Sentenced to Reformatory for Firing Sweetwater Building

Sweetwater, Sept. 28.—Fred Dixon, 14 year old Sweetwater boy, was sentenced to the Gatesville Reformatory until he is twenty-one by Judge Mauzey in juvenile court late Tuesday afternoon.

He was charged with setting on fire the East Ward school house which endangered the lives of over three hundred school children Monday morning, September 11, and with the setting on fire a day or so later of a shed belonging to E. J. Eldson, filled with hay. According to the authorities, the lad confessed to both crimes. In the case of the East Ward school, the lad in company with another boy was sent on an errand to the unused third floor of the building shortly after school opened. Fire was discovered shortly afterward.

The lad assigned no reasons for his acts. It is thought that this action on the part of the authorities clears up many unexplained fires that have puzzled the Sweetwater Fire Department for many months. Twice the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber yard was found to be on fire shortly after the lad was seen on the premises, and he was in the Sweetwater high school building the night that flames damaged it to the extent of $35,000 in December of 1921. The Fire Department have answered so many alarms to the Dixon premises that insurance companies have refused insurance on them.

The jury returned its verdict this morning about 8:30 o'clock. He was to be sentenced this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Jackson was charged with murder in connection with the killing of Roy W. Lackey on a ranch about two miles east of Rena, Quay County, New Mexico, on October 2, 1921. The case was on trial five days.

METHODIST CONFERENCE TO CLOSE SUNDAY EVE—HERE NEXT YEAR

Business Session Closes This Afternoon and All Day Sunday Will Be Devoted to Religious Services—Love Feast Will Be Held Sunday Evening Which Will Be One of the Most Enjoyable Services to Many.

The third day of the Bible Conference dawned with a good attendance present, as still other delegates and preachers and connectional men arrived Friday evening, and were assigned homes for the night, and were ready for the session at nine o'clock. Today is bringing a lot of people, too, and Sunday will no doubt see the greatest crowd that has ever been seen in attendance upon a meeting of this character.

tence, and there was shouting in the congregation. Dr. Morrison is bringing some of the strongest sermons that have ever been heard in Lubbock, and it is expected the crowds are increasing as it becomes noised abroad the greatness of this man. Had it not been for the fair that has kept many people away, the house would not have held the crowds that are anxious to hear him, and it will be necessary for the people to come early Sunday if they expect to get a seat in the main auditorium. Some of the other churches are going to turn their congregations loose to attend the closing service of the conference, and the Methodist people are making every preparation to take care of them when they come.

Sunday Morning 9:45 to 11:00—Big Sunday school Rally, prominent speakers. 11:00: Sermon—Rev. H. C. Morrison, D. D. Sunday Afternoon 3:30 to 4:30: Women's Meeting—Presiding officer, Mrs. S. H. Adams. 6:30 to 7:30: Love Feast—Conducted by Rev. R. F. Dunn. 7:30: Sermon—Rev. H. C. Morrison, D. D.

There will also be a League Rally service during the afternoon at which there is expected to be representatives of all the leagues in the Lubbock District, with prominent people visiting from other conferences. This is expected to be one of the greatest meetings for the young people that has ever been held in the Lubbock district. The leaguers are looking forward to this service with great anticipation of a splendid service.

Dr. Dickenson was compelled to leave this morning, but his wonderful addresses on the Program of Christian Religion have been greatly enjoyed by all who heard him. The conference regretted very much that he could not remain for the close of the conference.

All in all it has been a great conference so far, and still there is more to come. The Avalanche is glad to have had an opportunity of reporting this great meeting, and we have enjoyed the presence of these splendid men and women, many of whom have visited our office, and personally thanked the Avalanche for the manner by which we have given the meeting a large range of publicity.

BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP TO BE DECIDED TODAY

This afternoon on the baseball diamond at the Fair Grounds, the winners of the preliminaries in the community baseball contest will play off the championship game to decide the winner. Shallower won over Abernathy, and Union won over Carlisle the first day, and the winners of those two contests will clash today. Bottom was to have played Shallower yesterday but for some reason failed to appear, and the game was forfeited to Shallower. Thus Shallower and Union will decide the Championship in today's fracas.

SOME TEXAS HISTORY AND PEOPLE WHO MADE IT

Battle of Gonzales
The first shot fired for Texas independence was on October 2, 1835, at Gonzales, where the Mexicans tried to get a cannon which the people had there as a protection against the Indians. Colonel Ugartechea, commander at San Antonio, knew these people would use the cannon against his troops if war should be declared, so he decided to get possession of it. To keep from alarming the colonists, he sent a corporal and five soldiers with an ox-cart for it, but when they refused to surrender it, he sent a captain and a 100 dragoons to take it. Upon arrival he did not feel strong enough to cope with the situation, so he marched up the river and went into camp to await reinforcements. The soldiers spent a pleasant night in raiding a farmer's melon patch, but at break of dawn they were surprised to see a hundred and fifty Texans, under command of Colonel John H. Moore, marching down upon them with the disputed cannon mounted on heavy wheels and pointing toward them in a threatening way. It was loaded with scrap iron and pieces of chain, and at the first volley the Mexicans broke and fled in terror, leaving five dead on the field. Thus ended the battle of Gonzales, the first one fought for Texas independence.

First Congress of the Republic
On October 3, 1836, the first Congress of the Republic of Texas met at Columbia, Brazos county. Prior to this the seat of government was at Velasco. The accommodations were very meager, but a commodious residence was used as a state house. It had several large rooms on the ground floor, with a wide hallway between. Two of these rooms were used for the assembly of the House and Senate and other rooms for committee meetings and clerical work.

In consequence the serious illness of Lorenzo de Zavalla, vice-president of the Republic, Senator Richard Ellis, of Red River county, was elected president pro tem of the Senate, and Richardson Scully, secretary. In the House of Representatives, Ira Ingram of Matagorda, was elected speaker, and Willis A. Farris, secretary. The next day after the usual notifications from one house to the other, and the joint notification to the executive, President Burnet sent in his message.

Agricultural & Mechanical College
The United States Government during the Civil War offered a large grant of land to each state that would agree to establish and maintain a college for instruction in agriculture and in the art of mechanics. When Texas was re-admitted to the Union, after the war, the legislature in 1871, voted to accept the offer from the Federal Government, and received a grant of one hundred and eighty thousand acres of land. The school was located on the main line of the Houston and Texas Central railway, four miles south of Bryan, in Brazos county. The first session began October 4, 1876, with six students in attendance.

Coleman County
Coleman county was organized October 5, 1864 with Coleman as the county seat. It was created by the legislature February 1, 1858, out of Brown county.

This county was named in honor of Robert M. Coleman, who was born in Kentucky in 1779, and came to Texas in 1832. He acquired experience in fighting Indians in Kentucky, and was appointed captain of the first company of Texas Rangers ever organized, serving in this capacity on the extreme frontier of Bastrop county and the region north of what is now Williamson and Burnett counties, until 1835, when he resigned to become a member of the Consultation, and in 1836 was elected a member of the Convention from Bastrop, and was one of the signers of the Declaration of Texas Independence. He served as an aide to General Sam Houston at the Battle of San Jacinto. In 1838 he was drowned in the Brazos river at Velasco. Just one year later his widow and son were killed by Indians at their home in Bastrop county.

Delta County
Delta County was organized October 6, 1870, with Cooper as the county seat. It was created out of Hopkins county, July 29, 1870. This county was so named because of its shape so nearly resembling that of the Greek letter, Delta. Its boundaries lie between the two branches of the Sulphur Fork of Red River.

SEMINOLE

The Sentinel
T. A. Cartwright, a prominent farmer, living about two miles west of Seagraves, shot another citizen of that community, C. H. Smith, about noon in front of the residence of G. N. Turner. It is rumored that these two men had been having trouble for some time past, Smith having made insults toward Cartwright's family. The two men met at the above-named place—Cartwright supposedly was enroute home from town, was walking, while Smith was riding horseback. It is also rumored that they had an argument immediately before the shooting, however, so far as we are able to learn, there were no eye-witnesses to the affray. Cartwright emptied a 32 caliber Colt's automatic pistol at Smith, one bullet taking effect near the heart, one through his left wrist, and one in his left lower limb, just above the knee. The horse received three bullet wounds. Upon being shot the horse turned toward town at a fast run, going down the main street and turned north at the corner of the hotel building, and it was at this point that Smith fell from the saddle. He was picked up and placed on the porch at the hotel, where medical aid was given, and later was carried to the warehouse of the Peoples' Mercantile Co., where at 1:48 p. m. he died. We understand that Mr. Cartwright followed him down the street, walked up to where

Smith was lying on the porch and told those near that he was responsible for the condition of the man, that he was forced to protect his home in doing the act, and that he was ready to surrender to the proper authorities. He was brought to Seminole Sunday afternoon, and on Monday afternoon an examining trial was had before justice of the peace, Lane Barton. A. L. Duff, county attorney, represented the State, and G. E. Lockhart the defendant. He was granted bond in the amount of $5,000 for his appearance before the Gaines county grand jury, which convenes Monday, October 2. The remains of Smith were buried Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Seagraves cemetery. A deal was closed this week whereby Pittman Brothers, local merchants, sold their stock of groceries to R. M. Halley, who recently moved here from Ireland, Texas. Mr. Halley will take over this stock on October 1. Pittman Brothers will retain their stock of dry goods and expect to center on this line, and will add to their present stock a complete assortment of all goods carried.

Announcement

THE FIRM OF COLLIER BROS. ANNOUNCE THE CHANGE IN NAME OF THE LUBBOCK MONUMENT WORKS TO THAT OF

South Plains Monument Company

The latter name will be familiar to many of the out-of-town readers of the Avalanche, as the South Plains Monument Company of Plainview has for many years, supplied the needs of other towns and communities around Lubbock in this line.

This, our third yard, we recently acquired on account of the possibilities of Lubbock as a distributing point, and because we believe that Lubbock is to be the City of the South Plains.

We would have our future customers bear in mind that freight is quite an item in the cost of a monument and as all the better granite and marble come from Vermont, Massachusetts, or Georgia, we will be able to effect quite a saving as we ship everything in CAR LOTS and all carving, lettering, etc., is done at our yard.

We will be glad to have you call and inspect the work on display or a post card will bring our salesman to your home with no obligation on your part to buy unless you wish to do so.

WATSON FUNERAL ATTENDED BY A BIG GEORGIA CROWD

Thomson, Ga., Sept. 29.—Beneath a clear sky and blazing sun, the body of United States Senator Thos. E. Watson came home Thursday and was laid to rest in the soil of McDuffie county as thousands of countrymen from Georgia's backwoods united with prominent officials and leaders in paying a last tribute to his memory.

Brief and simple were the funeral services at "Hickory Hill," the Watson home, but every honor within the province of that town was paid the departed senator. Rev. E. J. Forrester of Sparta, formerly pastor of the Watson Baptist church, and a close friend of the late senator, officiated at the funeral.

PARENTS AS EDUCATORS

The Desire to Please
(By Minerva Hunter)

The telephone gave a sharp ring. Mrs. Kent lifted the receiver and her old schoolmate heard this one-sided conversation: "Yes, this is Mrs. Kent." "All right, Mrs. Dake." "He did!" "We'll have it replaced today, Mrs. Dake. I cannot tell you how sorry I am that it happened." "Have you sent him home?" "As if in answer to her question the side door opened and Hilman went to his room." "Half an hour later when he had departed for his father's office, Mrs. Kent sat down beside her guest. "I suppose you have a pretty good idea what has happened," she remarked with a rueful smile. "I should say that Hilman broke a window." "Exactly!" exclaimed his mother. "That is the second he has broken this vacation. We made him pay for the first out of his savings and thought that lesson would be enough, but he has done it again. Why do boys enjoy destroying things? Tell me, Susan." "I hardly think Hilman enjoyed it. I heard his explanation and it seemed to me he disliked every minute of the rock throwing because his first experience told him he was likely to break a window." "Yes, I gathered that from what he said," the mother agreed, "but he went on playing just the same. Sometimes I lose all patience with Hilman. If you can think of some explanation that will give me sympathy for him, Susan, please tell me what it is." "Even if it brings you up to criticism?" Susan's eyes twinkled. "Yes," Mrs. Kent consented. "It may be if I can criticize myself I can understand Hilman better." "I remember that when you were much older than Hilman you were destructive in a far more serious way than he." "How?" gasped Mrs. Kent. "When I knew you at boarding school we attended many mid-night feasts together. Salmon salad—" "Ugh!" shuddered Mrs. Kent. "As I was saying, salmon salad was the chief dish at all these revels. You knew it would make you sick, but still you never refused to eat it." "Pray, wise friend, what has salmon salad to do with broken windows?" "Salmon salad injured your digestion; a broken window injures a house. I had rather break a window than ruin my digestion." "It is more sensible," Mrs. Kent agreed, "but you see I almost had to eat salmon salad. The girls never would have understood if I hadn't. Why, I believe they would have hated me." "I gathered from what Hilman said that was the trouble in his case." "What?" "A desire to please and be understood." "Yes?" questioned the mother. "When all the other boys threw rocks at the tin sign on Mrs. Dake's garage, Hilman could not endure being different and risking being misunderstood. He wanted to be pleasant and friendly and agreeable." "You are right," Mrs. Kent nodded, "and now that you have discovered the cause, can you prescribe a cure?" "Of course Hilman should not break windows. Make him pay for every destructive act, just as you are now doing, but remember that he is a human being and dislikes being different and for that reason he is likely to follow the crowd even when he knows better. He is going through a trying time in his effort to adjust himself to the ways of the world. The desire to please is commendable; not for anything would you have him rude or unpleasant. Grown people cannot always tell where the line is drawn between politeness and destructiveness. Deal firmly with Hilman, but always remember that this sin is really an over-worked virtue."

Doing it For Others
(By Lydie Lion Roberts)

From the time the children went to the kindergarten they began to make all sorts of things and bring them proudly home to Mother. And each time I would say, "Now make another one just like that here at home and give it to someone who will enjoy it." Often the second article was made in a different color or the child was encouraged to think out various improvements. If we did not have exactly the same materials in the house as were used at school, we would hunt until we found something almost as good, or that carried the same idea in a different way. When I mentioned this plan to one of the teachers she approved of it and told me she wished all the mothers would do the same, for the child really understood then just how the work was done, and in the second trial corrected mistakes of the first.

So all through the school days, the children have made duplicates of pictures, frames, blotters, boxes, calendars and woodwork. Some of these were always given to friends or playmates, and also used for birthday presents. I remember one cold day when the oldest boy had to stay in the house because of a cold, yet the time passed quickly to him for he was busily working on five new pinwheels that he had just learned to make. Every little while a child's face would be pressed against the window pane and a voice would call eagerly, "Is mine done yet?" The boy was very pleased and proud to think the children outdoors were waiting so anxiously for his work.

WHY SUFFER HOG CHOLERA LOSSES?

The above slogan is just an ounce of precaution, but that ounce has been carefully weighed by the Bureau of Animal Industry and legitimate veterinarians over the country, until now it equals a pound of cure.

Wherever you hear the word, hog, you also find closely associated with it the word, cholera. Why is this the case? The answer can well be summed up in this statement: Most hog raisers consider the disease too lightly, leaving their hundreds of dollars invested to chance and fate.

Hog cholera is an acute blood poisoning or septicemia to which only swine are susceptible. The first identified outbreak of hog cholera in the United States occurred in Ohio in 1853. From this state it has spread continually in every state in the union till now its presence either spells success or failure to the swine industry.

The exact causative germ of hog cholera has not yet been found, since it cannot be grown on artificial cultures, neither can it be seen with the highest powered microscopes.

In the beginning of an outbreak, the symptoms and post-mortem visions may be entirely lacking and death very sudden. Not infrequently this condition exists in the first few animals that die, after which subsequent cases resolve into the acute type. In the latter the incidence is high, affecting practically every susceptible animal in the herd, resulting in the mortality of seventy to ninety per cent.

In the acute type the visit is gradual, the affected individuals being "slow" previous to the appearance of acute symptoms. Later loss of appetite and prostration are marked and affected animals can be made to move only with difficulty and manifest a marked tendency to hide under the bedding. Intestinal disturbances are quite regularly observed. It is probable that the redness of the skin formerly considered a valuable diagnostic agent is not particularly significant, since it is seen in other diseases. However, it is frequently found in hog cholera. In cases tending to become chronic the appearance of pronounced respiratory and intestinal disturbances indicate secondary infection. These are not caused by the germ of hog cholera. When cholera pigs are made to move, two important symptoms should be observed. These consist of a peculiar and typical "breaking" sideways at the hock and straightening of the ankle joint so that the individual appears to be "standing on its toes." The latter symptom is usually the first observable in cholera sick swine and precedes other symptoms by approximately twenty-four hours. Swine at this stage can be effectively cured with the serum treatment.

Briefly the symptoms of hog cholera may be stated as follows:

1. Abnormally arched back.
2. Rough coat.
3. Droopy ears.
4. Inflamed eye.
5. No appetite.
6. Tucked up flank.
7. High fever.
8. Crouched position and staggering gait.
9. Tail usually hangs straight.

There are some important facts to remember about hog cholera. Watch for a sick hog. If you find any hogs hidden in the nest which arch their backs and appear to be chilled when you make them get up, suspect hog cholera.

If the condition is cholera vaccinate with the serum virus treatment.

Hog cholera is highly contagious and spreads quickly. Infections are carried by persons, animals, streams, birds and so on.

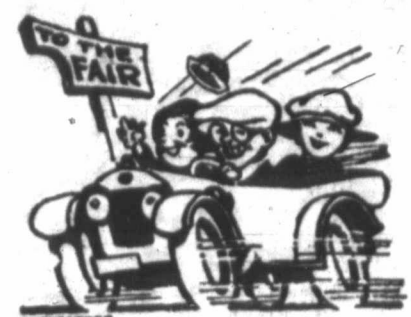

Burn diseased carcasses to ashes and bury them four feet deep. Keep pens and lots clean. Prevent all trespassing during all outbreaks.

Hogs can be made immune from cholera only by the preventive serum treatment.

What is preventive serum treatment? The simultaneous (serum virus) inoculation makes hogs permanently immune from cholera. This treatment consists of inoculating the hog with a small amount of the virus and at the same time injecting a proper dose of serum. Serum alone treatment gives temporary protection, lasting from five to six weeks.

Good serum and virus properly administered always proves successful but when hog cholera actually exists in a herd the owner may well expect losses to continue up to the seventh day after vaccination.

No doubt many hog raisers are more interested in the cost of vaccinating hogs and that should be a live item for dollars count in every business, and farming is surely a business, but the fee usually charged by the veterinarian is not pro-

SMILE WEEK IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

The governor of the State of Washington, Louis F. Hart, has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of that state to observe the week beginning October 14th, as "Smile Week."

Let everyone forget trouble. Greet each one with a smile, say some cheerful word. Do a kindly act, dismiss trouble and smile.

This is something interesting to us and shall be watched closely to see the effect it has on the people of Washington. If it was possible we would spend that week there, but as we can't do so, we will watch the outcome, and should it turn out to be all "smiles and sunshine," a committee will be appointed to wait on the Mayor of Abernathy asking that a like proclamation be issued for a week of smiles in "our own hown town." Just something to drive away the "blues."

GILES' DEMONSTRATOR WON CHAMPIONSHIP AT THE FAIR

Henry G. Giles, of Post City, owner of Giles Demonstrator, the big Duroc Jersey Boar that received first prize at the fair Thursday and was awarded Senior Champion and Grand Champion honors, is the greatest fair enthusiast in all West Texas no doubt, as the long ride he made with his truck load of six other hogs and the grand champion proves.

In discussing the possibilities of the fair, Mr. Giles expressed the opinion that each fair season is a boost to the association, as breeders of stock meet in competition, which, looser or winner, a man is naturally inspired to want to raise the very best stock in the country, and the fair is an association where they are judged, this event being the next starting place for twelve months of trying to come out winner at the following fair.

Giles' Demonstrator is a champion anywhere, and it is gratifying to know that the Post City breeder will sell some of his young hogs here, which are gets of the champion.

If the South Plains Fair Association does nothing more than create hogs as were shown at the fair this year, it is a good investment, and with the kindred interest shown in agricultural, industrial and art exhibits its value is even greater.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Sims, of Grady, N. M., accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. E. Sims, arrived in Lubbock Tuesday to visit at the home of his brother, J. W. Sims, of the Sims Meat Market, and to spend a few hours looking over the exhibits at the fair.

PAVING CONTRACT LET BY CITY COUNCIL FOR PAVING

The city council closed a contract Friday afternoon with the Panhandle Construction Company, covering the paving of ten blocks from the depot to the highway at the east end of Houston street. The paving will be done on natural foundation. Work will start on the new contract just as soon as the paving around the square is completed. W. D. Howren of Amarillo was given the engineering work on the new paving. The paving around the square has been very slow on account of the brick arriving so slowly. The west side of the square was opened to traffic last Thursday morning. The northwest intersection will be thrown open to traffic today, making the entire west side opened, and almost the entire fronts of the Kuehn & Farlow Garage on the north and the Magnolia Filling Station on the south side completed. The remainder of the square can be completed within a few weeks if the brick are received fast enough. —Randall County News.

FRIENDSHIP

The word "friendship is often used today, and about as often abused! Love is a rare and beautiful thing, friendship is even more rare and more beautiful. There is such a thing as love apart from friendship, but there is no such a thing as friendship apart from love. Love is the "cause" friendship is the "result." Friendship is born, cradled and matured only where love abounds and love dominates. Much of the so-called friendships about which men yell themselves hoarse is a cheap parody, an insult-to-everybody and beautiful emotion which friendship begets. Real friendships are never found in the marts of trade where men haggle over issues that involve dollars and dimes, and the alleged friendships that center there are as far from the real passions and ideals of love-begotten friendship, as one pole is distant from the other. Friendship is never advertised, never paraded and never placed on exhibition. Friendship is never found apart from truth-living, truth-telling, truth-dealing manhood. Look beneath the boasted "friendship" of the average street, and you will find a narrow, avaricious, parasitic, slander-your-mother, so-called loyalty, that follows the crowd wherever the crowd may lead. Friendship is incapable of crookedness, littleness or pelf. Friendship never seeks position, power or place. Friendship is above passion, hate and partisan appeal. Friendship never asks loyalty at the expense of personal conviction. Friendship never demands that others agree with it, whatever the price. Friendship always urges others to be true to their highest light, whatever the sacrifice and whatever the cost. Men who often talk much about "friendship" never had a friend, and in the nature of the case, can never have a friend. To have a friend, one must be a friend until all mean and low and vicious and dishonest things are put out of the heart. Men who have power to command men are often the most lonely and unhappy men in the world for they know their following is not the following of friendship, but the following of those who seek the "loaves and fishes." Jonathan and David were friends of whom the world has read. The friendship of Jonathan for David caused him to break his father's house, and practically to raise his hand in rebellion against the throne of his father. By the courtiers and flunkies of King Saul's court Jonathan was probably denounced as a traitor, and his acts of friendship toward David were branded as treacherous and the farthest reaches of perfidy. David was not alone true to God, but was King Saul's best friend, and Jonathan had sense enough to realize that fact, and manhood enough to rush to the defense of his uncompromising, unselfish, unconquerable friend. The friendship of Jonathan and David was cemented in the white fires of persecution and threatening death. Again it was the separation of the upper-chamber that our Lord announced to his faithful followers that they were to be no more "servants," but "Friends."

POST

Post City Post.

Quite a crowd of Post people went up to Lubbock today to attend Methodist Conference and will take in the Big South Plains Fair.

Mr. R. B. Patrick of Olney, Texas came through Post and spent a day and night this week. He was enroute to Lubbock where he went to make a location for the building of a new home fourteen miles northwest of Lubbock.

Up to Monday night Public Weigher D. L. Carmichael had weighed, 1025 bales and the gins are busy night and day. Cotton pickers are in demand and hard to get.

While the big leagues and the Texas and Southern leagues are winding up their playing season with good ball games, Post is playing some fast ball. Last Sunday they lost a game to Slaton by the small margin of 1 score, the final score being 4 to 3. Tuesday afternoon they played the Brunk's Comedian team, the score being 3 to 2 in favor of Brunk's bunch. During the fair, October 5, 6 and 7 they intend to play three games, one each day. The lineup for Post right at this time is the best we have had here this year.

Herefords Awards Announced at the West Texas Fair

Hereford cattle show at the West Texas Fair this year is better than that of last year and is attracting much attention and considerable favorable comment by those who daily view the animals.

The splendid display of Herefords were judged by John N. Simpson, of Midland, an A. & M. College expert.

The three leading exhibitors, C. M. Largent and son of Merkel, Gist Hereford Farm of Odessa, and R. V. Colbert and son of Stamford, were represented, and the ribbons were well divided.

In the aged bull class C. M. Largent exhibited "Gad Lad Jr." one of the largest bulls of the breed, weighing over 2600. The winning two year old, Colbert and Son's "Real Avonmore" is a medium sized bull of wonderful thickness and smoothness of flesh. He was Senior and grand champion.

A smooth fleshed bull, "Prince Fairfax 7th," owned by C. M. Largent, was first in senior yearlings. Gist's "Victor," a young bull of good scale was placed above the blockier thicker fleshed "David of K. C.," shown by Colbert and Son in the juniors.

The senior bull calves uncovered a wonderful prospect in Gist's "Model," who easily took the blue ribbon, then annexed the junior championship and gave "Real Avonmore" a close race for the grand. Great things in the future are prophesied for this young bull, smooth and well covered, with lots of quality and he looks like developing into a truly great bull.

In aged cows, Largent exhibited his well-known winner, "Lad's Julia," though near calving, she still retains the breed type and thickness of flesh that has won her so many prizes in the past.

Another sensational animal was shown in the two-year-old by Colbert and on in their "Vanity 2nd," bred by Gist, and purchased from him by the Colbert's. This heifer would hold her own in the strongest company, with wonderful straight lines and full of quality, covered with the smoothness of flesh, she is hard to beat.

Awarded Championship.

After a long, careful inspection the judges awarded "Miss Vanity" the senior championship over the Largent cow, the grand then went to her without serious competition.

Colbert and Son won first on Senior yearling heifers with "Nellie Comfort," a blocky, thick-fleshed heifer but deficient in scale. Colbert won first in Junior yearling heifers with "Jennie B.," second with "Fair Sagamore" who has been out of pasture only a short time, and lacks flesh and finish but shows great promise for the future. Colbert also won first on senior heifer calves on "Lady Donald 8th," a thick-fleshed calf which was awarded junior championship. In baby heaves there were five entries. Considering that this is the first year that this class has been given awards at the Abilene Fair the exhibits were creditable.

Glen Joiner, of Tye Texas, won the first with a grade Hereford steer that should kill out a very desirable carcass of beef.

LEADER'S PAGEANT OF STYLES GREAT EVENT

Ross Edwards, manager of the Leader Department Store, enjoyed great success in conducting the Pageant of Styles at the beautiful store building Friday evening, beginning at eight o'clock.

The streets and sidewalks were crowded with enthusiastic spectators for a good while before the pageant started, as the advertising that had been done for this occasion had proven very effective.

The Leader is one of the real big stores of the Plains, and is one of the many firms which is taking active part in offering big town service to its patrons, that its effect upon the development of Lubbock is wonderful, and with the activities in the work Mr. Edwards has successfully carried out, he is placed at the front as a big business man of West Texas.

The following took part in the pageant, and their knowledge of the work was greatly responsible for the Pageant of Styles being the much talked of event it was:

Mesdames Frank Barclay, H. H. Griffith, Bill Burleson, Joe Hilton, Raymond George, John Simpson, Barret Penny, B. F. Maxey, Miss Tessie Rhea and the little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Edwards, Mary and Dorris Jene, and little June Wheelock, Frank McElroy, Benton Teal and Mr. Rab Kimmel.

At the completion of the Pageant the many visitors were invited into the store, where the Lubbock High School Orchestra pleased them with many selections of exceptional artistic touch, and the hospitality of the progressive firm was realized, as the host of friends of the management who gathered there were treated to delicious fruit punch.

RELICS OF CONGRESSIONAL HALL SOLD AT AUCTION

Washington, Sept. 30.—Collecting a lot of truck scattered about the house office building, Uncle Sam hired an auctioneer and a boy to go out and ring a bell.

Some threadbare rugs over which statesmen might have tread, old water coolers, filing cabinets and old chairs were gobbled up quickly as if they had come from Westminster Abbey.

A little man in a brown derby bought a little faded screen after somebody had whispered it used to sit before the open fireplace in Thomas Jefferson's home. It looked quite old at that. A tall man, wearing a dark suit with green pencil stripes bought a filing cabinet which long stood in Champ Clark's office. A woman paid $19.50 for a rug out of the speaker's lobby.

"Look at the feet that have traveled over it," she exclaimed as she boosted the price the last two bids. "And look at the dust they left!" said a rival as she quit bidding at $19.25.
