Over 80 per cent of the people of Russia are peasants. The land is their to own the land. Land ownership is their definition of freedom, their idea of happiness.

The Russian peasant has been a stranger in his own country. The man who tills the soil and lives on the land and yet never owns an acre of it is a foreigner, even though his forbears may have been native to the country for centuries. The Russians have felt this; they are simple, home loving people. From the conversations I have had with Russians of the peasant class I believe that they have suffered more because they never had a chance to own their own homes, their own farms, than from the denial to them of political freedom. The land question is a heart question, a hearth question to them land taxes often reached 185 to 250 per cent of the normal value of the allotment, not to speak of the taxes for recruiting, the churches, roads and Shall Chaos or Reconstruction local administration, chiefly levied from the peasants. The peasants have sunk deeper into debt every year. The scheme was a quicksand-the harder they worked and struggled the deeper into debt they fell. Increasing arrears LAND QUESTION IN RUSSIA have driven one-fifth of the inhabitants from their houses. Every year more than half the adult males (in some districts three-quarters of the men and one-third of the women) are forced to quit their homes and wander throughout Russia in search of work. In the governments of the black earth region the state of matters is hardly better.

America have only a faint, uncertain, per cent peasants; 1.0 per cent made up the nobility; 9 per cent the clergy; 9.3 per cent the Lurghers and merchants; 6.1 per cent the millitary; thus 147,000,000 of the Russians stock when in Sonora.

The slavery in Russia consecrated by law in 1609 was partly abolished in 1861. The Act only pretended to liberate the serfs. Even under the best landlords conditions continued to White, Barents and Karn of the arctic; be terrible. Household servents or dependents attached to the personal service of their masters were released. They joined the town proletariat. The pensants were given allotments of arable land. These allotments were not given to the individuals, they were given over to the rural commune called the Mir, which was made responsible as a whole for the payment of allotments. It was a sort of land communism, except that the title did not pass even to the Mirs. The enormous charge against the land made them tenant serfs. The Mir was a mortgaged community. The redemption charge was not calculated on the value of the land, but was considered as payment for the loss of the compulsory labor of the serfs. The enslavement of the peasant was recognized in the Act which pretended > Peasants Systematically Cheated. Many proprietors of land saw to it that the allotments did not give the peasants the needed pasture lands around their homes. This craftily calculated scheme compelled the peasants to rent pasture land from the landlords at any price. The landlords held them up.

It was only as late as 1904 that the landlord was forbidden by law to inflict corporal punishment on the peasant. Even this law was winked at and the practice of treating human slaves as brutes treat tired domestic animals, continued. The peasant was a chattel and the cheapest farm fixture. There were plenty of peasants. Notwithstanding the barbaric life in

The peasants' only participation in government was in the assembly called the Mir. With its quaint customs, it is of immemorial antiquity. The assembly of the Mir consisted of all the peasant householders of the village. These elected a head man and collector of local taxes. It was the near est Russian peasants ever got to freedom. It was the clearing house for the troubles, a socialism of sorrows, a touch of local self government which gave no rights; it simply provided a means of co-operating in burden (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

HARD AT WORK IN BELGIUM

Coal Mining and Other Industries Are Being Rapidly Put on a Normal Basis.

The Belgian coal mines are now turning out about 80 per cent of the normal production. They supply nearly all the coal needed for the Belgian industries, while some 350,000 tons of coal a month are exported to France. Then the great glass industry of the country, which before the war gave work to many thousands, is rapidly regaining its former prosperity, and only quite recently the French ministry of reconstruction gave an order to a single Belgian firm for 2,000,000 square meters of window panes, to be utilized in the devastated regions. The result of all this is that whereas, at the time of the signing of the armistice, the French franc was worth 1.10 or even 1.15 francs in Belgium, it is now worth 95 centimes. Belgium. moreover, is very far from her efforts to France. Great Britain is already a considerable importer of Belgian goods, while the United States recently placed an order in Belgium for more than 300,000,000 francs' worth of glassware.

RUSSIA ALWAYS UNDER YOKE

Easy to Understand Why the Unhappy People Have Turned to Bolshe whom in Their Groping for > Freedom. Article XVI.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The history of Russia begins with a egend. Nestor of Kiev, an old monkish chronicler, tells the story. Kiev is the mother of Russian cities. In the n'nth century Slavs and Finns lived in tribal state in the forest region near Lake I'men, between Lake Ladoga and. the upper waters of the Onieper river. Bands of military adventurers from the land of Rus, which is supposed to have been a part of Sweden, exacted tribute from the tribes. In the year $50 the tribes threw off the yoke of the Norsemen and drove them out of the country. It was Russia's first revolution, so the old chronicler relates, and it was successful. Freed from the tyranny of the tribute takers the tribes began to guarrel among themselves. Their land was large and fertile, but civil war destroyed order. Then as now, order was the first essential to peace and happiness. It is told that siter three years of tribal war they confessed their inability to manage their own affairs and they sent a mission to Rus to invite their old masters to come and rule over them. According to the legend, three brothers, princes of Rus, Rurik, Stneus and Truvor, accepted the call and founded dynasty, from which many of the Russian princes of the present day clafm descent.

While much discussion has been prowoked as to the identity of the warrlors from the land of Rus, the founders of the Russian empire, it is generally believed that they were the bardy Norsemen, who in the ninth centered Norsemen, who is the ninth centered Norsemen Norsemen, who is the ninth centered Norsemen Norseme lived as the dominant military caste the native population. Novgorod First Capital. Prince Ruzik built his capital on the books of the River Volkhov, which with Lake ilmen formed part of the great waterway connecting the Baltle and Black sens. By this route, the tatl, blonde Norsemen, who composed the famous Varangian bodyguard of the Byzantine emperors, traveled from Seendinavia to Constantinople. Ruscla's first capital was Novgorod. These new rulers from the land of Res brought with them the spirit of sdventure of the Norsemen. were not contented to rule the tribes who had invited them. They set out to conquer the surrounding country in att directions, and before two hundred years had passed they had invaded Byzantine territory, established themseives at Kiev, threatened Constantipople with a fleet, secured as a consort for Vladimir I, one of their princes, a sister of the Byzantine emperor. adopted Christianity for themselves and their subjects, learned to hold in check the nomadic hordes of the steppe, and formed matrimonial allinners with the reigning families of Poland. Hungary, Norway and France. They became a great power in eastern

They had great appetite for conmest, but they lacked the power to organize the territory they conquered. The political future of the new state was destroyed when the princes of the Eurik dynasty divided the state into a number of independent principalities. For a time these were weakly and loosely held together by the patriarchal authority of the senior member of the family, the grand prince, vine caled in Kiev. Family strong men. They wanted power. They strove to enlarge their territories at the expense of their rivals. The traditional authority of the grand prince declined. Yaroslav the Great was the inst of the grand princes. With his death in 1054, family feeds multiplied and disintegration set in. During the next 170 years, from 1054 to 1224, Russia was split into over sixty principalities. Disputes over the question of succession led to eighty-three civil Eulacd by Internal Struggle. During these interminable struggles of rival psinces. Kley, which had been so long the residence of the grand prince, was repeatedly taken by storm, and ruthlessly pillaged. Finally the whole valley of the Dnieper fell a prey to the marching tribes of the steppe. Thereupon Russian colonization and political influence retreated northward, and from that time the continnous stream of Russian history is to be sought in the land where the Vikings first settled, and in the adjoining basin of the upper Volga. Here new principalities were founded, some of them having a grand prince, who longer professed allegiance to Kiev. Thus appeared the grand princes of Suzdal, of Tver, of Ryazan and of Moscow-all irreconcilable rivals with little or no feelings of blood relationship. The more ambitious and powerful among them aspired not to succeed, but to subdue the others and the armed retainers, who were won formerly to wander about as free lances, gave up their roving mode of life, settled down permanently, became landed proprietors and sought thority.

The greatest of these principalities was Novgorod. Since the days when Rurik had first chosen it as his headquarters the little capital on the Volkhov had grown into a great commercial city and brought under subjection ng from the shores of the Bakir to he Ural mountains. Berlin Garbage Men Grow Rich. Garbage collectors of Borlin are now earning more than many university professors and much more than minor officials in the fereign office and the other ministries. If one has a gragon and two horses he makes 9,900 marks a year, plus his tips, which amount to as much more. He has become a tyrant and will remove no garbage unless he receives fees.

Mexico Pushes Boy Scout Move. The Boy Scout movement is looked upon with favor in Mexico. Its expansion in the republic is to be under direct supervision of the department of war, which has recently appointed a commission to visit the United States and Latin-American countries with a view to establishing a close relationship among the various organizations.

The Woman's Tonic

You can rely on Cardul. Surely it will do for you what it has done for so many thousands of other women! It should help.

"I was taken sick, seemed to be . . . writes Mrs. Mary E. Veste, of Madison Heights, Va. "I got down so weak, could hardly walk . . . just staggered around.

. . I read of Cardui, and after taking one bottle, or before taking quite all, I felt much better. I took 3 or 4 bottles at that time, and was able to do my work. I take it in the spring when rundown. I had no appetite, and I commenced eating. It is the best tonic I ever saw." Try Cardui.

had chronic bronchitis for twenty-six years HOW WELL AND HAPPY THIS IS WORTH READING

The experience of Mr. E. J. Tou-palik, 1438 Rose street, LaCrosse, Wisconsin, is chiefly remarkable on account of the length of time he was afflicted. He writes: "I have been suf-fering with chronic brenchitis for twenty-six years and every winter I would eath cold and become so hoarse I could not speak for six or cight weeks. I could get only tem-perary relief. "This winter I was taken with Grip and was in awful shape. A fellow workman adviced me to take PE-RU-NA. By the time I had used three-fourths of a bottle, the hearseness was gone, also that tired feeling. I am on my second bottle. Hereafter PE-RU-NA will constantly in my house. It is e best medicine ever put up for e purpose."

For any disease due to catarrh or estarrhal conditions, PE-RU-NA is requally dependable. Coughs, colds, catarrh of the head, stomach pains in the back, side and loins, eating, beiching gas, indigestion, catarrh of the large and small intestines, are some of the troubles for which PE-RU-NA is especially recommended.

PE-RU-NA can be purchased anywhere in either tablet or liquid
