

HAD A GOOD ALFALFA CROP
 Chas. Pickrel, living 12 miles south of Oton, last year from a 22 acre plot of alfalfa cut 198 tons in five cuttings, paying him $142 per acre, according to report of the Oton News, Lamb county newspaper.
 From 90 acres of cotton under irrigation he gathered 107 bales. His corn maize and leafy yields were on a par with his cotton and alfalfa production, the paper said.

PROVED BY THE PAST—IMPROVED FOR THE FUTURE

Fair Enough

By STANLEY CORDELL
 Associated Newspapers—WNU Service

WHEN Barry Keith secured the $40,000 a year job with the Cranston Architecture Company both he and Alvina, his wife, figured they would be able to save money. Hereafter, Barry's income had, in a good year, totaled around $10,000, hence they were used to a moderate manner of living.

"We'll move down to Newmont," Barry said, "and live there for awhile. Forty grand a year! Mom! Say, we'll be able to sock more than half of it in the bank. In five year's time we'll have a neat little pile. Then we can buy a piece up in the country and live the life we've always wanted to live."

"It'll be grand!" Alvina agreed, eyes shining. "But we must remember to save."

Which was nice philosophy. They remembered to save all right. But they didn't save. They couldn't. When you're earning a salary of $40,000 a year and depending upon society to give you your business, you have to put up a front. And putting up a front in a city like Newmont is expensive.

For one thing, you have to entertain, and entertain a lot. You have to furnish your house with the most costly appointments, and not one but two motor cars. Most important of all, you have to dress. And you can't go shopping for your clothes in bargain basements or at department store counters. You visit exclusive shops, patronize fashionable dressmakers. You pay more for one dress than your entire last year's wardrobe cost.

The thing that gripped Alvina the most was that in order to keep up appearances she was expected never to appear twice in the same evening gown. Even with $40,000 a year to fall back on that little whim of fashionable society seemed foolish and ridiculous.

It seemed that way to Barry, too. At the end of each month Barry looked over the bills and whistled through his teeth and wondered where the money was coming from to buy the little place in the country. At this rate they'd never be able to buy anything. So far they hadn't saved a dime.

Another month passed and a new flock of bills came. Looking them over, Barry was mildly surprised to find that they totaled less than on the month previous. Considerably less. This puzzled him. He checked over the items and discovered that statements from exclusive women's shops were conspicuously lacking. He frowned. Alvina still looked as smart as ever, still wore new gowns and hats and shoes.

For just a moment an ugly suspicion flashed across Barry's mind. Alvina was dressing as expensively as ever, yet the monthly bills revealed that she was buying less. Where, then, was she getting her new clothes? Or where was she getting the money to pay for them? He dismissed the thought with a gesture of irritation. He was a fool to even consider such a thing.

In the weeks that followed, however, the ugly suspicion kept asserting itself despite his best efforts, provoked by the fact that each time they went out Alvina was expensively gowned and hatted in clothes that were new and bore the trademarks of the smart shops. She was getting them somewhere and Barry wasn't paying for them, a fact evidenced by the following month's statement.

Barry allowed two more months to slip by before he broke down. Then it was the assured himself curiosity more than suspicion that prompted his inquiry.

Alvina looked at him queerly, if not guiltily, when he asked the question. And then suddenly she sighed deeply and assumed the well-you've-found-me-out-I-might-as-well-tell attitude.

"You'll probably think it dreadful of me, darling, but—well, after three months of our present hectic existence I came to realize that we were defeating our own purpose. We weren't saving a cent, and we weren't as happy. Yet we had to keep up appearances. I began studying the situation and I caught on to the fact that everywhere we traded merchants and dressmakers and shop owners charged us according to what they thought we could pay.

"So I fell to thinking, and at last I contrived a way to beat them at their own game. I simply went down to So and So's and ordered three or four gowns sent up on approval. If we were going out that night I'd wear one, and return them all the next day. I did the same with hats. It worked fine. I had a new hat and a new gown from the right shops every time we went out and only occasionally would I have to buy one. Also, it gave me an opportunity to save money—

JUNIOR PLAY BRINGS $50

Thursday evening, the last week members of the Junior class, Muleshoe High school presented their play, "The Blue Bag," at the school auditorium, with a large crowd attending and about $50 being received at the door.

This was an interesting and entertaining three-act mystery comedy with 11 characters, involving five women and six men. Miss Evelyn Boone, Junior sponsor, directed the play and all students who took part knew and acted their roles with professional skill.

Those in the play were Cecil McGee, Frank Prescott, Norma Elrod, Evelyn Jennings, Myron Bayless, Claudis Murch, Merle Lee, Alan Harris, Grace Churchill, S. L. Rollins and Lucille Bartley.

Proceeds received will be used partly for decorations for the Junior and Senior banquet and various other small expenses the class has.

Y L 4-H CLUB MEETING

At the regular meeting of the Y L 4-H club members held at the school house April 20 the principal theme of discussion was that of various kinds of insects damaging vegetables. Mrs. Dick Williams, club sponsor, telling in very interesting manner of the chewing and sucking type, how to recognize them, the kind of damage they did to plants and how to eradicate them. Full information in this respect has been recently published in the Journal.

The club members are planning to meet in their dresses real soon.

Members present were: Mary Emma Jacobs, Berta Maner, Mae Belle Reeves, Mozelle Hicks, Maxine A. Mner, Vivian Harris, Wanda Reed, Catherine Leary, Lona Wildering, Wanda June Lovelady, Elma Badgett, Frances Bruce, Clarence Lea Reeves, Bonnie Trawec.—Reporter.

MAN ONCE FRIGHTENED BY OIL ADS

CHANGES TO OIL-PLATING

In spite of everything, it paid him to take ads seriously, you see, else he might never have tried Oil-Plating. First of all he was impressed by the explanation of Oil-Plating.

Simple enough, if you'll think what happens as Johnny's dirty little hands touch the wallpaper. Anything greasy or oily on his hands becomes quite a permanent part of the paper. You'll say permanent!

In much the same way—forgetting technicalities—Conoco Germ Processed oil forms a lasting attachment for every working part of your engine. A genuine, enduring Oil-Plating is brought about by the Germ Process—patented.

Thus the Germ Process not only multiplies the strength of the usual flowing type of oil-film, but creates Oil-Plating besides. And once Oil-Plating goes on, Conoco Germ Processed oil does not let it come off in minutes, hours, days . . . or miles.

Thus Oil-Plating kills the old fear of starting "dry." Likewise Oil-Plating refuses to let go in all the fury of 5,000 revolutions per minute. That's why your "good old car" or the latest model will stay more like new, with its engine Oil-Plated. And your whole Summer's driving will take less Conoco Germ Processed oil. GOODLAND SUNSHINE CLUB MEET

The Goodland Sunshine club met April 26, 10th Mrs. Cecil Creamer. There were nine members and the agent present.

The secretary reported the polishing cloths had come, and they were distributed for sale. Two dozen more will be ordered to fill the demand.

Miss Alma Stewart explained the nature of the short course to be held at Canyon, May 6. All members desiring to go on this bus must reserve places before Saturday, April 24.

After a short recreation period, the agent gave a very interesting demonstration of meal planning. Each club member was given a meal planning chart for one week, which the agent urged each one to use for at least one week. Besides insuring a balanced diet, these charts save the time and energy of the housewife.

Refreshments of delicious grape juice and cake were then served.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ruby Everett, May 3. The program will be "Looking Your Best"—Reporter.

New Treatment Brightens Living Room, Adds Comfort

A few simple changes in the lighting transformed this living room from a dingy cubby-hole to the cheerful effect you see here.

By Jean Prentice

THE problem of making a small living room more roomy and livable has perplexed many a homeowner, particularly those just entering the business of housekeeping on a limited budget.

Yet it can easily be done, and I'm glad to tell you about one case that recently came to my attention. The room was a veritable cubby-hole at the outset, but a change of lighting fixtures and re-arrangement of furniture transformed its entire appearance.

It was obvious at the outset that the lighting then being used just wasn't enough to reveal the room's interest, or to make it livable at night. The selection of the lamps shown in the picture was dictated by the need for light both at the desk and davenport and the general space limitations involved. There seemed no other good solution for the desk, decoratively, than the inconspicuous small shelf with a lamp bracket attached underneath. One more wall lamp would have been too many!

Due to an 11-foot ceiling, fairly dark-toned tan paper, and a decorative restriction to small lamps, this room required additional room lighting. This was obtained simply by removing the amber, flame-tipped bulbs from the old three-socket cluster ceiling fixture, and replacing them with the new 60-watt silvered-bowl variety. The fixture was further modernized by attaching 7-inch inverted cones to the new bulbs. (Not shown in illustration.) A real improvement resulted.

The lighting units at either end of the divan use 100-watt bulbs, and are of the pin-it-up type that simply hooks onto a push-pin inserted in the wall. Under the shade is a translucent plastic bowl which provides light in both upward and downward directions. These take up no floor space, and do an efficient lighting job. A bookcase, with a small radio and potted plants atop it, occupies the space at the left of the divan that a floor lamp would ordinarily fill. The bridge lamp behind the easy chair at right has a brown 12-inch white-lined shade equipped with a 100-watt bulb.

The transformation involved no lighting or decoration compromises, and the eyes that live here have a constant treat in the generous and soft lighting they have to see by, as well as in the highlighted emphasis on color and decorative detail they have to look at.

Dining Room Light "As You Like It"

Ivory, brass and crystal are pleasingly combined in the graceful fixture shown here, which provides soft, flexible lighting for every purpose.

By Jean Prentice

DINING ROOMS are becoming more versatile every day, it seems. Time was when their main function was to bring the family together at meal time. Today, with greater use being made of available space, we find dining rooms serving as centers for reading, studying, card games, and other family pursuits, as well.

These varying demands upon the dining room are bringing with them added provisions for the eyes. Lighting that may be ample for cutting a steak may be insufficient for putting a dress from a mail-order pattern, resulting in the fine print of a newspaper, or adding columns of figures.

And so we find an increasing number of smart new dining room lighting fixtures appearing on the market. Not only do these new units harmonize with any decorative scheme; they are capable of providing varying amounts of light for different seeing requirements. Many of them use the new three-light bulbs, which give three different amounts of light from one bulb, at successive turns of the switch. When the fixture has a glass bowl, like the one shown in the accompanying illustration, most of the light is sent to the table (where it belongs), while the other parts of the room are softly and subtly lit.

Fixtures of this type please the lighting whims of both the hostess, who likes to include lit candles in the table setting, and the host who dislikes dimness.

If your dining room has one of the older type of candle-unit fixtures, you can modernize it and make it more attractive by replacing amber, flame-shaped bulbs with 40-watt inside-frosted lamps, and shielding them with parchment shades of the slip-on variety. These shades are pleasing in appearance, and at the same time, banish glare and soften the light for dining.

NOT LIKE THE OLDEN DAYS

Long years before the people of this country heard about easy terms of credit, the installment plan, or the prospects of two chickens in every pot, there was general recognition of the philosophy that "competition was the life of trade," and that the "law of supply and demand" would work out the industrial and human problems. Old-timers will tell you that the first thing a woman ever bought on "tick" was a sewing machine, and when her friend-husband built a new home he borrowed money on the understanding that the mortgage must be paid off in three years. Newly married couples were supposed to begin on their honeymoon to "save up for a rainy day." The time came when the old Washington hand press failed to produce the desired results, and the hand-set newspaper began to fall short of news to satisfy subscribers. Another epoch found the printing office toiling gaily regularly to the laundry. Scratch paper and a soft lead pencil, fortified by a pair of shears and a pot of paste ceased to be sufficient equipment for the editorial sanctum. Come a time when copy had to be type-written, and the processes of duplicating machines arrived with speed equal to the printing press. Blacksmiths and harness makers surrendered to garage men and service stations. Hair cuts went to sixty cents and a tip in New York, and permanent waves cost ten dollars in Chicago.

The story could continue through the columns to show how the old law of supply and demand has been replaced by a new principle which a great number puts into a line when he observes that "only as much is produced as there is more to divide." Things weren't like that in the olden days.

Physical Examination Important To School Children Says Doctor

April 26—"One of the valued products of the Day-Day-Child Health activities of recent years has been the stimulus to physical examinations in the schools of our State," is the opinion of Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer. Early detection of these defects and their correction will assure better health and well being to our young generation.

Such a visual defective vision cannot be expected to do the required work in school until this handicap is removed. Impaired, watery eyes, granulated lids, blepharitis, excessive lacrimation, habitual blinking, may be caused by a defect and should have immediate attention. The far reaching effects of infected conjunctivitis on the system has been recognized by health workers for years. Many of the ills of later life, such as heart disease, arthritis, deafness, etc., are directly traceable to tonsils that became infected during childhood and were allowed to remain untreated.

Dental defects are found in more children than any other imperfection, and for this reason children should be taken regularly to their dentist for examination and cleaning of the teeth. This precaution keeps the mouth clean and makes it possible to discover dental defects as soon as they appear.

Postural defects appear in the life of a child much sooner than we formerly suspected. Have your family physician see if your child's shoulder blades project and if his arches are low. Simple exercises, diligently adhered to, when the child is young, will prevent later serious developments in many cases.

H. D. COUNTY COUNCIL MEET

A meeting of the Bailey county home demonstration council was held at the court house in Muleshoe Saturday afternoon with representatives from 10 communities attending.

A $10 check was presented to Miss Hazel Phillips of the Stegall community club for being winner of an essay contest at the Plainview Dairy show. Her topic being "Producing Quality Cream." Miss Phillips gave a short talk of appreciation and announced she would use her award as part payment for her way at the A. & M. Short Course. Her sponsor, Mrs. Russell Craft, was introduced to those attending.

After the council adjourned, a demonstration on grooming was given to 20 delegates from the 10 clubs.

The purpose of the meeting was to train delegates for a demonstration to the girls in home demonstration clubs in May.

Every Great Attempt is Glorious Even If It Fails

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Blessed shall thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shall thou be when thou goest out.—Deuteronomy 28:6.

Blessings ever wait on virtuous deeds, and though late, a true reward succeeds.—Congreve.

ANOTHER LAW NEEDED

Marital law enforcements of uniform soil practices in a five state dust bowl to stop land-robbing was asked of President Roosevelt last Friday at a meeting of farmers and business men held at Guymon, Oklahoma. It was declared "drastic action" was necessary for "preservation of life and property."

We don't know that any life is in actual immediate danger in Bailey County; but there are large numbers of farms that are constantly being seriously damaged because of the indifference and in some instances, carelessness, of adjoining land-owners who do nothing to keep their own soil where Nature placed it.

There are numerous instances throughout this county where land-owners are letting the wind have full control of their land, when much, if not practically all of it, could be stopped by proper care, planting and cultivation, while on the other hand, neighboring farmers are put to much expense and inconvenience in having to haul off or more evenly distribute their neighbor's soil which piles in drifts on their land. In irrigated sections this is a severe menace; because such drifts make land unweird, impeding the flow of water.

There are some sections of this county which look like they might have been lifted up out of the Dallart section and bodily placed in their new locations. One irrigation farmer has already spent 12 days this spring hauling off his neighbor's land because of his utter indifference to his own soil value and the welfare of his fellow farmers. Less than four miles from Muleshoe a strip of road is practically half full of sand blown from an indifferent farmer's field, but just the sand drifted in places entirely across the road, while much of it has piled almost to the top of the fence.

Such conditions constitute an emergency, and in the interest of the country generally, some law should be passed requiring adequate conservation methods be used.

Most men are eager to help other men—if they see a chance to help themselves at the same time.

JOE GISH

WHAT WE REALLY NEED HERE IN THE U.S. IS AT LEAST TWO FELLERS WHO CAN ACTUALLY AGREE ON WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS—IF ANYTHING.

DOING LIKEWISE

Portales, N. M., and Muleshoe are both similarly located in fine irrigation valleys where exactly the same kinds of crops can be profitably grown. Not so many years ago Portales was a town about the same size of Muleshoe; today it is three times as large. Since soil, water, land fertility, climate

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Most everyone in Muleshoe is bound by heartstring ties to children, and realizes what anguish always follows injury to anybody's child. A normal person never not deliberately hurt a little child, yet statistics show that many are killed or hurt by careless and reckless drivers who probably are in every other respect what can be called normal.

We suggest that every motorist, every time he steps in a car, think of a child—his own or any child—then project a child you are also driving to protect every moment so as to protect all children. Keep before you as you drive the mental picture of some healthy, happy youngster you know. Then drive as though this same youngster were at play in the street ahead of you, or riding in a car that you are about to pass.

Don't forget—when you drive to protect a child you are also driving to protect everyone. You seldom ever hear of an auto accident being caused by too much precaution on the part of the drivers.

SEED CATALOGS

A penny postcard will bring to you Muleshoe citizen who cares to invest a seed catalog that from an artistic standpoint is a whole art gallery in itself. Yet the seed catalog with its pretty pictures lent as old as one might think.

It was not until 1905 that a seed catalog was printed in the U. S. with colored illustrations, and even that first one carried but a single page in color, so costly was such form of advertising in those days. As the result of steady improvement in the printing, seedmen are today able to present tribute catalogs that are of the highest artistic type and that bring joy to the eyes of millions of flower lovers, at a cost to each one of but a penny postcard.

So it is with many other things which we enjoy for a trifle today, but which our ancestors had to do without or purchase at prices which placed them beyond the reach of the great mass of people.

DOING OUR DUTY

This newspaper, or any other newspaper for that matter, would be neglecting its duty to its readers at this time if it failed to sound a warning against further delay in getting their spring cleaning and repairing done. It could take a dozen good reasons why such work ought to be rushed as never before, but one seems sufficient at this time, that is the sure but steady advance in the price of everything, everywhere in the U. S.

You don't have to take any man's word for this. Just keep on delaying the repair work or building you have been planning to do, and you'll discover its truthfulness. Local business places can sell you the things you need, at low—in many cases lower—than they can be bought anywhere else; but the local merchant can't prevent price increases. The producer regulates that, and from all appearances they have only just started to boost them.

So accept this timely advice. Buy what you need now, or pay more later.

Jaunty Journalettes

A Muleshoe man's word may be law in his home; but usually his wife is the supreme court.

Paying his taxes invariably brings and general location are similar, the reason for Portales' growth and lack of it in Muleshoe must be found elsewhere. We sometimes wonder if there for a personal element there yet to be diagnosed and corrected.

During the past year Portales has obtained location of a buttermilk plant, cheese factory, ice cream and pasteurizing plant, increased capacity of its canning factory, a flour mill, a cold storage plant, and is now seeking location of a pickling plant in its midst. Meanwhile, Muleshoe has not a single factory of any kind, and no immediate prospects of such.

All such plants as are located in the Portales valley would prove as profitable investments in the Blackwater valley. They would not only mean the saving of much waste now going on which could be turned to a financial advantage of farmers; but they would furnish local pay rolls of wonderful assistance to all other kinds of business now here.

If the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce would put more emphasis on such needed industries and less on attendance at Friday noon-day luncheons, it would doubtless prove more profitable to the town and county in general!

Perhaps Muleshoe women know best; but some of us older citizens can recall some mighty good looking ones who depended entirely upon soap and water for a make-up.

This day in time, there is probably nothing that will make a Muleshoe father madder than to be told by his 15 year old offspring that he is "living in the past."

At least some parts of the world must be getting better and better, one seldom hears anyone in Muleshoe now days getting a laugh by telling a mother-in-law joke.

Small as is Muleshoe, yet it will be noted the same three classes of people found in larger cities are also here: the noisy and vulgar lower class, the sedate and sensible middle class and noisy and vulgar upper class.

SNAP SHOTS

It never pays to hit a man when you're down.

Some men can't simply by smiling and saying nothing.

A man's life must be pretty dull and empty when nothing interests him but somebody else's business.

The hardest part of making good in this world is that one has to keep on doing it every day.

Europe's new slogan seems to be: "Billions for war equipment; but not a nickel for war debts."

Apparently many modern girls are not afraid of anything except a stack of dirty dishes.

Beads of perspiration caused by honest toil, are in many instances, going out of date as fashionable decorations.

It is said Germany has a "secret debt" of 50 billion marks; but it is no secret that she will never pay what she owes the U. S.

No danger of radio news ever taking the place of newspapers, because they can't hunt it up later to settle an argument.

Pavement Pickups

It is reported that R. L. Brown is now selling oil leases within an ample production—5,200 feet straight down.

"The cookbook," declares Homer, has to keep you, and as to you, another volume full of stirring passages.

J. D. Thomas, Farwell attorney, says he has always understood the extreme penalty for bigamy was two-mothers-in-law.

Miss Lola Lipscomb says that by the time the average woman is ready to admit herself old enough to be president of the U. S., she is too old to hold the job.

Geo. Harris says he read in a magazine the other day where the world was due to come to an end in August, and he hopes there won't be any sandstorm that day.

"This world is certainly progressing," insists George Danron. "One can't get a job after he's 45, at 65 the government stipulate that when he was a kid, they are declared unconstitutional."

A 4-H club girl asked Miss Alma Stewart the other day why the Lord couldn't have put vitamins in candy and cake instead of spinach and cod liver oil.

Looking back into medieval history, Alex Paul says youngsters now days are filled with love, poetry and the rambunctious spirit, but when he was a kid, this time of the year, they got filled with sulphur, molasses and sassafras tea.

Cecil McLourey says one reason he a feeling of relief to the average Muleshoe property-owner, even if it doesn't bring a feeling of satisfaction.

It may be all right to tell a Muleshoe man "if a shoe fits to wear it; but most of the women here insist on having one about two sizes smaller.

It may be the reason Muleshoe girls no longer marry men to reform them is because the men are not the only ones who need reforming now days.

The greatest wish of some Muleshoe women is to be weighed and found wanting; but alas! how many are disappointed!

When the radio program gets so full of blood and thunder that the average Muleshoe mother can't bear listening to it, it's usually just a modern bedtime story for the kiddies.

You can say one thing for old men around Muleshoe. After you have seen the world saved and ruined as many times as they have you'll quit worrying about it.

Perhaps Muleshoe women know best; but some of us older citizens can recall some mighty good looking ones who depended entirely upon soap and water for a make-up.

This day in time, there is probably nothing that will make a Muleshoe father madder than to be told by his 15 year old offspring that he is "living in the past."

At least some parts of the world must be getting better and better, one seldom hears anyone in Muleshoe now days getting a laugh by telling a mother-in-law joke.

Warren Bros. Are To Open 60,000 Acres In Area For Cattle Ranch

Warren Bros., prominent land owners in Bailey, Lamb, Castro and Parmer counties, are preparing to restock between 50,000 and 60,000 acres of this land with cattle, five carloads of cattle having been shipped here the latter part of last week from Sierra Blanco,

N. M., also one car of saddle horses sent here from their ranch at Haschtia, N. M., arriving last Sunday night. For several years past most of this land has been leased to the Halseil Cattle Co. for grazing purposes; but their lease having expired it is being taken back by the Warren owners to be used by them for ranch purposes. Friday of last week the Halseil company shipped out 35 car loads of cattle, most of them going to White Oak and Tulsa, Oklahoma.

WEEKLY LAY SERMON IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

By JESS MITCHELL

Is life worth living? That is a very important question, one in which we are all vitally interested. If we leave to the evolutionists to guess where we came from and to the theologians to prophesy where we are going, we still face the incontrovertible fact that we are here and must make the best of our journey. Many people have asked this question and then proceeded, in the coming years to answer it. Some have done much complaining, some have become so disgusted they took the ultimate route out of it with gun or poison, while others have labored on to the ultimate successes of triumph. I long ago came to the conclusion that the value and worth of living largely depended upon the kind of life one lives.

Everyone starts out in life with very similar fundamental qualifications. They have a human body wonderfully constructed, two feet to give them locomotion, two hands to lift or resist, to smile or wave, two eyes with which to see everything, two ears as telephones of communication, a tongue with almost unlimited articulation, a spiritual nature capable of greatest manifestations of love or hate, rejoicing or suffering. One is not responsible for their ancestry nor their temperament, nor any one of a number of hereditary tendencies, some favorable, some otherwise. Opportunity of some kind stands with outstretched arms of invitation. Some may grasp it, others may spurn it. Some of mercurial temperament may accept for a while, then reject, or vice versa. Some may set up wrong ideals, or eventually become discouraged because their ideals were so high they could not completely attain them.

May I say that any ideal of an entirely physical nature and which does not take into consideration that of a spiritual kind is faulty. The one who devotes an entire life to money-getting is always a failure. I have sometimes thought the poorest people on earth are the millionaires. How they jump when the fire whistle blows! How their nerves tingle when economic conditions go wrong and there is no music at all in these vibrations! How they grab their hearts when adverse reports go out from Wall Street. The disease of accumulation has casted into them in a horrible manner and they have little or no peace.

Chemists have analyzed the human physical body, and found it contains so much magnesia, potassium, sulphur, iron, salt and a dozen other minerals, at the current market price worth only about 75 or 80 cents. Devoting an entire life to such an accumulation is certainly not worth living. Likewise, the idea of obtaining worldly approval is not conducive to happiness. Last year we put out five or six men for president of the United States, two of them from leading parties. Immediately the reservoirs of abuse and diatribe and malediction were turned loose upon them—falseness and caricature and anathema and catersawling and filth of all kinds was rolled over them—and they had to stand for it until the election was over. Even in the lesser political offices, folks get in terrible tensions and must endure abuse and misrepresentation to gain office. Often it is not worth it.

On the other hand, a life of usefulness is always a life worth living. A life of clean morals, of high intellectual ideals, a life of sacrifice and unselfishness, no matter how humble it may be, is a life worth the living. Now days we have too many people trying to win a living rather than work for a living. In many respects Henry Thoreau, the friend of Emerson and Channing, has set for me an ideal of life, though I confess in many instances I fail to follow it.

Many a humble father and mother have lived out their allotted time on earth and thought their life amounted to little; but in the years to come it blossomed forth in redolent beauty in the lives of their children. Many an ordinary citizen in small towns like Muleshoe has followed the even tenor of his way in a very routine manner; but his honest, sincere, wholesome life has become an inspiration, an impetus to others in making their lives worth living. The pages of history record the names of hundreds who have lived noble, worth while lives; but they are infinitesimal when compared to the multitude of uncrowned heroes of this world, many of whom have not been known beyond their own back yard or perhaps the confines of the small community in which they lived.

Whether one lives a life of conspicuousness or inconspicuousness, it is worth living—if it is lived right. Humanity is to be rewarded not according to the greatness of its deed; but according to the righteous industry with which they employed the talents they really possessed. In that other world the majority of citizens will not be the folks of ten talents, for that kind are mostly tempted to serve themselves; but the citizens of that immortal land will be mostly the people of just one or two or three talents, folks of very limited abilities; but who used what they had the best they could for their own and others' betterment. A life rightly lived here furnishes the first strain of music for the hereafter. No one would despise the first strains of a great oratorio, and a life here well lived opens the door to a life that never ends, for the last letter of "time" is the first letter of "eternity."

Col. Bones Amateur Tournney, Plainview Wednesday, May 5th

Colonel Bones amateur tournament, with $50 in cash awards to the winners will feature next Friendship Wednesday in Plainview, May 5. This program will constitute the morning entertainment starting 10:30 a. m. at the city auditorium.

Talent of every sort is eligible to enter the tournament from the counties of Swisher, Lamb, Briscoe, Floyd and Hale, except Plainview talent, which will be barred from competition. This contest is designed to be an inter-county competition, and any type act, eligible, dancing, singing, musical numbers, stunts, any entertainment act limited to five minutes. Whether solo, duet, or group. Any age is eligible. Singers, dancers and other needing accompanists must furnish their own.

Winners will be determined by favor of the audience, judged by an out-of-town committee. Winner of first place will be awarded $25 cash; second place $15 cash; third place $10 cash. Each less state tax.

Next Wednesday will also be the big May Dollar Day in Plainview, with sponsoring merchants offering special bargains for the day.

It is also Floyd County Reunion day, with all Floyd County residents invited to meet at the Chamber of Commerce offices at 9:30 a. m., or any time thereafter to register, meet friends, and to be served refreshments.

In the afternoon the usual cash contests will be held at the bandstand at two o'clock.

A Methodist District Conference Held At Plainview Tuesday

The Plainview District conference, Methodist church, will be held at Plainview, Tuesday, May 4, according to Rev. E. S. Watkins, local Methodist pastor, and will be attended by about 400 delegates from the more than 30 towns and communities of this district where such denomination churches are located.

The meeting was formerly scheduled to be held at Tulsa, but because of a sudden attack of appendicitis on Rev. Sam Thomas, pastor at that point, necessitating operation, the meeting place was changed to Plainview.

Rev. E. E. White, presiding elder of this district, will be in charge of the day's program, while several well known out-of-town speakers, including Bishop H. A. Beaz and Dr. C. C. Grimes, will be present and have a part in the proceedings.

Delegates attending from Muleshoe will be Rev. R. S. Watkins, pastor, Rev. J. N. Hendricks, local preacher and two sons, J. N. Jr., and Howard Hendricks, A. C. Gade, H. H. Carlyle, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Edwards, Mrs. Buford Butts, and probably some others.

Joe Eason, Farwell Heads Singer Ass'n Of Four Counties

Singers of Eastern New Mexico and West Texas gathered at the High school auditorium at Farwell Sunday for the regular annual convention of the State Line singers, composing four counties: Parmer, Bailey, Curry and Roosevelt.

Judge M. G. Miller gave the welcome address, and officers for another year were elected as follows: Joe Eason, Farwell, president; J. Head, Clovis, N. M., vice-president; Lloyd Vaughan, St. Vrain, N. M., secretary; and an executive committee was appointed consisting of one person from each of the four counties, Lehman Carpenter being the one named for Bailey county.

An enjoyable day was had by all, there being many good singers to prove their talents.

Among those from Muleshoe who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Tye Young, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sims, M. G. Miller, Mrs. Willie Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Lehman Carpenter, Mrs. Melba Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robinson.

BAILEY WOMEN WIN AT THE DAIRY SHOW AT PLAINVIEW

Miss Hazel Phillips, Stegall community club girl, won first award at the Panhandle-South Plains Dairy show held at Plainview last week on essay writing, receiving a $10 award given by the West Texas Cream Improvement association.

Mrs. Melvin Snider, West Camp community, won first on butter exhibit; Mrs. J. B. Sheriff, West Camp, third; Mrs. J. P. Carter, Maple, ninth on similar exhibit.

There were 15 Bailey county women who had dairy product exhibits at the show, under direction of Miss Alma Stewart, county home demonstration agent. An educational exhibit was also given by members of the County council under direction of Mrs. W. G. Kennedy.

Safety officials estimate there are 44,000,000 automobile drivers in the United States.

"Compensation of Metals"
The term "compensation of metals" refers to an arrangement of different metals of varying expansibilities so that the effect of temperature changes on the whole is compensated for. Thus a "compensation bar" or strip is constructed of parts of different metals so that its length does not vary with temperature, and a "compensation balance" is a wheel in a microscope so constructed of different metals that variations of temperature produce such changes in its mean rim diameter as to offset the changes produced in the hair spring; and so on.

Deepest Canyon in U. S.
The deepest canyon in the United States is the Snake River Canyon along the western boundary of Idaho, deeper even than the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, according to a Washington geologist.

FINANCIAL CERTAINTY

IS A BANK'S IMPORTANT DUTY

TAKING Loans is a very careful business. Clients deposit their money in a bank in the hope that the bankers know enough to take care of it, and that they will use their knowledge to the best advantage. Our many successful years in business and our large number of satisfied and constant customers lead us to believe that we have fulfilled that trust.

Each person who has a deposit with us may rest assured that the security and ultimate value to himself and the community is carefully considered before each loan is made. We like to make loans—it is our business—but they MUST be safe.

Stegall 4-H Club

At the last regular meeting of the Stegall club, held Tuesday, April 20 at the home of Mrs. Russell Craft, Mrs. Howell was chosen the new sponsor. Miss Alma Stewart, agent, gave a talk on dresses, selection of color, patterns, quality and how to make them, following which many of the girls made decision regarding their work dresses.

Miss Stewart gave all the girls a nice cook book for having their cold frames built. Every girl of the club built a cold frame.

Those present were: Barbara Lindsay, Hazel Phillips, Jenice Phillips, Dorothy Phillips, Lynette Baker, Mildred Phillips, Catherine Phillips, Mrs. Alice Craft. The visitors were: Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Joe Howell, Miss Stewart. The club girls give each and every one an invitation to visit their club which meets every 1st and 3rd Wednesday of each month.

Isaiah Walton's "The Complacent Angler," the most famous book ever written on fishing, was published in 1633.

Auto Dealer Tells Why Cars Should Be Reconditioned Now

"Winter is always hard on a car. Often it must be left standing for hours in the cold. Frost, snow, and dirt are part of its winter diet. In order to put the car into shape for the most pleasurable spring and summer driving, several things should be done, according to K. K. Smith, local auto dealer.

"The radiator should be drained and flushed in order to insure a clear flow of water through the cooling system. Motor oil should be changed and new lubricants applied all around. The carburetor and fuel system ought to be checked carefully for winter weather. Brakes should be tested, and particular care should be given to the steering apparatus. In most cases, simple adjustments will be all that is required to put them in perfect running order. The importance of brakes and steering gear, however, makes it mandatory that they be checked before being subjected to any hard driving.

"In routine city driving, minor adjustments may go unnoticed or may be neglected. Often these adjustments remain unnoticed until the car is called upon to work at full power over long periods. Then they may develop into conditions that necessitate repair expense that could have been avoided.

"Good tires are among the most important equipment of an automobile, for considerations of both safety and comfort in driving. All tools and emergency equipment should be checked carefully. All lights should be tested, and headlamp beams properly adjusted.

"New windshield wiper blades are inexpensive, and old blades should be replaced if worn after a hard winter's use. The body of the car should be thoroughly cleaned and polished to revive the beauty of its luster.

"A motor tune-up is one of the best precautionary measures that the motorist can take in the spring. The battery should be checked carefully, and the generator charging rate adjusted for long-distance running at good speeds. Shock absorbers may also need adjusting, and a thorough greasing of the chassis will add much to the pleasure of driving.

"The fan belt, which is not called upon to carry much of a load during routine city driving, should be checked and adjusted to function properly on longer and faster runs. Body bolts, door hinges, and latches must be oiled and tightened to eliminate the squeaks and rattles that sometimes develop during the rough winter season.

"These are a few suggestions to drivers who will soon feel the call of the open road. If they are followed, the motorist will find his spring driving much pleasanter," Smith concluded.

SCOUT HEAD COMMITTEE MEETS

Levelland, April 28.—There will be a meeting of the Northwest District committee Boy Scouts here May 6, according to A. B. Sanders, chairman of the Northwest District committee.

Plans for the summer program of scouting will be discussed and program devised to take care of the Scouts that do not attend. Particular emphasis will be placed on the summer camp program, urging every troop to make plans to spend one week at Camp Post.

Cousin Dodo From Colorado

By ELSA S. GRANT
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

GEORGIE BLAKE leaned close to the bathroom mirror and carefully drew a damp finger across his upper lip. A few fair hairs, darkened by the water, suddenly became visible to the naked eye. He was preparing to spend the evening with Edith Mabel (Mabel) Porter, whom he had not seen since his return from a recent and first visit to New York City. His meditations were interrupted by a savage rapping on the locked door. George's father demanded to know if George were going to stay in there all night.

George escaped down to the front hall only to be overtaken by his mother as he sought to make an unobtrusive exit.

"George," Mrs. Blake demanded, "where are you going with your father's cane?"

"Well," George mumbled, sheepishly drawing the cane out of his coat sleeve, "I didn't know but what I might meet that bandit or somethin', Ma, so I thought maybe—"

"Well, gracious me," his mother exclaimed at this sudden thought, "if there's any chance of your meeting that terrible Nighthawk person you'd best stay at home. I don't believe he's left town as your father says he has."

"Well, anyhow," George said, edging out the door, "I'll be seeing you, Ma. So long!"

It was a dark night and George kept a sharp lookout as the Iron Horse, a motor car or none too recent, crept him toward Mabel's house. Elston had been terrorized for several nights by a mysterious bandit who termed himself the Nighthawk. There was a poster offering $500 reward for his capture tacked up in the post office. George found several cars parked at Mabel's and it was evident by the sounds that a party was in progress. Mabel met him at the door.

"Why, hello, George!" she cried. "Where have you been keeping yourself?" She helped him with his coat. "Did you have a good trip? How was New York?" She was too excited to notice his cane when he handed it to her. Taking his arm she whispered, "Guess who's here?"

Up to then George had been consistently tolerant of Mabel's vivacious greetings, but when she asked, "Guess who's here?" he immediately became suspicious.

"Cousin Dodo is here," Mabel exclaimed, unable to hold the news.

"Who," George demanded, "is Cousin Dodo?"

"Cousin Dodo from Colorado," Mabel explained. "I'm so thrilled I could die!"

"Oh, yeah?" George scented cried. "I never heard you mention this Dodo before," he said.

"I met him for the first time tonight," Mabel said. "He drove up and introduced himself. He's a distant cousin."

He followed Mabel into the living room where he found a quorum of the Elston Young People's Society milling about a common center which was Cousin Dodo from Colorado. George hated him at once. Cousin Dodo displayed under his classic nose a masterpiece of moustache culture.

George sought the open air on the dark porch. He moped in the shadows. Life was always putting hairs in George's soup. Then—what was that? A dark figure was climbing up onto the porch railing. The Nighthawk! George could just distinguish the outlines of a figure reaching for the porch roof. In emergencies we act upon impulse. George took a swift running start and launched himself into space in a high flying-tackle.

George hit the Nighthawk in the midriff and there was a loud "Oof!" They landed heavily on the lawn with George on top. He let go two or three hearty punches before he realized that his victim was unconscious. Grasping the Nighthawk by the collar, George staggered up to the porch and into the house.

There was a parlor game in progress when George dragged his victim through the circle. "Will somebody please call Constable Foley," he said in a voice he could not keep basso. "I've just caught the Nighthawk!" He might just as well have dropped a bomb so great was the excitement. Then Cousin Dodo's voice cut through the uproar. "It's all a mistake everybody, this is my chauffeur. I'm afraid George's been reading dime novels!"

Cousin Dodo's chauffeur groaned and managed to sit up. Cousin Dodo lifted him to his feet and steadied him. "I think I'd better go now," Cousin Dodo said.

"You're thinkin' right," Constable Foley said stepping from the porch. Constable Foley had a big gun pointing right at Cousin Dodo and his chauffeur. "Turn in your chips, boys, the game's over," he added. "You're comin' with me."

"But he's my Cousin Dodo from Colorado," Mabel cried.

"Well, he's from Colorado all right," Constable Foley said, "but his name's Gilly the Slick, alias the Nighthawk. I got pictures from Washington today. Come along, you birds." He stopped at the door. "Drop around to the office tomorrow, George, and I'll arrange for that $500 reward."

Pan American Fair Traces Mexico's Mails Back Through Centuries to Indian Runners

PAN AMERICA, Dallas, Texas, March 29.—From the days when Aztec runners carried hieroglyphs of tribal affairs to Montezuma and emperors before him, through the centuries down to today's super-efficient postal system of Mexico, the means of communication between the Rio Grande will be shown in an exhibit planned as part of the Mexican participation in the Pan American Exposition at Dallas.

Mexico's Postmaster General Alfonso Gomez Moretan

Postmaster General Alfonso Gomez Moretan has not committed his government definitely to the idea. In a recent visit with Director General Frank L. McNeny of Pan American, however, he described the plan he has for portraying an intriguing story; how the mail has gone through between Mexico City and points outlying from the capital since the days when it was "Tenechitlan."

Long before European governments' first thoughts of systematic postal service, the Incas and Aztecs had a runner system of carrying their ceremonial and writings on silk and maguey fibers about official business of empires that flourished before the Golden Age of Greece.

In Montezuma's reign, communications had developed to the stage that, when Cortez landed his conquistadores at Vera Cruz the news was transmitted in less than twenty-four hours to the emperor at the capital, 200 miles away.

The mails from Spain and how they were carried, how mail was speeded up when the horse was introduced as a new and faster beast of burden and developments from the very start of the Mexican national government are on record in part of a treasured collection in the postoffice department at Mexico City.

This is the second year Woodrow Lambert has won first place at district regional meetings and been entitled to go to state meeting.

35 MILLION POUNDS OF TEXAS' FARM SURPLUSES REMOVED

College Station—Nearly 35 million pounds of farm products were purchased in Texas in 1936 through a national program for the removal of price-depressing surpluses, according to Jack Shelton, vice director and state agent of the Extension Service.

The products purchased were turned over to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation for distribution, in cooperation with state relief agencies to persons on relief rolls who could not buy them in the regular channels of trade, Shelton said.

Removal of these surpluses resulted in no increase in prices to consumers of the products involved in commercial markets, Shelton pointed out. On the contrary, he said that in many cases the program actually operated in the interest of consumers by encouraging continued production and maintenance of the producing capacity.

Teach Them Young, The Fine Old Art Of Making Strawberry Jams and Jellies

By Alice Blake

VERY fine jelly is being made by very young cooks, these days. Jelly making is that easy now! Enough of this talk about the good old days, and the good old ways. Ten-year-old Mary-Ann captures more jelly, fresh fruit flavor in her strawberry jelly and jam than ever grandmother had in hers!

When that little girl of yours wants to play at cooking, give her a real job to do. Early training is all-important, according to child specialists, and today's game is tomorrow's talent. Recipes like these have been carefully tested, and if directions are followed exactly, will turn out a perfect product for your young cook.

Strawberry Jelly
4 cups (8 lbs.) sugar
2 boxes one-half

To prepare jelly, grind or crush thoroughly about 3 1/2 quarts fully ripe berries. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If there is a slight shortage of juice, add small amount of water to pulp in jelly cloth and squeeze again.) Measure sugar into dry dish and

Cancer Not Incurable Early Investigations Advised By Physicians

Austin, April 28—"While the span of human life has been lengthened fifteen years during the last decade thanks to science, the disturbing fact remains that there has been a marked rise in death from cancer during the same period," declared Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, and urged that the public be on the alert to detect this disease.

"Cancer is not a hopeless, incurable disease. It is not contagious or in itself hereditary. There are thousands of men and women in this country who have been successfully treated for cancer. The great hope of cancer patients lies in their having treatment during the first stages of the disease. Cancer announces itself by symptoms that are frequently painless and apparently trivial, thus giving the disease an unseemly advantage. Early diagnosis is the one powerful antagonist.

"The danger signals can be classified as follows: Any lump in the breast or other part of the body; any persistent sore, particularly on the face or mouth; any unusual discharge or bleeding from any part of the body, such as vomiting of blood, passage of blood from the bowels, or unusual bleeding of any bodily passage, especially after middle-age. These symptoms may be from some other cause but should be diagnosed by a physician.

"Two main rules should be followed in cancer treatment. First, have an annual physical examination by a reputable physician. In this way incipient cancerous conditions can be discovered and by proper treatment the disease can be conquered. The second rule is to distrust high promising statements of amazing new discoveries.

MULES AND DENOMINATIONS

A PCA official in lower South Carolina was visited by a Negro farmer who wished to borrow some money to make a crop.

"How many mules have you?" asked the official as he began filling out the application blank.

"Fo' Yasuh, I see go fo'," the old darky replied.

"Baptis', Meth'dis', Presbyterium, an' 'Piscopallium,' the Negro replied.

"Why, that's a new idea," said the official. "Why did you give them those names?"

"Well, suh, it's dis way: dat Babtis' mule he jes' like to git in de creek an' wade 'roun', but when he gets out of de water, he won't do nothin'." Dat Meth'dis' mule, all he do is ter holter an' holter, and den he don't do nothin'." Dat Presbyterium mule, he's so sot in his ways he never do nothin' 'til he wants to anyway." An' dat 'Piscopallium' mule, he alius hold his haid an tall high, but he ain't wuth er durm."

Legislature Speeds Up Action As Time For Closing Nears

Legislators laid plans last Monday for the final days of the general session which some believed would bring determination of a taxing and appropriations program and avoid the need of a special session.

The Senate prepared to take up the departmental appropriation measure, to be followed by educational, eleemosynary, judiciary and rural aid bills. Similar bills, in House sub-committees likely will reach the calendar this week.

The House has passed to the Senate four major tax proposals and all were shunted to a sub-committee will recommend a tax program on the basis of new revenue needs.

Bills sent to the sub-group would increase levies on oil, sulphur, natural gas and corporation franchises. It was considered likely these will be combined in an omnibus measure, rather than acted upon in single-shot form.

Some observers considered it probable that the Senate will make a decision on repealing the horse race wagering law already voted in the House. Governor Alred has indicated he would reconvene the law makers if necessary to get a vote on this issue.

Children Thrive on Amazing New Tonic

I'M WORRIED ABOUT JUNIOR. HE'S SO LISTLESS AND PALE. HASN'T A BIT OF APPETITE EITHER.

MY LITTLE GIRL USED TO BE THAT WAY TILL I GAVE HER PARSUNG. IT HELPED HER SO SHE'S THE PICTURE OF HEALTH

Today, thousands of men, women and children who were tired, listless, nervous—appetites poor—because of pale weak blood, are brimming with strength and energy as a result of the aid given them by Parsung.

For this scientific tonic preparation contains, in properly balanced and readily assimilated form, such elements as organic copper and iron.

Parsung acts to stimulate the appetite and build rich, red blood even in cases of simple anemia. When this condition is relieved, nervousness disappears.
