

Lee-TeX sold; expansion planned here

It may not have caused a loud noise this morning, but Pampa boomed some when L.L. "Red" Garren announced that Lee-TeX Valve and Manufacturing Inc. has been acquired by Chromalloy American Corporation, a billion dollar-plus company headquartered in St. Louis, Mo.

Garren, founder and president of Lee-TeX, said that the merger will result in the addition of about 60 employees to bring the local work force of the firm to about 100 within a year and a half.

The deal involved an exchange of stock, but the purchase price was not disclosed.

The current annual Lee-TeX payroll of $750,000 is projected to increase to at least $1.5 million with the expansion.

Garren said the merger was finalized on March 17 and effects already are being felt in the two Lee-TeX facilities located on the Borger highway, west side of Pampa.

"We doubled our sales in the last month," he said. Lee-TeX began Aug. 18, 1968 with five men in a 40 by 80 foot building. It now is divided into two operations—a gas engine plant and a valve manufacturing plant and construction on additions at both locations is expected to begin in June or July.

Garren will stay on as president of Lee-TeX and the name of the firm will remain the same except for the "inc." at the end which has been dropped.

Paul Howard is manager of the gas engine division and John Garren is manager of the valve division.

Floyd Watson, president of the First National Bank, was at this morning's announcement representing the Pampa Industrial Foundation.

He said the addition to the increased payroll, the growth at Lee-TeX will stimulate local economy in other ways.

"We will have a lot of traveling people coming into Pampa to see us," Garren said.

They will include sales people, buyers and corporate executives.

That will mean added business for motels and restaurants.

And, "We will continue to deal with local businesses as much as possible," the firm president said.

He said current accounts payable to local suppliers of goods and services now run "at least $27,000 per month."

"We of the Industrial Foundation believe that one of the best ways to grow is internally," Watson said of the merger and expansion plans.

Watson observed that "one of the big problems" manufacturing plants have is that of distribution.

"This marriage is going to give them some advantage in points of distribution," he said.

Gary Stevens, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce said, "We're excited about this merger. It's creating new jobs and will bring new families into our city and healthy growth like this always excites us."

Max Presnell, vice president and general manager of Lee-TeX, is being re-titled administrative co-ordinator of the Pampa operation.

He said that the reputation built by Lee-TeX over the 10 years since its founding prompted Chromalloy to seek acquisition.

Chromalloy is divided into nine major lines of business. Lee-TeX has joined the Chromalloy Natural Resources Company, a multi-unit organization employing more than 3,000 people in locations throughout Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and California.

The company is headquartered in Houma, La., and has offices in Houston. It is divided into four groups—drilling fluids, fabrication, services and manufacturing.

D.H. Rhea is chairman of the board of Resources Company with Leon Toops as president and Lewis Talbaut, vice-president operations, all of the Louisiana office. Bob Hart of Odessa is vice president of manufacturing and products.

Hike would hurt rural areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parcel post rates would rise at least 50 percent with rural Americans hit hardest if a sweeping postal bill passes in its present form, the Postal Service says.

The mail agency says the increase would cause many urban customers to use its chief lower-priced competitor, United Parcel Service. And with UPS concentrated in populated areas, rural citizens would have the choice of higher rates or a long drive to a UPS office.

Postal officials are protesting passage of an amendment Wednesday that would knock out proposed higher subsidies for parcel post — the package mailing service. The parent bill would increase subsidies for other Postal Service operations from the current $920 million to $1.72 billion starting Oct. 1.

Sponsored by Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., and approved 292-112, the amendment is designed to retain current parcel post subsidies.

"The one to suffer because of this amendment will be the little person — the grandma and grandpa who wants to send a package," said Rep. Ed Derwinski, R-Ill.

The parent bill, to be debated and possibly voted on today, also would give Congress and the White House control over the Postal Service.

While the Postal Service claims the loss of higher subsidies will increase the parcel post rates from 50 to 60 percent, a spokesman for Simon said, "We don't accept that at face value."

Terry Michael, Simon's press secretary, said it depends on what rates are set by the Postal Rate Commission, which has flexibility.

Simon said increased taxpayer subsidies would be unfair to the 3,000 private firms that deliver packages.

Assistant Postmaster General Jim Finch said, "The higher our rates, the greater the disparity (between Postal Service rates and private rates), and people will go to the cheaper carrier."

Stockwell gives kids the 'word'

By JIM WANN
Pampa News Staff

On August 6, 1966, 200-pound David Stockwell stopped thumping heads and started thumping Bibles. That day, he claims, "I gave my life to Christ."

And ever since then the former Rice University football lineman has been spreading the Gospel.

He was in Pampa this week doing just that. Spreading the "word" is Stockwell's business now. He heads up David Stockwell Evangelical Services of Fort Worth.

"That day marked turnabout in what had been up to then a rebellious life. I was a problem kid in school. When I was a high school junior, I was the same height and weight I am now (6 ft., 200 lbs.). Whenever I felt like it, I would simply go up to someone and slap them around."

Stockwell, who could now easily pass for a typical junior executive, said he should have been kicked-out of school many times. However, he added, being the son of the high school principal kept him in.

"I credit two people for changing my life. First, my dad who had enough faith in me to keep me in school and second, my high school football coach who introduced me to the Fellowship of Christian Athletes."

The Baton Rouge, La., native said his fellow Christian football players one night talked him into "seeing a visiting evangelist."

"I went there all prepared to cut up and make jokes. Instead, I came away with a whole new attitude. As I was cutting, up during the service, the gospel speaker looked directly at me and said 'Son, one day you will have to face God. You had better be prepared to atone for your sins.' It was then that I decided to accept Jesus Christ as my savior. That's when I gave my life to Christ."

Indeed, for the 29-year-old evangelist, accepting Christ is no joking matter. He will look directly at you, with eyes as serious as a coming storm, and put the same challenge to you. "Are you ready to accept Jesus as the savior for your sins?"

"Simply being a steady church goer is not the same as accepting Christ," said the natty Stockwell, dressed in fashionable pin stripes. "You must totally give your life to Christ."

For Stockwell, this means with heart, mind and will.

"Accepting the Lord takes all of one's intellect, emotion and volition. It takes all of you."

Stockwell, who graduated from Rice with a behavioral science degree and later did graduate work at a Fort Worth seminary, cites his dad as an example. "He went to church every week, yet he had never truly given his life to Christ. It wasn't until he faced a severe family crisis that he finally accepted the Lord."

Stockwell hopes that he and his family can serve as positive examples to the nation's youth. Each year, he travels thousands of miles from coast to coast talking to school assemblies, churches and civic organizations. He charges no fee. He depends on donations.

"I enjoy talking with young people because they need leadership and guidance. They face terrible pressures from a morally decaying society and from parents who don't care. I pray that I can help guide their lives towards Christ, therefore, helping them to live better, more fulfilled lives."

Stockwell's gaze lowers from the ceiling when he discusses older generations. "Older people seem to set in their ways to want to change much. It's the kids who really need help."

But how about his parents' generation? Are these people not in need of spiritual guidance, too? "Certainly," the well-groomed Stockwell answers. "But there are plenty of people working with this age group. My area is more with teenage and younger kids."

He talks freely about the "60's youth revolution" and the "psychological scars" left by the Viet Nam era. He shakes his head disapprovingly of the so-called drug culture. And his fingers dance uneasily about the notion of getting paid for spreading the Gospel.

"All these things concern me. I believe the past decade has left our nation in moral decay. I don't feel one bit guilty about getting paid while trying to correct these wrongs left to our society."

As for Stockwell, the answer to what he perceives as society's "wrongs" is a sort of counter-revolution. He advocates "Spiritual Revolution This Generation."

Architects, engineers fake on school projects

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Thousands of South Texas students are attending school in buildings apparently built in violation of state laws aimed at insuring structural safety, building records show.

A state board of engineers investigator in Austin confirmed that the Associated City-County Economic Development Corp. here did not use registered engineers on school and city projects in the area.

"You'd think it was a sad state of affairs," Stan Gilbert told newsmen for The Associated Press and the Brownsville Herald.

Top elected officials — including Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Attorney General John Hill, U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza of Mission and U.S. Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen — were notified of the apparent violations by the Harlingen chapter of the Associated General Contractors beginning in 1974.

The anti-poverty agency's records list "unknown" as the engineer on many of the projects. The records also include names of non-engineers as engineer on some projects.

Luis Ramirez, acting director of ACCEDC, provided names of engineers on several of the projects but had no comment on the matter.

The records list Homer Elizondo of Harlingen as engineer on a City of Mercedes project. Elizondo said Wednesday he is not an engineer and does not know why his name was listed.

West Texas Coffee Equipment Co. of Abilene is listed as engineer on a La Villa school project. Ron Smith, general manager for the Abilene firm, said his company has no staff engineers and that the listing "must have been a mistake."

A plaque on the La Joya city hall built by ACCEDC lists Aaron Sandoval as architect of the building. Gilbert said Sandoval, an ACCEDC employee whose name is misspelled on the plaque, is not an architect.

Included among the projects are school facilities in La Villa, La Joya, Edcouch-Else and Mercedes. City projects in apparent violation include buildings in La Joya, San Juan, Mercedes, Donna, Alamo and Edcouch. Officials in those cities said they had assumed ACCEDC would take care of the engineer requirement.

"It was supposed to be a savings deal for the city," said San Juan City Manager Jesus Ramirez. "Now we know you don't try to save the city money by going below standards."

Gilbert said the state law requiring a registered engineer on public projects was approved shortly after a New London, Texas, school explosion in 1937 that killed 295 persons.

However, he added, the two-year statute of limitations on the potential misdemeanor cases has expired on most of the projects. He said city, school and ACCEDC officials could have been prosecuted but probably won't be.

"The board decided not to go into the courthouse and beat them over the head," he said.

Randy Fleuret, AGC general manager, said that following a meeting with Tower in Austin in late 1976, the senator promised an investigation of the matter. After several months of calling Tower's office, Fleuret said he was told by a Tower aide to "settle your differences with ACCEDC."

Hill's office was informed of the apparent violations and the board of engineers' investigation in a three-page letter from the AGC in September 1976. Fleuret also alleged violations of bidding and bonding requirements by ACCEDC.

De la Garza wrote the U.S. Department of Labor in 1974 in behalf of the AGC. The congressman was told that the Edinburg agency would be required to adhere to bidding requirements.

Bentsen's Washington office received numerous letters from the AGC, the latest in March 1977 detailing the alleged violations and citing Texas law.

Queen to look at sis' affair

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister James Callaghan and Queen Elizabeth II meet

tonight amid expectations that they will discuss the public outcry over Princess Margaret's relationship with playboy Roddy Llewellyn.

Callaghan was going to Windsor Castle for the weekly audience at which he advises the queen on political and constitutional affairs. Both have remained publicly aloof from the controversy over the queen's younger sister. But it was considered, certain that they could not ignore the criticism of the 47-year-old princess for her close association with the 31-year-old brewery heir and would-be night club singer.

Buckingham Palace refused to comment on a report in the Sun Wednesday that the queen had ordered Margaret to give up Roddy or give up public life. But the Daily Mirror reported today that Prince Philip, the queen's outspoken husband, told Margaret to quit public life because she is hurting the royal image.

The princess is certain to be the target of more criticism in the House of Commons Friday when the government announces the annual civil list, the tax-free allowance paid by the state to 11 members of the royal family to compensate them for the public duties they perform and to pay for the maintenance of their households.

The list last year totaled 2.9 million pounds, or $4.51 million. The Times of London reported a 10-percent increase was likely. Margaret got 55,000 pounds ($85,000), and an announcement of an increase for her is certain to bring a howl from left-wing members of Callaghan's Labor party.

Left-wing Laborites have been the most vocal critics of the princess since she spent a winter vacation recently in the Caribbean with Llewellyn while Britons at home were struggling with winter cold, high prices, unemployment and inflation. They accuse her of not doing her share and of not living up to the standards of conduct expected of the royal family.

Margaret was at Windsor with the queen after an announcement Monday that she had the flu and the royal doctors had put her to bed. Buckingham Palace reported that she got up for lunch Wednesday with the queen and her children.

Can't hold a candle

"If some long ago Congress had organized a firm to supply us with lighting, the firm would be known today as General Candle." So quipped Ronald Reagan as he talked on the energy mess. His penetrating remark was humorous and pointed up the basic cause of our energy dilemma.

The Department of Energy (DOE) is not a government company set up to produce any fuel for energy. Although we can be thankful for that, we can take no consolation for the effects of its futile efforts.

It has been granted a budget of $10.6 billion. That is an amount more than the entire oil industry spent for exploration and development of petroleum resources in 1975.

This is money that is, or will be, taken from taxpayers who are also consumers. But, it will not produce one drop of energy fuel. In fact, much of that money will be used to inhibit the activities of those firms who do produce necessary fuels for energy.

If the prices of energy fuels were allowed to react to a free market situation consumers would pay more, but exploration and development would increase and competition would keep prices within reason. The money taken from these same people, as taxpayers, will cost them more and their money, used in the DOE bureaucracy will eventually create shorter supplies which, in turn, will accelerate prices.

So, the taxpayer (fuel consumer) will be hit with a double whammy, not to mention the fact that the dead end $10.6 billion will be an increased debt and bring about an increase in inflation.

The consumer-taxpayer then becomes the victim of the most insidious tax of all. Loss in the value of his dollar. The dollar he earns today will buy less each succeeding day which puts him on an endless treadmill built by political fiscal irresponsibility.

Those in the oil industry who are trying to bring us the amounts of petroleum which will lower imports might have a better name than "General Candle" for the DOE added agency. They might term it "General Disruption."

Government regulation and interference brought about the problems now confronting us. Greater doses of government intrusion cannot solve them.

Private enterprise with a relatively free marketplace has brought Americans the greatest level of living ever seen on this earth. Should we now trust politicians more than the proven track record of individual enterprise?

Two-cent dollar coin?

Those who remember when a silver dollar felt like it contained a dollar's worth of silver will be shaking their heads at the Treasury Department's proposal to mint a new $1 coin made mostly of copper.

From the standpoint of production costs, the Treasury is on the right track, however. Paper dollars wear out relatively soon, and a copper dollar — which would cost two or three cents to make — would last at least 15 years.

And maybe the Treasury also is heading toward a coinage policy that restores some intrinsic value to our currency. If the government keeps pursuing fiscal and monetary policies that feed inflation, our dollars will be worth about as much as the copper in the proposed dollar coin — two or three cents.

Some members of Congress are skeptical about introducing a handy-sized dollar coin, but for a far-fetched reason. They think it would encourage vending machine operators to raise prices, which supposedly are now held down because the machines accept only nickels, dimes and quarters.

That's the least of our worries. Congress should look to its own influence on inflation — especially the size of the federal deficit — and take some steps that would inspire confidence that a dollar will buy as much tomorrow as it does today, in vending machines and everywhere else.

Postal competition

The Postal Service, which through deficits and perceived deterioration of service has tempted Congress to reconsider the action taken in 1971 to more or less remove the service from politics, retains some loyalty to business-like concepts.

The agency is going to private firms for some of its stamps next year.

The Postal Service will seek bids to print and package for shipment four commemorative postage stamps to be issued during 1979 and 1980. Stamp production costs of the government's Bureau of Engraving and Printing last year amounted to $43.6 million.

If the stamp printing bill can be lowered through the competition of the free enterprise system, the Postal Service may have bolstered its hopes of remaining somewhat independent of the Congress and White House.

Mulligan's stew

Gone from the Klong

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — When Noel Coward sojourned here in the elegant era of the grand ocean liner, he was moved to write:

"In Bangkok at 12 o'clock, they foam at the mouth and run. But mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the midday sun."

But once the American GIs arrived, seeking R & R, rest and recuperation, from the Vietnam War at the rate of 1-500 a week, plus the 45,000 already based in Thailand, Bangkok's bewitching hour for rampant madness changed to 12 midnight.

Now with the war over, the streets are afroth noon and night with German and Japanese tourists, who have replaced the GIs as the big spenders in the massage parlors and go-go bars and are blamed, as the Americans used to be, for overtopping and driving up prices.

There is a decided ompah-pah beat in the soul brother bars out on the Petchburi Road extension, where the American blacks used to congregate, and tailor shops once called "Yankee Station" and "Uncle Sam's Threads" have become "Frankfurt Tailors" and "Munich Clothiers," turning out safari suits overnight for the German invasion. To meet different demands, hamburger heavens have converted to beer stubes and sushi stands.

Bars along the Patpong Road, Bangkok's Sin Strip, are still named "Cloud Nine," "The Texan" and "Mississippi Cafe," because under the licensing laws it is more complicated to change the name of a nightclub than a tailor shop, but the "farangs," the foreigners, who frequent them these days are more likely to be Germans, Japanese, Taiwan Chinese and, quite lately, rich Arabs from the oil sheikdoms of the Persian Gulf.

Among the girls, German and Japanese slang, and of late a sprinkling of eloquent Arabic curses, have taken the place of GI idioms like "no sweat," "hey man" and "number 10" in the lingua franca of Sin Street.

The 52 hotels built to house the American R & R incursion a decade ago, when there were half a million troops in Vietnam, now have become inexpensive tourist class hotels, catering to tour groups and charter parties from Western Europe and Australia.

The foaming madness here at 12 o'clock midnight, when prostitutes flock by motorbike and pedicab and fistfights erupt in the alley over inflated taxi prices, along with Bangkok's highest incident of muggings, would have shaken even the worldly wise Noel Coward.

Dire predictions were made for Thailand's tourist trade when the Americans pulled out of Vietnam. Yet the annual tourist visitation, which last year reached 1.2 million, has increased more than 17 percent since 1969, the height of the American presence in Southeast Asia.

Despite the cultural and linguistic changes, Bangkok remains the Orient at its most bizarre. "Welcome World Diarrhea Congress" read a banner at the airport when we arrived, and many Vietnam veterans would regard the city as an apt choice for this medical event.

Watch on Washington

Bell sounds like Nixon

By CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Griffin Bell's continued attacks on David W. Marston are the same kind of inaccurate and malicious cuts that the Nixon administration launched against John Dean when that young lawyer decided to tell the truth about Watergate.

The attorney general would be well advised to stop sniping at former United States Attorney Marston and find out why he was not informed in January of the investigation of Representative Joshua Eilberg, the Pennsylvania Democrat who was pushing for Marston to be fired.

Some of Attorney General Bell's top advisers were on notice as early as the summer of 1977 that Representative Eilberg might be involved in federal law violations. By November the questioning of witnesses by the FBI and other reports from federal prosecutors in Los Angeles and Philadelphia demonstrated Eilberg was a possible subject of Justice Department action.

That information had been the subject of conversations involving Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and was noted in the files of other criminal division lawyers by November.

While it is possible that there was no file in the office of the Justice Department that was specifically labeled "Representative Joshua Eilberg investigation" it was noted that the Eilberg case was "still active."

There was sufficient investigative activity to indicate to Representative Eilberg, Representative Daniel Flood, D-Pa., and their political friends that Marston's investigation might involve their activity.

In mid-November Representative Eilberg called President Carter to ask the president to expedite the firing of Marston, and the president accommodated the embattled Pennsylvania Democrat by passing the word to Attorney General Bell.

From what has been revealed at this stage, neither President Carter nor Attorney General Bell asked Representative Eilberg or each other why the Pennsylvania congressman believed it so urgent that Marston be fired.

President Carter and Attorney General Bell, both pledged to keeping partisan politics out of prosecutions, must have known about the widely publicized prosecutions of Democratic politicians, and some Republicans, in Philadelphia. If they didn't know Representative Eilberg was under investigation, they did know that the Democratic machine in Philadelphia was under heavy fire.

It is understandable why Bell, a former United States circuit judge, is embarrassed that he incorrectly informed President Carter and the public in early January that there was no investigation of Representative Eilberg.

Also it is understandable that Bell might have been misled on this point by an incomplete or defensively distorted report by Civiletti or others.

But, it was not David Marston's fault that Bell was not properly informed or was misled. He and his subordinates had informed the Justice Department's criminal division of the investigations of Flood and Eilberg.

At this stage there is no doubt that there is a full blown investigation of Representative Eilberg by the Justice Department, and the evidence that has become public has made it apparent why that investigation should be pursued.

The public knowledge on questionable activities of Eilberg and Flood is so clear that even the often lethargic House Ethics Committee has announced an investigation of the two prominent senior congressmen from Pennsylvania.

It is unbecoming of Attorney General Bell to snipe at Marston for embarrassing the Carter administration.

Such political smears are more in keeping with what was the pattern for Richard Nixon, John Mitchell, H.R. (Bob) Haldeman and Ron Ziegler.

If Attorney General Bell has evidence that demonstrates that Marston engaged in political prosecution of Democrats who did not deserve to be indicted and convicted, he should put that information on the table in a proper forum.

If Attorney General Bell has evidence showing that Marston was soft on Republican corruption in his prosecution and operated by a double standard, he should seek to make that case in a detailed statement for the Senate or House Judiciary Committee.

If he cannot make that case, he should quit sniping at Marston and keep the Justice Department's political hands off Peter F. Vaira, the organized crime prosecutor he has selected to be United States Attorney in Philadelphia.

Pete Vaira made a great record as chief of the organized crime strike force in Chicago and can do an excellent job of salvaging something from the mess the Carter administration has made of the Marston affair in Philadelphia.

The best thing Bell can do now is to leave Philadelphia alone and to direct his attention to assuring there is no political influence in the investigations of former Budget Director Bert Lance by the federal grand jury in Atlanta.

Also, he might follow the advice of Representatives John Moss, D-Cal., and John Dingell, D-Mich., and appoint an independent prosecutor to handle the investigation of irregularities in the operation of the Georgia State Energy office that are alleged to have favored Billy Carter with unjustified gasoline allocations from the state set-aside program.

Sheriff wants trash dumping on roads stopped

Sheriff Rufe Jordan is concerned with a massive litter problem plaguing the county. Seems many people are dumping their trash along county byways and thoroughfares instead of hauling it to the city landfill facility.

Jordan said of the litterers, "They could surely be prosecuted and fined about $200," and he indicated some rigorous penalties can be expected by persons apprehended for such violations.

"By the josh, I've just got to get this slowed down some," Jordan promised.

He told The News he soon will have some more information on the problem.

Inflation fighter blind

In January, President Carter picked Barry Bosworth to be his heavyweight champion in a fight against inflation. But the president had better take another look. Bosworth may have a case of tunnel vision that could open him up to a knockout punch — one that he already is looking for.

Bosworth, known as the administration's chief inflation fighter, is head of the Council on Wage and Price Stability. His problem seems to lie in the fact that he only can see what is out in front of him and not the government bureaucracy that is surrounding him.

He said in the article that the inflationary cycle can be broken only if the government takes a more aggressive public role in wage and price decisions.

If he only would take a basic course in economics, he would find that the principal cause of inflation is deficit spending. And since the only group that can have deficit spending without going out of business is the government, apparently his knockout punch is soon in coming.

Congress is about ready to increase the ceiling on the national debt to $824 billion, an increase of $72 billion this year. That is an increase of 9.5 percent.

That 8.5 percent increase comes at the same time that the inflation fighter is asking businesses and labor unions to voluntarily reduce the rate of inflation by 0.5 percent a year. He plans on doing this by convincing unions and companies to hold new wage and price increases to levels at least 1 percent below increases of the last two years.

Come, now, inflation fighter, isn't it a little absurd to ask those in the market place to hold their increases to below 6.5 percent while the government can't get below a 9.5 percent increase?

Bosworth also threw two other weak punches that left him open.

He said that "private decisions are not completely private when it comes to wages and prices... The government has to be prepared to step in." He plans on doing this by holding public hearings and issuing subpoenas for wage and price information.

Again, he is missing the problem. If businesses were able to tell government not to overspend, the price increases would not be as large because as additional money is put into the market place, it takes more money to purchase the same goods... It is simply the law of supply and demand at work.

And then comes the final blow. Bosworth, in commenting on the coal strike and the miners' 39 percent increase in total benefits over a three-year period, said the problems created by the strike are what delayed the anti-inflation program.

He said it would have been embarrassing for the administration to beat the drums for lower price and wage hikes at the same time it is encouraging a settlement of the strike.

What he meant to say was that the administration knew it wasn't going to win. And instead of going ahead with its plans and expecting its first foe to win, it held back.

Indian child won't go to tribe

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tiffany Butts, 8, will remain with her white paternal grandparents in Kermit instead of rejoining her Sioux mother on a South Dakota reservation, the Texas Supreme Court has ruled.

Charges of racism marked Bernadine Brokenleg's appeal of lower court decisions placing Tiffany in the custody of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard C. Butts Sr.

Tiffany testified in private that she wished to remain with her grandparents.

And that is what a state district judge in Kermit and the El Paso Court of Civil Appeals ordered.

The supreme court upheld the decision Wednesday as free from "reversible error" but did not write a new opinion.

Ms. Brokenleg, who lives on the Rosebud Sioux Indian Reservation and works as a teacher's aide, was married to the Buttses' son, Bernard Jr., when Tiffany was born. The marriage was annulled. Bernard Jr. relinquished his parental rights.

"Undoubtedly the evidence shows greater stability in the home of the grandparents who are well able to provide for the physical, mental and spiritual needs of Tiffany," the appeals court said.

According to case records, Tiffany's grandparents and father appeared at the reservation in July 1973 and invited Tiffany and Ms. Brokenleg to accompany them on a vacation.

Ms. Brokenleg declined but permitted Tiffany to go.

The Buttses took Tiffany to Texas and sued for custody.

At trial, the Buttses said when they picked up Tiffany, she was living in a house without a toilet and had tonsillitis and ticks in her hair. When she was bathed, dogs were allowed in the water with her, they said.

But a psychiatrist testified that Ms. Brokenleg was a competent mother. He said it would be in the best interest of Tiffany's emotional development to give custody to Ms. Brokenleg.

Ms. Brokenleg's lawyer, Bertram Hirsch of New York City, attacked the district court's finding that "to be reared on an Indian reservation would endanger the physical and emotional well-being of the child."

Appeal papers filed by Hirsch allege the judge based his decision in part on the fact that Tiffany did not look like an Indian.

"Race is inherently suspect as a criterion for a decision," Hirsch said.

He said the lower court decisions were "based on an arbitrary condemnation of a way of life, of an Indian culture and society and government."

"Parents have a fundamental, constitutionally protected right to appropriately educate their children into the way of life, customs, traditions, culture and history of the society from which the parent receives ethnic and cultural identity," he said.

U.S. attorney protests judge

HOUSTON (AP) — A week after a federal judge assessed three former Houston police officers a 10-year suspended prison sentence with five years' probation and a one-year term in connection with the death of Joe Campos Torres, the U.S. Attorney's office here has filed a motion calling on the judge to correct the controversial probated sentence.

The motion, filed Wednesday in federal court here by chief of the U.S. attorney's civil rights division Mary L. Sinderson, was the first public reaction by the prosecution since the March 28 sentencing.

The motion says the probated sentence on the felony conspiracy count is illegal because the law excludes probation as a penalty for offenses punishable by death or life imprisonment.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling could have sentenced Terry Wayne Denson, Stephen Orlando and Joseph James Janish to life imprisonment for conspiring to violate the civil rights of the 23-year-old Mexican-American whose body was found in a bayou running through downtown Houston following his arrest by the former officers. Instead he imposed probation and assessed them one year in prison on the misdemeanor beating conviction.

"The United States has grave concern that the imposition of probation in this case will cause citizens of all races and backgrounds to believe that the sentence was a result of the continuing inequality of treatment accorded to minorities," the motion said.

In handing down sentence Sterling said punishing the men, who would never again be police officers in a position to abuse their power, would serve little purpose. He said the problem lies instead with the police department.

The motion argued that because the probation did not stipulate that the men be prohibited from serving as police officers in the future, they could conceivably join a police department somewhere else.

Hulsey pleads guilty in abuse charge

Billy Charles Hulsey, charged with sexual abuse of a child, pleaded guilty to the charge Wednesday and was sentenced to eight years in the Texas Department of Corrections in Judge Grainger McIlhany's 31st district court.

Hulsey, pleading guilty to the sexual abuse of a female child, was to have a jury trial Wednesday, but the jury panel was dismissed for the guilty plea.

Silver lining found on food bill cloud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outlook for grocery shoppers improved slightly as wholesale prices rose at a slower rate last month than they had earlier this year, the Labor Department said today.

Wholesale prices rose 0.6 percent in March, which could lead to an annual inflation rate of just over 7 percent if such prices increase at the March rate for the rest of the year.

There was a 1.1 percent increase in wholesale prices in February, the biggest rise in more than three years.

Wholesale food prices rose 0.8 percent in March after jumps of 1.1 percent in January and 2.9 percent in February, the Labor Department said. The price of other consumer goods rose 0.5 percent last month.

Economists watch the monthly wholesale price report closely because price increases are usually passed on to consumers.

Consumer prices increased 1.4 percent during the first two months of this year.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices for pork, processed poultry, refined sugar and fresh fruit turned downward in March after going up in the previous month. And the rate of increase in prices for beef and veal, eggs and dairy products was less in March than it was in February.

Prices turned up in March after February declines for vegetable oil products, flour-based mixes and milled rice. Candy prices increased. Coffee prices went down.

Prices for long-lasting goods, such as autos, furniture and jewelry, went up 0.6 percent in March. Higher prices were recorded for cosmetics, alcoholic beverages and luggage.

Prices of gasoline, home heating oil and tires went down. The Labor Department calculates these prices by surveying manufacturers and finding out what they have charged retailers, processors and others for goods that are ready for the consumer. It is called the producer price index for finished goods, and it now stands at 189. That means that producers are charging $189 for products that cost $100 in the base period of 1967.

In a preview of the March wholesale price report, the Agriculture Department said prices received by farmers rose 4 percent in the month ending March 15 after going up 3 percent the month before. The biggest increases were for cattle, hogs, soybeans and oranges.

Wholesale and farm price increases are usually passed on to consumers. Economists say some of the food increases show up at supermarkets almost immediately.

Last month, the Agriculture Department raised its 4 to 6 percent estimate of consumer food price increases for this year to 6 to 8 percent.

President Carter told a reception for union members Wednesday that "we are going to have to do something about inflation."

"Noting last year's decline in the unemployment rate, the president said that, unless inflation is contained, 'we are all going to be robbed of the improvements we have made.'"

Congressmen who met earlier with Carter described him as adamantly opposed to a bill to increase farm price supports because he thinks it will boost food prices even further.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Carter will deliver a speech next week about "inflation, the dollar and energy."

Powell said Carter probably has not decided on all the specifics of the anti-inflation plan, but that holding down this year's annual federal pay hike is under consideration.

The government has switched its emphasis from the unemployment problem to inflation since the jobless rate has fallen from 7 percent to 6.1 percent in the last year.

Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller estimated last week that inflation will be from 6.5 to 7 percent this year, a higher rate than the 6.3 percent the administration forecast in January.

Cleveland schools seek tax hike to open doors

CLEVELAND (AP) — With nowhere else to turn for financial relief, Cleveland's embattled public school system asks voters today to increase property taxes by $30 million a year to keep schools open.

Passage of the measure — which would boost school taxes on a $25,000 house by more than 25 percent, adding $87 to the present tax of $310 to $320 — would enable the district to use the anticipated tax revenue as collateral for loans.

Efforts over past weeks to borrow from banks failed. As a result the 113,000-pupil school system could not meet last Friday's $5 million payroll for 11,000 full-time employees, including 5,400 teachers.

In addition, the district has outstanding debts of almost $7 million, some dating back to late last year.

Only limited funds will be available from the state between now and the end of May, not even enough to meet the bi-weekly payrolls.

"We have used up every avenue up to this point short of a levy. Now all doors are closed," said Arnold Pinkney, president of the school board.

Polls opened at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. at 649 precincts. About 30 percent of the city's 290,000 registered voters are expected to cast ballots.

School officials have said schools would have to close this year if the 9.9-mill, five-year emergency tax measure fails.

They have already scheduled another election in June in case of defeat today.

Officials have admitted they faced an uphill campaign for the levy.

Opposition is expected from citizens who do not want their tax dollars being used to implement a court-ordered desegregation plan, scheduled to take effect next fall, which includes massive busing. About 60 percent of Cleveland's public school students are non-white.

School officials say the district's money problems are not related to desegregation, but admit that they have been reluctant to ask voters to approve higher taxes out of fear of a backlash from desegregation foes.

Insuror didn't raise rates once in 51 years

By JIM CARRIER
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Old age, not financial illness, doomed the tiny health insurance company 85-year-old Paul Clement ran for 51 years.

"At 85 I ought to let go a few things," Clement said Wednesday as he watched state examiners haul away records of the remaining 200 policyholders, who average 71 years of age.

The American Benefit Association has never raised its premium of $12 a year — or increased its benefits, which included a maximum payment of $150 for brain surgery and weekly disability pay of $25 for 26 weeks.

State Insurance Commissioner Berton Heaton, calling the company an "anachronism," seized control to ensure the remaining assets of $100,000 to $200,000 are equitably divided among the policyholders.

"It's not a viable company," said Heaton. Although the company passed a state examination in December, it has not issued any new policies since 1972.

The number of policyholders had dropped rapidly since 1973, "mostly because of deaths of policyholders, a trend that it appears will continue," Heaton said.

Heaton said that the longer the company existed, the greater the "windfall" for the ever fewer surviving policyholders. "This is a mutual owned by the policyholders, so that surplus belongs to them. We think that it ought to go to as many as possible. You can't go back and pay the dead," he noted.

In court records filed to take possession of the company, Heaton also questioned two annuities worth $52,000 purchased this year for company president Clement and his lone employee, an elderly woman who also has been with the company 51 years and carries the title of vice president.

Clement said they deserved annuities so they would not be left "penniless." His salary was $9,000 a year. His vice president got $200 a month in addition to her Social Security check.

Clement, who has a "little arthritis, a little glaucoma and a few trinkets like that," sold the insurance by mail. He had 15,000 policyholders at the peak in the 1940s. Over the years the company paid out millions in claims, he said, and although small, was "successful, sound and solvent."

"The average claim was not much over $100," he said. "Policies cost $12 a year and I never raised the rate in 51 years. Sounds a little bit nutty, doesn't it?"

The decline began when mail regulations prohibited certain advertising and insurance regulations required large assets to cover losses.

"I kind of thought we could peter out. I suppose there has to be an end to it," said Clement. "The insurance commission doesn't want to bother examining a company with 50 members."

Names in the news

BOSTON (AP) — Movie star John Wayne got to his feet for the first time since his open-heart surgery and ate his first solid food, Massachusetts General Hospital said today. He thanked the "thousands" who have sent him get-well wishes.

"Mr. Wayne's convalescence continues on schedule," Martin Bander, a spokesman for the hospital, said Wednesday. "He feels more rested."

Wayne, who has played cowboys, war heroes and other good guys in more than 200 movies, underwent surgery Monday. Surgeons replaced his mitral valve with a valve from the heart of a pig.

Brezhnev, 70, dropped out of public view last Dec. 12 and was not seen until mid-January. At the time, it was speculated that he had influenza although the official report said only that he was hospitalized with an undisclosed ailment.

U.S. officials say they believe it was during this period that he underwent surgery. The device, placed just under the skin, regulates the pulse by electronic methods.

Brezhnev is on a tour of Siberia, visiting sites near the Chinese border.

DALLAS (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Bob Hayes and another man were arrested today on drug charges in an early morning raid in the North Dallas suburb of Addison.

Addison police said the arrests of Hayes, 35, and Bob Adler, 29, followed a three-month undercover investigation.

Hayes, vice president of Dyccon, Inc., was charged with two counts of delivery of cocaine, and one count of delivery of quaaludes. Adler, a Dyccon salesman, was charged with one count of delivery of cocaine.

Justice of the Peace Robert Cole set bond at $10,000 each. Hayes and Adler remained in the Dallas County jail this morning. A third suspect was being sought.

Hayes won two Olympic gold medals in 1964 and wore the label "the world's fastest human" throughout his career with the Cowboys.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Farrah Fawcett-Majors says she was negotiating demands at the time she left the television show "Charlie's Angels" and never signed a final contract.

Miss Fawcett-Majors testified Wednesday in her breach of contract trial that she had wanted Spelling-Goldberg Productions to let her keep some of the clothes she wore for the series, to leave the set by 7 p.m. each day and to have time for her advertising commitments.

She and her attorneys contend that a final contract including settlement of those demands was never signed, and that the actress had a right to leave the show after its first season.

But the production company has brought suit against Miss Fawcett-Majors on grounds that a Hollywood custom gave it four years of options on her employment.

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Japanese millionaire Rocky Aoki has offered to put up $45 million to stage a reunion concert for the Beatles at Liverpool's famous Aintree race-track.

Aoki, who professes to be a close friend of John Lennon's wife, Yoko Ono, said Wednesday he hasn't approached the Beatles about the concert in their home town.

Aoki's offer is the latest bid to reunite the band, which broke up seven years ago. So far nothing has persuaded the Beatles — Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr — to perform together on stage.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials say they believe Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev has received an electronic heart pacemaker.

Hospital to consider rate increase

The need for a room rate increase because of rising utilities and operational costs will be discussed at a 6:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting of the board of managers for Highland and McLean hospitals in Highland's general conference room.

The board will discuss the need for community involvement for hospital planning and improvement and a hospital fund-raising project.

Other topics to be discussed will be a resolution about hospital volunteer service, physician recruitment, capital expenditures and the approval of the April 1 payroll and the March 1978 accounts payable.

The board will meet in executive session (closed to public and press) and re-convene in open session for action, if any.

Rep asks constituents after sex allegations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., is asking his constituents for compassion after acknowledging allegations by columnist Jack Anderson that he solicited sex from two men, one an undercover policeman.

Richmond said he faces a misdemeanor criminal charge, which his lawyer said was expected to be filed today by the U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia.

In an open letter addressed, "Dear Neighbors," Richmond said that, "during various periods of personal stress, I made

Ochiltree judge cleared

An Ochiltree County grand jury Wednesday absolved County Judge Howard Stone of all charges stemming from the hiring of his wife as a fill-in secretary.

Stone faced nepotism charges after he hired his wife in October 1976 to work two weeks for his vacationing full-time secretary.

In announcing the grand jury's decision, County Attorney Bill Rivers said his investigation showed "...there was no conscious wrongdoing" by Judge Stone when he hired his wife after attempting and failing to find someone else for the job.

Rivers said the judge's actions "...perhaps was bad judgement." However, he said the county was not harmed in any manner.

Mrs. Stone, according to the allegations, received $125 for two weeks' work. Both the

SS tax cut in trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security tax cut that members of the House are warming up to may find a cooler reception in the Senate, where two key committee chairmen oppose the concept of financing the reduction with income taxes.

So far, Rep. Robert N. Giamo, D-Conn., chairman of the budget committee, has written a proposal calling for a $7.5 billion reduction in Social Security payroll taxes as part of an overall $20 billion tax reduction next year.

He suggests that $5 billion of the cut come from income tax collections with the rest to be made up from other but unnamed funds.

The cut, which would save American workers in upper income brackets nearly $300 each next year, was examined by the House Democratic Caucus on Tuesday.

The caucus voted 150-57 in favor of the concept of financing the Social Security payroll tax reduction with general revenues but did not specifically endorse Giamo's figures. The caucus vote is not binding on House Democrats.

Social Security worries are facing congressmen just four months after they voted to increase taxes for the beleaguered system by $227 billion over the next 10 years. Some in Congress now are worried about voter response in an election year.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has said he remains firmly opposed to using income tax revenues for Social Security despite the worries of other congressmen.

"If we can't raise the taxes to meet the program's cost, then our only real alternative is to find a way to reduce benefits," Long said.

The other key chairman, Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, who heads the budget committee, also has balked at the financing plan.

They were joined in opposing the measure by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., who told reporters after the Democratic Caucus meeting that he had voted against the reduction.

Wyatt tax break efforts fizzle

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Efforts to find out whether Oscar Wyatt Jr. would get a tax break from a proposed settlement of $1.6 billion in lawsuits against LoVaca Gathering Co. fizzled Wednesday.

Assistant Attorney General Piet Schenkkan asked accountant Palmer Moe of Houston about the "tax consequences" at a hearing before examiner Tom Hill of the railroad commission.

Moe said he had not reviewed the effect of the settlement on the personal finances of Wyatt, who is board chairman and chief executive officer of LoVaca's parent, Coastal States Gas Corp.

If assumptions Schenkkan spelled out were made, what would be the effect, Schenkkan asked.

"I can't answer that," Moe replied.

He testified, however, that the complex 1,200-page settlement specifically prohibits Wyatt from owning stock in the proposed new Valero Corp., although he otherwise would be entitled to shares worth $24 million.

Lawyers Jose Fernandez Jr., representing Pearsall, and Tom Cowden, representing Products & Chemicals, Inc., sought to find out who determined which Coastal-LoVaca customers would negotiate the proposed settlement.

Moe, who worked for nine companies for 2½ years on the settlement, said he was notified by telephone of the meetings. "I don't know if there was a formal notification process," he said.

Moe also testified that Coastal could renege on a proposed $180 million gas-search program — but only by paying that amount plus a $150 million penalty.

He disclosed Coastal's option to "walk away" from the program under cross-examination by Schenkkan.

The settlement replacing LoVaca with the customer-owned Valero includes provisions for Coastal to seek additional gas to make sure Valero can supply its customers.

Moe said that if Coastal chose not to conduct such a search, it would have to pay an extra $150 million for "gas not found."

"But it could walk away from the gas-search program?" asked Schenkkan.

"Yes," said Moe, "but it would be a devastating blow to the financial condition of the company."

Moe said Coastal would have to pay $330 million over 15 years.

Hale to go to prison

Probation for Billy Jack Hale, 19, 1005 Twiford, was revoked Wednesday in Judge Grainger McIlhany's 31st district court for the Feb. 5 burglary of an Allsup's Convenient Store.

Hale, who was sentenced Jan. 16 for burglary of the Gibson's Discount Store on the Perryton Parkway, received five years' probation for that offense. That sentence was revoked and he will serve five years in the Texas Dept. of Corrections.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a refrigerator is a good place to keep money stored? My husband keeps all our savings in our refrigerator, and when I think of all the interest we're missing out on, it's very upsetting to me. Don't tell me to try to convince him to open a savings account, because he'll only say he wants his money where he can get it in a hurry.

Any suggestions you have will be greatly appreciated. WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: A refrigerator is a poor place to store one's savings—whether it's hot money or cold cash. Aside from the interest you're losing, you risk being robbed. Tell that luncheon you're married to do himself a favor and put at least part of it into a savings account!

DEAR ABBY: When I got home from work last evening, my wife said to me, "Rory (our 15-year-old son) sassed me back so I am giving him the cold, silent treatment, and I want you to do the same."

Abby, I told her that I was not going to go along with that kind of stuff—that if the boy sassed her back, it was HER problem. He never sasses ME BACK.

The wife got mad and now she's giving ME the silent treatment, too. Was I wrong, or was she?

ATLANTA QUERY

DEAR ATLANTA: She was wrong for demanding that you punish the boy per her prescription. And you were wrong, too, for letting her down. Although Rory wasn't guilty of sassing YOU, his rudeness to his mother calls for some kind of punishment. And since his mother appears unable to discipline the boy, it becomes YOUR responsibility.

A few well-chosen "hot" words from you could have accomplished more than the cold, silent treatment. Unless you want a father-son team versus mother, try to develop better communication with your wife.

DEAR ABBY: I have just observed a group of "unselfish" church women preparing for a church rummage sale, the proceeds of which will go to charity. Almost every good item donated by someone from this group was snapped up by another member of the group. Of course, they pay for these items, but a typical conversation was, "Say, who marked this lamp five dollars? The shade is soiled!"

Then someone would reply, "I did. I paid $65 for it new—but mark it whatever you want and take it."

Then the other woman would mark it a dollar and promptly cart it off to her car.

Understand, Abby, these volunteers are not charity cases themselves. They are well-to-do society women. Do you think it is fair of them to skim the cream off the top that way? Hundreds of dollars could have been added to the proceeds if it weren't for this kind of thing. I welcome your remarks and you may sign me...

APPALLED IN OMAHA

DEAR APPALLED: The volunteers should have been told that such shenanigans are tantamount to taking money out of the cash register. Why didn't you speak up? Silence implies approval.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "YOUNG PHILOSOPHER" IN MINNEAPOLIS: Wisdom does not automatically come with old age. Nothing does—except wrinkles. It's true, wine improves with age. But only if the grapes were good in the first place.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The most dangerous guerrillas

Women joins terrorist forces

EDITOR'S NOTE — Women guerrillas are nothing new, but in Western Europe they are moving up in the ranks of revolutionary groups — and becoming more dangerous. Here is a report.

By HILMI TOROS Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — More women are taking up the gun in the guerrilla organizations of Western Europe.

—A former coed is led into court in chains as a member of Italy's Red Brigades, the terrorist organization that kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro.

—A 22-year-old dental assistant among the South Moluccans who commandeered a train in the Netherlands last year was described as the most ruthless of the gang.

—In West Germany, 10 of the 16 terrorists sought for the kidnap-slaying of industrialist Hans-Martin Schleyer are women. So are two of the three killers of banker Juergen Ponto.

An AP news special

"In Italy of 1978 we have arrived at armed feminism," said an Interior Ministry official. "They act in cold blood."

"They are violent because society has been so violent against them for so long," said Tina Baffi, an Italian female attorney.

Although no woman has reached the pinnacle of power in the Irish Republican Army, women have been in the forefront of the Italian and West German terrorist movements.

Western Europe's best-known female terrorist in recent years was Ulrike Meinhof, a Hamburg journalist and housewife who with anarchist Andreas Baader organized and led West Germany's Baader-Meinhof Gang in the early 1970s in a campaign of arson, bank robbery, shooting and bombing.

Another leader in that group was Baader's mistress, Gudrun Ensslin, who aided him in his first terrorist attack, setting fire to a department store in Frankfurt in 1968 as a strike against the "pig-fascist state." When Baader was arrested for the arson, Mrs. Meinhof led the prison raid that rescued him.

Baader, the two women and a male associate were captured in 1972. All four were found dead in their prison cells, Mrs. Meinhof during the trial, and the other three after a terrorist hijacking to secure their release failed. The government said all four committed suicide but their disciples carrying on their terrorist fight claimed they were murdered.

Italy's Red Brigades also was founded by a man and a woman, Renato Curcio and his wife, the late Margherita Cagol. And like Mrs. Meinhof, Miss Cagol in 1975 led an armed attack that freed Curcio from jail.

Miss Cagol was killed shortly after in a shootout with police. Nadia Mantovani, once a model pre-med student at the University of Padua, took her place at Curcio's side. She is still beside him in the defendants' cage in Turin, where the government is attempting for the third time to try 15 members of the Red Brigades.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

One of the questions talk show hosts frequently ask is, "Do your children show signs of an acute sense of humor?"

I will share with you what I got for my birthday this year and you can be the judge. My daughter bought me an electric can opener (I've already worn out three), one son wired me a bouquet of spring flowers (I've always loved him best), and the other son bought me a bicycle.

The bicycle has two wheels, three gears, and is guaranteed to shorten my life by ten years. I have never been what you would call athletically inclined. I had to repeat showers. According to my son, "You need this, Mom. After all, you don't jog, swim, ski, and you play tennis like you just had a spinal."

Three weeks later, he came over and said, "Why haven't you ridden your bicycle?"

"Get serious," I laughed. "You know I haven't had a chance to buy a bicycle wardrobe."

"What wardrobe? Why don't you just take off in what you're wearing?"

"Do you actually think I'd be caught on the road in public with a waistband that gaps and shows half of my underwear when I bend over the handlebars?"

A few more days passed by before he said, "Why don't you take the bike out of the bedroom and onto the street?"

"I'm trying to find a time when there is room for me out there. Between 6:00 and 7:00, the joggers are out. Then it's time for the workers' traffic of cars until 9:00 a.m. Then the streets are full of dogs until 10:30 and by this time the kids are coming home from school for lunch. When they're back at 2:00, I nap and at 3:00 the people are coming home from work again."

"This morning, he dropped by and found me straddling the bicycle in the driveway. "It was terrible," I whimpered. "My backside has grown around the seat, my legs are cramped, my foot has a kink in it, a dog tore my slacks, the wind from a truck nearly threw me to the ground, my handbag slid from my shoulder and caught in the spokes and I just remembered something important ... I'm old."

"Great?" he said. "Maybe tomorrow you can take it out of the driveway."

That kid NEVER had a sense of humor.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Apparently some Austin motorists would rather steal their new vehicle license stickers than stand in a long line to buy them.

Police said Tuesday that since the April 1 deadline for the new stickers, there have been 50 thefts of license tags reported.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 28 years old and single. I have been to four specialists in the past two years. One treated me for prostate trouble. Another said urethritis and one gave me sulfa drug — no good. One gave me Mestelin F. It will clear it up in about two weeks; then two weeks later it is back.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I suspect that my husband is sterile. We have talked of his having a vasectomy to be sure because we do not want children. He says that it is distasteful to him to go in to check on his potency even if it would avoid the need for a vasectomy.

DEAR READER — I wish it were a simple problem, but if it were you would already have been cured. Acute infection of the prostate is usually easily cured but the chronic infections are usually caused by very stubborn organisms. What's worse, the antibiotics that are so effective in many infections never concentrate in sufficient amounts in the prostate to eliminate most of the bacteria. So treatment is difficult. A chronic infection in the prostate causes recurrent infections of the urinary tract.

Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Others who want this issue that discusses the common ailments of the prostate gland can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this station, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We suspect that my husband is sterile. We have talked of his having a vasectomy to be sure because we do not want children. He says that it is distasteful to him to go in to check on his potency even if it would avoid the need for a vasectomy.

A chronic infection in the prostate causes recurrent infections of the urinary tract.

DEAR READER — I am not sure how you have come to the conclusion that your husband is sterile but the only way to find out is with an examination. The usual method is for the man to obtain his own specimen. This is then examined under a microscope to count the number of healthy sperm cells. On the basis of that count it can be determined that a man is sterile. He will have to provide a specimen as you can't count them if you can't see them.

Fiesta time treat

Fiesta Beefburger Plates may be prepared by combining two to two and one-half pounds ground beef, one can (15 ounces) tomato sauce, two-thirds cup canned enchilada sauce, one and one-half teaspoons salt, a small chopped onion, teaspoon sugar, four ounces shredded colby cheese, a head iceberg lettuce, cut crosswise into six rafts and three-fourths cup ripe sliced olives, and corn chips. Combine tomato sauce and enchilada sauce in small saucepan; add one-fourth cup combined sauces and salt to ground beef and slightly combine. Add onion and sugar to remaining sauce and cook slowly 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Shape meat into six patties one-half inch thick and place on grill over ash-covered coals or on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is three to four inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature to desired doneness, six to eight minutes on each side. Stir cheese into hot sauce. Place a raft of lettuce on each serving plate. Top each with beef patty, one-third cup sauce and two tablespoons sliced olives. Place corn chips around edge of lettuce raft. Makes six servings.

Baked apples turn fancy

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE AND PIERRE FRANEY
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service

Although baked apples may seem like nothing but good, plain, honest and ordinary home cooking, the fact is that they can be turned into a dessert as elegant and fancy as you might wish. Years ago, when Le Pavillon Restaurant was in its heyday as a place of splendor and excellence, the pastry chef's baked apples occupied a place alongside the chilled omelets à la neige, the mousses au chocolat, the mille-feuilles and gateaux St. Honoré on the cold dessert display. These were not the sort of baked apples likely to be found in a roadside diner. Rather, they were apple halves first poached in syrup, next filled with cooked fruits according to the season — at times, in midwinter, candied fruits were chopped and used — and then topped with pastry cream and baked. For home-baked apples with a difference, here is that recipe.

Baked Apples Pavillon
5 medium-to-large-size apples, about two pounds
1 cup water
1/2 cup sugar 2 tablespoons honey
Juice of half a lemon
1 1/2 cups bananas cut into half-inch cubes (cut from about two bananas), or crushed pineapple

Add pecans to pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Although Elsie, Ill., "is a town in which the prevailing flavor is of the past... and gives a strong hint of the setting of 19th century life along the (Mississippi) river," there's nothing old-fashioned about a marvelous dessert served in a small restaurant there. It's pecan pie made with a layer of cream-cheese filling, an offering that emerged about a dozen years ago — heaven only knows exactly how and where.

CREAM CHEESE PECAN PIE
(Elsah Landing Version)
8-ounce package cream cheese
4 eggs
Sugar
Vanilla
Unbaked 10-inch pastry shell
1 1/4 cups coarsely chopped pecans
1 cup light corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons juice from the bottles of ginger or kumquats in syrup
3 cups creme patissiere (see recipe)
2 tablespoons dark rum
3 tablespoons crumbs made from ladyfingers, spongecake or any firm-textured cookies or cake made with vanilla

1. Peel the apples and split them in half length-wise. Using a melon ball cutter, scoop out the core of each apple. Trim away and discard the stem line leading from the core.
2. Combine the water, sugar, honey and lemon juice in a skillet large enough to hold the apple halves in one layer. Add the apple halves and cook, turning gently once or twice so that the apples cook evenly. Poach them about five to eight minutes until just cooked. Do not overcook or they will become mushy.
3. Let the apple halves cool. Drain them upside down on a rack but do not discard the cooking syrup.
4. Preheat the oven to 450 degrees.
5. Add the cubed bananas, chopped ginger and ginger syrup to a saucepan. Add half a cup of the syrup in which the apples cooked. Bring to the boil and remove from the heat. Let cool. It will thicken slightly as it stands.

6. Arrange the apple halves cored side up on a baking dish large enough to hold them in one layer.
7. Spoon equal portions of the fruit mixture into and over the center of each apple half.
8. Blend the pastry cream with the rum and half a cup of reserved syrup from the cooked apples. If not wanted, discard the remaining apple syrup.
Spoon the pastry cream over the filled apple halves. Sprinkle with the crumbs.
10. Place in the oven and bake 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot or lukewarm.
Yields: 10

CREME PATISSIERE (Pastry cream)
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup heavy cream
4 egg yolks
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch

1. Blend one cup of the milk and the cream in a saucepan and bring to the boil.
2. As the liquid is heating, add the egg yolks and sugar to a mixing bowl and beat until pale yellow.
3. Add the cornstarch to the yolk mixture and beat well. Add the remaining half cup of milk and beat until blended.
4. When the milk and cream are at the boil, remove from the heat. Add the yolk mixture, beating rapidly with a wire whisk.
5. Return to the heat and bring to the boil, stirring constantly with the whisk. When thickened and at the boil, remove from the heat and let cool, stirring occasionally.
Yield: About three cups.

City traffic to be studied

The Pampa Traffic Commission is recommending for city commission study a possible $26,000, federally-funded survey of Pampa traffic problems, according to traffic commission chairman Pernal Scoggin.

Scoggin said the survey, conducted by the Amarillo College Department of Traffic Safety in conjunction with the Texas Office of Traffic Safety, would map out local traffic congestion areas such as downtown, railroad crossings and schools.

Said Scoggin, "The survey would make recommendations to city officials on how they could solve Pampa's particular traffic problems."

In its regular monthly meeting Tuesday the 15-member traffic commission heard Allen Monroe, traffic safety coordinator for Amarillo College, outline the survey's purpose, its financial base and how it could benefit the city.

Monroe told the citizens' traffic commission the survey would be completely funded by the federal government through the Department of Highway Administration. He said the survey would cost approximately $26,000. The only cost to the city would be maintenance expenses for any traffic control measures implemented. No city manpower would be required, he added.

Monroe indicated that the survey could begin as soon as Oct. 1 should the city decide to participate. It would take two to three months to complete. The city has the options of implementing all, part or none of the survey's traffic safety recommendations, he said.

Traffic Commissioner Scoggin said the commission's recommendation would be presented to the Pampa City Commission at its next regular meeting April 11. Some 26 Panhandle cities are eligible for the federal traffic survey funds.

Highway 152 to get coat

A 13-mile section of Highway 152 in Carson County to the Gray County line will receive an underseal and an asphaltic concrete overlay in about four months, according to a report issued by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

The work will be completed for $644,553 by Cooper & Woodruff Inc. of Amarillo, the lowest bidder. Jay L. Hawley, Borger engineer, will be in charge of the work.

Firemen report March runs

The Pampa Fire Department made 143 runs in March. There were 106 city runs and 37 county runs. One false alarm, eight auto fires, 37 grass fires, six trash fires, six dwelling fires and four structure fires totaled 81 runs.

CBS birthday scores most viewers

NEW YORK (AP) — With 13 of the week's 20 most-watched television programs, CBS knocked ABC out of first place in the networks' ratings race for the first time in 10 weeks.

CBS scored with six nights of special programming commemorating its 50th anniversary in radio and television. A.C. Nielsen Co. ranked five of the six "CBS: On The Air" specials among the top 26 programs for the week ending April 2. The Saturday night show was 44th.

CBS finished the week with a rating of 21, followed by ABC with 18.7 and NBC with 16.5. The networks say the figures mean in an average prime time minute, 21 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

It was the first time since the week of Jan. 15 that a network other than ABC was first in the standings. ABC has been first all but four weeks this season.

CBS listed the week's most-watched program, "M-A-S-H," and the network's "One Day at a Time" was fourth. CBS, in addition, had "The Waltons," the Thursday night "CBS: On the Air" special, "Alice" and "60 Minutes" in the Top 10.

The rating for "M-A-S-H" was 30.3, which Nielsen says means at least 30.3 percent of the homes in the country with television watched at least part of the show.

Reruns of ABC's three top shows, "Three's Company," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Happy Days," were second, third and fifth. One of the three has been first in the ratings 19 weeks this season.

The three networks divided up positions at the bottom of the ratings. NBC's "Quark" was No. 61, ABC's "Hardy Boys" 62nd, CBS's "Shields and Yarnell" 63rd, ABC's "Barretta" 64th and "NBC Reports: Spying for Uncle Sam" 65th.

ABC said, meantime, its telecast of the Academy Awards presentations the night of April 4 — to be included in next week's Nielsen report — attracted an estimated 70 million viewers, more than ever before for the annual show. ABC estimated last year's audience for the Oscars at 64.6 million.

U.S. Nationals slam Cubans

ATLANTA (AP) — Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall wore a smile for a change but still admitted to that same old feeling — pressure.

The coach of the NCAA basketball champion Wildcats was in high spirits Wednesday night after his Kentucky-dominated U.S. national team overpowered outmanned Cuba 109-64 in the nightcap of the first annual World Invitational Tournament.

In the opener of the three-day round robin tournament, Yugoslavia continued its domination of the Soviet Union, defeating the Russians 97-79 before an Omni crowd of 6,612.

Hall, who admitted to the pressure of winning the national collegiate title this year and rarely smiled en route to that triumph, was beaming continually Wednesday night.

He was afforded the luxury since his squad completely dominated the smaller Cubans from the outset. Kentucky's Jack Givens led seven scorers in double figures with 17 points.

"It's a different kind of pressure," said Hall. "We feel it as representatives of the United States. We haven't had adequate time to prepare for the games but we made up for it with hustle and spirit."

He should have added talent. The Americans were awesome, racing to a 16-3 lead in less than five minutes and had the game sewed up at halftime as they led 56-21. All 12 players, including five from Kentucky, saw action and all scored except Jay Shidler of Kentucky.

Sports

PAMPA NEWS Thursday, April 6, 1978 15

Sidney Moncrief of Arkansas added 15 points while Kentucky's Rick Robey and Kyle Macy, Darrell Griffith of Louisville and David Greenwood of UCLA had 12 apiece. James Bailey of Rutgers had 11. Alejandro Urgelles led Cuba with 16 points.

"We recognize, however, that Yugoslavia and Russia will be on a different plateau," said Hall as the series moves to Chapel Hill, N.C. Friday night and Lexington, Ky., on Sunday.

In the opener, which was televised live by satellite to Yugoslavia and Russia, the Yugoslavians went in front to stay on a 12-0 spurt that gave them a 31-24 lead midway in the opening half.

Drazen Dalipagic scored 28 points, Dragan Kicanovic 26 and Kresimir Kotic 20 for Yugoslavia. Vladimir Zhigili led Russia with 18 and Anatoly Mishkin added 16 for the losers.

Mariners down Twins in opener

SEATTLE (AP) — Glenn Abbott was grinning over how well he'd done. Dave Goltz was shaking his head over the pitch that got away and Gene Mauch was muttering something about his grandmother.

That's how the 1978 major league baseball season began Wednesday night as Abbott scattered five hits over 6 1/3 innings to help the Seattle Mariners trim the Minnesota Twins 3-2 in the Kingdom.

"I'm looking for a really good year," the big right-hander joked, "between 35 and 40 wins."

Abbott, who led Seattle's pitchers with a 12-13 record last season, got relief help in the seventh inning from Enrique Romo, who quelled a dramatic Minnesota rally in the ninth to preserve the victory.

"I got a little tired and started getting my pitches up," explained Abbott, who was greeted by a standing ovation from the crowd of 45,235 when he left the game with Seattle ahead 3-1.

"But I'm really glad about this. I'm usually an awfully slow starter," he said.

Abbott was buoyed by shortstop Craig Reynolds' two-run homer in the second inning that staked the second-year Mariners to a 3-0 lead.

"For a Punch-and-Judy hitter like me, that's mind-boggling," said Reynolds, who hit just four homers last season. "I was just trying to meet the ball. The pitch was something up and, for me, I hit it good."

Goltz, the Twins' ace right-hander, went the distance Wednesday night but knew he had made a mistake with Reynolds.

"The first two innings everything I threw was up," said Goltz, who was 20-11 with 19 complete games last season. "I threw Reynolds a nothing fast-ball. Anybody can hit those out. The rest of the way I was okay."

Minnesota Manager Mauch was generally pleased with his club's showing.

"It took Goltz a while to get settled down," Mauch said. "He threw three straight balls and then laid one in (to Reynolds). My grandmother could hit a home run in this ballpark."

"Abbott pitched very well, the best I've ever seen him pitch. He threw a lot of ground balls. Some of them were hit pretty hard, but they were ground balls nevertheless."

Nicklaus, Watson head Masters field

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — By his own calculations, Jack Nicklaus figures to have a 50-50 chance of winning the 42nd Masters golf tournament.

But young Jerry Pate, still thankful that he ignored a doctor who wanted to extract a rib and outdueled a hypnotist over a steak last year, was among 77 challengers anxious to test Nicklaus' prediction as the tournament opened today at the Augusta National Golf Club.

Nicklaus is not one to make rash statements, even though he has won this event a record five times and is the favorite virtually every time he plays in one of the four major tournaments.

On the eve of this event, though, he offered this careful assessment: "In the last 15 Masters, excluding my first one as a pro and my three as an amateur, I've felt probably 10 times that I've come in here playing as well as I can. I won half of those times.

"Now my game is better than it ever was and I'm as well prepared as can be."

There's more. He is off to his best start ever, having won twice and finished second twice in his last four starts. He is rested yet tuned, having bypassed the last two tour events and played several practice rounds at Augusta. He is driving the ball 10-15 yards farther, having returned this year to a driver with a smaller angle on the club face.

And, perhaps most important, he is hungry.

He points toward the major tournaments (the others are the PGA and the U.S. and British Opens). He was beaten by Tom Watson twice last year, here and at the British Open. It has been two years since he won the last of his 14 "Big Four" events.

Watson is back to defend his title, although he has missed the cut in two of his last three starts. Hubert Green, the U.S. Open champion, seems to be at the top of his game. So does Severiano Ballesteros, the 20-year-old Spaniard who has dominated European tournaments for the past two years and won his first U.S. title last week at Greensboro, N.C.

Other top contenders in the select, invitational field over the par-72, 7,040-yard course are PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, four-time Masters runner-up Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd, Ben Crenshaw, Lou Graham and David Graham. Also on hand are Arnold Palmer, a four-time winner here; Johnny Miller, still in a deep slump, and Lee Trevino, who has won every Big Four event except the Masters.

A player who also figures to be in the chase is Pate, the 24-year-old Floridian who shot to the top of the pack by winning the 1976 U.S. Open, then was plagued by arm injuries last year. He is healthy again, and wants another major title.

Astros lose

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Houston Astros hope they have more success today against Cincinnati in a National League opener than they did Wednesday against six Texas Aggie pitchers in an exhibition game.

Rodney Huddle singled in the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning as the defending Southwest Conference baseball champion Aggies defeated the Astros 1-0. Houston faces Tom Seaver of the Reds today.

Huddle's pinch-hit single came with one out after Aggie catcher Buster Turner singled and advanced to third on a single by Gary Bryant.

Astro reliever Tom Dixon, who stepped in for starter Floyd Banister in the eighth inning, received the loss. Freshman Perry Swanson, the last of the Aggie pitchers, was credited with the victory.

Tryouts set

Tryouts for Babe Ruth League baseball, ages 13-15, and Youth League baseball, 9-12, have been scheduled for April 5-7.

Sponsored by the Pampa Optimists, the tryouts are slated for 5:30 p.m. at the Pampa Optimist Ball Park.

To be eligible for selection to the teams, entrants must attend two of the three scheduled tryouts.

Anglers hook walleye

You can put away the paint brush and take out the fishing pole.

The spawning run has begun for walleye at Lake Meredith, north of Amarillo, reported the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

With water temperature near 49 degrees F., many other species of fish such as small mouth bass and sandbass will also begin their annual spring runs.

Record cold weather this year is believed responsible for the late start of the walleye spawning season. Ordinarily, March 18 has marked the spring runs.

Anglers at Lake Meredith have begun to take four- to eight pound walleye along the dam and off rocky points. Baits have included jigs, worms and minnows. A June bug spinner trailed by a passel of nightcrawlers is considered very reliable.

Remember: The walleye is a nocturnal feeder and prefers the bottom. If nothing else seems to work, fish him at night.

The walleye habitat is wide-ranging, including the Great Lakes states, the Mississippi River valley and much of the South. In addition to availability, its excellent flavor has contributed much to its popularity as a game fish.

TV fires Hill polster

By The Associated Press
A political analyst whose poll showed Attorney General John Hill ahead of Gov. Dolph Briscoe in the race for the Democratic party's gubernatorial nomination has been fired by a television station after it was discovered the man was a campaign coordinator for Hill.

WFAA-TV News Director Marty Haag said the station learned Wednesday that Dr. Del Taebel, a University of Texas-Arlington political scientist, works as a Hill volunteer at Arlington. Dr. Taebel, he said, told him that the poll was taken and prepared fairly by his students.

The poll, aired Tuesday night, showed Hill comfortably ahead of Briscoe in Dallas and Tarrant counties.

The poll was taken in his role as a political scientist, not in his role as a Hill volunteer, Taebel said.

"There are a lot of candidates I support who are behind in my polls," he told The Associated Press Wednesday night.

Haag said Taebel told him the poll was taken fairly by the students and that their information was fed into a computer. Taebel said WFAA-TV had known that he was a Hill supporter at the time the station asked him to conduct the poll.

He added that he had never been paid by WFAA-TV, but that he had paid his students to conduct the poll.

Gov. Briscoe and members of the Texas Deep Water Port Authority met with Washington officials to discuss "the most expeditious way" to build an offshore docking facility for super-tankers.

Hill appeared in the Texas Supreme Court opposing the appeal of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for an order immediately increasing rates by $240 million.

Ray Hutchison, Republican candidate for governor told an Austin news conference that his opponent

Bill Clements, is trying "to salvage a sinking campaign by claiming that the AFL-CIO has adopted his position on energy production."

"When you get right down to it," the former state Republican chairman said, "the AFL-CIO energy plan is nothing more than a blueprint for the nationalization of the oil and gas industry."

Clements claims he has better than a two-to-one lead over Hutchison.

Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, campaigning in El Paso Wednesday, said that he has introduced a bill that would provide an additional $2.6 billion in federal impact aid to Texas school districts with large numbers of students born in Mexico. He said the bill would provide $1,000 per Mexican-born student on a one-time basis for construction of facilities or purchase of new materials.

Marcos to stay despite voters

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippines is holding its first election in 5 1/2 years Friday, but President Ferdinand E. Marcos will remain in firm control of the government no matter what the outcome.

Though he is not a candidate and is assured a big majority in the interim National Assembly being elected, Marcos has been the most active participant in the 45-day campaign, making speeches and wooing voters.

The president has been working for a landslide victory in Metropolitan Manila, where his wife, Imelda, heads a pro-administration ticket opposed by a slate headed by imprisoned former Sen. Benigno S. Aquino Jr., a longtime foe of Marcos.

Defeat for Mrs. Marcos, who is governor of Metropolitan Manila, and her slate seems unthinkable. But the furious campaign she and her husband have been waging indicates they are worried that her showing might not be as strong as they would like.

Aquino was arrested shortly after Marcos declared martial law in September 1972 and has been in prison ever since. A military court convicted him of murder and other charges in November and condemned him to death after a trial in which he refused to defend himself.

There was such an outburst of foreign criticism that Marcos ordered the trial reopened to hear the defense evidence, but there have been no hearings since. Although the government allowed Aquino's candidacy, it refused to release him, contending that he is a security risk with ties to the Communists and the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Marcos had his martial-law constitution amended in 1976 to provide for the interim assembly and said its election will be a step toward "normalization." But he continues as president and retains the power to legislate by decree if he is not satisfied with the assembly's operations. He has promised to leave legislating to the assembly, but only if the government — meaning Marcos — can introduce legislation.

The voters will elect 165 of the 200 assembly members, including 21 in Metropolitan Manila, where an eighth of the 25 million eligible voters live. Marcos will appoint 20 members as his cabinet, and the remainder will be chosen later to represent youth, labor and other sectors of society.

There is no nationwide opposition, but Marcos' hand-picked candidates are reported in trouble in several areas.

Betting answer expected today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Democrats hope to find out today if there will be a horse race betting referendum on their May 6 primary ballot.

A 9 a.m. hearing was set in the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals on a motion that would let opponents to the referendum ask for a court order to stop ballots from being printed.

However, the pro and con arguments were expected to cover all phases of pari-mutuel betting, which has been voted down three times previously by Texas voters.

The three-judge court was expected to act later today.

The betting referendum is already cleared for the Republican primary ballot.

Anti-horse race betting forces filed the appeal to the civil appeals court after a ruling last week by District Judge Jim Dear that his court did not have jurisdiction. Dear dissolved a temporary restraining order against the referendum.

The pari-mutuel betting straw vote was placed on the ballot by the State Democratic Executive Committee on March 13 after being presented with petitions which horse racing fans said contained 96,000 signatures of registered voters.

Opponents claim the petitions contain only about 50,000 qualified names, short of the 74,000 necessary to get a referendum on the ballot.

Already approved for the Democratic primary ballot, by the SDEC and by a court test, is a question that will ask voters to say if they favor raising interest rates on loans up to $5,000.

Witness says Joan signed

HOUSTON (AP) — Testimony in the hearing over the contested will of Houston socialite Joan Robinson Hill enters its third week today.

A Morgan City, La., businessman told a Harris County Probate Court jury Wednesday he saw Mrs. Hill sign a will in 1968 in which she purportedly left her entire estate to her father, Ash Robinson.

Douglas Diboll, a long-time Robinson family friend and one of two men who witnessed the Houston socialite's will, repeated testimony he gave in an earlier trial. Diboll said he and John Nix of Houston, the second witness, asked Mrs. Hill, who was having marital problems with her husband John at the time, if the will represented what she wanted before they signed it.

Mrs. Hill's 17-year-old son, Robert, claims the will is a fake.

The will left everything to Robinson although it stipulated that he Houston oilman provide for his grandson.

Joan Hill died in 1969, and Houston surgeon Dr. Hill was charged with murder through medical neglect. A first trial ended in a mistrial and Hill was shot to death in 1972 while awaiting a second trial.

Robert, his paternal grandmother Myra Hill and Connie Hill, the doctor's third wife, filed a wrongful death damage suit against Robinson last year, alleging the Houston oilman had arranged Hill's death. A jury exonerated Robinson after a court trial.

Tullius Brady of Brookhaven, Miss. became the eighth witness to tell the jury in Probate Judge Bill Bear's court that Joan Robinson had said she wanted to leave all her property to her father in a new will she planned.

missed her own cat, Misty Malarky Ying Yang, who was left behind in Washington.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's serious minded foreign adviser, was asked if he had suggested that the Carters and their party go night-clubbing in Rio de Janeiro.

"It wasn't my instigation," he replied, "it was my persuasion."

Asked what has sparked his interest in after-dark revelry, Brzezinski reported: "Because it was fun."

One of America's premier diplomats reached the following assessment of those he dealt with at one stop: "The Nigerians are almost as arrogant as Hamilton Jordan."

The diplomat did not want his name used because: (1) he is quite likely to return to Lagos on official business, and (2) he most assuredly will have future dealings with Jordan, the president's principal assistant.

The crack is repeated here as evidence that Carter's official family is not always bathed in mutual love.

Toasting President Carlos Andres Perez of oil-rich Venezuela at a state dinner, Carter kept a straight face while thanking Perez for offers to reduce oil prices by 5 percent a year and to loan Uncle Sam enough money to pay off the national debt.

There was an awkward silence — until Perez got the joke.

From the White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents, diplomats and cabinet officers can't cross the street without first studying briefing books that tell them what to expect on the other side. Amy Carter gets the same treatment.

During her parents' recent Third World tour, the 10-year-old daughter of the president occasionally was seen carrying a small folder labeled "Amy's Briefing Book."

Mary Finch Hoyt, Mrs. Carter's press secretary, reports that Amy's book consisted mostly of her separate schedule of activities for each stop along the route.

But it also included a special feature absent from her parents' similar, if bulkier, briefing documents.

For Amy, a coloring book was inserted among the schedules.

Unfortunately, no crayons were provided. So a restive Amy spent much of her time during long flights aboard Air Force One playing cards or a word game called "Hangman."

The Carter daughter also canvassed fellow passengers in search of paperback books to read. Alas, the available literature was too groupm for a precocious grade school student.

When Amy signed the guest book Sunday at the First Baptist Church of Lagos, Nigeria, she followed her signature by inscribing a simple drawing of a bewhiskered cat. Perhaps she

Board says The Plan is salvation

EDITOR'S NOTE — In updating the state's farflung water plan experts added this cryptic note: "To fail to plan well, and to fail to develop water resources according to schedule ... has social and economic costs or practically inestimable magnitudes." This special report, one in a series explores "The Plan" and the problems.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — On an otherwise humdrum day in 1968, the Texas Water Development Board unveiled a broad, bold scheme to meet the state's long range water needs.

It was called, simply, the Texas Water Plan.

"There is not a water resource plan of this magnitude or complexity in the world today," the board said in releasing the 50-year water document a decade ago.

"Yet Texas' water needs for the future can be met with nothing less sweeping."

Seldom, it was noted at the time, had such a document, so vital in nature, so painstakingly conceived, been understood by so few.

A lesson in frustration, snorted one water planner.

Responding to the challenge, Texas voters rushed right out and rejected a $3.5 billion bond issue needed to help finance the plan. Many voters thought they shot down the plan itself. They were wrong. The plan lives. It is still the blueprint for meeting the state's projected needs.

But it is not easily recognizable.

In a remarkable document released last year, the water development board spelled out a number of proposals designed to revise and update the plan.

"There are two compelling reasons to maintain a current statewide comprehensive water resources development plan," the board said in a prelude to its report.

And then James Rose, the former executive director, quietly disclosed those two reasons:

"First, the quantity of water necessary to meet Texas' large and growing needs is not available from most ground water aquifers and undeveloped flowing streams.

"Secondly, the time required to find, develop and deliver additional quantities of suitable quality water exceeds the length of time that any areas of the state can survive a severe drought.

"The state's population, currently about 12 million, is expected to be more than 18 million in the year 2000, 25.5 million by 2020 and 30.5 million by 2030."

Although Rose laid out the situation quite clearly, one might paraphrase his analysis this way:

"Texas does not have enough water, a drought would be disastrous and the population explosion is compounding the problem."

Rose said Texas, to meet its economic and environmental needs, which includes water for agriculture and the bays and estuaries, must have 33 million acre-feet of water in 2000, 41 million acre-feet by 2020 and 48 million acre-feet by 2030.

Those estimates, water experts admit, are impractical if not impossible, and the requirements have been revised downward. But for the purposes of comparison, the 33 million figure is roughly twice as much water as the state will use this year.

An acre foot of water is 325,850 gallons and represents the amount of water it takes to cover an acre of land a foot deep.

In its revised and updated report, the water development board disclosed these facts.

"The major areas dependent on ground water are the High Plains, Trans Pecos, El Paso and Winter Garden areas.

"Without imported water, irrigated acreage on the High Plains is expected to decrease to about 58 percent of the current 6.4 million acre level by 2000. The figure would be 41 percent by 2020.

"Other regions of the state will be limited in terms of growth potential, including jobs, unless water supplies are available.

"The major areas where long range water shortages are projected include the Dallas-Fort Worth regional and all regions west including the Wichita Falls, Abilene, San Angelo, High Plains, Trans Pecos, El Paso, Lower Rio Grande Valley, Middle Rio Grande, Corpus Christi and San Antonio regions.

"The areas capable of meeting their long range needs—if reservoir sites are developed on a timely schedule—are the Middle Gulf Coast, Houston, Beaumont, East Texas, North-east Texas and part of the Dallas-Fort Worth and Central Texas regions.

"A number of out-of-state sources of potential water supplies are now being studied for the import to water-deficit Texas areas, primarily the High Plains. The No. 1 target is Arkansas.

Water experts, on the brighter side, believe Texas can through proper development of all its available sources meet its needs for municipal and industrial water.

And with importation, the rich agricultural potential could be reaped for years to come. The questions that must be answered involve monumental political and economic hurdles jeoparding importation schemes.

"The failure to plan and implement timely water resources programs, with today's large population and elevated economic level," the development board warned, "is to invite economic and social crises that have a high probability of resulting in disaster for Texans."

And that is why the experts are breathing new life into the Texas Water Plan.

Prison site price increases

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — If the state of Texas still wants to buy an 8,000-acre tract for a prison here the price "possibly" would be higher than the figure originally proposed, according to a local attorney.

Preston Henrichson, representing the Big Five Farms Inc. of Edinburg, said his clients are showing the land to other prospective buyers.

"My clients made an offer to the state which was tentatively approved. But our offer expired on April 1," Henrichson said.

The attorney said the sale to the state is not definitely off but the price "would be negotiable."

Big Five had asked for $8 million for the land.

Henrichson said the state is still "way ahead" of other prospective buyers in the negotiating process.
