Treaty opponents concede ratification

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate opponents all but conceded victory for the first of two Panama Canal treaties on the eve of today's vote, but President Carter told one of the few uncommitted senators that ratification was not assured. "I think they've got it," Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said of this afternoon's vote on the pact guaranteeing the canal's neutrality after the year 2000. Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., one of the five senators still seen as uncommitted late Wednesday, met with Carter at the White House this morning, and the president pressed him for a decision. But Zorinsky said he asked Carter to give him until noon to make up his mind. The other uncommitted senators are Democrats Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, Quentin Burdick of North Dakota and Paul G. Hatfield of Montana; and Republican Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma. Zorinsky emerged from the conference with Carter and told reporters: "I'm going to let the president know by noon today. I asked him that I be given the ability to go back and re-evaluate the situation within myself." "I congratulated him on having sufficient votes and he said he did not have enough," the freshman senator said. Zorinsky steadfastly refused to say how he would vote. He said that while he respected the presidency, he didn't want to be swayed by Carter's "magnetic personality" and must be able "to live with myself" after the vote.

Zorinsky said he felt the United States should be given "a military presence in the form of leased bases" in Panama so that if U.S. troops are required there in the future, their return would not appear to be an invasion. "This is probably the toughest decision I've ever had to make," Zorinsky said before the White House meeting. Bellmon scheduled a news conference before the vote to declare his intention. Burdick and Zorinsky said they would not declare themselves before the vote. An informal poll showed 65 votes solidly for the treaties, two short of the required two-thirds to ensure ratification. But one knowledgeable source close to Senate leaders said supporters had at least 67 votes in hand. And a Republican treaty backer, Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, predicted 69 votes for the treaty, including one senator he would not name who had been counted as a "no" vote. Packwood, who said earlier this week he might oppose the treaty because he believed Carter was making blatant political deals in exchange for votes, said he changed his mind and would vote for the pact. Laxalt, the treaty foes' principle strategist, said his followers will concentrate on defeating the second of the agreements to gradually transfer the waterway to Panama over the next 22 years. The administration sent many of its biggest names in search of votes Wednesday, including Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Defense Secretary

Harold Brown and White House trade representative Robert Strauss. The Carter forces picked up four votes Wednesday, including the critical support of Republican Edward Brooke of Massachusetts. Brooke said he would reluctantly vote for the neutrality treaty, but had serious doubts about parts of the second agreement, which will not be voted on until after a 10-day congressional Easter recess. Three Democrats, Dennis De-Concini of Arizona, Donald Riegle of Michigan and Russell Long of Louisiana, said they would vote for the treaty, as did Republican Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland. While the last-minute scramble for votes continued Wednesday, the Senate agreed, 82-16, to an administration-backed amendment permitting the United States and Panama to negotiate keeping American military forces in Panama after the canal has been transferred.

Highland gets $3896

By CHRIS EDWARDS
Pampa News Staff
Highland General Hospital administrator Guy Hazlett received a check for $3896

Wednesday from Richard Duke, vice-president of Finance Systems in Dallas, making total February collections from that company $26,611.71.

Finance Systems is one of two collection agencies the hospitals employ to collect on bad debts. Net proceeds from the $26,611.71 were $17,563.

That amount comes from the $217,000 in bad debts handed over to the agency after the adoption of stricter collection and billing policies in previous meetings of the board of directors of McLean and Highland general hospitals.

Highland had a bank balance of $94,483.68 Wednesday and will have a balance of about $166,572 after the deposit of two checks today. Only about $845 in bills will be "washed," or paid as receipts come in this month Hazlett said, compared to about $67,000 for last month.

The report from the county commissioner meeting Wednesday that about $72,900 would be washed did not take into consideration the deposit of several checks.

Hospital board members Tuesday approved a trial period with National Revenue Corp., a collection agency with one of the highest national averages for the return of bad debts.

And under Texas law and the national average for collections on bad accounts, Duke said, Finance can expect to collect

Israeli planes swoop border

By JOEL EPSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes swooped into southern Lebanon again today aiming to knock out Palestinian artillery firing on Lebanese Christian villages in Israel's new six-mile-wide security strip along the border.

The jet fighters roared across Israel's northern border as the guerrilla shells crashed around roads leading to Marjayoun and Kleia, Lebanese communities held by Israel just beyond the frontier.

The Palestinians said the warplanes were striking hilltop positions from which the guerrillas were harassing the Israeli invaders, and that one plane was shot down and fell on the Israeli side of the border.

The Palestine Liberation Organization released its first official casualty count today from the first day of hostilities, reporting 79 of its fighters were killed or wounded. Israeli officials say about 100 guerrillas were killed and hundreds more wounded.

The PLO claimed the Israelis lost 350 killed or wounded, but the Israeli military command said only 11 of its soldiers were killed and 57 wounded.

The Palestinian military command also claimed the guerrillas knocked out 70 to 80 Israeli tanks, armored personnel carriers and other military vehicles.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat condemned the Israeli attack and said he was watching closely "to make our plan."

Sadat told visiting African parliamentary leaders he would convene his national security council, which meets only in the time of crisis, to decide the next step. But he said he would continue the search for a peaceful solution.

"We thought we had reached a point when we were about to solve the whole problem peacefully and (then) Israel resorts to the use of force again," he said in his first public comment on the attack.

When the drive-in was built, he could have caught a free film or two, but he didn't.

"I could see the drive-in from the top of the combine, but there wasn't time to stop and watch," he said.

Patronage was slim at the drive-in when it rained, Kertzeimer said. Mud can be a strong deterrent.

The man who once practiced football where the Gray County courthouse now stands was sentimental about his old junior high being torn down, but is pragmatic about the golden arches replacing the drive-in.

So pragmatic, in fact, that "ring out the old, ring in the new" might be his motto. "That's progress," he said.

take the necessary measures that would guarantee a cessation of the aggression and ensure withdrawal of Israeli forces."

When a collection agency receives an account from an employer, the company sends a letter to the patient demanding full payment of the bill.

Fifty percent of these letters are returned because the debtor has moved, Duke said. When the debtor is found and talked to, the company will recommend that legal action be taken.

"It's just a matter of psychology," Duke said.

Those were the days when the city limits extended about as far as Cuberson-Stowers Chevrolet, and Hobart wasn't Hobart, but "just a country road with no buildings whatsoever around it."

Auto assemblies in January had fallen to a 7.9 million level, down from 8.9 million in December.

Also increasing in February were production of consumer durable goods, such as appliances and furniture, which advanced 2.7 percent, and business equipment, ahead 0.9 percent during the month. Output of construction supplies also increased.

Partially offsetting those gains was a 1.8 percent decrease in production of energy materials, largely due to the strike-induced cutback in coal-generated electric power.

The Federal Reserve Board said its industrial production index in February stood at 139.2 percent of the 1967 average of 100, a gain of 4.5 percent from the same month a year earlier.

Production of business equipment, which to some extent reflects business investment plans, was 6 percent above the pre-recession peak in the third quarter of 1974, the board said.

The increase in industrial production, occurring despite the dampening effects of the weather and coal strike, was a welcome development for the economy, especially since it followed on the heels of a number of adverse economic reports in recent weeks.

It apparently confirms the assessment of most economists that the coal strike will have had only a relatively minor adverse impact on the economy if it ends soon.

January slowdown, the government reported today. The Federal Reserve Board said the weather and the coal strike probably kept the increase in production about 0.2 percent lower than otherwise would have been. Production had declined by 0.8 percent in

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The road back

It has been projected that the national debt could reach 871 billion dollars by Sept. 30, 1979. The same projection stated it is a whopping "temporary" increase in the debt ceiling. We doubt that it will be temporary. Accelerated will probably be more nearly a correct term.

Is this just a debt of all Americans owed to other citizens of the United States? It is not. Now foreigners hold more than 15 percent of the mortgage on U.S. citizens' future.

This year foreign holders of part of the U.S. debt will get near seven billion dollars in interest from the mortgage placed on all Americans. There has been a 675 percent increase in holdings by foreigners in just the past seven years.

As this trend increases, and increase it will, there may come a time when we will owe our souls to people who can be manipulated by foreign politicians. Is it possible that we could be taken over by a means other than military? Probably not, but the ramifications of this present trend can boggle the mind.

At the very least, outside pressures could sway our destiny and the future of our children in ways we would never tolerate, if we still had a modicum of control over our economic lives.

Many of us still believe that we do have most of that control within our grasp. Some of us think we have the reins in our hands since we can vote to choose those who are supposed to represent us. If we carry that thought a bit further, we may think that by getting enough of the "right" people in office, we can find our way out of the dilemma.

But consider: we can only change a few at a time and if we did select only the "right" people, how long would they stay "right"?

Since we have embarked on a mythical journey let's pursue it: if all our representatives are the "right" people, just what could they do to hog-tie the bureaucracy and bring federal spending to a screeching halt?

Most of the government agencies have been given powers exceeding the three branches of government, which were set up to curtail too much power accruing to any one branch. Example: the Internal Revenue Service has the power of an administrative agency to find that your tax return needs an audit; it can then take on the legislative mantle to manipulate or invoke a rule; after that, it can don judicial robes and put you on trial in its own court, then determine the penalty.

Examples could be piled on each other to show how much power the bureaucracy wields, how entrenched it has become, and how little it will yield to pressure.

In all our history, only two federal programs we know of have been abolished: the U.S. no longer makes rum in the Virgin Islands and no longer breeds horses for the U.S. cavalry.

Is there then, no hope for a return to fiscal responsibility and a sane approach to cutting the power of big government? There is hope but it gets dimmer by the day. If enough people become aware and concerned enough to say stop, whatever the immediate cost, we could start on the long treacherous road back. It will not be easy but it can be done.

Tarnish and nicotine

It is bad enough to come in contact with a crusading anti-smoker after he has kicked the habit. If he or she is without political clout, we can suffer the boredom until a quick exit becomes handy. But, when the head of a federal bureaucracy decides to meddle in our personal affairs and attempts to use political power to force his ideas, it becomes time for more drastic action.

Health Education and Welfare (HEW) Secretary Joseph Califano Jr., has moved on from the talking stage to a point where he is now "exploring" the possibilities of a higher federal tax on cigarettes as a means to force his ideas on all Americans.

This would - be public benefactor suggests an increase of 10 to 15 cents additional federal tax on each pack of cigarettes. The tax is now eight cents for the federal and varies among the states for their take.

He alleges that "evidence" suggests that the increased tax would result in a five to 10 percent decrease in smoking. Where he found this evidence and what exactly it is, was not divulged by the HEW secretary.

But, since he has become a prominent political figure, it follows that the peasants must accept his dicta as gospel. All wisdom is an immediate gift which goes along with the oath of office. Or so it would seem from the pronouncements of public officials. Because of the great differences in state taxes on cigarettes, there has been a tremendous amount of bootlegging. It has grown so fast that states can't police it. Termed a $400 million rip-off, it involves mobsters and counterfeiting.

What Califano suggests should just put the icing on the cake for organized crime. Just imagine what an extra ten or fifteen cents per pack in profits for the hoods would do to step up bootlegging and counterfeiting.

The mob activity in cigarettes now makes liquor bootleggers of the Twenties look like a bunch of pikers. Just think what our esteemed secretary of HEW could add to the welfare of gangsters with his latest idea. If it is the health and welfare of the mob minority with which he is concerned, he has found the best method to give it its biggest boost.

We shouldn't paint him with that brush, but in his zeal to bring the gospel of anti-smoking (with government force if necessary) to all of us, he may very well tar himself with the brush. He certainly will bring to his cause all those who will gain tremendous profit from counterfeiting cigarette tax stamps.

It could be difficult for Califano to keep from finding himself bedded with our most distinguished sleazy citizens.

Transportation deregulation

Federal deregulation of transportation has "picked up a momentum that must amaze observers who believe that governments can only move in the direction of more control, not less."

So says the March issue of DUN'S REVIEW in a special report on the coming battle over government deregulation of the airlines and the trucking industry. But despite the Carter Administration's commitment to paving the way to lower fares and freight rates and increased competition, the business magazine reports, powerful anti-deregulation forces on Capitol Hill promise to make the issue one of the major battles of Jimmy Carter's presidency.

By removing restrictions on airline fares and trucking rates, the government hopes to make transportation cheaper and more efficient. If it works, deregulation could conceivably shave one-half point off the Consumer Price Index, a considerable accomplishment. But according to DUN'S REVIEW, it will not come easy.

The cause of airline deregulation has voter appeal, and the chances of legislation in this area are very good, the magazine points out. But the political clout of the trucking industry, which favors the status quo, may blunt any Administration attempts to stimulate further competition in that industry. In rare accord, the 16,000 trucking companies and the 2-million-member Teamsters Union are determined to block any bill that would wreck the value of the industry's Interstate Commerce Commission operating certificates. Not only are the truckers opposed to new entrants flocking into the business, but the unions fear that deregulation will weaken job security and depress wages.

At the same time, DUN'S reports, consumer goods manufacturers and retailers, which ship on enormous volume of merchandise on interstate trucks and operate on low margins, are fed up with stultifying ICC regulations and the high rates charged by regulated truckers. Forming lobbies and pressure groups, the shippers are demanding "action now," according to the publication.

Given those realities, the Administration strategy is to push for passage of a bill that would permit airlines to adjust fares and enter additional markets on a gradual timetable. For the moment, the White House will be content with backing a modified measure that would merely give truckers more flexibility in setting tariffs without the okay of the ICC. But if airline deregulation passes, fares drop and the carriers are deluged with new business, says DUN'S, "the idea of throwing the truckers to the free market could also catch fire."

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, March 16, the 75th day of 1978. There are 290 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1534, England severed all relations with the Roman Catholic papacy.

On this date: In 1521, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan reached the Philippines, where he was killed by natives the following month.

In 1676, Indians destroyed the Rhode Island settlements of Warwick and Providence.

In 1802, Congress authorized the establishment of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

In 1830, it was a slow day on Wall Street, with only 31 shares of stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1965, the Soviet Union moved toward closer economic relations with the West by announcing it would join the international agreement on patents.

Koreagate hazard

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The long arm of "Koreagate" has stretched into the Senate and touched a member of the Ethics Committee responsible for probing allegations of Korean influence-peddling on Capitol Hill.

Ever so quietly, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, last month removed himself from further participation in the committee's investigation of the Korean scandal.

Senate GOP leaders quickly named retiring Sen. James B. Pearson of Kansas to replace Tower on the Ethics panel for purposes of the Korean investigation only.

Tower acted because of his acknowledged erstwhile social relationship with Tongsun Park, the South Korean businessman who is a central figure in the alleged attempts by the Korean government to win friends and influence members of Congress with cash, gifts, free trips and other favors.

Under rules adopted when the Ethics Committee was set up last year, any member of the panel who is involved even tangentially with the subject of an official inquiry is required to disqualify himself.

Tower had previously acknowledged that he attended a number of parties with Tongsun Park and was for nine years a member of the fashionable Georgetown Club in Washington which Park owned — as were many other members of Congress, several Supreme Court justices and other prominent public officials.

Tower told us he had no other involvement with Park and accepted no money, trips, gifts or favors from him. He said the former commander of the Korean forces in Vietnam once gave him a cigarette lighter "comparable to a Zippo" and another official "gave me a length of cloth which is now a dress belonging to my ex-wife."

Ethics Committee sources, both Democratic and Republican, declined to discuss details of Tower's involvement with Park or other Koreans but described it as "very minor" and in no way illegal or improper.

Asked why he waited until now to step aside from a probe which has been underway in the Ethics Committee since last summer, Tower said, "It just seemed an appropriate time."

"I offered to do so last summer and was discouraged by other members of the committee," he said.

The Senate committee's probe has been largely overshadowed by the highly publicized investigation of its House counterpart, which suits senators just fine.

But the pace has quickened in recent weeks, and the panel expects to question Tongsun Park in closed session as soon as he finishes his House testimony.

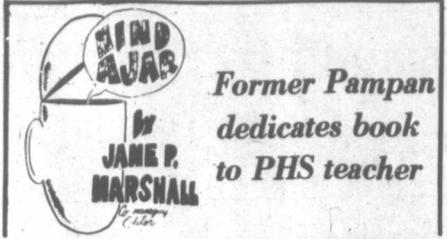

Like the House committee and its special counsel, Leon Jaworski, the Senate panel has had a difficult time collecting hard evidence on the extent and scope of the Korean influence-peddling scheme.

As both investigations drag on inconclusively, members of Congress who must face the voters this year are growing increasingly restive. And those whose names have surfaced in connection with Tongsun Park, however innocuously, have special cause for concern.

Tower faces a tough re-election battle against Democratic Rep. Robert Krueger and possibly an independent candidate as well.

Although he says he does not expect "Koreagate" to become an issue in his campaign, he acknowledged that it won't help any.

"It's just one of the hazards of this business," he said. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Former Pampan dedicates book to PHS teacher

Darrell Husted, a former Pampan who lives in New York, has honored his Pampa High School English teacher by dedicating his first novel to her. "A Country Girl" is inscribed to Mabel Torvie.

Mrs. Torvie now heads the English department at PHS. She remembers that Husted loved to write. The book was printed in paperback. Husted told Mrs. Torvie that he hopes his third, which along with his second already has been written, will be a hardback.

She said the book is a Regency novel and she enjoyed it. Husted was graduated in 1949.

Another former Pampan had made the news.

The Gainsville Register featured Joe Tobley in a recent issue. Tobley, who is celebrating his golden anniversary as a pharmacist, was once with Richard Drug Store in Pampa.

He and his family lived here until 1968 when he moved to Gainsville.

The local 70-member hospital auxiliary is one of the many groups in town who boost college students by providing scholarships.

Their stipend is a healthy $1500.

There are 65,962 journalism students enrolled at American colleges and universities. The University of Texas, Austin, has the highest roll with 2,681 students.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has instituted an intern program in his Washington office for senior citizens.

The two-week internship in May is "designed to provide increased communication between the retired community and their representatives in Congress," he said.

Tower initiated the program last year, the first of the Texas Congressional delegation to participate.

Two citizens will spend May 8 to May 19 in Washington and applicants are being sought.

Deadline is March 31. Address is 515 Rusk, Room 6626, Houston 77002.

Interns will receive airfare to and from Washington and a stipend to cover expenses while there.

This item from United Press International chief H.L. Stevenson:

Forty-two years ago, Curtis MacDougall, then editing a newspaper in Illinois, wrote an editorial praising the FBI for capturing a fugitive instead of "shooting first and asking questions later."

"It was a compliment," said MacDougall, but then Director J. Edgar Hoover didn't think so. He wrote a letter of rebuttal and ordered his Chicago FBI agents to investigate the editor.

MacDougall, now a retired Northwestern University journalism professor, revealed recently that he has obtained 292 pages of documents about himself from the FBI files under the Freedom of Information Act.

The documents were filled with inaccuracies, he said, and the accurate information was innocuous.

"They listed my telephone number and address as confidential information. I've had the same number since 1934 and it's always been in the telephone book," he said.

You can find out if the FBI has a file on you by writing to William Webster, the new director. Include complete name, including nicknames, date and place of birth, prior addresses, present and past employers and other information that might enable the FBI to find any pertinent files.

The applicant must have his signature notarized, a safeguard against having someone else obtain a file.

A copy of the file, if the FBI has one, is available for 10 cents a page.

Under "Do you remember?" column in the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript Items, recently, with the date of Feb. 28, 1938, was this:

"Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Rae of 62 Brown Ave. learned through the courtesy of the air waves that they were the proud great-grand-parents of a son born to Mr. and Mrs. Colin Rae Jr. of Pampa, Texas. They heard the news via telephone of a Mr. Baxter of Gilbertville, a radio ham operator, who had received the message from the proud father, also a ham operator. The Holyoke Raes admitted it was just pure luck that they got the news so quickly."

Clifford A. Jones, Republican candidate for the congressional seat now held by Jack Hightower, came into the newsroom Tuesday to introduce himself.

He is a Perryton farmer and businessman.

One of the things he talked about was the brother with whom he farms. The brother spent two days in a jail in the Valley because of his participation in the farm strike on the bridge to Mexico.

Jones believes that farm products should be put on the world market and that inflation is killing the farmer.

"Inflation is caused by the government by printing too much money," he said. "It isn't caused by labor."

"It is a deal to sink the country," he added.

For Friday, March 17

March 17, 1978

Contacts you've established with persons who live outside of your immediate area could be of great value to you this coming year. Unusual circumstance will be the catalyst.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't try to mastermind the financial affairs of another day unless you know for sure you're on firm ground. An error could result in mutual losses.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Actions based upon advice of know-it-alls could lead you up to a blind alley today. You'll make less mistakes by heeding your own counsel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pointing out the frailties of others today will cause them to take a harder look at your own. No one will like what they see.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Spending beyond your means to keep up appearances is a study in futility today. Impress friends with what you are, not with what you have.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Consider yourself as good as anyone you encounter today, but not better than them. Snobbish behavior will cost you points with your peers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Play everything close to your vest today so detractors won't have any chances to point the finger of blame. They're looking for an opening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A well-intentioned friend may tout you on to something today that he feels is good for you financially. Before you leap in, examine it yourself.

Lobbying sways canal treaty votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wendell H. Ford arrived at the Dirksen Senate Office Building at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday to work on the speech announcing he would vote against the Panama Canal treaties.

The Kentucky Democrat was one of the last of the holdouts, still uncommitted as the tally sheets showed the totals edging toward the numbers essential to approve or defeat the treaties.

But most of those sheets listed him as expected to vote against the treaties.

At 7:15 a.m., Walter F. Mondale, vice president of the United States, popped unannounced into Ford's office for a chat. The two men talked privately for about 30 minutes.

Then Ford's old friend Bob Strauss showed up with White House aide Hamilton Jordan and Lee Kling. Ford had been one of the strongest promoters of Strauss when the Texan became Democratic national chairman. Kling is a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

They were followed by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who also was publicly uncommitted but who would announce a few hours later that he would vote for the treaties.

After all the visitors had gone, Ford cancelled his request for time to make a speech. He cancelled his appointments and told an aide he needed more time to think.

Later, Ford laughed when asked if the administration had corralled another vote and said he was back working on the same speech.

The activity by the administration raised questions whether deals were being struck: a vote for the treaty in exchange for a water project, support of a farm bill, a decision to buy copper for the nation's strategic stockpile and, of course, the president's power to fill thousands of jobs in the executive and judicial branches.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., looking weary and resigned after bucking the kind of power a president can bring to bear, said, "I don't want to appear crass, but our side can't buy copper. Our side can't appoint any judges. Our side can't promise a senator he won't have an opponent."

Helms added that the Carter administration probably hasn't done any more than its predecessors in similar situations.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., heard all the stories about deals and issued an angry blast at the administration in which he said, "The president shouldn't be the host of 'Let's Make a Deal.'"

Packwood said he was so upset by the alleged wheeling and dealing that he was considering voting against the treaties. But by Wednesday, Packwood had talked to Mondale and Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and was convinced decisions to buy copper and not to oppose a Talmadge farm bill were not related to the treaty fight.

All the lobbying wasn't from the pro side.

Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., regarded as uncommitted, was visited by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His office also was the target of hundreds of calls from treaty opponents who, after expressing their opposition, asked to be transferred to the offices of other wavering senators.

Death injection studied

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge today is studying a request for a stay of execution by the first Texas prisoner sentenced to die by lethal injection.

Kenneth Granviel, scheduled to die April 7, was the first person condemned to die by lethal injection after the Texas Legislature changed the method of execution in the state from death in the electric chair.

He was convicted in Fort Worth in 1975 of the 1974 knife slaying of a 2-year-old girl.

He argued before U. S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Wednesday that his rights were violated because persons who opposed the death penalty were allegedly excluded from jury duty.

Granviel, imprisoned at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, also claimed that he was denied effective assistance of counsel, due process of law and equal protection when the testimony of his psychiatrist that he was not psychotic was admitted into evidence for the state.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals upheld Granviel's conviction in 1976, after which the date of his execution by lethal injection was set for Sept. 16, 1977.

He asked the appeals court for a writ of habeas corpus Sept. 6. The writ was denied Feb. 1. A new April 7 execution date was set.

O'Connor gave no indication when he will act the request.

New USS Texas to land

GALVESTON, Tex. (A)—The newest USS Texas, this one a nuclear powered cruiser, is moving across the Gulf of Mexico today to make its first landing on the shores of the state for which it was named.

There have been other USS Texas ships in service, one for the Republic of Texas, and one for the Confederate Navy, and three others under the Stars and Strips of the United States.

The new USS Texas is the swiftest, strongest and with more firepower than those others, even the famous battleship Texas that after 34 years of service was anchored permanently at the San Jacinto Battleground State Park some 25 miles east of Houston.

Historians say the USS Texas was the only first line battleship to be given to a state as a shrine and the first where the U.S. flag was lowered in favor of another flag—this one with a lone star on a field of red-white-and-blue.

The new nuclear-powered vessel, which can stay at sea for 10 years without refueling, is coming into Pier 33 at Galveston to give those sailing buffs, and the residents of the island resort city, and all those others who have a pride in anything named Texas, an opportunity to tour the ship and talk to the crew.

They can study its length of 585 feet and its breadth of 65 feet, and its two nuclear reactors, and its accommodations for 497 persons.

Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe—it was Janey Briscoe who christened the ship at Norfolk, Va.—will make an inspection on Friday, St. Patrick's day.

When the cruiser was commissioned there was a county-western shin-kicking dance, a military dress parade, hot chili, cold beer, and spicy Texas barbecue.

This time nothing so fancy is planned, but when the USS Texas gets to Texas, who knows.

Skylab may be re-used

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Johnson Space Center officials say studies will be made on the possibilities of re-activating and re-using Skylab, the space laboratory that was abandoned four years ago.

Steve McLendon, a JSC flight controller, said Wednesday space officials who made contact with Skylab recently found the space station "has everything a crew would need to live there and spend some time there."

"We found it almost as if we had just left it yesterday," said McLendon, one of three JSC flight controllers who just returned from a Bermuda tracking station where they aroused the 118-foot-long, 84-ton spacecraft.

Meanwhile, the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., has contracted with two aerospace companies to study the possibilities of reactivating and reusing the space station.

Space center officials said the possibilities for reuse range from docking the space shuttle to it so that astronauts could occupy it again, to its use as a base to assemble and support large space structures for communications, solar energy or other public service operations.

Flight controllers found the space station still has "a lot of oxygen, nitrogen and water," McLendon said.

He also said it was found that Skylab still holds a lot of gas which is needed to maneuver.

He said one battery was left to take a full charge from the solar panels on the spacecraft. Three others were left in a position to take a "trickle charge", he said.

He said flight controllers also were able to turn on the space station computer and dump data from it and turn on the Apollo Telescope Mount, which supplied astronomers with more data from about the sun, he said.

Skylab is expected to be maneuvered from a JSC control room April 19. A second plan to keep Skylab in orbit is for the crew of the third space shuttle mission in October 1979 to place to place a small propulsion device on the spacecraft to boost its orbit 70 miles. It is estimated the boost will increase Skylab's orbital life by two years.

McLendon said that before consideration is given to revisit Skylab, oxygen and nitrogen would have to be turned on so that it could be determined whether the space station still will maintain the necessary interior pressure, he said.

Skylab was launched May 14, 1973. It was home and workshop for three astronaut crews. The longest stay was 84 days which ended in February 1974. That mark was broken recently by a Russian crew in the Soyuz-A Salyut combination.

In 1976, approximately 134 million licensed drivers in the United States put nearly 1.4 trillion miles on their odometers going to work, running errands, making visits, taking vacations and providing services.

Registration for vehicles third done

About 30 percent of the 29,000 vehicles in Gray County that need 1978 motor vehicle registration stickers have been registered. Deadline is 4:30 p.m. March 31.

Jack Back, Gray county tax-assessor collector, said deadline is actually April 1, a Saturday when the courthouse is not open. Laggards face a 20 percent addition to their registration fees and fines by law enforcement officials, Back said.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation reported Friday that about 8.5 vehicles remained unregistered in Texas as of March 1.

A new system of staggered registration that started this year has not yet affected registration time at the courthouse, Back said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action, preserve their life and property and secure mere freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The road back

It has been projected that the national debt could reach 871 billion dollars by Sept. 30, 1979. The same projection stated it is a whopping "temporary" increase in the debt ceiling. We doubt that it will be temporary. Accelerated will probably be more nearly a correct term.

Is this just a debt of all Americans owed to other citizens of the United States? It is not. Now foreigners hold more than 15 percent of the mortgage on U.S. citizens' future.

This year foreign holders of part of the U.S. debt will get near seven billion dollars in interest from the mortgage placed on all Americans. There has been a 675 percent increase in holdings by foreigners in just the past seven years.

As this trend increases, and increase it will, there may come a time when we will owe our souls to people who can be manipulated by foreign politicians. Is it possible that we could be taken over by a means other than military? Probably not, but the ramifications of this present trend can boggle the mind.

At the very least, outside pressures could sway our destiny and the future of our children in ways we would never tolerate, if we still had a modicum of control over our economic lives.

Many of us still believe that we do have most of that control within our grasp. Some of us think we have the reins in our hands since we can vote to choose those who are supposed to represent us. If we carry that thought a bit further, we may think that by getting enough of the "right" people in office, we can find our way out of the dilemma.

But consider: we can only change a few at a time and if we did select only the "right" people, how long would they stay "right"?

Since we have embarked on a mythical journey let's pursue it: if all our representatives are the "right" people, just what would they do to hog-tie the bureaucracy and bring federal spending to a screeching halt?

Most of the government agencies have been given powers exceeding the three branches of government, which were set up to curtail too much power accruing to any one branch. Example: the Internal Revenue Service has the power of an administrative agency to find that your tax return needs an audit; it can then take on the legislative mantle to manipulate or invoke a rule; after that, it can don judicial robes and put you on trial in its own court, then determine the penalty.

Examples could be piled on each other to show how much power the bureaucracy wields, how entrenched it has become, and how little it will yield to pressure.

In all our history, only two federal programs we know of have been abolished: the U.S. no longer makes rum in the Virgin Islands and no longer breeds horses for the U.S. cavalry.

Is there then, no hope for a return to fiscal responsibility and a sane approach to cutting the power of big government? There is hope but it gets dimmer by the day. If enough people become aware and concerned enough to say stop, whatever the immediate cost, we could start on the long treacherous road back. It will not be easy but it can be done.

Tarnish and nicotine

It is bad enough to come in contact with a crusading anti-smoker after he has kicked the habit. If he or she is without political clout, we can suffer the boredom until a quick exit becomes handy. But, when the head of a federal bureaucracy decides to meddle in our personal affairs and attempts to use political power to force his ideas, it becomes time for more drastic action.

Health Education and Welfare (HEW) Secretary Joseph Califano Jr., has moved on from the talking stage to a point where he is now "exploring" the possibilities of a higher federal tax on cigarettes as a means to force his ideas on all Americans.

This would - be public benefactor suggests an increase of 10 to 15 cents additional federal tax on each pack of cigarettes. The tax is now eight cents for the federal and varies among the states for their take.

He alleges that "evidence" suggests that the increased tax would result in a five to 10 percent decrease in smoking. Where he found this evidence and what exactly it is, was not divulged by the HEW secretary.

But, since he has become a prominent political figure, it follows that the peasants must accept his dicta as gospel. All wisdom is an immediate gift which goes along with the oath of office. Or so it would seem from the pronouncements of public officials. Because of the great differences in state taxes on cigarettes, there has been a tremendous amount of bootlegging. It has grown so fast that states can't police it. Termed a $400 million rip-off, it involves mobsters and counterfeiting.

What Califano suggests should just put the icing on the cake for organized crime. Just imagine what an extra ten or fifteen cents per pack in profits for the hoods would do to step up bootlegging and counterfeiting.

The mob activity in cigarettes now makes liquor bootleggers of the Twenties look like a bunch of pikers. Just think what our esteemed secretary of HEW could add to the welfare of gangsters with his latest idea. If it is the health and welfare of the mob minority with which he is concerned, he has found the best method to give it its biggest boost.

We shouldn't paint him with that brush, but in his zeal to bring the gospel of anti-smoking (with government force if necessary) to all of us, he may very well tar himself with the brush. He certainly will bring to his cause all those who will gain tremendous profit from counterfeiting cigarette tax stamps.

It could be difficult for Califano to keep from finding himself bedded with our most distinguished sleazy citizens.

'All's well that ends well, all's well that ends well . . .

Transportation deregulation

Federal deregulation of transportation has "picked up a momentum that must amaze observers who believe that governments can only move in the direction of more control, not less."

So says the March issue of DUN'S REVIEW in a special report on the coming battle over government deregulation of the airlines and the trucking industry. But despite the Carter Administration's commitment to paving the way to lower fares and freight rates and increased competition, the business magazine reports, powerful anti-deregulation forces on Capitol Hill promise to make the issue one of the major battles of Jimmy Carter's presidency.

By removing restrictions on airline fares and trucking rates, the government hopes to make transportation cheaper and more efficient. If it works, deregulation could conceivably shave one-half point off the Consumer Price Index, a considerable accomplishment. But according to DUN'S REVIEW, it will not come easy.

The cause of airline deregulation has voter appeal, and the chances of legislation in this area are very good, the magazine points out. But the political clout of the trucking industry, which favors the status quo, may blunt any Administration attempts to stimulate further competition in that industry. In rare accord, the 16,000 trucking companies and the 2-million-member Teamsters Union are determined to block any bill that would wreck the value of the industry's Interstate Commerce Commission operating certificates. Not only are the truckers opposed to new entrants flocking into the business, but the unions fear that deregulation will weaken job security and depress wages.

At the same time, DUN'S reports, consumer goods manufacturers and retailers, which ship on enormous volume of merchandise on interstate trucks and operate on low margins, are fed up with stultifying ICC regulations and the high rates charged by regulated truckers. Forming lobbies and pressure groups, the shippers are demanding "action now," according to the publication.

Given those realities, the Administration strategy is to push for passage of a bill that would permit airlines to adjust fares and enter additional markets on a gradual timetable. For the moment, the White House will be content with backing a modified measure that would merely give truckers more flexibility in setting tariffs without the okay of the ICC. But if airline deregulation passes, fares drop and the carriers are faced with new business, says DUN'S, "the idea of throwing the truckers to the free market could also catch fire."

Today in history

By The Associated Press Today is Thursday, March 16, the 75th day of 1978. There are 290 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1534, England severed all relations with the Roman Catholic papacy.

On this date: In 1521, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan reached the Philippines, where he was killed by natives the following month.

In 1676, Indians destroyed the Rhode Island settlements of Warwick and Providence.

Koreagate hazard

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The long arm of "Koreagate" has stretched into the Senate and touched a member of the Ethics Committee responsible for probing allegations of Korean influence-peddling on Capitol Hill.

Ever so quietly, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, last month removed himself from further participation in the committee's investigation of the Korean scandal. Senate GOP leaders quickly named retiring Sen. James B. Pearson of Kansas to replace Tower on the Ethics panel for purposes of the Korean investigation only.

Tower acted because of his acknowledged erstwhile social relationship with Tongson Park, the South Korean businessman who is a central figure in the alleged attempts by the Korean government to win friends and influence members of Congress with cash, gifts, free trips and other favors.

Under rules adopted when the Ethics Committee was set up last year, any member of the panel who is involved even tangentially with the subject of an official inquiry is required to disqualify himself.

Tower had previously acknowledged that he attended a number of parties with Tongson Park and was for nine years a member of the fashionable Georgetown Club in Washington which Park owned — as were many other members of Congress, several Supreme Court justices and other prominent public officials.

Tower told us he had no other involvement with Park and accepted no money, trips, gifts or favors from him. He said the former commander of the Korean forces in Vietnam once gave him a cigarette lighter "comparable to a Zippo" and another official "gave me a length of cloth which is now a dress belonging to my ex-wife."

Ethics Committee sources, both Democratic and Republican, declined to discuss details of Tower's involvement with Park or other Koreans but described it as "very minor" and in no way illegal or improper.

Asked why he waited until now to step aside from a probe which has been underway in the Ethics Committee since last summer, Tower said, "It just seemed an appropriate time."

"I offered to do so last summer and was discouraged by other members of the committee," he said.

The Senate committee's probe has been largely overshadowed by the highly publicized investigation of its House counterpart, which suits senators just fine.

But the pace has quickened in recent weeks, and the panel expects to question Tongson Park in closed session as soon as he finishes his House testimony.

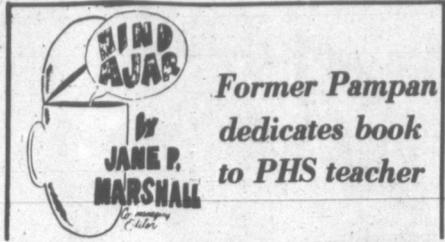

Like the House committee and its special counsel, Leon Jaworski, the Senate panel has had a difficult time collecting hard evidence on the extent and scope of the Korean influence-peddling scheme.

As both investigations drag on inconclusively, members of Congress who must face the voters this year are growing increasingly restive. And those whose names have surfaced in connection with Tongson Park, however innocuously, have special cause for concern.

Tower faces a tough re-election battle against Democratic Rep. Robert Krueger and possibly an independent candidate as well.

Although he says he does not expect "Koreagate" to become an issue in his campaign, he acknowledged that it won't help any.

"It's just one of the hazards of this business," he said. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Darrell Husted, a former Pampan who lives in New York, has honored his Pampa High School English teacher by dedicating his first novel to her. "A Country Girl" is inscribed to Mabel Torvie.

Mrs. Torvie now heads the English department at PHS. She remembers that Husted loved to write. The book was printed in paperback. Husted told Mrs. Torvie that he hopes his third, which along with his second already has been written, will be a hardback.

She said the book is a Regency novel and she enjoyed it. Husted was graduated in 1949.

Another former Pampan had made the news.

The Gainesville Register featured Joe Tobley in a recent issue. Tobley, who is celebrating his golden anniversary as a pharmacist, was once with Richard Drug Store in Pampa.

He and his family lived here until 1968 when he moved to Gainesville.

The local 70-member hospital auxiliary is one of the many groups in town who boost college students by providing scholarships. Their stipend is a healthy $1500.

There are 65,962 journalism students enrolled at American colleges and universities. The University of Texas, Austin, has the highest roll with 2,681 students.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has instituted an intern program in his Washington office for senior citizens.

The two-week internship in May is "designed to provide increased communication between the retired community and their representatives in Congress," he said.

Tower initiated the program last year, the first of the Texas Congressional delegation to participate.

Two citizens will spend May 8 to May 19 in Washington and applicants are being sought.

Deadline is March 31. Address is 515 Rusk, Room 6626, Houston 77002.

Interns will receive airfare to and from Washington and a stipend to cover expenses while there.

This item from United Press International chief H.L. Stevenson:

Forty-two years ago, Curtis MacDougall, then editing a newspaper in Illinois, wrote an editorial praising the FBI for capturing a fugitive instead of "shooting first and asking questions later."

"It was a compliment," said MacDougall, but then Director J. Edgar Hoover didn't think so. He wrote a letter of rebuttal and ordered his Chicago FBI agents to investigate the editor.

MacDougall, now a retired Northwestern University journalism professor, revealed recently that he has obtained 292 pages of documents about himself from the FBI files under the Freedom of Information Act.

The documents were filled with inaccuracies, he said, and the accurate information was innocuous.

"They listed my telephone number and address as confidential information. I've had the same number since 1934 and it's always been in the telephone book," he said.

You can find out if the FBI has a file on you by writing to William Webster, the new director. Include complete name, including nicknames, date and place of birth, prior addresses, present and past employers and other information that might enable the FBI to find any pertinent files.

The applicant must have his signature notarized, a safeguard against having someone else obtain a file.

A copy of the file, if the FBI has one, is available for 10 cents a page.

Under a "Do you remember" column in the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript Items, recently, with the date of Feb. 28, 1938, was this:

"Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Rae of 62 Brown Ave. learned through the courtesy of the air waves that they were the proud great-grand-parents of a son born to Mr. and Mrs. Colin Rae Jr. of Pampa, Texas. They heard the news via telephone of a Mr. Baxter of Gilbertville, a radio ham operator, who had received the message from the proud father, also a ham operator. The Holyoke Raes admitted it was just pure luck that they got the news so quickly."

Clifford A. Jones, Republican candidate for the congressional seat now held by Jack Hightower, came into the newsroom Tuesday to introduce himself.

He is a Perryton farmer and businessman.

One of the things he talked about was the brother with whom he farms. The brother spent two days in a jail in the Valley because of his participation in the farm strike on the bridge to Mexico.

Jones believes that farm products should be put on the world market and that inflation is killing the farmer.

"Inflation is caused by the government by printing too much money," he said. "It isn't caused by labor."

"It is a deal to sink the country," he added.

For Friday, March 17

Contacts you've established with persons who live outside of your immediate area could be of great value to you this coming year. Unusual circumstance will be the catalyst. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't try to mastermind the financial affairs of another day unless you know for sure you're on firm ground. An error could result in mutual losses.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Actions based upon advice of know-it-alls could lead you up a blind alley today. You'll make less mistakes by heeding your own counsel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pointing out the frailties of others today will cause them to take a harder look at your own. No one will like what they see.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Spending beyond your means to keep up appearances is a sure way to fulfill today. Impress friends with what you are, not with what you have.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Consider yourself as good as anyone you encounter today, but not better than them. Snobbish behavior will cost you points with your peers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Play everything close to your vest today so detractors won't have any chances to point the finger of blame. They're looking for an opening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A well-intentioned friend may tout you on to something today that he feels is good for you financially. Before you leap in, examine it yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have a knack for drawing attention today. Bear in mind: All who will be watching are not necessarily your staunchest supporters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In dealing with others today be neither harsh nor wishy-washy. But above all, don't ask them to do things you wouldn't do yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't treat business matters lightly today. Failure to do what's needed could turn something potentially profitable into a loser.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your mettle will be tested in one-to-one relationships today. Be prepared to contend with persons you normally try to avoid.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should not attempt any new approaches to your work today. Stick to those ways you know will get the job done. This will meet the boss's approval.

Lobbying sways canal treaty votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wendell H. Ford arrived at the Dirksen Senate Office Building at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday to work on the speech announcing he would vote against the Panama Canal treaties.

The Kentucky Democrat was one of the last of the holdouts, still uncommitted as the tally sheets showed the totals edging toward the numbers essential to approve or defeat the treaties.

But most of those sheets listed him as expected to vote against the treaties.

At 7:15 a.m., Walter F. Mondale, vice president of the United States, popped unannounced into Ford's office for a chat. The two men talked privately for about 30 minutes.

Then Ford's old friend Bob Strauss showed up with White House aide Hamilton Jordan and Lee Kling. Ford had been one of the strongest promoters of Strauss when the Texan became Democratic national chairman. Kling is a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

They were followed by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who also was publicly uncommitted but who would announce a few hours later that he would vote for the treaties.

After all the visitors had gone, Ford cancelled his request for time to make a speech. He cancelled his appointments and told an aide he needed more time to think.

Later, Ford laughed when asked if the administration had corralled another vote and said he was back working on the same speech.

The activity by the administration raised questions whether deals were being struck: a vote for the treaty in exchange for a water project, support of a farm bill, a decision to buy copper for the nation's strategic stockpile and, of course, the president's power to fill thousands of jobs in the executive and judicial branches.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., looking weary and resigned after bucking the kind of power a president can bring to bear, said, "I don't want to appear crass, but our side can't buy copper. Our side can't appoint any judges. Our side can't promise a senator he won't have an opponent."

Helms added that the Carter administration probably hasn't done any more than its predecessors in similar situations. Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., heard all the stories about deals and issued an angry blast at the administration in which he said, "The president shouldn't be the host of 'Let's Make a Deal.'"

Packwood said he was so upset by the alleged wheeling and dealing that he was considering voting against the treaties. But on Wednesday, Packwood had talked to Mondale and Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and was convinced the decisions to buy copper and not to oppose a Talmadge farm bill were not related to the treaty fight.

All the lobbying wasn't from the pro side.

Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., regarded as uncommitted, was visited by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His office also was the target of hundreds of calls from treaty opponents who, after expressing their opposition, asked to be transferred to the offices of other wavering senators.

Death injection studied

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge today is studying a request for a stay of execution by the first Texas prisoner sentenced to die by lethal injection.

Kenneth Granviel, scheduled to die April 7, was the first person condemned to die by lethal injection after the Texas Legislature changed the method of execution in the state from death in the electric chair.

He was convicted in Fort Worth in 1975 of the 1974 knife slaying of a 2-year-old girl.

He argued before U. S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Wednesday that his rights were violated because persons who opposed the death penalty were allegedly excluded from jury duty.

Granviel, imprisoned at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, also claimed that he was denied effective assistance of counsel, due process of law and equal protection when the testimony of his psychiatrist that he was not psychotic was admitted into evidence for the state.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals upheld Granviel's conviction in 1976, after which the date of his execution by lethal injection was set for Sept. 16, 1977.

He asked the appeals court for a writ of habeas corpus Sept. 6. The writ was denied Feb. 1. A new April 7 execution date was set.

O'Connor gave no indication when he will act the request.

New USS Texas to land K - Day set for Sunday

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — The newest USS Texas, this one a nuclear powered cruiser, is moving across the Gulf of Mexico today to make its first landing on the shores of the state for which it was named.

There have been other USS Texas ships in service, one for the Republic of Texas, and one for the Confederate Navy, and three others under the Stars and Strips of the United States.

The new USS Texas is the swiftest, strongest and with more firepower than those others, even the famous battleship Texas that after 34 years of service was anchored permanently at the San Jacinto Battleground State Park some 25 miles east of Houston.

Historians say the USS Texas was the only first line battleship to be given to a state as a shrine and the first where the U.S. flag was lowered in favor of another flag—this one with a lone star on a field of red-white-and-blue.

The new nuclear-powered vessel, which can stay at sea for 10 years without refueling, is coming into Pier 33 at Galveston to give those sailing buffs, and the residents of the island resort city, and all those others who have a pride in anything named Texas, an opportunity to tour the ship and talk to the crew.

They can study its length of 585 feet and its breadth of 65 feet, and its two nuclear reactors, and its accommodations for 497 persons.

Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe—it was Janey Briscoe who christened the ship at Norfolk, Va.—will make an inspection on Friday, St. Patrick's day.

When the cruiser was commissioned there was a county-western shin-kicking dance, a military dress parade, hot chili, cold beer, and spicy Texas barbecue.

This time nothing so fancy is planned, but when the USS Texas gets to Texas, who knows.

Skylab may be re-used

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Johnson Space Center officials say studies will be made on the possibilities of re-activating and re-using Skylab, the space laboratory that was abandoned four years ago.

Steve McLendon, a JSC flight controller, said Wednesday space officials who made contact with Skylab recently found the space station "has everything a crew would need to live there and spend some time there."

"We found it almost as if we had just left it yesterday," said McLendon, one of three JSC flight controllers who just returned from a Bermuda tracking station where they aroused the 118-foot-long, 84-ton spacecraft.

Meanwhile, the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., has contracted with two aerospace companies to study the possibilities of reactivating and reusing the space station.

Space center officials said the possibilities for reuse range from docking the space shuttle to it so that astronauts could occupy it again, to its use as a base to assemble and support large space structures for communications, solar energy or other public service operations.

Flight controllers found the space station still has "a lot of oxygen, nitrogen and water," McLendon said.

He also said it was found that Skylab still holds a lot of gas which is needed to maneuver.

He said one battery was left to take a full charge from the solar panels on the spacecraft. Three others were left in a position to take a "trickle charge", he said.

He said flight controllers also were able to turn on the space station computer and dump data from it and turn on the Apollo Telescope Mount, which supplied astronomers with more data from about the sun, he said.

Skylab is expected to be maneuvered from a JSC control room April 19. A second plan to keep Skylab in orbit is for the crew of the third space shuttle mission in October 1979 to place a small propulsion device on the spacecraft to boost its orbit 70 miles. It is estimated the boost will increase Skylab's orbital life by two years.

McLendon said that before consideration is given to revisit Skylab, oxygen and nitrogen would have to be turned on so that it could be determined whether the space station still will maintain the necessary interior pressure, he said.

Skylab was launched May 14, 1973. It was home and workshop for three astronaut crews. The longest stay was 84 days which ended in February 1974. That mark was broken recently by a Russian crew in the Soyuz-A Salyut combination.

In 1976, approximately 134 million licensed drivers in the United States put nearly 1.4 trillion miles on their odometers going to work, running errands, making visits, taking vacations and providing services.

Registration for vehicles third done

About 30 percent of the 29,000 vehicles in Gray County that need 1978 motor vehicle registration stickers have been registered. Deadline is 4:30 p.m. March 31.

Jack Back, Gray county tax-assessor collector, said deadline is actually April 1, a Saturday when the courthouse is not open. Laggards face a 20 percent addition to their registration fees and fines by law enforcement officials, Back said.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation reported Friday that about 8.5 vehicles remained unregistered in Texas as of March 1.

A new system of staggered registration that started this year has not yet affected registration time at the courthouse, Back said.

Italian politician kidnapped

ROME (AP) — Former Premier Aldo Moro, considered Italy's most influential politician, was kidnapped today by gunmen who killed his driver and three members of his protective escort, police reported. Another bodyguard was seriously wounded and in a coma, they said.

A telephone call to ANSA, the Italian news agency, said the kidnapers were from the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared urban guerrilla group. Fifteen of its leaders are on trial in Turin, and the organization has vowed to force cancellation of the trial by terrorist attacks.

Two hours later police reported that a helicopter sighted a car speeding down a road on the outskirts of Rome. Five persons appeared to be in it, and one of them was being held on the floor.

A massive force of police converged on the area. Meanwhile, a widespread manhunt with helicopters and dogs was under way, and roadblocks were set up in and around the Italian capital.

The police, denying initial reports that Moro was wounded in a kidnap attempt that failed, said the 61-year-old political leader was driven off in a white Fiat 128.

President Giovanni Leone called the abduction "a challenge to the state" and said "the state must give the firmest reply with every measure. We must adopt every necessary measure to counter this situation."

The kidnapped man has been premier of Italy five times and is now president of the Christian Democrats, Italy's largest party and its dominant political force since World War II. He was considered a leading candidate for the presidency of Italy when the post becomes vacant next December.

The kidnaping occurred at 9:15 a.m. as Moro was being driven to the Parliament building for a speech by Premier Giulio Andreotti unveiling the program of his new Christian Democratic government.

Witnesses said about four men blocked Moro's car in the Trionfale section of Rome, near the Hilton Hotel, then opened fire with submachine guns and killed the former premier's chauffeur and a bodyguard riding with him. All the windows in the car were shattered.

Contract faces miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed contract, sweetened by bargainiers and narrowly approved by the United Mine Workers' leadership, is heading to the coalfields, where it faces uncertain chances of ending the miners' 101-day strike.

The union's bargaining council endorsed the tentative agreement by an unexpectedly close vote of 22-17 Wednesday as some council members expressed concern the 160,000 striking miners again would vote for rejection.

Despite key industry concessions concerning health benefits and anti-wildcat strike provisions, the new settlement won less support from the council than an earlier contract that was soundly defeated by the rebellious rank-and-file.

Before the vote, several dozen striking miners picketed UMW headquarters in Washington to protest the agreement. The protest forced the bargaining council to abruptly move its meeting to the Labor Department.

The tentative agreement is the third reached between union and coal industry bargainiers since the strike began on Dec. 6. The bargaining council rejected the first; the rank-and-file members turned down the second.

The members are scheduled to vote on the new accord a week from Friday. "I don't think it will pass my district," said Joseph Phipps, president of District 19 in Kentucky. "It's a better contract, but it still doesn't satisfy what the members wanted."

The principal objection to the new agreement, said Phipps and other council members, is the provision calling for company-run health insurance plans instead of the existing independent fund set up 28 years ago for UMW members and their families.

In addition, the proposed contract would require miners to pay for some health care benefits they had been receiving at no cost under the expired 1974 contract. However, the maximum payments are several hundred dollars less than under the pact rejected by the rank-and-file.

Umw President Arnold Miller, who said before the council's vote that he "just couldn't imagine the rank-and-file turning it down this time," left immediately after the meeting and was unavailable for comment.

William Calley sinks into quiet anonymity

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — William Calley Jr., the only man convicted in the My Lai massacre, has won his wish to "sink into anonymity." He lives quietly here with his wife, bolstered by friendly townspeople who respect his desire for privacy.

Ten years ago today, Calley, a stocky, rusty-haired, baby-faced, 24-year-old lieutenant, led an infantry platoon into a Vietnamese village. An Army report says the unarmed men, women and children killed by the soldiers numbered "at least 175 and the number may exceed 400."

Three years afterward, Calley's court martial and conviction for the murders of 22 My Lai villagers touched off a national uproar. Many felt he had simply followed the orders of superiors and was made a scapegoat.

Calley, now 34, sells insurance in his adopted hometown, where he lives in one of its most fashionable sections with his wife, Penny, the daughter of a Columbus jeweler. They were married nearly two years ago in an elegant, candlelit wedding.

They live quietly, Calley continues one of his favorite pastimes, preparing dinner at home for friends, a close associate said.

Is superperson Concorde the mysterious boomer?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is investigating a scientist's theory that the superperson Concorde airliner caused some of the mysterious booming sounds heard over the East Coast this winter.

The theory differs from a report made two weeks ago in which the Naval Research Laboratory attributed the sounds to a strange atmospheric effect upon sonic booms caused by military aircraft.

Dr. Jeremy J. Stone, director of the Federation of American Scientists, told a news conference Wednesday that military planes undoubtedly generated some of the booms, but he said he believes most were created by the British-French Concorde.

He cited several reasons for his theory, including the fact that reports of the booms and unexplained lights at night began in December, shortly after the Concorde began passenger service from Europe to New York's Kennedy International Airport.

Names in the news

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — It's not the White House. But former President Gerald Ford and his wife, Betty, are moving into their new desert hacienda this week.

It's a question of landscaping and a few finishing touches, but the furniture is being moved in today. Gloria Hill, an aide to the former president, said Wednesday.

The couple had expected to move into the 15-room mansion by last Christmas, but Ms. Hill said torrential rains delayed completion until this month.

The new house borders the 13th fairway of the exclusive Thunderbird Country Club, where the Fords are members.

It includes a two-bedroom guest wing, complete with kitchen facilities, and a tennis court which the Fords share with their neighbor, former ambassador to Belgium Leonard Westbrook.

21 indicted in pot conspiracy

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — Authorities were planning to continue their search today for 21 persons named in a Muskogee federal grand jury indictment that alleges a multi-state marijuana conspiracy.

The indictment named 37 persons. Officers arrested McCurtain County residents in raids that commenced at about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday.

McCurtain County Sheriff Paul Stewart was scheduled to appear before the federal panel in Muskogee today as part of its continuing probe into alleged drug operations in Arkansas, Texas and the south-east part of Oklahoma.

Earlier, Stewart had been indicted by a McCurtain County grand jury on allegations that he neglected "to act on information about the whereabouts of marijuana."

Stewart was removed from office following the indictment, but was returned to duty when a judge granted the prosecution a delay in the case.

Federal authorities said Stewart and his deputies "weren't invited" to participate in the drug bust Wednesday, an investigator said.

Carried out by officers headquartered at the National Guard armory here, the raid was the culmination of an investigation headed by the Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. Federal and state officers, including the Choctaw County sheriff's office, also participated in the raids centered on the Idabel area.

U.S. Attorney Julian Fite said there was no way to tell how long the arrests might take to complete.

Fite said two persons named in the conspiracy indictment, James Earl Cook and Ralph Patten, were slain at Cook's Idabel home Dec. 2.

Warns of 'false security'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Executive Vice President C.S. Nicandros of Continental Oil Co. said today that the current oversupply of petroleum "could lead to certain wishful thinking."

The current oversupply is temporary, and it is masking a tightening petroleum situation that could translate itself into serious shortages by the mid-1980s, Nicandros told oil and gas executives.

"Things are better, but they still are not good enough," said President Avery Rush Jr. of Diamond Shamrock Oil and Gas Co.

Their views were among several at the Texas Railroad Commission's annual hearing on the state of the oil and gas industry.

Before the presentations, the commission routinely set the April statewide oil allowance at 100 percent. Maximum production was ordered six years ago and, with the exception of three months last winter, has remained at 100 percent.

As usual, however, the East Texas Field was restricted to 86 percent production to avoid possible waste.

Chairman Mack Wallace of the commission noted that crude oil imports into the United States were 8,022,000 barrels per day for the four-week average of March 3. This represents approximately 41 percent of this country's demand, he said.

Nominations by major purchasers for April totaled 3,543,797 barrels a day, a decrease of 31,841 barrels a day from March.

Shreveport man charged with murder

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A Shreveport man who claimed he was pistol whipped by a city policeman has been awarded $4,100 in damages.

Bennie Lee Baker sued, claiming that officer Marshall Nelson falsely arrested him on charges of criminal mischief and drunkenness in 1976. He testified that Nelson hit him in the head several times with his gun.

The defense contended that Baker resisted arrest and had to be subdued.

Although the city of Shreveport was dismissed as a defendant in the case, the payment will come from the city's general fund. And city attorneys represented the policeman.

Baker had sought $154,000 in damages. His attorney said he thought the jury would have made a higher award if they had known the city would act instead of the policeman.

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A woman who went to the Bryan County jail to visit her husband also was jailed Wednesday, when authorities allegedly found three marijuana cigarettes among items she had brought with her.

Mary Maines was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute following her attempt to visit her husband, 23-year-old Charlie Maines.

Maines is being held in Bryan County pending sentencing for his manslaughter conviction in connection with the ambush slaying of two men at Lake Texoma.

Bryan County Deputy Sheriff Doug Clark says he found a small bag containing the cigarettes concealed in the bottom of a paper soft drink container when he searched Mrs. Maines.

If all goes according to plan, Caroline Kennedy apparently will get to keep her driver's license.

Miss Kennedy, 20, was ticketed on the Long Island Expressway on July 4 for allegedly driving 86 mph in a 55 mph zone. Sources say District Attorney Patrick Henry has agreed to reduce the charge to speeding at 70 mph in exchange for a guilty plea.

All the Suffolk County DA will say is that Miss Kennedy "was not given any preferential treatment."

If the reported plea-bargaining agreement is accepted by the judge Friday, Miss Kennedy will not face the possibility of losing her license. It could

NEW YORK (AP) — Ah, to be Irish on St. Patrick's Day. And also Jewish? "I was brought up on kosher potatoes," Dennis Victor said, wiping the bar. "My father's parents came from County Cork. My mother's came from the Ukraine. Here I am, an Irish Jew."

With a touch of the poet as his father's legacy, a bit of the philosopher as his mother's, Dennis Victor thus becomes the ideal bartender.

He is as pleasant in demeanor as in looks: a compact 5-foot-11, 175 pounds, with thick black hair and black eyebrow over smiling Irish eyes, and a sharp, delta-shaped Jewish nose. He is 40.

He presides over 45 feet of well-worn mahogany at O'Neal Bros. saloon, which, on Friday, will become O'Neal Bros. madhouse.

The luck of his father's side placed Dennis' domain, O'Neal's, close to the end of the parade route. In New York, St. Patrick's Day parades are known for a mighty thirst.

"You will see a lot of cops and firemen in here tomorrow," Dennis said. "It will be so crowded you can't move."

O'Neal's, on less frantic days, is one of those easy neighborhood joints that enrich life, that provide the pause in the day's occupation that is known as the grown-ups' hour. In back, the more athletic customers throw darts.

Dennis Victor is the captain of O'Neal's intrepid dart team but that is not what has brought him fame at O'Neal's. It is his skill as a bartender that is, at times, uncanny.

A skilled bartender, of course, must be equally adept at mixing drinks and keeping peace.

The trick is to stop trouble before it starts.

Dennis said. "When people are drinking, things can get out of hand in a hurry. You have to do the right thing, say the right thing, so your meaning is clear and nobody is insulted."

A man once came into O'Neal's somewhat unsteadily, slid onto a stool and proceeded to get comfortable.

Dennis leveled jet black eyes at him. "Don't light that cigarette," he said evenly. Bullseye. The man got up and teetered off without a word.

"If I had told him he couldn't have a drink he would have gotten loud. I don't know how I knew, I could just tell."

In his eight years at O'Neal's serving all kinds of crowds, Dennis can count on one hand, well, maybe two, the times he has had to toss anyone out. "It's unpleasant for everybody if it comes to that."

If it should come to that, though, Dennis' timing seems to be perfect.

During a recent snowstorm he tossed out two rowdies simultaneously, by the collars. At the very moment they landed in a snowbank out front the snowplow came along and buried them.

Erin go bragh, Dennis, and mazel tov.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for 15 years and have three children. I'm under a lot of pressure at work, and when I'm finished (at 3:30 p.m.), I sometimes go to a bar to unwind and talk with friends. I get home anywhere between 8 and 10 p.m. (Only occasionally do I stay until the bar closes at 1 a.m.)

Sometimes after work I stop and visit my mother, which ties me up until 9 or 10 p.m.

My wife always has dinner on the table at 6 p.m., and more often than not, I'm there. I can't understand why she insists that I should call her after work to let her know where I am and whether I'm coming right home or not.

She doesn't object to my having a few drinks; she knows I'm not seeing other women, and she certainly can't object to my seeing my mother. Nevertheless, she gets mad and says she has a right to know as soon as possible which nights I'll be home later than usual.

How can I get her to grow up and realize that mature adults do not need to check in like children?

NAGGED TO DEATH

DEAR NAGGED: Why don't YOU grow up and behave like a responsible adult? Your wife has a right to know which nights you're going to be late, and if so, how late. Few things are as unsettling to a wife as waiting indefinitely for her husband to show up for dinner. So when you know you're going to be late, give her a call.

DEAR ABBY: At the age of 51, my husband sent a dollar for your booklet "How To Be Popular," and he's been swinging ever since.

Up until then he was a very reserved person. But lately he's been trying to make himself more "charming," and develop the art of being a good conversationalist, and he seems to be succeeding.

Now I've got to know how to cope with a swinging husband. If you have a booklet on that, I'd like to have one. If you don't, please write one and I'll be your first customer.

REJECTED IN IOWA

DEAR REJECTED: I don't have a booklet on that subject, but you've given me an idea.

DEAR ABBY: While in Munich, Germany, recently, I was shown through a brewery, and I noticed that the English-speaking tour guide carefully enunciated "you know" after each sentence.

After the tour, I asked her if she had been instructed to say "you know" so frequently.

She replied, "No, but I have heard you Americans speak, and that's the one thing I noticed you say very often."

So, who was I to tell her otherwise, you know?

DELORES

DEAR DELORES: Yes, I know. And until it was called to my attention, I was not aware of how often I used that superfluous little filler.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need information on what I can do as a wife and mother to help fight overweight.

My husband is 42 years old, 5-foot-9 and weighs 185 pounds. He also has high blood pressure. His doctor has not recommended a diet, but instead advised him to cut down on the amount he eats. However, it seems he is addicted to eating, always talks about cutting down but always eating just as much.

Our daughters are becoming the same way. The 16 year old is 5-foot-6 and weighs 125 pounds. The 20 year old is 5-foot-7 and weighs 150 pounds.

I do not cook many foods that are high in fats and carbohydrates. I am 41 and 5-foot-4 weighing 124.

Do diets work? I have considered diet pills to help curb the appetites but most warn 'do not take if high blood pressure persists'. Can you help? Do you have a suitable diet plan?

DEAR READER — You can lose weight on any diet that decreases the calorie intake sufficiently in relation to the amount of physical activity that uses calories. The point is to do it safely and not injure your health in the process.

Yes there is probably a lot you can do and are not doing. It involves learning how to cook without adding a lot of calories to the meals. I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-12, Kitchen Power For Weight Control that discusses this for you. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

If you eliminate calories during food preparation the family can often have diet satisfaction and not have to exercise so much will power. The key is kitchen power not will power.

Eliminating fat is important because it is a major source of calories. A lot of fat is hidden. It is not just in meat as some people believe. You can eliminate fat from beef and have a fairly low calorie main dish. How you prepare chicken and which fish you choose and how you prepare it determines whether it is still low calorie or not. Most of these foods can be enjoyed in abundance without ingesting a lot of calories if you don't fry them, add fat in preparation, or broil them swimming in butter or margarine.

You can use uncreamed cottage cheese which provides a lot of diet satisfaction with its bulk, as well as good protein and needed calcium. Low fat or uncreamed cottage cheese is very filling and adds few unnecessary calories. It is easy to prepare, too.

You can learn how to make a sour cream substitute that has few calories and can be added to a baked potato so your family can enjoy baked potatoes and sour cream substitute without getting fat.

You can learn to cook vegetables without fat — getting them as nature intended you to. And learn how to make salads without adding high calorie salad dressings. Use fresh fruit for dessert. Avoid sweets and fats and what is left is a wholesome well-balanced diet that can be limited in calories and still provide diet satisfaction. That would be a big contribution any wife and mother could make to her family's health. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

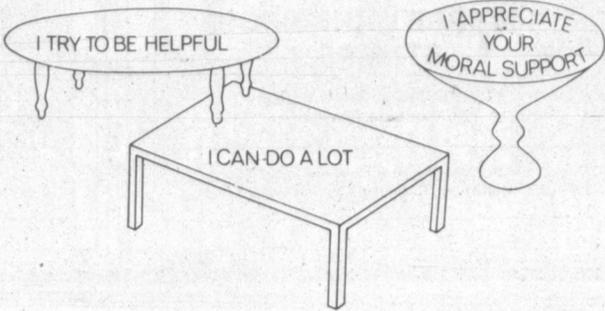

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Readers are often asking how to remove the odor of onions from one's hands and there is such a simple solution. Let faucet water run over your stainless steel paring knife onto your hands after you have finished the onion peeling. The result is immediate and complete. Some scientists say this is due to a chemical reaction.

M.H. (MARGARET) HARMON used a computer to find relationships between home decorating traits and personality types, which she used as the basis for her book, "Psycho-decorating." What does your choice of coffee table suggest about you?

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Curved legs and straight legs, that's pretty much the difference between liberated and non-liberated women.

Not their own, of course. The legs they choose in coffee tables and chairs.

At least, that's one of the conclusions of M.H. (Margaret) Harmon, a psychologist from Jenkintown, Pa., who decided women who spend a lot of time at home should find out about themselves, from that home.

So she sent out a bunch of questionnaires to women in the Philadelphia area (because that's where she lives) and Washington, D.C. (because that's where she's from) and then she wrote "Psycho-Decorating," published by Wyden Books.

Based on the responses of 80 mostly married, middle-class, women who had decorated their own homes, the book deals largely with the "deferential" or traditional woman and the "achiever."

And that's where the legs come in, pleating or standing straight in the living room, for example.

"The curved line goes with the quality called deference," begins Mrs. Harmon, a shy brunette who smiles a lot. "That means being agreeable and fitting in with traditional things. A deferential woman is one who isn't harsh in her relationships."

Not that she's a patsy or a doormat or terribly unhappy being "supportive" to her husband, she adds. "She doesn't feel inferior, she's just trying to fit in."

So nine times out of 10, the deferential woman will choose curved lines over straight. "She likes French Provincial furniture," Mrs. Harmon says. "French toile patterns and oriental rugs which, of course, are traditional. Also, she likes many colors and patterns and that goes with a tolerance for different viewpoints." Unless those viewpoints concern women's lib, which she probably doesn't take kindly to, she concedes.

Her walls tend to be traditionally dark and her windows will have tie-back draperies (the curve, again), probably with a floral pattern in them. But they won't be velvet because Mrs. Harmon says, "she doesn't like unusual textures. She avoids velvets, shag rugs, glass and lacquered things."

Give her smooth wooden furniture, say, and she'll probably let you watch whatever you want on her TV which she tends to keep in the living room. "That's so she can pick up on what's going on in order to fit in with others."

Don't look for a television in the "achiever's" living room, though. A stereo, a radio, lots of books — "She has an open mind" — that's what you'll find there.

Plus more straight lines than curves. "The achiever likes straight lines in most of her furniture, which I think indicates rationality. Her mental atmosphere is lucid and objective, and she likes light walls which you often see in office buildings."

Smack in the middle of one she might stick a mural of Burt Reynolds, though, because something striking like that on a wall jibes with her ability to express strong views.

And she's going to have a coffee table you won't miss.

Large and probably rectangular, possibly glass-topped, maybe marble or brass. As for patterns, give her something bold like a stripe. And hammer wooden shutters around her windows, which may or may not have draperies tied back, but will have corncices or a valance "to show her high goals."

Unlike the deferential woman, the achiever doesn't care one way or the other about velvets, but don't bring up Oriental rugs or anything silky in her presence. She can't stand them.

As for live plants, both ladies have a crack at them because, Mrs. Harmon says, highly heterosexual women like plants. Lots of them. And you don't have to be achieving or deferential to like men.

Actually, though, Mrs. Harmon didn't say that at all, she says. A machine did. "I put all the questions on the computer which found the relationships between each question and each trait, and the computer said plants were related to sexual interest."

Well, before you start puzzling over the lady who moved in next door with 14 eucalyptus plants, a wing chair with two curved legs and two straight, and a huge rendering of "Little Women," Mrs. Harmon wants it understood that none of this information is especially scientific. You really have to know a person before you can let their home speak for them. She wrote the book only to give clues and to get women to think about how decorating reflects who they are. Or should, if they're "congruent."

"Someone who behaves as he actually is inside and doesn't put on a false impression is considered congruent," she says. "It's not considered psychologically desirable to be incongruent." In other words, if your living room looks just like Mary Tyler Moore's, you should be just like Mary Tyler Moore.

Unless, of course, Ms. Moore had a decorator do her house which might indicate, Mrs. Harmon says, some feelings of insecurity about revealing oneself to others.

Then again, maybe she just had a lot of money to play with, or couldn't take the time because she was too busy revealing herself in the newspaper.

Photographer sets Cowboy Hall exhibit

Laura Gilpin will open a one-woman exhibition at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center Friday.

The exhibition of 125 prints is a retrospective of her work over the past 64 years. At age 87, Laura Gilpin is recognized throughout the world as the most famous woman photographer. She is credited with 4 major photographic books including "The Enduring Navaho" which won the Western Heritage Award at the Cowboy Hall of Fame in 1969.

Laura Gilpin is currently working on her fifth book. Twenty-five color photographs from this book will be included in the hall exhibit. She has personally selected several rare platinum prints and early color photographs for the show.

Myron Wood, Miss Gilpin's long time friend and fellow photographer, will give a lecture at 7 p.m. at the Hall. Prior to the lecture there will be a preview of the exhibition beginning at 6 p.m. Also planned is a first time viewing of a film about Miss Gilpin immediately following the lecture. Tickets, $5 per person, are available at the door or may be purchased in advance at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Commenting on Wood, Laura Gilpin said, "I have known Myron for many years, and he is a good friend of mine. He has done remarkable work with 35 mm film and is now doing a documentary on the Arkansas Valley in and around Pueblo and down the Valley."

The exhibit will continue through April 30. The National Cowboy Hall of Fame is open seven days a week from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

For a first course for a buffet supper you might like to mix drained and rinsed canned small white beans with canned tuna in olive oil and lots of finely diced red onion. It's an Italian-style appetizer that's delicious. Add extra olive oil if you like.

If you have a little cooked spinach left over, you can add it to a main-course cheese tart.

Sauce glorifies filet mignon

BY PIERRE FRANEY
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times
News Service

NEW YORK—In any broad concept of 60-minute cookery, gourmet style, it would be impossible to ignore some of the more expensive cuts of meat, for many of these most emphatically play an important role in what might be called the resources of the hasty cook.

Filet mignon does, of course, fit into this category. But one thing is apparent to me in shopping at the meat counter of a supermarket in my home town. There are times when this cut of beef can be quite reasonably priced, particularly when on special sale, as it often seems to be. There is a second, if obvious, thought, too. In any fillet, be it red meat, chicken or fish, there is no waste.

Classically, a filet mignon with a madeira wine sauce is made with what is known as a demi-glace, or a glace de viande. A demi-glace is a rich-bodied base, standard in professional kitchens, which requires many hours of simmering before straining. It congeals on cooling and can simply be introduced at the end of the preparation of a dish and does not require flour. A glace de viande is a demi-glace that has been reduced several hours longer and is rather firm in texture, like caramel candy. This serves a similar purpose, but only a dab of it stirred into a thin liquid will give body to the sauce without flour.

In that such sauces are rarely to be found in home kitchens, it is necessary to use some form of thickener to make a sauce such as a sauce madeira, a sauce bordelaise and so on. The filet mignon with sauce madeira outlined here requires about 15 minutes cooking time, and the sauce is thickened using one teaspoon of flour for four servings. A combination of quickly sauteed vegetables is suggested as an accompaniment and the total cooking time for these is less than 10 minutes. Thus, to prepare this meal in less than an hour it is best to prepare the basic ingredients for the beef, the sauce and the vegetables, and then start to cook.

Filet Mignon Sauce Madeira
4 filets mignons, about half a pound each salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons olive oil

2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
¼ cup madeira wine
¼ cup fresh or canned beef broth
3 teaspoons butter
1 teaspoon flour
2 teaspoons chopped parsley.

1. Sprinkle the meat on both sides with salt and pepper. Heat the oil in a skillet and, when very hot, add the meat. Cook over high heat about five minutes. Cook longer if you want medium or well-done meat.

2. Turn the meat and continue cooking over high heat about five minutes. Or cook longer if you want medium of well-done meat. Remove the meat to a warm platter and keep warm. Pour off the fat from the skillet. Add the shallots.

3. Add the wine and cook over high heat about 30 seconds. Add the broth and bring to a full rolling boil, stirring to dissolve the brown particles that cling to the bottom and sides of the skillet. Add a little salt and pepper to taste.

4. Cook until reduced by half.
5. Meanwhile, blend two teaspoons of butter and flour in a small mixing bowl. Stir it into the simmering sauce and cook briefly.

6. Swirl in the remaining teaspoon butter. Strain the sauce over the meat and dot the center of each filet with a dab of parsley. Serve immediately.
Yield: 4 servings.

Saute of Vegetables Fermiere
½ pound carrots
¾ pound white turnips
½ pound fresh mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter
salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
Chopped parsley.

1. Trim the carrots and cut into very thin slices. There should be about one and one-half cups.

3. Rinse and drain the mushrooms. Dry well. Slice thinly. There should be about three cups.

4. Heat the butter in a skillet and add the carrots and turnips. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cook, tossing and stirring, over high heat, about three minutes.

5. Add the mushrooms and cook, tossing and stirring, about two minutes.

6. Add the shallots and toss. Serve sprinkle with chopped parsley.
Yield: 4 servings.

Corned Beef with Colcannon potatoes

Prepare corned beef for oven roasting according to package directions. Near the end of roasting time, cook four cups shredded cabbage and one cup chopped onion in a small amount of boiling water for 15 minutes. Drain. Stir cabbage and onion into three cups hot, seasoned mashed potatoes. Garnish with parsley.

PORTUGUESE PORK CHOPS

It's a skillet dish.
4 thin pork chops
¼ cup cider vinegar
½ cup water
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon whole mixed pickling spice
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
Trim excess fat from around chops. Whisk together the remaining ingredients. Arrange the pork chops in a single layer in a shallow container into which they will just fit. Pour the marinade over them. Cover tightly. Refrigerate for 2 or 3 days. Drain. Dry with paper toweling. Fry in hot olive oil until cooked through. Makes 2 servings.

APPLE SLAW

1-3rd cup/mayonnaise-style salad dressing
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1 tablespoon bottled white horseradish
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
3 cups coarsely grated green cabbage

STUFFED GRAPEFRUIT

For ginger fanciers.
2 large seedless grapefruit
Honey
¼ cup ginger preserves
1 banana, sliced
Halve the grapefruit and cut around sections; flick the sections into a bowl; add honey; cover and chill. Remove the membranes from the grapefruit shells; cover and refrigerate. At serving time add the ginger and banana to the grapefruit; return mixture to shells. Makes 4 servings.

OLIVE CHEESE FONDU

Easy to make and serve.
1 tablespoon butter, soft
8 slices bread
6 ounces sharp cheddar cheese, coarsely grated
½ cup thinly sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
3 large eggs
1 cup milk
Spread the butter over the bottom of an 8 by 8 by 2-inch glass baking dish or similar utensil. Place 4 slices of the bread in a single layer in the dish; sprinkle with the cheese and olives; cover with remaining bread. Beat eggs and milk to blend; pour over bread. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until bottom is well browned and top lightly browned — 40 minutes. Makes 4 servings. (We used white bread from a 1-pound sliced loaf containing 20 "thin" slices—each ¾-inch thick.)

For St. Pat, make it Irish

BOXTY

1 egg
1 cup buttermilk
2 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup mashed potatoes
1 cup finely grated raw potato
¼ cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda

Beat egg, buttermilk, butter and both kinds of potatoes in a bowl.

Sift together dry ingredients and add to liquid mixture, stirring only lightly. Batter will be lumpy.

Drop by spoonfuls onto hot greased skillet and bake as for pancakes.

Serve at once, along with slices of corned beef, mustard and horseradish. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

COLCANNON

Cut into top of cabbage and hollow it out, leaving 3 or 4 outside leaves intact and reserving the hollowed-out portion. Plunge the hollowed-out head into a large amount of boiling water and simmer 5 minutes, or until crisp-tender. It must hold its shape. Cool quickly in cold water; invert and drain.

Chop reserved cabbage pieces and measure 1½ cups. Stir-fry in butter, along with scallions, until just tender. Set aside.

HONEST AND TRUE IRISH STEW

2 pounds lamb
2 pounds whole boiling onions
1 medium head of cabbage
1 tablespoon butter
8 scallions, chopped
1½ pounds potatoes, peeled
1 cup milk
Salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 pounds potatoes (about 3 medium per pound)
Salt
Pepper

Cut the lamb into fair-sized chunks. Peel the onions and potatoes. Cut the potatoes about the size of the onions. In a stew pot, put a layer of potatoes first. (This is important as they cook up first and give the stew its body.)

Then put in a layer of onions and a layer of lamb. Alternate layers until all ingredients are used up, being sure to sprinkle each layer with a little salt and pepper.

Barely cover with fresh-drawn cold water. Bring to a boil and simmer at least 2 hours until lamb is tender. Makes 4 servings.

PADDY'S DELIGHT

1½ pounds lean ground chuck
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 egg
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
Salt and pepper
4 medium potatoes
6 carrots
6 leeks
Juice of 1 lemon
Bay leaf
1 small package frozen brussels sprouts
1 small package frozen peas
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup freeze-dried chives

Mix beef with crumbs, egg, parsley, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Form into balls. Peel and cut potatoes into large chunks and put in a soup pot with leeks and carrots. Cover with boiling water and add lemon juice, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Drop meat balls into simmering water. Cover and cook gently for 30 minutes. Add brussels sprouts and peas; continue cooking until vegetables are tender. Ladle into bowls and top each with a spoonful of butter and some chives. Makes 6 servings.

Retired Army Lt. Col. Robert K. Brown is a magazine publisher and editor who's more at home on a firing range, as here in Boulder, Colo., than in a penthouse. His magazine is "Soldier of Fortune" and his ideal man is the professional adventurer "willing to take whatever risk" is necessary.

Soldier of Fortune

A violence magazine for the adventurous

EDITOR'S NOTE — If you want to enter the peaceable kingdom, "Soldier of Fortune" is not for you. What you'll find there is the warrior image writ large, and the magazine's classified columns are replete with adventurers in quest of excitement anywhere.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer
BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The red-rimmed cover suggests Time magazine, but the resemblance ends there.

The headlines set the tone. "Exclusive! War in Angola: Mercs In Action." "A Plot Destroy JFK And Invade Cuba." "Exclusive! George W. Bacon III: The Only American KIA In Angola!" "War in Rhodesia: An Interview With General B. P. Walls, Commander Rhodesian Army."

Beyond the red-rimmed door is a nether world of violence, adventure and machismo.

A close-up picture depicts what is said to be a black Rhodesian assassinating by "communist-sponsored terrorists," much of his head blown away. It illustrates a story on "American Mercenaries In Africa."

There is another installment of a pictorial panel on "Urban Street Survival — How To Defend Yourself Against Those Whose Hearts Are Not Pure!"

And there is a pictorial display of bizarre weapons — "Deadly Designs From The Super Spy Black Bag Of Dirty Tricks."

The magazine is "Soldier Of Fortune — The Journal Of Professional Adventurers." Its editor and publisher, retired U.S. Army Lt. Col. Robert K. Brown, age 45, sits behind his cluttered desk in front of an array of Rhodesian army recruiting posters (Terrorism Stops Here) and other memorabilia including a plaque that says, "You have never lived till you have almost died, and for those who fight for it, life has a flavor the protected will never know."

A 12-gauge shotgun is propped against the wall behind Brown's desk. There had been a break-in, he explains, and five electric typewriters were stolen. The other day a woman was stabbed in the parking lot, and Brown and two other men ran the culprit down. Since Brown writes and publishes for adventurers, self-styled or otherwise, it seemed appropriate to ask his ideal of a real man's man.

He picked the only American known to have been killed in Angola, George Bacon: "He was very well educated. He was an ecologist, an idealist. He believed in opposing tyranny. He believed in opposing tyranny with a gun. He was somebody willing to go out of his way for an ideal, willing to take whatever force was necessary, willing to take whatever risk was necessary."

Not that all the people who appear between the pages of his magazine are that remarkable.

The classified ads provide part of their profile:

"International Operator, former Army officer, bondable, seeking assignment as Courier, Organizational Specialist ... Situation investigations, Mercenary Operations."

"Ex-Marine seeks employment as mercenary, full time or job contract. Prefer South or Central America but all others considered."

Not all are so voluble. One reads simply, "Have Gun Will Travel. Contract or fee basis."

Brown says he knows of no instance where foreign agents or powers sought to recruit Americans through the columns of his magazine. He has no idea how many Americans now serve abroad, he says, but has heard estimates of 300 to 600 in Rhodesia.

The people who advertise products, rather than services, in Brown's magazine are part of the adventurers profile. You can buy tailor-made knives, flak jackets, bugging devices, anti-bugging devices, T-shirts that say "Death From Above," booklets on how to pick locks or blow safes, hand guns, sub-machine guns, sniper rifles, hunting guns, dart guns, bayonets, knives from various armies, war souvenirs, booklets on how to make money with guns.

Brown says there is no common denominator to the adventurer who reads "Soldiers Of Fortune."

Of the some 5,000 he's had personal contact with, he thinks there were only two or three who would fight for anybody's money.

"The vast majority has a strong ideological motivation, and that's certainly true of the large majority of the Americans in Rhodesia because they're not making that kind of bread. There are anti-communists, a lot of veterans who feel we were betrayed in Vietnam, who believe, as I do, that what we tried to do there was correct, although the manner in which we went about it was not."

More than half of his readers are either Vietnam veterans or on active duty today. His highest percentage of sales are in or near military bases.

Before Vietnam, Brown tried to join up with Castro until, he says, he recognized the communist thrust of the regime.

He always felt there was room for an adventure magazine like the old "True" and "Argosy," and with $10,000 he launched what he calls SOF in 1975.

He now prints up to 130,000 copies for 12,000 regular subscribers, newsstand sales of some $2,000 at $2 an issue and the rest for special dealers like gun stores.

Unlike many editors, Brown is far from sedentary. He's as much at home on the firing range as in the office. He goes on reporting trips to Africa. He organizes paramedical expeditions to disaster areas in South America.

His former wife died in a motorcycle accident, and his teenage daughter lives with him and works on SOF. Brown spends quiet weekends in the mountains, in rented condominiums, swims and jogs to keep his 5-foot-10 frame in shape.

He knows clearly what he wants his magazine to be.

"We make no apologies for our support of the warrior image," he says. "We are pro-military, pro-law enforcement, pro-gun ownership, anti-terrorist and anti-communist."

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a parent alive who hasn't been struck down in their prime by a condition called "Terminal Dumb."

It's usually diagnosed by their teenagers, who kindly refer to it as "premature senility."

For some of us, it was a cruel blow. One day my mother was a bright, intelligent, worthwhile human being with something to contribute to society. That woman could do anything and I believed her. She could make the traffic light turn green by blowing on it, cure my scraped knee by kissing it, and knew every answer to every question you could imagine.

Then one morning she woke up and she didn't know anything.

There wasn't an ounce of logic to anything she said. ("Wear boots. It's raining.") She became repetitious. ("Close the door.") Her grammar was so bad she once used the word "seen" without a helping verb and I had to correct her before a roomful of company.

She couldn't remember things anymore. One day when she didn't remember that my sister got to lick the pan on her 14th birthday and got a watch and I only got a boughten cake and a dresser set, I lost all respect for her. I was amazed she could feed herself.

Luckily, after I was married, my mother pulled out of it. It was like a miracle. She got hold of herself and was once again able to carry on a conversation without being corrected, make a move without criticism and really began to understand and appreciate me.

I hadn't thought much about the disease until the other night at dinner when I said, "Do you know what I'm thinking of?"

"Don't end a sentence with a preposition, mother, and sit up straight. You're slouching. Your spine will grow that way."

"You are always criticizing me," I said. "You're making me psychotic."

"You misuse that word all the time," said my son. "Why don't you look it up?"

Scout leaders to be trained

A training meeting for Cub Scout leaders has been set for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the First Christian Church, 200 S. Bryan, Borger.

Demonstrations will be given on ceremonies, games and skits. The purposes and operation of a Webelos den will be discussed.

Baby sitting will be provided for children from 2 to 10 years. Registration is $4. For information call 665-8963.

"I wish all of you would get off my case and stop prosecuting me."
"It's persecuting, p-e-r-s-e-c-u-t..."
"DON'T SPELL IN FRONT OF ME!"

I have a feeling that my mind has slipped out of my primetime spot temporarily. I don't know how long before my miraculous recovery takes place, but hopefully it will be soon... for their safety.

Bite decision is overturned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Del Rio man who was bitten by a 4-foot 8-inch rattlesnake as he reached for a jar of jelly in a local Gibson's store lost his damage suit in the Supreme Court today.

The high court said it could find "no reversible error" in lower court decisions that the discount store was not responsible for Gerald Clifton Overstreet's snakebite.

Overstreet was bitten Oct. 12, 1974.

His lawyers convinced a jury that Gibson's owed him $17,500, plus medical expenses totaling $2,820. But the trial judge ruled that the jury verdict went against Texas law and threw it out.

NEW YORK — Marvin is a diabetic. His life has depended on daily injections of insulin for the last 24 years, since he was 11 years old. But few would guess he has a serious medical problem. Marvin is a snow and water-skiing enthusiast, a fixer-up of old cars, a trustee in his church. And he hasn't missed a day of work in more years than he can remember.

Henry is also a diabetic. He first discovered his problem at the age of 52, through his annual physical. Henry made some changes in his diet and lost about 25 pounds, and his diabetes has been controlled without medication for the last six years.

Marvin and Henry are among an estimated 10 million Americans with diabetes mellitus, about half of whom don't even know they have it. The prevalence of diabetes has been increasing so rapidly in recent years that experts expect the number of Americans with diagnosed diabetes to double in 15 years. The reasons for this increase, and the underlying cause of the disease itself, remain mysteries.

However, modern medicine has done a great deal to forestall many of the serious and potentially life-threatening complications of diabetes and to enable most diabetics to lead near-normal lives. Even the once-stringent dietary restrictions have recently been modified so that the diabetic can, with a few readily avoided exceptions, eat the same foods that other people eat, although the diabetic may have to limit the amount he eats.

There are several different types of diabetes, ranging from very mild to very severe. Marvin is among the approximately one million Americans with the most severe form called insulin-dependent, or "juvenile" diabetes. Despite its name, juvenile diabetes can strike at any age, but it usually first appears in childhood or early adolescence.

Personal health

The vast majority of diabetics develop symptoms of the disease in midlife, as Henry did. Maturity- or adult-onset diabetes, as it is called, can usually be controlled by diet and exercise alone, without insulin. The most common precipitant of adult-onset diabetes appears to be obesity.

Symptoms of diabetes include frequent urination, excess thirst, itching (a persistent vaginal itch is common in female diabetics), increasing difficulties with sexual potency, blurred vision, muscle weakness and a weight loss despite an increased appetite. These symptoms primarily result from an accumulation of sugar in the blood that is the diagnostic hallmark of the disease.

Another type of diabetes involves no symptoms at all. This is called "chemical" diabetes, in which blood sugar may become abnormally high after eating and the results of glucose tests are abnormal. Some people may develop temporary chemical diabetes, precipitated by a stressful event such as pregnancy or illness.

Genetic factors are involved in diabetes, with some individual inheriting a predisposition to develop the disease. There is also evidence that a virus may sometimes trigger onset of the disease.

For reasons perhaps related to pregnancy, women are more likely to develop adult-onset diabetes than men are. The disease is also more prevalent among the poor and among nonwhites, possibly the result of obesity.

The high blood sugar characteristic of diabetes stems from an abnormality of insulin, the hormone produced by the pancreas that enables body cells to take up and use the blood sugar, glucose.

In juvenile diabetes, insulin is lacking entirely or its supply is seriously deficient. But in many other diabetics, rather than a lack of insulin production, there appears to be a disruption in how the body utilizes the hormone. Either way, glucose accumulates in the blood and spills over into the urine. (The disease is commonly discovered as a result of a routine blood or urine analysis.)

The body tries to dilute the high blood sugar by moving water out of the cells, and the kidneys work overtime to get rid of the sugar and water, causing frequent urination and intense thirst. Uncorrected, the combination of dehydration and excessive sugar in the blood can lead to a diabetic coma.

Because glucose doesn't enter body cells normally, the fat cells act as if there were an inadequate supply of glucose to fulfill the body's energy needs and they respond by releasing fatty acids, an energy alternative. When fatty acids are used by liver cells for energy, substances called ketone bodies accumulate in the blood and ultimately make the blood acidic. The resulting condition, diabetic acidosis, can be rapidly fatal.

But there is more to diabetes than a derangement in sugar metabolism. The disease also involves a defect in the small blood vessels and early-in-life development of hardening of the arteries, or atherosclerosis. In fact, today the vascular complications are far more likely to cause serious illness and death among diabetics than coma, acidosis or insulin shock. It is uncertain whether proper control of a diabetic's blood sugar can forestall these vascular problems, although other types of complications can be helped by controlling diabetics. Thickening of the walls of the small blood vessels can produce complications involving the kidneys, the retina of the eye, the nervous system and the skin.

Diabetic retinopathy is a leading cause of blindness in adults. Several new approaches to treatment, including surgery to replace the fluid in the eye, or the use of a laser beam, can restore or improve sight in some, but there is as yet no way to prevent the hemorrhages that lead to visual loss in the first place.

Premature atherosclerosis in the larger blood vessels of diabetics sets the stage for heart attack, stroke and loss of circulation to the legs. Today, four out of five diabetics succumb to cardiovascular diseases.

These complications can occur in any diabetic, even those with a mild form of the disease, but they tend to occur earlier and more severely in juvenile diabetics. Nonetheless, a study by the famous Joslin Clinic in Boston of 73 patients who had juvenile diabetes for more than 40 years showed that three-fourths had only mild or minor complications.

For those requiring insulin, the hormone must be taken daily by injection to work because of their diabetes. (Since it is a protein, it would be destroyed by digestive juices if taken orally.) Some insulin-dependent diabetics need psychotherapy or counseling to help them adjust to the demands of their disease.

Those who do not require insulin can often bring their blood sugar down to normal levels by losing weight (if they are overweight to start with) and adopting a diet in which about 20 percent of the calories are protein, 35 percent are fats (at most, only one-third saturated fats) and 45 percent are carbohydrates — bread, potatoes, rice, pasta and the like. However, foods containing high concentrations of refined sugar — candy, cake, icing, gooey pastries, ice cream, soda, for example — should be avoided. Saturated fats and cholesterol should also be kept low in a diabetic diet, since these promote atherosclerosis, a disease to which diabetics are already abnormally prone.

The American Diabetes Association and the American Dietetic Association have devised "exchange lists" that can help diabetics plan tasty meals covering a wide range of tastes. The Exchange Lists for Meal Planning can be obtained from local affiliates of these organizations for less than $1.

Exercise also seems to reduce a diabetic's need for insulin, as well as help to reach and maintain a normal body weight and perhaps also counter the development of atherosclerosis.

Raid wins support on home front for Begin

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — By ordering the invasion of southern Lebanon, Prime Minister Menachem Begin may have lost some sympathy in the Carter administration. But he has won valuable support on the home front.

All political factions except the tiny Communist Party have approved the raid and newspapers often critical of Begin's policy have united behind him.

The conservative newspaper Yediot Aharanot said failure to reply to the Palestinian attack last Saturday in which 35 Israelis died "would have been taken not as greatness of spirit, but as fear. And this would have encouraged more terrorism."

"He couldn't let it go by without an answer," said one source close to the prime minister.

"For one thing, public opinion here wouldn't let him. This is something we have been wanting to do for a long time," another source said. "Anytime you can disrupt the Patah it's worth a risk," and the highway slayings "provided a good opportunity."

AP News Analysis

Reports that Begin toured the battle zone in an open jeep enhanced his image.

Begin's position at home had been eroding in recent weeks. His cabinet was deeply split over whether to bow to Washington's objections to Jewish settlements in the occupied territories. His opponents in the Knesset had begun a fierce attack on the peace plan he offered to President Anwar Sadat.

Then came the terrorist attack Saturday. Begin delayed his trip to Washington a week and decided to retaliate despite U.S. and Egyptian warnings. But instead of the hit-and-run raids with which Israel has retaliated in the past, the army crossed the border in force to drive the Palestinians out of south Lebanon.

Insiders figure that while the invasion has eroded some of the sympathy which the terrorist attack aroused for Israel in Washington, this has not dissipated entirely.

They believe official U.S. reaction will be mild as long as Israel holds down civilian losses and provided Syrian peace-keeping troops do not intervene, which they show no sign of doing.

TFW: a low-budget movement

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
PHARR, Texas (AP) —

While striking farmers are jet-hopping across the nation, impoverished South Texas farm workers are fighting a similar battle on a smaller budget.

The improbable allies say they are seeking the same goal — enough money to live on — and are protesting a common enemy — the profit-rich corporate farmer.

As the American Agriculture movement grabbed headlines recently by swarming onto an international bridge near here, the Texas Farm Workers Union began picketing several Rio Grande Valley onion fields. TFW is an independent organization.

Antonio Orendain, TFW leader, went to the bridge to pledge his support for the farm strike.

He was cheered but a quiet undercurrent swept through the crowd.

"They say he's caused a lot of trouble for some of these Valley boys," one out-of-town farmer said.

Local farm workers blocked the Hidalgo bridge three years before the farmers took the span earlier this month. TFW backers, like the farmers, have trekked to Washington to seek legislative relief that would grant them collective bargaining rights.

While the farmers flew to Washington, the poverty-stricken farm workers walked to Washington from what they call the "Valley of Tears."

Orendain's office is in a mobile home on a dirt road about 15 miles from the Hilton Hotel where the American Agriculture office was set up.

"We are at the bottom of the social barrel," Orendain said.

The ragged picketers have been protesting at four onion fields. Orendain calls collective bargaining a "sacred right." He said farm laborers have been getting from 30 cents to 40 cents per 55-pound sack of onions picked.

Bobby Scott, area supervisor for the Department of Labor wage and hour division in Corpus Christi, confirmed that farm workers have filed two sets of complaints alleging producers are paying subminimum wages.

By law agricultural workers must be paid at least $2.65 per hour. Scott said piecework rates are legal if the employer guarantees at least 65 cents per hour.

Dennis Seal of Seal Produce in Alamo, one of the targets of the strike, said his workers are paid 50 cents to 65 cents per sack and earn at least minimum wages. He also said the strike has had no effect on his operation.

"It isn't the farm workers striking,—it's the agitators," Seal said.

He denied allegations that producers are bringing illegal aliens across the border to break the strike.

"All I know is that they (TFW) got caught with illegal aliens," he said.

Officials here deported one juvenile last week after two youths were arrested at a picket line. The teen-agers allegedly used abusive language at the strike site.

Marvin Schwarz, whose fields in Mercedes also have been the site of picketing, also said the harvest is continuing as usual.

"There's no basis at all for the harassment and the hollering and yelling. Workers that want to go out and work certainly are making adequate wages," he said.

He offered to allow a reporter to look at company payroll records when checks are issued. Schwarz said he pays 60 cents per sack. The first payroll is due Friday.

Schwarz also questioned who is manning picket lines.

"Some of them look very young. I don't know where they came from. I don't want to make any accusations that they came from across the border," he said.

The TFW actions have a history of violent flare-ups. A Valley producer shot and wounded 11 protesters during a rally several years ago. The producer later said he wanted to get his melons to market "even if they have some Mexican blood on them." The current strike has been mostly peaceful. The only violence occurred when an elderly picketer was run down by a vehicle. Orendain blames the police for the incident.

"The government likes to provoke violence because it has the power. If you retaliate with violence you are the loser," he said.

Lebanese people unruffled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hardened by 19 months of civil war, Beirut's Lebanese population seemed hardly ruffled by Israel's invasion of the southern part of their country.

Muslims and Christians showed more concern about a strike of gasoline delivery drivers. Shouting motorists quarreled as they tried to get their tanks filled in both the Moslem and Christian sectors, paying scant attention to the explosions from the Israeli air force's attack on a Palestinian refugee camp on the city's southern edge.

Others interrupted their afternoon siestas and climbed to the roofs of their apartment houses to watch the attacking planes.

Amarillo Oil completes two wells

Amarillo Oil Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Pioneer Corporation, announced completion of two important wells in the Texas Panhandle.

The company's Evans No. 1-7 well in Wheeler County tested gas from two separate zones. On a test from perforations between 14,951 and 14,960 feet, the well flowed at a stabilized rate of 3,977 Mcf per day on a 9-64" choke, with a flowing tubing pressure of 4,000 pounds. The well flowed at a stabilized rate of 4,116 Mcf per day on a 12-64" choke, with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,600 pounds from perforations between 14,822 and 14,853 feet. The well has been dually completed and first sales of gas to Pioneer Natural Gas Company should start within thirty days. The company's interest in this well is 37.5 per cent and it owns a 50 per cent interest in the offsetting lease which will be drilled soon. The company also owns a 23.4 per cent interest in two completed wells and two other wells currently drilling in the field. The company's interest in these our wells will be reduced by 50 per cent upon payout of the drilling costs.

Amarillo Oil Company also has a 37.3 per cent interest in the Orins No. 1, a new Hunton gas discovery operated by Natomas North America, Inc. in Wheeler County. The discovery well has been completed for an absolute open flow potential of 47.9 million cubic feet per day from perforations between 14,896 and 14,916 feet. The well was drilled on a 2,560-acre working interest unit and the company owns additional lands adjoining the unit. Development drilling in the unit area will commence immediately.

Citizenship seminar set for Scouts

The Adobe Walls Council of Pampa will sponsor a "Citizenship in the Nation Merit Badge" seminar Saturday at the National Guard Armory.

Registration start at 9 a.m., with the seminar from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Cost is $2. Drinks will be furnished and sack lunches should be brought.

Scouts should complete reading assignments one and two and requirements three and six before arrival. New and old copies of U.S. News and World Report, Times and Newsweek should be brought.

Instructors will be Ben Guili, Tim Haigood and Pat Homer.

empty parking lots pointed at the planes, then resumed the games.

The attitude seemed to be: "What's a 10-minute air strike after months of round-the-clock shelling and the loss of nearly 40,000 lives?"

The only visible impact of the invasion was a rush on bakeries and supermarkets and a slight rise in foreign currency rates.

"It's just a precaution," said housewife Ismet Ezel. "The war has taught us a lesson — never forget foodstocks."

Otherwise, it was business as usual, with banks, restaurants, government departments, cinemas, shops and coffee houses operating normally.

"Why worry?" said barman Joseph Shia. "The damage from this new invasion is like a drop in the bucket of violence."

Official estimates put Lebanon's losses at $10 billion in the civil war between right-wing Christian forces and the alliance of Palestinian guerrillas and leftist Lebanese Moslems.

But the mood was different in the refugee camps that are the Palestinian Liberation Organization's main power base in the Middle East.

In the Sabra camp at dusk, women and children stood on balconies scanning the skies for the return of the Israeli jets.

Guerrillas rode through the camp in jeeps camouflaged with leafy branches and bearing .50-caliber machine guns.

Teen-agers and old men moved through the cluttered streets wearing fatigue uniforms and armed with Russian rifles.

It was difficult to distinguish the damage done by the Israeli planes. Like much of Beirut, the camp still bears extensive scars of the civil war.

Cosmonauts touch down

MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko returned safely to Earth today after 96 days, completing the longest manned space flight in history, Tass announced.

The Soviet news agency said Romanenko, the 33-year-old flight commander, and Grechko, the 46-year-old engineer, landed in the Soyuz 27 spacecraft at 1:19 p.m. Moscow time (6:19 a.m. EST) in Kazakhstan, in Soviet Central Asia.

Both men were reported in good condition.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Soviet strategic arms limitation negotiators have narrowed their differences to three major items, according to informed sources.

The sources said the unresolved issues involve the right of the two nations to develop new intercontinental ballistic missiles, the number of strategic weapons to be allowed in each arsenal and the status of the Soviet Backfire bomber under the proposed treaty.

But negotiators have reached tentative agreement on such thorny issues as limitations on cruise missiles and missiles based on mobile launch platforms, the sources said, asking that their names not be used.

"The number of outstanding issues is rapidly shrinking," said one American official. He predicted the agreement will be completed within months, but he declined to be more specific.

The Carter administration repeatedly has moved back its estimates of when the SALT II agreement will be concluded because of unexpected snags in the process.

Differences still to be resolved are: —The right of the two countries to develop new intercontinental ballistic missiles by late 1980. The United States wants to flatly ban new missiles. The Soviets want each side to have the right to introduce one new missile to its arsenal.

The Soviets are replacing their SS-11 with a new generation of missiles which are more accurate and can carry several warheads. The sources speculated that the Soviets are planning one more missile to replace the SS-11 and want to be able to deploy it.

—The number of strategic weapons in each national arsenal. In 1974, the two sides agreed to a limit of 2,400 for each side in the total number of land-based missiles, submarine missiles and strategic bombers. President Carter last year proposed cutting that figure to as little as 1,800. The Soviets refused.

SALT issues shrinking

The dickering now over a compromise figure has the Soviets asking for 2,250 launchers and the United States seeking a limit of 2,100. The limit would be in effect until 1985.

—The Backfire, a new plane that the Soviets insist is not an intercontinental weapon. U.S. experts feel it could threaten the United States.

The two sides have agreed not to include a Backfire limit in the treaty itself, the sources said. Instead, President Carter and Soviet General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev will exchange letters stipulating where the Backfire can be stationed and how it can be used. But the details of those letters are still being negotiated.

The sources said the agreement covering missiles on mobile launch platforms will allow the Soviets to deploy their SS-20, an intermediate range mobile missile that experts feel could not be used against the United States.

Unnamed disease killing, disabling kids

HOUSTON (AP) — A new disease, as yet unnamed and carried by parents unknowingly, is killing and disabling more children than did polio in the 1960s, say two researchers at the Baylor College of Medicine.

Drs. Carol Baker and Morven-Edwards said the disease — known only as "Group B Strep" — strikes some 15,000 infants a year. Half the babies die, they say, and the others are left blind, deaf or mentally retarded, with spinal meningitis, or later, with learning and behavioral problems.

"When you say 15,000 infants a year, perhaps that is not an impressive figure," said Dr. Baker. "But it is a greater toll than the polio babies of the 1950s. It is a heart-breaking experience to see a child born with this disease and then die within two to 12 hours."

The doctors said the disease was first spotted in children early in the 1970s and its growth as yet is statistically impossible to measure. Their feeling, however, is that the disease is striking more and more children.

Drs. Baker and Edwards said in a recent interview that they are working with doctors at Harvard Medical School to develop a vaccine that would slow and possibly stop spread of the disease, which is similar to group B streptococcus.

The streptococcus family causes such diseases as scarlet fever, rheumatic fever and strep throat, but the new disease produces symptoms of none of these in the parent carrier.

The scientists said the disease is carried by the mother in her vagina or can be transmitted from the father during sex but is not a venereal disease. There are no social or economic boundaries of who contracts the disease, which can strike after a normal pregnancy begins, often too late for treatment, the two researchers said.

"We can detect the disease at birth but by then it generally is too late," said Dr. Baker. "We must immunize the mother. But because of concern of administering vaccines to pregnant women, the solution seems to be giving the vaccine to women of child-bearing age."

The doctors said a preliminary test with volunteers indicated the possibility of immunizing mothers from passing along the disease, even when the father is the carrier. They said large-scale studies would begin this spring to determine the effectiveness of a vaccine.

The two doctors said it is mandatory to begin an education program, possibly in schools, to tell young people about the disease. Dr. Baker suggested immunizing women who apply for marriage licenses.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While Nebraska was needing Abe Lemons all week, he was badgering the worst offensive player in his lineup into his best game of the season.

Senior Gary Goodner, a 6-foot-7 center most noted for fouling out early, hit six of eight field goal attempts, canned four of five free throws and collected seven rebounds Wednesday night to ignites 17th ranked Texas to a 67-48 National Invitational Tournament quarterfinal victory over the Cornhuskers.

"I had been badgering Goodner all week," said Lemons, whose sharp tongue so infuriated a Nebraska regent that he wanted all athletic ties with Texas severed. "This had to be his best game of the year. You can see what a pivot man can do for you."

Texas sailed into the NIT semifinals against Rutgers next Sunday night in Madison Square Garden in New York

City. The Longhorns, now 24-5, did so with the greatest of ease, hitting a sizzling 61 per cent from the field.

"They (Texas) just keep giving you a reprieve," said Lemons. "Just about the time you think you are going and are gasping for the lung machine, somebody plugs it back in."

Lemons had held firm in a debate with Nebraska over who would have the homecourt advantage after both teams won first round games. At one point, Nebraska Coach Joe Cipriano even called Lemons "a loud mouth."

But all was forgiven by game time. The public address announcer even exhorted the 13,000 fans to give Nebraska a rousing round of applause when it was introduced when they did.

"If anybody is here from Nebraska, I'll tell you I'm sending me those dirty letters," quipped Lemons. "I don't know why they are mad at me. They are the first out of town people I've made made in quite a while."

"They are still playing the semifinals in New York, aren't they. That may be a good place to go, but it is a bad place to look bad. That's where all the smart people are."

Jim Krivacs scored 18 points, John Moore added 13, and Ron Baxter had 10 points and 13 rebounds as the Cornhuskers, Big Eight runnersup, finished the year 22-8.

That would put him in the free agent market at the age of 34 — a productive age as far as Carew is concerned. "I'm right at my peak now," notes the 32-year-old Carew, considered by many to be the best contact hitter in baseball.

The lure of playing in New York and the potential of fulfilling his World Series dream has apparently touched the Minnesota infielder. He is from New York and has considered playing for the Yankees, last year's world champions.

"I'd like to take my chances hitting in Yankee Stadium," he said. "I've always hit well there. They helped me out of my 1-for-17 slump last year and got me started."

The Yankees also helped Carew with his spring training hitting Wednesday, as he belted a homer and single to lead the Twins to a 6-1 victory.

Spinks must fight

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The World Boxing Council says world heavyweight champion Leon Spinks must agree to defend his title against Ken Norton before anyone else or lose his title.

WBC President Jose Sulaiman noted that Spinks and former champion Muhammad Ali agreed to that stipulation before they met for the title in Las Vegas last month.

Sulaiman sent a telegram to Spinks Wednesday telling him he must negotiate with Norton before March 17 or "the WBC hereby withdraws its recognition of you as the heavyweight champion of the world."

Sulaiman said he is smarting from Spinks' announcement he will give Ali a rematch.

"Both Ali and Spinks agreed that after their Las Vegas fight, either would agree to defend the title against Ken Norton with no intervening contests," Sulaiman said.

"Both gave us a letter complying with that," Sulaiman said.

"Now they are saying they didn't agree to the rules, but they did," Sulaiman said. "I have the letters."

Sulaiman said the WBC required the commitments from Spinks and Ali last December in Madrid, during an annual meeting.

Kentucky, UCLA picked in NCAA action tonight

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Since beating Marquette, it's been tough for Miami of Ohio to keep a low profile. The Redskins have caught Joe Hall's eye, for one.

"They're a team that's developed a gunfighter reputation," notes the Kentucky basketball coach. "They've knocked off the top gun and showed they're capable of beating a better ballclub on any night."

Which means that the nation's top-ranked team will have to try harder to stay No. 1 when the Wildcats meet the Redskins tonight in the Midwest Regionals of the NCAA playoffs.

Hall was critical of some of his seniors after Saturday's 85-76 victory over Florida State in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

"We've got four seniors," Hall pointed out. "Basically, they're the ones who should be giving us the leadership — and they're not."

The Wildcats, of course, won't be able to merely pull rank against Miami, a team which has proven itself able and unpredictable. The Redskins lost eight games and were nowhere to be found in the Top Twenty all year until knocking off the defending NCAA champions last Saturday. Now they're No. 19.

"The Marquette victory shows our kids what they can do," says Miami Coach Darrell Hedric. "We've prepared for Kentucky the way we did for Marquette. They're an outstanding team with great depth and quickness."

In the other game of the Midwest semifinals at Dayton, Ohio, Michigan State will play Western Kentucky. UCLA faces Arkansas and San Francisco meets Fullerton State in the West regionals tonight at Albuquerque, N.M.

The East and Midwest regionals will be played Friday night. In the East semis at Providence, it's Duke vs. Penn and Indiana against Villanova. The Midwest regional at Lawrence, Kan., features Notre Dame against Utah and DePaul meeting Louisville.

Michigan State finds itself in a position similar to Kentucky's — a consistent, highly-ranked team against an unpredictable, less glamorous foe. Western Kentucky has already lost 13 games this season, but had a hot hand at the end of the season to win the Ohio Valley Conference playoffs.

And Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote is as concerned about Western Kentucky as Hall is about Miami.

"Any team that gets this far can beat you," notes Heathcote.

As if Western Kentucky doesn't have enough incentive, the Wildcats would seem to have a little more with the sentimental touch of Coach Jim Richards' retirement after this season.

It's done wonders so far.

"Strangely enough, I think my retirement announcement at midseason worked in our favor," said Richards. "We came on strong late in the season to win our conference when just one game would have knocked us out. We won our last four.

Money obviously is important, but what I've seen some of these owners do the last four years when many of them were losing money convinces me that virtually all of them, if not all — they want to win."

"I mean, look at Ralph Wilson," Rozelle said at Ralph Wilson, "Rozelle said of the Buffalo Bills' owner, who then pointed out — with a rare display of emotion — that Wilson was paying Simpson $700,000. "Is that trying to win? Is that trying to win?"

Carew dreams of trade

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
After 11 years with one team, Rod Carew has a dream.

The dream is to play for another team.

"I feel I've done a lot for this club," says the hitting star of the Minnesota Twins. "Now I want to be on a championship team. I want to put on an exhibition of hitting in the World Series with 50 or 60 million people looking at it."

Carew still has two years to go on his contract with the Twins, but indicated Wednesday he will play out the pact next year and become a free agent.

That would put him in the free agent market at the age of 34 — a productive age as far as Carew is concerned. "I'm right at my peak now," notes the 32-year-old Carew, considered by many to be the best contact hitter in baseball.

The lure of playing in New York and the potential of fulfilling his World Series dream has apparently touched the Minnesota infielder. He is from New York and has considered playing for the Yankees, last year's world champions.

"I'd like to take my chances hitting in Yankee Stadium," he said. "I've always hit well there. They helped me out of my 1-for-17 slump last year and got me started."

The Yankees also helped Carew with his spring training hitting Wednesday, as he belted a homer and single to lead the Twins to a 6-1 victory.

Twelve other games were played Wednesday during a full day of spring training activity.

Mike Ivie, Terry Whitfield and Mike Sadek each drove in a run in the eighth inning to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 3-1 decision over the Oakland A's. Rance Mulliniks belted three hits as the California Angels whipped the Milwaukee Brewers 6-1.

A two-run homer by Jose Cruz and an RBI single by Dennis Walling provided the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati. Jerry Remy and Butch Hobson blasted homers and Carl Yastrzemski ripped three straight singles to carry the Boston Red Sox past the Montreal Expos 8-3.

The Chicago White Sox got 21 hits as they buried the Philadelphia Phillies 13-5. Steve Garvey hit three singles to pace the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Baltimore Orioles 8-4. Ray Burris pitched four hitless innings and Dave Kingman and Mick Kelleher each doubled in a run to power the Chicago Cubs past the San Diego Padres 8-2.

O.J. Simpson's salary revealed

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — It wasn't exactly a secret that Buffalo running back O.J. Simpson is making $700,000 a year. But then it wasn't official, either — until Pete Rozelle said so.

The National Football League commissioner was holding forth at an informal news conference Wednesday during a break in the winter meetings when the subjects of television revenues and blackout arose. Isn't it possible, someone asked, that some owners might say to themselves they are making a lot of money so they won't make the drastic changes or outlays necessary to turn their losing teams into winners?

Money obviously is important, but what I've seen some of these owners do the last four years when many of them were losing money convinces me that virtually all of them, if not all — they want to win."

"I mean, look at Ralph Wilson," Rozelle said at Ralph Wilson, "Rozelle said of the Buffalo Bills' owner, who then pointed out — with a rare display of emotion — that Wilson was paying Simpson $700,000. "Is that trying to win? Is that trying to win?"

Vida Blue dealt to San Francisco

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Oakland A's have traded pitcher Vida Blue to the San Francisco Giants for seven players and an undisclosed amount of cash, the teams announced early today.

The Giants gave up outfielder Gary Thomasson, pitchers Dave Heaverlo, Alan Wirth and John Johnson, catcher Gary Alexander, minor league pitcher Phillip Huffman and a player to be named later.

The deal was consummated at about 11:55 p.m. PST Wednesday, just before the end of the March 15 inter-league trading deadline, and announced at an early morning press conference.

Blue finally leaves Oakland after two attempts by A's owner Charlie Finley to deal him away from him were voided by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

In 1976 Kuhn stopped Finley from selling Blue to the New York Yankees and recently the commissioner blocked a move that would have sent Blue to the Cincinnati Reds.

The proposed deal sending Blue to the Yankees called for Finley to receive $1.5 million. The Cincinnati transaction, voided by Kuhn on Jan. 30, would have sent minor leaguer Dave Revering and $1.75 million to the A's.

Blue, a 28-year-old left-hander, has a lifetime 124-86 record and a 2.94 earned run average. He experienced his worst season as a major leaguer in 1977, with a 14-19 record and a 3.83 ERA for the last-place A's.

The American League's most valuable player and Cy Young Award winner in 1971, when he was 24-8 with a 1.82 ERA in his first full season in the majors. Blue has won 20 games for Oakland three times. He hurled a no-hitter in 1970 against the California Angels.

The most familiar name of the San Francisco players is Thomasson, who also plays first base. Thomasson, 26, has been with Giants since 1972 and has a career .254 batting average.

Heaverlo and Alexander also have played with the Giants. Heaverlo, 27, a right-handed reliever, comes off a fine season in which he appeared in 56 games after being recalled from the minor leagues. He had a 5-1 record and a 2.55 ERA in 1977. Alexander, 24, batted .303 in 51 games for San Francisco last season.

Lam Jones still hurt

McAllen, Texas (AP) — Injured Longhorn sprinter Johnny Jones is working out but Texas track Coach Cleburne Price says there will be no showdown with Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey at a meet here March 25.

Jones is nursing a hamstring injury in the UT Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame. While the Olympic gold medalist has been sidelined, Dickey has zipped to 60-yard dash crowns at the Southwest Conference and NCAA indoor meets.

The Aggie speedster is scheduled to compete in the 100 and 220-yard dashes at the inaugural City-of-Palms Invitational meet here. The Horns and Aggies will be joined by Rice, Pan American and three high schools at the event.

Laredo protests flight schedules

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Flight schedules for Laredo are changed so frequently and service is so inconsistent that "air mail" is trucked to San Antonio, says the president of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce.

Dennis Longoria portrayed Laredo as a booming border city that needs numerous commuter flights as well as service from larger jetliners. He told a Texas Aeronautics Commission hearing examiner on Wednesday that Laredo is the No. 1 port of entry between the United States and Mexico, that more than 157 oil and gas companies have located there in the past 3 1/2 years and it ranks 13th among Texas' 254 counties in tourism. Longoria supported a proposal by Texas Airlines, Inc., to provide passenger and cargo service between McAllen and Brownsville, Laredo-Corpus Christi and San Antonio and Austin.

Texas International Airlines, Inc. is opposing the application, and its lawyer, James Wilson of Austin, told Longoria if Texas gets a Laredo route, Texas International may halt its service.

present time is at best marginal," said Wilson, and the entry of Texas might "force Texas International to take the path it has taken in Longview, in Tyler, in Temple, Waco and other communities — and that is the suspension of service."

"This is not a fairyland," he said. "This is the real world of business economics."

"This is an obvious threat that Laredo can't have both (Texas and Texas International)," said Texas lawyer Charles Pope of San Antonio. Robert Gannett of the North San Antonio Chamber of Commerce also supported Texas' application.

Gannett said Texas, a San Antonio commuter airline, had been so successful in its first five months of operation that it had increased its daily flights to Corpus Christi from four to eight.

Gannett said he knew of instances where corporations had decided not to include McAllen and Laredo "in their marketing plans simply because of their lack of adequate one-day, turn-around service."

"Frequency (of flights) is the major concern we have," said Gannett.

Sears claims NOW influence in suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Company has asked that discrimination charges be dismissed against the national retail and mail-order firm claiming a government agency had been improperly influenced by the National Organization for Women (NOW).

The New York Times recently reported that Sears had filed a 135-page brief stating its case against the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and NOW.

The Times also said Sears claims that because a key EEOC staff member was also a board member of the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund Inc., Sears was targeted by the EEOC and the agency's resources were allocated "to favor the particular interests of the predominantly white private organization rather than the interests of members of minority groups."

At the time the agency was moving against Sears, NOW was conducting a public campaign against alleged discrimination by Sears. The EEOC investigation was carried out by the commission's national programs division, then headed by David A. Copus.

Copus was also a board member of the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund but denied any conflict of interest saying the defense fund was separate from NOW.

There's dusty days ahead

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — For everyone who's endured West Texas' infamous stinging, choking, gritty dust storms, agricultural engineer Billy Fryrear bears bad news: West Texas is in for its dustiest days in 25 years.

The news was so bad, in fact, that Fryrear decided not to announce his findings this year after he arrived at his prediction for the number of days of blowing dust.

"It was just too bad," said Fryrear, who had always announced his past predictions. "If somebody came by and asked me, I'd tell them, but I didn't think Big Spring would be too happy about this sort of publicity.

"It's going to be a bad year." During 1977, Fryrear estimated there would be 27 days of blowing dust. There were 29. This year's gritty prediction? "Eighty-four days of blowing dust," Fryrear said quietly. But Fryrear added cheerfully that unseasonably cold temperatures, rain and mild winds this winter might shave 10-15 days off that grim prediction.

Natural gas top producer

Natural gas has nudged out oil as the state's top energy related tax producer, reports Bob Bullock, state comptroller.

An analysis prepared for "Fiscal Notes", the monthly financial report published by the state comptroller's office, shows that natural gas production brought in a record $474.3 million in revenue in 1977; oil production tax slipped into third place behind motor fuel taxes.

Motor fuel taxes brought in $441.1 million, and the other major energy related taxes, the utilities gross receipts tax, brought in $38.5 million.

In another article, "Fiscal Note" reports that statistics filed by the U.S. Bureau of Census show that Texas state and local governments spend less per capita on public welfare than the nation average. Expenditures in Texas average $87 per person, $60 below the national average.

Fryrear, a soil erosion expert and an experimental team leader at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's field station in this West Texas city, said he developed a new forecasting technique to make his predictions.

He uses a formula that considers evaporation, precipitation and average daily wind movement for the months of September through December of the preceding year. The dust season arrives with warm weather the following spring.

Fryrear said he hopes this year's dust storms aren't as bad as last year's vicious spring sand storms. "There were sand storms in the latter part of February and the early part of March that were ranked a seven or eight (on a scale of severity where 10 is the worst). We haven't seen any that bad in a number of years," he said.

There were 58 days of blowing dust in 1963, the worst year since the field station began keeping records.

Fryrear believes farmers can take measures to control and reduce their dust storm losses if they understand the climatic factors responsible for wind erosion and can forecast severe dust seasons.

"We were in good shape going into last year's dust season. What made it bad was those days of 50 and 60 mile per hour winds. There's nothing you can really do to protect the soil from a wind like that, except cover the ground with concrete," he said.

Most of the blowing dust comes from the Texas-New Mexico border.

And, of course, almost all Texans know where the dust goes — into their hair, eyes, ears, throats, cars and houses.

West Texas dust has been found in soil samples from all of the eastern states and in Europe, Fryrear said.

"After it gets up into the jet stream, I imagine it circles the globe a couple of times before it settles. You could probably find traces of it anywhere in the world," he added.
