FRANZ ZEALAND RIVER VICTIM BURIED HERE

BODY REMAINED IN WATER TWELVE HOURS BEFORE RECOVERED

Franz Zealand, 29, a bridegroom of only a few weeks, was drowned at one o'clock Monday at noon in Dry Devil's draw, about seventeen miles southwest of here when his horse reared back with him in the middle of a large hole of water.

A group of about a hundred men were on the scene trying to find the body and recovery was successful at twelve o'clock that night. He was found by Cassius Taylor as the crew was coming from the water. Taylor was dragging a rake over a spot that had been searched many times when he felt Zealand's body. His body was about fifty feet from where he was last seen when going down under the water.

The river is dry but ranged in depth of six to fifteen feet after the rains that fell Saturday night. From two to three inches of rain fell in this section putting dry creeks and draws up.

A Mexican, Sousto, was with Zealand when the fatal accident happened. The Mexican had crossed to safety and looked back just in time to see the horse rear back on Zealand, crushing the air from his lungs as the man was not seen to come to the surface of the stream.

The water victim was a native of Holland, but had been in this country for twelve years, during which time he had spent on various ranches in Texas. He was employed on the Mrs. J. W. Wilson ranch where the tragedy took place when he met death. His body was laid to rest in the Sonora Cemetery Tuesday morning.

Surviving him are his widow, parents and relatives in Holland.

Tariff Effective as Hoover Signs Bill

Hawley-Smoot Bill Will Impose Additional Duty on Farm Products

Washington—President Hoover in a simple ceremony at the White House, signed the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill today and turned over to the treasury the job of putting into effect over night a law which has required congress nearly a year and a half to write.

The measure as it goes to the White House carried 887 increases in rates and 235 decreases, more than 250 of the higher levies being on farm products. Based on 1928 imports it is estimated to raise $630,000,000 in revenue, an increase of $107,000,000 over receipts of two years ago.

The final vote came one year, five months and seven days from the day the measure began to take form in a House committee back in the last days of the Coolidge administration. Almost continuously since that time it had been before committees or on the floor of one of the houses.

Compared with 2,830 named items and basket clauses in the present law, the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922, the Hawley-Smoot measure embraces 3,218 commodities by specified and group names. Of these 1,112 have been changed 887 being given higher duties and 235 reductions. More than 250 of increases are on farm products in the raw and processed state, including sugar, dairy products, grains, cattle, meats, tobacco, fruit, nuts and seeds.

Race Association Sets Bonus Mark

Officials of the West Texas Racing Association in session Saturday at the Naylor Hotel in San Angelo, set a $200 bonus to be given the winner who makes the circuit. Inaugural races commenced at Menard yesterday and will close at Eldorado July 5th.

W. R. Barnes, association president, presided at the meeting, Jas. R. Caldwell, Sonora; W. F. Meador, Frank Bradley and Don McCormick of Eldorado and W. R. Nisbet and Mr. Wilkinson of Menard were in attendance. It was decided that the time between the Eldorado meet and the West Texas Exposition in San Angelo this fall was too long and the bonus purse would be given at the close of the circuit season at Eldorado.

A meet was booked for Eden, a member of the association, this month, but the festival has been postponed until this fall.

GOOD RAINS FELL HERE SATURDAY

INCH TO TWO INCHES FELL OVER ENTIRE COUNTY SATURDAY NIGHT

From an inch to more than two inches of rainfall fell over the entire county Saturday night, according to reports from various ranches. The moisture was needed in almost every portion of this part of the country and was welcomed by the ranchmen, some of whom were compelled to seek range for their stock.

Alfred Schweining reported about three inches on his ranch north of the Llano. About two inches fell in Sonora and helped the rise in Dry Devil's river, the highest for two years. C. T. Jones reported heavy deluges in his part of the county and was forced to repair water gaps that were washed out.

Enough moisture fell to insure green grass for another thirty days and will almost mature feed crops, it is thought.

Traffic was delayed at Christoval, Sonora and Camp Allison on the Llano for several hours Saturday night and Sunday.

Franz Zealand, a ranch hand on the J. W. Wilson ranch southwest of here, lost his life Monday at noon when his horse reared back on him. The water was fifteen feet deep near where he was drowned. His body was recovered at midnight and buried here Tuesday morning.

"Buster" Halbert, chairman of the finance committee for the barbecue, stated Tuesday that sufficient funds have been raised for the free barbecue here July first when an estimated crowd of ten thousand people will be here to celebrate the completion of Santa Fe rails into this city. Mr. Halbert reported that $800 had been given by ranchmen and business men. The dinner will be served at 12:10 on main street.

One hundred and twenty-five mutton and chevon and 25 beeves will be barbecued. The animals are being donated by ranchmen of Sutton county. "Uncle" Ben Binyon, famous chef, will supervise the cooking of the meat.

J. B. Lea, one of the owners of the O. S. T. Stages, is making arrangements to accommodate all passengers from Sonora who wish to ride the bus to San Angelo, leaving here at five o'clock in the morning and arriving in San Angelo for the special train that leaves there at seven o'clock. A reduced rate of $2.75 will be charged. Bus tickets can be secured at the Gilmore Hardware store or from "Buster" Halbert.

CALIFORNIAN NOTES GROWTH OF SONORA

F. N. Bullard, breeder of Rambouillet sheep, Woodland, California, was here Tuesday afternoon on business. This was Mr. Bullard's first visit to Sonora since the town has undergone a building change. He said he hardly recognized the business section here and paid several compliments to the town. He thinks the railroad will be of much benefit to the city and ranchmen, and that Sonora is truly the "Capital of the Stockman's Paradise."

Mr. Bullard and a brother have been selling Rambouillet rams in this county for a number of years. Practically all of the lambs in California have gone to market, leaving only a few to hold over, he said. Most of the ranchmen in California lamb in the winter and send their lambs to early market. Wool brought from 21 to 25 cents per pound, Mr. Bullard informed a representative of this paper.

R. H. Clark of San Angelo is at the Sonora Drug Company during the absence of Bob Vicars who is on his honeymoon. Mr. Vicars and wife will return to Sonora about the first of July.

1,000 ANGELOANS COMING HERE TO CELEBRATE

400 WILL RIDE RAILS AND 125 CARS COMING FROM SAN ANGELO

At least a thousand people will be here from San Angelo to join Sonora in the big celebration here July 1 and 2, according to W. R. Barnes, vice president of the Stockman's Paradise Association and a member of the entertainment committee. Mr. Barnes also said that there would be 150 people from Eldorado who would board the special for this city on the first day. In addition there will be about 125 automobiles loaded with San Angelo people who are planning to make the trip.

Stickers are being printed to be stuck on cars with the wording "Hop In" printed on them. Sonora cars will be used in transporting the visitors who arrive on the special here at ten thirty the morning of July 1. It is likely that the "Hop In" cars will be decorated for the occasion. From the depot, the visitors will be led to the park by a group of Sonora cowboys headed by a forty-piece band from San Angelo.

S. H. Stokes, who helped to organize Sutton county, told the Lions that this would be Sonora's 40th annual celebration, and urged everyone to help make it the biggest and grandest barbecue and rodeo ever staged in Sonora. He pointed out that this would be an event when all should join hands in commemorating the completion of Santa Fe rails, something that Sutton county had wanted and needed for the past four decades.

Alfred Schweining called attention to the barbecue at Camp Allison on the tenth of July, and extended to all Lions an invitation to be present. The barbecue will be free to all.

A motion was made and seconded that the Lion president, secretary and treasurer be appointed as a committee to select a general manager for the entertainment and celebration. Frank Holliday, city manager, has been chosen to serve in that capacity.

President J. D. Lowrey suggested that Sonora have a cleanup and have all vacant lots, alleys, streets, etc. clean when the visitors arrive. The large welcome electric sign is also being repaired and repainted.

The Lions agreed to pay all expenses for Miss Lena V. Stokes in the bathing beauty contest at Junction. Miss Stokes represented Sonora in that city Wednesday.

B. Hamilton reported little interest taken by Lions for a baseball team. Floyd Ridley, he said, would become a member of the club and was willing to play baseball.

Barbecue dinner will be served in the middle of the Gilmore and Vander Stucken block at 12:10 o'clock. Large barrels of ice water will be placed in several convenient places for the thirsty ones.

Visitors present last Monday at the Lions club were Gene Edmiston, Sutton ranchman; Grady Lowrey, county attorney of Val Verde county; Dr. Walker, who recently came here from Houston to be associated with Dr. A. G. Blanton; Mr. Draper, highway official, and S. H. Stokes.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

"After they come we gotta be out there, setting around in our corner. The bunch there now is reg'lers coming early to get good tables. They know each other. It's when the singles begin to wash in, or two or three men comes together, that we get busy."

"How do we get busy?"

"My Gawd!" Miss Morris exchanged a deeply eloquent glance with Maizie who was smiling, a sharp-toothed ophidian smile. The instructress continued her explanation in depressed tones. "We are dancers, and we're Jake's hostesses, too. See?"

"Our job," Stella added, "is to keep the men from dyin' of homesickness after they git here."

Queenie ignored Stella.

"When a man's settin' alone at a table, or two or three men are together, lookin' like it's Decoration Day an' they're sayin' it with flowers, I drift up an' give 'em the glad eye. Nothin' fresh, you understand. Just a kind look to let them know there's a live wire near. If they speak, I draw on my hot-air tank and find out who they are; and later I introduce them to some of the girls, if they see any they wanta meet. If they don't ree-pond I breeze past like I hadn't seen 'em, and try some others. None of the other girls goes near till I find out who the men are and introduce them. If you seen your own brother at a table you couldn't go to him till I said you could. That's all there is to it, but it's gotta be done with class."

To the novice there seemed a great deal to it.

"If they respond, I suppose we dance with them?" she asked, anxious to get a more definite line on her individual duties than Ivy had given her.

"Ain't she the clever kid?" Maizie murmured. "Got it the very foist time."

"Dance with 'em if they want you to," the instructress coldly explained.

plained. "If they want you to set down an' give 'em the story of your life, let 'em have it. Only make it snappy. No sob stuff. Maizie tells 'em she's a Russian princess, an' it goe over great. If they wanta talk while you listen, leave 'em do it."

"They'll tell you how lonesome they are," Stella contributed. "Lonesome!" she sneered. "They don't open my faucets with that dope. The men that comes here is as lonesome as angleworms in a box of bait!"

Stella, Eve learned, was a pessimist and a black one. She was also a man-hater and freely confessed that she had no use for women. Her speech, and Queenie's, were usually better than those of the other girls; but on occasion they could, and often did, draw on the argot of the gutter. All this Eve grasped later. At present the lesson of the moment went on.

"There's two things you don't stand for," Queenie was saying in a crisp tone. "You don't take insults and you don't drink from the pocket-flasks. Jake's rule. See? Men that come here has got to treat us like ladies."

To Eve the whole experience was part of the dream she was in, but the nightmare in dreams was lessening. She was intensely interested, and she realized that she was also a trifle more sophisticated than the girls around thought her. She had never danced in cabarets; she was sure of that. She knew nothing of their intimate inner workings, or of the duties of employees. But she must have known such places as at least an occasional visitor, for the superficial aspects of this one held no surprises for her.

"What you're really here for, Berson, is to admire the men," Stella drawled. "Make 'em see what great big wonderful guys you think they are, and you'll be a wow."

"Now, Berson, if you think you have had enough gasoline to roll out on the floor with, we'll start; an' the loose-ankle boys."

"Which are the loose-ankle boys?"

"The reg'lers are the guys that come every night an' scatter their coin. The loose-ankle boys are the the instructors—the lads Jake hires to dance with the dames that blow in for a good time. That's all they gotta do; but Gawd knows it's enough. Any woman that's got a real face c'n make some man bring her to a cabaret an' dance with her. The ones that come alone an' has to rely on the boys are the ones Gawd forgot."

"Don't pay any attention to the loose-ankle lads. They'll come buzzing round, for they need a change bad, an' they'll want to give you the onceover because you're green. But Jake ain't payin' us nickels to dance with them."

All the girls were intrigued by the new-comer's presence and they showed it in various ways—some by talking, the rest by close attention to what was said.

Eve followed her with a sinking heart. What had she let herself in for? But the two young men they approached were wholesome-looking American lads who had just given an order to a waiter, and who for the present were most interested in having it filled than in the scene around them. Queenie cast a radiant smile at them, and one of the young men returned it with a cheerful but impersonal grin. She slowed her steps a little distance from the table, making Eve's swifter movement by a warning pressure of the arm.

"Look at them settin' there waitin' for bread and milk, with good music goin' to waste," she tentatively observed, in a tone designed to reach the ears of the

A Round of Slugs

(By S. U. M. Bull)

A FEW FACTS ABOUT OURSELVES

This is a great country. Uh-huh. We've heard that before. What about it? Just this about it. Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, than whom there are few better analysts in the world, has been figuring out how much better off we are than the rest of the world.

The United States has only 6 percent of the world's population, but we consume 15 percent of the world's wheat crop. That means that, if the rest of the world were able to buy and eat as much food as we do, the wheat crop would have to be two and one-half as large as it is.

We consume a quarter of all the world's sugar, more than half of the world's coffee, more than a quarter of the world's cotton, one-sixth of all the wool, three-fourths of all the silk, two-thirds of all the rubber, about two-fifths of all the iron and copper, lead, zinc and coal. We use three-fifths of the world's petroleum, two-fifths of all electrical power, more than three-fourths of all the automobiles and three-fifths of all telephones.

And we number less than one-sixteenth of the world's population!

If the rest of the world was as well off as we are how prosperous we and all the rest would be. Our average family income is $3,000 a year. The British income is two-thirds of that, Canada's less than half, Sweden's still lower, Germany's only a little over one-third as large and France's about the same—personal income of the average man, that is. That's why we can, and do, consume more of the raw materials than any other nation.

We have set an example to the rest of the world, which it is slowly beginning to follow in spots.

The farther and more rapidly it comes, the sooner and more surely will we reach the stage of human development in which people will no longer die of starvation, in which every human being will have his happiness in his own hands.

There are those who say that in seeking material prosperity humanity is losing its spiritual ideals. It does not seem that way to us. It is one thing to forego riches for the sake of the higher life; it is quite another thing to have no choice in the matter. Poverty in itself is not a virtue. It was a wise man who said that it was useless to preach idealism to a man who didn't know where his next day's dinner was coming from. And that is the condition of more than half of the world today, while a larger proportion live under conditions which make more than a bare living possible.

This is a great country!

BREAKS LEG

Mrs. J. A. Alford sustained a broken leg this morning when a faulty door step gave away. Dr. Craddock set the limb, and it is thought the break will not be very serious.

'KNOCKING' THE GOVERNMENT

The world is full of people who try to blame their own unsuccessful, unhappiness or incompetence upon somebody else. Everybody knows somebody like that. They are the same sort of people who are always "agin the government." The market for crops is good or bad because the Government at Washington is Republican or Democratic. Business is slow because the President did this or didn't do that. Let a few banks fail and immediately some of the chronic kickers rush to the front with the explanation that the Federal Reserve System is a failure.

Fair criticism of the government is entirely proper and within the rights of every citizen. The tendency to hold the government responsible for everything unpleasant without ever giving it credit when conditions are satisfactory is, however, just another manifestation of the childish impulse to shift the blame from one's own shoulders to that of somebody else.

The very people who make the most fuss about the government's "failure" when things are not going to please them, would be the first to protest if the Federal government should undertake to actually run the business of the Nation. The last thing that the vast majority of Americans want is a paternal government. We as a people firmly believe in the dictum, attributed to Thomas Jefferson, that, that government is best which governs least. It is probably true that most of the loose criticism of the government is merely a form of "letting off steam." It doesn't hurt the government any and it relieves the emotional strain of the person doing this criticising.

This year everybody is going to hear a great deal of criticism and defense of the government. We are electing all the members of next congress, one-third of the senators, and governors and other officials of more than half of the states. Candidates and their many friends are going to tell us how different things would be if they were in instead of the ones who do, all it ought to do, is to remove any obstacles that exist to the free flow of business and industry, to the right of every American citizen to work out his own individual salvation, economically and otherwise, in his own way, so long as he does not infringe upon the right of any other citizen to do the same thing.

The only persons who will be fooled are the simple-minded ones who really think that the government can change economic conditions overnight and at will. All any government at Washington can new-comers. The latter looked up, this time with attention. The girls were under inspection now, to be taken or rejected. To Eve the moment was horrible.

"Give us time, girlie, give us time," urged the young man with the grin. "We're hungry, and we've got a pair of rabbits coming. But if we're able to move after the stuff you folks serve here, I'll take you out to the center of the floor later on and make a May-pole of you."

"We only ordered two, and I could eat them both," he plaintively observed.

"We'll order two more."

His friend had been watching Eve.

"That goes for me, too," he quietly told her.

It's a date," Queenie agreed, and tactfully started to move on. But the quiet young man spoke again:

"Won't the ladies join us and have some of the rabbit?"

The young man of the grin frowned.

As he spoke, the quiet young man drew out for Eve the chair next to him. Miss Morris secured the remaining empty chair for herself and sat down with a sigh of achievement.

"You ain't got the nice manners of your boy friend, Willie," she told the grinning youth. "But if you stick around with him p'raps you will improve. Got a cigarette?"

The grinning youth had, and offered her one. Miss Morris helped herself and passed it to Eve, who hesitated an instant and then took a cigarette and lighted it at the match the quiet young man held for her.

"My name is Hunt," he told her as he did so.

"Here is Miss Berson. She's new to this work. I'm Queenie Morris." Miss Morris made the announcement with an air that impelled the grinning youth to get up and bow deeply, and Queenie accepted the burlesque homage with a care-free grin equal to his own. She had lit a cigarette without his assistance, and, having established it firmly between her carmined lips, was doing the honors with easy affability.

"Don't mention your name," she advised the grinning youth. "My heart's goin' to tell me what it is pretty soon."

"You bet it will," said the grinning youth, in high good humor. "I'm one of the sheiks you read about. One long look into my eyes, girlie, and you're done for."

"Let's see if I am," Miss Morris suggested with sudden interest, and she made the experiment forth-with. Hunt turned to Eve.

"You dont exactly belong here, do you?" he asked.

"No. Do you?"

He laughed.

"I'm afraid not," he admitted. "I don't care much about dancing, and I'm apt to get sleepy around midnight. I tried to persuade Jack to go home after the play, but he wouldn't . . . and now I'm glad we didn't."

"Shall you be here every night after this?"

"No," she told him. "I'm here only as a substitute. I don't expect to come again."

"Then we must make the most of tonight," he smiled. There was something very nice about his look and manner. He was like . . . whom was he like? Probably he was merely a type she had known well and met often in her former environment.

"Shall we dance now?" she heard him ask. Queenie and Jack were already on the floor. She rose slowly. "I'm not sure I dance very well," she confessed, and caught his look of surprise as he put an arm around her and swung her out among the others. She exhaled the breath she had been holding. He was a good partner.

"You're an odd girl!" Hunt skilfully guided her through a rapidly increasing congestion on the dancing-floor. "What made you say you were'n't sure you could dance well?"

"I wasn't." His expression made now," she smilingly admitted. "I'm new to all this."

"Well, you can be sure you're one of the good dancers on the floor tonight," he said comfortably. "That's a tribute, too, for there are a dozen here who know how to step out. That uptown bunch over there has some bully dancers in it."

She looked in the direction he indicated. Half a dozen young men and girls, evidently of good families, were dancing in a close group. They were keeping to themselves and ignoring the other patrons. Their eyes were tired and their expressions somewhat blasé, but they seemed content with their entertainment.

"They're the types that go to the theatre first, then to supper, and spend the rest of the night rushing from one cabaret to another," Hunt explained. "Quite a lot of them like this place better than the clubs. I think Jake caters to them in various ways—drops the cover charge for them and that sort of thing. He likes to have them come in, thinks they lend 'class' to his place; and Jake is strong for 'class.' They'll probably stay here an hour, then leave and visit half a dozen other places before they go home at daybreak. In the meantime we'll have another bunch or two like them."

Eve knew all this, and didn't know why she knew it, any more than she knew why she appreciated the unusually good music of Jake's jazz band.

"Speaking of being here," Hunt went on. "Why are you here, really? It's easy enough to see that you don't belong."

"I CANNOT PRAISE THIS KONJOLA TOO STRONGLY"

SAYS WICHITA LADY SUFFERED FOR 12 YEARS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

MRS. DELLA SETTLE

"I cannot praise this Konjola too strongly, because I tried many other medicines and treatments, but none gave the remarkable relief that Konjola did," said Mrs. Della Settle, 1719 Mildred Avenue, Wichita. "I just had to force myself to eat, and nearly everything I ate made me sick. I had cramping pains in my stomach and bowels until I could hardly endure them, and I simply felt miserable all the time."

"Finally I decided to put Konjola to the test. That proved to be a wise decision. Right from the start I noticed improvement. I now have a much better appetite, and meals are a pleasure as food digests without pains or misery in my stomach. My bowels are functioning as they should, and it is certainly a relief to be rid of that tired, worn-out feeling. I gladly indorse this splendid medicine that restored my health."

Konjola has become the most talked of medicine in America because it makes good. And Konjola makes good in the most stubborn cases when given a fair trial and from six to eight bottles are used.

Konjola is sold in Sonora at the Corner Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Progress is trading at home.

The Coming of the Panhandle and Santa Fe Proves Your Progressiveness . . .

FROM the beginning the railroad has been to this country an instrument and a symbol of progress. No other agency has been so effective in "uniting" the United States.

As avenues of travel the railroads have brought the South into contact with the North . . . the West into contact with the East. The result is a mutual understanding of each other's problems that links every section more closely every day.

The railroads have ever been the arteries through which has coursed the commerce that is the life-blood of our national prosperity.

The Panhandle and Santa Fe brings to Sonora the opportunities that good railroads have always brought. It widens your horizon—it places you definitely on the path to a greater prosperity. Its coming is evidence that the world has faith in your future, and wants to have contact with you. Montgomery Ward & Company congratulates you!

We invite you to come to see us on your next trip to San Angelo. Our greater values will accelerate your prosperity!

San Antonio Woman Praises Argotane

"It is a relief to be rid of such stomach troubles as those from which I suffered for the past four or five years," said Mrs. Dora Sharin, of 706 W. Salinas, San Antonio, Texas, in a recent conversation with the Argotane representative in that city. "So it is not to be wondered at if I am enthusiastic in my praise of Argotane, for that is the medicine that brought me relief."

"I was in a terribly run-down condition as a result of the stomach disorders. Almost everything I ate disagreed with me; the food would sour on my stomach and make me feel miserable for hours at a time. Gas formations would press against my heart and make it flutter. Sometimes I suffered such agonies from indigestion pains that I could hardly stand it. Then again, I was bothered with dizzy spells and my general condition was very poor."

"Argotane was warmly recommended as the very thing for my troubles, so at last I started taking it. It has given very good results. I can eat anything I care to now and never suffer from gas or indigestion pains, and my food no longer sours on my stomach. I feel much better in every way, and Argotane is responsible for my improvement."

"For several years I tried many different kinds of medicines, but none of them gave me much relief. Argotane, however, has done everything I wanted it to and I am glad to tell everyone what a wonderful medicine it is."

Genuine Argotane may be bought at the Corner Drug Store.—Arv.

From whence comes inspiration,
That makes the old world ring.

W. L. Aldwell, dauntless patriarch of Sonora, may laugh at the plaster cast that holds him to a bed in All Saints' Hospital here to be present at the celebration of one of his dreams come true in his home town July 1, says the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

So it is likely that he will be bundled up, east and all, placed in an airplane, automobile or train and taken to Sonora for the event. He may return to Fort Worth for two or three more weeks in the hospital. He has a broken hip, received when he fell in the lobby of The Blackstone May 17. But to join Sonora's jubilee, deferred more than 20 years, will be well worth the trouble, he thinks.

Aldwell is one of the leaders of the long list of Texas pioneer cattlemen, one of the fathers of Sonora and one of those most responsible for the event to be celebrated in the Southwest Texas city July 1. He was a leader in the first move to bring a rail connection to Sonora more than 20 years ago, and has been a prominent figure in the turbulent history of the city's railroad aspirations ever since. A member of the first committee seeking an extension of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway into Sonora, he has been a director of the line for the last eight years.

Now that there actually are rails running into Sonora and plans are under way for an elaborate celebration in connection with operation of the first official train over them, Aldwell would be exceedingly disappointed not to be able to participate in the triumph.

Aldwell moved to Sonora in 1900, when the town was a crossroads village but one year old, to become cashier of the newly organized First National Bank. He is now one of its most revered citizens and the father of its mayor, Roy E. Aldwell. The elder Aldwell has been president of the bank since 1912.

Before he moved to Sonora Aldwell had led the nomadic life of a Texas cattleman for 19 years. He rode into the Lower Valley country in 1881 on a donkey, was pitched into a creek that ran through a ranch and picked himself up to inquire about his first job—that of herding sheep.

Two years later he formed a partnership with another cattleman and went into Mexico for a flock of 2,000 sheep with which to start business for himself. Thereafter he followed the sheep and cattle business in numerous sections of Texas and the Oklahoma Indian Reservation, and lived at Laredo, Eagle Pass, Crockett, Sutton, San Angelo, Denton and Fort Worth, among other towns.

Sonora, a village the sole object of which was to dispense supplies for sheep and cattle herders of the territory, has grown to an attractive little city that still boasts of being the "cattleman's paradise."

Separated by 67 miles from the nearest town and the nearest railroad, Sonora made itself a supply town by wagon train and truck.

Now with a railroad—Aldwell's eyes grow misty as he indulges in prophecy about it.
