CHEMIST'S REPORT SHOWS MURDER THEORY MOST LOGICAL CONCLUSION

DEVELOPMENTS IN SHEATSEY DEATH

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 22.—Here in a nutshell is what happened in the Sheatsley furnace mystery story today. A partial report by the chemist who examined the victim's organs indicated Mrs. Sheatsley was dead before her body entered the furnace. Prosecutor King launched a new attack upon the mystery, abandoning temporarily at least all consideration of the theory of suicide.

Dr. H. M. Brundage, pathologist, began making further examinations of the charred remains and may not be able to report his findings for two weeks.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 22.—The science of pathology reached down into the dark recesses of the Columbus furnace mystery tonight for additional evidence to support prosecutor John R. King's belief that Mrs. Addie Sheatsley was murdered.

Taking up the scientific investigation where chemistry left off, Dr. H. M. Brundage began running the first tests on the charred pulmonary organs of the Lutheran pastor's wife in the hope that he can throw more light on this one vital question.

"Was Mrs. Sheatsley dead before her body entered the furnace box of the Lutheran parsonage furnace?" "On the answer to this question depends the whole future of the investigation. If it can be proved conclusively that Mrs. Sheatsley was dead before entering the furnace, then prosecuting attorney King will have complete substantiation of his murder theory.

Otherwise he will accept the explanation of the furnace victim's husband, Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, that she committed suicide by creeping in upon the red hot coals of the furnace.

Dr. Brundage told the United Press tonight that his work may take considerable time and that it may be two weeks before he is ready to report to the prosecutor.

The first important development in the furnace mystery since it came into existence last Monday with the finding of the burned body was recorded today.

Chemist's Report Given.

Charles Long, chemist who had been running tests on fragments of Mrs. Sheatsley's lungs, submitted his report to King.

It disclosed that no traces of carbon monoxide or ashes were to be found in the lungs and that three ounces of blood, which he succeeded in isolating, bore no marks of carbolic acid.

The disclosures were accepted by King as pointing strongly to the conclusion that Mrs. Sheatsley was dead, or at least that she did not take a breath after her body entered the furnace.

The report also showed an intense congestion of one lobe of the lung a condition present, physicians say in cases of strangulations.

This information awaits the report of the pathologist and Dr. Brundage lost no time in setting about his task. The specimens were taken to his private laboratory at the Brundage home early this evening for a preliminary examination.

ASSEMBLY DISAPPROVES OF MOVE IN INAUGURATION OF MRS. FERGUSON

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 22.—Opposition to the use of the state capitol for the proposed inaugural ball at the installation of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as governor of Texas was voiced in a report of the civic rights committee adopted by the Baptist general convention in closing session here today. The report condemned the use of the building for the ball which it was charged, will be featured by an all night dance.

The delegates voted approval of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas and pledged the organization its support to "prevent nullification of the state liquor laws."

The convention refused to accept a resolution presented by the Reverend Dale Crowley, Texas, city pastor, and formerly a member of the faculty of Baylor University, providing that all teachers in Baptist educational institutions sign a doctrinal statement.

After several hours' deliberation, the resolutions committee recommended disapproval of the measure with the following notation:

"In view of the fact that if the convention desires to provide a credit statement, it should be prepared by a non-partisan committee rather than by an individual who might be suspected of a partisan bias."

The 1925 convention site of the organization will be selected at a meeting of the executive board early in December, it was announced.

MUST UNIONIZE MINES OR BE PROCLAIMED UNFAIR TO LABOR, IS EDICT

By United Press.

EL PASO, Nov. 22.—Notice was served on Warren S. Stone grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers to unionize mines under his control in West Virginia and Kentucky or automatically be proclaimed as unfair to organized labor by the American Federation of Labor in annual convention here today.

Threatened opposition from the railroad shop crafts unions failed to develop and the convention unanimously approved the following declarations submitted by the committee on boycotts:

"The following finds that a strike has been in effect at four mines in the Coal River region in West Virginia since April 1924, due to the failure of this company to renew its wage agreement with the United Mine Workers of America.

"We find further that the officers of the United Mine Workers have made repeated but fruitless efforts to reach a settlement with Warren S. Stone, chairman of the board of directors of this corporation who assumes responsibility for its labor policy.

"We also find that the company has served eviction notices upon the union men who are striking and has resorted to employment of strikebreakers.

"In view of these facts and as a further constructive effort, the committee recommends the following:

"That the executive council of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to exercise its offices to secure a settlement of the unfortunate controversy, and in event of failure, to advise the federation of all the facts in the premises."

Upon reading of the committee's report, John L. Lewis, president of the mine union took the floor, declaring he had heard "mutterings and murmurs from certain quarters," and challenged anyone to defend Stone's stand.

The declaration was adopted unanimously and union officials here tonight were generally agreed that Stone must sign the miner's wage agreement or "be read out of the

ACTION FOLLOWS FATAL SHOOTING YOUNG BANDIT

BROTHER OF SLAIN YOUTH TAKEN IN ROUND-UP OF "JELLYBEANS"

HOUSTON, Nov. 22.—Five Houston youths, all under 21 years of age were in jail here tonight charged with robbery by firearms as the aftermath to the slaying of Ernest Shoquist, 17 years old bandit, by James Shown, 19, tackle on the Houston high school football team, last night.

One of the five, was a brother of the slain youth, and the other four members of the same boyhood "gang." All had been under surveillance for some time, suspected of being "jellybean" bandits, detectives said tonight.

Shoquist died with four bullets in his body as he exchanged shots with the high school student after the boy bandit and two companions all masked and attempted to rob Shown, a boy and two girl companions on a highway in the suburbs of the city. Shoquist's two companions fled as the shooting started, firing as they ran.

With the arrest of the five youths, including Shoquist's two companions who confessed, authorities have solved more than a dozen hold ups and broken up a gang of youthful bandits who have terrorized the outlying sections of the city for months.

A technical charge of murder was placed against Shown. He was released on $50 bond shortly after the coroner's inquest last night. He was an outstanding star in his school's six to six tie with Breckenridge high of San Antonio this afternoon.

BRITAIN DEMANDS APOLOGY AND INDEMNITY FOR DEATH OF STACK

CAIRO, Nov. 22.—Great Britain tonight delivered an ultimatum to Egypt threatening "appropriate action if apology and indemnity for the assassination of Sir Lee Stack are not forthcoming immediately.

One of the two British notes demands $2,500,000 indemnity and has created a tremendous sensation here. Zaghoul Pasha, the premier, is expected to resign.

Another British note demands withdrawal of Egyptian officials from the Sudan, Sudanese troops to come under control of the Sudanese government proper.

Britain also insists upon retention of British judicial and financial advisors in Egypt. Sir Lee Stack, the murdered official, was sirdar of the Egyptian army.

The British notes, which were accompanied by word that troops were enroute here from Malta, came like a thunderbolt.

Parliament waited in session to see what the cabinet would do.

One of the British demands was that political demonstrations should be prohibited. Another was for the withdrawal of all Egyptian units from the Sudan.

Falling immediate compliance with these demands, His Majesty's government at once will take appropriate action to safeguard their interests in Egypt and the Sudan, the second note said.

Escorted by a detachment of the 16th lancers, Lord Allenby, British high commissioner, delivered to the Egyptian council of ministers, the notes from his government, demanding a reply tomorrow.

British troops are enroute here to assist in the capture of the slayers of Sir Lee and the British government demands prompt punishment of the assassins, one of whom is believed to have been caught.

The entire Egyptian cabinet, headed by H. Zaghoul Pasha, attended services in the protestant cathedral. Lord Allenby, ex-premier H. H. Asquith, the diplomatic corps, many notables and virtually the entire British garrison participated in the ceremonies.

MAINTENANCE FUND SHORT, HIS REPORT STATES

MODERNIZE SIX OLDER SHIPS FOR USE, IS HIS URGENT PLEA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—"The state of the material condition of the United States fleet now is not satisfactory," Secretary of the Navy Wilbur informed the president in his annual report on the condition and activities of the navy, made public here today.

Wilbur said funds had not been made available to maintain the navy even at the strength which it possessed at this time last year. He advocated modernization of six older battleships as the most pressing need in restoring the navy to the authorized status under the Washington arms pact.

"Although the available funds for the present fiscal year remain about the same as last year," said Wilbur, in his report, "retrogression is apparent because the ships are older and the maintenance costs are increasing accordingly.

"Because of this inadequacy of funds, an order was issued in August reducing to a minimum all improvements to the units of the fleet, no matter how important.

"The six older battleships must be modernized if the reliance on them as ships of first line of battle is to continue and our ratio of naval strength is to be maintained."

Elevation Not Mentioned

The report made no reference to the proposed elevation of guns to increase their range which has been advocated in some quarters.

Authorization for the modernization of the six ships mentioned by Wilbur was passed by the house of representatives last session and comes up in the senate in December with the passage regarded as certain.

Wilbur said the navy was making an ever increasing use of aircraft instead of the battle fleet. He reported that while our naval air forces were inadequate and their development suffered from lack of adequate funds, "our naval aviation compares favorably in design and in quality with that of other nations."

After enlarging on the achievements of the giant dirigible Shenandoah and the new Los Angeles (ZR-3) Wilbur reported a new device for launching airplanes from naval vessels which involved propelling them into the air by a catapult operated by smokeless powder. The report said the scrapping of the American ships under the arms limitation treaty was progressing rapidly, and would be completed February 15, 1925, the date set by the pact.

"The policy of basing the battle fleet upon the Pacific coast is approved and should be adhered to," Wilbur said. He urged the extension of Pacific coast naval bases in order to provide for the upkeep of the major portion of the fleet in Pacific waters.

DEFINITE POLICY NECESSARY

The report pointed out the necessity of some definite policy in regard to the naval oil reserves in event the seas now in progress to cancel the leases to the Doherty and Sinclair.

HEMPHILL-PRICE AND RIX COMPANY FORMAL OPENINGS TUESDAY SHOW WIDENING IN RETAIL SECTION HERE

Never before in the history of Lubbock have the people of the South Plains had an opportunity to witness such varied and expensive lines of exclusive merchandise as will be exhibited at the Hemphill-Price dry goods store and the Rix Furniture Store on Avenue J and 13th street when formal openings of those stores will be conducted jointly Tuesday.

While the two big stores will be appropriately decorated throughout the day, business will be conducted as usual until in the evening. Formal opening of the Rix store will begin at 6:30 o'clock. A musical program will start at seven o'clock and continue until 7:30 o'clock.

The formal opening of the Hemphill-Price Co. will begin at seven o'clock and continue until ten o'clock. The style show that will be a main feature of the opening will begin promptly at seven-thirty o'clock and it is expected that the peak of attendance will be reached during this time, as more than an hour that will be spent in showing a line of new and unusual styles, that are minute new and have never before been shown in Lubbock.

Some idea of the exclusiveness of these garments may be drawn from the fact that the price range goes as high as six hundred dollars each. Spencer Wells, active manager of the store, stated Saturday that while they have waited nearly two years to give a formal opening of this store, they are now prepared to offer an evening's entertainment for their visitors that they are sure will be long remembered in Lubbock.

The establishment of the Hemphill-Price store in Lubbock has meant much to the buying public of the South Plains, and hundreds of the friends of the big store are thrilled to know that they may attend the elaborate program that will be rendered Tuesday.

Five attractive young ladies of Lubbock, assisted by two young men of the younger set, will model the garments that are to be shown, selections having been made with the most exacting care by the management of the big store. The formal opening of the Rix and Hemphill-Price stores opens up a new retail district in Lubbock that marks a forward step in the march of progress made by the city. Just last week the two blocks of paving between Broadway and 13th on Avenue J and between Avenue J and J on 13th street were opened by the paving contractors, and an interest has since been shown in that section of the city that assures the managements of the two big stores that in selecting their new location no small degree of wisdom was exercised.

The Rix Furniture and Undertaking Company was established in Lubbock in September, 1918, since which time its growth has been a succession of noticeable developments, in which the progressiveness of the management played no small part. That this store has kept pace and in many ways ahead of the development of Lubbock may be seen by the fact that while it was started on a small scale in 1918, it now occupies its own home which is one of the largest and attractive retail stores to be found anywhere in West Texas. With store at Big Spring, Lamesa and Lubbock, the Rix company is conspicuous among the larger institutions of the Plains, and its stores are decided assets in each of the three cities.

Jed Rix, manager of the local store is now in Chicago buying a large stock of furniture for the store. Early purchases which he made upon his arrival there last week are expected to arrive by express in time for display during the formal opening of the big store.

As Spencer Wells, of the Hemphill-Price Co. just recently returned from New York where he purchased the garments to be shown in the formal opening of that store, it is easy to see that those two big Lubbock institutions are joining hands in offering something unusual for Lubbock and South Plains people. You are invited to attend this formal opening of two of West Texas' fastest-growing institutions. It will mark a new era in retail business on the South Plains.

SECRETARY WILBUR SAYS NAVY IS SHORT

clear interests were won by the government. Wilbur suggested, however, that no action be taken to dispose of them in event they were returned to the government until the matter had been laid before congress.

During the past year, major accidents in the navy cost the lives of 71 men and officers, Wilbur reported. The submarine D-3 was rammed near the coast of Panama and sank with the loss of five men.

The cruiser Tacoma, approaching Vera Cruz, Mexico, struck on Banquillo reef, due to changes in navigation lights during the revolution and was wrecked with the loss of four men, including her captain, H. G. Sparrow, who drowned attempting to save members of the crew.

A powder explosion in No. 2 turret on the battleship Mississippi during target practice caused the death of 45 men and three officers. As a final disaster, another powder explosion aboard the cruiser Trenton killed 13 men and one officer.

"Although the navy department will make every effort, compatible with efficiency to safeguard its personnel and operation of its ordnance material," the report said, "it must be recognized that there is an unavoidable hazard which accompanied the use of powder and guns which cannot be totally eliminated."

The secretary protested against increasing the number of cadets at the naval academy at Annapolis, and said there is an increasing need of trained officers. There are now 4,375 commissioned officers of the line and 86,000 enlisted men, Wilbur said. Prior to the commissioning of the Saratoga and Lexington, the new giant airplane carriers to be added to the fleet in 1926, the enlisted personnel must be increased by 2,000 men.

ed tonight that his verdict as to the cause of the death would be held up pending the report of Dr. Brundage.

Although it may be two weeks before, any additional scientific light can be thrown on the strange case, the investigation of local authorities working under the direction of prosecutor King will not remain idle. All written evidence in the mystery is to be given a thorough re-checking and the witnesses, principally Rev. Sheatsley, his four children and a capital university student and a delivery man who called at the parsonage last Monday afternoon.

One point will be brought out in that in connection with the finding of Mrs. Sheatsley's body. The pastor was the one who notified the police. He said at the time and during the first two days of the subsequent investigation that he made the ghastly furnace discovery himself. His son, Clarence, 16, testified that he had looked into the fire before his father returned home and had seen nothing alarming.

Later the pastor called King out to the parsonage to tell him he had discovered Clarence was the first to recognize his mother's body, but had said nothing, waiting for some one else to find it out.

Commenting on the rumors current throughout the state that a confession had been made in the furnace mystery, Rev. Sheatsley said: "No member of my family has any confession or further statement to make regarding Mrs. Sheatsley's death, scientific revelations, notwithstanding. Nothing so far tend to show me that my wife did not take her own life."

ETHYL GAS MIXTURE NOT DANGEROUS IS SHOWN

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Experiments conducted by the U. S. Bureau of Mines on a small menagerie of animal show, thus far, that gasoline containing tetra-ethyl-lead is not more dangerous with this ingredient than without it, according to the official journal of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

The journal warns against the hasty passage of legislation to prevent the use of lead or other substances which makes fumes dangerous to motorists. The death of several Standard Oil employees in New Jersey, he thinks, does not necessarily indicate carelessness.

"During the war intensive experiments were carried on to discover a dope for gasoline that would increase its efficiency and power in motor driven vehicles," says the journal. "By the accidental suggestion of a non-technical man connected with one of the large copper refining companies which produced as a by-product, considerable quantities of tellurium, for which there was no known commercial use. It was discovered that tellurium could be used as a dope with marvelous results.

Demands Not Met. "One of the largest motor companies of the country, after extensive tests, became convinced of the value of tellurium for this purpose. However, the total production of tellurium in this country was only about one per cent of what they estimated would be normal demand, so that tellurium was dropped and still remains a metal-urgical monstrosity without any practical use.

"Further experiments revealed the fact that tetra-ethyl lead was more efficacious than tellurium. The General Motors Company, the Standard Oil Company, and the Du Pont Company have been making experiments and a commercial process for the production of tetra-ethyl lead has been worked out, and a great quantity of gasoline has been sold with this ingredient as a dope and a very large public demand has grown up.

"The product brings an increased price but tends to eliminate the knock and other motor troubles and that, from this stand point, it is desirable that the motoring public is evidenced by the increasing demand at filling stations.

"During the last week in October fatalities began to result in the Bayway Laboratory and plant of the Standard Oil Company which were attributed to this gas. Of the forty-five employees there, five have died and only ten have remained unaffected.

WILSON EQUITY SUIT INVOLVES OVER $1,000,000

By United Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 22.—Over a million dollars is involved in a suit in equity filed in the federal court here in connection with the financial affairs of the Wilson family of Peoria, Ill. The bill was filed by Douglas R. Wilson, New York, Nov. 18, and made public late today when serving of subpoenas started. The bill charges that members of the family, which owns the American distilling company the Wilson grocery company, the Wilson provision company and the Wilson cattle company expect to clear a million by juggling reports in connection with settlement of the family debts.

That a plot is on foot to release 4,000 barrels of whiskey to Springfield men at low prices to pay the distillery's income tax debt and thus defraud the distillery stockholders is charged in the bill which alleges that George S. Chwamer, district internal revenue collector, Springfield, is involved in the plot. The bill asks that an injunction to halt sale of the liquor be granted; a court order be issued setting aside action of the distillery directors' cancelling financial obligations.

The bill charges Guy Colby, Chicago public accountant with juggling the company's books and that the Wilson interests owed the distilling company a total of $1,420,193. It alleges that Colby told the distillery stockholders that the other companies were insolvent and that the stockholders then voted to seal down the debts.

The stock of the companies involved was traded in settlement and members of the Wilson family knew their real value, bought them at about 20 per cent of their real value, the bill alleges.

organized labor movement in America. International relations between American and Mexican labor came to the front when Roberto Haberman, representing the Mexican confederation of labor, announced the confederation had pledged itself to oppose attacks aimed at the American Federation of Labor. The American branch countered with a similar expression relative to the Mexican organization. Matthew Well, vice-president of the federation declaring the convention's action "marked the beginning of the Monroe Doctrine of American Labor to apply in the western hemisphere."

Aurelio Manriquez, labor governor of San Luis Potosi, original prohibition state, in Mexico and Sotoy Gama, president of the agrarian party of Mexico explained to the convention that further revolutions in Mexico if any, would be of non-persistent origin.

"Laws are now effective to protect the peasants from old time oppressive feudalism," Sotoy Gama said.

Mexican Labor Pleased
JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 22.—The sixth annual convention of the Mexican confederation of labor in session here sent a telegram to President Coolidge tonight, expressing its satisfaction at the attitude of the American government during the recent de la Huerta revolution.

"The sixth annual convention of the Mexican confederation of labor reflecting the sentiments of the Mexican people has unanimously resolved to express to the people of the United States, whom you represent, our appreciation for the just and righteous attitude you assumed during the recent military treachery headed by Adolfo de la Huerta.

"The workers of Mexico feel and hope that the present friendly relationship between the two countries will endure eternally to our mutual happiness and prosperity," the message read.

The convention also called upon the Mexican government to transact its financial business in the United States through financial institutions sympathetic to labor.

SEVERAL BUILDINGS BEING ERECTED IN RALLS NOW

RALLS, Texas, Nov. 22.—E. A. McCarty let a contract this week to Jim Biffie for the erection of a brick business house on the lot just south of the building occupied by Hightower Bros. Cafe. It will be modern and as nearly fire proof as possible.

The two brick business houses being erected by N. Hinson on lots owned by Starck & Eubanks Overland agency are rapidly nearing completion, and Mr. Hinson states that they will be occupied as soon as finished. A dry goods store will take one and a grocery the other.

During the late summer and up to now, five substantial brick business houses have been built in Ralls. The McCarty building will make six. That's a good growth for a few months and evidences the substantial business development of the country and city of Ralls.

Several new residences have been erected, but we need many more. Every day people try to move here, but have to go to "deader" towns because no rent houses are available. We must have more homes—many more—or the town will be severely handicapped. There's ample room commercially here for a city of four or five thousand people, but how in the name of common sense can we attain that goal unless homes are built for 'em to live in. It must be done. Who's going to do it?

FEELING HIGH IN KIDNAPING OF BABY GIRL

LEEDY, Okla., Nov. 22.—Somewhere in the Panhandle of Oklahoma or the hills of northern New Mexico, tonight a father and his two year-old daughter were evading officers. Since Thursday night when the father, Dunk Cheek, seized his daughter from the arms of her 17-year-old mother who was awarded custody of the child by a divorce court last April, have been dodging possesmen.

Feeling in this small hamlet was bitter toward Cheek and violence is feared should the officers capture him and bring him back to face the charges of kidnaping, assault with a deadly weapon and contempt of court that have been filed against him.

GENEVA.—M. Boughas, French delegate to the international conference for suppression of traffic in drugs told the conference France is convinced an agreement will be easy on the basis of the American project. The day was occupied with agreeing on agenda.

TWO CHARGED WITH THREAT ON COOLIDGE'S LIFE

By United Press.
EAST ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22.—Two men arrested here today by department of justice agent O. H. Sundby on a charge of threatening the life of President Coolidge, were bound over to the federal grand jury under $5,000 bond each.

Frank Naujokz furnished the bond and was released. Arthur Billede was still in the city jail tonight.

"We ought to kill Coolidge," one of the men said, according to the warrant issued by federal judge English. The two men were talking with others at the packing plant where they work at the National Stockyards here.

"Just be quiet; they'll get him," the other is said to have replied. Vile names were applied to the Chief executive by the two, according to Sundby.

LYNN COUNTY RECEIVES NEAR 24,000 BALES COTTON

TAHOKA, Texas, Nov. 22.—Nearly 24,000 bales of cotton had been ginned in Lynn county at noon on Thursday. We were unable to get accurate reports from O'Donnell but the amount received at the yard there was about 8,300 bales. Assuming this to be correct, which is probably a slight underestimate, the total amount ginned in the county was 23,929.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES AND THE THINGS THAT REALLY COUNT

Some soft-hearted people are worried about how the turkeys themselves feel about it. But the turkeys ought to be thankful, too, if they look at it in the right way. If they were not in such demand they would never have been hatched and tenderly raised against the day when their heads should be lopped off. They would never have lived at all instead of having the honor of being the national bird one day in the year. All any citizen of the United States needs to enjoy Thanksgiving is an appetite, a turkey to satisfy it, and to look upon the cranberries when they are red and sufficiently sweet. Only the American who has not the price of a square meal and no home to eat it in has any kick coming.

Even if it is his fault that he has not the price, those who have square meals and a home can best be thankful by forgetting this fault and offering him a square meal and a home to eat it in. We do not like to think that any man or woman has not a full stomach at two in the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day. We do not like to think that any man or woman will not have a home dinner on Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving Day is the day when all grouches should be stowed. Even the wry victim of indigestion ought to be happy in watching others do their duty not in the trenches but as a trencherman. On this national anti-grouch day the thing is to give thanks for what we have got and not worry about what we have not got. It comes in the season when the crops are in. Good or bad, you can't change them now. After the crops were in our pioneer ancestor had time to spare to take down the old blunderbuss and get a wild turkey fat from fall feeding. Mother shoots the barnyard turkey today with coin of the republic at the market price per pound. We may be thankful that we do not have to live in the hard way that our ancestors did, thankful for all our modern improvements and comforts. The day after we may go out to work for more improvements and comforts, but on Thanksgiving Day the spirit should be, "All is for the best in the best of worlds." We have a right, a national right, to sit back after our last helping of turkey, as we let our belts out another notch, and glow with gratitude that life is sweet and joyful and that it is good to be alive in the land of turkeys and cranberries. We may think kindly of our neighbors, well of the community in which we live.

Millions of men and women, who know what war exacts when it takes them away from home and neighbors, may rejoice that there is no war or alarm of war in Europe. Racial hate and prejudices are taking a much-needed rest. American relief is not required to keep European children from starving. Trotsky's army is not making war on anybody but Russians, and famine horrors are not added to the horrors of Bolshevism.

The Dawes plan is in operation under an American agent general, and the Germans are getting real money in place of paper which changes value by the hour. France is prosperous. Europe as a whole is at work and feeling better. All this is good news to America.

Many million voters went to the polls to register their choice in a peaceful national election. When the results were known the next day they were accepted without a tumult or anybody raising an army to dispute the verdict by force. "Of course," you say, but that "of course" expresses a reason for thanks when you consider how they hold elections in some other countries. It is a reason for indulging the "grand and glorious feeling," even on the part of those whose candidates were beaten.

We have more automobiles than all the rest of the world, more good roads than last year. Our standard of living and our wages and what we get for them are the highest in the world. Our savings bank accounts and our endowments for education have increased. The lonely ranch can tune in to hear music and speeches in distant cities. We are free of debts to other nations and other nations owe us vast sums. We have freedom of thought and religious practice and all kinds of freedom which other people do not enjoy. You may know someone who has more money and comfort and a better automobile than you have, but you may have more of the things that count for human happiness than he has. He may be envying you their possession. He may be envying you your children, your health, your content and your free conscience and your Thanksgiving Day smile.

As a people we may all be thankful that we live in a land that has not known the foot of a foreign invader for over a hundred years; that it has not been and is in no danger of being Bolsheviked; yes, thanks for these United States, which is giving thanks to our own efforts in making them what they are; and thanks for the spirit that is in us to make them still better so we shall have more to be thankful for on future Thanksgiving Days. Arrangements are being made for a general Thanksgiving service, which will be held in the Baptist church in this city, at ten o'clock on Thanksgiving Day, and all of the churches' memberships are expected to take part in the services that day. Lubbock people and all of the people of the South Plains generally have possibly more to be thankful for than any other people on earth, and we believe that they will show their genuine appreciation of the good things that they have enjoyed by attending the services here that day.

This fine land in which we live, and this most favored section of the nation is enjoying prosperity. We are healthy, and we have magnificent weather. We have wonderful educational advantages. We have nice churches, and we live in a country where the cream of the population of the United States have gathered and are making their homes. Indeed we have much to be thankful for. "Oh, give thanks unto the Lord for He is good; for His mercy endureth forever. Let the redeemed of the Lord say so. Whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy."

YOUR NEWSPAPER—IT'S A FUNNY THING

"Newspapers are funny things," commented the tired business man. "We laugh at 'em and yet we get them the first thing after we arrive home. If we can't find them in the accustomed place, then it's old Billy. Sometimes we cuss 'em and say there's nothing between the sheets, never was anything; but we turn right around and are the first to take up for our favorite if an outsider starts the knocking. Yeah, newspapers are a funny thing." What is a newspaper? It is a chronicler of events, a medium by which the main things that happen about town and over the country are brought to your doorstep. A machine which places at your disposal bargains and goods which may be bought at a premium. It is not a cold and mercenary money making machine, as some people have the idea. Most newspapers are poor money makers. A constant contact with human nature and cranks, who are more evident about a newspaper office, sometimes makes those in charge a little calloused or a little cynical; but still they are actually human. At all times they have their finger upon the pulse of events.

Mistakes are made in the newspaper office just like they are made in the bank and in every other place of business. Newspapers, especially small town newspapers, have to depend largely upon friends and acquaintances for the information. Sometimes something is missed and then a great commotion arises. Sometimes the paper is wrong and then some one hot under the collar, comes and blames out one of the editors. But as a general rule he sees the side of the paper and the editor. Nine time out of nine and a half, he that comes to curse, leaves with a smile and a later intention to bless. Even city newspapers, those who have not come under the supervision of cold, hard, methodical machine collectors and corporations, still maintain that atmosphere of the family newspaper. Even time in its pell mell haste has failed to completely absorb in its rapid march the human side of the great newspaper plant.

The newspaper, in most cases, is a reformer. Seldom do you see a newspaper that actually gets out and fights for those things that are not best for the community, and the general moral atmosphere of the community. Newspapers in almost every instance are the medium where civic improvements get their start, and you seldom ever see one that is not for the advancement of the town and the country. The newspaper is the first one to insist on the correct enforcement of the law, and the protection of life and character of the girls and boys of the community. Then, it is the newspaper that the people of the community should stand by and support and make it possible to render even a more complete and efficient service from year to year.

THE RED CROSS DRIVE

We have not had an opportunity to learn just what has been raised for the support of the Red Cross in Lubbock this year, but we have heard it intimated that Lubbock has not raised her quota of the amount of money that is expected from this place. If this is true, we are confident that a number of people have failed to respond to the call as liberally as they should. The Red Cross is one of those organizations that stands in a class by itself in the work that it is doing. The service that it renders each year can hardly be rendered by any other organization, and by individuals and it is therefore one of the really essential organizations of this country and without it, many very vital things would remain undone, and many people would fail to receive proper recognition in matters that mean much to them. Following the World War the Red Cross has been a wonderful help to thousands of service men, that could hardly have received aid from any other source.

If Lubbock has not put over her part in good shape, we certainly should not stop the canvass till the amount is in hand or is subscribed. The Red Cross is necessary, and the business men can not afford to be without it in the community. Few have any idea how much service this organization renders and how much worry and extra expense business men would be given if the charity cases were all turned loose without investigation of their needs and requirements.

This town has been saved thousands of dollars by the Red Cross, through its system of investigation of people who have asked claims of the people, and have been referred to the Red Cross for investigation. The people of Lubbock should see to it that the quota and some to spare is given this organization.

PLAINS RAILROAD IS DISCUSSED AT FT. WORTH

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 22.—Col. C. H. Powell, president of the proposed Texas Panhandle & Gulf railroad, and E. J. Noonon, his chief engineer, both of Chicago, arrived in Fort Worth Thursday and held a conference Friday with the railroad committee of Fort Worth to discuss progress being made in the financing of the proposed road. The railroad committee is a body organized to support the proposed road across the plains of Texas. Seven millions of dollars in bonds of the proposed road have been placed in the east by Col. Powell, and land owners along the right of way are subscribing the remaining $3,000,000 estimated as necessary for the construction of the line. The hearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission on Colonel Powell's petition for permission to build the proposed railroad, originally set for Oct. 1, was postponed until April 1, 1925, to permit completion of financing.

Buick's chassis is sealed. Iron and steel housings protect the operation of all driving parts—seal them in to safeguard Buick performance.

Here are the vital points at which Buick engineering protects this extra protection:

- FAN HUB—Fan bearing totally enclosed—lubricated by its own gear pump.
- TRANSMISSION—Completely protected. Shifting mechanism housed.
- MOTOR—Steel cover keeps water from short-circuiting spark plugs. Steel cover over valve in head mechanism keeps dust out, oil in.

SCORE ALMOST AT WILL TO WIN 39-0

(Special to The Morning Avalanche.)
VERNON, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Vernon Lions this afternoon easily disposed of their last challenger to the right to represent northwest Texas and the Panhandle in the Interscholastic League football finals, when they defeated the Pampa Harvesters by the one-sided score of 39 to 0. The Lions scored almost at will and registered sixteen first downs to one lone first down for the Harvesters which came late in the final period.

On a forty-five yard pass by the visitor, the Harvesters made sixteen attempts to pass and completed only one. The Lions scored their first touchdown in the first period; one in the second and three in the third, making it a perfect day with one in the fourth when the mighty Crouch intercepted a pass and smashed thru the Pampa defense.

Brown for Pampa and Crouch and Robinson for Vernon were line stars of the game, while Walker, Williams, Gelhausen and Bryan, the back quarter of stars for the Lions, directed an offensive that completely baffled the Harvester defense.

The Lions completed two passes out of five tries but only one of their touchdowns came as the direct result of an overhead attack. The Lions will probably be pitted against the winner of Tuesday's game in a Ranger between Cisco and Stephenville for the championship of all West Texas.

Irish Come From Behind To Beat Northwestern 13-6

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Notre Dame ripped through a 13 to 6 victory over Northwestern here today, but only after Ralph (Moon) Baker ace of the Northwestern eleven, had put fear into the South Bend warriors by scoring two quick field goals in the first quarter. It was the first game played in the new Grant Park Stadium and the first time Notre Dame has played here in four years. Forty thousand fans jammed the stadium, braving a cold threatening afternoon.

Baker was the whole show in the first period. On the fourth play of the game he drop-kicked a goal. Rockne immediately jerked his reserves.

However, Baker again scored in the same period, this time, a perfect field goal from the forty yard line.

In the second quarter the famed four of Notre Dame's backfield swung into action and line crashes by Len Miller and Stahlderher took the ball into striking distance, Stahlderher scoring the touchdown. Notre Dame kicked goal. The fourth opened with a touchdown. Baker attempted a forward pass, and Layden grabbed the ball on the 35 yard line and slipped along the line for the second touchdown. Goal was missed.

Western Football Championship Is Won By Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Chicago won the western conference football championship here today by fighting off a savage Wisconsin invasion and holding the Badgers to a scoreless tie.

Trampled by most of their opponents during the session, the Badgers showed unexpected power and scored what the Badger fans claim is equivalent to a victory. All the strategy of the Maroon coach Alton Stagg and every pound of weight in the heaviest line in the conference, was required to stave off defeat.

The fight raged tenaciously every minute of the game. Each inch of ground was contested and every conceivable offensive method was tested.

The final conference standing follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Tied
Chicago	3	0	2
Illinois	3	1	1
Iowa	3	1	1
Michigan	4	2	0
Purdue	2	2	0
Minnesota	1	2	1

Indiana	1	3	0
Ohio	1	3	0
Wisconsin	0	2	2

"TERRIBLE DANE" TO MEET LOCAL MAN HERE FRIDAY.

With baseball safely tucked away until spring and football schedules almost completed, Lubbock sport fans are ready for winter attractions and already local wrestling enthusiasts are preparing for a series of matches among well known grapplers. As a starter, T. R. "Railroad" Rott, who has been making Lubbock his home for the past several months and who is already acquainted with Lubbock wrestling circles, will meet Thor Jensen, of Hereford, "The Terrible Dane" in a finish match on next Friday night.

Everybody in Lubbock and vicinity know Thor Jensen. The Hereford man has appeared here a number of times and has never failed to ring the bell of enthusiasm of local sport followers. He reports that he is in tip-top shape and has been wrestling throughout the fall months. He recently defeated "Roughhouse" Smith of Tulsa, in a match in strong falls, breaking the Oil City man's arm in the second period.

While Rott is a new comer to Lubbock he has been associated with the Lylick Roofing company and is appearing here under the tutelage of Fred Wittman, who has appeared here as a referee in several bouts. Wittman, who was one of the best yellers in the country when he was wrestling, promises that his man will know Jensen and if he does a bang-up battle is a certainty. Prior to coming here Rott was featured thru out the east, especially in Louisville Kentucky and Pensacola, Florida, where press notices show he hung up enviable records as a fast, clean and winning athlete.

Just where the bout will be held is yet undecided. Charles Olson and Bomar Moore, well known as top-notchers to Lubbock wrestling followers, have both challenged the winner of Friday's match, which if well supported will be the first of a series of good bouts for the winter.

The first Ames point came as the result of a field goal by Roberts in the first minute of the final period. The cyclones had advanced the ball to the end line but the Drake eleven held its ground and Roberts stepped back to the 25 yard line where he booted a perfect field goal.

The touchdown came as the result of two forward passes from Roberts to N. Behm. On the second on the feet Ames back out-distanced his pursuers and crossed the last white line for the score.

INSURANCE FIRM IS LATEST MOVE OF LABOR CLUB

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Organized labor has begun another invasion into the field of capitalism which, if successful will be as significant a development as the spread of the labor banks which are now an important cog in the country's banking structure.

An old line life insurance company has been organized by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Engineers and will begin doing a general insurance business January 1. The sale of stock has been completed and the organization has $100,000 capital in hand as working capital and another $100,000 in cash as surplus. Informal applications for insurance are already being received. Those in charge of the work say that these applications indicate that $1,400,000 worth of insurance will be written at the start. The company has been incorporated under the name of Union Co-operative Insurance Association and will not confine its business to members of the electrical union or to organized labor.

This venture was decided upon after three years of operation of a mutual benefit insurance in which a reserve fund of $800,000 was built up out of insurance written on a limited group plan for members of the union. It was decided if the union could handle its own members insurance successfully it could broaden out and write policies for any one desiring them.

E. F. in France.

The Red Cross Saturday received transportation for the man and someone to accompany him to Dallas, and he will be put on the train here today. He will be accompanied by a representative of the local chapter of the Red Cross who will offer any aid possible on the long trip.

It is hardly probable that the man can live, according to those who have watched over him since he was discovered Monday. He had slept only three hours, according to one of the men who has helped to watch over him, at a late hour last night since being placed in their care Monday.

TEXAS JOURNALISM OVER CENTURY OLD EDUCATOR SAYS

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—Texas Journalism is more than a century old, the first newspaper in the state having begun publication in 1819 at Nacoches, under the ownership of Philip Long and his band of filibusters, said Dr. E. C. Barker, professor of history at the University of Texas in a recent lecture on Pioneer Journalism in Texas. The paper, called the "Mexican Advocate," devoted the greatest part of its space to the cause of the filibustering party. It survived two months, and few copies of its editions are in existence, Dr. Barker said.

Another early venture was that of Asbridge at San Antonio in 1823. He issued, during the summer of that year, a prospectus of the proposed paper, in flamboyant style. The first issue, however, was not forthcoming, and a man named Bangs took the press to Monterey.

A second paper was begun at Nacoches in September, 1829, published in English and Spanish under the name of the "Amoebian." Shocum was the editor. After a few months of publication, the paper was stopped, and nothing further was heard from Shocum until 1832, when he was farming.

The first paper of any importance, however, was the Texas Gazette, begun at San Felipe de Austin by Godman Brown. Cotten in September, 1829. One volume was issued there, after which the press and fixtures, humorously called the "Cotten plant," was sold to a corporation that included Stephen F. Austin and Judge Williamson. The corporation renamed the paper the "Mexican Citizen," and published it until 1833.

In that year, Cotten resumed publication of it as the Texas Gazette, and moved it to Brazoria. It was stopped when he began the study of law and was lost to history. The political importance of the Gazette was recognized by Austin. A letter from him to Cotten, in the possession of the University library, according to Dr. Barker, suggested that he use as his motto, "Mexico es mi patria," or "Mexico is my country." Austin thought he ought to support the government. The Brazoria paper was sold to a man named Anthony, who published it as the Texas Gazette and Brazoria Advertiser.

A few years later Anthony died of cholera and the press was lost. In December, 1833, John A. Wharton began the Advocate of the People's Rights at Brazoria, while the Gazette was still being issued. His principal object, according to Dr. Barker, was to abuse certain people of the state, among them Austin. Four months later, it was abandoned on account of poor support.

"The Emigrant and Texas Republican," begun at Brazoria in the summer of 1834 by Benjamin Gare and Thomas Gray, lasted until March 1836. The publishers disappeared and little is known of their history, Dr. Barker said.

The most successful of the early papers was the Texas Telegraph and Texas Register, which survived the revolutionary times and lasted until the Civil War. Gail Borden, his brother, Thomas, and a man named Baker, were the editors. Its history was full of thrills. It was forced to move to Harrisburg when the Mexican army advanced, and was temporarily suspended when the Mexicans captured the press and threw it in Buffalo Bayou.

These early newspapers depended, as do those of modern times, upon advertising for the greater part of their sustenance. Samples of the advertising were read by Dr. Barker. Ads for a hat factory on the Brazos river on the present site of Liberty, physicians, merchants, insurance agents and above all liquor dealers and politicians, were carried.

One Dr. Peebles at Brazoria advertised in the Gazette that he had trepanned Captain Kirkendall and caused his eyes, hitherto blind and dry, to water and reddened. A Gonzales professor advertised the establishment of a seminary, outlining courses and their cost, ranging from orthography, orthography and arithmetic at $1, to literature and logic at $4.

In their policies, the early papers were as a rule conservative. They did not abuse the characters of private individuals, and they were non-committal concerning crimes until after trials, though they often deigned to offer advice to the officers. Publication was often irregular, due to scarcity of type, when one section had to be printed at a time, press defects, pied type, and scarcity of paper. They had many financial worries. They were usually, as in the case of the Gazette, four or eight pages on paper 7-2 by 9 inches, three columns in width.

FARMER SPECIAL TRAIN RUN FROM COAST COUNTRY

CORPUS CHRISTI, Nov. 20.—Figures piled high when farmers of the four counties of the Gulf Coast backing an eleven car special train, the first ever run by farmers in Texas, took stock. It cost them $25,000 for a twelve day trip through central and north Texas and return. A single railroad ticket costing more than $2,000 was purchased at Alice, covering the 150 reservations for the train. There were more than a hundred farmers each paying $150 for his reservation, making the trip. A sixteen piece military band from Fort Sam Houston was taken along.

The train left Corpus Christi on November 9, to return November 22. Thirty eight towns were included in the itinerary, stopping two hours or more at each point.

The Special was exclusively a farmer's train, organized and backed by them. Six months time was taken in preparing for it before it departed, and about 75,000 letters were mailed to individuals and organizations of the farmers, most of whom formerly lived in north Texas.

Supplementing the four cars of exhibits of farm products, a 4,000 foot motion picture of the counties represented, Nueces, San Patricio, Jim Wells, and Kleberg, was taken along to show at the various towns. The population of the Gulf Coast section supporting the special is about 44,000.

Baptist People of Tahoka Plan for New Building

TAHOKA, Texas, Nov. 22.—Members of the Baptist church are again making plans for a new church building. A meeting of the men of the church was held at the church Sunday afternoon, and a meeting of the women was held at the same time in the courthouse, to discuss the matter of beginning a building campaign.

At each of these meetings it was the consensus of opinion that the basement of the proposed building should be built in the immediate future. It is the desire to build a house which will be adequate for church and Sunday school purposes for many years, and it was therefore deemed wise to build a basement large enough to fairly well meet the present need and afterwards erect a superstructure that will meet the future needs of the congregation. It is intended that the completed structure shall be a handsome and commodious building.

At the men's meeting Sunday it was decided to call a general meeting of the church for the afternoon of the fifth Sunday in this month to further discuss the matter.

ANNUAL DRIVE OF RED CROSS WILL CONTINUE HERE

The local chapter of the American Red Cross has not yet completed the annual drive for funds that was started several days ago, and as yet a sufficient amount has not been subscribed to take care of the growing demands placed upon the secretary by those in need.

The Red Cross in Lubbock takes care of those numerous problems that are handled in other cities through their "united charities" usually an organization composed of all the benevolent societies of the city. The burdens upon the local office are far heavier than they were at this time a year ago, and need for more money is the direct result.

If you have not made a sound, worthwhile contribution to the Red Cross, call upon the secretary Monday and present your check.

By United Press
AUSTIN, Nov. 22.—Gov. Pat Neff was advised today by J. E. Bogge Scott chairman of the livestock sanitary commission that it has now been 37 days since there had been any serious outbreaks of the foot and mouth disease and that those handling this problem were of the opinion that all affected premises had been cleaned. It is understood that the germ causing this disease develops within 21 days and that the affected premises are safe after the lapse of that period. It is thought that practically all the states will within a short time lift the quarantine against shipment of livestock and products from Texas.

MOVING DAY FOR THE POSTOFFICE IS NEAR

The Lubbock Postoffice, is about to move—but doesn't know how to make the grade. The Keyless Lock company representative who was to have arrived here Friday morning to install the lock boxes and other equipment in the new building had not been heard from late Saturday by the postmaster, and until the new equipment is installed the postmaster is obliged to continue business in the same old location.

Today was slated as moving day with hindrances bobbing up thick for Lubbock's biggest business but the chances are that it will be next Sunday before the move can be effected.

Meantime, the waiting lines before the general delivery and parcel post windows are on the increase and the Christmas rush is close ahead.

Copyright, 1924—Architects' Small House Service Bureau. Plan No. 6470.

THE Italian architecture is particularly noted for its elegance and refinement. Simplicity is the keynote. The walls and roofs glow with color under the pleasant sun of southern skies.

This is an excellent style for the small homes of America, and its merits have brought it into use more and more. The small home illustrated here, Design No. 6-A-70, carries in its exterior a suggestion of the Italian influence. The plan is strictly American.

Structurally the house is of a type which architects call "masonry bound"—another way of saying the outside walls are of masonry. In this house they are of hollow tile and the surface is finished with stucco. The tile clings above the windows enliven the walls. A tile roof enriches the color. Full length shutters and an arched trellis over the entrance complete the fine exterior.

The house can be accommodated on a 40 foot lot if the porch is built at the rear—otherwise, a 50 foot lot will be required.

The plan is one of the most practical as to type that can be arranged for a six room house. The rooms are all well lighted and ventilated. There are adequate wall spaces for the larger pieces of furniture. There are three excellent bedrooms and six closets on the second floor.

The cost to build this house will depend upon what the house is made of and what you put into it. The cost will also be affected by the locality in which it is built. In certain cities costs are much higher than in others. Simple equipment will decrease the cost—expensive equipment and materials will increase the cost.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The plans for small homes are furnished by the Regional Bureau of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., an organization made up of the representative practicing architects from leading architectural offices throughout the United States. This bureau is controlled by the American Institute of Architects, and has the endorsement of the Department of Commerce, United States government. It is practically a non-profit making public service, and has as its purpose the furnishing of a very complete and dependable small house plan service at a modest cost. For information regarding the blue prints and specifications, address the Home Building Editor of this paper. The United States Bureau maintains an information department to answer home builders' questions at no charge. Enclose stamped addressed envelope.

WHAT IS YOUR SCHOOL PROBLEM?

By Phebe K. Warner

Here it is Educational Week again. This is one of the new ideas that is going to work wonders in a few years. Just the thought of everybody being asked to really stop and think for one week each year about their schools and the educational conditions of their home community. It is another one of those national moves that depends on every little community in the Nation as well as the great human centers of humanity.

It is a week set apart by the Nation for you to have your SAY about YOUR school. And it does not make a whiff of difference whether you have one or a dozen children in school. It does not make any difference whether you are a tax payer to the support of the schools or not. THIS is America. And the schools belong to the people. Therefore all the people should be interested in the school. But are they?

We do not know the whole meaning of Educational Week. We have no idea what the entire motive was that caused its creation. But anybody can make a good guess at a part of the motive. First of all it must have been to improve the school of the whole country. Now how can that be done? There is only ONE way to make a better Nation and that is to build up the interests of every individual community in that Nation. This Nation was built community by community, and when enough communities had grown into real civilized centers to make a good place to live the people began to get restless and start out again to start an other state. That is the history of the world, but especially is it the history of the United States. Our public school system has been developed on the same plan. And now if we would have a better educational system, we must each one in every community do our best to make OUR school the best school possible. Educational Week is for YOU no matter where you live or how big or how little your school may be.

But before you can go to work to improve anything everybody concerned in that particular place or cause should get together and decide what just to be done the worst. That is why we hope every school in Texas is asking itself this question this week: "What is our school problem?" Is your school too small to afford those things that every school boy and girl of today is entitled to and ought to have? Is your school so large that the teacher cannot do her best work? If your school is too small CONSOLIDATION would be a good thing for you to think about. Folks, it has to come if the children of the small town and the country are ever to have a fair chance with the children of the cities. Does your school need more play ground equipment? Does it need a library? Does it need the thoroughly cleaned before all the window light put in and the house children of the country are shut up in it for the winter? Is your community united on its school interests or are you a fussy community always keeping up some kind of a wrangle among yourselves just for nothing while your innocent children reap the harvest of your prejudice? People who will let their children's education drag in the background for the sake of harboring an old grudge at some of the neighbors ought to move off somewhere away from school but leave their children within reach of the school.

Have you a Parent-Teachers' Association or a Mothers' Club whose united purpose is to serve the school and build up the best and strongest sentiment for the school? There is no better way to solve the problems of YOUR school than to organize the parents and teachers of your school into one working body and pull and work and talk for the school. But somebody's already saying, we haven't enough parents to make a good organization. Here is one rule that is pretty sure to hold true. Wherever there are enough children to make a school there will be enough parents to make a Parents Club. There may be only one teacher but if such is the case then you need to get together and stand pat for that teacher. And don't forget this. The Parent-Teachers' Association or the Mothers' Club will prove to be as great an inspiration to the parents and the teacher as it is to the school. Everybody in this Nation needs to belong to something, beside their home and family. You need to get out with your neighbors and mingle with them to keep your own spirit alive and growing just as badly as your children's school needs to be kept growing for their sake. The main reason our schools have not developed any faster in some communities is simply because the people forgot to keep growing. If you do not believe this look around you and see what you SEE. Do you find a fine, up-to-date school in a little, stupid dying community? Do you find a poor, little school in a live, up-to-date community? Your community is just about as modern as your school house and your school because YOUR SCHOOL is the material expression of your community and public welfare ideals.

Sometimes you find a school that is a one man rule school, and everybody in the community is so afraid of that one MAN that they just let him run their own school business. What kind of folks do you call that? Then again you find communities where only one man cares enough for the children's education to boost for the school. In such cases everybody else stands off and knocks the school and the man. Or woman if she happens so to be. It is the hardest thing to help somebody or even a whole community that is determined NOT TO BE helped. Most folks rather be bossed around than lead. Perhaps the trouble with your school is with your selves. It may be the roads are in the way of you having good schools. Or it may be the lack of school funds. Perhaps it is lack of cooperation in the community. But whatever it is this is the week of all weeks of the year for the people of every community in Texas or any other state for that matter to get together and find out what their school problems are and then resolve to solve them for the best interest of the children whatever that may mean. And don't forget YOUR SCHOOL is the MIRROR of the PUBLIC SPIRIT of YOUR HOME COMMUNITY.

PLANTING OF TREES

By O. E. SIECKE, State Forester

Editor's Note.—The following is the second article on the planting of trees and the care of them. This is the time of the year that we should all become interested in the planting of trees. The treeless plains can be made the home of numerous trees if we will get in line and plant the right kind of shade and fruit trees, and we are glad to give this article space as well as the one preceding it, which appeared several days ago.

Care of Trees after Planting

Protection from mechanical injury. A ten foot two inch stake, tied to the tree with a soft rope or hose, and set beside the tree three feet in the ground, will do much to keep the tree from injury due to strong winds. If there is danger from injury by horses or other animals biting the bark, a wire guard made of 1-2 inch mesh with a hose around the top may be placed around the tree.

Protection from insects. Trees may be attacked by three classes of insects, namely: sucking insects, leaf feeding insects and borers.

Control of Sucking Insects. Shade and ornamental trees often are attacked by insects which cause the leaves to curl, turn brown and drop off. These insects usually are plant lice or aphids, thrips and leaf hoppers. This class of insects secure their food by inserting a long slender beak into the interior of the bud, leaf or blossom, through which they suck the plant juices. Sap suckers do not possess the ability to chew plant tissue, consequently any method of control which only poisons the foliage is impracticable. The best method of controlling insects of this class is by the use of contact insecticides. Death is caused by clogging of the breathing pores, by paralyzing the nervous system, causing action on the tissue of the insects or a combination of the above.

The best control measure for most sucking insects is the use of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate spray. Paris green oil emulsion, kerosene emulsion and other contact sprays are valuable but usually are more difficult to mix and require greater care in application to avoid burning the foliage. The following proportions for the mixing of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate spray are recommended unless otherwise stated in directions supplied by the manufacturer:

40 per cent nicotine sulphate: 1 1/4 teaspoonfuls to 1 gallon of water; 8 teaspoonfuls to 6 gallons of water; 1-2 pint to 50 gallons of water.

In the preparation of small quantities of spray sufficient common laundry soap should be added to make the solution sudsy and for large quantities two pounds of soap for each 50 gallons of solution. The spray should be applied with a fine nozzle spray pump. The foliage must be thoroughly drenched to insure striking all the insects both on top and bottom of the leaves. In case the first treatment is not completely effective a second application should be made in from 10 to 14 days. It often is advisable to treat a second time to guarantee absolute control.

To receive specific information on shade tree insects, insect injury and remedies address inquiries to the State Forester, College Station, Texas. Specimens of live insects stocked with their favorite food should accompany the inquiry. Any information concerning the name of the host tree, date of the collection, extent of the injury, etc., will greatly assist in the identification of the insects and determining methods of control.

Control of Leaf Feeding Insects

Throughout the growing season shade and ornamental trees often are subject to the attack of leaf feeding insects which skeletonize the leaves or chew them up entirely and partially or completely defoliate the trees. Upon examination, there will usually be found some kind of a worm, varying in size from 1/8-inch in length to as much as 4 inches in length, feeding upon the leaves. If the leaves are being entirely eaten the worms are of medium size and are mostly the larvae of moths or butterflies. The worms that skeletonize are ordinarily found on the under side of the leaves and usually are the larvae of saw flies. They are small slimy worms the color of the leaf and usually are not over 1/2-inch in length. The adult looks much like a small wasp. The exception to these cases is the May Beetle or June Bug which hooten defoliates a tree in a few days by attacking them before day-break or late at night. During the day it is seldom possible to find these insects about the tree. In general, all leaf feeding insects may be controlled by the use of stomach poisons. However, web worms and tent caterpillars are more easily and effectively controlled by burning out the web or by cutting out the infested foliage and then burning it.

Arsenate of lead and calcium arsenate are the two sprays recommended for the control of leaf feeding insects. Paris green may be used but unless special care is taken in its application there is a danger of burning the foliage.

The following proportions for the preparation of arsenical spray are recommended:

Arsenate of lead or calcium arsenate, 9 teaspoonfuls to 1 gallon of water and 18 teaspoonfuls of lime; 1 pound to 2 gallons of water and 2 pounds of lime.

The proper method of preparing any arsenical spray is to first make a thin paste of the arsenical compound by mixing with a small amount of water and then adding the required amount of water. The lime made in to a paste form, should be added last. The spray is most effectively applied with a fairly fine nozzle spray pump thoroughly drenching the tree to insure wetting both sides of the leaves. It is necessary to frequently stir the spray material during application so as to prevent "settling" of the undissolved particles. A second treatment in ten or fourteen days is advisable.

in case all the insects are not killed by the first spraying.

Control of Tree Borers

Shade trees are often attacked by boring insects which seriously affect their vitality and frequently kill the tree in a short time. Many varieties of borers are found feeding on wood and sap. Those most injurious to shade trees belong to the round headed and flat headed groups of beetles. The extent of the damage usually is two fold: (1) Borers permit the penetration of water which cause rot to form; (2) Flat head borers attack the life giving layer of wood (cambium) located immediately beneath the bark, arresting the circulation of sap between the roots and the leaves. An infestation by such insects ordinarily is recognized by the presence of darkened spots on the trunks and limbs, abnormally cracked bark, dead and dying limbs, fading foliage, "sawdust" in crevices of the bark, and sap oozing from points of attack. The adult insect in most cases deposits its eggs in the crevices of the bark where they hatch into small grubs. Round headed borers tunnel into the heartwood while the flat headed borers make burrows underneath the bark. These insects, after their feeding period, usually emerge from the tree during late spring, shortly after they attain the adult beetle stage. The adults then lay their eggs and the life history is completed.

The protection of shade trees from boring insects rests almost wholly on preventive measures. The grubs feed and live most of their lives out of sight and are beyond reach of the usual poison or contact insecticide. In the majority of cases healthy trees can be saved only by promptly removing badly infested adjacent trees. Infested trees should be fertilized if necessary. A healthy tree well nourished and protected from injury, is better able to resist insect attack. Control of borers after they have gained entrance into the tree is an extremely difficult task. However, providing the attack is not too severe, the following control measures are often successful:

(1) Injection of carbon disulphide (high-life) into the holes with an ordinary medicine dropper, when the presence of borers is indicated by oozing sap, and immediately plugging the holes with soap or putty. The fumes from this chemical are fatal to the borers.

(2) Probe each hole with a flexible soft wire. If the wire is slightly necked it will bring out pieces of the grub showing what results are being accomplished.

Borer attack may be lessened by the use of the following repellent wash: Dissolve two quarts of cheap laundry soap in three gallons of water. Add one-half pint of crude carbolic acid and two ounces of paris green. Thicken with time to a thin paste. This repellent should be applied by painting the trunk and larger limbs of the tree in late spring, covering all small crevices. A second coat should be applied in about thirty days.

Protection from Fungus Diseases

Fungus diseases which are well established in trees are not well established. Trees should not be watered more often than once every ten days, or possibly once a week during severe droughts. They should never be watered unless they are suffering from lack of moisture and then enough water should be applied to thoroughly saturate the soil down to the roots. About twenty-five gallons should be applied to young trees and more to older trees. Evening is the best time to apply the water.

The feeding roots are not located near the stem of the tree, but directly under the outermost branches. It will reach these roots and not the stem alone. It is a good practice to remove the upper two inches of dry soil from around the tree and then apply the necessary amount of water and finally replace the dry soil. This soil prevents evaporation of water just applied.

Water applied frequently and in small amounts may cause alkali to rise and concentrate at the surface. The roots naturally grow to moisture and also concentrate near the surface where they are more sensitive to drought and also may suffer from alkali if it is present. Trees in groups, as in windbreaks and groves require less artificial water.

Trees need all available moisture and suffer when grass and weeds are allowed to grow beneath and rob them of much of this moisture.

Therefore, it would be to the great advantage of the trees to keep all the soil around them cultivated and free from other vegetation, thus conserving the moisture for the trees. However, a circle of four

CHRYSLER-MAXWELL ENGINEERS GIVEN BIG OVATION

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 22.—Officials of the Maxwell Motor Corporation are declaring today that the nation-wide reception being accorded Walter J. Chrysler's latest creation, the new good Maxwell, is the greatest and most enthusiastic ever given a Maxwell product. It is even more enthusiastic than the reception given the first good Maxwell three years ago.

Thousands upon thousands of persons—the motoring public, automobile distributors and dealers, automobile factory representatives and factory executives from practically every motor car company, together with hundreds of newspaper and automobile trade publication men—have swarmed to the Maxwell-Chrysler showrooms throughout the country to see the line of cars that publicity proclaims to be without a peer among four cylinder motor cars in the world, and from which, he adds, results have been achieved which surpass those hitherto attained from any four cylinder car. The tremendous and outspoken enthusiasm with which the public has greeted the new Maxwell permits us to arrive at but one conclusion, J. E. vice president in charge of sales, said yesterday, and that is that the new car is making just as profound a sensation as did the Chrysler itself. The reception being accorded it reminds me of that given the Chrysler last winter.

"This is the Maxwell that we have been building toward ever since we began to plan the Chrysler. It is the car that Maxwell-Chrysler engineers have been concentrating upon ever since they completed designing the Chrysler Six nearly two years ago.

The striking features of the new car, according to Detroiters who have managed to secure a ride, is its mechanical co-ordination, lack of vibration, flashing acceleration and extreme flexibility.

PLANTING OF TREES

feet in diameter is usually kept free from vegetation under the trees in cities and as a rule this is sufficient to insure healthy growth. The soil on this area should be frequently loosened with a hoe or rake and kept perfectly free of all growth. Horse cultivation may be practiced in the case of windbreaks and groves.

Fertilizing

Street trees are growing under very different and less favorable conditions than forest trees. The leaves are usually taken away and nothing is put back into the soil, which becomes poorer and poorer in plant food. In order to replace the soil constituents that are used by the tree it is necessary to apply fertilizers to the surface of the ground beneath the tree. It has been recommended that commercial fertilizers containing phosphorus, nitrogen and potash in proportions of 12-4-4 be applied when the tree is planted. This may be repeated every spring and will result in accelerated growth of the tree. In the case of windbreaks and groves trees are rarely fertilized.

Pruning

Trees may not develop naturally into the desired form and pruning may be necessary in order to direct the growth into those branches which will give the tree a symmetrical appearance. It is desirable to maintain the natural form of the tree, merely removing limbs where they are too numerous, or raising the head of the tree by removing branches on the under side of the lower limbs. Pruning of live limbs should be done in the winter before the sap begins to rise in early spring. If done in late summer it may stimulate growth and make the new shoots liable to frost injury.

Dead and diseased limbs should also be removed. Dead limbs can be cut at any time.

Limbs should be cut off close up to the main stem and a clean cut.

If the limbs are large the cut should be started from the underside and then finished from the upper side, to prevent the weight of the limb from splitting and ripping off some of the bark from the main stem. All new cuts should be painted over with creosote paint or tar to exclude all wood destroying fungi.

He is a pharmacist's mate on the U. S. S. California, and recently has been stationed at San Pedro, California. Friends of the alert youngster are pleased to know that he is making good headway, having gained two promotions since entering the service and is in line for a third promotion which he will receive after serving a definite period of time. The necessary examinations having been successfully made by him for this promotion.

Philip has a large number of friends here among the younger set and his visit will be enjoyed by all of them.

FAVORABLE RADIO REPORT ON THIS CITY HEARD

Bob Smith, of the Ford & Smith Grocery, was in the Avalanche office Saturday afternoon and reported that he had just received a letter from relatives in Williamstown, Mo., stating they had received a very favorable radio report on activities in Lubbock.

The relative stated that on the evening of Nov. 12th while "listening in" on the Dallas News station the sender stated that he had just made a visit to Lubbock and that he had found fifteen thousand of the most progressive citizens to be found anywhere. He stated further that Lubbock was a growing town, and that the spirit of progressiveness exhibited by the citizenship forecasted many future advantages for the city.

Williamstown is in the extreme northeastern corner of Missouri, more than a thousand miles from Lubbock, and to have the citizens of that town hear such favorable comment on Lubbock is sure to result in material gain for this city.

WATERWORKS AT ANTON NEARING COMPLETION

ANTON, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Anton Townsite Company has just received a well that was drilled by Contractor M. L. Morgan. The well was drilled to a depth of seventy feet, with thirty feet water formation with sufficient water supply to take care of the needs of the entire town.

A power plant and elevated tanks are being erected for temporary water supply, and lines will be laid to all residences in the city.

The Anton Townsite Company has started actual construction on three stucco dwellings and three brick business houses.

Grading on all main streets will be started Monday by C. F. Jackson, contractor. December 3rd has been set for opening of the town and thereafter a large building program is expected to be instituted.

A. & M. TELLS HOW TO HAVE GREEN VEGETABLES IN WINTER

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 22.—Few farmers realize the great number of vegetables that can be stored in cellars or outdoor dugouts without the expense of canning for winter use. The storing of sweet potatoes is more common than anything else, but beets, salsify, parsnips, carrots, rutabagas, turnips, and Irish potatoes can be stored in the same way in pits covered with an earthen roof, and this is being religiously preached by the A. & M. Extension agents on the approach of winter. The tops of the root vegetables should be cut off, then they should be placed in conical piles, covered with 8 or 10 inches of straw, hay or leaves and then with 6 or 8 inches of earth. If the weather becomes extremely cold a thick layer of manure should be placed over the pile and a sheet or some old sacks help to keep the cold out and the heat in.

DOG CATCHER DRIVEN OUT OF SHOP BY MAD OWNER OF PET DOG

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 22.—Driven out of a butcher shop by an irate owner and a knife, Humane officer, E. A. Hill, decided that the task of dog-catcher was a strenuous occupation.

A 63-year-old Mexican, owner of the dog declared that he would not let his dog be taken and killed. Reports were received at the police station that the dog was suffering from an injured back and should be killed, so the Humane officer made the attempt to seize the dog and kill it.

The owner of the dog was booked on a charge of "resisting an officer."

THINGS THAT COUNT

In a recent article Dr. Frank Crane tells of a school teacher who gives pupils good marks for the practice of honest virtues, instead of basing grades on mere scholarship.

For instance, good marks were awarded for asking intelligent questions, for having clean finger nails, for sewing on a button at recess, for picking up litter dropped on the floor, for going to the foot of the spelling class with a smile, for keeping a promise—and so on.

ELEPHANT IS CHOSEN AS MASCOT RICE INSTITUTE

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 22.—A live, living and walking elephant will soon become the mascot of Rice Institute students.

The animal will be a companion to the famous old Owl, the cognomen under which Rice gradsters now stride into battle. Funds for the purchase of the elephant will be raised by popular subscription.

The elephant will be christened by the students upon arrival with fitting ceremonies, and will be placed in the custody of Hans Nagel, caretaker of the animals in Herman Park zoo recently imported an elephant into its membership.

IDENTIFIED AS SKELLY SLAYER; RICH CRIMINAL CLEARED

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The new uptown "deadline" by which the police have sought to bar criminals from the city's theatrical and shopping districts, has helped to clear the crime-bombarded name of Gerald Chapman, millionaire bandit of at least one black mark. Geo. Stuyvesant, of Troy, was arrested and police found that he so closely resembled the description of the man who murdered Patrolman Skelly in New Britain, Conn., on October 12, a crime which has been credited to Chapman, that they decided to investigate.

Monday Stuyvesant was identified by Edward Jackson an eye witness to the shooting and will now be returned to Connecticut to stand trial for murder.

ATTRACTING INDUSTRIES

Smaller communities have advantages when it comes to attracting new industries. Land is cheaper, taxes lower, overhead expenses less, and living conditions for the workers better.

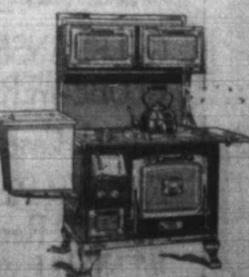

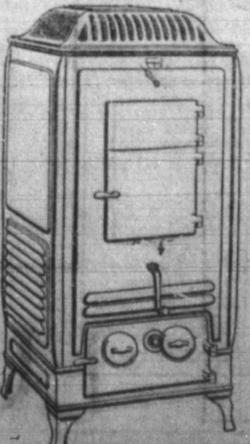

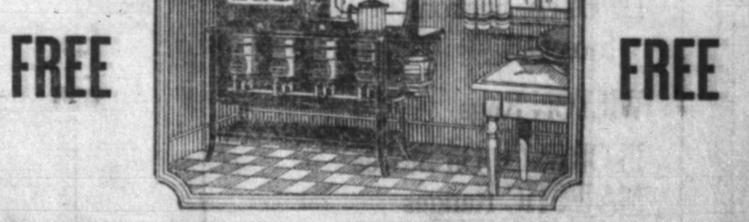

These are some of the reasons why industries are seeking to get away from large centers of population.

This movement is made possible by improvements in power and light, transportation, communication and thae public utilities services generally.

It is made definite for a given community by the extent and character of these services that are available there.

In this movement to take advantage of opportunities Lubbock i ncooperating with the people here by supplying Light and Power that meets the needs of a growing community that expects to add more and more industries and business.

OPEN GARAGE DOORS BEFORE MOTOR STARTS

By United Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Dangerous indifference to carbon monoxide poisoning in private garages still exists, according to the American Chemical Society, which makes public the findings of an investigation conducted by W. P. Yant, W. A. Jacobs and L. B. Berger of the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

"In summing up the dangers arising from running an automobile engine in a closed private garage, it can be said," according to the Society's statement, "that there seems to be no limit of time during which the engine may be run in a closed private garage with safety to an occupant thereof."

"The doors should be opened previous to starting the engine, even if it is only intended to take the car out, because, no matter how careful people may be, a few unheeded minutes taken to look at the tire or measure the gasoline tank may prove disastrous."

"If it is necessary to run the engine for any lengthy period, as in making repairs or adjustments, the car should by all means be run into the open; and even then the direct exhaust should be avoided in order to decrease the possibility of headache and discomfort."

In spite of the recent extensive investigation on the danger of poisoning by carbon monoxide by inhaling the exhaust gas of automobiles, much indifference or ignorance still exists concerning the magnitude of the hazard in running engines in small private garages.

Many Deaths Have Occurred During Administration

By WILLIAM J. McEVROY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Death has cut a wide swath in the ranks of official Washington in the past four years, greater than old timers recall in any previous single administration.

Its victims include one president, one ex-president, one son of a president, one cabinet officer, the wife of a cabinet officer, a former White House physician, the wife of a supreme court justice, six prominent senators and several members of the house.

The most recent figure to succumb to this epidemic of official mortality was Henry Cabot Lodge, for 31 years senator from Massachusetts, and at the time of his death, leader of the Senate. Lodge's death just about depleted the ranks of the famous "Old Guard."

The first break in this famous phalanx and the first inkling of the tide of death which was to sweep through the years of the Harding-Coolidge administration came shortly after the inauguration of President Harding in 1921, when Senator Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania, former secretary of state, passed away.

Only a short time later, the hugest figure in the "Old Guard," and the last of the "bosses," died—Senator Boies Penrose, also of Pennsylvania.

Three suicides marked the period the first being that of Jesse Smith, intimate friend of Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney-General. Charles Cramer, counsel of the Veterans Bureau, likewise shot himself. More recently Senator Frank Brandegee of Connecticut, another "Old Guardsman" killed himself.

Mrs. Harding was seriously ill and at the point of death in September, 1922, but she rallied to outlive her husband, only to again come close to death's door early this month.

The climate of official deaths came with the sudden calling of President Warren G. Harding in San Francisco, on August 2, 1923. Apparently recovering from a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning, Mr. Harding was felled by a stroke of apoplexy.

Senator Nicholson of Colorado, died in the fall of 1923, and was followed by Senator Dillingham of Vermont, another old-timer in the Senate, and Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota.

Woodrow Wilson, wartime President, after bravely struggling with paralysis brought on by his reckless expenditure of health and energy in the post-war days, died in February of this year and was laid to rest in the National Cathedral in Washington.

Death took a rest for a few months but only to return to strike into the highest home in the land, seizing Calvin Coolidge Jr., son of the President and Mrs. Coolidge. On July 7, young Coolidge died of blood poisoning.

Scarcely had the traces of sorrow been removed from the East Room of the White House after his funeral, than Mrs. Hubert Work, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, died suddenly while motoring, and was buried from the historic room.

The highwater mark for state funerals from the White House is believed to have been reached with the funeral there of Secretary of Agriculture H. C. Wallace, who died following an operation in October, making the first break by death in a cabinet since 1904.

Shortly after, Mrs. Amanda McKenna, wife of Supreme Court Justice McKenna, passed away and her funeral was attended by the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Senator Le Baron R. Colt of Rhode Island, succumbed during the campaign as did Representative William Greene of Massachusetts, depriving two important committees of Congress, the Senate immigration committee and the House merchant marine committee, respectively, of their experienced heads. Greene had served in the House for 29 years.

Secretary Wallace

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Nov. 22.—Not to be outdone by the house-cleaning activities of the housewives of Port Arthur, Mayor Pink Logan cleaned out the dusty corners of his desk recently.

Among the curious "hizones" a letter written in April, 1922, from a woman in Montreal, Canada, asking that her uncle be located and his address forwarded.

"He's a miner near Port Arthur," the woman wrote.

"Guess he worked in some of the mines so numerous around here," the mayor commented dryly.

"FIGHTING PARSON'S" TABERNACLE IS RAZED

By United Press

LEADVILLE, Colo., Nov. 22.—The tabernacle of the "fighting parson" oldest and most historic house of worship in Colorado's mining district has just been razed, long after the parson and his two-fisted, two-gun converts had departed to take up their work elsewhere—the parson in another world.

With collapse of the dilapidated wooden structure, memories of the church's erection and dedication have come to life. Old miners love to live over the day when Thomas Uzzell, the parson, went with a small crew of men to lay the foundation for the tabernacle.

Three miners, loath to have the "serenity" of the gambling halls and saloons disturbed on Sundays, had "jumped" his claims. Uzzell beseeched them to leave—to no avail. Then, laying aside his coat and vest, the parson routed them by force and the soil on which the edifice was to rest was baptized in blood.

Fame of the "fighting parson" spread afar. Gamblers piled their dust into the building fund. Hardened "bad men" toiled with hammer and saw to complete the work and when the first Sunday service was held one oldtimer said he recalled seeing the three "claim jumpers" two saloon proprietors and the camp's leading faro dealer in the front pews.

For five years the parson continued his Christian mission in the camp, then departed for Denver, where he died several years ago. But until those who had helped to build the tabernacle had vanished no one would suggest moving the "eye-sore" from its location.

BOTTLE MESSAGE IS FOUND AFTER 18 YEARS

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 22.—After thirteen years, a bottle in which he had placed a slip of paper with his name written on it, has been returned to William J. White, truck driver and law student.

White threw the bottle into the Missouri river and promptly forgot about it. A few days ago Mandle, a member of the government dredge boat, lots, found the bottle and returned it and the slip of paper, in good state of preservation, to White.

The lota was on the Mississippi River when the bottle was found, Mandle said.

CAMDEN DODGES THE HONOR OF MOST FATALITIES

By United Press

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 22.—Census Bureau figures crediting Camden with the greatest number of motor fatalities on the basis of population are based on wrong premises. These figures are largely based on deaths in Camden hospitals of persons injured in accidents in all parts of West and South Jersey and it is estimated by city officials that, aside from the fact that death occurred here, the city had no connection with at least 75 per cent of the cases.

Camden is situated at the gateway of all the roads leading to Atlantic City and other coast resorts to which go thousands of tourists from all sections of the United States. Nine tenths of all persons injured in accidents on the famed White Horse pike are brought to Camden hospitals, even from points forty and fifty miles distant. If the injuries result fatally, the death is registered in Camden and the Census Bureau credits the city with a motor fatality.

Chief of Police Tamtem is going over the records as to show how many of the fatalities happen in Camden and the Census Bureau will be asked to issue a bulletin taking the stigma from its first statement.

"It's unfair to Camden to be represented as the most dangerous city in the country," said Chief Tamtem. "Unfortunately for the city there are no hospitals to handle accident cases between shore points and Camden and in consequence most of the accident victims for many miles around are rushed here. Although the majority of them are non-residents, Camden gets the stigma of being a dangerous city when victims of outside accidents die in Camden hospitals."

"Some idea of the number of visiting motorists in South Jersey can be had from the fact that on Sunday alone 20,000 or more cars are parked here from Philadelphia. Then many more thousands come from New York into the coast resorts of South Jersey. If there is an accident and persons are hurt they are rushed here to our hospitals. Then when death results we get the discredit."

"Injun Joe" who was said to be the famous character in Mark Twain's story of "Tom Sawyer" died recently at the age of 102. He had wandered up and down the Mississippi River for seventy years.

PORT ARTHUR NOW IS CLEANING AND PAINTING UP

By United Press

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 22.—Balm spring weather which has held throughout the fall, is setting a new order of things in Port Arthur.

Records of Charles Busby, city building inspector, show the greatest number of painting and papering permits being taken out since April and May. Eight papering permits were issued in one day last week, setting a fall record. But whatever the records, Port Arthur will be a clean city before spring if the weather continues in its present moderation.

LIGON

By HAMILTON WRIGHT
(Fort Worth Record Staff Correspondent.)

Less than sixteen months ago the spot where Ligon, progressive Cochran County town site was a grassy waste that gave succulence to the heads of sleek slaughter cattle. The same spot today denotes construction as new residences and new farms begin to grace the landscape and proclaim a new resting place for the itching feet of people bent on "going west."

About three miles north of the geographical center of the new county, it aspired in its extreme but preconscious municipal youth to be come the "capital." It was a hard fight between Ligon and Morfitt, four miles northwest and in the battle of ballots the latter was the successful candidate for the county honors. The defeat was taken gracefully, the long, bitter fight forgotten and Ligon and Morfitt settled down to a battle of construction in which the odds appear quite even to the eyes of the writer.

Beginning to Grow.
The townsite was laid off by a company composed of Dr. George Veal, president; E. Dick and Bob Slaughter, ranch barons, all of Dallas. For a time it seemed that Ligon would be only a townsite and map designation. But now it is growing, has a store, garage, excellent little school and several residences, with scores monthly prospecting the virgin unplowed lands.

The town actually was born June 28, 1923. L. A. Melton built the first house. The town itself is said to have gotten its name from an appellation common and revered by the Slaughter family. Only six months ago the town became a recognized and established postoffice, the mail being brought tri-weekly from Littlefield, a rail station in the adjoining county. The population of Ligon is estimated at around 35. Ligon has had a gin a little over a year. H. W. Wilder is the owner. He hails from Arlington. It was built late last year and when it went into service heavy snows prevented cotton picking. It turned out about ninety bales. This season it has just "fired up" ready to bale around 1,000 bales of the staple grown in the section tributary to Ligon. Cotton is averaging around one-fourth to a bale to the acre off sod land. Some cotton will make as high as three fourths of a bale. Cotton is planted in May in this territory. Maize and corn did unusually well this season, registering high acreage yields.

Ligon has just completed a frame school structure 34 x 40 feet at a cost of $3,200. The sole recitation room serves as an auditorium. The scholastic enumeration is ten. The teacher, Miss Lois Parker of Hereford, is the only sweeper of the rule. For teaching the ten kiddies. She receives a monthly stipend of $100.

The celebrated Slaughter ranch headquarters which cowboys and prairie schooners used as a sentinel years ago may be seen just to the north enveloped by a rank, stately growth of trees, the only arboreal vegetation in the entire county.

To Sell More Land.
The population of Cochran County is expected to double in the next twelve months. C. C. Slaughter, well known rancher, will put on the market north of Ligon about December 1, this year another large tract of virgin ranch lands, fertile and productive, the famous cat-claw chocolate loam quality. In this territory there is extremely small acreage of "high land." Water is obtainable almost anywhere in this section at from 130 to 140 feet. Alvin O'Pry, postmaster and merchant, estimates that a well may be dug and windmill installed—all ready to pump the "juice" at from $200 to $400. The nearest rail point is thirty five miles and the freighting costs the homesteader here 50 cents a hundred weight from Littlefield and 50 cents from Lubbock, about forty-five miles to the east.

About twenty of thirty new homes have been erected in this territory in the last twelve months, all of them representing new farmers with lands purchased from the Slaughter ranch interests. Land terms are $25 in acre on ten years time, with only $3 down at seven per cent interest on the balance. The owner will pay for such land, natives of Ligon declare. Judging from the excellent cotton and maize seen frequently on an auto jaunt in that region, one would quickly appreciate the verity of such a statement.

DR. MATHER SAYS THERE ARE 3 TYPES OF STUDENTS

Special to the Avalanche.
AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—Students who succeed scholastically during their university careers usually succeed in business or professions after their departure from college. This statement was made recently by Dr. W. T. Mather, professor of physics in the University of Texas for many years. Dr. Mather continued:

"Students entering the universities enter of three types. The first type enters college because they have a desire to accomplish something in life. The second type enters college because their parents want them to have a college education. The third type enters the university because their friends and acquaintances always go to college. The first year spent by these students represents a change from conditions of the past and many are forced to withdraw from school because of failure to pass required courses.

"Failure in university courses can be attributed to the fact that few college students really understand how to study. A college town offers outside diversions, and many students attend social functions at the neglect of their studies. Failure is the result. The fact that university students fail in college is no indication that they will be failures in life.

Countless numbers of men and women have minds not adapted to study but adapted to the problems which life holds; however the number of scholars who succeed is far greater than the number of successes accomplished by those who were unable to meet college requirements.

SIXTY-FIVE MORE MEN IN UNIVERSITY LAST YEAR THAN WOMEN

Special to the Avalanche.
AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—Men outnumbered women in all branches of the University of Texas last year by a majority of 65, according to statistics recently compiled in the office of the registrar. Out of a total of 9,237 who studied in the Main University, the Medical Branch, College of Mines and Metallurgy and the Bureau of Extension during the year there were 4,651 men and 4,686 women.

In the long session of the Main University there were 4,670 students altogether, and 3,145 in the summer session. The Medical Branch enrolled 424, the College of Mines and Metallurgy, 86, and the Bureau of Extension, 2,807.

The most notable increase in any school over the registration of the previous year was in the Bureau of Extension which enrolled 245 more than the 1922-23 total. The extension teaching division, with the exception of the College of Mines and Metallurgy, is the youngest of the University, and has shown the quickest growth. Extension teaching was started in 1910 with 229 students enrolled, and each year has given it a greater registration than the year before, except in 1918-19. Its greatest increase was in 1921-22.

Records of the summer school enrollment also show a large increase.

The first summer session was in 1908, with an attendance of 186. Since 1902 there has been a steady upward trend.

The net total of students who have enrolled in all of the different branches of the University during its forty-one years of existence is shown to be 99,317. The totals are exclusive of the registration for the fall term of 1924.

RICE FRESHMAN HAS BANG BANG AFFAIR
Special to the Avalanche.
HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 22.—It started off with a bang, with the bangs continuing one after another.

Nitro-iodine and spirit of fun was the cause; while a Rice freshman, who will dream of anarchists and bombs for several nights received the effect.

Sophomores of that dignified institution decided to have a little fun at the expense of one of the freshmen class, so they placed nitro-iodine bombs in his bed, on the floor, over the windows, and then they mixed it in his toothpaste, all with most gratifying results.

Nitro-iodine is a harmless explosive, but makes an excellent exemplification of that famous text, "the weary shall not rest," when wielded in the hands of the Upper-classmen.

Hipolito Villa Is Reported Slain

Hipolito Villa, bandit brother of the more famous Mexican bandit Pancho Villa, has been killed by his enemies in Mexico, according to messages reaching Mexico City. Hipolito Villa engaged in the De la Huerta revolt, surrendering later in Chihuahua, from which he was sent to Mexico City. He started to return to his ranch at Caminito, but was taken off the train near Torreon and shot to death.

CUERO IS TO BE ONE OF BEST MEDICAL CENTERS

CUERO, Texas, Nov. 22.—Establishment of a clinic which will utilize the advantages of both local hospitals is the aim of Cuero doctors, according to an announcement made here recently.

Plans for the clinic have been completed and the contracts will be let in the near future. With the combination of medical resources of January 1, Cuero will become one of the best medical centers in South Texas.

ARGUMENT OVER CARDS ENDS BY HOT COFFEE BEING POURED ON LADY

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 22.—The point at which "friendship ceases" was found at a card party here one evening recently.

An argument over the cards resulted in one of the guests pouring a pot of hot coffee over her hostess. Unable to stop the row even after the defuge of java, men members of the party called police who brought peace and quietude by taking four of the party to the station.

Articles and Local News About South Plains Farmers; Prepared by Welton Winn, a Practical Farmer

Am I My Brother's Keeper?

All Bible students are familiar with the circumstances which called forth the question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" This same question is applicable to many of the affairs of life we have to deal with from time to time. We may not have responsibilities as great as Cain had when he asked the question but there are many things in life we are as guilty of neglecting to do the things we should do for our own benefit and for the benefit of others that we recklessly neglect or overlook.

We do not believe that an all-wise Creator placed us here to merely pass thru this world and enjoy all the benefits that come our way. But that he intended that we should study what we should do to make the world better for those around us and at the same time to perform something useful that the world will be benefited by our having lived in it. We fall to do these things and live in vain according to our conception of life.

We do not know of any one thing in the way of material things of life we can do or could do better than to plant some useful trees.

Here on these Plains we only have such trees as we plant or that some one plants. Then it is duty we owe the world that we should plant some trees.

The next thing to consider is what shall we plant. To this we want to answer, plant pecans in preference to any others for shade and for usefulness. The findings we have given in past issues makes it clear that pecans will do well on these Plains and we gave the history of one and possibly others that had lived 400 years and was still bearing. Then the other and most important part of all in where they are given the proper distance and care they make one of the best, if not the very best shades to be had. Then to this might be added the further fact that they are the designated state tree for Texas. What higher incentive could we want than to consider all these things and make up our minds that we, each of us, man and woman, boy and girl, will plant at least one pecan tree and look after it until it has started to grow, and is able to shade a school group of children, or that we could have no greater monument placed to our memory when we leave this world than to have a pecan tree growing somewhere in Texas as was known to have been planted by us or by our help.

Each school group in the county should, by all means, be planted to these very useful trees this fall and in a very few years all would be glad they stopped and took time to plant these trees.

The world seems to be in a great rush and are disposed to neglect such very important things but I ask and insist that we stop and do this important thing, and I candidly believe the most important work we could possibly do.

I want here to call attention to all those who have agreed to plant some of these trees at the morning or write me just how many trees you will want, so that we can place the order no want get ready to plant as soon as possible, the sooner the better. We want once more to urge all to plant some pecans this fall.

BURN THE CHINCH BUGS

We submit an article from Mr. H. M. Bainer in regard to the destructive work of the chinch bug and suggest that Mr. Bainer's advice is sound. Everything that can be burned should be burned as suggested, we do not know what crop conditions will obtain next year but the weather prophets all think next year will very likely be an unusually dry year, therefore, farmers should take every precaution possible to protect their crops, even this far in advance of the time of planting.

It is true that there is little wheat being planted in this section. We consider this unfortunate but the chinch bugs might do great damage to other feed crops that we try to grow next year.

While on the subject of next year's crop we want to suggest that now is the time to begin to plan for next year's crop and not only plan but begin to prepare the land as you can possibly get thru with the present crop. We made a practice for a long time while on the farm to try to have all land broke for next year's crop by Christmas, especially the land intended for corn. Land well broken by Christmas has an always proven the surest crop producing land. Such land is in much better shape to receive and retain all moisture such as rain and snow. The scientist tells us it is in better condition to liberate all plant food for the next crop. We have had many experiences along this line and experience fully demonstrated that the coming year's yield can be materially increased by early fall breaking of land. Then we want here to emphasize the importance of deep breaking of land if broken early, that is, by Christmas.

There is one other thing we think is too often overlooked and that is the importance of first double discing the land before it is broken. When the land is first disc'd all the trash and stalks and grass is cut up fine and it is turned down deep in the furrow and being cut fine the land settles down firm and there is no air spaces which permits evaporation. Then the other and possibly one of the most important things is that the same plow will break the land and is turned down deep. All these advantages taken into consideration proves the importance of discing the land before breaking with the probability of a dry year we should now take every possible precaution to secure the best results.

"Much of the southwestern winter wheat territory is literally 'alive' with chinch bugs again this fall," says H. H. Bainer, director of the Southwestern Wheat Improvement Association. He emphasizes that unless the coming winter should prove unfavorable for them or unless they are burned while the grass is dry before winter sets in, they are sure to do more damage than ever next year. There is no profit in growing crops to feed chinch bugs. Conservative estimates have charged the chinch bug with fully $50,000,000 damage to wheat, corn, oats and other crops in this territory, each year, for the past two years.

Chinch bugs hibernate over winter protecting themselves by hiding under trash, dead grass, around the crown of bunch grass and in other places. Their winter home, therefore, is along fences, road sides, ravines and on waste lands. Next spring these old bugs will come out, ready to deposit their eggs on the wheat and corn. Each female kills about 150 less first-brood bugs in the wheat next spring and 10,000 less second-brood bugs in the corn next summer.

"The only satisfactory means of killing chinch bugs in the fall and winter is by burning. Experiments and demonstrations show that where these bug-infested areas have been systematically burned during November and early December, the chinch bug problem has been solved for the ensuing year. Thorough burning at this time will result in the destruction of 985 bugs out of every 1000. The burning should be done when the grass and weeds are thoroughly dry and when there is little or no wind. In order to be sure of killing a large percentage of the bugs, it is usually best to back-fir so as to burn south against the wind. Burn before Christmas, no bugs not destroyed by the fire will be exposed and will die during the winter. Community campaigns of burning should be organized and even better results would come through organization of townships and counties."

VISITED BY MR. J. J. CARROLL

Mr. J. J. Carroll of the Canyon, community visited us this morning the 18th. Mr. Carroll is one of our most progressive farmers, who came to this county a few years ago and has made good. Mr. Carroll came here from East Texas, and has so adjusted himself to the conditions of the plains that he has made enough so that he can take the world easy. He has rented out his farm and will spend the winter in South Texas on the coast; after which time he will likely make his home in Lubbock. Mr. Carroll says that the soil worms have done more injury to the cotton than most men realize until they went to picking their cotton.

He thinks it will take about 5 acres to make a bale; but says his section is in fine shape in the way of feed and all the farmers are sowing all they need with some to spare. He thinks that when farmers fall to make abundant feed to run their farms they are in bad plight no matter how high cotton may be. Mr. Carroll says his boys are running his farm this year and have 185 acres in cotton and should have made 100 bales but will get only about 50 bales.

Call again, Mr. Carroll, we appreciate your visits.

We were also favored with a call from two women who live out on farms south of Lubbock, on the Taboka road. The ladies were in to have some butter paper printed as they have some fine jersey cows and sell quite a lot of butter in the city. These were Mrs. E. T. Mathis and Mrs. Mathis, her sister in-law. These ladies are proud of the fact that they live out on farms and think that is a real good place to live. They take great interest in their fine Jerseys also raise fine white leghorn chickens. Mrs. A. F. Mathis has only been in the county a short time but thinks this is a great part of Texas. She is glad that they moved here. The women smilingly said they made their living on their cows and chickens and had their farm repos as a side-line.

We assured the ladies that there was no probability of producing too much butter as long as Texas bought 15 car loads of butter per month. And we suggested that Lubbock was getting to be a splendid market for a large amount of butter. We think the production of poultry and dairy products is the safest kind of farming for this or any other part of Texas.

NOT TOO LATE YET.

We are giving a clipping from the Associated press that should be considered by the farmers of this section. The reason we say this is that we are so situated that we cannot yet take advantage of the peculiar condition that will likely confront the country next year.

With the cotton season now nearing its close now is a good time to plant some of the grains mentioned in the clipping. We have so often called attention to the importance of planting grain, that we fear we will be accused of using vain "repetitions." Even by taking this risk we want to suggest that we are among the few who can yet take advantage of the situation mentioned in the clipping submitted. Further north the sowing season is

ESTACADO

Judge P. F. Brown accompanied by Mrs. Brown's uncle, Mr. David Nairs, visited our school Thursday afternoon. Judge Brown made us a good talk and we hope he may come again.

Seemingly the weather cleared Friday evening just to help our box supper, and we had a house full of lively bidders, all of which we appreciate very much. Then Mr. Harry, a regular auctioneer, of Lorenzo, very kindly came out and donated his services and sold the boxes very well indeed, getting almost a hundred dollars for about twenty-five boxes. Afterward he sold some beautiful blankets and gave us a percent of the proceeds. Mr. Jim Chambers and his helpers, with violin, two guitars and piano, furnished excellent music throughout the evening. We most heartily thank those who brought boxes and pies, and all the others who contributed so freely to make it such a success. The community singing at the church Sunday afternoon was well attended and we sang until we were all hoarse. We were pleased to have visitors from Lorenzo and Farmer and Becton communities, who helped us. Come again! We meet in Lorenzo next Sunday.

Mrs. J. J. Jenkins and Mrs. O'Neal left Monday morning for Dallas as messengers to the State Baptist convention. It is reported that others may go, too.

The new Methodist pastor, Bro. Ashley, preached two excellent sermons here Sunday to god audience. Miss Ovie Gears, Mr. Herbert Jenkins and Mr. Obed Wilbanks came from Wayland College Friday evening and helped in our box supper. Mr. Wilbanks plays on the Wayland football team and invited us to their game with the Clarendon Bulldogs at Plainview next Friday afternoon.

Mr. Nat Fox who has been in the oil fields is among us again.

Mr. S. W. Page transacted business in Idalou Saturday, the Page brothers in Lubbock. The boys are buying cotton seed in Lorenzo.

Mr. Dick Dawson, of Idalou, who has relatives here, was seriously injured here in a gin accident recently, but were pleased to report that he is rapidly improving.

Our girls' basketball team is to play the Lorenzo team at Lorenzo Friday afternoon. We hope for fair weather and a god close game, slightly in our favor.

CENTER

Most every one is still busy picking cotton.

Mr. Edgar Abney took a bale of cotton to the Monroe gin one day last week but was unable to get it ginned as they were making repairs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Haney were callers of the Will Pierce home last Tuesday morning. Mrs. Pierce has been sick.

Mr. Richard Reiker was at the Monroe gin last Wednesday peddling beef.

The thrasher is broke down at Mr. Loooney's place. They will have to go to Amarillo for parts for repairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hagard went to Lubbock after a cow one day last week.

Some of those who were in Lubbock last Tuesday were: Messrs. Will Osborne and Guthrie and family.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Haney were in the home of her brother, Mr. Eugene Emery, one night last week, and listened to the radio. They report it very interesting.

Mr. Milborn Nelson took a bath

BIG GRAIN SHORTAGE.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—The world this year faces an estimated bread grain shortage of 574,000,000 bushels, 401,000,000 of wheat and 173,000,000 of rye, it is estimated by T. K. Doherty, commissioner of Agriculture at Rome.

The estimate is based upon official returns to the institute from all important countries of the world with the exception of Russia, Mr. Doherty said.

TRANSPLANTING OF TREES AND FLOWERS BEST DONE IN THE FALL

CANYON, TEXAS, Nov. 20.—Now is the most appropriate time to prepare beds for home flower gardens or to transplant trees, according to Prof. F. R. Phillips, of the Agricultural Department of the Teachers' College. Trees and flowers transplanted in the fall have sufficient time for their roots to get settled in the soil; consequently they will stand the drought of the following seasons better than if planted or transplanted in the spring.

Trees are ready to be transplanted when they have gone into the winter dormant period, as indicated by the falling of the leaves. Many people in West Texas have made the mistake of waiting until early spring to set out orchards, and have suffered an unusually large loss of high-priced trees.

Although flowers are not to be planted until the next spring, it is a good idea to prepare the ground in the fall, because freezing and thawing during the winter months aid in working the beds into good condition. Many insects in the soil are also destroyed during the winter months.

In planting trees one should be careful to cut away all broken roots and to prune back the top as much, if not more, proportionately, than the roots are cut.

Know what's underneath the paint before you buy

YOU wouldn't think of buying a house without first knowing how it is built and the quality of materials used. In selecting a piece of furniture you are sure to find out whether it is solid wood or veneer.

Yet many people who exercise care in most purchases buy automobiles without even lifting the hood or knowing about the hidden qualities of body and chassis construction that really determine one's satisfaction with a closed car.

Down underneath its superb body finish is a sturdy framework of carefully selected ash, glued together and fastened in place by screws—not nailed. Ash is scarce and expensive, but Studebaker uses it because it best combines proper weight and strength.

Upholstery is genuine mohair of high quality. Various grades of mohair look much alike—the big difference is in the quality.

Beneath this mohair covering are many nests of cushion springs, padded with heavy, burflap, upholstery cotton and curled hair. Almost any car seems comfortable on the showroom floor, but it's quality such as this that makes the Studebaker Standard Six remain comfortable after years of service.

The same standards of excellence are maintained throughout the body and chassis. In the engine, for example, the crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces, a practice that results in the smooth, quiet, vibrationless performance that characterizes all Studebaker cars.

Judged solely on what your eye can see—in beauty of line and finish and exterior refinements—the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan will command your instant approval.

But go deeper than that. Compare its hidden, vital qualities—its design, materials and workmanship—with car selling for hundreds of dollars more.

Studebaker never compromises—never uses a substitute for genuine quality. Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for 72 years.

Come in and let us tell you the "inside story" of the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

LA FOLLETTE TO GET FIRST TEST

PROBLEM OF "DISCIPLINE" COMES BEFORE SENATE NEXT FRIDAY

By THOMAS L. STOKES
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The important question of whether Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, and those who followed him in his independent campaign for the presidency will be "disciplined" by regular republicans in house and senate, will have its first test next week. The problem will come before the senate republican conference next Friday when committees slated will be made up after a leader is chosen and other matters of party policy taken up.

La Follette and those who have stood with him—including Brookhart of Iowa, and Ladd and Frazier, of North Dakota, have been invited to attend the conference along with the regulars. This came as a surprise to some as it was thought the insurgents might be left out, but it was explained that investigations are always sent to those listed as "republicans" and no significance should be attached to this fact.

It is up to the conference, it was said, as to whether any measures of discipline, such as depriving the La Follette group of important committee assignments, will be taken.

It is the opinion among some leaders in both house and senate that nothing should be done at this time, but that if disciplinary measures are taken, it should be when the new congress convenes, when regular republicans will be more securely in the saddle. All that could be done at this time would be an expression of disapproval of the La Follette group's action, as the republicans would not be able to secure ratifications by the present senate of any "punishment" such as depriving the insurgents of important committee places one senate leader explained. He believes that the La Follette group should be read out of the party, however, and said that it should be taken up in the new senate when there would be more chance of winning their aim.

BUYERS CHOOSING CLOSED MODELS SAYS JONES

"It's no longer a 'trend' toward enclosed cars, it's a stampede," said Hub Jones, Hudson-Essex dealer. "The coming automobile shows in the great centers of the country will look like closed car exhibits. The demand for enclosed cars, which the great sales of Hudson and Essex cars first proved, is the most notable factor in the whole automobile business. "How remarkable it is to realize that closed cars in volume are only three years old that it is now just about three years since Hudson-Essex introduced the idea of the coach, an enclosed car to sell at a new low standard of price.

"It is remarkable to think that up to the time of the coach the automobile industry had made magnificent strides in all phases of volume and standardized production except in the manufacture of enclosed bodies. Closed bodies were still made by slow and costly methods a century or more old. The coach changed that—it was the first enclosed car which could be made under the same system of progressive manufacture which had brought such wonderful economies elsewhere in the industry and made universal motoring possible.

"Thus Hudson and Essex offered closed car comforts at open car prices.

"That idea has now become the dominant one of the whole business. It has come in answer to a public demand which could not be denied. For three years the current ran steadily in this direction. Now the stream is a flood, the trend is a stampede. In three years the coach has changed from a novelty to the accepted and standard practice. Everyone wants a closed car. "In those three years Hudson-Essex has had the experience of building 175,000 coaches. The coach has become the largest selling six cylinder car in the world. Riding on the crest of coach popularity, Hudson-Essex became the first manufacturer to build 100,000 six cylinder cars this year.

"The word coach has been a standard term of the Society of Automotive Engineers for several years but only recently has it been used generally in the industry. Now however the word coach is becoming as common as sedan or roadster. But for a long time to come, when people think of coach they will think of Hudson-Essex."

COTTON BOLL-ROT DISEASE IN LOCAL FIELDS IS CAUSE OF LOSS IN THIS CROP

A disease which has been destructive of considerable cotton in local fields this fall has been noted by many farmers and been a cause of alarm and inquiry as to its nature and probable persistence. For the benefit of many interested farmers and in response to a number of inquiries, the Experiment Station at Lubbock has investigated this disease. Specimens of diseased bolls were submitted to Dr. J. J. Taubenhans, Division of Plant Pathology of the Texas Experiment Station, College Station. The trouble was pronounced as boll rot, a phase of similar disease which attacks the leaves and is known as angular leaf spot, and when attacking the stem is known as black arm. The disease is caused by a bacterial organism. This organism does not live over in the soil, but hibernates during the winter months on the fuzz of the seed and reinfects the crop in this way. The trouble may be controlled by treating the seed with sulphuric acid but unless the disease is very severe it would hardly pay to carry out this treatment.

Since the organism is carried over on the fuzz of the seed the most practical and best means of control is planting disease free seed. The boll rot attacks one or two locks on the boll and causes partial or complete decay of both the seed and lint in these locks and prevents proper opening of the other locks of the boll. Some fields examined showed as high as 5 to 10 per cent of the bolls infected, with apparently higher infestation in the lower parts of the field. The climatic conditions have apparently been favorable this year to the development of the disease and it has been quite general throughout a large part of the Northwest Texas area, and a considerable loss in yield has occurred in many fields.

NO AVERAGE ON WEATHER, CLAIMS CLIMATE EXPERT

By United Press
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 22.—Refuting statements that "the United States is due for a hard winter if the law of averages works out," H. B. Ward of the geology and geography department of Northwestern university, "doubts very much if there is a weather."

Ward has just completed a study of temperatures and precipitations of the last several years and asserts that "it is just as reasonable to forecast a mild winter as a severe winter in 1924-25." The season "will not be controlled by sun-spot activity," Ward contends.

In his analysis, Ward discloses that there were radically different temperatures in 1920, with January consistently cold and February normal except as to snowfall, which, with the exception of 1877, was the least in 50 years.

The year 1921, he points out, was the warmest in 50 years, while if there is a law of averages, 1922 should have been cold, but as a matter of fact it was warmer and drier than average with few severe storms.

Recent months have shown an accumulated deficiency of temperature of 741 degrees at the end of October, according to Ward.

"Many tables of statistics can be submitted to prove that long-range forecasts are not reliable," Ward says. "Most certainly they disprove the reliability of the so-called law of averages in weather matters."

PHOTOGRAPHY IS TO BE A REGULAR COURSE IN THE TEXAS U.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—Requests for instruction in photography at the University of Texas this fall were so urgent that a course regularly given only in the spring term is also being given in the fall. Members of this class make negatives and develop them. They also make enlargements, and are now preparing to give an exhibition under the direction of Dr. J. M. Kuehn, professor of physics. Remarkable skill of the students is shown in the clearness of the enlargements. Some of the notable pictures are of local brooks and mountains taken in the morning when the mist was rising. The clearness of the perspective is said to be very unusual. An artistic feature of the exhibition will also be the study of a child, showing a most natural expression caught by the photographer. It is stated that fairly skilled photographers will be turned out when the course is completed.

"What did your boy learn at college?" asked Ill. "All the latest slang, and now I need an interpreter to carry on a conversation with him."

CHEVROLET MAKERS CELEBRATE 13TH ANNIVERSARY

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 22.—The Chevrolet Motor Company this last week celebrated its 13th anniversary. The company was founded on November 3, 1911.

From that date to November 3, this year, the company has produced nearly a million and three quarter vehicles, with one exception, the greatest production record in the motor car industry in this period. To be exact, there have been produced 1,744,870 Chevrolet motor cars and light delivery trucks. It is in the last three years, however, that Chevrolet has had such phenomenal growth. More than 1,000,000 Chevrolets have been produced since January 1, 1922, to November 3, 1924—a 34 month's period.

It was on November 3, 1911, that the Chevrolet Motor Company of Michigan was organized, with Louis Chevrolet, William H. Little and Edwin R. Campbell as incorporators. The plant at that time was located in Detroit, but was moved to Flint in August, 1913.

In 1914, Chevrolet plants at Flint and New York City were in production on the "Baby Grand" touring car and the "Royal Mail" roadster, both of which enjoyed a large sale for these days. In 1915, volume production of the "30" car, so called because of its price of $490 was begun.

On May 2, 1918, General Motors Corporation purchased all assets and assumed all liabilities of the Chevrolet Motor Company (Delaware).

The production in 1912 was 2,999 vehicles. The tremendous expansion of facilities for manufacturing the enormous output of the Chevrolet Motor Company today may be gleaned from a few pertinent statistics.

Chevrolet today occupies 167 buildings, with a total floor space of 5,552,227 square feet and 745 acres covered by the Chevrolet plants. The dollar and cents volume of this company's business in 1923 was $229,819,867. There are 12 Chevrolet plants located in the following cities: Detroit, Mich.; Flint, Mich.; Toledo, O.; Bay City, Mich.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Tarrytown, N. Y.; Cincinnati, O.; St. Louis, Mo.; Janesville, Wis.; and Oakland, Calif.

The company has 7,000 dealers, conducts wholesale branches in the large cities of the country, out of which operate 400 traveling representatives. The total number of employees of the Chevrolet Motor Company is approximately 26,000.

of the Harrogate Rotarians on "Music and Life." "The cafe band and the restaurant orchestra are direct incentives to indigestion," he said, "and far more dangerous than bad cooking."

Mr. Taylor, one of the best people in the biggest chain restaurant system in the British Isles, disputes the suggestion as "nothing short of absurd." "Music," he adds, "is a distinct aid to digestion. People digest food better when they are cheerful, and music makes them so."

Mr. Taylor is confident that not even the saxophone, most baneful of all instruments to the 100 per cent Britisher, disturbs the digestion of his company's customers.

TEXAS BIRDS MAKE HIGH RECORDS AT COLLEGE

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 22.—Texas birds took second honors, very close to the lead of California and Washington state fowls in the seventh Texas National Egg laying contest which was closed at the A. M. College of Texas. A hurred Plymouth Rock owned by V. J. Boriskie of Bryan, laid 285 eggs in the twelve month period taking second place to White Leghorns owned by L. C. Bell of Vashon, Washington, which produced 299 eggs. Another Plymouth Rock owned by M. A. Lye of Seadrift laid 278 eggs, before she broke her leg in the next to the last month and would have no doubt went over 300 except for the accident. A pen of five Single-comb White Leghorns owned by G. Salyes of Brenham averaged 232 eggs.

GREENVILLE MAN CLAIMS CHAMPION SINGLE SHOT

GREENVILLE, Texas, Nov. 22.—Perry Penny farmer residing near this city now claims the title of single shot champion of the state of Texas. While working in his field near a small pond, he noticed a large bunch of geese circle overhead and light on the surface of the water. Running to his house a short distance away, he got his shot gun, but found that he only had one shell. Determined to get at least one big goose, he slipped down to the pond, and when the geese were closely bunched, cracked down, killing ten.

This story is vouched for by as many neighbors who partook of a roast goose supper that evening.

PATENTS GRANTED TO TEXAS FOLKS

Of 829 patents issued in the last week, Texas inventors obtained 18. Do you know any of these inventors? That these inventions are worth while is attested by the number of patents that already have been assigned for manufacture and sale. In other cases the inventors are planning to manufacture them themselves or still negotiating for assignments or royalties.

The following information is compiled by Munn and Company, of New York and Washington, patent and trade mark attorneys.

Oscar Kay of Houston, Oil Burner. This is a construction in which oil is broken up and emulsified to an appreciable extent before it is discharged. This oil is finely divided in the presence of the air and is then discharged in a thin sheet.

Rudolph Salac, of Burkholtz, Combined Hair Brush and Comb. This is a combined hair brush and comb in which a pair of comb elements independently operable are normally retained in retracted positions relative to the brush bristles with each comb element at one side of the brush backing and selectively projected for use at the side of the brush backing and adjacent the bristles.

Harvey R. Standlee, of Mexia, Swab. This swab is designed and adapted for use in connection with deep wells. It provides an improved device in which it may be coupled with the cable or swabbing line in a manner to permit the cable to twist and especially when the swab is being lowered.

Ernest A. H. Jacob, of San Antonio, Cotton Packer. This packer is used in cotton gins, and it is of such structure that any individual machine can be easily and quickly adapted to location in a cotton gin as either a right-hand or left-hand machine.

Alexander Boynton, of San Antonio, Bailor. This invention provides novel means in which the downward thrust is utilized to introduce the mud or other material into the bailor through the main inlet opening in the lower end of the bailor and incidentally through the openings in the opposite sides of the bailor.

Sewell M. Lipscomb, of Houston, Screw-Holding Attachment for Screw Drivers. The object of this invention is to provide an efficient form of screw holding attachment for screw drivers which may be cheaply and easily manufactured and placed in use.

James M. Wadsworth, of Fort Worth, Vapor Separator. This is an apparatus which will effectively separate vapor from oil that is laden with vapor, and also promote the vaporization of the constituents of the oil whose boiling points are below the temperature of the oil passing through the separating chamber of the apparatus.

Isaac A. Stein, of Galveston, Beverage-Dispensing Apparatus. This invention relates to an apparatus for refrigeration and dispensing of carbonated beverages. ### THIRTY STUDENTS ORGANIZE SUL ROSS CLUB

AUSTIN, Nov. 22.—This session in the University of Texas there are thirty former students and faculty members of the Sul Ross State Teachers' College at Alpine. ### LEGION SEEKS $5,000,000 TO CARE OF WAR CHILDREN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 22.—A Nation wide campaign to raise an endowment fund of $5,000,000 to care for orphaned children of World War veterans and helpless disabled ex-service men is about to be launched by the American Legion, it was announced here Sunday at national headquarters of that organization.

The program, which was authorized by the annual convention of the legion at St. Paul two months ago, received the approval of National Commander James A. Drain and the members of the legion national finance committee.

The immediate necessity for raising funds to care for the helpless children of ex-service men, who were either killed in action or died as a result of their war service, was explained by Mark T. McKee of Detroit, a member of the legion national welfare council. Mr. McKee pointed out the rapidly growing need of providing for the orphaned boys and girls at the same time stressing the needs of the disabled men. He declared that the already existing facilities of the legion home at Otter Lake, Mich., were overcrowded and that there were 200 children who are emergency cases needing the assistance of the legion at once. The other legion billet at Independence, Kansas, is not yet in operation.

U. S. OWES 6,000; CAN'T FIND THEM

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, collector of internal revenue has 6,000 little sums of money just waiting to be spent.

The money represents refunds on 1923 taxes which the government owes 6,000 Illinois citizens but who it has been unable to locate and make payment.

Payment was attempted through checks mailed out but were returned when the postman failed to find the parties to whom the money was due.

"We are very anxious to get this matter closed up and help the government get its book properly adjusted," Mrs. Reinecke said, "and it would be considered a favor by this department if our creditors would make their present whereabouts known to us."

DRESSING ON LIMITED INCOME

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for United Press)
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—It's the girl who is working on two cylinders and who manages to look as though she were working on one six—who is the heroine of the fashion world. The girl who has sufficient money to support a six-cylinder wardrobe lets many a little Ford outfit outspeed her on Fifth Avenue.

This fall there are so many inexpensive cloths of good material and of good lines that anyone with taste can be well dressed. Take, for instance those snappy little short fur coats which can be made of anything from goat fur to sable! Some of these are selling so cheaply as to come within the means of any working girl. Cat fur and goat fur, dyed in deep rich browns, may not resemble the more expensive furs but they do have smartness and chic. Who knows a tte first glance whether they are real mink or dyed cat? And who cares? It's the fit of the frock, the shape of the coat and the shape of the pecky little felt hat above it that creates an ensemble worth looking at.

A girl can spend several hundreds of dollars on a fur jacket and from fifty to one hundred dollars on her hat and some clever little person with quick wit seizes the opportunity of copying her costume and appears a week later in a cheap duplicate which she wears with an air that absolutely outclasses the owner of the original model. Sure enough, women know the difference between cat fur and sable and between a $50 bonnet and a $2.00 one, but who dresses for women nowadays? For that matter, many of the very wealthy women are wearing imitation furs and jewels this year, so why worry about quality?

Follow the Standard
The well dressed woman doesn't attempt to set styles of her own if she has a limited dress allowance. She knows that she can't hope to compete with the lines set by fashion designers. She sees something smart in a shop window or on a well dressed woman and, choosing her own coloring, follows in cheaper materials the standard set by her wealthier sister.

Many women like to feel that they are original in dress. They will purchase a fashion book and create a gown with Lanvin sleeves, Poiret waistline and Madeline skirt and add trimmings approved by some other designer. The finished dress looks like a Christmas tree. It has neither style nor chic and is ruined by the combination of different patterns. The designer has a reason for everything he or she does. If her frock has long sleeves it should never be made without sleeves. If it is long as to hem it is because such a frock requires a long hemline.

The home dressmaker should realize these facts.
Accessories are very important these days, and it is these cheap little accessories which make or mar one's ensemble. Just now well-dressed women are wearing more subdued shades of hosiery. One can tell at a glance whether one is up to the moment in hosiery shades. Pinks and flesh shades are no longer worn for street wear. Wood shades, light tans and browns and grays are good. Gunmetal accompanies the black shoe and occasionally one sees the oyster white stocking worn with a black and white shoe combination. White hosiery should be worn when the costume is black and white affair.

Gloves and Handkerchiefs.
Gloves likewise play a very important part this year. Tans and mauve shades are those generally chosen. White gloves are not being worn during the day time and only occasionally at night in which case they may either be glaze or kid or suede. Most women are gloveless for evening occasions. A woman in a Spanish shawl with long white gloves looks ridiculous these days. Arms are always bare, it would seem.

Handkerchiefs are chosen with respect to the coloring of the frock. The all-white handkerchiefs of lace or lacetrims may be carried for evening use, but for day wear the pastel squares of linen, chiffon, or silk are the mode. Little sets of six handkerchiefs may be purchased in the shops with each handkerchief of a different color. The fastidious woman chooses a handkerchief which harmonizes with her frock for each and every occasion.

While these little details of dress do not seem important in themselves the woman who dresses on a limited allowance must pay heed to them if she wishes to appear smart.

In speaking of fads and accessories, one can't omit the little burpin or brooch that is worn on the left shoulder nowadays. These may be real or imitation.

Another fad which doesn't apply to dress exactly is the painting of the fingernails. One sees girls and women with nails as red as any Nautch dancer. And women of refinement are among them.

G. BERT DAVIS HERE MONDAY WITH SHOW

G. Bert Davis will be in Lubbock with his big tent show Monday, and many Davis fans are contemplating a week of splendid amusement. Davis has been making this section at regular intervals for some time, and his show is one of the best traveling shows to be witnessed here.

The high class plays presented by this show are appreciated by large audiences wherever shown, and the absence of cheap, suggestive stage antics that used to mark tent show performances is a conspicuous and approved feature of the Davis show. Large crowds will witness the performances here.

USE OF GOOD ENGLISH IS ENFORCED AT STATE

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—Special care is taken to insure the consistent use of good English by students of the University of Texas in all their written work, regardless of whether the subject is prepared for an English class or some other field of study. The committee on students' use of English, of which Dr. L. W. Payne is chairman, has just issued a warning to seniors that any paper handed in by them in any class is subject to examination by the committee. This committee is composed of nine members of the University faculty.

Students who are found to be deficient in English will be required to do additional work in English composition before they will be permitted to receive degrees. One of the requirements for a University degree is that the student must show ability to use correct English, and every applicant for a degree in June must satisfy the committee that they have filled this requirement before May 15. Last year about forty seniors were required to do special work before graduating. A few were unable to complete the requirements in time to receive degrees, and the special warning issued this fall is intended to prevent similar occurrences this year, said Dr. Payne.

TRANSPORTATION OF LIQUOR PUZZLES COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Court of Criminal Appeals, in a divided opinion, has held that transportation of liquor, in any quantity even an ounce, for beverage purposes, violates the State law. This ruling has been given despite the Dean Law amendment, enacted by the last legislature, which said that a person might legally possess less than a quart of liquor, but that to have more than a quart was prima facie evidence that possession was for purpose of sale.

The question came to the attention of the higher court by being presented in the case of A. Gandy, convicted in Milan county of transporting liquor, and sentenced to two years. Judgement of the case was affirmed in an opinion by Judge O. S. Lattimore and concurred in by Judge H. L. Hawkins. Presiding Judge, W. C. Morrow, dissented, writing his opinion of the case, which was overruled.

CLOSE SCHOOLS IN CHICAGO ON ELECTION DAY

By United Press
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 19.—Forgotten provisions in the Illinois state laws closed Chicago's school on election day this year for the first time in history when brought to the attention of the school board.

In previous years school was held on election day the same as any other day with the exception of an early recess when teachers were given an opportunity to visit the polls and cast their ballots.

An instructor in an obscure school here this year raised the question to Superintendent McAndrews whether school was legal on election days. He referred it to Attorney Frank Righeimer counsel for the school board.

More than 10,000 teachers and 400,000 students were given a holiday by Righeimer's discoveries. He found a provision in an old statute which held that schools should be dismissed on days when "officers of the state house" were to be elected.

School was held in other parts of the state, however, as the discovery was made for and by the Chicago board.

HOME EDUCATION

A PLACE FOR THE CHILDREN

By LAURA B. GRAY

In this day of small, convenient houses, it sometimes seems impossible to devote one room to the children, but why not build houses with a room for them?—a nice, bright, comfortable one off the kitchen, where mother can keep an eye on it, not up three flights of stairs in the street.

Living as we do, in a four-roomed bungalow, it seemed impossible to have a children's room, until the following idea came to me: We have a veranda of fair size. Half of this we screened with canvas, and here the children have slept the year round. We live on the Pacific coast where the climate is moderate, although we sometimes get zero weather. This arrangement left one nice, sunny bedroom for the nursery.

The difference this room has made to the entire household is astonishing. I kalsomined the walls yellow, painted the woodwork white, hung some pretty curtains and varnished the floor with three coats of good varnish. A floor treated in this way makes a surface that is easily cleaned and nice to play on. Then I cut out suitable pictures from magazines, mounted them on brown paper and put them on the walls. In this room I put the toy chest, which had previously been in the living room, all of their toys, two tables and their own little chairs. Here my little girls seem very happy. They have taken a great interest in the room, themselves, and in keeping it tidy. It has given them a new interest in their home. They feel that this room is their very own. Every human being has that love of possession, whether it be for a bedroom, a book-shelf, or only a box—some spot to call his own. A few suggestions given by me, while busy in the kitchen as to a good place to put dolly's cradle or into which drawers to put dolly's clothes, are training these little girls to love orderliness and to be useful. After they have been out in the afternoon they are keen to come back to their room, and sometimes they bring a little friend to play with them. Here they can romp without disturbing anyone.

A children's room is also a blessing to the rest of the family. After a hard day's struggle to get the wherewithal to buy bread for his little brood, the father returns home, his heart longing for the sweet peacefulness of his own hearth. It is hard for him to have to jump up immediately after supper and set himself to amuse his children with their exuberant surrils; it is equally hard on the children to be continually subdued and told to be quiet. This, I think, more than anything else, tends to make children seek their pleasures outside the home. Having all the toys in one room makes it easier for the mother, too. The children are contented and self-amused, and the busy mother has not to answer quite so often that difficult question, "What shall I do?"

Of course every house cannot have a children's room, but some corners should be theirs: a portion of the living room or the kitchen. They should have a table, a book-shelf, and a box for toys. I have been in houses where there was a drawing-room, a dining-room, a den and a sewing room, but the children's toy box was in the kitchen, and the "help" refused to have the lid opened for the toys to be taken out. The children wandered all over the house getting into everybody's way, or went out and bothered the neighbors. Children must have something to do they should be interested in what they are doing and they need a place in which to do it.

NEW COOGAN FILM HAILED AS HIS BEST

What has turned out to be Jackie Coogan's most entertaining picture will be seen at the Lindsey Theatre Wednesday. Its title is "Little Robinson Crusoe" written especially for the little star by Willard Mack, who has let his imagination run rampant in working out a plausible and suitable story for Jackie.

The story has to do with Jackie, who plays Mickey Hogan, orphaned son of a San Francisco police hero. He sets out from San Francisco on a tramp steamer bound for Australia to visit his aunt. When they reach the tropics, however, a typhoon wrecks and sinks the ship, taking down all on board with the exception of Mickey and a black cat, who drift away on an improvised raft and strike the shores of a tropical isle.

Then come cannibals, and Satan, in all his demonic glory, after he beholds the doings of little Robinson on the tropical man-eating island, will hide his face in shame. For Jackie starts the ball rolling and keeps everyone busier than a vagrant pup with a pedigree her of fleas parking on him.

Imagine embraced in the setting of one picture—San Francisco's police force, the U. S. Marines, shipwrecks, cannibals, monkeys, black cats, and you may expect most anything—especially when such a mischievous son of Erin as Mickey Hogan is let loose among cannibals.

The splendid supporting cast includes Tom Santschi, Gloria Grey, Will Walling, Bert Sprout, Noble Johnson, Tote Ducrow, and C. H. Wilson. "Little Robinson Crusoe" was personally supervised by Jack Coogan, Sr.

WHY THEY ALWAYS USE THE REAL THING IN THE MOVIES

Why do the movies use the "real thing" rather than imitations?

Why is it the case that on motion picture sets depicting homes of wealth, for instance, producers find it necessary to use the actual and expensive furnishings which are part and parcel of the atmosphere depicted?

The fact that the camera lens is more inclusive than the human eye is not a sufficient explanation as imitations are now being made to deceive all but experts.

The truth goes deeper, believes Cecil B. De Mille, who is particularly noted for the realistic manner of his screen presentations.

"The feel of the top of a rich Oriental rug may give to the player just the right psychological twist to make an interpretation of unusual and gripping entertainment value," says Mr. De Mille whose most recent Paramount production, "Triumph," opens next Monday at the Lindsey Theatre.

"There are times when the use of an imitation would lose more in interpretative strength than could be repaid by many times the rental of the expensive property.

"I am vitally interested in keeping the costs of my pictures as low as possible. Every possible means to further efficiency is utilized. But at the same time we must spare no expenditure if the money will bring us a return to justify the spending.

"Imagine yourself or a player of the character of a rich man whose money has brought arrogance such a character as William Silver in my new production, "Triumph". Imagine the instant reaction of such a player to the feel of a deep rug in the set representing the study of his magnificent mansion. Imagine the same player walking over the less resilient surface of an imitation. I need hardly say any more.

Leatrice Joy and Rod La Rocque are featured in the principal roles of the production. Other featured players include Victor Varconi, Charles Ogle, Julia Faye, Theodore Kosloff, Robert Edeson, ZaSu Pitts, George Fawcett and Raymond Hatton.

SPAWN RETURNS FROM VISIT WITH LARGER STATE INSTITUTIONS

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22—Extensive building programs are being carried out by the University of Minnesota and the University of Illinois, according to Dr. W. M. W. Spawm, president of the University of Texas, who returned Monday from a visit to those institutions. During his absence he attended the annual meeting of the Association of Presidents of State Universities held in Chicago last week.

"My purpose in visiting a few of the larger State Universities," said Dr. Spawm, "was to study the layout of their buildings in connection with our present problem of determining the plan which we will follow in future construction at the University of Texas; also to study the building programs and the organizations for designing and supervising the construction work. I found at the University of Minnesota that the State contributes $3,250,000 annually from the general revenue and that to this is added funds by the federal government and from other sources, which brings the total annual amount available for that institution up to $5,000,000. In addition to this the State of Minnesota is spending $6,000,000 for buildings at the university, this expenditure being made at the rate of $600,000 a year.

"I found at the University of Illinois there is being now spent more than $4,000,000 on new buildings, which sum was provided by the last legislature. The University of Illinois has an annual income of $6,000,000, including the legislative appropriation, the latter being about $4,000,000. That institution has about twice as many students as the University of Texas.

"I also visited the University of Wisconsin, where there is told a similar story as to liberality in the matter of funds for maintenance. That institution already has a magnificent plant and there is not needed at this time a building program such as I found in operation at the University of Minnesota and the University of Illinois. Upon the campus of the University of Wisconsin the state is now building a state hospital which will cost more than $1,000,000."

George Bernard Shaw says people drink liquor to make them silly and happy. They are always 50 per cent successful.

Lone Survivor Fights for His Family Name

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Over thirty-three years after a sensational murder trial at Epinal, in the Vosges a judicial commission has been appointed to investigate the circumstances of the crime and the justice of the verdict. In the meantime all three quarreled with her husband at night and went to the Adam home in a little peasant village where he lived, and sought lodging. The next day she disappeared, and two years later her remains were found in a neighboring forest.

After a remarkable trial which intensely stirred the villagers in defense of the accused, Laurent Adam, the head of the house, 53 years old, his wife, Josephine, 47 and their son, Justice, 21, were sentenced to fifteen years in prison. The verdict was reached on purely circumstantial evidence and was received with great indignation by neighbors who believed the story of the Adam family that the murdered woman was hospitably received and remained the night.

The strain of the trial and the sentence cost Madame Adam her reason, and she died shortly afterward in an asylum. The father and son were sent to Guyane, where they reportedly demanded a new trial and a review of the case was recommended by the prison authorities, but the father died before any action was taken. The son, Justin, was released when his sentence expired, and at the age of 33 years he returned to his native village to begin life again. He opened a business and prospered; he married and had four children, but never ceased his efforts to clear the family name. The law said that in order to have a review of the case he must introduce new evidence, and this he was unable to do. He worried so much over the case, and what he called the inhumanity of his fellow-men, that he finally lost his reason and died in an asylum last year.

The fight for the honor of the family name is now being carried on by the only survivor, Louis Adam, brother of Justin, who has finally been able to produce a sufficient number of witnesses to secure a review of the case. In the meantime the judge sitting at the original trial and most of the important court officials have died. There is now such a determined sentiment that a great injustice has been done that the court will probably reverse the verdict and rehabilitate the condemned.

CLEBURNE LAWYER ASKS FOR SERVICE AND GETS IT

CLEBURNE, Nov. 20.—The latest innovation in speedy delivery was discovered the other day, when J. O. Lockett, Cleburne attorney, needed a new typewriter, and needed it immediately. After getting in touch with A. J. Rose, Royal typewriter agent in Fort Worth Mr. Lockett was informed that the machine would be delivered at once—by airplane.

Just about ten minutes later a sleek plane, piloted by Geo. McConnell, nosed its way over the town, landing on the west side.

If such deliveries are developed, maybe the family milk bottle or the Sunday roast will be placed regularly in the refrigerator by a passing aviator.

TO TEACH STAGE TECHNIQUE

J. Bert Mitchell, Jr.

Who is it that has never imagined him or herself as a great actor or actress with hundreds of followers and their names written in brilliant colors on the great electric signs of the country? We all have just such dreams some times in our lives and it is the intention of Mr. Mitchell to help those young people who have ambitions along this line.

Mr. Mitchell will have charge of the stage productions at the new Palace Theatre and will try to put on at least one or two prologues or vaudeville acts a week using local people for these numbers. Those whom Mr. Mitchell might choose for this will be given a complete course in Stage Technique in order that their work may be put over in a professional manner.

So if your ambitions towards the stage are of serious nature and you happen to be a singer, dancer, musician or think you have talent in speaking lines, see Mr. Mitchell at the Lindsey Theatre any day between ten and twelve A. M. Mr. Mitchell is particularly anxious of securing two young ladies, a blonde and a brunette for the act that is to be presented the opening night, so hurry down—you may be the lucky one.

Mr. and Mrs. Polly Tikk to be Shown by Business Women

The Business Women's Club will produce a home talent comedy here Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium. The club will support the high school orchestra this winter and the proceeds from the show will go to this fund.

A synopsis is given below: When the curtain rises on the opening scene, the audience beholds Father Time and Dame Fashion discussing the approaching fashion for men and women. Father Time reads in his record book of girls in hoop skirts and polk bonnets as in the days of long ago. Dame Fashion sees in her crystal ball men in ruffled trousers and frills—all of which will portray the fashion of music composed of the entire cast.

The time is 1975. The women, since getting the ballot, have taken the reins of government and gradually exchanged places with the men. The women now dress in mannish clothes and attend to practically all the business of the men at home. They do the housework, sewing, darning, nursing, etc. The married men dress in frills and furbelows, and seem at the beginning of the play to have lost all their masculine habits and to have surrendered all of their male attire except their pants, to which they hold with bull-dog tenacity.

In the first act the women go off to the lodge, leaving the men behind. The neglected husbands get together for a knitting party. Billy Lawson who still retains his masculine dress, drops in to chide his friends about the shackles they are wearing and it is told that after he is married he will surrender his freedom just as they have done. This brings on an argument during which Sullivan O'Brien rushes in with the startling news that the women are planning to send Daisy Ann Gray to Congress so as to pass the Anti-Trouser Bill. After the meeting of the "Emancipated Women" march in armed with brooms and in military style, present them to the men.

The second act opens with an ensemble of music showing a house-cleaning scene in which Tikk is assisted by his married friends. While they are in the midst of the scrubbing, in comes Billy, announcing that he is about to start a movement which will overthrow the present government in which plan the men join heartily. Just as the house-cleaning begins again, Sullivan O'Brien breaks in announcing that Senator Zella Highbrow, the author of the Anti-Trouser Bill, will speak to the women that evening, whereupon the men devise a scheme to keep Senator Highbrow from the meeting and at the same time stage their revolution.

The development of this scheme comes in act three. The voting precinct where the women have planned to bring about the climax of their triumph is stormed by the men. Then follows an exciting controversy. The result of this we cannot disclose, suffice it to say it all ends happily. The grand finale is a beautiful chorus featuring the entire cast.

Special Memorial Program Given for Geo. M. Hunt by P. T. A.

A reception given in memory of Geo. M. Hunt, a pioneer of Lubbock and in whose honor the Hunt school was named, was given by the Parent-Teachers' Association last Thursday afternoon. A large audience filled the halls, who came to do honor to the memory of this good man. Judge Bean spoke of Mr. Hunt as a pioneer. He said he had known him intimately in the early settlement of Lubbock and paid highest tribute to his sterling worth as a pioneer.

Miss Murphy very touchingly spoke of Mr. Hunt as a Christian. She told of his early efforts to build a civilization on the Plains, the foundation of which should be laid on morality and christianity. Mr. Dupre talked on Mr. Hunt as an educator. Prior to his coming to Lubbock he was a teacher by profession. He had a cultured well trained mind and while his teaching was done mostly in one-room country schools he sent out an influence in the lives of men and women that will live forever.

As a citizen Mr. J. K. Wester eulogized Mr. Hunt as one that stood four square for clean living and clean politics. He was an ardent prohibitionist and did much for this cause in the early struggle of Texas. Editor Jas. L. Dow told of Mr. Hunt as a writer. It was beautifully said of him that "The almost perfect rhyme and meter of all his poems are but the polished sheath from which there flashes forth the originality of his thoughts."

A number of Mr. Hunt's poems were interspersed in the program and were read by the school children. At the close of the speaking while soft music was being played the picture of this patron of religion and christian citizenship was hung by his little granddaughter, Dorothy Wolfarth, in the hall of the G. M. Hunt school where it will be an inspiration for years to come to the boys and girls.

Great Demand for More Electrical Engineers Yearly

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 20.—Steadily increasing each year, the demand for more and better trained mechanical engineers far exceeds the supply of skilled men, according to H. C. Weaver, professor of mechanical engineering in the University of Texas; and each year students graduating are able to contract for positions from three to six months before the close of school. Letters from all parts of the country come to the department offering positions for trained men. Three hundred graduates a year could be given good positions said Mr. Weaver.

Once a year, usually immediately after Christmas, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company sends a representative to the University to talk to the mechanical engineering students and to make agreements with two or three students for positions after graduation. This year F. B. Roberts, education director of the company is to make the visit. Two or three other big companies likewise send representatives here annually.

Many large corporations employing mechanical engineers maintain a graduate school of instruction for men just from college. In these schools the work done in the University is continued more intensely; and for a period of one or two years the students are shifted from one part of the concern to another until they are thoroughly acquainted with all the workings of the company by which they are employed.

There are at present about fifteen seniors in the mechanical engineering department, according to Mr. Weaver, while already more than a hundred offers for positions have been received.

"Some day the men in the overcrowded departments of other kinds of engineering are going to wake up to the opportunity they are missing in not following mechanical engineering into a field with a great need for more trained men," said Mr. Weaver.

"The salary depends on the man," he continued. "All leave college with an equal chance, and most of them receive moderate salaries at first. Chance for advancement are numerous, and a man has only to prove his worth to be promoted."

Scholarships are offered each year for graduate mechanical engineering students by Cornell, Ohio State University, and the Universities of Illinois, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania. According to the terms of the University of Illinois scholarship, the student receives annually $600 for two years, half of which time he spends in classroom work and half in research work. At the end of two years he gets his master's degree. Students are recommended for scholarships by the head of the mechanical engineering department, and are examined by the colleges as their qualifications to enter on the scholarship.

At present University of Texas student holds a mechanical engineering scholarship in the University of Illinois.

Some of the large companies that have sent in applications for mechanical engineers this year are Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Westinghouse Machine Company, General Electric Company, Allis-Chalmers Company, Writing Foundry and Equipment Company, Empire Gasoline Company, R. C. Lockett and Company, Standard Oil Company, Henry L. Deberry Company, Four Wheel Drive Company, San Antonio Public

BIG LIQUOR HAUL IS MADE FRIDAY BY ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The biggest liquor seizure in New York during the past year was thrown into the laps of Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, the demon rum sleuths by pure accident coupled with the refusal of a truck driver to let well enough alone. The seizure consisted of synthetic booze valued at about $100,000. Izzy and Moe, in Izzy's car, were motoring about town without a care in the world when they bumped in to butter and egg truck in front of the offices of a "fruit company." There appeared to be little or no damage but the truck driver chased the two dry agents and demanded payment for alleged damages.

Returning to the scene, Einstein either noticed or smelled something suspicious about the packages being taken from the truck into the building. Promising to return and settle the matter of the truck, he went to the U. S. Commissioner's office to secure a warrant to search the premises of "Fruit Company" and the $100,000 haul followed.

Cappy Ricks

Just isn't it a great opportunity for the people of Lubbock to have a stage version of this humorous character brought to their own High School.

CAPPY RICKS

Will be presented under the auspices of the Senior Class Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the High School auditorium and an evening's entertainment of the first class is offered.

Tickets on sale by members of the Senior Class—don't take our word that Cappy Ricks is a good play, read the following lines from Mr. Closser of the Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York City:

"I remember it as a very good screen play. Cappy Ricks is a great character, one of the best creations of Peter B. Kyne, who is a specialist in the creating of odd and yet convincing types of humanity.

"The play was successful in New York as I well remember."

"Cappy Ricks" will be presented in Lubbock as a chief lyceum number by talented players of the White and Brown entertainment company out of Kansas City.

Player La Vallier, the great American humorist, is the stellar character in this play.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—More than twenty professors of the University of Texas will attend and read papers at professional meetings to be held at various cities of the United States during the Christmas holidays, according to Dr. Killis Campbell, professor of English and chairman of the committee on attendance at professional meetings. Although the list is not yet complete, more applications have been received than the committee and it is expected that numerous others will be received soon. Besides this group, there will be other faculty members who will attend such gatherings, but who will not participate in the program. Of these whose plans are definitely made, the names will represent the University at the meeting of the Modern Language Association of America at New York during the holidays. They are Dr. Aaron Schaffer, Charles B. Quail and Prof. E. R. Sims, of the department of romance languages. Other members of the faculty who have agreed to present papers are Dr. F. P. ## First Two Units of Texas Stadium are Near Completion

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 20.—With the Texas Memorial Stadium nearing completion of its first two units and with the assurance that this, the South's largest athletic field, will be ready in time for use in the annual Thanksgiving battle between Texas Aggies and the Texas Longhorns, students of the University of Texas are now engaged in a final campaign to raise $30,000 to complete the $500,000 needed for the first units. The campaign, known as the "Each One Get One Campaign" is directed chiefly to the 27,000 ex-students who have as yet given nothing to the stadium fund.

With the purpose of securing the additional amount needed, each student is writing this week to two friends, preferably an ex-student, who has not subscribed anything, urging him to do so. The total number of letters sent out is estimated at more than 5,000, many of them going out of the state.

Meanwhile work is being rushed on the stadium itself. The seat sale for the Thanksgiving game has reached a total of 32,000 already. The large number of sales has made necessary the erection of additional bleachers at the ends of the field to care for a crowd larger than 35,000, the number originally expected. Additional bleachers will be added to care for everyone who comes, according to Wiley E. Glase, business manager of athletics. It is the intention of athletic authorities here to turn away no one who comes to Austin wishing to see the Southwest's biggest game.

MUNICIPAL RESEARCH TO ASK FOR NEW PROVISIONS

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—In connection with its general work of answering inquiries relative to municipal government and the collection of information regarding municipal government, the official research maintained by the University of Texas under the supervision of the bureau of extension and the department of government, is at present advocating the passage of desirable legislation before the legislature. According to Robert D. Jackson, assistant in the division of government research, the following measures are indorsed and proposed by the division: An act for zoning by cities, simplification of the system for the collection of delinquent taxes, a more drastic anti-stream pollution law. Other similar acts are being considered, but have not been thoroughly outlined and indorsed.

Another interesting function of the work of the division of government research is to act as headquarters of the League of Texas Municipalities, composed of about sixty-five cities in Texas. An annual convention of the league is held under the direction of the division, the next meeting to be held at Waco, in May, 1925. Also, the division of government research publishes bi-monthly "Texas Municipalities," the official organ of the league. This publication is sent to numerous mayors and other city officials all over the state.

A library is also maintained, devoted exclusively to the collection of information concerning municipal government. This library is open to other departments of the University of Texas, to public officials, and to any one desiring such information as contained in the library. Advanced students are afforded some help by the division in compiling information for these, while much other material is published in the magazine. The increasing use of the division over the state has caused the work to grow almost beyond the immediate facilities.

STUDY PLAN OF PROPOSED HUGE BAKERY MERGER

By United News. WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Two important government agencies are studying the huge baking merger recently announced to see if it violates the anti-trust law. The federal trade commission announced Wednesday night it is investigating and will act promptly if the facts developed that the laws have been violated.

The Continental Baking company plans to merge several of the largest bread and cake bakers in the country. The federal trade commission stated that among the companies reported to be considering the question of merging are: The United Bakeries corporation, the Ward Baking company, the General Baking company, the Fleischmann company of New York, the American Baking company of St. Louis, the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, of Kansas City and the German Bakeries, Inc., Detroit.

Thanksgiving Chrysanthemums

We need more than ever the ability to find contentment. Contentment is peculiarly a condition of home life, and it is therefore, through the family dinner that Thanksgiving can so aptly be expressed. In the savory steam of the turkey, in the tart appetizement of the cranberry, and in the reverie of the hour after, let us contemplate the real pigment of happiness. Let us, in short, bow our heads to the triumph of Home, where all happiness must begin and endure—Home—the inspiration of Plymouth Rock.

A STEADY MARKET FOR TURKEYS

We are going to keep buying Turkeys instead of waiting and handling them in a very short time just before the Christmas season, as we are in a position to dress and store them for the Christmas market. By doing this we can pay you more money for your turkeys as this enables us to take our own time in dressing them instead of being rushed as we have heretofore. We advise farmers to

SOCIETY DAZED AT RHINELANDER ELOPEMENT.

MRS. LEONARD KIP RHINELANDER

A bombshell was thrown into the aristocratic ranks of the blue-bloods of New York and Newport by the announcement that Leonard Kip Rhinelander, twenty-two-year-old scion of one of America's oldest and richest families, had eloped in New Rochelle, N. Y., with Alice Beatrice Jones, daughter of a former hack driver. The girl bitterly denied statements that she is a negress. Her father is a West Indian.

THE PASSING DAY

By WILL H. MAYES, Department of Journalism, University of Texas

Brown County, according to the Brownwood Bulletin, last year marketed more than 100,000 turkeys and the number this year may reach 150,000. Local buyers are paying an average of 18 cents a pound, which brings the price of a turkey to about $3.00. This means that something like $400,000 or $450,000 will be paid to Brown county farmers for turkeys during November and December. No doubt there are several other counties in Texas that will market as many turkeys as will be sold at Brownwood, but it is doubtful whether a dozen Texas counties will have any turkeys for shipment this year, although they can be grown as successfully in one part of the State as in another. Turkey growing is a profitable side line for farmers and requires comparatively little investment, time or labor. Every farmer in this county should grow and market enough turkeys every year to pay for his groceries. One of the reasons why more turkeys are now grown is that the farmers do not have the stock with which to make the start and either do not know where it can be bought or are too indifferent to make the original investment of a few dollars. At Temple a few years ago, P. L. Downs, a local banker, bought a large number of the best turkeys obtainable, and let farmers in the community have a ton and two hens on condition that they would take good care of them and return him half of the increase at the end of a year. These he let out to other farmers on the same conditions. By the exercise of care in letting out the turkeys to dependable farmers and on written contracts as to the care to be taken of them and as to accounting for the increase, he soon succeeded in interesting many farmers in raising the best turkeys, and with profit to himself. There should be some man of means in every county who would be ready to help the farmers along in that way.

Activities of this kind need not be limited to turkey growing. Farmers should be encouraged in every way to diversify their products, aid if Chambers of Commerce and like organizations are anxious to do a real service to their communities they cannot do better than to formulate plans to induce farmers to raise a few thoroughbred hogs, sheep and cattle on every farm. A short cotton crop does not throw a county into a financial panic when the farmers produce a good supply of poultry and livestock and raise enough vegetables and other food-stuffs with which to feed themselves.

Armistice Day was fittingly observed in Austin and a number of other places in Texas this year, and the people turned out in thousands to show their appreciation of the services the boys rendered the county in the greatest war that has ever been fought for democracy. The war is too recent an dits memories are too vivid for the celebration to take on the hilariousness of a Fourth of July. As yet it is an annual memorial and it should always be commemorated as such rather than as a day of jollification. America has reason to be proud of the part it played in the effort to win for the world that freedom this country enjoys. As the years pass and the countries of the world come more and more into the enjoyment of the principles for which the war was fought, Armistice Day will become the greatest of our annual celebrations.

Alvin Owsley, former National Commander of the American Legion, was the guest of honor and the principal orator at the Austin Armistice Day celebration. When the parade was formed to march up Congress Avenue to be seen by some fifteen thousand citizens, Owsley did not put on a silk hat and ride in an open carriage as he might have done, but took his place on foot at the head of the long parade and marched proudly with the rest of the boys who had seen service. To this writer, Owsley's democratic simplicity as merely one of the great number of marchers, when he might have used the occasion for his self-aggrandizement was the outstanding feature of the parade. Modesty is an element of greatness that is too seldom seen.

LACK MONEY FORCES SOVIET TO LIMIT EDUCATION

By FREDERICK KUH (United Press Staff Correspondent) MOSCOW. (By Mail to United Press)—Soviet Russia's educational system is facing a crisis of unequalled severity. Lack of funds has thwarted the realization of an immense part of the Commissariat of Education's program. Owing to the depletion of the state's treasury innumerable plans for improving and enlarging the educational system has been abandoned.

The Commissar of Education, Lunacharsky, speaking before the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, described these overwhelming difficulties with courage and frankness. Thanks to the tight clutch of the Commissariat of Finance upon the state's purse-strings the Commissariat of Education is confronted with a dilemma, from which Lunacharsky at present sees no escape.

A comparison of the number of Russian schools in 1914, again four years after the revolution, and finally today, discloses that the first educational advances of the Soviet regime have been checked, and that in many instances an abandonment of former achievements has been necessary. In the course of his recent speech, Lunacharsky revealed the following facts:

Before the war Russia had 62,000

elementary schools attended by 4,200,000 pupils. After the revolutionary government had stabilized its position in 1921, the number of these schools was increased to 76,000, attended by 6,000,000 pupils—or 80 per cent of all children of school-age. During the past year, however, shortage of funds caused a slump of 49,000 in the number of elementary schools, with a proportionate drop in attendance to 7,700,000.

The fate of Russia's high schools has been similar. While their number totaled 1,669 before the war, and rose to 3,700 in 1921, they have now fallen to 2,028. The kindergartens and day-nurseries, whose number was increased from 377 to 4,900 after the revolution, have now been restricted to 715.

The distressing plight of Russia's system is illuminated by a study of the state's educational budget which amounted to 100,000,000 rubles annually before the war, and far which only 28,500,000 rubles were available in 1922-23.

This educational appropriation has proved wholly inadequate to meet the most urgent requirements. It must be remembered that, at the outset of its career, the Soviet state itself assumed the financial burden of the school system. Later, the Government ordered the local authorities throughout the country to maintain schools at their own expense.

"The Commissariat of Finance," declared Lunacharsky, "overestimated the financial resources of the local authorities."

While the Educational Commissariat's budget for the current year will amount to 58,000,000 rubles, the Commissariat of Finance will appropriate only 60,200,000 rubles, and the problem of covering this 18,000,000 ruble deficit seems insoluble.

Teachers' salaries in many Russian provinces amounts to a mere pittance.

In its campaign against illiteracy, the Government has again been obliged to forego the major portion of its program. Despite these setbacks, the Government intends to offer training to 4,000,000 illiterates, mainly peasants, during the coming year.

Stephen F. Austin And Moses Austin Papers on Press

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 22.—Publication of the Stephen F. Austin and Moses Austin papers is now in progress, according to Dr. E. C. Barker, professor of history at the University of Texas, who has undertaken the work. The volumes are being published by the American Historical Association and printed by the Government printing office at Washington, D. C.

The completed works will consist of four or five volumes. At present the first two volumes are in the hands of the printer, but will not be ready for distribution for some time yet. They will contain about 1800 pages with some 350 pages of the dealing mainly with Moses Austin and the life of the Austins before they came to Texas. The papers from 1828 on deal principally with Stephen F. Austin in Texas, the letters he wrote, and the letters written to him.

The last two or three volumes concerning the papers from 1828 on are complete in manuscript, but have not yet gone to the printers. Dr. Barker says however, that it will be several years before these latter volumes are ready for distribution.

Dr. Barker is also working on "The Life of Stephen F. Austin" which he expects to finish about Christmas. This he intends to publish privately.

A scientist says the human race is 800,000,000 years old. If that be true its case is hopeless—for it is still ignorant of the futility of force.
