Two Navy ships collide near Sicily

WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy and the cruiser Belknap collided Saturday night in the Mediterranean 70 miles east of Sicily during night flight operations, the Pentagon announced.

"We have no firm information on any casualties," a spokesman said.

The Kennedy carries a crew of about 4,500; the Belknap, about 350.

The spokesman said the Belknap suffered substantial damage, and there were indications from Pentagon sources that the ship caught fire.

The Kennedy, which dwarfs the cruiser, suffered some damage, but there were no immediate details on the extent of the damage.

Information reaching the Pentagon indicated the Belknap was off the left side of the carrier when the cruiser's superstructure and the Kennedy's overhanging flight deck collided.

The Pentagon said that other 6th Fleet ships in the area were providing firefighting and rescue assistance.

Both the Kennedy and the Belknap normally are based in Norfolk, Va., and are on assignment now with the 6th Fleet.

The skipper of the Kennedy is Capt. William Gureck. The commander of the Belknap is Capt. Walter R. Shaffer, whose home town is Troy, Ohio.

The worst at-sea collision in recent years involving a U.S. Navy vessel occurred in 1969 when the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans was cut in half by the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne during maneuvers in the South China Sea. Seventyfour men, all Americans, were lost.

Loch Ness monster may be for real, folks

LONDON (AP) — A leading British naturalist said Saturday he is convinced by an American research team's photographs that the fabled Loch Ness monster is a living prehistoric reptile — or rather a family of them.

"The most important thing shown is the flipper of the animal, which I find very convincing," said Sir Peter Scott, an organizer of a symposium at which closely guarded photographs taken by a team led by American Robert Rines will be shown to the world on Dec. 10.

"There is no known whale or dolphin which has a flipper this shape," Scott told a British Press Association reporter at his home in Gloucestershire. "But there are flippers of the same general shape in the fossil records of prehistoric reptiles."

Rines, a patent lawyer and dean of Franklin Pierce Law Center in Concord, N.H., was quoted in a copyright story in the Boston Globe as saying that his Boston-based research group had taken pictures proving the existence of the monster.

Rines did not say what kind of animal he thought the monster was. He said he has invited scientists to the symposium next month in Edinburgh, Scotland, to try to get clues to its identity.

Rines began taking photographs in Loch Ness in 1972, and early pictures showed spade-shaped objects that appeared to be fins or the end of a tail, the Globe said. The photos were taken with a highspeed camera developed by Harold Edgerton, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology electrical engineering professor, the newspaper said.

Scott, son of antarctic explorer Robert Falcon Scott and an eminent naturalist in his own right, said, "I am quite certain there is a population of very large unknown animals in the Loch," a deep gash between mountains that runs almost the whole breadth of Scotland.

He said he is "violently against" any attempt to capture any of the creatures, which he said are "possibly 40 feet long."

"There may only be a very small number hanging on by the skin of their teeth against extinction," said Scott, a founder of the Loch Ness investigation bureau which collaborated with Rines. "You can't catch one without the grave risk of killing it."

Scott said he believes there are 20 to 30 creatures in the Loch and that one photograph depicts two of them.

Scott said he is one of a handful of persons who have seen the dozen photographs taken by Rines. The most recent were taken 40 feet below the Loch's surface with the help of a strobe-flash light, he said.

Ladbrokes, a bookmaking firm that long has taken bets on "Nessie," reported that the posted odds against proof of its existence had fallen from 100 to 1 last month to 33 to 1 last week and only 6 to 1 Saturday. The bookmakers reportedly stand to lose more than $500,000.

The "monster" is 30 feet or longer, is prehistoric and of a type never seen before, and is authenticated as such by the British Museum of Natural History.

Solons' delay may scuttle Carey's plan

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Hamstrung by political differences, the New York Legislature abandoned efforts Saturday to push through $200 million in tax increases for New York City before Monday. The delay threatened to unravel Gov. Hugh Carey's plan to avoid default by the city next month.

The legislators said they would take up the tax hikes on Monday, but Carey said he feared that could be "too late to avert bankruptcy" because the city needs a quick decision from President Ford on whether Ford will support federal aid for the city.

The President said recently he would decide early this coming week if New York State had taken enough "further steps" to justify federal loan guarantees or other aid for financially strapped New York City.

The federal aid is crucial to Carey's plan, and the Democratic governor considered the tax increases a gesture of fiscal sacrifice which might impress Washington.

After day-long negotiations Saturday, legislative leaders gave up trying to meet objections of Republicans and black and Puerto Rican Democrats who were holding up action.

Carey had sought Republican votes to bypass the opposition of blacks and Puerto Ricans in the Assembly's Democratic majority.

But Perry Duryea, the minority leader in the lower house, refused to offer any GOP support unless the New York City Council, which already has requested that the state impose the taxes, vote again to enact them. Carey said that was "impossible" because the city charter required 12 days for action, "and by then President Ford will be in China."

The governor, obviously angry, told reporters that "I have no time to play these games. This is the most serious situation in the history of this state."

Warren Commission counsel urges reopening of JFK probe

By JACK NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Castigating the CIA and FBI for withholding evidence of Fidel Castro death plots, Warren Commission counsel David W. Belin Saturday urged a reopening of the commission's investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Belin, in the past a consistent opponent of reopening the probe, was one of two Warren Commission attorneys who concentrated on determining who killed Kennedy and Dallas Police Officer J. D. Tippitt on Nov. 22, 1963.

Belin, 47, a Des Moines attorney, also headed the Rockefeller Commission's recent investigation of CIA activities.

In a lengthy statement released on the 12th anniversary of the assassination, Belin expressed confidence that a new investigation would substantiate the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone gunman who killed both men and that there was no conspiracy in the assassination.

He said a new investigation is necessary, however, to restore the public's faith in the Warren Commission report and in the federal government. He suggested it also might "shed additional light" on Oswald's motive for shooting Kennedy.

Belin's comments will give new impetus to a drive for reopening of the assassination probe, a move advocated recently by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.), chairman of a Senate subcommittee on intelligence looking into conspiracy theories in the assassination.

Schweiker, predicting the Warren

Commission report would collapse "like a house of cards," said two theories being investigated are that Kennedy was killed through a Communist plot organized in Cuba or the Soviet Union, or that anti-Castro Cubans, angry over diminishing Kennedy administration support for them, planned the murder.

Belin said Congress should conduct any new investigation and "should specifically investigate why this dereliction of duty on the part of both the CIA and the FBI occurred."

In addition to withholding from the Warren Commission evidence of CIA plots to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, Belin said, the FBI failed to disclose to the commission evidence of threats made to the FBI by Oswald several days before the assassination.

Belin told The Los Angeles Times, "the ramifications of the withholding of evidence by the FBI and CIA are horrendous when you consider that they were withholding it from a presidential commission."

"When will they not withhold information when it suits their convenience?" he continued. "This deserves wide public concern."

Since evidence shows that the late Robert F. Kennedy, as attorney general, also knew of the Castro death plots, Belin said, he too should have notified the commission.

A book by Belin on the assassination, "November 22, 1963: You Are the Jury," published in 1973, quotes a letter from Commission Chairman Earl Warren to Robert Kennedy which asks if he has any additional information pertinent to the inquiry. In a reply just before the commission wound up its work, Kennedy wrote that "all information relating in any way" to the assassination had been given to the commission.

Although no evidence has surfaced to link the Castro death plots to the Kennedy assassination, the fact that such plots existed is considered by Belin, Sen. Schweiker and others who have studied the assassination probe to be a pertinent area for inquiry. And so far that area of inquiry has received little official attention.

Belin said he also could not understand why the one Warren Commission member who had knowledge of the Castro assassina-

ODESSA — The indirect support of 60,000 Texas students may win a student newspaper for The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

The presidents of five University of Texas System student governments, meeting on the UTPB campus Saturday, passed a resolution supporting a student newspaper at the Odessa university.

The presidents, who comprise the membership of the UT System Council, proposed that the resolution be presented Monday to UTPB President Dr. V. R. Cardozier. If Cardozier fails to act before the next meeting of the UT System board of regents, set for Dec. 12 in Houston, they will "make it an issue" at the regents' meeting, they said.

Schools represented Saturday were UT-Dallas, UT-El Paso, UT-Austin, UT Medical Branch at Galveston and UTPB.

Carol Crabtree, president of the UT-Austin student government, said the council members present represented 60,000 students.

The only member school not represented was UT-Arlington, but UTPB student president Hoyce "Hawk" Kennedy said he had spoken with that school's president by telephone and received confirmation of his support.

James Corral of UTEP, the council's president, said a student enrollment boycott could be planned if appealing to Cardozier and the regents fails to institute a student newspaper.

The council stressed, however, no action will be taken unless the proposal is squelched by both Cardozier and the regents.

The representatives, who meet every six weeks on member campuses, appeared uniformly optimistic that no action would be necessary.

UTPB's only publication is the Windmill, an in-house publication produced by the administration. Early last fall then-President R. H. Amstead sparked controversy when he ordered all copies of an issue shredded because it contained a letter

Dr. Hoffmann to speak in Andrews

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Proclaiming the good news of God still is the single most important function of the church, a widely-known radio personality said Saturday in Midland.
Dr. Oswald Hoffmann, who for more than 20 years has been the voice of the Lutheran Hour, arrived at Midland Regional Air Terminal Saturday afternoon enroute to Andrews where today he will lead a Lutheran Hour rally.
The church "must not be preoccupied with all kinds of sensational side shows. The church must be the kind of place where people meet God, where they are turned on by God's love," Dr. Hoffmann said at a press conference.
The visitor, in traditional clerical black which was enlivened by a colorful enamel-on-copper pectoral cross (purchased in Greece during one of his many yearly trips abroad) noted during an interview that his long career as Lutheran Hour speaker was "never planned this way," but added that "I found out early if you will let God guide you, He will open doors you could not even have foreseen."
Dr. Hoffmann grew up in Minnesota, was at one time a teacher of Latin and Greek and then for a number of years was on the pastoral staff of one of America's oldest Lutheran churches, St. Matthew's Church in New York City. Later he served as director of public relations for his denomination, the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, headquartered in St. Louis. It was during this time he he began broadcasting for the Lutheran Hour.

He noted that in an age when education has become preeminent, the growth of superstition has been amazing. He cited as an example the surge of interest in astrology during recent years.
"Remember, there is only one in control of history, only one is charge of the future," he cautioned, "and that one is God."
The rally in Andrews will begin at 4:15 p.m. in the Andrews Civic Center and is open to all.
The personable Dr. Hoffmann, possessor of one of the most distinctive voices on radio today, was met by a delegation of Lutheran laymen and clergy from Andrews, Lamesa, Midland, Odessa and elsewhere.

TUSI served with petition in suit

DALLAS — Texas Utilities Services Inc. (TUSI), a subsidiary of Texas Electric Service Co., reports that it has been served with a petition in a suit which would force the installation of a scrubber on the Monticello No. 3 lignite-fueled generating unit now under construction near Mount Pleasant.
This equipment would be required to meet Environmental Protection Agency air quality regulations which have been challenged by a number of electric utilities.
T. L. Austin Jr., chairman of the board of Texas Utilities Co., said, "We have not changed our conviction that this equipment is unnecessary and a waste of our customers' money. We intend to oppose this suit in court because we sincerely believe that such action is in the best interest of our customers who are already deeply concerned about the increasing cost of producing electricity."
"We recognize the position of the TACB," Austin said, "in having to enforce the existing federal air quality regulations. However, EPA regulations requiring the use of unnecessary expenditures for scrubbers are unreasonable, arbitrary and take a stand when now being challenged in government regulations have gone too far."

DEPRESSION ART "FOUND"

1937 U.S. Gov't

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special)
A series of rare coincidences has led to the historic discovery of several thousand sets of full color antique art prints that were "lost" since 1937. They are now being offered to the American public.

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT
Back in 1937, immediately following the depression years, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and a select group of a dozen nationally prominent people formed a voluntary national committee for art appreciation to create an art program that would give the public a well-needed moral lift. It was the committee's decision to select the world's most famous paintings from the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th centuries - the best paintings of Matisse, Van Gogh, Gauguin, Titian, etc. and to reproduce them in full color as perfectly as humanly possible and make them available to the public at a price within the reach of nearly everyone.

ABANDONED IN 1937
For some unknown reason, after a quantity of these beautiful reproductions were made, the entire project was abandoned and this collection of perfect reproductions was stored in a Brooklyn warehouse where they remained undisturbed since 1937. The lost collection was rediscovered and leading lithographers and art critics agree that the subject matter and quality of detail and color reproduction is incredibly accurate. Over $100,000 had been spent to make finely engraved-glass printing plates.

These authentic original 1937 prints are literally collectors' items and have been appraised by a member of the Antique Appraisal Assoc. of America, Inc. at $7.00 each print. Once they have been sold, there will be no more available. A truly excellent art "investment" that makes a fabulous gift.

AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC
Now, after 38 years these full color 11"x14" (ave. size) prints are finally available to the public at $19.95 for a collection of 15 prints. Send cash, check or money order to: U.S. Art Surplus, Dept. 11H, 4816 MacArthur Blvd. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007. Fully GUARANTEED Certificate of authenticity given with each set. The bulk of the cotton harvested in Midland county this past week came from cotton that had been chemically defoliated or desiccated prior to the killing freeze. Late cotton with unopened bolls has been a little slow to dry and open. Another week or 10 days, however, should see the harvest in full swing. About 20 per cent of the grain sorghum crop in the county remains to be harvested and combines were back in the fields this week winding up that activity. It looks as if Midland county will harvest around 15,000,000 pounds of milo this year which is the largest production of this crop in several years.

Oats, barley, wheat and rye that was planted by September 15 can furnish twice as much high quality grazing if allowed to reach an 8 inch height before pasturing. Small grain pastures have very limited leaf areas to manufacture food for fast regrowth when grazed at a four inch height. Most fall growth is made before cold weather begins. This is especially true of oats and barley. The plants must have lots of leaves, moisture, fertilizer and warm weather for fast regrowth. When leaves are grazed off early, the plants will make slow regrowth at best.

An important meeting for Midland county cotton and grain sorghum producers is set for Tuesday morning, Nov. 25 at Rodeway Inn Restaurant at 7:30 a.m. Breakfast will be provided courtesy of the Midland Farmer's Cooperative. The purpose of the meeting is to explain a pest management program which Midland growers have the opportunity of participating in, along with farmers from Martin, Glascock, Howard, Upton and Reagan counties.

The program would be supervised by an extension entomologist, stationed somewhere within the county area and who would recruit, train and supervise a scouting service. The program has been in operation in several pilot areas over the state for several years and has generally been accepted as quite successful from the grower's standpoint. It would be impossible to fully explain the program in the space of this column, but briefly the pest management program is an integrated approach to minimizing insect damage to crops by utilizing all known methods, including natural, biological, cultural and pesticides. However, it should be emphasized that this is not a "poisoning" program.

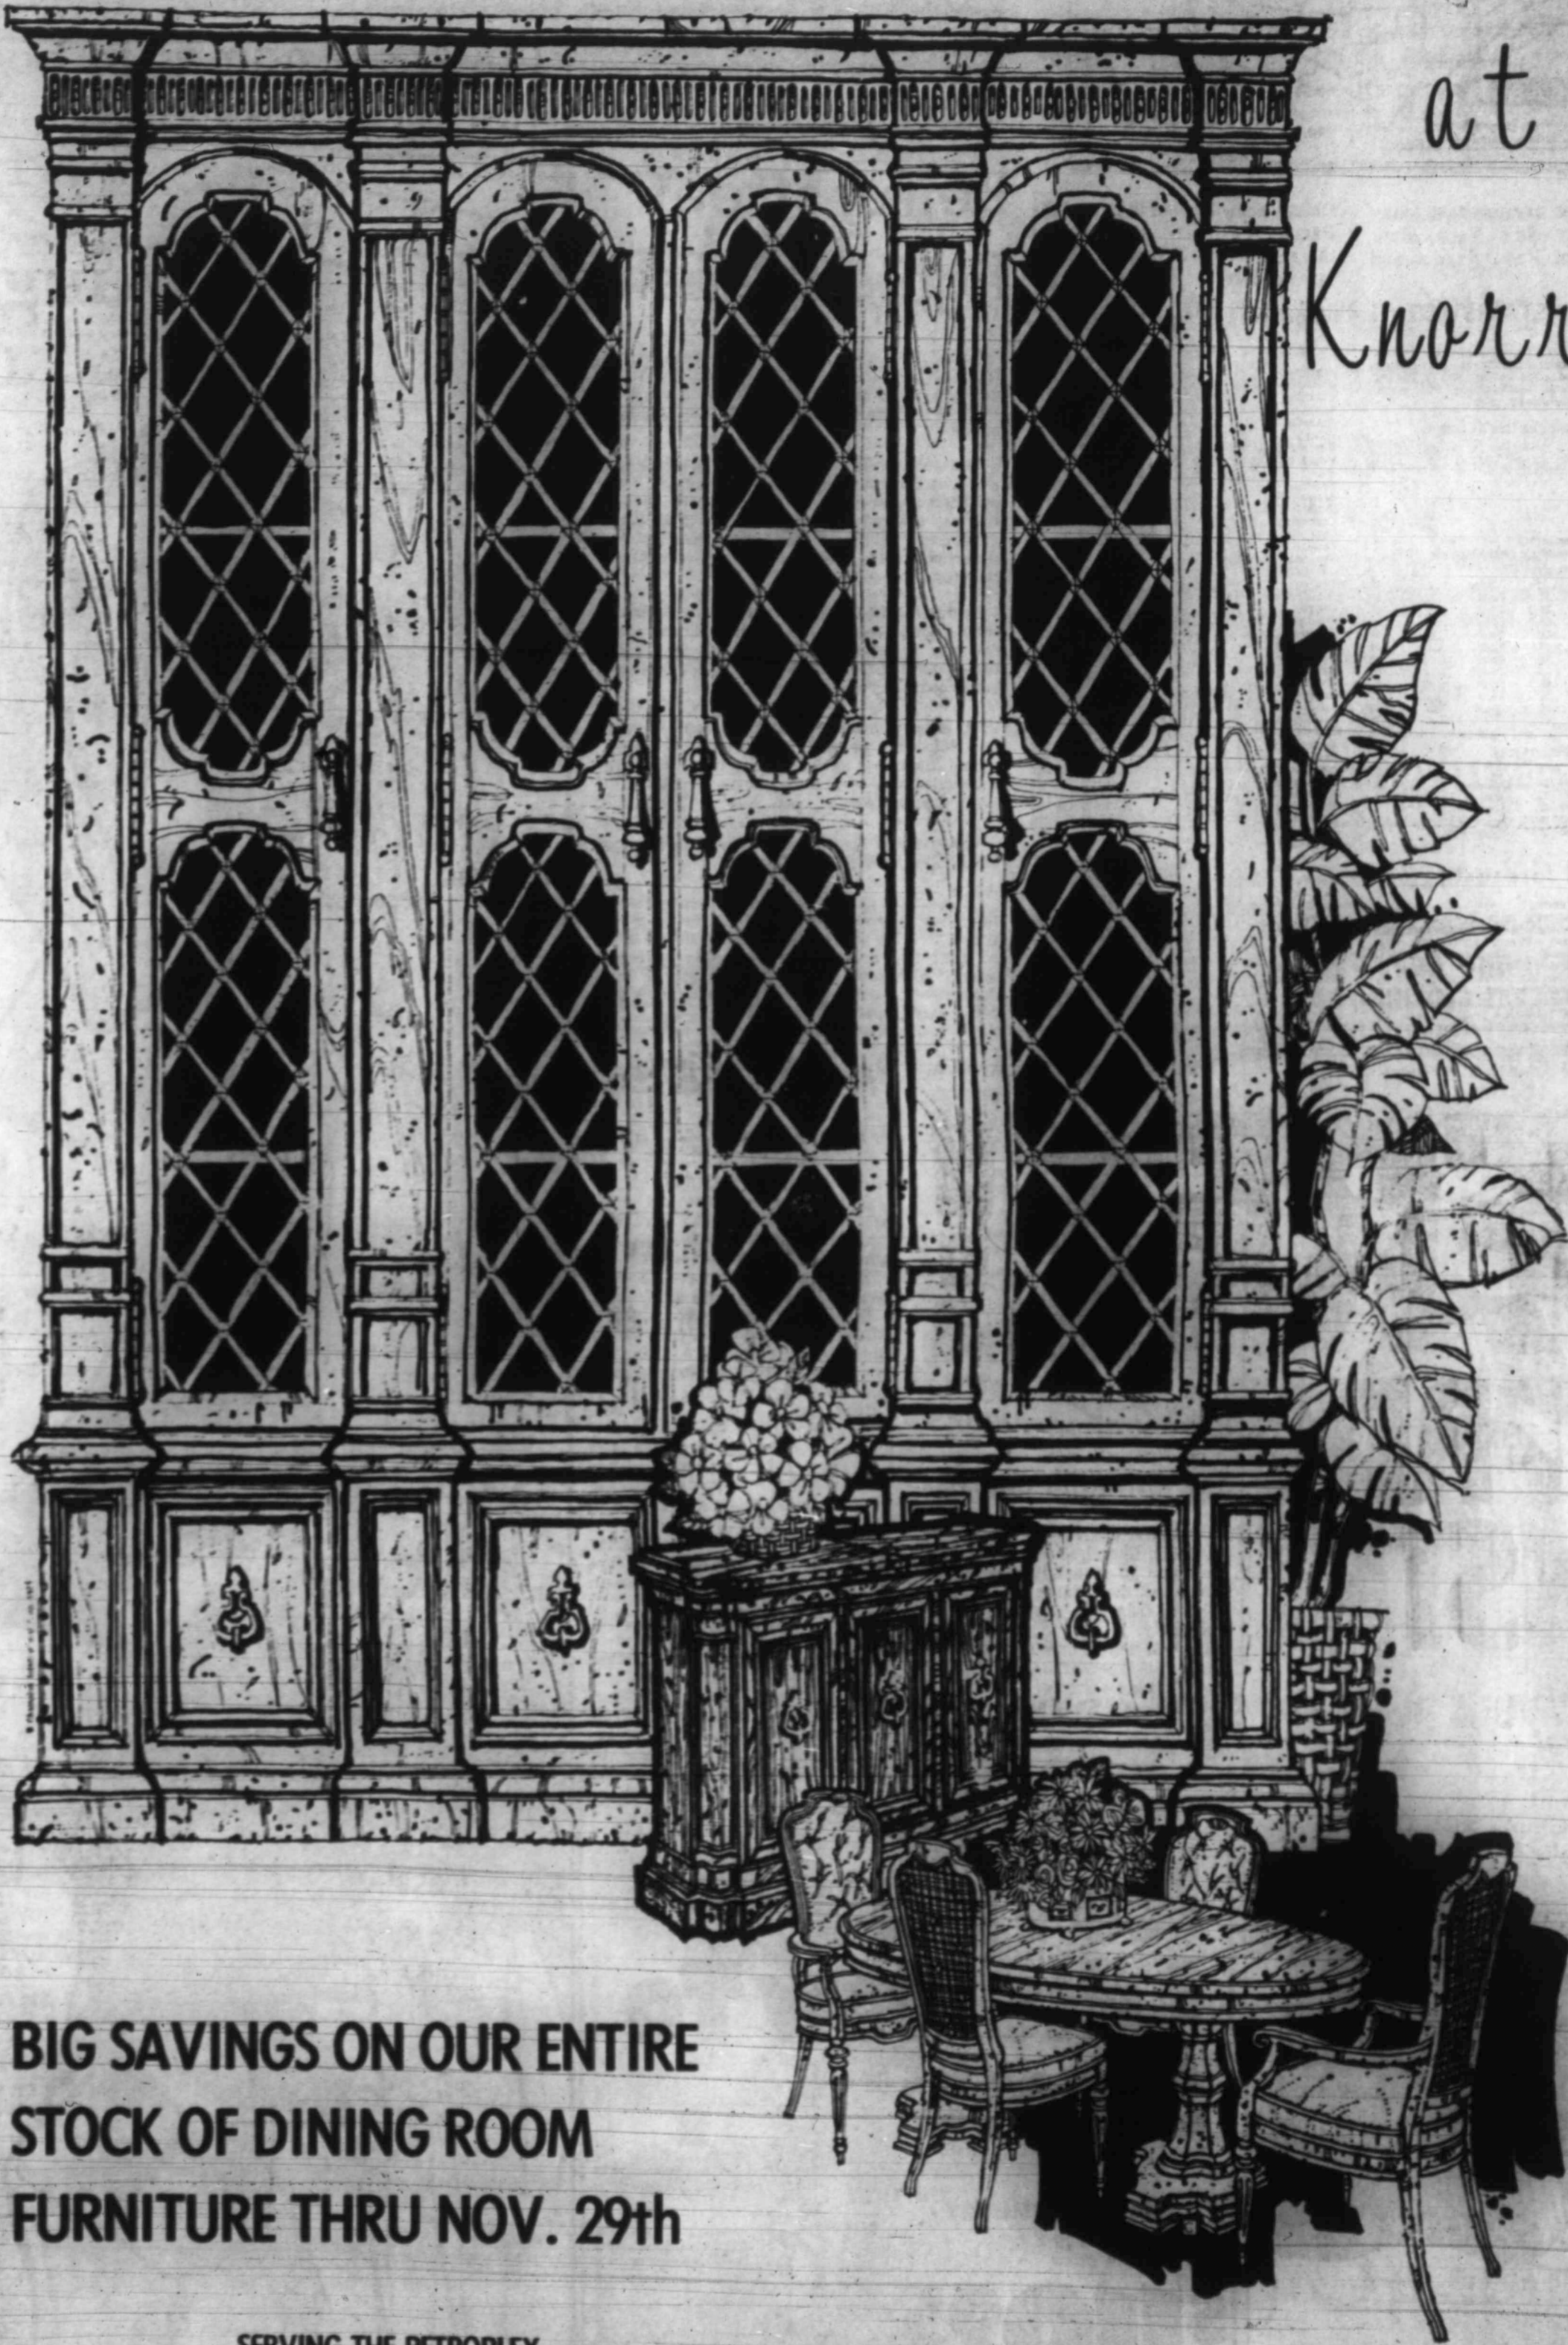

In order for Midland producers to make a sound decision on whether they wish to participate, we feel a meeting where the program can be fully discussed and questions answered is necessary. A commitment of a minimum acreage is needed for county participation. I urge every grower to attend so we can know if the program is wanted. We will be through with the meeting by the time cotton is dry enough to strip.

Agricultural producers as well as home gardeners are often faced with different plant disease problems and don't know just where to turn. Now there's a handbook available with a lot of the answers.

The Texas Plant Disease Handbook which was initially published in 1973 has been revised and updated to deal with new disease problems and treatments as well as to give concise information on all diseases of major Texas crops, ornamentals, trees, and turf. The information in this handbook represents the most complete discussion on plant diseases in Texas. The 322-page handbook is filled with descriptions of the various plant diseases, recommendations for chemical control, and resistant varieties that are available.

Beirut street fights intensify

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fierce street fighting between Moslem and Christian gunmen raked Beirut on Saturday, leaving at least 36 persons dead, 76 wounded and 150 kidnaped.

The government, after a series of desperate negotiations with rival militia leaders, announced a new cease-fire - the 13th since civil warfare erupted last April. Gunfire and rocket explosions continued to rattle through the deserted streets after the cease-fire was announced.

Premier Rashid Karami warned that his bitterly divided country "is on the brink of total collapse." Karami, a Moslem, told the cease-fire committee that Lebanon faces famine, bankruptcy and massive unemployment.

"If Islam allows murder, then I don't want to be a Moslem," he said. "If Christianity allows killing, then I am against Christianity. We have reached zero level and even slipped below it in every aspect of life."

The renewed fighting that erupted three days ago blistered two-thirds of Beirut.

"Fighting is getting more vicious and citizens have been advised to move to shelters to avoid rocket fire," a police spokesman said. He added that fire brigades were unable to enter many districts "because gunmen are deliberately harassing them with machine guns and rocket propelled grenades."

Reagan agrees with movie ban

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan says he doesn't mind at all that the Federal Communications Commission has ordered his old movies off television for a while. "Somebody must have goofed, because I've made some movies that - if they put them on television - I'd demand equal time," the newly announced candidate for the Republican nomination for president said.

Reagan's 51 films date to 1937, when he broke into Hollywood starring as a sportscaster in "Love is in the Air." His last movie was "Hellcats of the Navy" in 1957, the only film in which he appeared with his wife, Nancy. Those films have been a regular part of the late show television fare for two decades, a fact that Reagan often jokes about. When he was sworn in at 12:01 a.m. on Jan. 4, 1967 for the first of his two four-year terms as California governor, Reagan turned to then-U.S. Sen. George Murphy, another former actor, and quipped, "Well, here we are on the late show again, George."

PBRPC okays four applications

Four grant applications have received favorable comment from the Government Application Review Committee (GARC) of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission (PBRPC).

Among the requests receiving favorable review was one by the City of Midland for $294,382 from the Federal Aviation Administration and $49,064 from the Texas Aeronautics Commission for improvements at Air Park. A matching local share of $49,064 will bring the project total to $392,510.

The proposed work to be included in the Air Park improvements will cover reconstruction of pavement, marking and lighting of runways, construction of security fencing, marking of taxiways and other related items.

If the grant is approved, the project is expected to take nine months for completion and will have no adverse effect on the environment.

GARC also okayed a request by West Texas Opportunities for $50,000 from the Community Services Administration for the coordination of an Emergency Energy Conservation Program in Dawson, Upton and Martin counties.

The evaluation will be conducted by a policy advisory committee and will be based on four goals — winterization of 125 homes, financial assistance or loans in paying utility bills of eligible families, adequate heating, clothing and bedding for families and public education to show people the importance of winterizing their homes.

Two projects requested by the Community Council of Reeves County also were approved. One project is a request for $21,183 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for continuation of the Headstart Program in Saragosa.

The headstart program expects to have an enrollment of 20 children aged four and five, of whom 10 percent are handicapped and all are below the poverty income level. The application includes a local match of $6,355 for a project total of $27,538.

The other Reeves County request is for $36,084 from the Community Services Administration for the ongoing operation of six centers in the county. A local match of $10,825 would bring the project total to $46,909.

All GARC's recommendations will be presented at the next meeting of the PBRPC board of directors, 1:30 p.m. Dec. 10, for final approval.

Juan Carlos crowned king

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon ascended to power Saturday as Spain's first king in 44 years, pledging to act as "moderator, guardian of the constitutional system and promoter of justice."

He indicated that those largely excluded from the political process, including Basques, would be allowed greater freedom.

Speaking in a tense voice in the main chamber of parliament amid Spain's tightest security ever, 37-year-old King Juan Carlos I ushered in a new era after 36 years of right-wing, autocratic rule under Gen. Francisco Franco.

The new head of state was cheered by shouts of "Juan Carlos! Juan Carlos!" and "Long live the king!" as he rode through the Spanish capital after formally accepting leadership. Then he and the new queen, Greek-born Princess Sophie, joined tens of thousands filing past the body of Franco, lying in state before burial Sunday. The long-time dictator died Thursday at the age of 82.

Juan Carlos bowed briefly in front of Franco's coffin, then knelt in a corner to pray alone.

Trained from boyhood by Franco to take over, the king appeared as the moderator he said he wanted to be in his first public accounting to the nation.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller was the only high official of a major power present as Juan Carlos spoke formally to the rightist-dominated parliament and to the nation by television.

The Midland Branch of The Arthritis Foundation was cited last week for its outstanding accomplishments at the annual meeting of the West Texas Chapter.

Branch president Bob Dawson said the Midland branch has gone over 240 per cent of its year-end dollar goal already. A higher goal of 300 per cent has been established now because the group believed their original goal was too low.

Also at the meeting, Charles Younger, M.D. of Midland was added to the Chapter Board. Other Midlanders on the board are Mrs. Penny Willhite, elected assistant chapter treasurer; Doug Henson; Bob Paxton, re-elected corporate treasurer, and Bob Dawson. Also appointed assistant chapter treasurer was Larry Bell.

Bell names department manager

Southwestern Bell has named the new new district manager/operator services in Midland as part of a long-term project to implement special long distance dialing features.

He is Cary D. Miller, who has been assigned to the firm's San Antonio office.

Miller's job will center around preparation for introduction of "zero-plus" dialing in Midland and the Permian Basin. This dialing system will allow customers to dial all long distance calls, including those handled by operators.

The new system, which is being introduced in many locations, will go into operation after the completion of the installation of equipment in the new Southwestern Bell building.

Miller's responsibilities will include both equipment and personnel.

Miller was a traffic staff supervisor in Midland briefly. He joined Bell in 1965 after graduating from Texas Tech.

He and his wife, Cynthia, will reside at 2209 Statz St. with their three daughters.

Dick Hood, general manager for Thornton's, said his firm was looking for additional outlets in other West Texas communities.

The store was founded in 1919 by the late E. L. Thornton. It is now affiliated with P. N. Hirsch Co., St. Louis, Mo., which is a subsidiary of Interco, formerly the International Shoe Co.

Great Britain threatens to put tight curbs on imported cars, motorbikes, other goods

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

LONDON — Britain is threatening to slap curbs on imported cars, motorbikes and other goods, a jobs-protecting policy that will intensify the anguished howls from its Common Market partners.

In nearly three years as a member, London has continually offended the other eight by ignoring inconvenient market rules and offending European Economic Community sensibilities. Some commentators here are even talking of a "Gaulist Britain," forgetting that the general not only insisted on French national interests but also sought a political leadership in the community to which Britain can't hope to aspire.

There is no doubt that London, particularly since Harold Wilson and the Labor party took power, has frequently gone it alone for domestic political purposes. But Britain's critics in the nine-nation Common Market overlook two crucial facts about the community:

—Every member, especially big ones, ignores its "community obligations" when national interests thought to be important dictate otherwise.

—The community is only rarely a political animal and is essentially a business arrangement, a customs union attached to a clumsy price-propping scheme for farmers.

France, frequently scornful of the "insular" British, has just staged an economic summit to which the five smaller market members were carefully not invited. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing forgot about "community spirit" because it might interfere with the international monetary policy to which Paris is momentarily attached. That Giscard d'Estaing seems to have been largely unsuccessful does not mollify the Dutch, Danes, Luxembourgese, Belgians and Irish who were left out.

In the same way, when Italian wine began pouring into France, Paris responded to its powerful lobby of growers, market rules about free trade among members were ignored and curbs imposed to halt the flood.

When the Italians, like the British now, confronted a nasty balance of payments deficit nearly two years ago, they also scrapped the rules. Importers were required to put up stiff deposits, curbing the flow of foreign goods from community partners and everybody else.

The most stunning example of this every-man-for-himself philosophy came during the putative oil "embargo" late in 1973 and early 1974. There was no community policy (nor is there one today) except "every man for himself," with each nation desperately seeking its own sheik or shah for a deal.

It is hardly surprising then that Britain ignores its partners and insists on a separate seat at next month's Paris conference of oil producers and consumers. London's formal argument holds that it is a producer (and thus wants high prices) while the other eight are consumers (who favor low oil prices).

The real reason is Scotland. The Scots are pressing for more control over their own affairs and especially for control of the bonanza from North Sea oil. The drive is the biggest single threat to Wilson's government, which depends for its majority on 41 Labor members of Parliament from Scotland. By insisting on a separate British seat (at a conference that is regarded as unlikely to produce much of anything), Foreign Secretary James Callaghan is trying to demonstrate that Labor is capable of protecting Scotland's interest.

In much the same spirit, Britain has rejected Common Market rules to curb pollution. The community wants to impose common standards for the effluent that can be dumped in rivers. London says this could cost its manufacturers up to $1.5 billion. Britain argues that its swift-flowing rivers empty into the rough Atlantic, unlike the sluggish continental rivers that flow into the calm Mediterranean. Therefore, the defense goes, the pollution problem is different here.

Whatever the scientific merits of the argument, there is an unhappy tendency in Brussels rule-making to ride roughshod over comparative advantage, to impose unnecessary burdens in the name of "equalizing competition."

"We can understand some of the British positions," a Brussels official says. "But it is the spirit and manner in which Callaghan acts that is damaging. We can work out appropriate compromises, within the community framework."

These differences have little to do with building a politically united Europe. But that grand design was laid low for at least a generation when De Gaulle, 10 years ago, forced the community to recognize that no member would sacrifice its freedom of action when a consequential local interest was at stake.

Dry cleaners hold seminar

Seventy-four dry cleaners and other interested persons of Midland and Odessa attended an "After Hours" drycleaning seminar held last week in the Reddy Room of Texas Electric Service Co. here.

The seminar was conducted by Norman Oehlke, senior analyst, International Fabricare Institute Research Laboratories, Silver Springs, Md.

It was sponsored by the Texas Laundry and Dry Cleaning Association.

Milby will replace Doug Campbell, vice president of the El Paso National Bank, who is 1975 chairman of the group. Other officials appointed are Clifford W. Miller, vice president of the Bank of Ysleta, who becomes vice chairman, and Johnny Hogard, vice president of the National Bank of Odessa who will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Trained shoplifters hitting Texas stores

By PAUL RECER
HOUSTON (AP) — Skillful shoplifters

teams trained in Mexico are stealing thousands of dollars in merchandise from Texas department stores and taking it across the border for sale at cut-rate prices, law enforcement officials here say.

Police in Houston and Rosenberg said they have information that the teams are trained in Mexico, then sent into Texas to make the rounds of major department stores in Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas and Corpus Christi.

Labels are removed from the merchandise, mostly expensive clothing and jewelry, and the loot is prepared for sale in Nuevo Laredo, officers said.

"They come over in groups of four to six, mostly women and one man," says Houston police detective Ralph Wood. "They just make a circuit, hitting all the big stores. They put the stuff in the trunk of their car and you'd be surprised how much you can get in a trunk."

Members of two shoplifting teams were arrested and police learned of the professional operation from those arrested.

Security agents at a Houston department store caught three women in one team late last year. Officers found more than $17,000 in clothes stashed in the trunk of their late model car.

Last summer, Rosenberg police caught three women and a man after they had lifted some diamonds from a store. One man was never caught. "They were well trained and knew what they were doing," says Rosenberg Asst. Police Chief Joseph Prejean.

He said one of the women, who was pregnant, and a man came into the store and asked to see some diamond rings. After looking at several, they asked for another tray of jewels. While the clerk was getting the second tray, another man rushed in, scooped up the diamonds on top of the counter and fled. The "customers" also escaped, but were arrested later.

Police found $35,000 in clothing in the trunk of their car and $15,000 in diamonds at a motel where they were staying.

They also found a cigar box crammed with labels from merchandise stolen from stores in several Texas cities, including Sherman, Uvalde, Gainesville, and major metropolitan areas.

Prejean said the shoplifters enjoyed talking about their operation.

The boss, they said, was "this guy who was running this store in Nuevo Laredo. We didn't get the name of the store, but I'm sure he is still operating."

Prejean said the shoplifters talked of several other teams still operating in Texas and in Mexico at Monterrey and Mexico City.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

1,300 banks request more than $2 billion

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It took only a few minutes, over three cups of coffee, for the State Depository Board to approve requests from 1,300 Texas banks for more than $2 billion in state funds.

The banks, including virtually all state and national banks, asked for $1,682,791,917 in time deposits and $463,266,772 in demand funds.

State Treasurer Jesse James, Assistant Banking Commissioner Chester Baker (representing ailing Commissioner Robert E. Stewart) and J. C. Dingwall, Austin, looked over the requests which the Treasury Department's staff had spent (James said) a month or so preparing, and approved them.

Just because the banks are asking for that amount doesn't mean they'll get it, of course. There isn't that much money in the treasury and there is not likely to be.

The action of the Depository Board designates the banks as depositories for the next two years, through Nov. 30, 1977, and sets the rate at seven per cent for time accounts.

During the year ending Aug. 31, the state made $78,939,822.48 in interest on the funds that it had on deposit in 1,240 banks — and at that date it had funds on deposit which should produce more than $93,000,000 in interest for the next fiscal year.

James has come under attack from some legislators, notably Rep. Frank Hartung, Houston, for not earning enough interest.

Hartung offered bills in the last session to increase membership of the Depository Board and to have competitive bidding on state funds.

James indicated he didn't think much of that, arguing that Hartung just didn't understand the operation. The bills, needless to say, failed.

Hartung is continuing his efforts to "reform" James' operation, but so far without much success — and James, a perennial winner, is likely to continue in office as long as he desires.

So the Depository Board will probably meet again in two years over three cups of coffee to parcel out state funds once again.

Insurance companies are reporting they have experienced one of the worse years they've ever seen, but so far, Board of Insurance Chairman Joe Christie says there has been no evidence of any lack of availability of insurance in Texas markets.

"I think the best evidence of that is whether companies are still writing in Texas at the rates we set," Christie says, adding that "investigations show they are writing in Texas, which indicates rates are adequate and there is a healthy situation."

"There's no question that the industry took a licking last year," he agrees, "but it's not an industry that lives from year to year — then goes out like a mayfly."

Christie notes there has been some unhappiness in the Texas insurance industry over the rate increases granted by the board at the fire and auto rate hearings. At both, the board cut back on what the industry had argued was necessary.

"We granted the rate increases we felt the statistics justified," he says.

Increased costs and increased accident rate "clobbered" auto insurance writers, but indications are that the accident rate and inflation may be leveling off, he says.

"We might have a period of stability," Christie says hopefully. "Meanwhile, he and other board members, along with members of the board's staff, are checking with agents when they travel about the state to determine if there are any facility problems."

So far, only one or two isolated cases have turned up, indicating that despite problems the insurance industry in Texas is relatively healthy, or at least no sicker than it is anywhere else.

Inflation takes third highest jump of year

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
NEW YORK (AP) — When President Ford returned from the six-nation economic summit at Rambouillet, France, this past week, he was confronted with more indications that the recovery has not yet shed the heavy cloak of inflation.

The six nations agreed that "in consolidating the recovery it is essential to avoid unleashing additional inflationary forces which would threaten its success."

But in the United States during October, although industrial output, personal income and corporate profits were on the rise, inflation was taking its third highest jump of the year.

The Commerce Department's consumer price index rose 0.7 per cent in October, largely because of sharply higher grocery prices. The index had risen 0.2 per cent in September.

Nevertheless, October's 0.4 per cent annual rate was well below last year's double-digit level. And James Pate, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said inflation is expected to drop to an annual rate of about 5 per cent by the end of 1976.

Other figures released during the week showed that:

—CORPORATE PROFITS after taxes for the three months ending in September registered their biggest quarterly increase in 25 years. The rise of $11.9 billion was 16.9 per cent over the previous quarter and was the highest rise since a 22.1 per cent jump in 1959's third quarter.

—The consensus prediction of experts is that HOUSING STARTS will range from 1.40 million to 1.65 million units next year, compared to 1.15 million this year, according to Donald Kaplan, director of economic research for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

—INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT rose a moderate 0.4 per cent last month, while business INVENTORIES increased just 0.2 per cent in September.

—The GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT's rise in the third quarter was actually higher than originally thought. The government's revision of figures pegged it at 13.2 per cent, up from the original 11.2 per cent estimate.

—PERSONAL INCOME rose 1 per cent in October, the second month in a row that its rate of growth has slowed.

And there were figures supporting the belief that U.S. consumer confidence in the recovery, an important goal of the Rambouillet summit, is still wavering.

The Conference Board, an independent research group, said its index of consumer confidence in October dropped for the first time this year.

"Consumer spirits seem to have been dampened by the rise in unemployment in October, continued price increases and the financial woes of New York, which are increasingly being regarded as a mini-disaster," said Fabian Linden, director of consumer research for the Conference Board.

Local folks don't want Shenandoah wilderness area

By BILL RICHARDS
The Washington Post

SYRIA, Va. — "The rich backpackers and the government," growls Jim Graves, watching through a picture window as the 3,291-foot tip of Old Rag Mountain disappears into a Blue Ridge storm-cloud, "could care less about the people of Madison County."

With anger warming only occasionally to the level of suspicion, Graves and a group of other residents of this eastern Blue Ridge county have been battling for years against plans by environmentalists and the U.S. Interior Department to designate Old Rag and some 80,000 acres of surrounding Shenandoah National Park as federally protected wilderness.

The wilderness designation for nearly 40 per cent of the national park is just one of 102 plans pending to transform federal land holding scattered from Alaska to Florida into areas marked to remain forever wild under the provisions of the 1964 Federal Wilderness Act.

UNDER THE ACT, officially designated wilderness areas cannot be developed, logged, mined or traveled by any means other than foot or horse except in emergencies such as fires or accidents. Intrusions of man, the act states, must be "substantially unnoticeable."

Since the act was approved, the amount of federal land designated for wilderness has slowly grown from 9.1 million acres to a current total of 12.3 million acres, all of it under the care of either the National Park Service, The National Forest Service or the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Conservationists and some federal officials who are pressing for a speed-up of the slow-moving wilderness designation process contend that without the protection of Congress a national heritage of untouched land will be lost to the incursions of industry, developers and tourists.

"Basically," said Wilderness Society official Arthur Wright, "the Wilderness Act is preservative rather than recreational. Wilderness is America's natural antique."

But what seems good for the country is not always seen in the same light by the people who live near those areas slated for wilderness designation or who use them to make a living.

Recently there have been fights over the rights of hunters to take their powerboats into Georgia's Okefenokee Swamp wilderness and over the hunting rights of Eskimos living in the huge Alaskan wilderness areas. Miners have protested wilderness designations in Utah, surf fishermen have complained about plans to convert Maryland's Assateague Island Seashore into wilderness and clam diggers in Massachusetts gathered there this month to attack plans to make part of the heavily used Parker River National Wildlife Refuge a wilderness.

Officials from all three federal agencies maintaining wilderness land said that in almost all of the 102 pending areas they expect some type of local opposition.

"LOCAL PEOPLE usually tend to look on the park as their own," an Interior Department wilderness specialist, said. "I guess we all have parochial feeling as to our own neighborhoods."

One of the strongest outpourings of those feelings has taken place here. Led by Graves, a fifth generation resident of the area and owner of Graves Mountain Lodge, there is strong opposition to the wilderness plan for Shenandoah. The lodge is a starting spot for a number of the hikers and backpackers who use the park.

"The feeling is that this wilderness area is being created for a very small minority of backpackers who don't live here and aren't nearly as numerous as the day users," said Graves, 39, who is also head of the Madison County planning commission.

There are very few people on either side of the dispute who would deny that the Shenandoah Park is hardly the classic version of wilderness.

The park's 193,500 acres lie directly beneath the flight approach path to Dulles International Airport and sit alongside the Blue Ridge Parkway — the equivalent of Broadway among the nation's park thoroughfares. The area has been farmed and logged for more than a century.

Time, weather take toll on remains of Germania

This old chair apparently received its share of use at the country store in Germania.

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The wind whistles through a single rotten board, thumping it against the side of the dilapidated wooden building.

The front porch is missing several planks in its floor and the front door lies wide open, pinned against the front of the house.

A windmill turns regularly in the wind and produces a small trickle of water into a large rusty stock tank.

A wooden shed at the back of the building gapes open showing its interior of dust and cobwebs.

These are the remains of Germania, a community located about eight miles east of Midland on the T & P Railroad. Only these few traces are left of the community established in 1881 by railroad workers of German ancestry.

Bones scattered on the old house's front porch indicate the death of a small predatory animal, while large slabs of ceiling, dust, cobwebs and even a bird's nest cover the floor of the interior. Gaps in the walls were once windows looking out over the wide Texas countryside.

This broken-down house is the most definite remain of Germania's past. It served as general store, Post Office, and living quarters for the storeowner and his family. Its front yard housed the community's gas station. The windmill in the northwest part of the house's acreage brought much-needed water, while the shed at the rear was probably used for storage and laundry. The remains of a storm shelter are also present in the yard.

In its heyday, Germania had a population of less than 50. The community's Post Office was established in 1884 before there even was a Midland County, according to Mrs. H. N. Phillips, charter member of the Midland County Historical Society. The area surrounding Germania was then known as Tom Green County.

On April 9, 1884, the Post Office opened its doors to the public. Before closing permanently in May, 1887, the building was run by three postmasters — Gustav Barnhart, John Cottle and Fred Noristheimer.

Mrs. Phillips said one of Germania's residents, Mrs. M. L. Sholte, was a little girl at the time and remembered her father coming home from work to shoot meat for the family's supper. She said deer, rabbit and prairie chicken were plentiful at that time.

Germany was also famous throughout the area for its fresh eggs, and many families visited there to purchase groceries.

The T & P Railroad built two-story section houses at two-mile intervals along the train track, the historical society member said. Land was given away to induce the newcomers to settle there. The railroad company also left two barrels of water per family on a regular schedule; that was all they would receive until the next train came through the community.

Somewhere around the turn of the century, Germania ceased to be known as a town, though it was still listed as such in the 1964 Texas almanac. So, what was once Germania has, for all practical purposes, faded with the passage of time. And present-day people can only guess at the lifestyle that once existed in the old community.

A length of wire wrapped remains of a once-useful clothesline in Germania.

Ford, who at the time of the report was House minority leader; John Sherman Cooper, a Somerset, Ky., attorney who at the time was a Republican senator; and John J. McCloy, a New York banker who had served as President Kennedy's chief disarmament adviser and who had been a member of the Coordinating Committee on the Cuban Crisis.

In the past Ford has opposed reopening the investigation. No member of the commission has ever spoken in favor of such a move.

Belin also disclosed that he has filed requests under the Freedom of Information Act with the CIA and the National Archives for all information and material in their possession pertaining to the Kennedy assassination, including the autopsy photographs and x-rays.

Belin also called for the National News Council "or some other appropriate forum of the media" to make an in-depth study of the adequacy of the media's continuing coverage of the Kennedy assassination.

While he has confidence in the overall ability of the press, Belin said, "I have tremendous concern about the fact that mass media have been exploited to mislead a large segment of the American public in falsely believing that Oswald did not kill President Kennedy and Officer Tippitt."

Many of the Warren Report's most vocal critics, he said, "have deliberately misrepresented the overall record of evidence before the commission," thereby feeding the conspiracy theory in the public's mind.

Midlander shot during robbery

A 25-year-old Midland man told police Saturday he was shot in the arm by one of three masked men who robbed guests in his home about 3:40 a.m.

The robbers, wearing ski masks, fatigue jackets and blue jeans, barged into his home and emptied the wallets of his guests, who were seated at a table, James A. Moore told police.

Moore, of 405 S. Mineola St., said he was in another room at the time he heard a commotion. He opened a door and saw the masked men, he said. He slammed the door shut and one of the men fired through the door.

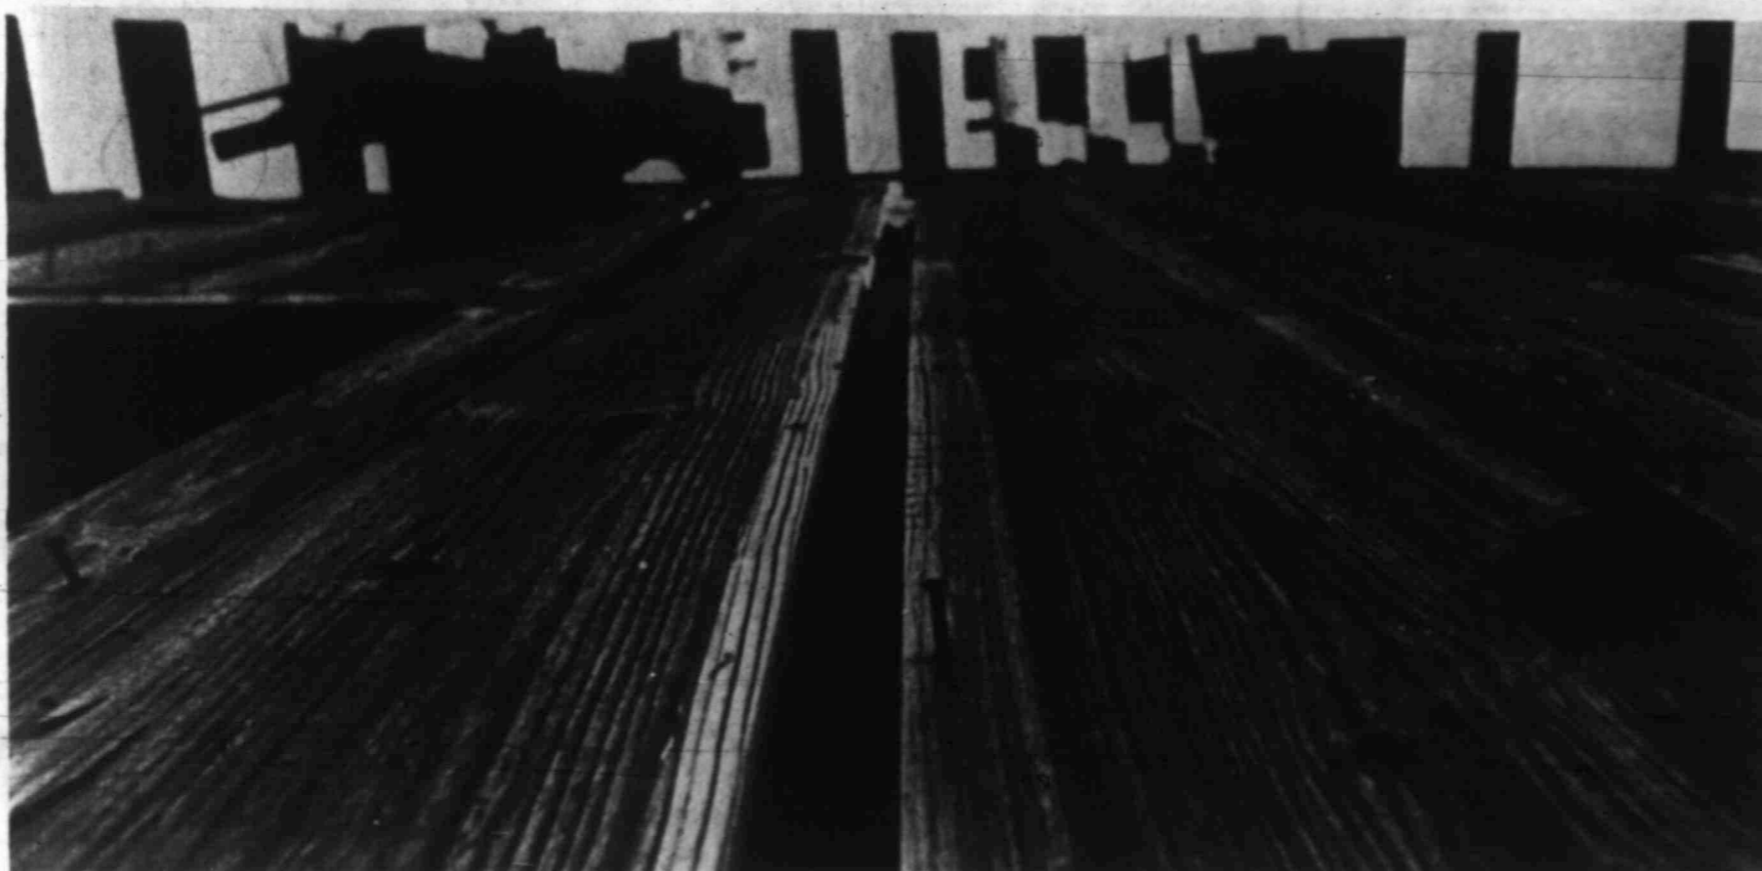

Moore was treated at a Midland hospital and released.

Police had made no arrests by late Saturday.

Midland man, 30, draws prison term

A 30-year-old Midland man was handed a seven-year prison term by a district court jury which Friday found him guilty of carrying a prohibited weapon in a place where alcoholic beverages are sold.

The jury in 142nd District Court convicted Rodney England of carrying a .38 caliber pistol at the Doll House lounge on Rankin Highway last Aug. 3.

Weathered boards on the side of the old Germania post office show their age.

to the editor criticizing one of the UT system regents.

In response to the uproar, Amstead said the Windmill was not a student newspaper, but a university publication, although some student activity funds were channeled into its publication. The student editor lost his job and the school's director of news and information assumed responsibility for it.

Later in the year, students produced their own newspaper, called The Newspaper, without administrative backing. It folded after two editions.

Although student fees no longer support the Windmill, finances reportedly are available for a student publication.

Kennedy said the Student Services Advisory Council voted Oct. 27 to allot $2,800 in funding for a newspaper which would be edited and produced by students under the supervision of a faculty advisor.

No action has been taken on the recommendation.

Kennedy said Cardouze told him it would be unfair to "tax" students for something they may or may not want. In response, students conducted a poll asking students if they want a student newspaper on campus.

Of the 358 responding, 363 favored the proposal. Asked if the Windmill "fulfills all need for the dissemination of news on campus," 238 of the 282 polled said it does not.

Kennedy, who said the recommended $2,800 is available in general funds for student activities, said he feels the school's administration is discouraging a newspaper because it is "afraid of the student voice."

Corral said the UTPB administration's attitude toward a student paper is uncalled for in the UT System.

Miss Crabtree termed the situation "totally ridiculous."

Smithsonian exhibit shows changes in Washington

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The Smithsonian Institution has attempted to demonstrate "how the face of North America has changed since the arrival of man" in a Bicentennial exhibition that opened Thursday in the ecology hall of the Natural History Museum.
 The site where Washington now stands was selected as the focus for the exhibition, which begins 10,000 years ago in a forest of massive hemlocks (constructed from rubber) whose huge trunks disappear through holes in the ceiling leaving their branches to one's imagination.

 Man, who was nomadic at the time, is not present in the forest. Porcupines are.
 with a few steps in the dark, one is asked to leap more than three centuries to 1608, the year Capt. John Smith sailed up the Potomac on a voyage of exploration.
 The hemlocks have been replaced by sycamore, corn-growing Piscataway Indians have joined the animals in the forest along the banks of the river and the climate has warmed to approximately what it is today.

 The rubber sycamores, which are remarkably realistic looking, stand in front of a floor-to-ceiling forest backdrop painted with magic-realist precision by Bob Hynes.
 The next step in time spans only 168 years, taking the viewer to 1776 and a view of the Potomac that includes the part of Georgetown, which is in the process of switching from tobacco exporting to grain exporting.

 The last few steps bridge the Bicentennial gap, taking the time traveler into 1976. Here 12 cameras flash a montage of modern life on the wall while a sound track tells visitors that "our independence from the natural world is essentially an illusion."
 Nearby a Lufkin Mark II oil pump symbolizes our energy-dependent and energy-short modern society. Visitors are asked what they think would best serve as a symbol of modern life.

 Throughout the exhibition there are various kinds of reminders that life is cyclical, that resources are used and reused, that man makes change, but that other important changes in the natural world take place exclusive of man.
 In general the exhibits are simple, straightforward and not preachy. But above the last item a yellow light flashes and the chart below warns that the earth cannot support man's current needs for food, clothing and shelter, yet we continue to multiply.

 The exhibition, which took a year to prepare, cost about $600,000, including the installation of two escalators.
 It was set up under the direction of Dr. George Zug, curator of mammals and amphibians at the museum.

Deputy Mickey Clark looks over recovered items.

Stolen loot recovered

Tires, wheels, assorted tools, cutting torches, regulators and saddles valued at $2,500, were recovered by the Midland County Sheriff's Office, which resulted in the arrest of a Midlander and a San Antonio man, Mickey Clark, chief of the criminal division said.

Jerry Don Collier, 22, who was free on a 10-year probated sentence in Midland's 142nd District Court in connection with an armed robbery charge three years ago, was arrested by Dan Saunders, Martin County Sheriff, last week and transferred to Midland County to await burglary charges here, which have now been filed.

Allen Blaine Martin, 19, of San Antonio, was charged with burglary. Justice of the Peace Robert H. Pine set his bond at $5,000.

Clark and Texas Ranger Charlie Hodges went to San Antonio earlier this week and recovered three tires, two wheels, assorted tools — "a trailer full of recovered items," Clark said.

The arrest of Collier and Martin should clear "five burglaries and four thefts in Midland County," Clark said.

Prof. Arthur Blocher of Amboy, a retired college teacher who sometimes acts as a volunteer guide for collectors visiting the north central area of the state, explains the glamour of the trilobite through its extreme age. It's the oldest animal that looks like an animal to the layman.

Trilobites first began crawling across the shallow seafloors back in the Cambrian period, which began about 600 million years ago.

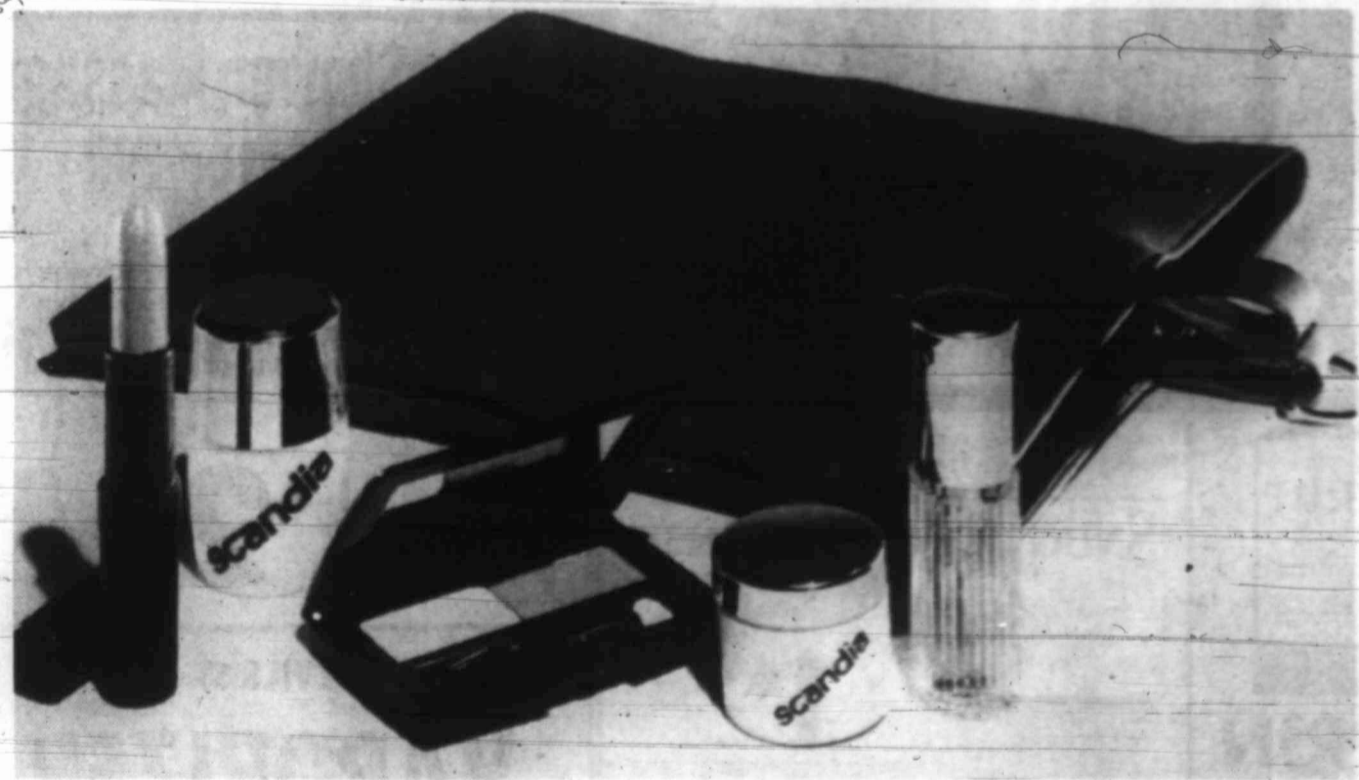

It was to infect others, but many does complain about the behavior of some of the recent fossil hunters. He says they clutter up likely sites and enrage local farmers by collecting without permission and leaving gates open.

There are other complaints, as well — from quarrymen, mining companies and even the state government.

Salvation Army ready for Yule

Volunteers of the Salvation Army of Midland currently are working on a number of activities in preparation for the army's annual Christmas program of sharing with persons and families in need.

Although the army provides year-round assistance and counseling, its major community volunteer involvement occurs in December.

Programs already under way include Dress-A-Live-Doll, to provide clothing and shoes for needy children; the food basket program, to bring groceries to families at Christmas; the new toys program, to provide toys at Christmas for children who otherwise would not receive them; Toys for Tots, in cooperation with the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve and Midland Fire Department, and doll dressing to provide baby dolls for little girls.

Throughout the year, Salvation Army family service director, Mrs. Bob Thomson, counsels with needy families to work out budgeting and child care difficulties, so that low income families, through proper planning, can best use their resources.

Mrs. Joe B. Warren is chairman of the Dress-A-Live-Doll program, which strives to provide a complete school-outfit for specific children. Donors are asked to contact Mrs. Warren at 682-5565 for details of the program. A size chart will be provided, but there will be no personal contact between donor and recipient. The deadline for registering for the program is Dec. 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Muire are in charge of the distribution of food baskets and toys this year. Last year more than 750 families received food baskets and toys. "These baskets and toys are given to needy families as an expression of Christian love and concern, and in honor of Jesus Christ's birthday," said Capt. Robert Vincent, Salvation Army commander.

Mrs. Howard Parrish has organized several church representatives in the doll dressing activity which has become an annual event. One of the volunteers working on the project not pictured today is Lola Rust. The completed dolls will be on display during December at Texas Electric Service Co., Commercial Bank & Trust Co., The Midland National Bank, Midland Savings Association, Baile Griffith Firestone in Dellwood Plaza and at 2300 W. Michigan St.

Mrs. Richard B. Saxe is chairman of a committee to encourage citizens to purchase new toys to be given at Christmas to supplement the traditional Toys for Tots program.

Fred Poe is in charge of the annual Christmas kettie fund drive, in which local service organizations join Salvation Army volunteers in seeking financial contributions to the army.

The Salvation Army is a United Way agency and provides food, clothing, lodging and counseling for those in need. It also offers religious programs for young persons and adults, plus recreational and fellowship opportunities for the community.

DRESS A LIVE DOLL is a Christmas project of the Midland Salvation Army. Mrs. Joe B. Warren, chairman, is shown with Sharon Vincent, acting as a recipient.

FAMILY SERVICES is a member of the advisory board of the department of the Salvation Army. Mrs. W. E. "Pete" Thomson, family service director, Snelson, left, vice president and TOYS play an important part in the army's Christmas program. Forrest Muire, right, is chairman of food baskets and toys distribution. Also shown are Mrs. A. J. Cain, volunteer, and Capt. Robert Vincent.

FOOD BASKETS are distributed by the Salvation volunteer, discusses the project With Mrs. Robert Army at Christmas. Mrs. Joe Womack seated, Vincent, wife of Captain Vincent, army commander.

AT WIT'S END Paper sentence

By ERMA BOMBECK

A young student wrote me this week, "Thank you very much for your biography which I was going to use for a term paper on persons I most admire. However, it arrived too late, so I did one on Fidel Castro."

There isn't a parent reading this column who will not understand that letter.

A "paper" at our house isn't just an assignment from a teacher, it's a "sentence" for the entire family.

Amino acids affect value of protein

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY Registered Dietitian Copley News Service

Protein, one of the three basic components of food, perhaps needs some explaining in order to help formulate a good nutritious diet. The ultimate value of protein is determined by its amino acid composition. It is actually the amino acids that are the essential nutrients and not the protein itself. Many foods that are called "protein" are not "complete" because they do not contain the essential amino acids. Gelatin is one of these.

Amino acids are classified into two groups:

1. The essential or indispensable. Briefly, an essential amino acid is one that cannot be synthesized by the human body at a rate sufficient to allow for maintenance, repair of tissue and growth. If the diet is deficient in "high quality" protein (those containing all of the essential amino acids) growth and new tissue cannot be formed and healing cannot take place.

Cells cannot synthesize new protein unless eight essential amino acids are provided by the diet.

All animal proteins—meat, fish, fowl and eggs—are complete protein of high biological value. Gelatin is incomplete because it lacks both tryptophan and lysine.

All vegetable proteins are incomplete except nuts.

It is vitally necessary for people on a "vegetarian" diet to insure an adequate protein intake since they are deficient in essential amino acids. It is possible to simulate complete protein in a vegetarian diet by simultaneously taking two vegetable proteins that complement each other. Those missing in one are supplied by the other.

For example, combining wheat, which lacks the essential amino acid "lysine," with corn, which lacks "tryptophan." The mixture would then provide all essential amino acids.

Another example of supplementation is the use of milk combined with a wheat cereal to enhance the biological value of the wheat protein.

People who are on a vegetarian diet should be very careful not to deny themselves the essential amino acids.

Equally important as the consumption of essential amino acids is the balance of them in a diet. Deviation or distortion of this balance results in a less-efficient growth or use of the protein. This is the hazard of using a single amino acid as a supplement to a low-protein diet.

Taking an excessive amount in the diet, however, can be just as damaging as taking too little. The balance is as important as the variety. Avoid bottled "protein additives" and get them normally and naturally in a good diet.

The drama usually unfolds on a Sunday evening when, right in the middle of "Kojak," our son will ask out of left field, "Dad, who invented peanuts?"

"Planters. And turn the TV set up if you're going to carry on a conversation."

"What influence would you say peanuts had on the western world?" he pursues.

The entire family gives him their attention. "Why do you want to know?"

"I am doing a paper on the physical and psychological significance of peanuts on western civilization."

"What have you got so far?"

"Planters. Source of Ref: Dad, 1975."

"Get those reference books off the shelf," says his father, swinging into action. "Let's see now, peanuts . . . see Goober."

"I remember him from 'Mayberry, RFD,'" said our daughter.

"That has nothing to do with peanuts."

"Maybe Charlie Schulz . . ."

"Aha! Carver. Did he discover peanuts or was it soy beans?"

"Call the Bruners. They have a dictionary."

"Did you taste that meat loaf where Pat put in soy beans? It was delicious."

"Mom! Forget the meat loaf. My future is at stake. I have to trace the entire history of peanuts from Biblical times right up to present day. We're talking about 80 pages with a bibliography and table of contents!"

"When is it due?"

"Tomorrow morning."

"Hours later, as we're all poring over every scrap of reference in the house on peanuts, he announces,

"I've changed my mind. I'm doing a paper on how John Wayne changed the face of the West."

DEAR ABBY

Nightgown expose

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "Bud") and I have been married for three years and were thinking about starting a family until this came up. (I'm 26 and Bud is 28).

Five months ago, my sister, who just got divorced, moved in with us until she could get herself together. She's 29 and the "beauty" of the family, but she's always after somebody's man.

Bud never paid her any attention in front of me, so I wasn't worried. Then this terrible thing happened. Sis called me at work and told me Bud tried to rape her! I was so stunned I nearly fainted.

I got home as soon as possible, and all Bud could say was, "I thought that's what she wanted the way she always paraded around in a see-through nightgown." Sis said she didn't even own one, but I knew she was lying because I'd seen it when I did the laundry.

Sis said this was the second time he tried it, but she didn't tell me because she didn't want to make trouble.

Abby, explain the difference between "rape" and "molest." Sis told the family it was "rape," but Bud didn't tear her clothes off or even touch her. All he did was proposition her. Also, wasn't it partly her fault for enticing him? I still love my husband, but I don't trust him.

Whose fault was all this? Shouldn't my sis move? Answer soon.

works with give him. He's been reading them for many years.

I have always claimed that this excessive arousal would make him impotent. He never believed me.

Now at age 60, he no longer gets aroused from these dirty pictures—or even from me! He has gone completely impotent.

Please tell me, Abby, can a man become impotent from looking at too many dirty pictures over the years?

If he can, please write a whole column on it so men won't be so dumb. READER

DEAR READER: It won't require a whole column to advise you that a man cannot become impotent from looking at too many "dirty" pictures. He may become bored with them, but impotent—no way!

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Thinking about Thanksgiving? If you are planning a holiday dinner, why not make it a true time of giving thanks and share it with someone who might otherwise be forgotten?

Is there an elderly person down the block who lives alone? Why not call the nursing home nearest you and ask them to select a resident who would enjoy Thanksgiving with a family. Then provide transportation. I promise you, your own

Just dim the lights

Copley News Service
My mother-in-law says she can't talk to me this weekend because the state inspector's coming in 10 days and her house won't pass unless she cleans the attic.

"But," I protested, "the inspector is coming to check your club and make sure you're all trivailing in the proper manner."

"Right," said my mother-in-law. "But she's spending the night with me and the house is a mess."

Which is true, of course. My mother-in-law is your typical senior citizen, living alone in the family homestead and wearing and tearing the house to a tizz. My home, on the other hand, shows what the average whap-and-whistle homemaker can do with a place that bivouacs the Russian army every weekend.

Anyway, according to my mother-in-law, her guest room is a disgrace. So she's taken the plastic draping off the antique crocheted bedspread and hand washed it; changed the second-best sheets to best sheets because someone sat on the bed during the summer; washed the silk lampshade; and vacuumed the drapes.

But she didn't dust the ceiling. It's 12 feet high.

"I just know she'll notice," she wailed.

I told her to put lower-watt bulbs in the lamps and forget it.

Other officers for the coming year include Jeanette Van Auken, first vice president; Jim Galyean, second vice president; Frank Morris, third vice president; Miller Price, treasurer; Ruth Price, recording secretary, and Dr. Gene Spires, parliamentarian.

Dr. Spires was congratulated on his appointment as West Texas area chairman for 1976 of the American Rose Society, South Central District.
Members representing Midland in recent rose shows include Mrs. E. W. Cowden, Jim and Betty Galyean, Dr. Spires and Mrs. Van Auken in the South Central District Convention and Rose Show at Tulsa, Okla. and the same group plus Price, who won Sweepstakes for most blue ribbons in horticulture.
The annual Christmas party of the society will be held Dec. 11 in the home of Dick Saxe. It will feature a covered dish supper beginning at 6:30 p.m. Gifts to exchange this year will be inexpensive plants, seeds or bulbs.
The first half of the program, presented by Dr. Spires, was advice on winterizing roses. The second half was a slide presentation by Galyean, featuring various gardens in the northeast which he and his wife visited on their vacation.
Dr. Spires requested the members, when ordering new roses for their gardens, to consider ordering one or two extra for Lancaster Garden Center-Museum of the Southwest, which the group maintains. He will furnish a list of the roses most needed at the center.

Talk softly, carry no big stick

Copley News Service
The next time you find yourself talk-talk-talking (or yelling) "at" a small child, remember the "Law of Diminishing Returns."
Actually, it's a law of economics and means a proportionately smaller increase in productivity (here substitute "listening by children") is observed after a certain point reached in the increase of capital and labor (talk).
It has a way of making you catch yourself up. When children turn us off, or tune us out, it's usually because they have this instinct for knowing when they have to listen.
And it's not usually the one with the loudest voice who gains their attention. Take grandpa who says, "Johnny, come here" and Johnny drops everything and comes. How come?
His mother may be heard this way: "Johnny, why can't you ever hear me?..." "I mean it now, Johnny..." and "Johnny, I'm getting angry now."
Any intelligent red-blooded child can see what's wrong. In speech one, she lays the assumption that Johnny never hears her; in speech two, didn't she mean it the first time? And in speech three, why does she wait so long to fire up?
Whereas grandpa expected to be obeyed. Therefore he was.
It took me about 40 years to realize that was the source of my mother's power over small children.
Cheryl Mann named to '75 who's who

She always expected to be obeyed and was. She also was careful and sparse in her commands. One was not heckled all day long with "do this or do that."
Once an adult has decided he wants something done, there is no backing off unless he plans to lose the game. So let him be choosy about his commands.
The child is like the TV audience which refuses to listen to a show and turns the off button.
The voice is a perfect giveaway, too. Let the whiner, the self-styled martyr, the vacillating person, the angry beware. The children will read you like a book.
Have you ever been startled by having a small child ask: "What's the matter, mommy?" when you'd been going about your business in perfect equanimity, you thought (and boiling inside)?

If parents could teach this one lesson to their small children before they enter kindergarten, the role of the teacher would be smoother.
Today's classrooms appear to be in constant movement and have a noise level that must shut out half of what is going on.
One wise kindergarten teacher said: "I see my job as mainly trying to get the children to sit quietly and listen when we talk to them."
At the same time, she didn't talk constantly.

Monks treat addicts

SARABURI, Thailand (AP) — For 16 years former police undercover agent Charoon Panchan has been successfully treating narcotics addicts with the spiritual techniques of a Buddhist monk.
His treatment combines herbs, baths, meditation and a solemn vow. Says one Western narcotics officer: "It's unorthodox, sure, but you can't argue with success."
More than 27,000 addicts, mostly teen-agers and elderly opium smokers, have taken their problems to Phra Charoon's Temple of the Bamboo Cave 80 miles north of Bangkok.
Phra Charoon says it is impossible to tell how many have been cured permanently, because they do not come back. But Thai narcotics officials say the great majority free themselves from heroin, morphine and opium forever — a considerably better record than most drug treatment centers — largely because of the

Wednesday Club reports meeting

Mrs. Erie Payne presented a program on Williamsburg and its restoration at a meeting of the Woman's Wednesday Club in the Midland man's Club.

The Rev. D. A. R. Goodwin, pastor of Bruton Parish Church, was instrumental in obtaining financial assistance to restore all the famous buildings at Williamsburg, said Mrs. Payne. The principal donor, she said, was the John D. Rockefeller Foundation, which donated millions to this project.

Volunteer opportunities announced

The Volunteers in Midland office, 682-1666, announces the need for the following volunteer services.

SEAMSTRESSES: Annually, the Salvation Army conducts a special Christmas project designated as "Dress a Living Doll for Christmas." This consists of dressing a child, boy or girl, in one complete outfit: dress or shirt and slacks, shoes and socks and a coat. Volunteer seamstresses are needed now to make this worthwhile project a success. This volunteer service would be ideal for someone wanting home or evening volunteer work.

COORDINATOR FOR HOSPITAL AUXILIARY: Parkview Hospital is interested in beginning an auxiliary for patients. A volunteer coordinator is needed to initiate the program. The volunteer should be someone who is responsible, has supervisory skills and enjoys working with people.

OFFICE HELP: The Diabetes Association of the Permian Basin is in need of office help. The volunteer will be tending, answering the telephone and performing general office duties. The volunteer should be married.

Biggest enemy of ERA seems to be fear

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

It looks as if the controversial Equal Rights Amendment isn't going to be enacted any time soon...and the biggest enemy of ERA seems to be fear. Fear of the unknown, fear of change, fear of failure.

Perhaps being frightened of these things is normal; perhaps some of those who resist ERA really are happy where they are. But do they have a right to keep all the other women who either want to change or must be independent because of circumstances, from doing so?

states are passing statutes alter hundreds of statutes and judges are handing in each of the 50 states. A constitutional claims there is no need for amendment does the job "radical surgery" on the faster and better.

In saying this, uncertain. What seems frightening to both exactly what is wrong Kilpatrick and Mrs. unisex rest rooms and with relying on statutes Kilpatrick is its certainty. and Supreme Court "What does it include?" Kilpatrick claims we decisions. They too easily simple. Men and women such an amendment. Neither do we know all the things that will happen and energy necessary to the same, but equal.

Some personal privacy and individual rights are already protected by the Constitution, and since these principles don't conflict with granting equal rights for the sexes. So it is with the rights rule of the past. By insured by ERA. There tradition, he claims, will be some learning to present laws are deeply do, but it can be done.

Last of all, the article Christian ethic. Who can deny that? Also ment as undesirable. This in the past. Christians statement is far too were tossed to the lions; general to be fair. ERA heretics burned at the stake; slaves were taken by supposedly religious men. Passage of the Equal Rights Amendment would prove that the United States is still a courageous and growing nation, not afraid to open new frontiers...still not afraid of equality for all citizens.

Not only that, surgery was performed without anesthetic; and mothers and babies frequently died in childbirth. But we've progressed beyond that.

It took a massive and bloody war to free blacks from slavery, and yet today we weep for a society so barbaric as to treat humans like animals. Can we study the past and learn from it?

Proceeds from games will be used to defray expenses for materials used to make Christmas wreaths for Leisure Lodge Nursing Home, a special chapter project.

The meeting at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 3 will be held in the home of Mrs. Wil Klachn, 3620 Andres Highway. Mrs. Haines will present a program on "Christmas Traditions."

Copley News Service Designs and styles of homes, like clothing, are constantly changing. House styling is slow to evolve—but evolve it does, motivated by the needs, desires and limitations of contemporary society.

At this point in history, there is something of a great debate brewing among leading home designers. Some are plugging their future home plans directly into the current wave of nostalgia and urgent need for energy conservation. Smaller windows, lower ceilings and the use of more gingerbread on home exteriors are examples of such design elements.

Much of this type of design approach is an avoidance of the challenge to move ahead in design concepts and use the knowledge and experience being accumulated in construction technology, according to one noted architect, William Howard Wittausch, who responded to one of our recent columns.

Referring to the trend toward smaller windows, he believes a careful examination should be made in each case to determine ways in which the size and orientation of window openings affect requirements for heating, cooling and ventilating the home—rather than arbitrarily calling for reduced window sizes.

"North-oriented windows, for example, will evidence different amounts of energy transfer through the glass than south-oriented windows of the same size.

"Sun-control devices such as eaves, fin walls and louvers, which stop the sun's rays before they hit the glass, can have a significant affect on the amount of energy flowing through a window. The use of landscape materials, such as ground-covers, trees and shrubs, can reduce the effect of sunlight and modify indoor climate by as much as 10 degrees."

Lowering a home's ceiling height as a means of achieving energy conservation and saving of building materials should also be relative to climate and regional factors, the architect stressed. "Low ceilings in a warm and semitropical climate would result in poor natural ventilation, especially when combined with small windows."

In certain areas of India, he pointed out, where the temperature and humidity are high, the average ceiling height is 9.5 feet to allow the warmer air to rise above head level.

In dryer regions, a wet gunnysack stretched over a screen and placed in a window or door opening is often used very effectively as a natural air-conditioner and humidifier.

"If there is a trend for the future in building," he concluded, "I hope it is not motivated by the desire to return to the styles of the past nor by some modern, compulsive 'brutalism.' But rather by our seeking to create a more livable, workable, comfortable and serviceable environment for everyone."

Barbara Sparks, Welch Wed in Church of Christ

Mrs. A. E. Welch Jr.

Barbara Jean Sparks and Armer Eugene (Sonny) Welch Jr. Friday were married in North A and Tennessee Streets Church of Christ.

Owen Miller, minister, officiated the double ring ceremony. Lloyd Thompson of Lubbock and Mrs. Jean Atkins of Midland were the soloists. Clinton Davis directed singers in the "Wedding Chorus."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Sparks of 3612 Boyd St. and Mrs. Armer E. Welch of Lubbock, and the late Mr. Welch.

The bride was escorted down the aisle and presented in marriage by her father. She wore a white, floor-length gown of nylon dotted swiss over bridal tulle. The Empire bodice, Victorian collar and full, Bishop sleeves were accented with Venise lace. The hemline of the gown was accented with a deep ruffe trimmed in matching lace. Her chapel-length veil of white illusion was trimmed in matching lace. She wore a Juliet cap.

Mrs. Joe Connolly of Lubbock attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Cass of Austin, and Carolyn Arnett, Myrna McKandless, cousin of the bride, and Michelle Howard, niece of the bridegroom, all of Lubbock.

Best man was Clyde Reams of Lubbock. Ushers were Gary King and John Bures, both of Lubbock. Cliff Christian, Jim Stephens, Larry Stegall and Matt Howard, all of Lubbock, were groomsmen.

A reception was held in the Service Building of the church.

After a trip to New Mexico, the couple will reside in Lubbock.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Lubbock Christian College, where she was a member of Meistersingers and Kappa Phi Kappa. She is employed as a first grade teacher in the Lubbock Independent School District.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Monterey High School in Lubbock and attended South Plains College. He is a member of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Society for the Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. and the President's Medalist Club of LCC. He is owner of Welch Jewelry and Trophy Co., Lubbock.

No lunch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Laura Youngdale, a clerk, spent an eventful lunch hour, or rather lunch-less hour, recently.

First, her car was struck by a street car. She got out to check the damage and was stung painfully in the neck by a bee. While talking to the motorman, her parked car was rear-ended by a school bus. Still shaking, she drove one block, turned a corner and swerved just in time to avoid another car.

Miss Youngdale knew she'd had it. She curbed her car and walked back to work.

Start Your Figure For The Holidays

Read how Mrs. Tyson got her figure ready:

I could never put into words all the happiness I feel, and how proud I am that I chose Pat Walker's. I have always been overweight, I've tried so many diets, diet doctors, even a Spa. With the diets, I would lose a few pounds only to find I would gain them back twice as fast. At the Spa, I was upset because it seemed once they showed you around, you were left pretty much on your own which could be very harmful if one took the wrong exercise.

I read about Pat Walker's in the paper about four months before I made up my mind to call. I would never trade my time spent on the unit at Pat Walker's for anything, not only have I lost many ugly pounds and inches, it has helped my back and my nerves so much. Everyone is so nice at Pat Walker's and there are always so many smiles each time I go.

I have lost 22 lbs. and 35 inches and I'm still losing. My husband and two daughters are so proud of me and my teenager likes for me to be around her friends and go places with her. That's a real compliment.

Thanks so much to each and everyone who works at Pat Walker's. I love all of you.

Southwest recalls Spanish heritage for Bicentennial

The Washington Post

TUCSON, Ariz. — Two centuries ago, this city, a remote outpost of the Spanish empire, donated the considerable sum of 450 pesos to American rebels on behalf of the king of Spain.

Despite this link with the American Revolution, a result of Spain's enmity toward Britain, Arizona's celebration of the U.S. bicentennial has little to do with the 13 colonies' struggle for independence.

In Arizona today, and in Florida, Texas, New Mexico and California, the Spanish colonial heritage is being recalled as the nation commemorates its 200th anniversary.

A major bicentennial project here and in California is the re-creation of a 1775 expedition by Spanish officer Juan de Anza which established an overland route from Mexico to California and led to the founding of San Francisco.

THE EXPEDITION, with colorful costumes and Spanish songs, started from Horcasitas, a northern Mexican village, on Sept. 29, exactly 200 years after the original departure.

Now winding its way through the deserts and mountains of southern Arizona, the re-enactment has sparked celebrations in towns, cities and Indian reservations along its route. It will culminate in a festival in San Francisco on June 27.

"The bicentennial," says Raul Castro, Arizona's first Mexican-American governor, "is the time for people to recognize that this country is great because everybody made a different contribution — Mexican Americans, blacks, Indians and Orientals. This has been ignored in our history books."

"What went on in Philadelphia (in 1776) is meaningless here, especially to a guy like me, who came from Mexico," Castro said. "The Anglos are celebrating the Mayflower and Plymouth Rock. The Mexican Americans are looking at the Spanish settlers. But the patriotism and love of country are the same."

Anza was captain of Tubac presidio, an adobe fortress built in 1752 to defend Arizona's first European settlers from Apache Indians.

Fearing British and Russian inroads in California, the Spanish viceroy sent Anza on a 1,500-mile expedition to reinforce Monterey and San Diego and to explore the San Francisco Bay area.

On the 200th anniversary of the Anza departure from Tubac last month, the town held a fiesta. Just as in 1775, a Franciscan priest celebrated Mass on the town square, praying for a safe journey.

The Franciscan priest was Father Kieran McCarty who, like Padre Francisco Garces who led the original expedition with Anza, is head of a nearby Papago Indian Mission.

"ANZA DID a much longer and more heroic ride than Paul Revere," McCarty said. "It laid the groundwork for modern society in the West. I'm of Irish ancestry, but out here we identify with the Spanish past no matter where our ancestors came from."

This sort of community spirit has sparked hundreds of similar bicentennial festivals, re-enactments, publications, films and restorations around the nation.

There are grandiose projects: Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona will stage a major re-enactment of the 1776 expedition of two priests, Atansio Dominguez and Silvestre Escalante, who explored the Southwest.

More common are the modest undertakings: Gallup, N.M., has raised money through bazaars and picnics for a statue called Unity depicting Spanish, Anglo and Indian figures; Fort Worth, Texas, is organizing a cultural exchange with Guatemala.

RINGING THE BELL

Environment influential

From a Black Perspective: Ashley Montagu, a world-famous anthropologist, a social biologist and the author of many books in his field, has a new one just off the press by Prentice-Hall, entitled "Culture And Human Development." In it he shows why child's cultural environment—more than heredity—influences the kind of adult he will grow up to be. Montagu, along with several other authorities mentioned in the book, attempts to show that an unfavorable cultural environment can cause retardation, dwarfism, and other severe handicaps in children, while a favorable environment can not only reverse many of these effects, but actually raise IQ scores in the young.

On page 34 of the book we quote: "Each child requires to be taught as a unique individual, with special attention to his own unique rates of growth and development. And this is what we really mean when we say that human beings are born equal: that is, they are born with equal rights to growth and development of their potentialities, with equal rights to fulfillment. "Equal rights" does not mean that every child shall be treated as if he were no different from any other child. Rather, it means that every child has a right to the recognition of his own uniqueness and individuality."

He continues: "It is not sufficiently often pointed out that every individual must learn to learn, and that a great part of this is accomplished by the kind of stimulation he receives in the home, in relationships with parents and siblings, long before the child gets to school. The child, other things being more or less equal will learn in the school in a manner very largely influenced by the kind of learning influenced by the kind of learning experiences he has undergone at home."

"Here the white child enjoys immense advantages over the black. By the time the black child arrives at school he usually has suffered massive deprivations which have resulted not only in a serious failure of development in his learning capacities, but also in his ability to assimilate what he does learn in anything like the meaningful context and manner with which the white child is able to learn. The kind of changes that must occur in the black home and culture before the black child can enter the classroom on an equal footing with, and as prepared to learn as, the white child are complex." End of quote. This book is a must for bellringers. Contact your local library or write me for my copy.

Our nomination for Police Chief of the Month is Lee Bartlett Jr. of Lamesa, who has spent ten years in law enforcement and is a native West Texan, having first seen the light of day in the Brownfield area. There is no doubt that the Lamesa police department is one of the most thoroughly intergraded ones in West Texas and Southern New Mexico. Chief Bartlett is an idealist when it comes to law enforcement and has served as an instructor in the law enforcement department of Wayland Baptist College at Plainview. This correspondent spent a part of two days talking, working and riding around with the "boys in blue" at Lamesa. Morale seems to be high and most of the partolman and squad car men I talked with are going into law enforcement as a life's career and would you bet Chief Bartlett has a lot to do with that ambition to become "a good officer and to keep my nose clean."

Cora C. Ivory is a member of the police force at Lamesa a regular cop and insofar as we have been able to learn one of the first black female one to be hired in West Texas. There are four Spanish A Americans on the staff as we write these lines and only recently there were five. She has been working five months and Chief Bartlett said her work is so far "real Good."

It all began when Chief Bartlett was teaching in the law enforcement department at Wayland College and observed that one of his students—Cora—was outstanding and had completed 240 hours of basic training and had her B.A. in law enforcement and "completely able to take care of herself on the field" and so he hired her to come to Lamesa and join his force.

When we asked the chief if he planned to make law enforcement his life's career with "ten years already under your belt," he replied: "Bob, I sometimes wonder. I like enforcement and somebody has to maintain law and order for the people but there are so many headaches I sometimes wonder." We would wager that many Lamesa residents, hopes he continues on the job there.

Policeperson Ivory believes that more young women and men should enter the law enforcement field as there is "such a great opportunity to help people". She was born at Quitaque 25 years ago. She has a modest personality, handles all of her equipment like any other officer and plans to get married one of these days, hoping that her husband likes her profession too. And we bet he will. She is in wide demand as a speaker before various groups in West Texas. We predict the crime rate to go down at Lamesa.

Until later, peace.

BRIDGE

Don't be too plain

SAN PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Ben Jack Cage, who fled Texas to avoid prison 17 years ago, has been arrested in Brazil on charges involving false bank drafts and a land-sale scheme, police reported Friday.

Cage, 58, fled to Brazil in 1958 while free on bail after being sentenced to 10 years in jail for insurance fraud in Texas.

He was one of a score of fugitive U.S. manipulators who arrived here when Brazil had no extradition treaty with the United States covering certain crimes.

"Nothing astonishes men so much as common sense and plain dealing," wrote Ralph Waldo Emerson. If Emerson plays bridge in the Elysian Fields, don't put your money on him. Put your money on another talented spirit in that game. When he flourished on earth, Niccolo Machiavelli wrote: "A prince must know how to be a great dissembler. For men are so simple that the deceiver will never lack dupes."

These remarks of mine may astonish those who remember the trouble I got into earlier this year when I protested so vigorously against players who used foot signals against my team in the world championship. I have not decided to join 'em if I can't beat 'em.

It's entirely possible to be an honorable bridge player without telling the opponents how to beat you. Deception has its place of honor at the bridge table. It isn't necessary to follow all of Machiavelli's principles, but neither is it necessary to be Little Lord Fauntleroy.

Take today's hand, played recently in a team match. As usual, the same hands were played at two different tables, each time by four different players. In this case, a team of women played against a team of men. I wouldn't dream of telling you which team won; but the result of today's hand will get the fem libbers off my back.

At the first table, two men sat North-South and two women sat East-West. South played a low diamond from dummy. East signaled with the eight of diamonds and South won with the queen.

Declarer drew two rounds of trumps and decided that East was sure to have the queen of spades for her takeout double since otherwise she had doubled with only 11 points in high cards and not even a singleton. Hence South led a spade to dummy's king and returned a spade to try a finesse with the jack.

"Thank you," West cooed, as she won with the unguarded queen of spades. Then she led the ten of diamonds.

South played low from dummy, hoping for a diamond continuation. South would ruff, cash the ace of spades and enter dummy with a trump to discard both clubs on good spades.

But West shrewdly shifted to the three of clubs. East won with the king, and South dropped the jack.

South's little plot didn't work. If South had no more clubs, West had led the three of clubs from 8-7-6-4-3-2. Why would West lead her fifth-best club when their partnership understanding called for a lead of the fourth-best?

So East cashed the ace of clubs, defeating the contract.

Now, it's true that South did try a little deception on the first round of clubs, but we mustn't hold that against him. He played the hand in general like Little Lord Fauntleroy, and got exactly what he deserved.

At the second table of the match, where the bidding and opening lead were exactly the same, two women sat North-South and two men were East-West.

The lady in the South seat might demur if we called her a great deceiver, but she was no Fauntleroy. After winning the first trick with the queen of diamonds, our heroine ran six rounds of trumps, discarding three low spades from dummy.

South thought she might have to take the spade finesse eventually and knew that leading out all of her trumps first might cause her to go down two instead of only one. But she wasn't vulnerable, hadn't been doubled, and was willing to risk an additional 50 points to improve her chances to make the contract.

East threw a diamond and a club without pain, but then threw the four of spades on the fifth trump and the nine of spades on the sixth trump. After all, South was busy throwing away dummy's spades, so East's spades didn't look particularly important.

Two spade discards were enough to give the show away. South led a spade to dummy's king and returned a spade to the ace, dropping West's unguarded queen. "Thank you," West growled at his partner.

It would have been wrong for the second South to peek in West's hand to see that the queen of spades was there and unguarded. It was clever of her to play the hand in such a way that East was persuaded to hand her the information of his own free will.

The first South would have won Emerson's approval for his common sense and plain dealing, but a good bridge player shouldn't be quite so plain.

South dealer Neither side vulnerable

New blitz shakes up London

LONDON (AP) — The latest wave of bombings has brought titled ladies and bowler-hatted gentlemen to their knees in the fashionable squares of London and put a premium on cozy restaurant tables in a corner, away from the windows.

"For the first time in my life, I've come to know the under side of my car," said a public relations consultant, Suzie Orde, who like many of her Kensington neighbors now gets down on her hands and knees with a flashlight searching for bombs before driving off.

She lives in Campden Hill Square, where cancer specialist Gordon Hamilton-Fairley was killed when a bomb exploded under the car of Sir Hugh Fraser, a Conservative Parliament member. The car was parked outside Fraser's house, where Caroline Kennedy was staying.

"The first thing we both see every morning when we draw the curtains is a police car making its rounds. It goes by about every 10 minutes," Miss Orde said in describing life in London's squares under the new blitz.

Since Aug. 27, eight persons have been killed and 190 wounded in a wave of car and restaurant bombings aimed at haunts of the rich, titled and conservative. Scotland Yard blames the Irish Republican Army or a splinter group of it bent on getting the British army out of Northern Ireland.

IRA bombs used to be aimed at pubs frequented by off-duty soldiers, but suddenly late in summer a terror campaign started against targets of wealth and influence: the Hilton Hotel, Lockets Restaurant near the House of Commons, Scotts Seafood House in the wall, away from the datory search of all parcels at the door. At Claridge's hotel, this is performed on an elegant regency table by a footman and at the lton by an electronic metal detector familiar to air travellers.

Bomb sniffing Labrador retrievers are frequently brought in before the guests arrive at most diplomatic receptions these days.

Despite the bombs and the economic gloom of Europe's highest inflation rate, 25.9 per cent, London restaurants and hotels were carrying on as usual.

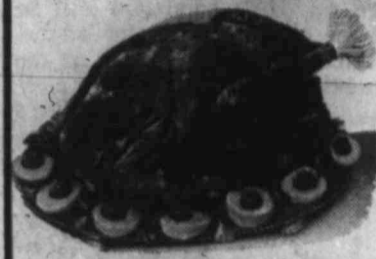

Two persons were killed in that bombing. Fashionable London still ventures out to dine after dark, but a maitre d' like Luigi at the Savoy Grill is now under seige with chicken wire over the windows and a manpenthouse resident.

"We don't do a body of frisk, it would be too vulgar," explained the doorman at the Inn on the Park, where security has been tight ever since Howard Hughes was a penthouse resident.

'Circus Day' slated Thursday

"Circus Day," always a thrill to children and the young-at-heart, will combine with Thanksgiving to make a memorable Thursday in Midland.

Capping the big holiday in the city will be the performance by the renowned International All-Star Circus at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Midland County Exhibit Building on E. Highway 80.

Just a few hours before show time, a crew of highly skilled workmen will begin the task of transforming the building into a gleaming, glittering, sequin-covered fantasyland suitable for the presentation of the all-new 1975 edition of the circus. It's a childhood dream come true, and an enjoyable trip into a land of pleasant memories for adults.

The show will feature all the action and excitement of the traditional and legendary American circus. On the bill are wild animals, jugglers, aerialists and specialty performers—and, of course, every child's favorite, a Clown. Backing the performers will be the fine circus band which keeps things moving swiftly and brightly along!

The upcoming Midland performance is sponsored by the Elks Lodge No. 1826. Admission will be $1.50 for children, $2.50 for adults, with tickets to be available at the doors before show time.

'Incredible Machine' to be rebroadcast

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Incredible Machine," a critically cheered National Geographic Society special about the human body, will be rebroadcast on public TV in March, a society spokesman says.

This time, it'll take pains to point out that between 4 and 5 per cent of the show's footage is of the inner workings of animals, not humans, says Dennis B. Kane, head of the society's TV division.

There was no mention of the animal footage in the show when it first aired on Oct. 28 via the Public Broadcasting Service.

'Harry' cancelled

A Midland performance of a new stage show, "Give 'Em Hell, Harry!", which was scheduled for this coming Saturday, has been cancelled.

In fact, the whole Texas segment of the show's current national tour, has been called off.

Dacus-Shurr Productions of Fort Worth, which was sponsoring the Texas portion of the coast-to-coast tour, said Saturday that ticket sales for announced performances in Dallas, Arlington, Fort Worth, Austin, Wichita Falls, Lubbock and Amarillo, in addition to Midland, had been "disappointingly small," leading to the cancellation of the performance series.

Tickets for the Midland performance, which have been on sale at the Record Center here, may be returned for a refund, it was announced.

Former Midlander opens art show here

Artist Herb McKinley, a former Midlander, has opened a new show at Gallery I here.

McKinley, whose works are in many collections in Midland and surrounding sectors of the Permian Basin, now makes his home in the Dallas suburb of Plano. He lived in Midland for many years and was an employe of an oil company here before moving to Dallas about five years ago. He has had several exhibitions of his work in Midland and Odessa in the past.

The Gallery I show, which opened Friday, will continue through Wednesday. Included in the exhibition are many of McKinley's distinctive Texas landscapes as well as several of his painstaking and realistic wild life and nature studies.

Gallery I, located in the Gulf Building downtown, is open to the public between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays, and at other times by appointment.

New picture book salutes Bicentennial

By TOM DONNELLY
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Large-format, lavishly illustrated history books have been a staple of American publishing for a good many years now, and I'll admit I'm something of a push-over for this form of conspicuous display. But there are picture books and picture books.

"We Americans," a new one from the National Geographic Society, really stands out from the crowd. It ranges widely but it's not one of those scattershot things; it has solidity and impact. The selection of pictures is superb, and the text by various historians and journalists (Daniel J. Boorstin, Frank Freidel, William V. Shannon) is inclined to be lively and to the point. All in all, a splendid salute to the Bicentennial.

In the opening chapter, Picturing Our Past, Gilbert W. Grosvenor observes that the United States is "the world's most photographed country; fully two-thirds of our national adventure has been chronicled on film and tucked away in archives across the country"; "We Americans" contains 659 illustrations, 439 of them photographs. The book doesn't focus on famous names but presents the Revolutionary War, the Westward Expansion, the Civil War, the Roaring 20s, etc., principally through the eyes of the plain type of citizen who inspired Thomas Carlyle to remark that "History is the essence of innumerable biographies."

LTC salutes Bicentennial

LUBBOCK — Lubbock Theatre Centre makes a bow both to the American Bicentennial and to the current national yearning for "a place in the country" with its new production.

The production is the venerable Kaufman and Hart comedy, "George Washington Slept Here." It opened at the LTC Playhouse Friday and will continue through Tuesday, with curtains at 8:15 nightly except today's presentation which will be a 2:30 matinee.

"George Washington Slept Here" is the hilarious tale of a family fleeing the pressures of city life by acquiring a home in the country. But the derelict house they acquire has a mind of its own, it seems, and it takes its toll on the hapless owners as they seek to refurbish the historic-welling.

The comedy is guest-directed by Rick Houston.

Season finale to open Friday

Midland Community holdovers past the Theatre will close out its announced final dates—the 1975 season with an unusual case with the rollicking comedy, "6 Rms Riv Vu," now being produced each year. The Theatre Centre box office opened Thursday to Centre.

The play with its tickets for all per- unusal title (real estate forms will go on sale advertising "shorthand" to the general public for an available six-room Monday morning apartment with a view of Telephone the theater, the river) should be a 682-2544, for reservations.

Backing the pivotal pair in the MCT production are cast members Rose Ann Coughlin and Bob Hammond as the present mates of the errant couple, Mary Lou Cassidy as the nosy neighbor across the hall, and Julie Gatts and Joe Sheffield as another couple interested in leasing the apartment. Mike McLaren will be seen as the is being staged and directed by MCT director Art Cole. Bill Salt is stage-managing.

"6 Rms Riv Vu," as the final show of 1975, is the last production for which MCT '75 season membership cards will be valid. However, new 1976 season membership cards will be honored for performances of the comedy.

Big Bird teaches presidents, kids

By TOM SHALES
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Big Bird runs for President on a platform of "birdseed for everybody" and kisses for all babies. But when the portly yellow fowl wins the election, and learns that people expect him to solve their problems and not just go rollerskating, he is visibly shaken.

"You mean," he says, "I can't do anything I want to, even if I'm on top?"

This lesson for Presidents as well as children is included in the second episode of the seventh year of "Sesame Street," the public TV series which has become an institution, though not a stuffy one, for an estimated million children each week. The show's new season begins Dec. 1.

The ascent of Bird is one of several features on Bicentennial themes added to this year's show. There will be other new elements. For the first time, the cast will leave mythical Sesame Street and hit the road. Five new shows were taped in Wednesdays, will be rural New Mexico and special features geared to will be shown the week of "learning-disabled" children. In addition, "outreach" learning programs built around the pickup truck with Oscar broadcasts are being started in two Texas garbages can, while inmates will tutor a long, long, long, children of other inmates. The spokesman was also asked at what age people stop watching an "arroyo" is and how "Sesame Street," he said, "Oh, 75, I think."

Ballerina to perform in 'Christmas Gala'

Olga Ferri, a prima ballerina with the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires, will be the guest of Midland's Permian Civic Ballet when she comes here next week to perform as guest artist in the traditional "Christmas Gala."

The concert will be on Wednesday evening, holiday Dec. 3, in Lee High School auditorium. Miss Ferri will dance the Sugar Plum Fairy in Act II of the beloved Christmas ballet, "The Nutcracker," in the performance. She will be partnered by Bill Martin-Viscount, Permian Civic's artistic advisor and part-time artist-in-residence, as the Cavalier.

Miss Ferri, acclaimed for her artistry throughout South and Central America, has danced with many leading ballet companies of Europe as well, including those in Berlin, Paris and London. Recently she was partnered by famed dancer Rudolf Nureyev in "Nutcracker," "Les Sylphides," "Apollon Musegete" and the "Sleeping Beauty" pas de deux in performances in Buenos Aires.

Permian Civic's "Christmas Gala," in addition to presenting second act of "The Nutcracker," also will offer performance of "Les Patineurs" (The Skaters) which was favorably received by the audience at last year's Christmas concert.

Permian Civic Ballet Association now is in the midst of its annual season membership campaign. Subscriptions for the season, which also will include the annual "Spring Gala" next April, are priced at $7.50 for adults, $2.50 for students. Mem-

Dolph Briscoe: Texas' most reclusive governor?

By LEE JONES
 AUSTIN (AP) — When the state's propert executive airplane roars to the southwest from Austin's Municipal Airport, chances are it is Uvaldebound.
 Long weekends—sometimes stretching into the work week—at his ranch are part of a style which makes Dolph Briscoe one of Texas' most reclusive governors.
 Persons in and out of government claim the $65,000-a-year chief executive is inaccessible.
 Some reporters were offended when he joked last month about having gone 61 days without a news conference. Informal question-and-answer sessions with reporters were blocked when he began holding routine ceremonies unannounced and in his private office.
 Briscoe's staff refuses to issue travel itineraries and advance texts, so his speeches may be poorly covered. Only two reporters who specifically asked his whereabouts covered an appearance at a water conference here last month.
 Asked about his contacts with Briscoe, a senator replied, "You mean he's ever in?" He laughingly called it "government in absentia."
 Yet House Speaker Bill Clayton said that during this year's legislative session, "Whenever I needed him, I always found him."
 Flight logs of the governor's Grumman G1 state airplane are the only available documents indicating time spent in Uvalde. His own Lodestar also is seen frequently at the airport, however.

 The AP asked Briscoe's staff for the governor's daily calendar or any other records which showed how much time he spent on the job in Austin. Briscoe refused to make the calendar available and sought an attorney general's opinion on whether either the calendar or flight logs were public records.
An analysis
 Atty. Gen. John Hill said Briscoe could keep his calendar private but said he must make public the flight records of the state-owned aircraft.
 Interpretation of the logs poses a problem because they do not show departure and arrival time. The logs show Briscoe spent at least a portion of 135 days during the first 10 months of this year in Uvalde, including 64 nonholiday week days.
 Executive assistant Ken Clapp insists, however, that Briscoe usually makes the 30-minute flight to Uvalde after work on Friday evenings and returns early on Monday mornings.
 Clapp has not provided desk calendar entries to confirm this.
 Using Clapp's method, the logs indicate Briscoe spent 90 days in Uvalde during the first 10 months, including 39 working days.
 Clapp said in August that "when the legislature is in session, other than speaking engagements, he (Briscoe) is here all the time."

 But the logs show that Briscoe was in Uvalde May 2-10, a critical period in the life of his school finance bill, which ultimately was gutted by the legislature.
 Briscoe used the state plane for 32 trips of a weekend or longer to Uvalde during the first 10 months of the year. In July, the aircraft delivered him and his family to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to board a transatlantic flight to Europe. It picked up the Briscoes in Houston when they returned.
 The question also has been raised here, but never pushed, whether Briscoe, who continues to vote at Uvalde and spends much of his time there, is complying with the state constitutional requirement that a governor shall reside where sessions of the legislature are held "and at all other times at the seat of the government."
 No state attorney general has ever been asked, nor has he delivered a legal opinion on the provision, which was inserted in the original 1876 constitution.
 Briscoe's staff declined to provide information beyond the flight logs concerning his work habits.
 "There are no records kept of the governor's office attendance," the governor of Texas does not punch a time clock. He is always on duty, 24 hours a day," said press secretary Bob Hardesty.
 Questions were submitted in writing about Briscoe's accessibility, work habits and time in Uvalde.
 "I don't intend to respond to them," Clapp said after consulting the governor. He said the questions were "insulting."
 Referring to Briscoe's heavy out-of-town speaking schedule in September and October, Clapp said: "In looking at the records, you saw a man who is available to the people of this state."
 Forrest Smith, whom Briscoe replaced last month as chairman of the Texas Youth Council, said he tried for more than a year to speak with Briscoe—even by telephone—"about the problems of troubled youth in Texas."

 "But all such efforts failed. A letter written to the governor requesting a meeting of great urgency has not been answered," Smith said.
 A lobbyist for a nonbusiness organization said he had similar problems in 1974.
 "The many times I tried to get something set up, he was almost always in Uvalde," he said.
 The Amarillo Daily News & Globe-Times, which investigated the pardons and parole system, of which the governor is a part, sought Briscoe's comment for four months before finally catching him during a speaking engagement.
 Former Chief Justice Robert W.

Calvert of the State Supreme Court said he asked Briscoe in early July for an appointment to discuss the proposed new constitution, of which Calvert was a leading advocate. He said Briscoe promised such a visit, but on Oct. 1 was still saying, "I'll be in touch." They finally met on Oct. 13, the day before Briscoe announced his opposition to the document, which voters defeated three weeks later.

Former hunter tracks Bigfoot

THE DALLES, Ore. (AP) — Three bear hunters had that indescribable back-of-the-neck feeling they were being followed or watched the evening of Oct. 1 as they trudged back to their camp on Pinegrass Ridge near Yakima, Wash.
 They built a fire, and later in the evening started hearing noises.
 Tom Gerstmar, 17, aimed his flashlight across a small pond and caught the reflection of two yellow-green eyes. A few minutes later they pointed the light in the same area and saw the eyes again — this time housed in a huge, furry man-like body.
 They fired several shots to scare it off, they later told sheriff's deputies, but the creature growled and screamed at them.
 That was enough.
 They piled into their jeep and headed for civilization, leaving their tent and other equipment where it lay.
 Ninety miles to the south, in the Columbia River town of The Dalles, Peter Byrne logged another report of a sighting of the legendary Bigfoot, or Sasquatch as the Indians called it.
 Skepticism still flourishes, but more and more reports of Bigfoot sightings are dribbling in from the wilds of the Pacific Northwest. As they do, some scientists are stating for the record their belief that the vast wilderness in the region might indeed be home for a handful of subhuman holdovers from another age.

 Byrne, 50, an Irish-born former big game hunter in Nepal, has never seen a Bigfoot. But he has worked full time for more than four years — sometimes at his own expense, sometimes supported by foundation grants — to determine whether Bigfoot is real, a hoax, or dark nights playing on the imaginations and fears of people in lonely, desolate places.
 The number of reports has grown in recent years along with the rising use of the Northwest wilderness for recreation. Byrne says there have been three reported sightings this year that he considers good and several more he and others are checking into.
 The resulting rise in interest appears to have loosened the tongues of some people who had kept quiet about what they had seen in fear of being ridiculed. Byrne says there have been several reports this year from those who said they saw Bigfoot in the past, in some cases many years ago.
 More than 350 sightings of the creature have been reported since the first white explorers visited the Pacific Northwest in the early 1800s.

 In July of this year a group of six persons reported watching a grey, ape-like creature on a ridge south of The Dalles for several minutes before it ambled out of sight.
 The description matched that of seven other men who reported one closer to The Dalles in 1971.
 Other reports have come this year from British Columbia and northern California.
 Scores of other reports have come in over the decades, and they vary only slightly.
 They describe an ape-like creature between six and eight feet tall that runs upright when he knows he is being spotted. Colors vary from grey to reddish brown to dark brown or black.
 Plaster casts of footprints and several sections of film shot in northern California in 1967 provide most of the physical evidence known to date. The film, 28 feet of 16mm color, was shot by the late Roger Patterson in Del Norte County, Calif. It was taken near the dry bed of a stream with the unfortunate name of Bluff Creek.

Highway plans okayed

ODESSA — The committee steering committee for the Midland-Odessa also approved a Level 2 efforts. The TIP also includes a one-year program, the Annual Element of Projects, according to federal regulations which became effective Oct. 17.

Bill Jones, State Highway Department public affairs officer, explained that some $6 million has been allocated and committed this year for seven separate projects in the Midland and Odessa areas. Midland projects include reconstruction from IH 20 to U.S. 80 on Midkiff Road and a traffic signalization system on SH 158 and other streets.

Odessa projects involve reconstruction from IH 20 to Pearl Street on U.S. 385, construction from Grandview Avenue to Industrial Avenue on IH 20 and N. Frontage Road, construction of interchanges at FM 2020 and 16th Street on SH 302 (Loop 338) and construction of pedestrian overpasses at Alpine Street on Spur 492.

A rural project involves reconstruction from the Upton County line to FM 1379 on County Road 2.

Jones said that two of the projects — the traffic signalization system in Midland and reconstruction on U.S. 385 in Odessa — had to be under contract by June 1976, or the funds would not be available. He said the remaining five projects were in various stages of planned development and advanced planning.

The Transportation Improvement Program and annual element of projects will now go to the Metropolitan Planning Organization, which is the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, for its approval. The list of projects will be reviewed yearly by the steering

Few attend JFK tribute

DALLAS (AP) — About 15 persons, most of them curious pedestrians headed elsewhere, braved chilly winds and painful memories Friday to attend memorial services for former President John F. Kennedy.

The simple, brief ceremony at the Kennedy Memorial Plaza in downtown Dallas was held one day before the 12th anniversary Kennedy's assassination only a few blocks from where the service was held. Mayor Wes Wise placed a wreath of red, white and blue carnations inside the plaza.

It's Moon over Miami for Oklahoma

Page 1C's Moon60 NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma's season-long plague of fumbles finally rubbed off on someone else, and the Sooners rubbed it in with a shocking 35-10 victory over second-ranked Nebraska Saturday.

Oklahoma, ranked No. 7, lost three fumbles, but Nebraska wound up with a terminal case of turnovers. The previously-unbeaten Cornhuskers lost four of five fumbles and had two passes intercepted and Oklahoma turned the miscues into five touchdowns.

"Nebraska is a great team, but today they made some of the mistakes and turnovers that have hurt us in the past," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, soaking wet after his players tossed him in the showers.

"WE WERE lucky. If Nebraska hadn't made some of those mistakes, we would have had a hard time winning. We made a lot of mistakes in the first half, but we were a good enough football team to come back and capitalize on Nebraska's mistakes in the second half."

While the victory earned Oklahoma a trip to the Orange Bowl and a share of the Big Eight championship, Nebraska may stay home over the holidays, a bitter comedown for a team that was shooting for the national championship until Saturday.

"We knew that turnovers would be the most important part of the ball game," said Coach Tom Osborne. "But that's football. Sometimes it bounces your way, sometimes it doesn't. As long as we were hanging on to the ball, I thought we were playing pretty well. It was the same thing that happened to Oklahoma against Kansas."

Nebraska threatened three times in the first quarter, but the Cornhuskers could manage only a lone field goal from opportunities that could have produced three touchdowns.

The victory earned Oklahoma a trip to the Orange Bowl and a share of the Big Eight championship. Nebraska players had earlier voted to refuse any bowl bids if they lost to Oklahoma, but Coach Tom Osborne said Saturday they will probably take another vote Sunday on whether or not they will accept a Fiesta Bowl bid against the winner of the Arizona-Arizona State game.

The Sooners came from behind twice, on Steve Davis' fourth down, one-yard run in the second period and Horace Ivory's second chance, fiveyard dash in the third quarter. It came two plays after a touchdown run by Elvis Peacock was nullified by a penalty.

Peacock added an insurance touchdown, scoring from three yards out with 10 minutes left. The Sooners then added insult to injury, scoring twice in the final three minutes on runs of eight yards by Davis and four yards by freshman Billy Sims.

The final gun erased the last shred of Oklahoma's NCAA probation. And college football's defending national champions will meet Michigan in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night, their first bowl appearance in three years. Fourth-ranked Michigan lost to No. 1 Ohio State 21-14 Saturday and the Buckeyes are headed for the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska, which finished in the regular season with a 10-1 record, like Oklahoma, had earlier turned down a bid from the Fiesta Bowl. It was Nebraska's first setback in 12 games, since a 28-14 loss to Oklahoma in the 1974 regular season finale. Nebraska's defeat left Ohio State, third-ranked Texas A&M and eighth-ranked Arizona State as the nation's only unbeaten-untied teams.

Jubilant Oklahoma fans hurled oranges onto the field as the game ended to celebrate the team's bowl invitation.

Although Nebraska marched 67 yards to the Oklahoma 13 following the opening kickoff and recovered fumbles at the Sooners' 38 and 32 yard lines before the first period was over, the Cornhuskers managed only a 3-0 lead on Mike Coyle's 24-yard field goal.

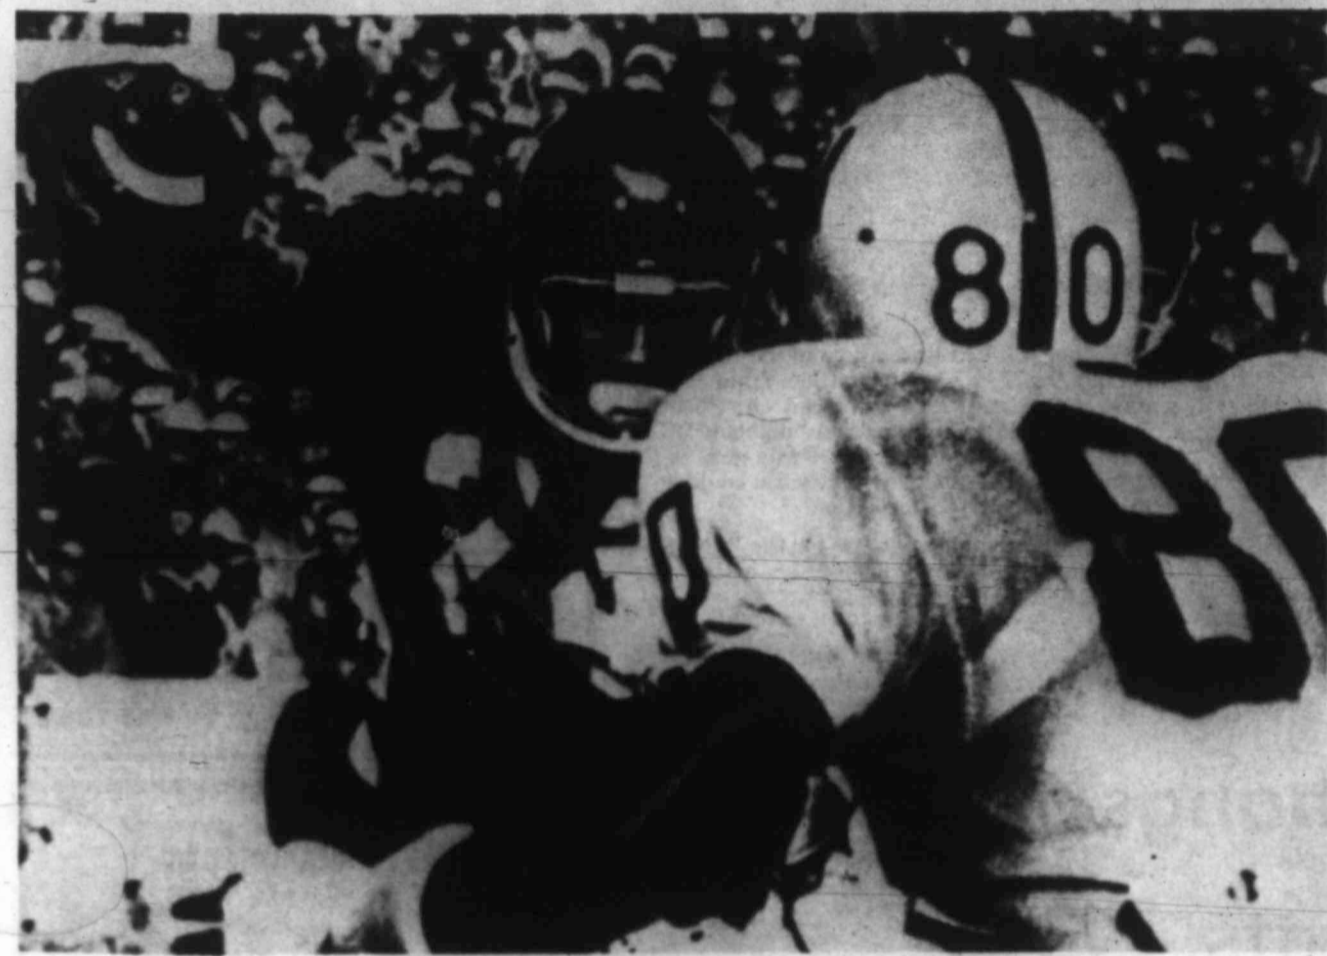

Nebraska later forged ahead 10-7 on Monte Anthony's oneyard run after another Oklahoma fumble, but that was the Cornhuskers' last lead and the Sooners were soon in control.

Razorbacks bull past Tech, 31-14

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas quarterback Scott Bull accounted for two touchdowns during a 96-second span and the 19th ranked Razorbacks went on to a 31-14 Southwest Conference football victory over Texas Tech here Saturday.

With Arkansas leading 10-0, Bull hooked up with tight end Marvin Daily on a 44-yard TD pass and then came back 1:36 late to score on a one-yard sneak. That made it 24-0 with 1:18 left in the first half.

Bull also scored Arkansas' first and last touchdowns on a one-yard run.

The victory kept the Razorbacks in the SWC title chase and ended the Raiders' winning streak at four. Tech, in its first year under Steve Sloan, finished at 6-5.

Arkansas, already assured of a bowl bid, is 8-2 for the season and 5-1 in the conference. Arkansas would go to the Cotton Bowl if Texas A&M beats Texas Nov. 28 and Arkansas beats A&M Dec. 6.

If not, the Razorbacks will play Southern California on Dec. 22 in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis.

Tech mistakes kept the Raiders in trouble. Arkansas moved 33 yards for its first touchdown after an 11-yard punt and the Razorbacks went 62 yards for their second touchdown, aided by a dead ball foul.

With third and nine at the Tech 44, Bull backed up and looked for Daily down the middle. Free safety Curtis Jordan went for the ball and missed. Daily reached high, gathered in the ball at the 20 and galloped into the end zone untouched.

Brian Nelson was crunched on the ensuing kickoff and William Hampton recovered the fumble at the Tech 14. Bull scored four plays later.

The score could have been worse, but Arkansas fumbled at the Tech six in the second quarter and failed on fourth down situations at the Tech one and 21 in the third period.

Tech finally got on the scoreboard with 9:28 left in the fourth period when quarterback Rodney Allison

Pack volleyballers gain state tourney

ABILENE—The Midland High volleyball team vaulted into the state AAAA tournament here at McMurry College Saturday by winning the regional championship with victories over Amarillo and Arlington.

The Pack got a little revenge against Amarillo in the regional semifinals. Amarillo snapped a 31-game winning streak by Midland High last year in the regionals.

The Bulldogs got off to a slow start when they lost the first game 13-15 to Amarillo, but came back to take the match with a booming 15-2 and a narrow 16-14 win. Amarillo ends the season with a 25-3 record.

Midland High had an even easier time in the regional finals as they

Everything comes up Roses for Ohio State

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Top-ranked Ohio State, behind with less than four minutes remaining, rebounded on Cornelius Greene's passing and Ray Griffin's interception that set up touchdowns by fullback Pete Johnson to send the Buckeyes to a 21-14 victory over fourth-ranked Michigan for the Big Ten title.

Johnson scored three touchdowns—two of them in a 59-second span of the final four minutes Saturday—to secure the Buckeyes' fourth straight Rose Bowl appearance.

The victory marks the first time in four years either team has won the conference title outright. The two arch-rivals had tied the last three years, although the Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl each time.

The defeat means Michigan now heads to the Orange Bowl. Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, set up Johnson's winning three-yard touchdown run by intercepting a Rick Leach pass and returning it 30 yards to the Michigan three-yard line with 2:23 left. Johnson, who raised his Big Ten-record season touchdown total to 25, scored on the next play.

Less than a minute before that, the powerful Johnson had scored on a one-yard plunge to climax an 80-yard, 11-play drive—only the Buckeyes' second substantial march of the game which saw Michigan go ahead 14-7 with six minutes remaining.

Archie Griffin managed only 46 yards rushing for Ohio State, snapping at 31 his record string of consecutive regular-season games of rushing for more than 100 yards.

The Buckeyes stopped Michigan on the game's first series and then drove 63 yards in 15 plays on their first possession to score on a seven-yard Cornelius Greene-to-Johnson pass. It was only Johnson's second catch of the year and this was to be Ohio State's last major offensive thrust until the final minutes of the game.

Turnovers marred the rest of the first half, but Michigan did drive 80 yards in 11 plays to score on an 11-yard pass from tailback Gordon Bell to wingback Jim Smith 24 seconds before intermission.

On the ensuing kickoff, with a record, regular-season college crowd of 105,543 howling, the Wolverines recovered Archie Griffin's fumble and were poised to take the lead. But Bob Wood missed on a 37-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the half.

At one point, there were six turnovers in eight series in the first half, three by each side.

The Wolverines' punter, John Anderson, whose short kicks had been hurting Michigan all afternoon, managed a 33-yarder early in the fourth period that put the Buckeyes on their own six. It was the first time Ohio State was deep in its own territory.

The Buckeyes were forced to punt and Michigan then drove 43 yards in nine plays to get the one-yard TD plunge by freshman Leach midway through the period that gave the Wolverines a 14-7 lead.

Behind for the first time all day, Ohio State suddenly snapped out of its offensive lethargy to come back on Johnson's two late touchdowns.

In the second half, Michigan's defense stymied the Buckeyes at virtually every turn. Archie Griffin was unable to break through the Wolverines' hard-charging defense which frustrated the option-type plays Ohio State has been so renowned for with Greene and Griffin.

The Buckeyes' initial first down in the march that tied the game at 14-14 was only their second in 35 minutes in which they had the ball.

The victory raised Ohio State's record to 11-0 and 8-0 in the conference. Michigan is 8-1-2 overall and 7-1 in the Big Ten.

Frogs find water, 28-21

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lee Cook winged a couple of touchdown passes and scored once himself Saturday and Texas Christian plundered Rice 28-21 and ended major college football's longest current losing streak at 20.

A meager audience of 12,875, perhaps more surprised than delighted, watched the Horned Frogs end two years of frustration that dated back to 1974's season-opening triumph over Texas-Arlington.

Coach Jim Shofner's Horned Frogs had dropped 10 straight in 1975 before concluding this season on Saturday's high note.

Cook sneaked across from the one to tie the score at 7-7 in the second quarter and then hurled an 11-yard touchdown pass to Mike Renfro to shove the Frogs into a 14-7halftime lead.

TCU blunted an Owl scoring threat shortly before the half, then turned Allen Hooker's third period pass interception into a 21-7 cushion with Cook tossing three yards to Bobby Cowan for the TD.

Fullback Gerry Modzelewski bolted across from the one to climax a 51-yard TCU scoring drive late in the

No offense Permian wins

BY BOB DILLON

WICHITA FALLS — Who says Permian has no offense?

The Panthers exploded for 26 points in the first half against fumbling Wichita Falls Rider and went on to register an impressive, 33-13, bidistrict AAAA victory over the Raiders Saturday afternoon.

The victory, before more than 10,000 fans, moves the Panthers into the regional playoff this week against Arlington Houston at a site to be determined.

Rider fans got a glimpse of what was going to happen to their Raiders when Steve Dawson was belted hard on the opening kickoff with Permian's Don Norton recovering on the Rider 35.

The Raiders held Permian on its first possession, but the Panthers also held and following a 23-yard punt return by Steve Towders, Mojo got on the scoreboard on a 37-yard field goal by Russell Wheatley with 6:02 left in the first period.

Gregg Gray pounced on another Raider fumble moments later at the Rider 19 and after three running plays, Wheatley boomed through his longest field goal of the year, a 38yarder for a 6-0 lead with 4:02 left.

Once again Rider fumbled on the kickoff with Permian's Bucky Driggers recovering at the Rider 16. On the next play, junior quarterback Curtis Pittman hit Gray with a TD pass to make it 12-0 and Wheatley made it 13 with 3:33 still in the first period.

Permian scored again on its next possession with Pittman hitting Ricky Ross with a 14-yard pass to set up a score. Pittman dialed Ross' number again good for 37 yards and the TD. Wheatley's PAT made it 20-0 with 27 seconds left in the first period.

Rider moved from its 29 to the Panther 44 where Gray picked off a pass by quarterback Jeff Jackson at the PHS 37. This time, the Black Cats used a ball control attack, marching 63 yards in 13 plays. Fullback Kevin Smith dove over from the one to cap the drive, but this time Wheatley's kick was wide and it was 28-0.

Permian gobbled up another Rider fumble with Richard Witte coming up with the ball at the Raider 27, but the Red River crew with the help of a holding penalty kept Permian from scoring.

Rider kicked off to Permian to start the second half and the Panthers marched from their 36 to the Rider 36 where tailback Kerry Bullard fumbled.

touchdown pass to Kenny Harrison with 28 seconds left Saturday to stun Baylor, 34-31, in a wild Southwest Conference football game.

Trailing 23-0 at halftime, Benefield rifled four touchdown passes and scored his first collegiate touchdown in the shocking Mustang rally that chilled the Baylor crowd of 20,300 in Baylor Stadium.

Benefield whipped SMU 80 yards for the winning touchdown pass which found Harrison standing alone in the disillusioned Baylor secondary.

A last ditch Baylor field goal attempt of 54 yards by Bubba Hicks was wide to the left at the final gun.

Baylor tailback Cleveland Franklin slashed for three touchdowns on runs of three, seven and one yards and Hicks kicked a 53-yard field goal as Baylor romped at will in the first half.

Four Baylor fumbles gave SMU a chance in the second half and the suddenly revived Mustangs turned every one of them into touchdowns.

Benefield nailed Freeman Johns on a 13-yard touchdown pass, ran one yard himself for a score, and winged a 25-yard touchdown pass to Harrison in a 21-point third quarter.

Baylor stormed back on Scooter Reed's interception for Pat McNeil's one-yard touchdown run to give Baylor a 31-21 lead with less than eight minutes to play.

Rodney Gray pounced on a Baylor miscue to set up a 37-yard touchdown bomb from Benefield to halfback Wayne Morris with 6:11 to play.

Benefield punted deep into the Mustang end zone but Benefield rallied the team 80 yards against a stiff 20 miles per hour wind that made the chill factor read 37 degrees.

Cal's Muncie destroys Cards

By ERIC PREWITT AP Sports Writer
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Muncie scored California's first four touchdowns, passed for a fifth and rushed for 166 yards Saturday to lead the Bears to a 48-15 defeat of Stanford and at least a share of the Pacific-8 football championship.

The four touchdowns by Muncie, who may have been playing his last collegiate game, equaled a school record and the senior tailback established several other records in the convincing victory before 88,000 fans at Stanford Stadium.

The 13th-ranked Bears finished the regular season with a 8-3 record. Their conference mark 's 6-1.

But the UCLA Bruins will go to the Rose Bowl to face Big Ten champion Ohio State if they match California's 6-1 record by beating Southern California next Friday night. If UCLA loses, California wins the Pac-8 and goes to the Rose Bowl. There is a possibility Cal could go to the Fiesta Bowl as a consolation.

Stanford, in a three-way tie for the Pac-8 lead going into Saturday, finished 5-2 in the conference and 6-4 overall.

Muncie made touchdown runs of one and 16 yards and caught a seven-yard scoring pass from quarterback Joe Roth in the first half. In the final quarter, after Stanford scored a safety and a touchdown to pull within eight points, Muncie made a three-yard touchdown run and threw a 46-yard touchdown pass to Wes Walker.

Stanford's offense, unable to move the ball on the ground, relied almost completely on the passing of Guy Benjamin, who threw touchdown passes to Tony Hill and Jim Jenke. He was also intercepted three times.

Tennessee hangs on to nip Wildcats, 17-13

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Stanley Morgan and Randy Wallace provided the early firepower as Tennessee grabbed a 17-0 lead early in the second period, then held on for a 17-13 Southeastern Conference victory over Kentucky Saturday.

The Tennessee lead was sparked by Morgan's 80-yard sprint on an off tackle play with 2:48 left in the first period.

Wallace, a junior quarterback from Jacksonville, Fla., provided the passing that led to a 32-yard Tennessee field goal with 7:55 left in the first period and a one-yard touchdown with 14:06 to go in the second.

Kentucky fired back with an 80-yard march that ended with 2:41 left in the first half, when quarterback Derrick Ramsey rambled 37 yards for a touchdown.

In the fourth period, Ramsey hit sophomore end Dave Trosper with a short pass that turned into a 77-yard touchdown play.

However, Kentucky's try for a two-point conversion failed and the Wildcats could get no closer than the Tennessee 37 thereafter.

Morgan led Tennessee on the ground with 134 yards in 16 carries, while Wallace hit seven of his 16 passes for 113 yards. He had two interceptions, however.

Three of Wallace's passes were to wide receiver Larry Seivers for 47 yards, giving him 34 catches this year for a total of 769 yards.

Texas Tech 5-4A All-District squad SWC cage favorite

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech got eight first place points to lead the preseason selections in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's Southwest Conference basketball poll.

The Red Raiders had a total of 120 points while Texas A&M and Arkansas, with two and three first-place votes each, tied for second place with 109 points.

The selection was made by a group of Texas newspaper sports-writers.

Southern Methodist, which also received two first-place votes, was third with 93 1/2 points followed by Houston, 76 1/2; Baylor, 64; Texas, 58; Texas Christian, 29; and Rice, 16.

Ira Terrell of Southern Methodist, who spent last year on probation, was voted "Player of the Year."

Pokes host angry foe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, stinging from Dallas defensive back Cliff Harris' accusation they are cheap shot artists, headed for Dallas and today's National Football League confrontation with the Cowboys.

Eagles' coach Mike McCormack made sure that his players saw a copy of the story in which Harris said Philadelphia was the worst team in pro football when it comes to throwing cheap shots.

"I don't know," said McCormack, "but it always seems to get heated in Texas Stadium. We've cautioned our players to be careful, but we can't tell 'em to back up and take everything."

McCormack, of course, indicated, that the Cowboys should clean their own house before looking at someone else. Harris talked about late hits, spearing a guy already on the ground, hitting a runner out of bounds, twisting of arms, ankles and fingers in pile-up.

McCormack said the Eagles gave evidence of this maturity last week in beating the Giants with a field goal in the final seconds.

"We gave up the tying touchdown in the late minutes of the fourth quarter, then held the Giants defensively after failing to move the ball, then came back to drive for the winning field goal," McCormack said. "This is what we have to continue to do to win."

Dallas beat the Eagles 20-17 in their first meeting in Philadelphia — on Ted Fritsch's field goal on the last play of the game. McCormack said he was hoping for the same type of game, but with the Eagles getting those last vital points this time.

Indiana ranked No. 1

By The Associated Press The Indiana Hoosiers are the best college basketball team in the nation, according to The Associated Press' pre-season poll.

The Hoosiers, who lost only one game in 32 last season and finished third in the final poll, were put into the No. 1 position Saturday by a nationwide vote of sports writers and broadcasters.

Indiana collected 30 first-place votes and a total of 876 points in gaining the top spot over UCLA, last year's NCAA champion.

The Bruins, No. 1 after last season's victory over Kentucky in the NCAA final, were awarded only 13 ballots for first place and 782 points.

Both Indiana and UCLA were named on every ballot and one voter surprisingly placed the Bruins No. 10. Indiana received 11 votes for second, four for third and one for fourth. UCLA was accorded 22 votes for second place, as well as four each for third and fourth.

Maryland, one of the South's perennial powerhouses, finished third in the balloting with 564 points. The Terps were No. 5 in last season's final poll.

Marquette was placed fourth with 493 points, and North Carolina, Maryland's colleague in the Atlantic Coast Conference, was No. 5 with 453.

The ACC had strong representation in the 1975-76 poll, placing North Carolina State in the No. 13 position.

Kentucky received two votes for first place and collected 395 points for place sixth. Notre Dame was awarded 281 points for seventh place, Louisville finished eighth with 259, Tennessee was ninth with 207 and Cincinnati 10th with 179. Tennessee got the only other first-place vote.

Forecast: Fran won't get 14 TD passes

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two teams headed in opposite directions on the National Football League's elevator will be passing each other this week and those will be passes, not floors that Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton is counting against San Diego.

Tarkenton needs just 14 pass completions to set an NFL career record, wiping out the mark of 2,830 set by Johnny Unitas. He is also only seven TD passes shy of Unitas' career record of 290.

The 14 completions seem within reach today — he completed 25 a week ago against New Orleans. The seven TD passes...heh-heh...well, those will be the wireless Chargers on the other side of the field.

On Fran's side will be the Vikings, the NFL's only unbeaten team with nine consecutive victories, a team he has directed to 42 victories in their last 57 games and into two Super Bowls.

"He's the best quarterback around as far as we're concerned and he may be getting better," said Coach Bud Grant.

As for Tarkenton, he's excited about reaching the record book in his 15th NFL season.

"I've always thought of Unitas as the greatest quarterback who ever lived and it's a tremendous thrill to be approaching his records," the Viking passer said. The Chargers, however, won't be thrilled — just victimized.

The Pro Picker wasn't thrilled, just satisfied, with last week's 9-4. He'll try to improve the season log of 85-32 for 726 this week.

The picks: Minnesota 35, San Diego 10. Tarkenton won't throw seven TDs against the Chargers but three or four isn't out of the question. Oakland 24, Washington 21.

This should be a goodie. The Redskins are coming off last week's controversial loss to St. Louis (Did Mel Gray catch the ball, or didn't he?) and have fallen one game back of the Cardinals in the NFC East. The Raiders, meanwhile, have won four straight and are three games in front in the AFC West.

Los Angeles 27, Chicago 7. The Rams' front four is on a rampage with 25 quarterback sacks this season. That's bad news for the Bears.

Miami 23, Baltimore 14. The Colts score a lot of points which is good. But they also give up a lot which is not so good, especially against a team like Miami.

St. Louis 34, N.Y. Jets 10. Question? Will a new coach shake up the Jets? Answer: No. This team whose players fight among themselves and then fold up against the other club, needs more than a new boss to straighten things out.

Buffalo 23, New England 20. There's a great temptation to pick the underdog here but how can you pick against O.J. at home?

Denver 24, Atlanta 7. The Broncos have been stripped by injuries and no longer are the title threat they seemed to be before the season started.

Kansas City 27, Detroit 17. The Lions' 6-3 record is a hoax. They're just not that good...are they?

Cincinnati 33, Cleveland 7. Dear Pete: Would it be all right if the Browns just forfeited this one? Steve Spurrier has passed the 49ers to two straight victories since taking over at quarterback. The Saints are playing out the schedule...but haven't they been doing that for years?

Dallas 24, Philadelphia 7. The Cowboys need a victory to stay close in the NFC East and the obliging Eagles aren't likely to stand in their way. Green Bay 21, N.Y. Giants.

A matchup of two losers. Pittsburgh 24, Houston 17. This will be some show with the Oilers one game back of the Steelers and Bengals in the AFC Central race. We'll stick with the money team.

Jayhawks drub Mizzou, 42-24

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Laverne Smith broke loose on touchdown runs of 67 and 56 yards in a three-minute of the third quarter Saturday to bring upstart Kansas from behind to a 42-24 victory over 18th-ranked Missouri and into the Sun Bowl.

Smith put on his biggest football show ever Saturday and it was sweet music for the Jayhawks, predicted by many at the season's start to be incapable of winning a single game. Kansas, the team which stunned Oklahoma 23-3 two weeks ago, finished the regular season with a 7-4 overall record and a 4-3 record in the Big Eight.

Kansas, hurt by early fumbles, had to overcome a 10-point Missouri lead. But Smith saw to that personally in a game from which the winner knew it would be in the Sun Bowl.

On the third play of the second half, Smith broke loose behind a wave of blockers and stormed 67 yards. Two and one-half minutes later, he was gone again on a 56-yard jaunt, lifting the Jayhawks to a 21-10 advantage.

And after Tony Galbreath ran nine yards for a Missouri touchdown, Smith galloped 41 yards to set up another one for Kansas. It was scored by Dennis Wright on a 20-yard burst up the middle.

Earlier, Wright had gone the distance on a similar play for the initial Kansas touchdown. Bill Campfield twice ran two yards for the final Kansas scores.

Steve Pisarkiewicz hit his favorite receiver, Henry Marshall, for two Missouri scores, one for five yards and again for three. Tim Gibbons kicked a 29-yard field goal for the Tigers, who ended the season 6-5 and 3-1.

Kansas will play Pittsburgh in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., on Dec. 26.

BATTLE SCENE

5-4A Coach-of-Year becomes automatic

BY TED BATTLES

MAYBE ODESSA Permian's John Wilkins would have won the District 5-4A's Coach-of-Year award anyway.

His Panthers weren't rated as championship caliber this year. After all, everybody said Permian's offense was a disgrace, an embarrassment to a fine defense.

With the defense Permian had, it really didn't need much offense, even though there was no reasonable facsimile to Daryl Hunt backing up the line.

The Panthers blanked seven of 10 opponents, won nine of 10 games and wound up as the district champion, so no one is down-rating Wilkins' job.

Still, the way they conducted the Coach-of-Year selection at the annual meeting last week, it came out looking more like a Coach-Who-Won-District award.

MAYBE WE are just a chronic complainer. A couple of years ago the voting was manipulated in such a manner that we felt like we'd come out second best in an argument with a steamroller. Our comments raised the short hairs on John Reddell's neck.

This year we didn't even attend the voting and we're grumbling over the roughshod way Coach-of-Year is shoved down everybody's throat.

It's something that has been happening over the last five years and we're not sure where things started to go wrong, except that there had been a complete turnover in coaches since that time.

One reason it strikes home is the same Reddell with whom we butted heads over the voting issue a couple of years ago.

For four years now, he has turned what experts labeled a sow's ear into a silk purse. Picked annually for a spot ranging from sixth to eighth, his Midland Bulldogs have yet to wind up in the second division.

Bulldog fans are pretty sensitive about the annual oversight, but then they are more aware than anyone else of how much he has meant to the program.

In the four years before Reddell arrived in Midland, the Bulldogs were 14-26. It was an amazing record considering the college performances of MHS talent in that stretch. There was an All-America, four or five starters at Oklahoma, a quarterback who made Bert Jones a bench warmer for a year and a half at LSU and on and on.

In defending Tall City football, we mentioned that Midland High did have some talent to the late F. M. White, Odessa sportswriter at the time.

He said, "You don't have to tell me. The Permian coaches talk about it all the time and are just thankful that no one is over there to put it together."

Such has been the tale of Midland football.

THEN ALONG came Reddell. Unhappily, the talent well ran dry with his arrival. The experts' annual preseason forecasts tell you that. So in four years, Midland has compiled a 25-11-4 record and Reddell has to be wondering, what does it take to get nominated, let alone voted, Coach-of-the-Year?

A couple of weeks ago we asked Abilene Cooper Coach Ray Overton if the same rubber stamp would be used in picking the Coach.

He said, "That's the way we've done it since I've been head coach," and he's right. "I guess that's the way they've always done it."

We assured him that this wasn't always so. There were nominations and then either a secret ballot or the coaches were asked to leave the room. The district-winning coach had the good grace to step aside when Coach-of-the-Year came up.

"You know how coaches are," Overton said. "They'll take the easy way. I think this is something that probably should be handled by the sportswriters anyway."

He has a good point. Or we could take the easy way and instead of haggling over an all-district team, just name the team that won district.

West Texas scoots past Cards

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — Halfback Robert Mayberry rushed for 133 yards and scored two touchdowns Saturday to lead West Texas State to a 49-23 victory over Louisville in a nonconference game.

The victory evened the Buffs' season mark at 5-5 while the Cardinals dropped to 1-10 record.

Jim Didier kicked a 35-yard field goal for the Cardinals early in the opening period, before Mayberry put the Buffs ahead for good with two quick touchdowns. He scored first on a three-yard burst and then romped 80 yards for the second touchdown.

Mayberry helped set up the third West Texas touchdowns in the second period when he ran 20 yards before Curtis Clinton drove in from the one.

Anthony Degan then highlighted another West Texas drive with a 67-yard run that set up Bob Robinson's two-yard burst.

Louisville narrowed the gap 28-9 before halftime with a touchdown pass from John Darling to Kevin Miller that covered 34 yards.

Jeff Lloyd caught touchdown passes of 12 and 18 yards from Tracy Qualls, and Tommy Blanchard in the second half to spark the Buffs' attack.

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Running back Andy Dixon scored two touchdowns to lead Wyoming's ground attack in a 24-10 non-conference football victory over Air Force Saturday.

Dixon, a 185-pound senior, scored his first touchdown on a 12-yard insurmountable lead run up the middle late in the third period to lift the eleven games.

Cowboys to a 14-10 lead Air Force wound up its season with a record of 2-4 had taken its only lead in 8-1.

Wyoming took a 7-0 lead came back early in the third period on a 27-yard field goal by Dave Lawson to cut the margin to 7-3.

Lawson, who already held four national major college kicking records, added another by attempting four field goals, one of which was successful.

Geise run beats Pitt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Penn State's Steve Geise ran 29 yards for the winning touchdown with 8:18 left in the game and Pitt's Carson Long missed three field goal tries in the last five minutes as the Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions scored a 76 college football victory here Saturday.

Chris Bahr's extra-point kick gave ninth-ranked Penn State, 9-2, the margin of victory, while Long had a point-after try blocked and missed field goal tries of 51, 23 and 45 yards down the stretch.

His 51-yard miss came with 4:41 left and his 45-yarder fell just wide and short with only nine seconds left on the clock in the clash for the unofficial Eastern title.

Orange jolts Mountaineers

John Wayne, Marines ... scratch Bear

By JOE MCGUFF
KANSAS CITY — Well, so much for the legend of Bear Bryant. Not too many years ago the Bear was equated with John Wayne and the U.S. Marines as a symbol of toughness.

We could envision him destroying the Barbary Pirates, defending the Alamo and darning the torpedoes to go full steam ahead. He was tall, tough-jawed and mean-eyed, the kind of man who could buckle a 250-pound lineman's knees with a hostile glance.

THE BEAR, we assumed, drank his whiskey straight and his football teams feared no opponent. Now the passing years, affluence and eight straight non-winning bowl appearances have softened Bryant and set him out looking for lesser opponents to conquer.

Fresh from a victory over Southern Mississippi, the Bear scored another triumph of matchmaking by adroitly avoiding a Big Eight opponent in the Sugar Bowl and lining up an engagement with Penn State, which has lost two games and has a chance to make it three Saturday against Pitt.

"I recommended it," Bryant said of the Penn State selection at a time when his defenders were claiming that he was not the sort to duck an opponent.

IT WAS like hearing Arnold Palmer announce that he was going to start lagging up on the long putts or listening to Pete Rose explain that he wasn't going to break up double plays any more because he had his wife and kids to think of.

Despite saying that he had no apologies to make, Bryant attempted to justify his action by saying, "If they (the Big Eight) wanted us, why didn't they invite us to the Orange Bowl?"

OKLAHOMA'S BARRY Switzer answered that point earlier when he said that the Orange Bowl officials approached him at the time the Sooners played in Miami and asked him his opinion about possible opponents for the Big Eight champion.

"I told them to go out and get the best team in the country," Switzer said. Alabama did not want to play the best available opponent and so Penn State got the call over Oklahoma or Nebraska. Joe Paterno of Penn State declared, "Alabama has one of the greatest football traditions in the country and the greatest football coach in the country." Paterno has reason to speak well of the Bear since Bryant made a $450,000 pay day available to Penn State.

In New Orleans, the reaction to the selection of Penn State has been negative. Peter Finney, sports editor of the New Orleans States-Item, said the people calling the paper have expressed a strong preference for the runner-up.

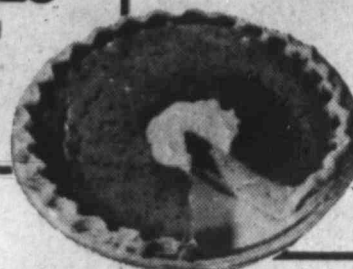

While Bryant's decision is out of date, the Tide's is still being discussed.

Chief sets retirement

Announcement of the forthcoming retirement of Midland Police Chief Harold Wallace, effective May 31, 1976, came as a surprise to many Midlanders, most of whom simply hadn't thought of the department without Harold Wallace at the helm.

His retirement will culminate 25 years with the Midland Police Department — 24 years as chief.

Wallace has built the department into one of the finest law enforcement agencies anywhere — one which is admired and respected by other agencies in the Southwest and beyond. It is considered by many as a model department. And Chief Wallace is held in equally high esteem by associates in law enforcement and by the fellow citizens of his community.

He will be missed, certainly, but the Midland City Council acted wisely in designating Maj. Wayne Gideon as Wallace's successor.

It was not at all surprising that Gideon, a 20 year veteran of the department and assistant chief since 1968, should have received the appointment. Serving as Wallace's right-hand man in recent years and being thoroughly familiar with the department and its operation, he was the logical choice for the appointment. It also was well that the council acted promptly in making its selection.

It is good to know that the Police Department will continue its efficient operation without interruption in the changing of chiefs.

Wallace, who has 33 years in law enforcement, joined the Midland Police Department in 1951 as a patrolman. Less than a year later, he became its chief.

He has been recognized on numerous occasions and by numerous groups for his outstanding and highly successful work and leadership in law enforcement. The mild-mannered, modest chief, however, is quick to give credit for his success to others, mainly the dedicated department personnel with whom he has worked through the years.

The Clarksville native has served as president of the F.B.I.

Academy Association of Texas, Texas Police Association, Texas Police Chiefs Association and West Texas Police Chiefs Association. He has been active in affairs of the Texas Safety Association and, in 1973, served as a consultant to the Texas Criminal Justice Council to aid in developing a model set of regulations and practices for law enforcement agencies.

He also has been active as a member and officer of Trinity Presbyterian Church and in youth work, as well as in other civic affairs. He has been recognized for his outstanding service to the community by Midland College, the Midland Board of Realtors, Bethel Baptist Church and other organizations. He is a Mason and holds membership in the American Legion.

His record shows that Harold Wallace has been a good citizen as well as a good police officer.

Midlanders wish him well during the remainder of his tenure as chief of police, and beyond, while at the same time expressing congratulations and all best wishes to Chief Designate Wayne Gideon.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Perils, defense of South Korea

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Despite a slight cooling of tensions in Korea, the North's recklessly ambitious Kim Il Sung could rekindle the Korean War at any time.

But General Richard Stilwell, the U.S. commander in Korea, has concluded from computer studies that he has the military power to stop an invasion in its tracks. It would take a blizzard of bombs from Guam-based B-52s, however, to do the job.

These are the findings of Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., who has just spent a week in Korea questioning the top commanders and browsing through secret papers. He headed a congressional delegation of Korean War veterans, who returned to their old battleground to assess the danger of a new war.

In a "Personal and Confidential" report to House Speaker Carl Albert, the bluntspoken Murphy warns tersely: "The problem in the near future is that Kim Il Sung is essentially irrational and could spark a deliberate attack with a resultant massive military response from South Korea."

The U.S. intelligence directorate in the Pacific has a similar opinion of Kim but expresses it in more bureaucratic language. "Kim is a zealous nationalist and a dedicated communist wholly capable of executing faulty judgements based on misconception," the directorate has stated. "He also suffers from tunnel vision where the Korean peninsula is concerned, and he is not interested in global detente, which can only hinder his goal of reunification by force of arms."

According to Murphy, both China and Russia have a restraining hold upon the impetuous Kim. "It is generally known that since the 'shocks of Spring' — the fall of Saigon and Phnom Penh — Kim has attempted to exploit what he perceived as a weakening U.S. stance in Asia."

"He went to Peking to ask for help, but his adventure was not encouraged there . . . Murphy asserts. "Kim is looked upon as unstable by his former ally, the Republic of China. I do not believe that China is interested in a new war on the Korean Peninsula."

"With a longstanding invitation to visit Moscow, he has (also) attempted to visit Soviet leaders, ostensibly to persuade them to support a move south, whereupon the longstanding invitation was withdrawn."

Nevertheless, Murphy warns that Kim's ties to the two communist superpowers are sufficiently secure that "in the event Kim unilaterally invades the Republic of Korea, China or Russia would not let North Korea be extinguished."

In Murphy's view, Kim is caught in an economic vise and "his time is running out." Murphy cites the apprehensions of U.S. officials, therefore, that "Kim may think this winter is 'now or never,' and he may

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter campaigning for Florida victory

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

ORLANDO, Fla. — The prospect of little Jimmy Carter, the former governor of Georgia, being transformed into the giant-killer who humiliates George Wallace in the Florida presidential primary is preposterous — but not quite so preposterous as it was early this year.

Indeed, even though no sane Democrat would bet a plugged nickel on Carter's humiliation of Wallace in the March 9 Democratic primary election here, events seem to be conspiring in such a way as to deliver maximum political dividends for Carter.

Most important is the fact that no other Democrat — with the inconspicuous exception of Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, an almost invisible dark horse — has shown the slightest interest in a statewide race against Gov. Wallace of Alabama here. To the contrary, even Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who is expected to run delegates in selected congressional districts — mainly Miami with its large pro-Jackson American-Jewish community — is not yet regarded as a serious factor except in Miami's Dade County.

Thus, almost by luck of the draw, Carter has a favored track position which other Democratic presidential candidates in years past have often striven for but seldom achieved: a virtual two-man race against Wallace and his hard-core but quite inelastic force of supporters.

In 1972 winner Wallace got less than 42 per cent of the vote in the presidential primary here, despite the highly emotional pull of an anti-busing provision on the ballot. Most Democrats and many Republican leaders here perceive Wallace at best as holding out just about that same strength next March, with no sure way to measure whether his paralysis will hurt or help him politically. Another 42 per cent of that 1972 vote was distributed among them to the left of George Wallace: Hubert Humphrey, Jackson and Edmund Muskie.

On the far left, the strongest showing was made by Sen. George McGovern with a meager 6 per cent of the total vote cast.

Neutral Democrats doubt that Wallace will be able to pick up more than scattered votes from among the 1972 non-Wallace voters. If true, and if these same non-Wallace voters of 1972 actually go to the polls, they may well vote for the candidate who has campaigned tirelessly for their support — Jimmy Carter.

That theory is by no means ironclad. Under Florida's presidential primary election law, Secretary of State Bruce Smathers must place every probable 1976 presidential candidate on the ballot unless an affidavit of non-candidacy is filed.

That means the huge bloc of non-Wallace voters could vote for any of the 1976 candidates on the ballot, including Jackson. But since Jackson got only 13.5 per cent of the vote in 1972 despite a major campaign, it is unlikely he would get many more votes in March without a full-fledged effort.

That explains why Carter's relentless campaign here (he has been in the state 22 separate times since last Jan. 20) may pay rich dividends and why he ran away with 70 per cent of the straw vote taken last weekend at the first state convention of the long-decrepit Democratic party in 75 years.

Carter's other asset is the proximity of his home state, running some 200 miles along the north Florida border. Postwar Georgia peanut farmer Carter talks the same language as the conservative farmers of north Florida.

No Democrat in the swollen presidential field is so low-key as Jimmy Carter, who wears a perpetual half-smile and predicts that the 1976 nominee will emerge from the primaries and not from any deadlock convention in New York City next summer.

At a coffee-and-doughnut rally in Lakeland early one morning last week, 150 local Democrats heard Carter's soft-voiced political pitch, which defies precise ideological definition. Carter combines a liberal idiom with some hard-line positions that are anathema to the left, including denial of the right to strike for public employe unions, and the death penalty for certain capital crimes.

He is campaigning to win here — although he won't admit to being an "anti-Wallace" candidate — in a two-step campaign he thinks will decide the Democratic nominees next summer: first, beat Wallace in this head-to-head contest; second, win in an early non-Southern state against liberal opposition.

If Carter succeeds in step one in Florida's third — in-the-nation primary, step two will look possible, despite Carter's shadowy standing with the controlling liberal Democrats who remember him as the man who nominated Jackson for President in 1972 and who courted Wallace in 1970.

BIBLE VERSE

For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavillion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me, he shall set me upon a rock. — Psalm 27:5

Roughneck treatment is not American tradition

WASHINGTON — The other evening, the Soviet National Basketball Team, garbed in red, naturally, was playing the earnest young men of the University of Maryland, their hosts, when a large, plastic cup of oil was hurled onto the court from the grandstands. The slippery stuff spread across the floor, giving it a texture more suitable for hockey than the great American indoor game.

There was a milling about, as referees, players, coaches and workmen tried to clean up the awful oil and get the game going again. The fans in the University of Maryland's field house, and a large television audience in the Baltimore-Washington area, waited 20 minutes until the floor was playable again. Maryland's coach, Lefty Driesell, became so impatient that he joined in on the scrubbing and mopping.

Even then, after play resumed, four Maryland players slipped or fell in the affected section of the court, according to university athletic officials.

"The culprit in this strange episode? 'The Jewish Defense League assumes full responsibility for tonight's interruption of the Soviet National Team,'" said Dr. William Perl, chairman of the Greater Washington JDL. "The dumping of Arab oil was a protest against the continued use of Soviet professionals in amateur athletics and against the relentless persecution of Jews in the Soviet Union as well as Soviet warmongering against the Jewish state."

An American official traveling with the Soviet team said the incident was the first of this kind that they experienced in the United States. They have played nine games so far on the three-week tour.

Now, Dr. Perl, 69, who says he is affiliated with the university as a clinical psychologist and is now retired, acknowledges that he knew beforehand that the oil would be thrown by "a young Jewish boy" although he won't say that he put him up to it. Authorities apprehended a 15-year-old boy whom they said threw the oil, did not file charges against him and released him to his parents.

"There will be other such demonstrations of protest against the Soviets at sports events," Dr. Perl told me. "I got many phone calls after this one, and most people agree with our tactics. It was the silence of American Jews and of American Christians which encouraged the Nazis and now encourages the Soviets. I disagree very much with Dr. Kissinger and the detente. And you should know that when Israeli athletes were in Moscow, they were harassed during the game when they took part in competition."

Dr. Perl says that he came to the United States as a refugee from Czechoslovakia in 1940, and that other members of his family were killed by the Nazis. He says that he is a frequent visitor to Israel and has political interests in that country.

Well, Dr. Perl and others who attempt to harass or assault or threaten visiting Soviet athletes, musicians and artists are all wrong. I don't agree one whit with Soviet ideology, think their treatment of dissidents and Jews is bush league and am grateful to be living in the U.S.A.

But this doesn't give me or any other American citizen, including Dr. Perl, the right to take out any feelings about the Soviet government on their basketball players, concert musicians, ballet dancers or anyone else in athletics or the arts. It's not in the American tradition to treat foreign guests this way.

Shame, too, on whomever was responsible for setting off a bomb in Sol Hurok's office several years back and killing a female receptionist, because Hurok was the principal American booking agent for Soviet artists.

What point is there in making a basketball court a perilous place? The Soviet players don't deserve this and neither did the four Maryland players who slipped or fell.

Moreover, if Soviet citizens treat visiting Israeli athletes in roughneck fashion, that is a matter between the U.S.S.R. and Israel, not between Americans and Soviet visitors. Dr. Perl should be an American citizen first, and a sympathizer with Soviet Jewry and Israel second.

His tactics, which he is proud of, helped neither cause. The hundreds of thousands of basketball fans in the field house and in the television audience were disgusted with this single act of bad sportsmanship — the throwing of automobile oil, purported to be Arab (maybe it came from Pennsylvania?). Soviet Jewry and Israel won no friends through this dumb stunt.

Meanwhile, officials at the state University of Maryland say that they want to play down the incident, in order to prevent other such protests from occurring. If the 15-year-old boy would be prosecuted, an athletic department spokesman said, he would achieve a martyr's image. Maybe so. But maybe the boy should have his name put in the paper, and maybe Dr. Perl should be questioned by authorities. Lawbreaking is lawbreaking, isn't it, whether performed by Soviets, Americans or zealots in the Jewish Defense League?

The protesters who made a point at the basketball game the other night at the University of Maryland were the students carrying candles and distributing literature in front of the field house before the game began.

By the way, the Maryland team won the game in overtime, 100 to 96.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Let's back up

To The Editor: As I was driving down Wall Street Sunday (Nov. 16) on my way home from church, I almost stopped in the middle of the street because of this little old man dressed in a red suit. Yes, it was good old Saint Nick, right in front of one of our florist shops.

Now I am all for Christmas, but I get mighty tired of seeing red suits such as this one all over town two months before Christmas. The same goes for Christmas decorations. A person is hard put to find Thanksgiving decorations in among all the red and green splashed everywhere.

I even saw some Christmas decorations in stores before the "spooks" bit the dust.

It is all just a wee bit ridiculous. After all, we do know Christmas is coming. Our forefathers didn't miss it and neither will we.

'Lesson' learned

To The Editor: I would like to commend Bill D. Brooks and James and Gwen Swails (whose letters were published Nov. 2 and 9 respectively) for correcting a mistaken impression that I had about art shows.

I had thought that viewers should look at all art work with an appreciation of the artist's individual expression, and that artists should exhibit their creations in an effort to communicate this vision with the viewer and perhaps make a sale.

However, the aforementioned letters have shown me otherwise. One does not enter an art show to foster public exposure of one's work, one enters to receive prizes. People do not come to art shows to see the variety of work being done by many artists, they come to see "taste and beauty."

Obviously, the volunteer workers of the MAA must change the format of the Fall Regional Art and Craft Show dramatically lest Mr. Brooks and the Swails carry out their dire threats and deprive Midlanders of the privilege of seeing their fabulous works next year. Then I guess the people who paint differently from them will have to go elsewhere to exhibit their work.

It's like drowning

To The Editor: The invitation of New York City to the federal government to assist the city in their financial woes is like a drowning person calling on someone who cannot swim to jump in and save him.

A good swimmer would have great difficulty in swimming with heavy weights tied to his feet. If we keep adding to this weight, drowning is the ultimate conclusion.

What represents the weight causing the drowning in the case of New York as well as our federal government? Our own city, county and state governments would be well advised to get out of the weight-producing business lest they fall to the same peril.

Face reality

To The Editor: As an agency whose goal is to eliminate unplanned pregnancies so as to ensure that every child born is a wanted child, we want to express our appreciation to The Reporter-Telegram for carrying the article headlined "Teen-age Illegitimacy Increasing Slightly" (Sunday, Nov. 9, 1975). This is vitally important information and you have done the community a service by printing it.

You may be interested to know that in Texas the illegitimacy rate rose 29 per cent between 1969 and 1973. Although total births declined 5 per cent during that time, births to teens rose 7.3 per cent.

Last year in Midland County there were seven births to girls 14 and under, and 226 to girls 15 to 19.

The probability of being born to a teen-age mother is three times greater for the illegitimate baby than for the legitimate baby. Illegitimate babies are 22 times more likely to have mothers under 15.

Of course, this does not mean that all teen-age pregnancies are unplanned or illegitimate. However, as the article indicated, there are certain realities which must be faced.

For example, that the majority of sexually active teen-agers do not use effective contraceptives, primarily because of lack of access to information and services; and that unwanted children enter the world with two strikes against them. As more people become sensitive to the problems of unplanned teen-age pregnancy, the possibilities for solutions become greater.

Gloria Bosse Executive Director Permian Basin Planned Parenthood, Inc.

Work rewarded

To The Editor: I would like to express my approval and appreciation for the coverage you gave to the school bands in connection with the UIL contests. Hundreds of our local teen-agers spend many, many hours in practice and in performing with our bands at the football games half-times or the many other functions in which they participate.

As a parent directly associated with the MHS Band for three years now, I'm sure I can appreciate more than some others how much work our students put in prior to their public appearances and their contests. It is nice to see them recognized for their effort and it makes them feel their time may have been well-spent.

Planning needed

To The Editor: I wish to commend you and your staff for the recent, comprehensive articles regarding the Midland Zoo and parks and recreation commission.

Our city has been allowed to develop without planning. The bond issues suggested by the new leadership in the parks and recreation department and commission are very necessary to establish meaningful positive direction for our city.

Please keep up your good work.

The Great Leap Forward: a stumble

WASHINGTON — The power struggle in Washington goes on unabated and foreign ambassadors stationed in Washington are sending long cables back to their countries trying to explain it.

Here is one of the cables sent by a representative of the People's Republic of China who is living in D.C.

"Momentous historical events are taking place here in Washington with the opening salvo of President Ford's Great Cultural Revolution. At first it was believed that Henry Kissinger was behind the cultural revolution to bring disgrace on Defense Minister James Schlesinger. But now Kissinger is in disgrace himself and has been demoted to only one inconsequential post as Secretary of State. He has also been cited for contempt by the People's Congressional Subcommittee. Official American newspapers are predicting he will soon be sent to North Dakota to harvest grain at a state farm run by Agriculture Minister Earl Butz.

"Kissinger is now called a revisionist and counterrevolutionary by a majority of the People's Congress for advocating detente with the Soviet lackeys in the Kremlin.

"Defense Minister Schlesinger has been exiled to the John Hopkins School of International Affairs in the purge, and has been replaced by Donald Rumsfeld, a younger member of the Ford clique who has been involved in a power struggle with the Kissinger loyalists for over a year.

"Rumsfeld has denied he was the instigator of the palace revolt, but his picture with Ford has been plastered on posters all over the outside walls of the Pentagon.

"Another victim of the purge was William Colby, Director of the People's Central Intelligence Committee. Colby's main crime was that he publicly confessed to the People's Congress about antigovernment activities committed by his cadres in the name of national security.

"He is being replaced by another Ford disciple, George Bush, formerly Chairman of the People's Republican Party. He was sent to China when the party fell into disgrace after Nixon's fall from power after the August 1974 revolution.

"The biggest shock was the demotion of President Ford's Vice President, Nelson Rockefeller, who still remains in his job, but only as a figurehead with no power.

"Rockefeller, with no dissent from Ford, was accused by conservative elements of the People's Republican Party, of being a counterrevolutionary bourgeois radical revisionist arrogant dog. The conservative faction led by Ronald Reagan, a former Governor of the province of California, threatened that unless Rockefeller and his ilk were brought to their knees, they would see that Ford was removed from the Presidency at the next People's Republican Congress in Kansas City.

"To appease this faction Ford made Rockefeller confess to the disastrous bond crop failure of New York and ordered all photographs of Rockefeller to be taken down from the country's Post Offices.

"The Reagan Guard still does not seem to be satisfied with the purge. There is now a power struggle going on in the People's Republican Party over the leadership, which may be fought out between the factions in the province of New Hampshire. He advised when President Ford comes to the People's Republic of China next month he will be constantly looking over his shoulder to see if Reagan is standing there.

"At the moment Ford is attacking the People's Congress and blaming it for the failure of his two-year plan. He is calling on the peasants and workers to throw out the People's Democratic Party in 1976.

"How are the masses reacting to all this? So far they have refused to support Ford mainly because every time the President tries to make a Great Leap Forward, he trips over somebody's wheelchair."

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Cutting spending to be a good show

By STUART LONG Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—You are reminded of the cowboy climbing aboard "the horse that's never been rode" as you listen to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's bold and brassy promises to trim down state government in size and spending.

Whether he will be accepting the cup as the world's champion cowboy, or dusting off the seat of his pants after rising dazed from the rodeo arena floor in June 1977, will be the subject of the best spectator sport in Austin these next 18 months.

While all the experts are standing around and saying that there is just no way to avoid a big tax increase in 1977, Briscoe has been bragging that he'll fix it so there won't be any increase at all. He is halfway safe in that it's probably certain that inflation will continue, and thus bring in more and more revenue from sales taxes.

But the other half of the way will have to be done by cutting back on spending or on the normal growth of spending. It has been fascinating to watch the warfare over who will get to help Briscoe on that part of the chore.

The privately-financed Texas Research League proposed last January a massive study to make state government "modern, viable, responsive." Those three words came from a letter Briscoe had written in April 1973, asking the league to review all the executive and administrative agencies. Briscoe said then that he would like to see the recommendations included in the constitutional revision program in 1974.

The league's (preliminary report pointed out the need to provide executive budget supervision instead of leaving it to the legislature, and a taste of that was included in the late proposal for a new constitution.

also warned that the trends then under way would give Texas more employees than New York State, which had already frozen its state government employment.

But the Research League did not get the job. Instead, the long-pending "Little Hoover Commission" proposal of Sen. Bill Patman of Granddaddy was passed, with revisions, with Lt. Gov. Bill Holby as chairman and Briscoe appointees in the majority.

And the staffs of the six committees set up by Holby will come from state agencies rather than the private research group. The Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, the Legislative Budget Board, the legislative council, the state auditor, the governor's budget office, and the staffs of Briscoe and Holby will provide the researchers for the project. Don Rives of Marshall, an assistant to Holby, will be the staff coordinator for the fast look into ways to save money in state government operations.

POSITIVE THINKING

Greatness of America experienced

By NORMAN VINCENT PEARLE

When I was a small boy my father, who was a very patriotic man, decided to show me what he called the greatness of America. He told me about the ancient Athenian fathers who made an occasional project of taking their children on an afternoon to the agora or chief public park of Athens. There they would direct the wondering gaze of the youngsters to the statues of the great men in the history of Athens and recount their heroic exploits. The idea was to develop an ever new generation of people who loved their country.

Well, my father had the same idea and during our youth, whenever he could scrape together the necessary funds, he would take us to American historic shrines. I well recall the time he took my brother Bob and me to Boston and showed us the old North Church, where the lanterns were hung that sped Paul Revere on his way; then on to Lexington and Concord, where it all began. His descriptions (and he was a powerful speaker) of the minutemen falling back in ignominious defeat thrilled us with the idea of America as invincible.

On still another trip he took his young sons to Gettysburg and tried to find the place where his father helped repulse the immortal charge of General Pickett across a bloody wheat field. Although my father was a Yankee, he made an excursion to the Southern battlefields of the Civil War. We stopped at Lexington, Va., to stand by the grave of Robert E. Lee who, he declared, was the finest type of gentleman and one of the greatest men our country ever produced.

I never knew anyone who loved his country more deeply than my father and he was determined that his sons would be Americans to the last. The strength of our country, he believed, was in her glorious history, her great men, her principles of freedom and her belief in human values. As far as his slim pocketbook would allow, he took us to pay homage at every shrine of American freedom from Valley Forge to Appomattox, from Chickamauga to Bunker Hill.

But one scene depicting the greatness of America is indelibly engraved on my mind, one never to be forgotten by reason of its basic meaning about our country. Father had just returned with us from Chicago, a city he loved because he said it had the lusty vigor of the Midwest, the strength and power of the United States at its greatest. He had taken us to see the long lake steamers come into harbor. We visited the great financial institutions on State and LaSalle streets.

Looking up at the vast iron gates before huge banks, this poor man from southern Ohio was impressed by the material strength of his country. "There," he said, "is the throbbing greatness of modern America." And we boys were impressed. Even yet I'm awed by a big bank.

After the Chicago visit we returned to the village in Ohio where my father was born. And the next day we went out in the country to a big 600-acre farm where, in the rambling white farmhouse, we had Thanksgiving dinner.

The farm was located in the center of some of the richest land God ever made. The huge barns indicated much activity. Herds of stock roamed the fields. The corn was in the shock. Trees were bedecked in lingering autumn coloring. The temperature was crisp and cool. Orange pumpkins lay among the corn.

The kitchen was full of women, excited with the delectable aroma of baking turkey and pumpkin-pies. The men, less talkative, sat around in the parlor holding their appetites in check as best they could. We children raced around, excited and full of anticipation.

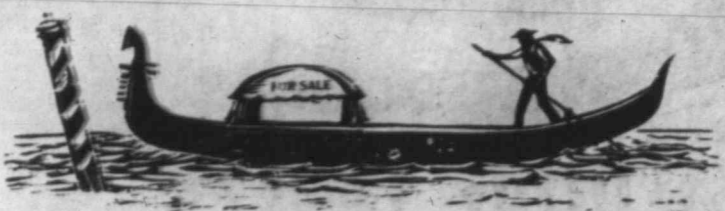

Then came the call to dinner. Several families, the hired hands, children and everybody else washed up and eagerly sat down at the table. A hush fell on the large group. The sturdy farmer at the head of the table picked up a huge Bible.

He adjusted his glasses, thumbed through the Holy Book, and started to read: "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." The great words fell like sonorous music upon our ears. "You have given us pleasant land, a goodly heritage." As he read, the midday sunshine reflected from the steaming dishes.

Closing the book lovingly, he folded his hands and prayed a prayer of Thanksgiving. He thanked God for everyone about the table, for his fair acres, for the beautiful harvest. He raised his voice in prayer for "our President and this beloved land with its noble history and great future." As he prayed, there was a light on his sunken and kindly face.

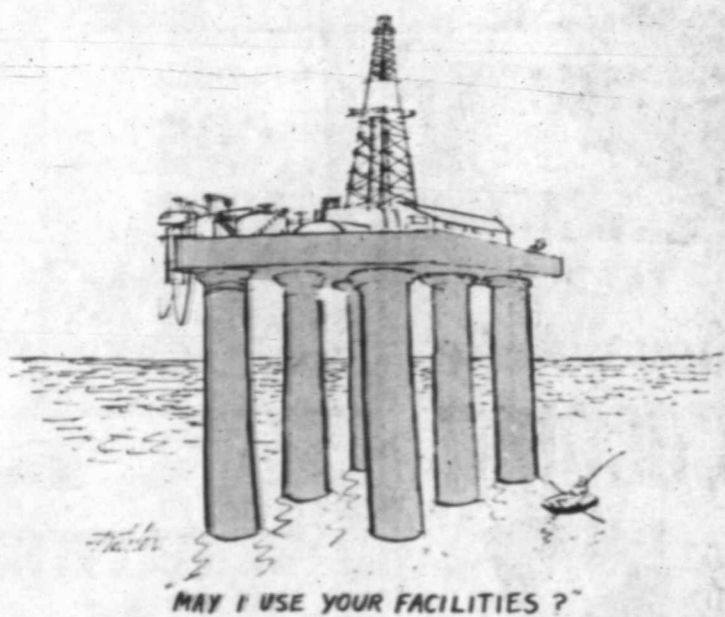

My father nudged me, even though our host was still praying. "There," he said, "is the greatness of America." And I knew he was so right.

Observations

Farewell to the gondola? For centuries, gondolas have symbolized Venice. The graceful, black-lacquered barques, with swept prows and velvet cushions, ferried popes and peasants up the Italian city's "Main Street," the Grand Canal, to treasure troves of medieval and renaissance art and architecture. Visitors like to recall how raffish gondoliers sang plaintively of love and loneliness. But, little by little the roar of motorboat traffic drowned out the music. Alas, the oar-powered gondolas are now being restricted in their use of the congested Grand Canal, leaving tourists and Venetians alike to cross by bridge or motorboat.

Sad. And yet, we'll wager Venice's wily gondoliers will adapt, that their heady songs will continue to echo down less-traveled canals. The appeal of a moonlight cruise in a sleek, silent gondola is simply too romantic to be legislated away. Besides, Venice has a way of hanging on. After years of worry that it was sinking into the sea, the process, according to newspaper reports, has not only stopped, the city actually may even begin rising somewhat. Viva i gondolieri!

Up in the air. A world short of energy is once again looking at lighter-than-air flight, and some experts think dirigibles are more than a lot of hot air.

Futurist Stephen Rosen, among others, envisions a hybrid airship which would combine such dirigible-like qualities as the ability to take off and land in short distances at slow speeds with the low-altitude maneuverability of airplanes. One such craft, already on the drawing boards, can land virtually in a parking lot, is as easy to load and unload as a cargo plane, and can carry tremendous payloads at rock-bottom cost.

It is precisely their cargo-carrying capabilities that have excited most of the interest in Count von Zeppelin's invention. One company is currently developing an airship, called a Heli-Stat, which combines features of the blimp and helicopter. It is designed to move payloads of more than 75 tons—roughly five times the capacity of helicopters. The Heli-Stat wouldn't need runways, would use less fuel, and could hover over delivery sites to winch shipments down.

Dr. Rosen even foresees airship "ports" in downtown areas of land-locked cities. And, somewhere, Count von Zeppelin is smiling.

Pollution? Not likely. At least, not from offshore drilling. Chances of a serious oil spill are extremely remote. We've often trumpeted the fact that, out of some 20,000 wells drilled in American waters, there have been only four serious accidents in the last quarter-century—none of which caused permanent damage to the environment. Improved technology, including electronic sensors, should help make that average even better. Proof of offshore drilling's safety record is in the National Academy of Sciences report, Petroleum in the Marine Environment, released earlier this year. According to NAS estimates, offshore drilling and production account for only just over 1% of the oil in the ocean.

In addition to industry controls, government keeps close tabs on each platform's discharge waters. Regulations permit an operator to discharge an average of no more than 50 parts oil to a million parts of water from its producing operations. That's a little like diluting an ounce of Scotch with 150 gallons of soda. In either case, nobody gets very polluted.

A quote we like. "These days socialism is always shown representing the future. However, experience has shown socialists/communists straggle onto people the most oppressive regimes in the history of the world." Eldridge Cleaver, former minister of information, Black Panthers, interviewed in Rolling Stone magazine after his extensive travels in the Soviet Union and China.

Some say divestiture would be confusing

By CLYDE LA MOTTE Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON—One of the solutions to the energy problem proposed by some members of Congress is to break up the major oil companies.

The theory is that the big companies have so much control over oil and oil products they are able to manipulate the market, create phony shortages, charge high prices and make greater and greater profits.

Divestiture, they say, would mean more competition and this in turn would mean more and more products and lower and lower prices.

But opponents of divestiture claim it would not work out that way. Rather, prices would rise and supply would fall. The consumer would be hurt rather than helped.

This is the picture of what would happen as pieced together from the testimony of witnesses — including investment analysts and others outside the petroleum industry — at a hearing last week by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly.

If a major integrated company were forced to divest itself of everything but, say, its crude oil production facilities this would mean it would have to sell separately its refining, transportation and marketing facilities.

Obviously, no one would buy a refinery from the company unless it could arrange for some long-term supply contracts for crude oil for that refinery. Similarly, it would have to line up market outlets and make long-term arrangements for transportation of both the crude oil it would use and the products it would sell.

It stands to reason that the most likely source of crude oil supply for such a refinery would be from the company from which the refinery was purchased. And the market outlets for the new refining company could well be the market outlets the selling company had had while it was integrated.

If it worked out that way, the net result as far as the consumer is concerned would be an integrated flow from the wellhead to the service station pump.

Even if the new refining company were to buy its crude elsewhere and sell its products through other market outlets there would still be a link between the refinery and its crude source and a link with its markets. Thus the basic pattern would be unchanged.

Obviously, however, it would take time to make the transition from a major integrated company to a series of non-integrated operations.

In the first place, there would be the problem of finding buyers for all the segments of all the companies that would be forced on the market.

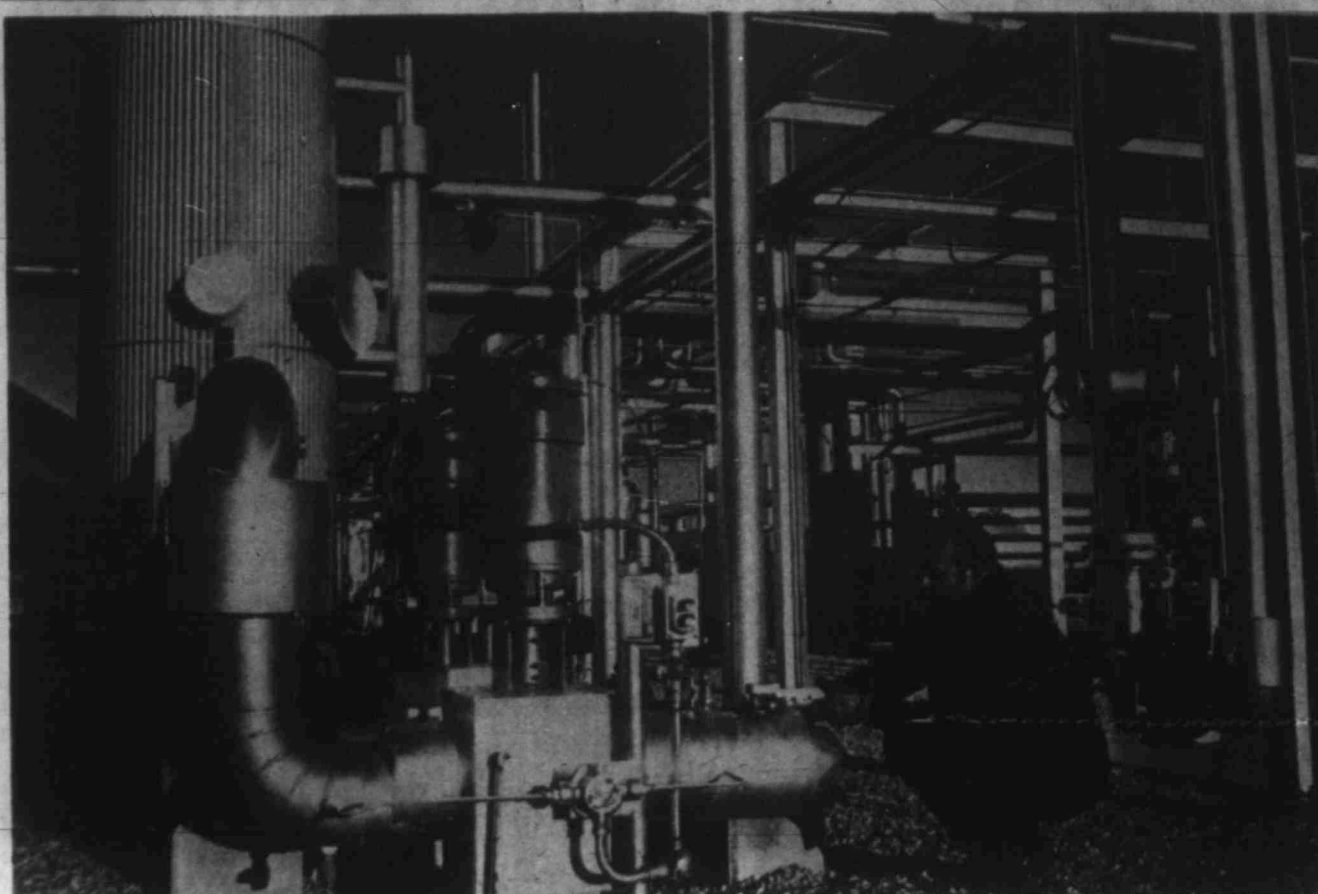

Naturally, this new investment money would flow to the segment that would appear most profitable, so it is logical to assume that some facilities would go begging for want of buyers.

One of the witnesses at last week's hearing by the subcommittee warned that the delays and uncertainties involved in a reshaping of the industry could only have an adverse impact for a considerable period of time. That is, the functioning of the industry would be hurt as the very time the nation is supposed to be trying to increase its domestic petroleum supplies.

The witness was Joseph Tovey, a vice president of Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan, a firm of stock brokers and investment bankers. Tovey said his specialty is the petroleum industry.

He emphasized that he was not a spokesman for the petroleum industry.

Dittman finals Yates opener

D. W. Dittman has recompleted No. 6-2 Magnolia-Eaton as a lower Yates sand dry gas producer in Pecos County, and was proposed field designation of Dittman (lower Yates sand).

It was completed for a calculated, absolute open flow of 970,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 1,658-1,692 feet. The section had been washed with 500 gallons of mud acid and fractured with 20,000 gallons and 30,000 pounds.

The well originally was drilled by Hostetter Engineering of Monahans as No. 6 Eaton-Magnolia, and completed in August, 1958 as an oiler, from open hole at 1,475-1,641 feet.

It was reentered by Bough Oil & Gas Co. as No. 6-2 Eaton-Magnolia-Beverly as a project in the Pecos Valley (high gravity) field, and deepened to 1,864 feet. It has 2 1/2-inch casing seated at 1,860 feet, and is plugged back to 1,714 feet.

Location is 900 feet from northwest and southwest lines of section 35, block 3, HATC survey, nine miles southwest of Imperial.

Oil museum appeals for funds 'so mortgage can be burned'

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame has issued an appeal for funds as part of a "state of the museum" report.

Russell J. Ramsland and Emil C. Rassman, heads of the museum's two volunteer boards, said in the report that by year's end the museum will have borrowed approximately $261,000 to complete its building project.

Pledge payments for 1976 of $122,000 will partly offset the debt, they said, but "we need about $156,000 to burn our mortgage."

"In addition, the museum hopes to raise $65,000 to restore operating reserves borrowed for building purposes, thus our goal is to raise $261,000," Ramsland said.

The total cost of the project, when all bills are in, will be $1,881,000, the chairman said.

Homer Fort, director of the museum, said visitors from 37 states and 14 foreign countries have toured the museum during the eight weeks it has been open.

Total attendance has climbed past the 6,000 mark, and the museum hopes to greet its 10,000th visitor before Jan. 1, Fort said.

"At the current rate, the museum should attract between 40,000 and 50,000 visitors a year," the director said.

Fort pointed out that there is a good chance these numbers will be larger due to the growing impact of the museum's popularity. "We have at hit. Now we need to get it free of debt, operate it for awhile, and start thinking about the next steps," Ramsland said.

He said Permian Basin residents should visit the museum now, rather than later, since attendance is a factor in attracting new gifts, particularly from out-of-town donors.

Plans for the use of billboards along Interstate 20 are being studied, and other promotion ideas are being talked, Ramsland said.

Four oil companies, Texaco, Mobil, Exxon and Gulf, have agreed to show the museum on their travel maps. The American Automobile Association, Exxon Travel Club, and Mobil Travel Guide plan to include the museum in their publications, Fort said.

"In December, the magazine 'Texas Highways' will carry a six-page article describing the museum," Fort revealed.

In their annual report, Ramsland and Rassman said operating expenses for the museum are being paid in part through reserves that were laid aside beginning in 1973.

They pointed out that admissions fees, museum store sales, and auditorium rentals are paying about 28 per cent of the operating costs, and they hope eventually to raise this figure to about 40 per cent.

"The remainder will need to be raised through sale of memberships and possibly one or two special events each year," Rassman said.

Looking at future plans, Ramsland and Rassman said the museum would dedicate its grounds in 1976 as part of the national Bicentennial celebration.

"Much of the funds for landscaping have been raised through Project Green Horizons in which many civic organizations and individuals have donated," Ramsland said.

The chairman revealed that the next capital program for the museum, once the present debt has been paid and operating experience gained, is likely to be an expanded sequence of outdoor exhibits.

"We have available, through the Abell-Hanger Foundation, a truly magnificent collection of antique drilling equipment we want to move here and restore. It will be unique in the nation and the world," Rassman said.

The master plan for the museum calls for the eventual addition of two new wings, matching the two now in the building.

Revenues for the first nine months is $10,585,000 compared to $5,250,000 for the same period in 1974. The three-quarter 1975 revenues exceed by $2,344,000 the $8,221,000 in revenues for the entire 12 months of 1974.

Fortune finals pool reopener

Fortune Drilling Corp., San Angelo, has completed No. 3 Upton, Tom Green County reentry project, to reopen the Upton Ranch (Canyon sand) oil field of Tom Green County.

It pumped 20 barrels of 28.6 gravity oil on 24-hour potential test, with gas-oil ratio measuring 209-1. Production was through perforations at 4,325-4,329 feet, after the pay section had been acidized with 500 gallons and fractured with 10,000 gallons and 20,000 pounds.

Location is 600 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 19, block N, GMSA survey, 25 miles southeast of San Angelo. It is 1/4 mile north of the original opener in the Schleicher County part of the field.

Chief Justice Douglas foresaw pitfalls of federal gas controls

By MAX B. SKELTON HOUSTON (AP) — Oilmen frequently quote William O. Douglas while waging their long battle against federal control of wellhead prices of natural gas sold into interstate commerce.

Douglas was not a champion of the petroleum industry during his 36 years as a Supreme Court justice but he wrote dissenting opinions on two major decisions upholding gas price controls.

In 1954, Douglas foresaw years of confusion and chaos ahead as the Federal Power Commission sought to regulate thousands of gas producers.

In 1968, Douglas suggested the task of regulating producer sales appeared so difficult it might be wise to turn the problem over to Congress.

Oilmen trace much of the blame for the nation's current energy shortages to the 1954 decision that said the FPC must regulate prices for interstate gas sales. They say the decision led to unrealistic low prices that caused a prolonged slump in explorations for new domestic oil and gas reserves.

A record 58,100 wells were completed in 1958. Only 22,893 were completed last year.

Proved natural gas reserves in 1954 were estimated at 208.5 trillion cubic feet. Production approximated 3.3 trillion. At the end of 1974, the reserves estimate, excluding Alaska, had dropped to 205.3 trillion and annual production had jumped to 2 23.2 trillion cubic feet.

Prior to the 1954 court ruling, the FPC had refused to regulate prices, contending that provisions of the Natural Gas Act of 1938 did not apply to the production or gathering of gas.

The court majority disagreed, saying "We are satisfied that Congress sought to regulate the rate of wholesale of natural gas occurring at both ends of the interstate transmission systems."

Douglas said the 1938 act was inap-licable to production and gathering and that the effect of the court's majority opinion "is certain to be profound."

"It largely nullifies the exemption granted by Congress," Douglas said in his dissent.

"Regulation of the business of producing and gathering natural gas involves considerations of whose know little, and with which we are not competent to deal."

A month later, the FPC froze interstate wellhead prices and the commission began its long search for a formula for use in regulating an estimated 4,100 producers.

After six years of trying to regulate producers on an individual basis, the FPC started developing in 1960 an area formula under which commodity prices eventually were established for 23 producing areas.

While sidestepping a direct ruling on legality, the Supreme Court, in effect, authorized the FPC in 1963 to continue its search for an area formula. Douglas voted with the 5-4 majority, but Justice Tom Clark, also a dissenter in 1954, objected again.

Clark's dissent said the FPC had wasted six years before switching to "experimenting with a new, untried, untested, inchoate program which, in addition, is of doubtful legality."

"I predict in the end the consumer will find himself to be the biggest goose of the hunt and the small producer the dead duck," Clark said.

Using the vast Permian Basin producing area of West Texas and New Mexico as the guinea pig, the FPC finalized the area formula in 1965. It established prices ranging from 13.5 to 18.5 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Douglas was the lone dissenter when the Permian decision was upheld by the Supreme Court in 1968.

Justice John M. Harlan, delivering the decision, said rate making agencies are not bound to the service of any single regulatory formula and

Oilwell schemes banned by judge

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — A circuit judge has ordered 15 companies to quit selling interests in Texas oilwell ventures in Florida after state Comptroller Gerald Lewis labeled them a nationwide fraud.

In a suit filed by Lewis in Miami, Circuit Judge Francis Christy banned Thursday further sales in the state until he could hold a full hearing on the case.

No date was set for a hearing. Lewis' told reporters that he had facts to confirm that 1,000 Floridians had been cheated of $2.8 million in phony oil-well schemes.

Tom Brown net marks record

Tom Brown, Inc., the 1974 first half. Net Midland-based oil and gas exploration, production and drilling concern, has reported record revenues, net earnings and earnings per share for the second quarter and six months ended Sept. 30.

Thomas C. Brown, president, reported an increase in total operating revenues for the second quarter to $7,045,509, up 33 per cent from $5,284,898 in the corresponding quarter a year ago.

He said net earnings rose to $1,777,098, up 29.5 per cent from $1,371,536 in the 1974 period. Per share earnings for the three months were 57 cents compared with 44 cents in the 1974 quarter.

Total operating revenues for the six months ended Sept. 30 were $13,858,682, up 33 per cent from $10,423,661 in the 1974 period.

Tipperary plans told

Tipperary Corp. of Midland will decide within 90 days whether it will build an oil refinery on the Texas coast.

Deane H. Stoltz, president, said the company is considering a plant with an initial capacity of about 10,000 barrels a day. He said the plant would process fuel oil and jet fuel but no gasoline.

Stoltz said Tipperary also is considering an Eastern coast project and an expansion of its anhydrous ammonia plant near Lovington, N. M.

Stoltz revealed the plans last week at Houston when he spoke before the Houston Security Dealers Association.

Employees promoted

ODESSA—Cardinal Survey, Inc., has announced reassignments for three employees in sales and service operations.

C. A. Adams Jr. was named general sales manager. He has been with Cardinal 11 years.

George W. Newman, who joined the firm in 1966, is now operations manager, and Audie Bates, with Cardinal since 1974, was named Odessa salesman.

Swindlers have used the loophole to sell securities, drill sham wells and then rake off $100,000 to $150,000 after reporting they found no oil, Lewis said.

The SEC and other states have been cooperating closely in the inquiry and Texas is planning criminal prosecutions which Florida will assist by providing witnesses, Lewis said.

Lewis' office and other state agencies have been stung by legislative criticism of an 18-month delay in the investigation of a multimillion-dollar "14 per cent" mortgage securities fraud.

The suit in the oilwell scheme was filed four weeks after Lewis was first tipped to the problem by Alabama Securities Commissioner Thomas Krebs.

Companies named in the Dade suit are: Ascot Oils, Inc., Shreveport, La.; Century Petroleum Corp., Dallas; Dallas Oil & Gas, Inc., Dallas; Horton Petroleum, Inc., Magnolia, Ark.; Landmark Petroleum Co. He said that if divestiture legislation were to become law and would require the top 20 oil companies to sell off all their activities but one, the following scenario would probably develop:

—The oil industry would be stripped of ready cash to pay the resultant tax stemming from the sales.
—There would probably be few potential buyers who would possess the necessary know-how, antitrust acceptability and cash or debt capacity. As a result, divestiture could take years and years to achieve. During this period, operations would be disrupted, new capital outlays would be held back and capable personnel might well move on to other fields of endeavor.

—The oil industry would be an unattractive investment. In fact, Tovey said he hasn't been recommending oil investments to his clients for the past several years because better investment opportunities have been available, considering the uncertainty the industry has faced.

—Foreign properties would be subject to higher risk of foreign government takeover.

—The industry probably would not be able to meet its capital requirements.

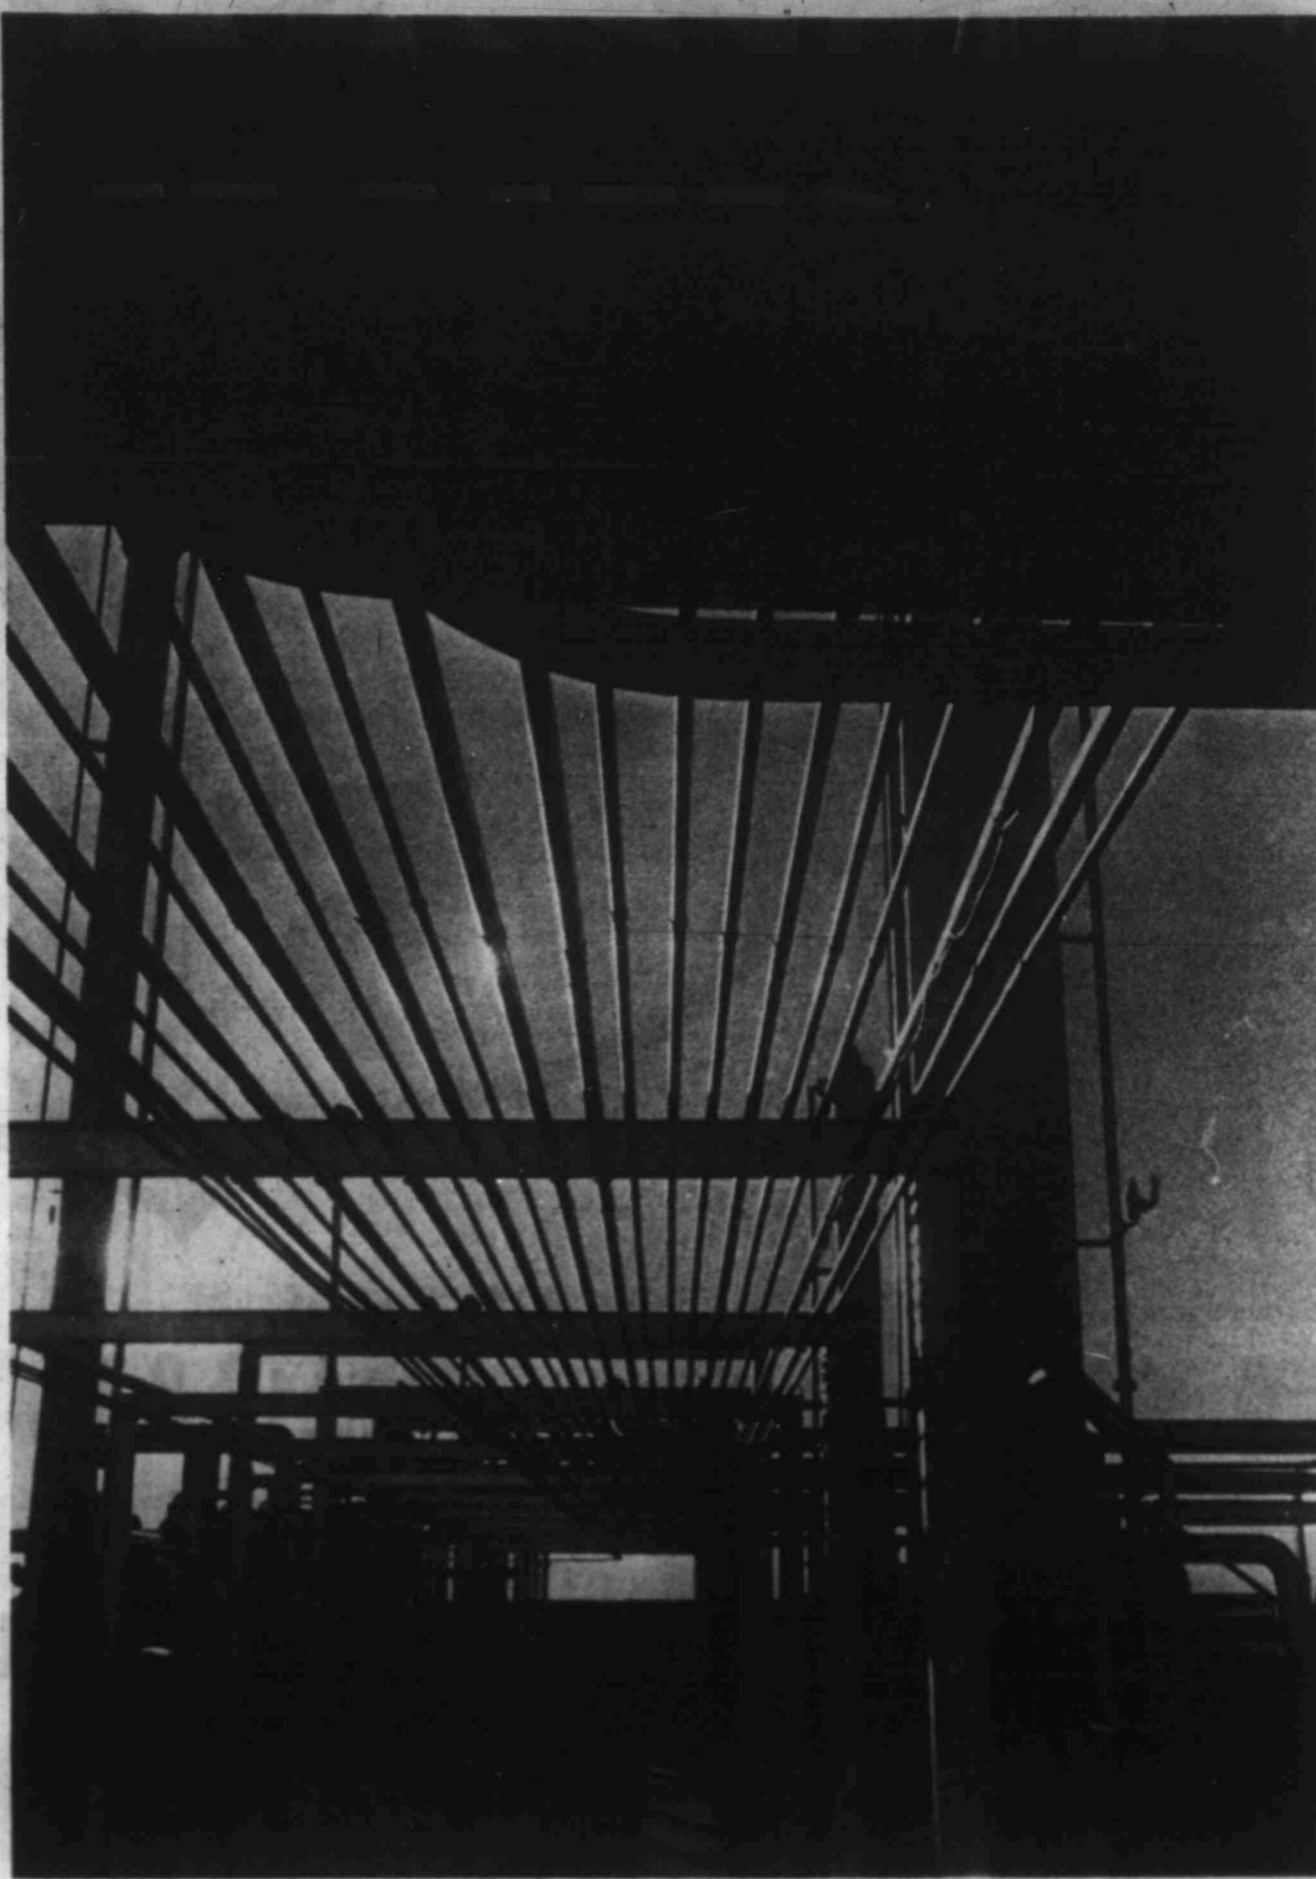

He warned, too, that the synthetic fuels program would generally be halted and that expansion of refining facilities would come to a standstill. In the marketing end, he predicted that many present service stations would be shutdown, or converted to self-service stations.

He said that in order to attract the capital need for marketing facilities, the price of gasoline at the pump would need to rise by 5 cents to 10 cents a gallon.

Oil industry witnesses warned that divestiture would impair rather than improve industry efficiency and would weaken the industry's ability to accomplish the big task of maintain and meet the nation's needs.

It remains to be seen whether such presentations will prove convincing to Congress in view of the apparent fact that many have already made up their minds.

In a Senate vote a few weeks ago, divestiture proposal was defeated by only a margin of 54-45. And some of those who voted against the action said they favor divestiture in principle but feel that full-scale hearings should be held first. Now those hearings are being held.

Stripper production accelerating from Texas petroleum sectors

HOUSTON—Texas, ranking first in the nation in both the number of stripper wells and production from such operations, provided 126,387,000 barrels of crude from these marginal wells during 1974.

Douglas

may make "pragmatic adjustments" to fit each situation.

"Behind the veneer of the court's opinion may be an unstated premise that the complexity of the task of regulating the wellhead price of gas sold by producers is both so great and novel that the commission must be given great leeway," Douglas said in his dissent.

The FPC retained the area formula until 1974 when it moved toward a single national rate of about 52 cents a thousand cubic feet.

This information was released at the recent meeting of the National Stripper Well Association at Houston.

The state's 87,412 stripper wells, defined as those capable of producing an average of no more than 10 barrels of oil daily, averaged 3.96 barrels during the year.

Remaining to be produced under stripper properties are an estimated 3 billion barrels of oil, much of which will be recovered by the use of secondary recovery methods, primarily the flooding of oil reservoirs by water to move the oil to producing wells.

During 1974, operators abandoned 4,608 wells when they had reached their economic limit. However, the national trend indicates a decline in the abandonment rate, an association spokesman said.

With no controls on stripper production, operators are increasing workovers and general remedial work to claim stripper production at a faster rate.

Bread prices drop after wheat sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — New figures by the Agriculture Department show that retail bread prices have averaged a penny lower since the United States began selling more wheat to Russia last July.

During the July-September quarter, USDA said Friday, a one-pound loaf of white bread cost an average of 35.2 cents, down from 36.2 cents in the second quarter.

Krueger says Ford crumbled under fire

Congressman Robert Krueger of New Braunfels said here Friday afternoon that President Ford, who reportedly is considering seriously the controversial energy bill now before Congress, isn't looking to Midland or to the United States, but to New Hampshire.

"The President is convinced that he has got to have a strong victory in New Hampshire in order to win the Republican nomination," Krueger said. "He is looking to the first election year primary in New Hampshire."

The congressman, in visiting with a group of oil men and women at the Midland Country Club, said he has defended the President on his energy policy in the past, but that Ford now has crumbled under election pressure. He said that if Ford signs the bill, he will not have held to his prior policy.

The meeting at the country club was arranged by members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Krueger said that the legislation, which sets the composite price of old and new oil at $7.66 a barrel, presents a bad situation and that there is no guarantee that Alaska oil will not be included later on.

He said that with a close vote by the Congress, the President yet may be encouraged to veto the measure. He said that he and others are working on wavering members.

He suggested that the White House be bombarded with mail and telephone calls urging that the President veto the bill when it reaches his desk.

"Talk to everyone you see, on the subject," the congressman suggested. "This is important to the country. If this bill becomes law, half of the oil used by this nation will be imported by 1980. The country's economy will be in dire peril."

Krueger also told what he has done and is doing to gain decontrol of oil. He said he will come back with another amendment on the subject.

Krueger also told what he has done and is doing to gain gradual decontrol of oil prices. He discussed his involvement in working for adoption by the House of the Senate-passed Pearson-Bentsen amendment which would decontrol prices of natural gas on the interstate market in the long term and provide for emergency allocation in short term.

He also mentioned new taxes being studied by the Ways and Means Committee, which would work a handout on independent oil operators.

Krueger said he has not lost faith in America; that there are many persons who want to do what is right for the country.

"I am doing what I am doing in Congress because I think it is right for the United States of America," he said. "I am an American first, then a Texan and then a Democrat, in that order."

Lawyer claims he halted Scott money

By G. DAVID WALLACE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The former top lawyer for the Gulf Oil Corp. says he halted an annual $25,000 payment to the law firm of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, but Scott personally objected to the decision.

Royce H. Savage, Gulf's general counsel from 1961 to 1969, said in a deposition filed in U.S. District Court on Friday that he ordered an end to the payment. But he failed to confirm or deny that the $25,000-a-year law firm retainer became a $10,000-a-year payment to Scott.

Savage also told of Gulf contributions to former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris in 1966, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., in 1972 and Jim Heugler, the man Jones defeated.

Savage said Scott's former

Philadelphia law firm of Obermayer, Rebmann, Maxwell & Hippell "had done very little or performed very little legal service for Gulf." He said he wrote the firm in late 1961 or early 1962 to end the payment but Scott arranged a meeting with him.

Another former Gulf lawyer, Thomas D. Wright, testified that Gulf lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr. had said he "had been following a practice of giving Sen. Hugh Scott $5,000 in the spring and $5,000 in the fall of each year." Wright said the money "was in connection with regular payments which had replaced a prior retainer arrangement." He said Wild told him the money was for "a personal matter, or for some office matter; never in connection with political contribution matters."

Tipperary wells flow

Tipperary Corp. of Midland Saturday announced it had acquired an additional 51,500 acres of oil and gas leases contiguous to the 99,000 acres of leases acquired earlier this year in the Piceance Basin of Western Colorado.

At the same time, Tipperary announced that recent Piceance drilling had resulted in two important Dakota gas wells.

Tipperary No. 25-C-1 was completed for a calculated open flow potential of 14 million cubic feet of gas per day.

The company's No. 33-D, which is in the process of completion, tested 5 million cubic feet per day during drilling operations.

South Africa continues its long search for elusive offshore petroleum fields

The Los Angeles Times

JOHANNESBURG — South Africa is continuing its search for offshore oil despite a decade of little success.

Some gas deposits have been tapped during the course of drilling about 50 bore holes off the South African coast in the next two years. One extraction plant now is operating, with construction planning under way for a second with 10 times the productive capacity of the first. The new plant, scheduled to be finished in five years, will cost more than $1 billion.

It has been estimated that the output from both plants will take care of about 40 per cent of the country's petroleum needs.

Blessed with extensive coal deposits, South Africa is not heavily dependent on oil for energy use. According to one estimate, only 30 per cent of the country's energy needs are based on oil.

South Africa's widening oil search and extraction plant programs seem to be rooted more in its second oil-from-coal extraction program sufficiency, its hope of cutting spending for oil, and reducing its dependence on foreign suppliers for that strategic commodity.

South Africa also is expanding its oil-from-coal extraction program sufficiency, its hope of cutting spending for oil, and reducing its dependence on foreign suppliers for that strategic commodity.

Rising world oil prices last year.

Texans have faith in future

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Texas consumers grew more confident about the economy during the third quarter of the year, Robert Ryan of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

"With economic data virtually complete for the third quarter," Ryan said, "evidence of economic recovery became irrefutable both in Texas and nationwide."

"Consumer confidence continued to strengthen, promising a good sales potential to the retailing industry during the critical fourth quarter," said Ryan, editor of the Texas Business Review.

Of Texas' economic indicators, Ryan said, "The only questionable development in September was the slight weakness in the job market. Though nonfarm employment did grow, the rate of increase from August to September was lower than the seasonal norm."

Ryan said the use of electrical power by industries in September "reached its highest level since last winter, a significant measure of the increase in demand for Texas manufacturers."

He added that the manufacturing work week increased to more than 40 hours for the first time in more than a year, "substantiating other indications of growing demand."

He noted that the number of single-family housing authorizations was 5 per cent higher in January-September than the same period last year, with the strongest gains in Midland, Odessa and Laredo.

"In all three cities," Ryan said, "the homebuilding boom has been brought about by increases in area petroleum development."

7 out of 10 Rabbit Tests are positive.

Our research shows that 70% of all the people who buy the Rabbit say that it was the test drive that made up their minds for them.

It's no wonder. The Rabbit drives like no other car you've ever driven before.

You see, in designing the Rabbit, we didn't just stop at things like front wheel drive and rack-and-pinion steering. We created a totally unique "independent stabilizer rear axle" that greatly increases the stability of the car through roads. And therefore the safety.

And speaking of safety, we gave the Rabbit features that you'll find on few other cars in the world. Like "negative steering roll radius," for example, which helps bring the car to a straight stop in the event of a front-wheel blowout.

But the two big things that everyone who drives the Rabbit really marvels at are: one, the amount of head and leg room (as much as some mid-sized cars); and two, its incredible pickup (0 to 50 in 8.2 seconds). Which is pretty amazing for a car that rates an EPA-estimated 39 mpg on the highway—and 25 in the city, with standard transmission. (Actual mileage may vary depending on type of driving, driving habits, car's condition and optional equipment.)

But don't just take our word for it. Stop in and take the Rabbit Test today.
