Ford declares Cuba ruined U.S. relations

By LOU CANNON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Ford declared Saturday that Cuban intervention in Angola had wrecked any chances of improved U.S.-Cuban relations.

He also said that the Soviet Union's role in sending military aid to a favored faction in that war-torn African nation had damaged detente policies and may have cooled the prospects for successful arms limitation talks.

"THE ACTION by the Cuban government in sending combat forces to Angola destroys any opportunity for improvement with relations with the United States," Mr. Ford told a hastily called news conference. "They've made a choice which, in effect, and I mean it very literally, has precluded any improvement in relations with Cuba."

The President made his statement a day after the Senate, by a 54-22 vote, blocked any further funds for Central Intelligence Agency aid to U.S.-supported factions in Angola.

Mr. Ford denounced this Senate action Friday as a "deep tragedy for all nations whose security depends on the U.S.," and he repeated this concern yesterday in his informal news conference in the White House press office. Other countries, he said, "can't help but have misgivings" about future assistance.

"The action of the Senate has seriously handicapped any effort that we could make to achieve a negotiated settlement so that the people of Angola could a free and independent government," Mr. Ford said.

WHEN THE PRESIDENT was asked subsequently whether the Soviet role in Angola had damaged prospects for U.S.-Russian arms limitation talks, he replied:

"The persistence of the Soviet Union in Angola with $100 million or more worth of military aid certainly does not help the continuation of detente."

In recent months there had been some indications of improved U.S.-Cuban relations and widespread predictions that the two countries would ultimately restore the normal relations that were severed when Fidel Castro came to power.

But the Angola issue had dampened these prospects even before Mr. Ford spoke Saturday.

Recently, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had vetoed a proposal for Cuban sports teams to visit the United States, indicating that it was a reaction to the Angolan situation.

The White House estimates that there are from 4,000 to 6,000 Cuban troops in Angola fighting on the side of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

Mr. Ford readily acknowledged that the United States had been providing military assistance to other Angolan factions. He called the U.S. aid a "legitimate covert operation" and declined to give details on its cost.

The President repeated an earlier statement that no U.S. military troops were being used in Angola nor were any contemplated.

Mr. Ford said the Senate action Friday had "tied the hands" of the U.S. government and made it difficult to pursue a diplomatic solution.

But he did indicate that the United States was supportive of an African summit meeting called for Addis Ababa from Jan. 10-12 in an effort to end the Angolan war.

It will be the first emergency session held by the Organization of African Unity since its founding 12 years ago and there is skepticism, both in Africa and the United States, that it can persuade the three Angolan factions to stop fighting.

Mr. Ford declined to say in any specific fashion what he intends to do next in Angola now that the Senate has cut off further military aid.

Argentine rebels hold out

By MORT ROSENBLUM

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Government jets bombed and strafed rebel-held Moron air base Saturday, but air force officers refused to surrender and threatened to raid Government House where President Isabel Peron remained at her desk.

Hours later, military sources said three rebel envoys left the base to meet with air force commanders, and an official air force spokesman said a solution might be reached today.

The attack on the air base lasted two hours. Reporters who witnessed the raid said two propeller-driven training planes were destroyed on the ground and a power plant was blown up. Machine guns were fired at the attacking planes, which swooped as low as 60 feet over the installations, but there was no anti-aircraft fire.

No injuries were reported and the reporters said the loyal pilots appeared to avoid firing near their fellow airmen.

"We will die in these battle positions," said Cmdr. Julio Cesar Caceres, a rebel air force officer. "We will not negotiate."

Mrs. Peron, in a radio statement broadcast from the pink Government House in downtown Buenos Aires, said "the problem raised by a small group of insurgents ... is on the road to solution." She appealed to Argentines to ignore "alarmist versions."

Employees were hastily evacuated from Government House and key aides were moved to a basement museum. Cars were driven away from the building and police imposed traffic restrictions in the area.

The preparations recalled an attack 20 years ago by navy planes against the regime of Mrs. Peron's late husband, Juan D. Peron. Hundreds of civilians were killed by bombs that fell in the Plaza de Mayo in front of Government House.

The influential commander of the National War College, Army Brj. Gen. Rodolfo Mujica, declared himself also in revolt against the government.

Mujica commands no troops but is regarded as highly influential among nationalist officers in the army. "I cannot accept the death of a single soldier, army or navy, for defending or attacking this government," he said.

The army announced later that Mujica was relieved of his command but no move was made to arrest him.

Mrs. Peron, who took over as president when her husband died 18 months ago, has resisted heavy pressure to give up her office in the face of escalating political terrorism and economic woes.

Post office awash in 13-centers

By ED TODD

Mail clerks at the downtown Midland post office and elsewhere are running a little low on the regular, run-of-the-mill 10-cent postage stamps.

They had hoped to lick them goodbye for good by Dec. 28. But that's no longer the case: The brand-spanking new series of 13-cent stamps is not replacing the dime stamp in the manner prescribed by the folks running the U.S. Postal Service.

As a result, postal clerks at Midland's main post office have only 20,000 — an unusually low number — of 10-centers left in stock.

But they have 500,000 of the 13-centers tucked in a vault, ready to be issued, but for all practical purposes, quite unusable.

Nevertheless, the 13-cent stamps are available to postal patrons and may be purchased from mail clerks stationed behind post office counters.

The new stamps were to hit the marketplace in a big way Dec. 28 when the sprawling postal service had expected the proposed three-cent hike on first-class letter rates to go in effect.

Those few cents would amount to millions of dollars of sorely needed revenue for the deficit-ridden postal service.

However, Federal Judge John J. Sirica said, in effect, no deal, and placed an injunction on the rate increases on first-class mail and some other postal services. The judge accused the postal authorities of improperly applying for the rate increases. So the postal folks will have to refile for the spiraling hikes and wait a spell before issuing en masse the 13-cent stamps.

Many, appropriately enough, reflect the revolutionary spirit of 1776 and otherwise commemorate the Bicentennial.

"Those are beautiful stamps beautiful," freely commented postal clerk Vivian McElligott. "I'm very enthusiastic," she said of 3-cent stamp series.

Enthusiasm, too, will be radiating from avid, and, possibly, from not-so-hip, stamp collectors, otherwise called philatelists.

Collectors will be fondling such colorful glue-ons as the Spirit of '76 three-part series, the Liberty Bell, American Flag and American Eagle and Shield stamps.

In readiness for the now-stalled switch to the 13-centers, post offices nationwide got well stocked with the stamp series. They were bent on reinforcing their be-prepared image.

"It has presented a bit of a problem," said Darrell J. Hood, customer services director for the 65-post offices in the Midland Sectional Center. "We are heavily stocked in our (downtown) vault with 13-cent stamps in readiness for the changeover," he said.

Those half-million stamps at the main post office and the 20,000 at the Graves Station and the 20,000-to-30,000 at the Village Station largely will be held at bay until the 13-cent stamp officially may be pressed into service, no earlier than April.

Meanwhile, postal patrons can step forward and buy the 13-cent stamp series, though, for purely practical purposes, the 10-centers will get the mailing job done cheaper.

"We're kind of low in 10-cent stamps," Hood said, referring to the regular issues of The Thomas Jefferson Memorial ("We hold these Truths ...") and the U.S. Flag stamps.

The downtown post office has 20,000 of them but has ordered many more to tide postal customers over until the 13-cent rate goes into effect. There seems little doubt that it will. When.

President to sign tax cut Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced Saturday he will sign the compromise tax cut Monday and plans to ask Congress to trim taxes by $10 billion more in fiscal 1977.

The tax measure Congress passed before recessing for a year-end holiday Friday provides for a six-month extension of 1975 tax cuts.

The bill Ford will sign will mean a $6.4 billion drop in what the government will withhold from taxpayers in the first half of 1976. Figured on the basis of what they actually owe, the bill will reduce taxpayers' liability for that six-month period by $8 billion to $9 billion. The difference between the collection and liability figures will be made up in April 1977 when 1976 taxes fall due.

The President referred at a White House news conference to an annual taxpayer savings of $18 billion in discussing the tax cut. He arrived at that figure by adding the $9 billion in reduced tax liability for each half of 1976.

Ford called it "a good tax bill for six months," but said he is still going to submit a $395 billion budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 and he will ask Congress to make the tax cut $28 billion.

"My tax reduction proposal will add another $10 billion in additional tax cuts and it will all be predicated on a restraint, a control, in the growth of federal spending of a like amount," Ford said.

Salvation Army plans to build multi-purpose community center

The advisory board of Midland's Salvation Army unit has approved plans to seek capital funding for an approximately 18,000-square-foot community center in west Midland.

The facility would operate a day-care program for approximately 50 children, a senior citizens' program, full-scale youth activities in a gymnasium-type facility and serve the needs of families in the western half of the city.

The decision to seek financial support for such a facility came after several months of study by an independent Midland Community-Interest Planning Survey Committee, with input data provided by Harold E. Winey, development planning consultant of San Francisco. Winey made extensive studies of Midland's economic, social, age and community needs characteristics in each census tract area. His study revealed that most community agencies are serving families in east and central Midland, and that a need exists for those west of downtown Midland.

The advisory board, of which Richard A. Mendenhall is chairman, approved the concept of a Community Center located within a reasonable distance from an area centered at the intersection of Midkiff Drive and Louisiana Street.

The estimated cost of land and construction of a suitable building is approximately $700,000, including funds for renovation of the organization's present facilities, a spokesman said.

The board, it was announced, plans to launch a capital fund drive in January, seeking pledges of financial support from individuals, business firms and charitable foundations. Contributions to the Salvation Army are said to be tax deductible.

The Salvation Army is a worldwide charitable and religious organization providing a wide range of programs for youths, families and senior citizens. It also has special programs for alcoholics, drug addicts and transients, and provides emergency financial aid to persons temporarily in need.

Much of the program in Midland, it is said, is devoted to counseling low-income families on how to get the most out of their dollars.

The Salvation Army's main offices and Thrift Store are located at 300 S. Baird St.; a chapel is located at 223 S. Lorraine St., and its 19-capacity transient lodge is at 119 N. Fort Worth St.

Its operating funds come from three main sources: United Way of Midland, individual and corporate gifts and income from the sale of items through the Salvation Army Thrift Store.

Capt. Robert Vincent is officer-in-charge of Midland's Salvation Army, which is a member agency of the United Way.

London tavern bomb injures 6

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded at a tavern in a predominantly Irish section of London on Saturday night, injuring six persons so seriously they were hospitalized, police said.

The blast outside Biddy Mulligan's pub in the Kilburn district came a day after four persons died and 25 were injured in bomb attacks on two bars in Ireland and Northern Ireland. Those taverns at Dundalk, Ireland, and near Crossmaglen in Northern Ireland, were known to be patronized by members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Officials speculated that Protestant extremists from Northern Ireland have begun a campaign of revenge for London bombings blamed on the IRA that have killed 10 persons since August.

Police arrested four young Irishmen Dec. 12 after a six-day siege around a London apartment. Officials said they believed the four were responsible for most of the London bombings.

OPEC split over issue of price cuts

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries reported making some progress toward ending price-cutting rivalry after a six-hour session Saturday.

The 13 OPEC ministers will meet again today to try and simplify a complex pricing system that has permitted members to introduce disguised price cuts or increases by adjusting special premium charges on high quality oil.

"It is all of OPEC against Iraq," Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told newsmen after the evening session.

His statement indicated that Iraq, which had raised the issue by accusing neighboring Kuwait of unfair price-shaving last month, was in turn being charged with using the same tactics to win customers.

Iraq had claimed that Kuwait was trimming just under 1 per cent off its prices, thus failing to implement a 10 per cent price increase officially decreed by OPEC Oct. 1.

Other delegates declined to single out specific countries as culprits. At issue in the price-shaving dispute are "differentials," or premiums charged on certain oil grades, either because they have less specific gravity and are therefore purer, or have less pollutant sulfur content.

In a glutted world market, high-priced oil grades are no longer competitive, and OPEC states recently have slashed these differentials.

94th Congress ends wild, woolly first session

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 94th Congress ended its recession- and energy crisis-plagued first session after achieving a last-minute compromise with President Ford on extension of tax cuts.

The tax cuts, the principal weapon forged during the session to fight the economic slump, would have expired at the end of this year without the extension.

Ford successfully vetoed the first measure sent to him by the legislators to continue $17 billion in reductions and thus prevent a boost in withholding rates in January.

But, in a compromise worked out in a long day of negotiations Friday, the President accepted the extension after Congress added to it a nonbinding pledge to reduce federal spending by an amount equal to the tax cuts.

Although that tax issue was settled, Congress left town until Jan. 19 with the equally important question of energy legislation still not settled.

The legislators sent to the President an omnibus energy bill representing a congressional consensus worked out over many months on how to deal with oil prices and fuel conservation.

But Ford gave no indication as to whether he would sign it.

The session was marked by wrangling between Democrats in control of Congress and the Republican White House.

Ford continued to wield the veto weapon, rejecting 15 bills in 1975. The President claimed excessive cost was the issue in most cases. He was overridden three times, but only once on an appropriations bill.

Democrats had a 2-1 margin in the House, 290 to 145, and more than three-fifths in the Senate, 62 to 38, but they were often frustrated in their efforts to get the two-thirds needed to kill vetoes.

Conservative Southern Democrats usually joined with the Republicans to uphold Ford on those tests.

Because of its preoccupation with the recession and energy, the legislative output of the first session of the 94th Congress was relatively meager.

It did pass a seven-year extension of the landmark Voting Rights Act, an emergency housing bill cut down because Ford successfully vetoed a broader version and two budget resolutions setting government spending and deficit ceilings under a new budget control process being used for the first time in 1975.

The antirecession tax cut bill passed in March provided 1975 reductions for all individuals through a system of tax credits and larger standard deductions.

The compromise tax cut extension agreed upon late Friday uses the same mechanisms to aid individuals, but the reductions would be somewhat larger than in the March bill.

The omnibus energy bill on Ford's desk would cut the price of gasoline and fuel oil briefly, but the prices would resume their climb in about a year.

The measure also would require auto manufacturers to improve the fuel efficiency of their products over the next 10 years, require energy efficiency labeling of major home appliances, create a federal oil reserve, give a push to use of more coal and less oil by utilities and factories, seek to boost coal production, encourage state conservation programs and provide stand-by gas rationing authority.

Many items of business were put over by the legislators for the second session of the 94th Congress, starting Jan. 19.

On the last day of the first session, Ford vetoed a $45-billion appropriations bill for the Health, Education and Welfare and Labor departments, contending it exceeded his budget by $1 billion.

Democratic leaders postponed the attempt to override until January.

Also on the final day, leaders dropped an effort to send the $112-billion Defense Department appropriations bill to the President, delaying action on that until the new session.

The Senate voted Friday to deny the administration the ability to use any funds in the bill for U.S. military aid in Angola. The House preferred to wait until January to consider whether to concur.

Congress sent Ford a bitterly disputed construction industry picketing bill broadening the powers of building trades unions to try to close down entire job sites.

The President once favored the measure but is under heavy pressure from conservatives and business groups to veto it. Sponsors concede they could not overturn a veto.

In a last-minute action, the lawmakers sent Ford a $6.5-billion bill to reorganize and rehabilitate Northeast and Midwest railroads. But the President was considered likely to veto it.

In addition to the tax measure, Ford successfully vetoed bills to control strip mining, to set higher farm target prices and to make available $5.3 billion for various job programs.

He was overridden on vetoes of a $7.7-billion education appropriations measure, a $2 billion health services bill and a $2.75-billion measure expanding school lunch and other child-nutrition programs.

Refugees depart Masked gunmen shoot, kill governor of northern Lebanon

By JONATHAN RANDAL
The Washington Post

BEIRUT — Three masked gunmen shot and killed the governor of northern Lebanon Saturday as he and his wife left their home in the port city of Tripoli. She was seriously wounded.

The classic gangland-style murder of Kassem Imad was a "first" in Lebanon's 8-month-old civil war. Never before had gunmen deliberately killed such a high government official.

A quiet voice of sanity in the country's second city, Imad had sought to maintain a semblance of law and order to the evident displeasure of a wide range of political interests, any of whom could have decided to assassinate him.

His even-handed behavior had enraged both predominantly Moslem Tripoli, hometown of Premier Rashid Karami, and Zghorta, the nearby Maronite Catholic inland mountain domain of President Suleiman Franjeh. The two localities have been feuding on and off around Tripoli with increasingly deadly results.

But even within Tripoli itself, Imad also had his hands full trying to maintain law and order. With little to back up his own personal authority, the city has been run less by the government he represented than by various gangs.

So ingrained have Lebanese suspicions become that Imad's assassination was interpreted as a provocation to undermine his recently imposed street-level authority.

Carey signs tax measures

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey signed into law Saturday bills boosting corporation and bank taxes in New York State by $600 million.

The legislation has no direct impact on citizens in general, but it does confront thousands of businesses with unexpected end-of-the-year tax bills. Opponents said that it would force businesses from the state and drive up consumer prices.

There is also a possibility that the legislature will decide on further tax increases that would affect taxpayers in general after the 1976 session begins Jan. 7.

IRS can't give it away

The Internal Revenue Service has been trying, so far in vain, to hand over 48 tax refund checks to Midland taxpayers who, according to IRS, are hard to find.

Those checks, from tax years 1971, 1972, 1973 and 1974, have been returned to the IRS as undeliverable to Midland addresses and remain unclaimed.

"Some of it (amount of refund) could be real small and some of it could be enough money to mean something," commented Gene McCleskey, IRS administrative officer in Midland. "You never know about one of those things."

Taxpayers due the refund may contact the IRS office in the downtown Federal Building to make application for their refund checks, McCleskey said.

In doing so, those persons may "establish their identity and right to receive the check(s)," A. W. McCleskey, director of the IRS North Texas District, said in a prepared news release.

More than $500,000 in unclaimed refund checks is awaiting 4,000-plus North Texas taxpayers. That averages out to $125 per person.

The IRS listed the following names of taxpayers, giving Midland addresses, who are due refund checks: W. E. and Dreama K. Adams, William E. and Dreama K. Adams, Terrie R. Anderson, Warren R. and

DA to reopen probe if needed

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Despite an unsuccessful search at the scene of Robert Kennedy's assassination, the district attorney has pledged to take the reopened investigation to the grand jury if necessary.

"We will pursue every avenue including the potential use of the grand jury," Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp said Friday after a painstaking search of the pantry at the Ambassador Hotel on Thursday night for bullet holes not found when Kennedy was killed in June 1968.

The search turned up no new evidence, he said. "No spent bullets or fragments thereof were found in the search," Van de Kamp told a news conference. "The evidence we have now does not establish there was a second gun."

Sirhan B. Sirhan was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison for killing Kennedy at the hotel. Some people have suggested that additional bullet holes would prove more than one gun was used and Sirhan was not the lone assassin.

Deputy state comptroller dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Deputy Comptroller Ervin Osborn, 60, died early Saturday of a heart attack in Seton Hospital, where he was undergoing tests for chest pains that developed Friday afternoon. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Osborn, a native of Treynor, Iowa, was recruited by Bullock after he retired a year ago as director of the regional Internal Revenue Service Center in Austin.

He had been with the IRS for 38 years and had served as regional director since 1962, supervising work in six states.

Bullock said in a statement that Osborn was the first professional tax administrator ever to serve in a top-level position with the Texas comptroller's office.

"He brought to state government the best of both professional expertise and good horse sense," said Bullock. "Even in the short time he was with us he laid foundations on which the comptroller's department will build for years to come. "We have lost a dear friend and a good right arm."

Osborn is survived by his widow, Viola, a daughter, Mrs. Sharon McDougall of Austin, and a granddaughter.

WASHINGTON — When American soldiers took over Gestapo headquarters in Munich in 1945, they found portraits of Hitler, Goebbels and Goering looking down at them from the wall. They promptly machine-gunned the paintings and stuck knives into them.

In the midst of the destruction, one Walter H. Cronk, a staff officer under Gen. George S. Patton, entered the room. An art collector, Cronk arrived on the scene in time to preserve one last painting, of a Panzer tank during the attack on Warsaw, done by Hitler's chief staff artist, Herbert Schnurpel.

Cronk, 69, of San Diego, donated the painting the other day to the Los Angeles County Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. He had loaned it to the department four years ago but decided to donate it as a feature painting in a new gallery honoring Gen. Omar Bradley. "The portraits of Goering, Hitler and Goebbels would have been a terrific asset to any gallery," Cronk said. "But it was understandable how this bunch of guys felt about it."

Pet food use common, professor says

The Washington Post — WASHINGTON — An assistant professor at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond estimates "that pet foods constitute a significant part of the diet of at least 225,000 American households, affecting some 1 million persons."

Dr. Edward H. Peeples Jr. says his figures are "conservative" but well-founded.

There has been considerable controversy over how much pet food actually is consumed by humans since the Senate Nutrition Committee hearings in 1974. A committee report said "one-third of the pet food purchases in slums is eaten by humans." The figures, however were based only "on an educated guess" by the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

WHILE PEEPLES' findings are not based on statistical data, he has compiled substantial anecdotal evidence, much of it first hand, that confirms the widespread use of pet food in the American diet.

Writing in the Nov. 13 issue of Community Nutrition Institute Weekly Report, the medical sociologist says that as a child he "accepted the consumption of these products as part of way of life among my fellow Southerners. To see a dog food patty sizzling in a pan on the top of a stove or kerosene space heater as common when one entered a dilapidated house with no refrigerator, no running water, no heat, no toilet and the unrelenting stench of decaying insects."

Peeples says he saw it so often he didn't think of it as "unusual or even particularly disgusting."

As an unemployed worker in Cleveland in 1953 and an impoverished college student in 1956 Peeples "surreptitiously purchased, fried and ate ... canned dog food and cat food as my exclusive ration." he found it a humiliating but not "particularly unpleasant" experience.

AS A HOSPITAL corpsman in the late '50s, Peeples interviewed approximately 20,000 naval recruits. "Even if my inquiry was something less than scientific," Peeples says he learned that "5 to 8 per cent" of the young men "used not only pet food, but also a variety of other materials not commonly thought to be safe or desirable for humans," such as dirt, laundry starch, sand, snuff, clay, baking soda, etc.

As a public assistance caseworker in Richmond, Peeples "found dozens of instances of dog food and cat food consumption," findings which were repeated as a street-based community worker in South Philadelphia. Several years later in Kentucky, Eastern Tennessee, Southern West Virginia, Southwestern Virginia and Western North Carolina he again found consumption of pet food by those who used it because it was "less expensive than other protein products."

Dirt, Squirt and Quirt

By CHARLES GREEN
County Extension Agent

The harvest of the 1975 cotton crop in Midland county is estimated at 75 per cent complete. Cotton has moved steadily to the gins since harvest began in November with little delay caused by weather conditions. The 1975 crop is considered good by most producers, much improved over 1974 though not as good as the near record crop in 1973.

Prices are much better than last year which has helped offset the bad year in 1974. Even though the dry weather has facilitated cotton harvest, soil moisture supplies are depleting quite rapidly. Small grain and cover crops would benefit from some winter moisture and soil preparation activities following completion of the cotton harvest will depend on some rain or snow.

A recent announcement of curtailment of natural gas use in fertilizer production in early 1976 could mean increased costs for Texas farmers. The 670,000 tons of natural gas that are expected to be curtailed means a reduction of 550,000 tons of ammonia for nitrogen fertilizer. The situation with respect to nitrogen and other fertilizer elements point up the value of soil testing to determine the actual needs for a particular field and crop.

Why spend good money on fertilizer if you don't have to?

The soil on your land may have more nutrients than you think. Most soils contain some degree of all the essential elements necessary for plant growth. And the only way to determine the level of soil nutrients is to take a soil sample and have it tested. For an accurate soil sample, divide fields into equal units and then take a sample from each unit. Soil testing is used to measure the level of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium in the soil and also the acidity of "pH" of the soil.

If a farmer or rancher knows the nutrient level of the soil, it enables him to determine the proper amount of fertilizer to use without over or under fertilizing. For example, if phosphorus has been applied regularly to a field over a period of time, enough residual phosphorus may have been built up so that the element may not be needed for a while. The same applies to potassium fertilization. However, most soils tend to be low in nitrogen, and the rate of nitrogen fertilization depends on the crop being grown, time of applications and soil condition. If you want top yields with the most profitable fertilization practice, plan to have a soil test taken soon. For detailed instructions on collecting and mailing samples, contact the county Extension office and any fertilizer dealer.

Are there "tree butchers" in your neighborhood? Every year many well-meaning individuals ruin good shade trees by topping them. Before you decide to prune your trees, or hire it done this winter, be sure you know how the job should be done.

If trees are becoming too crowded, remove some of them rather than topping all of them. If they are growing into electric or telephone line, an opening should be pruned in them through which the lines can pass, or remove the trees and replace them with lower growing species. Topping such trees is a poor practice as it usually results in a decreased life span. Two bad results often occur from topping.

Branches that have been topped cannot heal. The open, stub wounds are avenues for entry of decay fungi and bacteria. These wood-rotting diseases frequently spread throughout the tree and cause its destruction. Branches or sprouts that grow below topped stubs are weakly attached.

Permits nearing $30 million mark

Construction valuations in the City of Midland inched closer to the $30 million level last week, with the city inspection department issuing a total of 18 permits valued at $341,101. This brings Midland's yearly construction total to $29,036,699.

Five permits were issued for new residences last week and went to Harvey Langston Builders for $ Church, 100 W. Wadley St., for $40,150 for a church activities building; and to Pioneer Natural Gas Co., 1006 Cotton Flat Rd., for $23,751 to add to an existing warehouse.

The remaining permits, 10 in number and $22,200 in value, were issued for residential alterations. They went to Ima Jean Beggs for $500, add a carport at 3708 Cedar Spring St.; Paul Galan for $500, add a storage building at 708 N. Mineola St.; Ronald D. Brookshire for $500, add a storage building at 4100 Anetta St.; Jimmy Padgett for $1,200, enclose garage at 212 N. Glenwood, and Cruz Granada for $2,000, add a bathroom and bedroom at 407 E. Cuthbert St.

Residential alteration permits also were issued to Gaspar Galindo for $800, add to rear of residence at 927 N. Fort Worth St.; Curtis A. Callaway for $700, cover and screen in patio at 4402 Pasadena St.; Virgil E. Jones Jr. for $2,000, repair fire damage at 4712 Kiowa St.; Hampton Hodges for $13,000, glass enclosure for swimming pool at 1200 Community Lane, and Webb C. Farish for $1,000, enclose patio at 2405 Dartmouth St.

One permit for new commercial was issued to Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, 1203 Cherry Lane, for $65,000 worth for a church, while two permits for commercial alteration were issued last week.

The commercial alteration permits went to First Assembly of God

Retail Credit Co. due name change on Jan. 1

Retail Credit Co. of Midland, along with 13,000 associates throughout North America, is preparing to ring in a new name.

At midnight Dec. 31, the firm, one of the oldest and largest companies in the business information industry, becomes Equifax Inc.

The new name was approved last April by shareholders at their annual meeting at corporate headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.

Carroll Curry, supervisor of the Midland office at 3701 N. Big Spring St., said the name change is part of a corporate identity program designed to make the firm's customers and the general public aware of the organization's broad range of services.

"Many people think of our company as being exclusively in the business of making credit reports," Curry said. "Actually credit reporting accounts for only 20 per cent of the company's total sales volume."

He added that about 70 per cent of the company's volume consists of information services provided to the insurance industry. The remainder is made up of employment reports, market research, property appraisal, insurance adjusting, commercial printing and other services.

"The new name doesn't mean we're changing our ways of doing business," Curry said.

"Our management and shareholders decided to adopt a name that would reflect operational changes that have taken place in the company for many years.

Retail Credit Co., established in 1899, has 14 affiliates and divisions with more than 1,750 offices throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean.

The Midland office was opened in 1955 and employs four persons to serve eight counties.

Equifax Inc. shares will be traded on the New York Stock Exchange with the ticker tape symbol EFX. The firm has about 4,000 stockholders.

Roswell banker gets promotion

ROSWELL, N. M. — A. David Uechi has been named senior vice president and trust officer of the First National Bank here, according to David C. King, president.

Uechi joined the bank as vice president and trust officer in May 1974.

A native of Hawaii, he moved to West Texas as a child. He is a graduate of North Texas State.

Government consumer prices report offers some cheer, many unpleasant surprises

By LEE MITGANG

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest government report on consumer prices this past week produced a little bit of cheer but just as many unpleasant surprises.

For a change, the month of November saw gasoline prices go down 8-10 of a percent. Sugar prices were more than 10 per cent lower and other food products including beef and pork also declined.

But while inflation seemed to cool for the moment in those long-standing trouble spots, it boiled over in the cost of various services. Auto insurance rates rose 8.5 per cent in November. Mortgage rates were up 1.8 per cent.

In all, the Labor Department's consumer price index reported on Friday showed that while the price increase in food had moderated an gas prices were declining, service costs took their biggest jump in more than a year — a surprise to administration economists.

Consumer prices overall were reported up 7-10 of a per cent in November, or 2.6 per cent on an annual basis.

New car prices also were reported up 9-10 of a per cent in November, but signs appeared in Detroit that the spiral might be slowing.

Early in the week, Ford and Chrysler announced plans to raise prices early next month. Ford's increase would average $122 on cars and light trucks, while Chrysler's $25- to $70 increases are on selected models to cover safety equipment.

But General Motors with week's end made no move to increase its prices, and Ford said it might reconsider the price hike if it hurt sales.

Meanwhile, Chrysler's chairman John J. Riccardo apparently won a war of nerves with the British government over the fate of Chrysler's moneylosing British subsidiary.

Last Tuesday, Britain's ruling Labor party agreed to rescue Chrysler U.K. at a cost of about $325 million. Without the aid, Riccardo would have carried out a threat issued a month ago to liquidate the British operation, throwing 25,000 Britons out of work. Even with the rescue, 8,000 jobs will be lost.

Harried holiday travelers received some good news the end of last week as a tentative agreement was reached between United Airlines and striking ground employees. The two-week-long walkout had contributed to serious snarling of airport traffic in the holiday crush.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co., with more shareholders than any U.S. corporation, reported a small decline in the quarter ended Nov. 30 in earnings per share — $1.30 compared with $1.32 a year ago.

AT&T chairman John D. DeButts said the "prolongation of the recession's effects on Western Electric," the communication giant's equipment manufacturing arm, was the "most significant" factor holding earnings in check.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Savings, loan firms enjoy bigger inflows

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — While uncertain about the effects of federal legislation, the Texas savings and loan industry is enjoying a general sense of well-being on the state level, the new executive vice president of the Texas Savings and Loan League reports.

Durwood Curlee, who replaces John W. Cassin, reports the industry has experienced increased savings inflows during the last quarter of the year and hasn't experienced some of the problems that it feared might develop.

The industry had expected another round of "disintermediation" — the moving of funds from one financial medium to another (in this case from savings accounts to U. S. Treasury notes) — because of the federal budget deficit. That deficit had been expected to send the government into the money market, bidding for funds against other borrowers and sending the rate of short-term treasury notes up.

But that hasn't happened. And consumers have been sequestering money away — which Curlee comments, may indicate consumers know what's best for themselves without government prompting.

The next question, of course is what the associations are doing with the funds.

So far, Curlee says, indications are that the demand for home loans is being met without difficulty.

Demand is down, he reports; apparently due to psychological factors — principally reluctance by potential buyers because of high housing and interest costs.

"But the interest rate on housing is still the best bargain in town," Curlee asserts.

Texas associations have done a good job in marketing individual retirement accounts and Keogh plans, and many Texans are taking advantage of the tax advantages offered by them, he says.

Such accounts also are ideal for the industry since they provide long-term accounts to support lending for home construction.

Curlee would like to see additional tax incentives provided to savers — such as an exemption from taxation of interest on $5,000 in savings.

If the buyer of a $100,000 municipal bond is given a tax advantage on grounds that he is providing capital to assist the community, the holder of a $5,000 saving account should be given a tax advantage on the same grounds since that capital also is used to assist the community, Curlee argues.

Curlee also would like to see the elimination of unnecessary regulation of the financial industry — noting that the Ford administration has been supporting that idea but that it is difficult to overcome the bureaucracy.

"It's like trying to stop a moving freight train," he says. Still, he adds, unreasonable regulation has been coming in for criticism from persons of all political persuasions — including "the people who used to criticize General Motors."

Other matters which Curlee sees coming up for the industry include variable rate mortgages — long controversial but gaining ground in some areas — which many economists and financial industry representatives see as necessary adjustments to meet the problems of the present economy.

Federal decisions may hold the key in the long run to determining how the industry does, in Texas as well as in the nation, particularly the proposed overhauling by Congress of the present structure of financial institutions, Curlee concludes.

But for the moment, the industry in Texas is doing well.

Standard Contract

The State Bar and Texas Real Estate Commission have worked out a standard contract form to be used in cases in which an existing house is bought through the assumption of a mortgage.

Copies of the form are being sent to all brokers, and use of it will be mandatory after March 1.

The form was worked out by a joint lawyer-broker committee and is the first of several standard contract forms being drafted.

Insurance firm suing FW BBB

DALLAS (AP) — National County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. has filed a damage suit here claiming the Fort Worth Better Business Bureau has wrongfully reported the company is bankrupt. The suit seeks $1.5 million in damages the company claims has been done to its reputation and image because of the alleged false reports.

The suit, filed Thursday in 193rd District Court, said the Better Business Bureau of Fort Worth and Tarrant County Inc. made "slandering statements, purely fictional and untrue, that would indicate that any insurance policies written by the plaintiff might not be honored and would place the policyholder in great jeopardy."

Had the BBB made "any proper or reasonable inquiry" regarding the company's financial status it would have learned the "falsity" of any suggestion of bankruptcy, the suit alleged.

The BBB disseminates free-of-charge information to the public regarding the reliability and integrity of business institutions.

Michael L. Nance

Nance added to CS&L staff

Michael L. Nance has joined the staff of Citizens Savings & Loan Association as an assistant vice president, Ray P. Moody, president, announced Saturday.

The 30-year old Nance, who moved here from Yoakum to accept the position, will be active in the mortgage loan and appraisal departments, Moody said.

Nance is a native of Lockney, where he attended public school. He was graduated from West Texas State University in 1969. He spent the next three years with Central Soya Co., the world's largest processor of soy beans into human and animal feed and industrial uses.

For the last three years, he has served as assistant manager of the Yoakum Federal Savings & Loan Association at Yoakum. He also was a vice president of the Yoakum Lions Club and was active in the Baptist Church.

He is married to the former Brenda Brennehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Brennehan, 2601 Bedford Ave., Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. Nance and their two sons will establish their new home at 2610 Emerson St.

MIDLAND'S, LATEST FAST food service operation is Burger King which opened recently on the Andrews Highway near the vicinity of many other fast food service businesses. The nationwide chain, as per the sign, offers drive through service as well as sit down service.

Former resident married in Bryan

BRYAN — Mary Elizabeth Smith of College Station, formerly of Midland, and Donald William Lampe of this city were married Saturday evening in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. W. Carroll Fancher in the First United Methodist Church here.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Smith of 1210 Shirley Lane, Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Gus W. Lampe of Bryan.

Mr. Smith presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a full-length princess style candlelight gown of sheer silk organza over peau de soie. The dress was fashioned with full-length fitted sleeves of sheer organza with alencon lace at cuffs and a high neckline on a bodice enhanced with matching lace, beads and crystals, and a chapel-length train. Her chapel-length veil of illusion with alencon lace, pearl clusters and crystals fell from a cap of alencon lace, pearls and crystals. She wore a ring belonging to her grandmother, and carried white roses and baby's breath atop a white Bible.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Darrell F. Smith of Midland, sister-in-law of the bride, and Kim Freeman of Midland and Susan McClimans of Houston were bridesmaids. Dinah Smith of Midland, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

Bill Lero of Bryan was best man. Ushers were David Lampe and Paul Lampe, both brothers of the bridegroom, and Pat Chilen of Bryan, Rick Freeman and Bob Donaho, both of Bryan, were groomsmen.

Mrs. Ted Stephenson was the organist, and Robert L. Boone, director of Texas A&M University's Singing Cadets, was the soloist.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

After a trip to Austin, the couple will reside in College Station at 301 Ball St., No. 2089.

Mrs. Donald Lampe

The bride, a graduate of Texas A&M with a BS degree in applied math, now is a graduate student at the university working toward a master's degree in industrial engineering. She is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Cap and Gown Honor Society and the Century Singers, and has an assistantship in the Industrial Engineering Dept. at Texas A&M.

The bridegroom is a senior mechanical engineering student at Texas A&M and works parttime for the school's Texas Engineering Experiment Station. He is a member of the Student Engineers' Council, ASME and the Singing Cadets.

Timothy Edwards weds Miss Biggar

FORT WORTH — Timothy Neil Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D. Edwards of 2210 W. Holloway St., Midland, married Brenda Karen Biggar, daughter of Mrs. Murry Nolen Biggar of Fort Worth and the late Mr. Biggar, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Robert Carr Chapel at the Texas Christian University campus.

The Rev. Roger Freeman of the Travis Avenue Baptist Church officiated for the double ring ceremony. Robert C. Strafford III presented the bride in marriage. Emit Smith was the organist, and Bill Pearson was soloist.

Mrs. Alain DeClerfayt of Austin was the matron of honor. Pam Gilbert was the maid of honor, and Gail Galesich of Austin, cousin of the bride, and Claudia Noble of Dallas, Lisa Lowe of Hurst and Carolyn Kelly of Fort Worth were the bridesmaids. Jennifer Strafford and Christy Guinn were the flower girls. The ring bearer was Rod Strafford.

David Neahusan of Midland was the best man. The groomsmen were Alain DeClerfayt of Austin, Terry Edwards of Midland, brother of the bridegroom, Phil Rogers and Craig Phillips of Denton and George Routt of Grand Prairie.

The reception following the ceremony was held in Weatherly Hall at TCU.

After a skiing trip to New Mexico and Colorado, the couple will reside at 1721 Teasley Lane, No. 134, in Denton.

The bride is a junior student at North Texas State University and is a member of the Designers Club and is a Diamond Girl of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The bridegroom also is a junior student at NYSU and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and Inter-Fraternity Council senior representative. He is employed as an auditor by Holiday Inn in Denton.

Mrs. T. N. Edwards

Woman works as auctioneer

WATERBURY CENTER, Vt. (Q) — Barbara Woodard says she believes she is Vermont's only female auctioneer.

Although other women are licensed auctioneers in the state, none are practicing right now, she said.

Mrs. Woodard, mother of two, owns an antique shop with her husband, Richard. Together they have conducted 11 auctions.

Chapter meet held

The Mu Psi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held a short business session in the home of Mrs. Marty Hearne, followed by a children's Christmas party.

After each child had his or her turn telling Santa Claus what they wanted for Christmas, gifts and candy were distributed.

Members, children and guests attending were: Mrs. Sam Barber, Kimberly and Holt Barber, Mrs. Dorman and Nicki Blackman, Mrs.

Richard Coley, Mrs. Carolyn Hartzog, Richard, Riordan and Rhonda Hartzog, Mrs. Hearne, Jodi and Joel Hearne, Mrs. Dwain Martin, Jody and Ginger Martin, Mrs. Cary Moss, Tracy Moss, Mrs. Ronny Stanley, Becky Stanley, Mrs. Randy Wynne, Dusty Wynne, Mrs. Billy Hicks, Curtis Hicks, Mrs. Gary Fickinger, Mrs. Denny Roach, Jay, Carrie and Kelley Roach, Mrs. Betty Ross, Drew Ross, Mrs. Charley Trimble, Shannon Trimble and Mrs. Ray Hill.

Mary Carol Brown, Adamson are married Debutantes presented at ball held in Midland Country Club

ODESSA — Mary Carol Brown of Midland and Bruce Thomas Adamson of Columbus, Ohio were married Saturday evening in the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord here.

The Rev. Michael Miller, The University of Texas of the Permian Basin campus minister, officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Brown of 3612 W. Kansas St., Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Adamson of Fort Worth.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of bridal crepe accented with re-embroidered lace and seed pearls fashioned with a sweetheart yoke of lace, a ring collar, Bishop sleeves and softly gathered A-line skirt with a deep flounce at the hemline.

A jeweled Camelot cap held the veil of four tiers of illusion edged in the lace and pearls.

The bride's bouquet was of white carnations, yellow rosebuds and baby's breath.

Catherine Ann Brown of Midland attended her sister as maid of honor. Best man was Stanley D. Pruitt Jr. of Fort Worth.

Ushers were Charles W. Brown of Midland, brother of the bride, Prince Ituen W. Ituen Umanah of Ndonoyo-Eket-S.E.S., Nigeria, John A. Moseley of Paris, Tex., and David J. Isner of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Nuptial selections were provided by Mrs. Ray McKim of Odessa, organist. A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

After a trip to Fort Worth; Kansas City, Kan.; Milwaukee, Wis., and Chicago, Ill., the couple will reside in Columbus.

The bride attended Midland College, The University of Texas-El Paso and West Texas State University.

Mrs. Bruce Adamson

Tarrant County Junior College and UTPB. He now is a student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Columbus, where he is associated with Faith Mission, Inc.

Party planned

Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae Association will have a mother-daughter Christmas party from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday in the home of Mrs. Shackelford Reeder, 3205 Racquet Club Drive. Members new to Midland may dial 682-8439.

The Minuet Club of Midland presented its 1975 debutantes at a formal ball and dinner Saturday in Midland Country Club.

Those presented were Sydney Anne Lindley, Linda Yarborough, Katherine Anne Allday, Robin Leslie Yeager, Lisa Suzanne Bedford, Katherine A. "Katchen" Ruppe, Jennifer Blonkvist, Molly DuVal Upchurch, Mary Kay Kennedy and Kay Magruder.

Miss Allday, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lewis Allday, was escorted by Eric Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Hanson. She wore an ante-bellum styled gown of white organza with accents of Guipure lace and seed pearls. The bodice had a portrait neckline framed in a deep ruffle. A self-fabric cummerbund, defining the natural waistline, was secured by lace medallions. The bouffant skirt was sprinkled with lace medallions, and the hemline was encircled with a deep flounce.

Miss Allday's mother wore a long-sleeved gown of champagne chiffon accented with iridescent sequins. Miss Bedford was escorted by Mark Brannum, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Brannum. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilory G. Bedford. Miss Bedford wore a gown of pure silk satin beaded with tiny seed pearls' cut crystal beads and iridescent paillettes. The sleeveless bodice, enhanced with rosettes of beading, was fashioned with a decollete neckline and Empire waist. The slim skirt was accented with a deep border of beaded rosettes. Her mother wore a silk chiffon gown in floral print with obi sash, long sleeves and full skirt.

Escorting Miss Blonkvist was Fred Hamm, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hamm. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Brent G. Blonkvist.

Miss Blonkvist wore an original gown of white silk organza applied with Venetian lace. The dress was styled with a Bateau neckline and scalloped border of Venetian lace at the hemline. Her mother wore a gown of hand-painted silk chiffon in colors ranging from pinks to greens. She also had a hand-painted chiffon shawl.

Miss Lindley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Scott Lindley, was escorted by Albert Metcalfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Metcalfe. She wore a gown of white silk chiffon. The sleeveless bodice had a deep V-neckline and was topped by a sheer poncho of matching fabric, which repeated the handkerchief-point detailing of the gently flared skirt.

Mrs. Lindley wore an Oriental-print gown in silk chiffon. The bodice with full long sleeves and the long pleated skirt had a border print of deeper blue tones, with touches of peacock and red.

Miss Kennedy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Branum of Midland and J. Franklin Kennedy of Colorado. She was escorted by George Eng, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Eng. She wore a white lace ball gown in princess styling. The sleeveless bodice had a bolero top heavily embroidered with sequins and crystal beads. The high neckline had lace flowers embroidered with sequins and crystal beads. The full skirt of lace fell to floor length.

Escorting Miss Magruder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Magruder Jr., was Derrick R. Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob J. Michael.

Miss Magruder chose a white ball gown of embroidered English net. The fitted bodice had a low neckline and halter-type narrow straps embroidered with sequins and crystal beads. The waistline also was marked with a belt of the same embroidered design. Mrs. Magruder wore a champagne colored gown with a sequined bodice styled with a Mandarin collar and long tapered sleeves trimmed in gold rosettes. The bouffant skirt of chiffon over peau de soie was gathered at the waistline.

Miss Ruppe's escort was Douglas Russell, son of Col. and Mrs. John Russell of San Antonio. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Ruppe. Miss Ruppe wore a gown of peau de soie with a modified Empire bodice with ring neckline. Pearls and rhinestones enhanced bodice with ring neckline. Pearls and rhinestones enhanced the fitted A-line skirt. Mrs. Rpe wore a sheath of metallic knit with platinum sequins, styled with a scooped neckline and long tapered sleeves.

Miss Yeager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Yeager Jr., was escorted by Steve Widner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Widner. She wore a gown of white silk-faced satin. The sleeveless bodice had a V-neckline outlined with a wide border of embroidered pearls, crystal beads and sequins. The full skirt fell to floor length and had a border outlined in beading. Mrs. Yeager wore a sea water chiffon gown with halter neckline and long-sleeved jacket.

Miss Upchurch wore a gown of magnolia white chiffon over silk taffeta. The molded jeweled bodice had a high-rise neckline with bands of crystals and iridescents. The Empire waistline also had the beaded bands over draped chiffon.

Parents of Miss Upchurch are Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Upchurch. Her escort was Randy Filley, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Filley. Mrs. Upchurch wore a formal gown of celery silk and worsted Alaskan. The sleeveless sculptured bodice had a U-shaped neckline encrusted with gold beads, rhinestones and pearls.

Escorting Miss Yarborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. "Dub" Yarborough, was Bruce Holbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Holbrook of Dayton. She wore a gown of silk satin accented with white imported re-embroidered Alencon lace traced with seed pearls and rhinestones. The molded bodice, outlined at the waistline with narrow piping of satin, was styled with a decollete neckline outlined with Alencon lace. The slim skirt was enhanced at the hemline with a narrow tier of medallion appliques of jeweled lace. Mrs. Yarborough wore a gown of pure silk chiffon over silk pongee in a candlelight color. The Basque bodice had a scooped neckline and bishop sleeves. The Marc Anthony Orchestra of Lubbock played for the formal ball.

Volunteer Services in Midland

The Volunteers in Midland office, 682-1666, announces the need for the following volunteer services.

INTERVIEWERS: The Senior Citizen Center is conducting a survey to determine the needs of Midland's senior citizens, and to inform senior citizens of the services available to them in Midland. The interviewers will work in pairs and should be persons who relate well to older persons. Orientation and training will be provided to interested volunteers.

TUTORS: Casa de Amigos will begin its second session of tutoring Jan. 19. Tutoring will be primarily in the areas of remedial reading and math. Volunteers are needed two afternoons a week from 3:45 to 4:45 p.m. Orientation for this program will be provided one week prior to Jan. 19.

DISCUSSION LEADERS: Family Services of Midland presents "Plays for Living" to interested organizations upon request. Following the performance of each play, there is a discussion concerning the ideas presented. Volunteers are needed to lead these discussions. Training will be provided and the time required of the volunteer will depend on the plays.

Mrs. Brunner new president of garden club

Officers for 1976 were installed at the annual Christmas luncheon of the Rake and Spade Garden Club held in Midland Country Club. Incoming officers are: Mrs. Ross Brunner, president; Mrs. J. L. Lucas, first vice president; Mrs. Herbert Cavanaugh, second vice president; Mrs. Herbert Pierce, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jack Blake, reporter; and Mrs. Rodney McDaniel, treasurer. Mrs. Russell Ramsland is yearbook chairman and Mrs. George Eng and Mrs. Pierce are telephone chairmen. At the business meeting, after the luncheon, which featured Bicentennial decorations, the club members decided to send Christmas contributions to the Lancaster Garden Center-Museum of the Southwest and High Sky Girls Ranch. Also, a memorial gift was sent to the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in memory of Mrs. Gerald Self. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. John Hackney, Mrs. J. C. McFarland and Mrs. Pierce.

FDA wants warnings issued with estrogen

WASHINGTON — Government consultants recommend that "strong warnings" be added to the prescribing instructions for the estrogens now being taken by millions of women to ease afflictions linked to the menopause, the Food and Drug Administration announced Friday. The FDA's Advisory Committee on Obstetrics and Gynecology also urged that the agency require manufacturers to warn each user of a potential risk of womb cancer from estrogen pills by enclosing leaflets in pill packages. Reports that Premarin and similar pills known as conjugated estrogens may cause an average seven-fold increase in cancer of the uterine lining led the panel to urge that the official labeling be changed to tell physicians that. The pills are approved "only for conditions for which effectiveness has been proven"; the panel deferred to the FDA to identify the "proven" uses, but an agency source said, gave "hot flashes" as an example. Lower doses should be emphasized, because of indications that the risk of womb cancer rises with the dosage. The drugs should be administered on "a stop-and-start basis, and discontinued occasionally to detect the need for their continued use, if any, or to consider decreasing the dose."

Rulings shake arts industry

NEW YORK — Lawyers for the heirs of the late abstract expressionist painter Mark Rothko said they expect to encounter major legal hurdles before they can collect the $9.25 million in judgments and fines awarded their clients against New York City's largest art gallery, its owner, and the estate's three executors. The Rothko heirs were awarded the damages when New York City Surrogate Millard L. Midonick removed the executors after four years of civil suits. The judge said the executors had disposed of 798 of the artist's paintings at prices far below their true market value.

THE RULINGS stunned the art industry, and observers predicted it would result in significant changes in the marketing practices of high-priced art dealers. The alleged beneficiaries of the sales — the prestigious Marlborough Gallery and its owner, Frank Lloyd — were found to have sold many of the paintings in a "curious atmosphere involving absence of hard bargaining," the surrogate said. The judgment includes a $3.3-million fine against the gallery for violating a court injunction banning the sale of any more Rothko paintings after the lawsuit began four years ago. During a lengthy and complex trial of the lawsuit brought by Rothko's children — Kate, 24, a medical student at Johns Hopkins University, and Christopher, 11 — one art expert testified that the 798 paintings left by Rothko when he committed suicide in his Manhattan studio in 1970 were worth $32 million.

THE DECISION sent reverberations Friday throughout New York's art community, partly because of Marlborough's position as a giant among world galleries. The firm, located here in a block-long new building on Manhattan's East Side, has its headquarters in Liechtenstein and branches in London, Tokyo, Rome, Montreal, Zurich and Toronto. The Art Dealers Association of America, a national organization formed to uphold ethical standards of the trade, scheduled an emergency meeting of its directors for Tuesday to consider the ruling's implications. "This matter has been discussed at every meeting of the directors for three years, and they decided to take no action until a verdict was in. I'm sure the board will discuss it in a lively fashion on Tuesday," said a spokesman for the association.

Jackson delegates planned

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry M. Jackson will skip the "beauty contest" portion of the New Hampshire primary but file a slate of delegates in the nation's first primary, informed sources in the Jackson campaign, confirmed. The decision, reported Friday in The Boston Globe, represents an uneasy compromise between opposing camps in the Jackson campaign, who have been struggling all week over the New Hampshire question. It means that Jackson will not risk his prestige in a direct contest with the others who have announced they will run in the Feb. 24 contest — Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, Sargent Shriver, and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

But if his delegates should win some of the 17 delegate spots, he could claim a victory — without having taken time from other primaries to campaign in the state.

Chile bank to reopen

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The First National City Bank of New York will reopen its Chilean branch Tuesday, three years after selling its operations here to the then-leftist Chilean government. Executives of the bank told newsmen that the branch will resume operations with capital of $4 million, about the same amount involved in the 1972 sale. All foreign bank operations were nationalized under the administration of Marxist President Salvador Allende, who was elected president in 1970. After Allende was overthrown in September 1973, the military government announced that foreign banks would be permitted to return and would "enjoy the same rights and obligations as national banks." The First National City Bank first began operating in Chile in 1917.

Privacy act stops Christmas card lists

WASHINGTON — Bad news for the greeting card industry. Federal workers may not be sending or getting as many office-related Christmas cards this year as in other years. The Scrooge in this case is the new Right to Privacy Act.

Normally government offices update lists of employe names, home addresses (and sometimes marital status) each December, for the convenience of workers who want to send each other Christmas or New Year's greetings. While there have been some objections in past from die-hard anti-Christmas types, or people who just don't like to get on anybody's list, the card-lists have been standard operating procedure in most agencies. No more.

Government lawyers, have tentatively concluded that the compilation of such Christmas cards lists may be in violation of Section B of the new privacy law which restricts records agencies may keep, and their use.

The act says that "no agency shall disclose any record which is contained in a system of records by any means of communication to any person or to another agency, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of the individual to whom the record contains."

Lost more legal jargon is involved, but it came down to a determination as to whether Christmas card lists, usually in alphabetical order or with other identifying "codes," fall within the term "system of records," and therefore be illegal unless everybody on those lists signed a waiver saying it was okay to give out his or her name and address.

Lawyers who have looked at it say the lists probably are legally taboo.

The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — A law school classmate remembers John Paul Stevens, the newest justice on the Supreme Court, as a "cool customer, the kind of guy who was always in perfect control and never seemed to get steamed up about anything."

The intervening 30 years have not changed Stevens perceptibly, if one is to judge from his 200 judicial opinions and from his two days of testimony at confirmation hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

From the moment he ambled into the Senate hearing room, wearing a skinny black bow tie and a blue suit of old-fashioned cut, Stevens seemed the model of moderation and reasonableness. He voiced no controversial views. He disavowed any allegiance to political or social causes. Even when faced with, sometimes inane question, he never lost his temper.

THE LEGAL OPINIONS he wrote during a five-year tenure on the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago buttress that impression of self-control. Painstaking and closely reasoned, his rulings never strayed far from the specific facts of the case, usually relied heavily on precedent and blazed very few legal frontiers.

"It has always been my philosophy," Stevens explained in testimony, "to decide cases on the narrowest grounds possible and not to reach out" to make bold pronouncements on social issues.

Stevens keeps such a tight rein on his feelings and preferences that many legal observers are at a loss to guess how he might vote on some of the emotion-laden issues now facing the high court: capital punishment, the constitutionality of gag orders restricting press coverage of criminal proceedings, employers' treatment of pregnant workers.

Such issues may prove especially troublesome to Stevens because there are no clear precedents to guide his way. Nowhere in the Constitution are there suggestions, for example, about what to do when the First Amendment right of the press to be free from government interference collides with a defendant's Sixth Amendment right to a fair trial by an impartial jury.

And when Congress banned sex discrimination in the 1964 Civil Rights Act, it moved so hastily that there is little legislative history to help judges determine whether employers should be able to discriminate on the basis of a condition, such as pregnancy, that affects only one sex.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT is the most difficult question of all, for the Eighth Amendment's ban on "cruel and unusual punishment" is one of the most open-ended sections of the Constitution.

When dealing with such issues, the high court necessarily comes close to being a legislative body, like it or not. The justices make policy judgments, assess popular opinion, and put their own gloss on Anglo-American legal history and on the precedents of their own court, which may have only limited applicability to modern conditions.

Many justices, even those regarded as exceptionally fair-minded, adopt pet causes. Justice Potter Stewart, once a reporter on a Cincinnati newspaper, lends an especially sensitive ear to the claims of the press. Justice Byron r. White and Thurgood Marshall can be counted on to champion civil rights causes. Justice Harry A. Blackmun, former legal counsel to the Mayo Clinic, takes an unusual interest in medical matters.

But if there are burning passions in John Paul Stevens, they have remained well hidden behind his imperturbable countenance and careful prose. Already some employees at the high court have dubbed him "Even Stevens."

Stevens' judicial opinions yield only slightly more clues than his testimony about how he might approach issues such as capital punishment, primarily because circuit judges are not often called on to make the same sweeping policy judgments that face Supreme Court justices.

opinions is deference to the so-called "political branches" of government, the executive and legislative. In ruling after ruling, he has preached at the folly of judges deciding issues that would be better resolved by the popularly elected representatives of the people.

That kind of deference could be decisive when it comes time for Stevens to vote on the constitutionality of death penalty laws enacted by 34 state legislatures in an attempt to circumvent the high court's 1972 ruling on capital punishment.

If Stevens were to reason that state legislators know better than he whether the death penalty is acceptable to Americans, then executions would resume, for his vote will almost certainly be the crucial one.

Opponents of capital punishment are not completely convinced that Stevens will automatically give state legislatures their own way. Organizations such as the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, which spearheads the drive to abolish capital punishment, have found solace in some of his criminal law rulings.

They point out that the appeals court on which Stevens sat was one of the first in the country to extend due process to prison disciplinary proceedings and that Stevens spoke for the court when it announced this major expansion of prisoners' rights.

"THE JUDICIARY," Stevens wrote in the seminal 1973 ruling, "cannot avoid its ultimate responsibility for interpreting the constitutional requirements of due process. Certainly that responsibility cannot be delegated to prison authorities."

FDA: enhancement of chicken skin color deceptive?

Newsday

Do you reach for the yellow chickens in the supermarket rather than the white ones?

Chances are, you do. Many consumers have come to associate a yellow color with a quality chicken, according to the Poultry and Egg Institute of America. And, as poultry farming has gotten more scientific, farmers commonly have included in their feed mixtures an ingredient to insure the yellow color in the skin and sometimes to deepen the yellow in egg yolks.

The question being weighed by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, however, is whether that adds up to a deceptive practice. Should consumers be informed in some way, as they are by labels when artificial colors are added directly to foods, that the yellowness of chicken skins has been enhanced by substances added to chicken feed?

THE SAFETY of those additives isn't being questioned, according to an FDA spokesman. The only debate concerns whether the average person is being deceived, not having the faintest idea that chickens are colored artificially, in effect, because of something they eat.

In the FDA's definition, any coloring agent has to be termed artificial — whether it is derived from a natural substance or is chemically produced — if it is used to alter the appearance of a different substance. For example, beet juice would be considered an artificial color if added to lemon juice to make pink lemonade, according to Richard Runk, director of the FDA's division of food and color additives.

Since trying to label chickens and eggs might not prove feasible, according to the FDA, the agency also is considering revoking the existing regulations which allow the use of the coloring agents in animal feed. A period for public comment will follow publication of the FDA's proposal in the Federal Register at some future date.

The FDA's tentative policy is to deny any new requests for approval of animal feed color additives, according to the spokesman. In September, the FDA denied approval for use in animal feed of a synthetic yellow coloring matter produced by Union Carbide Corp. The substance, called Canthaxanthin, has FDA approval for general food use but separate approval is needed for use in animal feed.

FOUR SUBSTANCES that make chickens and their eggs yellower have FDA approval and have been used for 15 or so years, according to poultry experts. Two are made from a variety of marigold, one from dried algae and one from a type of corn oil. They supply xanthophylls, a substance related to Vitamin A, which is metabolized to the yellow pigment which ends up in the skin and the egg yolk.

Normally, chickens have a slightly yellow skin from eating normal feed, but the pigment is deposited in the top layer of skin and is washed off in modern processing, according to Margaret Huston, scientific director of the Poultry and Egg Institute of America. The color comes from corn or grasses like alfalfa, she said, but chickens' balanced diets don't include a lot of alfalfa because it doesn't contain many nutrients.

Hanoi, Haiphong may become tourist attractions

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Thirty Swedes and Danes leave Sunday on a pioneering, 17-day tourist trip to North Vietnam for holiday visits to places the U.S. Air Force bombed in the Vietnam war.

The tourists have been told that their behavior during their visits to Hanoi, Haiphong, the resort of Don Son, Gulf of Tonkin beaches and "some battlefields" will determine whether other tourists will be allowed to follow. A travel brochure is being distributed in Switzerland offering Vietnam tours in 1976.

"Over the last 50 years they had only bad experiences with Europeans, you know," said Ejner Berthelsen, the 53-year-old tour guide for the Scandinavian group. "Besides, the Vietnamese do not want to attract the usual crowd that flocks to Spain's Costa del Sol or other such places."

He said his group will be the first party of Western tourists to visit North Vietnam.

The Swiss brochure tells potential visitors they will find unspoiled beaches, dreamy islands and "quiet and peaceful scenery" in North Vietnam.

"North Vietnam has recovered from decades of conflict with breathtaking speed," the leaflet says. "It is now preparing for a new modern kind of invasion — that of tourism."

Tickets for the tour purchased in Switzerland are advertised at $1,800 for 18 days. The first group is paying $1,275, said Berthelsen, who works for the Folketourist Travel Agency which specializes in trips to Communist countries.

He said Hanoi authorities made it known to his agency that other West European travel agencies, including some in Switzerland, will get the green light for planned package tours to Vietnam only if this first tour is successful.

"The Vietnamese want to make sure not only that their hotels and other facilities are really ready for this kind of tourism, but also that European tourists behave as the Vietnamese expect them to," he said. Danes and Swedes were probably given the first chance because their governments opposed the American involvement in Indochina.

The Scandinavian party is to take a Scandinavian Airlines plane to East Berlin and transfer there to a scheduled East German Interflug flight which goes to Hanoi by way of Moscow, Tashkent, Karachi and Dacca.

They are scheduled to spend two weeks in Vietnam, then return by the same route. But Berthelsen said he was not too familiar with all the details of the stay because the first report on the itinerary did not reach him until last week.

His travel agency sold the trip largely through one advertisement in Land and People, the Danish Communist party's small daily newspaper.

Berthelsen said the tour group is a mixture of intellectuals, businessmen, professional men — "all kinds of people".

Dornbier said his agency's first trip will be in March. His party of 18 will stop in Laos on the way east, spend eight days in North Vietnam, and stop in Thailand on the way home.

ODESSA PERMIAN back Johnny Houser (45) leaps through hole in Port Neches-Groves' line to score the Panthers' only touchdown in state AAAA title game at Texas Stadium Saturday.

Miami keeps hopes alive with last ditch victory

MIAMI (AP) — "I think the last play points out this team's character. We pulled down deep," Earl Morrall said after the Miami Dolphins staged a dramatic comeback in the game's closing minutes to beat Denver 14-13 Saturday and keep their National Football League playoff hopes alive.

"You take seven points when you can get it," Morrall, who played the whole second half, began by engineering a 76-yard scoring drive early in the third period before leading the Dolphins on the game winning drive.

The Broncos built a 10-0 halftime lead on a first-quarter Turner field goal of 39 yards and a second-quarter touchdown scored when tight end Riley Odoms recovered a Lynch fumble in the end zone.

McKay labels Ags top foe

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Southern California Coach John McKay says Texas A&M, his Liberty Bowl foe Monday night, will be the best team the Trojans have faced all year.

Bell's success at moving the ball has all but eliminated the Trojan passing attack. Quarterback Vince Evans completed just 29 of 69 passes and, of 44 Southern Cal completions this year, 23 went to split end Randy Simmrin.

Permian finally got on the scoreboard in the second period with Kris Howard coming in to replace Pittman at quarterback. He hit spill end Ricky Ross for 14 yards and after the Tribe held, this time, Wheatley boomed through a 33-yard field goal to cut the lead to 14-3, with 5:04 left in the first half.

The Panthers returned the favor moments later when Wilson Weber picked off a Howard pass at the Permian 29. Howard had completed seven straight passes before that interception.

Golden Mousetrapping, bowl time arrives again

By Associated Press The college football bowl season, also known as "The National Order of the Golden Mousetrapping," is here again.

For those who thought the pressure in the bowls was all on the players and coaches, think again. The national championship trophy is but a mere bauble compared to the famous—infamous?—Golden Mousetrapping.

The exclusive league, started by Nebraska sports information director Don Bryant, is limited to college publicists whose teams (1) play in a postseason bowl, (2) lead in the fourth quarter and (3) then get mousetrapped and lose the game.

Bryant, Harold Keith, ex-Oklahoma, and Jay Simon, ex-Kansas, are charter members. Ted Mann, ex-Duke, is chairman of the board emeritus while Wilbur Evans, ex-Texas and currently executive vicepresident of the Cotton Bowl, is president emeritus.

Other members include Notre Dame's Roger Valdiserri; Bud Johnson, ex-Louisiana State; Will Perry of Michigan; Dave Cawood, ex-Arkansas; Ralph Carpenter of Texas Tech and Tony Bord, ex-Chico State. The Sun Devils of Arizona State, champions of the Western Athletic Conference, have a chance to prove the WAC can compete with anyone and Coach Frank Kush will have them sky-high with their eyes like bee-bees for Nebraska.

For the Cornhuskers, their national championship dreams shattered by Oklahoma, it's a fun trip—if a trek to Arizona State's backyard can be fun—but a loss would be mighty embarrassing since they turned down the Fiesta Bowl's original invitation.

Besides, Nebraska has won six straight bowl games and seven in a row would be a national record. COACH TOM OSBORNE can only hope his players will be as impressed with the Sun Devils as he is. "I'm real impressed with their overall team speed," says Osborne. "Arizona State has always had a lot of quickness in their running attack and this club doesn't seem to be any different. I do know this—we'll have our work cut out for us playing Arizona State, especially in their own stadium."

Clock juggling helps Blue win

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It was a long bomb that won the game. But it was a short clock that resulted in the biggest blast.

A controversy over timed keeping Friday night overshadowed the last-minute 51 yard touchdown pass by New Mexico's Steve Myer that gave the favored North squad a 14-13 victory over the South in the annual Blue-Gray All-Star Classic.

The flap over the clock began when the first quarter was shortened from 15 minutes to 12, the timekeeper explaining that the independent network telecasting the event had requested the change.

Then, with the North mounting a drive in the fourth quarter, there were charges from angry South players that the game was being slowed down.

Bill Moseley, assistant general manager of the Blue-Gray game, admitted the time-juggling and sympathized with the anguish of the South.

"They have a right to be disappointed," he said during the final period. "The TV folks wanted to shorten the game and it was getting over too quick, so they're trying to stretch it out."

The network had no comment on the time changes.

Tight ball control by quarterback Scott Gardner of Virginia, the game's Most Valuable Player, and a stingy defense kept the North scoreless until the controversial last period.

Minnesota's Dexter Pride plunged for one yard for the North's first tally with only 5:37 left on the clock. Myer hit Bill Singler of Stanford for the second score with only 31 seconds remaining.

SMU, UTEP triumph

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Mike Jaccar sank two free throws with two seconds left in overtime to give Southern Methodist an 87-85 victory over 17th-ranked Auburn in the first round of the Sun Bowl basketball tournament Friday night.

Three consecutive baskets midway in the second half by Ron Jones pushed Texas-El Paso to a 77-67 victory over Tulsa in the opening game.

Regulation play ended with a 75-75 deadlock when Auburn guard Eddie Johnson missed a short jumper with five seconds left.

Jaccar was fouled in backcourt by Auburn's Wayne Bracy to set up the winning free throws. Auburn Coach Bob Davis called two timeouts before the shots.

Ira Terrell was the leading scorer in the game, hitting 28 points for SMU, now 4-3 for the season.

Sub forward Joe Swedlund added 17 for the Mustangs.

DeLeon, La Grange claim state grid titles

By The Associated Press

Hard running backs at Temple, DeLeon got more than 100 yards rushing and one touchdown apiece from Mark McKillip and Rocky Hardin and won the Class A championship with a 26-15 victory over Schulenburg.

It was the first state title for both La Grange and DeLeon.

La Grange led 6-0 at halftime as Johnson ran for 34 yards and a touchdown to climax a 99-yard drive scoring drive. Johnson followed with scoring runs of five yards in the third quarter and 22 yards in the fourth to break the game open.

Crane, Kermit post cage wins

Crane, Fort Stockton, Seminole and defending champion Kermit all took opening round victories in the Golden Crane Basketball Tournament in Crane Friday.

Kermit powered its way past AA McCamey, 72-56 as Bruce Kimball scored 19 points. McCamey's Clifton Pettis scored 15 while Sam Gutierrez and Woody Brooks contributed 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Host Crane defeated AAA Lake View, 60-47, as Bill Lewis showed his usual strength with 26 points. Ted Butts had 12 for the Chiefs.

Seminole rapped Reagan County, 78-57, as Scott Blake and David Wright each scored 15 points.

Fort Stockton downed the Crane Junior Varsity, 82-56, in the other first round game.

In other Friday night action, Ozona nipped Rankin, 53-49 in overtime. Douglas Bean got four points in the overtime period to break the regulation 49-49 standoff. Franklin Garza had 18 points for Ozona and Bean 13. Rankin was led by Gary McSpadden with 15 points. Rankin won the junior varsity outing, 47-43 as Don Vickers scored 13 points.

Odessa Permian vaulted into the finals of the Ysleta Invitational with a 38-34 victory over El Paso Parkland and a 51-46 win over El Paso Eastwood. Odessa Ector dropped two games in the same tournament.

Glenn Woodruff and Billy Sitton took honors in the men's division of the first annual Toy Tournament at Hogan Park.
Sitton won low gross with a 75 and Woodruff took low net with a 75-3-72. Billy mastered cool weather and wind while Glen's only trouble came from Stan Loper, who finished second with 76-4-72. Under the Calloway Handicap System, the tie was settled by the low gross score, which belonged to Woodruff.
Cindy Blake's 84 headed low gross scores in the ladies division on nines of 43 and 41. Pat Kolb shot a 113-12-73 while Claudia Rogers, Della Olson and Cheta Mee tied for second with 75.
OF COURSE, the real winners in the Toy Tournament will be Tall City youngsters who wake up Christmas morning to find those socks filled. There were more than 60 entries in the tournament and more than 80 toys collected.
Cool weather seems to have slowed down local golf play, but Bill Saunders did report that the frost doesn't show up until he gets to the fifth tee. Slipping up on the course before it woke up, Bill shot a 35-40-75....

Ohio hospital guarantees service

By GEORGE ESPER
FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — At the Blanchard Valley Hospital, the only one in town, the customers are always right.

Some might not get well, but the 40,000 patients treated annually at the hospital are guaranteed good food, satisfactory nursing care and a variety of other hospital amenities. If a patient goes for a blood test and "gets stuck with a square needle," as a hospital official puts it, he gets his money back.

A spokesman for the American Hospital Association, which has nearly 7,000 members, or 85 per cent of all the hospitals in the United States, says that as far as the AHA knows, Blanchard Valley is the only hospital in the nation guaranteeing its services.

Now beginning its second year, the program has been praised by hospital staff and patients alike. And hospitals elsewhere in the country have requested information about the program.

During the first 12 months, only 14 patients complained and only eight asked for refunds, according to William E. Ruse, Blanchard Valley's 40-year-old administrator. The others just wanted to call something to the attention of the hospital so it would be corrected.

Ruse instituted the guaranteed services on Nov. 1, 1974, because he was concerned, he said, about the high cost of health care. He convinced the hospital board to give him $12,000 a year for refunds.

The biggest first-year refund went to a patient who complained that a nurse did not respond quickly enough to a call and that as a result, the patient fell out of bed. The patient got back half the daily room cost—it ranges from $56 to $63 in the 230-bed hospital—and free treatment in the emergency room, services that amounted to $66.

Other complaints included delays in admission, poor food, and faulty TV sets. And then there was the 67-year-old woman admitted somehow to the pediatrics ward.

Two patients were unhappy with their doctors, but the hospital's guarantee services agreement says: "Because of the nature of human illness, we cannot guarantee the results of your medical care nor can we guarantee the services provided by your physician or dentist."

Another paragraph adds the caveat: "Crediting a patient's account under the guaranteed services program is not an admission of liability, either expressed or implied..."

In the first year of operation, the hospital refunded to the eight patients $43,577. The remaining $11,856.43 set aside in the annual budget was distributed as bonuses to the hospital's 577 employees. The bonuses, based on the number of hours each worked, ranged from 30 cents to a newly hired employee to $32.80. The average was $20. Ruse, who convinced the 18-man board of trustees to approve the service guarantee to patients, says he got the idea while driving to a meeting.

"I just happened to think of it," he says. "It didn't come from any particular set of circumstances."

The proposal first was studied by two board committees, then went to the full board, which voted approval by a three to one margin.

"The concern was not so much with the $12,000 a year as with the potential liability, which was unknown," Ruse said. "We were putting the entire budget of the hospital on the line."

"The initial reaction was one of acceptance, but not unanimously. There were some who said laughingly, 'Call in the men in white uniforms.'"

"But I sold it through logical reasoning," explained Ruse, who has been hospital administrator for 11 years. "I explained that the hospital had a track record of few complaints. We have had a patient relations director for seven years and an Aspirin Line for complaints five years. We knew the types and numbers of complaints were very small; I didn't feel we were taking a risk of that magnitude."

Ruse says Blanchard Valley's costs are 20 per cent below the average in northwestern Ohio and the service guarantee program should help to hold down costs because it fosters patient confidence. "Hopefully they will get well faster and shorten their length of stay — which will help hold down the cost," Ruse said. He added: "In adopting this kind of program, you have to have a lot of faith in what you're doing. If the phone is ringing and too many patients are unhappy, you could go bankrupt. But this is the day and age of having to address yourself to the consumer. What can we do to meet that challenge? Part of the idea is to meet patients' expectations."

Doctors given warning

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The nation's largest manufacturer of cardiac pacemakers says it has issued a warning to physicians about a possible problem with 2,377 of the devices.

Medtronic, Inc., said there was a possibility the pacemakers in question could lose their ability to provide the electrical impulses that help keep defective hearts beating regularly.

The battery-powered pacemakers, about the size of a package of cigarettes, are implanted surgically. Medtronic controls about 60 per cent of the pacemaker market in the United States.

Gary Strumpfer, a company spokesman, said the 2,377 devices were the first units of the product line introduced last year. The company said 897 of the pacemakers were implanted as part of a product performance study. The other 1,480 were not part of that study, but were manufactured under similar conditions.

The company said the warning stems from malfunctions of five pacemakers in the laboratory.

Amtrak becomes modern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first six of Amtrak's new electric locomotives will be in service before Christmas and the anticipated crunch of holiday travelers, a spokesman for the National Railroad Passenger Corp. has announced.

He added that the Amtrak directors had voted to accept the remaining 24 locomotives of a 26-engine, $19-million order from the General Electric Co. after the test models passed their exams at speeds up to 121 miles an hour.

Amtrak said five of the first six will be placed into service immediately, helping to speed up the use of the corporation's more than 100 new Amfleet passenger cars.

By the end of this month, a total of 12 new engines will be on the tracks, the spokesman said, with five more coming on line in January.

Delivery of the 6,000-horsepower locomotives had been delayed pending tests on a number of modifications in their design, which was keyed primarily to the heavily travelled Northeast transportation corridors.

Seven of the new Amfleet trains are operating in that corridor using older electric and diesel locomotives, he said.

A run between Washington and Cumberland, Md., has been sporting the plush, colorful new cars and a new locomotive for several weeks. The new cars went into service for the first time Thursday in the Midwest when added to one of the Chicago-St. Louis runs, Amtrak said.

The new locomotives are scheduled to first operate at speeds up to 85 miles an hour. Carl J. Schiemmer, vice president of GE's transportation systems division in Erie, Pa., where the new locomotives are being built, said he was "delighted" with Amtrak's verdict on the tests.

Vail awaits Ford, snow

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — No banners, brass bands or planned welcoming rallies will greet President Ford in this Rocky Mountain ski resort when he arrives for his winter work-vacation.

"Will it snow?" "Where's the best skiing?" "How's that new bar?" or "Where is a good place to eat?" Those are the major concerns.

It appears that given a choice, folks here would rather have some fresh snow than a presidential visit. But if both arrived at the same time, that would be all right, too.

Vail, a ski resort 8,200 feet above sea level, is a place so unnoticing that even a president can find relief and escape from world problems and crowds of well-wishers.

One hundred miles west of Denver, the town of Vail plays host to movie stars and celebrities and has been Ford's vacation home since his days as a congressman from Michigan. "Have no fear, Air Force One will bring snow," reads a handwritten blackboard note on a midmountain ski lift.

That's the closest to a welcoming banner to be found. And even that notation is not about matters of state, but is seeking Ford's snow-making powers which dumped more than a foot of snow for his visit last Christmas.

President Ford is scheduled to arrive Tuesday for a seven-day stay with his family. With him for Christmas will be First Lady Betty Ford, daughter Susan, sons Steve and Mike, and Mike's wife.

The borrowed home where the Ford family will spend Christmas is nestled against the slopes of Vail Mountain. It has a large decorated Christmas tree in its huge windows, which reaches to the top of the A-framed chalet-type home. The front door of the home is decorated in red, with an evergreen trim.

As holiday skiers began to fill the town, the Secret Service set up a control booth outside the home which the Fords have borrowed from Texas businessman Richard Bass. Soon ropes and lights will surround the home.

Ford is described by ski instructors as a good recreational skier. Last Christmas, Ford skied the well-groomed runs from the summit of 11,250 feet and the unpacked, deep-powder snow bowls on the south side of Vail Mountain.

Skiers are hoping the President's arrival will bring snow to replenish the 24-inch snow base which rapidly is wearing away since the last snow on Tuesday.

Sight Christmas present for Honduran

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ten-year-old Andres Hernandez, blind and starving, groped through the streets of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, begging for food. That was Christmas Past, 1974.

On the eve of Christmas Present, 1975, Andres ate good New Orleans food every day. He was clean. He was happy. And, best of all, he could see shapes and forms, even his Christmas presents.

Andres never had many Christmas presents before, but since he was 5 Andres couldn't have seen them anyway. He could tell darkness from light. That was all.

A team of six surgeons at Ochsner Medical Institutions gave him his biggest Christmas gift with two delicate operations, successful against heavy odds.

"We don't have Santa Claus in Honduras," he said in Spanish. "But, we have St. Nicholas, and that's the same thing."

He wriggled a little and his face split into a wide grin. "Oh, they have lots of pretty Christmas trees in Honduras," he said.

No one asked how he knew.

"He's a great boy," said Dr. William Williamson, one of the doctors who saved Andres' right eye. "He's bright and he's got guts."

There he would be, his eyes bandaged, blind, being prodded and tested, not hearing a word he could understand, among a bunch of strangers, and he still grinned.

The miracle of Andres Hernandez Perez began when Paul Holsten, a Honduran businessman, saw the boy begging in Tegucigalpa. He talked by ham radio to Tony Paladino of New Orleans who contacted Ochsner. Drs. Williamson and Robert Schimek, chief of Ochsner ophthalmology, agreed to operate without charge.

A Honduran radio telethon raised $800, and the Honduran airline flew him to New Orleans free. The Help Honduras Committee, formed in New Orleans when Hurricane Fifi decimated Honduras, provided other help.

Andres lost his left eye to infection, but the doctor who removed it didn't have the equipment to help the right eye. "When he got here, he was suffering from glaucoma, cataracts, a scarred cornea and the tissues of the front of his eye were just garbage," said Williamson.

The surgical team created a new window or iris on one side of the corneal scar, and tried to reduce the pressure of the glaucoma. Then, it transplanted a cornea and repaired the tissues inside the eye.

"He'll never be a jet pilot, but our goal is to fix him up so he can navigate by himself. can see enough for that," Williamson said.

Andres talks about life on the family farm in the hills around Alubaren to which he returns soon. Friends here hope food is more plentiful than when Andres begged a meal every two days. Malnutrition cost Andres his left eye and much of the sight of his right.

"We'll be sending vitamins and there's the Honduran doctor who removed his left eye," said a medical spokesman. "Andres will be asked to see him from time to time."

That is Christmas Future.

Eruption rips crater

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — A volcanic eruption ripped open a crater two-thirds of a mile wide Saturday, police reports said. No injuries or property damage were reported.

The crater is six miles north of Lake Myvatn and two miles from a power station under construction at Krafla.

Earthquakes shook the area for almost two hours before the eruption, according to two watchmen at the Krafla station, whose buildings and other staff had gone home for the Christmas holidays.

The eruption came on the first anniversary of the snow avalanche that buried part of the town of Neksuapstadur on Iceland's east coast, killing 12 people.

Midland to host art competition

Mrs. James Stimmel, left, and Mrs. Ray Bristol work on plans for the 1976 National Young Artist Competition.

With barely a month remaining before the opening of the 1976 National Young Artist Competition here, Midland Symphony Guild members are hard at work on final planning and preparation for it.

The 1976 competition—the 14th one—will be held in Midland Jan. 23 and 24. The event alternates annually between Midland and Odessa.

Mrs. John Greer, general chairman of the upcoming contest, said Saturday that 70 student instrumentalists and vocalists had been accepted for participation, following the Dec. 10 deadline for receipt of entries. These were in response to the hundreds of bulletins mailed out in early fall to colleges, universities, conservatories and many secondary schools across the nation, advertising the event.

Although the total number of entries processed and accepted is slightly smaller than totals of recent years, Mrs. Greer and her co-chairman, Mrs. LaDoyce Lambert, said the quality of contestants accepted for the 1976 event is "exceptionally high."

Participants in the competition will be vying for $5,600 in cash awards provided through the interest and generosity of Mrs. Raiford H. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Ross and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bradford, all of Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Noel of Odessa. Additionally, funds are provided by the Beal Foundation of Midland toward administrative expenses of the contest.

The cash awards will be distributed among finalists, winners and performing winners. The latter winners will also earn the opportunity to perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony in its February subscription concerts.

Competition divisions include a college division and a secondary schools division.

In the college segment, performance categories include piano; strings (violin, viola, cello and harp; woodwinds (flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon and French horn), and voice.

The secondary schools division has all the above categories except voice.

Of the 70 students accepted for participation in the contest, 55 are in the college division, while 15 are secondary school students.

In college piano, there are 15 male and seven female contestants. Largest state representation is Utah, with eight contestants.

In college woodwinds, there are 11 entries and flute is the most popular instrument, with five students listing it. There also are two each of French horn, clarinet and oboe. The group represents schools in Kansas, New Mexico and Indiana.

College strings has six entries, all in violin. The two males and four females accepted in this category hail from the Cleveland Institute of Music, Indiana University, Texas Woman's University, The University of Texas-Austin and The Juilliard School.

College voice has 16 entrants—a dozen female and four male, and they study at such diverse institutions as Eastern New Mexico University, Baylor University, North Texas State, West Texas State, Southwest Texas State, Hardin-Simmons University and The University of Texas-El Paso.

Secondary schools piano category has nine entrants, two others are accepted for the woodwinds segment and four students will vie for honors in the strings segment. These 15 young people are enrolled in schools in Utah, Arizona, Oklahoma, Iowa and Texas.

Canadian singers fare well

By LARRY ROHTER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The mansions of Beverly Hills, the haciendas of Bel Air and the bungalows of Laurel Canyon are a long way from the rolling prairie of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, where Joni Mitchell grew up. They are even more removed from the mining towns of north Ontario, where Neil Young was raised. How is it possible, then, that a pair of expatriate Canadians have come to be recognized as the most perceptive of all "California" pop songwriters?

The answer may well be that California is not so much a place as it is a state of mind. Or perhaps it's that even after years at the top of the Los Angeles rock aristocracy, Mitchell and Young are still outsiders who look at the goingscame dancing across the water with his galleons and guns, looking for the New World and that palace in the sun."

He didn't find exactly what he was looking for, and suggests Young on "Through My Sails" and most of the rest of the album, neither will we. That's hardly what you'd call an optimistic outlook but compared to "Tonight's The Night," an album so bitter as to be indigestible, "Zuma" is a remarkably upbeat record; Young still ranges and rambles, but his music, good old three-chord rock 'n' roll, is more orderly than it's been in a long time.

"Through My Sails," recorded with the assistance of the other three-quarters of Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, is the album's gentlest and most mellow tune and also, not incidentally, the only song the newly reformed Crazy Horse didn't play on. Young has apparently reunited with his old back-up band; a young Chicano rhythm guitarist named Frank Sampedro takes the place of Danny Whitten, the man whose death from an overdose of drugs was the subject of "Tonight's The Night."

ENTERTAINMENT

on around them from an outsider's point of view. One thing's for sure, though: The portraits of hip, young and affluent Southern California types contained in her "The Hissing of Summer Lawns" (Asylum 7E-1051) and his "Zuma" (Reprise MS 2242) are more telling than anything else that's been recorded this year.

In Mitchell's case, even her wonderfully evocative album title manages to suggest Los Angeles. The dog days of August have arrived, the sprinklers whir on without respite, and from a ranch house somewhere up in the hills, one can "see the blue pools in the squinting sun and hear the hissing of summer lawns"—a sound that actually can be heard throughout the song that lends its name to Mitchell's first album of all-new material since 1973's "Court and Spark."

If you think the circumstances suggested here sound comfortable, you're right. Nobody in "The Hissing of Summer Lawns" is hurting for money. Mitchell's people vacation in Paris, shop at Bloomingdale's when they're in New York party at night in the slickest discos. Some of them can even claim to have "a room full of Chippendale that nobody sits in."

Unfortunately, in delineating the ennui and emptiness that lie behind this brave material front — and if that idea seems familiar, if you think you've read it in a book before or seen it in a film somewhere, you're right again — Mitchell takes a tone that is smug, sometimes so smug that it is downright irritating. The album's title tune suffers from this, so does "Harry's House-entertainment," with its conversational fragments from some mythical household and its talk of "paper wives" and "paper kids" who "paper the walls to keep their gut reactions hid."

What redeems the album are cool and jazzy melodies and some of the best songs about women and men that Mitchell has ever written. Sex and romantic attachment are subjects that she has touched on in each of her seven previous albums, but "Edith and the Kingpin" and "Shades of Scarlet Conquering" are more subtle and mature than all but a handful of the many tales of dalliance that have appeared on predecessors to "Summer Lawns."

From another world altogether, but even more impressive is "The Jungle Line"—a savage and bizarre fantasy obviously inspired by the works of French primitivist painter Henri Rousseau. The warrior drums of Burundi thump insistently, intertwining with the moog synthesizer that Mitchell uses for the first time and underscoring lyrics that try to impose the jungle's "ritual of sound and time" on "the mathematic circuits of modern nights." Never before has Mitchell done anything like "The Jungle Line"; a few more songs as adventurous as this and "Summer Lawns" would have become a breakthrough album instead of merely being a reworking of familiar motifs.

While Neil Young's "Zuma" isn't without precedent, either, on one occasion it, too, turns away from what is close at hand and tries to detail the collision of two cultures. "Cortez the Killer," one of nine songs on Young's most satisfying album since "Harvest," is the story of the Spanish conquistador who found — and soon destroyed — Montezuma's Aztecs when "he

Sandy Dennis survives stardom

The Washington Post
NEW YORK — Sandy Dennis is back on Broadway in Alan Ayckbourn's "Absurd Person Singular" after having taken four months out to tour as Maggie in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." She is pleased with her role in the Ayckbourn comedy. She goes through some highly unusual paces these days as the actress who won an Academy Award for her supporting performance in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" That was in 1966 and it was her first movie role bigger than a bit. A couple of years before that she was a Broadway sensation in "Any Wednesday."

Sandy Dennis has been a critics' darling. Sometimes. Other times critics have torn her apart. In a relaxed and wryly philosophical manner that carries conviction, Dennis tells you that she doesn't feel any great need to lash back at critics. All she wants to do is survive their slings and arrows. In a discussion of which actors are genuinely capable of immersing themselves in a variety of distinctive characterizations I was saying something on the order of "Of course you've got to have a strong definite personality to be a star" when Dennis cut in with "To stay alive!"

A lot of fine American character actors never become stars, she said; English actors have a better chance to make it to the top. And the men in both countries "go on longer." Dennis said, "An American actress is an ingenue or a leading lady or a 70-year-old woman. In films almost nothing is written for women from 45 to 60. So an actress might as well be dead for those years. When you get to your 40s you have no career. Bette Davis stopped at about 45. After that it was horror films."

In spite of all the talk about maturity coming into its own, America is still a youth-oriented country, Dennis said. "That is, we like older men and younger women. Here at 39 a woman has pretty much had it — as though nobody will touch you again as long as you live. At least, that's what slews of writers seem to believe."

Dennis is 38 and looks a great deal younger. She indicated that any revelations about her love life will be made if she should decide to write her memoirs in the very distant future — but probably not even then.

Women's Lib? "I don't keep up with the Lib news," Dennis said. "But for years and years I've been reading books about women by women. Margaret Drabble, Elizabeth Bowen, Rosamond Lehmann, Virginia Woolf, Doris Lessing. There's a vast range of experience and observation in those novels that's never been touched on the screen. On film Americans like to see chases and men in powerful positions and that's about it."

"The Fox," a rather sensationalized version of D.H. Lawrence's novella, gave a lift to the Dennis career in 1968: "The sexual conflict was all latent in the novel but even if the movie wasn't all it should have been it was pretty good and I should have had a piece of it."

But things like "That Cold Day in the Park" (a balmy spinster goes off the rails over a teen-age con-man — or con-boy — who pretends he can't talk) did her no good in the '70s. "It seemed a challenge, different from anything I'd ever done," said Dennis. "A terribly repressed character... but it's so long ago I can't recall what I thought about it. Look, I work. I take what's offered me."

Oriental art display

at Museum of Southwest

Oriental art treasures from many sources, representing numerous ages, nations and cultures, have come together in an important new exhibition at Midland's Museum of the Southwest.

Some of the noteworthy art works in the display come from the Field Museum of Chicago and The University of Texas-Austin. Still other selections are from the Adventurers Club of Chicago and the Diamond M Foundation of Snyder. Several important pieces are from Midland collections.

The show opened earlier this month in the museum's Turner Memorial Gallery, 1705 W. Missouri St., and will continue on view through January. Viewing hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays; and 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free at all times.

The pieces on display not only represent the finest dynasties of China but also many of the most creative periods of Japanese, Cambodian, Siamese, Persian and Tibetan history. The datings of certain works in the show go back as early as the Chinese Han dynasty of 2,000 years ago. The art objects are variously of jade, ivory, bronze, porcelain, turquoise, silk, lacquer and rhino horn.

The exhibition is especially varied, points out museum director Sam Grove, because not one but several highly specialized collections have been opened and shared with the Museum of the Southwest to make the show as all-encompassing as possible.

Santa Fe Opera plans double celebration

SANTA FE, N.M. — The Santa Fe Opera's 1976 season will be a double celebration, marking the opera's 20th anniversary as well as celebrating the nation's 200th birthday. Highlighting the season will be a very special Bicentennial production — a world premiere production, at that — "The Royal Hunt of the Sun" by Scottish composer Iain Hamilton.

The production next summer will be a collaboration between the Santa Fe Opera and the English National Opera, it was announced here. The Hamilton opera will have sets by Rouben Ter-Arutunian, who has been designing for the SFO since 1968. Costumes for the premiere production this coming season also will be designed by him. The Santa Fe Opera's full schedule of performances for its upcoming season will be announced early in 1976.

Midlander's book still selling well

"St. Michael The Archangel and The Holy Terror" — a charming book written by Rosemary Collyer McLaren of Midland, first was published by Exposition Press, Inc., in 1973, and it yet is enjoying favorable sales results.

The 61-page book actually presents Mrs. McLaren's memoirs of life in a convent school, which "was sometimes a joy, sometimes a scrimmage."

Mrs. McLaren became a boarder of the Academy of Our Lady of Victory when she was six years old. "From that time until her high school graduation with the Class of '33, Rosemary — or 'The Holy Terror', as one of the nuns christened her — engaged with the other 'young ladies' in a series of escapades" perfectly calculated to cause the starched white coils to quiver on the 'saintly heads of the sisters."

It all combines to make most enjoyable reading for persons of all ages.

Mrs. McLaren, a native of Wisconsin, has resided in Midland a number of years, where she has reared two sons and a daughter, trying to teach them, as her book says, that "People do no mistakes, but only a damned fool makes the same mistake twice."

She earned a B.A. in English and journalism and a B.S. in Science and Education from Texas Christian University. She has held teaching positions in parochial and public schools here and has worked in several business assignments.

She was a founder of the Mother's Club at St. Ann's School and of its annual Family Fair.

WHEEZLES AND SNEEZLES are endured by Biff Taylor, right, in the role of Christopher Robin in Pickwick Players' "You an' Pooh an' Me," currently onstage at Theatre Centre. Janet Orem, left, is seen as the doctor and Clay Guthrie portrays Christopher's father. "You an' Pooh an' Me" will have its third and final performance at 1 p.m. today, with tickets on sale at the box office before curtain time.

Actor Frank Sully dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Character actor Frank Sully, who appeared in more than 1,200 motion picture and television shows in a career that spanned 50 years, is dead at 67.

His daughter, Nora Sullivan, said Thursday that Sully died Wednesday at the Motion Picture and Television Hospital in Woodland Hills, where he had been a patient for the past month.

The cause of death was not disclosed. Sully's last role was a part in "Funny Girl." Services were held Saturday.

FDA officers urge ban of 3 pills

WENDY YOSHIMURA is escorted by well wishers from a news conference at Pleasanton, Calif., after being released from jail on $25,000 bond.

By MORTON MINTZ
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Food and Drug Administration medical officers have urged that three brands of birth-control pills taken by an estimated 1 million American women be banned because of evidence that they are less safe and reliable than other oral contraceptives. The Washington Post learned Saturday.

Top agency officials have called a meeting Tuesday to discuss the situation with the manufacturers of Oracon, Ortho-Novum SQ and Norquen. The pills all are of the so-called sequential type.

Sources said there is a serious possibility that sales of the three brands will be halted although the FDA's Obstetrics and Gynecology Advisory Committee balked at endorsing a ban. The outside advisers were understood to favor an effort to restrict prescribing of the sequential, but made no specific recommendation to the agency.

In Ottawa, action on the sequential pills by the Canadian Food and Drug Directorate reportedly was imminent.

Women on a sequential regimen take estrogen-only pills during two weeks of each menstrual cycle and pills combining estrogen and a second sex hormone, progesterone, during the third week. Most women take combination estrogen-progesterone pills over the entire three-week period.

The FDA medical officers, at a closed meeting of the committee last Tuesday, urged the panel to recommend a ban on the sequential pills.

They cited new — but admittedly inconclusive — data that the sequentials create a risk of womb cancer while the combinations do not.

The data comes from the University of Colorado Medical School in Denver, where Drs. Steven G. Silverberg and Edgar L. Makowski have analyzed 27 randomly reported cases of women under 40 with endometrial cancer (cancer of the lining of the uterus).

At a public hearing of the committee and in a phone interview Saturday, Silverberg, a pathologist, said that "the overwhelming majority" of the women had been on sequentials, principally the most popular one, Oracon, for periods of six months to 10 years.

None of the women had been on combinations although, Silverberg emphasized, they are prescribed nine times as often.

While stressing that controlled scientific studies have yet to be done, the researcher said he had "the feeling" — shared by FDA sources — that the cancer hazard of sequentials arises from their exposure of a woman to estrogen "unopposed" by progesterone as in combination pills.

The estrogen in the sequentials has a different chemical structure than the conjugated estrogens which, according to three studies reported this month, may cause an average seven-fold increase in endometrial cancer in women who take them to ease afflictions related to the menopause.

The sequentials, in addition to possibly causing womb cancer, have been criticized on two additional grounds:

— They are somewhat less effective in preventing conception. When pills are taken as prescribed, the advisory committee has estimated, the pregnancy rate per year in 100 women is 0.1 with the combinations, compared with 0.5 with the sequentials.

Fires claim 32 persons

By The Associated Press

A suburban Chicago mother and six children and an upstate New York father and five children were among at least 32 persons who died in fires over the weekend.

The dead also included an Omaha, Neb., couple; a father and two young sons and a man and his daughter near Pittsburgh; two men in Memphis, Tenn.; a 44-year-old Philadelphia woman; a 9-year-old Hughson, Calif., girl and her visiting grandmother and uncle; and six persons in three Maryland fires.

Firemen blamed toxic fumes from burning plastic and furniture for the deaths early Saturday in Tinlin Park southwest of Chicago of Josephine Shine, 38; five children between 3 and 14 from a previous marriage; and an 11-year-old foster child.

Mrs. Shine's husband, Thomas, a Chicago police detective, was at work when the fire broke out. In a Reading Center, N.Y., farmhouse another fire killed Douglas Parker, in his 30s, and five children, ages 7 to 12.

His wife, Bonnie, 32, escaped with two other children. All three were in fair condition at Schuyler Hospital in nearby Mount Airy, N.C.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rasmussen, both 33, died when a fire destroyed their home in an Omaha suburb. Three fire companies fought that fire. The cause was unidentified.

Killed in a smoky house fire in California's San Joaquin Valley were Andrea Adams, 9, and Ruth Mary Adams, 63, and James F. Adams Jr., 39, both of Seaford, Del.

The Maryland fires killed two children in an East Baltimore rowhouse and four other persons in two fires in the suburban Washington suburbs of Rockville and Bethesda.

Police identified the Baltimore victims as Crystal Lawler, 2, and her brother, Andre, 14 months, and two of the Rockville dead as Jerimial Dwyer, 24, and Susan Wodjag, 14. A third victim of the fire which started in an upholstered chair was not identified.

Justice Department may advise special probe of King death

By WILLIAM CHAPMAN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Justice Department officials are thinking about recommending that an independent or special prosecution staff be appointed to reopen an investigation into the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

A DEPARTMENT source said these or other mechanisms for reviewing the cause may be recommended as an outgrowth of a review now underway in the Department's Civil Rights Division.

The current review, the source said, is approximately one-fourth finished and so far has produced no evidence that the original FBI investigation of Mr. King's slaying was deficient.

However, those connected with the review fear that any internal Department findings of the FBI's role might not be accepted by the public as thorough and impartial and believe that some independent investigation may be warranted. "The real issue is credibility," the source said.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS Division review consists of reading through some 96 volumes of FBI files on Mr. King and a check of several new leads which have surfaced since the civil rights leader was slain in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968.

It will not be completed until early February, at which time the Division's top officials will decide whether to recommend to Attorney General Edward H. Levi that an independent examination be established. The source said that the review may determine that no further scrutiny is necessary.

At this point, the officials lean toward some form of special prosecutive staff having power to take witnesses before a grand jury. However, they are concerned that such a mechanism might be questionable legally because there is no suspect who could be prosecuted.

JAMES EARLE RAY, an escaped prisoner from the Missouri Penitentiary, pleaded guilty in March 1969, to a charge that he killed Mr. King with a rifle, but he refused to concede that he acted alone. He has since repudiated his confession and contended that he was framed by a conspiratorial group whose members he has not identified. His bid to withdraw the guilty plea and win a trial in court has been denied by a Federal District Court judge. Ray, now serving a 99-year sentence, is appealing that decision.

The Civil Rights Division review of the case was prompted by recent revelations that the FBI for many years had placed Mr. King under surveillance and his associates. The Justice source said that, so far, the review has not found evidence to implicate the FBI in the assassination, directly or indirectly.

THE CHIEF of the Civil Rights Division, J. Stanley Pottinger, said in an interview Friday that one alleged link between the FBI and the assassination has now been discounted.

It concerned a proposal, discovered in FBI files by Senate investigators, to embarrass Mr. King in the media because he was staying in a white-owned motel in Memphis shortly before he was shot. The FBI memo proposed depicting Mr. King as a "hypocrite" for living in a white motel while he was urging his black followers in Memphis to boycott white merchants as part of their support for the sanitation workers' strike Mr. King was leading.

The FBI memo was designed to suggest that Mr. King should have stayed in the Lorraine Motel, which was frequented mostly by blacks. Mr. King moved from the white motel to the Lorraine, where he was shot while standing on a balcony on April 4. Investigators have attempted to learn whether the FBI plan had anything to do with his movement to the motel where he was slain.

POTTINGER SAID there is no evidence that the FBI plan to embarrass Mr. King about his choice of motels ever was put into effect or, if it was, that it was responsible for his changing motels.

He said Mr. King's aides have told him that Mr. King customarily stayed at the black-owned Lorraine and that his moving into the other motel, a Holiday Inn, was almost accidental. They said, according to Pottinger, that Mr. King ended up in the Holiday Inn simply because it was the handiest place to which to flee when a riot broke out in the black section of Memphis. His later move back to the Lorraine, he said, was natural.

Pottinger also said that two other leads suggested by Mr. King's associates have proved fruitless. One concerned an Atlanta man who has said he overheard a conversation about killing Mr. King a few days before the assassination took place. It was concluded that the man made up the story, Pottinger said.

IN A SECOND CASE, one of Pottinger's assistants flew to Calgary, Canada, to interview a man who once had contended that he was offered $200,000 to take part in a conspiracy to kill Mr. King. The man had told one of Ray's attorneys that he played his role in the killing but did not receive the money. He had offered to reveal his conspirators' names for a fee. Pottinger said that an interview with the man resulted in a conclusion that he was a "con man" trying to obtain money through a phony story.

Hearst names executive vp

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank A. Bennack Jr. has been elected executive vice president of the Hearst Corp., it was announced Saturday by John R. Miller, the corporation's president and chief executive officer. Bennack, 42, is the youngest person ever to hold the position

Kathy Johnson straightens a reindeer in her "peep show."

Student creates unique 'peep show' decorations

A person desiring to see something different — something unique — in Christmas decorations might consider a Midland High honor student's "peep show" a breath of fresh air. Kathy Johnson, a member of Merritt Hudson's third period History of Western Thought class, got the idea after several of her peers in the class expressed a desire for a humorous Christmas decoration on the classroom door. "It was crazy," she said. "I can't believe... I tried to get a nightclub setting that would be — well, you know I often have thought about what football players do after the big game..." she laughed. "I tried to illustrate what Santa's reindeer might do after their 'big night'..." What resulted proved to be a conversation piece among Midland High students and faculty members. She made Santa's nine reindeer from pecans (large ones for the bodies and small ones for the heads) and pipe cleaners. They are standing by tables in the "nightclub" that is complete with covered tables and candles. On the elevated stage are six reindeer "chorus girls," also made from pecans, outfitted in cancan. Each "chorus girl" is wearing a garter on one leg made from thread. A plastic ball with numerous sequins was used for the chandelier. Other materials used included oil paints, for the reindeer faces; lace for the top of the stage; felt, for the table tops and stage; for the back of the stage; silk, for the cancan, and tiny flashlights, hung at the top of the box out of sight to provide light.

Kathy had difficulty estimating how much time she spent on the display but said it took all of her spare time for at least a week.

Texas economy slowing

By The Associated Press

Prosperity has not yet returned to Texas and the economy is slowing once again after a comeback in the third quarter of 1975.

Texas Business Review in its December issue said the future of the economy depends on whether you or the family next door decides to spend or to save the extra dollars from paychecks.

The Review said savings from personal income are increasing and "consumers have more ability to spend than they are using."

The magazine added, "Although inflation rates are far below last year's and the unemployment rate is below its peak, October figures seem discouraging. Both inflation and unemployment increased."

Reports show Texas employment has recovered quicker than in other sections of the nation because there has been a less severe cutback in manufacturing; and the vital role played by the oil and gas industry.

BRIDGE

Give priceless gift to your partners

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If you have bought books, bridge magazines and playing cards for your bridge-playing friends, don't imagine that you have done your full duty.

How often during 1975 did you make an impulsive bid that violated your partner's trust? Perhaps you opened the bidding with a hand that the cat wouldn't look at twice.

I won't rub it in. You did what I did in 1975 - but perhaps more often. The Devil sends bad impulses to all of us; the good players resist him a little harder.

It's not yet time for New Year's resolutions. Just make up your mind to perpetrate fewer of the bids that you know at the time to be bad.

It's equally easy to improve your play of the cards. Just count your tricks.

As declarer, count your tricks before you play the first card from dummy. If you don't have enough tricks, you'll know how many more you need.

Counting your tricks as a defender is often just as easy. If you can't tell exactly where your tricks are coming from, count declarer's tricks instead.

East played the queen of spades, and South took the ace and ran the diamonds at once. West discarded the four of clubs on the second diamond.

When declarer led the last diamond from dummy, East discarded the five of hearts and South threw the ten of spades.

By now, West was pretty sure about the spade situation and could count on getting four spade tricks if his side could gain the lead in time.

Could he afford to throw a second club? This would leave the suit unstoppped if South had four or five clubs headed by the ace-queen. Then West counted declarer's tricks.

South had already taken five diamonds and a spade. If he had the ace-queen of clubs he was sure of three club tricks, and no defense would defeat the contract.

South saw West's reluctance to discard and increased the pressure by leading a low heart from dummy to the ace.

Now West was afraid to discard a third club since that would give South the entire suit if his clubs were headed by just the ace. So West discarded a spade, and South heaved a sigh of relief.

South could now afford to knock out the ace of clubs. Thanks to West's discard, the defenders could take only three spades; and declarer took the last two tricks with the king of hearts and the queen of clubs.

"How could I tell?" West asked, as South scored 600 points for the game and rubber.

It wasn't a guess. West should have known that his partner had the ace of clubs.

When South took the ace of hearts he had shown up with three aces. If he also held the ace of clubs his first response would have been three notrump or two clubs, not two notrump.

Perhaps only very serious bridge players should be expected to do so much counting and hard thinking. Save that for next Christmas. Just do the easy counting in 1976.

Nazareth turns to Communists

The Los Angeles Times NAZARETH, Israel - Near the Shrine of Mary's Well, the office of the New Communist Party keeps busy these days turning out pamphlets by the bale.

The town hall, where Communists Party boss Tawfiq Ziyad, 46, will be sworn in as mayor within 30 days, is located in the shadow of the massive Roman Catholic Basilica of the Annunciation.

In all, about one-third of the land of this town, which voted the Communist-led Democratic Front to power with a landslide majority in municipal elections last week, is owned by churches.

Religious schools educate about 40 per cent of Nazareth's youngsters, and churches operate the only three hospitals in town - the largest Arab community in Israel.

THERE IS no consensus on why Nazareth, venerated by Christians as the boyhood home of Jesus Christ, rallied to the banner of the hammer and sickle.

But the specter of Communism in Galilee sent a shudder through official Israeli circles.

Some Jewish observers, calling for a tougher policy toward the Arab minority in Israel, says it was a display of Palestinian nationalism. Many Nazarenes claim it was a sign of local dissatisfaction with the ruling Israeli Labor Party's ineptness in handling municipal affairs.

Descending the hills of predominantly Arab Galilee, Christian pilgrims find modern Nazareth a noisy, congested overgrown village, bursting at the seams with automobile traffic squeezing through streets intended for donkeys.

"Nazareth is prosperous," said a local Arab journalist. "We have no beggars or prostitutes. These are middle-class or lower middle-class working people."

"But on the public facilities side, the town is miserable."

A TOWN of 40,000 inhabitants, Nazareth lacks a sewage system, an enclosed shopping area and industries of its own.

Against this background, Communist Ziyad and the Democratic Front concentrated on neglect of city problems by Israel's ruling Labor Party. The Front gained more than 65 per cent of the 14,777 votes cast in the election.

Galilee lies close to the border with the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the River Jordan, and the Israeli resistance to a West Bank Palestinian state is largely based on the fear that it would exert a magnetic secessionist pull on the Israeli Arab areas.

But Ziyad, speaking at 20 pre-election rallies, never once appealed directly to Arab nationalist sentiments or mentioned Israeli foreign policy.

His tactic succeeded in allaying the fears of the non-Communists in the Democratic Front. However, Ziyad, a graduate of Moscow's Lumumba Friendship University and a longtime member of Israel's Knesset (parliament), certainly has not relinquished his foreign policy aims.

THE COMMUNISTS are the main opponents of Zionism and U.S. influence in the Middle East. The party favors Palestinian rights and complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied areas.

Last week's vote carries implications for Jewish-Arab relations everywhere in Israel, because Nazareth is considered a barometer of opinion among the 500,000 Israeli Arabs residing inside the pre-1967 borders.

Israeli commentators fear that Nazareth may be the first domino to fall to the Communists among the 108 Arab towns and villages in Israel.

Ziyad runs a well organized party network based mainly on the Arab youth, who have been more caught up in Palestinian consciousness than have their elders, who were more inclined to cooperate with the Israelis.

And there is a strong current of restlessness and dissatisfaction with the way in which all Israeli Arabs think they are regarded by the Jewish majority.

"The Labor Party looks at the Arab population as citizens of the second degree, who should not take matters in their own hands but should accept dictated policy from the party committee in Tel Aviv," said lawyer Rayek Jarjoura, 38, the No. 2 man in the Democratic Front.

Like many Democratic Front members, Jarjoura is a non-Communist. He headed a nonpartisan association of Nazareth professional men which entered an alliance with the Communists to bring reform to the municipality.

"We have nothing to do with the political views of those who are members of the front," Jarjoura said. "I have many differences with Communist Party members, but it is not for us to discuss these matters in the Front. As people of Nazareth, we are interested in having better conditions in town."

1 1/2-pound bunch broccoli
 Water and salt
 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
 2 teaspoons flour
 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 2 egg yolks
 3/4 cup light cream
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1 ham-cooked egg, sieved

Cut flowerets from washed broccoli. With a swivel-blade peeler, pare outer fibrous covering from stalks; slice thin. Bring 2 quarts water and 1 tablespoon salt to a rolling boil; add broccoli; boil gently until tender-crisp — 3 or 4 minutes; drain. Melt butter over low heat; stir in flour and mustard; remove from heat. Beat egg yolks and cream to blend; stir into butter mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened — do not boil. Stir in lemon juice, broccoli and salt to taste; reheat without boiling. Sprinkle with egg. Makes 4 servings.

Linda Reece wed to James Kelly Moore

Linda Annette Reece, and James Kelly Moore repeated double ring wedding vows in a formal ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the North A and Tennessee Streets Church of Christ.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Boyd Reece of 4900 Leisure Drive and Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace Moore Jr. of 4402 Wilshire St.

The bride attended Angelo State University and Midland College. She is a receptionist with Southland Royalty Co. The bridegroom attended MC and is employed by Pittsburgh Paints Center.

After a trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside at 2928 W. Louisiana St., Apartment 50.

William F. Walker was the officiating minister. Music was provided by a choir directed by Clinton Davis. The soloists were the mother of the bride, and Mrs. Rex Pollard of El Paso and Bob Burke.

Pamela Reece, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Brenda Byrne, sister of the bride, and Tonya Reece, sister-in-law of the bride, were bridesmatrons. The flower girl was Juli Byrne, niece of the bride. Angie Wills and Kindra Sikes lighted the candles.

Danny Lovell of Tahoka was the best man. The groomsmen were Mike Moore, brother of the bridegroom, and Terry Lloyd of San Angelo. The ushers were Barry Reece, brother of the bride, and Tony Fraser.

Mr. Reece presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal gown in princess styling of silk sheer and Cluney lace. The lace outlined the scoop neckline and created cuffs of lace at the lace trimmed sleeves. The contoured princess panels fell into bouffant fullness, ending in a chapel-length train. There was a Dior bow at the back waistline. Her mantilla of French illusion was edged with Venise lace and was held by a matching Camelot. She carried a bouquet of baby's breath, white Burgundy and pink roses, gardenias and an orchid.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents in Roweday Inn.

Out-of-city guests included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. V. L. Korner of San Angelo, and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Jim Knight of Haleyville, Ala.

Parties reported

Parties honoring Mrs. Kevin Michael McKinney, the former Nancy Elaine Jastrow, who was married Thursday in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, included a kitchen and recipe shower.

The party was held in the home of Mrs. William Orloff, with Mrs. W. C. Montgomery and Mrs. James Smith as the co-hostesses.

A cocktail party was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Knox, with co-host couples, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Inerarity, Mr. and Mrs. Donald O'Shaughnessy and Dr. and Mrs. Dean Strack.

Mrs. Kim McAbee was hostess in her home to a rice bag party, with Mrs. Martin Allday, Mrs. R. B. Hamm, Mrs. Wilbur Rocchio and Mrs. Robert Throckmorton as the co-hostesses.

A brunch for out-of-city guests was given in the Racquet Club of Midland, with Mr. and Mrs. John P. Rutler and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cowden Jr. as host couples.

The bridesmaids' luncheon was given in the Garden Room of Midland Country Club by Mrs. Clem George and Meredith George.

Mom becomes annoyed

By ERMA BOMBECK

My mother is funny about Christmas. She gets annoyed when she has to buy gifts that (a) she can't spell; (b) she doesn't have the foggiest notion what they're used for; (c) leak grease.

"Why can't I just buy my grandson a drum and a rubber toy for his bath?"

"Because he's 20 years old."

"It's no fun doing your Christmas shopping in an auto supply store. Tell me again what I bought him last year."

"A mag wheel."

"And the year before that?"

"An RF-60 FM stereo wireless radio chamber."

"I'll bet it's never been hemmed."

"They were headphones, Mother."

"If you ask me, kids grow up too fast. I liked it better when we could buy them toys and games. Remember that game where you sunk each other's battleships? I hate to brag but I downed 11 destroyers and six cruisers before they even got the hang of it."

"Remember."

"And the popcorn machine. I loved the popcorn machine. That little thing made a pretty good batch of caramel corn."

"Remember."

"But the electric hockey was my favorite. I tried to tell 'em, it's coordination. Skunked every one of them. And Monopoly I had 'em so they couldn't land anywhere on that board unless they printed their own money. So, what does he want this year?"

Reception planned for anniversary event

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie H. Jones, 2011 College St., longtime Midland residents, today will be honored by their children and close friends with a reception on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The event will be held from 2-5 p.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Herndon, 28 Carol Lane.

Children of the couple are Mrs. Gene Deaton of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Charles Jones of West Covina, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones were married Dec. 20, 1925 in Poly Church of Christ at Fort Worth. They have resided in Midland 46 years, having moved here Sept. 5, 1929 from Fort Worth, the hometown of Mrs. Jones, the former Juanita Rochelle.

Jones was a self-employed barber before becoming associated with the Kimber-Lea Barber Shop.

The couple also have four grandchildren, Jody and David Deaton and Becky and Laura Jones.

DEAR ABBY Woman obviously has a 'problem'

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, a middle-aged woman moved into our apartment building—on my floor. She lives alone with her dog. She's always dressed as though she's going to the opera—furs, capes, feathers and a different wig for every day of the week.

She talks to herself and carries a suitcase wherever she goes. I'm sure she's not all there. She's not very friendly. When I say hello to her, she answers curtly and keeps going.

Yesterday she walked down the hall stark naked to empty her trash basket! I couldn't believe my eyes. I phoned the manager immediately, and he said the woman pays her rent on time and doesn't bother anybody so he couldn't do anything about it. He said the police would have to catch her in the act, at which time they could take her down and book her.

Abby, I don't want to cause trouble for this poor woman, but she must have family somewhere who should be notified.

What should I do? My husband says it's none of my business.

CONCERNED NEIGHBOR

DEAR CONCERNED: Your husband is wrong. It IS your business. The woman is obviously disturbed and in need of treatment. Call your local Mental Health Association and report the incident to them. In the meantime, try to make friends with her. Nearly everyone responds to kindness.

DEAR ABBY: How do we shape up our children's table manners (ages 8, 10 and 12) without causing complete disruption at mealtime?

DAD
DEAR DAD: Consistent and gentle reminders plus adult examples should do it.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter who is not yet 15 wants to date a 20-year-old divorced man. I have tried to talk her out of it, but she doesn't want to listen.

She is a good student and has never been in any kind of trouble, but I think she is too young for a man his age. Especially a divorced one.

What do you think? Also, when he calls, is it my place to ask him to please not call my daughter anymore?
WORRIED MOM

DEAR MOM: When he calls, let your daughter tell him not to call anymore. I agree he's too old for her, divorced or not.

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists that he is not an alcoholic because he doesn't drink any alcohol—only beer. But he drinks a six-pack every evening and on weekends he can put away a couple of cases. He gets very drunk. At least he acts drunk to me. Yet he tells me that as long as he drinks only beer, he is not an

Golden Agers hold dinner

Midland Golden Agers were entertained with a Christmas dinner and party in the First United Methodist Church.

Lions Clubs of Midland provided the turkey for the dinner, and The First National Bank furnished gifts.

Copley News Service

Years ago most Christmas gifts were made at home rather than bought at a store. And it wasn't how much a gift cost that really counted, but the amount of love and thought and work that went into each one. Even the children made gifts for each other and for Mother and Father and Grandma and Grandpa and even some favorite aunt or cousin. Gift giving was mostly a family affair and there had to be a pretty good reason for including any outsiders unless they were very close friends.

Along about the first of December there would be mysterious conferences between different members of the family, especially the younger ones.

And the all-important question of who was to receive what having finally been decided, there would be a great rounding up of scraps of silk and satin and bits of lace and embroidery silk, as well as needles and thimbles and scissors. Then out came the workboxes (every girl, young lady or woman owned a workbox of some kind) and the real business of making Christmas gifts was soon under way.

Maybe you decided to make a sachet for Mamma, and you used your best piece of pink satin for this, and whipped on a white lace edging. You might even embroider the word "MOTHER" across the top, and if the letters were a little wobbly and uneven it didn't seem to lessen the value of the gift any. Or you might decide to make her a powder rag. Face powder was practically unknown, but ladies did dust their faces lightly with talcum powder for special occasions.

Chamois skin was used for this purpose, and so you cut out a more or less square piece and embroidered the edge with blanket stitch in bright red yarn.

You might give Grandma a lamp mat woven out of pink and white chenille or heavy wool yarn. In those days kerosene lamps were pretty generally used, and you needed something to set them on so they wouldn't leave a ring on the table or a cherished runner.

And for Grandpa you could make a handy polisher for his spectacles by cutting two circles out of chamois, binding them with ribbon and tying them together with another piece of ribbon. Or you might make him a flannel pen wiper shaped like a pansy or a violet. (Ball point pens hadn't been invented yet.)

(You dipped your pen in the ink bottle, and when you had finished writing you wiped it clean so the ink wouldn't stain everything the pen touched.)

Then there were bookmarks of various designs and little bags or envelopes filled with crushed lavender to put into dresser drawers with best dresses (60 years ago people were spared the maddening frustration of wire coat hangers—they laid clothes carefully in drawers) or between the layers of linens in the linen closet off the hall.

Guests were Mrs. John Greer, Mrs. Milton Tucker, Mrs. Bob Gault, Mrs. Velma Burnet, Mrs. C. P. Watson, Mrs. Jim Rogers, Mrs. Bill Huffman, Mrs. John Hansen, Mrs. Bob Cochran, Mrs. Walter Hubbard, Mrs. R. C. Roberts and Mrs. Robert Pollard.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RICHTER (Sun. Dec. 21)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good Sunday for any pursuits you enjoy. A particularly good time to decide on what you want to do during the Christmas and New Year festivities. Show special affection for those who mean much to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): While you're busy with pleasures, take time to put those creative ideas to work which are germinating in your mind. Shop.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Plan how to improve home conditions. Some new project outlined to you could be the right one for you. Trusted friends give good advice.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Attend worship that most lifts your spirit, then join with good friends at play. Express devotion to loved ones. Be cheerful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Work on those ideas you have for adding to your present income, abundance. Don't permit others to put a damper on them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Put in motion those ideas that will give you advancement needed right now. Gad about socially and make friendships that are worthwhile.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Plan action now for ideas that can bring you success. You can make your mate very happy by right thought, deeds. Advance in chosen field.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Good day to see some of your close friends and to make new ones for a brighter Christmas. Go after personal goal actively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Good day to see bigwigs and friends at leisure and gain aims in a nice, social way. Do some charitable work. Show more thoughtfulness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Seek out those persons who have both wisdom and intellect from whom you can benefit, spiritually and materially. Prepare for trip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Find the right system for making those aims you have a part of your life in the near future. Think expansively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have a plan you can outline to associates that will be good for all concerned and can do so leisurely today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You have an opportunity to repay a favor extended to you. Do and reach a final understanding. Shop for last-minute gifts.

By CARROLL RICHTER (Mon. Dec. 22)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can improve your appearance and impress others with your charm. Others will respond favorably to whatever you do of a constructive nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You can now engage in recreations you like during spare time. Make plans for more enjoyment in the future. Be wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Good day to make improvements in the home for the holidays ahead. Let this be an inspiring time for you. Be active.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make sure you complete your Christmas shopping during spare time so that you don't neglect other important matters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Study your finances well and then you will know how to spend your money wisely. Show that you are sensible.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Study a new situation and then you can persuade others to your way of thinking. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Secretive tasks can now be handled with precision so attend to them without delay. Obtain the data you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Make an extra effort to please close friends today. Get into the right spirit for the holidays ahead. Be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Handle important civic matters and gain much prestige thereby. Be extra careful of one who has harmed you in the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): our ideas are good for advancement, so be sure to put them in operation quickly. A new contact can be helpful now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Handle debts and credits wisely so that you can begin the coming new year on a more stable note. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Listening carefully to allies and trying to understand their views is wise now. Join a civic group and be helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Begin the new week properly by doing the work that needs to be done. Strive to be more efficient. Think constructively.

Nancy Elaine Jastrow married to Kevin McKinney in church

Nancy Elaine Jastrow and Kevin Michael McKinney were married in a double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

The Rev. Bob Currie, rector of the church, Msgr. John Meyer of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Rawlins, Wyo., and the Rev. Carl Beavers of Torrington, Wyo., officiated.

Deborah roud of Laramie, Wyo., was the maid of honor. Kathleen McKinney of Cheyenne, Wyo., sister of the bridegroom, and Meredith George were the bridesmaids. Marty Jastrow of Austin was the flower girl.

The best man was Robert Hammond of Laramie. Terry Jastrow of New York City and Jeff Maxwell of Laramie were the groomsmen, and Tom Sharrick of Midland and Maxwell were the ushers.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Michael Jastrow of 1705 Cuthbert St. and Mr. and Mrs. John J. McKinney of Cheyenne.

Mr. Jastrow presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a white floor-length gown of jersey with a portrait neckline, Empire bodice and A-line skirt. The long sleeves were trimmed in marabou, which also trimmed the hood. She carried a cascade of Cymbidium orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Acolytes for the ceremony were Bobby Humble and Tom and David McLaughlin. Mrs. Harold Heckathorne was the organist, and Mrs. George Harley was soloist.

After a trip to southern California and Phoenix, Ariz., the couple will be at home at 1310 Grand Ave. in Laramie.

The bride and bridegroom received bachelor of science degrees from the University of Wyoming. The bride is a former film and television producer for the UW Athletic Department. The bridegroom is sports information director for the UW Athletic Department. The rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents in the Petroleum Club of Midland.

Mrs. K. M. McKinney

Miss Lindsey, Kelso married

ODESSA — Melanie Dawn Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lindsey of Odessa, became the bride of Jim Kelso, son of Mrs. Jim Rose of Hurst and the late Delbert R. Pinkston of Stanton, at 7:30 p.m. Friday in a ceremony held in the home of the bride's parents.

David Pinkerton of Midland was best man for the double ring ceremony. The maid of honor was Robyn Lindsey, sister of the bride.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

The couple will reside at 1709 S. Loraine St., Midland, after a trip to Ruidoso, N.M.

A graduate of Woodland High School in Woodland, Calif., the bride is employed by Southwestern Drug Supply in Midland. The bridegroom attended Sul Ross State University and is employed by Dixie Electric Co., Odessa.

Strangers welcomed

PHILADELPHIA, PA. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DiPrinzio made a long distance call this past Columbus Day—and scored a victory for America in international diplomacy.

The DiPrinzios picked up the phone, dialed Milan, Italy, and invited Professor Osvaldo Brivio, his wife Marilisa and two daughters to their home in West Philadelphia for the 41st International Eucharistic Congress, to be held in August 1976.

Party honors bride-elect

A party held in the home of Mrs. Paul E. Hanna of 1600 Sparks St. 27 was a courtesy honoring Marion Orson, bride-elect of Lt. Guy McCrary of Garland.

Mrs. Hanna was assisted by Mrs. Durwood Clader and Mrs. Keys Curry.

The wedding is scheduled for 4 p.m. Dec. 27 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church.

Some tidbits can whet appetites

Copley News Service

Antipasto is the Italian version of hors d'oeuvres, which is, of course, French for these gastronomical tidbits which whet the appetite and stir the imagination.

A prelude to the heartier portions of the meal, antipasto includes a variety of dishes, mostly small and colorful, with varied tastes and seasonings.

Most cocktail food is too high in saturated fat, but these suggested recipes are low in both saturated fat and cholesterol. Try some of them for your holiday party.

SPICED MUSHROOMS

- 1 lb. small fresh mushrooms
- One-fourth cup lemon juice
- One-half tsp salt
- One small hot red pepper
- 2 tps. oregano
- One-half cup polyunsaturated oil
- Sprigs of parsley
- 2 cloves garlic, mashed or minced
- 5 whole black peppercorns
- 1 small bay leaf
- Pinch of marjoram
- One-half cup white wine vinegar
- One-half cup fat-free chicken broth
- Select mushrooms that are firm and free of bruises. Wash quickly in cold water and pat dry with paper towels; cut off dry end of stem. Quarter mushrooms if they are larger than button-size.

In a three-quart saucepan, place the garlic, lemon juice, pepper, salt, bay leaf, red pepper, marjoram, oregano, vinegar, oil and chicken broth. Simmer for five minutes, then strain. Return marinade to pan with the mushrooms, and cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Pour into a bowl to cool, then cover and refrigerate at least four hours before serving. To serve, remove mushrooms from marinade and arrange attractively on a plate with sprigs of parsley. Don't forget the toothpicks! Serves six or more.

garlic. Transfer carrots to a shallow dish; cover and refrigerate until needed. To serve, remove carrots from marinade and arrange on a serving dish; sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Serve cold along with cherry tomatoes, crisp celery and bunches of green pepper strips. Serves six.

CLAM DIP

- 1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
- One-half tsp salt
- One-half tsp. monosodium glutamate
- One-half tsp. paprika
- 2 tbsps. mayonnaise
- One-half cup skim milk
- 1 tsp. prepared horseradish
- 2 tps. lemon juice
- 1 (7-oz.) can minced clams, drained

Blend the cottage cheese, horseradish, salt, monosodium glutamate, paprika, mayonnaise, lemon juice and milk in a blender or electric mixer. When mixture is creamy, stir in clams.

Turn into a serving bowl and dust the top with additional paprika. For dippers you might use radishes, sliced cucumbers, thinly sliced kohlrabi, sliced raw zucchini, cherry tomatoes and cauliflower. Makes two and a half cups.

Low sodium diets

Persons on low sodium diets should read the nutrition information on labels of meats to insure that the products contain no sodium. Cured meat is treated with primarily salt or sugar and then heat processed so these meats should not be eaten on low sodium diets.

Teacher buffet held

The Midland Music Teachers Association had a buffet luncheon and Christmas auction in Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Mrs. C. J. George presided during a business session. Mrs. William Maitland reported on a proposed project of the association, to be displayed at the National Music Teachers Convention to be held in Dallas in March.

Mrs. Ray Chappelle announced a Student Affiliate Bicentennial recital will be held in January. Mrs. Maitland was the auctioneer for homemade breads and other items brought by members. Proceeds from the auction will be donated to the Wallace Wimberly Scholarship Fund. Special prize winners were Mrs. Donald Thompson and Mrs. James Crawford.

CARROT NIBBLERS

Peel carrots; cut into lengthwise slices three inches long and a half-inch wide. Saute onion and garlic in

- 1 lb. (6 medium-sized) carrots
- 1 clove garlic, peeled
- One-fourth cup vinegar
- One-half tsp. monosodium glutamate
- One-fourth tsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. finely chopped onion
- 2 tbsps. polyunsaturated oil
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- One-half tsp. dry mustard
- 1 sprig parsley

oil until limp. Stir in vinegar, salt, monosodium glutamate, mustard and sugar. Add carrots and cover and simmer for five minutes. Carrots should be crisp-tender. Remove

Hole assists removal

You can remove jellied cranberry sauce from the can without breaking the mold by first punching a small hole in the bottom of the pan. Then remove the top with a small-type can opener that slices the tin evenly around the can. The hole in the bottom lets in enough air as you open it to allow the jelly to slide out easily without the help of a knife and with out breaking the mold.

Ms. Cloud lost 19 1/4 pounds

I recommend the program at Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Int'l to anyone who has an appearance problem. Anyone can lose weight - the secret is learning self-discipline. While in the program at Pat Walker's, one not only loses weight and important inches but learns the secret.

I have had a weight problem all my life. At the age of 6, I weighed 62 pounds and continued to be heavy through junior high. My first year in college brought a tremendous weight gain and each year added a little more.

Various diets worked but I have always put the weight back on, never quite losing all I wanted to lose. A few years ago I found a diet I could live with successfully. I lost some weight before I started Pat Walker's but the inches would not budge.

Since participating in the program I have lost a total of 28 1/4 inches and regained muscle tone lost from neglect and weight abuse. I now eat with pleasure-always within reason. I feel physically better, my self-image is greatly improved and the benefits derived from Pat Walker's far outweigh imagined inconvenience.

The unique thing about the program is the rapid loss of inches. The weight loss is beneficial but the inch loss is more easily reflected.

The program at Pat Walker's is not deemed a miracle. Self-discipline in one's eating habits and programming oneself to come in regularly will change one's mind eye view from a fat person to an attractive woman.

JEANNIE COKER

Couple plans winter rites

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Coker of 2509 Gulf St. announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeannie Lynette, to Allen Wayne Davis, son of B. D. Davis and Veda Ogelsby, both of Midland.

The wedding ceremony will be performed at 3 p.m. Feb. 14 in Fannin Terrace Baptist Church.

The bride-elect is a Midland High School graduate employed as a cosmetician at Skaggs-Albertsons.

The bridegroom-to-be also is an MHS graduate. He is employed with A&A Welders, Inc.

to get rusty in those days) disappeared into the distance in every direction, beckoning to adventure and the unknown.

Almost every little town or hamlet had its railroad depot, and in fact, the very existence of many of them depended on the fact that the railroad passed through them. Quite often those which were bypassed died out altogether, or at best settled down to a sleepy life which never was disturbed by progress. There were even people who liked it that way.

But many new towns sprang up along the railroad tracks and some of them grew into great cities.

It took all day to get any place on most trains, for they stopped at every hamlet and watering tank along the way, but how else were they to get passengers? For if people wanted to take a journey of maybe 20 miles, the best — and sometimes the only — way was to go by train. Cars were pretty scarce in those days and the one dependable thing about them was that they were almost certain to break down miles from nowhere. Driving a horse 20 miles in one day was pretty hard on the animal. So people rode trains.

For some reason the depot in a village seldom was situated in the town itself, but was built about five miles out in a field beside the tracks, and the only means of reaching it was by a dirt road which led to the depot and nowhere else.

So if Mamma were going to town for the day, Papa had to hitch up the horse and drive her down to the station to catch the early train, and sometimes you got to ride along. The depot itself was a fascinating place, standing there so lonely in the gray light of early morning. Inside was the stationmaster (did he stay there in that little cage all night, you wondered). He sold Mamma her ticket and stamped it with the name of the town to which she was going.

But as train time drew near you went outside and stood on the platform beside the tracks.

Pretty soon you heard a distant humming sound, then a clickety-clickety-clickety and in the distance the long-drawn whoo-oo-oo of the steam whistle. A moment later the big black steam engine came thundering around the curve, then hissed and ground to a halt before the depot.

Behind the black puffing engine was the coal car, then the baggage car, then the long line of orange-colored passenger coaches and lastly the caboose. All the passengers hurried out of the depot and scrambled into the cars, for the last ones sometimes had to walk the length of half a dozen cars carrying a heavy "grip" before they found a seat.

Sometimes Mamma was lucky enough to find a seat by a window (which had never been opened since the train was built) and she nodded and smiled and waved to you until the conductor, who stood on the car step, watch in hand, signaled to the engineer. Then with a squeaking and grinding of wheels and another blast from the whistle, the train began slowly to move away from the depot. Swiftly if gathered speed and in a moment had whipped down the tracks and vanished from sight around another curve.

And that night you drove back to the depot with Papa to meet the train which was bringing Mamma home. It was the same as the morning trip — and yet it wasn't.

Doctors coordinate medicine, marriage

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — The name plate on the door suggests that the Borensteins can usually be found in the townhouse apartment behind Stamford Hospital, but it takes luck to catch them there together.

Dr. Lora Borenstein and Dr. Marc Borenstein, interns at the hospital since July 1, are carried off in different directions by their long, erratic duty schedules.

And while their infant son, Joshua, is a bit young to make a comparison, he sees them separately more often than together.

But the two doctors wouldn't have it any different.

"Look at the people who are home all the time and have all the problems," Dr. Marc said. "I think we really do appreciate the time together all the more."

He and his wife graciously set aside time for an interview, but it had to coincide with Joshua's lunch feeding and later overlapped a visit by two of their friends.

"We haven't had time to have any fights," Dr. Lora observed.

In this period of improving career opportunities for women, husband-and-wife doctors are not rare. In fact, their class at New York Medical College contained five other married couples.

But maintaining the work pace and caring for an infant, too, poses some unusual problems.

They probably could not do it without their live-in baby sitter, who gets a day off only when the two work schedules leave at least one doctor in the house for an uninterrupted 24-hour period. Last week that was Saturday and Sunday.

The hospital routine has Dr. Lora returning home from emergency-room duty at either midnight, 8 a.m. or 8 p.m. Meanwhile Dr. Marc is on a hospital ward during the day. But "on call" duty and emergencies kept him up all night twice last week.

Her parents live in New York City and his are in Middletown, N.Y., but they have not had time to leave Connecticut since they arrived at the hospital.

The first chance they had to play bridge with friends was last Thursday night. They went but to a play one evening but Dr. Marc fell asleep in the first act.

That kind of life leads to occasional periods of irritation, but each usually understands the underlying cause is job strain or the loss of a patient, he said.

"The main thing for us is maintaining a flexible attitude toward each other," he added. "You can't be dogmatic."

The couple has had plenty of practice at coordinating medicine and marriage. They were wed after a travel-filled courtship during their undergraduate years, with Marc at Columbia University and Lora at the University of Pennsylvania.

Although the marriage strengthened under the pressures of medical school, cynical classmates spread rumors it was finished each time they failed to sit together in class, they recalled.

The couple, both of whom plan to practice internal medicine after their residencies, decided to start a family while they were young despite the problems it might cause.

"We wanted to have a baby early," said Dr.

Some tidbits can whet appetites

Copley News Service
Antipasto is the Italian version of hors d'oeuvres, which is, of course, French for "these gastronomical tidbits which whet the appetite and stir the imagination."

A prelude to the heartier portions of the meal, antipasto includes a variety of dishes, mostly small and colorful, with varied tastes and seasonings.

Most cocktail food is too high in saturated fat, but these suggested recipes are low in both saturated fat and cholesterol. Try some of them for your holiday party.

SPICED MUSHROOMS
1 lb. small fresh mushrooms
One-fourth cup lemon juice
One-half tsp. salt
One small hot red pepper
2 tpsps. oregano
One-half cup polyunsaturated oil
Sprigs of parsley
2 cloves garlic, mashed or minced
6 whole black peppercorns
1 small bay leaf
Pinch of marjoram
One-half cup white wine vinegar
One-half cup fat-free chicken broth
Select mushrooms that are firm and free of bruises. Wash quickly in cold water and pat dry with paper towels; cut off dry end of stem. Quarter mushrooms if they are larger than button-size.

In a three-quart saucepan, place the garlic, lemon juice, pepper, salt, bay leaf, red pepper, marjoram, oregano, vinegar, oil and chicken broth. Simmer for five minutes, then strain. Return marinade to pan with the mushrooms, and cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Pour into a bowl to cool, then cover and refrigerate at least four hours before serving. To serve, remove mushrooms from marinade and arrange attractively on a plate with sprigs of parsley. Don't forget the toothpicks! Serves six or more.

garlic. Transfer carrots to a shallow dish; cover and refrigerate until needed. To serve, remove carrots from marinade and arrange on a serving dish; sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Serve cold along with cherry tomatoes, crisp celery and bunches of green pepper strips. Serves six.

CLAM DIP
1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
One-half tsp. salt
One-half tsp. monosodium glutamate
One-half tsp. paprika
2 tpsps. mayonnaise
One-half cup skim milk
1 tsp. prepared horseradish
2 tpsps. lemon juice
1 (7-oz.) can minced clams, drained

Blend the cottage cheese, horseradish, salt, monosodium glutamate, paprika, mayonnaise, lemon juice and milk in a blender or electric mixer. When mixture is creamy, stir in clams.

Turn into a serving bowl and dust the top with additional paprika. For dippers you might use radishes, sliced cucumbers, thinly sliced kohlrabi, sliced raw zucchini, cherry tomatoes and cauliflower. Makes two and a half cups.

Low sodium diets
Persons on low sodium diets should read the nutrition information on labels of meats to insure that the products contain no sodium. Cured meat is treated with primarily salt or sugar and then heat processed so these meats should not be eaten on low sodium diets.

Teacher buffet held

The Midland Music Teachers Association had a buffet luncheon and Christmas auction in Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Mrs. C. J. George presided during a business session. Mrs. William Maitland reported on a proposed project of the association, to be displayed at the National Music Teachers Convention to be held in Dallas in March.

Mrs. Ray Chappelle announced a Student Affiliate Bicentennial recital will be held in January.

Mrs. Maitland was the auctioneer for homemade breads and other items brought by members. Proceeds from the auction will be donated to the Wallace Wimberly Scholarship Fund.

Special prize winners were Mrs. Donald Thompson and Mrs. James Crawford.

CARROT NIBBLERS
Peel carrots; cut into lengthwise slices three inches long and a half-inch wide. Saute onion and garlic in 1 lb. (6 medium-sized) carrots
1 clove garlic, peeled
One-fourth cup vinegar
One-half tsp. monosodium glutamate
One-fourth tsp. sugar
1 tsp. finely chopped onion
2 tpsps. polyunsaturated oil
1 tsp. salt
One-half tsp. dry mustard
1 sprig parsley

oil until limp. Stir in vinegar, salt, monosodium glutamate, mustard and sugar. Add carrots and cover and simmer for five minutes. Carrots should be crisp-tender. Remove

Hole assists removal

You can remove jelled cranberry sauce from the can without breaking the mold by first punching a small hole in the bottom of the pan.

Then remove the top with a wall-type can opener that slices the tin evenly around the can. The hole in the bottom lets in enough air as you open it to allow the jelly to slide out easily without the help of a knife and without breaking the mold.

"The main thing for us is maintaining a flexible attitude toward each other," he added. "You can't be dogmatic."

The couple has had plenty of practice at coordinating medicine and marriage. They were wed after a travel-filled courtship during their undergraduate years, with Marc at Columbia University and Lora at the University of Pennsylvania.

Although the marriage strengthened under the pressures of medical school, cynical classmates spread rumors it was finished each time they failed to sit together in class, they recalled.

The couple, both of whom plan to practice internal medicine after their residencies, decided to start a family while they were young despite the problems it might cause.

"We wanted to have a baby early," said Dr.

Judith Ann Aab, L.D. Osborn wed

Judith Ann Aab, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Aab of Lafayette, La., was married to L. D. Osborn, son of Mrs. Ruby Osborn of Lubbock, in a single ring ceremony at 2 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Charles Lutrick officiated. The organist was George DeHart.

Mrs. Jean Gilles of Denver City and Dr. G. R. Keller Jr. of Lexington, Ky., were the honor attendants. Ushering the guests were Fred Meyer and Barry Zinz.

Mr. Aab presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of serenade satin in candlelight. The formal princess-styled dress was trimmed with French lace. The bodice had a square neckline and elbow-length sleeves of Georgette and silk illusion. Her elbow-length veil of candlelight tulle was held by a Camelot cap trimmed with French lace. She carried white poms, yellow Sweetheart roses and blue Dutch iris trimmed with baby's breath and egg-shell colored ribbon streamers.

The reception was held in the church parlor, before the couple left on a trip to Kansas and Oklahoma. They will reside in Midland.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of Texas Tech University. He is employed by Geophysical Services, Inc., and she is a teacher at Austin Freshman School.

Mr. and Mrs. Max A. Miller were host couple to the rehearsal dinner Friday in their home.

Christmas guests

Christmas holiday guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Ormond will be Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Brock of Danville, Ill., Neil Ormond of Austin and Mrs. F. E. Turnbaugh of Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. L. D. Osborn

Couple married in Fort Worth church

FORT WORTH — Patricia Ann Corley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Corley of Fort Worth, and Stephen James Deffenbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lambert Deffenbaugh of 3004 Douglas St., Midland, were married at 4 p.m. Saturday in the Handley United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Eugene B. Robertson officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Sheri Vandeventer of Lubbock was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Linda Heath of Dallas, Tena Pearson of Lubbock, Judi Menry, Dawn Ogletree and Helen Ann Davis of Lubbock. Mrs. Sally Higdon of Abilene was the bridesmatron.

Les Riek of Midland was the best man. The groomsmen were Kelly Barnes and Robbie Christensen of Houston, Ensign David Corley of Monterey, Calif., brother of the bride, George Deffenbaugh of Abilene, brother of the bridegroom, and Steve Rodgers and Hal Brockett of Lubbock.

Mrs. Martha Hachtel was the organist and Mrs. Barbara Hardy of Lubbock was soloist.

Scott Reynolds was the ring bearer. The ushers were John Fouts, Jack Rawdon, Bill Keffler and Bill Turner, all of Lubbock.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father. She wore a candlelight Quiana jersey dress with draping accenting the bodice, which had an Empire waistline and straight sleeves. Her short-length veil was held by a cap enhanced with seed pearls. She carried white roses, gardenias and baby's breath.

After a trip to Chicago, Ill., the couple will reside at 5710 Glenmont St., Houston.

arts degree in journalism in May from Texas Tech University. She was a member of Chi Omega sorority. Mortar Board and was named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." She is a former employee of the Security National Bank in Lubbock. The bridegroom received a B.A. in telecommunications in 1975 from Tech and is a 1973 graduate of New Mexico Military Institute. He was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the Lubbock Press Club.

Holiday party held

Chapter BS of P.E.O. had a Christmas party in the home of Mrs. John Brooks Campbell, 3304 Stanolind St. Mrs. Paul Koim gave a review of the book, "Two for Galilee." The chapter will meet Jan. 14, with Mrs. John Casselman as hostess.

Julia Simon bride of Paul Glee Waner

MCKINNEY — Julia Kaye Simon of Commerce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Simon of Route 1, Midland, and Paul Glee Waner III of Fort Worth, son of Mrs. Lillian Porter of Grapevine and Paul G. Waner Jr. of Fort Worth, Saturday were married in Westside Church of Christ here.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess style gown of soft wedding satin fashioned with a deep V-neckline, full, billowy sleeves and a chapel train accented with pearls and embroidered lace, which also edged the bodice and hemline of the skirt.

Beth Simon of Midland served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Janet Bailey of Grand Saline, Beth Waner of Fort Worth, sister of the bridegroom, and Paula Arnold of Midland, sister of the bride.

Randy Myers of Hurst was best man. Kyle Box, James Lane and Allen Lane, all of McKinney, and Steve Arnold of Commerce seated the guests. Groomsmen were Charles Simon of El Paso, brother of the bride, Jerry Gunnels of Farmville and Mike Riley of Dallas.

A reception was held in the church immediately following the ceremony. The couple will reside at 2448 Laughlin Drive in Dallas.

The bride attended Grayson Co. Junior College and is a 1974 graduate of East Texas State University.

The bridegroom also is a graduate of ETSU, where he was a member of

Mrs. Paul G. Waner III
Kappa Alpha Order. He works for Woolf Brothers in Dallas.

Colonial music program given

"Christmas in Colonial America" was presented by the first, second and third grade students at Bowie Elementary to the school's Parent-Teacher Association in honor of America's 200th birthday. The students were assisted by Madeline Van Ness, Bowie music teacher.

A Bicentennial Christmas tree decorated the auditorium, and a greeting signed by each child at Bowie was presented to the faculty and personnel.

The event was officially endorsed as an official Bicentennial event for Midland by the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Midland.

Christmas customs once varied from celebrations to austerity

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

On Christmas Eve 1775 the advance guard of Henry Knox's artillery train reached Saratoga during a heavy snowfall. All Christmas day the men pushed and hauled their way through two feet of fresh snow.

They were on their way with captured British guns from Ft. Ticonderoga to win the siege of Boston, and there was no time for celebration.

On that same Christmas Day 200 years ago, Brig. Gen. Richard Montgomery held a last council with the officers of his American force invading frozen Canada.

They resolved to attack Quebec as soon as the weather cleared. Montgomery would be among the first killed when the disastrous battle came on New Year's Day.

These Americans were conforming to tradition. Colonial Americans caught up in crisis or challenge had passed up revelry and prayers to get the job done.

The Pilgrim Fathers had labored all Christmas Day in 1620 to lay out their new town and to unload the Mayflower through sleet and snow.

Their descendants spent Christmas 1775 camped with the new Continental Army outside Boston, while Bostonians and British soldiers were burning homes and buildings in the city, plank by plank, to keep warm.

Christmas had always been a somber occasion for New Englanders, but the Virginians in General Washington's army at Cambridge were accustomed to a cheery Yule.

In the Southern colonies Christmas revelry could last two weeks. To the Puritanical such carryings on were a waste of time as well as an affront to decency.

On the Pilgrims' second Christmas in America, Governor William Bradford called out the work detail as usual, but noted that some newcomers to the colony resisted.

"Most of this new company excused themselves and said it was against their consciences to work on that day. So the governor told them that if they would spare them till they were better informed, so he led away the rest and left them."

"But when they came home at noon from their work, they found them in the street at play, openly: some pitching the bar, and some at stool ball and such like sports."

"So he went to them and took away their implements and told them that was against his conscience, that they should play and others work. If they made the keeping of it matter of devotion, let them keep to their houses; but there should be no gaming or reveling in the streets."

"Since which time nothing hath been attempted that way, at least openly."

Christmas, or at least its celebration, was banned in Boston during the sway of the rigorous puritans, who recognized most of the yuletide tradition as adopted pagan rites.

The ban was repealed by the next generation, but the yankee resistance to a mirthful Christmas continued well into the days of the American Revolution.

In the middle colonies Christmas was neither the bawdy festival of the South nor the prudish denial of the North but something in between and closer to the way we celebrate today.

The Dutch and Germans of New Amsterdam, Pennsylvania and New Jersey observed Christmas as a holy day with religious services at the center of their activities.

But the Germans brought over the Christmas tree, which has become an American standard despite its pagan origins. And the Dutch brought their version of Saint Nicholas — Sinter Klaas, which became Santa Claus as Americans tried to pronounce it.

In Virginia and Maryland, where Christmas reached its rowdy extreme, the old English traditions were followed. And some cheerier British touches were found elsewhere beyond the reach of Puritan severity.

One English custom found in the colonies was the Yule log, a huge piece of tree trunk dragged into the house with great ceremony and set afire on Christmas day.

The Yule log burned through the day and most of the night to warm and brighten the festivities. It was bad luck if the Yule log burned out before the party did.

Drinking was a big part of the celebration, including in many areas the wassail bowl, named for the ancient Saxon toast "Wass hael," or "to your health." It was filled with hot spiced ale, sugar, toast and roasted crabs or apples.

Or there was that splendid and devastatingly potent American concoction, egg nog. George Washington's personal recipe called for a heady mixture of whisky, rum, brandy and sherry.

And they took their drinking seriously. George Washington's gardener had a contract guaranteeing him a $4 bonus each Christmas "with which he may be drunk four days and four nights."

Greenery, which abounded in America as holly, boxwood, cedar, pine, mistletoe, ivy, rosemary, laurel and magnolia, was the universal decoration for homes, shops and churches, with maybe twinkling candles at the windows.

And the "kissing ball" of mistletoe was as popular as it is today.

Christmas in colonial times may have been carried far beyond its religious intent, but it was not the commercial exploitation of today. Gifts were generally limited to servants or to children at New Year.

Despite Puritan resistance, Christmas became the great American holiday largely because it came in the dead of winter when an agrarian populace had time for festivities.

Shah rolls back prices; experts expect backlash

The Los Angeles Times — TEHRAN — The Shah of Iran decided last July that he would bring down prices in Iran, despite worldwide inflation.

The Shah is a man accustomed to having his decisions carried out and an across-the-board cut-back in prices was ordered in the face of rampant inflation.

Three American-foreign businessmen, now managed luxury hotels five months later, retail here were forced to cut prices in the stores here room rents by 10 per cent, have dropped by an

Violators of the lower price-levels can be arrested on the spot, and hurried off to impromptu courts for judgment.

According to government officials, some 10,000 profiteers have been fined or sent to jail, including several prominent Iranian merchants.

Three American-foreign businessmen, now managed luxury hotels five months later, retail here were forced to cut prices in the stores here room rents by 10 per cent, have dropped by an and restaurant and bar prices also were ordered slashed.

Has Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi found a sure-fire anti-inflation formula which has eluded economists?

Many Iranian and foreign businessmen think not. One prominent banker declared that if "these arbitrary and unrealistic price levels established by amateurs continue, Iran's booming oil based economy will slump. What will keep the nation still attractive for foreign investors will be the continued high level of government spending on its armed forces and development."

Iran Minister of Economics and Finance Hushang Ansary indicated recently that following the current campaign against profiteering, the government will take a second look at the situation in the interests of both consumers and producers.

But in the meantime, the shops of street merchants and the offices of vice presidents in the upper stories of Tehran's modern business center are assaulted by eager young men, often deputized by the government as price auditors.

That they sortie from the newly established Prince Intelligence Center, directed by the Shah's one allowable political party, is a fact not lost on businessmen.

A Hilton hotel executive recounted how a price-adjuster, in checking the coffee shop menu, saw that a banana split cost 90 dinars — about $1.30. He angrily denounced it as price-gouging.

"I know the market price of bananas — 10 dinars is the most I will allow," he said.

The hotel man tried to explain that a banana split is much more than a banana cut in half, but to no avail. So a banana split is no longer on the menu.

A foreign banker suggested that the use of students might backfire politically.

"There was profiteering and the Shah was angry — we understand that," the banker said. "But to make the students the auditors of pricing, and allow them to operate practically kangaroo courts, that seems to be instilling them with thoughts of strength."

Iran's Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveyda was asked about the banker's observation.

Hoveyda, who has been the Shah's executive officer for a decade, smiled and replied that as price-checkers students are more incorruptible than other people.

As for giving young people a taste of power, Hoveyda, relaxing in his book-strewn study, sipping a scotch and munching corn chips, said: "they are part of our society — they will do their job."

Both Iranian and foreign businessmen remain concerned, however. Many importers have stopped future orders.

Viva, Playgirl disagree on effects of male nudity

NEW YORK (AP) — To show or not to show. That is the question again confronting the women's magazines that cater more to sex than to traditional homemaking chores.

At least one of those provocative magazines has decided that pictures of totally nude men simply don't turn women on. Starting with its March issue, two-year-old Viva, which pioneered with daring photos of the naked glory of manhood, will no longer use male frontal nudity.

At Playgirl, with its full color, four-page fold-outs of naked men, editor

Marin Scott Milam said she disagreed with Miss Keeton's views.

"Women want to see more male nudes. They love it. We're in fact adding more pages to our centerfold features," said Mrs. Milam, noting that Playgirl's circulation was up to 1.2 million in three years.

Viva decided to show all in its fourth issue in response to hundreds of letters from women who objected to discreetly placed towels and shadows on male centerfolds that only teased the imagination.

"But we realized we'd been listening to a vocal minority. Women are far more conservative than we'd thought," said Miss Keeton.

She cited as factors in dropping frontal nudity: minimal growth in circulation (currently at 580,000), advertiser resistance and distribution problems.

Miss Keeton said one of the most popular features were sensually photographed flowers with poetic captions. Space once given to burly nudes will now contain health and beauty features, as well as service articles for working women.

"Women were just too shy to open up the magazine in places like supermarkets," said Miss Keeton. "I think women are very interested in what goes on in men's heads and in sex, but they're just not interested in men's physical dimensions."

Mrs. Milam agreed that women where shy about male nudity but felt they were overcoming their shyness.

Car pools still popular idea

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Car pools formed during the energy crisis to conserve gasoline are still thriving in many parts of the country, according to officials who say sharing a ride has become a money-saving habit for millions of workers.

The Federal Highway Administration, which uses the slogan "Double Up, America," to encourage commuters to share vehicles, estimated more than 20 million persons use car pools every day.

Comparisons between car pools now and at the height of the gasoline shortage in early 1974 are difficult because many of the shared-ride programs were started on an informal basis and no statistics were kept. There are indications, however, that interest in car pools continues to grow, although at a slower pace than previously.

The federal government has provided funds for 125 car pool projects since the energy crisis struck, with about one-third of them set up in the past year. The money has been used to establish special parking areas, reserved highway lanes and computerized programs to match up riders and drivers.

Car pools generally were most successful in areas where there are concentrated centers of industry and housing; they failed to catch on in places where population and businesses were widely scattered.

Officials said money rather than fuel conservation has become the prime motivation for people to use car pools. There no longer is any shortage of gasoline, but rising costs and publicity about the monetary savings — which can run more than $1,000 a year per person depending on the size of the auto, the length of the trip and the number of participants — have kept the car pool alive.

An Associated Press survey showed several companies not only are encouraging car pools, but also are using vans to transport employees.

The Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. has purchased 75 vans over the past three years and has given them to employees who, in return for the use of the vehicle in their private lives, agree to pick up other workers. The company pays maintenance and insurance; the employees pay eight cents a mile for off-duty use of the vans.

Connecticut started a car pool program in 1972, and Charles J. Gudaitis, a planner in the Department of Transportation, said the effort to provide commuter buses and parking for car poolers has been gaining steadily.

"We think we have had better success than any other part of the country," he said. Gudaitis said the use of special parking lots and buses increased 40 to 45 percent between 1974 and 1975.

Tri-Met, which runs the mass transit system in the Portland, Ore., area has been promoting car pooling for two years with the aid of a $250,000 federal grant. A survey showed 22,000 drivers joined car pools in the first year.

Stan Stokey, energy conservation official at the Tennessee Valley Authority in Knoxville, said the company's program to encourage employees to join car pools or ride vans, bikes or buses to work "exceeded all of our expectations."

He said the company estimates "a saving of more than 450,000 gallons of gasoline this year out of our whole program."

Santa sounds 'like a lady'

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The 38-year-old clerk-typist had an identity problem with the children and adults clustered around despite the familiar red-and-white suit and the snow-white Santa Claus beard.

"Santa was funny about his talking," said Michael Scruggs, 7, to his parents after climbing off Santa's lap. "He talked like a lady."

And indeed "he" had. Eva Penshenka of Alexandria, Va., was making her debut one night this week at a downtown department store, thus becoming the store's first woman Santa.

Miss Penshenka didn't worry about the children, who largely accepted her as they would any Christmas store Santa. She did manage to upset some adults who traditionally think of a male Santa Claus.

"How can I explain this to my children after telling them that Santa Claus is a man?" Rae Wine asked. "I don't think woman's liberation should come into it with the children. Maybe my son will think that she is Santa's mother."

Another woman waiting with her child to see Santa asked "how come they don't have a male" after being told that the Santa Claus before was, indeed a woman.

The male image of Santa Claus, the smiling dispenser of presents and happiness, comes from Nicholas, a real person who lived in what now is Turkey in the fourth century A.D.

Yet for Miss Penshenka, who works at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare by day and dons her Santa garb for $3 an hour on a part-time basis, the spirit of Christmas transcends the sex of Santa.

"I think it's a shame that people don't get a spirit or feeling for Christmas," Miss Penshenka said in reference to the remarks of women's liberation. "My main reason for doing this was for the sake of fun. Somehow doing this gives me a good feeling. Something money can't buy."

"I think she's a lady," a 7-year-old girl said before hopping on Santa's lap. "I could tell by her hands. Was I right? I still believe in Santa Claus, but not all the people in my class believe in Santa Claus."

Taxpayers clear winners in tax bill compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both President Ford and Congress are claiming victory in blocking a Jan. 1 tax increase, but the clear winner is the American taxpayer. Neither side wanted to be "the grinch that stole Christmas," said Sen. Russell B. Long, who helped draft the compromise proposal. Without Friday's agreement, temporary tax cuts earlier this year would have ended and a typical worker would have faced a tax increase of up to $6 per week. The bill provides for a slight expansion of the 1975 tax cuts. The goal is to keep a person's tax withholding rate at the same level in 1976 as in 1975, despite increases in most wages. The compromise ended an impasse that developed Thursday over the bill to extend the 1975 tax cuts into 1976. President Ford refused to accept the bill first passed by Congress because it did not contain a spending ceiling for fiscal 1977. And the Democrats would not accept Ford's demand for a specific dollar ceiling. The face-saving compromise between Congress and the White House came when Long and Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., proposed some vague antispending language. Otherwise, the bill passed Friday that Ford said he would sign is essentially the same as one he vetoed earlier.

The wording had to be innocuous enough to satisfy liberal Democrats, who wanted to protect the congressional budget process, but still sound enough like a spending-cut commitment to win extension of the tax cuts that are due to expire on Dec. 31. Without the extension, an average family of four earning $15,000 a year would have paid $180 more per year on an annual basis. Under the new bill they would actually pay $1,519 on 1976 income, or $60 less than on 1975 earnings.

Ford's approval. The new language says, "Congress is determined to continue to control spending." It promised reduced spending "equal to any additional reduction in taxes."

But it is the poor who would have been hardest hit. A family of four earning $6,000 yearly would have paid $440 more in taxes, including the loss of a $165 tax credit for the working poor provided under the new bill. The measure would give them no tax bill on 1976 income, compared with $35 for this year's income. A single person earning $10,000 would have paid $151 more next year. Under the bill he will actually pay $1,331, compared with $1,452 for this year's income. As a result of the agreement, American workers and businesses would get a six-month

Ringing the bell

WITH BOB TIEUEL

The greatest news story ever reported: "That night some shepherds were in the fields outside the village, guarding their flocks of sheep. Suddenly an angel appeared among them, and the landscape shone bright with the glory of the Lord. They were badly frightened, but the angel reassured them. Don't be afraid! he said. I bring you the most joyful news ever announced, and it is for everyone!"

The Savior—yes, the Messiah, the Lord—has been born tonight in Bethlehem. How will you recognize him? You will find a baby wrapped in a blanket, lying in a manger! Suddenly, the angel was joined by a vast host of others—the armies of heaven—praising God: Glory to God in the highest heaven, they sang, and peace on earth for all those pleasing him." From the Living Bible—Luke 2:8-14.

Sharing the black experience with so many believers from over the nation, especially in the Southwest, where a great majority of our readers live and have their being, has been most gratifying to this old correspondent. Soar this glorious season of the year, we can only say: Thank you so much from the bottom of my old heart and may this be a most blessed Christmas for believers everywhere, and may 1976 be the year when God shall fulfill all of your needs. We wish we could be objective as a great number of newsmen and ministers perhaps are, but for the most part, sharing the "black experience" is of its very nature subjective.

And to A. Lewis Williams, the profound and innovative editor of the nation's oldest black secular periodical, the A.M.E. Christian Recorder, we simply say: "you are the greatest. Keep up the good work and Merry Christmas and a New Year filled with dreams come true. Even in dreams, we can share the thrilling experience of being black on "a Saturday night."

"There was a sense of being Christians together, struggling for a mutually advantageous outcome for the welfare of all people, black and white, rich and poor; not just paring off for separate advantages." The Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church in America commenting on World Council of churches general assembly recent held in Nairobi, Kenya.

Chimes: Grants totaling almost $100,000 from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation will be distributed this month to 40 member colleges and universities of The United Negro College Fund. Some 48,000 students were enrolled in United Negro College Fund institutions last year and the national fund-raising goal for 1975 is $14 million. The money is used for student financial aid, the upgrading of facilities and staff, the upgrading of libraries, to expand curricular offerings in the field of business, economics, medicine and communications and add new teaching and laboratory equipment.

Recent great Quotes: "As this country approaches its Bicentennial year, there is still exists a struggle of fulfillment, equal opportunity, respect and human dignity. The United Negro College Fund deserves and must get ever increasing support from the American people and such organized groups as labor and industry." Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

In loving tribute to Two Great Spirits and Friends Who Have Passed On:

Dr. Fred Moon of Oklahoma City and the first black elected chairman of the OK City school board. And to Dr. J. G. Collins, 95, a nationally known pastor, evangelist and author and friend. He conducted a great revival for this correspondent at Odessa in the 50's. Dr. Moon was a great educator and friend. He was a Baptist churchman, while Collins was a great Methodist worker who knew no denominational lines.

Spurred by the continuing sluggish economy, it was announced in New York City recently that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has launched a national fund drive to dispose of its 1975 deficit. Reports are that it has been gratified by early public response.

Until later, Peace and be a good neighbor, they come in all colors.

Gulf under pressure to put up escrow cash

WASHINGTON — Gulf Oil Corp. is under pressure by the State Department to put in escrow a royalty payment of just under $100 million, scheduled to be paid by Dec. 31 to the pro-Soviet Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, informed sources said Friday.

Under terms of an agreement signed in 1957 with the former Portuguese territorial government of Angola, a Gulf subsidiary began producing in 1968 between 130,000 and 150,000 barrels a day of oil from 120 offshore wells in the Angolan enclave of Cabinda.

In exchange, Gulf has been paying the Angolan government some $500 million a year in royalties and taxes, in installments. The Popular Movement controls both the capital, Luanda, and the Cabinda enclave.

The most recent payments totalling $116 million were made in late September and early October, before Angola's independence on Nov. 11. The next payment is due Dec. 31 — presenting Gulf with a dilemma of continuing its contractual payments to the leftists or bowing to pressure from the U.S. government.

Gulf spokesman Robert Goralski Friday declined to comment on reports of negotiations with the U.S. government about what he described as a "touchy...very sensitive" issue.

Officially, a State Department spokesman would say only that "Gulf has a problem and has been talking with us." The spokesman said the department would have no comment on the substance of the problem and emphasized that the final decision is Gulf's.

but informed sources said Gulf officials and the Sate Department had talked about the possibility of putting the next payment into an escrow account rather than turning it over to the Popular Movement government, which also controls the Cabinda enclave.

The annual Gulf payment is Angola's largest single source of revenue. If the American company were to suspend payments to the leftists in Luanda it might find its property seized or destroyed.

While Gulf is under contract to provide revenues to one side in the Angolan civil war, the U.S. government is aiding the two rival factions. Washington has spent or designated about $50 million for covert military assistance to the National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola — half the amount that Gulf is scheduled to disburse to the Soviet-backed faction on Dec. 31.

Goralski said Gulf does not want to indicate a course of action and noted that all sides now have a stake in keeping Cabinda oil production going. He said that Gulf's Cabinda work force is between 250 and 300, mostly Angolans.

Currently, Goralski said, the Cabinda subsidiary is producing 140,000 barrels a day after some disruptions earlier this year reduced output to as low as 14,000 barrels. To date, however, warring factions have avoided damaging the oil facilities. Most of the oil is exported to Western Europe for refining but some also comes to the United States and some has gone to Japan.

While Gulf's last payment of $10 a barrel in royalties and taxes was made to a transition government still technically under Portuguese authority, the finance ministry in that government was under the control of a Popular Movement official. The ministry remains under the same leadership today, Gulf spokesman Goralski said Friday that as far as his company knows, the previous payments remained in Angola when the Portuguese left.

Drilco sends Hale to Libya

D. B. Hale has been promoted to district manager of Libya by Drilco-Division of Smith International, Inc., based in Midland.

Hale assumes responsibility for the management of district level sales and personnel.

He will coordinate company activities in the district and provide a work direction for the shop management.

Hale joined Drilco in February 1971 as a field inspector trainee. Since joining the company he has held positions as field inspector, salesman, material coordinator and finally district manager.

A native of Snyder, he was stationed at Morgan City, La., prior to his transfer overseas.

Americans, Soviets scrambling?

TOKYO (AP) — China today accused the Soviet Union and the United States of scrambling "with growing intensity" for strategically important positions and strategic resources in the Persian Gulf.

The official Hsinhua news agency said this has created a new situation in the area and that the Gulf countries are "uniting to struggle against hegemonism."

"So far as the super-powers are concerned, whoever controls the Gulf, especially the oil there, will be able to control Europe, the most important strategic area, thus overpowering the other in their contention for world domination," Hsinhua said.

Texan killed

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Leonard M. Morgan, 27, of Amarillo, Tex., was killed in a two-car head-on collision near here Friday night, the Washington State Patrol reported.

Kerr heads department

FINDLAY, Ohio — W. R. Douglas Kerr, formerly manager of Marathon Oil Co.'s operations research department, has been appointed manager of the computer division.

He succeeds Gerald Kramer who earlier was promoted to manager of the computer services organization.

Terrence L. Deiro succeeds Kerr as manager of the operations research department. He previously served as operations research supervisor in that department.

The downtown Burger Chef, 409 North Big Spring, has completed an extensive modernization plan and is now open for business with added facilities. This downtown Burger Chef has long been a favorite noon time spot for Midland business people and now with new facilities can serve many more downtowners. Take time out for a holiday meal at Burger Chef.

Burger Chef swings open with new F.I.N. program

The downtown Burger Chef, 409 North Big Spring, has completed an extensive modernization plan and is now open for business with added facilities. This downtown Burger Chef has long been a favorite noon time spot for Midland business people and now with new facilities can serve many more downtowners.

The building has an additional 1800 square feet of which 1200 square feet make a new dining area. The building has an entirely new look with the addition of exterior and interior brick walls, mansard roof, bronze and glass doors, new lighting and equipment plus seating for approximately 125 people.

The F. I. N. Future Is Now program has been implemented. This program includes two "works" bars and a salad bar. The "works" bar enables you to fix your own hamburgers just the way you like them. The salad bar will provide crisp tossed salad with your choice of dressing and you may go back for seconds at no extra charge. Of course, you may order your hamburgers dressed the usual Burger Chef way. The new program also includes a dining room hostess to assist you. Now both Burger Chefs have drive-thru windows for the customers who do not wish to take advantage of the "works" bars. Burger Chefs are located at 409 North Big Spring and 907 Andrews Highway. During this busy holiday season treat yourself and family to a meal at Burger Chef.

Don Tidwell, owner of the two Midland Burger Chefs, also operates Burger Chef franchises in Huntsville, El Paso and Alamogordo.

Iron works adds to staff

ODESSA — Carl A. Wilson of Odessa has joined Texas Iron Works as a sales and service representative.

He will operate from the company's Odessa office and will cover the West Texas New Mexico area.

Wilson has been associated with the oil industry since 1951.

Dividend declared

The board of directors of Texas American Oil Corp., Midland-based concern, has declared a five per cent stock dividend on outstanding common stock.

The dividend will be payable to stockholders of record Dec. 31, 1975. Payment will be Jan. 10, 1976.

Martin Distributing Company offers cheeses in wide variety

For holiday entertaining there is nothing as special and versatile as a wide variety of cheeses and Martin's has them. Martin Distributing Company, Midland Air Terminal, is headquarters for cheese distribution in the Midland area.

Cheese, Chees-n-Salami, Chees-n-onion, Swiss or Rye, Instant Pizza, Super Sharp and Smokey Sharp. These tasty flavors are available in sliced six ounce packages, nine ounce sticks and five pound loaves.

Pauly Cheese Company. Slices, five pound loaves and half moons are available. Among the favorites are Mozzarella, Edam, Gouda, Blue Cheese, Monterey Jack and many more. The two pound super vintage, red rind cheddar is a popular gift item.

If you are planning a party for New Years you will want to be sure to include a variety of cheeses for your party table. Mix them into cheese balls, blend them in, or pastry for tasty party fare, whip them into dips or slice and serve on crackers or party breads. Simple or fancy, these highlights any party.

A new selection is available on a pegboard display by Frigo. A wide variety of sliced, shredded, grated and fancy cheeses are new to this area and are distributed by Martin's.

Martin's carries a good variety of cheeses for restaurants, clubs and delicatessens. Some are available in the five pound loaves, twelve pound wheels and the forty pound block comes in natural cheddar in mild, medium and sharp.

Prof. Universi and stud operation formatio injection

Prof. Duane Crawford, left, of Texas Tech University's department of Petroleum Engineering, and student Mike Drennon of Lubbock check out operation of a laboratory model of an oil-bearing formation. It shows the sweep pattern made by injection fluid on petro carbons, similar to operations which take place thousands of feet below the surface of the earth in oil recovery operations. The model was built by Crawford with help from Drennon. It is similar to others built in the Texas Tech Petroleum Engineering laboratory.

Plastic models prove good laboratory aids

LUBBOCK — Petroleum engineering students at Texas Tech University watch through intricate acrylic plastic (Plexiglas) laboratory models how injection fluids push hydrocarbons toward producing wells in an oil formation.

Some of the models, said Prof. Duane Crawford, are unique and include the unusual "chicken-wire" spacing pattern of the Slaughter field in West Texas.

In the models, sands similar to oil-producing formations are placed between gasketed layers of transparent acrylic plastic bolted together. Fluids with dyes are injected into the models and push reservoir fluids toward outlets representing producing wells.

Students visualize the injection fluids actually exerting pressure against oil and follow the sweep patterns that result from the push of the injection fluids.

The models have been built by the Texas Tech professor with the aid of students and have resulted in laboratory aids, which the professor believes to be unique to an undergraduate study program.

The laboratory equipment designed and constructed by Crawford demonstrate a number of concepts, measurements and calculations related to oil reservoir engineering problems, he said.

"These models," he added, "are not available through companies which supply standard equipment to universities and research laboratories. And even if they were, you would pay a fabulous price for a one-of-a-kind model."

With student help, Crawford has built several models of various oil well placement patterns used throughout the country, a pilot flood model to study oil sweepout in an unconfined pattern, a pressure-buildup model to determine permeability and other reservoir capabilities, and a relative permeability apparatus to study permeability as it relates to amounts of saturation of gas and oil in the reservoir.

Construction of a model represents about 150 man-hours of work. Fifty to 100 hours go into building the model, with another 20 or more for testing.

The models are not designed for research but to give the petroleum engineering student a better understanding of what goes on in an oil reservoir thousands of feet beneath the surface of the earth, Crawford said.

"A petroleum engineer works from a remote control position," he pointed out. "He cannot see what is happening in the oil and gas bearing formations at the pumping depths."

One oil company recently brought a group of engineers to see the laboratory models and to get a better understanding of sweep efficiency.

"We have found the models to be effective teaching aids in demonstration of reservoir engineering principles as they relate to such things as flood patterns," Crawford said.

Dowdle sets gas tester

Dowdle Oil Corp. of Midland has announced it intends to drill an 8,000-foot south offset well to its gas discovery in Colusa County, Calif.

No. 2 Baldson, a south offset to the company's No. 1 Baldson which potential for 14,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day from the Forbes formation at 7,500 feet, will start sometime this week.

Fred Forster resigns posts with MGF Oil

MGF Oil Corp. announced Saturday it had accepted the resignation of Fred Forster Jr. as executive vice president of the company and president of MGF Drilling Co., Inc.

He remains on the MGF Oil Corp. board of directors. Joseph C. Gourlay was appointed to the position of vice president-Engineering.

Four persons were appointed to fill four newly created positions on the board. They are William O. Bowers III of San Antonio, John Martin Davis of Dallas, David N. Fitzgerald of Midland and John Maguire of Springdale, Ark. They will serve until the next annual meeting of shareholders.

Before joining MGF Oil in 1969, Gourlay served with Texaco Inc., Bright and Shiff Oil Producers and as an independent consulting engineer.

L. E. Grimes, manager of MGF Drilling Co., Inc., was named vice president of the wholly owned MGF drilling subsidiary.

Forster's replacement has not been named. Bowers currently manages oil and gas holdings and several ranch holdings throughout South and West Texas. He was assistant secretary of state for Texas from 1957 to 1972.

Davis is a certified public accountant and owns his own practice in Dallas.

Fitzgerald currently is president and sole owner of Slough Equipment Co. of Odessa and is an officer, director and co-owner of several other oil field-related companies.

Maguire is vice president-Finance of Tyson Foods, Inc., of Springdale, Ark. A certified public accountant, he worked for a regional firm and later organized his own practice prior to joining Tyson Foods.

MGF, an oil and gas exploration and contract drilling company with operations in West Texas, Southeast New Mexico and the Gulf Coast of Texas, has reported a 69 per cent increase in net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30 compared to the same period in 1974. The three quarters was $909,117 or 46 cents a share, compared to $537,896 or 28 cents a share for the same period of 1974.

Revenues were $8,976,643, compared to $4,326,685.

API members will hear talk on oil conference

Robert D. Fitting, Midland consulting engineer, geologist and independent oil operator, will be the speaker for the Tuesday meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

Fitting will talk about his trip to the World Petroleum Conference in Tokyo in 1975 and will show pictures of the conference and various scenes in Japan.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p. m. at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Fitting is a native of Cobleskill, N. Y., and moved to California as a child. He is an engineering and geological graduate of Stanford University.

He came to Midland in 1939 as a field engineer for the Goldsmith Pool Engineering Committee. He served four years in World War II as an intelligence officer in the Navy.

His consulting firm in Midland is Robert D. Fitting & Associate, Inc.

He also is vice president and general manager of Pearson-Sibert Oil Co. of Texas.

Fitting is a former district commissioner of the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boys Scouts of America.

He was on the board of directors of the YMCA during the early formative years in Midland and currently is a member of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and several oil industry organizations.

Morgan transfers

John R. Morgan, vice president and manager of Texas Oil & Gas Corp. West Texas District with headquarters in Midland, has been named senior vice president of the company.

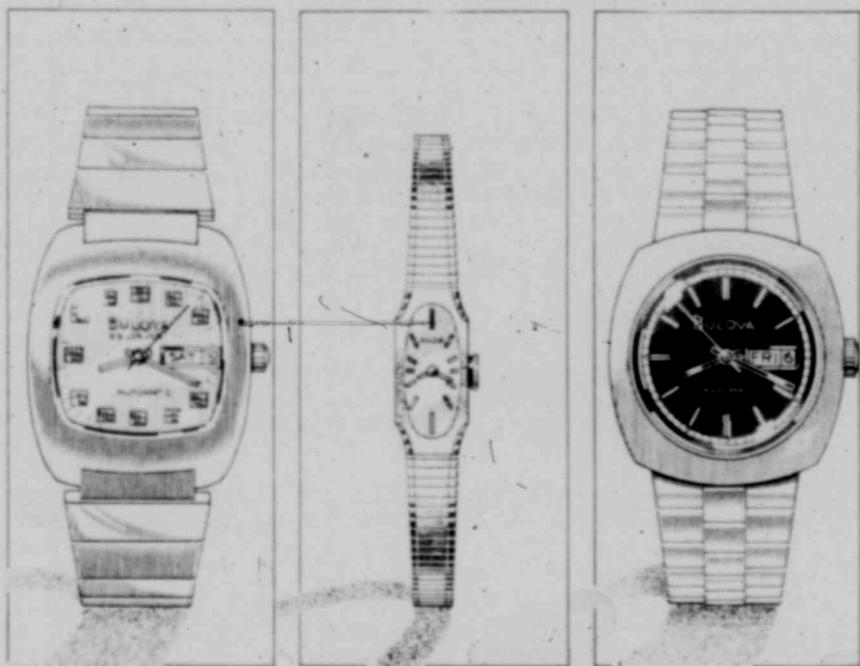

He will be responsible for oil and gas production and exploration activities and will be headquartered at Dallas.

Charles R. Canfield, vice president and manager of the Gulf Coast District at Corpus Christi, will replace Morgan in Midland.

Louis Little of Corpus Christi, replaces Canfield.

Federal agency charges EPA lax on pesticides

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency has charged that Americans are not adequately protected by the Environmental Protection Agency from the health hazards of pesticide use.

The General Accounting Office said last week that the EPA "is allowing the public to be exposed to residues which its Toxicology Branch has determined to be over the safe exposure level."

The GAO noted the EPA is required to make assurances that pesticides are reasonably safe and that consumers are not exposed to harmful levels of pesticide residue in foods.

But the congressional watchdog agency said EPA has neither the funding nor the staff to handle the task, and called upon the agency to seek adequate funding and resources from Congress.

The GAO said the EPA has not completed required studies concerning the hazards of pesticides now being conducted and studies on active pesticide ingredients do not cover the long-term ecological and health effects of combining two active ingredients.

In GAO's sample of 100 pesticide labels, the agency found many instances where required precautions did not appear or where the labels had not been approved by the EPA.

The GAO said the Environmental Protection Agency agreed with criticisms concerning pesticide tolerance levels in food and EPA agreed to correct its practices.
