"Kerosene" seems to have been first used in United States patent No. 12,612, o. March 27, 1855, granted to Abraham Gesner of Williamsburg, N. Y., and assigned to the North American Kerosene Gaslight company. In the preamble to his specifications Gesner states that he has "invented and discovered a new and useful manufacture or composition of matter, being a new liquid hydrocarbon which I denominate 'kerosene.'" "Coal oil" was the term in general use before "kerosene" was invented.

Banana Pudding.

Beat together the yolks of four eggs, four ounces granulated sugar, one ounce butter and a teaspoonful vanilla essence briskly for five minutes. Add four ounces of sifted flour, three bananas peeled and cut in thin slices and the beaten whites of the four eggs, with a pinch of salt. Pour into a buttered pudding mold and bake for three-quarters of an hour. Unmold when serving and have whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla as a sauce. -Boston Transcript.

orman's mamma was something a stickler for propriety, and she was not a little annoved that it seemed impossible to make the boy give his uncle's name the customary handle. One day after the little fellow had met with a severer reproof than usual for this shortcoming of his he said:

"I mean to be good, mamma, but I don't see why I should say Uncle Harry. I don't say Uncle Papa, do I?"

Why Two Ears Are Necessary.

Sound travels by waves radiating from a central point of disturbance, just as waves radiate when a stone is dropped into still water. So far as the hearing of each individual is concerned these waves move in a direct line from the cause of the sound to his ear, the impact being the greatest in the ear nearest to the source. This being the case, a person who has totally lost the sense of hearing in one ear, although he may imagine that the defect is of ittle consequence, cannot locate the n ection of a sound to save his life, ven when the center of disturbance is quite near him.

His Views on Suffrage.

When a female canvasser asked an old farmer to sign a petition in favor of a woman's movement he eyed the document for awhile with suspicion. "No, I'm again' it, sure,' was the reply, with the emphasis of a man who had had some domestic infelicity. "A woman who's allus in any calling of life, demands a a-movin' is allus a-gettin' in trouble. If you've got anything to keep her quiet I'll sign it."-Ladies'

"She'll jump at it." Duncan thought this over for while. Then his lips twitched. "What's the matter with her?" he inquired. "I'm willing to play the game as it lies, but I bar funatics and cripples."

"There's no particular her, yet. You can take your pick. I've no more idea where she is than you have." "Now I know you're ctark, staring only can't believe it.' "How could 1? What the dev!l are on getting at, anyhow?"

"This pet scheme of mine. Lend me your ears. Have you ever lived in a one horse country town, a place with one unspeakable hotel and about tweny stores and five churches?"

"I have. I was born in one of 'em. Have you any idea what becomes of he young people of such towns?"

"Not a glimmering." "Then I'll enlighten your egregious density. The boys-those who've got the stuff in them-strike out for the cities to make their everlasting fortunes. Generally they do it too."

"The same as you?"

"The same as me," assented Kellogg, tore. After office hours they put on their very best mail order clothes and parade up and down Main street, talkng loud and firting obviously with the girls. The girls haven't much else to do. They don't find it so easy to get away. A few of 'em escape to boarding schools and colleges, where they meet and marry young men from the cities, but the majority of them have to stay at home and help mother That's a tradition. If there are two children or more the boys get the chance every time. The girls stay nome to comfort the old folks in their old age. Why, by the time they're old enough to think of marrying-and they begin young, for that's about the only excitement they find available-you won't find a small country town between here and the Mississippi where there aren't about four girls to every

"It's a horrible thought."

"You'd think so if you knew what the boys were like. There isn't one in ten that a girl with any sense or self respect could force berself to marry if she ever saw anything better. Do you begin to see my drift?" "I do not. But go on drifting."

"No? Why, the demand for eligible males is 300 per cent in excess of the supply. Don't you know-no, you don't; I got to that first-that there are twenty times as many old maids in small country towns as there are in the cities? It's a fact, and the reason for it is because when they were young they couldn't lower themselves to accept the pick of the local matrimonial market. Now, do you see?"

We have discussed methods or refucing the cost of transportation entirely, or at least reduce to a minimum the distance the freight is carried, by building factories. The factory is the farmer's market house, and he must travel at his own expense until he reaches the factory, no mat ter where it is located. It costs $5 per head to ship cattle from Texas to the Chicago packing houses.

Freight $5.00.

By bringing the packing house to Texas we will add $5 per head to all the cattle within the State as well as to future production. We have 8,917,-000 head of cattle, and by building packing houses we can add $40,000,000 to their value. It costs approximately $10 per bale to ship our cotton to England and return the finished product

Opening our mines will eliminate the cost of transportation on iron, other minerals. It costs $400 per car to ship iron from Pennsylvania to
