Bomb in LaGuardia locker kills at least 11

NEW YORK (AP) - A thunderous explosion from a bomb placed in a locker sent a shrapnel shower of glass and metal through a crowded baggage area at LaGuardia Airport. At least 11 persons were killed and more than 50 others injured.

METRO EDITION

The blast, which officials said had the force of 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite and was meant to "maim and kill," reduced the baggage area to rubble Monday evening and sent dozens of persons fleeing in panic.

The airport was quickly evacuated and closed to all traffic shortly after the 6:33 p.m. explosion, forcing the cancellation or diversion of at least 45 flights and fouling the plans of some 5,000 travelers. The airport will be closed until at least 10 p.m. today.

As workers searched the debris. there were reports of as many as 14 deaths, but police at the airport said they could not confirm more than 11.

The disaster also triggered bogus bomb threats at airports in other major cities. Three, including Washington's National Airport, were evacuated

It was the most heart-sickening thing I ever saw in my life," said Richard Siemers, who was about to see his daughter's family off to Tulsa, Okla. "Bodies were all over ... puddles of blood on the island between the building and the parking lot ... it seemed like everyone was in shock."

The explosion set off a smoky fire in the baggage area shared by Trans World and Delta airlines, but officials said that flying glass and metal accounted for most of the deaths and injuries. Metal doors were ripped away and glass from 10-foot high windows was found the equivalent of several city blocks from the blast.

Eight of the injured were seriously hurt and rushed to operating rooms in local hospitals. In addition to the 52 persons reported hurt, another score of persons was treated at the scene or area hospitals but not reported in official figures.

mediately identified, except for Jeff McMurtney, 30, an FBI agent, who was reported in serious condition after emergency surgery.

No call or advance warning preceded the blast, but in the hours that followed, police and news organizations received a number of calls from persons claiming different groups were responsible. These ranged from the Palestine Liberation Organization to Puerto Rican terrorists and a

Mafia gang. Police officials said they began looking for two men in their late teens or early 20s after witnesses said two men fitting that description had run from the building minutes before the

Hoax bomb threats at airport terminals in Washington, Cleveland and St. Louis forced the evacuation of passengers while police with explosive-sniffing dogs combed the buildings. Other calls were received at airports in Detroit, Denver, Los Angeles, Chicago, Indianapolis and New Haven, Conn.

Lt. Kenneth O'Neill, chief of the police bomb section, said that the blast was "one of the largest ever to go off in New York City" and killed the most people.

The fire started by the blast burned for more than an hour before being brought under control

TWA employe Nick Douglas said that the explosion "sounded like a bomb blast during the war. Walls were shattered all over and peoplewere running from the building, screaming and crying. Another airline employe who declined to be identified said he found a head lying on the sidewalk in front of the arrivals buildings, then a foot and the body of a woman whose chest had been blown apart.

In a statement issued from Vail, Colo., President Ford said he was "deeply grieved at the loss of life and injuries...

He said that he had directed

Secretary of Transportation William Coleman and the Federal Aviation Administration to give him "a complete report on the tragedy as soon as Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who rushed to the disaster scene, called the bombing the work of "maniacs. We will hunt them down.

cluding The Associated Press, received telephone calls claiming that the Palestine Liberation Organization was responsible for the blast, but police discounted these reports.

Police and news organizations also got a number of other calls blaming such disparate groups as the Gallo organized crime gang to Puerto Rican terrorists who have claimed responsibility for a number of recent explosions in the city

"We'll investigate it, but at this point, I wouldn't put much stock in it," one police source said. Zuhdi Tervi. a PLO observer to the United Nations, said later that the PLO ment in the criminal act.'

Most of the injured were taken to City Hospital Center at Elmhurst in Queens. Two were pronounced dead on arrival. Other victims were rushed to Booth Memorial, Queens General, Jamaica and Flushing hospitals.

Sirica order on postage fails to stick

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Postal Service is raising the cost of mailing a letter from 10 to 13 cents on Wednesday, three days after it originally planned to increase postal rates.

The service announced the higher rates on Monday after the U.S. Court of Appeals cleared a legal barrier to the rate increase.

The appeals court stayed an order by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica prohibiting the Postal Service from raising rates. The higher court is expected to decide later on the merits of the case, but the stay allows postal rates to go up in the meantime.

Under the rates that take effect at 12:01 a.m. local time Wednesday, a first-class letter will cost 13 cents for the first ounce and 11 cents for each additional ounce. A postcard will increase from 7 to 9 cents and parcel post rates will go up an average of 10.1

Other increases are 22.1 per cent for second class mail and 23.9 per cent for third-class bulk rates.

The three-judge appeals court issued the stay after a government lawyer said the Postal Service would be unable to meet its Feb. 6 payroll if it were not allowed an immediate postal rate increase.

Under present rates, the Postal Service is losing $7 million per day. Even with the higher rates, the Postal Service expects to have its highest deficit in history during this fiscal Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar has said that the Postal Service's chronic deficit may lead to reductions in service, including elimination of Saturday deliveries and special delivery.

Justice Department lawyer Neil Koslowe, representing the Postal Service, said Sirica's ruling would create a crisis for the service if allowed to stand.

Koslowe warned that without the increases that originally had been planned for Sunday, the Postal Service could start the rate-raising process over again and seek new and even higher rate increases to make up lost revenue. But he said this "would be directly contrary to the public interest.' Sirica had found the new rates to be illegal because the procedures for increasing postal rates had not been complied with. By law the Postal Service is required to obtain the approval of its governors for new rates before filing them with the Postal Rate Commission.

Sirica ruled that this approval had not been obtained because the service did not submit the specific increases but instead received only the board's general agreement that rates should

Mail letters before midnight

The number "13" - the taboo of many a superstition follower - may turn into a reverse hex for the debtriddled U.S. Postal Service.

Beginning a moment after midnight tonight, the postage on first-class letter rates will soar from 10 to 13 cents. Letters postmarked before midnight with 10-cent stamps will be delivered, however.

And other postal rates covering second-, third- and fourth-class mailings will be increased accordingly, Harry Griggs, public information officer at the Midland (Postal) Sectional Center, said this morning.

For the not-expected-so-soon changeover to the 13-cent stamp, the downtown Midland post office has only about 500,000 stamps bearing the 13-cent price tags in its vault, behind the counters, and soon, in postal vending machines.

"A half-million (stamps) won't last very long - a six-week maximum.' Griggs said. "We've got bunches on order," however, he commented.

Too, the postal officials in Midland had ordered additional 10-cent stamps this month after U.S. Judge John J. Sirica had barred the planned Dec. 28 hike in postal rate increases. The rate increase, it then seemed, would be delayed for three months or so. And the U.S. Postal Service authorities had forecast noticeable rises in the service's deficit - already running up to $7 million per day. A possible setback in postal services was hinted at should the postal service not get more revenue.

Now, due to a turnover in a court ruling, the postal folks will be getting a few million dollars more more day

But that additional revenue brought in by rate increases will not pull the national mail service out of debt, Griggs pointed out.

"So we'll still be going in the hole." he said, "but not nearly so fast."

The 13-cent stamps will be and are readily available at postal counters. but, Griggs said, this week may pass before stamp-vending machines are converted to the new 13-cent rate at the downtown main post office and at-the Village and Graves stations. Available en mass will be 13-cent stamps bearing the American Eagle and Shield, Liberty Bell, and American Flag, Griggs said. Billions of those stamps will be "continuously printed" in virtually unlimited numbers, he said,

Printed into the millions will be the 11-cent stamp, such as the Freedom of the Press stamp, to be used on firstclass mail weighing more than one

"Evidentally," Griggs said of the 11-cent per additional ounce on firstclass mail, "they (postal authorities) felt that if they are (already) handling a piece of mail, it's not that much more trouble to handle an additional ounce. . . . The vast majority of mail is one ounce or less.'

Also readily available will be the three-cent stamp, such as the one bearing the likeness of American historican Francis Parkman, to complement those millions of surplus 10-cent stamps

The 10-stamp has been around en mass for not quite two years. Griggs

Party for President may cause trouble for campaign committee

VAIL, Colo. (AP) - President Ford, heading home after an eightday skiing holiday, may find his campaign committee embroiled in controversy because of a departureeve party in his honor.

The key question is whether the Monday night party was planned as a social gathering by Ford fund-raiser Sheika Gramshammer or to funnel money into Ford's presidential campaign. Ford, who planned to fly back to Washington today, said he didn't know if Mrs. Gramshammer was raising money for him.

Ford spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford's campaign committee and aides had tried to keep the dinner out of the fundraising category.

Nessen told reporters the event originally was planned as a $1,000 a couple fund-raiser. But he said that would have meant the President Ford Committee would have had to reimburse the Air Force for a portion of Ford's flight to Colorado because part of the trip, paid for by the taxpayers, would then be classified as

A Ford aide who declined to be identified said Mrs. Gramshammer was cautioned by the Ford committee to mail cards seeking money from Vail residents only after the party. This source said she apparently misunderstood, sending the cards at the same time as the invitations. .

Nessen acknowledged Mrs. Gramshammer had mailed about 100 pledge cards before the dinner. He said cards and invitations were not in the same envelopes but might might have been sent in the same mail.

He said Mrs. Gramshammer, a former Las Vegas showgirl, proposed a year ago that she plan a campaign fund-raiser for Ford's visit and that there was a series of communications between the White House, the campaign committee and Mrs. Grams shammer before the party was set. He said Ford agreed to attend if it were not labeled a fund-raiser.

Ford skied during the day with Mrs. Gramshammer, When he was asked by reporters if she was raising money for his campaign, Ford replied, "I don't know anything about it. I've got a lot of friends here

Mrs. Gramshammer said mailing the pledge cards had nothing to do with the party. Asked about reports from residents that they were being asked to contribute to attend the party, she said, "People can give what they want. There is no force. They can give $10 or whatever. I don't know what they've given.'

But some Vail winter residents reported they had been solicited to give $1,000 a couple for the dinner and said they felt pressured. Sources said the party, held in a club owned by Mrs. Gramshammer, included contributors as guests, but Nessen said in advance, "Some of the people who are coming are not contributors and some who are contributors are not coming."

Air traffic disrupted by threats

By the Associated Press

Bomb threats disrupted air traffic at seven airports around the country following the blast that ripped through a terminal at LaGuardia Airport in New York.

' KANSAS POLICE said a caller "who sounded like a 14-year-old boy" telephoned the communications unit at police headquarters Monday night and announced that a bomb was set to go off at Kansas International Airport near the Trans World Airlines opera-

The building was not evacuated because police believed the call to be a hoax. Officers later searched the area, but nothing was found.

A bomb scare closed Washington National Airport for more than an hour Monday night after an anonymous bomb threat.

The Federal Aviation Administration ordered the airport evacuated. A two-hour search with "sniffer dogs" failed to locate any bombs, and the airport was reopened.

DELTA AIR LINES officials at Newark International Airport also received a telephone call from "an Hispanic sounding" man who said there was a bomb planted on the next Delta flight. Airline officials reportedly handled the call as a hoax and did not search the plane. The plane took off as scheduled

However, officials at Newark airport said security has been increased. Weir Cook Airport in Indianapolis was searched after several telephoned bomb threats were received shortly after the bomb exploded in New York. No bombs were found.

PASSENGERS on a TWA flight bound for Paris from New York experienced a two-hour delay at Logan International Airport in Boston while airport officials checked for a bomb. The jet had taken off from Kennedy Airport in New York where a bomb threat was received. The jet was diverted to Logan. No bomb was Otherwise, according to Frances Shuffield, chief deputy to Tax Assessor-Collector Elmo Linebarger. those on the tax rolls will be paying the face amount of their taxes or more. should they tarry in paying up.

Jan. 31, taxpayers pay the flat rate. But after that, Mrs. Shuffield said, an interest-penalty of 11/2 per cent per month will be assessed for five

After that time span and beginning on July 1, unpaid taxes are entered on the delinquent tax rolls. By then, interest on the taxes will have amount to 71/2 per cent, Mrs. Shuffield said. However, she pointed out, approximately 3 per cent or slightly less of county taxes are unpaid long enough to be entered on the delinquent tax rolls.

U However, to increasingly reduce delinquent taxes, a second taxes-due notice is mailed out in May "to try to prevent as many as possible from going on the delinquent tax rolls," Mrs. Shuffield said. The first notice was mailed in October, she said. Tax revenue taken in from the 1975 tax rolls will supply the county with nore than half of its 1976 operating budget of slightly under $4 million. Other revenue comes in the form of fees and fines, sales and use taxes, and federal revenue sharing funds. During October, $1.94 million - 821/2 per cent - of the $2.35 million in taxes due was , paid, Mrs. Shuffield said. And in November, an additional 3 per cent was paid. Meanwhile, taxpayers who haven't "squared" with the county's tax office have until midnight Wednesday — the last day in 1975 — to pay in order to reap that 1 per cent

Whether or not that discount is allowed will be determined by the date postmarked on the envelope carrying the taxes due, she said.

Tony Kemp lay there flat-out in the dentist's chair just as calm as

His eyes were closed and his mouth was parted in a kind of smile. Then the dentist laid on the sound of his high-speed drill, which can be compared to nothing except maybe a Concorde at cruising altitude.

Then the dentist went into Kemp's mouth with that Mach 2 sound and routed out two molars and Tony didn't

Tony hadn't had a shot of anything - or a sniff of . gas or even a belt of bourbon, and he didn't do anything except lie there calmly as Dr. Edward L. Omens drilled deeply into two teeth and filled them

Tony, young, red-bearded and sandaled, had been hypnotized by Omens, one of a growing number of dentists and physicians using hypnosis in their practice.

'When patients come to the dentist," Omens said in an interview, "their biggest emotion is fear.

'They are afraid of pain. They are afraid of the shot, of the needle. They are afraid of the noise and they are afraid that it is going to be ex-

Omens said that with hypnosis he can direct their thoughts away from the fear, real or imaginary, and onto what he is telling them.

Tony Kemp never had been hypnotized before. He said he once was a reject from an audience participation nightclub act because the hypnotist entertainer was unsuccessful with

Although Omens disapproves of hypnosis as entertainment he first got the idea of using it in his practice while watching a stage demonstration, and his delivery sounds very much like well-known entertainers.

"Now, Tony," he said, "I want you to pay very, very close attention to what I am saying. I want you to let your body become very, very relaxed, and I also want you to know that what I am saying is really so.

"You are going to be very comfortable, and the more comfortable you are the more relaxed you are. All

"Just close your eyes and with your eyes closed I want you to visualize my finger touching you right here (on the middle of his forehead). Now, Tony, I want you to take a really big breath in, real deep, real deep in, and when you breathe out I want you to let your arms and hands go very relaxed.

"I want you to take another deep breath and concentrate right there, and let your legs and feet relax when you breathe out. Concentrate right

"Listen to the sound of my voice and the more you do the more deeply relaxed you will be ..

Tony said later he felt fine and that he had enjoyed it all very much.

New Year's Eve always same for some

By JOSEPH P. MASTRANGELO The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A few days before Christmas, people begin to wonder about what they are going to do New Year's Eve.

But New Year's Eve was no different than any other night in Mike's Bomber Cafe, owned by Mike Fogarty - who lived upstairs. It started the same as every day, when along about four o'clock in the afternoon the roofers who populated the place would pull up in their battered trucks and pile in for a few boilermakers - rye whiskey with beer on the side. There was a bottle on the bar called

"Mulligan" for the beer drinkers. "Mulligan" was stale beer and gin, with red hot peppers floating inside. If the unwary drinker watched the men sprinkle "Mulligan" into their beer and followed suit, his eyes would turn bright red and his gums would burn for two days. It was good on

The roofer always had one arm that was longer than the other, probably from hammering nails

They were boisterous and would arm wrestle for drinks. Along about nine o'clock - even on New Year's Eve- Mike would give last call, lock the door, put out the lights and go upstairs to

Most bartenders will tell you that New Year's Eve is amateur night, and no decent drinker would be found on that night wearing a paper hat and blowing a little horn. 'Drinking on New Years Eve, for the man who drinks all year 'round, is a defensive mechanism." a student of politics told me one night. "I drink on that night so that I can put up with the amateurs." Whether you're spending New Year's Eve looking for a parking place, or tearing around headed for a party, the ball is going to drop at midnight in Times Square, New York. Somewhere, and at a lot of places, there will be a guy wearing a lampshade and dancing with a broom, and even could be a pro.

My tradition will be to try and avoid the Zombie drinkers. Sit with somethign warm in my stomach watching Guy Lombardo, who, like Bert Parks, is assured of one booking a year. While doing this, I will wave back at all the people sitting at the expensive tables waving at the camera, wondering how they are going to get

Prisoners pass time with yoga

SEAGOVILLE, Tex. (AP) - When Dan Bernard settles into his yoga position for his daily mantra meditation, he has little reason to worry that he will be disturbed.

Bernard, 32, is serving time at the Federal Correctional Institution here where meditation has become so popular that 321 of the 450 inmates and the associate warden have taken instruction in mantra meditation.

"I have a deep inner peace now and a sense of personal ethics I never had before," said Bernard, in prison on a narcotics violation.

Brian Bunk, a psychologist at the minimum security facility, said the results of a recent survey of 100 inmates who had taken the course indicated they "became more able to live with themselves and the loneliness of prison" because of meditation.

Bunk said mantra meditation involves the continuous repetition of a word in a quiet atmosphere bringing on deep, introspective thought.

But Bunk is quick to point out that the success of the program is that it is taught by inmates, rather than staff personnel or outsiders.

'The resident teachers are how the program began in the first place."

leave," said Bunk, who has been at Seagoville for two years. "There are few situations where an expert is incarcerated.

The expert in Seagoville is Michael Clegg, 37, who said he had practiced meditation for three years before entering prison.

"People in prison are looking for inner peace," Clegg said. "And here there is a tremendous amount of free time available to look for inner

"When I first began the program after getting approval from the psychologists, I was considered a weirdo, but not any more," Clegg

"Now almost everybody wants to be a part," he said. "Even the associate warden has turned into a most beautiful, decent fellow.

Bunk said it's in "vogue" to be inte meditation at the institution.

"I plan to submit a full report on the program to Washington when I have more statistical data," Bunk said.

"I don't think it would work everywhere because most places would have to institute the program through the staff and prisoners are not receptive to staff-run programs,

Ford urged to issue arms talks white paper

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two former government disarmament experts say President Ford should issue white paper to clear up charges that the Soviet Union has engaged in various violations of bilateral strategic weapons agreements. in a letter to Ford, the two said Monday the study of Soviet violations would be "an important step toward reestablishing public confidence inthis country's ability to enhance its security through verifiable arms

Only a week later did he concede on a TV interview panel that 'growing tension" between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R.

U.S. weapons facing pinch

WASHINGTON (AP) - The siphoning of weapons from U.S. military supplies for shipment to Israel and Vietnam has "adversely affected overall U.S. readiness." a secret government report says. The report, on an audit by Congress' General Accounting Office, says hundreds of tanks, 10 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday aircraft, missiles and other weapons were taken 12:00 a m. Saturday for Monday out of U.S. readiness stocks and turned over to Israel after the 1973 Mideast war or were channeled into Vietnam during the closing years 3.00 pm. Thursday for Friday of the Indochina war. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., released an unclassified summary of the report on Monday and other sources filled in numbers and details.

The report says $8.5 billion worth of U.S. military hardware was programmed for Vietnam and Israel between July 1972 and July 1974, the period audited by the GAO.

It says U.S. arms poured into South Vietnam on an emergency basis in August 1971 and June 1972. More arms went to Vietnam starting in October 1972 in a special project aimed at getting weapons into the country before an anticipated cease-fire could halt shipment. It says U.S. units' stocks also were depleted to replenish Israeli arms after the October 1973 war, concluding that the accelerated emergency support to South Vietnam and Israel over the past several years adversely affected overall U.S. readiness.

The report does not say how much of the $8.5

billion in arms came from U.S. units' supplies, but details depletion of several stocks: -Some $314.9 million worth of tanks; helicopters, rifles, trucks, radar and other equipment was diverted from Army reserve unit stocks during the two years. Some $137.2 million worth was in tanks. -As of June 30, 1974, the Army was short 4,943 tanks, 50 per cent below minimum requirements. largely because of the Israel and Vietnam depletion. The Army also was short 1,822 ar-

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa has resigned in the midst of a foreign policy controversy over Mexico's votes in the United Nations against Zionism.

President Luis Echeverria, who sets the policy, named Alfonso Garcia Robles to succeed Rabasa. Garcia Robles has been Mexico's ambassador to the United Nations since 1971, and his delegation cast the votes in the U.N. General Assembly that are responsible for the controversy. Employment statistics draw users' criticism almost immeasurably vast, distorting economic planning, government policy decisions, political strategy, revenue sharing and prospects for the jobless themselves. The statistics have defenders too, but the claims by some critics appear to be so telling that the general could be severely damaged. Strong sentiment exists among some economists for a high-level review of concepts and procedures, and it appears to be growing. Although he defends the figures as sound, Julius Shiskin, the commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is among those seeking a review. He said the matter is now at the White House for consideration. Also seeking a review is Prof. Robert A. Gordon, who headed the most recent study of the job figures the Committee to Appraise Employment and Unemployment Statistics. It was established by President John Kennedy in 1961.

NEW YORK (AP) - Criticism of the government's official employment statistics is growing among the professionals who use them, with some openly claiming the extent of job distress is understated by many hundreds of thousands, even millions.

Gordon, who completed Monday his term as president of the American Economic Association, observes that hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue sharing is distributed on the basis of local job figures that cannot be fully trusted.

Much of the general criticism is centered on interpretations used in formulating the official jobless rate figure, but it extends far beyond that to include the techniques employed and the accuracy of the raw data. The BLS itself notes that in most of thousands of people in temporary government work projects, who would have been counted as jobless a decade ago, were considered employed because of changes in standards, one of which - in 1965 - appears never to have been announced publicly.

1975 more than 1.1 million jobless Americans were excluded from both the labor force and the unemployment figures because they were discouraged and not actively seeking jobs at survey time. In addition, many hundreds of

These factors, and one other definitional change, would have pushed the 9.2 per cent peak of unemployment, reached last May, to near 11 per cent, and November's 8.3 per cent rate close to 10 per cent.

Prof. Charles C. Killingsworth of Michigan State University, an esteemed authority on labor, contends that even some so-called experts are unaware of statistical deficiencies, and thus compound the im-One common mistake, for example, is to attribute a declining jobless rate during the late 1960s to the effect of fiscal and monetary policy, when in fact much of the decline resulted from definitional changes and other fac-One of these factors was a military draft that took 900,000 young men out of the labor force directly, and, says

Killingsworth, "drove thousands between 100,000 and 200,000 at one point - into schools.' Econometric model makers, who construct numerical equations of the economy and how it interacts,. erroneously assumed the changes were caused solely by fiscal-mnetary policy, and thus reached misleading conclusions. Similar errors are being made again today, he said. From a recession low point last March, the work force has expanded by 1.5 million jobs. Even academics and government officials tend to think of these jobs as market-generated.

The fact, says Killingsworth, is that one-third of the improvement has been in work programs supported by federal funds to help provide work for the unemployed during economically difficult times.

"These jobs have nothing to do with economic recovery and expansion, but they are interpreted that way." he

More distortions occur in critics say. Shiskin concedes there have been difficulties with the seasonal factor, designed to remove effects of recurring events, such as Christmas, from the overall trend.

Critics also claim the opularly used jobless rate doesn really measure the full extent of underemployment, which includes those working part-time, temporarily or beneath their skills.

The common theme that unites all critics is that if the jobless figures do not in fact reflect reality, then neither do the very important business and government decisions made with them as the basis.

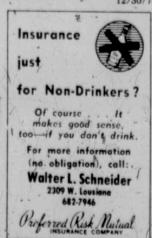

SLA member wins, loses

The Los Angeles Times LOS ANGELES - Symbionese Liberation Army member William Harris' request to act as his own attorney was granted Monday, but his companion motion to be assisted by an "advisory counsel" of his choice was turned down.

After ruling that. Harris could represent himself, Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler appointed Dep. Public Defender Edward Rucker to assist him in preparing a defense against charges of kidnaping, assault and grand theft.

This latter action by Brandler brought immediate objections from both Harris and Rucker.

Thievery along the trans-Alaska pipelien project "staggers the imagination," with one oil company auditor reportedly estimating losses up to $1 billion, according to an internal U.S. Justice Department

The memorandum, a copy of which was obtained by The Los Angeles Times, also declares that Alaska is suffering from "just about every conceivable manifestation of organized crime and-or organized criminal activity

William W. Herrmann, a senior Justice Department organized crime specialist, wrote the memo in support of a request by Alaska officials for federal anticrime assistance.

He said the state is "experiencing rapid growth in a wide variety of organized criminal activities" and added that the potential for "continued rapid escalation" appears

In addition to thievery, his memo reported widespread labor racketeering, prostitution and gambling: fraud, political corruption and an influx of hoodlums from the lower 48 states.

Alaska officials initially asked for $150,000 in federal aid, but Bernard G. Winckoski, regional administrator for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) in Seattle, said the grant now may be increased to as much as $500,000. He indicated that technical assistance and additional funds also might be made available later.

The state plans to use the money to organize an anticrime strike force. Herrmann submitted his memo

Nov. 10, one week before a Times story detailed a threat to the state's stability because of rampant lawlessness, -undermanned police agencies and the stranglehold imposed by a single Teamsters Union

But a top Justice Department official who heads the LEAA's organized crime desk in Washington said the memo came to his attention only after he was alerted by the Times

"It got lost someplace," said James Golden. "Finally, when I saw the article in The Times I got ahold of Bill Herrmann and we got the memo!"

Herrmann provided few specifics in the memo, but indicated his findings resulted from three days of extensive interviews in October with top Alaska officials, including Gov. Jay S. Hammond and Atty. Gen. Avrum M.

"Some of the impressions were reinforced," he wrote, "by previous discussions with law enforcement officers from the states of Arizona, I California and Nevada, as well as federal officers.

Gross indicated general agreement with the tone of Herrmann's memo but said there were "not a whole lot of facts in it.

He added, "I think that gambling in Anchorage, for instance, is probably organized, but I don't think that gambling in Anchorage necessarily is organized by national crime syndicate figures. It's possible, but I don't know that.

Massive thievery along the pipeline, he said, is a "very distinct possibility." He said, however, that authorities are getting no cooperation from the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. in investigating thievery

Alveska is the consortium of eight major oil companies building the Gross also disclosed that he wrote U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi a month ago asking that federal investigators coordinate their efforts with state authorities but has réceived no response.

In his memo. Herrmann said the pipeline project, at the root of most of the state's criminal activity, has given rise to a host of problems:

-Reports of widespread labor racketeering and "associated extortion practices.

-Large-scale prostitution, including "organized traveling stables" from the lower 48 states, especially California and Nevada.

-Well-organized and financed gambling. "It is a known fact that there has been a significant immigration of known gamblers and-or bookmakers, especially from California.

-An influex of pornography and massage parlor figures, and an increase in hard narcotics such as heroin and cocaine.

-Reported widespread evasion of state income taxes. -Reports of political corruption associated with the "perpetration of a variety of fraudulent purchasing andor construction operations! -Reports of thievery along the pipeline project "on a scale that staggers the imagination." Herrmann added, "Losses due to out-and-out theft, fraudulent billings and payments on nonexistent contracts total in the millions of dollars.'

He wrote that one estimate by an auditor for one of the major oil companies involved in building the pipeline but losses as high as $1

Herrmann refused to discuss his memo with The Times, but a source in Alaska said while Herrmann was in the state officials were investigating a fraudulent $800,000 billing in connection with pipeline construction. "This gives you some idea of the scope of the ripoffs," the source said.

Herrmann noted that efforts to combat the rising crime rate would be 'extremely difficult" because of the sheer volume of the thievery combined with the size of the state - the nation's largest - and the "relatively small sizes of law enforcement agencies."

Ten days after he submitted the memo and two days after the story in The Times, Herrmann sent a followup letter to his superiors which stated:

"Enclosed are copies of newspaper articles that appeared in The Los Angeles Times ... They are forwarded because they elaborate upon, and substantiate, the main points covered in the referenced memorandum."

Herrmann is a former chairman of the California Council on Criminal Justice and served 21 years in the Los Angeles Police Department. He retired as a lieutenant. Before joining the Justice Department, he was a senior operations scientist and counterinsurgency specialist at System Development Corp., a Santa Monica, Calif., think tank. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Southern California.

A federal organized crime strike force has been operating in Alaska for at least a year, and The Times reported five weeks ago that evidence of federal law violations soon would be presented to a federal grand jury

However, that evidence reportedly is limited to possible organized crime links to officials of the previous state administration, and a former state

The 798-mile pipeline, which stretches from Prudhoe Bay on the north to Valdez on the south, is half completed. It is expected to carry one-eighth of the nation's oil supply from Alaska's rich North Slope oil

WASHINGTON - Can an Oklahoma conservative who was one of Richard M. Nixon's earliest backers find success in the U.S. Senate by voting in favor of school busing and slashes in the defense budget?

For Henry Bellmon, a muscular bear of a man who lists his profession as "farmer" and looks like one, it's no problem.

Deeply conservative on most issues, Bellmon has been voting consistently in favor of civil rights legislation during his nearly seven years in the Senate, and he voted with the civil rights bloc on all three crucial busing votes earlier this year.

Now, as senior Republican on the new Senate Budget Committee, he has been teaming up with Chairman Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine) and some of the committee's Democrats to cut not only the kinds of federal spending that Republicans usually aim at but defense spen-

EARLIER this year, he stood shoulder to shoulder with Muskie in the successful 48-to-42 effort to force the defense procurement bill back to conference for reductions. He also argued in committee against the target spending ceilings for the Defense Department by nearly $2 billion, although his side lost.

And despite his reputation as a GOP loyalist. a few months ago he stood up on the Senate floor to say that the Ford Administration was putting out misleading budget figures.

Asked how he reconciles his votes for civil rights and moves to cut the defense budget with his conservative image, Bellmon, in an in-terview, laughed and said, "You guys make the mistake of stereotyping people. I always have voted for civil rights ... and I'm still a strong defense man.

But he said the new budget process whereby Congress looks at the entire federal budget and tries to shape it into a unified whole with an overall spending cap - "is not going to be viable if we simply serve as a bookkeeping agency" to put a stamp of approval on whatever the Appropriations Committee votes.

'I'm not just after defense. I'm trying to hold the level of spending down as much as we can." looking to the day when the nation will move toward a balanced budget, said Bellmon, who commands a majority in the Budget Committee on many occasions when three Southern Democrats team up with Republicans.

The usual process, he said, is to strike compromises in which Muskie and other Democrats agree to some curbs on social program and the Republicans come donw a bit on defense. Then, on the floor, the idea is to get all Budget Committee members to back the com-

'Muskie is fair, strong and I believe increasingly interested in fiscal responsibility," said Bellmon. "We both realize that if the budget process is to work we can't be 15 or 16 individuals each going our own way on the floor - we have to work out our differences in com-

A FORMER governor of Oklahoma and one of the state's best vote-getters. Bellmon said he hates to be labeled as liberal or conservative he just doesn't like labels. He has always backed civil rights legislation in the Senate. "I voted for the voting rights act and even the postcard voter registration bill. I want people to have more of a chance to vote.

Explaining his position on civil rights in a state where probusing votes aren't entirely the politically popular position, Bellmon said, "I am totally opposed to having a segregated society, in the long term as well as the short.

He said that in Oklahoma, "As long as there were separate school systems for whites and blacks, they didn't give blacks equal education. "In 1954, all the smaller communities began desegregating. If you go in there now, they'll tell you how bad things are, but if you ask do you want to go back to segregation, they'll say no, we'll work it out. "I don't like to be stereotyped. I don't like to be called a conservative or a liberal, but if I were to try to find a conservative side on busing, I'd come down the same. Conservatives believe in people solving their own problems, getting rid of welfare, finding their own jobs. and blacks can't do that without improving the schools. A lot of people are getting a secondrate education.

Bellmon in 1967 served briefly as national chairman of the Nixon for President Committee before resigning to win a Senate seat in 1968, and was always known as a "Nixon But he says that early association doesn't hurt politically now.

Amarillo company to refund fees

AUSTIN (AP) - Southwestern Public Service Co. of Amarillo said today it will stop passing on to customers the assessment it pays to the Texas Public Utilities Commission and will refund amounts previously collected.

The assessment is one-sixth of one per cent of the company's yearly Texas revenue and is used to finance the new commission.

Earlier this month, the commission said the assessments could not legally be passed on to customers without concurrence of city councils in areas affected. While the agency said it had no authority at the moment to stop such a passthrough, it declared that a consumer would have standing in court to do so.

LaGuardia time bomb kills at least 11

NEW YORK (AP) - An explosion that ripped through a baggage area at LaGuardia Airport and killed at least 11 persons was the city's biggest bomb blast in recent memory, a police bomb expert said today. He said it had the force of about 75 sticks of dynamite

The explosion Monday night sent a deadly shower of metal and glass shrapnel through the baggage area crowded with holiday travelers. More than 50 persons were injured, some

There was no warning and no firm clue who might have planted the bomb in a metal baggage locker. police said. They added that the device was apparently a time bomb and was probably dynamite but that it may have been a plastic explosive.

Originally, police said the blast had the force of 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite. They said it was meant to "maim or Investigators said they were interviewing "a couple" of witnesses and any individuals such as taxi drivers who were in the area.

"As in all of these things, witnesses" accounts vary." a sergeant in the police bomb section said.

Police said they were discounting the significance of a reports that two men in their late teens or early 20s were seen running from the scene minutes before the explosion.

The blast at 6:33 p.m. sent airline passengers and their friends and relatives fleeing the mayhem in panic. The airport was closed down, forcing the cancellation or diversion of at least 45 flights and disrupting the plans of about 5,000 travelers. The earliest it was to be opened was 10 p.m. today.

Investigators searched the debris for even the smallest clue and bent to the task of identifying the dead.

At midmorning, the known dead were: Bymun Patterson, 37, of Stamford, Conn.; Frank Musicaro, 48, of Bayshore, N.Y.; Edythe Bull, 72, Brevard, N.C.; Ronald Presslaff, 32, Long Beach, N.Y., and Donald Kochersperger, 57, Greenwich, Conn.

Reported in serious condition after emergency surgery was Jeff Mc-Murtrey, 30, an FBI agent. The disaster also triggered bogus bomb threats at airports in other major cities. Three, including Washington's National Airport, were evacuated.

"It was the most heart-sickening thing I ever saw in my life," said Richard Siemers, who was about to see his daughter's family off to Tulsa, Okla. "Bodies were all over ... puddles of blood on the island between the building and the parking lot ... it seemed like everyone was in shock."

The explosion set off a smoky fire in the baggage area shared by Trans World and Delta airlines, but officials said that flying glass and metal accounted for most of the deaths and injuries. Metal doors were ripped away and glass from 10-foot high windows was found the equivalent of several city blocks from the blast.

Eight of the injured were seriously hurt and rushed to operating rooms in local hospitals. In addition to the 52 persons reported hurt, another score of persons was treated at the scene or area hospitals but not reported in of-

No call or advance warning preceded the blast, but in the hours that followed, police and news organizations received a number of calls from persons claiming different groups were responsible. These ranged from the Palestine Liberation Organization to Puerto Rican terrorists and a

Hoax bomb threats at airport terminals in Washington, Cleveland and St. Louis forced the evacuation of passengers while police with explosive-sniffing dogs combed the buildings. Other calls were received at airports in Detroit, Denver, Los Angeles, Chicago, Indianapolis and New Haven, Conn.

Lt. Kenneth O'Neill, chief of the police bomb section, said that the blast was "one of the largest ever to go off in New York City" and killed the most people.

The fire started by the blast burned for more than an hour before being brought under control.

TWA employe Nick Douglas said that the explosion "sounded like a bomb blast during the war. Walls were shattered all over and people were running from the building, screaming and crying."

Another airline employe who declined to be identified said he found a head lying on the sidewalk in front of the arrivals buildings, then a foot and the body of a woman whose chest had been blown apart.

Bomb threats disrupted air traffic at seven airports around the country following the blast that ripped through a terminal at LaGuardia Airport in New York

KANSAS POLICE said a caller "who sounded like a 14-year-old boy" telephoned the communications unit at police headquarters Monday night and announced that a bomb was set to go off at Kansas International Airport near the Trans World Airlines opera-

The building was not evacuated because police believed the call to be a hoax. Officers later searched the area, but nothing was found.

A bomb scare closed Washington National Airport for more than an hour Monday night after an anonymous bomb threat.

The Federal Aviation Administration ordered the airport evacuated. A two-hour search with "sniffer dogs". failed to locate any bombs, and the airport was reopened.

DELTA AIR LINES officials at Newark International Airport also received a telephone call from "an Hispanic sounding" man who said there was a bomb planted on the next Delta flight. Airline officials reportedly handled the call as a hoax and did not search the plane. The plane took off as scheduled.

However, officials at Newark airport said security has been increased. Weir Cook Airport in Indianapolis was searched after several telephoned bomb threats were received shortly after the bomb exploded in New York. No bombs were found.

PASSENGERS on a TWA flight bound for Paris from New York experienced a two-hour delay at Logan International Airport in Boston while airport officials checked for a bomb. Index indicates economy level

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government reported today its index of leading economic indicators edged upward in November, offsetting a decline in October and providing evidence that the current leveling off in economic growth will continue for the next few months.

The Commerce Department said the November increase, the first rise in three months, amounted to fourtenths of a per cent, matching a fourtenths of one percent decline in October. The index had slipped onetenth of a per cent in September.

James L. Pate, assistant secretary for economic affairs at the Commerce Department, said the performance of the index should be viewed over a three-month period to interpret its significance.

Over that period, the index dropped less than one-tenth of a per cent. 'I think what it does suggest is it foreshadows a moderation in the rate of overall economic expansion, which most of us have been anticipating."

Midlander to aid in delivering pumps

A Midland man is in Washington, D.C., today in preparation for a trip tonight to northeast India, where he will help supervise the delivery of 10 high-volume submersible pumps to remove the bodies of trapped miners.

W. J. Holbert, division manager of Rowan Drilling-U.S., Midland, will be accompanied on the trip by three mine experts from the Mine Emergency Operations Group of the U.S. Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration.

The pumps were being assembled today by the TRW-R.eta Pump Co. of Bartlesville, Okla., and flown by charter plane from Tulsa to India.

Until today, the Indian government had held out hope that some of the 372 trapped miners might be clinging to life in airpockets in the mine, but India's mining secretary Chandrajit Yaday said there are no such pockets.

The Associated Press reported today that the pumps and technicians, including Midland's Holbert, will be used only to remove the 110 million gallons of water from the mine and enable rescue workers to remove the

Most taxpayers, she said, have taken advantage of the county's graduated scale in allowing discounts' up to 3 per cent on the early payment of taxes - the county operating

After that time span and beginning on July 1, unpaid taxes are entered on the delinquent tax rolls. By then, interest on the taxes will have amount to 71/2 per cent, Mrs. Shuffield said. However, she pointed out, approximately 3 per cent or slightly less of county taxes are unpaid long enough to be entered on the delinquent tax rolls.

U However, to increasingly reduce delinquent taxes, a second taxes-due notice is mailed out in May "to try to prevent as many as possible from going on the delinquent tax rolls,' Mrs. Shuffield said. The first notice was mailed in October, she said. Tax revenue taken in from the 1975 tax rolls will supply the county with nore than half of its 1976 operating budget of slightly under $4 million. Other revenue comes in the form of fees and fines, sales and use taxes, and federal revenue sharing funds. During October, $1.94 million — 82½ per cent —

Party for President may cause trouble for campaign committee

By FRANK CORMIER

VAIL, Colo. (AP) - President Ford, heading home after an eightday skiing holiday, may find his campaign committee embroiled in controversy because of a departureeve party in his honor.

The key question is whether the Monday night party was planned as a social gathering by Ford fund-raiser Sheika Gramshammer or to funnel money into Ford's presidential campaign. Ford, who planned to fly back to Washington today, said he didn't know if Mrs. Gramshammer was raising money for him.

Ford spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford's campaign committee and aides had tried to keep the dinner out of the fundraising category

A Ford aide who declined to be identified said Mrs. Gramshammer was cautioned by the Ford committee to mail cards seeking money from Vail residents only after the party. This source said she apparently misunderstood, sending the cards at the same time as the invitations. Nessen acknowledged Mrs.

Gramshammer had mailed about 100 pledge cards before the dinner. He said cards and invitations were not in the same envelopes but might might have been sent in the same mail. He said Mrs. Gramshammer, a former Las Vegas showgirl, proposed a year ago that she plan a campaign fund-raiser for Ford's visit and that there was a series of communications between the White House, the campaign committee and Mrs. Gramshammer before the party was set. He said Ford agreed to attend if it were not labeled a fund-raiser.

Ford skied during the day with Mrs. Gramshammer. When he was asked by reporters if she was raising money for his campaign, Ford replied, "I don't know anything about it. I've got a lot of friends here.

Mrs. Gramshammer said mailing the pledge cards had nothing to do with the party. Asked about reports from residents that they were being asked to contribute to attend the party, she said, "People can give what they want. There is no force. They can give $10 or whatever. I don't know what they've given.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Queen Elizabeth II will begin a one-week Bicentennial visit of the United States in Philadelphia on July 3.

Recently more and more drivers are turning to CB radios, medium frequency transmitters-receivers, to warn of patolling law enforcement officers, who have been nicknamed

Robinson said the DPS has not yet taken any position on the use of CBs. Pointing to the negative side of the CBs. Robinson said, "Motorists use these things to break the law by speeding in those areas where there are no patrolmen." "On the positive side, we do get reports of accidents and drunk drivers," Robinson said. "That cuts down on the time it takes us to respond to these things. It's a help in that regard." Robinson said the DPS does not own any CB radios and those being used by the officers are their own personal pieces of equipment.

Pork, even though it's very expensive now, is so tasty when properly cooked and accompanied, that even the most budget-minded are tempted to indulge once in awhile.

What tastes better on a nippy autumn day than a lean loin roast done to a crispy, delicate brown and served with a tart apple and potato side dish, or with Johnny Appleseed squares for dessert?

Select a four- to six-pound lean pork roast and have the meat man loosen the back bone by sawing across the rib bones. When the roast is done, the

Q. What do the red and white stripes on the barber's pole represent?

A. In the Middle Ages, surgeons were often confused with barbers. Both had the right to perform operations, but only the barber did bloodletting. It is from this bloodletting that the red and white striped pole of the barber developed-the red standing for the blood and the white for the bandages.

The engineering professor, well-known in Midland, has sounded a realistic economic forecast of what may be expected from a national policy of reduced energy use.

It is frightening, yes, particularly from the standpoint that all too many politically minded national policy makers have refused to consider it.

Dr. McKetta notes that if the nation's growth in energy use is imited to two per cent per year, which is a likely limitation under present policies, the nation's inemployment would become massive within the next 10 years.

He points out further that because Congress has done nothing to assure adequate increasingly dependent on foreign home to the policy makers.

WASHINGTON - The Rockefeller Commission heavily censored a report on Soviet spying, which had been intended to put the KGB under the same spotlight with the CIA.

The commission was given an exhaustive account of Soviet espionage, activities in the United States but boiled down the original detailed draft to three slim pages.

Thus, the final report made the point but left out the substance. The result was to advertise CIA abuses but to cover up even worse KGB the secret sessions, some members fought to include the full story of KGB spying. They contended that the menace of the KGB had triggered the CIA excesses. The details were deleted, however, on the grounds of national security.

Some members also feared the anti-KGB data might make it look as if the commission was trying to justify the

The FBI provided the commission with a comprehensive document, giving names, dates and details of Soviet penetration into the United States. The document told how the KGB pressured Soviet citizens in this country, including newsmen, students and tourists, to serve as part-time

Pain of sure conversion as related by young doctor

WASHINGTON - The Right-to-Life Movement persists, this odd collec tion of people holding the deeply felt conviction that there's a human being in there and it shouldn't be done away with. Despite generalizations peddled by opponents, these people are not all members of the Papal Plot or leftover sign wavers. But, as with any movement, the adherents do need a boost now and then.

Occasionally they get it when, bam, someone walks among them who wasn't recruited, but came because of a personal experience so shaking as to change the mind.

An instance is found in the January Esquire, which, besides sporting a rather fetching cover, contains the vivid report of a young doctor observing his first abortion. He is Richard Selzer, a surgeon at Yale University Hospital.

His own words tell it best. He describes the patient, a Jamaican, lying on the operating table "in that state of noble submissiveness." Dr. Selzer writes:

'The belly mounds gently in the 24th week of pregnancy. The chief surgeon paints it with a sponge soaked in red antiseptic. He covers the area with a sterile sheet, an aperture in its center ... He begins ...

'He inserts the point of a tiny needle at the midline of the lower portion of her abdomen...He in filtrates local anesthetic into the skin where it forms a small white bubble.'

With the promise of no more pain, the patient settles comfortably on the table, and the doctor places a second needle, 3 1-2 inches long, into the site of the previous injection. After quick, sure movements by the surgeon, the uterus is speared. A few more, and "a small geyser of pale yellow fluid erupts. The doctor has found the right place, and Dr. Selzer suddenly sees something. "It is unexpected, utterly unexpected," he writes, "like a disturbance in the earth, a tumultuous jarring ... I see a movement — a small one. But I have seen it. 'And now I see that it is the hub of the needle in the woman's belly that has jerked. First to one side. Then to the other side. Once more it wobbles, is tagged, like a fishing line nibbled by

'Again, and I know! It is the fetus that worries thus. It is the fetus struggling against the needle. Struggling? How can that be? I think: that cannot be. I think: the fetus feels no pain, cannot feel fear, has no activation. It is merely reflex. I point to the needle. It is a reflex, says the

Dr. Selzer then reflects that the 1pound fetus, at 5 months, is 12 inches long, has hair, eyebrows, eyelashes. 'Pale pink nipples show on the chest. Nails are present, at the fingertips, at the toes.

'At the beginning of the sixth month, the fetus can cry, can suck, can make a fist. He kicks, he punches. The mother can feel this, can see this. His eyelids, until now closed, can open. He may look up, down, sideways. His grip is very strong. He could support his weight by holding with one hand.

Dr. Selzer sees movement again and has an impulse to seize the needle and pull it out. But that would be madness because everyone in the room wants it there, though he has changed his mind. He imagines how it is inside the uterus, "bathed in a ruby gleam," where the fetus, resembling a sleeping infant, feels the needle graze its thigh, and then resists the lethal intruder. But the infant will soon be finished off by an injection of prostaglandin.

So Dr. Selzer, seeing his first abortion, reflects on the population problem, and a woman's right to decline childbirth, and the question of unwanted children.

'And yet," he writes, "there is the flick of that needle. I saw it. I saw ... I felt in that room, a pace away, life prodded, life fending off. I saw life avulsed - swept by flood, blackening - then out. The doctor says, there, it is all over, and the woman smiles. "Routine procedure," the chief surgeon says. Dr. Selzer says, all right. But at the end of this extraordinary, sparse narrative, he concludes: Whatever else may be said in abortion's defense, the vision of that other defense will not vanish from my eyes. What I saw I saw as that: a defense, a motion from, an effort away. And it has happened that you cannot reason with me now. For what can language do against the truth of what I saw?'

Dr. Selzer, being young, contemporary and supposedly "with it," will get a torrent of blistering criticism for publishing his eyewitness account. So did New York's Dr. Bernard Nathanson a while back when he wrote, in less specific terms, on how, after being party to 60,000 abortions at a clinic, he suddenly realized these were human lives being taken.

For today, it is secular heresy to describe abortion for what it is, even to discover it without urging. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare doesn't want you to think this way, nor does the Defense Department, or some of those at the State Department who fret over world population. The Planned Parenthood organizations, which prosper from federal grants, don't want people to perceive abortion this way either, and the same is true of the major foundations.

But there is this collection of Protestants, Catholics and Jews, blacks and whites, poor and rich, toilers and intellectuals - a strange lot, indeed - which is against abortion. They are usually described as "conservatives" or inspired by the Roman Catholic Church, but the description is wrong.

They are a mixed bunch. Their numbers include blacks like Dick Gregory and Jesse Jackson, the celebrated Chicano, Cesar Chavez, a sprinkling of congressional liberals, and even a gifted writer like Margo Hentoff of the Village Voice. And, now, joining the ranks, is Dr. Richard Selzer who learned in the most telling Elsewhere. Cincinnati and Alabama, a couple of other Top Ten teams, found that the road was no place to celebrate the winter holidays. Both went down to defeat in a busy night of tournament action Monday.

The Indiana Hoosiers, easy winners over Columbia and Manhattan in the first two rounds of the Holiday Festival in New York, found St. John's to be a considerably tougher city foe in the final. They were never able to pull away and, with five minutes to go, the 15th-ranked Redmen climbed into a 65-65 tie.

Then Scott May, Indiana's American forward and the tourney's Most Valuable Player, took command. He hit a jumper to put the Hoosiers ahead to stay, then added five more points to keep the Redmen at bay as Indiana pulled out a 76-69 victory

May led all scorers with 29 points for Indiana, 9-0.

'St. John's is a heck of a smart team," praised Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "It took a great team effort to beat them-and we got it."

Terps blank Gators

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - A no-name team has put the old familiar name of Maryland back among the royalty of college football.

From the time Jim Tatum collected his ninth consecutive winning season in 1955 with a 73-15-4 log and one national championship until Coach Jerry Claiborne arrived on the scene four years ago, Maryland managed only three winning campaigns, the

The 17th-ranked Terrapins completed their resurgence Monday night with an impressive, near-perfect 13-0 whipping of favored Florida in the rainy Gator Bowl.

They had just enough offense, but essentially they did it with a swarming, relentless defense which apparently took personally some hints in the local media that they weren't a fitting opponent for No. 13 Florida...and rammed the insults down the Gators' throats.

'They said we couldn't win the big game. They said we couldn't beat a Southeastern team. Well, that fired us up and we did it," crowed linebacker Kevin Benson, whose first-period interception at the Florida 44-yard line set up Larry Dick's 19-yard touchdown pass to Kim Hoover.

Mike Sochko accounted for the other points with a conversion and field goals of 20 yards in the second period and 27 yards in the fourth

"I don't know how much the pregame publicity inspired our players, but they wanted to convince people they belonged here-and I think they did it," said Claiborne, who notched his first bowl triumph in five tries as a head coach. "We have a good solid program and we convinced people we can win the big one.

"I don't know what the people in Washington will write about now that we beat a Southeastern Conference team.

Their first victory over an SEC team in 11 tries since 1955 enabled the Terrapins to conclude their best season in two decades with a 9-2-1

In practice sessions during Maryland's week in Florida. Claiborne had labeled his club a bunch of no-names

"Steve Atkins kind of stood out tonight, but we still have no big star," Claiborne said. "But there's a lot of heart on this team. We knew we could play good defense and we had time to prepare for Florida's Wishbone. Our scheme was good against it and our. players were super. The defense was great and the offense moved the ball when it had to

"Atkins ran great, Tim Wilson ran good, the kicking game was solid and we had exceptional coverage on factor was that we didn't turn the ball over to them a single time without a

Atkins, a bruising 225-pound freshman tailback, barreled for 127 yards on 20 carries, all but nine yards coming in the second half.

"That was the big one! That was the big one!" the hard-running rookie hollered in the jubilant Maryland dressing quarters.

While Maryland's aggressive defense-Claiborne is among the last remaining proponents of the old widetackle-six with its six-man line-was keeping Florida pinned down in its own half of the field until the third period, the Gators turned the ball over via three interceptions and a fumble, and also committed several costly penalties.

"Mistakes of execution and concentration will almost always get you beat against a good opponent," said Gator Coach Doug Dickey, who suffered his sixth straight bowl setback. "Maryland has a fine team, very sound and well-balanced.

'We had turnovers and other errors early in the game which put our backs to the wall the remainder of the night.

We played terrible, extremely poor. We tried to get too much done in trying to get ready and we didn't do anything right. Maryland played a perfect game and we have no excuse. The harder we tried, the worse we

No matter what they write in Washington, only 12 miles from Maryland's campus, the Florida media is certain to write- againthat Florida still can't win the big one, a stigma which Maryland finally erased. After all, the Gators have never won an SEC championship and blew a chance to share the 1975 crown by losing to Georgia in this very same stadium late in the season.

The nation's 12th-best running team was outrushed by Maryland 209-182 and outpassed 82-28. And the Gators threw three interceptions-by Benson, Mike Cielensky and Jim Brechbiel- after suffering only five all season.

'We're Gator bait! Ha-ha!" said defensive back Kenny Roy, taking the Florida fans' traditional chant and hurling back one final insult.

After a lull in bowl play today, action picks up Wednesday with the Peach Bowl in Atlanta, pitting North Carolina State against West Virginia. That's the first of five games to be played within a span of 34 hours. Wednesday night, the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans pairs fourth-ranked Alabama against eighth-ranked Penn

The big one, as far as the national title goes, is the Rose Bowl, where Ohio State will seek to duplicate its 41regular-season triumph over a lock on the national crown since second-ranked Texas A&M was beaten by Southern Cal in the Liberty

Despite the big win in the regular season, Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes expects the Bruins to be rough. "They finished the season on the upswing," said Hayes, noting that UCLA won six of its last seven games. 'We know they have an explosive offense and an improved defense.

If UCLA is explosive enough and improved enough to pull off the upset, then Oklahoma could move into the No. 1 ranking by beating Big Ten runnerup Michigan in the Orange

If that's not enough incentive for the Sooners, consider that this will be their first appearance on national television after an enforced two-year absence because of NCAA probation.

What's more, consider that three Big Eight teams have already lost bowl games. "We don't want people saying all Big Eight teams in bowls got beat," says Oklahoma's defensive stalwart, Dewey Selmon. "It makes us want to win this game that much Alabama, meanwhile, is also still nursing national championship dreams. But the Tide will have to snap its eight-year bowl losing string against Penn State to stay alive.

The Cotton and Peach Bowls could both be high-scoring affairs. "Looking at it realistically," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley of the Cotton Bowl matchup with Arkansas. "I think both teams will put a lot of points on the board."

The Peach Bowl reunites the clubs which met in the 1972 game, when N.C. State overpowered West Virginia 49-13. The Mountaineers will be out to reverse that result, with a strong ground game and an improved defense

Texas shakes bowl doldrums

If you were a Texas fan and left in disgust after the first half or if you were a Colorado fan who sat through the bitter end, the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl game Saturday wasn't much of a show.

For a Texas fan who stuck around for the second half, it was a wonderful way to end the season.

Even on the controversial plays in the Dallas-Minnesota game, how one viewed the calls after replays usually depended on who you were rooting

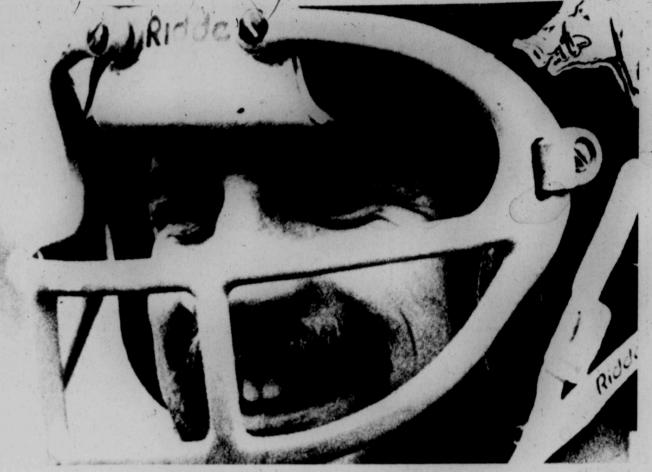

Actually, the present system probably is as good as any. The officials are trained, graded and, if eonsistently incompetent, dismissed.

Coryell also would like to see the rules on offensive holding relaxed in order to promote more scoring for the fans' benefit. However, after watching instant replay, it seems the rules already are pretty lenient. replay, it seems the interpretation of the rules is lenient enough.

Second-string back proves life save for injury-riddled Hogs

DALLAS (AP) - When the season started, Rolland Fuchs was still second-string on the depth charts although the 5 foot-10, 199-pound senior fullback from Kansas City, Mo. had a five-yard per carry career

Fuchs, durable and quick, had a superb spring but there were names like Jerry Eckwood and Ike Forte drawing the top billing. Both Eckwood and Forte owned gamebreaking ability

However, neither proved as durable as Fuchs, who started the Razorbacks' final four games in their drive to the Southwest Conference title.

Alexander arrested

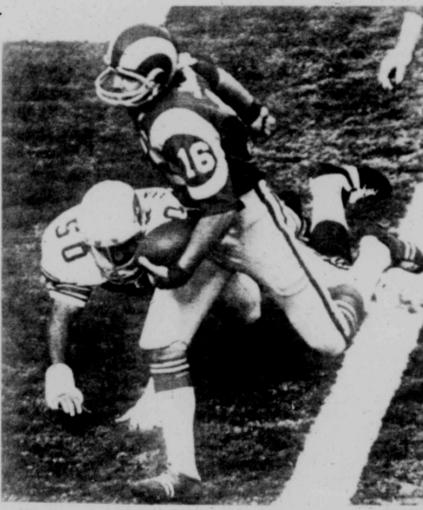

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) - Minor league baseball player Gary Alexander was arrested Monday and charged with marijuana possession and trafficking. He is expected to be deported shortly, the Dominican national police said Monday night

Alexander, 22, who played last year in the Texas League and was one of the leading hitters in the Dominican Winter League, was arrested by Interpol agents at Las Americas International- Airport here upon his arrival from New York Monday

Authorities said they found several ounces of marijuana in his clothing and his luggage. An official police communique said Alexander admitted that he had smoked marijuana for three years.

Alexander, who had been playing with Aguilas del Cibao, led the Dominican League in runs batted in. League officials said he would not be permitted to continue playing baseball because of his arrest. The team had no comment.

Last October, minor league outfielder Bill Valantine, 21, was arrested in his Santo Domingo hotel room and charged with marijuana

Ron Jaworski scores against Cardinals.

It's not like Youngstown

By DWIGHT CHAPIN The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - The most important game that Ron Jaworski played in college at Youngstown State in Ohio was when his team beat Akron, 22-21.

"I passed for the winning touchdown and the two extra points. said Jaworski. "The coach promised us if we won, we'd all get little gold footballs as souvenirs. I still have mine. It's about the size of an egg, and it has the score of the game engraved Ron Jaworski and his teammates all got game balls Saturday, too. Only this time, he wasn't at Youngstown and the opponent wasn't Akron.

He was the starting quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams as they beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 35-23, at the Coliseum and advanced to the NFC championship game next week.

In contrast to his reaction after he helped the Rams beat Pittsburgh last week, Jaworski was almost as calm as a veteran in the locker room Sundown any butterflies Saturday because Ram coach Chuck Knox didn't tell him until three minutes before kickoff he was going to start in place of sore-armed James Harris. On the Rams' opening drive, he

LATER, HE was to hit Harold Jackson on a picture-book, 66-yard

"I knew Harold was open," said Jaworski. "All I had toldo was hit him, Yes, I was worried I might

But he didn't. In fact, the only significant gaff of the day by the Polish Rifle came at the end of the se-'dond quarter.

With 12 seconds remaining, the Rams were at the Cardinals' 15 and seemingly within easy reach of a Tom Dempsey field goal that would have made it 31-9 at the half. But the Rams also were out of time outs and Jaworski threw a swing pass to Lawrence McCutcheon. He couldn't get out of bounds as time ran out.

"It was kinda my fault," said Jaworski. "I should have thrown the ball out of bounds. Instead, I dumped it off 'Clutch' (McCutcheon) and that was it. The field goal there would have been real nice.

But this wasn't a day to quibble. Ron Jaworski, the second-year man, had a very big day. Veteran Ram offensive linemen such as Tom Mack and Joe Scibelli weren't surprised. We work out with both Ronnie and James Harris all week," said Scibelli.

"They're both more than adequate quarterbacks. Whichever one it is, we have confidence in them. Jaworski, certainly, has never lacked confidence in himself - even in the long days of sitting and watching Har-

Which means the owners' sacred reserve clause is up for judgment in court again and that is not necessarily a happy prospect for any group challenging it. Even Marvin Miller, the ultracompetent executive director of the players' committee, must agree that the holy, high-flying reserve clause has been a difficult old bird to have upheld it, as a part of baseball's immunity from antitrust laws. The last time, in 1954, the High Court suggested to petitioners that relief should be sought in Congress, not in the court. In 1972, Curt Flood got slapped down by New York Judge Irving Ben Cooper when he protested the validity of the reserve clause.

By SHIRLEY POVICH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A strong whiff of sugar plums and other good things has probably overtaken the other 958 major league ballplayers now that two of the clan, Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally, have escaped servitude as newly declared free agents ready to exploit the highest bidders.

On the face of it, there are heady prospects for the other 958, able now to dream of fat new contracts for themselves in a new free world of supply and demand and power to the people. They may not all be Catfish Hunters but it isn't easy to kick the memory of the $3.75 million he got.

The 24 clubowners came out of it bloodied, indeed, when the neutral artibrator, Peter Seitz, made his judgment that pitchers Messersmith and McNally were no longer bound to their teams after having served one (year beyond their signed contracts. So much for the owners' preciously guarded reserve clause. After one year, poof!

For several reasons, some of them good ones, the rest of the baseball athletes are not yet entitled to jump for joy at the good things that appear to be on the landscape.

The clubowners have been crafty about the whole business, and their wound may yet be only a superficial one. In anticipation they would lose that round, they filed suit a month before in federal court disputing any authority of Seitz to rule on the reserve clause.

Seitz could rule, they said, on the little things like player travel and other working conditions or even a breached contract, which gained Catfish Hunter his release, but no meddling with baseball's holy reserve clause.

Two U.S. Supreme Court decisions

mittee, is that something can be worked out before the case reaches court, in a Dec. 31 meeting with the clubowners on a list of grievances. The players' director would like to sweep the reserve clause into the whole bag of collective bargaining issues, along with pensions, working conditions, severance and minimum pay, et cetera.

THE PLAYERS are aiming at the dilution of the reserve clause permanency, something on the order of what pro football is living with, the Rozelle rule that permits a player to work out a one-year option and then join a new team of his choice. Compensation to his old team is now required by the Rozelle Rule, but the football players are still fighting that

There is no compromise in the minds of baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and his clubowners, however. Any tampering with their precious reserve clause is repugnant to them and they'd rather take their chances in court once more. Not by accident was Kansas City selected by the owners as the venue of their newest shoot-out over the reserve clause. A leader in the suit to prevent tampering with it is Kansas City's own Ewing Kauffman, owner of the city's American League franchise, and a solid citizen. Ironically, millionaire Kauffman as the man who has lost more money in recent years, approximately $5 million, than any other owner in baseball. He will be counter to any charge that the owners are a scheming lot to whom the reserve clause gives all the best of it. If the players' committee loses on enough points to leave them still grieved, the alternative, of course, would be strike. That would threaten spring training and the start of the season. They tried that once before, a few years ago, with pensions the big issue, and its lingering effects were disastrous.

The strike shortened the whole season, cost the teams dearly, hurt baseball and turned public sympathy from the players. Surging pro football capitalized on the whole thing, moved ahead in the fight for fans, and then in the last two years stupidly got caught up in strikes of its own and fell back into what had been baseball's mess.

Baseball doesn't want to try to live with the one-year reserve ruling to which pro football is pegged. The game's historians still shudder at the memory of the early years when only four or six players were placed on each team's reserve list. There was tampering, and promises of bigger pay by other teams the following year, and high suspicion of dishonesty in the games themselves, before all players were blanketed onto reserve lists after 1900.

Landry defends officials

DALLAS (AP) -Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Monday there were two officials in perfect position to rule Drew Pearson's controversial touchdown catch valid against Minnesota Sunday, adding, "The call looked fine to me. 'One official had an inside position and another had a position from the back within 10 yards of the play," said Landry after viewing the film of Pearson's catch of 50-yard touchdown bomb from quarterback Roger Staubach with 24 seconds left in a 17-14 National Football League playoff victory.

halftime I thought it was really torn up...I started feeling the foot at halftime. Coach Chuck Noll also says Bradshaw will be in there Sunday, and has no fears about the knee problem slowing down the Steelers. "I don't think his injury will have any effect on our offense...The extra day (of rest) will help. But injuries aren't going to change anything." The injury to quarterback James Harris'shoulder changed things for Los Angeles-but not for the worse. Ron Jaworski stepped into the breach and directed Los Angeles to a 35-23 victory over St. Louis. He ran for one touchdown and heaved a 66-yard bomb to Harold

Jackson for another. Still, he may be back on the sidelines when the Dallas Cowboys, 17-14 victors over Minnesota, show up for Sunday's National Conference title

"Harris has earned the right to start," said Rams Coach Chuck Knox. "James would have been in there last week if he could have played. He will start this week if he's ready." But when that will be decided isn't known.

Jaworski didn't know until about two minutes before kickoff that he'd be starting against the Cards. "I practiced all week as if I was going to start," he said, "so I was ready. But if James is able to play Sunday, I'll give him the ball."

The Cowboys got into the NFC final by beating the Vikings on Roger Staubach's incredible 50yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson in the final minute. Pearson said he's worried the heart-stopping way they won will affect the way they play the Rams.

"I just hope we aren't flat when we play Los Angeles," he said. "I know the fans will be talking about this for some time. My telephone keeps ringing and I can't sleep. I keep seeing that ball coming to me in the air. For us to win, we're going to have to put it behind us."

Kuhn worried about Majors

NEW YORK (AP) - Big league baseball could become chaotic and lose its position as a major sport if stripped of the reserve system Commissioner Bowie Kuhn insists.

"The economic consequences to the clubs could be enormous," he told The Associated Press in an interview. "The minor leagues-140 clubs which provided entertainment for 12 million last season-if not erased completely, could be seriously curtailed.

"I think you could expect bankruptcies, sharp retrenchment of franchises and great dissatisfaction among the players themselves as the money gravitates to the top-to the super stars-at the expense of the majority of players."

The interview marked the first time Kuhn had addressed himself fully to the decision by arbitrator Peter Seitz last week, rendering pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally free agents because they had played this year without contracts.

"Our basic players agreement specifies that the reserve clause should not enter into any arbitration of grievances," Kuhn said: "Seitz had no right to rule on an issue of such broad impact on the foundation of the

It is on this point-a flaw in the law-on which baseball is basing its appeal before a federal court in Kansas City. The only other grounds on which an arbitration ruling may be reversed is proven bias on the part of the arbitrator.

Seitz argued that baseball could have solved the problem-had it chosen to do so- without the "adversary atmosphere" of an arbitration board. Comments on the ruling have been varied. Proponents of the baseball establishment have termed Seitz a 'litle man with a Napoleonic com-Kuhn and thebaseball establishment have been pictured as "old fogies with their heads in the sand-reluctant to change."

Some critics have argued that the reserve clause, binding a player to one team unless traded or sold, is not basic to the continuing health of the game, that a compromise between players and owners could be worked out in the new players' labor contract which is now in the process of renegotation.

The three-year agreement ends at midnight Wednesday. A new pact must be reached before spring training of next year or a strike is probable.

"I think the Seitz ruling will make it very difficult now for us to reach an agreement," Kuhn said. "The negotiating machinery suddenly has become unbalanced. In effect, there is no longer a reserve clause to negotiate. The balance of negotiating power has shifted to the players. I fear problems."

The reserve clause has long been a point of controversy in the game, some players contending it reduces them to a form of slavery. It has been challenged in the court's and was twice upheld by the Supreme Courtfirst in 1922 and again 50 years later in the Curt Flood case.

"The Supreme Court must have recognized that the reserve system was too basic to be tampered with lightly," Kuhn said.

The commissioner recalled how the reserve clause had stabilized baseball in its formative years.

"There was no reserve system in the beginning," he said. "From 1871 until 1890, when the reserve clause was put into operation, baseball was helter skelter. Players jumped teams in mid-season. They were moving all over the place. Clubs had no security. Many of them went bankrupt. They defaulted on players' salaries. It was

'But the reserve system brought stability to the game. Clubs were not able to buy pennants and make a farce of the races. The players got paid and were much happier.'

Kuhn, who was an attorney for baseball before succeeding to the commissioner's post, scorns suggestions that he is too quick to cry

"If baseball must give up the reserve clause-or at least the spirit of it-the clubs will find themselves in a severe economic bind," he said.

"We already have seen one team (Seattle) go bankrupt. Two others last year were insolvent and had to be bailed out. A large number operated in the red.'

Kuhn declined to name the clubs which couldn't pay their bills. It has been reported they were the Chicago

White Sox, recently sold to a Bill Veeck group, and the San Francisco

Giants. "It is estimated that $400,000 is: spent on developing a player before he reaches the major leagues," Kuhn said. "They figure an average of three players are brought up each season, making a total of $1.2 million spent annually on development

Kuhn said this is the facet that distinguishes baseball from football and basketball, which draw talent directly from colleges. Football, basketball and hockey operate on a one-year option contract arrangement with compensation provisions when a player leaves one team for another.

The commissioner was asked why baseball couldn't live with a similar arrangement or perhaps a modified agreement giving clubs a five or seven-year lien on a player's services.

'There is always concern that a player may lose his skills or may grow complacent and indifferent.' Kuhn said. "Baseball is dependent for survival on keen competition.'

He recalled a statement by Rep. Emanuel Cellar's House Judiciary Committee, probing the problem in

"There is an overwhelming preponderance of evidence establishing baseball's need for some sort of reserve clause. Experience points to no feasible substitute to protect the integrity of the game and guarantee a comparative even

Proxmire: government high fliers nip taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The world's most exclusive airline is operated by the U.S. Air Force and the American taxpayers keep it running to the tune of $6 million a year, says Sen. William Proxmire. D-Wis.

Proxmire said the Air Force keeps a fleet of 23 plush jets, which cost $66.7 million, on 24-hour call to transport government officials wherever they want to go. He said the fleet of planes is known as the 89th Military Airlift Wing and is stationed at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

WASHINGTON - The United States is entrapping itself in "a no-win situation" in Angola, a senior Republican said Monday, as Ford Administration officials pinned their prime hopes on a diplomatic solution to the African conflict.

Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in a statement that the administration should abandon any involvement in the Angolan civil war except for diplomacy.

"Our strategic interests are best served," said Case, "by leaving the Russians exposed high and dry as the major force intervening in Africa."

The United States is running the risk of "getting bogged down in a war by proxies and mercenaries," Case said, by "trying to superimpose the 'big picture' of American-Russian rela-tions upon a fragmented tribal mosaic."

Administration strategists controlling U.S. policy refused to accept that portion of Case's premise Monday, but they agreed with him that the main thrust of American strategy right now is diplomatic maneuver.

William E. Schaufele Jr., new assistant secretary of state for African affairs, is in Africa now in what amounts to a diplomatic race to line up-support against Soviet strategy in Angola.

The testing time is the next two weeks. On Jan. 8-10, the foreign ministers of the 46-member Organization of African Unity meets in Addis Ababa', Ethiopia; on the Angolan-conflict, followed by an OAU summit meeting of African leaders Jan. 10-12.

Many experts in Africa are forecasting that the OAU meeting will produce formal diplomatic recognition of the Soviet-supported Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) as the legitimate government of Angola.

Schaufele conferred in Zaire on Saturday with President Mobutu Sese Seko, it was reported Monday from Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire. Covert U.S. militarym aid is being channeled primarily through Zaire to the two anti-Communist facitons fighting in Angola, the National Liberation Front of Angola (FNLA) and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA).

From Zaire, Schaufele is scheduled to proceed to Gabon, Cameron, the Ivory Coast and Senegal, and possibly other nations regarded as specially concerned about the Soviet and Cuban intervention in Angola in support of the MPLA.

In addition, the administration is continuing to put diplomatic pressure on countries that have provided, or may provide, air refueling for Cuban troops sent to Angola to help the MPLA. First the island nation of Barbados, and now Guyana, have received U.S. "expressions of conercial flights

"Her mother introduced me to her three other children, but not to Natasha," Miss Brown said.

Natasha was born with hypertelorism, a facial deformity that spaced her eyes about twice the normal distance apart. Doctors said the condition might have developed during the first three months of pregnancy when the mother was taking drugs.

"I've been going to school as a psychology major and I realize that to a child, this sort of thing causes mental damage," said Miss Brown. "If something can be done, it should be done. It's kind of hard to be so young and so rejected," she said.

She received the mother's permission to try to help the girl, whose father also was in jail and who was staying with an aunt.

Miss Brown, who underwent plastic surgery while in prison to correct facial damage sustained in a beating by the man she killed, was rebuffed by social agencies when she sought help for the girl. Finally, a team of doctors at the University of Miami's Mailman Center for Child Development agreed to operate free of

'Natasha had a psychiatric evaluation from my friend and it was obvious that she needs special help academically," said Miss Brown.

She said she contacted state welfare officials and they agreed to investigate the case. Neither the officials nor the aunt, who reportedly cares for 11 other children, could be reached for comment.

"I can't afford a lawyer, but I'm going to fight as hard as I can to get her back, or at least have her placed in a home where she can get proper care," said Miss Brown.

several changes and introduced some new concepts that could benefit the average taxpayer. One of these is the tax credit for the purchase of a new residence, designed to stimulate the sagging housing market.

The resident tax credit can cut as much as $2,000 of the total income tax bite for 1975 or 1976 for a single individual or a married couple. There are some rules to be followed and some precautions to be observed after the house is purchased.

1. The credit on purchase of a new residence is $2,000 or 5 per cent of the purchase price, whichever is smaller. 2. The purchaser must be the first one to occupy the new house, and it must become his principal residence. 3. The purchase price has to be the lowest at which the use was ever offered for sale, and a certificate to the credit is claimed. 4. If the house is purchased., the purchase contract must be entered into before the entered into before the

5. If the house is contructed by the taxpayer, it must be completed before the end of 1976. 6. In both cases, the house had to be under construction or completed on March 26, 1975. "Under construction" does not include preparation of plans or simply grading a lot; but if the excavation for footings was started, the house was under construction. . If the above criteria are met, the date of occupancy determines the year in which the credit can be taken. 8. "House," for qualifying for the tax credit, can also mean a single family dwelling, a duplex, a condominium or co-op housing unit, and a mobile home, as long as they meet the other criteria.

One word of warning. If you purchase or build a house and take the 5 per cent credit, you must keep the house as your principal residence for three years. If you sell it during three years, you may have to pay back all or part of the tax credit, unless you acquire another principal residence that coasts as much as what you got for the one you sold.

Some, of the provisions of the residence tax credit section can be tricky. Before entering into a transaction you think will qualify you for credit, consult your tax adviser.

By JOSEPH P. MASTRANGELO The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A few days before Christmas, people begin to wonder about what they are going to do New Year's Eve. But New Year's Eve was no different than any other night in Mike's Bomber Cafe, owned by Mike Fogarty - who lived upstairs.

It started the same as every day, when along about four o'clock in the afternoon the roofers who populated the place would pull up in their battered trucks and pile in for a few boilermakers - rye whiskey with beer on the side.

There was a bottle on the bar called-Mulligan" for the beer drinkers. "Mulligan" was stale beer and gin, with red hot peppers floating inside. If the unwary drinker watched the men sprinkle "Mulligan" into their beer and followed suit, his eyes would turn bright red and his gums would burn for two days. It was good on

Most bartenders will tell you that New Year's Eve is amateur night, and no decent drinker would be found on that night wearing a paper hat and blowing a little horn.

Somewhere, and at a lot of places, there will be a guy wearing a lampshade and dancing with a broom, and even could be a pro.

My tradition will be to try and avoid the Zombie drinkers. Sit with somethign warm in my stomach watching Guy Lombardo, who, like Bert Parks, is assured of one booking a year. While doing this, I will wave back at all the people sitting at the expensive tables waving at the camera, wondering how they are going to get

Dan Bernard settles into his yoga position for his daily mantra meditation, he has little reason to worry that he will be disturbed.

Bernard, 32, is serving time at the Federal Correctional Institution here where meditation has become so popular that 321 of the 450 inmates and the associate warden have taken instruction in mantra meditation.

"I have a deep inner peace now and a sense of personal ethics I never had before," said Bernard, in prison on a narcotics violation

Brian Bunk, a psychologist at the minimum security facility, said the results of a recent survey of 100 inmates who had taken the course indicated they "became more able to live with themselves and the loneliness of prison" because of meditation.

Bunk said mantra meditation involves the continuous repetition of a word in a quiet atmosphere bringing on deep, introspective thought.

But Bunk is quick to point out that the success of the program is that it is taught by inmates, rather than staff personnel or outsiders.

'The resident teachers are how the program began in the first place,' "It remains to be seen what will leave," said Bunk, who has been at Seagoville for two years. "There are few situations where an expert is incarcerated.

The expert in Seagoville is Michael Clegg, 37, who said he had practiced meditation for three years before entering prison. "People in prison are looking for inner peace," Clegg said. "And here there is a tremendous amount of free time available to look for inner peace.

"When I first began the program after getting approval from the psychologists, I was considered a weirdo, but not any more," Clegg

"Now almost everybody wants to be a part," he said. "Even the associate warden has turned into a most beautiful, decent fellow.

Bunk said it's in "vogue" to be into meditation at the institution.

"I plan to submit a full report on the program to Washington when I have more statistical data," Bunk said.

"I don't think it would work everywhere because most places would have to institute the program through the staff and prisoners are not receptive to staff-run programs,

Employment statistics draw users' criticism

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - Criticism of the government's official employment statistics is growing among the professionals who use them, with some openly claiming the extent of job distress is understated by many hundreds of thousands, even millions.

If true, the consequences are almost immeasurably vast, distorting economic planning, government policy decisions, political strategy, revenue sharing and prospects for the jobless themselves.

The statistics have defenders too. but the claims by some critics appear to be so telling that the general credibility of the monthly figures could be severely damaged.

Strong sentiment exists among some economists for a high-level review of concepts and procedures. and it appears to be growing.

Although he defends the figures as sound, Julius Shiskin, the commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is among those seeking a review. He said the matter is now at the White House for consideration.

Also seeking a review is Prof. Robert A. Gordon, who headed the most recent study of the job figures the Committee to Appraise Employment and Unemployment Statistics. It was established by President John Kennedy in 1961.

Gordon, who completed Monday his term as president of the American Economic Association, observes that hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue sharing is distributed on the basis of local job figures that cannot be fully trusted. Much of the general criticism is centered on interpretations used in formulating the official jobless rate figure, but it extends far beyond that to include the techniques employed and the accuracy of the raw data. The BLS itself notes that in most of

1975 more than 1.1 million jobless Americans were excluded from both the labor force and the unemployment figures because they were discouraged and not actively seeking jobs at survey time. In addition, many hundreds of thousands of people in temporary government work projects, who would have been counted as jobless a decade ago, were considered employed because of changes in standards, one of which - in 1965 - appears never to have been announced publicly. These factors, and one other definitional change, would have pushed the 9.2 per cent peak of unemployment, reached last May, to near 11 per cent, and November's 8.3 per cent rate close to 10 per cent. Prof. Charles C. Killingsworth of Michigan State University, an esteemed authority on labor, contends that even some so-called experts are unaware of statistical deficiencies, and thus compound the im-

One common mistake, for example, is to attribute a declining jobless rate during the late 1960s to the effect of fiscal and monetary policy, when in fact much of the decline resulted from definitional changes and other fac-

One of these factors was a military draft that took 900,000 young men out of the labor force directly, and, says Killingsworth, "drove thousands between 100,000 and 200,000 at one point - into schools."

Econometric model makers, who construct numerical equations of the economy and how it interacts, erroneously assumed the changes were caused solely by fiscal-mnetary policy, and thus reached misleading conclusions.

Similar errors are being made recession low point last March, the work force has expanded by 1.5 million jobs. Even academics and government officials tend to think of these jobs as market-generated.

The fact, says Killingsworth, is that one-third of the improvement has been in work programs supported by federal funds to help provide work for -the unemployed during economically difficult times.

'These jobs have nothing to do with economic recovery and expansion, but they are interpreted that way." he said.

More distortions occur in seasonally adjusting the figures, critics say. Shiskin concedes there have been difficulties with the seasonal factor, designed to remove effects of recurring events, such as Christmas, from the overall trend.

Critics also claim the popularly used jobless rate doesn't really measure the full extent of underemployment, which includes those working part-time, temporarily or beneath their skills.

The common theme that unites all critics is that if the jobless figures do not in fact reflect reality, then neither do the very important business and government decisions made with them as the basis.

LOS ANGELES - Symbionese Liberation Army member William Harris' request to act as his own attorney was granted Monday, but his companion motion to be assisted by an "affivisory counsel" of his choice was turned down.

After ruling that Harris could represent himself. Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler appointed Dep. Public Defender Edward Rucker to assist him in preparing a defense against charges of kidnaping, assault and grand theft.

This latter action by Brandler brought immediate objections from both Harris and Rucker.

Thievery along the trans-Alaska pipelien project "staggers the imagination," with one oil company auditor reportedly estimating losses up to $1 billion, according to an internal U.S. Justice Department memorandum.

The memorandum, a copy of which was obtained by The Los Angeles Times, also declares that Alaska is suffering from "just about every conceivable manifestation of organized crime and-or organized criminal activity.

specialist, wrote the memo in support of a request by Alaska officials for federal anticrime assistance.

He said the state is "experiencing rapid growth in a wide variety of organized criminal activities" and added that the potential for "continued rapid escalation" appears

In addition to thievery, his memo reported widespread labor racketeering, prostitution and gambling, fraud, political corruption and an influx of hoodlums from the lower 48 states. Alaska officials initially asked for $150,000 in federal aid, but Bernard G. Winckoski, regional administrator for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) in Seattle, said the grant now may be increased to as much as $500,000.

He indicated that technical assistance and additional funds also might be made available later.

The state plans to use the money to organize an anticrime strike force.

Herrmann submitted his memo Nov. 10, one week before a Times story detailed a threat to the state's stability because of rampant lawlessness, undermanned police agencies and the stranglehold imposed by a single Teamsters Union

But a top Justice Department official who heads the LEAA's organized crime desk in Washington said the memo came to his attention only after he was alerted by the Times

"It got lost someplace," said James Golden. "Finally, when I saw the article in The Times I got ahold of Bill Herrmann and we got the memo.'

Herrmann provided few specifics in the memo, but indicated his findings resulted from three days of extensive interviews in October with top Alaska officials, including Gov. Jay S. Hammond and Atty. Gen. Avrum M.

"Some of the impressions were reinforced," he wrote, "by previous discussions with law enforcement officers from the states of Arizona, California and Nevada, as well as federal officers.

Gross indicated general agreement with the tone of Herrmann's memo but said there were "not a whole lot of facts in it."

He added, "I think that gambling in Anchorage, for instance, is probably organized, but I don't think that scope of the ripoffs," the source said.

Justice Department organized crime gambling in Anchorage necessarily is organized by national crime syndicate figures. It's possible, but I don't know that.'

Massive thievery along the pipeline, he said, is a "very distinct possibility." He said, however, that authorities are getting no cooperation from the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. in investigating thievery.

Alyeska is the consortium of eight major oil companies building the

Gross also disclosed that he wrote U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi a month ago asking that federal investigators coordinate their efforts with state authorities but has received no response. In his memo, Herrmann said the pipeline project, at the root of most of the state's criminal activity, has given rise to a host of problems: -Reports of widespread labor racketeering and "associated extortion practices.'

-Large-scale prostitution, including "organized traveling stables" from the lower 48 states, especially California and Nevada.

-Well-organized and financed gambling. "It is a known fact that there has been a significant immigration of known gamblers and-or bookmakers, especially from California.

-An influex of pornography and massage parlor figures, and an increase in hard narcotics such as heroin and cocaine: -Reported widespread evasion of state income taxes. -Reports of political corruption associated with the "perpetration of a variety of fraudulent purchasing and-

or construction operations." -Reports of thievery along the pipeline project "on a scale that staggers the imagination.'

Herrmann added, "Losses due to out-and-out theft, fraudulent billings and payments on nonexistent contracts total in the millions of dollars."

He wrote that one estimate by an auditor for one of the major oil companies involved in building the pipeline but losses as high as $1

Herrmann refused to discuss his memo with The Times, but a source in Alaska said while Herrmann was in the state officials were investigating a fraudulent $800,000 billing in connection with pipeline construction,

U.S. recovers tar sands oil

VERNAL, Utah (AP) - About 50 barrels of oil have been recovered after four weeks of burning tar sands underground at a test site five miles west of Vernal. The experiment at the Northwest Asphalt Ridge Tar Sand Deposit is being conducted by petroleum engineers from the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA). The 24 tar sand deposits in Utah are believed to contain nearly 26 billion barrels of oil. The engineers started a fire Nov. 25 at a depth of 295 feet in a site owned by Sohio Petroleum. The fire was ignited while air was injected to the 11foot tar

Air was pumped into six air injection wells. Three production wells are in the center of the site.

The seam of tar sands being used in the test contains an estimated 2,200 barrels of oil.

Success no problem for Bellmon

By SPENCER RICH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Can an Oklahoma conservative who was one of Richard M. Nixon's earliest backers find success in the U.S. Senate by voting in favor of school busing and slashes in the defense budget?

For Henry Bellmon, a muscular bear of a man who lists his profession as "farmer" and looks like one, it's no problem.

Deeply conservative on most issues, Bellmon has been voting consistently in favor of civil rights legislation during his nearly seven years in the Senate, and he voted with the civil rights bloc on all three crucial busing votes earlier this year.

Now, as senior Republican on the new Senate Budget Committee, he has been teaming up with Chairman Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine) and some of the committee's Democrats to cut not only the kinds of federal spending that Republicans usually aim at but defense spen-

EARLIER this year, he stood shoulder to shoulder with Muskie in the successful 48-to-42 effort to force the defense procurement bill back to conference for reductions. He also argued in committee against the target spending ceilings for the Defense Department by nearly $2 billion, although his side lost

And despite his reputation as a GOP loyalist, a few months ago he stood up on the Senate floor to say that the Ford Administration was putting out misleading budget figures.

Asked how he reconciles his votes for civil rights and moves to cut the defense budget with his conservative image, Bellmon, in an interview, laughed and said. "You guys make the mistake of stereotyping peop's. I always have voted for civil rights ... and I'm still a strong defense man.

But he said the new budget process whereby Congress looks at the entire federal budget and tries to shape it into a unified whole with an overall spending cap - "is not going to be viable if we simply serve as a bookkeeping agency" to put a stamp of approval on whatever the Appropriations Committee votes.

'I'm not just after defense. I'm trying to hold the level of spending down as much as we can," looking to the day when the nation will move toward a balanced budget, said Bellmon, who commands a majority in the Budget Committee on many occasions when three Southern Democrats team up with Republicans

The usual process, he said, is to strike com-promises in which Muskie and other Democrats agree to some curbs on social program and the Republicans come donw a bit on defense. Then, on the floor, the idea is to get all Budget Committee members to back the com-

'Muskie is fair, strong and I believe increasingly interested in fiscal responsibility," said Bellmon. "We both realize that if the budget process is to work we can't be 15 or 16 individuals each going our own way on the floor

A FORMER governor of Oklahoma and one of the state's best vote-getters. Bellmon said he hates to be labeled as liberal or conservative he just doesn't like labels. He has always backed civil rights legislation in the Senate. "I voted for the voting rights act and even the postcard voter registration bill., I want people to have more of a chance to vote."

Explaining his position on civil rights in a state where probusing votes aren't entirely the politically popular position, Bellmon said, "I am totally opposed to having a segregated society, in the long term as well as the short.' He said that in Oklahoma, "As long as there were separate school systems for whites and blacks, they didn't give blacks equal education. 'In 1954, all the smaller communities began desegregating. If you go in there now, they'll tell you how bad things are, but if you ask do you want to go back to segregation, they'll say

'I don't like to be stereotyped. I don't like to be called a conservative or a liberal, but if I were to try to ind a conservative side on busing. I'd come down the same. Conservatives believes in people solving their own problems, getting rid of welfare, finding their own jobs, and blacks can't do that without improving the schools. A lot of people are getting a second-

Bellmon in 1967 served briefly as national chairman of the Nixon for President Committee before resigning to win a Senate seat in 1968, and was always known as a "Nixon Man." But he says that early association doesn't hurt politically now.

Eisenhowers visiting Peking

TOKYO (AP) - David and Julie Eisenhower have left for a visit to Peking. The couple, invited by Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai, boarded an Iran Airlines jetliner here Sunday night for the flight to China.

The invitation was extended to the grandson of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the daughter of former President Richard M. Nixon when Nixon visited China in 1972.

Time to honor 2 women

ment isn't reached.

NEW YORK (AP) — Time Magazine, which usually selects a "Man of the Year," this year is honoring 12 women as women of the year.

Betty Ford, tennis star Billie Jean King and Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso are on the list. Also named were Carla Hills, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development; Texas Congresswoman Barbara Jordan; Susie Sharp, chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court; Jill Ker Conway, Smith College president; Alison Cheek, assistant priest at St.

Stephen and the Incarnation in Washington. Also named Sunday were Carol Sutton, managing editor of the Louisville, Ky., Courier Journal; Kathleen Byerly, a navy lieutenant commander based in San Diego; author Susan Brownmiller; and Addie Wyatt, women's affairs director of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's union.

Dave Beck frustrated at events

SEATTLE (AP) -Dave Beck, patriarch of the Teamsters and still a speaker at some union functions, says he wonders as much as anybody what has happened to Jimmy Hoffa.

"I can't possibly understand why Hoffa was killed," says Beck, who expresses no doubt that the man who succeeded him in 1957 as head of the International Teamsters Union has been killed. "In my opinion, there is going to be some lapse of time before there is a clear-indication of why.

He adds that Hoffa, who went to jail in 1967. three years after Beck got out of prison, "is one of the greatest organizers in the history of the labor movement ... But outside of that, I don't know a thing about Jimmy. I never was close to him socially.

AT 81, BECK lives quietly here, but travels about the country to speak, without fee, at labor union functions, at colleges, and at Teamsters affairs. He's been out of jail 11 years, and he seldom discusses the 21/2 years he spent in prison. His speeches deal with economic issues and the labor movement in general, but he'll defend the Teamsters in fiery language when challenged.

"I keep out of the internal affairs of the Teamsters Union entirely," he said in an interview. But he punched and pointed and swung at the air in front of him during the interview in replying to a question about charges of Mafia links with the Teamsters, at least in the matter of union loans in central and southern states.

"I DON'T give a damn what loan they've made," he says, his face red. "... Every one of those damn loans has been passed upon by a committee consisting of three Teamsters and three employers. Now why in hell aren't they finding out why the employers voted that money?"

He doesn't discuss Hoffa in his speeches, but in the interview he said he supported Frank Fitzsimmons, current Teamsters president, when Hoffa challenged Fitzsimmons' leadership.

"I think Fitzsimmons has done an excellent job and has great ability," Beck said. He added that he had told Hoffa, before Hoffa's disappearance in July, that he opposed Hoffa's bid to replace Fitzsimmons because Hoffa had retired voluntarily, had handpicked Fitzsimmons as his successor, and had received a cash settlement

BECK, INTERNATIONAL president of the Teamsters from 1952 to 1957, lives with his wife, Helen, in a traditionally elegant Seattle apartment building, the kind with glass front doors, period furniture in the lobby, and richly carpeted

By his own estimate. Beck is worth more than $2 million, mostly from private real estate enterprises that go back to his union days. He also draws a $50,000 a year Teamsters pension, acquired when he resigned as president in 1957, two years before he was convicted in a federal court of filing fraudulent union income tax returns.

He was also convicted of evading his own income taxes, but this conviction was thrown out on appeal.

BECK'S DOWNFALL had begun in the spring of 1957 when the U.S. Senate Rackets Committee accused him of 52 instances of misusing his position. At his trial, a government prosecutor said, "He swelled the coffers of the union, but over a million dollars stuck to his avaricious hands." During his presidency, the Teamsters grew rapidly, from 180,000 to more than 500,000 members.

Beck served the income tax sentence at McNeil Island Penitentiary near Tacoma, and also a concurrent sentence for a state grand larceny conviction - the theft of $1,900 from the sale of a union-owned Cadillac. After his parole on Dec. 11, 1964, at the age of 70, Beck said, "I'd only penalize myself by getting bitter. But, I swear on my dead mother's memory, and may she go straight from heaven to hell if I'm lying. I never did the things I was sent away for.

HIS ONLY child, Dave Beck Jr., almost went to jail, too, after being convicted in 1957 of pocketing $4,650 from the sale of two other union-owned cars. But he was fined and further sentencing was deferred. One of the conditions was that the young man sever all connections with labor organizations. Today he manages a ranch which he and his father own north of Seat-

Beck was granted a pardon in 1965 for the state conviction, and President Ford gave him a full pardon last May for the tax conviction. The White House gave no reason for granting the par-

"About all it does is allow me to vote again," Beck said. "But I am glad because it's good to have it all back of me now and it's a good thing for my family.

NOT ALL of it is behind him. In 1971, Beck was ordered by a U.S. Tax Court judge to pay $1.3 million in back taxes and penalties for 1943-54 and 1958-61. He says he's paid $600,000 of that judgment so far in yearly installments. But he disputes the ruling and says he'll take the government back to court if a negotiated settle-

THE ENERGY BILL

A LOOK AT THE ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION ACT OF 1975 BY THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF MIDLAND-LARGEST BANK IN THE PERMIAN BASIN AND LEADER IN FINANCING FOR THE OIL & GAS INDUSTRY.

The energy policy act, recently signed into law by President Ford, will undoubtedly have an adverse effect on the Permian Basin; an area which produces one-fourth of all domestic crude oil. Although this act is deplorable, we feel that our local economy will remain strong.

There have arisen, since the signing of this "Energy Bill", many mistaken and overly pessimistic opinions regarding the impact of the bill on the oil business. We were deeply involved in the fight to defeat this legislation and would like to share the knowledge gained as a result of our efforts.

The crude oil pricing section of the act impacts on us more than other sections. What will happen to crude oil prices? The following comments reflect our interpretation of the pricing section and are guided by discussions with key officials of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA)

- 1. Initially, the actual weighted average price for all crude oil produced in the United States shall not exceed $7.66 per barrel.
- 2. The price for "old crude oil production", initially, shall not be permitted to increase, and eventually, can only increase if certain findings are made by the President and approved by Congress.

- 3. "Old crude oil production" from a property is redefined as the lesser of actual production in the same month during, 1972, or actual production in September, October, and November, 1975, divided by three (3). This feature provides an INCENTIVE to increase production from old leases which have declined in capacity since 1972, but it does not reclassify "new oil", as previously defined, to "old oil".
- 4. the actual weighted average price for all crude oil, $7.66 per barrel initially, may be increased beginning in March, 1976, by:
- a. an amount equal to inflation as measured by the "adjusted GNP deflator; and
- b. a production incentive of not more than 3 per centum per anum; but the combined increase shall not exceed 10 per centum per anum (compounded annually) unless subsequently modified.
- 5. Crude oil production currently realizing "released status" will continue to receive the "new oil" price however, there will not be any "new released oil" after February 1, 1976.
- 6. New FEA regulations defining "the rules" for pricing should be available within about two weeks.
- 7. Based upon conversations with FEA officials, it appears that, initially a. "new crude oil production" will realize approximately $11.28 per barrel.

b. "stripper oil production" will realize approximately $11.28 per barrel.

- c. "old crude oil production" will realize approximately $5.25 per barrel adjusted for gravity.
- 8. Price controls are positively imposed until June 1, 1979, (40 months from February 1, 1976), become discretionary at that time, and expire at midnight on September 30, 1981.

THE ABOVE COMMENTS RELATE TO KEY CRUDE OIL PRICING PROVISIONS OF "THE ENERGY BILL" AS WE UN-DERSTAND THEM. THERE ARE UN-CERTAINTIES INVOLVED FORECASTING HOW THE FEA WILL AD-MINISTER THIS ACT COMPARED TO ITS SPECIFIC LANGUAGE; THEREFORE, CONCLUSIONS, ALTHOUGH BELIEVED TO BE GENERALLY AC-CURATE, MUST BE TREATED AS TEN-TATIVE. PLANS ARE PROGRESSING TOWARD A FORUM FOR DISCUSSION OF "THE NEW RULES OF THE GAME" TO BE HELD IN MIDLAND AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. IN THE INTERIM, WE HOPE OUR COMMENTS HAVE ALLEVIATED MISCONCEPTIONS AND PROVIDED YOU WITH EARLY INSIGHT AS THE 1976 "SEASON" BEGINS.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF MIDLAND LOOKS FORWARD TO A PROSPEROUS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR FOR EVERYONE IN THE PERMIAN BASIN

DESPITE
