TEXAN SAYS REPUBLICANS LOSE

SIMPLICITY IS TO MARK FUNERAL OF HARDING

By United Press
ABOARD HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN, OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 6.—The funeral services and burial of President Harding at his old home in Marion, Ohio will be as simple and unostentatious as though he were a private citizen.

Mrs. Harding made this decision early this morning while accompanying her husband on the long trying journey to the Capitol, and she so notified those in charge of arrangements at Washington and at Marion.

So far as the Washington ceremonies are concerned, she advised arrangement committee that she wished the precedents established in the case of President McKinley to be carried out, i. e., the body will be taken from the station to the East Room of the White House where it will remain until the following morning. And then removed to the rotunda of the capitol, where the public may pay fitting tribute to the President of the United States.

No Pomp or Display
Immediately upon the conclusion of the services Wednesday evening the body becomes simply that of a husband, Warren G. Harding, and as such it will be borne to Marion. She has specifically requested that there be no military, fraternal or official ceremonies in connection with the Marion services. She wants them simple, unostentatious and entirely open to the home folks of Marion among whom she and the late President spent the greater part of their lives.

The same train that bore the Harding party away from Washington in June, that is now bearing the remains of President Harding to Washington, is to be used in the Marion journey, where it will be disbanded.

President Coolidge and other officials Washington who go to Marion will not travel on the train bearing Mrs. Harding and the remains, but on another special train.

Mrs. Harding specifically requested that all members of the party on the train, including the newspaper correspondents who made the Alaskan trip, go to Marion for the services on the same train if possible.

President and Mrs. Coolidge Notables at Harding's Funeral
MARION, O., Aug. 6.—President and Mrs. Coolidge will be among the notables who will be here to attend the funeral of the late President Warren G. Harding. Col. F. Lahn, of the General staff is here today with orders from President Coolidge to take charge of the official arrangements for the funeral, which will occur in the President Harding's home town. MILLIONS SEE THE DEATH TRAIN PASS

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 6. More than a million people lined the tracks outside the city Monday as the train carrying the body of President Harding passed through on time. Railroad officials believe that the train will lose at least an hour of time, in making its way through the states, on account of the huge crowds that await the coming of the train to pay silent tribute to the dead executive. All along the line sympathetic citizens are asking concerning the health of Mrs. Harding, and in some sections people have taken their places along the track and have awaited for an entire day to see the train that bore the remains of the former president of our country, others stood at a great distance from the track, but solemn and sorrowing in many places a down pour of rain was falling, but they remained unmoved, and kept their places to see the train as it sped by.

At Dixon, Illinois, Dr. George T. Harding, brother of the late Warren G. and Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, son of Mr. Harding's personal physician boarded the train to make the funeral arrangements with Mrs. Harding.

WOULD LIMIT THE TERM OF U. S. PRESIDENT TO ONE TERM

By the United Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—A constitutional amendment limiting the term of office than any one person can hold the office of President to one term of four years, will be offered by Senator Cummins of Iowa. He declared his reason for offering this bill amending the constitution that the "responsibilities and strain of the office is greater than one man can stand for a longer period than four years."

Senator Cummins declared today that if President Coolidge adopts the policies of the late President Harding, that there will be no extra session of Congress, adding that he knew personally that Harding was against the move for the extra session.

Coolidge Holds Conference With Rep. Chairman

By the United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—President today conferred with John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee and William M. Butler, committeeman from Massachusetts, and while political gossipers foresaw a new organization in the control of the party, but Mr. Adams stated after the conference that no political matters were discussed. President Coolidge's friends believe that Butler will be appointed attorney general, as it is felt certain that Daugherty, the present attorney general will resign. John D. Reynolds, campaign manager for President Coolidge, in his race for Vice-President is also mentioned as a probable cabinet member, and it is also stated in political circles that Augustus T. Seymour, now acting attorney general may be appointed to fill that office, should Daugherty resign. This would be very pleasing to Mr. Daugherty and would help swing the Ohio delegation into line for Coolidge, should he offer for the presidency next year.

HARDING'S DEATH SOUNDS DEATH KNELL TO REPUBLICAN PARTY DEMOCRATS WILL GAIN FOOT HOLD

By United Press
DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 4.—The death of Harding weakens the chance of the Republicans in the 1924 presidential election, according to Lewis T. Carpenter, member of the Texas legislature from Dallas county and a probable candidate for governor in 1924. Mr. Carpenter declared today that "President Harding was unquestionably the strongest man the Republicans could have chosen," and that in his belief the death of Mr. Harding at this time has greatly weakened his party's chances in the coming presidential campaign. "A fight of any kind in the Republican ranks will greatly strengthen the democrats in their campaign, said Mr. Carpenter and their bickering and quarrelling has always ended in this result, and to my mind it would be more pronounced than ever in the incoming campaign."

Stores Will Close In Lubbock Today Celebrating "Lubbock Day" At The Baseball Park; Hubbers And The Gassers Clash

Today is Lubbock Day at the ball ground.

Everybody is going to the ball game today—whether they ever saw a ball game or not. The stores are going to close promptly at 2:30 o'clock which will give every man in town time to get to the park and get all set with a sack of goodness and a chew of gum ready for the game.

Amarillo is the victim today and you know how Lubbock and Amarillo ball teams mix things when they get together. Remember that game—why then for goodness sake join loose with a ticket for some kid that would give his right arm to see Lubbock walloper Amarillo. Let's make this a day for the boys.

Instead of either "putting up or shutting up"—let's close up and come out. The stores will open after the game in time for everybody to be taken care of.

Presidential Campaign Will Be Hard Fought

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The 1924 presidential campaign will be fought out on domestic issues.

This stands out as a virtual certainty today, as the result of the reaction over the country, and among politicians and party managers to Senator Hiram W. Johnson's great speech in New York last week on the dangers of European entanglements.

Senator Johnson, the reaction to his pronouncement shows, added the final blow to any hope of American membership in the world court, closing that "back door" in addition to the "front door," which was shut with a bang by a majority of 7,000, 000 in 1920.

No one in a position to speak with any knowledge of the situation in the senate can be found now who will essay even a guess that the proposal for ratification of the court protocol can be ratified. The general opinion is that with all the pressing home matters demanding attention the court will receive scant consideration. The chances are that it will never see the light of day outside the foreign relations committee.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY IS GROWING MORE POPULAR EVERY DAY AND FUNDS AND BOOKS KEEP COMING IN

Old John P. Lewis has been up his old tricks again.

Right out of a clear sky—without any warning—he delivered four stacks of bookcases to the Public Library Monday afternoon and a big volume of good literature to keep the several thousand volumes ready in such constant demand by folks of this section company.

That is not only typical of John Lewis—but of the folks of this town and meets a very real need of the library. Only a few months ago the library started with about 100 of the present equipment. There is not enough money in sight to start a library. There was enough books to meet the demand that naturally would be expected to be made upon the organization—but it was opened just the other day.

It is not only still running growing every day. More books are being bought. More are being donated. More are being trickling in—just when one day last week—just an and the one next to him said, "Why Lubbock Bill, you look as nice and clean as can be, compared with my dirty look. It is evident that you don't travel very far out of town. I'm sick and tired of traveling from place to place, but I hope that I won't have to leave this city for I like it here."

pected to be fewer this year, however. One very interesting development since prohibition went into effect has been the entry of many bootleggers into the counterfeit game as a sideline to the illicit liquor manufacture. It has been but a short step from faking the "Bottled in Bond" labels to counterfeiting Uncle Sam's currency. Many cases of this nature have been discovered.

Cotton Blooming in Littlefield Country Is Forming Squares

Special to The Avalanche.
LITTLEFIELD, Aug. 6.—Cotton of Lamb county is now blooming and forming squares rapidly. Drive in any direction one may wish and the eye is greeted on either side of the highway with the waving fields of rich yellow foliage nodding their blossoming heads to the gentle zephyrs sweeping across the plains. It is a beautiful sight to behold; one that makes glad the heart of both the farmer and townsman. For he knows those plants will soon be rounding out the bolls and stuffing them full of the white fleecy staple that brings millions to the planters whose hardy hands of toil nurtured and cared for them from the time when the tiny emerald leaves first peeped thru the mellow soil until they were gathered for the gin and market.

In about 40 days from the time the blossom puts forth the boll is ready for picking.

Then men, women and children will be bending their backs down the rows, dragging behind them the long canvas sacks, into which they stuff the cotton, picked with eager hands, where it in turn is sent to the gin.

By the middle of September the saws will be buzzing, scraping the precious lint away from the seed, the spinners pressing it into bales, sent to the spindles to be woven into beautiful fabrics, and under the skilled direction of the seamstress, backed up by the designers, it is fashioned into charming gowns to cloth and enhance the beauty of midday.

Such is the round of life in the "cotton sections" of the south and southwestern countries, every year the farmer praying for good crops and good prices.

The cotton crop in Lamb county this year bids fair to be the largest ever gathered. Perhaps it will run 2,000 bales. Present indications are that the price may go up to 35 cents per pound before the season ends. Granting all this to be true, it means a year of unprecedented prosperity for the South Plains country.

MOTHER IS GONE

At rest she peacefully slumbers, From sorrow and pain set free; This truth is a balm in our sadness, To comfort you and me.

She is gone to the blissful haven, Where tempest and storms never come. There to rest from all her labors, In that blissful heavenly home.

Three words more precious than others, Three links in a perfect chain, That binds our hearts to the land of rest, And they soothe our grief and pain.

They are Mother, Home and Heaven, And out on life's stormy sea, They kindly light our pathway, To the beautiful home to be.

As she rests in the peaceful haven, No sweeter words can I bring, Than Mother, Home and Heaven, And Jesus, the righteous King.

Dear mother just over the river, Not so very far away, Is waiting for her loved ones, At the Resurrection Day.

Simmons College Is Highly Commended For Science Depart.

Special to The Avalanche.
ABILENE, Aug. 4.—Simmons College was recently recommended very highly for its science department. The State Examiner in his report made to the State Board of Education after his most recent visit here expressed the opinion that "in the adequacy of its laboratories and the splendid condition in which they are kept, Simmons was not surpassed by any he had examined in the State." He gave credit for this to Dean Julius Olsen, who had headed this department in Simmons for twenty-one years.

Dean Olsen holds a Ph. D. from Yale and spent a year in Italy and research abroad, and two additional summers in this country since receiving his Ph. D.

One of the members of the great scientific world, such as Dr. Ernest Van Hoff, and Sir J. J. Thompson. He is largely responsible for the strong department that Simmons now maintains.

In 1920 a modern science hall, one of the best equipped in the State, was completed and opened at Simmons. The building was designed especially for the sciences, each department having a laboratory of elevated seats, the rooms wired for stereopticon, and can be made dark by opaque curtains. In addition to the 175 electric lights and 22 distinct wiring systems, supplied by the city current, it has its own direct electric current system, installed primarily to show students, a large number of whom are from ranches and farms, that it is possible to have all the electric conveniences of a city in their homes. This system supplies the current for the running of the engines in the buildings on the campus, calling the classes by an automatic clock system.

The following telegram of condolence was sent by the student body to Mrs. Harding at the White House: "Simmons College faculty and students assembled in memorial service tender you heartfelt sympathy. We shall cherish ever the memory of President Harding's great achievements for peace and justice for our country and the world." signed Simmons College.

In an address to the students, Dean Julius Olsen remarked upon the fact that Harding was a graduate of a small Christian college, and the additional fact that 19 out of our 28 presidents were educated in small Christian institutions.

In addition to detailing the life of the ex-president, an address was rendered to the country during the trying period following the death of Dean Olsen gave his personal impressions of Warren G. Harding, the dean having observed the president at close range during services in the Calvary Baptist church in Washington, D. C. last spring. He said that the former president had "as earnest and honest face as he had ever seen, and that this fact was impressed upon those who saw him."

Dr. O. H. Cooper of the Education department of Simmons paid high and beautiful tribute to Harding as a man and statesman, and stressed the outstanding achievements of the administration. He mentioned

Coach Stewart to Take Up Duties at State U. August 15

AUSTIN, Aug. 4. Coach E. J. "Doc" Stewart, in whose hands the destiny of the 1923 University of Texas football eleven will rest, expects to arrive in Austin by August 15 to make preliminary arrangements for taking over the Longhorn material this fall.

A man who has made a brilliant coaching record, and one who has humbled large colleges while coaching the teams of comparatively small schools, such as the Oregon Aggies, and Clemson College, Coach Stewart will take the disorganized Longhorn material and try to guide the Texas eleven to its proper place in football. And Stewart has shown his ability at moulding teams out of raw material by what he did at Oregon and Clemson College.

"For some reason," Coach Stewart stated in a letter to the athletic council of the University, "Texas University has always impressed me as an institution with wonderful prospects athletically, one where the physical make-up of the students justifies the expectation of victories over the very largest university teams of the country. I would welcome an opportunity to produce a winner over Vanderbilt, and believe it could be done."

Coach Stewart in his long and varied career has shown a peculiar ability to take over teams of small colleges or teams of large colleges that are in a disorganized condition, and to immediately turn out winning teams. As coach of the Oregon Aggies, Stewart turned out a team in his first year there which lost only one game; the previous year the Oregon Aggies had been tail enders on the Pacific Coast. The following year the Oregon Aggies were undefeated, and in 1915 Coach Stewart developed his team into a fighting machine which came east and humbled the strong Michigan Aggies, a team that had defeated both Michigan State and Wisconsin State.

From Oregon Coach Stewart went to Nebraska, a university whose football team was badly disorganized and had lost a team which in 1917 won the Missouri Valley Championship, defeated Coach Rockne's Notre Dame team 7 to 0, and trampled on Coach Jones' Iowa eleven two successive years, with the best scores of 34-17 and 48-0.

After the war Coach Stewart entered the automobile business, only to suffer from the financial depression of 1920 and 1921. He decided to enter the coaching game again in the middle of the 1921 season, and at that time found Clemson College the only opening. However, his great organization and coaching ability became evident in a short time and Clemson lost only one game the entire season.

From this record the fact that Texas has secured a real "Big Ten" football coach is evident. Coach Stewart has not only coached teams in the "Big Ten" conference, but has developed teams in smaller colleges that were in a class with the best in the country. Yost, Dohy, Beleck, Rockne and Jones remember Stewart as a formidable and worthy rival when he was coach of Nebraska. The hope is expressed here that Vanderbilt, Texas A. & M. Baylor and even Centre College and Georgia Tech may have the same consideration of him after he has coached the Longhorn grid warriors for one season.

Last year with some of the remnants of the "wonder team" of two years ago still intact and with the same coach who handled that wonder team, the Longhorns fell before the Aggies after going thru a creditable season. This year with a practically new team, and with a new coach the Longhorns will go into the field with everything to accomplish. What they will do rests largely with "Doc" Stewart, the veteran director of gridiron fighting men.

exact the penalty among tennis players with the same severity suffered by other athletes. Brookes remained a star until he was an "old man" and several of the star women of the United States "carry on" long past the age when the average athlete could have been counted on as having passed the peak.

Disregarding the promise shown by Miss Helen Wills, the California girl star, it is only logical to figure that Miss Longlen is not a champion for an indefinite period.

The French girl, regardless of what was said about her heart when she retired at Forest Hills two years ago, is none too strong and she has had a very strenuous career on the courts. She may retain her strokes and her technique, but her physical resources cannot go on forever.

"Little Helen Wills is building a strong game of distinctive masculine style, due to the fact that she learned the game and developed it against male opposition. She is developing great strength and unless the experts are all wrong, the time in years can be counted on one hand when she becomes the champion."

England, beyond a doubt, feels chagrined at the loss of national tennis prestige in a sport that is almost as distinctly British as Golf.

Victories of Miss Suzanne Lenglen and that great little American sportsman, Bill Johnston, in the singles at Wimbledon, took away again both the British titles and they caused it to be asked with some concern "What is the matter with British tennis?"

The same writer in Sporting Life, who paid tribute to the game of Miss Lenglen, advances the following theories in answer:

"It is the fault of the hard court which has been responsible for the loss of our supremacy at a game which was invented by an Englishman. The hard court has reared a series of foreign and colonial champions, who have gained their success mainly by taking of the ball on the top of its bounce."

"Nearly all of the best men are tainted with the theory of base line perpetual motion and what use is it when pitted against the modern school? Did it affect Tilden, worry Patterson or threaten Johns?"

All these three world's champions thrived on this warfare of attrition and regarded it with the serene content of a so richly full harvest. Their whole game is full of variety and the devil. We have heard enough about grandmotherly legislation. How about grandmotherly lawn tennis?"

The means by which our present champions held their swag are now, like the old fashioned gun boat, out of date and only for the scrap heap. They had to angle for their openings in a weary and exhausting way. The new champions angle for no openings. They simply hit the ball and mighty hard, too. Champions are not bred on hard on sun-baked grass courts and not on uneven surfaces, such as are experienced in this country."

Vinnie Richards, who won his way into the British honors, lost during the Wimbledon tournament because of his inability to hit hard off the ground, in the opinion of the same writer. "His great volleying certainly merited a partial success," he continued.

manager of the St. Louis Browns?" R. J. B. A. Fohl, from reliable reports, will not manage the Browns next season. Not that he is in bad with the Brown owners but because he is to get a better job as manager of the Boston Red Sox with Bobby Quinn, new president of the Boston team and former business manager of the Browns. It is also reported that George Sisler will manage the Browns next season.

Q. "Was it true that Jess Willard's handlers said he quit in his fight with Luis Firpo?" S.T.H. A. Some time after Firpo-Willard fight, Jack Skelly, Willard's chief second in the fight, gave out a strong statement in which he said quite openly that Willard had deliberately quit and that he was not badly hurt.

Q. "What caused the mid-season slump in the New York Giants?" B.R.C. A. Slumps in baseball are hard to explain. The collapse of the Giants pitching staff and the absence of Dave Ruskoff, star short stop, no doubt affected the morale of the club and was a big factor in causing the protracted lapse of form.

Big Tract Of Fine Land Is Opening For Actual Settlement

LITTLEFIELD, Aug. 6. (Avalanche)—In developing the town of Amherst and putting on the market the famous Six House pasture of the Haisell ranch was begun this week.

Ewing Haisell, owner of the property, accompanied by his Sales Manager Stanley Watson, Private Secretary James Higgins and his wife of Kansas City, and Contractor Wm. Robertson, of Vinita, Oklahoma, arrived on the grounds Friday.

Mr. Watson is one of the prominent citizens of Kansas City, was acting mayor at the time of building the big Union depot of that city and was instrumental in the construction of the noted Twelfth street viaduct. He has had several years' successful experience as a realtor and is well qualified to handle the management of this important project.

In an interview this week with a representative of the Leader Mr. Watson stated they had about 15 carloads of building material now in transit. The local land office construction was begun this week. One of the first buildings to be erected will be a two story brick 100x40 feet, costing approximately $40,000. The lower rooms will be used for mercantile purposes while the upstairs will be occupied by a modern hotel. Several residences will also be erected immediately.

It is understood that a general mercantile store has already been arranged for at Amherst, that a drug store will soon be established there and at least one lumber yard installed within the next 30 days.

Surrounding the town of Amherst there are 70,000 acres of fine prairie land that is being put on the market by the Haisell Farm Co. That the land will find ready sale is evidenced by the fact that this week 12 farms have already been sold, though the company is not yet ready for business. Mr. Watson states every mail is bringing inquiries regarding this land.

An International Cast For Gest's New York Theater

BERLIN. (By mail to the United Press.)—Morris Gest, American theatrical producer, is in Germany to add his bit to the internationalization of the American stage.

Gest, producer of New York's biggest spectacles during recent years, is in Berlin working out a new theatrical stunt—an international theatre for New York, with Max Reinhardt, Germany's leading producer and director, in charge.

Gest has signed Reinhardt to spend three months in New York this winter rehearsing the cast.

"The venture is not to be all-German," Gest said, in an interview. "It will have leading actors from all over Central Europe. It will be international. Reinhardt has proposed his 'Miracle' as a suitable piece, but I am convinced we should have another which will give the various nationalities represented an opportunity to show themselves at their best.

"The war is over. We want to reestablish understanding between nations. And this is not easy, even in America. Great and small diplomats are busy endeavoring to bring it about. And as theatre manager I am convinced that internationalization of the theatre—bringing the best in Europe to America—is a big step toward understanding between nations."

Silent Tributes to Late President. MARSHAL TOWN, Ia., Aug. 6.—Harding's funeral train stopped for water here at 8:28 this morning. Hundreds of persons stood bareheaded in silent tribute at the station. At Omaha, Neb., thousands of persons waited all night for the train, and the most impressive demonstration that the train received was at this station. Hundreds of floral tributes were offered.

Mrs. Harding continues to bear up and looking after the welfare of other members of the party. When the train arrived at Chicago this afternoon a monster demonstration was given, and thousands upon thousands of persons lined up along the sides of the track in a silent tribute to the late president.

Harness Volcanoes To Run Factories, A Japanese Scheme

By LARENCE DUBOSE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO. (By mail to United Press.)—Several Japanese scientists are trying to perfect a scheme for taming volcanoes, harnessing them up into horsepower units and converting their wayward energy into commercially constructive activity.

If the idea works out, the nicest thing a big industrial plant could have around its premises would be a fine, live volcano. You'd just pull a lever and the volcano would furnish all the heat to run the factory. Besides, after working six days a week running power plants, not many volcanoes would go on an earthquake spree on their day off.

Japan is just all cluttered up with volcanoes, good, bad and indifferent, and holds all the records of the world. In fact, it has more volcanoes than any other country. If every volcano in Japan was running a flock of factories, why, Henry Ford's quantity production would look like a mad rush to every new volcano field just like the Texas oil fields with wildcatting, selling fake volcano stock and everything.

Two Japanese engineering professors of the Kyushu Imperial University are now roaming around the Beppu volcanoes, sinking pipes into the ground and experimenting with various theories they have of the most effective way of extracting volcanic heat and turning it into productive motive power.

"It's a long chance," they admit, and it may be fantastic and unrealistic. But it was also a long chance, and fantastic, and it seemed unrealistic when men talked about harnessing lightning and making electricity run the world.

It Golf balls may have killed two birds on a London course; anyway, the men swear they did.
