When Robert Monogue took over as administrator of Gray County's two hospitals in May of 1972 he had a cushion of half a million dollars in surplus hospital funds to work with.

Relations between the Gray County Commissioners Court and the hospital's board of managers were excellent, doctors practicing in Pampa used the hospital's facilities on a regular basis, and the total number of patient down records. number of patient days recorded at the two institutions was approaching a record

By the time Guy Hazlett II arrived on the scene four and a half years later, the situation had altered considerably Monogue had left the area after having been abrubtly dismissed from his position by a new hospital board of managers headed by R.W. Sidwell; financial conditions had deteriorated to the point where the two hospitals would show a combined loss of $5,341.78 for 1976 (and a negative cash flow of more than $220,000). area residents became concerned Monogue's last year fell to 27,927. And things got worse.

When Hazlett took over, he said it would take "at least a year" to turn the situation around.

Probably the most pressing problem was the morale of hospital employees. Relations among the media, the hospital administration, the board of managers and commissioners court, which had deteriorated steadily during 1976, remained at a low ebb.

Most members of the hospital staff, on guard because of the controversy which swirled around Highland General in 1976, refused to discuss their work with anyone on the outside, and of the 17 doctors in Pampa, only 10 were referring patients to the county's facility.

The results of Hazlett's first year in the driver's seat, then, were probably predictable and inevitable.

Total patient days, the barometer of the hospital's success, skidded to 24,175 lowest of the decade. The two hospitals recorded a loss of more than $292,990 for 1977, and accounts receiveable continued to be a thorny problem.

For Hazlett, however, there were some encouraging signs. "The year served several purposes," Hazlett says, "and one of them was that the board of managers, the commissioners court and myself were given a chance to get our feet on the Problems he encountered during the year included the fact that "employee super vision techniques were lax, and a lack of expertise existed in some departments. But we've been able to upgrade this expertise.

During the year, eight department heads were replaced, and although the number of employees was decreaæd by about 30, Hazlett says that "we were able to institute more efficient systems of staffing, supervision and planning."

Hazlett estimates that from 1972 through 1977, the hospitals experienced a decline in business of "between 20 and 30 percent", and that problems associated with the decline included "a lack of physician recruitment to replenish the supply of doctors." He says now that "I don't believe the hospital was operated in as efficient a manner as it could have been. Right now, we feel we're getting about 25 percent greater value out of each dollar we spend han the hospital was getting prior to 1977. We're placing our priorities on spending, because if we don't we'll never catch up with the deficit situation we're in.

Towards that end, the hospital's expenses in 1977 were cut by approximately $265,000. And a renegotiation of the hospital's contracts with suppliers amounted to a saving, in Hazlett's estimation, of more than $100,000. Hazlett of course sees the hospital's financial condition as "my most worrisome

He feels both the hospital board and the commissioners court have made "a basic decision. They had the option of seeing services cut or passing the cost of operation

Murderer terrorizes sorority

 Frightened sorority sisters returned to class at Florida State University today as police hunted for a rapist who murdered two coeds and beat three others as they slept.

"We have no suspect. We don't even have enough for a composite drawing," said a frustrated Sheriff Ken Katsaris. The Tallahassee Democrat offered a $2,500 reward for infor-

"We are hoping the reward could do the trick," said Wayne Smith, spokesman for the Leon County sheriff's office. "We want people to call about anything, no matter how insignficant the detail."

JERUSALEM (AP) - The Israeli and Egyptian foreign ministers met informally over lunch today preparing for the formal resumption of peace talks after the two sides worked out a compromise on the agenda's wording of the Palestinian issue. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was flying in from Washington to take part in the next round of negotiations, opening Tuesday after a oneday delay. Over the weekend, the agenda dispute had threatened to severely set back the peace process. Vance postponed his departure from Washington to put pressure on the two sides, and on Sunday they reached agreement on the agenda. Informed sources said Egypt had proposed that the agenda list discussion of "the Palestinian issue." Israel wanted it to read discussion of "the Palestinian Arabs in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza district," Judea and Samaria being the historical Jewish designations

An official in Washington said the United States proposed a wording that "doesn't prejudice the positions of either side." One report said it called for discussion of "the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

of the West Bank of the Jordan

An Israeli source said the two sides decided to include two versions of the Palestinian issue on the working agenda: Egyptian wording referring to "West Bank," and the Israeli version referring to

'Judea and Samaria.' Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan met today with Egypt's Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel over a lunch of trout, beef and an Egyptian rice dish to complete preparations for Tuesday's session.

Briefing Israeli reporters, Dayan said Israel was satisfied with the agenda and had not made major concessions. He also said he had proposed to Vance Saturday that he postpone his trip pending resolution of the agenda dispute.

The two governments agreed earlier to two other items of the agenda: the drafting of a statement of principles as a guide to further negotiations and discussion of what the nature of peace should be. The dispute over the wording of the Palestinian item was an indication of the basic disagreement over the issue itself. one of the chief obstacles to a peace agreement between Israel and the Arabs.

Egypt is demanding that Israel give the right of self-determination to the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs who live on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, which Israel took from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 war. Israel rejects' self-determination because it almost certainly would result in an independent Palestinian state. Instead the Israelis are offering local autonomy under Israeli control.

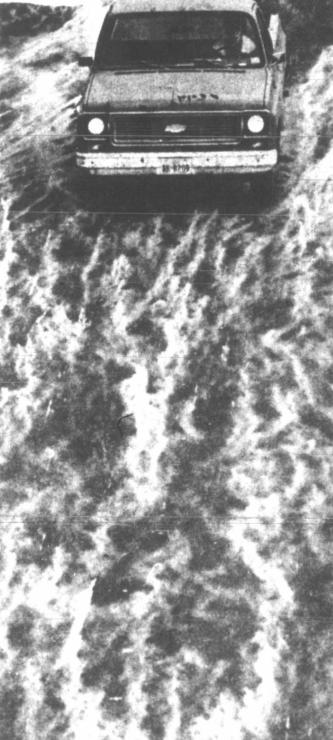

Vance is expected to urge Kamel and Dayan to seek an interim or temporary arrangement, leaving determination of the permanent status of the West Bank and Gaza to the future and the door still open to self-determination for the Palestinians. Meanwhile, the two governments could go ahead with negotiations on issues that are less in dispute.

Vance as he left Washington said he doubted the early days of the negotiations would produce any "visible achievements.

'But we'll at least get the work started in this very, very important task," he said. Meanwhile, Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin announced that Defense Minister Ezer Weizman would return to Cairo Thursday to resume the parallel negotiations he began ast week with Egyptian Defense Minister Mohammed Abdel Ghany Gamassy.

They are discussing Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula, and the chief issue is the future of the Jewish settlements which Israel has established in the occu in the Middle

To the editor JAN 3, 1978

Just recently I received a newspaper dated: December 21, 1977. The main headlines were: 'Police worked 'undercover' at P.H.S.." and: "Bomb hits school.

many people were busted that I knew... but none of them are or were very close friends to me, and in my opinion, they asked for everything they received, but maybe they didn't deserve it all that much.

But if it weren't for the screwed - up system that (Principal Paul) Payne and (Vice Principal Chalres) Bledsoe have at the High School, many of these, "problems," would never get started.

Take for instance, the segregation in the school Take for instance the "street names" of the different areas of the school, such as; "Cowboy Corner." "Freaks Door." "Soul City," and "Strait's City," and you don't tell me that there isn't racial and social unrest in the school?

I've warned Payne and Bledsoe, told and even pleaded with them that they shouldn't play "favorites," in the school. and I've observed for the past two or three years that both Pampa High and the Junior High School has had something deathly and definitely wrong with it. I'm not like my old hang - outs, I'm not in Pampa High anymore, and I don't regret it. I'm in the United States Navy serving my overseas duty on board the air - craft carrier U.S.S. Midway (CV-41), trying make something of myself.

Just to show Bledsoe and Payne that, "someone from the other side of the fence can make something of himself, "given the right kind of encouragement, self - pride and confidence that is the right that every person should have. By not getting involved, Bledsoe and Payne cannot solve the problems. They must get with the students and try to solve the problems in a logical manner, but instead they just ignore the problems and hope that time will wipe away all the difficulties, but time can never erase a police record.

Bledsoe...concentrates most on one area of the school: Freaks Door. I think that he ought to take a closer look at the other areas ... In some ways, it shows a different form of descrimination, in other ways, it shows a bad case of a school system deciding to get involved with only a "chosen few", and no school system; I don't care how advanced or run - down. large or small, rich or poor; can ever work in harmony if they've always got everybody at

Next time it could happen in a classroom, then many innocent people would get hurt. That's not something to look forward to. It's just such a waste, and it can be avoided, but must be delt with extreme care and caution.

blankets that are newsworthy. You can have yourself the finest, best-trained, most perfectly proportioned, prize-winningest riding horse in the world, and the most expensive platinum-inlaid, diamond-studded tack ever crafted but if there's a burr under the blanket making the horse act skitterish, that's the point of interest.

Newspapers often get criticism from folks involved with the care and saddling of various horses who ask why more isn't said about the quality of the horse and saddle instead of seeking out those pesky burrs that prick the hide from time to

Actually, most news stories include reports about the horse and saddle, it's just that readers are more impressed by the burr that isn't supposed to be there and that 's what they remember.

It's an embarrassment for the folks who saddled the horse, and maybe there was no way they could prevent the burr from being under that saddle. But if it's there it's news and any responsible newsman will make it the big part of a news story.

If he doesn't report the burr because he's afraid he might lose the friendship of the fellows who saddled the horse, he's not doing his job and should be fired. So much for a news story. An ignore it, say it doesn't exist, shove it further under the saddle where it's more difficult to see, and cry out about how the newspaper is unfair and controversial and doesn't report the good news. That's when the situation becomes fair game for an editorial column. That's when a newspaper may go beyond reporting the existence of the burr and suggest that perhaps those in charge do something about removing it.

And with that rather lengthy intro, I'm ready to comment on today's subject: executive sessions of public boards.

We have some fine schools and a fine hospital in Pampa, public facilities all, run by unpaid board members who generally keep the horses well groomed and properly fed, and see that the saddles always are polished.

But sometimes they forget and conduct some public business in private - discuss things in closed sessions that should be dealt with only in open

A burr sneaks in under the blanket

Quite some time ago the members of the school board acted as a board and sent a letter. They took the action after several telephone conversations between one another.

Nothing really wrong in them sending the letter, but if they decided to do it outside a public meeting, which they did, the indication is that maybe they make other decisions about the public school system during private phone conversations.

If they were, I think it was unintentional and I don't think they do it any more. They are normally conscientious and careful about making available to the public everything concerned with the running of the public schools.

There was a burr under the blanket but once it was discovered, it was curried out.

The other night at a hospital board meeting, board members met in an executive session that stretched out to an hour and 45 minutes. Since the matters that may be discussed in closed sessions are limited by law, the indications are that either some big personnel problem required extensive discussion behind those closed doors or other topics came up - topics that should be discussed only in an open session.

Things are really beginning to pick up at the hospital, in just about every possible way, so the closed session probably had nothing to do with any major problem.

Probably there was just some carelessness on the part of the chairman in allowing discussions to stray to areas that are confined by law to open sessions.

Probably. But since the hour and 45 minutes were closed to the public, we'll never know for

It wasn't the first time the situation came up. Lengthy closed door sessions are a regular feature of hospital board meetings

Members of the media have expressed concern over the situation to the board chairman on previous occasions but the burr under the blanket is still

Soviets goof again

The clumsy Russian bear continues to stumble over the diplomatic applecart. Somalia, once listed among the Soviet Union's dearest African friends, is the latest Moscow ally to become disenchanted with the Kremlin's shifting loyalties and tangled alliances.

Responding to evidence that Moscow has given support to Ethiopian forces in Somalia - backed flare - ups in Ethiopia's desert, the Somalis have ordered an end to a three - year - old friendship treaty with the Russians and ordered them off air and naval bases at two Somalia ports.

Military and technical experts, up to 4,000 in number, have been told to leave the country.

The Somali defection is similar to the earlier split initiated by Egypt, which also found that Soviet friendship was at best overly demanding and in general uncertain.

The Western nations who fear the spread of communism through the Soviet Union's far reaching international overtures may be persuaded eventually that extravagant countermeasures are not needed.

No pants at all

By JIM FTTZGERALD

Speaking of rip - offs, it used to be true that the greatest basketball team could be beaten by the lousiest team on any given I day because all basketball players are human and must put on their pants one leg

Forget it. They can now put on their pants both legs at a time, without lifting their feet "Did you see that?" I asked my wife and son recently at an NBA game. "Their pants just fell off!" We were watching the Detroit Pistons warm up for their game with the Portland Trail Blazers. When big - time basketball players prance through pre - game drills, they always wear long pants over their short pants. Most people think the reason for double pants is to speed the warming up process. Wrong. The real reason the players begin work wearing two pairs of pants is to illustrate that they are all equal - up to a point. That point is reached when the game begins and the five starters take off their long pants and stay on the floor while the substitutes must keep their long pants on and slink to I always enjoyed watching the starters take off their long pants. It takes a fine athlete to remove his pants gracefully while standing up in front of thousands of spectators. Some of the players I admired most could do it in one fluid motion without hopping once.

I knew a substitute who could have been a starter if he didn't have so much trouble removing his warm - up pants. "I always catch my damn heel in at least one pant leg and have to hop all over the floor before I shake my shoe loose," he complained bitterly. "The coach said I was embarrassing the whole team and he benched me. Substitutes subsequently removed their long pants, but they did it in shame, while sitting down, lifting their butts quickly and letting the pants crumple to the floor, bathroom style, before kicking their feet The substitutes got the job done, but they were definitely not crowd - pleasers.

Basketball players who couldn't remove their pants standing up without hopping didn't put fannies in the $8 seats. You'll notice I've described this warm-up pants phenomenon in the past tense. Last Wednesday's Piston game was my first exposure to big - time basketball in a couple of years. The pants situation has changed dramatically. When the Pistons finished warming up Wednesday, the five starters removed their long pants without lifting one leg. Bob Lanier, the Detroit center, simply brushed his right hand across his right thigh and his pants melted off. It looked like magic. "They have grippers on their pants," my wife explained patiently. "They are snaps that come loose easily when you pull on them. With grippers, the players can remove their pants while standing up without risk of falling down."

Associated Press Writer

CRYSTAL CITY, Texas (AP) - This is a winter of discontent and despair for many of the 8,-100 residents of Crystal City.

"I'm getting out of here, maybe to California," says Henry Perales, 67, sawing a log to be burned in a wood stove inside his one-story frame home in this southern Texas ranching and farming commu-

City's residents have income below the federal poverty level of $5,050 for a family of four, according to City Manager Raul Flores. The unemployment rate is nearly 20 percent.

When natural gas prices began soaring several years ago, the city-owned utility maintained it would pay only the amount it agreed to in a contract with its gas supplier, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

But, the regulatory Texas Railroad Commission allowed LoVaca to pass on to its customers the higher prices it had to pay to get natural gas. And courts upheld the action.

Crystal City officials, saying

Nearly two-thirds of Crystal thousand cubic feet of natural gas, continued paying only the contract price of about 35

> The town's utility eventually accrued an $810,000 debt to Lo-Vaca. After months of litigation and negotiation over the contested debt, LoVaca, through a computer 200 miles away, cut off the pipeline flow of gas to Crystal City on Sept. 23.

> The city is using $310,000 in federal funds to supply propane tanks to the poorest of the 1,700 former gas customers. But the propane, at 40 cents to 50 cents a gallon, is about twice as expensive as the natural gas that once was piped into town.

The city provided the first tankful of propane free, but now, and some residents cannot afford refills.

The Zavala County Economic Development Corp., through Civil Defense, is issuing propane-burning stoves, leftovers from the Korean War era that come crated and coated with oil for preservation.

Jesus Salas, overseer of the stove project, says about 200 of the stoves had been issued to needy residents recently. Fifty were issued in one day, depleting the supply on hand. More were ordered.

Many families, despite the chill, still are cooking outdoors. "It's faster and cheaper than using the electric hot plates," said one woman as she prepared the noon meal. Her fami-

At a local restaurant, customers keep their heavy coats on while they sip hot coffee or cold beer. The restaurant's kitchen has butane for its stoves, but the dining room is unheated.

During January, nighttime temperatures average just under 40 degrees, often dipping into the low 20s.

"We're all sticking together. We knew it would be rough," said Ramon Mata, a city councilman.

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) - Another natural gas leak was capped early today a few blocks from where an explosion demolished several downtown buildings Sunday, authorities said.

The Delta Tau Delta fraternity house at Auburn University was evacuated because of the latest leak, which spewed gas for three hours, but students were allowed to return to the house shortly after the leak was sealed, Fire Department Maj. James Weldon said.

Jim Alderman, a spokesman for Alabama Gas Corp., said the leak developed when utility crews restored gas pressure to an area about eight to 10 blocks from where the explosion occurred early Sunday.

The blast leveled a two-story building, demolished several neighboring businesses and forced the temporary shutdown of gas service to about 2,700 homes and offices. Alderman said service had been restored by late Sunday to most of the customers except in the area where the damage occurred.

Windows were shattered in a six-block area adjacent to the Auburn University campus.

The explosion damaged at least 40 buildings, and was caused by a gas leak, Fire Chief Ellis Mitchell said. Officials have not estimated the amount of damage the explosion and fire caused. Alabama National Guardsmen were on patrol to control spectators and protect bus-

Although President Carter. who favors continuing the controls at higher levels, predicted at a recent news conference that a compromise would be forthcoming, no ready breakthroughs are in sight as Congress begins its 1978 session this week.

The House-Senate conference committee on energy legislation is expected to go back to work next week and pick up where it left off - although no formal meeting has yet been called for

But congressional aides said that despite the fact that some of the principle members of the committee conferred by telephone over the long holiday recess, no specific compromises are now on the drawing board. Carter has called enactment of his energy legislation, submitted to Congress last April, his No. 1 domestic priority and has expressed hope that lawmakers could complete work on it early in the session.

His program seeks to conserve energy and make the nation less dependent on imported oil through a program of taxing and regulating scarce energy sources, with corresponding incentives and tax breaks for energy-saving steps.

But the congressional conferees working on a compromise bill are stymied between Carter's plan to continue price controls on natural gas and a rival Senate bill to deregulate gas prices after two years.

Senate conferees have been deadlocked nine-to-nine between the two approaches.

New uncertainty was injected into the situation last week with the death of Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., a conferee who along with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, the Senate energy committee chairman, favors keeping price controls on natural gas.

A new conferee is expected to be named who shares Metcalf's opposition to deregulation maintaining the Senate stalemate - but some deregulation proponents may fight to get the Senate to fill the vacancy with

The telephone survey of 1,604 Americans last Tuesday and Wednesday found the slide in Carter's popularity that started last summer continued into the first weeks of 1978.

The rating of Carter's performance, as measured by NBC News polls, began at a high level in his first weeks in office, only to slide by

Then Carter's trip to England and a summit conference of Western leaders in early May helped boost his positive rating to 61 percent, while 37 percent of those questioned gave him negative marks

Even Carter's nine-day, seven-nation tour that opened 1978 did not boost his overall rating, as foreign trips often do for American presidents. His January marks were slightly below those registered in an AP-NBC News poll in late November. In that sampling, 43 percent rated his performance excellent or good while 54 percent said his work was only fair or poor

The seven-nation journey apparently did give a slight boost to Americans' opinion of Carter's performance in the foreign arena, especially his role in the Middle East peace negotiations.

About 55 percent of those questioned rated Carter's foreign policy performance negatively. versus 39 percent who gave him positive marks. Those figures are more positive than the 56 questioned rated Carter's performance as a negotiator excellent or good, with 43 percent giving him marks of only fair or poor. The remaining 7 percent were undecided.

In November, the situation was reversed. Half gave him poor marks, with only 45 percent rating his role positively.

improvement Three-quarters of those questioned this month said that their opinion of Carter had not changed because of the trip. Only 12 percent said their opinion of his job performance had improved, while 9 percent said their opinion of him had slipped. Three percent were not sure.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the exact opinions of the Ameican public solely because of chance variations in the sample. For a poll of 1,604 adults, the difference due to such chance variations is three percentage points either way.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - An executive of the Tennessee Valley Authority was scheduled to be called as an adverse witness today in the $2.5 billion damage suit against Westinghouse Electric Corp. for its alleged reneging on uranium supply con-

Two utilities which do not have signed fuel agreements with the reactor manufacturer spent six hours Saturday trying to strengthen their claim against the defendant.

In cross examination of Westinghouse's Walter J. Dollard, counsel for Long Island Lighting Co. and Houston Lighting & Power Co. focused specifically on how and when their clients were notified Westinghouse felt it had no obligation to supply uranium

Ten utilities have sued Westinghouse for reneging on contracts to supply uranium to fuel reactors it had sold them. The case is being heard without a jury by U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr.

Besides Long Island and Houston they are Texas Utilities. South Carolina Electric. Florida Power & Light, Alabama Power, Northeast Utilities, Virginia Electric & Power Co. and the TVA.

Alabama Power and Westinghouse agreed early in the trial to an out-of-court settlement that has been approved by U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. Texas Utilities and Westinghouse agreed on a tentative settlement in December which has yet to be approved

The outcome of the suit could affect 35 million consumers and the future of the huge company. While Merhige consolidated the individual suits into one case for the trial, each utility had its opportunity to present its own testimony.

Dollard, general manager of Westinghouse's nuclear fuel division, took part in drawing up an allocation plan that was shown to the various utilities whose contracts were canceled in September 1975.

Both Lilco and Houston, as agent for the South Texas Project, were included in the plan. But since the contracts were canceled. Westinghouse has taken the position that because Lilco and Houston agreements never were signed, the two utilities are not entitled to recover damages in the case.

The Saturday session marked Dollard's fourth full day on the witness stand.

When the questioning finally ended. Merhige remarked that Dollard had been in the court room so long that seeing him leave was like saying goodbye to a child leaving for amp.

Under the new policy, the hospital has increased its ancillary charges (i.e., lab costs, food costs, and other charges), increased room rates and made services 'more attractive,' according to Hazlett. As the administrator says, and as the court apparently agree, the hospital "is a To help correct the accounts receivable problem, the administration has made some basic changes in policy, with the strong support of both the commissioners

board of managers and commissioners and the board of managers. In May, John Walker was hired as the director of the business office and administrative services, but almost half his time is spent attempting to collect unpaid patient bills. It's the first time in the hospital's history such a person has been employed fulltime.

In addition, the hospital now provides admissions counseling to each patient. According to Hazlett, "We estimate what the patient's total billing is going to be, and we then ask for a deposit for verifiable insurance. On dismissal, we require payment in full of any 'private pay' portion of the bill not covered by a third party payer (usually insurance)

The new policy has been approved by the board and is "being enforced. We're using strict businesslike policies for collections of sums owed, and we think it's effective." When asked if he thought anyone would take offense at the change in policy. Hazlett said "we don't think we're going to offend anyone who pays their bills, because it's just good business practice." The hospital also has instituted some different terms in describing its finances. For one thing, the word "profit" is no longer used. It's now called "excess revenue over expenses," and is arrived at by taking the gross billings for a particular month and subtracting the medicare discount, the county indigent care amount (which normally totals between $2,000 and $3,000 a month), depreciation, percentage of bad debt allowance, payroll and accounts payable. But perhaps the most encouraging note at the hospital was sounded Jan. 10 at the last board of managers meeting. It came from Dr. M.C. #### Advice

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very hardworking physician. Every year when we go on our vacation we run into the same problem, for which there seems to be no solution

We enjoy group travel, but as soon as the other passengers learn that my husband is an M.D., the "calls' begin. There were 170 people in our last group, and "the doctor" was constantly called to treat stomachaches, sprained ankles, infections—you name it, he had to treat it He doesn't want to lie about his profession, nor would he deny his services to anyone in a life-or-death situation, but these calls for "the doctor" tie up our entire vacation. Don't suggest another type of trip because we love to travel, and except for this one-disadvantage, group trips are really our bag.

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Since you find group trips your "bag," periodic calls on your husband's medical "bag" appear inevitable. Why not get three or four of your doctor friends to join your group? The more hands, the lighter the burden.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the hostess who was upset because some of her guests brought their own "dinners" in a jar:

A HOSTESS' LAMENT I've cooked a roast And mashed potatoes, Baked two pies And sliced tomatoes Polished silver And set the table I only hope that I am able To be charming And keep quiet If someone says, "I'm on a diet.

Ask Dr. Lamb Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 76 years old and had cataracts removed from both eyes three years ago. Since then I have lost my equilibrium. I do very well around the house most of the time as I can get hold of things to steady me, but when I am outside or in stores with bright lights I am off balance and cannot walk well unless I hold onto someone and feel about. If I close my eyes I will black out.

My doctor says it could be my eyes or poor circulation. My eye doctor does not seem to know what caused it. Anything you can tell me about my loss of equilibrium, and anything that could be done to help would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER - Loss of equilibrium is a symptom, and it can be caused by many different problems. Your sense of balance really depends upon the input from three different systems: the eves, the balance system in the ears and the sensations you get from your joints, tendons and muscles throughout the body. Finally these three systems are all integrated inside the brain to give you information on body position and sense of balance. As the brain receives this information it sends out signals automatically that help you adjust to maintain your balance.

If two of your systems are working well you can usually maintain your balance. If only one is working you are in trouble. As an example, a person who has had some degeneration in the spinal cord that affects the sense of body position may get along fine standing still until he closes his eyes. When he loses the signals of orientation from his eves, and already has lost the sensation from his body that passes through his spinal cord, he will sway and fall if not protected. This is a classical physical test for damage to parts of the spinal

So if you have diminished eyesight, it could in certain circumstances contribute to your loss of balance. Also you could have disease of the arteries to the brain that affects the integration of the signals from these three systems or affects the centers in the brain that control your blood pressure. In the latter case, the drop in blood pressure on standing may lead to a sense of fainting.

Of course, you could have disease to the balance mechanism in the internal ear. This is a common cause of loss of balance in younger people. I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-10. Dizziness and Vertigo to give you a more complete explanation of the number of things that can cause loss of balance problems. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292. It will discuss more fully what can go wrong in the ear to cause this problem.

Because you probably do have some arterial disease, I would suggest that you see a specialist in neurology. He can then determine if you also need to see a specialist in ear, nose and throat diseases. You can see from the different systems that can cause this symptom that you may need to see more than one specialist.

The first step in deciding what can be done to help you is to define precisely and accurately what your problem really is

Polly's pointers Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I do hope someone can tell me what can be done about a black iron skillet that has a residue of black film after washing and rinsing. Many times when I use it for anything light in color this darkness is on the food. I have tried boiling water in it but that did not help. — MRS. W.A.R.

DEAR MRS. W.A.R. — Put hot water and baking soda in your skillet and let it soak and, if necessary, boil this solution in the skillet. Wash out with hot suds and a stiff scouring pad and cleanser. Rinse and then dry thoroughly. Hope this helps. - POLLY.

DEAR POLLY - Many times I used to find my small children uncovered at night. Now I put one blanket on the bed lengthwise and then another blanket on top of it but placed crosswise. If one should pull out the children are never uncovered.

We have a pool and there are times when friends bring their children over but do not bring bathing suits so I cut the leg parts off my old pantyhose and the children go in the pool with the pants part on. — E.B.

DEAR POLLY — Recently when our walls were repainted the switch plates looked very shabby. Rather than paying a ridiculous price for new ones I covered the old ones with that pretty adhesive-backed paper. Holes were cut for the switches to come through so now the plates are all color coordinated to match the rooms and look fresh as daisies. - BETTE.

Long before then, though, Kate Greenaway had become a charming force for liberation.

Says Joan Bellew, the company's fashion director, 'Kate Greenaway's illustrations of children in action influenced the dress of her time. Prior to that children's clothes were based on adults'. They were very restricted with corselets, pantaloons and hoop skirts.

"Her style was highwaisted with a very wide sash, very loose and flowing, with ribbons and gathers. And people with means Mayva is one of those rare friends, She never goes on a diet when I am fat. Never has a good time at a party to which I haven't been invited. Her kids were always bleeding from sibling attacks. She always delievered her babies with greasy hair.

The things we've shared over the years ... the time Lasked my pediatrician what temperature was considered normal on a rectal thermometer and Mayva said, "That sounds like a reasonable question.'

The time her husband gave her 1/2 hot water heater for her birthday and I advised, "Leave him before there are children." The negative of a picture I

LoVaca has accused Newton of bias and prejudice in proposing the order that the commission adopted Dec. 12 on a 2-1

It says his feelings about Lo-Vaca date back to when he was chairman of a House Energy Crisis Committee. Newton, a former state representative from Beeville, joined the commission a year ago.

The other commissioner who supported the proposal, chairman Mack Wallace, will be questioned after lawyers have taken Newton's oral deposition. In addition to the refund, Lo-

Vaca was ordered to abide by its original gas contracts rather than the higher prices permitted by the commission in a 1973 temporary order. Lo-Vaca officials contend that returning to the old prices would cost the company $1.5 million a

Two commission hearing examiners on the LoVaca case were quizzed last week.

The depositions are being taken in State District Judge Herman Jones' court.

LoVaca has appealed the commission order, asking the court to declare it invalid.

The company is still operating under the 1973 order which permits it to pass on 100 percent of its gas costs to customers, plus 5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas - pending resolution of its appeal.

Squirrels, which are actually rodents with bushy tails, will consume a variety of edibles, but they prefer parts of hickory, oak, walnut, elm and mulberry trees.

Cowboys corral blundering Broncos

NEW ORLEANS (AP) Craig Morton, who used to stand on the sideline marveling at Dallas' Doomsday Defense, got a close-up look at it Sunday. He got so many close looks, in fact, that he wound up on the sideline again.

The idea, Denver Coach Red Miller said after the Cowboys had defeated his Broncos 27-10 in Super Bowl XII, had been for Morton to establish the

He did - just by standing in the Broncos' backfield. The rush came from Harvey Martin and Randy White and just about anybody else who wanted a piece of the retread quarterback who spent the first 91/2 of his 13 pro seasons in a Dallas uniform

So fierce was the onslaught from the men in silver and blue that the Broncos were busted long before Roger Staubach and Robert Newhouse threw passes for Dallas' last two touchdowns.

In fact, it came even before Tony Dorsett ran three yards for Dallas' first touchdown in the first period and before Efren Herrera kicked two firsthalf field goals that gave the Cowboys a 13-0 halftime lead and all the points they'd need in the game.

It came on Denver's very first possession with less than five minutes played.

The National Football League's official play-by-play

gets 1." passes right indeflected behind complete,

"Morton back to pass, sacked by R. White, loses 11." That said it all. When the Broncos tried to run, they went virtually nowhere, gaining 121 yards on 29 attempts with Rob Lytle finishing with 35 yards and Otis Armstrong winding up

And when the Broncos tried to pass, Martin, White & Co. were on Morton like wolves, sacking him, rattling him. chasing him. Unofficially he and Norris Weese were sacked only four times - as though "only" belonged in there. Martin got each of them once for 19 yards in losses; White and D.D. Lewis each got a sack for another 16 yards.

But when they didn't officially fling Morton to the rock-hard artificial turf, they had him scrampering across it like a scared rabbit, throwing passes more out of self-preservation than anything else. He got rid of the ball 15 times. He completed eight of the passes four to his teammates and four to Dallas defenders. The quartet of interceptions was a Super Bowl record.

The Cowboys might have picked off a few more were it open spaces before they actually had the ball When Morton hit Dallas de-trying to roar off into the wide fensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones right in the numbers midway in the third period with the Cowboys leading 20-3, Morton's number was up. Miller unceremoniously yanked him and sent in young Weese.

"We had made the decision to switch long before that," Miller said, ineffectively trying to smooth some balm on Morton's wounds. "The plan was for Craig to come out on second down no matter what he did. Even if he'd thrown a completion for a lot of yards, Nor-not for their over-anxiousness, ris would have gone in." That's not the way Morton saw it - but he didn't mind all that much, either.

> When I was taken out, it didn't make me feel good. But I'm not going to play my life over because of it," he said. Morton was almost in awe of the Doomsday II defense that so thoroughly slammed the door on Denver's dream of a Super Bowl victory in its very first playoff. "They seemd to know almost every play we were calling. I tried to audible (change plays at the line), but they even read some of them."

"Our plan was rush, rush, rush; pressure, pressure, pressure," said Martin, the Defensive Player of the Year and, along with White, the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player. 'We were coming, coming, coming. We wanted to force

Craig out of the pocket and we did. We wanted to rattle him. We wanted to unsettle him early and get him mixed up." Miller, too, said the biggest factor in the game, the one upon which other factors like interceptions and fumbles and busted plays were created, was the Dallas pass rush. "I'd said during the week that the game was going to be decided in the pits, in the play of their lines and ours, and it was. Their pass rush was too much for us to handle. It was as simple as Landry didn't reserve all his praise for the Cowboys. "Denver played great defense, too. It took two great plays to separate us. One great catch (Johnson's) and the excellent fullback pass. We had that in our game plan and I thought that was the time to use it,"he said of Newhouse's 29-varder to Golden Richards.

Morton was intercepted only eight times all season, his first with Denver after those 91/2 years with Dallas and 21/2 with the New York Giants. But his panic-stricken passing, usually with Cowboys draped on him or thundering within arm's length, doomed Denver to defeat in its first Super Bowl appearance. The first time Denver had the ball he was belted, sacked and generally mugged. The second time, the first cracks appeared. With White and Charlie Waters waylaying him, he tried to dump the ball off. He did right into safety Randy Hughes'

Arkansas loss makes race of SWC

By GREG THOMPSON

Sports

PAMPA NEWS Monday, January 16, 1978 9

AP Sports Writer Texas Coach Abe Lemons says he is just as surprised as anybody else by his Longhorns, who already hold a victory over third-ranked Arkansas and the early-season lead in the Southwest Conference.

"We just baffle me," said Lemons after unranked Texas stunned unbeaten Arkansas 75-69 Saturday night in Austin before a SWC-record crowd of 16,288. "We're not very big, but we play hard."

Crafty junior guard John Moore - fronting an airtight Texas zone defense - forced the weary, sluggish Razorbacks into repeated mistakes and pumped in 20 points as Texas snapped Arkansas' record of 19 consecutive SWC victories. The Razorbacks strolled through the SWC last year with a 16-0 record in regular season and Lemons claimed they would do it again this year. 'Yeah, I said they couldn't be beaten, but you can't always believe what I say," quipped

Lemons. "Some of the tings I say are true and some of them are not true."

'We can't let them walk through the conference two straight years," Moore said of Arkansas. "No matter if you're ranked third in the country. you have still got to go out and play the game."

The loss dropped the Hogs to 2-1 in the SWC and third place behind Texas Tech, which fed on anemic TCU, Baylor and Rice last week to fatten its SWC mark to 3-1.

"If I had it to do over again, when we were leading 33-27 in the first half, I would have pulled them (Texas) out of their zone," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, whose Hogs dropped to 14-1 for the

"This was our fourth game in eight days and we should have conserved our energy and slowed things down a little," added Sutton, who used only one substitute against Texas.

The Razorbacks had staggered through three games last week, while Texas, now 12-2 for the season and 4-0 in the SWC, brushed off Houston 100-89 on Tuesday and rested until Saturday night.

"I saw them play the other night and I thought they looked sluggish," said Lemons. "We felt we had a chance to deflect some of their passes if we could keep our hands up.

The Longhorns forced the Hogs into 19 turnovers - marring a sensational shooting performance by the Hogs, who hit all seven free throws and 58.5 percent of their field goals.

Sidney Moncrief, hitting all of his free throws and nine of 11 field goals, paced the Razor-GOODFYEAR

Then things got out of hand. The only problem was the Cowboys couldn't get a grip on the opportunities Denver kept throwing their way.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A 'ets, which originally sold for travel agent says he paid scalpers' rates for 1,400 Super Bowl tickets after bringing a crowd of football fans here from Philadelphia and finding his promised seats taken.

He said several other tour operators also got stuck without tickets

About 490 customers of one New York travel agency came all the way to New Orleans, re-

'This was supposed to be my vacation," he said. "What can I do? Go in the pool in the cold weather?"

More Americans wear contact lenses By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer

Vanity, comfort and convenience are prompting a growing number of Americans to turn to contact lenses to correct vision problems.

There are two major types of contact lenses on the market hard and soft. Although the soft lenses were not introduced in the United States until 1971, they have grown rapidly in popularity as manufacturers eliminated earlier problems. The American Optometric Association estimates that 42 percent of the contacts prescribed in 1976 were soft lenses.

Each type of lens has its advantages and disadvantages.

between $250 and $350. Hard lenses generally last longer. The optometrists' group says they can be worn for 10 years or more, although the average person usually loses at least one lens long before that. The average replacement rate for soft lenses is one lens per wearer per year. You should go to a specialist for contact lenses. They cannot be made from eyeglass prescriptions. Ask about fees in advance. Find out exactly what the price includes and what sort of refund policy there is if, after a period of time, you decide you cannot or do not want to wear the lenses.
