

Emergency team has 'ears on' for twisters

By CHRIS EDWARDS
Pampa News Staff

Dorothy and Totó may have escaped unharmed, but the 110 tornadoes in Texas during 1977 left a wake of damage and one death — and tornado season is rolling across in the Panhandle again.

This year the Gray County Emergency Team, a group of persons with CB radios in their vehicles, will report the sighting of tornadoes to the Pampa police department so that the public will be better informed when tornadoes are near Pampa, said Lieutenant J.J. Ryzman of the Pampa Police Department.

Members of the group will be stationed throughout Pampa when a tornado watch has been called. When a tornado is sighted, they will report its sighting, size and direction to a coordinator at a base station at the home of Mrs. Pat Dieter, who will report it to the police dispatcher.

Channel 9, the emergency channel, will be used for all sightings. Ryzman discouraged the use of that channel for any use that is not an emergency.

Members of the group will be trained by Darrell Sehorn, local meteorologist, at a non-public meeting Monday night at City Hall.

Paul Hassell, president of the team, said 13 mobile units with two-person teams will be stationed all over Pampa — with more at the southwest and west portions or "critical" points of town. Most tornadoes move from the southwest to the northeast.

Last year a group of CBers also reported tornadoes unofficially. Hassell said, but the attempt was uncoordinated and the persons weren't trained.

"We won't do anything until the police department calls," he said.

The group, formed in July 1977, will receive training on how to judge the location, the speed, and the direction of movement of a tornado. Sighting a tornado is difficult at night, Hassell said, with "some pretty good lightning."

Last year seven false sightings were reported, with one person calling to say one was "right on top of City Hall" and another who reported that one was moving down Cuyler.

"It was mass confusion," Hassell said of the false sightings. He said members of the team who receive training will be given identification cards and the police department "doesn't want anybody out there without training."

More than the 26 persons for the mobile units will be trained, Hassell said, so stations will still be manned if a tornado watch is called when the regular team is working or sick. The persons will stay in their vehicles and not move from place to place, Hassell said.

The team also will have standby base stations for dispatching "in case my house gets hit by lightning or something," Mrs. Dieter said.

Hassell said the Gray County Emergency Team is working out a tentative plan with the Gray County Red Cross so that the team may assist with emergency operations if a tornado hits.

Members of the group also will receive training on how to take appropriate action in finding cover. "It's not the most pleasant thing to do, sitting around and waiting for a tornado to come down and talk to you," Hassell said.

Forty-four deaths in the nation were attributed to tornadoes in 1977. Jean Ann Long of the Insurance Information Institute in Austin said Wednesday, but no tornadoes have been reported yet for 1978.

The 110 tornadoes reported for Texas in 1977 compare to 176 and two deaths in 1976 and 118 and 10 deaths in 1975.

Tornadoes hit most often during April, May and June, reports from the institute indicate, but may hit at any time. Speed is about 30 mph, but those in the funnel may move as fast as 300 mph.

Tornadoes usually touch ground about ten minutes at a time, leaving a path about 400 yards wide. Average tornado length is about four miles, but may extend to hundreds of miles, the reports indicated.

Most tornadoes are sighted between 3 and 7 p.m.

A tornado at Kingsmill in May 1977 caused an estimated $30,000 damage to a grain elevator, reports from the institute indicated, but no injuries were reported.

Persons in McLean, Alanreed and Lefors who are interested in providing tornado protection for their communities and Gray County should contact Hassell at 9-2938.

Sirens to blow

Pampa's disaster warning sirens will blow at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday. City Manager Mack Wofford said.

The eight sirens located over the city are being tested prior to the season when tornadoes are most prevalent in the area.

Wofford said the sirens sound only one signal and that is "if we believe danger is imminent. If you hear that siren, go to the nearest place of safety immediately."

But not when it sounds at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday. That will just be a test of the equipment.

Steering a prize-winning steer

Melinda Phifer, 11, Miami, exits the arena this morning leading her Hereford which won first place in the medium weight division. Steer judging was expected to be completed before noon today in the annual Top O' Texas Regional Show and Sale at the show barn in Recreation Park. Barrow judging was to be this afternoon. Registered Hereford classes will be judged Tuesday. Also set for Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., is the annual Hereford Association Banquet in the M.K. Brown Heritage Room. Reagan Brown, Texas agriculture commissioner, will speak. Floyd Sackett, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said a few tickets still are available at $8 each for that event. The menu will feature steak.

Coal miners don't show up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Miners stayed home by the thousands today, ignoring a back-to-work court order as coal industry and union negotiators took a day off from bargaining on a contract to end the 98-day coal strike.

The Carter administration was hoping enough miners would obey a federal judge's back-to-work order so that at least limited mine production could resume to ease the plight of coal-short regions.

But early reports from the coalfields indicated that not enough union members were showing up for the first two shifts for production to resume. There were no reports of violence and only isolated cases of picketing, which is specifically banned by the court order.

The union has predicted that the back-to-work order would be widely ignored by the 160,000 striking miners.

A Justice Department spokesman said the administration expects miners gradually will return to work this week. "We believe the bulk of miners will obey the order," said spokesman Mark Sheehan.

He said that by mid-day, federal marshals had served copies of the court order on about 90 percent of the coal companies and union locals named as defendants.

But he said officials would exercise "responsible restraint" in enforcing the order. "We don't plan any hasty or ill-conceived action. We don't seek any confrontation," Sheehan said.

Meanwhile, industry and union bargainers said they were making some progress after a weekend of talks but aren't on the verge of a negotiation breakthrough.

A spokesman for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association said the two sides had no plans to meet face-to-face today, although "we are continuing to work" on the issues in dispute in separate meetings.

Top industry bargainers returned home Sunday but planned to return here either today or Tuesday.

"We're getting down to the brass tacks," to the hard issues," Nicholas T. Camuca, chief industry bargainer, said Sunday as he left the hotel where the weekend talks were held. He said he was encouraged but added, "We still have a lot of work to do."

Hopes for a swift settlement in the 14-week-old walkout faded as the two sides recessed general talks after a brief Sunday session so that small groups of lower-ranking negotiators could work on contract language covering specific issues.

Among the differences separating the two sides are union demands to continue free health care benefits provided under the expired 1974 contract and elimination of proposed industry penalties to curb wildcat strikes.

That was the general picture at strip mines in Tennessee and deep mines in West Virginia, and in the coal country of Kentucky, Illinois, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. United Mine Workers members have been on strike in those areas since Dec. 6, cutting off half the nation's soft coal production.

There were reports of a few miners picketing in Pennsylvania, Tennessee and West Virginia, and of a few mines at which some miners showed up.

"We've had a few isolated instances of an employee or two showing up," said a spokesman for Bethlehem Mines Corp., which runs 11 mines in Pennsylvania. But there were so few that they were sent home.

Near Welch, W. Va., however, some 30 men of the 150-man 8 a.m. shift did report at Eastern Associated Coal Co.'s No. 1 mine — enough to do some maintenance chores, although not enough to produce coal. One man had showed up for the midnight shift, and he had been sent home.

An official of United Mine Workers Local 6196, who asked his name not be used, said the men on the midnight shift at Welch had stayed away because of the possibility of picketing or violence in the dark.

There were no pickets there at 8 a.m., and the local official predicted more men would report for future shifts if pickets did not show up. He said his men went very much to work and "somebody's got to make a start."

"No one showed up. The only miners here are watching us on the fringe of the property out on the highway," said Bob McGregor, who supervised a dozen non-union foremen on their midnight shift maintenance rounds at the portal of the Mathies Mine Co. in Thomas, Pa.

McGregor said the underground mine normally employs 570 United Mine Workers employees.

UMW locals which had been served with the Taft-Hartley injunction were told to report back to work at 12:01 a.m. today, but union leadership had predicted the order would be ignored.

"We blew the work whistle, but there are no miners," John Hall of the Peabody Coal Co. mine at Baldwin, Ill., said today.

Moluccans take hostages

ASSEN, Netherlands (AP) — Heavily armed, masked South Moluccan militants shot their way into a government office building today, wounding several persons and taking many others hostage, police said.

The area around this northern Dutch city has been the scene of previous terror attacks by South Moluccans who demand Dutch help in winning independence from Indonesia for their Asian homeland.

At least two persons fleeing the Drente provincial headquarters were gunned down from behind and slightly wounded, and first reports said others were shot inside.

Unconfirmed estimates of the number trapped in the modern office building ranged from 30 to 40.

The terrorists, numbering at least three and said to be armed with pistols and at least one machine gun, sprayed the streets outside with gunfire from upper-floor windows. Police in armored cars ringed the building.

Many government employees fled the building in a panic, some sliding down fire hoses lowered from windows and then fleeing through the backyard, police said.

"The bullets were flying about our ears," said Leo G. Klok, 42, a government clerk who escaped without injury.

Police spokesman P.T. Sinnema said one of the Moluccans rode up to the building in a taxi, pulled out a concealed machine gun and stormed through the main entrance, firing off shots. Within minutes at least two armed comrades joined him inside, Sinnema said.

Police said they believe the attackers wanted to kidnap provincial Commissioner Tinneke Schiltuis, Drente's top executive. But she escaped through a window of her ground-floor office.

Klok said he was drinking coffee in his second floor office when he heard an uproar outside the building.

Witnesses said the gunmen shot up an ambulance that rolled toward the building in an attempt to remove a wounded man lying outside.

Scientists to study gene risks

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists soon will begin long-awaited tests to assess potential risks of recombinant DNA research, a controversial form of genetic manipulation that could revolutionize biology.

But even before these first tests begin, probably in April, critics are saying the experiments into possible hazards should have been done before scientists made their commitment to genesplitting — possible benefits not withstanding.

National Institutes of Health scientists will do the risk assessment at the NIH campus in Bethesda, Md., and at the Army's old germ warfare laboratory at Fort Detrick, Md.

Learning if organisms altered by recombinant DNA methods can infect animals and survive outside special laboratory conditions has been talked about for more than a year. Experiments were supposed to have begun last November.

But a lawsuit by Ferdinand Mack delayed the startup. The Frederick, Md., lawyer contended the experiments at nearby Fort Detrick did not comply with national environmental laws. On Feb. 23, a U.S.

district court judge ruled the experiments posed no substantial human risk. An appeals court upheld the decision last week.

Recombinant DNA research manipulates deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA), the basic genetic component of life. The research splices and transfers genetic material from one species of organism to another, creating life forms not found naturally.

Proponents say the work may unravel questions about basic biology. They also think experiments could lead to new drugs and vaccines, plants that don't need fertilizer, and microorganisms "factories" that could make large quantities of insulin.

But critics say the work could build virulent disease organisms. Should they escape the laboratory, critics contend, humans, animals and plants might be caught defenseless without antibodies to fight the new strain.

These concerns led NIH to issue safety guidelines for the research in 1976. Congress still is considering legislation to limit and control the work.

"The risks still all remain potential," Dr. William J. Gartland, director of NIH's Office of Recombinant DNA Activities, said in an interview. "People have been doing recombinant DNA work for four years and have had no ill effects."

But critics like Dr. Jonathan King, a biologist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, say assessing a new technology should be done before any commitment is made to it. He says many scientists are moving into recombinant DNA research with little proof that it is as safe as they believe.

"The fact is that there is no risk assessment program," King said. "NIH is financing a few experiments, but it is just a beginning. The results will be useful, but what we need is a well-financed, systematic program of risk assessment."

King agreed with proponents that the most common host organism now used in the research, a bacterium called Escherichia coli K-12, probably is safe.

"But there are definite indications some other host organisms are being used or contemplated and we have no idea what the risks associated with them are," he said. Gartland said the upcoming experiments by Drs. Wallace Rowe and Malcolm Martin are designed to show whether risks from the research are actual or just potential. Other risk experiments will be conducted as the need arises, he added.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The goal of supervisors

The cars, the appliances, both large and small, and other devices which make up our aids to better living, seem to be a general subject of some dissatisfaction. Those which fail in proper function get the most attention, while those performing as they were meant to are likely to be overlooked.

This is not to say that in the manufacture of our mechanical and electrical aids to good living there are not cases of malfunction and faulty construction.

For the most part we believe that technology and design of nearly all the devices we use are far ahead of those produced in the recent past. However, malfunction of properly designed units does not take place too often. Final inspection cannot reveal all the things which can lead to trouble.

Sloppy assembly of parts and the finished product give trouble to the user and become costly to the dealer, distributor and the manufacturer. We hear some older workmen blame the younger generation for "having no pride in their work." In some cases this may be true, but we wonder if it is bad attitude or boredom related to mass production which is the root cause.

A recent article in U.S. News and World Report casts some interesting light on the subject. The magazine quotes Alfred J. Marrow, an industrial psychologist and former president of a textile company. Marrow says, "People problems, often stemming from poor management are causing an increasing number of difficulties for large and small companies."

important function: handling and getting the best out of each individual.

Marrow lends credence to this as he relates production difficulties to "demoralized people" who are not working at their potential. He says, "The result is high labor turnover, low productivity, frequent absenteeism, wildcat strikes and lowered product quality. A major cause is poor bossing. Too many managers don't have scientific understandings about how to get along with employees. They try to run their plants autocratically with no real attempt at two-way communication."

In this situation, Marrow says that initiative is stifled, staffs are kept dependent and workers shy away from taking responsibility for fear of rebuke or reprisal.

Marrow states that only a small percentage of firms are concentrating on giving educational courses to lower levels of supervision. He says, "Let's take the problem of poor workmanship. Instead of calling in a group of workers and asking, 'What can we do to improve quality?' all too many managers take the opposite tack. They say, 'Now look, this shoddy production has got to stop. If you don't do the things the way I want them done, we are going to see some new faces around here.'"

"These bosses are flaunting their power rather than sharing it. They ought to be seeking advice from the people they are supervising. Nobody knows more about a particular job than the person who is doing it day in and day out," Marrow said.

We think that product technology and design are far ahead of the necessary knowledge to get the most out of the people on the production line. Most workers would like to be proud of the results of their work in product production. If given the opportunity, they will respond to more enlightened supervision.

Elbert Hubbard gave us a great goal for supervisors when he said, "It is a fine thing to have ability, but the ability to discover ability in others is the true test."

Meddling with our money

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
No lending institution should be pressured by politicians into making unsound loans.

The money available for loans at banks and other savings institutions is money placed there by depositors who trust that the lenders will make loans to people who are good credit risks.

Unfortunately, lending institutions are under tremendous pressure from the federal government to make loans to politically favored groups who don't meet the test of credit worthiness.

So-called "redlining" is condemned by liberal congressmen and executive branch officials who allege that this is the practice of discriminating against extending mortgage loans in low income neighborhoods. In point of fact, there is good reason to regard the "redlining" charge as a red herring. Lenders are eager to make loans to anyone who will repay a loan.

In Washington, D.C., a public committee has been formed to review appeals from district residents who believe they haven't received fair consideration on their loan applications.

Outside bodies in many communities are closely scrutinizing loan procedures. Depositors would do well to organize counterpressure against this outside review. Inevitably, lending institutions will be forced to make loans against their better judgment — and against the best interests of the depositors whose money is involved.

A lending institution doesn't have a responsibility to provide a loan to anyone who applies for one. Only those who are deemed responsible should receive consideration. After all, the officers of a lending institution aren't acting as agents of the general public but as responsible custodians of the shareholders in the institution and those who have deposited funds therein.

Credit in our era has been easy — too easy, in fact. Many people have come to think of bank credit as a right; individuals with poor credit ratings become indignant when they are turned down for a car loan or a home mortgage. They imagined that a bank loan is a civil right. Well, the money they seek belongs to someone else. A lending institution has a duty to safeguard that money.

At the same time, politicians are so accustomed to throwing around the public's money, that they think they can do the same with the savings of private citizens. They want every voter to be qualified for an instant bank loan. That may be sharp politics, but it's an impossible basis on which to operate a lending institution.

Not a few members of Congress are eager for the federal government to allocate credit. This would be the ultimate political tool. If political rules can be laid down for private lenders, politicians can use the money of prudent citizens to buy the votes of the improvident. "Redlining" is one of the battle cries of the advocates of federal allocation of credit.

When one reads about so-called "redlining," therefore, one should ask whether a lender is simply declining to make a loan to someone who has a record of non-payment of debts. If he declines to lend for that reason, the lender is subject to political pressure, and the accusation of "redlining."

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, March 13, the 72nd day of 1978. There are 293 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1868, impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson began in the U.S. Senate. He was acquitted May 26.

On this date: In 1974, the Arab oil-producing countries agreed to end a five-month-old embargo on petroleum sales to the United States.

Japanese firms studied

WORK: Consider, for a moment, companies like IBM, Kodak, Cummins Engine, Levi Strauss, 3M and Proctor & Gamble. Employee turnover is low, loyalty and morale are said to be high. Worker identification with each firm is strong. This, say Stanford University researchers, is more typical of Japanese firms. And where Japanese have purchased western companies, the operating principles that result in the aforementioned employee attitudes are being put into effect, with positive results. What's new is that a number of western firms are beginning to take the Japanese approach more than somewhat seriously to find out if it can be adapted to the more free-wheeling western attitudes.

PHONES: While ordinary mortals sleep, new devices are going to be hard at work, each one automatically running diagnostic tests on some 50,000 telephone lines a night. These devices, rigged to minicomputers, even will provide repairmen with a printout listing problem lines in order of seriousness, and continue to monitor lines silently during the day. It's expected that the use of these diagnostic machines will become widespread during the next decade as phone companies attempt to reduce repair costs.

BRAIN: Imagine, if you will, an electrode and a transmitter (FM) so tiny they would just about cover your fingernail. The electrode consists of a bundle of wires thinner than a human hair and it is being implanted harmlessly into the brain of laboratory animals. Then in conjunction with the FM unit, it broadcasts the electrical signals of a single cell. The purpose of this rig, developed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is to help map the pathways through which information flows in the brain. But down the pike is the distinct possibility that it could be used, for example, to study people in stressful jobs.

DRUGS: Anxious about something? Suffering from stage fright? Then consider this British report on a drug called oxprenolol: It curbs anxiety without affecting the central nervous system (sedatives, while they have a calming effect, act on the system and can impair performance). According to Lancet, the highly regarded medical journal, Dr. I. M. James of London's Royal Free Hospital, tried oxprenolol and a placebo (a harmless pill) on 24 musicians. They felt calmer and more cheerful about how they performed when they got the drug than when they got the dummy medication. Two professional musicians judged their performance and found that it improved under the effects of oxprenolol. In short, if further experience supports this research, we may well have something much better than drugs like Miltown.

AUTOS: Models manufactured this year will average at least 18 miles per gallon. By 1985, the figure is supposed to hit 27 1/2 m.p.g. The best way to achieve this goal, of course, is to reduce the weight of the car. Full-sized models now average more than two tons; by the mid-80s, they're expected to range between 3,000 and 3,500 pounds. One of the approaches to weight reduction will be tested next year by Ford, which will try a tough plastic-graphite combination in some parts. The lower weight will permit a smaller engine—and add an estimated six miles per gallon to performance.

WINTER: People who think seriously about the quality of life are proposing that areas where the winters are grim can do something about it, and their ideas are catching on in a few places. For example, twinkling lights on trees can help relieve the gloom. Evergreens can replace dying elms and provide a lovely contrast with the snow and slush. Birds can be attracted by heated municipal birdbaths. Outdoor vendors can be encouraged to set up shop along business malls. Downtown skating rinks could be filled by workers during lunch hours. In short, the idea is to create the illusion of pleasure during winter, even though the weather is awful.

RESEARCH: Scientists at the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Silver Run, Md., have succeeded in propagating 65 vines from just one cubic centimeter of grape vine tissue. It's part of an experiment to propagate grape vines more quickly, using a technique called tissue culturing. This involves inducing cells to form embryos in a nutrient medium (within a test tube) and then further culturing these into mature vines.

The spitting image

By JIM FITZGERALD

There is too much negative news coming out of the White House. Never mind what Hamilton Jordan DIDN'T do. This nation should take a more positive stance. What did he do?

In 33 pages of statements, the White House said Jordan didn't spit his drink on a young woman's blouse in a Washington bar.

"That's what Jordan didn't do in February. A few months earlier, the White House said Jordan didn't look for the twin pyramids of Egypt inside the dress of the wife of the Egyptian ambassador to the United States.

There has also been a high-level report that Jordan didn't begin "grabbing" a young professional woman while dancing with her in Los Angeles last fall.

And Jordan doesn't live with his wife. Jordan's slothful image was probably best summed up by the bartender who was asked if he'd seen Jordan spit a drink at anyone.

"I saw him do nothing," the bartender answered.

In view of all the things Jordan doesn't do, it seems fair to ask what he does do. So I asked my friend Wally who has been an investigative reporter in Washington for many years.

"Hamilton Jordan is President Carter's top political adviser and strategist, his chief troubleshooter on domestic problems, and he helps make the decisions on touchy foreign policy issues such as the Panama Canal and the Middle East," Wally said.

"Wow," I said. "Jordan has important responsibilities. Why don't you investigate reporters report what he does to get the canal treaties ratified instead of what he does to get a woman wet in a singles bar?"

"You just don't understand what makes news," Wally explained. "I'll give you an example. If a woman says Jordan simply spit on her, that's no big deal. But in this case, the report is that Jordan spit his drink over the head of one woman and directly down the blouse of a second woman. The middle woman didn't get wet. That isn't easy to do. That was no ordinary spit and the American people should be told about it."

"I might go along with you if it could be proved that the woman in the middle was taller than both Jordan and the woman who was allegedly spit on," I said. "That would have required Jordan to spit his drink down cleavage he couldn't see, arching his slosh over the top of the tall woman's head so that it would descend at just the right angle to enter the short woman's shirt. That would be quite a spit and I can see why maybe it should be on the 6 o'clock news."

"Now you're getting the idea," Wally said. "And don't forget that the woman who said she was spit on also said Jordan wrote her a dirty limerick while rubbing the small of her back. That requires more dexterity than walking and chewing gum at the same time. The American people should know there is a man of such unusual talent working in the White House, so they can feel proud."

"There may be some merit in what you say, Wally," I said, "but I'm still bothered by the fact that the White House has 33 pages of statements taken from witnesses who swear Jordan swallowed everything and spit nothing. How can you be sure they are lying and the woman who says she was spit on is telling the truth?"

"Some news is so important it must be reported even if there's a chance it isn't true," Wally said. "And besides, I learned from an authoritative source close to the White House that Jordan often moves his Adam's apple when not swallowing, and he can spit between his teeth. This indicates the eyewitnesses could have been mistaken."

"The American people are certainly fortunate to have all you investigative reporters on duty 24 hours every day in Washington. Otherwise we wouldn't know anything important about how this nation is run," I said. "But still, it seems unfair that the White House must continually issue denials saying Hamilton Jordan didn't do so many things. It gives him a do-nothing image."

"That is an unfair image," Wally conceded. "Jordan is really a hard worker, or at least the spitting image of a hard worker."

Landscape Horticulture
The second session of a horticulture short course will be Thursday in Panama at the Courthouse Annex Meeting room. Everett Janne, Extension landscape horticulturist, will present the programs.
At 1:30 p.m. he will discuss general landscape maintenance, which will include pruning and management of trees, shrubs, and indoor plants.
This will be followed at 7:30 p.m. with a meeting where he will discuss roses. This is Janne's specialty and if you are interested in learning more about raising roses, plan to attend this meeting.
Everyone interested in improving your home landscape or raising roses should plan to attend either one or both meetings depending on your needs and interests. Both sessions will be very interesting and Janne is very knowledgeable on general landscape horticulture.
The final event for the horticulture short course has been postponed one week due to a schedule conflict and it will be March 28. This 7:30 p.m. meeting will cover general home fruit production. Blueford Hancock, Extension horticulturist, will discuss care and management of home fruit trees to include peaches, apples, pears, plums, apricots, cherries and pecans.
Delay Wheat Irrigation
Irrigated wheat farmers who are not planning to graze their wheat can save money by holding off on early March irrigations. Irrigated wheat that is going for grain production only can go without irrigation for a few more weeks if the farmer is interested in increasing his net profit. Our recent snows have replenished our soil moisture to adequate levels for awhile.
About all farmers get from early March irrigations is increased forage production from wheat when soil moisture is not real short.
Producing the most wheat per acre - inch of water can probably be made this year with two irrigations, one in early April and the other in early May.
If farmers are interested in going for higher yields of wheat and want to apply three irrigations, then I would recommend the following: one irrigation in late March, the second irrigation in late April and the third irrigation about the middle of May.

With irrigation costs up, wheat prices down, fairly adequate moisture in the soil, it makes sense to me, to hold off irrigating wheat at least until the latter part of March or early April.
Control Scale Insects
Very few plants are likely to escape attack from scale insects, and now is the time gardeners should undertake one of the few effective control measures against the destructive pests. The insects get their name from the fact that the adults form a protective layer of wax over the body. This protective shield, which may vary from a thin wax layer to several layers in the form of plates, powders or tufts, makes the insect relatively safe from most insecticides.
Dormant oils applied during the late winter and early spring offer one of the few measures effective in controlling scale insects. Dormant oils kill all life stages of the scale insect. A continuous oil film envelops the insects, eventually suffocating them. Except for the plant roots, the plant must be completely covered with oil to obtain satisfactory control.
Dormant oils should be applied before buds begin to swell, when temperatures are between 40 and 65 degrees Fahrenheit, and when no freezing weather is expected for the next 48 hours.
Dormant oils have several advantages over most insecticides used in scale control. They are less expensive, give effective control when applied properly, leave minimum residue on fruits and nuts, and are safe to handle. Dormant oils have the additional advantage of being effective against other pests, such as mites, pecan phylloxera and hibernating caterpillars. The oils also kill the eggs of numerous other insect pests.
When mixing and applying dormant oils, the gardener should use only the amounts recommended by the manufacturer. Some trees tolerant of the recommended application rates of oil may be damaged if excessive amounts are used. Even recommended rates have been noted to cause damage to such trees as beech, sugar and Japanese maple, hickory, walnut, butternut, Douglas fir and Colorado blue spruce.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Arab oil countries are divided on how to restore the purchasing power of their oil revenues to offset the decline in the value of the dollar.
Some demand an immediate increase in the price of crude oil. Some want to stop using the dollar as the standard currency for the international oil trade. Some advise patience until the dollar recovers.
Kuwait, which says it is losing more than $1 million per day due to inflation and the drop in the dollar's value, has called for a special meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to discuss the situation.
Venezuela, OPEC's current champion, said Sunday it had sent out invitations for an "informal meeting" in Geneva April 3. But Energy and Mines Minister Valentin Hernandez said no decisions would be taken.
OPEC's next regular semi-annual meeting is due in June.
Kuwait Finance Minister Abdul Atiqi says OPEC agreed to a price freeze at its December meeting in Caracas on the assumption that the dollar would be stabilized, and inflation curbed. He said the United States and the other industrial countries have not done this, and therefore the freeze should end.
Atiqi and Kuwaiti Oil Minister Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah said they favor an immediate price increase or an alternative oil payment system, such as the International Monetary Fund's special drawing rights, which are based on an average of currencies.

Dollar devaluation pinches Arabs

The United Arab Emirates says it is losing nearly $1 million a day, but Oil Minister Mana Oteiba ruled out a price hike. Instead, he proposed a three-tier pricing system based on the dollar, Arab currencies and gold.
Iraq, which expects to earn $25 billion in oil revenues through increased production this year to meet development needs, has called for abandonment of the dollar as the calculating unit for oil prices. Oil Minister Tarek Abdul Karim said Iraq would support any solution guaranteeing the purchasing power of oil revenues, whether by replacing the dollar with special drawing rights or with other currencies.
Qatar called for the creation of a new unit of currency, to be called the OPEC dollar, which would be used to determine oil prices. Qatar calculated OPEC losses as a result of the dollar decline at $14 billion.
The Middle East Economic Survey, a well-informed weekly newsletter on oil affairs, said Saudi Arabia is not keen on an OPEC meeting to reopen the price issue, even if specifically restricted to the dollar situation, before the June meeting.
With the bulk of their huge foreign assets in dollar investments, the Saudis want the oil price freeze to continue until the end of 1978, the newsletter said.

Survivors tell story of terrorist murders

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — It was 4 p.m. Saturday, and 63 Israeli sightseers boarded their bus in high spirits after spending the Sabbath touring a stalagmite cave.
In Tel Aviv, bus No. 901 revved up, took on 20 passengers and headed north for Haifa.
Thirty-seven miles to the north, two rubber dinghies escaped from the choppy Mediterranean and beached on the rugged Israeli coast. Eleven Palestinian guerrillas — nine men and two women — jumped out and unloaded guns, explosives and ammunition a few hundred yards from the Tel Aviv-Haifa coastal expressway.
The terrorists had intended to sail farther south, to Tel Aviv, but the rough sea forced them to beach near the fishing village of Maagan Michaels.
Gail Rubin, a photographer who emigrated from New York City five years ago, came upon them. The terrorists shot and killed her without attracting any attention, then hiked to the highway through a nature preserve. They thumbed down a taxi and killed its passengers.
Cabdriver Shlomo Cohen, 47, said he escaped by diving into a fishpond and swimming for his life. Behind him, he heard the rattle of gunfire.
The shots were directed at Bus 901, which had reached Maagan Michaels.
"The terrorists jumped on the bus shouting, 'Palestine! Arafat!'" said Rina Nini, 45, one of the passengers. "They pointed a gun at the driver's head and told him to go to Tel Aviv."
The bus made a U-turn while the hijackers shouted at the passengers to keep calm. Some of the Israelis had been wounded in the initial burst of gunfire, and the rest were too scared to read the leaflets the attackers handed out.
"It was something about coming to liberate Palestine from the Zionists," Mrs. Nini said.
Meanwhile, the tourist bus returning from the stalagmite cave was 30 miles north of Tel Aviv when the driver saw Bus 901 stopped and people milling around it. He slowed down and caught a blast of bullets from the terrorists.
"I looked out the window and saw some people shooting at us," said 10-year-old Ronnie Boshkevitz. "My mother slumped in her seat, bleeding. We started jumping out."
"My father dragged my mother out the door. I was shouting and running across sand dunes. Bullets whistled past me. I fell again and closed my eyes. They must have thought I was dead because the shooting stopped."
The terrorists herded the 15 passengers from Bus 901 onto the sightseeing coach, giving them a total of 70 hostages. They tied the men to their seats with ropes.
"Tel Aviv!" they told the bus driver.
By now the police force was beginning to realize that something serious was happening on the highway. It was just after 5 p.m., and the sightseeing bus was barreling full speed down the road, machine gun fire and grenades spewing from its windows.
Hitchhiker Ezra Bismi saw a driver stop in amazement. He was shot in the head. Maya Sosinsky turned around to see the back seat of her car pocked with bullets and her parents wounded and bleeding.

Just before the town of Netanyahu, with Tel Aviv still 20 miles away, an Israeli police jeep gave chase. The terrorists smashed the rear window of the bus and warded off their pursuers with gunfire.
At Netanya, a policeman tried to block the road with his car. The bus swerved past it, and the officer was hit by a confused motorist.
The police set up a roadblock of jeeps seven miles north of Tel Aviv outside a country club. An anti-terrorist commando squad took up positions along the route.
Prime Minister Menachem Begin called in his top advisers, and together the officials followed the bus's progress.
A few miles before the blockade, two more jeeps took up the chase. The terrorists threw a grenade that blew up the first jeep. The second jeep crashed into the wreckage.
"The jeeps were shooting over our heads and all over the place," said Avraham Shamir, 38, one of the hostages.
The bus reached the country club at 5:25 p.m. and slowed for the barricade. The Israelis shot the tires, flattening them and stopping the bus. A gun battle erupted.
"I threw my handbag out of the window, thinking someone should know I was here," said Mrs. Nini. "People were pushing their children out the windows. Someone was shouting to us to jump. So I jumped."
Some of the terrorists escaped into roadside bushes.
"I saw one and fired," said policeman Victor Ben-Shoshan. "He threw a grenade. I lay flat and it exploded behind me. When he got up to throw another one I shot him."
Inside the bus, grenades started to explode. Avraham Shamir said he grabbed a gun from a fallen terrorist and shot two of the gunmen before jumping to safety. He was shot in the eye and shoulder.
Then the bus blew up. The air filled with smoke and the smells of burning flesh, upholstery and gasoline. Medics ran to help the wounded. Badly burned victims screamed and writhed on the ground.
The bus became a huge ball of fire, and 25 people were incinerated.

Raza Unida 'recovers' from drug stigma

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Raza Unida Party gubernatorial candidate says his party has recovered from the bad effects caused by the drug-related conviction of its former candidate for governor.
Mario Compean said party members were disappointed about the arrest and conviction of Ramsey Muniz, the Raza Unida gubernatorial candidate in 1972 and 1974.
"That was the kind of disappointment that was immediately felt," said Compean of the conviction of Muniz, who is now serving a prison term for his conviction on charges that he conspired to distribute marijuana.
"Whatever has been very clear since his conviction is that the real reason he is in prison is not because he was in illicit traffic of drugs, but rather because he was a threat to the very powerful," Compean said.

Compean, a co-founder of the Raza Unida Party from San Antonio, appeared Sunday on Capital Eye, a TV panel show.
Compean also said the worth of a program such as the Zavala County Economic Development Corp. should be judged by its value to the community alone.
The economic development program proposed for Zavala County has been criticized by Gov. Dolph Briscoe as being inpatient socialism.
"The communistic threat of course is there, it's a very convenient charge to be used by our opponents," Compean said. "I think the people in the state are much more intelligent than believing stuff, or charges hurled at by what I think is an illiterate governor. Those kinds of charges won't hold any wa-

Begin vows to eliminate threat

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinian strongholds in southern Lebanon are considered likely targets of Israeli attacks in retaliation for the weekend Arab terrorist raid in which the Israeli government said 36 of its citizens were killed, 72 were wounded and all 11 raiders were killed or captured.

"Those who kill Jews in our time cannot enjoy impunity," said Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who vowed Israel "will eliminate this threat" of terrorism.

Begin met with his cabinet today to launch an inquiry into how the guerrillas, in two rubber boats, were able to pierce Israel's coastal defenses and terrorize the main Tel Aviv-Haifa highway, and why it took security forces almost an hour to stop a bus hijacked by the raiders.

More of the dead were buried today.

"The relative quiet that has prevailed in the recent past created an illusion of tranquility," Parliament member Haim Corfu said in the eulogy at one of the services. "This despicable murder has brought us back to the ground of reality."

Beirut newspapers claimed Israel was massing troops and armor along much of its 60-mile frontier with Lebanon. They predicted a three-pronged assault including a tank thrust against guerrilla bases in south Lebanon, a naval bombardment of the port of Tyre, which is now a guerrilla headquarters, and air strikes against Palestinian refugee camps in the Beirut area.

Although the raiders came from Lebanon, that nation's defense and foreign minister, Fuad Butros, denied the Lebanese were in any way involved. He called in the ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China to ask their help in averting an Israeli attack against Lebanese territory.

Begin, postponing his trip to Washington for at least a week, also made clear that the Palestinian assault Saturday on two buses sharpened his opposition to a Palestinian state on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and to complete Israeli withdrawal from the territory, the central issues blocking a peace agreement between Egypt and Israel.

"It is unthinkable that in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza Strip a state will arise that will be ruled by Yasser Arafat and his murderers," Begin told a news conference.

Judea and Samaria are the biblical names for the West Bank, which Israel occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War. Arafat's Al Fatah guerrillas, the largest group in the Palestine Liberation Organization, said it sent the two boatloads of raiders to the Israeli coast. It warned that "the coming days will see more guerrilla raids deeper inside Palestine."

Begin called the PLO "the most despicable organization since the Nazis" and sharply criticized the Soviet Union because the raiders carried Russian weapons. But the Israeli leader said the attack "should not and will not" affect peace negotiations with Egypt — believed to be one of the aims of the terrorist ambush.

Funerals for the victims began with the burial of a 5-year-old girl, Na'ama Hadani. Others were scheduled today, but some of the corpse still had not been identified.

Among the dead was Gail Rubin, 39, a photographer from New York City who immigrated to Israel five years ago and held dual American and Israeli citizenship. Friends said she was a niece of a sister-in-law of Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Believed to be the first victim of the guerrilla attack, Miss Rubin was on the beach at the fishing village of Maagan Michaels, 37 miles north of Tel Aviv, when the terrorists came ashore in two rubber dinghies.

Bandaid for dollar planned

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A joint U.S.-West German attempt to stop the fall of the dollar was announced today in Bonn and Washington. European foreign-exchange dealers called the plan disappointing and the dollar dropped against the Deutsche mark and Swiss franc.

The American currency, which stood at 2.0841 marks on the Frankfurt market in morning rates, slipped to 2.0630 immediately after the announcement. In Zurich, the dollar fell from 1.9806 Swiss francs to 1.9525 within an hour.

"It is disappointing," said one Zurich dealer, and another said the joint effort would "not help to restore confidence."

The key to the American-German plan was a commitment by the U.S. Federal Reserve Board to increase buying up dollars from foreign exchange markets when the U.S. currency drops in value.

The practice, already used widely by central banks in Europe, North America and Japan whenever an important currency drops below acceptable levels, has the effect of creating demand for the money, curbing dealers' desire to sell it.

The United States will finance its buying of dollars two ways — by borrowing marks from West Germany and by selling Bonn "paper gold" or the so-called special drawing rights (SDRs) from the International Monetary Fund.

President Carter announced at a news conference last Thursday that the procedure would be worked out during the weekend in telephone consultations between Anthony Solomon, U.S. Treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs, and Manfred Lahnstein, West German finance state secretary.

Boyd charged in vandalism

Steve Boyd, 21, 2145 Beech, was arrested by sheriff's officers recently and has been charged with criminal mischief in connection with a Tuesday vandalism incident at Memory Gardens cemetery on Price Road, Sheriff Rufe Jordan said today.

Charges were filed Friday and Boyd has been released on $3500 bond, Jordan said. Another charge may be filed today in connection with the incident that left three shotgun holes in an office at the cemetery, Jordan said.

Gray County sheriff's officers recently have arrested others charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, burglary and several misdemeanor charges, Jordan said today.

Jordan commended deputies Ken Kieth, Doug Davis and Kelly Rushing, who he said had been "very busy" and had done "a good job."

Jimmy J. Hunt, arrested during a sheriff's raid at 525 Roberta, has been charged with possession of marijuana, two counts of misdemeanor theft, and one count of forgery in passing, Jordan said today.

Hunt is charged with theft of a .357 magnum revolver stolen from Gibson's Discount Center on Perryton Parkway on Jan. 3 and the Jan. 25 theft of a .22 revolver from the Alvin Daur home, Jordan said. Both guns have been recovered.

Hunt also stands charged with forgery in connection with checks belonging to Charles Bellew. Bond for all charges is $9,000.

Other arrests made by the sheriff's office recently include Ricky Stinnet, 20, charged with aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon in connection with the Feb. 13 robbery of the Shamrock Station a mile west on Highway 60. Stinnet has also been charged with conspiracy to commit burglary in connection with an attempted robbery at a convenience store. Joe Mollinary of the Pampa police department was fired upon in that incident.

Jacky Cook, 26, Pampa, was arrested and charged with burglary in connection with a Feb. 19 burglary at Panhandle Meter Service 207 Price Road, Jordansaid.

Taken in that burglary were about $300 worth of hand tools, socket sets, a CB radio and an impact wrench. Cook was released on $3,000 bond.

Commissioners to consider county roads
Gray County commissioners will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the county courtroom to consider a resolution to approve a county farm and market road.

Not listed on the agenda but expected to be discussed is a Friday decision by Judge Grainger McIlhenny that Gray County must be redistricted.

The commissioners will consider approval of a bond for public weigher David Putman. Also to be considered will be welfare and treasurer's reports, time deposits and transfers of funds and bills as approved by the county auditor.

Water 'turbidity' not monitored

Each customer of Pampa's city-owned water department will receive a note on the backside of the next bill declaring:

"During the month of January 1978, the City of Pampa did not monitor turbidity. System records indicate no past violation of the turbidity standard. This notice is required by the State of Texas Dept. of Health to comply with Public Law 93-523."

City Manager Mack Wofford said today, "It should be expressly pointed out that the Health Department did not indicate any sample of water contained excessive turbidity, but only that testing was not performed."

He explained the reason for the failure to monitor was "the equipment necessary for this testing procedure had become inoperable and was in the process of being repaired."

Wofford defined turbidity as

"the opaque quality" of the water.

State and federal regulations allow a turbidity factor of 5 units. The average turbidity of the raw or incoming water, according to records at the Pampa Water Treatment Plant, is about 2.8 units.

"Finished water after treatment averages less than 2 units of turbidity," Wofford said. "Based on past history and records, it is logical to assume that during the period of Jan. 1 through Jan. 31, the water produced was in compliance with current standards."

He added that since testing has resumed, "there has been no indication of excessive turbidity during the entire time the Water Treatment Plant has been in operation since its construction."

Wofford said that any turbidity encountered in Pampa's water supply generally is inorganic, caused by silica (sand).

He emphasized that city water customers "can be assured that no change in water quality has occurred and that there is no cause for alarm concerning this matter since there is no indication that there has been any change in the turbidity level of our public water supply."

City leaders to meet Tue. on use permit

Pampa city commissioners will consider on first reading an ordinance granting a specific use permit for lots 1-3, block 30, original addition to the city, in a regular commission meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Other items on the agenda include:

- Hear a recommendation concerning award of bids for construction of water and sewer lines in the Overton Heights No. 5 and Casa de Loma Additions.
- Consider transfer of funds from water and sewer revenue to the general fund.
- Consider authorizing recent absences of members of the city commission as required by city charter.
- Consider approval of current accounts payable.
- Consider approval of salary changes for February.

Commission meetings are on the second floor of city hall and are open to the public.

Briscoe "didn't know" of fund misuse

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's top legal advisor says he does not know what the governor could have done to prevent the reported mismanagement of funds in the Governor's Office on Migrant Affairs (GOMA).

Don Adams said Briscoe acted decisively just as soon as he learned something was wrong in one of his divisions.

Adams says the controversy over GOMA, which is funded primarily by federal money, would not have attracted as much attention in a non-political year.

Adams, who is leaving GOMA as acting director to return as chief legal counsel to Gov. Briscoe, appeared Sunday on Capitol Dateline, a radio panel program.

"I think, if we had not been in a political year there would not have been as much interest in the agency," Adams, a former state senator from Jasper, said. "But there were some things wrong over there and it came to light during a political year which probably fed the problem."

Adams took the place of GOMA director Rojelio Perez who was suspended by Briscoe after he refused to testify before a Brownsville court of inquiry.

"Quite frankly, one of the problems we have now is all the investigations that are going on," Adams said. He noted that the Department of Community Affairs has a GOMA audit underway. Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle is investigating. The Department of Labor is investigating and the FBI has another investigation of alleged irregularities in the use of federal manpower funds.

"There is so much auditing and so much investigation going on that the staff over there had to stand in line to see the files," he said.

Adams predicted GOMA would "drop out of the news pretty shortly" and within a week or two will be operating in a "semi-routine manner."

Names in the news

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, was surrounded and jeered by campaigners against fox-hunting when she took part in trials of horses specially bred for the sport.

"Annie Stop Hunting Charlie," read the banners waved by about 15 members of the Hunt Saboteurs Association on Sunday. Charlie is slang for a fox.

"Who's paying you to do this?" Anne snapped at the demonstrators. "No one. We are paying for you," answered a man.

Anne receives a government allowance of $97,500 a year.

Her husband, army Capt. Mark Phillips, told the demonstrators: "Go away. I've got a headache."

He was persuaded to accept two badges, one bearing the name of the association and the other reading, "Hunt is a four-letter word."

LONDON (AP) — "I'm still free because I'm being shielded by the British people," said Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke as he evaded the clutches of Scotland Yard for the fifth day.

Duke, head of a New Orleans-based splinter group of the KKK, telephoned the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, on Sunday and said he plans to remain in Britain for at least another two weeks.

On Saturday night police said they narrowly missed the 27-year-old Jefferson, La., man, when they investigated a cross burning ceremony at a Warwickshire farm where he was staying.

His host, 59-year-old farmer Robin Beauchair, said police questioned him about the burning of a 10-foot wooden cross near the village of Southam, 75 miles northwest of London, after Duke's departure.

Gaullist coalition takes slight lead in France

PARIS (AP) — Socialists and Communists finished behind the center-right coalition in nearly complete returns today from the first round of the National Assembly elections, decreasing their chances of taking over the French government.

Official returns from 490 of the 491 voting districts gave 46.5 percent of Sunday's vote to President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's center-Gaullist coalition and 45.1 percent to the Socialists and Communists.

Small parties likely to back the centrists in next Sunday's runoff vote got 1.9 percent. Groups likely to support the left got 6.5 percent.

That leaves the leftists well short of the 53 percent which, because of gerrymandering, analysts figure the left needs on the first round to assure a majority in the lower house of Parliament. They were also well short of the 54-55 percent predicted for them by major opinion polls for months before the election.

With neither side a clear leader, leftist chances hinged on these major unknowns next Sunday:

—The extent to which leftist voters in the first round will stick to the left in the second round, defying the French tradition of "voting their heart in the first round and their pocketbooks in the second."

—The ability of Socialists and Communists to cooperate to pool runoff votes for the best placed leftist candidate.

—The decisions of extreme leftist and ecology voters, who are expected to vote leftist but

LONDON, Ontario (AP) — Singer Ella Fitzgerald had to cancel a weekend performance here because of illness.

Her physicians said the jazz singer suffered from a fever and chills.

Concert officials said all 2,300 tickets for the Saturday appearance had been sold.

NEW YORK (AP) — Prostitutes should be given immunity from prosecution in New York City in return for identifying their pimps to grand juries, says Mayor Edward Koch.

"I think we ought to require prostitutes with immunity to di-who are unpredictable.

So far only 61 of the 491 deputies have been elected on the first ballot.

Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand and Communist leader Georges Marchais scheduled a strategy meeting today. Any candidate getting more than 12 1/2 percent of the vote on the first round can still run next Sunday even if he ran third, and Mitterrand has said the Socialists are ready to increase the chances of leftist wins in the runoff elections next Sunday by withdrawing candidates who lagged behind Communists in the first round.

But there has been no indication that Marchais would agree to do the same.

The Socialists were leading the Communists 23.5 percent to 19.8 in the first round, and there is a widespread belief that the Communists would prefer, to see the left lose rather than play second fiddle to the Socialists in a coalition government.

Fire report

The Pampa Fire Department was called out on two grass fires Sunday. One was 1 1/2 miles east of Bowers City. The hundred acres that burned belonged to Wesley Cox, the cause was unknown.

A car fire was reported at 733 N. Zimmers, there was minor damage to the rear of the car. The cause of the fire was intentional, someone was seen starting it near the gas tank.

LONDON (AP) — Midwest bridge players Sunday captured the first two North American Championships at the Spring Championships of the American Contract Bridge League, now in the third day of competition.

Larry Kozlove of Louisville, Ky., and John Sheridan of Indianapolis won the Men's Pair title with a final score of 879.77, a wide margin over the second-place players, Paul Swanson of Morgantown, W. Va., and Roy Fox of Alexandria, Va., at 853.34.

Flo Rotman of Skokie, Ill. and Babs Charney, Milwaukee, Wis., won the Women's Pair title with a score of 868.84. In second place were Edith Kemp, Miami, and Barbara Rappaport, New York City, with 857.96.

Scores in duplicate bridge tournament play are computed from a comparison of results from the play of identical computer-dealt hands.

A Texas State Silver Trophy Competition, played in three flights, saw Mike Schira, Houston, and Mike Murphy of Dallas pile up a two-session score of 375 1/2 to win Flight A.

Ken Bains and Judith McNeff, both of Dallas, won the Flight B trophies with a score of 399 1/2 in a field of 496 pairs.

Mary Williams of Houston and Lorene Watt of Sugarland, Texas, captured the Flight C trophy with a score of 386.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: How do you get people to stay out of your life? I refer to my ex-in-laws.

I was married to their son for seven years, during which time I had two boys (their only grandchildren). Then their son and I got divorced.

Six months ago I married Mike. He's a wonderful guy and is crazy about the boys, whom he legally adopted. Everything would be perfect if these ex-in-laws would just stay out of our hair, but, Abby, they come over every Sunday afternoon to see the kids!

Are my children still their grandchildren? I have the papers to prove that Mike is their legal father. He is trying to be a good father, but with my ex-in-laws showing up every single Sunday, Mike is constantly reminded that he is trying to be a father to another man's children.

How can I get these people to forget about me and the kids so I can have a successful marriage without two strikes against me?

BUGGED BY MY EX-IN-LAWS

DEAR BUGGED: Your former in-laws will always be your children's biological grandparents regardless of who their legal father is. Asking grandparents to "forget" their only grandchildren is asking a lot. Please be a little more patient and understanding. A weekly visit doesn't seem excessive to me.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend Jim and I have a problem. I'll call her Evelyn. She says she likes us both the same and is currently dating both of us. This has been going on for three months.

Jim and I have discussed it several times and neither one of us wants to stop seeing her, although it's been putting a strain on our friendship. Evelyn refuses to make a choice between us and says it's up to us to settle it. What should we do?

TIED UP

DEAR TIED: You don't say how old you and Jim are, but if you're over 16, I suggest that you quit making boobs of yourselves by trying to "win" a girl who obviously feels nothing special for either one of you.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for 30 years and she still won't mend the pockets in my trousers. One time, when I thought I had persuaded her to do so, she just sewed my pockets shut.

Today was the final straw. I was wearing some trousers with a hole in the pocket and I bought a package of cigarettes. I put the change into my ripped pocket, and as a result, my cigarettes cost me a dollar.

What I want to know is, should I get a new wife, new pants or give up smoking.

SADSACK

DEAR SACK: You can start by giving up cigarettes. Then you can get some new pants and keep the old wife.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why is it that most doctors will prescribe Lanoxin or digitalis and not tell the patient to make sure he takes it every single day? Also that they should drink a couple of glasses of orange juice or eat a banana a day for potassium? Too many people take pills for granted and if they start to feel good they quit taking the medicine.

I read in one of your columns that if you take digitalis in any form you should never, never, never stop taking it unless your doctor says so. If you stopped taking it what would happen to you?

DEAR READER — Most people who take Lanoxin or other digitalis preparations take them because they have heart failure. A small number take them to control heart irregularities.

Heart failure causes fluid to collect in your lungs interfering with breathing. When the right heart is also involved you have swelling of the feet, ankles, abdomen and liver. The digitalis strengthens the heart muscle and enables the heart to pump enough blood to correct the heart failure. This works fine as long as you take it. As soon as you stop it, if you really had heart failure from permanent heart damage to begin with, the heart's pumping action gets weaker and the fluid starts accumulating again.

And while you say most doctors don't tell their patients to take their medicines I can't verify your statement. Of course some idealistic doctors are pretty naive and think their good patients are going to follow their instructions to the letter. It wouldn't occur to these doctors that after paying for medicine, that the patient would stop following his instructions by stopping the medicine.

After a few years of getting to know human habits such doctors realize the error of their ways. You are absolutely right that people often tend to stop taking medicine as soon as they feel better rather than as long as the doctor told them to take it.

Yes, some fruit juice or a banana helps keep your potassium level up, and this helps prevent some undesirable side effects of digitalis medicines that sometimes occur. People with heart problems and high blood pressure usually do better to limit their sodium salt and maintain adequate potassium intake. It is even a good idea for all of us; most people eat too much salt. To give you more information on this I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX, 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My three teenage children have a hi-fi which they play with the volume very high. In fact, it is deafening. I claim that it will damage their hearing if they continue to listen to it with the volume so high.

My own peace of mind is affected by the noise, but my main concern is the possible damage to their hearing. Would you please comment?

DEAR READER — You are right. It is deafening. Studies have been done, particularly on loud rock music, and continued exposure will lead to hearing damage. Noise damage is a real thing and the kind of noise doesn't make any difference — whether it is music, gunfire, engines or anything else. The loudness and range of the sound involved is what damages the ears.

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Our paper had your column headlined "Bread Isn't for the Birds." I am 64 and I have been feeding birds with old bread for as long as I can remember. What is wrong with feeding bread to birds today? Surely there is no law saying you cannot feed bread to the birds.

MARY LOUISE
DEAR MARY LOUISE — The answer given was not a law, only information from a large nature center where they study birds. I, too, have fed bread to birds many, many times not knowing the harm that could come to them from eating damp or wet bread. I am taking the word of an authority and will put something else out for the birds.

Future Mrs. Hutchinson backs winners

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In November of 1961, Kay Bailey stood on the sidelines and watched a monumental upset in the making. Her Texas Longhorns, undefeated and stampeding toward a probable national championship, stumbled over lowly TCU by a 6-0 score.

This November, Miss Bailey, 35, will be on the political sidelines cheering for another upset.

Thursday, Kay Bailey becomes Mrs. Ray Hutchinson, the wife of a Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Texas' first — and last — Republican governor was elected more than 100 years ago.

"I think we have an excellent chance to win," she said this week from her Washington office where she is the acting director of the National Transportation Safety Board. "The Republicans have gotten from 42 percent to 49 percent of the vote in the last few (gubernatorial) races and I believe Ray can get that additional 10 percent."

The future Mrs. Hutchinson has a record of backing winners, that dismal autumn afternoon against TCU notwithstanding.

Following her graduation from Texas' Law School in 1967, she went to work for KPRC-TV in Houston as a political correspondent.

"I just walked in off the street and applied for a job," she explained. "Since I had a law degree and since they thought they needed to hire a woman, they hired me to cover the state legislature."

After a one-year stint as press secretary to Anne Armstrong, then co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, Miss Bailey launched her own political career. Carrying Republican banners, she was elected to the Texas House in 1972 and again in 1974.

"That's where I met Ray. We were both freshmen (in the legislature) in 1972 and had offices in the same suite."

The two had planned to marry in September of last year but when Webster Todd resigned as chairman of the National Transportation Board, Miss Bailey was automatically promoted from vice-chairman to acting chairman.

She had been appointed to the board in 1976 by then President Gerald Ford on the strength of her record of championing transportation causes through the Texas legislature. "Plus I was a Republican and a woman."

In a resignation letter sent last week to President Carter, the former Texas cheerleader said she would like to leave her post by April 7 but agreed to stay on until the Senate confirmed Carter's nominee to replace her.

The Galveston native brings a glowing list of credentials to Hutchinson's campaign.

In 1976 she was named one of Glamour Magazine's 10 Outstanding Working Women in America. This year, she was named Woman of the Year by Houston Baptist University and Outstanding Young Lawyer in Houston by the Houston Junior Bar Association. She was also cited in the February 1977 issue of Redbook as one of the 14 women from Texas who are "carving out new and powerful bases in the state and nation."

In addition she has served on various state and national committees ranging in subject matter from inflation to mass transit to rape prevention.

"I plan on pursuing my career," she said noting that after the Thursday wedding in Hutchinson's Dallas home the newlyweds will spend the next two days campaigning in Corpus Christi and San Antonio.

"Ray has done such a superb job in the Texas legislature that he will get the support of some Democrats," she said. "We know it's going to be an uphill battle but he's prepared himself very well for state office."

Although the 1961 Longhorns bounced back from their Horned Frog humiliation to win the national title two years later, a single loss on the political field has been known to banish hopeful office-holders forever from serious consideration.

"We wouldn't be in the race if we didn't think we could win," she said.

Can HSA curb health care costs?

ITEM: In Dayton, Ohio, the local fledgling Health Systems Agency recently turned down plans of St. Elizabeth Medical Center to build an 84-bed addition at a cost of $5 million. "We felt there was not a need for additional beds in the community," said the HSA executive director.

The hospital, though, backed by federal and state officials, built the expanded facility anyway, opened it this past October. Blue Cross of Southwest Ohio thereby announced it was canceling St. Elizabeth's member hospital contract and would reduce its payments to the hospital on behalf of its member patients there. In line with its policy to deny full reimbursement to hospitals that make capital expenditures without local planning approval. This meant patients would have to pick up expenses for which Blue Cross would not pay. A public showdown and a precedent-setting hearing before the Ohio insurance department followed in late January.

The outcome, expected in April, should have a far-reaching significance, affecting plans of other hospitals both inside and outside the state. In fact, it already has.

ITEM: Pending the insurance department's decision, Montgomery County commissioners refused the request of the 469-bed Kettering Memorial Center in suburban Dayton, to float tax-free bonds and earmark part of the money for the building of a 120-bed satellite hospital, already under construction. Kettering subsequently withdrew its application to use the county's bonding authority for its financing.

ITEM: Also closely watching the St. Elizabeth situation is Cincinnati's CORVA (Central Ohio River Valley Assn. for Health Planning and Resource Development), one of the two HSAs of the 205 in existence to win permanent designation. Between mid-'74 and 1977, CORVA rejected $39 million in proposed health care expenditures, at least $3 million of which was to purchase six very costly CAT (computerized axial tomography) scanners. During the same period, CORVA authorized spending for expanding facilities for ambulatory surgery, home health care, and outpatient services.

Although still young, HSAs are demonstrating that they can put a lid on health care capital spending. Across the U.S., 50 of the 69 Blue Cross Plans have representatives on HSA boards. A full 33 Plans now have "conformance clauses" with hospitals, supporting decisions of local HSAs regarding further expansion, construction, equipment. Exercising these clauses, the Plans recently have blocked or delayed expenditures not only in Ohio but also in such places as Maryland, Chicago, Kansas City, Washington, D.C., and Pennsylvania.

The Blue Cross Plan of Maryland, headed by cost-conscious Thomas H. Sherlock, is at the center of a current struggle with hospitals and physicians because of disagreements about the number of CAT scanners the area can support. Blue Cross in Chicago is backing the HSA opposition to the installation of CAT scanners in seven hospitals, six in suburbs where there are already twice as many as needed. "Our member subscribers hold us responsible for holding down the cost of care," said Robert Petersen of the Chicago Blue Cross.

The local Blue Cross in Kansas City is opposing new hospital construction, with the president, Frank R. Adae, warning: "With one new acute-care hospital bed averaging in excess of $60,000, we are concerned about the ultimate increased cost to our subscribers. Once built, facilities have to be paid for, meaning higher bills for our Plans and higher rates for our subscribers."

But not one of these efforts — by the new consumer-dominated Health Service Agencies, nor certainly the familiar Blue Cross Plans — has a chance of success without your active support.

Learn about and honestly participate in local health planning activities. You will get valuable tips by writing the Los Angeles-based Blue Cross of Southern California for its free booklet, "Healthy, Wealthy and Wise Ideas."

Racehorse to appeal case of teen-age Dallas girl

HOUSTON (AP) — Lucinda Stout, the 16-year-old convicted in Dallas last week of killing her mother, will be represented in the appeals court free of charge by flamboyant Houston attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

Miss Stout was found guilty of the June stabbing death and sentenced to 99 years in prison.

Haynes said Sunday night he agreed to take the case for free because "she has no money and apparently few friends. Even her father testified against her."

He said he would fly to Dallas to see his new client today or Tuesday, depending on the continued improvement of his daughter, Ricki, 21, who was injured in an auto accident March 1. She remains hospitalized in Houston.

The attorney, known for his rousing, closing-argument orations and subsequent healthy fees, successfully defended Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis at the oilman's capital murder trial in Amarillo last year.

The trial has been called the longest murder trial in Texas history.

In his decision to accept Miss Stout's appeal, Haynes indicated factors other than her lack of friends and finances played a part.

"The age of that child was another factor and the punishment meted out to her," he said. "You know, Dallas is a city known for some pretty stiff sentences and the people (after the Stout verdict) just stood up and cheered."

"Since then, I have had 50-60 calls from people in Dallas outraged at the punishment. I think the first call I had was from a friend of hers (Lucinda's), apparently at the request of the little girl herself."

Mom not resurrected

REEDS SPRING, Mo. (AP) — A preacher whose prayers over a freezer holding his mother failed to bring her back to life Sunday says he has until Easter to resurrect her.

"We have not given up, and we haven't lost heart," said evangelist Daniel Aaron Rogers. "People are still praying with us and standing with us in our faith. We're going to keep praying for at least another two weeks."

Earlier Sunday, he told about 500 persons gathered at a mortuary here that the two-hour attempt to bring his mother back from the dead had failed and "we don't know what went wrong."

The congregation, many of whom wept, moaned and prayed, waited in the chapel and sang gospel songs as the preachers prayed in an adjoining visitation room over the body of Gladys Rogers. About a third of the onlookers represented newspaper and radio and television stations.

Evangelist J.T. Williams of Pea Ridge, Ark., recruited by Rogers to help in the service, could be heard raising his voice in prayer. At one point, he shouted: "Oh, her eyes are moving... Thank you, Jesus!" Rogers later said he did not "personally" see any movement in his mother's eyes.

"Come out of there," urged Harold Bogan, an associate of Rogers in Harrison, Ark. "Raise her up," Rogers pleaded.

After more than an hour of pleading and praying, Williams emerged from the tiny room.

"We have tried everything Jesus told us to do, and we don't know what is wrong," he told those gathered in the chapel. "She has not risen from the dead."

Canadian renews school contracts

CANADIAN - The Canadian School Board met Tuesday night to renew all contracts except one, that of girl's basketball and track coach Ron McAda.

Other action taken was the switching of jobs between Sam Scroggins, principal of the middle school for the past two years, and Larry Sanders, principal of the high school. This will be effective for the fall school term, announced Jim Pollard, superintendent.

The board accepted the resignation of special education teacher, Marguerite Hackett. Textbook selection for the school year 1978-1979 was approved. Final approval was given to Hammock Bros. Construction Co. for the remodeling contract for the middle school. The board appointed four men to the Board of Equalization.

Wins Doral

Weiskopf nips friend Jack

MIAMI (AP) — About the time Jack Nicklaus pitched in for the third time in four holes — and for his second eagle — Tom Weiskopf said he was thinking, "My goodness gracious. What's going on here?"

It was just your basic, typical, routine Nicklaus finish — 30 on the back nine and only nine putts on that many holes down the stretch. Just like he did a couple of weeks ago in the Inverrary Classic. Routine. Only this time it wasn't quite good enough.

Weiskopf, who played the final 36 holes over a nine-hour period with his good friend and sometimes hunting companion, was treated to a full view of Jack's uncanny heroics. And he turned it back, winning by a single stroke in the double-round windup Sunday in the Doral Open Golf Tournament.

Just as it was at Inverrary, it was a thriller — tournament golf at its very best.

"Tom won and he deserved to win," Nicklaus said. "The winning margin was about two inches. Nicklaus missed by that much holding a fourth wedge shot of the day, this for a birdie that would have tied it on the final hole."

"I got a bad bounce," joked Nicklaus. "Actually it just slid by. Just missed by an inch or two, didn't it, Tom?" Nicklaus asked.

"I wasn't watching," deadpanned Weiskopf.

John Mahaffey, with closing rounds of 70-72, was third alone at 278 — by far his best performance since slipping into a deep slump after the 1976 U.S. Open.

Indiana and Duke are among the survivors after the first round of the NCAA basketball playoffs, but it very well could have been Furman and Rhode Island instead.

In fact, if you listen to the winning coaches, it SHOULD have been Furman and Rhode Island.

"I don't think we deserved to win," said Indiana's Bobby Knight after a close-call 63-62 victory over Furman in the East regionals Sunday. "We made too many mistakes. They got too many free throws, they got the breaks. Don't misunderstand me, I'm glad we won. But they got a lot more of the plays in the last seven or eight minutes."

Duke's Bill Foster had similar thoughts after his Blue Devils squeezed by unheralded Rhode Island by an identical 63-62 score in the other game of the doubleheader at Charlotte, N.C.

"Our players know that we didn't play well," he said. "Nothing went in gear. Everything went in reverse."

While those two teams were winning despite themselves, six others played more positively Sunday in advancing to second-round games later this week.

In the other East regional doubleheader at Philadelphia, Penn beat St. Bonaventure 92-83 and Villanova defeated La Salle 103-97. In one Midwest doubleheader, Utah turned back Missouri 86-79 in double overtime and DePaul edged Creighton 80-78. In the other, Louisville whipped St. John's 76-68 and Notre Dame blasted Houston 100-77.

Eight other teams survived first-round action in the Midwest and West regionals on Saturday.

Miami of Ohio shocked Marquette 84-81 in overtime and Michigan State beat Providence 77-63 in the Midwest. In the other Midwest contests, it was Kentucky over Florida State 85-76 and Western Kentucky over Syracuse 87-86 in overtime.

UCLA was an 83-76 winner over Kansas and Arkansas whipped Weber State 73-52 in the West region, which also saw San Francisco beat North Carolina 68-64 and Fullerton State upset New Mexico 90-85.

The NCAA playoffs will resume Thursday night with regional semifinals in the West and Midwest. The West Regional pairs UCLA against Arkansas and San Francisco vs. Fullerton State. In the Midwest, it's Michigan State meeting Western Kentucky and Miami of Ohio against Kentucky.

Duke plays Penn and Indiana meets Villanova in the East Regional on Friday. In the Midwest the same day, it's Utah against Notre Dame and DePaul vs. Louisville.

Reserve guard Butch Carter hit three foul shots in the final 30 seconds as Indiana held off Furman. Carter's shots gave the Hoosiers a 63-58 lead, helping them withstand a Furman flurry in the last eight seconds.

The Hoosiers gave the Paladins an opportunity to win when they threw away an inbounds pass in the closing seconds. But Furman forward Rodney Arnold missed a jump shot as time ran out on the Southern Conference team.

Mike Gminski scored 25 points, including two foul shots with 17 seconds left, to lead

Duke's conquest of Rhode Island. The underdog Rams had several chances to pull the game out near the end, but Sly Williams missed a couple of easy shots down the home stretch. Williams scored 27 points for Rhode Island, but his fifth foul sent Gminski to the line for the decisive free throws.

Kevin McDonald scored 37 points to lead Penn over St. Bonaventure on the Quakers' home court at Philadelphia's Palestra. The Quakers rallied from a 42-37 halftime deficit to win it.

"In the second half it was a tremendous advantage to have the house going for us," said Penn Coach Bob Weinbauer.

The Villanova-La Salle game picked up where the teams left off during the regular season. For La Salle, the result was the same as when the Wildcats won 82-79 earlier in the year.

Keith Herron overcame a sore left knee to lead Villanova with 24 points, and the Wildcats got an inspirational halftime pep talk from Coach Rollie Massimino when they were losing 49-46. Buster Matheny scored 10 of his 36 points in the second overtime period to lead Utah over Missouri.

Nolan Ryan on track in grapefruit league

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

It's bad enough that most pitchers usually are ahead of the hitters in the early stages of spring training but it's twice as bad when one of those pitchers is named Nolan Ryan.

As a rule, it doesn't take much except control for baseball's hardest-throwing pitcher — he was clocked at 100.9 miles an hour — to be ahead of opposing hitters. But after a career that includes four no-hitters, five one-hitters and 11 two-hitters, Ryan was plagued by a sore arm during the final month of 1977.

Any lingering doubts about his condition were put to rest Sunday when Nolan the K fired four shutout innings in an exhibition game his California Angels lost to the Seattle Mariners 8-3. Ryan allowed three hits and didn't have a walk or strikeout and the Mariners didn't get on the scoreboard until after he departed.

"I was pretty sure my arm was okay after throwing batting practice three days in a row," said Ryan, who was only supposed to go three innings but tacked on one more because he threw so few pitches. "I can't believe I made only 37 pitches," continued Ryan, who has been known to yank that many in one inning. "I needed more work today."

While Ryan is established as one of the game's premier hurlers, 36-year-old Al Downing, cast off by Los Angeles, worked two scoreless innings as the Cincinnati Reds edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5.

The veteran left-hander is trying to catch on with the Reds.

"I understand the situation," he said. "There is a lot of good talent here. If I fit in, fine. If I don't, that's fine, too. Just as long as I give my best."

Foyt captures Aggieldand 500

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texan A.J. Foyt got more than a full gasoline tank from his pit crew Sunday in winning the USAC-sanctioned Aggieldand 250 stock car race at Texas World Speedway.

Foyt, racing for the first time since suffering a shoulder separation Feb. 19 when his car flipped at the Daytona 500, lost his first and second gears prior to his final pit stop on the 109th lap of the 125-lap race.

"I just went in for fuel and tried to get back out as fast as I could," said Foyt, who beat Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala. for the title.

"I called in on the radio and told them to tell the crew to push like hell."

And the extra muscle worked. Foyt, who came into the pits with a 15-second lead over Allison, held on to the lead by nine seconds when he left and finished the race 13 seconds ahead of Allison.

After the race, Allison lodged a formal protest with USAC officials, claiming Foyt passed him under a caution flag that went out on the 63rd and 64th laps when No. 2 qualifier Terry Ryan's car blew a tire and hit the wall.

Ray Marquette, a USAC spokesman, said a hearing would be conducted sometime later this week in Indianapolis, Ind. with Foyt, Allison and USAC officials.

Foyt, who earned the pole position for the race with a TWS record 171.592 miles per hour, finished with an average speed of 138.106 mph.

Gary Bowsher, Springfield, Ohio, who started in the No. 4 position, finished third, one lap down. Joe Ruttman, Upland, Calif., was fourth followed by Billy Hagen, Shreveport, La., and Ramo Stott, Keokuk, Iowa. Foyt battled Ryan, Allison and Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M. in the first half of the race. Unser, a two-time Indianapolis 500 winner, blew an engine on the 27th lap. Ryan was the next strong challenger to go out.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Here is the order of finish in the United States Auto Club Aggieldand 250 stock car race at Texas World Speedway: 1. A.J. Foyt, Houston, 125 laps, 130 miles per hour average speed, 125 laps; 2. Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., 125 laps; 3. Gary Bowsher, Springfield, Ohio, 124 laps; 4. Joe Ruttman, Upland, Calif., 123 laps; 5. Billy Hagen, Shreveport, La., 119 laps; 6. Ramo Stott, Keokuk, Iowa, 119 laps; 7. Ken Rowley, Bloomington, Ill., 118 laps; 8. Kevin Housby, Des Moines, Iowa, 114 laps.

Austin falls in finals

DALLAS (AP) — Evonne Goolagong won the $20,000 first prize Sunday but wonder child Tracy Ann Austin took home Dallas' heart and the knowledge she can compete with the best women professional players.

With her pony tails flapping like cocker spaniel ears, her mouth jammed with braces, and radar in her racquet, the 15-year-old Austin made former Wimbledon champion Goolagong earn every point.

"For her age she is terrific...in fact, she's so tough I didn't even think about her age," said the 26-year-old Goolagong after a 4-6, 6-0, 6-2 victory in the finals of a $100,000 women's professional tournament.

Another near-sellout crowd of 9,000 fans jammed their way into Moody Coliseum where Austin's two-fisted backhand, patty cake serve and "moon ball" lobs kept Goolagong off-balance for a set.

'Parity not politics'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Central Texas farmers made it plain Saturday they are for "parity not politics."

"Our purpose in this movement is to secure a just price for our agriculture production not to bury any public official," said a statement from the regional communications center of American Agriculture, distributed by local movement leader Fred Lundgren.

"Our elected officials are the very ones who can help this movement achieve our goal to survive."

El Paso inmates join hotel crowd

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — For about 20 hours this weekend, El Paso County inmates lived it up in what could be the plushiest jail in the west.

County Sheriff Mike Sullivan marched 22 of his "low risk" prisoners through the lobby of the Plaza Hotel and up to the ninth floor Friday night where the inmates — two to a room — availed themselves of color television and private toilet and shower facilities.

The action came in response to a threat by U.S. District Judge William Sessions to put Sullivan, the county judge and the county commissioners behind bars for 60 hours and fine each one $375 if they didn't reduce the county jail population below the maximum of 500 prescribed by the Texas Jail Standards Commission.

Saturday afternoon, deputies returned the inmates to their less hospitable but more familiar surroundings via a hotel service elevator. It seems Friday night's lobby parade had upset a guest or two.

Sullivan said the men were returned to their old cells after the jail population had dropped below the 500 mark Saturday when some of the inmates were due to be released and others posted bonds.

Hotel manager-owner Mike Dipp said the prisoners who spent the night "took better care of their rooms than some of the regular tenants."

Dipp said the offer to house low risk prisoners still stands anytime the jail population appears in violation of Sessions' order.

"The commissioners had a little problem and we decided to help them out," he said. "There's been no bad reaction whatsoever from the other tenants and guests. We can take up to 30 or 40 if they need us to."

The hotel "jail" was once the premier inn for in West Texas,

Late 15th-century Italian architects designed the huge, red brick walls of Moscow's Kremlin to enclose the palaces and churches built by the czars. The enclosure, which measures 65 acres, now protects the seat of the Russian government.

Peru has a Pacific coastline of 1,410 miles and is 800 miles wide at its extreme. Its 496,222 square-mile area is comparable to the combined size of Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas.
