LOVERS QUARREL; 18 YEAR OLD BOY KILLS 15 AND 13 YEAR OLD GIRLS—SHOOT HIMSELF THROUGH HEAD

In a lovers quarrel over an imitation ruby ring in the Sunset community near Lockney, Houston Upton of that community, age 18, shot and killed, while they were sleeping at 4 A. M. Monday, Gladys Solomon, age 15 and Nell Umberston, age 13. Vera Wilson, who was sleeping in the same bed told the following story:

Last night Houston walked home with Gladys from the B. Y. P. U. at the school house. Nell and I walked several hundred yards behind them. It is a mile from the school house to Mrs. Mattie Umberston's home. When we got there Gladys was crying and Houston had left.

"We all went to bed together and during the night we were awakened by Gladys begging, 'Houston, don't do that.' We screamed and called Mr. Smith, Mrs. Umberston's father but he laughed at us and told us we were dreaming. We went back to sleep and I was next awakened by shots. The Umberston boys ran into the room as Houston jumped from the window and ran. The girls died before we could do anything for them."

Another Brick Filling Station For Lubbock

Now, what's next? and before the question is half way under discussion in comes A. W. Allen, of Wichita Falls, a real full-of-pep and ginger West Texan and announces that his contribution to the development of Lubbock will be a twenty thousand dollar filling station, to be located on the northeast side of the square, the location now occupied by the East Side Garage.

Mr. Allen plans to make this one of the most attractive buildings of its kind in West Texas. The brick work will be made of enamel brick, the roof will be tile, and the driveway will be covered with the same material as the other building, with beautiful fixtures, etc., commonly seen in filling stations of the cities.

Four modern gasoline pumps, together with attractive and convenient oil containers will be in reach of the automobiles from the driveway, which will add greatly to the appearance of the place, and we are sure there are many Lubbock people who will appreciate the new business to the extent of patronizing it for its progressiveness.

Mr. Allen is a live wire and we are sure the people of Lubbock are the winners wherein Wichita Falls loses one of its good businessmen.

PROSPECTS POINT TO WET SPELL FOR THE PLAINS

Monday morning the first thing the range rangers noted after awakening from the night's repose was the refreshing breeze that was blowing, and a closer look about discovered that the weather man had decreed that we should receive a little moisture, and low clouds, swept by the cloud winds, dampened the earth with its mists, which grew heavier as the day advanced, and at this writing, Thursday 3:25 p. m., it is going to rain, and the mist continues to be blown about in greater amounts indicating in every way that the Plains are about to get one of the best soakings of the season.

We are ready.

FARMERS ARE KILLING PRAIRIE DOGS OFF FARMS

Geo. Robertson was here Saturday from his farm eleven miles south of town. He said he was going to work hard on the plan of exterminating prairie dogs on his place, as he believes they are about the most disastrous workers on the Plains farms. We were mighty glad to know he is making such efforts in cleaning Lubbock county of those pests, and are in hopes his neighbors will assist in this work.

AUTOMOBILE DEALERS HAVE ORDERS AHEAD OF CARS

The Lub-Tex Motor Company is demonstrating that its cars are in demand, as at this time three customers are waiting the delivery of suspension spring Overlands, which will arrive in Lubbock next week, the company having ordered a car of them several days ago.

The Manager, F. N. Payne, has made splendid arrangements to care for his business, the salesroom having been recently rebuilt, is as modern and beautiful as they are made, the automobiles making a better appearance among the well decorated walls, pot plant and shrubbery.

Lubbock is coming to the front in a hurry, and the business men realize that their time to grow up has come.

Moral: Better keep up with Lubbock while the going is good.

Carl Ward, of Sulphur Springs, was here Saturday transacting business. Mr. Ward is a booster of that country, and we are glad to have him become acquainted with the Lubbock country.

O. W. Alexander, traveling salesman of Denton, was operated on in a local sanitarium Wednesday.

BUSINESS GOOD IN THIS VICINITY LUBBOCK CONTINUES TO GROW

Boy Scout Work Discussed at Meeting Friday P. M.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts was conducted at the Baptist Church Friday night and the problems of the present organization were discussed. Rev. W. A. Bowen, Scout Master, had as his guest at the meeting, Mr. Daniel, wire chief of the local telephone company, who assisted with the meeting. It was agreed by those present that the needs of a strong Scout organization in Lubbock are keenly felt at this time, and the demand for close cooperation between the leaders and the boys will be realized as the days of the coming spring advance.

Lubbock is large enough at this time to support a really live and up-and-doing organization of scouts and we are sure that with the cooperation of leaders of the various civic organizations Rev. Bowen will be able to get a better line up on the work throughout the coming spring and summer. Mr. Daniel has been interested in the wireless researches of several local boys, and his interest and knowledge of their needs caused Rev. Bowen to call him in on this special meeting, and we are sure that through their united efforts something will be done in the near future toward concretizing the organization in Lubbock, and making it one of the really big channels for good so far as advancing the boy's interests are concerned.

Boast, back and boom the Lubbock scouts, and we are sure the work will meet with approval and applause from every youngster in Lubbock.

Will Erect Another New Brick Building on Avenue I

Plans are being made for the erection of a brick building back of the Conley's Dry Goods store, and opposite the Western Windmill Company, on I Avenue.

Geo. W. Pickle is the instigator of this progressive move, and plans to have the building constructed in the near future. He is a typical Lubbockite, and when a thing is started by him it is usually put over in grand style, and we are sure that when this building is completed it will be a credit to the entire citizenship of Lubbock.

"Town's don't happen, they are built," to quote the local chamber of commerce scribe, and Mr. Pickle is certainly there when it comes to adding his part to the building.

MRS. TERRELL TO MERIT TO BE WITH SISTER

Mrs. W. C. Terrell left Sunday for Merit, Hunt County, Texas, to be at the bedside of her sister, Mrs. Johnson who is very ill at her home there.

Mrs. Russell, another sister of Yoakum County, passed through Lubbock Sunday evening enroute to Merit.

Mrs. Terrell was attending the Sunday School day exercises at the Methodist church when the message was delivered, and left immediately for Merit.

Mrs. Terrell is well known here, has been very active in the work of her church, and her many friends hope an immediate recovery of her sister, and anxiously await her return to Lubbock.

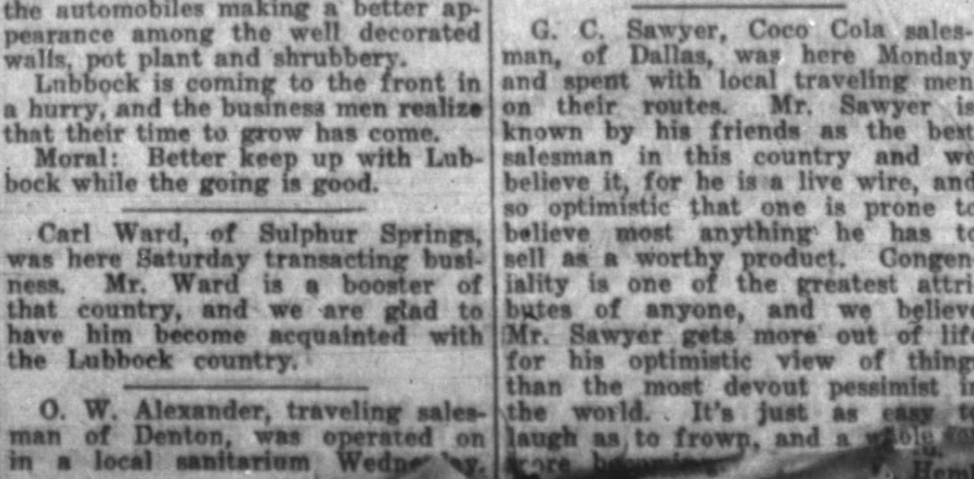

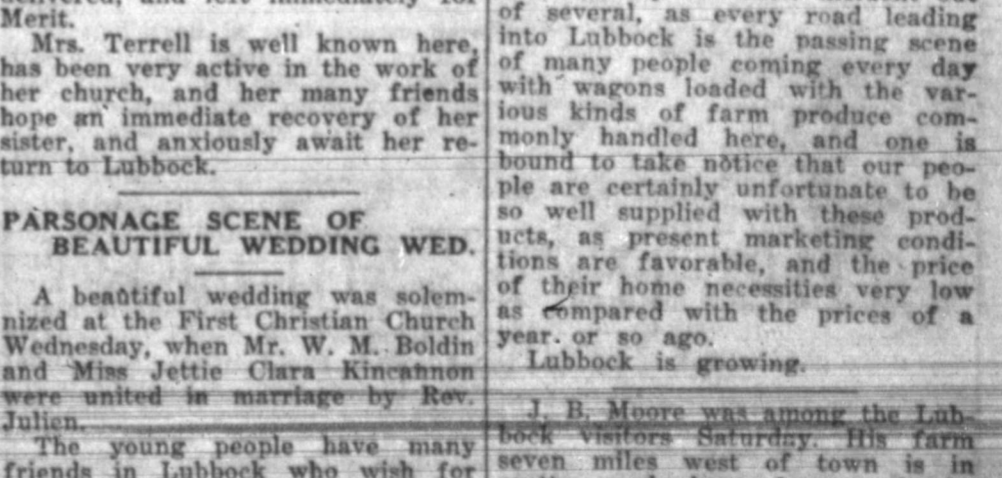

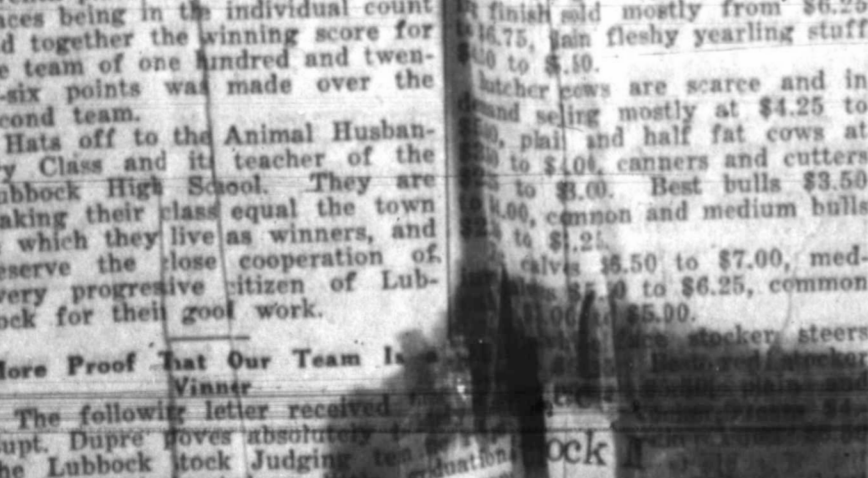

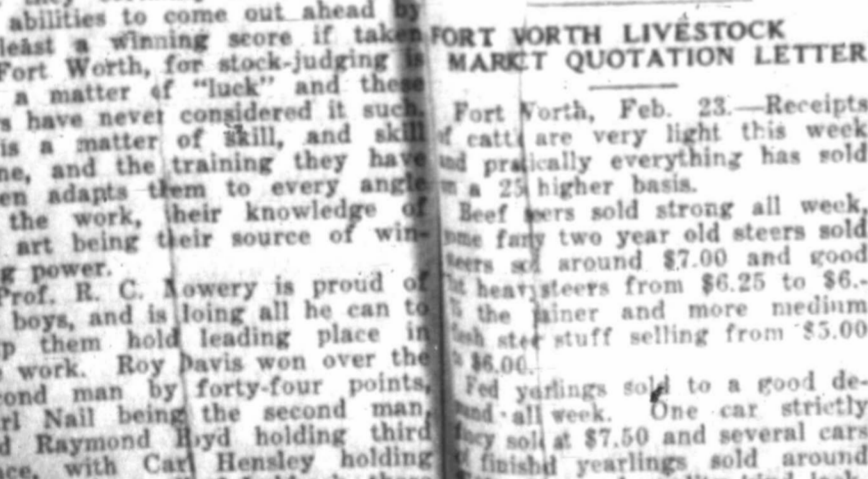

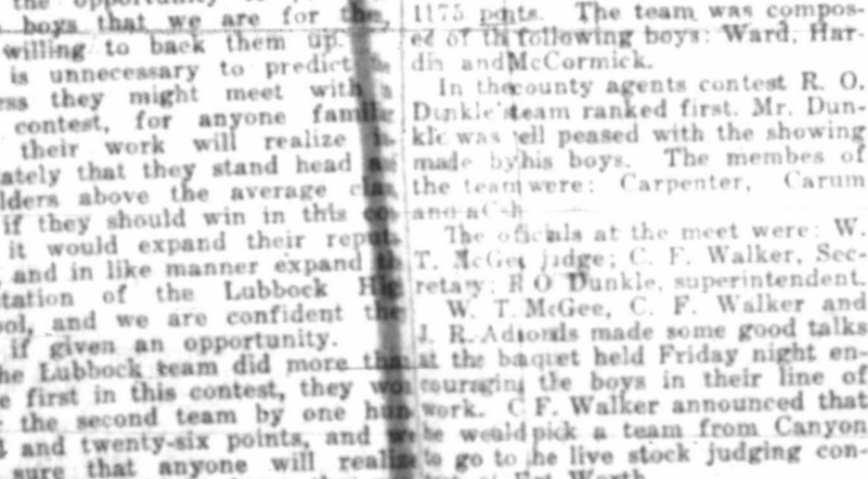

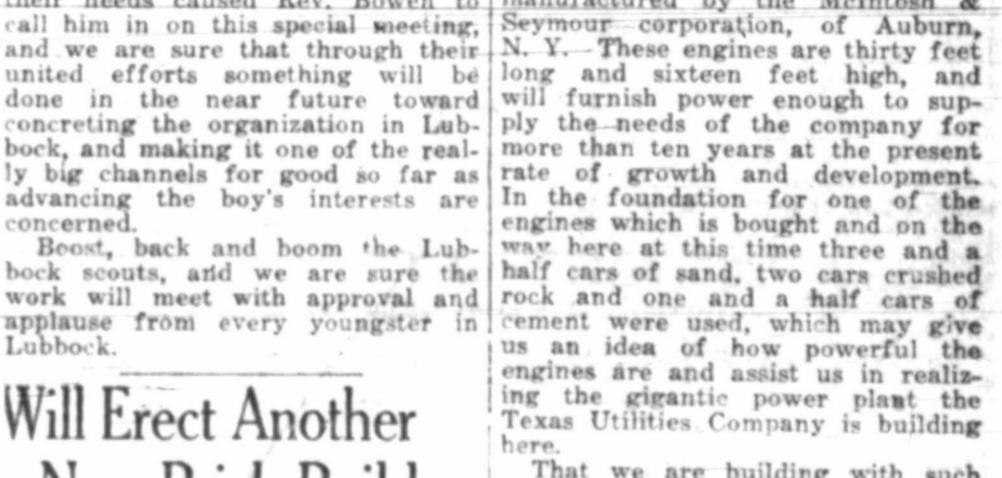

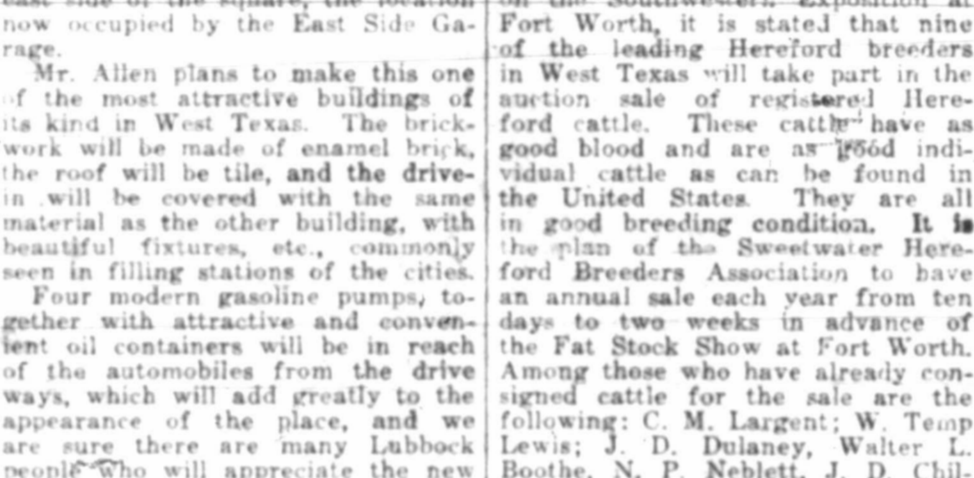

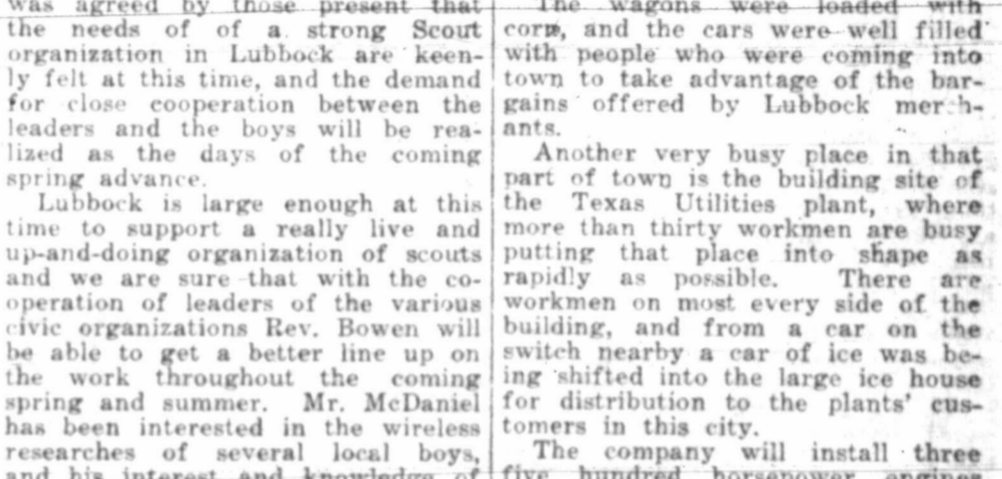

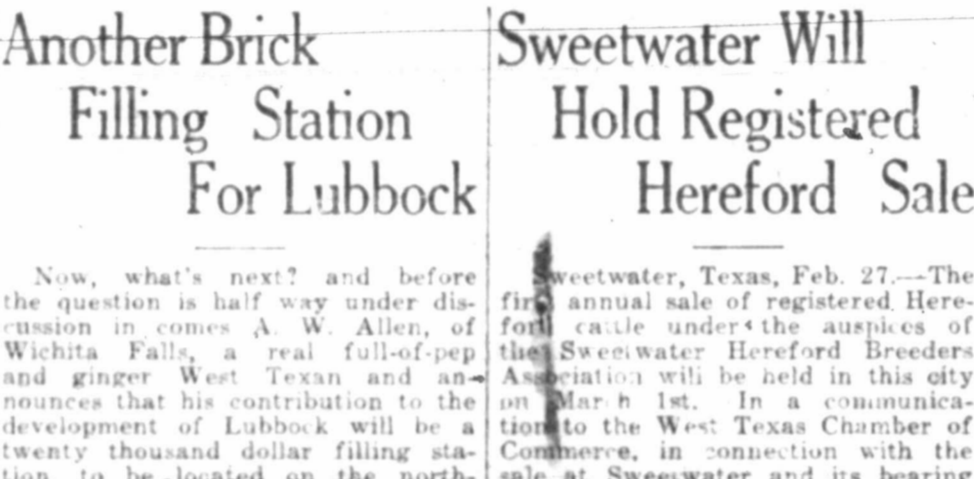

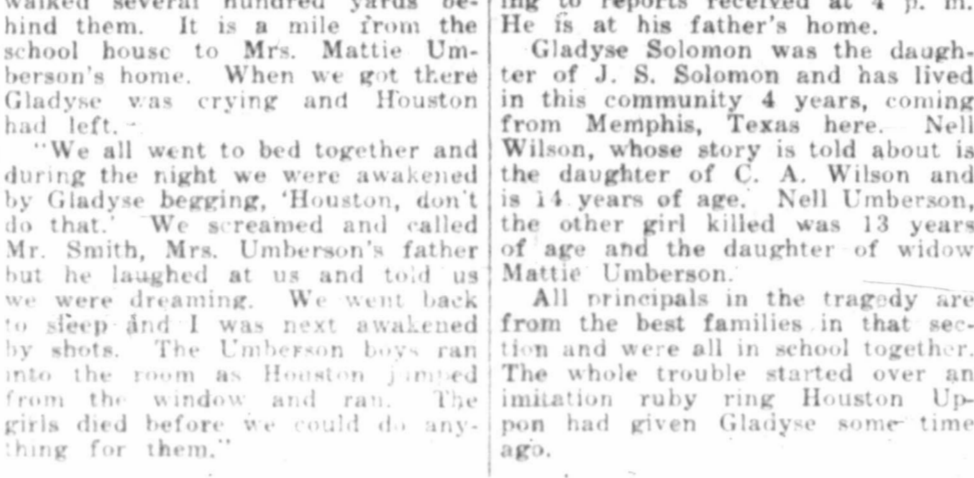

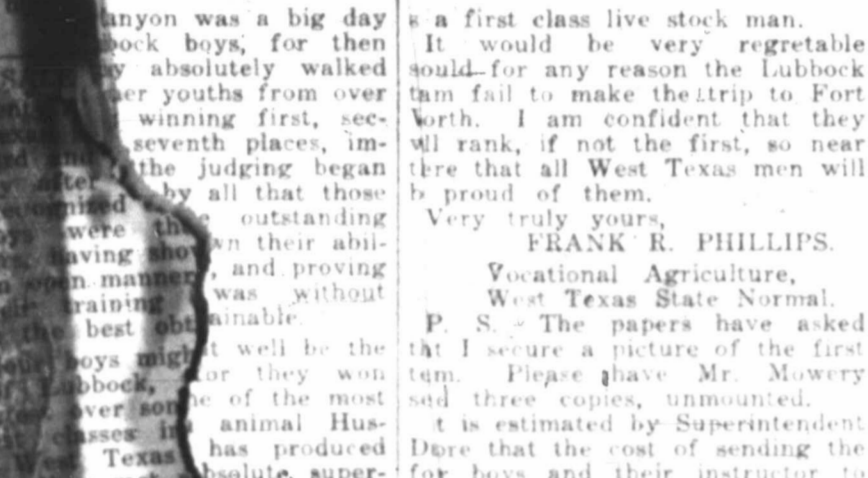

PARSONAGE SCENE OF BEAUTIFUL WEDDING

A beautiful wedding was solemnized at the First Christian Church Wednesday, when Mr. W. M. Boldin and Miss Jettie Clara Kincaid were united in marriage by Rev. Julian.

The young people have many friends in Lubbock who wish for them all the success and happiness possible.

M. S. Goodpasture was here Saturday from his fine farm six miles west of town. Mr. Goodpasture is one of the really big farmers of the great South Plains, and has unlimited confidence in Lubbock county as the leading farming section of West Texas.

A Judd and wife returned to Lubbock Sunday where they were joined by Mr. J. W. Judd, who is to be married to Miss J. W. Judd.

JUST TO GIVE YOU AN IDEA WHAT THE AVERAGE EDITOR HAS TO CONTEND WITH DAILY

The country editor knows very well that the average man is exceedingly careless, and that the majority of people are slipshod in their mental habits and working methods. The copy turned into newspapers by many well educated men and women is amazing. If editors printed verbatim the literature that is furnished the community would be shocked, and the perpetrators laughed to scorn. Of course careless individuals blame all errors on the newspapers. That is an easy way out, almost invariably employed, for all sins of omission and commission. It is quite fashionable for the general public to adopt the attitude that the newspapers make blunders just for the fun of it.

Once a physician in our town wrote a resume of health conditions for publication in the Clarion. The obvious errors in the copy were corrected, but there were whole words and sentences, written in a Horace Greeley hand, which nobody could make head nor tail of. A proof was sent to the worthy M. D., with the request that he make the necessary corrections. He marked one or two inconsequential slips, and said the rest was just right. Of course everybody laughed over the ridiculous hodge-podge when it appeared in print, and the author was unmercifully grieved. Did it disturb him? Perhaps, but he cleared his skirts by the old, old expedient of blaming "those fool proof-readers."

Another thing I have learned about human nature is how few people know anything "dead sure." It is astonishing how difficult it is to extract exact information on the most commonplace and familiar matters even from people who should know the facts as well as they know their names. Such an experience makes one realize the inestimable value of knowing a thing, and knowing why one knows it. For instance, a prominent business man dies. It would seem very easy to get all the particulars of his career. But is it? Indeed not, else there would not be so many preposterous errors and half-truths and distorted facts in the papers. Ask anybody anything about something which happened no longer ago than day before yesterday, and you will get widely different versions, and rarely the correct one. A newspaper worker who has to ferret out facts soon begins to believe that the general run of people don't talk half as much as they are supposed to do, or if they do talk nobody listens. Most persons are apparently more interested in themselves than anybody else, and have wonderfully short memories.

Long experience as editor has taught me that thrift and long-headedness are virtues not entirely extinct. One of our oldest subscribers comes to the office every six months to pay for his subscription. "I don't pay long ahead," he carefully explains each time, "for at my age I'm liable to drop off any time, and then I wouldn't get what I'd paid for." This individual has been doing this for over fifteen years, and is still going strong and singing the same tune. Another wealthy subscriber, as he grew older, paid only three months in advance, and then actually timed his decease so that he actually shuffled off this mortal coil less than a week before another payment was due.

One of our readers who died left heirs who were thrift personified. Shortly after his death the executor of the estate ordered the Clarion stopped. "No use sending it any longer," he explained. "Of course Mr. Blake is not interested in it any more. I guess he don't read where he is now!"

On the other hand we have a well-to-do farmer who sends his check for twenty dollars every little while because "he likes to keep ahead." When he has paid too far in advance, he sends with his check a list of names of friends to whom he wishes the paper sent, with his compliments. He does this, too, as though it gave him the keenest pleasure and probably it does.

I have also learned that it is difficult to flatter people. It is amazing how much flattery and how many compliments, whether deserved or not, especially when they are not, the average individual will digest. In dealing with almost any type of man or woman, it is perfectly safe to put on all the "taffy" conscience will permit. I have never yet had fault found because I piled it on too thick—unless it was from the fellow who wasn't so treated. Then the sugar-coating is considered in rather bad taste—till he gets a dose!

It is astonishing, too, how few people practice the art of saying "thank you." It reflects great credit upon the majority of human beings that magnanimity and kindness and the doing of favors are so much accepted as a matter of course. We are so used to having our fellows kind and thoughtful and helpful that it seldom occurs to us to say "thank you." Of course most persons are grateful and appreciative—only they seldom remember to say so. Expressions of appreciation made to me directly are still so rare—though I hear them in a round-about way—that they are almost a novelty. When occasionally some choice soul comes out in the open and thanks me for something I have written or done, I am invariably so surprised that I am rendered speechless. One of the rare and most sincere expressions I ever received was when a young woman, with tears in her eyes, referring to an obituary I had written, said feelingly: "You certainly did a good job for my brother, and you told the truth about him and

I thank you for it and for him. said it nicer than anyone else could.

Yet, while individuals are so chary about expressing appreciation, they act quite differently when you say something they don't like. Trip up on any statement, or make the slightest error, and you hear of it directly and indirectly from a hundred different sources, with a hundred different expressions of disgust. If editors did not learn to take these things as part of the day's work, they would soon grow weary of the world.

And the women! They certainly make life interesting for the editor. . . . The grave and the gray tread on each other's heels in the newspaper sanctum. In comes a lady, who informs me, without any preliminaries that "when anything mean appears in your paper, we will know who wrote it." What do you mean? she cries, wrathfully, "my saying my brother died from natural causes?—We didn't kill him!" "Well, what was the cause of his death?" I ask mildly. "I was told he died of natural causes. Didn't he?" "No, he didn't," she snaps, "he died of heart failure, and you can stop my paper."

Then comes a man who is a bit unsteady on his feet and thick of speech. "I want to advertise," he announces. "Advertise what?" I ask politely. He seems to have trouble in recalling what it is he wants to tell the world and he hesitates and stutters. Finally it comes out. "I want to tell everybody to get out of my way," he elucidates. Careful probing into this mysterious assertion at length discloses that he simply doesn't intend to pay any more of his wife's bills!

I once wrote of one poor soul that he had died of tuberculosis. Afterward his widow came in to say she wanted the statement corrected. "John died of consumption, and Dr. Green will tell you so," she said. Though I tried to explain that tuberculosis and consumption were practically the same thing, she remained unconvinced and insisted that the correction be made.

A club woman came to the office one day to buy a paper containing the account of the club's guest night. The Clarion was just off the press, and in her eagerness she started to read it in my presence. When she had finished her face was a study. "Why," she explained in disgust, "you never mentioned that I introduced the speaker." "Why, no," was my astonished reply, "as you are the club's president I thought it would be understood." "Well," continued the irate lady, "I think it was horrid of you to say so much about the speaker and never mentioned me. I don't want the Clarion after all," and she tossed down the paper and recaptured the five cents she would have squandered on it.

An old gentleman, full of talk, who was a frequent visitor at the office, once took the wind out of my sails completely. He happened to speak of his daughter, and I innocently remarked that I didn't know he had a daughter. "Why, yes," answered the old gentleman, expansively, "I have one girl. She's most as old as you be! She's forty-five!" As at that time I was under thirty and thought I looked even younger, my feelings may be imagined.

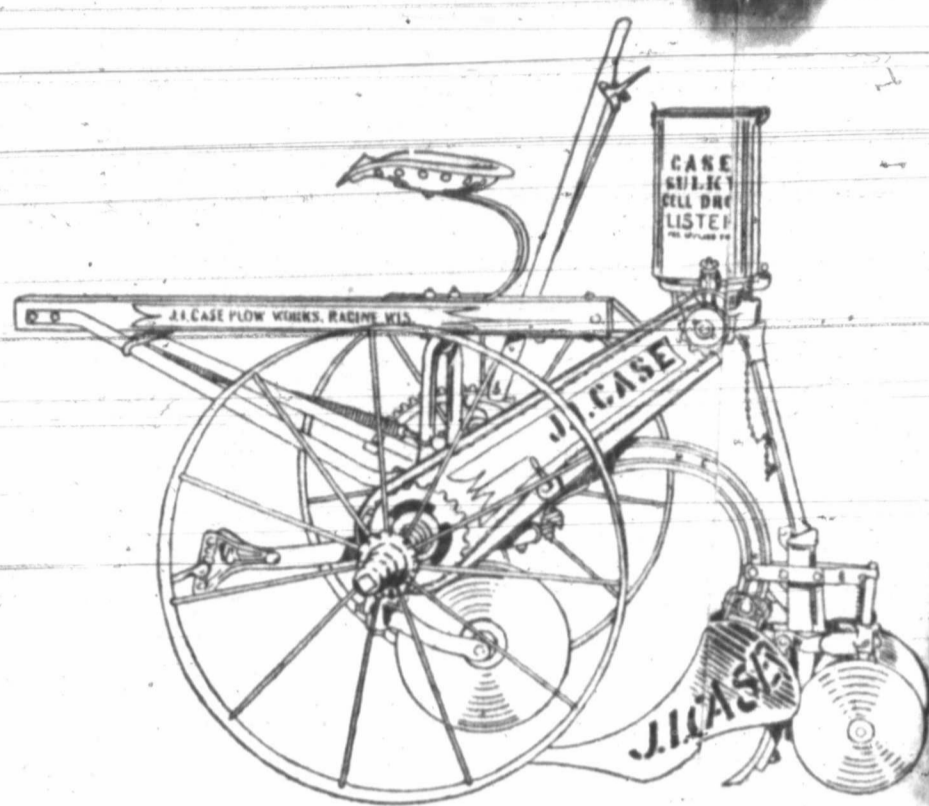

People besiege the office every day with pathetic appeals to keep names out of the paper. Especially if they have run afoul of the laws do they suddenly remember that the editor is a dear friend. I have been offered all sorts of sums, from twenty-five cents up to keep discreet silence about some matter. And the times when the average editor puts the best face on an unpleasant occurrence, out of pure goodness of heart and appreciation of the weakness of human nature, or because of sympathy for the sinner, or for those who love him—well, nobody knows but the editor himself, and he doesn't tell. In my own case the flowers that bloom in spring do not appear more regularly than does an immense cake of maple sugar, which is sent me by a rare old soul who takes this way of expressing his appreciation of my belief that silence is sometimes golden, even for a newspaper. His only son once discredited his old father. The editor knew of the incident, and the boy's father knew that she knew, but she kept quiet—hence the maple sugar.

The things I have cited are but a few of the lighter matters of every day occurrence in the editor's life. Things of this kind make the editor love his fellow creatures, and make him have much in common with them. The country editor laments and weeps with those who weep and rejoices with those who rejoice, and if he occasionally laughs in his sleeve or in print over frailty and foolishness, it is often because "a fellow feeling makes one wondrous kind."—(Miss) Antonia J. Stemple, Editor Clarion, Turner Falls, Massachusetts.

PARENTS AS EDUCATORS

The Significance of Child Education.

By Ellen Creelman

There is no question in the minds of intelligent persons regarding the deep significance of education during the first six years of life. To be fully appreciated however, this period must be considered in the light of its relation to the sum total of all education.

In the first place, as life is a continuous process, so education should be a continuous guiding of life to its highest fulfillment.

The various stages of life,—infancy, childhood, youth and manhood, should merge naturally into one another.

The goal of the entire process of education is good character, realized through the acquisition of good habits, and it may readily be seen that this fact should be kept in mind by every educator of the infant, child or youth. The educator must also bear in mind the fact that the foundation of education is laid in infancy and childhood.

Physiologists and psychologists agree that many of the physical weaknesses and harmful mental habits of late years may be traced to faulty guidance in childhood.

During childhood a fund of resistance, physical and mental, should be acquired through observance of the laws governing development. In order, however, that these laws be observed in the nursery, they must be understood by the parent, and that they be understood, they must be as systematically taught as other subjects of education.

An educator recently made the following statement: "My brother and his wife are both University graduates. When the first baby came to their home, neither of them knew anything about the care of it, physically or mentally." The speaker went on to say: "It is incredible that students should be permitted to graduate from our higher institutions of learning without any knowledge of one of the most important subjects of education—the care of the child."

Observation of young mothers at their task reveals the fact that many of them do not realize that their work calls for special preparation, and frequently the crowning joy of parenthood, true satisfaction, is missed. But sadder still is the fate of the small pupil, who, commencing life with an impulse to realize his inborn possibilities, is handicapped not only by his own short-sightedness, but also by the faulty guidance of one who loves him but does not understand him; one who cannot discriminate between the natural and the strengthened, and those that should be eliminated.

Until the fact is recognized that the first six years of life comprise the most important period of all education, a heavy burden will continue to be placed upon the efforts of the pupil both at home and in the school.

Every High School graduate should be permitted to graduate from our higher institutions of learning without any knowledge of one of the most important subjects of education—the care of the child.

TOO SHOCKING FOR THE LADY; SHE RESIGNS

"Too shocking for a lady," says Miss Sabino Deany, police woman of Boston, so she resigned. Miss Delaney has caused a sensation in that town by making formal statements. She positively refuses to make women by honor for the police, and I refuse to make men commit crime with women for the sake of evidence. I said in a statement that the police kept girls in vice and that she had to quit the force to retain her self respect. She makes several charges against the forces of that city, asserting the forced her to buy liquor at kitchen bars, hotels and consorts with unfortunate women to obtain criminal evidence. She further charges the police are not interested in reforming women and all they want to do is to arrest them, they want to stimulate crime and not prevent it. The method forced crime is enough to disgust any decent woman, she said.

Persistency of the Hen Makes Her Not Famous

Some time ago when the argument was going the rounds of the country press as to whether a cackling hen had "laid" or "lain," with all the scribes offering their solutions to the problems in profusely illustrated columns, a "jink" from somewhere in the corner of the sticks, butted in with the statement that it was of little concern to him which way to express it, but fessed up that he was also aroused at every announcement of old biddy but in a different way, his question being whether she had "laid" or "lied," and owing to the fact that the original advertisers have been so true to their custom of never cackling until there was something to cackle about the poor editor was soon forgotten, and his criticism was of little value, yet the hens kept on cackling at the completion of every task, and we all believe their announcement true, and more than once has the housewife arranged the evening menu on the strength of these announcements without taking a trip to the poultry barn to confirm biddys report, and now since we think about it we believe about the same thing is being done by patrons of persistent advertisers, both in groceries and ready-to-wear garments, for the average housewife knows that the firm which advertises incessantly usually does what it claims in the advertising, and buys her household goods and wearing apparel accordingly. Moral: Advertise incessantly.

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM THE ABERNATHY REVIEW

Eleanor Struve entertained her class last Saturday night. They played forty-two and the best player at each table received a valentine. The winners were Gertrude Fuchs and Milford Oliver at one table and Hazel Muggleton and Rudolph Fuchs at the other. Those present were: Gertrude Fuchs, Irene and Jessie Ruth Day, Hilda, Grabel and Hazel Muggleton; Harlowe Neis, Rudolph Fuchs, Milford Oliver and Cecil Watson. Refreshments consisting of chocolate and cake were served. As each guest departed they received another beautiful valentine. Everyone reported a splendid time. Mr. and Mrs. R. Schroeter entertained a few friends last Sunday at one o'clock dinner, at their home in the southwestern part of town. Those who enjoyed the hospitality were: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McKinzie, Lamar McKinzie, Miss Lois and Edna McKinzie, Prof. and Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. F. W. Struve, Miss Hilda Braudt and the editor. The dinner was served in two courses which was enjoyed by every one present. Mrs. Schroeter entertained her guests in a way that made everyone feel at home and all voted her a delightful entertainer. Abernathy won out with the second foot ball team of the school over Hale Center, where the game was played last Saturday between the two teams. It was easy picking for the home team, and when the smoke of battle cleared away there showed a score of 36 in favor of Abernathy over the Hale Center team with only 14 to their credit. Lewis Wisberly returned this week from Fort Worth, where he has been for the past few days on business. A. H. Hooper, representing the Essex and Buick Motor Car Company from Plainview, was in town Monday in the interest of his company. He made a sale of a fix passenger Essex to Herman Sholz. Five or six wagons loaded with threshed maize were in town from Shallowater last Monday which were sold to the local elevators at a good price. The farmers of that country have come to believe in the Abernathy market and the owners of this grain stated that they find the buyers here always ready to pay a better price for all kinds of grain than anywhere else in the country. The farmers from Shallowater, Littlefield, Olton and many other places on the Plains, bring their grain here, sell it to the buyers and load out with supplies, and claim they get better prices from our merchants than they can get anywhere else. Mrs. Ola Legg was in Plainview Saturday on business in connection with her candidacy for the office of county school superintendent of Hale county. "Have faith in the future of your town." WHY SHOULD THE GOVERNMENT PAY INTEREST
The Farm and Ranch, quoting M. Ford, on the government borrowing and paying interest, says, it would make it much easier for the government to issue currency and would cost to tax payers less. Mr. Ford asks: "Why should the government borrow money, the value of which is guaranteed, and pay the money lenders interest when it could issue interest bearing currency to pay for internal improvements and retire it much quicker?"

On the Farm and Ranch goes on and says, "Inasmuch as the resources of the government are behind all currency issued just as they are behind its bonds or forms of security, M. Ford question seems to be pertinent and to the point. While we do not pose as an authority on finance but with our present understanding we see no reason why Ford's idea is not a good one. We do not advocate issuing an unlimited amount of currency, nor do we believe the government could transact business with foreign nations with this kind of money, so long as the world is on a gold basis it seems to us, when our government promises to pay, when printed on any kind of paper that is just as good as if they were engraved in a bond bearing one or five per cent interest. This time the government is not in any change of position, it is not necessary to turn the eggs twice a day, and the turning should be done at 2 hours apart as possible. The turning of the 18th day, and the turning for the last 24 hours, should be done at 2 hours apart as possible. OFFICIALS VISIT LUBBOCK COUNTY SCHOOLS
County Superintendent, E. R. and County Board of Trustees, have been making a tour of the schools over Lubbock county. They found that under the conditions caused by the increase of population in Lubbock county, the schools are progressing nicely. While the school is fast day in present school, the school shows perfect and latest facilities, and the little egg shows are all that our people like to see. of the Chamber of Commerce last Thursday, when the subject of more brick buildings were brought up at the meeting. We have faith in our town. It was discussed from various angles and all agreed that Abernathy needed such improvements, and its greatest need at the present, was a first class modern hotel. Every member present agreed that it was needed to take care of the strangers that daily visit the town, but how to get it was the question. How to get it financed was the problem. Money is hard to get, but the Chamber of Commerce agreed to do its bit toward accomplishing this purpose. After a thorough discussion of the subject one of the town's progressive citizens made the remark that nothing could be accomplished without an effort and that he would head a list with $5,000 to put up two or more brick buildings, including a modern hotel, and that this offer stood good for that much stock in a company formed for that purpose. If three or four more of our people would come forward with the same proposition to take this amount of stock, Abernathy would soon see a building boom started that would make the people of the town forget that hard times ever existed. Have faith in your town. One of the most enjoyable occasions of the season was the class social given by the Marthian Class to their husbands and the officers and teachers of the Sunday School at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Castles, Friday evening, February 17. Each guest came dressed as far out of date as possible and they ranged from 1776 to 1922. The evening was spent in playing old time games and contests. The prizes for being dressed farthest out of date was won by Mr. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. R. E. Rinsinger as they were dressed as George and Martha Washington. The guests expressed themselves as having a most enjoyable time. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Holland, Evans, Miller, Hunt, Pool, Stratton, Rinsinger, Winn, Reed, Bettis, Stone, Hardesty, Crow, and Mrs. Olga Legg and Ora Brown. There will be an all-day conference of representatives from all the Baptist churches of the Panhandle and Plains district, for the purpose of planning the work for the Spring and Summer work. Among other distinguished speakers, will be Dr. Truett of Dallas, Dr. Scarborough, of Fort Worth, and Dr. Graves. They are anticipating a profitable meeting. Miss Boyd, demonstrator for the Velvetina line of toilet goods, held a demonstration at the Pison, drug store last Saturday with a large crowd of the Abernathy ladies present. This is a fine line of goods and Mr. Pison has put in this line where it can be found at any time. Herman Schulz, manager of the Schulz Land Co., informs us that he has had many inquiries about Abernathy and its country, all in answer to the literature he has had printed and is sending out broadcast throughout the north and east. Mr. Schulz says he is answering these letters as fast as he can get to them, and believes that such advertising as these booklets he is sending out will be the means of many prospectors visiting the Abernathy country this spring and summer. Mr. McDonald, brother of Miss Bettie Jane McDonald, one of the teachers in the Abernathy school, was here Saturday and Sunday visiting his sister. Mr. McDonald is with the Benard & Co. paper house of St. Louis. A very nice shower of rail fell in Abernathy and vicinity Tuesday night, accompanied with a light hail. At one time it looked as though we were going to have a general rain, but it cleared away with only a light shower, however, enough to wet the top of the ground which will help out some. Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Goodman spent a few days in Amarillo last week visiting with their friends. While playing with her little sister and their pet dog last Saturday evening, the little two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Neis was struck in the left eye which will prove, as the doctors think, very serious, if not the loss of the eye. It seemed the two sisters were playing with a tin can and their dog, when the older sister threw the can and striking the younger one in the eye, causing the accident. Mr. Neis carried the little daughter to Lubbock Sunday to have her eye examined by the specialist, who pronounced the vision entirely destroyed, and no hope for it to ever be restored. J. W. Hembree, general family in Plainview. He will remain here to finish up his collections and assessing work before returning to Plainview. Mrs. Welcome Ragland was hostess at a forty-two party last Friday night at her home on North Main Street. Only a few of her special friends were invited, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. On March 20 and 21, the International Harvester Company will hold a two days Farmers Short Course for the farmers in Lubbock. The course will consist of lectures on topics of interest to the farmers, and these lectures will be illustrated with the moving pictures, lantern slides and charts. Every effort will be made to make this two days big days for Lubbock and the South Plains country. The Christian meeting held by Eld. Reynolds at the school house, which began last Thursday night, came to a close Sunday. The meeting was well attended by the citizens of the town and members of other denominations as well as by members of his church. He preached some able sermons during the meeting, and no doubt everyone that heard him was greatly benefitted by them. Miss Willie Pearson and her nephew Howard Pearson, were visitors to Lubbock last Wednesday. Miss Idaho Ellis came up Tuesday from her home in Lubbock to attend a valentine party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Arnett. She returned home Wednesday accompanied by Miss Kate Arnett, who will visit with her for a few days. Prof. Horn principal in the Lane school who has been in

FUNDAMENTALS OF MUSIC

The con W. P. Florence well that proceeding I wish to say cordily of pieces are not directed mental many person or place but ods. Theled to advocate principles and world, for which I have long tors pri but am the son of one and ture thasen delighted with a study ity woud natural laws of music and petratome experience and a lot of course ation as church chorister. I errors the time is opportune for v—discussions because I see an awakening interest in popular singing in our county for which I have long desired. The only personal or local phase in the mother is that I strongly desire my own community and church to not fall behind in this movement.

There are two ways of learning to sing. One is by hearing and the other by sight. The one who sings by ear must first hear the music, either on an instrument or played by himself or others or hear it sung by others before he gets any idea of how it sounds. The one who sings by sight gets the musical ideas by seeing the notes without need of instrument or other person. The sight singer must of course have some knowledge of tone language. Therefore the sight singer sings with a joy and understanding that is impossible with the one who sings only by hearing. Sight singing is therefore more spiritual than singing by ear. The churches then should encourage the knowledge and practice of sight singing instead of having all their songs learned by ear from singing evangelists and from instruments. Since singing by sight is not generally taught in the public schools there should be more singing schools and the singing schools should teach more note reading than they generally do. And that brings the subject of what kind of notes to teach and use.

Now notes are only characters to convey to the mind the tone ideas which constitute the music and of course the notes that convey these ideas with least expense to the singer are the best notes to use. Music is the production in succession, and combination according to the laws of rhythm and harmony the members of a closely and clearly related family of tones. There are only seven members of this tone family though five of them may have substitutes called chromatics.

By using the fundamental or father tone at the beginning and end of the series we have what is called the scale, or octave; though strictly, the term octave means the difference in pitch between the extremes in the scale. Much has been said about the origin of the scale, but my theory is that mass was created with sensibilities tuned to fit just that arrangement of tones that constitute our scale and chords. It remained only for science to figure out just the mathematical relations between the tones in this family that had delighted the ears of man many centuries before science discovered them.

All sound is made by vibrations against the auditory nerve generally conveyed there by the air from a vibrating body. If the vibrations are regular, the same member per each second and frequent enough to blend into one sound the sound is a tone as the vibrations increase in frequency the tone rises in shrillness and that characteristic is called its pitch. The difference between the pitch of tones is called their intervals.

I believe the first interval ever recognized was the octave. It is the natural difference between man's and woman's voices and is so perfect that when two tones forming an octave are heard it appears to be one tone. The frequency of the upper tone in an octave is found to be always just twice that of the lower. These two tones that constitute an octave may be considered the father and mother of the tone family and the interval between them naturally divided into seven intervals the tones of which constitute our diatonic scale. Since father and mother are always one, this family is said to consist of seven tones. Many different ways of warning the individuals of this family have been used but the best and most generally used now is as follows named in order of their rise in pitch: do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, ti, do. This is the musical alphabet and we call it the do re mi's. Their relations are so natural to the singer that sings by note that when he hears any designated number of the scale he can in a moment produce any other member. The simplest way to get a picture of this tone family is to stretch a string tight enough to make a clear tone and then put a bridge where it will make re, counting the whole string as do. Then move the bridge to where it will make mi, then to where it makes fa, and so on for sol, la, ti and upper do, which last note you will find to be made with exactly one-half of the whole string. By drawing cross lines at the points where these notes were made you will see the musical scale. You can measure and find that re took 8-9 of the string that do took and made 9-8 as many vibrations and that mi took 9-10 of the string that re took and made 10-9 as many vibrations and that fa took 15-16 of the string that mi took and made 16-15 as many vibrations and so on until it is found that the scale tone have the following intervals: do 9-8, re 10-9, mi 16-15, fa 9-8, sol 10-9, la 9-8, 16-15 do. When these seven interval ratios are multiplied the product is 2 which is the octave. This graph will look like a ladder having short steps between mi and fa and between ti and do. Hence, the names, half steps and steps. Sometimes, for a change foreign tones are introduced where the steps occur and these are called chromatics because once they were shown by colors.

You will see these intervals are uneven, even when the five steps are divided into half steps making a scale of 12 half steps and the keys of an instrument would not fit in different scale keys. So the scientist decided to arrange the scale into 12 equal intervals each interval ratio being the 12th root of two. This is the tempered scale and varies so little from the natural scale the average ear cannot detect the difference. Now all we need to know practically is that from do to re is two half steps, from re to mi two half steps, mi to fa one-half step, fa to sol two half steps, sol to la two half steps, la to ti two half steps, ti to do one-half step.

From one key on a piano to an adjoining key black or white is a half step. Therefore it is easy to run the scale from any key as the fundamental. Now the tones of a major chord have the ratios of 4:5:6 and those of a minor chord are 10:12:15. But all we need to know is that a triad with four half steps in the lower interval and three half steps in the upper is a major chord and that if we drop the middle tone a half step making three in the lower and four in the upper interval we have a minor chord which arouses quite a different feeling.

The major chords are do, re, mi, fa, la, do and sol, fa, re, and the principal minors are naturally la, do, re, fa, la, and mi, sol, ti. These tones and chords with a few variations constitute the fundamentals in the language of music. Let us study this divine language in the easiest notation possible.

MISS ROBERTSON CRITICIZES LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

In an address before the Woman's Republican Club in New York a few days ago, Miss Alice M. Robertson, congresswoman from Oklahoma declared that she was opposed to the soldiers bonus.

Soldiers demanding a bonus lacked the patriotism of Americans who fought in the Revolution, in the Civil and Spanish-American wars, "those veterans didn't put a price on their patriotism," she said.

These men, she declared, alluring to the proposed beneficiaries of adjusted compensation, are not like the boys of '61 and '98. They didn't ask for bonuses. We can give these veterans a quit claim deed if they want it. "The men of my ancestry didn't want it and didn't ask for it, and if they want the dollar sign put on them by the government, we can do it."

She criticized members of the League of Women Voters for drawing the dollar line in politics. "It is not the province of women voters to stand off in a wholly non-partisan way, look down into the pit where the fight is going on and say 'you're not doing it right,'" she declared. "Go into your party and clean it up," she said, adding that "like former President Roosevelt," she considered the Republican party "the least bad."

"You'd have a tremendous power. It's like going into a kitchen and finding a lot of dirty dishes to wash, and washing them."

"The woman's vote has not been a 'howling success,' but they have to learn to be good losers in order to be good winners. It should be a fifty-fifty proposition with the man—yet there are some women who want to make it a 75-25 proposition."

DEATH OF B. F. THOMAS NEAR HALE CENTER

The death of B. F. Thomas was not a surprise to his many friends, as he had been sick for several weeks, when he passed away last Friday about noon at his home in the Sunshine community. Mr. Thomas was a brother-in-law of W. A. Harrell, living here and has other relatives in and near Abernathy. He was sixty-eight years old at the time of his death and a prominent citizen of that neighborhood. The funeral services were held at Hale Center Sunday afternoon in the presence of his relatives and many friends. He leaves a wife and seven children all of whom were with him at his death.—Abernathy Review.

RURAL SCHOOL ITEMS

The Parent-Teachers' Association met Friday afternoon, Feb. 10, with a large attendance than ever before. The following program was given:

Opening Exercises—High School. Needs of the School—Miss Darby. Benefits of Parents-Teachers' Association—Mr. Brashier.

Music in the School—Mrs. Meek. A committee was appointed to see about getting trees for the school yard, and a day set aside for the community to meet and set them out. There were several lively discussions. The meeting adjourned to meet Friday, Feb. 24 at 2:30 o'clock.

There was a box supper at the Acuff school house Friday night, Feb. 17. We were glad to see quite a number of Lubbock and Idalou people, also people from surrounding communities. Mr. Pevrhose and several people from Carlisle furnished the music.

The County School Board visited our school last week. We enjoyed and appreciated their visit and we believe that Lubbock county should appreciate the real interest and enthusiasm of their county board. They have the interests of the boys and girls of Lubbock county in their minds, and are a real help to the schools.

Mr. Haynes, our County Superintendent visited our school last Tuesday. I believe we would have a better school if he could come and give us an inspiration every week.

Mr. Jennings, the County Demonstration Agent, made us an interesting talk last Tuesday afternoon, and aroused quite a lot of interest in the club work he is conducting over the county.

M. R. Cope was here Saturday from his fine farm six miles west of town.

E. W. Fielding was in town Saturday from his farm six miles northwest of town.

Gloom Spreaders Have Nothing to Back 'Em Out Here

Wolf, Wolf. How many of us have heard that word when it was absolutely unnecessary. The story in the old school reader about the boy who let his father's sheep be slaughtered by the wolves just because he tried to fool the workman who had promised to help him in case the wolves should attack the sheep, and when finally he was in the earnest there was little attention paid his call for help, and those historic sheep perished while he, is still remembered. That story is ever new, only with a little local coloring that changes the whole thing a bit, but the plot remains intact. There has not been a day the Avalanche reporter walks the streets of Lubbock but that some easterner who has been here about a dozen days or more plies his wide knowledge of adverse circumstances in a long drawn out story about how the farmers are going to the dogs because there is little assistance outside, and a dozen hindrances, such as high freight rates and low prices, and to quote chamber of commerce Keen "we will give the poor brethren a little light on the subject," and take away a little of the gloom that has made that poor face look like a blizzard had struck it. The wolf is not here by a long site, and the new inhabitant will soon learn that his speech has both a bad beginning and end, without any food for thought in the core, and here is the latest thing that has hit these fellows, the writer having been given an insight into them by the alert Fred Hoerner, the most successful breeder of thoroughbred hogs in this section. He pointed out that A. L. Ward, a specialist in the extension department of A. & M. had shown him statistics proving that there is a thirty percent reduction in freight rates for the grain farmer who is wise enough to accept it, and here is the secret password in writing that reduction: "Feed feed the hogs" and here the proof that it will make the proper reduction: One ton of maize at the present freight rates could be shipped to any common point in Texas at a cost of not less than five dollars, at ten of maize, according to even statistics compiled from A. M. Experiments would make two hundred and seventy pounds of hog feed to a thoroughbred, and that is a hundred and seventy pounds he could be shipped to the Fort Worth market at a cost of one dollar and twenty-nine cents, and sold twice the market value of the Special Poultry Articles Secured By the Avalanche The Avalanche has secured at considerable expense a series of Articles, of special interest to the poultry raisers of the South Plains, and we hope that the readers of the Avalanche will take enough interest in these articles to preserve everyone of them. There will be fifty two articles, on various subjects of poultry raising, and being prepared by Mr. Kazmeier, of the State Agricultural Department, who is an expert in the poultry line. The South Plains is the coming poultry producing section of the state, and we believe these articles to be of such worth to those engaging in the poultry business to secure this series of articles, that we might have a part in helping the people of this section to develop the poultry business. We urge that you save each of these articles, for they will be to the point on each subject handled.

ASH AND ELM ARE BEST TREES FOR THE PLAINS In discussing the question of proper shade trees for this country with County Agent Harmon Denton, of Amarillo, Mr. Denton said: "Since coming to Amarillo I have made a careful study of shade trees adapted to street and yard planting. Probably hackberry is the hardest tree for all purposes; but it is difficult to transplant, and is a slow grower. For extensive planting here, ash would rank first and elm a close second. These three varieties seem well adapted to our soil and are not seriously troubled with either insects or fungi. Varieties growing here now that are not desirable, either on account of uncongenial soil conditions, or are seriously attacked by insects or fungi, are: maple, box elder, sycamore, catalpa, mulberry, poplar and willow. Drink and be merry and to you will have to reduce."

THE LUBBOCK AVALANCHE

ANOTHER NEW ENTERPRISE FOR LUBBOCK AND THE SOUTH PLAINS

And still Lubbock grows, develops new enterprises and is known as "The Hub of the Plains." Announcement is made in another part of this Avalanche of the organization of the Plains Magazine Company for the publication of an agricultural magazine to be known as The Plains Magazine.

"Edited on the Plains, published on the Plains, for the Plains" and devoted to diversified farming, dairying, poultry growing, crop production, swine production, home and community interest, churches, schools and community service and current events as they relate to Plains conditions.

Other departments to be carried as announced will include finance and marketing, with particular reference to the Plains of Texas, politics and opinions, under which head every candidate, question and cause will be impartially discussed, quoted and clipped from other papers, making it a clearing house for political issues of every kind.

Editorial comments, criticisms and reviews on State and National editorials as they relate to the Plains of Texas thus picking out from a thousand sources the best hundred comments that will be of interest to the average citizen in this section. Travel stories, verse and other features are being lined up for the general interest of the readers.

The Woman's Department, Boy's and Girl's Club Work, Question and Answers and various other departments will make it a readable magazine for the entire family as well as the business man, farmer and stockman.

Curtis A. Keen, as managing editor, has said that it would be a Plains Magazine with two independent and interesting. His resignation as manager of the Chambers of Commerce will be submitted at the first regular Directors Meeting and when he is replaced he will devote all his time to this work.

J. E. Griffith, former advertising manager for the Avalanche will superintend the Advertising and circulation departments. Lois Duff will be in charge of the office of the new publication. The several departments will be edited by men and women experienced in that phase of Plains agriculture.

Fred W. Boerner is editor of the Swine Department and is known as a breeder of pure bred hogs throughout the Plains and the Southwest. He has for two years been president of the Panhandle Swine Breeders Association.

L. C. Ellis, superintendent of the Poultry Department of the South Plains Fair since its organization, will edit the Poultry Department assisted by Oscar Sensabaugh, and others in the section who are recognized as poultrymen of the first class.

Provisional arrangements have been made with several other men in the various other departments but the contracts have not been closed and a definite announcement will not be made as yet.

The magazine will cover a non-competitive field since there is not an agricultural magazine of this scope published anywhere in West Texas. Plainview has its Southwest Poultry and Swine Breeder, but it covers only those two fields, Amarillo has its Panhandle Plainsmen but it is a weekly newspaper for the farmers and not a diversified farm journal. San Angelo has its Sheep Magazine, but it too is exclusive.

This magazine published in Lubbock will be for the entire Plains and West Texas. In each issue will be a full store of some one town, its production, shipments, conditions, etc., with pictures and data of all kinds. Each edition will carry a story of some one hog farm on the Plains, a poultry farm, a community story, etc., according to advance announcements.

According to the statement made by its new managing editor, "the Plains Magazine expects the citizen of the city and county of Lubbock for the first year. Outside advertisers, subscribers, etc., must be shown before they will send their money to Lubbock or to a magazine published in Lubbock.

If the citizenship of this town and county who know all the parties connected with this magazine can't have enough confidence in us, in this section and in the magazine as a mouth piece of this section to support us for one year upon the basis of our reputation and their confidence in us—then we cannot expect to make a success in this venture. We don't expect to starve the world or make a fortune the first year. In fact, if we are able to close the first year with less than $1,000 outstanding obligations we will consider the venture successful.

For we know there is a future for such a publication and if we can get one year's start, in spite of the present adverse conditions we will come out all right in the long run. I know the Plains Country offers the best opportunity of any section in the State. I believe in it strong enough to take the risk of this proposition. East Texas has published our farm paper, run our politics and spent our tax money long enough. We don't expect to revolutionize things in a month or six months—but they are going to hear from the Plains and get the straight facts in the case.

The first issue is due in April. The magazine will be a 48 page edition, printed on machine run book paper, carrying cuts, pictures and will be printed by the Avalanche Publishing Co. The subscription price is $1 per year, 3 years for $2.

A tree planting campaign is being conducted in Floydada. Many shade trees of various species have been ordered from the Texas State Experiment Farm at Lubbock through County Agent T. S. Wilson, who will superintend the planting of the trees.

Farms are scarce in Lubbock County, in fact they are scarce all over West Texas. We believe the larger land holders would avail much for West Texas if they would put more of their land in cultivation, and let the farmers from other sections come and locate in this great country.

Funny what some folks seem to think constitutes a real honest to goodness citizen.

SMITH MISUNDERSTOOD US.

Some places we have heard of are having great success in the organization and maintenance of a Sunday School Base Ball League. In Amarillo this was quite successfully carried on last year, and not only did it furnish a lot of good base ball playing, but also it stimulated Sunday School work, and we are of the opinion that out of the several Sunday Schools in Lubbock, several strong teams could be organized, and play matched games at regular intervals.—Lubbock Avalanche.

The Beacon would look with disfavor on any kind of Sunday School base ball. This church base ball playing on Sunday is a subterfuge invented by the devil himself, and if it becomes general it means the breaking down of all barriers and restraint contemplating in our laws for the protection of people who wish to worship on Sunday. People do not need Sunday base ball. The people have too much amusement as it is. Sunday is a day of worship, set aside by Divine authority, and to break into same by the churches resorting to outdoor sports instead of indoor worship, is perverting the plans of the Divine law giver. Lubbock does not need Sunday base ball. Amarillo did not need it the past year, and to inaugurate this past time on Sunday and make it the general custom will do a great deal to break down religious worship, and drive the people further away from good morals.

God knows the country is going fast enough the way it is, and has departed far enough from religious piety and morals practiced by our fathers as it is rather than to introduce Sunday base ball in the name of the church. We are surprised that such writers and churchmen as James L. Dow, of the Avalanche, and Jas. L. Pope of the Amarillo News, would lend endorsement to a general desecration of the Lord's Day. We know both these men, and their goodness of heart and religious piety, and it is distressing that they should be caught in the meshes of Sunday desecration. Playing base ball on Sunday is about on par with the suggestion recently by a woman in one of our cities that dances be given in our churches in order to check the public dance. Rather than to put down the devil, some want to invite him into our churches and turn over the work to his Satanic Majesty in its entirety.

What men and women need to do in this immoral and perverse generation is to stand out boldly against the evils that threaten civilization instead of compromising with the forces of sin. The Beacon has little patience with the man or woman that compromises with sin. Christian men and women should fight the dance straight from the shoulder. They should show no quarters to Sunday base ball and other forms of Lord's Day desecrations, instead of compromising with these evils. We should never compromise with error. The people need religious training instead of amusement. Strike down Sunday as a day of worship and we tear down the last barrier between error and Truth. If we destroy Lord's Day religious customs, we have surrendered bag and baggage to the Devil. Boys, do not espouse Sunday base ball, whether in the name of the church or otherwise. It is dangerous and means the overthrow of Sunday as a day of spiritual training.

The church has for its purpose the spiritual training of our people. Its mission is not for the physical training of people.—Lockney Beacon.

Amen, Brother Ben! We heartily endorse all you have said about Sunday base ball, and you have not said half what you should have, if you really thought that the Avalanche in any way intimated that we favored Sunday base ball playing.

You certainly misread the clipping from the Avalanche and we will give you $1000 to find where we ever advocated base ball playing on Sunday. We have written several miles of editorials against Sunday base ball games. We have spoken boldly from church pulpits and public platforms against it and we have not changed our minds about it. We are against it tooth and toenail, first, last and all the time, forever and eternally, world without end and forever more. The Beacon cannot find a word in the above editorial clipped from the Avalanche that even intimates that we favor Sunday games, or to substantiate this influence that we expected the Sunday School team to play on Sunday, and he is either basely ignorant, or has taken this opportunity to place us in a bad light with the people of the South Plains, who are for the betterment of the morals of the country. The object of the Sunday School base ball league is the opposite to what Smith seems to think. Its object is to prevent playing on Sunday, and among the rules of the league is that no boy who plays Sunday base ball shall become a member of the team, and playing on Sunday automatically puts him out of the team, and another thing, he must show a clean record of attendance in his Sunday School if he remains on the team. The games are staged on week days, mostly after work hours, on the long summer days, and is the means of giving the boys much good exercise, and pleasure, as well as lending encouragement to them to belong to the Sunday School, and make a good report there. We can hardly believe that Smith understood the attitude we took, yet we cannot see how he could construe the meaning as he has, but we feel that he has done us a great injustice, and shall expect him to make as much display of correcting this as he has in condemning us for the stand he claims we took, which is absolutely false. We demand that this correction be made in the editorial columns of the Beacon immediately. You have done us a great injustice. You have nothing less than slandered us, and we demand an open apology. Smith, come clean!

We admit that we possibly do not know much about a great many things, but taking a slant at the bonus situation, and how to meet it, we can't see why the people of the United States should be taxed in addition to what they already are in order to pay the boys a bonus for being in the army of their country, and in defense of their own homes, etc.

Why in the name of common sense can't we pay this bonus if it is to be paid, with the money these foreign nations owe us? Why should we borrow money to pay our accounts, when those nations are in debt to us, and if they will get up and hit the ball, will be able to pay us back. We are opposed to the bill if we must have additional tax to meet it. We believe the most important thing for the ex-soldiers is to take care of the sick and crippled, and give those who are able-bodied employment at reasonable wages, and they will make more money than their little bonus would amount to and be helping themselves and the country too.

AT THE CHURCHES

Cumberland Presbyterian
Eighty-two were present at the Sunday School, and good lessons reported by the teachers.
A good sermon was preached in the morning hour to a large congregation.
The C. P. C. E. at six-thirty in the evening was well attended and the young people showed themselves really enthusiastic about the work.
Rev. Baker preached an extraordinary sermon in the evening, to a large congregation.
You are invited.

Methodist Church
What can be done with a little will-power and actual effort was thoroughly demonstrated at the Sunday School service, the entire morning being turned over to that work.
The large corps of teachers were present and were introduced in groups, beginning at the primary department.
There were more than one hundred and forty-five members added to the roll, and these people are taking hold of the work with new enthusiasm and effort, which we hope will continue as the days go by. 545 were present.

Rev. Ferguson preached a fifteen minute sermon, directing his every sentence to the children, which was interesting and enjoyed.
The long quandary about the pastor's age was brought to an abrupt close when the birthday offering was called for, he having produced a pocketful of coin to prove that he was willing to go his part, and when finally the last search into his pocket revealed the fact that the last coin had been placed in the jar it was filled to capacity, and here we will close the age argument, and merely state that he is old enough to preach some mighty good sermons, as was demonstrated in the evening hour when he spoke on "Courage," his topic being taken from Number XIII: 30-35, he having taken a few minutes off to wake up the conscience of every pessimist within his reach. If you didn't hear his sermon you have more respect for a pessimist than his hearers have.

Baptist Church
The services Sunday were turned over to a visiting evangelist, Rev. Lichtenstein, a converted Jew whose ability as an evangelist is recognized by those who have heard him preach.

The house was well filled both morning and evening, he having preached on "A B C and D of Religion," in the evening. He will preach a sermon on the "Passover" at the church tonight, and we are sure those who hear him will hear a wonderful sermon. He at this time is working to establish a Baptist church in Jerusalem, the love for his people and his great desire to have them know the true words of God being the inspiration which lead him into this great work.
The Sunday School was a little out of the ordinary, as four hundred of the four hundred and sixty enrolled members were present and recited well learned lessons.

First Christian, Avenue J.
Another beautiful Sunday was last Lord's day, and a good attendance is reported at the First Christian church, both at the church services, morning and evening, and at Sunday School. "What a Church Member Must Do To Be Saved," was the subject of the morning address by the Pastor, Rev. A. N. Julien. Not what the sinner must do to be saved, but the church member, said Bro. Julien, and giving some of the things that the church member should do, he said: "1. He must have faith. As it is written, the just shall live by faith." Rom. 1, 7. "And the life that I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God." Gal. 2: 20.
"2. He must practice self denial. If any will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." Matt. 16, 24.
Bro. Julien asked the question if we are really christians, those who profess to be, when we do not deny ourselves, not comforts, but luxuries, knowing of the starving and suffering peoples of our world.
"3. He must be diligent. Be sober, be vigilant, because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour." 1. Pet. 5, 8.
"4. He must live a life of prayer. Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation, the spirit is indeed willing but the flesh is weak." Matt. 26, 41. "I will therefore that men pray everywhere, lift up holy hands without wrath and doubting." 1. Tim. 2, 8.
And further on in his discourse, Bro. Julien stated that the church member to be saved must grow, he must abide in Christ and he must work with God and his brethren.
The subject of the sermon at the evening hour was the "Parable of the Marriage Feast" taken from Matthew 22, 1-14. A quartet, composed of Messrs. Bishop, Lowrey, Bean and Young, rendered most effectively that beautiful old song: "The Wayside Cross."

their missionary meeting in the morning.
Prayer meeting is conducted in the church each Wednesday night, but the past few meetings have had few attendants owing to the fact that there are several of the members sick at this time.

Will you not meet with us next Lord's Day and study God's word? Come, see the spirit of work that prompted the writer of old to say: "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go up to the house of the Lord." We had 94 present, with much interest and earnestness shown.
"Christian Unity," for which Jesus prayed in Jno. 17: 21, was Brother Smith's subject for discussion at the eleven o'clock hour. Ephesians 4: 4, 5, was used as a text, and many passages were quoted to show the Bible viewpoint of this important and much agitated question. Brother Smith always presents his subjects in a clear, interesting and forceful manner. The following passages were used during the sermon: Dan. 2: 44; Matt. 16: 13-19; Jno. 10: 14; Acts 9: 21; Acts 4: 31-32; Eph. 2: 19-22; 1. Pet. 2: 5; Eph. 1: 22-23; Eph. 4: 1-5-16; 1. Cor. 3: 3; 1. Cor. 10: 17; 1. Cor. 12: 12; Coll. 1: 18; Phil. 1: 27; Phil. 2nd Chapter; Rom. 12: 4, 5, 7, 8.
At the close of the morning service the congregation voted unanimously to invite the South Plains preachers to come to Lubbock for a weeks study of Bible subjects. Brother Smith told us briefly of the interesting week just spent at Abilene Christian College, which was "Lecture Week."
At the evening service, Brother Smith spoke to us about being saved "by grace, through faith." Text: Eph. 2: 8-10. This is a two-sided affair, in that while we are saved by the grace of God, yet it must be through the faith of the one saved; The laymen of the First Methodist used: Tit. 3: 5; Rom. 4: 1-4; Jas. 2: 21; Gal. 2: 16; Rom. 4: 12-13; Acts 2: 28; Acts 16: 30-31; Heb. 11: 7 and 30.
We are glad to have such good attendance, but especially are we glad to see such interest in God's Word. We cordially invite all that will come to any of these services.

TRADE AT HOME
We often hear merchants talk about trading at home, and then we get to investigating, and we find that this same merchant may be carrying an insurance policy in some mutual or reciprocal out of town.
In the first place this man may have some insurance, but the chances are, he hasn't. In the second place he is asking the insurance agent to buy his goods, he is sending out of town for the goods the agent has to sell.

Inkum Tax Instructions.

In filing your return, be sure to use a file that will cut your income down so low the collector will be moved to pity and take up a collection for you.

In stating your occupation, profession or business, state what you are supposed to do instead of what you really do, for if the boss should see the report and find out how you spend your time, your income probably would cease.

In itemizing your income (if any) it is not necessary to state what you win playing poker or shooting craps. Nor are you allowed to deduct your losses.

Your report naturally won't agree with what you tell your friends your income is, but that's alright—they know it anyhow.

When you hand your tax return to the collector, smile wisely and wink knowingly. It will amount to just as much as if you hand it in with a growl.

How to Write an Editorial.

The readers of a newspaper often wonder how the editor happens to have the brains necessary to write all the learned editorials he prints. It is very simple.

The first thing is a subject. Here it is necessary to choose one that either the readers or the editor know nothing about. If the readers do not know what he is talking about, the editor can say what he pleases, and the readers will wonder how he got that way. If the readers understand the subject, it makes no difference what the editor writes—the readers won't believe it anyway. So three you are—

The purpose of an editorial is supposed to tell the readers something they don't know in such a way that they will believe it just because it was in the paper. But this generally is not the case, for most people who read the editorial page do so just to see what fool notions the editor has now, and his opinions don't cut much ice any way.

"That's perfectly alright, madam," he assured her. "I have no desire whatever to get in hot water with you."

Where Dreams Come True.

Far beyond the mountains hoary, Towering up to meet the blue, Lies the land that song and story Seek to bring to mortal view.

Flowers there are blooming ever, Winter thither never comes, And the flower-decked meadows never Miss the honey-bee's low hum.

Words of grief are never spoken, Broken hearts are healed for aye, Troubling lips, lone sorrow's token, Cease to quiver and the eye,

Where but tears were wont to glisten, Lights again with happy smile; Harmonies, if we but listen, Reach us from that sun-kissed isle.

Parting ones are reunited, Longings lightly lulled to rest, Loving vows anew are pledged, Toiling hands at last are blest.

Yes, our mortal feet can never Wander all those sweet fields thru; We are barred from it forever, 'Tis the land where dreams come true.

Four Simpson Brothers Meet in Reunion Last Fri.

L. H. Simpson is always carrying that easy, I'm-glad-I'm-here expression, but Friday evening it was a little above par, and an inquiry revealed the fact that he had something to really be glad about, for that day he and three of his brothers were together for the first time in ten years.

In 1919 the family had a reunion, but one of the brothers who was here Friday was overseas with the A. E. F., making that reunion a little one-sided, but this time all four of the brothers were together, and that absence so keenly felt in the 1919 reunion was not here to hinder the enjoyment of this occasion.

When it comes to enjoying a really good time, the kind that a fellow is not going to forget, the writer is hard to convince that a fellow could do anything more pleasant than meet en masse with his brothers, and there amid that friendly feeling that only filial love can know, talk of the times when mother and father made the old home brighter, bigger and better by buying each of "the boys" a grand new pair of overalls, and a dandy straw hat to match, the pleasure of such occasion being beyond the expression of any human.

John, Joe and T. L. Simpson were the visiting brothers, and we are indeed glad to welcome them to Lubbock.

John and Joe were both gassed while in the service, and are still under treatment of army doctors. We are in hopes they will recover soon.

AMERICAN CONGRESS
TUESDAY December 10

THE hour having arrived which the President appointed, Mr. Speaker, attended by the members present, proceeded to the President's house to present him their address in answer to his speech on the opening of the present session; and having returned the President's reply thereto was read as follows: Gentlemen of the House of Representatives;

This very respectful address from the representatives of the people of the United States, at their first assembly of the fresh election, under the strong impression of the public opinion and national sense, at this interesting and singular crisis of our public affairs has excited my sensibility and receives my sincere and grateful acknowledgements.

As long as we can maintain with harmony and affection the honor of our country, consistently with its peace, externally and internally, while that is attainable, or in war, when that becomes necessary—as asserts its real independence and sovereignty and supports the constitutional energies and dignity of its government—we may be perfectly sure under the smiles of Divine Providence that we shall effectually promote and extend our national interests and happiness.

The applause of the Senate and House of Representatives so justly bestowed upon the volunteers and militia, for their zealous and active co-operation with the judicial power, which has reflected order and submission to the laws, as it comes with peculiar weight from the Legislature, cannot fail to have an extensive and permanent effect, for the support of government upon all those ingenious minds, who receive delight from the approving and animating voice of their country.

JOHN ADAMS.
United States,
Dec. 10, 1799.

And then the House adjourned until tomorrow morning, 11 o'clock. Mr. Josias Parker and Mr. Robert Page, from Virginia, appeared on Monday were qualified and took their seats.

Mr. Speaker, on Monday laid before the House, a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury inclosing a statement of his accounts for the year '99. Ordered to lie on the table.

Messrs. Harper, Griswold, Otis, Gallahan, Powell, John Brown, Stone, Nott and Platt, were appointed a standing committee of Ways and Means.

Messrs. Harper C. Goodrich, Bayard, Marshall and Sewall, were appointed a committee in pursuance of a resolution passed on Monday relative to the revision and amendment of the judiciary system.

SENATE
This day at 12 o'clock, the Senate in a body waited on the President of the United States with the following address, in answer to his speech to both Houses.

To The President of the United States:
Accept, Sir, the respectful acknowledgement of the Senate of the United States, for your speech delivered to both Houses of Congress at the opening of the present session.

While we devoutly join you in offering our thanks to Almighty God for the return of health to our cities, and for the general prosperity of our country, we cannot refrain from lamenting that the arts and calumnies of factions and designing men, have excited open rebellion a second time in Pennsylvania, and thereby compelled the employment of a military force to aid the civil authorities in the execution of the laws. We rejoice that your vigilance, energy and well timed exertions, have crushed so daring an opposition, and prevented the spread of such treacherable combinations. The promptitude and zeal displayed by the troops called to suppress this insurrection deserve our highest commendation and praise and affords a pleasing proof of the spirit and alacrity with which our fellow citizens are ready to maintain the authority of our excellent government.

Knowing as we do, that the United States are sincerely anxious for a fair and liberal execution of the treaty of amity, commercial and navigation entered into with Great Britain; we learn with regret, that the progress of adjustment has been interrupted by a difference of opinions among the commissioners. We hope, however, that the justice, the moderation, and the obvious interests of both parties will lead to satisfactory explanations and that the business will then go forward to an amicable close of all the differences and demands between the two counties. We are fully persuaded that the Legislature of the United States will cheerfully enable you to realize your insurance of performing on our part, all engagements with punctuality and the most scrupulous good faith.

When we reflect upon the late uncertainty of the result of the late mission to France, and upon the uncommon nature, extent and aspect of the war now raging in Europe; which affects materially our relations with the powers at war, and which has changed the conditions of these colonies our neighborhood, we are of opinion with you, that it would be neither wise or safe to relax our measures of defence or to lessen any of our preparations to repel aggression.

Our enquiries and attention should be carefully directed to the various other important subjects which you have recommended to our consideration; and from our experience of your past administration we anticipate with the highest confidence your strenuous co-operation in all measures which have a tendency to promote and extend our national interest and happiness.

To which the President made the following reply:

Gentlemen of the Senate:
I thank you for this address. I wish you all possible success and satisfaction in your denomination on the means, which have a tendency to promote and extend our national interest and happiness—and I assure you that in all our measures directed to those great objects you may at all times rely with the highest confidence on my cordial co-operation.

The praise of the Senate so judiciously conferred on the promptitude and zeal of the troops, called to suppress the insurrection, as it falls from so high authority, must make a deep impression, both as a terror to the disobedient and an encouragement to such as do well.

JOHN ADAMS.
United States,
Dec. 10, 1799.

(To be continued next Tuesday)

Amarillo Men
May Locate In Lubbock Soon

F. N. and C. R. Brown, brothers, of Amarillo, were here Friday prospecting.

They contemplate opening a dental supply house in Amarillo, with a smaller house in some town in this part of the state, and have decided that Lubbock is about the most practical place for that house.

They are live wires, and we are sure they will make good citizens for this town if located here. Their business is altogether different to anything in this territory, and the fact that they have a great deal of confidence in the future development of the cities in West Texas has caused them to keep notice, and make efforts, to get in on the ground floor in that business.

Lubbock is attracting the attention of business men of many professions, and we are sure that should the Brown brothers locate here they would soon realize that Lubbock is the very place for a business of that kind.

The fact that there are many interested in Lubbock at this time is because conditions here are good as compared with other places, and the financial standing of our people greatly above par. If it should be your good fortune to meet a prospector do your best to have him know the merits of this little city, and we are sure that after the truth is known to him he will think twice before refusing an opportunity to get started in business here.

WOULD-BE COMEDIAN DIDN'T "GET BY" THIS TIME

There are funny things happen in Lubbock every day that are interesting, even to a newspaper man whose neck for comedy has long since passed into the discard, and when a citizen of another clime butted into a local farmer on the streets here Saturday expressing disgust at the Plains being the home of so many prairie dogs, dwelling long and loudly upon the fact that his country was removed from all such evils, when a local farmer headed into him with "guess they starved to death in the drought of '17."

Lubbock county people are Lubbock county boosters and the fellow who thinks he can "get by" with most anything in these parts is a little off.

F. Thomas, of DeLeon, formerly with the Blessing Photo Supply Company, of Fort Worth, has recently bought the photograph business of J. E. Jones, in the Red Cross Pharmacy, and will carry on the business in that place.

He is well learned in Kodak work, and will do all kinds of that work.

The new business is advertised as the Kodak Shop, and we are sure our readers will find that Mr. Thomas will do his work exactly as advertised.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Haney, of Center, were here last week under care of Ralph Hardy, D. C. Lubbock professional men are adding their lot to the development of Lubbock in getting their people to come here and become acquainted with the merits of this little city.

COLORADO PRODUCING WELL WILL BE DRILLED DEEPER

All Colorado went out to the Morrison No. 2 on Washington's birthday when a half holiday was declared in the schools and business places and with the announcement that drilling would be resumed this afternoon several hundred cars were lined up near the rig. Again at midnight last night, the well flowed naturally for a thirty minute period, about 40 barrels being the estimated production. This afternoon at one o'clock, the well was swabbed and a ten minute flow rewarded the agitators, with an estimated flow of nearly 100 barrels. While leases are changing hands briskly, no big deals have been reported. The bull wheel on the drilling rig is now repaired and the announcement plans of the Underwriters is to drill on into the sand and see just what the well is good for.

The Business and Financial—Past and Future by John Grant Dater—After A Careful Study of Conditions

The following carefully prepared article is worthy of the close reading and study of every business man as well as the farmers and laboring men, it being a conservative review of conditions as they seem to exist at this time:

Although the year 1921 was given over to economic readjustments and corrective processes, and although something of real importance was accomplished in that direction in the marked improvement that has taken place in the condition surrounding capital and credit, it is not too much to say that standing now upon the threshold of the year 1922 financial and commercial observers are nearly, if not fully, as perplexed regarding what the future has in store as they were a year ago, or as they have been at any time since the industrial reaction set in. This is clearly enough indicated in the tenor of the articles and symposiums of opinion bearing upon business and finance contained in the annual reviews and forecasts which made their appearance in large number around the beginning of the year. While sounding a more hopeful and encouraging note, in the main, than twelve months ago, the views of the experts reflected a wide divergence of opinion and their predictions regarding the all-important question of an industrial revival were, as a rule, qualified and made contingent upon other things.

Qualified Optimism

That economists of world-wide reputation, college professors, students of financial and commercial phenomena, and other trained observers, including leading bankers, important manufacturers, influential business men, and experienced railway executives should differ in their conclusions regarding the financial, industrial, and economic future is not, of course, surprising, for the problems which confront the world to-day are many and manifold, of great complexity, and of far-reaching application. What really is surprising, or, more properly, perhaps, what really is unusual in the situation, is the continuance without change for so long an interval of many disquieting and unsettling factors. Some of them have undergone a slight modification, no doubt, or lost some of their disturbing force, but it is difficult to recall many of the first importance which were present in the situation at the time the armistice was signed, more than three years ago, that have reached a final and satisfactory adjustment.

In the meanwhile new problems have arisen as vexatious as the old, and in some instances even more so, and the fact that nothing clears up definitely is responsible in part for the reservation and qualification of opinion on the part of expert-observers when it comes to a discussion of how much longer the hoped-for recovery may be deferred. And conservatism and caution in respect to predictions has been imposed upon many of them, also by the disagreeable memories of their recent mistaken judgment. There were exceptions, of course; instances where writers on financial and economic conditions were not misled into the belief that the outrageous debauch of overtrading and over-speculation was a manifestation of true prosperity, and who were courageous enough to predict the collapse months before it materialized. But these exceptions were few in number and unhappily, many important bankers did not comprehend the situation and granted credit lavishly long after it should have been curtailed.

Why Deflation Came

If the contrary was the case; if the banks of the country—Federal Reserve, National, and State—had exercised the proper restraints upon credit during the witches' dance in 1919, the country would not have entered upon the era of deflation and liquidation with bank loans expanded to the largest volume ever known, and if such a huge proportion of these borrowings had not been effected upon a basis of fictitiously high prices and distorted values, the economic readjustment would have been the more speedily accomplished. To what extent, precisely, the loans of the banking institutions of the country had been distended before the processes of deflation set in is difficult to say, for it is only possible to obtain a consolidated statement of banking resources and liabilities once a year. The latest figures—those of June 30, 1921—were made public by the Comptroller of Currency on October 31st last, and from these the magnitude of credit inflation during the war may be approximated.

From the statement it appears that the loans and discounts of all the reporting banks in the United States on June 30, 1914, aggregated $15,288,357,000, and on June 30, 1921, $28,944,708,000, an increase during the seven-year period of $13,656,351,000 or 89.33 per cent. Between June 30, 1920, and June 30, 1921, the loans and discounts of the National banks alone have contracted $1,842,264,000, and it is only reasonable to infer that the loans and discounts of the state banks and trust companies, saving banks and private bankers have experienced a similar contraction, a fair approximation of the total being about $5,000,000,000 within the year for the entire country. The accomplishment of a deflation as vast as this without forcing an industrial collapse has been the one great achievement of the year that has passed.

Liquidation a Corrective

But there are two features associated with this matter which should not escape attention—the one, that such a huge contraction would not have been necessary if loans and discounts had not been inflated inordinately in the first instance, and the other, that liquidation, with all its disturbing consequences, is a corrective and not a constructive development. That liquidation has resulted, as it always does, in an improvement in the conditions surrounding capital and credit, is, admittedly, the case, and it is true, also, that such an improvement is one of the prerequisites of a forward movement, the other essential being a complete restoration of confidence. But it is clear that the relaxation in interest rates, which has stimulated the bond market and which has encouraged Wall Street in the hope of better things in the near future, has not been achieved without cost. And, moreover, there is no assurance that liquidation has run its full course as yet, but, to the contrary, the action of some of the larger industries in the closing month of the year would seem to indicate the probability of liquidation and readjustments still to come.

Money is easier and credit is more readily available for high-class borrowers now than a year ago, but the improvement has been accomplished at the expense of industry. The country, as a whole, is poorer now than it was a year ago, and it was transacting a smaller volume of business, both domestic and foreign, at the beginning of 1922 than at the inception of 1921. The former is attested by the largely diminished bank clearings, the slump in railway gross earnings, the rapid accumulation of idle freight cars, and the marked contraction in the output of iron and steel.

Splendid Program In Short Course March 20-21st

Illustrated lecture charts, scores of lantern slides and nine reels of moving pictures will be used in conducting the Agricultural Short Course to be held in Lubbock on March 20, according to G. W. Anstrand, advance representative of the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company, who paid his second visit to this vicinity today to confer with the local committees which have all arrangements for the big event in charge.

"Everything is moving along nicely," said Mr. Anstrand. "The Harvester Company will give every assistance possible to make the short course of great and lasting benefit to the community."

"The program that is being prepared will be interesting and instructive to both town and country folks. The schools are being invited to co-operate and arrangements are being completed for the holding of special meetings for women, conducted by Mrs. Bertha Dahl Laws, of Minnesota, an able lecturer on food, home conveniences, health, sanitation and kindred subjects relating to women's work. Mrs. Laws will also take part in the regular sessions of the short course."

H. S. Mobley, a practical farmer and national leader in agricultural and community progress, will also be sent here by the Harvester Company's extension department. Mr. Mobley is an able lecturer and will do all in his power by talks and demonstration to be of service to the farmers in helping them solve their problems.

The short course promises to be one of the real events of the season. All sessions will be free and everyone will be welcome.

ROTARY NOTES

By L. T. Martin

Thursday night when the Rotarians and their Rotary-Ann's got together with their friends at the Elk's Hall, for their usual monthly banquet, it was rather chilly and Geo. Briggs does not make a very good janitor, but one forgot they were cold when after partaking of the bountiful spread the Baptist ladies had prepared, they listened to the excellent program Tom Duggan featured single handed. Before telling you about the program I want to compliment the Baptist ladies on their part of the program. Don't know whether the selection of the Menu was left up to them or not, but it was all right. Menu's unless they are worthy of comment are not mentioned in these notes. The writer is fond of chicken and that part of the chicken called the gizzard and the drum stick and had one of each. Some may think this is a depraved appetite, but I am still a boy when it comes to eating chicken. But a full grown man when it comes to coffee. Say! that was some coffee and that cream. Not whipped cream, but cream just as thick as if it had been whipped. The kind that goes all through the coffee and gives the coffee that rich flavor. It's all right to have a little of the whipped variety to float around the top, but the real live cream that makes the coffee such a nice color is the thing. Confidentially the Baptist ladies told me that my good Baptist friend, Mrs. Vaughn, of Vaughn's Sanitary Dairy, donated that cream for the Rotarian banquet. The ladies are to be congratulated on the preparation of the excellent eats and the manner in which it was served.

President, after calling on Highpockets to introduce the guests turned the meeting over to Rotarian Tom Duggan, of the entertainment committee, who explained, he had to do the work of the whole committee as Daddy Dickinson was sick and Beanie Hiburn's baby was sick. Noticed Acy May was not out either. You just cannot depend on these young folks to get out in the night air. That is after they are married, for I noticed that Erick Posey and O. L. Petteerman are still able to be out. Had a special table if you please and the only Rotarians, outside of those on the program to be introduced. Rosecoe Wilson's wife being away thought he would sit in with the young folks, but Peterman gave Highpocket the hailing sign of distress and so Keen went over and got Rosecoe and made him sit at the table with the old folks.

The first number on the program was a mixed quartette from Littlefield, consisting of Mrs. Hasie, Miss Shaw, A. T. Duggan and Arthur Miller, with Mrs. A. P. Duggan at the Piano. They were heartily encored and responded with another selection which added to the pleasure of all present. Good music is always enjoyed by Rotarians for they are music lovers and when Mr. Duggan and Mrs. Hasie sang a duett it was received with much applause. The quartette again favored with a selection after the speaking. Glad to have these good people with us and trust Tom will bring them again.

Col. Clark Mullican when called upon by the Master of ceremonies, was limited to thirty minutes to respond to the subject: "Fellowship". Well thirty minutes is a short time to limit a man with the entertaining ability of the Colonel. After defining the meaning of fellowship from every angle he gave illustration after illustration, weaving in the mother goose rhymes, thus making his talk amusing as well as very entertaining.

interesting but an instructive talk as well. To get to Sumatra, there are three ways to go, so he explained. By way of New York across the Atlantic to Spain through the Mediterranean Sea, Suez Canal, the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden, Indian Ocean, or you could go by way of San Francisco, across the Pacific Ocean to Japan by way of the Philippine Islands, China, on through the South China Sea, to Singapore. His travels were very interesting, especially his trip over the last time when he went by way of Japan. Told of a Japanese Island where they stopped for coal. On this island they were very primitive, the men were peculiar looking from the fact that they were covered with hair. The men would paint, or blacken in some way, the teeth of the married women. Singapore is noted for tin and rubber shipped from that port. Ninety per cent of all the rubber is shipped from the port of Singapore. The Malay States and the Island of Sumatra are noted for the cultivation of rubber, tobacco and tea. It is interesting to know that the tea we get from Ceylon is always a pure tea and prepared and cured in the most sanitary way. The finest grades of tobacco come from these countries. And now that rubber is being extensively planted we look to them for our rubber supply. The roads through the jungles are wonderful, being built ages ago for military purposes. The work of clearing the jungle land and preparing it for the planting of rubber is more successfully done by coolies. These jungles are of enormous straight trunked trees, ensnared by giant creepers, vines and huge air plants that make so thick a canopy over head that only dim twilight filters in. The jungles are full of all kinds of animal life. From birds, monkeys and even the Orang-outang, and tigers. It would seem that this is a land of much promise and a land that needs people. The rainfall reaches as high as 100 inches in a year. I wish it were possible to do justice to the talk of Mr. Hargis and his travels. Some time again he will possibly favor the Rotary Club with a talk on his travels in the far east.

Rotarian Hiburn, so Tom says, was at home Thursday night caring for a sick baby. We trust the little fellow is not seriously ill.

Received a card from Dolph who is in New York City shopping for his store. From what Dolph says New York is a prohibition town that prohibits nothing.

Bud and Sally Jones had some kind of a church meeting on at their house Thursday night and missed the open meeting of the Rotary Club.

Mr. Hasie of Littlefield, who was a guest of T. B. Duggan is the engineer who has been building the good roads in Lamb county.

There was just too many guests to make mention of all of them and Keen had no visitors cards filled out so I could get the information.

At the last minute, much to the surprise of Lu-Lu, he was called upon to make an announcement for the Two-Days Short Course to be put on March 20th and 21st. Now this is your meeting and the success depends on just what you put into it. There was a meeting of the Committees last Thursday at the Chamber of Commerce office and there will be another one next Thursday at 3:30 p. m. Last week there was two committees not present, for the reason that the Chairman of the Committee did not notify the members of his committee. Remember, "Service before self. He serves best who serves most." We want to make this a real community meeting and in connection with it Walter Myrick and his committee are going to put on a chicken show. That is of the poultry variety. There will be good lectures here who will have something of interest for every one. Make no party dates for those two days, but let the society ladies and club women get out and give the urban women a hearty welcome and the business men of the town make the farmer and ranchman feel like you wanted him to come in and get acquainted. We can make this a great meeting for good if every one will but do their part. Remember the dates, March 20th and 21st. Remember these prairie towns exist to serve the farmer who are there reasons of existence. Perhaps some day the farmer will build and own their market towns, so let us be wise and co-operate with them and let them know we have their interests at heart.

J. P. WEBB AND WIFE HOME FROM ARKANSAS

J. P. Webb and wife, of the Canyon community returned last week from Warren, Arkansas, where they spent the winter months with their daughter.

Mr. Webb is one of the really big farmers on the Plains, and his ability as a grower and breeder of fine hogs, poultry and work animals is unquestioned. He has been an active figure in the development of farm work in this section, and has gained a reputation as a real community leader.

Mr. Webb is not getting old in actions yet, but time is playing its part with his activities, and we are sure that before he is able to be called an old man he will have accomplished something quite out of the ordinary as a farmer-stockman.

Welcome home, Mr. and Mrs. Webb.

AN OLD DOCUMENT PURPORTED TO BE AN OFFICIAL ACCOUNT TO CAESAR WRITTEN AFTER THE CRUCIFIXION

The following article was handed us this week by J. D. Caldwell, who has had it in his possession for many years. It was printed in the New York World in 1897 and is an extremely interesting document, and we believe it well worth the space we are giving it in the Avalanche.

Documents Purporting to be Official Account to Caesar Written Long Afterward.

Rome, Nov. 6.—In pursuing his inquiries respecting the alleged discovery of Pontius Pilate's report to Emperor Tiberius on the crucifixion of Christ The World correspondent obtained an introduction from Cardinal Satolli to Prof. Stornalola, the Director of the Vatican Library. The Director said:

"There has been no discovery made of any absolutely new document referring to the crucifixion. We have here two documents purporting to be from Pilate to Tiberius on that subject, but one is from the fourth century and the other from the fifth, both undoubtedly being apocryphal, as far as such a thing can be asserted. It is certain that the judicial document did exist, as Tertullian mentions it."

At this point Prof. Stornalola called to him a celebrated Jesuit scholar, Father Ehrle, the author of the magnificent book on the Borgia apartment recently presented by the Pope to President McKinley.

Father Ehrle showed to The World correspondent copies of the existing documents, and explained the technical and other grounds on which the scholars voted them apocryphal.

Prof. Stornalola is preparing for publication within a few months a book on the subject, together with an account of important discoveries in the Vatican archives.

What Judaea's Governor Wrote. The most important part of the work of the "Archaeo volume, or the archaeological writings of the Samaritans and of the Talmuds of the Jews"—which has been on sale in this country for some years—is the "Acta Pilati," or Pilate's report to Caesar of the arrest, trial and conviction of Jesus.

The report is taken from the work of Valeus Peterculus, a close friend of Caesar, who commanded the army for sixteen years. The report is given in full and deals with Pilate's first knowledge of Christ through his death. After describing recent events which had taken place in his province, which he said he feared might change the destiny of the Roman nation, he cursed the day when he was appointed governor of Judaea, and wrote in a most bitter way of the Jews.

He describes his first meeting with Jesus as follows:

"Among the various rumors that came to my ears there was one in particular that attracted my attention. A young man, it was said had appeared in Galilee preaching with a noble unction a new law in the name of the God that had sent him. At first I was apprehensive that his design was to stir up the people against the Romans, but my fears were soon dispelled. Jesus of Nazareth spoke rather as a friend of the Romans than of the Jews.

"One day in passing by the place of Siloe, where there was a great concourse of people, I observed in the midst of the group a young man who was leaning against a tree calmly addressing the multitude. I was told it was Jesus. This I could easily have suspected, so great was the difference between him and those listening to him.

"His golden-colored hair and beard gave to his appearance an ecclesiastical aspect. He appeared to be about thirty years of age. Never have I seen a sweeter or more serene countenance. What a contrast between him and his hearers, with their black beards and tawny complexions!

"Unwilling to interrupt him by my presence I continued my walk, but signified to my secretary to join the group and listen. My secretary's name is Manlius. He is the grandson of the chief of the conspirators who encamped in Fiverrina waiting for Catiline. Manlius was for a long time an inhabitant of Judaea, and is well acquainted with the Hebrew language. He was devoted to me and worthy of my confidence.

"On entering the praetorium I found Manlius, who related to me the words Jesus had pronounced at Siloe. Never have I read in the works of philosophers anything that can compare with the maxims of Jesus.

"One of the rebellious Jews, so numerous in Jerusalem having asked Jesus if it was lawful to give tribute to Caesar, he replied: "Render unto Caesar the things that belong to Caesar, and unto God the things that are God's."

Pilate then admits that it was on account of the wisdom of the sayings of Jesus that he granted him so much liberty, but says the unlimited freedom provoked the Jews and he was appealed to to restrain the liberty of the Nazarene. Complaints were daily made at the Praetorium against the insolence of Jesus. Fearing an insurrection, Pilate wrote to Jesus, requesting an interview with him at the Praetorium. He describes vividly his feelings at the first appearance of Jesus, saying:

"My feet seemed fastened with an iron hand to the marble pavement, and I trembled in every limb as does a guilty culprit."

The interview that followed was extraordinary, as Pilate's report shows, as follows:

The Interview with Jesus. "Jesus," said I unto him at last—and my tongue faltered—"Jesus of Nazareth, for the last three years I have granted you ample freedom of speech; nor do I regret it. Your words are those of a sage. I know not whether you have read Socrates or Plato, but this I know, there is in your discourse a majestic simplicity that elevates you above those philosophers. The Emperor is informed of it, and I, his humble representative in this country, am glad of having allowed you that liberty of which you are so worthy.

"However, I must not conceal from you that your discourses have raised up against you powerful and inveterate enemies. Nor is this surprising. Socrates had his enemies, and he fell a victim to their hatred. Yours are doubly incensed against you on account of your discourses being so severe upon their conduct; against me on account of the liberty I have afforded you. They even accuse me of being indirectly leagued with you for the purpose of depriving the Hebrews of the little civil power which Rome has left them.

"My request—I do not say my order—is that you be more circumspect and moderate in your discourses in the future and more considerate of them, lest you arouse the pride of your enemies and they raise against you the stupid populace and compel me to employ the instruments of law."

The Nazarene calmly replied: "Prince of the earth, your words proceed not from true wisdom. Tell the torrent to stop in the midst of the mountain-gorge, and it will uproot the trees of the valley. The torrent will answer you that it obeys the laws of nature and the Creator. God alone knows whither flow the waters of the torrent. Verily I say unto you, before the rose of Sharon blossoms the blood of the just shall be spilt."

Protection Promised. "Your bloom shall not be spilt," said I, with deep emotion. "You are more precious in my estimation, on account of your wisdom, than all the turbulent and proud Pharisees who abuse the freedom granted them by the Romans. They conspire against Caesar, and convert his bounty into fear, impressing the unlearned that Caesar is a tyrant and seeks their ruin. Insolent wretches they are not aware that the wolf of the Tiber sometimes clothes himself with the skin of sheep to accomplish his wicked designs. I will protect you against them. My praetorium shall be an asylum, sacred both day and night."

Jesus carelessly shook his head, and said with a grave, careless smile: "When the day shall have come there will be no asylums for the Son of Man, neither in the earth nor under the earth. The asylum of the just is there—pointing to the heavens. 'That which is written in the books of the prophets must be accomplished.'"

HAVE YOU BEEN IN TO SEE OUR FURNITURE?

"Young man," I answered mildly, "you will oblige me by converting my request into an order. The safety of the province which has been confided to my care requires it. You must observe more moderation in your discourses. Do not infringe my order. You know the consequences. May happiness attend you. Farewell."

"Prince of the earth," replied Jesus. "I come not to bring war into the world, but peace, love and charity. I was born the same day on which Augustus Caesar gave peace to the Roman world. Persecutions proceed not from me. I expect it from others and will meet it in obedience to the will of my Father who has shown me the way. Restrain, therefore, your worldly pride. It is not in your power to arrest the victim at the foot of the tabernacle of expiation."

"So saying, he disappeared like a bright shadow behind the curtains of the basilica to my great relief, for I felt a heavy burden on me, of which I could not relieve myself while in his presence."

After giving full details of the feast of the Passover, which was then approaching, and describing the arrest of Jesus, Pilate's report says:

Condemned to Death. "Jesus was dragged before the High Priest and condemned to death. It was then that the High Priest, Caiaphas, performed a disgraceful act of submission. He sent his prisoner to me to confirm his condemnation and secure his execution. I answered him that, as Jesus was a Galilean, the affair came under Herod's jurisdiction, and ordered him to be sent thither. The wily tetrarch professed humility, and protesting his deference to the lieutenant of Caesar, he committed the fate of the man to my hands.

"Soon my palace assumed the aspect of a besieged citadel. Every moment increased the number of the malcontents. Jerusalem was inundated with crowds from the mountains of Nazareth. All Judaea appeared to be pouring into the city. By this time the marble stairs groaned under the weight of the multitude.

"The Nazarene was brought back to me. I proceeded to the halls of justice, followed by my guard, and asked the people in a severe tone what they demanded.

"The death of the Nazarene," was the reply.

"For what crime?"

"He has blasphemed; he has prophesied the ruin of the temple; he calls himself the Son of God; the Messiah, the King of the Jews." "Roman justice," said I, "punishes not such offenses with death."

"Crucify him! Crucify him!" cried the relentless rabble. "I vociferations of the infuriated mob shook the palace to its foundations."

Vividly Pilate describes his efforts to save Jesus from the merciless persecutors and the pleas he urged to avert them into submission. His report then goes on: "Pilate Washed His Hands of It. "I then ordered Jesus to be scourged, hoping this might satisfy them, but it only increased their fury. I then called for a basin, and washed my hands in the presence of a clamorous multitude, thus testifying that in my judgment Jesus of Nazareth had done nothing deserving of death. But in vain. It was his life these wretches thirsted for.

"Often in our civil commotions have I witnessed the furious anger of the multitude, but nothing could be compared to what I witnessed on the occasion. It might have been truly said that all the phantoms of the infernal regions had assembled at Jerusalem. The crowd appeared not to walk, but to be borne off and whirled as a vortex, rolling along in living waves from the portals of the Praetorium even unto Mount Zion, with howling screams, shrieks and vociferations such as were never heard in the seditions of the Pannonia or in the tumults of the forum.

"By degrees the day darkened like a winter twilight, such as had been at the death of the great Julius Caesar. It was likewise the idea of March. I was leaning against a column of my basilica contemplating aghast the dreary gloom these friends of Tartarus dragging to execution the innocent Nazarene. All around me was deserted. Jerusalem had vomited forth her indwellers through the funeral gate that leads to Gemonia.

"An air of desolation and sadness enveloped me. My guards had joined the cavalry, and the centurion, with a display of power, was endeavoring to keep order. I was left alone, and my breaking heart admonished me that what was passing at that moment appertained rather to the history of the gods than that of man."

Dreadful Signs in the Heavens. "A loud clamor was heard proceeding from Golgotha, which borne on the winds, seemed to announce an agony such as was never heard by mortal ears. Dark clouds bowed over the pinnacle of the temple and, settling over the city, covered it as with a veil. So dreadful were the signs that men saw both in the heavens and on the earth that Dionysius the Areopagite is reported to have exclaimed:

"Either the author of nature is suffering or the universe is falling apart."

"Whilst these appalling scenes of nature were occurring there was a dreadful earthquake in Lower Egypt, which filled everybody with fear, and scared the superstitious Jews almost to death. It is said that Balthazar, an aged and learned Jew of Antioch, was found dead after the excitement was over. Whether he died from alarm or grief is not known. He was a strong friend of the Nazarene."

Pilate told of his midnight visit to the city and described the scenes as the crowd returned home after the crucifixion, stating that he was near and present as he saw the Jews departing from the awful scene.

"All slunk off like cowardly curs and gnashed their teeth," is the language ascribed to him. The story of the visit of Joseph of Arimathea to bury the body of Jesus is told pathetically. The resurrection of Jesus is dwelt upon at some length. Pilate's report on the subject being as follows:

The Resurrection

"When the great excitement arose about the sepulchre being found empty I felt a deeper solicitude than ever. I sent for Malcus, who told me he had placed the lieutenant, Ben Isham, with one hundred soldiers, around the sepulchre. He told me that Isham and the soldiers were very much alarmed at what had occurred there that morning.

"I sent for this man Isham, who related to me, as near as I can recollect, the following circumstances: He said that at about the beginning of the fourth watch they saw a soft, beautiful light over the sepulchre. He at first thought that the women had come to embalm the body of Jesus as was their custom, but he could not see how they got through the guards.

"While these thoughts were passing through his mind, behold! the whole place was lighted up and there seemed to be crowds of dead in their grave clothes. All seemed to be shouting and filled with joy, and all around and above was the most beautiful music he had ever heard; and the whole air seemed to be full of voices praising God.

"At this time there seemed to be a reeling and swimming of the earth so that he turned so sick and faint that he could not stand on his feet. He said the earth seemed to swim from under him and his senses left him, so that he knew not what did occur.

"I asked him in what condition he was when he came to himself. He said he was lying on the ground with his face down. I asked him if he could not have been mistaken as to the light—was it not day that was coming in the east? He said at first he thought of that, but at a stone's cast it was exceedingly dark, and then he remembered that it was too early for day.

"I asked him if his dizziness might not have come from being waked up and getting up too suddenly, as it sometimes had that effect. He said he was not and had not been asleep all night, as the penalty was death for him to sleep on duty. He said he had let some of the soldiers sleep at a time. Some were asleep then.

"I asked him how long the scene lasted. He said he did not know, but he thought nearly an hour. He said it was hid by the light of day. I asked him if he went to the sepulchre after he had come to himself. He said no, because he was afraid; that just as soon as relief came they all went to their quarters.

"I asked him if he had been questioned by the priests. He said he had. They wanted him to say it was an earthquake, and that they were asleep, and offered him money to say that the disciples came and stole Jesus; but he saw no disciples; he did not know that the body was gone until he was told. I asked him what was the private opinion of those priests he had conversed with. He said that some of them thought Jesus was no man; that he was not a human being; that he was not the son of Mary; that he was not the same that was said to be born of the Virgin in Bethlehem; that the same person had been on the earth before with Abraham and Lot and at many times and places.

A Worker of Miracles. "It seems to me that if the Jewish theory be true, the conclusions are correct; for they are in accord with this man's life, as known and testified by both friends and foes, for the elements were no more in his hands than the clay in the hands of potters. He could convert water into wine, he could change death into life, disease into health. He could calm the seas, still the storms, call up fish with a silver coin in its mouth.

"Now, I say, if he could do all these things—which he did, and many more, as the Jews all testify, and it was doing these things that created this enmity against him; he was not charged with criminal offenses, nor was he charged with violating any law nor of wronging any individual in person, and all these facts are known to thousands, as well by his foes as by his friends—I am almost ready to say, as did Manulus at the cross, 'Truly this was the Son of God.'"

"With the promise of faithfulness and good wishes to my noble servant, I am your most obedient servant.

"PONTIUS PILATE."

Residence 1119 Fourteenth St.

A thought for today:
 "Home is the crystal of society, and domestic love and duty are the best security for all that is most dear to us on earth."—Samuel Smiles.
 "Woman! with that word, Life's dearest hopes and memories come; Truth, beauty, love, in her adored And earth's best paradise restored, In the green bower of home."
 —Halleck.

Parent-Teachers Association
 The Parent-Teachers Association met in regular session at the Primary building, on Friday, Feb. 24. A splendid program was given by the pupils of the Primary department and those who were responsible for their training are to be congratulated upon the success of the afternoon's program.
 On account of the absence of several of the club members and leaders the regular lesson study was postponed until the meeting of March 9. The lesson promises to be one of real interest to both Parents and Teachers, the subject being "The Influence of Home Reading on School Work," then to be discussed by Mrs. Baugh.

Hutchinson-Pierce-Overton Party
 Washington's birthday has come and gone for another year, but for more than a week the social affairs of Lubbock have emphasized the meaning and brought to our memory the significance of the day by some of the most brilliant afternoon and evening parties of the season.
 In the charming and picturesque home of Mrs. Dr. Hutchinson, Mesdames Pierce, Overton and Hutchinson delightfully entertained with bridge, on Tuesday—the 21st.
 The large rooms were decorated with all that signified and interpreted the glory of the day, and from the tiny red hatchets and the pretty arrangement of crimson and white carnations, to the serving of the lunch, there was that exquisite harmony and charm, that goes to make a perfect afternoon.

 The lunch, a delicious salad course of creamed chicken in patti shell fruit salad, and bread and butter sandwiches, fruit cake and coffee, was daintily served by the hostesses assisted by Miss Gladys Rosson.
 The guests for the afternoon were: Mesdames Hilton, Conley, Winn, Cooper, Johnson, Reed, McLarty, Penny, Powell, Sears, Germany, Pierce, Merrill, Bellah, Merrill, Swift, Smith, Friend, J. O. Smith, G. Robertson, Rush, Malone, Woods, Johnson, Wheelock, Boerner, Quillen, Hurlbut, Pearson, Faulk, Denman, Keen and Miss Gladys Rosson.

Dr. Burwell's Rotary Sermon
 Last Sunday Dr. Burwell preached a special sermon to the Rotary club from the text "Lay up for yourself treasures in heaven, and not upon earth." Throughout the sermon ran a theme of service to ones fellowmen, civic responsibility, and obligation to the nation rather than accumulation of material wealth. He contrasted the satisfaction of having friends and a consciousness of work well done and duty fulfilled.
 The honest accumulation of wealth through service is not a sin, but rather an increased obligation to fulfill the opportunities that go with the power of money, provided a man never loses sight of the true wealth of character and service.
 The choir assisted with special music.

It is with regret that we see Dr. Burwell leave our city after his very pleasant work with us, and we wish for him every possible success in whatever field he may go into.
 Will the lady who left a pair of gloves at Penny-Smith-Keen party kindly call 45J.

Friday Needle Club
 The Friday Needle Club met with Mrs. Archie Hall on Friday afternoon at her home. A delightful social afternoon was spent and a bright discussion of needlecraft that was helpful and instructive that was enjoyed. Those present were: Mesdames Barclay, Lindsey, Denman, Long, Simpson, Walker, Fite, Jones, Spikes, Clark, Parkhill, Tweatly, Duncan, Alexander, Ruby, McSpadden, Pryor, Blackwell, Mitchell, Murfee, Hornsby and Payne.

 The Ladies Aid of the Christian church are having a tea at Mrs. J. D. Quick's home on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30.

Milah Maurene Tom
 Mrs. E. S. Tom entertained on Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Milah Maurene's 4th birthday. The guests of the party were: Evelyn Morgan, Joy Robinson, Layrube Bonner, Junior Leonard, Chaisey Davis, Aline Duncan and Nettie Bonner.

Miss Mifon assisted her mother in serving a delicious birthday lunch of cake, pink and white ice cream and delicious home-made candy.
 Mr. C. C. Whipp and wife, and her mother, Mrs. S. V. Edwards, Mr. Chester and wife are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Whipp. This jolly party recently motored 300 miles from Balmorhea to Lubbock for a delightful old fashioned family reunion which is the order of the day at the Whipp home. We welcome these visitors to our city and feel sure that it will mean a permanent residence for them after they really learn to know Lubbock.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS FROM THE IDALOU COMMUNITY

Well I guess spring is approaching as the wind don't fail to blow most of the time.
 A. G. Ross is building a nice bungalow on his farm 1-2 mile west of town.

J. L. Brabham shipped a car load of cattle to Fort Worth Saturday.
 The farmers are winding up their last year's crop. They are shipping out the last of their Sudan.

Miss Alex Golsbey, one of our school teachers, visited her aunt in Slaton Saturday and Sunday.
 Miss Boles and Mrs. Bostner, two of our teachers, visited in Amarillo Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Cleo Swafford, one of our teachers, visited her folks at Plainview Saturday and Sunday.
 The debate at the auditorium Friday night was well attended.

Mr. Morris, our telephone man, has been putting up some line work east of town. This is a great help to the people of that country as they can talk to their neighbors and also to town.

Mr. Theil Lee was on the sick list last week, but at this writing is up again.
 There is some farming going on in the way of listing, but the ground is too dry to make much headway.

Miss Thelma Alvey visited with Miss Theo Swafford Thursday night and attended prayer meeting at the Baptist church.
 There was quite a lot of hogs killed Thursday, as that was the first cold day we have had for some time.

Brother Summers went to Joyton Saturday to fill his regular appointment as he preaches one half time there and half time at Idalou.
 Brother Russell, the Methodist pastor, filled his appointment at Idalou Sunday and Sunday night.

Our school is progressing nicely, it is crowded to its full capacity.
 Walter Haynes was very sick a few days last week but was able to be up Saturday.

Mrs. N. P. Cochran, our depot agent's wife, came home last week from Snyder, where she had been with her mother for several weeks. I am sure N. P. was glad to welcome her home as he has been batching while she was away. She also brings with her a fine baby boy five weeks old, which the agent is very proud of.

Professor Baldwin and Mr. Edd. Harrison made a business trip to Lubbock Saturday.
 There will be singing at the auditorium Sunday. Everybody is invited.

Miss Alta Cacanough was taken to a Lubbock Sanitarium for an operation last week and is reported to be recovering.
 Uncle Charlie McCurdy came home last week from a trip to Tarrant county where he went to visit friends and relatives. I am sure Uncle Chas thinks this country is good enough for him.

LYNN COUNTY NEWS
ITEMS OF INTEREST
 J. M. Denton, district manager of the Woodmen of the World lodge, was in Tahoka Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Denton met with the local order at the regular meeting Saturday night and made an interesting address.

Sam King, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake King, of this city, had the misfortune last Saturday to break his collar bone while riding calves in the cow lot. The little fellow suffered a great deal of pain from the break, but is getting about at this writing.

Jack Stricklin, editor of the Terry County Herald at Brownfield, accompanied by Prof. Wilson, of Gomez, were business visitors in Tahoka last Saturday. Editor Stricklin reports business in his city good and that they would soon begin the installation of their light and water plant, funds for which have been subscribed by Brownfield citizens since the election for bonds for this purpose failed to carry on a recent date.

While playing ball on the public school grounds Thursday of last week, Hugh Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Thomas, was hit on the arm near the elbow with a base ball which fractured the member. He is now forced to carry his left wing in a sling.
