Murphey abductor's conviction voided

ATLANTA (AP) — A threejudge federal panel, citing pretrial publicity and improper closing arguments, today overturned the conviction of William A. H. Williams in the 1974 abduction of former Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel remanded the case back to the U.S. District Court Judge William C. O'Kelley, ordering him to set a date for a new trial.

The panel said Williams was denied a fair trial by extensive pretrial publicity and a "prejudicial" closing argument by government

U.S. Attorney John Stokes said the Justice Department is considering whether to appeal the decision before the full circuit court.

In an opinion written by Judge Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., the panel concluded that "intense pretrial publicity and the prejudicial closing argument by the government, operating together, deprived defendant of a fair trial on charges of extortion, use of the mails to transmit an extortionate communication and use of a firearm in the commission of

The judges singled out a con-troversial passage in the closing argument by Asst. U.S. Atty. Stephen Ludwick which said failure to convict Williams would be a "blank check" to allow him to commit crimes against the judge, jury and community.

They noted that at this point in the argument the defense attorney moved for a mistrial on grounds of impropriety, but the motion was denied.

The two factors — the "blank check" passage and extensive news coverage — combined to prevent the jury from deliberating "unencumbered by passion, prejudice or a confusion of the issues," the judges

They cited a 4,000-word bylined column by Murphy which appeared in combined Sunday editions of the Atlanta Journal and Constitution narrating his abduction and identifying Williams as its perpetrator.
"Victim Murphy's widely publicized and televised appraisals of appellant's personality made the task difficult," they wrote. "Burdened by the closing argument of the Assistant United States Attorney, the task became impossible.'

Williams, 35, was sentencted to 40 years on the convictions.

Murphy, 41, said he was shocked and disappointed by the reversal. "It's not the victims who are demanding the publicity in these cases," he said. "It's the perpetrators of the crimes."

Murphy, now editor and publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, commented during a visit to Georgia. He was released unharmed after 49 hours when the owners of the newspaper paid $700,000 ransom.

Calley files appeal with Supreme Court

Calley Jr. appealed his My Lai murder conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court today, saying Congress should have been compelled to release confidential data in his trial just as President Nixon was compelled to do in the Watergate scandal. Calley, 32, who sought un-successfully to use secret congressional testimony in his defense, noted that the high court had rejected Nixon's claim of con-fidentiality for the Watergate tapes. J. Houston Gordon of Covington, Tenn., Calley's attorney, said the court's ruling on Nixon held that no man or institution is above the law.

"Congress is not above the law," said the attorney in his petition asking the Supreme Court to review a federal appeals court ruling reinstating Calley's conviction.

Gordon said that the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans erred in not recognizing that a congressional committee withheld potential evidence from Calley's

The House Armed Services Committee refused to let the defense look at the results of its My Lai hearings which involved 3,045 pages of statements from 151 witnesses. The former lieutenant has been living as a civilian in Columbus, Ga. since his 1971 court-martial conviction was overturned Sept. 25, 1974.

The Army had appealed that ruling and the appeals court, in a 8-5 decision, reinstated Calley's conviction on charges related to the My Lai massacre.

Accused of killing 102 Vietnamese civilians in the sweep through the hamlet of My Lai in March 1968 Calley was convicted of murdering not less than 22 and sentenced to life

However, the sentence was reduced in subsequent appeals to 10 years and he was freed on bail a year ago. The Army has said it does not plan to

WASHINGTON — The United States "will continue to head downhill to disaster or to another form of government" unless wage and price controls are imposed the defense business, says the Navy's watchdog over weapons buying.

Gordon W. Rule, the Navy's director of procurement control, said recently in a little noticed speech that "our taxpayers' defense dollars are being ripped off shamefully."

Defense contractors "laugh at efforts to require them to be truly accountable for their spending of the taxpayers defense dollars," continued Rule, the Navy executive former President Nixon tried to silence for other critical comments.

"The very size of today's defense said Rule in one of the hardest hitting speeches ever made by a civil servant still in the Defense Departmetn's still in the Defense Departmetn's employ.

He wondered aloud among fellow Navy 'procurement officers why former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger "lamented" cuts in the military budget without facing up to "what is happening to the taxpayers' defense dollar due to the direct inflationary effect on the defense budget of no wage and price controls.

"It is my considered opinion," said Rule, "that our taxpayers' defense dollars are being ripped off shamefully. And until or unless this country reimposes wage and price controls.—

reimposes wage and price controls— at least in the defense sector—we, as a country, will continue to head downhill to disaster or to another form of government."

The Navy's most senior civil servant dealing in procurement also asserted that defense contractors and Pentagon leaders are lax in dealing with generals and admirals who violate conflict-of-interest rules.

Rule made his remarks at a Navy procurement officers' seminar on Oct. 30 and said on Wednesday that he still feels they needed saying "even though some people got sore as hell." He said in an interview that "people are not being told the facts of life about inflation. All signs indicate it is still double digit in defense contracting." He said such rampant inflation is bound to spread to the rest of the economy unless wage and price controls are reimposed.

Rule stressed in the interview that a lack of morality in the defense business should be a source of national concern. He pointed to what he said on that subject in his speech to Navy procurement officers.

"Do you believe for one minute," he asked, that defense contractors who have admitted bribing officials abroad would conform to a different moral standard in the United States? "I don't believe it and neither do you. The Northrop story" about Northrop entertaining defense procurement executives on Maryland's Eastern Shore "shows it isn't so," he told the officers.

He said "defense procurement would be sanitized" if companies that did not fulfill their contracts were allowed to go into bankruptcy rather than be rescued by the government.

"We all know, however," lamented-Rule, "that the Lockheeds, Grummans, Northrops, et al, are sacred cows for the politicians and the defense hierarchy, with the result that corporate morality is all but forgotten."

As for imposing morality on leaders of the military services, Rule said: "If one admiral or general, or any other officer, was court-martialed and dismissed for conflict-of-interest violations, the entire procurement operation - as well as Navy credibility - would be immediately enhanc-

Doctors begin slowdown

LONDON (AP) - Britain's system of socialized medicine faced the greatest crisis in its 27-year history today after thousands of hospital doctors began a work slowdown.

Hospitals prepared to close down and thousands of nonurgent admissions and outpatients were turned away as doctors began their revolt

Some of Britain's 19,000 hospital doctors, particularly in Scotland, refused to join the protest but first reports indicated a majority had carried out their threat to only treat emergencies or to put in a 9 a.m.-to-5 p.m., 40-hour week instead of their normal work week of twice that

Cancer patients, women in child-birth, children and emergency cases were still being treated but other National Health Service (NHS) patients faced the prospect of joining waiting lists already well over 500,000 for non-urgent operations for ailments such as hernias or varicose

Worse was to come Monday when 11,000 specialists, known here as consultants, join the emergencies-crisis climaxed weeks of bickering between doctors' representatives and Britain's Labor government, and in particular, Social Services Minister Mrs. Barbara

The hospital doctors, whose pay starts at about $6,000 a year, are demanding more money.

The specialists are battling for the right to treat private patients in NHS hospitals. Mrs. Castle wants them to work only for the state.

Eighteen London hospitals were already refusing new admissions today, and hospitals throughout the country had to close their emergency wards at 5 p.m. when doctors walked out, authorities said.

Warm weather due for few days

Nippy mornings and warm afternoons can be expected for the next few days, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal. "Highs should be in the 70s and lows in the 40s," the forecaster said today. After several days of below normal temperatures. Permian Basin residents have seen the weather moderate since Wednesday.

Gusty winds can be expected in the afternoons, the weathermen say. Big Lake and Andrews had cloudy skies and warm temperatures this morning, while Stanton, Rankin and Crane were cool and sunny. The Dawson County Sheriff's Department said it was "light jacket weather" in Lamesa.

Midland had an overnight low of 39 and it was expected to be the mid-70s this afternoon.

Warming south winds were putting to rout today the remnants of a gusty siege of cold weather which lingered into Thanksgiving Day across much of Texas.

And as the warmer air from the Gulf of Mexico spread inland as far as parts of West Texas, low clouds pread across the east and central parts of the state, the Associated Press reported.

Stanton needs new airport, city manager

STANTON - The Stanton City Council is in the market for both an airport and a new city manager.

Jimmy Mathis resigned his post as city manager on Monday to become a Martin County judge. Mathis replaces former judge Carol Yater who has left the post because of "pressing personal and business commitments.

The city council has voted to seek the aid of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission in replacing Mathis as city manager.

In the interim, Gaye Glynn, city secretary, will head the office and Mike Slate will head the "outside work" for the city.

The city council also voted to hire an appraiser to appraise the property surrounding the airport site before Dec. 1 upon the recommendation of the Federal Aviation Administration. It is located 5 miles north of Stanton

They also agreed to notify the administration (FAA) the city plans to continue the airport project even if their application for a grant from the Texas Aeronautics Council is rejected.

Stanton is seeking a 75 per cent grant from the FAA to construct a new airport facility and a 50 per cent grant on the remaining cost from the aeronautics council (TAC).

George Glynn, a member of the city-appointed airport board, told councilmen, however, the board had been assured by a TAC official that approval of the requested FAA grant likely would insure approval of the TAC grant request.

Without TAC funds, the city will have to provide more than $30,000 for the airport beyond the planned $7,790. The Martin County Commissioners Court already has earmarked $15,000 for the project.

London police search for Irish terrorist

LONDON (AP) - Police launched a massive manhunt today for suspected Irish terrorist slayers of Ross Mc-Whirter, co-editor and compiler of the Guinness Book of World Records.

Police said the Thursday night slaying of the wealthy, outspoken Conservative appeared to be the work of an Irish Republican Army execution squad. Earlier this month McWhirter, 50, offered a reward of up to $100,000 for

"I know the IRA have got me on a death list," he said three weeks ago, "but it's time someone spoke out against these outrages. I could be the bombers' next victim. Police said McWhirter was shot in the head and chest as he went to the front door of his imposing halftimbered home in Enfield, North London. They said McWhirter's wife, Rosemary, had just arrived home by car at 6:45 p.m. when she spotted two gunmen who produced revolvers. She fled into the house and told her husband, who was shot as he got to the front door.

Mrs. McWhirter rushed to her husband's crumpled body as the gunmen fled in her car, which was later found two miles from the scene. McWhirter was rushed to a hospital but died shortly after arrival.

Rain puts out blazes

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "The rains were the biggest fire fighter we had," said one weary fireman as two brush fires that had raged in the hills north and east of Los Angeles were contained.

In five days, the fires charred 100 square miles of land, caused $17.5 million damage, drove 5,600 persons from their homes and created the danger of flooding from winter storms.

Mop-up operations continued today. but all but a few of the thousands of fire fighters who struggled with the blazes in the San Gabriel Mountains had gone home.

Officials declared the fires contained Thursday night after a cold front swept a quarter inch of rain into the area.

"We had planned three hard days for mop-up operations, but the rains did it in 20 minutes," said Dave Waite, a U.S. Forest Service official. "The rains were the biggest fire fighter we

Mrs. King asks new probe

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Coretta King, widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King, has called for a reopening of the investigation of her husband's assassination, which she says was apparently the result of a government conspiracy.

'I don't have the facts but at this stage I say it appears there was a conspiracy in the death of my husband," she said in an interview Thursday.

Mrs. King, who is in Nairobi on a three-nation African tour, commented on the admission by the FBI that it undertook a harassment campaign to discredit King, and a subsequent order by Atty. Gen. Edward Levi of a review of the agency's investigation of King's shooting death in 1968. James Earl Ray pleaded guilty to the killing in Memphis, Tenn., and was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

"The way he was documented and followed around by Hoover and the CIA when he was abroad, it would have to have been attached to the forces of our government that felt he was a threat to the system as it existed," Mrs. King said, referring to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover.

"I think there are grounds for reopening the case," she said. "I have always felt there was more to it than came out. I also felt somehow in the long run of history it would be revealed - just what did happen."

She said she felt recent investigations into the FBI and CIA provided new evidence.

"I feel it requires further investigation into the death of my husband, as well as the assassinations of others from the Kennedys on."

In Washington, meanwhile, former King aide Ralph David Abernathy and comedian Dick Gregory led 30 of the White House to demand President Ford order a new "in-dependent investigation" of the Rocky starts campout, hunt on South Texas ranch

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller predicted Thursday that newly installed Spanish King Juan Carlos will be able to pull rival Spanish factions

The vice president made the prediction at the airport here Thursday night when he arrived for a weekend hunting trip on his south Texas ranch. He flew here from Spain, stopping in New York to leave his wife and to pick up two of their children for the weekend trip to South Texas.

Rockefeller had represented President Ford at the funeral of Francisco Franco and the inauguration of King Juan Carlos. Speaking of the new Spanish king, the vice president described him as "a very intelligent and dedicated fine young man."

"He's got a tough job ahead of him.

pulling all the factions together, but I think he's up to it," Rockefeller said. A crowd of about 200 persons, including a group of civic leaders from Willacy County, greeted the vice president. It is his second visit to this area in the past year. The vice president will be camping out in a tent on his 6,000-acre ranch north of Raymondville. The ranch, purchased earlier this year from Brownsville cattlemen Frank D. Yturria, is part of a 12,400-acre tract in the San Juan de Carricitas grant and was once part of the huge, famed

Although the vice president and his party will be "roughing it" by camping out in the brushy, flat ranchland on this trip, there were indications that he may not have to do so on his next trip. Harlingen Mayor Bob Youker, a member of the official welcoming party, said Rockefeller told him he brought an architect with him and is planning to build a lodge on

After greeting the welcoming party at the side of U.S. Air Force plane, the vice president walked down a fence where spectators had been waiting for hours. He shook every extended hand, stopped to chat with many of the spec-autographs.

Asked what effect he thinks the candidacy of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will have on the upcoming presidential campaign, Rockefeller said, "Nothing special." Saying he believes President Ford will have little trouble winning the Republican nomination, Rockefeller, said "He's my candidate" said "He's my candidate."

MARK FURR, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Furr, has received the Eagle Scout Award in a ceremony at St. Luke's United Methodist Church. John White is scoutmaster of Troop 160 to which Furr belongs.

Isn't that the way it is with almost everything? The way we react to a situation so often depends upon the way it affects us personally. We aren't to be blamed for this; yet we should stop to think that there are two sides to every story. We should not judge the merit of a viewpoint on whether or not it agrees with our own opinion. The Church is used to different viewpoints, to controversy. It has lived with changing times and opinions for centuries, and it has never been more involved than it is today. The Church is changing as change is needed, ever ready to investigate and to explore the new. Have you been keeping up with it?

Ex-Midlander joins publishing company

NASHVILLE, Tenn. - Former Midlander Johnny Godwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Godwin of that city, has a new position with the Broadman Press, the general publishing arm of the Southern Baptist Convention, headquartered here.

RELIGION

Godwin has been named supervisor of the books and music section for the Broadman Press. He joined the organization in 1970 as editor of youth materials in the Sunday school department and in 1972 became coordinating editor in the Sunday school department's youth section where he served until his recent promotion.

Godwin graduated from Baylor University and received bachelor of divinity and master of divinity degrees from Southwestern Seminary at Fort Worth. He has served as pastor of Baptist churches at Hewitt, Cayuga, DeLeon and Midland, and also is a former member of the pastoral staff of Midland's First Baptist Church. He has been a guest instructor at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Mill Valley,

New series of jazz records being released by company

The Los Angeles Times There is a new jazz label on the horizon - or more correctly there is a new Horizon on the label, since that is the name imprinted on a new series of LPs released by a subsidiary of A-and-

The company that took off like a brassy bull in 1962 with Herb Alpert and the TJB has been so busy turning out pop hits that other facets of musical experience were relegated to the back of the bull ring. Jazz was limited to an occasional release, mainly in the late 1960s when Creed Taylor produced for A-and-M. The first batch of albums on Horizon reflects an acknowledgement on the part of Alpert and his associates that there is a market for fresh, exploratory jazz. The most welcome item is "Suite for Pops" by the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis orchestra. Recorded in 1972 (months after the death of Satchmo, in whose honor it was written by Jones), but never made public, the work was refurbished with the re-recording of one movement last summer and now is available on Horizon SP-701.

The suite, to be honest, is a patchwork. The original work as heard in concert comprised three movements, heard on the first side; to these were added three more, designed to round out an album-length work. The two trilogies are separated in the album by a composition called "Toledo By Candlelight," composed by the late Gary McFarland and intended to be part of an entirely different suite which he did not live to

All this, however, is of secondary importance. Program music does not succeed through a literal use of the source of inspiration; it is enough that Armstrong inspired Jones to write six multi-textured works ideally suited to the orchestra. Except for a touch of New Orleans Mardi Gras in the final movement, there is little that directly suggests the traditionalism of Satch. The most prominent soloist is not cornetist Jones but Jerry Dodgion, on soprano sax. One of the pieces, "The Farewell," is more evocative of Ellington than of Louis, complete with plunger muted trombone by Ms. Janice Robinson. As for the McFarland interlude, if it had been retitled "New Orleans by Gaslight" nobody would have been the wiser.

New bill poses problem of age discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) - Should a 12year-old be allowed to decide whether he needs surgery?

Federal officials are faced with deciding a myriad of such questions under a little-noticed provision of a bill passed by Congress that now is awaiting President Ford's signature. The provision bans "unreasonable age discrimination" in programs receiving federal funds.

There were no hearings and virtually no floor debate on the ban, which was added to a bill continuing federal programs for the aged President Ford hasn't decided whether to sign the bill, a White House spokesman said Wednesday.

"It's going to come as a great shock to the hundreds of thousands of institutions that will be covered but didn't know about it as the bill was going through Congress," an official of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said

Under the bill, HEW would draw up regulations banning "unreasonable age discrimination" in programs receiving federal money

"Congress not only didn't decide how the bill should be enforced, it didn't decide what unreasonable age discrimination is. This bill doesn't just affect the elderly. It includes everyone," the HEW official said

HEW officials said other questions that would have to be decided in-

-Should a 50-year-old be allowed to use scarce vocational rehabilitation facilities, when a younger person presumably would benefit more from job training because he would be further from retirement?

-Should a 40-year-old be allowed to enter medical school when a younger applicant, who probably would practice longer, is turned away?

"The problem is in deciding just what the age is where unreasonable age discrimination begins. It may start at 40 for some things, 50 for others and 60 for still others," another HEW official said.

The officials declined to be quoted by name as long as Ford has not decided whether the bill should be

The bill would affect virtually all school districts, colleges and universities, hospitals, medical schools, vocational rehabilitation programs, child-care programs and many other types of programs and institutions.

Under the bill, federal funding could be ended if the programs and institutions failed to abide by the regulations on age discrimination.

The Thanksgiving night nationally televised game was played in perfect football weather—no wind and temperatures in the high 30s.

'We played great in the fourth quarter to come back the way we did," Rodgers said. The only problem was, it was too late.

He is complemented by halfback Ramon Gonzales, who rushed for 1,109 yards in regular season and 105 yards last week against Crane.

Nearly all of Slaton's offensive punch comes from tailback Bill McClesky, who had 1,397 yards rushing in his first 10 games. Rams nail down title

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - A drippy dome made the Pontiac Stadium turf a soggy synthetic, but the Detroit Lions just weren't able to throw a wet blanket on Los Angeles' Thanksgiving Day party.

The Rams rode to their third consecutive National Conference West Division title Thursday on the passing arm of James Harris, handing the Lions a 20-0 National Football League

It was the first time the Lions had been shut out since an identical 20-0 setback to Washington in the 1973 Turkey Day game.

Although all 80,638 tickets were sold, 11,086 persons decided not to show up for the traditional holiday battle-perhaps chosing to join the estimated 40 million who viewed the game on national television. While the Rams raised their record to 9-2. Detroit fell to 6-5 to see its flickering wild-card playoff hopes just about vanish. The unbeaten Minnesota Vikings, meanwhile didn't even have to leave the dinner table to clinch the Central Division title. The loss by second-place Detroit did that. "It's not over for us," said Lions' Coach Rick Forzano, always the eternal optimist. "If I die tomorrow, I'll say on my gravestone that this team gave everything they had. These guys don't know the meaning of the word

The Rams don't know the meaning of the word, either. Harris wouldn't quit throwing touchdown passes and wide receiver Harold Jackson wouldn't quit catching. Harris completed 11 of 24 passes for 157 yards and three TDs. The first was a first-quarter 11-yarder to wide receiver Ron Jessie. The next two went to Jackson, a 17yarder in the third period and a 38yard bomb in the fourth quarter. Jackson, who had little trouble evading cornerback Levi Johnson, snared five passes for 106 yards.

While most of this country dines on leftover turkey, Texas A&M will be trying to carve up some tough old beef.

The second-ranked Aggies clashed with fifth-ranked Texas in the first half of a nationally televised college football doubleheader. Tonight, UCLA, ranked No. 14, meets Southern Cal in a battle that will determine who meets Ohio State in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Boasting the nation's No. 1 defense, the Aggies will be taking on the nation's highest scoring offense when the run up against the Longhorns. Texas A&M, 9-0, is seeking its first football victory over Texas since 1967.

"If you don't get sweaty palms over a game like this then you're not alive," said Texas Coach Darrell Royals, who is 17-1 over A&M in his

For the last three years it has been A&M with the sweaty palms. The Aggies have fumbled the opening snap the last three times the two teams have met. But defensive tackle Jimmy Dean promises "that won't happen this year. It's a big game but we won't be uptight about it."

Following the Lone Star State battle, crosstown rivals Southern Cal and UCLA go before the ABC television cameras. Southern Cal is already going to the Liberty Bowl, but UCLA must win if it wants a postseason spot.

A victory would give the Uclans a share of the Pacific-8 conference championship and a berth

Today's gridiron doubleheader will be the middle section of ABC's five-game holiday feast. Saturday, ABC will telecast the traditional Army-Navy rivalry and another intra-state battle between fourth-ranked Alabama and Auburn. The Army-Navy matchup is strictly a matter of pride. Navy, 6-4, is a three-touchdown favorite over Army, 2-8. But the Cadets are smarting after being shut out by Navy the past two years and an upset would more than make up for their losing record. Alabama, 9-1, already has a Sugar Bowl berth against Penn State. But Saturday night's game marks Auburn Coach Shug Jordan's farewell. In his 25th season at the Tigers' helm, Jordan's Auburn team has posted a disappointing 3-5-2 record. A victory over 'Bama would be a lovely retirement present.

In another big game Saturday, eighth-ranked Arizona State, 10-0, goes against No. 12 Arizona, 9-1. The winner earns the Western Athletic Conference crown and the host berth in the Fiesta Bowl against Nebraska.

Alcott wins top money in golf

MANILA (AP) - Amy Alcott of the United States, the 19-year-old 1975 rookie of the year on the women's professional golf tour, won the $1,000 top prize money in the 18-hole $5,500 women's international proam tournament today.

Runner-up and winner of $900 was Canadian Sandra Post, the defending champion of the Far East Women's Open which is scheduled at Melbourne's Victoria golf course in Australia, Third place and $800 went to American Sandra Palmer, winner of the 1975 Dinah Shore Winner's Circle tourney.

Fourth was Sue Roberts of the United States, who won $700.

The 17 pros, among the world's top women golfers, were teamed up each with two men and one woman-all amateurs-in each foursome. Only the best ball in each foursome counted.

Miss Alcott's foursome scored a string of two eagles and seven birdies at the Manila Golf and Country Club's 6,440-yard par-72 course for a 11under par 33-28-61.

Miss Post's quartet had an identical 30-31-61. However, they had no eagles and birdied 11

Miss Palmer's group also had a 30-31-61 score. They won third place with one bogey, two eagles, eight birdies.

Who said that the 1975 football season is over in Midland?

Well, anyone saying or thinking that is very much in error, thanks to the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

True, the season ended two weeks ago for the Tall City high schools, but not for Midland Memorial Stadium, scene of many thrilling gridiron encounters through the years.

And two more exciting, hardfought football games between four bi-district championship teams . are scheduled in the stadium this weekend.

The Alpine Bucks will play the Slaton Tigers in Midland Memorial Stadium at 7:30 p.m. today in a Class AA regional playoff.

Then at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, the Pecos Eagles will meet the Lubbock Estacado Matadors in a Class AAA regional championship

These are four of the top high school teams in this section of West Texas, and some topnotch football as played by champions will be on tap in both games.

Alpine defeated Crane for the right to meet Slaton, winner over Anson in bi-district. Estacado beat Graham and Pecos nipped Perryton in bi-district matches. So, the stage now is set for the regional encounters here.

A most cordial, typically West Texas welcome is directed to the players on the four teams involved in the contests here, and to the several thousand fans who will follow their respective teams to the Tall City. Midland and Midlanders are delighted and honored to have them here.

Hopefully, large crowds of Midlanders will turn out for both games. We know that the visitors will be in the stands, and we would urge as many football fans as possible from Midland and immediate vicinity to join them there in witnessing high school football at its best.

The Sports and Recreation Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, incidentally, is due a snappy salute and a pat on the back for bringing the two games to the Tall City, on invitation. Members of the committee scored heavily in landing the regional battles. The committee in the past has brought several playoff games to the Tall City, but this is believed to be the first time that regional battles have been landed on successive

The main thing right now is to make our visitors feel perfectly at home in Midland. The city is theirs on this occasion.

It's worth trying

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan told a large Dallas audience recently that in a fouryear term as President he could balance the nation's budget and begin paying off the $400 billion national debt.

He said also that he would freeze the number of federal employes if elected President.

These are interesting observations which most Americans like to hear

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE:

A new view of aid to education presented

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - When Sputnik went up in 1957, the blast-off rattled the foundations of the American education system.

Questioning the job that American schools were doing (for how else could the Russians have been first in space?), Congress rushed through the National Defense Education Act of 1958 which pushed federal money into willing school systems.

In that year, the federal outlay for aid to elementary and secondary education totaled $700 million (using the 1974 value of the dollar).

Today, after nearly two decades of legislation rooted in the belief that massive doses of money can cure most any social ill, the federal education aid budget has reached $5.3 billion.

But like the concept that the nation's health, housing and welfare problems needed primarily lots of money behind lots of programs drafted in Washington, the education funding concept now has come under critical scrutiny.

A recently released four-year study by the U.S. Office of Education revealed that one of every five adult "Americans can't read, write or do arithmetic well enough to hold a job or otherwise function competently in our complex society.

At the same time this study was being released, the College Entrance Examination Board, which gives tests to high school seniors who need good scores to get into many colleges, said it would try to find out why test scores, which measure aptitude, have been declining for the last 12 years.

These two news reports, coupled with a surge of public sentiment for holding down federal spending, have produced letters from parents and taxpayers to their representatives on Capitol Hill.

There aren't a lot of letters, but most are asking, as a Parent-Teacher Association (PTA) president in Pennsylvania did, "just what are we getting for all the tax dollars that are being spent on all these (federal) programs?"

Federal education money presently amounts to only 7 per cent of all money spent on elementary and secondary education. But while most of the state and local money goes for salaries, buildings and pensions, most of the federal aid programs are aimed at improving curricula and methods.

Congress wanted not only to make more kids better educated in the basics, but also to make them better adjusted and better able to cope with and contribute to American society.

Dollars, billions of them, seemed the logical answer. While Congress still understands that quality education isn't cheap, there is growing sentiment for more accountability and elimination of programs that aren't working.

The removal of Agnew, Nixon indicated to Colson, would take some of the heat off himself from Watergate. Colson contended, on the contrary, that a crippled vice president would be his best insurance against impeachment.

Colson said his client was worried about going to prison. "He should have no fear about that," assured Nixon. "That can be taken care of."

For the first time, Colson put the proposition straight to Agnew on Sept. 24. He had no support in the White House; his situation was deteriorating fast; maybe it was time to make a deal.

Gov. Ronald Reagan campaigns in masterful fashion

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - Ronald Reagan in his first two days as a fullfledged presidential candidate showed how difficult it will be for President Ford's supporters to successfully brand him the Barry Goldwater of 1976. While preaching the evangelical conservatism that delights the wing, Reagan avoided the hipshooting that destroyed Goldwater in 1964. Moreover, his advisers have salted his prepared statements with a phrase here and there retreating from unrelieved anti-dentente and pro-big business dogmatism. The high point of the first two days was an hour-long question-and-answer session in Manchester, N.H., attended by 1,100, which proved one of the virtuoso exhibitions in Reagan's dozen years in politics. The controlled, entertaining and often eloquent performance could be matched in mechanical execution by no other candidate today.

Republican party's dominant right

Thus, the news for the White House from Reagan's campaign debut in five key primary states (Florida, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Illinois, California) is bad: the Ford campaign formula for cutting down the Reagan challenge is unlikely to get much help from Reagan himself.

That formula began emerging vithin the last two weeks. Ford peratives, belatedly reconciled to Reagan's running, started spreading he word that the Republican party hould never repeat the debacle of 964 by nominating another Gold-

Indeed, Reagan's positions on this opening swing were as inflexibly rightward as Sen. Goldwater's: antiabortion, anti-busing, anti-ERA, critical of the United Nations and the Vladivostock SALT agreement, probusiness, pro-balanced budget, promilitary spending.

Where Reagan last week differed from Goldwater a decade ago is the absence of offhand, extreme-sounding Reagan pronouncements on Social Security, nuclear warfare and the like. In fact, Reagan erred on the side of caution last week. Weak spots of his opening press conference in Washington were his refusal to discuss specifics of defense spending and New York fiscal problems for lack of detailed knowledge - inadvertent deferral to the incumbent President's expertise.

Moreover, Reagan's opening speech contained two small items of success for what his astute campaign manager, John Sears, has sought all year: a subtly altered posture making Reagan acceptable to the great American center.

Item No. 1: He listed "big business" along with "the Congress, the bureaucracy, the lobbyists and big labor" as among the nation's problem-makers. Item No. 2: While assaulting the Ford administration's soft-boiled bargaining with the Soviet Union, he proposed to "continue" to seek peace "through detente." Reagan's ideological rigidity still poses some problems. Responding to questions at Manchester from radical young members of the People's Bicentennial Commission, he could not bring himself to say a harsh word about corporate business. He begged off criticizing the FBI in the Martin Luther King affair by claiming on Thursday he had not read the newspapers and on Friday that he should not prejudge the case. His impromptu statement in Manchester that "moderation" has limits - as with a brain surgeon of only 'moderate' ability - was so reminiscent of Goldwater's selfdestruction in 1964 that Reagan's aides nearly swooned.

On balance, however, Ronald Reagan came over as no more extreme than Jerry Ford - plus a good deal more masterful. In addition, the opening trip pointed up two developments with the unfolding

Reagan campaign. First was the "people's press conference" in Manchester Thursday night where free tickets were given out on a first-come, first-served basis (including to young radicals). Former Gov. Hugh Gregg, Reagan's hard-nosed New Hampshire manager, conceived the idea and stubbornly insisted on it over the opposition of Lyn Nofziger, Reagan's press secretary and longtime political adviser. It was such a success (acknowledged by Nofziger) that the concept will not only be repeated throughout New Hampshire but perhaps in larger states as well. Second was the presence on the campaign plane of Dr. Martin Anderson, one of the brightest, most respected of the early Nixon White House staffers. Anderson, now at Stanford University's Hoover Institute, agreed last Wednesday to join the Reagan campaign fulltime and will provide further insurance against Goldwaterish gaffes. For example, Anderson may modify Reagan's grandiose scheme for turning $90 billion in federal welfare spending over to the states and cities, to make it a gradual process phased out over Reagan's unmatched ability to field unrehearsed questions buttressed by responsible professionals such as John Sears and Marty Anderson means that success for his challenge. though still improbable, becomes more possible by the day. It also suggests the Ford forces may have trouble painting Reagan as a wild man of the right and instead may have to revive the fading popularity and prestige of the President.

Satellite to become energy hunt partner

By FRANK MACOMBER

Copley News Service America's Nimbus-6 weather satellite is about to become a partner in the nation's constant search for new oil resources at the top of the

Its success or failure could have far-reaching impact on oil recovery operations in the arctic regions.

A small Santa Barbara, Calif., firm, Polar Research Laboratory, is building 16 data-collection platforms to be air-dropped on arctic ice packs. They will report by radio transmission to the polar-orbiting Nimbus-6 on the movement of the arctic ice pack in the Beaufort Sea north of Alaska's oil-laden Prudhoe Bay area. The satellite, in turn, will relay to ground stations the information from the platforms, giving scientists a clue as to how the ice pack is behaving. Oil companies drilling or planning to sink new land or sea wells in the arctic need to know more about how the ice is moving, its rate of summer melt and other characteristics, if they are to locate new fuel sources for an energy-hungry America. Strangely, the arctic polar bear, which eats just about anything it can bite into, has a role in this arctic Beaumont M. Buck, president of Polar Research, says the polar bear could be a hazard to the radioequipped platforms his company is building.

"This arctic native is extremely curious and usually . hungry," says Buck. "It will attempt to chew on most anything that appears different from the natural surroundings. "With this in mind, we are making the exterior sphere of the air-dropped platforms out of tough lexan, which even a bear will find difficult to bite."

If this unique project succeeds, two "firsts" will have been achieved—the first, day-to-day tracking of ice-pack movement in the arctic, and a pioneering airdrop of radio platforms

The platforms are designed to communicate with a Nimbus-6 system capable of contacting and receiving data from more than 1,000 fixed or mobile land or sea platforms. Why track polar ice?

Amoy sets site in Yates area

Amoy Minerals Corp., San Antonio, will drill a %-mile south stepout to the two-well Yates oil area of the Vaughn field of Crockett County, 15 miles northwest of Ozona. It is No. 15-B J.

Location is 990 feet from north and 2,310 feet from east lines of section 4, block UV, ULS survey. Planned depth is 1,100 feet. It also is a location north and west offset to San Andres production in the field.

In the Beaufort Sea area it is especially important for oil drillers and pipeline layers to know how winter sea ice interacts with the continental shelf. In the summer, they must know why, where and how much

So far, scientists are in the dark about how the ice pack piles up and how far down toward the bottom along the shelf it may reach. Moreover, they don't know precisely where deep arctic water meets the shallow continental shelf, nor how fast the ice moves in deep water or how close and how swiftly it heads toward the shore. Another unanswered question vital to prospective drillers: where and how much does the ice pack melt during the short arctic summer? All these answers will be important to government and industry. The government must know more about the continental shelf to allocate more arctic drilling areas and oversee their use by industry. Oil companies want to know the same things to guide their exploration plans, comply with environmental and ecological laws, locate and lay their pipelines.

The pack's behavior will determine, for example, whether drilling rigs are built on top of the ice or sunk into the seabed beneath, whether pipelines are to be buried under the ocean floor. on the bottom or laid over the pack.

The platforms, to be dropped onto the pack by parachute from small aircraft, will cost about $6,000 each. As additional platforms are needed to chart the vast arctic ice floe regions, the price is expected to drop to $2,000 or $3,000.

Present high cost limits use of solor energy cells

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - For over 20 years the United Staes has had the technology ot use sunlight for the production of electricity. There is increasing evidence that within a decade such devices will cost no more than other means of generating elec-tric power and that they could produce signficant quantities. Yet government policy seems indifferent. The devices are called solar cells. Most solar cells are made from silicon which is made of orindary sand. The cell is wafer thin and produces electricity when sunlight hits it. Developed primarily for the space program, these "power plants" were very costly in the 1960's.

Early in the 1970's, howeve,r one small manufacturer began making solar cells for use on earth. Within two years the price had dropped by a factor of five. Although the price is still too high for widespread use (it is now about 17 times the cost of traditionally generated electricity), these cells are being sold, at a profit, for such uses as medical auxiliary stations, radio repeater units, highway warning lights, and weather monitoring stations. They are used in places where it would be more expensive to install electric lines and are supplemented with storage batteries for cloudy days. government reports, expert testimony and the manufacturers of solar cells agree that the technology works. In contrast to nuclear fusion or the breeder reactor we have increasing experience with its reliability. The only obstacle to the widespread use of solar cells is their high cost.

Everyone admits that the cost can only be reduced by creating a market large enough to permit the automated produciton fo solar cells. More research and development funds are of no help at all.

At present, the foremost cost component is labor. Yet, solar cells are semi-conductor devices that are easier to manufacture than inthemselves readily to automation. Several manufacturers as well as independent consultants have come up with remarkably similar charts that show how prices would drop as sales increased and production methods improved.

The conclusion is that if the amount of solar cell-produced electricity were tirpled each year, the price would drop low enough for residential use within a decade and meet 1 per cent of the nation's electricity. In 25 years they could meet anywhere from 30 per cent to 100 per cent of the country's need, depending on factors that have nothing to do with the cost or production of cells. The most important of these factors is experienced person-

These production tables are not based on romantic visions, but on experience in related industries.

In the early 1950's the Defense Department was faced with a similar situation with respect to transistor development. The transistor was expensive - some 20 to 100 times more expensive than the vcuum tube. The Defense Department, howeve,r thought it important to develop the transistor for military reasons. With its help the price dropped by a factor of almost 100 within 10 years.

Unfortunately there is at present ao such commitment on the part of the Defense Department to do the same with solar cells. One would think that national security arguments are even more persuasive in this instance.

Increased solar cell use would decrease our reliance on foreign fuels. Solar cell devices can be built efficiently in small power units (as opposed to nuclear reactors which require large market areas) making our power supply less vulnerable to enemy attack. Quite possibly, too, they migh thalt the proliferation of nuclear plants with their potential for

Would it not be better to supply foreing countries with solar cells than nuclear reactors?

Why doesn't the Defense Department consider the case for solar cells comparable to that of transistors? Why such lukewarm support?

Last June the Energy Research and Development Agency elevated solar energy to the same status as nuclear fusion and the breeder reactor. Yet funding for the coming year shows a gross disparity among the three. Equal priority is meaningless if solar energy gets only a fraction of the money the others get, if the chief energy official, Frank Zarb, publicly urges that nuclear energy be pushed aggressively, if the government is still intent on building one nuclear actor a month for the next fifteen easr and if the Federal Energy Administration sets up a special office to obby for nuclear energy within the

Yet, the production versus cost tables show that the government could develop solar cells at minimal

The first thing needed is a survey to find existing federal facilities where economically feasible. Coast Guard officials agree, for example, that reliable solar cells could save them money on their 12,000 minor lighting systems and buoys. Their purchase alone would almost double the production of the infant industry and almsot surely lead to cost reductions.

The trouble is that big government and big business do not yet know how to deal with the new device. Government reports consistently note that solar cell electricity will first become community use. Yet government officials insist that the cell must be proven successful as compared with ex-

It also seems clear that the govern-I ment does not like to deal with small! business. yet it is the small manufacturers who entered the field when the big boys were not interested, whohave reduced the cost of solar electric power, who have gained experience and who have demonstrated that solar power is not just a dream.

Chinese still seclude foreign businessmen

The Washington Post

CANTON - In the last quarter of the 7th century, the emperor Kang Hsi decided that foreign businessmen had certain technological secrets that China might use, but that they were essentially barbarians and should be segregated in a small area outside the walls of the great South China port of Canton. In the last quarter of the 20th century, the men who rule China have basically the same opinion. Although foreign devils travel more widely in China now than then, the thousands of businessmen who come here every year for China's spring and autumn export-commodity fairs are mostly segregated together in the vast, 1,200-room Tung Fang Hotel on the northern edge of the city. THE CHINA traders come here from the four corners of the earth to buy Chinese products at the monthlong fair and to make contacts to sell their own wares. They are essentially at sea, however, in the vast, implacable ocean of China and the Chinese way of business. The clash of cultures and the lack of diversions drives them, after a hard day of business negotiations, to letting off steam at the Tung Fang because there is nowhwere else to go. time to a "Demented cruise ship." The Chinese attitude seems to be that the foreign devils can do anything they like as long as they do it at the Tung Fang, which translates "eastern place" in Chinese. Thus, except for an occasional trip to town to eat at a Cantonese restaurant - like an occasional port of call - the traders carouse in the confines of the hotel itself.

Architecturally, the hotel is a disaster. The old wing, built only in 1961, is Soviet-style grim and is so run down, bugridden and shabby that it looks more than a hundred years old. THE NEW wings, completed last year, look like prison blocks. The rooms are ce cleaner, but when you knock on a door six people say "Come in," and secretive traders have been knwon to get into bed and under the covers to place long-distance telephone calls to their home offices. There are no bars, nightclubs movies or television at the Tung

Fang. For want of anything else, a stark, neon-lit dining room on the 11th floor serves as a place where traders can gather around a table and drink. It is known ironically as the "Top of the Fang." But the real nightlife goes on in people's rooms. Most traders bring their own booze up from Hong Kong, and the British have been known to bring a dartboard. The traders drink and complain about business and the Chinese. The hotel staff, augmented at fair time by foreign-language students, bear the barbarians with good humor

IN CHINA, however, it is not appreciated when a foreign devil pulls the pigtail of a waitress. Certain rules vis-a-vis the Chinese are quickly established although whatever the foreigners wish to do among themselves is tolerated.

An English girl remembers being approached in the lobby by a Japanese businessman carrying the latest Sanyo stereo tapedeck. The businessman formally invited the girl up to his room to dance the tango. An American woman trader remembers waking up in thenight to see an Algerian trader dressed in a Kaftan climbing from one balcony to another.

The after-hours activities are not all obstreperous. At most there is a clubcar atmosphere of quiet drinking with traders weaving down the long corridors as if the hotel were in a heavy sea. Like similar hotels around the world, the Tung Fang is a lonely place filled with traveling salesmen. A note on the bulletin board says: "Needing two bridge-players. Please Mr. Murti and Mr. Babu."

NO ONE locks his door at the TUng Fang, and if even a stamp is left in the room after you check out it will be returned to you or kept until you return for the next fair. In the lobby there is a small display case filled with such things as an old razor, a few coins, keys, pens, spectacles and a fedora hat — a display of artifacts from an alien civilization. It is the lost-and-found.

For some businessmen here trying to trade with China, the evening is a time for writing up reports and trying to contact the home office by Telex. The trading never really stops. When some intoxicated Scandinavians went up to the roof to watch a fireworks display the other night, they found it wasn't just a pleasant diversion. It was a representative of the Elkton Sparkler Co. of Elkton, Md., trying to decide whether to order a shipment of "Pearl Flower" pinwheels or "Smiling Moon" skyrockets for the American bicentennial.

Postal service says holidays minor problem

Service, which has posted new limitations on overtime and hiring extra workers because of its $7million-a-day deficit, says it still can handle what may be its busiest holiday mail season.

More than 9 billion pieces of mail are expected to move through the nation's post offices between today and Christmas Eve.

An additional burden could be mass mailings by businesses in advance of the Dec. 28 increase in postal rates. The cost of mailing a first class letter is scheduled to increase from 10 cents to 13 cents.

"All of the big mailers are going to throw in their stuff before that new rate increase comes in and it could conceivably jam up the mails very badly," said Henry Cooper, executive director of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

But a Postal Service spokesman said, "We think we have anticipated every possible problem and post offices will be cleared of all mail on Christmas Eve."

Deputy Postmaster General W.F. Bolger this month ordered "substantial reductions in the amount of overtime used for the distribution and delivery of mail" because of the Postal Service's deficit, currently

His letter to regional postal officials added, "The Christmas mailing period should not be excluded from our effort to reduce overtime. To the contrary, it is a unique opportunity to really reduce costs."

But heads of the two largest postal unions say overtime is the key to moving the mail this Christmas

"If the mail is there, then they have to pay overtime to move it out. We will get bombed with mail other than Christmas cards, but if they let the professional staff handle it, then there won't be any problem." said James Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter

Francis Filbey, president of the American Postal Workers Union, said, "The postmaster general has assured me that overtime will be used whenever it is really necessary."

The Postal Service spokesman said. 'The (1975) regulations on overtime and outside hiring were drawn up with consideration for Christmas and any extra mail we might get from people trying to beat the new rates.

"Overtime is permissible when it is needed to move the mail, and if there is a genuine need for extra help then people can be hired," he said.

Texas fatalities reach 11 for holiday weekend

Robert Dale Hudson, 30, of San Angelo was killed early Thursday in a pickup truck which ran off U.S. 277 at a curve south of Sonora.

A collision on U.S. 84 near Zephyr in Brown County killed two San Angelo women Wednesday night. They were Dorothy Fallin, 50, and Gayla Sue Clatterbuck, 19.

Jack B. Rhyn, 17, of Kerrville suffered fatal injuries late Wednesday as the car carrying him and one halted beside U.S. 87 near Big Spring were involved in a crash, officers reported.

Fort Worth police said murder charges would be filed against a man, 39, who returned from work Wednesday, found the house empty and a cat eating a Thanksgiving turkey set out to thaw, went next door and fired six shots. Emory Pippins was killed.

Gunfire killed Donald R. Leaks, 24, at a Houston lounge late Wednesday. Officers held a man for questioning.

New England colleges offer help for elderly

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) - A summer program at five New Hampshire colleges and universities has launched a New England-wide program designed to eliminate "planned obsolescence" for the elderly.

The program, dubbed "Elderhostel centers on the idea that the elderly can enrich their lives by attending college and mixing with students, both young and old.

Program director Martin Knowlton says the program proved so successful last summer that in 1976 it will be expanded to 20 colleges and universities in the six New England

"From inquiries we have received it looks like Elderhostel could spread nationwide, but we'd like to see it administered on a regional level. There's more control that way," he

The program is funded primarily through private and federal grants, but participants are required to pay a $50 per week fee. More than 300 persons, ranging in age from 55 to 91, enrolled in the programs in New Hampshire last summer. Knowlton says 2,500 are expected in the regional programs. The hostels, Knowlton said, are designed to erase "one of the most despicable aspects of industrial society: the disturbing concept that people are all used up after age 65.

"After that age people are faced abruptly and simultaneously with retirement, inadequate pensions, increased immobility and loss of friends," Knowlton says. "Our program is aimed at stimulating the elderly out of this agism trap."

In Elderhostel, each participating school sets aside for a designated portion of the summer standard dormitory accomodations and provides each week a minimum of three oneweek courses. The courses are taught by regular faculty members. The courses are designed to help the elderly see themselves as related in a meaningful way to the course of the world," Knowlton said. "We do not specify what courses be offered. Our only requirement is they be of good intellectual content."

One of the courses that schools are encouraged to offer is an oral history seminar in which participants interview one another and discuss their recollections of events.

One seminar, which Knowlton describes with pride, turned out to have five participants with labor union backgrounds and a sixth who was an industrialist. Their memories of labor-management confrontations early in this century were preserved

Paul A. Miller, a member of the Elderhostel board of directors, said the program combines "learning. working and leisure" and may help the elderly avoid emotional and intellectrual stagnation.

UTPB president considers proposal

ODESSA - A formal proposal for a student-operated newspaper for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin is in the hands of the univer-

They came from the University Council, Student Services Advisory Council, Arts and Education Council and the UT-Systems Council.

The latter group met last weekend on the UTPB campus and agreed to support the Odessa university's students in its efforts to obtain a newspaper. The UT-System Council is composed of student presidents from five Texas universities.

The group also indicated they would take the matter to the regents if Cardozier failed to act.
