AND UP GOES BEEF!

IT is not every cow that likes the steel rod, but Susanne, known as the farthest-north cow in the province of Manitoba, is going to pull for the railroad from now on, and all because the railroad literally pulled for her. Susanne supplies milk to some of the inhabitants of Gillam, Manitoba, a little town on the Hudson Bay Railway, the far-north line operated by the Canadian National Railway. Recently she took a stroll down the right-of-way, slipped and landed in a quicksand surrounded by muskage. Man-power proved futile in subsequent attempts at rescue and the railway sent out the wrecking crew with the "big hook." The photograph shows the wrecking hook pulling Susanne from the quicksand.

"WHICH OF THESE IS GREATER?"

As between Henry Ford and John L. Lewis the average man in the street can ask himself one question: Which one of them has best served his fellow man? How much work and wealth has Ford created for the people and how much has Lewis provided? Also: Who did more to increase workers' wages, Ford or Lewis? Which one has done the most to raise the standard of American living? Which one is least ambitious for personal political power?

THE INHERITANCE

Robbing baby's bank is a good subject for a cartoon or a wisecrack. But how many mothers or fathers maliciously, and without any intention of paying it back, take money away from their children?

On the contrary, every father tries to accumulate as much as he can so that when he passes on he may leave his children better off than he was in childhood. That is why it is astounding that we should be robbing not only baby's bank now but his bank account later on.

Look in 1919, because of the World War, the debt of the federal government had risen to twenty-five billion dollars. Thirteen years later after a period of unprecedented prosperity, that debt had been reduced by only nine billion dollars.

Today we have a thirty-seven billion dollar debt. If we could have the same prosperity from now on that we had through the 20's it would take more than 52 years to pay that debt.

That's robbing our children out of their children's bank with a vengeance.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Farmers who think they have nothing to say in the wage-hour bill now pending in Congress are due to receive some rather nasty surprises if that bill becomes law.

Congressional sponsors of the measure who represent farming districts point to the sections exempting agricultural labor and conclude it won't hurt the farmers. But, ignoring the fact that the bill will raise the cost of the anti-trust law, the farmer who is survived by her husband, two children father and mother and a large group of other relatives.

Next, Congress passed the Social Security Act, taxing employers for pensions and unemployment payments to industrial employees. Farmers were exempted. But today there is tremendous pressure in Washington for amendments to that Act applying the taxes to farmers too.

The very fact that the new wage-hour bill exempts farmers is a Congressional declaration of its belief that it has the power to fix the wages and hours of farm hands. What Congress actually is saying is: "We can fix wages and hours for farm workers, but we won't do it—now."

Once that bill is on the statute books, a simple three-line amendment can be introduced extending it to farmers. That will be it, it is stated by the past and by the drive of labor unions to enroll farm workers.

WEEKLY LAY SERMON CHILD MARRIAGES

By JESS MITCHELL

Recently we have been reading frequently and considerably of child marriages, and apparently make the reversing matters and putting the age of marriage lower than that of sexual consent.

Parents any that the writer is raising a helluva hallabalo over a little matter; but they have their wisdom teeth yet to cut.

I have long been convinced that entirely too many children of America are becoming indeed precocious—some even beginning to dream of love and matrimony before they get good and dry behind the ears.

Folks do plenty of prating pro and con about the "young folks problem"; but I have long been of the opinion that it is more of an old folks problem than one of the young.

I am advised through the medium of the press that in some instances parents sanction these child sexual advances, yes, even sometimes the pops and moms lie to county clerks who issue licenses to their growing babies.

There may be some readers of this newspaper who will suggest this editor is stepping out of the realm of his rightful prerogative as a country newspaper publisher in discussing such a subject;

Of course, I am willing to admit that many girls of 14-today know as much sexual theory as their grandmothers did at 41; but Ohmygods! they haven't had the experience, and nine or 10 months after that painful event transpires, their wish to God they hadn't.

It hasn't been so long ago that I read in this same daily press where a Chicago madame declared the majority of young women who came to her bawdy were polluted before they reached maturity, and a distinguished criminal lawyer is responsible for the statement that in his experience as an attorney he had reason to believe that one to infinity of the girls who preferred charges of various kinds against his clients had been trifled with long before their cases were called on the court docket.

It's a very common occurrence now days for children in short dresses, I mean a little shorter than their mothers are wearing this year) to be permitted to keep company with little boys in knee pants and to indulge in prattling about their beads. Plenty of girls, 13 to 15 or 16 years of age are today flipping side glances, coy smiles and flirting words at boys who have scarcely shed their short pants and long stockings, while these innocent mothers without enough gumption to grease a wheelbarrow, instead of turning the little female across her knees and raising a blister on the forehead of her scanty bloomers, seem to get quite a kick out of the child rehearsals of some lad whose heart is smothered in smithereens because she "stood him up" on a date or spent the late hours of a day night in an automobile with some other young squirt who was beginning to feel the pangs of adolescence.

It isn't too many children are today given the freedom of quadrupeds who are not even herded in corrals. They are permitted to read erotic novels and magazines of which there are plenty being displayed and sold by business concerns whose managers are supposed to be good moral citizens; but who apparently think more of dollars than they do of their own or their neighbor's dears. If parents would be a little more critical and investigating, many of them would find plenty of pornographic literature hidden under bed mattresses and tucked away in other secret places, while it is said to be a common occurrence nowadays for groups of high school lassies to gather in secret or off to themselves for the discussion of matters in which only older married folks should be familiar.

Explaining the mysteries of the human body is a much moot question today. Many of our modern biologists and psychologists insist the sexes should be kept segregated while in their early teens, and there is much discussion as to how and when sexual enlightenment should be given to growing youth. That this information should be imparted, is generally conceded nowadays; but this writer is of the opinion that should be given while quite young, in any event before they get into high school, while intellect is still stronger than pubescence and maturity animism. Entirely too many parents today seem to think the sweet innocence of their darling babies will last without guidance and nurture until the boy casts his first ballot for president or the girl makes her social debut in the ladies aid or home missionary society—and it darn seldom does.

Some of the sanctimonious prudish

LOCO WEED A PROBLEM Farmers throughout Bailey county report there is more loco weed growing in their pastures and along roadsides this year than for several years past, due largely to better moisture conditions this year.

More or less concern for the effect of this weed on livestock is manifest, some animals already being afflicted with its narcotic effect. While it is generally considered not so detrimental to cattle as to horses, yet it is said the bovines are not entirely free from its ill influences.

Eating loco affects the nerves of livestock. When an animal gets a few tastes of the weed a desire for more is created, and some of them continue eating it until they eventually become practically "crazy" as a human would persists in taking opium or other similar narcotic.

Navajo Craft Designs Used in Super Chief

FROM the Navajos of the picturesque southwest, the Santa Fe drew the inspiration for the design of its new stainless steel streamline train, the Super Chief, newest of the luxury trains in the west.

The rich colors associated with the country through which the train travels have been used as the background for decorations, faithfully reproducing the art and craft of the Navajo Indians. Sand paintings, silver craft and weaving have been skillfully combined with rare woods and modern design to give the train all the beauty and color of the desert.

The train was built by Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia. The locomotive was furnished by the Electro-Motive Corporation of Chicago.

Throughout the train, each compartment has its own color scheme and arrangement, and each has been designed so that suites may be formed by use of connecting doors.

In the cocktail and observation lounges has been preserved much of the beauty of Navajo life. Sand paintings have been used in the panels to illustrate the characters which occur in the story of Dsiyli 'Noyani, the "Myth of the Mountain Chant." All of the figures are executed in native colored sands and charcoal.

Coverings are reproductions of rare Navajo museum pieces, and lighting fixtures have been adapted from the fourth painting of Dsiyli 'Noyani. The "Plumed Arrows" have been fashioned into glow lights and a rear table lamp employs the sacrificial knife stem for a base with its shade fashioned of goat skin.

The Tidal Wave
A tidal wave is a great rise of water along the shore due to exceptionally strong winds, such as occurred at Galveston, Texas, September 8, 1930. In that instance a West Indian hurricane blew steadily for eighteen hours, reaching a velocity of 135 miles an hour and piling up enormous waves which swept over the city. Sometimes a tidal wave follows an earthquake.

Habits of the Deer
In summer, deer feed on leaves, herbs and lily-pods. In winter they like lichens, moss and bark. Timid to such a degree that they will run in a circle when pursued rather than venture into unknown territory, they frequently starve on one side of a mountain when there is plenty of food on the other side. They usually forage in the late evening or at night.

Temperature in a Volcano
Actual tests at Kilauea volcano, on the island of Hawaii, showed that emanating lava had a temperature of 1,100 to 1,200 degrees Centigrade. It is not known what the temperature would be at the heart of a volcano, but experiments indicate that it is considerably lower than many experts have believed. Lava has to reach 900 degrees Centigrade before eruption occurs.

THE REST OF THE RECORD
By James V. Allred
Gov. of Texas

A few of the big daily papers and Senator Shivers of Fort Arthur have criticized me because I said over the radio that unless the Legislature provided revenues, pension payments would be stopped after November 1st. Now that the Board of Control has announced that payments will be made at least for the next two months these papers and this Senator are trying to make it appear that I misrepresented things.

If they wanted to be fair they would tell the people that before I made my radio speech the State Board of Control which handles pensions, made a written statement to the Legislature that payments would be stopped unless the Legislature provided money. These papers and this Senator know that I relied upon the statement of the Board of Control in making my appeal for aid. But, in any event, it doesn't make much difference who made the statement first. The rest of the record is this:

For over a year now the Board of Control has owed $1,626,000 to Dallas banks on warrants issued before the tax bills went into effect. I told the Legislature last January this would have to be paid. No provision was made for it. I told the Legislature again during the special session that this should be paid. Nothing was done about it. Meantime, however, the Dallas bank had been demanding its money and the Board of Control had agreed to pay it. They told the bank positively that they would take care of it if the Legislature didn't at the special session. This was the reason they issued the statement that payments would be stopped unless the Legislature provided the money. Now the Legislature didn't make provision for paying this money, which simply meant that if the bank continued to insist upon its money then the Board of Control would have to cut payments out completely for at least two months, just as they said they would. However, the Board has prevailed upon them to accept payments of $100,000 a month for November and December so that they can go ahead and make November and December payments. They are to work out other arrangements for paying the balance to the bank about January 1st.

Naturally I am pleased to know that according to the Board of Control's statement old age assistance can go on through the next two months. Mr. John Wallace, testified that payments would not be stopped at all and there would be no reduction of the rolls. I had been hearing that they were going to cut off several thousand, and was not surprised yesterday when Mr. Little testified before a legislative committee that this was inevitable since the Legislature had failed to provide more money.

Whether the board pays the debt of $1,626,000 to the banks in installments or all at once, any school board could figure out that the board has got to cut the rolls or cut the average of $14 per month. For that reason, I regret the ray of false hope which has been held out to the old people when the day of reckoning is inevitable.

I am opposed to dropping any more needy aged from the rolls. I think that many of the so-called border line cases should be put on the rolls rather than dropping them off, particularly during the coming winter when winter will be setting in. The present $14 a month payment is not enough for a pension especially with the added suffering that will result from the winter months.

Another angle of suffering is the real problem which is linked with that of old age assistance. The aged people who are dropped from the rolls must be cared for by someone. If they turn to the relief rolls for help, they will find the lines swollen by an estimated 250,000 people. This figure according to the relief administrator compares unfavorably with the lesser number of 166,779 last January when public works projects removed many from indigent rolls. Neither the state nor federal governments are able to supply money for direct aid but only relief in the form of surplus foodstuffs and some clothing. With the suffering of the aged people added to that of those unfortunate without employment, it is obvious the cry of the destitute will be heard over Texas in the midst of the rainy, cold winter months.

With these will be the needy blind and destitute children left holding an empty bag by the Legislature.

When this situation comes to pass, the question "Why?" will be on the lips of every citizen.

That question will be directed at the corporation senators—Hobbs and company—whose job of scuttling the social security financing program cost the state a $200,000 session but saved the wealthy natural resource groups from shouldering a humanitarian burden.

Their attitude "Am I my brother's keeper?" will be the target for those needy unfortunates whose faith was not kept.

It Runs On The Highway And It Runs On The Rails

THIS is the newest wrinkle in transportation. It is called the Auto-Railer. It is equally at home as an independently operated vehicle on the highways or as a train speeding along the rails. It is equipped with four rubber-tired wheels and with four flanged steel wheels. It is expected to provide the answer which railroaders have been seeking to the question, "How to continue branch line service and eliminate costly losses?" On the highway, the Auto-Railer operates like a bus. It can go anywhere a bus can go. Once it reaches the railway it is run on the tracks. By means of an automatically controlled lever, the rubber-tired wheels are jacked up and the steel wheels fitted on to the rails. The change can be made in forty seconds. Then, under its own power, it can speed along the tracks with the same ease that it moved over the highways. Two types of the new equipment have been constructed for the Canadian National Railways. One is to carry passengers and the other to move less-than-carload freight or express. The units can move separately or together. Tests of the Auto-Railer are now being made at Eastern Canada and if they perform satisfactorily other units will be built and the service extended.

London's Foreign Trees
Although nearly 60 per cent of London's trees are planes, it is not an English tree. Like most of its fellows, come from abroad. Only by enough, British trees do not thrive in London. The British oak never rises to its full stature in the city, whereas the Turkish oak seems little troubled by town life. It is the same with the North American oak. Where our trees languish and die, foreign trees quicken and thrive.

Sheep Thick-Skulled
Sheep are notoriously thick-skulled and in India are sometimes kept solely for the sport of fighting. The usual procedure is for the fighting sheep to ram each other, charging together from some ten yards apart till their skulls bang—then separating to repeat the process.

Grasshopper and Locust
In their capacity for destruction, there is little difference between the American grasshopper and the locust of antiquity. To the cultivator of that day, a plague of locusts was very likely to mean famine.

Lower right—The colorful observation lounge, in which desert colors of sand, copper and turquoise have been used for decoration, with sand paintings and reproductions of Navajo craft and weaving.

FROM the Navajos of the picturesque southwest, the Santa Fe drew the inspiration for the design of its new stainless steel streamline train, the Super Chief, newest of the luxury trains in the west.

The rich colors associated with the country through which the train travels have been used as the background for decorations, faithfully reproducing the art and craft of the Navajo Indians. Sand paintings, silver craft and weaving have been skillfully combined with rare woods and modern design to give the train panels to illustrate the characters which occur in the story of Dsiyli "Noyani," the "Myth of the Mountain Chant." All of the figures are executed in native colored sands and charcoal.

Coverings are reproductions of rare Navajo museum pieces, and lighting fixtures have been adapted from the fourth painting of Dsiyli "Noyani." The "Plumed Arrows" have been fashioned into glow lights and a rear table lamp employs the sacrificial knife stem for a base with its shade fashioned of goat skin.

The Tidal Wave

A tidal wave is a great rise of water along the shore due to exceptionally strong winds, such as occurred at Galveston, Texas, September 8, 1900. In that instance a West Indian hurricane blew steadily for eighteen hours, reaching a velocity of 135 miles an hour and piling up enormous waves which swept over the city. Sometimes a tidal wave follows an earthquake.

Habits of the Deer

In summer, deer feed on leaves, herbs and lily-pads. In winter they like lichens, moss and bark. Timid to such a degree that they will run in a circle when pursued rather than venture into unknown territory, they frequently starve on one side of a mountain when there is plenty of food on the other side. They usually forage in the late evening or at night.

Temperature in a Volcano

Actual tests at Kilauea volcano, on the island of Hawaii, showed that emanating lava had a temperature of 1,160 to 1,200 degrees Centigrade. It is not known what the temperature would be at the heart of a volcano, but experiments indicate that it is considerably lower than many experts have believed. Lava has to reach 900 degrees Centigrade before eruption occurs.
