NO TEAM STRONG ENOUGH TO STAND PAT ON PRESENT LINE-UPS AND UPHOLD THE PRESTIGE OF BIG SHOW, FARRELL SAYS

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor). NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Not one of the teams that were contenders in the 1924 major league pennant races is strong enough to stand pat on this year's lineup unless they make no changes and start the same teams in the 1925 pennant race. There are many weaknesses on the six clubs that finish—on two, three in the National and American Leagues and unless they are improved the teams can't hope to do as they did this year. If their opponents add any strength to their lineups. As far as playing strength is concerned, the Pittsburgh Pirates are better equipped than any other team in the major leagues, but the spirit of the club is in dire need of elevation. Lack of the winning spirit has destroyed the chances of the Pirates in the last three games and one or two players were responsible for it. The Pirates have great hopes for the development of Barnes, a young first baseman, and perhaps the management feels that a second baseman may be secured in some kind of a deal involving one or more of the four players. The New York Giants are desperately in need of an outfielder unless the versatile George Kelly should develop as much as John McGraw apparently thinks he will develop. Irish Meusel and Bill Ryan will be used in any kind of a deal that may be made for an outfielder or a young catcher. Gowdy and Snyder are all slowed up and Snyder may be passed along if this occasion demands it. McGraw, of course, could use a couple of new pitchers. Any manager could, as far as that goes.

Countess Karolyi Is In; Ban as "Red" Falls

Despite protests from S. Standen Menken, of New York, president of the National Security League, that Countess Catherine Karolyi, wife of a former President of Hungary, is a Bolshevik and a menace to American institutions, the Countess, after being detained at Ellis Island immigrant station, New York Harbor, for one day was permitted to land. She admits she is a Socialist, but denies she is a Bolshevik. The Countess comes from one of Europe's old wealthiest and most aristocratic families.

pitcher after their "all-star" regime of three years, but their pitchers are mostly ageing veterans and they cracked this season. The Yanks are fairly well fixed in the outfield with Meusel, Witt, Ruth and Combs, but they have no sub for Ward or Dugan but McNally, and he is not strong enough or good enough to last thru a season. Lou Gehring is a good fill-in for Wally Pipp and a fine pinch-hitter. Ty Cobb said if he got better work around second base next season that the Detroit Tigers would win the pennant, and that about sizes up his situation.

A SAD DAY FOR ALL THE DAYS IN KANSAS CITY

By United Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 1.—It was a hectic day for the Days. Charles Day, street car motorman quarreled with his wife and left home. His wife fainted.

Clarence E. Babeock, a neighbor held Mrs. Day in his arms while a physician was arriving. Then Day, the husband, unexpectedly returned, saw his wife in the arms of another man and knocked him down. Babeock obtained a warrant for the arrest of Day. The warrant was duly served on Charles Day, street car motorman, but not the original Charles Day.

His feelings assuaged with a days pay, which he had lost, the wrong Chas. Day went his way happily. A warrant was issued for the right Day, served, and the case called in police court. By that time the original Day was sorry he had struck Babeock and told him so. "All you folks go" said the judge. "I'll fine no Day today."

HOME EDUCATION

Children Are Persons—Their Toys Are Property

EDITH LOCHRIDGE REID

One rainy afternoon I picked up my sewing and ran over to a neighbor's to spend an hour. Fully three minutes elapsed between the time I rang the door bell and the moment that the door was swung back to admit me.

In the meantime I heard much commotion and great scrambling together of things in the front hall and living-room, and as I entered the mother explained between the walls of her small son. "George had his train tracks stretched from the door to the hall and there were stations and all manner of other obstructions that I had to gather up. I'm sorry to have kept you waiting, but really where there are children one never can receive callers without embarrassment—there is always something in the way."

And there George stood sobbing over the wreck of his plans, the tangible evidence of which had been heartlessly whisked into the window seat away from sight. He listened while his mother apologized because, previous to her death, she had not seen in that home, to have his property respected as far as possible. Yet what that mother seemed to do was to regard George as property, as something she owned and could treat as she pleased, instead of as an individual of greater value to her than any mere caller.

But there are other mothers who are not apologetic regarding their "look of their trade"; the toys and mechanisms by means of which they are preparing to turn out little citizens with right ideas.

I am reminded of another call I made once. A voice came through the keyhole of the door: "Would you mind going around to the side door, please? I'll let you in there."

And when I had entered as requested and been ushered into the living-room, came this explanation: "You see it was so stormy and Mary Jean was so lonesome I let her tie her clothes-line in the front hall and she happened to use the door knob for one end. Of course my house-keeper knows how much trouble it is to take down a whole washing when you have just barely got it hung up."

There was an attitude of loyalty to the child and her property and pastimes. Mary Jean will not run over the neighbor's flower beds nor throw orange peel on their lawns because she is unconsciously being made aware that individual property demands respect. Mary Jean's mother is not disturbed by a little confusion of regular routine; she is much more concerned with instilling in the mind of her small daughter a sense of fairness and a respect for the rights of others.

NOVEMBER MENU

The menus for this week are especially rich in mineral which are so essential for the growing child and necessary at all ages because of their importance in all body processes. They are found most abundantly in milk, green vegetables and whole grains. Cream of Wheat with bran, farina—which is a whole wheat product, graham muffins, and graham bread are all rich in minerals. The inner part of the kernel is rich in starch, with the minerals and other substance deposited near the outside coverings. When these outside layers, or bran are removed, most of the mineral content is lost. This is one of the arguments for using whole cereals plentifully in the diet.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE URGES AMERICAN PEOPLE TO ASSIST RED CROSS ANNUAL DRIVE WHICH OPENS ARMISTICE DAY

As has always been the case, the chief executive of the United States has given his attention to the great problems of the country in connection with the maintenance of the highly organized Red Cross system, and his words carry to every American a sense of duty and a greater appreciation of his subject.

A letter from your president to you concerning the American Red Cross and its annual roll call which begins November 11th, follows:

"The American Red Cross has become an intimate part of our national life. Under its Congressional Charter it is a semi-official agent of the Government, but it belongs nevertheless to the people. It is the instrument of the people in giving expression to the lofty, unselfish, humanitarianism, the practical idealism, characteristic of this Nation from its humble beginning.

The American Red Cross has been tested in war and the aftermath of war; in fire, flood and famine, and in the emergencies of peace. It has been proved an indispensable instrument for the alleviation of suffering and the betterment of human life in our own and other lands.

We should make unmistakably clear our faith in this instrument we have created for rendering service. As individuals it is our duty and privilege to be a part of this organization.

Yearly, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, the American Red Cross invites all the people to enter its ranks, it enrolls them for the States and as President of the service. As President of the United American Red Cross I urge universal acceptance to the invitation to join. The Red Cross needs and should have your generous support. Let its good works become your good works.

NEGROES ABANDON COTTON PATCHES IN COUNTY

Farmers in the eastern section of Lubbock county are at a loss as to means of gathering their cotton as the negro laborers brought into the country from the eastern section of the state, have abandoned their patches. Due to fear of race riots that were threatened following the attempted assault upon a white woman by a negro Thursday which aroused the entire citizenship causing many threats to be made against the negroes.

"No such I might pick some no cotton, but not in that part of the country," a negro told members of the sheriff's force here. He was all but scared to death he said when an armed posse gave him and a bunch of negroes on his place a lecture about their place and how they must keep it.

Hundreds of acres of cotton is now open and ready for the pickers, but white help is scarce and farmers are beginning to wonder where help will come from.

To combat the situation, firemen are filling on an average of eight cisterns a day and the number is expected to be increased unless a rain comes soon. A charge of $2.50 is paid to the city in advance for the filling of a cistern and firemen are not required to lay hose more than two blocks.

ATTRACTING INDUSTRIES

Smaller communities have advantages when it comes to attracting new industries. Land is cheaper, taxes lower, overhead expenses less, and living conditions for the workers better.

These are some of the reasons why industries are seeking to get away from large centers of population.

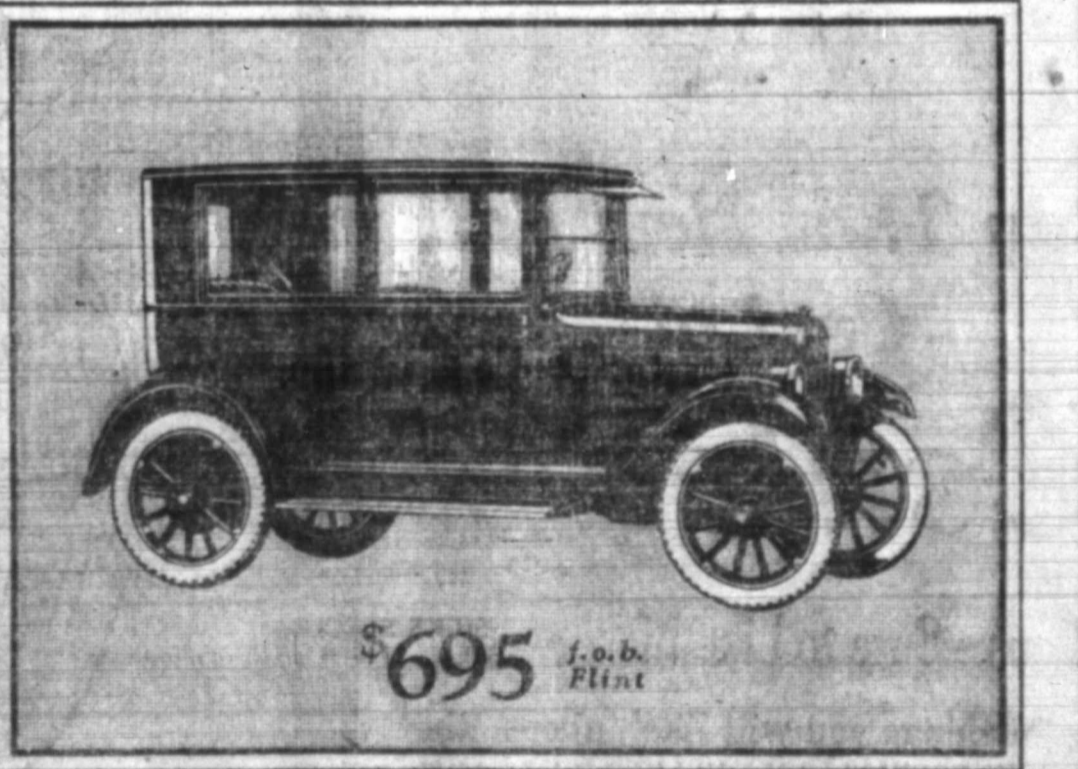

This movement is made possible by improvements in power and light, transportation, communication and the public utilities services generally.

It is made definite for a given community by the extent and character of these services that are available there.

In this movement to take advantage of opportunities Lubbock is cooperating with the people here by supplying Light and Power that meets the needs of a growing community that expects to add more and more industries and business.

DEMOCRATS TELL OF CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and James W. Gerard, treasurer of the committee and former Ambassador to Cuba, are shown as they appeared in Washington before the Borah Senate committee that investigated charges of "slush funds" made by Senator La Follette. They testified that up to that time, the Democrats had raised only $500,000 for campaign purposes.

FORMER STATE SENATOR'S VIEWS ON THE PLEDGE ON THE DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY TICKET—SAYS VOTE FOR GOOD OF STATE

The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Dallas News: E. G. Senter, former State Senator, in a recent issue of the Dallas News, version of the origin of the primary election pledge, in a statement sent to the News which in a part is as follows:

"In the News of Thursday appears a statement from Mr. E. N. Jones of Tyler, in which he says: 'In 1898 I telegraphed Senator James K. Jones, then chairman of the National Democratic Executive Committee, for an opinion as to a proper pledge to place on the State Ticket, and he wired me at Dallas, while the State committee was in session, what should be the form of the pledge. The statement now contains subsequently what he wired me. In 1906, when Campbell was a candidate, I managed his campaign. In an effort to defeat him many Republicans entered the primaries and voted against him. For the purpose of preventing those who were not Democrats from participating in the Democratic primaries and to those who might disregard their solemn obligations, early in the session of 1907, House Bill No. 20 was introduced to amend the primary election law so that the pledge would be statutory and compulsory.'

"Now it happens that I framed the pledge as it now stands in the law and offered it as an amendment to the bill as it came over from the House. Colonel Jones never spoke to me on the subject. If I ever heard of the suggestion of Senator James K. Jones I do not recall it. Certain it is that his views on the subject were never considered by the Texas Legislature.

"The facts are that the House passed a bill with very rigid pledge and with provisions which were designed to make it compulsory for the voter who entered the primary to vote the ticket straight in the succeeding election, without regard to his views as to the fitness of the nominees.

"I set about to defeat this purpose because I have always believed that a man's duty to the State was higher than his duty to any party. I have always considered that a man who put his soul in pawn to a party merely surrendered his sovereignty over as a citizen to intriguing politicians. I know enough about the history of Texas politics and Colonel Jones is old enough to know that the politicians who have usually controlled in Texas, bolt the ticket as they please to do so, and whenever they get on top preach the doctrine that nobody else is entitled to bolt.

"The pledge as it is attempted to use in Texas is a device of office seekers to hold over the heads of the rank and file in order to terrorize them into submission.

"Entertaining these views, I framed the pledge in accordance with them. Another fact of significance is that it was well understood many Republicans were in the habit of voting in the primary to nominate State and county officials who in the national election always voted the Republican ticket. The words 'this primary' were inserted in the pledge with the deliberate intent to make it easy for them to continue this practice and that was freely discussed among the members of the State Senate.

Fight Over Issues.

"Another fact of significance is that many who had been classed as Populists were charged with voting in the primaries and then bolting the ticket when they pleased. The Ultra-party element wanted to exclude them from the primaries, and I and those who agreed with me insisted that they had a right to follow their conscience wherever it might take them and that a man who would not do this was a mighty poor citizen. There was a fight over these issues in the Senate, and those who agreed with the views now expressed by Colonel Jones were defeated, and the pledge as I framed it—and I drafted every word of it without consultation with anybody—was adopted. I am glad to be able to say that Governor Campbell gave his aid in support of the amendment as I framed it and of the liberal view as to the effect of a primary pledge.

"This is the history of the pledge and is all there is to it. No man can speak more directly on the subject than I, because I started this fight in the State Senate and organized there the movement which resulted in the Senate imposing the will of its majority upon the House. It is proper to say that I do not believe this would have been possible except through the aid of Governor Campbell."

Defend the States.

"Republicans in nearly every Northern State have at one time or another bolted their tickets and elected Democratic Governors. How silly it is for a Republican to bolt that a Democrat may never bolt without committing the unpardonable sin!

"The truth is that the only safeguard against total depravity for all parties is the ballot. More power to his elbow."

STATE OFFICIALS TRAVELING EXPENSE LARGE

AUSTIN, Oct. 31.—Texas state officials are spending a fortune in travel, according to figures revealed by Representative John T. Smith, of Austin. Traveling expenses for the fiscal year ending August 31, totaled $438,353.53.

Of this amount the livestock sanitary commission took the biggest slice, spending $84,795, according to Smith's figures. The banking department followed a close second with 45,000, the special game commission second with 240,000 and the health department bureaus with 240,000. Included in this fund which has been termed "funding the government on wheels" as $12,614 toward transportation for Texas Rangers and a special fund for combating malaria fever of $935.

NO. 8 Our New Association

We wish to announce our New Policy—Association No. 8. We think that it is without doubt the best Mutual policy to be had. We propose to take 2000 members and to pay $2500 on the policies. We also intend to pay back all the calls you pay, in addition to your policy.

This is how we will do it—if you should live to the age of 70 years we propose to, at your option pay half the value of your policy and carry the remainder until death without further calls, then to pay the balance; in which case no refund for calls paid would be paid.

All calls will be $2.00 instead of $1.00, but we will doubtless be in a position to pay calls out of our surplus often. The cost is $5.00 per thousand—for an example a man and his wife may take a policy each in Number 8—a total of $5,000, at a cost of $25.00.

We can now write a man and his wife $20,000 worth of good life insurance as soon as our Number 8 is full value, at a total cost cost of $95.00. We give unusually good service; paying claims oftentimes before the funeral services are held. Our policies are real protection—for your families—the best and most economical insurance that money can buy. See us at your earliest convenience.

J. C. Wayland, died Friday morning, a check for $1,000.00 in our Number 1 and $1,500.00 in Association No. 7, a total of $2,500 was handed the beneficiary just a few hours later.

PALESTINE BOY FRESHMAN PRESIDENT FOR FALL TERM

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 1.—Tom Pickett, of Palestine, has received honor of Freshman President at the University of Texas, and has been given credit for much of the class spirit among the wearers of the green caps this year. Pickett went through the usual ordeal which is annually introduced into the lecture of a freshman president by the upper classes, as a part of the school traditions. After leading the freshman parades, making the enforced speeches at local theatres, and receiving the spankings of the upper classes, Pickett proved himself a good fellow and worthy of the honor of being standard bearer of his class...

HOUSTON WILL CELEBRATE FATHER AND SON WEEK

HOUSTON, Nov. 1.—Father and Son Week, Nov. 8-13 will be celebrated in Houston this year with even greater interest than attended the meetings in 1923. All Houston churches have endorsed the spirit of the week and plans are complete for Father and Son banquets in practically every club and church in the city. Governments may put capable men in charge of industrial undertakings, but the results are usually bad because even the ablest men cannot permanently defeat the political influences that are always brought to bear upon government business...

PURGATORY IS NAME OF HOME FOR THE POOR

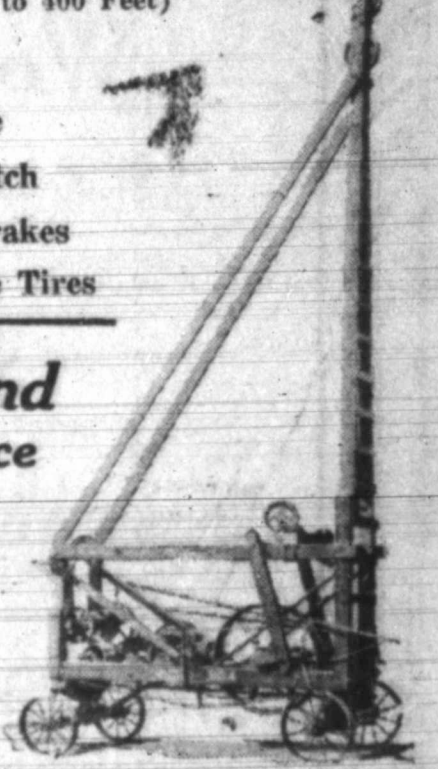

DALLAS, Nov. 1.—That is the name which inhabitants of one of the nation's most unusual rooming houses call their home. It is a home for those who in old age find poverty striding hand in hand with them—a refuge where for $1.25 a week they will have a place to sleep without it being extended by the hand of a charitable organization. There is a great spirit of brotherliness among those who live in the home—meals are cooked on a common stove and served on a common table—practically all funds are shared by the twenty-two occupants of the house—the door to "Purgatory" is never locked and the landlord is probably the only one in the country who doesn't work about his rent. There are no infidels among the 22 and vulgarly, profanity and profane riding in the house—the door to "Purgatory" is never locked and the landlord is probably the only one in the country who doesn't work about his rent. ONE LEGGED MAN HOLDS UP PAVING CONTRACTS

HOUSTON, Oct. 31.—Only the City dads were awake during a long and uninteresting session of the city council recently. There came the protest of a property owner against a proposed paving project because it would not enhance property values enough to pay for the contract. The objector to the proposed paving project was minor as he wished to know the franchise of the gentleman's property, one of the council asked "how many feet have you?" "Only one" was the reply. "The strength of the wolf is the pack, and the strength of the pack is the wolf." Co-operation is a key to the health of the group be it the community, state or the nation.

CHRYSLER SIX

Why the Country Is Chrysler-Wild Today

It is a revelation to sit in a Chrysler and look up at other cars you pass. The contrast is so marked that it recalls the days when the safety bicycle obsoleted the old high wheel over night. Viewed from the snug, low-hung comfort of the Chrysler, the others look awkwardly high and unwieldy. Not only do they appear unnecessarily high, but unnecessarily heavy and cumbersome. The delight which this contrast arouses is stimulated when the Chrysler gets under way. It has a flashing acceleration which is literally a new experience. Just as it is smartly unusual in appearance, and conservation of space and height and weight, so it is strikingly unusual in performance. It romps away from its unwieldier brethren with ease on level or grade, or hill—negotiating traffic with an alertness that must arouse chagrin in those driving heavier and more sluggish cars. It rides as no car even of its own high-quality type ever rode before. It does all of the things it is called upon to do as no other car has ever done them before. The Chrysler has blazed a new way and ushered in a new day in motoring—that is why the whole country is Chrysler-Wild today.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT WEEKLY RADIO ROAD CONDITION REPORT

All state highways are reported passable and in fair condition. Construction work has necessitated detours which in some counties are heavy or impassable after rains. Tourists are advised to get frequent information enroute; or to apply for same before starting by writing to the State Highway Department.

Dallas to Austin

Take State Highway No. 68 via Alvarado over hard surfaced and gravel roads. Then take State Highway No. 2 to Hill county line, where construction work is in progress and a detour is necessary. This detour is not impassable or heavy except after rains. Hard surfaced highway via Hillsboro and Waco to Lorena. Unimproved and gravel road Lorena to Eddy. Gravel road via Temple and Belton to Williamson county line. Construction work to Georgetown passable. Hard surfaced road to Austin except for rough gravel road five miles south of Round Rock.

The route from Dallas to Fort Worth over State Highway No. 1 and then over State Highway No. 2 to Alvarado is entirely hard surfaced and preferred by many tourists, although longer than the above route. State Highway No. 6 to Hillsboro and then to Waco on No. 2 is very rough in Ellis county by way of Waxahachie and Italy.

Waxahachie to Fort Worth

Take State Highway No. 54 over gravel roads to Midlothian. Just out of Midlothian Highway No. 34 is rough for five miles, but fair into Tarrant county. Hard surfaced highway into Fort Worth.

Dallas via Fort Worth to Mineral Wells

Construction work on State Highway No. 1 between these points is now complete. Good hard surfaced highway entire route, via Weatherford.

Waco to College Station

Take State Highway No. 6 from Waco to Marlin 26.9 miles. Marlin to Bremond 19.6 miles. Bremond to Calvert 16.4 miles. Calvert to Hearne 9 miles. Hearne to Bryan 22 miles. Bryan to College Station 4.9 miles.

From McLennan county line to five miles north of Marlin is an old graveled road, well maintained and passable at all times. From the latter point through Marlin and three miles south is a good asphalt highway. From here to Bremond is a well graded and maintained dirt road although gravel is heavy at the Little Brazos river crossing during continuous heavy rains.

From Bremond south the highway is a well graded dirt road for three miles; from here on south through Calvert and Hearne is a good graveled highway. From Hearne to the Brazos county line the highway is under construction, but is passable at all times. Gravel in fair condition across Brazos county through Bryan and College Station.

Austin to Brady

Take State Highway No. 20 via Johnson City to Fredericksburg over good gravel road. Then take State Highway No. 9 over hard surfaced roads in Gillespie county and good gravel roads in Mason county. Gravel roads in McCulloch county in fair condition, but rough in places. Near the Mason-McCulloch county line a detour is necessary due to construction work. This detour is rough at the present time. The route from Fredericksburg goes through Mason to Brady.

Brownsville to Robstown

Take State Highway No. 12 via San Benito, Harlingen, Mercedes, Donna, Pharr and North to Falfurrias by Encino. All of this route is hard surfaced highway. Between Donna and Pharr construction work is passable. Just before Falfurrias is reached the highway is rough in places. Take State Highway No. 16. Detours are necessary between Falfurrias and Rivera but these are usually in good condition. No. 16 is a gravel road to Rivera and hard surfaced to Robstown. Construction work is in progress from Bishop to Robstown by way of Driscoll. This is passable, however.

Austin to Lampasas

Take State Highway No. 2 to Georgetown, good except for ten miles between Austin and Round Rock. This is rough, where gravel is thick. Take State Highway No. 74 out of Georgetown. Road rough except for stretches. Road into Lampasas in much better condition and good time can be made.

Lampasas to Brownwood

Take State Highway No. 74 via Lometa and State Highway No. 7 just out of Goldthwaite. Continue on No. 7 to Brownwood via Zephyr. Road being dragged, rock and ruts in places, but on the whole in fair condition.

TEXAS DEBATERS TO TRY OUT WITH MISSOURI DEBATERS

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 1.—Debaters of the University of Texas will take part in the Missouri Valley Debating Conference this year, and will hold four debates with members of that conference, according to the decision of the Varsity Public Speaking Council. An invitation to join the conference came from H. B. Summers, secretary of the Valley League, who stated that Texas was invited by unanimous consent of the other members—Kansas University, Washington University, Oklahoma University, Missouri University, Drake University, Kansas State Agricultural College and the University of Colorado.

Candidates for the Varsity debating team must sign up for places in the try-outs before November 7, according to W. O. Moore, debate coach. Preliminary try-outs will be held on November 14 and on December 5, and the final selection of the intercollegiate Debating Team will be made on January 20. Various prizes will be offered the winners in the debating and declamation contests for both boys and girls.

It is thought that the subject for debate by the various schools will be the question of the repeal of the Johnson Immigration Laws, provision for Japanese exclusion. Selection of the Conference championship team is made on a percentage basis taking into consideration the debates won and lost. Each school enters four debating contests, two on home territory and two at opposing schools. Texas already has tentative debates scheduled with Oklahoma and Colorado. The others will probably be with Missouri, Washington or Kansas.

Monday is Dollar and Trades Day in Lubbock

WHAT IT REALLY MEANS—

The merchants of Lubbock one time a month each first Monday, place at the disposal of the thousands of customers of this territory unusually good values in merchandise. It is a general thing to find articles so priced that the merchant cannot possibly make a profit on them. Why is this done?

PROGRESSIVE—AGGRESSIVE—

To attract to Lubbock thousands of people on one day each month makes possible a closer acquaintanceship with the people of this territory. It creates business for Lubbock. It creates good will toward Lubbock and toward Lubbock merchants. It saves thousands and thousands of dollars for the consumers of Lubbock's territory. It is really and truly a patriotic sacrifice that cannot but redound to the good of every person interested in this city.

IT IS A BIG TRADES DAY—

Gather here on Monday hundreds of farmers from the South Plains with practically all kinds of things for trade and exchange. Good mares are traded for mules—beef cattle for milk cows, Cultivators and listers for hogs, turkeys for chickens, etc.

MONDAY IS THAT DAY!—BE ON HAND!

THE PASSING DAY

By WILL H. MAYES, Department of Journalism, University of Texas

Are we going "hog wild" over athletics? The indications are that we are becoming a little dippy over certain forms of athletic contests, and that we are placing more stress on athletic training in our schools than on academic instruction. No teacher will deny the value of physical development, but many teachers are coming to doubt whether the kind of training now being specially emphasized in our schools is bringing about the best physical conditions on the part of the students. Is the college athlete any better fitted for his academic studies by reason of the severe physical discipline to which he is subjected, or is he a poorer student because of it? The experience of most instructors is that the athlete who becomes keenly interested in inter-collegiate contests does not rank in his studies along with those who go in for physical training solely as a means of physical development.

Over attention to inter-collegiate games, which it may result in increased school pride, has a certain bad effect upon the entire student body in that it not only detracts from the interest in studies, but also has a tendency to cause students to think that athletics is the main thing in the school life—that nothing else is really worth while in comparison with winning a game for a school. It discourages those who know that they are not physically fit to "star" in the contests, and who find that whatever may be their intellectual achievements, they get but scant public applause. The student has difficulty in properly appraising his work, except as he sees it approved or ignored by the public. He sees a fellow-student heralded as a hero because of his brute strength or his physical endurance, and while he may applaud, there is a feeling that might rather than intellectuality is the thing most to be desired in life.

The hope is freely and frequently expressed by school men that, while every attention may be paid to the well-rounded physical development of our young men and women, we may come to attach less importance to those athletic contests that tax to the utmost the physical endurance of students and that excite to the highest pitch those who watch the outcome of the games. There is a feeling that these things have come about through a spirit of rivalry between schools rather than from any real desire to help either the athlete or the students by having such contests. It is frequently asserted that the school would not put forth its utmost efforts in such contests would it find itself without students, and that college athletes as now practiced will become more and more the central interest in our schools unless the schools get together in some agreement to call a halt.

The carrying critic is likely to get in bad repute, but at times it is hard to refrain from criticism. The writer has attended a few Texas fairs this fall and has read the advertisements of others. Almost every fair held in the State has had a section set aside for gambling devices, such as numbered rolling wheels, where a needle stopping on a certain figure entitled the winner to a certain prize. Many devices of a similar kind, but all plainly gambling, have been used, and the public has been fleeced of thousands of dollars. Worse than the loss of the money have been the lessons that have been thus given to the young in gambling. The poker game, or the dice game in some secluded place may result in harm to those drawn into them, but the public gambling under the auspices of a fair association or some social organization, carrying with it the stamp of approval, is a far more dangerous thing.

It seems, too, that Texas has reached the point where it could hold its fairs without the carnival with its dirty and demoralizing shows. There should be entertainment, of course, and it need not all be intellectual entertainment, but many of the carnival shows at the fairs are disgusting in their coarseness and depraving in the lessons they teach. Texas is either in need of some censor of fairs or of some officers with courage and determination to see that demoralizing gambling devices and shows shall not be allowed to run in them. As now conducted some fairs are a detriment rather than a help to the communities in which they are held.

CONDITION OF THE UNIVERSITY CAMPUS IS POOR

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 1.—In an address before the Exchange Club of Austin, Judge W. C. Chapman, of the State Commission of Appeals, urged that the attention of the people of Texas be called to the disgraceful condition of the campus of the University of Texas by reason of the unsightly shacks that dot the site of that seat of higher learning.

Speaking as one whose home is several hundred miles from Austin, Judge Chapman said that his comparatively rare visits to Austin in connection with legal matters in the courts had not been enjoyable. An intimate knowledge with the physical conditions at the University but that since his residence here as a member of the commission of appeals he had become more familiar with the state of affairs and had become intensely interested in the problem of removal of the shacks and also impossible methods of accomplishment of that plan. In the first place the great need was to educate the people of Texas as to the real conditions, Judge Chapman declared, and he expressed the opinion that if the people were once acquainted with the conditions at the University that a definite plan would be evolved for the betterment of the situation.

Speaking of the shacks but on the part of the University, who were forced to apologize to friends visiting Austin, who before their departure, usually visited the University, for the conditions as they existed, Judge Chapman said that he was more and more impressed and oppressed by a sense of shame that the State University's physical condition, insofar as the buildings were concerned, should be such as to require apologies from anyone.

Expressing the conviction that in the next few years the growth and prosperity of the University would depend largely upon the physical condition of the institution, Judge Chapman said that the boys and girls of the State who visited Austin on the event of the school meets and interscholastic contests, were not as a general rule greatly impressed by the University's physical condition. On the other hand were greatly depressed—perhaps unconsciously—by the unsightly shacks that littered the campus.

The speaker said that doubtless many young men and women who might have entertained visions of attending at the State University, as a result of a visit if the institution have been influenced to relinquish their purpose in favor of some other educational institution where the physical facilities more nearly met their ideas of what a state university should be.

OVER FOUR MILLION RODE HOUSTON STREET CARS IN SEPTEMBER

By International News Service.
HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 1.—According to Charles A. Brann, superintendent of traffic for the Houston Electric Company, 4,290,000 persons rode the street cars during the month of September in Houston.

Brann declared that September of this year carried about 20 per cent more than September of last year. He also declared that the cause of such increase was due to the elimination of the jitneys.

Acetylene gas is declared to be the ideal anesthetic, permitting long operations without harmful effects upon the patient. It cuts off pain by temporarily deadening the spinal cord and will afford a safe narcotic for use in childbirth, according to two German professors, Wisland and Gauss, who have given their discovery to the world.

Cough Remedy Mother Gave Us Still Best

Pine Tar and Honey Best All Modern Drugs

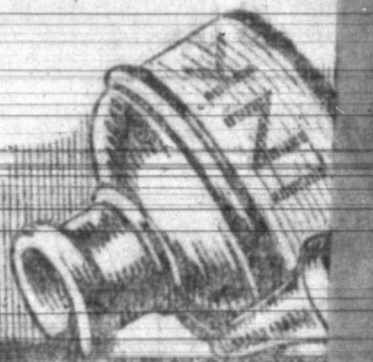

In thousands of families it has been the custom for many years to keep a bottle of Pine Tar and Honey always on hand for coughs, croup, colds, bronchitis, whooping-cough, and throat irritations. Our mothers knew that it was good, that it acted quickly on the worst cough in 24 hours, and that it could be given to young and old alike, as it contains no narcotics or harmful drugs that in spite of modern medical discoveries there is still a quicker remedy.

Doctors at the present time quickly become and recognize the advantages of this simple and effective medicine, also healing soreness, while the honey not only gives a pleasant taste, but helps soothe irritation.

The original compound made up many years ago and used by millions of people was Dr. Belle Pine-Tar Syrup. This is essentially composed of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other cough-soothing, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to give the quick relief. If you want the original and the best, be sure you get Dr. Belle's Pine-Tar Honey and no other. Only 25c. at any good drugstore.

THE CALL OF THE POOR

Manufacturers Record, in accord with the interest and activity of the Manufacturers Record in the development of the south in every possible line, the editor recently addressed the following letter to the presidents of the agricultural and mechanical colleges in that section:

"Some years ago, in an address before the cotton manufacturers of the South at their Atlanta meeting, I took the ground that the greatest asset of the South, for greater than its mineral and timber and hydro-electric resources, was its undeveloped almost untapped resources of Southern white boys who, if given adequate training in technical schools would become one of its tangible assets, producing wealth for the south.

"In that address I suggested that the business corporations of the South and individual men and women could render a greater service to their states and to humanity by contributing to the education of these white boys seeking a college opportunity through a small endowment fund sufficient to carry a student through a four-year course, and to be repaid by him in annual installments after his graduation in order that another boy might be educated with the same fund. In this way every donation could be made as a revolving fund which would be kept perpetually in motion, year after year, educating new boys.

"Shortly after that the Manufacturers Record published letters from the presidents of the agricultural and mechanical colleges in the south, giving some information as to the number of boys eager for the opportunity of a technical education, but who were denied that privilege for lack of funds, and because there was not enough work in these institutions to furnish employment to all who wanted to work their way through.

"I would greatly appreciate it if you would write me for publication your views on the whole situation, showing how the Southern boys are eagerly grasping for an opportunity for a technical education, both in the agricultural and mechanical departments of your institutions and to what extent you are compelled to deny attendance because of your inability to supply work for all who need, and the inability of many boys to pay their way.

"Out of its growing prosperity the South should give increased attention to this movement for the technical education of its young people.

"I am sending this letter to the president of every agricultural and mechanical college in the South, and shall be glad to have a full and free discussion of the whole subject, in order that its importance may be more fully realized by our Southern people.

The replies to this letter are of tremendous interest and importance, not to the South alone but to the entire nation. The deep thought, consideration and study given to the subject by the executives of these agricultural and mechanical colleges are evidenced in the thoroughness of their answers.

In general summaries of this symposium, four features stand out prominently:

1. Development of human resources in the South—as, indeed, in all the world—if of far greater importance than development of the material resources, and the children and youths are the fundamental human resources.
2. The promotion of education, especially technical education, is a good business policy and can be attained without expense or loss by financially helping young men and young women through their necessary education period of life.
3. The most practical method to adopt in this policy is to establish loan funds at colleges and schools, which not only will help the pupil, but also will strengthen his honor and honesty through his determination to repay the loan.
4. This is not a "charity" for the record of many institutions shows a substantial percentage of students working their way through their course; it is merely temporary help for those in need, unable to obtain such work.

Concrete proof of the truth in each of these features is given in the letters from these college heads, who speak with the actual knowledge gained by observation rather than on theory or opinion.

For instance, in his letter Dean Mumford of the University of Maryland asserts that "from every point the conservation and development of manpower is the first duty of government," and President Bizitt of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas supplements this in writing: "You are entirely correct that there is a tendency on the part of many of our people to place more emphasis on the development of our material resources than on the development of our human resources. If these resources are neglected, adds Dean Mumford, "we are developing within our own population sources of weakness which cannot later be easily strengthened."

That educational loans to students are really investments is shown along two lines—they earn actual returns for the students so aided and they are remunerative in the circles of industrial activity into which they graduate the students.

As to the third feature mentioned, F. Paul Anderson, dean of the University of Kentucky, says "unless something is done to help boys make part of their way, many of the most virtuous and intelligent type of men are denied their just educational heritage" and the state and country therefore are proportionate losers.

Apparently such loans to students invariably are repaid; no mention is made in any letter of negligence of their obligation by any beneficiaries.

On the other hand, Acting President S. B. Earle of Clemson Agricultural College, in speaking of a small loan fund at that institution, says it "has been the means of helping a number of worthy, ambitious boys, and as this money is paid back it can be continued and made available to future students." At the Virginia Polytechnic Institute the student adds 4 per cent interest in paying off the loan.

Finally, in virtually every institution, the student shows his willingness to help himself if given opportunity. As Dean Anderson says in a letter "to 1000 leading business men in Kentucky" these students "are willing to do anything, like taking care of furnaces, acting as chauffeurs, looking after livestock, cleaning house, washing windows, waiting on table, doing carpentry work, cleaning in stores, taking care of young children while parents are away, doing electric wiring, setting up radio sets, washing cars and caring for them in general—in fact doing any sort of honorable work."

After reading these letters, men and women of means, individuals and corporations of all kinds well may pause and ask themselves the question: "Am I my brother's keeper?" The answer is given in Holy Writ—"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of my brethren ye have done it unto me."

PARKED AUTOMOBILES KEEP CUSTOMERS AWAY

Business men and merchants in the retail trade especially, in many Texas cities and towns are concerned with the problem of use of the streets by their customers, for accessibility of the stores is a factor in the volume of business, says the Texas Public Service Information Bureau.

Many proprietors of stores object to any restrictions being placed on the parking of automobiles in front of their stores, believing that such a prohibition or restriction would tend to keep automobile owners from patronizing their establishments. Recently, however, there has been a growing tendency on the part of merchants to favor stringent restrictions of parking.

Shoppers have been loath to have restrictions placed on those who drive to their stores as compared with those who walk, oblivious of the fact that the conditions in regard to retail shopping described have changed very greatly, says the Electric Railway Journal.

Actually now, of course, automobiles parked in front of a store in a city whose indefinite parking is permitted do not mean that their owners are within. It simply means that many of these automobile owners have stored their cars there while they went elsewhere. As a consequence, the majority of shoppers have great difficulty in finding a parking place and are forced to walk to the stores from considerable distances. Thus the primary effect of congested streets on the shopper is to discourage him (or her) from going down town. This means that the small neighborhood store and the mail order houses are getting a larger proportion of the total business than has been the case in times past.

If the retail merchants in a city really understood these facts, it is believed they would be in the first ranks of those who want the streets kept clear so that the shoppers who come to the shopping district by trolley, which is the vast majority of them, can do so quickly and easily.

A SAD DAY FOR ALL THE DAYS IN KANSAS CITY

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 1.—It was a hectic day for the Days. Charles Day, street car motorman quarreled with his wife and left home. His wife fainted.

Clarence E. Babcock, a neighbor told Mrs. Day in his arms while a physician was arriving.

Then Day, the husband, unexpectedly returned, saw his wife in the arms of another man and knocked him down. Babcock obtained a warrant for the arrest of Day. The warrant was duly served on Charles Day, street car motorman, but not the original Charles Day.

His feelings assuaged with a days delay, which he had lost, the wrong man, Day went his way happily. A warrant was issued for the right Day served, and the case called in police court. By that time the original Day believed they would be in the first ranks of those who want the streets kept clear so that the shoppers who come to the shopping district by trolley, which is the vast majority of them, can do so quickly and easily.

Who owns the Santa Fe?

More than 67,000 stockholders own this great railway. Several thousand live in the states it traverses. All have a voice in its management.

Every Southwest investor should buy a share in the Santa Fe and thus get a valuable interest in an institution that helps build up that section. Let it be yours, in ownership as well as in service.

The Santa Fe operates in thirteen states and in these states there reside 7,835 of its stockholders. While this is almost the largest number on record, it is slightly below the year before. We should be very glad to see those residing along the Santa Fe Lines become much more generally interested in its stock, although both the common and preferred shares give a smaller return than many other investments promise. The high price is a deserved tribute to the property. Every investor in the Southwest might well buy one or more shares in the Santa Fe.

Since the organization of the present company in 1895 it has not failed in any year to earn its full interest, nor since dividends have been declared to earn them in full. The Preferred Stock dividends are limited to 5%. The first payment was made in 1898 at 1% and in 1900 full payments of 5% were begun and have been maintained for the ensuing 25 years without interruption. Common dividends were begun in 1901 at 3 1/2% and have been maintained steadily since that date with gradual increases, 6% having been paid since 1909.

At the beginning of this year, the ownership of the Santa Fe was divided among 67,118 stockholders with an average of 53.1 shares apiece. Twelve months before there were 64,643 stockholders, averaging 55.4 shares apiece. The number of stockholders has increased steadily for many years and the average holdings decreased, resulting in an ever-widening distribution of ownership.

For the railroads, as a whole, the records of the Interstate Commerce Commission show that at the close of 1923 there were 807,524 stockholders, or 30,392 more than the preceding year. The average dividends on the outstanding stock amounted to $4.03 per share.

Among the stockholders are found:

Women	30,370
Men	30,931

This joint enterprise of a great body of our citizens is open to all to participate in as stockholders. Why then should any favor government ownership and the certainty of supporting the railroads as taxpayers?

AMERICAN REPUBLICS ARE GROWING CLOSER

By HARRY W. FRANTZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. Profound effects on the future relations between the American republics, resulting from the series of Pan-American conferences now in progress and being planned, are foreseen by observers here.

In years gone by there has been some skepticism regarding the actual benefits from the Pan-American conferences which dealt with political matters, as the agreements reached often later failed to secure ratification.

But all authorities are agreed on the tremendous advantages to be derived by all countries from the various technical and educational meetings which now are being planned.

Within the next two years there will occur inter-American conferences dealing with numerous subjects, as sanitation, journalism, highways, science, codification of American law and standardization. While all of these conferences are conducted with the assent and support of the various American governments, the delegations usually represent experts of non-official character, who profit greatly by the opportunities for exchange of knowledge and the cultivation of personal acquaintanceships.

The next of the great conferences will be the Third Pan-American Scientific Congress at Lima, Peru, from December 20, 1924, to January 6, 1925. Simultaneously in the same city will occur a conference on standardization.

Already there has been great cooperation between scientific men of the American republics, particularly in the fields of medicine and surgery. Hundreds of South American physicians of highest rank have studied in universities in the United States or visited here for special training under auspices of the Rockefeller Institute.

This cooperation cannot fail to extend as the result of the conference at Lima, which will cover the following topics: (1) History and Anthropology; (2) Physical and Mathematical Science; (3) Mining, Metallurgy, Geology and Applied Chemistry; (4) Engineering; (5) Medicine; (6) Biology, Agriculture and Zootechnics; (7) Private, Public and International Law; (8) Economics and Sociology; (9) Education.

U. S. Has Big Part

In each of these fields the United States will be represented by a foremost authority. In fact, the delegation of nine members probably will consist of the most notable group of American scientists who ever left this country to attend a scientific gathering. Besides the attendance of the official delegation many other American scientists will submit special papers to be read and published at the conference.

Among the contributions to be made by United States scientists will be a paper dealing with "The Velocity of Light," to be read by Mr. Albert Abraham Michelson, Ph. D., president of the National Academy of Sciences, and winner of the Nobel Prize in physics. Proposals for closer cooperation of American republics in archaeological work will be made in a paper to be sent by Dr. John Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institute at Washington.

The United States delegation will be under the chairmanship of Dr. Len S. Rouse, director of the Pan-American Union and president of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences.

Other members of the delegation are Professor Marshall H. Saville, of the Museum of the American Indian, Hare Foundation at New York; Albert Abraham Michelson, Ph. D., President National Academy of Sciences, University of Chicago; Albert Souver, S.B., of Harvard University; Mr. A. W. Whitney, chairman of the American Engineering Standards Committee, New York; John D. Long, M.D., assistant Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service; Vernon Kellogg, M.S., secretary, National Research Council, Washington; James Brown Scott, J.U.D., president, American Institute of International Law, Washington; Samuel McCune Lindsay, Ph.D., professor of social legislation at Columbia University; Dr. Rufus B. The Inter-American Scientific Conferences were first inspired by the Argentine Scientific Society, which convened a congress at Buenos Aires in 1898. After several conferences confined to Latin-American republics, the United States first attended at Santiago, Chile, in 1908, this being the first Pan-American Congress. The second was held at Washington in December, 1915, and was attended by over one thousand scientists.

TWENTY FRATS OUT OF TWENTY-TWO PASS AVERAGE

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 1 Out of 22 men's social fraternities in the University of Texas, twenty passed the average set by the entire student body and are eligible to initiate their members this fall, according to information given out by Dean H. T. Parlin, chairman of the committee on students' social organizations. All of the girls' sororities passed the average.

Highest standing scholastically among the organizations belongs to the girls, as Kappa Alpha Theta sorority holds first place on the list, according to grade made by the members last session. Ranking second among the girls is Alpha Delta Pi sorority, which tied with the highest ranking of the men's organizations in the scholastic averages. Aescia, Masonic fraternity, holds first rank among the men's social clubs, and Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity ranks second. The only two fraternities failing to make the average initiation were Alpha Tau Omega and Kappa Sigma. Last year eight fraternities failed to make the average, and this year's record is considered remarkable.

According to regulations of the University, no social organization may initiate new members unless the average scholastic standing of the group is equal to the average scholastic standing of the entire student body. A chapter ineligible to initiate this fall, however, may become eligible to initiate new members in the winter term, provided they raise their scholastic standing sufficiently during the current term.

High-powered radio stations will soon be entirely discarded, owing to the discovery that low-powered stations using very short wave-lengths have greater efficiency with only a fraction of the cost, declares Marconi, the great inventor. The short wave-lengths permit greater speed in sending, are almost never affected by atmospheric conditions and they afford a wider range of wave-lengths which will lessen interference between stations.

OCTOBER IN THE COUNTRY

By PHOEBE K. WARNER

Nature is so full of notions that she has provided a different charm for every month of the year. Most of us regard every month as made up of a person by some special feature. And we all love each different month of the year just as we love certain characters for some individual quality in them.

But of all the months of the year which do you like best? Which of them seems the most like an old friend to you? Which means the most to your soul? In most of our lives the answer would be "October." Why? That is the beauty of it. None of us can express in words all the reasons why. But we know it because we feel it. One big reason we believe, is because there is victory written in glittering letters on every tree in the forest. There is success showing modestly from every hill of ripe maize. One of the most beautiful lessons of real success and the humble spirit that usually accompanies success is the manner in which those great well-filled heads of maize bow toward the kind earth from whence they so recently came. Sometimes men and women forget from whence they came. If a little success happens to come, it is a little that way with nature. Then October is the final harvest of the year. It is the culmination of human efforts the same as nature's year long effort. It is time to gather in the products of our year's work and if possible rest ready to rest a little while like the trees and the rose bushes and all the fields and flowers. In Nature's program there is rest for everything and everybody, except our pulse throbbing hearts. They must beat on day and night, winter and summer with never a rest for one single throb.

Then there is a difference in the harvest and the flowers in October. They represent a harder species. It takes longer and more work to produce the Autumnal crops. And there is another great lesson here. They last longer. What would we do all through the long winter if it were not for the nuts and the popcorn and the winter pumpkins and the corn and maize and those wonderful products that are built by Nature to last. It takes more time to build a nut than it does to build a violet, but it lasts longer. Each has its place and mission. And that's just like life. It takes longer to build a character that will last all through the days of life.

But there is another great lesson in that comes to us all through the glories of October and that is it is time to "Be Prepared." Every day the leaves are falling back to the earth. So are we. October represents the mature time of life. And that's why we should strive and that's why we should seek increasing toward the end of our lives. How about it? Have I done my best? Are the fruits of my life worth gathering for future use? October makes us think. We know the blighting frosts can not be far away. And right now every one of us is wondering if, and hoping that the frost will stay away until our crop will have time to mature. But that is not all. We are wondering and also hoping that the blighting frosts of disease and death will hold off until we can finish our life work. And some times our work in life is like our crops. We did not get started in time to get it out of danger of loss. This is why we all cling to October so. The whole month is so like life in its mature days. And we love life. We hate to see it pass. And seldom do we realize how swiftly it is passing until the October days of life have come.

But nature's plans are ideal. And when she has had her own way, and not been held back by bad treatment on the part of man, everything in her world has matured naturally and in the right season. And that is why all Nature is so beautiful that the October days of our lives would be just as beautiful if we had obeyed the natural laws of life, and were ready and waiting, our harvest of kind words and deeds ripe for others to reap, if only we had known how to sow our seed and where to reap and how to cultivate our lives to produce a rich harvest. There is more to October than just beauty and the glory of her Autumnal colors. And there is more to life than just a show.

INTERNAL LOAN MAY STRENGTHEN FRENCH FRANC

By United News.
PARIS, Oct. 31.—An internal loan which finance minister Clementel interprets as "the beginning of the series of operations aiming at the financial rehabilitation and the stabilization of the franc" has been ordered, President Louverture, signed the loan decree Friday.

Frenchmen will be asked to loan their government approximately 5 billion francs. The exact amount of the loan has not been disclosed. The loan will be tax-free and extend over a period of ten years. Nominally the loan will bear five per cent interest. Actually the issue will be repaid at 15 per cent. Thus 400 francs invested in the loan would bring a return of 750 francs at maturity.

The success of the loan will insure a real budget surplus next year, Clementel said.

BOARD OF REGENTS DRAW UP PLANS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 1—Final adoption of a plan for the general plan of new buildings on the original campus of the University of Texas has just been made by members of the Board of Regents and faculty building committee after a series of joint conferences on the subject. While the erection of all the buildings that are contemplated in this program would involve the expenditure of approximately ten million dollars, the immediate plan provides for only one building, which will cost about $250,000, it is stated. This building is to be devoted to class rooms and offices for members of the instruction staff. The plans for this building will be finished and its erection started about January 1, 1925, it is expected. At present there is only about enough revenue coming in to the available fund of the University to construct one new building a year.

The general landscape lay-out of the original campus provides for two avenues, one running north and south and the other east and west, which will be 450 feet square. The main buildings of the University, including the new recitation and office structure, will be located upon this plaza, and in them will be class rooms and offices of the larger departments of the University. The east and west avenue will be 175 feet wide and the north and south avenue a little wider. All of the new buildings, including the one that is to be erected very shortly, will be of Spanish architectural style of architecture with wide eaves in keeping with the Library, Education and Biology buildings. It will be of buff brick and stone construction. It is proposed also to enlarge the present Library building, the center of the front of which will face the east and west avenue. This avenue will eventually be carried east across Winder creek, past the new stadium to the east line of the present unimproved addition to the campus. It is not known just how soon the beautification of the original campus along the lines that the regents and building committee have decided will be accomplished, as this is a matter that will depend upon the availability of funds for the purpose.

With the adoption of the final plan for the new buildings and landscape improvement there will be from now on an artistic uniformity in the location of all buildings and other improvement activities at the University, it was explained.

T. E. MAY TAKES CHIEF OF POLICE WORK IN LUBBOCK

T. E. May, newly appointed Chief of Police of Lubbock, has adopted a strict law enforcement program for himself and other members of the force. He took up his work Saturday morning following the resignation of Chief C. A. Carter which was made the first of the month to become effective on the last day of the month.

Chief May has found the law enforcement agencies of Lubbock well on the job with conditions well in hand. An abnormally large floating population, brought here by the big prices paid for cotton pickling and the unlimited amount of employment available, has placed its demands upon the officers of Lubbock and Lubbock County and found them adequate to the severest test.

Chief Carter, who resigned, will be long remembered in law enforcement circles. During his work as head of the police force a unity of purpose and action between his force and the sheriff's force has been achieved which has added greatly to both branches for law enforcement.

Chief May will find the sheriff's force pleased to continue the same friendly relationship and his force is well organized and as he is highly recommended for the place, his success is virtually assured.

Mr. May has been a resident of Lubbock during the past year, prior to his time he was in the ranching business in New Mexico.

Practical means for obtaining power from waves of the sea is claimed to have been developed by a Bulgarian, who will have government aid in perfecting his invention, which is the result of ten years of experimenting.

GREATER MOVIE SEASON DRAWS BIG PICTURES TO LUBBOCK

LINDSEY THEATRE (Wednesday)

Donald Short just would work nights and friend wife just would have her entertainment, so she was thrown into the more or less interesting company of the ultra-smart set and met a highly interesting gentleman.

Naturally, the papers let everyone know about the thing—in itself absolutely harmless. But you know how people will talk and what happens to reputations when they do talk. So who can blame Donald Short and his brother-in-law for threatening the editor of Gotham Gossip.

But what has all this to do with the death of Seaton Davies, the interesting gentleman Mrs. Short was seen with so frequently. That's just it—what?

"The Guilty One," a Paramount picture, featuring Agnes Ayres, brings it all out at the Lindsey Theatre next Wednesday. It's a story of a wife's devotion to her husband, a real mystery-drama that will keep you guessing. You've never seen anything quite like it on the screen before in your life. It's a scrupulously produced picture. Henabery made "The Stranger," and you know what a picture that was. "The Guilty One" is said to be infinitely more interesting and appealing.

There's a great cast playing in support of Miss Ayres in this production. Edward Burns is leading man. To mention Clarence Burton, Cyril Ring, Stanley Taylor, Crawford Kent and George Seigman would be to name but a few of the prominent players in the cast. It's a knockout as is the story.

If you miss "The Guilty One," you have no one to blame but yourself.

LYRIC THEATRE (Wednesday)

"Do I have to kill any whales in this picture?" asked Raymond McKee just before he signed his contract to play the leading male role in "A Girl of the Limberlost," the sensational production by Gene Stratton-Porter and which has been produced under Mrs. Porter's personal supervision.

"A Girl of the Limberlost," the latest of the releases of the Film Booking Offices, is to be the featured number of the program which is to be shown at the Lyric Theatre beginning Wednesday.

Mr. McKee had a most trying experience as the featured player of "Down to the Sea in Ships" and it was to this he referred in asking about the job he was to play in the Porter production. In "A Girl of the Limberlost" his most difficult task is to make love to Gloria Grey, a demure bit of blonde beauty who is the Elvora Coontock of the story. "I can do that without half trying," Ray remarks as he was introduced to Miss Grey.

The second of Mrs. Porter's books to reach the screen, "A Girl of the Limberlost," is a most vivid story of a girl's efforts to secure an education and of a mother's mistaken infatuation for the memory of a worthless man, who forgetful of his bride of but a few months, met a horrible death in the quagmire of a swamp as he hurried over an unfamiliar path in an effort to hasten home from a clandestine meeting with another woman. One of the tremendous scenes of the production is that taken in the midst of a swamp and showing the father slowly sinking in the pitiless grasp of the unseen slimy mire. A wonderful bit of acting is done in this by Arthur Currier, the father in the story. Emily Fritzy brings to the role of the mother a wonderful understanding that makes the character of gripping sympathy to the audience.

THE LITTLE FRENCH GIRL BY ANNE DOUGLAS SEDGWICK

It happened that I had just read Mr. Smith's "There is a Tide," and the resemblance and contrast of the two stories is curious. Mr. Smith takes a raw American girl from the Middle West and plunges her into the densest atmosphere of London and England. Miss Sedgwick does much for the same girl who has all the high breeding, all the exquisite tradition of an old France. Mr. Smith has vivacity, but the advantage of depth and power is with Miss Sedgwick. Madame Verriers, who is divorced and has had many lovers yet remains a lady and refined and charming in a way that Anglo-Saxons cannot understand, sends her daughter, Alix, to get an English husband. Alix elings to France with true national loyalty; rather shudders at English husbands as she finally does, and, intense, passionate, tragic climax of discovery as to her mother's past and all the strange challenges and complexities and inconherencies of life and love that are involved in it. And always with Miss Sedgwick, one rests securely in a surpassing perfection of workmanship.

There are no ship, no blurs no blunders. The narrative is conducted with that highest ease of art which the reader forgets that there is art at all. The background, whether minute or immense, is laid with finished delicacy of touch at all times, perhaps not always with the intensest brevity, but always with the apt significance, and especially with profound acquaintance with English and French worlds that are depicted. The talk is subtle and suggestive, and always carries on to action.

Again, as in all Miss Sedgwick's books there is the constant interest in human character and motive, and most varied skill in analyzing them. But in this case the author has been more successful in making her heroine attractive. Tante Camellia Paton Fennis Fenway, are not very lovable to me at any rate Alix might be.

Whether she is more real than the above mentioned young ladies may be a matter of opinion. Having my own lover, how do you manage to think these things at your age. One cannot help sometimes echoing the lover's query, even a certain unreality in a creature so subtle and so graceful has its charm.

And one feels that, with Henry James, the unreality in the concrete case is only the expression of a profounder unreality of in life itself, the sense which makes Miss Sedgwick's books so tearfully attractive. She seizes the objective word with the closest, keenest grasp of observation. No detail of the varied surface of things escapes her.

Yet she makes you feel this objective reality as a more veil of the unplumbed abysses of possibility and fate. She plays with life as an exquisite toy as you please, she labors hard with it as a tragic problem, but all the time with the brooding sense of the terrible insecurity of the petty, frail human souls drift in the unknown.

"Public health lies at the foundation of all human welfare. Unless that is conserved and protected, there is very little use in any other activity for the promotion of public welfare."—Calvin A. Coolidge, President of the United States.

WHAT YOU EAT IN GRAPES

One eats and drinks a remarkable collection of things when he lightly skids a luscious grape down his throat. It is quite surprising to know all that the chemists tell you you have swallowed with one grape—a miniature drug store of beneficent prescriptions.

You drink a large proportion of water and "soluble" substances in a grape, 79.997 per cent water and 16.49 of various soluble matter. You get 13.78 per cent sugar; 1.020 per cent free acid; 832 per cent albuminous substances and .498 pectous substances, the jelly-making constituent. It is small in the grape, which makes it harder to make grape jelly than it does currant.

This is what the chemist finds in prodding over the grape, as first. Then he wants to find out just what the grape is made of, so he burns it and the ashes tell the story, the water and other substances being determined by weight before and after the burning. In one thousand parts of fermenting material the grape has taken from the soil and air he finds 820 parts of water, 1.7 parts of nitrogen, .8 parts of ash, .1 per cent of potash, 1 per cent of soda, 1 per cent of lime, .4 per cent of sulphuric acid, 1 per cent of chlorine and .3 per cent of silicic acid.

A grape is much more complicated than it looks. And then if you

Mary E. Hudspeth Hall is to be erected by the ex-students of the Teachers College. It is named in honor of Miss Mary E. Hudspeth, for many years dean of women of the college and always a friend of all girls.
