CHAPTER I

At Sand Creek Siding
As a general proposition, I don't believe much in the things called "haunches." But there are exceptions to all rules, and we certainly uncovered the biggest one of the lot—the boss and I—the night we left Portland and the good old Pacific coast.

It was this way. We had finished the construction work on the Oregon Midland; and were on our way to the train, when I had one of those queer little premonitory chills you hear so much about and know just as well as could be that we were never going to pull through to Chicago without getting a jolt of some sort. The reason—if you'll call it a reason—was that, just before we came to the railroad station, the boss walked calmly under a ladder standing in front of a new building; and besides that, it was the thirtieth day of the month, a Friday, and raining like the very mischief.

Just to sort of tell us along, maybe, the fates didn't begin on us that night. They waited until the next day, and then proceeded to shove us in behind a freight-train wreck at Widner, Idaho, where we lost twelve hours. It looked as if that didn't amount to much, because we weren't due anywhere at any particular time. The boss was on his way home for a little visit with his folks in Illinois, and beyond that he was going to meet a bunch of Englishmen in Montreal, and maybe let them make him general manager of one of the Canadian railroads.

So Mr. Norcross was in no special hurry, and neither was I. I had been a confidential clerk and shorthand man for the boss on the Midland construction, and he was taking me along partly because he knows a cracking good stenographer when he sees one, but mostly because I was dead anxious to go anywhere he was going.

But, if it hadn't been for that twelve-hour lay-out we would have caught the Saturday night train on the Pioneer Short Line, instead of the train Sunday morning, and there would have been no meeting with Mrs. Sheila and Miss Ann in Illinois, and from Mr. Chadwick, because it wouldn't have found us; no hold-up at Sand Creek siding; in short, nothing would have happened that did happen.

It was on Sunday that the jolt began to get ready to land on us. Right soon after breakfast, with the help of a little Pullman berth table and me and my typewriter, Mr. Norcross turned our section into a business office, saying that now we had a good quiet day, we'd clean up the million or so odds and ends of correspondence he'd been letting go while we were tussling for the Midland right-of-way through the Oregon mountains.

From where he sat dictating to me the boss was facing forward and now and then an absent sort of look came into his eyes while he was talking off his letters, and it puzzled me because it wasn't like him. One of the times after he had given me a full crust of letters and had gone off to smoke while I typed a few thousand lines from my notes to catch up, I made a discovery. There were two people in Section Five just ahead of us, a young woman and a girl of maybe fifteen or so, and the Pullman was the old-fashioned kind, with two seats back. I put it up that in those absent-minded intervals Mr. Norcross had been studying the back of the young woman's neck. I was measurably sure it wasn't the little girls.

Along in the forenoon I made an excuse to go and get a drink of water out of the forward cooler, and on the way back I took a good square look at our neighbors in Number Five. The young woman was pretty enough to start a stopped clock—only "pretty" isn't just the word, either; there wasn't any word, when you come right down to it. And the little girl was simply a peach—a nice, downy, rosy peach; chunky, round-faced, sunny-haired, jolly; with a neat little tummy up nose and big sort of boyish laughing eyes that fairly dared the world.

At the second call to dinner Mr. Norcross told me to strap up the machine, and put the files away in the girls' and we'd go out. He was pretty quiet, breaking out once, in the most obscure, to tell me that he'd just had a forwarded telegram from an old friend of his that would stop us off for a day or two in Portland City, the headquarters of the Pioneer Short Line. Farther along, pretty well into the afternoon and black coffee, he came to life again to ask me if I had noticed the young lady and the girl in the Pullman section next to ours.

I told him I had, and then, because I had never known him to bother his head for two minutes in succession about any woman, he gave me a check; said they were ticketed to Portland City—and to find out he must have asked the train boss, adding that when we reached Portland it would be the neighbors' job for me to do to help them off with their hand-hugs and see that they got a cab if they wanted one.

"Sure I will," says I. "That is, if the lady's husband isn't there to meet them. Her suit case has her name, 'Mrs. Sheila Macrae,' on it."

The boss has a way of making two up-and-down wrinkles and a little curved horseshoe line come between his eyes when he is going to reach for you.

"There are times, Jimmie, when you see altogether too much," he said, sort of gruff.

"Macrae," you say; that is Scotch. And so is 'Sheila.' Most likely the names, both of them, are only hand-downs. She looks straight American to me."

"She is pretty enough to look anything," I throw in, just to see how he would take it.

"Right you are, Jimmie," he agreed. "I've been looking at the back of her neck all day. There are so many women who don't measure up to the promises they make when you see 'em from behind. You catch a glimpse of a pretty neck, and when you get around to the face you find out that the neck was only a bit of bluff."

If I had been seeing anything in the world but ice cream I believe it would have choked me. What he said led up to the admission that he had been making these face-and-neck comparisons for goodness knows how long, and I couldn't surround that, all at once. You see, he was such a picture of a man in every sense of the word—a fighter and a head-biter, right from the jump. And to a man of that sort women are usually no more than fluffy little side-issues, as I've said when they told her she was made out of Adam's rib.

That ended the dining-car part of it. The sure-enough, knock-out round was fought at the rear end of our Pullman, which happened to be the last car in the train. As we walked back after dinner Mr. Norcross gave me a check and said we'd go out to the observation platform to smoke. When we reached the door we found the young lady and the girl standing at the rear railing to watch the track unroll itself under the trucks. The young lady was wearing a coat with a storm collar, but the girl had a fur thing around her neck, and her stocky, chunky little arms were elbow deep in a big pillow muff to match, though the muff itself wasn't even half-way chilly.

The boss stepped out on the platform to close the side trap door which, with the railing gate on that side, had been left open by a careless rear flagman. Just then the big "Pacific type" that was pulling us let out a whistle screech that would have waked the dead, and the air-brakes went on with a jerk that showed how beautifully reckless the pulling was on the Pioneer Short Line.

Mr. Norcross was reaching for the catch on the floor trap and the jerk didn't throw him. But it snapped the young woman and the girl away from the railing so suddenly that the little one had to grab for hand-holds; and when she did that, of course the big muff went overboard.

At this, a bunch of things happened, all in an eye-wink. The train ground and slid a few feet; the muffs tumbled. "Oh, my muff!" I skipped down the steps to disappear in the general direction of the Pacific coast; the young woman shrieked after her, "Miss Ann—come back here—you'll be left!" and then took her turn at disappearing by the same route; and, on top of it all, the boss jumped off and sprinted after both of them, leaving a string of large, man-sized comments on the foolishness of women as a sex trailing along behind him as he flew.

Right then it was my golden moment to play safe and sane. With three of them off and lost in the gathering night, somebody with at least a grain of sense ought to have stood by to pull the emergency cord if the train should start. But, of course, I had to take a chance and spill the gravy all over the tablecloth. The stop was at a blind siding in the crease of a mountain desert, and when I squeaked up ahead and saw that the engine was taking water, it looked as if there were going to be plenty of time for a bit of promenade under the stars. So I swung off and went to join the muff hunt.

Amongst them, they had found the pillow thing before I had a chance to horn in. They were coming up the track, and the boss had each of the two by the arm and was telling them a blind siding in the crease of a mountain desert, and when I squeaked up ahead and saw that the engine was taking water, it looked as if there were going to be plenty of time for a bit of promenade under the stars. So I swung off and went to join the muff hunt.

still three or four car-lengths to go when the tank spout went up with a clang and a clatter of chains and the old "Pacific type" gave a couple of hisses and a snort.

"They're going," grunted the boss, out of between his teeth, and without another word he grabbed those two bobbed women folks up under his arms, just as if they'd been a couple of sacks of meal, and broke into a run.

It wasn't a morsel of use, you know. Old Hercules himself couldn't have run very far or very fast with the handcup the boss had taken on, and in less than half a minute the "Pacific type" had caught her stride and the red rail lights of the train were vanishing to pin points in the night. We were beautifully and satisfactorily

When he saw that it was no matter of use, the boss quit on the handcup race and put his two scruffs down while he still had breath enough left to talk with.

"Well," he said, in his best rusty-huge rasp, "you've done it! Why, in the name of common sense, couldn't you have let me go back after that muff thing?"

Just as if They'd Been a Couple of Sacks of Meal.

It was the young woman who answered the boss.

"I didn't stop to think!" she stammered, taking the blame as if she had been the one to head the procession. "Isn't there any way we can stop that train?"

The boss said there wasn't, and I know the old reason why he didn't say a lot of other things was because he was too much of a gentleman to say them in the presence of a couple of women.

So far as we could see, the sure roundings consisted of a short side-track, a spur running off into the hills, and the water tank. The siding switches had no lights, which argued that there wasn't even a man-man at the tank—so there was not, the tank being filled automatically by a gravity pipe line running back to a natural reservoir in the mountains.

By this time the boss was beginning to get a little better grip on himself and he laughed.

"We've all earned the leather medal, I guess," he chuckled. "It's done now, and it can't be helped."

"But look! There's anything we can do!" said the young woman. "Can't we walk somewhere to where there is a station or a town with people in it?"

I saw Mr. Norcross look down at her skirts and then at the girls.

"You two couldn't walk very far or very fast in those things you are wearing," he grunted. "Besides, we are in one of the desert strips, and it is probably miles to a night wire station in either direction."

We trailed off together up the track, two and two, the boss walking with the young woman. After we'd counted a few of the cross-ties, the girl said: "Is your name Jimmie Dods?" And when I admitted it: "Mine is Missie Ann. I'm Sheila's cousin on her mother's side. I think this is a great lark; don't you?"

"I can tell better after it's over," I said. "Maybe we'll have to stay here all night."

"I shouldn't mind," she came back airily. "I haven't been up all night since I was a little kiddie and our house burned down."

We reached the big water tank, and the boss picked out one of the square footing timbers for a seat. It seemed as if he were finding it a good bit harder to get acquainted with his half of the combination than I was with mine, but after a little the young woman thaved out a bit and made him talk—to help pass away the time, I took it—and the little girl and I sat and listened. When the young woman finally got him started, the boss told her all about himself, how he'd been railroaded ever since he left college, and a lot of things that I'd never even dreamed of. It's curious how a pretty woman can make a man turn himself inside out that way, just for her amusement.

The boss asked her if she were warm enough, saying that if she were not, he and I would scrape up some sage-brush or something and make a fire. She replied that she didn't care for a fire, that the night wasn't at all cold—which it wasn't. Then she showed that she was human, clear down to the tips of her pretty fingers.

"You may smoke if you want to," she told the boss. "I shan't mind it in the least."

The boss lighted his cigar. Then

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.
 The school term is fast drawing to a close. Pupils and teachers are all very busy with plans for closing exercises. The following announcements concerning the various exercises may now be made:

The Junior and Sophomore class play, "Diamonds and Hearts" will be given next Tuesday night, May 10th.

The Senior class will present "Cupid at Vassar" on Tuesday night, May 17th.

Both of these are royalty plays of high merit. The pupils are making every effort to present them in a creditable manner. We feel sure that those who see these plays will be highly pleased with them.

Rev. W. E. Hatborn will preach the "commencement sermon" on Sunday night, May 15th, at the Methodist church.

Thursday night, May 19th, the Seventh Grade Graduation Exercises will be held in the school Auditorium. An appropriate program has been arranged for the evening and the patrons and friends are invited to attend.

The Commencement Exercises for the Senior class will be held Friday night, May 20th. The address for the occasion will be delivered by Rev. T. W. Currie, Y. M. C. A. Director for the University of Texas, Austin.

Mrs. Caldwell's music class will give a recital in the school auditorium Monday night, May 23rd. Patrons and friends are invited.

The following left Wednesday for the State Inter-scholastic League Meet at Austin: R. W. Hamilton, Creydon Rees, Albert Runnels, Carney Wyatt and Weldon Moreland. The meet will be held in Austin on Friday and Saturday of this week. Grace Trainer was ill and unable to make the trip. She won the girls' tennis singles contest in San Angelo and was entitled to the trip as the representative of this district in this contest.

We are anticipating good reports from our boys.

ACTOR AROUSED TO WRATH
 Incident in Musical Comedy Amused the Audience, Though It Was Not on the Program.

Arnold Pope of Boston tells of an amusing incident at a New York musical show, which was not on the program. He said: "Nothing stirs the emotions of the visitor in New York like the unexpected appearance of a favorite son. The curtain had gone up when suddenly Calvin Coolidge, at that time vice president-elect, entered the lower right-hand box. His clean-cut look and friendly nod thrilled a number of Massachusetts men in the front row. They became quite agitated. So much so that one of them accidentally uncorked a flask carried on the hip. Instantly the atmosphere became surcharged with a dark-brown 100-proof aroma.

"It was agonizing to sit there in the knowledge of the waste. Leon Errol, who was singing and dancing, got one whiff, and he quit his lines. He walked to the edge of the footlights, and, searching the first rows with his eyes, lifted an angry finger and remarked: 'One of you chaps down there ought to get 20 years.' It brought down the front of the house, even 'our Cal' joining in the gales of laughter."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

BLAME TEACHER FOR STRIKE
 Japanese Instructors Forced to Give Up Positions When Trouble Occurs in Institutions.

School strikes seem peculiar to Japan. Such a strike is a calamity dreaded by headmaster and assistant master alike. A headmaster who has had a strike in his school is under suspicion, even though he may be quite innocent of any unjust conduct, and eventually he must seek a new field for his activities. So unpleasant do the students make his continued stay. When students combine against one of the assistant masters he has nothing to do but tender his resignation. If the strike is temporarily calmed down it is tacitly understood that the master in question is on the lookout for a new place. Sometimes strikes take place for the retention of the teacher rather than for his dismissal. In this latter case it is always the headmaster who suffers most, as the move is directed against him for not retaining some favorite.

PROFIT IN STATE DEPARTMENT.
 For the first time in its history the State department is on a paying basis, remarks the Independent, New York. An obscure Texas congressman tacked on to the last appropriation bill an amendment providing a $10 charge to be made for passports and passport visas, and that no one could enter or leave the country without a passport. So far the State department has taken in from passport fees about $11,000,000 and the department wants the provision made permanent.

ART AND INDUSTRY.
 "Josh," said Farmer Cortnossel, to his son, "I wish you'd quit practicing the ukelele and take up the slide trombone."
 "What for?"
 "I think it's more improv'n'. It'll help your lung power for drivin' cattle an' give your arm a little exercise for swingin' a scythe."

BUSINESS.
 Motorist (having run down man)—What's your name and address?
 Victim (weakly)—John Smith, 14 Blank street.
 Motorist—Righto, Smith! Can't stop now, but tomorrow I'll drop in on you and try to convince you that you should carry an accident policy in the company I represent.

WHEN HE ENJOYED THEM.
 Mrs. Flatbush—Did your husband enjoy the minstrel performance last night?
 Mrs. Bensonhurst—I think not.
 "How's that?"
 "Well, you see, he didn't see the point of the jokes until this morning."

RESOURCEFUL WOMAN.
 Wife—John, I must have some new furs.
 Hub—Sorry, my dear, but the car needs new tires and we can't afford both.
 Wife—Very well, get the tires and we'll spend the winter at Palm Beach.

Notice to Trespassers.

SAVING DAYLIGHT IN 1643
 Records of Town of Hartford, Conn., Show Bell Ringers Awakened the Citizens Before Dawn.

Daylight saving was in operation in Hartford, Conn., in 1643, seven years after its settlement, according to an old record uncovered by Corporation Counsel Walter S. Schutz. Page 35 of copy No. 1 of the Hartford town records, reveals that a general town meeting in Hartford October 24, 1643, voted that there should be a bell rung by the watch every morning an hour before day-break. "and they shall be appointed by the constable for that purpose shall begin at the bridge and so ring the bell all the way forth and back: Master Moodys (Wyllyshill) to John Preita, and that there shall be in every house one up and some lights within one-quarter of an hour after the end of the bell ringing, if they can, or else then to be up with lights aforementioned half an hour before daylight, and for default herein is to forfeit one shilling and six pence to be paid to him that finds him faulty and six pence to the town."

PLAIN FOOLISHNESS TO HIM
 Present-Day Style of Clothing Small Boys Made No Sort of Appeal to Farmer.

Farmer North visited Indianapolis the other day and then went quietly back to his home in Brown county more satisfied than ever with his people around him. "I ain't got nothin' agin the men," he told his family over the supper table. "It's them city women I ain't got no use for. They ain't got no sense about clothes."

His wife agreed with him. "Why when I was up there in July," she elaborated, "some of them was wearing summer hats and some of them was wearing winter ones. Now that—"

"Hats, nothing!" her husband interrupted her. "What I'm referring to is not hats. Didn't I see a woman with heavy yarn stockings on her own feet leading a little kid that had some little pieces of thin socks on him with half his legs and all his knees showin'? Now that's what I call plain foolishness."—Indianapolis News.

ELEPHANT LIKES COCONUTS.
 "Daisy," the African elephant in the Kapiolani park zoo in Honolulu, has developed into a complete copra plant, according to recent visitors to the bungalow in the park where Daisy lives.

Visitors say that the big pachyderm has developed the husking of green coconuts to a fine art, with a speed of one every two minutes. It usually takes a novice at husking coconuts anywhere from ten minutes to an hour to break into one with a hammer and chisel. Daisy's interest in her new industry lies in the fact that the coconut is husked she cracks the shell and allows the sweet milk to trickle down her elephantine gullet.

MAN'S DEST TO THE WORM.
 The first great colonists of the land, said Prof. J. Arthur Thompson during the course of a lecture at the Royal institute, London, were worms. "Mankind should look back to them with gratitude, because they began with the profitable habit of moving with one end of the body always in front—a habit which was the beginning of a more vigorous life and opened up a great process which has resulted in one being able to tell one's right hand from one's left."

RESEMBLANCE.
 "The garden seeds our congressman sends us remind me of his political opinions," remarked Farmer Cortnossel. "They're offered with the best possible intentions, but there is no telling how they're going to turn out in a practical way."

HE LEARNS WISDOM.
 Jud Tunkins says the man who always wants the most of everything he sees eventually finds that the musician with the bass fiddle isn't any better off than the boy with the ukelele.

EGYPT: A DIAMOND MINE OF HISTORY
 Egypt annually supplies the world with a precious product, an increasing knowledge of the early life story of the human race. In the wonderful record of exploration which has restored to us the civilization of the great pre-classical nations, there is no more remarkable chapter than that which tells of the resurrection of ancient Egypt. A communication to the National Geographic society by James Baikie, says:
 "The science of Egyptology, which is slowly and patiently reconstructing for us the ordered history of the 3,000 years before Christ, enabling us to see the types of men, the manner of life, the forms of government, the religious customs and beliefs of period after period, from the very dawn of Egyptian nationality, is specifically a growth of our own time."
 "We owe the framework into which we try to fit the facts of Egyptian history to the ancient historian, Manetho, scattered fragments of whose history of Egypt, dating from the reign of Ptolemy Philadelphus, in the third century B. C., have come down to us in the works of various ancient authors. He recognized 30 dynasties of Egyptian monarchs, and he left lists of the names of the kings in each of these dynasties, together with occasional notes upon matters of historical interest in particular reigns."
 One-Handed Clock.
 What is probably the oldest alarm clock in America, made in America, dates back to pre-Revolutionary times, and was made by Jonathan Wood of Philadelphia. The clock has but one hand, that telling the hours, which are in Roman numerals, separated into four sections, 15 minutes apart, so that it is possible to estimate the time within two or three minutes after a little practice. The time and alarm are both operated by weights.

The entertainment given at the Auditorium Monday night under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers Association was well attended and the program very creditably rendered. The feature number was the May Pole dance by many little tots, the execution of which was perfect. The entertainment was "complementary" to the community.

INSPECTING THE DEL RIO GRADE

Albert DeBernardi of Kansas City, vice president and general manager of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway, and George E. Hax of Wichita, Kansas, chief engineer of the Orient System, accompanied by John F. Robinson of Del Rio, secretary of the Commercial Club of that city and a director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, were here Tuesday night. The party was met at Vinergeron Hill by A. Aldwell and W. C. Bryson of Sonora and the engineering features of that pass were given a superficial examination.

The General Manager and Engineer had paid a visit to the country across from De Rio, in Old Mexico, as far as Allende and observed the progress being made on the extension of the railroad from that point to Villa Acuna. They also looked into the matter of the bridge and terminals at Del Rio, which is of the greatest importance.

Mr. DeBernardi had previously visited Sonora from the North but this was his first trip between Sonora and Del Rio. It is well understood by our people that Mr. DeBernardi is a real railroad man. He sees things from the viewpoint of traffic and development and practical operation and it is doubtless due to the seriousness with which the Directors of the Orient are considering the extension of the line from Angelo to Del Rio that the trip of inspection was being made. The preliminary and locating surveys were made before Mr. DeBernardi became associated with the road and he is now able to answer any questions concerned with the entire project.

The visit to the Allende-Villa Acuna country was a revelation to Mr. DeBernardi and Engineer Hax. They found a great garden spot with 500,000 acres subject to irrigation with ditches full of water running to waste and only about one fourth of the land nearest the roads being developed.

Exp et Terms of Land bank Issue Soon.

Investment houses have been figuring on the investment return on the proposed new issue of Federal Land Bank bonds, details of which, it is expected will shortly be announced. Former issues of these bonds are redeemable five years after their date, but the new bonds will not be redeemable until 11 years after date of issue. Federal Land Bank bonds are exempt from United States Government taxes (including the Income Tax) and from State, municipal and local taxation everywhere. The old pre-war issues of the United States Government bonds carry the same exemption, but because of circulation privileges they sell at too high a price to attract individual buyers.—Boston Transcript.

A. G. McInture of the commission house of Alexander, Conover & Martin, Kansas City, sold the Roy Hudspeth wethers and goats last week and Mr. Hudspeth is pleased with the sale and service he was given. The weight of the wethers was 103 pounds instead of 93 pounds as reported last week.

All ranch owners who desire to keep gates on the main roads should get busy and have the "bumper gates" put up or the traveling public will require thru action of the legislature the removal of all gates. All gates will be removed eventually and the ranchmen can delay action only by having the gates to and thru their pasture made of the bumper style as this will lessen the demand for their removal.

Geo. E. Rutan of Boston, who is assisting in the effort to pool 2,000,000 pounds of Texas wool, has been here this week on that business. He has not met with much encouragement from the Sonora sheepmen, but has visited many of the ranches and seen some very fine clips of wool shorn from the flocks. The staple is most excellent and Mr. Rutan believes that the day is not far distant when the sheepmen of the Sonora country will be offered good prices for their clips, but of course, nothing like it was during the war. The effort at pooling will expire May 15 but the Farm Board may take it up again next year.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 4.
 A Joint Resolution of the Legislature of the State of Texas amending Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas: That the words "For the amendment to Section 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers." And the result of the election shall be published and declared according to the majority of the votes cast in such election; and

Section 5. He shall, at stated times, receive as compensation for his services an annual salary not to exceed Eight Thousand ($8,000.00) Dollars and no more, and shall have the use and occupation of the Governor's mansion, fixtures and furniture.

Section 21. There shall be a Secretary of State, who shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall continue in office during the term of service of the Governor. He shall authenticate the publication of the laws and keep a fair register of all official acts and proceedings of the Governor, and shall, when required, lay the same, and all papers, minutes and vouchers relative thereto, before the Legislature, or either House thereof, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by law. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, and no more.

Section 22. The Attorney General shall hold his office for two years and until his successor is duly qualified. He shall represent the State in all suits and pleas in the Supreme Court of the State in which the State may be a party, and shall especially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations, and, from time to time, in the name of the State, take such action in the courts as may be proper and necessary to prevent any private corporation from exercising any power, or demanding or collecting any species of taxes, toll, freight, or wharfage, not authorized by law. He shall, whenever sufficient cause exists, seek a judicial forfeiture of all such charters, unless otherwise expressly directed by law, and give legal aid in writing to the Governor or other executive officers, when requested by them, and perform such other duties as may be required by law. He shall receive for his services an annual salary not to exceed Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars, and no more.

Section 23. The Comptroller of Public Accounts, the Treasurer, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, shall each hold office for the term of two years, and until his successor is qualified; receive an annual salary not to exceed Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, and no more, payable at the Capital of the State during his continuance in office; and perform such other duties as are or may be required of him by law. They and the Secretary of State shall not receive to their own use, any fees, costs or perquisites, or any other emolument that may be payable by law for any service performed by or in their office, specified in this section, or in their office, shall be paid, when received, into the State Treasury.

Section 24. Mileage and per diem of the members of the Legislature shall receive from the public treasury such compensation for their services as may, from time to time, be provided by law, not exceeding Ten ($10.00) Dollars per day for each regular session of one hundred and twenty days; and not exceeding Five ($5.00) Dollars per day for the remainder of such session; and provided, further, that members of the Legislature shall receive not to exceed Ten ($10.00) Dollars per day for each special session of the Legislature that may be called from time to time by the Governor. In addition to the compensation above provided for, the members of the Legislature shall be entitled to mileage in going to and returning from the seat of government, which mileage shall be ten cents per mile, the distance to be computed by the nearest and most direct travel by land, including all railroads and water routes; and the Comptroller of the State shall prepare and preserve a table of distances to each county seat, now or hereafter to be established, and by such table the mileage of each member shall be paid, but no member shall be entitled to mileage for any extra session that may be called within one day after the adjournment of a regular or called session.

Section 25. The Governor is hereby directed to cause to be issued his necessary proclamation for an election to be held on the fourth Saturday in July, 1921, at which election these amendments shall be submitted to the qualified electors of this State for adoption or rejection, and shall make the publication required by the Constitution and laws of the State. Said election shall be held under and in accordance with the general election laws of the State, and the ballots for said election shall have printed or written thereon in plain letters the following words: "Official Ballot: 'For the amendment to Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas providing for compensation of executive officers.'"

Those voters who favor such amendments shall erase by marking a line through the words "against the amendment to Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers." "Against the amendment to Section 24 of Article 2 of the Constitution relating to mileage and per diem of members of the Legislature of the State of Texas." Those voters who favor such amendments shall erase by marking a line through the words "against the amendment to Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers."

Said election shall be held under and in accordance with the general election laws of the State, and the ballots for said election shall have printed or written thereon in plain letters the following words: "Official Ballot: 'For the amendment to Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas providing for compensation of executive officers.'"

Those voters who favor such amendments shall erase by marking a line through the words "against the amendment to Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers." "Against the amendment to Section 24 of Article 2 of the Constitution relating to mileage and per diem of members of the Legislature of the State of Texas." Those voters who favor such amendments shall erase by marking a line through the words "against the amendment to Sections 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers."

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas: That the words "For the amendment to Section 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers." And the result of the election shall be published and declared according to the majority of the votes cast in such election; and

Section 5. He shall, at stated times, receive as compensation for his services an annual salary not to exceed Eight Thousand ($8,000.00) Dollars and no more, and shall have the use and occupation of the Governor's mansion, fixtures and furniture.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas: That the words "For the amendment to Section 5 and 21 and 22 and 23 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for compensation of executive officers." Section 5. He shall, at stated times, receive as compensation for his services an annual salary not to exceed Eight Thousand ($8,000.00) Dollars and no more, and shall have the use and occupation of the Governor's mansion, fixtures and furniture.

Section 21. There shall be a Secretary of State, who shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall continue in office during the term of service of the Governor. He shall authenticate the publication of the laws and keep a fair register of all official acts and proceedings of the Governor, and shall, when required, lay the same, and all papers, minutes and vouchers relative thereto, before the Legislature, or either House thereof, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by law. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, and no more.

Section 22. The Attorney General shall hold his office for two years and until his successor is duly qualified. He shall represent the State in all suits and pleas in the Supreme Court of the State in which the State may be a party, and shall especially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations, and, from time to time, in the name of the State, take such action in the courts as may be proper and necessary to prevent any private corporation from exercising any power, or demanding or collecting any species of taxes, toll, freight, or wharfage, not authorized by law. He shall, whenever sufficient cause exists, seek a judicial forfeiture of all such charters, unless otherwise expressly directed by law, and give legal aid in writing to the Governor or other executive officers, when requested by them, and perform such other duties as may be required by law. He shall receive for his services an annual salary not to exceed Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars, and no more.

Section 23. The Comptroller of Public Accounts, the Treasurer, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, shall each hold office for the term of two years, and until his successor is qualified; receive an annual salary not to exceed Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, and no more, payable at the Capital of the State during his continuance in office; and perform such other duties as are or may be required of him by law. They and the Secretary of State shall not receive to their own use, any fees, costs or perquisites, or any other emolument that may be payable by law for any service performed by or in their office, specified in this section, or in their office, shall be paid, when received, into the State Treasury.

Section 24. Mileage and per diem of the members of the Legislature shall receive from the public treasury such compensation for their services as may, from time to time, be provided by law, not exceeding Ten ($10.00) Dollars per day for each regular session of one hundred and twenty days; and not exceeding Five ($5.00) Dollars per day for the remainder of such session; and provided, further, that members of the Legislature shall receive not to exceed Ten ($10.00) Dollars per day for each special session of the Legislature that may be called from time to time by the Governor. In addition to the compensation above provided for, the members of the Legislature shall be entitled to mileage in going to and returning from the seat of government, which mileage shall be ten cents per mile, the distance to be computed by the nearest and most direct travel by land, including all railroads and water routes; and the Comptroller of the State shall prepare and preserve a table of distances to each county seat, now or hereafter to be established, and by such table the mileage of each member shall be paid, but no member shall be entitled to mileage for any extra session that may be called within one day after the adjournment of a regular or called session.

Section 25. The Governor is hereby directed to cause to be issued his necessary proclamation for an election to be held on the fourth Saturday in July, 1921, at which election these amendments shall be submitted to the qualified electors of this State for adoption or rejection, and shall make the publication required by the Constitution and laws of the State. There was more talk in which it turned out that the young woman and her cousin were to have been met at Port City by somebody she called "Cousin Basil," but there wouldn't be any more because she had written ahead to say that possibly they might stop over with some friends in one of the apple towns.

"Then Mr. Norcross said he wouldn't miss anything by the drop-out but an appointment he had with an old friend, and he guessed that could wait. I listened, thinking maybe he would mention the name of the friend, and after a while he did. The forwarded Port City telegram the boss had gotten just before we went to dinner in the dining-car was from "Uncle John" Chadwick, the Offago wheat king, and that left me wondering what the mischief Mr. Chadwick was doing away out in the wild and woolly western country where they raise more apples than they do wheat, and more mining stock schemes than they do either.

We had been unroofed for nearly an hour when I struck a match and looked at my watch. Mr. Norcross was doing his best to kill time for the young woman, and he was just in the exciting part of a railroad story, telling about a right-of-way fight on the Midland, when the little girl grabbed my arm and said: "Listen!"

"I did, and here I am," I said. "Excuse me," I called to the other two, "but I think there's a train coming." The boss cut his story short and we all listened. It seemed that I was wrong. The noise we heard was more like an auto running with the cut-out open than a train whistling.

"What do you make it, Jimmie?" came from the boss' end of the timber. "Motor car," I said, pointing in the darkness toward the east. My guess was right. In less than a minute we saw the lights of the car. It stopped a little way below the water tank and about a hundred yards north of the track, or maybe less, and four men came tumbling out of it. If I had been alone on the job, I should probably have called to the men as they came traumping over to the side-track. But Mr. Norcross had a different trick coming.

"Out of sight—quick, Jimmie!" he whispered, and in another second he had whipped the young woman over the head footing timber to a standing place under the tank among the braces, and I had done the same for the girl.

What followed was as mysterious as a chapter out of an Anna Katharine Green detective story. After doing something to the switch of the unused spur track, the four men separated. One of them went back to the auto, and the other three walked down the main track to the lower switch of the short siding, which was on the same side of the main line as the spur. Here the fourth man reappeared, and the girl at my elbow told us that he had gone back to the car for.

"He has lighted a red lantern," she whispered. "I saw it when he took it out of the auto." I guess it was pretty plain to all of us by this time that there was something decidedly crooked on the cards, but if we had known what it was, we couldn't very well have done anything to prevent it. There were only two of us men to their four; and, besides, there wasn't any time. The lantern-carrying man had barely reached the lower switch when we heard the whistle of a locomotive. There was a train coming from the west, and a few seconds later an electric headlight showed up on the long tangent beyond the siding.

It was a handlit hold-up, all right. One of the men stood on the track waving the red lantern; we could see him plainly in the glare of the headlight. There wasn't much of a scrap. There were two or three pistol shots, and then, as near as we could make out, the hold-up men, or some of them, climbed into the engine.

Before you could count ten they had made a flying switch with the single car, kicking it in on the siding. Before the car had come fully to a stop, the engine was switched in behind it, coupled on, and the reversed train, with the engine pushing the car, rattled away on the old spur that led off into the hills; clattered away and was lost to sight and hearing in less than a minute.

That two of the handlits had been left behind. These two reset the switches for the main track, leaving everything as they had found it, and then crossed over to the auto.

"I was just thinking that all this mystery and kidnapping and gun play must be sort of hard on the young woman and the girl, but though my half of the allotment was shivering a little and snuggling up just a grain closer to me, she proved that she hadn't lost her nerve.

"Did you see the name on that car when the engine went past to get in behind it?" she asked. "No," said the boss, and I hadn't either. "I did," she asserted, showing that her eyes, or her wits, were quicker than ours. "I had just one little glimpse of it. The name is A-B-C-A," spelling it out.

Mr. Norcross started as if he had been shot. "The Alexa? That is Mr. Chadwick's private car—they've kidnapped him?" Then he whistled short on me. "Honey, are you smart enough to go with me and try a tackle on those fellows over there in that auto?"

I said I was; but I didn't add what I thought—that it would probably be a case of double suicide for us two to go up against a pair of armed thugs with our bare hands. The young woman put in her word.

"You mustn't think of doing such a thing," she protested; and she was still telling him all the different reasons why he shouldn't, when we heard the creak and grind of the stolon engine coming back down the old spur. After that there was nothing to do but to wait and see what was going to happen next. What did happen was as blind as all the rest. The engine was stopped somewhere in the gulch back of us and out of sight from our hiding-place, and pretty soon the two men who had gone with her came hurrying across out of the hill shadows, making straight for the auto. A minute or two later they had climbed into the machine, the motor had sputtered, and the car was gone.

"Brazilian Grass." This is a name inaccurately applied to a substance used in the manufacture of a cheap kind of hats known as Brazilian grass hats and also known as chip hats. It consists of strips of leaves of a palm, which are imported to Great Britain and elsewhere for this manufacture, chiefly from Cuba.

They Travel Fast and Long. Every year 226,000,000 silkworms produce 90,000,000 pounds of raw silk. It has been estimated that, taken all together, the world's silkworms spin every year at a velocity of about 4700 miles a second a thread of approximately 150,000,000,000 miles in length.

Kennesaw Mountain is in Georgia. Kennesaw mountain is in Cobb county, Ga., 25 miles northwest of Atlanta. It was the scene of fighting between the federals under Sherman and the Confederates under Johnston in June, 1864.

Well Covered. "Flanagan, you owe me $2.00." "Oh, I know it, but I'll get it to you in a security for the 30 cents you borrowed from me a year ago."—Epitaph Transcript.

EVER BILIOUS?
 Charleston, Miss.—Mrs. R. V. Heins, of this place, says: "I have never had to use very much medicine, because if I felt headache, dizziness, or colds, bad taste in the mouth, which comes from torpid liver, I would take a dose or more of Black-Draught, and it would straighten me out and make me feel as good as new. We have used in our family for years and it certainly is the best liver medicine I ever saw. It has not only saved me money, it has helped keep my system in shape, and has never weakened me as so many physics do. I recommend it to my friends and am glad to do so." Black-Draught is the old, reliable liver medicine which you have doubtless heard much about. When you feel badly all over, stomach not right, bad taste in your mouth, bilious, or have a headache, try Theford's Black-Draught. At all Druggists.

THEDFORD'S

DEVIL'S RIVER OIL & GAS COMPANY.
 (UNINCORPORATED)
 SITUATED IN EDWARDS COUNTY, TEXAS.
 DOES THINGS DIFFERENT.
 STUDY OUR PLAN.

A careful study of the Devil's River Oil & Gas Company's plan will convince the close student of investments that we are offering the BEST inducement in the OIL fields. Oil production in Texas fades the total gold production of Alaska in its best days into insignificance. Alaska's best production of gold was only $15,000,000.00, while Texas is producing about $150,000,000.00 worth of oil. The production is increasing so rapidly that it is conservatively estimated that the output will be close to $300,000,000.00 in 1920.

NOW is the time to get in the oil business in order to reap the early harvest. With 600 acres of oil lands to draw from, we anticipate making big profits on our most liberal plan, PROFITS that will make fast friends for our company in future enterprises which we have in mind when The Company's present plans are in operation. DO NOT DELAY your subscriptions. There is nothing to gain and MUCH to lose by deferring until some future date. NOW is the time to INVEST, and OUR company is the ONE to be in, for it gives you the biggest run for your money in the race for MILLIONS.

Fill in the subscription blanks NOW and sail in the good ship PROSPERITY.
