 200 years.

The first known musical performance held on our shores, according to research by the American Music Conference here, was directed by Sir Francis Drake, and performed by his company of seamen for Indians on the West Coast.

So popular was music among colonial residents that almost every household owned some kind of musical instrument, and almost every young person raised his voice in song either in church or in the singing schools set up throughout New England to teach reading of music.

Although laborers who worked on roads and canals in colonial days were paid only 80 cents a day, even in 1776 music lessons cost up to $1.

But the price was worth it, since the ability to play on the most popular instruments — flute, bass-violin, harpsichord, violin, and piano — often helped a young woman get a husband, a young man to woo his wife, says the AMC.

Music opened a satisfying world of entertainment at home and even in the concert hall. It was not unusual for amateur musicians to fill in for professional groups, or for a group of amateurs to book concerts for themselves in the late 18th century.

Few of the colonial musicians looked upon music as a way to make a living. In fact, the best known composers of the day included a tavern keeper, a tanner, a silversmith, carpenter, horse breeder and comb maker. Musical instruments were often sold under the same roof as ladies' hats or sundries.

America's founding fathers were all musical, at least to some degree. Benjamin Franklin played the guitar and the harp and turned his hand to "musical invention in 1760 when he heard a performance in London of tuned glasses filled with water. He developed an instrument called the glass harmonica which so intrigued Mozart and Beethoven that both composed for it.

Thomas Jefferson, our most musical president, took part in weekly chamber performances while a law student in the 1780s. A composer and violin player, his dream

Fantastic voyage wasn't entirely in human body

WASHINGTON — Some of the scenes in "The Incredible Machine," a National Geographic special advertised as "a fantastic voyage inside the human body," were not filmed inside human bodies at all but inside those of monkeys and rabbits.

The producers of the program, at the Geographic here and at Wolper Production in Hollywood, revealed Thursday that certain footage depicting bodily functions had in fact been filmed inside the bodies of other "higher mammals." They insisted that did not compromise the credibility or authenticity of the program, which drew critical acclaim and, in some cities, scored the highest ratings in the history of public television.

Nicholas Clapp, of Wolper Productions, estimated that "10 per cent or less" of the scenes showing living internal organs were "not human." Dennis B. Kane, of the Geographic, put the figure at "4 or 5 per cent."

The documentary's script points that the footage makes no mention at such shown is of animals.

Island park new

DETROIT (AP) — A midwestern tourist attraction is taking shape here on an island just five blocks from the city's most densely populated neighborhood.

The transformation of the only complete island park in an American city into a multimillion-dollar recreational entertainment complex is being sped to completion by a city administration that has not backed off despite the fiscal problems that it, like most cities, faces.

Belle Isle, a 1,000-acre enclave in the Detroit River midway between Detroit and Windsor, Ont., has provided a respite from urban life since it was acquired by the city in 1879 for $200,000. Its worth is estimated today at $54 million.

Detroiters, including 220,000 Citizen Friends of Belle Isle, have joined with leading business and industrial firms to improve park facilities. Mayor Coleman Young, who grew up near Belle Isle and enjoyed sports there as a youngster, has made its continued growth part of his administration's policy.

He has asked for $16 million in federal funds to create new recreational opportunities along the city's eight-mile waterfront to redevelop Belle Isle and other parks.

Ray Rickman, president of Friends of Belle Isle and rallyer of community support, calls the park "a symbol of the new dynamism in Detroit; an opportunity for us to tell the region and the nation that Detroit is alive and well."

Writer settles down to watch swans

By PHIL THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Writer Budd Schulberg used to move around a lot, living his life in many places, but now he thinks he's finally settled down — thanks to a pair of swans.

About five years ago, Schulberg — who had spent his days in such places as New York City, Vermont, Mexico, Europe, Pennsylvania, Florida, New Jersey, Los Angeles — and his wife, actress Geraldine Brooks, left the West Coast and went to New York's Long Island.

"The swans happened to us," Schulberg says with a smile. "We found a house on an inlet and saw the swans swimming about out there on the water. It's still a very rural area with lots of wild life and birds even though it's near Westhampton. We saw the swans, they attracted us, and we bought. We love our place on the inlet, and we like the swans very much. We like to hear them tapping on our windows."

It was a while, however, before the Schulbergs and the swans got friendly enough for the big birds to get that close to the house, as Schulberg reveals in his latest book, "Swan Watch." Miss Brooks took the photographs which illustrate her husband's text.

"I'd always been interested in birds," says the 61-year-old Schulberg, an easy-talking man with heavy dark brows that are in sharp contrast to his white hair and beard. "I raised pigeons as a kid and I know a lot about them. And my interest in birds shows in movies I wrote such as 'On the Waterfront' and 'Across The Everglades' as well as in my novel 'Sanctuary V,' although it's not a prominent feature."

Soon after moving into the house, Schulberg began keeping a log of the doings of the swans, whom he and his wife dubbed Loh and Grin, although "I didn't know I would eventually do a book about them."

He also set about befriending the swans, although warned they had nasty tempers, and eventually succeeded, so much so that "now I can actually stroke the male's back, and when I fill his food bowl I can say 'Wait' and he'll stand back and wait until I'm finished instead of rushing in. The female's a bit more timid, but friendly enough."

THE WHITE FAMILY will be featured in the third "Odessa Theater. Brand New Opry" presentation at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Globe.

Spivak feels strongly about smoking, sex

The Los Angeles Times "Vietato Fumare," strewn around his study at the Sheraton Park Hotel. WASHINGTON — "Thank You for Not Smoking," and "Defense of Lawrence Spivak doesn't de Fumer," read the signs and the aftersmell and I see no reason why I should breathe the other people's stinking air. People speak of my obsession about not smoking, why don't they speak of their obsession about smoking?"

He won't go to lectures where people smoke. He won't hire anyone who smokes and he never would allow anyone to smoke on his program. "Meet The Press," which he founded 28 years ago and from which he retired Sunday at the age of 75. Not even during commercial breaks.

"By that time they thought I was slightly touched anyway," he says with a laugh. "Arthur Burns came on one time with a pipe in his mouth and I told him he couldn't smoke. He asked me why I hadn't told him beforehand and I said because he would have refused to come on and he said I was right. Randolph Churchill called me 'a goddamned dictator' when I wouldn't let him smoke and one of the worst shows we ever got was from Ed Murrow."

New museum features O'Neill

By JOHN J. MULLINS

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — A stretch of sand and the Atlantic Ocean are the front yard of the Eugene O'Neill Theater Museum on this tip of Cape Cod town where the Nobel Prize-winning playwright first had a play produced.

The nonprofit museum was opened in 1974 by Lester and Adele Heller, the year after they bought the Provincetown Playhouse on the Wharf, the successor to the theater here that launched O'Neill's creative career.

Heller, a former mathematics professor, and his wife, who fell in love with the theater and dropped out of doctoral studies in human development, live in Silver Springs, Md., but have summered here for more than a quarter-century.

"The museum is dedicated to the life and art of O'Neill and the Provincetown Players," said Mrs. Heller. "We hope to make it a center for scholars and tourists."

For exhibits, the museum has a synchronized sound and slide show on the life of O'Neill, who died in Boston in 1953, and 500 still photographs of or relating to the playwright.

Some photographs in the show were made available through the Museum of the City of New York, and Heller shot some 16-millimeter color films on photographs of O'Neill, his family and other material at the museum.

Heller, who formerly taught mathematics and now is multimedia director at Montgomery College in Rockville, Md., also plans to make three, 30-minute 16-millimeter films: one on the life of O'Neill, one on his plays, and one on the Provincetown Players.

He plans to film interviews with acquaintances of O'Neill and places where O'Neill spent time, the exposed beam in a building here, for example, on which O'Neill wrote a passage from Nietzsche's "Thus Spake Zarathustra."

One source is Martha Robinson of Provincetown, an original trustee of the old Provincetown Players with whom O'Neill was associated and who staged the first production of an O'Neill play, "Bound East for Cardiff," on July 28, 1916.

Another source is film footage of O'Neill at the University of Texas at Austin. Heller said he learned of the film from his son, Daniel, who is studying for a master's degree in playwriting at Catholic University and is publicity director for its Hartke Theater.

The films he produces will be shown at the museum and made available free to institutions or groups, Heller said.

The Hellers have other plans — a sound and slide show on O'Neill's major plays, and dioramas of sets of famous productions of O'Neill plays.

Stations wooing backers

By DARYL LEMBEKE

The Los Angeles Times SAN FRANCISCO — Increasingly, private industry is discovering that public television is a useful medium for institutional advertising.

With the Ford Foundation rapidly withdrawing from grants to public television, the nation's 262 nonprofit television stations are actively wooing private "underwriters."

San Francisco's KQED is a prime example of a station practicing traditional sales techniques to attract money from private business.

But partly because of concern among some viewers over that trend, the station is now embroiled in a struggle over its management.

An anti-management group has arisen to contend that the station is the victim of "creeping commercialism" and that more democracy should prevail in electing a governing board that would presumably keep KQED "pure."

The debate revolves around questions that are significant nationally, as the "public" nonprofit arm of the TV industry seeks to define itself.

FDA asks drug label reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration wants to hear from you, the consumer, about a proposal to print warning labels for patients on certain potentially dangerous drugs.

That information, in most instances, has been reserved solely for your doctor.

The FDA already has discussed the idea with groups of manufacturers, druggists, physicians and consumers. Now, before it goes any further, it wants to hear of your experience when you took a drug without knowing about the possible dangers and side effects.

The agency was petitioned last March 31 by a number of groups that want warnings printed on drugs that pose dangers to pregnant and breastfeeding women, hypnotics and tranquilizers that are used widely and can be dangerous, and drugs such as amphetamines and chloramphenicol that have been overprescribed in the past and can have serious side effects.

Texans may face big new tax load in '77

AUSTIN—Texans will have to swallow a bitter $1.3 billion of additional taxes in 1977, with the only choice being whether it will be through income taxes or increased sales taxes coupled with other increases.

John R. Kennedy, research analyst for the Texas Research League, told the TRL annual meeting that the $1.3 billion tax bill—close to the $1.4 billion predicted by the TRL a year ago—results from anticipated income of $8.5 billion to the State for the next biennium, while expenditures are estimated at $9.8 billion.

Those figures—based on estimates by Comptroller Bob Bullock, with a projected 16 per cent increase in spending—mean the 1977 legislature will have to come up with $650,000,000 more for 1978 and 1979. If state spending goes up more than 16 per cent—and the last legislature increased spending by 54 per cent—the bill could be even greater.

Kennedy notes that changing conditions in the next 18 months, such as decurtol of oil and gas, could boost revenue and decrease the size of the tax bill.

But assuming the $1.3 billion deficit is accurate, Texas will have to increase existing taxes or find new forms of taxations, Kennedy warns. One possible source of additional income is through the sales tax, the largest single source of state tax revenues, by raising the rate, eliminating exemptions or extending the tax to services.

Raising the rate to five per cent—a higher rate than most other states—would raise roughly $1 billion for the biennium, short by $300,000,000. Eliminating exemptions for food, raw materials and other items would raise some additional funds, while changing the basic nature of the tax. Extending it to services such as telephone service, laundry services and the labor portion of repairs could also bring in more funds.

Increases in other taxes—such as tobacco, alcohol, severance taxes on natural gas and oil, and corporate franchise taxes—could be used to make up the difference. A tax on refinery products would bring in funds, but no estimates are available on how much, Kennedy said.

That leaves corporate and personal income taxes—with the former bringing in from $200,000,000 to $350,000,000 annually, and the latter from $500,000,000 to $850,000,000 annually, depending on how the taxes are structured, Kennedy reported.

Alleged swindler identified

NEW YORK (AP) — A 73-year-old Oklahoma City widow has identified an alleged real estate swindler as the man who cheated her and a Texas woman of $480,000.

Myrtle Rupe, an interior decorator, testified for the government at the trial of James E. Lofland, 47, of Liberal, Kan., that he cheated her and Esther Armstrong of Fort Worth, Tex., with a scheme in which he took their money with promises to use the cash to develop real estate.

The trim and graying witness stared through black-rimmed glasses and identified Lofland as the swindler. She also identified real estate maps of the Tucumcari area in Quay County, N.M.; a $6,250 check she gave Lofland in April 1972 for a 2.5 per cent interest in 80 acres on which he claimed an option; and a $1,500 note representing a loan to him in May 1972.

Lofland, who is being held in $100,000 bail, was indicted last Aug. 1 for an alleged film-flam that got him cash or credit from wealthy persons on assurances that he was going to develop country clubs and other real estate.

Two counts charged that Lofland obstructed justice this year by getting Mrs. Rupe to send a false statement to a lawyer, exonerating him, and by telephoning from his Bahamas refuge that he would return Mrs. Rupe's money if she would send a false affidavit to enable his prosecution-free return to the United States.

Americans believed being held for ransom

The Los Angeles Times BEIRUT — Two U.S. government employees were kidnapped three weeks ago and are being held for ransom, according to reports circulating here.

The U.S. Embassy refused to confirm or deny the reports. A spokesman indicated that more than one Lebanese source had approached the embassy indicating the men could be freed on payment of an undisclosed sum.

All were sent packing, the spokesman said, in line with official U.S. policy not to subscribe to blackmail in kidnaping cases.

The case of Gallagher and Dykes was different. They were picked up in a Wednesday. Since then, the U.S. Embassy main-licen-plates at a roadblock manned by gunmen on a route responsible for the act, used frequently to get from their homes to their Lebanese contact men.

It thus appeared to be a setup job. But this has been disputed by em-bassy officials, who quoted the two Lebanese women employees who were in the car as saying there was an argument before Gallagher and Dykes were driven off in it.

The Morgan case was considered more or less accidental. He was trans-ported from Beirut from argument revolved around what to do with the two men.

The missing Americans are Charles Gallagher, 44, director of the regional printing plant of the U.S. Information Service, and his assistant, William Dykes Jr., 55, San Jose, Calif. They were kidnaped as they drove to work through an area usually in the hands of Moslem and left-wing elements who have been battling with militant Christians in Lebanon's

Introducing the 1976 rolled Corolla.

Just good gas mileage and a low price aren't enough anymore. You want a car that lasts, too.

Low priced Toyota Corollas have always done better than most other small cars when it comes to good gas mileage. And the 1976 Corolla SR-5 (pictured here) got 39 MPG on the highway and 24 MPG in the city according to EPA figures.

But there has to be more to a car than that. Because what if every penny you save on gas, you lose in repair bills? What if the car just doesn't last? Then, where are you? Where you ought to be, we think, is in a 1976 Toyota Corolla.

Tested upside down, inside out. It's a car tested to last. Upside down and inside out.

Test Corollas get rolled on their roofs, rammed on their sides and run smack into a brick wall. Then, when we're satisfied with the way they stood up to all that hell, every single Corolla Hardtop, Wagon, Sedan and SR-5 we build is run through the mill.

Drowned with 3 tons of water

You get a Corolla that's already been drenched with over 3 tons of water outside to help make sure it stays dry inside.

You get a Corolla that's already been checked to make sure its rear window defogger defogs, the synchromesh transmission meshes, the power front-disc brakes brake.

The right Corolla at the right price

We build six Corollas. All different and all right. Because, just like people, it takes all kinds.

There's the all-business 2-Door Standard. The spiffier Corollas are the 2-Door Deluxe, the roomy 4-Door Deluxe and the sleek Hardtop.

For room, move into the 5-Door Wagon. For sporting around, there's the SR-5.

That's it. A full line of Corollas designed to go the distance.

You get steel body panels, steel roof rails, and more than 100 tie-downs.

You get the Toyota 5-speed synchromesh transmission.

Chinese comes back

Ancient France-Press

PEKING — Still another high Chinese official discharged during the Cultural Revolution has been rehabilitated by the Chinese Communist party.

He is Chen Pi-hsien, a former political enemy of Wang Hung-wen, vice chairman of the party. Chen Pi-hsien formerly was first secretary of the East China Communist party's bureau. He took part in the Chinese National Day celebration in Shanghai on Oct. 1 as a member of the Municipal Revolutionary Committee, which governs the city.

Chen, now 64, was brought before several mass meetings in the mid-1960s to answer various accusations. These included the allegation of having opposed the radical workers' movement then headed by Wang Hung-wen, and having "oppressed" members of the proletariat class.

Offshore lease plan irks congressman

By BARTON REPERT WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House panel on the outer continental shelf charged Thursday that the Ford administration's accelerated program for offshore oil and natural gas leases means that the interests of U.S. coastal states "are being driven over roughshod."

administration's apparent disregard of the concerns that have been rather vocally expressed by the coastal states. He said that "the coastal states want time to study what the development of offshore oil and gas means to them and they need federal assistance in this process."

House ad hoc select committee on the outer continental shelf. The panel previously has heard more than 300 witnesses during hearings in 14 cities on the Gulf of Mexico and along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Murphy strongly criticized the Interior Department for proceeding with plans to auction offshore oil and gas leases before Congress has had a chance to enact revised legislation on the outer continental shelf.

More wells completed but production down

CHICAGO—The U.S. petroleum industry in its search for oil and gas completed 25,729 wells in the first nine months of 1975, an increase of 13.2 percent over the comparable period in 1974, the American Petroleum Institute announced Tuesday.

exploratory gas wells were down 1.4 percent; and dry holes rose by 5.7 percent.

API President Frank N. Icard noted that although drilling has increased sharply over the last two years, apparently in response to improved prices, domestic oil production has continued to decline. This is because of the long lead times needed to develop newly discovered fields, he explained.

"I strongly suspect that the administration is sticking with accelerated leasing because a slower rate of leasing will drastically increase the federal budget deficit this year and next year," Murphy said.

The Interior Department has announced plans to offer leases Dec. 11 for 1.25 million acres off the coast of southern California.

The total increase in the number of wells drilled during the first nine months of 1975 was greater than any comparable nine-month period since 1966, the API said in releasing its latest drilling statistics.

In the third quarter alone, wells completed totaled 9,188, compared to 7,981 in the third quarter last year. Of the wells completed during the nine months, the biggest increase was in oil wells. In the first nine months of this year, drillers completed 11,267 oil wells, a gain of 22.9 percent over the same period last year.

U.S. consumption of petroleum products averaged 16,154,000 barrels per day for the first 10 months of 1975, a decline of 1.7 percent from the daily average for the same period in 1974, the API reported.

Exploratory oil wells completed in the first nine months increased 21 percent over the same period last year.

The API report, with estimates based on data from its own and U.S. Bureau of Mines sources, showed that among major petroleum, use of gasoline and kerosine-type jet fuel increased over last year, while demand for distillate and heavy fuel oils dropped.

Gasoline consumption was up 2.1 percent and kerosine-type jet fuel rose 5.6 percent; distillate fuel oil consumption decreased 1.5 percent and heavy fuel oil declined 5.4 percent.

District judge denies motion in Pecos case

PECOS — A motion seeing an injunction against Delhi Gas Corp. to keep the firm from increasing the price of natural gas to $1.85 per thousand cubic feet was denied in 143rd District Court here.

The daily average consumption for the major products during the first 10 months of 1975 were: gasoline 6,671,000 barrels; distillate fuel oil 2,783,000 barrels; heavy fuel oil 2,432,000 barrels, and kerosine-type jet fuel 806,000 barrels per day.

Tower brands price rollback bill disaster

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Sen. John Tower branded the House-Senate Conference Bill to roll back oil prices a "blueprint for economic disaster" Thursday.

The motion, made by nine Pecos farm concerns, was denied by Judge J. H. Starley.

The motion, which was discussed in a Nov. 7 hearing, sought to keep Delhi from raising the price of natural gas for irrigation purposes from 35 cents to $1.85 per thousand on the premise the increase was excessive.

Imports of crude oil and petroleum products averaged 5,896,000 barrels a day during the first 10 months of this year, a decline of 1.3 percent from 1974. This year's imports represent 38.5 percent of the domestic demand for petroleum products.

Inventories of motor gasoline on Oct. 31 were estimated at 221.8 million barrels, four percent below the same date in 1974; and distillate fuel oil stocks on the same date were estimated at 231.8 million barrels, one percent higher than in 1974.

"They should call this the 'Cold Homes and Dark Factories Act of 1975.'" Tower said in an angry statement. "It is a grossly irresponsible piece of legislation even by the standards of this irresponsible Congress," he said.

The compromise by the conferees Wednesday would extend price controls for another 40 months and would roll back the price of crude oil by 12 percent.

Tower predicted the measure would reduce energy supplies, cripple domestic exploratory efforts, and increase American dependence on imported oil.

"Economic reality is being shunted aside in favor of political posturing," T-Tower said. "This will cost all Americans dearly."

The greatest danger to American economic recovery, the Texas Republican said, is the increasing shortages of natural gas and domestically-produced crude oil.

Exploration for oil and natural gas, already retarded by federal price controls, will be restricted even further if the price roll-back bill is signed into law, Tower said.

Tower said the roll-back bill would force Americans to purchase even larger quantities of foreign oil at prices far higher than uncontrolled domestic oil would have been — if they can purchase oil at all.

"The clinking noise you hear is the sound of drilling rigs being stacked all over the country," Tower said. "We should be trying to resolve our economic problems — not make them worse," he said.

Fisher producer opens oil zone

John R. Thompson of Able No. 1 J. J. Maberry has been completed as a Flippen discovery in Fisher County, one mile southeast of McCaulley.

The well was finished for a 24-hour pumping potential of 94 barrels of 45-gravity oil, plus 14 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,350-1. The production is from the section behind perforations from 3,233 to 3,237 feet and from 3,240 to 3,241 feet. The pay had been acidized with 500 gallons. The strike is 2,150 feet from south and 1,850 feet from east lines of section 56, block 1, HT&B survey. It is a northeast twin to the depleted opener of the McCaulley, North (Flippen) field.

Operators report oil, gas work in four Permian Basin counties

Oil and gas activity has been reported in four Permian Basin Empire counties — Andrews, Pecos, Lea and Runtless.

Equitable Petroleum Cor. of New Orleans, La., spotted location for a 7,100-foot operation in the Shafter Lake (Clearfork) oil area of Andrews County.

The project is surrounded by the Devonian and Clearfork oil production. If completed from the Clearfork as a gas well, it will be classified as a discovery.

Mississippi barge blast kills four men

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Authorities say they expect a difficult task pinning down the cause of explosions and a fire which killed four men aboard a Mississippi River oil barge.

The explosions Thursday, rattled windows as far as three miles away. The fire burned for two hours before the victims' bodies could be recovered from inside the barge.

The dead were identified as Sidney Vaughn Jr., 40; Robert McNemar, 23; and Rex Buckley, in his 30s, all of Greenville, and Jack Ripley, 26, of nearby Glen Allan.

Buckley was a self-employed chemist who reportedly was aboard to see whether the barge was free of gas and could undergo welding repairs.

The second explosion knocked down power lines 75 yards away. It was heard miles away from the barge's anchorage at Lake Ferguson, an old arm of the Mississippi.

Continental Oil Co., operating from Midland, completed the fourth well in the Bel Lake, South (Morrow) gas field of Lea County, New Mexico.

Three injured men — Glenn Weaver, Allen Suber and John C. Roberson, all of Greenville — were taken to local hospitals and were reported to be not seriously hurt.

Authorities said there were two explosions — one in an empty buffer area between the bow of the barge and the cargo area, and a later, larger one in the cargo area.

The well finished for a calculated absolute open flow of 14,410,000 cubic feet of gas per day to extend the field 3/4 miles southwest.

The dead were from perforations at 13,802-830 feet. Gas-liquid ratio was 250,000-1.

A reentry operation, it originally was drilled by Fisher Webb of Abilene, and plugged abandoned in January, 1972, at 7,200 feet.

Bentsen believes Reagan has chance

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., says Ronald Reagan has a good chance of getting the 1976 Republican presidential nomination and "it would be more fun to run against him."

Bentsen, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, said that President Ford's position against Reagan was weakened by last week's upheaval in the Ford Administration and by continued unemployment and inflation.

Train passengers walk into China

The Washington Post
CANTON, China — The train trip between Hong Kong and Canton is less than 90 miles. But when you cross the little creek that divides British-controlled territory from China you pass from the world's last important colony, dedicated to the maintenance of unbridled capitalism, into the country that has perhaps advanced furthest in developing a Socialist society.

The journey begins in a Victorian red brick railway station. If you are going to China you check your baggage and your ticket at a separate counter from the crowds that are buying tickets to towns up the line in the British New Territories. Representatives of the China Travel Service in smart blue jackets and white hats with red stars handle China-bound passengers in the Kowloon station by arrangement with the British. China has no official representation in Hong Kong, but the China Travel Service takes care of visa applications and railway arrangements.

The train is made up of new Japanese-built carriages, without toilet facilities — a constant source of complaint for travelers going far up the line. The train is packed with Chinese students, farmers, old ladies visiting relatives up in the New Territories and a smaller number of people who will actually cross over into China. For most of Hong Kong's four million, the Canton train is a local that stops at every station in the New Territories and not a means of traveling to China itself.

Big Spring man resigns post

BIG SPRING — Ron Mercer, chief executive officer of the Big Spring Industrial Growth and Development Foundation and executive vice president of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, has resigned his post effective Nov. 30.

His resignation letter said he and his family believed "a change at this time would be for the best interests of us and the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce."

The chamber board has appointed a five-member selection committee to begin screening applicants for Mercer's vacated position. Chamber manager Terry Hanson said no chairman for the committee has been selected yet, and no particular applicants for the job have come forth.

Mercer came to Big Spring Jan. 15, 1972, from the Phillips County Chamber of Commerce of Helena, Ark. He served as chamber manager in Big Spring until July, 1974. At that time, the Industrial Growth and Development Foundation was formed, and he was named chief executive officer.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas water developer Harry Burleigh had no wheat to sell, but the technical data he carried to Russia in his head and on paper might mean much more to the Russian dinner table.

He returned with a healthy respect for Russian problem solving—"Once they set a goal, it's bang"—and Russian opera.

He made a commitment to show the Russians Texas next year.

Burleigh, 68, accompanied Jake Duma of the Corps of Engineers in Washington and Edward Lewandowski of the Bureau of Reclamation's Denver office to Russia, Sept. 15-Oct. 3.

Their trip was arranged by the U.S. State Department and the Russian government, apparent evidence of detente.

"They want to develop irrigation projects of tremendous scope," said Burleigh, "and that, in turn, leads them to consideration of everything we know about large-scale canals and large-scale pumps and development of large-scale irrigation works."

Burleigh, executive director of the Texas Water Development Board, gave The Associated Press a preview of what he will be reporting to his board about the trip. Here are some of the questions and answers of the interview:

Q. Why were you chosen to make the trip?

A. Because of the plan I helped develop in this state that contemplated moving great quantities of water over great distances.

Q. Why is Russia interested in irrigation?

A. They have an overriding goal—that's self-sufficiency for food, and they intend to take very much of their own food production as quickly as possible. One approach would be through new irrigation projects of great magnitude.

Q. How great?
A. Up to 2,500 kilometers (approximately 1,800 miles), (moving water at) 35,000 cubic feet per second. They're not afraid of anything big.

Q. Will this be difficult?
A. It's no big-time problem.

Q. Are canals the key to increasing Russia's food production?
A. They key would be water conveyance in great quantities over great distances. They are going to have to move water...where they can grow better crops on better soil.

Q. Is Russia severely limited in what it can grow?

A. No, not by either soils or climate. Even out in southern Siberia they have a growing season of up to 130 days—you can grow anything in that time.

Q. Why, then, has Russia had so many crop shortages in recent years?

A. They've had some terrible droughts over there, just as we (Texas) had our droughts in the '30s and '47 to '56. They've had a dry one for—they're in about their third year without any assurance that it's over yet.

Q. Why have they waited until now to start on major irrigation projects?

A. We weren't told, but I drew this conclusion: they were and are shaken by the severity of the drought that they are experiencing.

Q. Are they irrigating on a large scale now?

A. Yes, they have about 20 million acres of very successful irrigation growing at the moment. Their goal in a decade is about 80 million, which I don't think can be obtained, but with their vigor and enthusiasm, they may get close to it.

Q. Did the Russians talk of having a hunger problem?

A. No, no. Those are the areas you don't discuss. They don't bring it up, and we were told by the State Department to mind our own business. But you can read between the lines. Why are they trying to grow more food? It's obvious.

Q. Did they express a desire to alleviate world hunger?

A. It never came up—the nearest we got to that was when they told us they have missions to help other countries...I think 67 countries they told us...oddly enough, they have a big one in Peru; they're global.

Q. Did you discuss United States wheat sales to Russia?

A. That was too political. We never got near anything political.

Q. What could we learn about water development from them?

A. They're acquiring an awareness of the skills that are involved in developing pumps of capacity larger than anything we've ever contemplated here. But we probably won't need pumps of such capacity, because most of our vast irrigation projects are already fait accompli. We have 75 years of reclamation back of us, and those guys are just getting started on a big scale.

Q. Did you feel you were giving more than you were receiving?

A. If they held anything back, professionally or technically, we couldn't discern it. I took some reports (in hydrology and hydraulics) with me, but I withheld them until I found out the openhanded way they were treating us. Then, we gave it to them, and they swallowed it like nobody's business. When they come here next spring, I expect to give them more, because I know they're going to bring a lot of stuff with them.

Q. Were your work days full?

A. 9-9½ hours days, three of us, six or seven of them in gut across-the-table sessions. How would you build this? How would you build that? Just a bunch of tough pros looking each other right in the eye.

Q. Were your conversations recorded?

A. They always had court reporters, and when we were all through we were given a report, same as they were. It will be the basis of my report to my board.

Q. Did you have the answers to all their questions?

A. No, we couldn't answer them with respect to the size of pumps they want to build. I think we'll be very helpful on that when they come over here. We're going to go to Westinghouse and our own (government) engineering offices in Denver and be prepared to answer that.

Q. Was there time for socializing?

A. They love the circus, and twice they took us to the circus.

Q. Were they good hosts?

A. They're marvelous hosts. I casually mentioned that (the opera) Faust was playing in Moscow and I sure would like to see it, and you know what was at the hotel that night? Tickets for Faust.

Q. A one-host?

A. You never see their homes or their kin, but as guys they are tickled to death to bum around with you and buy dinner and vodka, and they know how to drink it—before, during and after (dinner). They want our friendship, they want it terribly.

Q. Were there awkward moments?

A. No. We stuck to strictly professional or the arts—opera, Picasso, Rubens—we knew when to quit talking on both sides.

Q. Any health problems?

A. You don't drink the water—you always drink bottled water—oddly enough, not even in Moscow or Leningrad.

Q. How much did your trip cost (the state)?

A. $2,500.

Q. What are you going to show the Russians in this country?

A. Their engineers will visit Vicksburg, a model system on the Mississippi; Yuma, Ariz., to look at that enormous desalination plant on the Lower Colorado River, and then on into the central valley of California, where they also move great quantities of water over great distances.

Q. How about in Texas?

A. I want them to acquire an awareness of our ideas of transport—East Texas water into Southwest Texas, near the coast—and also our continuing intent to get water out of the Mississippi into our state. I want them to see rice irrigation, in Southeast Texas, down along the Gulf, and we can show them a lot of channelization down in the (Lower Rio Grande) Valley, how we divert Rio Grande water by pumps. I'm going to put on a good show for them.

Q. What do you want to tell them when they ask why water projects started in the 1950s are not yet finished?

A. They will ask. We have got this answer: there's nobody in our country hungry.

Q. Was the trip truly worthwhile?

A. Yes. Lyndon Johnson said it all in one sentence, I think—Let's reason together. It's a hell of a lot better than shooting at each other.

WASHINGTON — The letter from an official of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration stated: "There are many young Americans who are doing things for our country during this bicentennial year. Won't you please help us by spreading the word?" "Spreading of the word" in this instance concerns 20-year-old Jud Riggs, and it is a refreshing word to spread. Jud has gone from the fringes of narcotics degradation to a reformation, self-induced, that has him now as one of the youth leaders of the bicentennial celebration plans.

More than that, in pulling himself up by his bootstraps he has come to realize that there is much good in this country, that the American people are basically good people, that more than cursory attention to religion can help any young man.

"I was in the middle of the drug scene, both in high school and in college," friendly and serious Jud said in an interview. "Suddenly, I said to myself, 'Where am I going?' I was unsure of myself. I was bewildered. But, lots of things and lots of people have helped me and I found there was no way I could live without religion. If it's a crutch, I could use a few more crutches like it."

Jud's story goes back to 1973-74. Born in Palo Alto, Calif., 20 years ago last February, his family moved to Sacramento, the state capital, when he was 5.

It was in his high school days in Sacramento in the early '70s that he became attracted to the drug culture.

"Yes," he said, "I was part of the drug scene and also last year while a freshman in college (Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Ore.). I wanted to get involved in college but I was sort of turned off on America. I was mixed up until one day I felt I was on the wrong road. So, first I turned to religion and that helped tremendously even though I may not have been the best of Christians."

What started Jud back, however, was his own determination to see for himself "what makes this country tick." He quit college, still a freshman. "I worked in construction five months, saved money for a van and then I spent five great months touring the country. That did it."

"First, I found that people were a lot better than you fellows say in the newspapers."

"I found there are lots of good things in America to write about; to talk about. I found there are lots of things besides crime in New York, trouble in the Mideast. Particularly, with Vietnam behind us, I found it was easy to find a whole new feeling about the country and I think the growing response to the bicentennial proves this. Americans generally are good people and you fellows need to say that more often."

Jud's five months of crossing the country in his van eventually brought him to Washington — to see a Georgetown University girl friend and to visit the Smithsonian Institution. At the latter, by chance, he met Russ Gibb, bicentennial director of youth and education (also author of

Midlanders report CB radio thefts

Four Midlanders reported the burglaries of four citizens band radios during the night and early today, police said.

Joe Johnston, 1412 W. Ohio St., told police his citizens band radio valued at $220 and a radar detector valued at $80 were stolen from his car during the night, while the car was parked at his residence.

While at the Super Bowl bowling alley, a citizens band radio valued at $180 reportedly was stolen from Connie Miller's car, police said.

Joyce Sledge of 2506 Cuipepper St., told police a citizens band radio valued at $180 reportedly was stolen from the car.

During the night a burglar broke into Mack A. Dilly's vehicle at 1210 W. Missouri St. and took a citizens band radio valued at $160 and a tape deck valued at $50, police said.

Rex Harrison sued for divorce

LONDON (AP) — Actor Rex Harrison has been sued for divorce by his fifth wife.

Elizabeth Harrison, who was married to the 67-year-old actor in New York in 1971, filed a petition Thursday in London divorce court giving no reason for the breakup. British law regards an irretrievable breakdown of a marriage as reason for divorce.

Harrison's previous wives were Marjorie Noel Collette Thomas and actresses Lilli Palmer, Kay Kendall and Rachel Roberts.

"It's been great," Jud said. "I answer phone calls, write letters — and most of all I get to see all kinds of American people. It's good to see the country waking up to its heritage. People are feeling good about America and they're drifting away from violence. Violence just isn't the thing in today's world. It's obsolete."

But, what comes next for this unusual young man? "Oh, I'm going to school here at American University, taking a couple courses in religion and in U.S. history. Eventually, I hope to go back to school full time. I'm not sure what I want to be — perhaps a priest, perhaps even something in the business world. I just don't know. Right now, I'm busy enough with the bicentennial."
