Nixon's White House tapes stay secret

Supreme Court today barred the public from listening to the 30 White House tape recordings played at the Watergate coverup trial of aides to former President Richard M. Nixon.

The court's 7-2 decision reversed a 1976 ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that would have made the tapes available to the three commercial television networks. public television and a recordcopies of the tapes for home

'Considering all the circumstances of this concededly singular case, we hold that the common-law right of access to judicial records does not authorize release of the tapes in question," Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. wrote for the court's

ified with the decision, " said William H. Jeffress Jr., who argued the case for Nixon before the Supreme Court.

Transcripts of the tapes were highly publicized during the 1974 trial of former Attorney General John Mitchell and ex-man and John Ehrlichman. All 30 transcripts were widely quoted in part or in their entirety in newspapers and other publications.

But except for the 12-member jury and those persons who sat through all or portions of the trial, the public has never heard the actual voices of Nixon and his aides discussing the scandal that forced him from tapes released were ABC, CBS, NBC, the Public Broadcasting Service, the Radio-Television News Directors Association and Warner Communications.

The networks, public television and the news directors group sought to air portions of the tapes while Warner wanted to reproduce them for sale as records and tape cassettes.

Nixon argued that the tapes' release would invade his privacy and cause him great embarrassment.

In arguing before the justices last October, Jeffress said the former president would suffer "mental anguish" if the tapes were not kept from "every disc jockey, every television perto be played former relentlessly."

Nixon's attorneys argued that home sales of 22 hours' worth of White House conversations would lead to their being "played at cocktail parties and in satiric productions.'

But in arguing for Warner Communications, lawyer Edward Bennett Williams had told the court: "I don't know of any common law right not to be embarrassed by one's inculpatory words.

Reeve to receive award

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Staff John R. (Jack) Reeve Jr. director of engineering and development at Cabot Corporation's Machinery Division west of Pampa, has been selected to receive the Thomas D. Cabot Distinguished Inventor Award

About 250 people are expected to attend a presentation party tonight in Reeve's honor.

Cabot executives in Pampa for the event include Thomas D. Cabot, honorary chairman of the board, for whom the award was named; Dr. Robert A. Charpie, president, who will present the award; Joe Riley, vice president human resources; Dr. Robert Meghreblian, vice president research and engineering, all of Boston; and Bill Manly, senior vice president, Kokomo, Ind.

Manly arrived in Pampa Monday. He told The News that Reeve is the second recipient of the award. The first was Merrill Jordan who received the honor in 1975 in recognition of his fiftient patent. Jordan, who works in carbon black research for Cabot in Massachusetts, also will be present tonight

Others invited include Cabot customers, college professors, local civic leaders and friends of Reeve was selected for the Thomas D. Cabot Award because of his innovations, inventions and improvements in mobile oilfield, drilling, workover and servicing rigs.

"The Cabot family is quite impressed with technology," Manly explained, "and the corporation carries forth this tradition.'

He said Cabot has research labs in various parts of the country. There are about 30 major Cabot installations in the United States and another 15 located in other countries around the world. The $660 million - per - year corporation employs 8,000 persons in the U.S. plants, Manly said. He predicted that Cabot will be a $1 billion - per year company by 1980. Reeve will be presented with a

Bridwell tops senior class

Judy L. Bridwell has been named valedictorian of the 1978 senior class at Pampa High School; Cheryl P. Birkes was tapped as salutatorian.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs Marvin Bridwell of 616 N. Frost. Miss Bridwell earned the honor of valedictorian with a 3.69643 grade point. She will receive free tuition to the Texas school

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Wallace Birkes, 2356 Aspen, earned a grade average of 3.62759. Both girls will lead their class in graduation at 8 p.m. May 26 in the Field House.

Other students in scholastic order are: Robin J. Lee, 3.61569; Ronald Palmer, 3.61481; Kemberly K. Kotara, 3.61429; Martha Ann Turner, 3.59524; B. Kathy White, 3.58644; Locke Carter, 3.58182; Traci Truly, 3.57895 and Ann Beck, 3.53962.

Poll indicates treaty will be approved ate supporters of the Panama Canal treaties appear to be within two votes of winning final approval following a compromise on the issue of U.S. intervention.

But the outcome of today's vote on the second treaty remained in doubt because at least two senators who endorsed the first of the treaties March 16 were threatening to

An Associated Press count showed President Carter and Senate leaders holding 65 firm votes for the treaty, which

If Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., supports the second treaty. Carter would be within one vote of victory on an issue that threatened to hand the president a major foreign policy defeat and further sour his relations with Congress.

To be approved, the second treaty must draw 67 votes if all voting. The first agreement was approved 68 to 32.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, spent the last four days seeking a middle ground between competing concerns for Panamanian sovereignty and U.S. rights to keep the canal operating even if it were threatened by internal Panamanian problems.

That issue sparked a demonstration in Panama City Monday during which about 100 demonstrators hurled bottles of paint at the U.S. Embassy. The crowd was broken up by clubswinging national guardsmen.

But while demonstrators were marching in Panama. Senate leaders in Washington were agreeing on a compromise that was accepted by both the Panamanian government and freshman Sen. Dennis DeConcini. D-Ariz.

A statement to be attached to the second treaty would declare a policy of non-intervention in Panamanian affairs while upholding the right of the U.S. to unilaterally keep the waterway in operation.

The amendment, to be voted on today before the final treaty vote, reduces the number of uncertain votes to four, two of whom could switch their previous pro-treaty votes for different reasons. The four remaining uncertain votes in the AP count are Cannon and Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., and Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va. Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said Monday night he would vote in favor of the Abourezk has linked the canal vote with the natural gas portion of Carter's energy plan.

Although he voted for the first treaty, Abourezk said Monday he will vote against the second agreement unless Carter declares his opposition to deregulation of natural gas prices.

That was considered highly unlikely by most Senate observers and Abourezk was considered on Monday as a probable no vote.

Another unknown was Havakawa, who said last week he is concerned about what he sees as a lack of will in the Carter administration to deter communist aggression in various countries

Hayakawa, who voted for the first treaty, said he might vote against the second one unless Carter shows a sign of changing foreign policy.

The senator met with Carter on Monday, but said he would not decide what to do until shortly before the final vote. Cannon voted for the first treaty, but was known to be under extreme political pressures to vote against the second agreement

Randolph, usually a Carter administration ally, voted against the first agreement, but was considered a switch on the second. After agreement on the intervention issue was reached Monday. DeConcini said the key to compromise was inclusion of a phrase which declares that the United States has the right to keep the canal "open, neutral and secure.'

At the same time, DeConcini said, the statement will also include a statement that the unilateral U.S. rights to keep the canal open "shall not be interpreted as interference in the internal affairs of Panama.

Inflation bafflegab

Let economics law work

With the inflation - cheapened dollar continuing to take a beating in money marts all over the world, the Carter administration persists in its efforts to attribute inflation to everything except its true cause, the government itself. Nowhere in his recent speech, promising a "tough plan to fight inflation," did the President mention the necessity of stopping, or even slowing down, the government's money printing presses if inflation is to be brought under control.

Instead, addressing members of the Communications Workers of America in the East Room of the White House, Mr. Carter treated his listeners to more of the political, cause obscuring, bafflegab for which his administration is fast becoming known. Noting that the unemployment rate was somewhat improved, the President warned, "But the inflation rate is creeping up and unless we all stand firm, cut out waste and have a sound economy, stabilize the dollar, have an energy package passed, cut out unnecessary spending and hold down the budget deficit, we are all going to be robbed of the improvements we made.

That, coming from the head of an administration that has stood firm on nothing but giving away the Panama Canal to a two - bit dictator, that has done everything in its power to cheapen the dollar and undermine the economy, that throws the taxpayers' money around like a drunken sailor on Saturday night, piling deficit upon deficit in the process, makes one wonder if the man really understands the meaning of

Unless, that is, one entertains the notion that the President was taking advantage of the opportunity to get in a little propaganda calculated to pressure congress into passing his so - called energy package which, although mislabeled as a solution to the energy crisis, will actually worsen the problem and is, in reality, a monumental tax boost in disguise.

In that case, Mr. Carter's speech to members of a union which was among the first to support him in his campaign for the presidency, begins to make political sense. Or, in other words, that Mr. Carter is willing to play politics with so serious a matter as inflation and the health of the dollar.

Such a suspicion is strengthened by the way White House spokesman Jody Powell zeroed in on the President's reference to energy in the speech. Announcing that Mr. Carter will deliver another speech this coming week, Powell told the press that it would be about "inflation, the dollar, and energy." Said Powell, "You really cannot talk about one without talking about the others.'

Essay: biting the bison for Ol' Bert

WASHINGTON - "Dear Bill," a friend scrawls across an invitation he has received," "I can't make this. Would you please go in my place?"

The invitation is to "Bite a Bison Night" and reads: "Clint Murchison Jr. and Thomas D. Webb Jr. cordially invite you to their Annual Wild Game Fiesta in honor of the Honorable Bert Lance, the Genial Giant from Georgia, a guy you have to Tom Webb is Texas oil millionaire Clint Murchison's year's shindig honoring the President's Best Friend will be held at his estate in Potomac, Md. Webb is an ex-F.B.I. man who has long been playing the Washington contact game, and his use of Ol' Bert as guest of honor is similar to Tongsun Park's use of Tip O'Neill in the same role: to make the friends who can help make a deal.

Messrs? Murchison and Webb run a group of companies (Burbank International, Korlan Electronics Services) that pick up sales commissions brokering oil to and from the Middle East. Their partners in these ventures include Jimmy Hoffa's old pal, public relations man Irving Davidson, and Cheriff Guellai, Algeria's former Ambassador to the United States. The best deal they have going now is in Libya, but Bert's the man who can get them into Saudi Arabia.

Lance is the man who invented the way to turn a Carter connection into personal wealth. Not only was Chicago banker Bob Abboud's substandard loan to Lance of $3.5 million paid off by Arabs who want a link to the White House, but I'm told another Arab has arranged to buy "Butterfly Manna," the Lance Mansion, at a price nearly five times what Bert paid for it a couple years ago: This is a shrewd way of getting income treated as a capital gain, and follows the pattern of the "purchase" of his bank stock for above market value.

Deal-hungry oilmen know that Bert can make this Administration hop. On March 12, two days after Arab ally Marshall Tito left Washington with President Carter's "he's a man who believes in human rights" ringing in his ears, Bert met with Yugoslav Finance Ministry officials in Belgrade. The metting was set up in Yugoslvia by the United States Ambassador at the cabled request of the State Department.

But voters should not be surprised at the moral obtuseness of the Carter men in mixing oil money and politics: Even in the 1976 campaign, the Carter polls were subsidized openly by pollster Pat Caddell's Saudi Arabian contract. When Candidate Carter stonewalled on that, in the face on harangues in this space, and liberals shyly lowered their eyes, it became open season for the Arabs to buy their way into Washington.

The latest example was reported by Robert Kaiser of The Washington Post: The public relations firm hired by the Saudis to lobby for their F-15 warplane purchase is headed by the former campaign manager of John C. West, the South Carolina politician who is now Carter's ambassador to Saudi Arabia

Ambassador West invited his campaign aide to Saudi Arabia. sat him down with the Saudi officials who wanted to know who was the "right" lobbyist, and now our Ambassador's ex-aide is taking down at least $30,000 a month from the Arabs to sell United States Congressmen Carter's bomber "package." Don't hold your breath.

Ah, but what of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, watchdog of rectitude in our Foreign Service? Will not Senator Frank Church insist on Ambassador West's appearance under oath, and will not the staff of that committee be charged with a full-scale study of Arab influence-buying?

Exhale on that, too: a key Saudi lobbyist and agent is former Chairman William Fulbright, who was Frank Church's mentor, and who appointed most of the staff of that committee.

If anyone is getting satisfaction out of the Arabization of Washington, it is Kamakl Adham, a whitehaired, blue-eyed Saudi of Turkish descent, whose sister married King Faisal. He is the former chief of Saudi intelligence and security, and calls the shots for one nephew, Prince Saud, who is Foreign Minister, and another nephew, Prince Turki, his successor as chief spy. Despite these figures, only three nuclear plants were started in 1977. Nuclear plants saved customers of New England electric companies $380 million, compared to what an equivalent amount of power generated by oil would have cost. In Illinois, nuclear power saved customers $125 million; in the Carolinas. $138 million; in Iowa, $16

The price of oil itself will no doubt continue to rise. This clearly hurts the car and home owner. It also hurts in less visible ways — in higher electric1 products. But nuclear power can ease inflationary pressures. while it helps us through the energy crisis. During the record cold wave of '76-'77, demand for fuel shot up - while deliveries of coal, oil, and gas (to homes, businesses, and power plants) slid down.

People switched to electricity to make up the fuel loss, and demands soared to record peaks. Over 20 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity were produced from more than 50 nuclear generating units. These plants, by continuing to supply electricity where others couldn't, saved an estimated 257,000 jobs, and prevented a disasterous decrease in the gross national product. Electric companies are, where feasible, converting power plants from oil and natural gas to coal. Coal may make more sense than nuclear power in certain areas - right where coal fields are located, for

ASCS office reports enrollment for crop payments

Pampa News Staff The Gray County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office reports that it can now enroll area farmers in the federal government's new special wheat and feed grains payments

Evelyn Mason, executive director of the ASCS office here. said her staff has complete program details and can tailor fit payments to meet the individual needs of local plan, announced last week by the Carter Administration, is designed to cut feed grain and cotton production by attracting more producers into the government's set - aside

According to Mrs. Mason, here is how the new program will work for wheat growers: Wheat farmers, like other grain producers, cannot plant any more acres than they did last year. Let's use the example of 1,000 acres. Next, the wheat farmer is acres planted. In our example, this would be 200 acres. Then, the farmer decides just how many acres of wheat he will

Mrs. Mason explained that no payments for wheat are made on the required 20 percent minimum. Rather, the payments are based on those Mason said. She said set - aside alternatives could include grazing and cutting immature wheat for hay or silage.

As for other grain farmers, such as corn and milo, they are required to set - aside 10 percent of their total acres to qualify for the basic federal price supports and other crop benefits.

However, these grain farmers can elect to idle another 10 percent and receive payments for this set - aside. The payments plan here is based on total acres planted for 1978. As with wheat, these acres cannot exceed total 1977 acres planted.

For corn, the payments would be computed by multiplying a farmer's normal yield by 20 cents (as provided in the program) a bushel, then multiplying that amount by the number of acres he plants. Milo and barley would be computed the same way except 12 cents per bushel is the designated payment for these grains. Other variables are involved

No state income tax, campaigner Briscoe brags

By The Associated Press Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe has reminded Texans as the federal income tax filing deadline came and passed that they are luckier than many other Americans who must also pay a state income tax.

The reminder from the governor came as many Texans filed their tax returns at the last possible moment and others prepared to cast their absentee ballots on the opening day of absentee voting Three weeks remain for what observers are calling one of the hottest gubernatorial races in recent history, in both the Democratic and Republican primaries. There are also races for Democrats for the U.S. Senate and 10 other statewide contests. Both parties will also have a non-binding referendum concerning horse race betting. "Even a great many citizens with low to moderate incomes are having to dig up extra money to pay their income taxes," Briscoe said in San Antonio while there for the Alamo pilgrimage ceremony.

Three boys sneak away from captor

MENLO (PARK, Calif. (AP) - Three young boys who had been held hostage for more than 10 hours sneaked out of a house early today while their armed captor reportedly was in a bathroom shaving in anticipation of a televised news confer-

Menlo Park police said the 38, an escaped convict from Alabama, surrendered peacefully after he realized the boys had eluded him. He was in custody at San Mateo County jail in Redwood City.

The gunman, who took the boys hostage after leading the Highway Patrol on a high-speed chase, had demanded a television appearance so he could proclaim on the air that he is innocent of the crimes he was jailed for, police said.

Neither the offenses nor the cause of the chase were immediately known

After the gunman said he wanted to speak to reporters, San Francisco television station KRON sent its anchorman, John Hambrick, to negotiate with the man.

But the news conference never came off. As the gunman reportedly groomed himself for a TV debut, he left the boys unguarded and they simply walked out of the house, reports indicated The boys were identified as Mike McVey, 11, Jeff Mac-Corkle, 11, and his brother, Stevie MacCorkle, 9. None was harmed The incident began shortly after 4 p.m. Monday. The CHP said they chased the gunman's Daly City-registered car south on Interstate 280 at speeds of up to 100 mph before the car made a U-turn and took off into Menlo Park.

'Federal taxes have gone out of sight because too many politicians tried to buy votes with promises of big spending for special groups. The same thing will happen on the state level if enough voters favor (Attorney General) John Hill's idea that high-spending, pie-inthe-sky promises can be fulfilled without costing them any money," Briscoe said. Hill, in Washington to argue a natural gas case before the U.S. Supreme Court, met with Texas congressmen Monday to urge them to rally support for hard-pressed farmers. He also sent President Carter a telegram asking him to consider an administrative order to increase target prices and loan

The attorney general said 'Even though Congress turned down the emergency farm bill last week, that fact still does not change the seriousness of the problems facing our farm-

"The president's opposition is based on fears of inflationary pressures. But our farmers are suffering from inflation's impact on everything they buy to produce their crops, and the president's position forces the farmers to be the fall guy in the whole process." Hill said. Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, a Democratic candidate for agriculture commissioner, claims that his main opponent, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, apparently has misused his state-owned air-

"This 30-year bureaucrat has reported the lowest travel expense of any statewide candidate - just $1,100 in this campaign," Hubenak said at an Austin news conference. "I have spent more than $14,000 for travel in this campaign. In addition, the temporary incumbent, Reagan Brown, has reported spending only $800 for telephone expense - I have spent $3,350.

"I think the people have a right to know if their tax money is being used for pay for Brown's political campaign,' Hubenak said

His House Agriculture Committee has held meetings throughout the state, but Hubenak said he had asked for state repayment of travel expenses only when there were public hearings — at Pasadena. Brownsville and Temple

TDCA secrets away $1 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Top officials of the Texas Department of Community Affairs decided in late 1976 to hold $1 million for use as requested by individual legislators, a confidential memo indicates.

Les Ready, TDCA spokesman, said, however, the program never was implemented. 'After further discussion on this thing at some later date, the decision was made not to put it in place. The information that became available was that these recommendations would not work out. The decision was made not to follow any of the recommendations that were made," Ready said Monday.

The memo is a summary of a Nov. 8, 1976, meeting, about two months before the 1977 Legislature began.

A copy of the "administratively confidential" memo was mailed to District Attorney Ronald Earle and others by an anonymous letter writer. Ready confirmed it is authentic.

KTBC-TV, which also obtained a copy of the memo, said federal investigators were looking into the matter.

The memo's heading indicates TDCA executive director Ben McDonald sent it to other participants in the meeting as a record of what was said and decided.

According to the memo. McDonald "stressed the importance of support of TDCA by legislators" and obtained from DEAR ABBY: How dare you perpetuate the myth that men prefer women with big breasts? In a recent column in which you offer men tips on how to make themselves more "lovable," you said, "If she's flat-chested and a 38-D walks by, pretend not to notice.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been having a problem with gas. I have been watching my diet carefully. Milk and milk products caused much stomach upset and loose stools. I have totally avoided these products for the last six months but it has not eliminated gas.

My physician suggested yogurt for a 10-day period. This seemed to help. Do you think I should continue this on a daily basis? Is there anything in wine related to this problem?

I have avoided vegetables for months at a time. Please send me your pamphlet on gas and any information you can regarding this.

DEAR READER - Milk will cause gas and diarrhea and cramps in people who are intolerant to milk sugar (lactose). If that really is your problem you must be very careful about which yogurt product you use. Many commercial yogurt products are thickened with dry milk powder and contain excess amounts of lactose. They are worse than ordinary milk. Be sure and get a naturally fermented yogurt product. It has a chance of having less lactose in it than ordinary milk. However, I don't think it is likely to again that everyone swallows some air. The gas pains occur in the person who has poor colon function to begin with. The spasms of colon trap the gas and that causes the pain. Improved colon function may help your problem. I'm also sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable and Spastic Colon, to give you some helpful hints on how to improve your colon function.

DEAR DR. LAMB Would you comment brain tumors, especially the early symptoms of them. At times I feel as though there is a heavy object inside my head over my right eye. A recent stroke left my mind in bad shape. I am 83 years old but very active.

DEAR READER - There are no specific symptoms for brain tumors. Remember that the brain is the main switchboard for all of your body functions. You can have a tumor that affects your walking, another that affects your hearing, another that affects vision, another that causes pressure and headaches and even tumors located in relatively silent areas of the brain that cause no symptoms at all.

The symptoms from any type of brain damage de pends entirely where the brain damage is located. That damage can be from a tumor, injury, inflammation or even damaged cells from a stroke. That is why one person has a stroke and can't speak and another may have trouble with one

Also, vomiting, which can be a symptom of brain tumor can be caused by many other things, including nervousness and food poisoning. So the only way the diagnosis can be made with certainty is by a careful medi'The Minnesota strip Drawing Midwest teens into prostitution

By NATHANIEL SHEPPARD

(c) 1978 N.Y. Times

News Service MINNEAPOLIS — Despite a tormented childhood in a family troubled by alcoholism and drug abuse, Marie at age 16 had some hope for the future. Her grades in school were not outstanding, but then they were nothing to be ashamed of, either.

Unlike other members of her family, she had avoided drugs, and instead of the beer and pot parties that many of her peers enjoyed, she would go to the teen center in her hometown of Minnetonka, a well - to - do suburb of Minneapolis.

It was ironic that it was here, and not in comparatively decadent Minneapolis, that she met Bob, who would later become her pimp and force her into prostitution with his promises of love and affection.

She is but one of hundreds who add to statistics indicating a sharp rise in the number of teen age prostitutes in the Minneapolis and St. Paul area. It is a rise that it making the Twin Cities into the upper Middle West's major recruiting and training ground for teen age prostitutes.

The police estimate that there are about 1,500 prostitutes in these two cities on the Mississippi River whose populations total about 724,000.

Of the 1,500 prostitutes, from 25 percent to 35 percent are 18 years of age or younger, according to the police, and these are the ones often sent out of the state after they have worked a few days "to train and earn money to pay their travel

A large number of the girls wind up in the East, and especially New York City - so many in New York that the police there have nicknamed the stretch of Eighth Avenue in the Times Square area "the Minnesota strip

Large numbers of teen-age girls from throughout the Middle West are drawn to the Twin Cities area because it is the largest metropolitan area and the hub of activity in the upper Middle West, Lieut, Gary McGauhey of the Minneapolis Police Department's Special Investigation Unit said in an interview.

"Many of the girls are unsophisticated runaways from Iowa, South Dakota, North Dakota. Montana and Nebraska," Lieutenant McGauhey said. "This provides pimps with a good selection of young girls which are in big demand throughout the country," McGauhey said.

Police prostitution arrest statistics in Minneapolis illustrate the increase in the number of junveniles, women under 18, involved in prostitution. In 1968, for example, there were 80 arrests of women 18 or older and no arrests of juveniles; in 1973 there were 171 adult women arrested along with 14 juveniles: in 1976 there were 482 adult women arrested along with 73 juveniles; and at the end of October, there had been 315 adult women and 46 juveniles arrested for prostitution this

In Minneapolis, prostitutes are drawn to the eight - block stretch of downtown Hennepin Avenue between Washinton Avenue and Seventh Street. The stretch has long been known as a sex district, once the locale of numerous burlesque and strip joints. It is bordered on each end by residential communities in

Traffic accidents decline in Pampa

By JIM WANN Pampa News Staff

Pampa's traffic accident rate decreased 6.4 percent from 1976 to 1977. Total accidents recorded last year were 780 compared to the 1976 amount of 804.

The figures, released Monday by the Pampa Police Department, are all part of the computerized Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) which is now in its third year.

According to Sgt. Norman Rushing, coordinator of Pampa's STEP, the government funded program has been effective in isolating problem traffic areas in the city.

He said each recorded accident is programed into a central computer. Such information as location, the time and day the accident happened. what injuries were involved and particular weather conditions the time it occurred are plugged into the computer's memory

Each month, the computer provides a printout sheet which tells Rushing and members of the STEP team on what particular streets and intersections accidents are happening most frequently.

The monthly printouts can then be computed for annual comparisons. "For example, the computer showed us that 20 to 25 percent of all the accidents in 1977 occurred on Hobart Street,' Rushing said

He said his STEP force uses the computer information to beef up patrols in problem areas. He said on Hobart Street, additional patrol emphasis will be given "to help deter traffic violations which cause accidents

We try to make our presence known in certain problem areas so residents can expect a patrolman nearby. We feel this presence prevents many possible driving violations.

Rushing said that usually patrolmen will give only warnings for minor traffic infractions. However, for major violations he said a citation is

The STEP force in Pampa is funded through the federal Highway Administration Department. All officers on the STEP force are regular Pampa patrolmen. Hours spent on STEP patrols is all voluntary, Rushing said.

'We work four hours per day, six days a week. We try to schedule those hours around peak driving times such as 3 driving hours." On weekends. Rushing said, his STEP patrolmen work in the downtown area "around the lounges.

He said the STEP force 'Usually works between 11 p.m. to 3 a.m. so we can cut down on the numbers of DWI's (driving while intoxicated) going home after bar hours."

Pampa officers are paid 'about the equivalent of time and a half of regular salary" while patroling for STEP. All pay comes out of the federal government grant.

The STEP plan is on an annual basis. Pampa's particular renewal next September. Rushing, however, said he is not sure whether or not the city will again get government funding for the program.

'We're pretty lucky here to have had this program for three years. Most cities this size have only had their programs two years. I'm not sure if we'll get it again, but we are going to try.

Spurs, Bullets collide tonight

Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The hot-shooting San Antonio Spurs, led by the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, George Gervin, go after victory No. 2 tonight in their best-of-seven playoff series against the Washington Bullets.

The Bullets are hopeful the return of 6-foot-6 foward Bobby Dandridge to their lineup can improve the team's outside shooting and its bench strength.

Dandridge, who suffered a pinched nerve in his neck last week in a first-round playoff game against Atlanta, worked out here Monday afternoon and said he fully expects to be back in action tonight.

The Spurs grabbed a 1-0 edge in the series Sunday by whipping the Bullets 114-103 off the hot shooting of Gervin, who in the second halk

The Spurs, second in the NBA in scoring, hit 51 percent of their field goal attempts while the Bullets, missing frequently from outside, struggled to put 39 percent of their shots in the

"We're a much better shooting team than that." said Washington Coach Dick Motta as the Bullets practiced Monday. "We missed some nice shots - some we normally would make.

"You can't win an NBA playoff game shooting 39 percent, especially against a good team on their court," he added.

The Bullets missed the outside shooting of Dandridge, a regular starter who averaged about 19 points per game this season. Mitch Kupchak, who game as a reserve, replaced Dandridge and scored 19 points. For San Antonio, the only weakness apparent Sunday was on rebounding, and the Bullets clearly have a physical edge in Coach Doug Moe of the Spurs, however, said he's not going to worry about the rebounding difference unless he feels his team is giving away too many easy points.

Wesley Unseld and Kupchak up

Moe was pleased with the Spurs' overplay defense Sunday, noting that it forced the Bullets to take poor percentage

"We've got to stop Washington from getting good shots and keep their percentage down," Moe said, adding that he hopes

Washington will try to run with the San Antonio team.

"Over the long haul, I think we can wear them down," Moe

Dandridge said his return to the lineup will make it easier for the Bullets to run and give them a different look.

"I'm another scoring outlet, especially from the outside. I'll give us more of a running game, more offensive flexibility," said Dandridge, who expects to play near his average 37 minutes.

After tonight's game, the NBA Eastern Conference semifinal series move to Washington for games on Friday and Sunday. The Spurs had a bye in the first round of the playoffs last week because they won the Central Division title, finishing eight games ahead of the Bul-

BOSTON (AP) - Bill Rodgers put another trophy on display in his local sporting goods store today after winning the Boston Marathon in the closest finish of the classic's 82-year history.

Rangers scalped

CLEVELAND (AP) - Cleveland Indians' left-hander Rick Waits is hoping to be something of a Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde this year as he gets his first chance to be in the regular starting rotation.

After firing a two-hitter at the Texas Rangers in Monday night's 6-0 Indians victory, the usually easy going redhead said, "I want to be cockier, be aggressive against other teams.

"I want to overpower them instead of waiting to see what happens. It's something I've worked on all winter. And, tonight, I just decided I'd go out there and at least for three innings I'd just rear back and try to strike out everybody.

"In the past I've tried to be pretty or pitch to spots, work on the hitters. I'm trying to change that and really go after them. It's kind of a change of personality," Waits, 1-0, added.

The toughest inning he had was the first as Mike Hargrove led off with a bunt single on which the pitcher failed to cover first base. "I might have been able to field the ball and beat him to the bag," Waits said. "But I just didn't get over there quick enough."

Hargrove was out on a fielder's choice grounder by Bert stole second base. After a strikeout by Al Oliver, slugger Richie Zisk came to the plate.

On a pitch to Zisk, Campaneris broke for third and appeared to have the base stolen. But Zisk was called out for interference as catcher Ron Pruitt's throwing arm somehow made contact with Zisk's bat. That ended the threat and Texas didn't get another hit until Toby Harrah singled off third baseman Buddy Bell's glove with one out in the seventh. The Rangers got only one more runner as far as second.

Texas Manager Billy Hunter. whose team has now lost six straight games, was upset by the interference call that took the Rangers out of a scoring situation.

"At first, (plate umpire Bill) Haller said that Zisk did not get out of the way of the catcher. And I said he didn't have to. Then, in the fourth, Haller said Zisk was standing on homeplate and he interfered with the throw. There's no sense filing a protest if he's in the batter's box," Hunter said with a resigned shrug. "We're making the little mistakes and little mistakes are magnified 1,000 times when you're not hitting."

So says Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson, whose Bucks will have to contain the explosive Thompson if they hope to win their best-of-seven quarter-final playoff series against the Denver Nuggets, which opens tonight in Denver.

"Julius Erving is a great player at 6 feet 6," says Nelson, referring to the Philadelphia 76ers' high-scoring forward, "but Thompson, at 6-41/2, is better inch for inch. Thompson's as complete a player as he can be for his size.

"No one jumps as high under control as Thompson does Once Thompson's over halfcourt, I don't think anyone will take the ball away from him. He likes to put the ball on the floor and he makes the pass better than he used to." Thompson finished second in the league in scoring with a 27.15 average, closing out the regular season with a 73-point outburst against Detroit on 28for-38 shooting. Nelson said he'll go with Quinn Buckner. the Bucks' rugged 6-2 playmaker, on Thompson, with other players helping out as needed.

"He'll get his points," Nelson conceded about Thompson. 'The key is how he gets them. If he gets them easy, we're in trouble. If not, we have a decent chance to win.'

Another quarter-final opens tonight, with the Seattle Super-Sonics at Portland against the defending champion Trail Blazers. Also tonight, the Philadelphia 76ers, leading 1-0, play the New York Knicks at Philadelphia, and the San Antonio Spurs, leading 1-0, play the Washington Bullets at San An-at Sunday's game and as soon as Garry Maddox's eighth inning shot ripped past third baseman Ken Reitz, Russo called the play an error. The no-hitter was preserved.

Every umpire who ever wrestled with a close call has offered this bit of philosophy to critics who offer opinions that a runner was safe or out or that a pitch was a ball or a strike. 'It ain't nuthin' till I call it," they like to say.

And the same thing applies to official scorers, who operate as officers of the league. Russo felt Maddox' ball could have been handled. When it wasn't, it became an error.

"I thought Reitz should have had it," Russo explained. "I called it immediately. It was an ordinary play, maybe a step to Reitz' left. The ball wasn't hit that hard. There was no

That should be good enough. Russo is an approved scorer, appointed by the league to function in that capacity. He has been scoring games for 17 years and covering baseball for 22 years. He qualifies for the

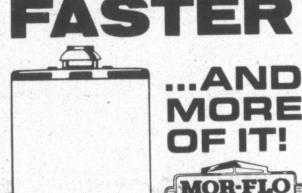

His call may have been a good one or it may have been a bad one. But it was his call, his job to do. And he did it. The Cardinals thought his judgment was perfect.

"Error, all the way." decided Reitz. "I came up too soon on the ball. I got my glove on it. I should have had it.

There is some differing opinion on that phase of scoring. Some official scorers believe if a major leaguer gets his glove on a ball, he should make the play, unless he has made an extraordinary effort to reach the ball. Others argue that you can only flash the "E" sign when a routine play is not executed

Stump Creek was born into prosperity over a rich vein of soft coal more than 50 years ago and came perilously close to dying in poverty when the coal cars stopped rolling.

Educators say tax credit would kill public schools

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Statewide education leaders have urged Texans to deluge congressmen and senators with mail opposing income tax credits for private school tuition.

"This is the biggest single threat the public schools have faced at the congressional level at any time since Congress became involved in public school legislation." said Austin school board member Will Davis, immediate past president of the of the National School Boards Association.

Appearing with Davis at a news conference were Carolyn Harrell, president of the Texas State Teachers Association: Tess Norris, president of the Texas Association of School Boards: Mrs. G. Kent Rider. president of the Texas Council of Parents and Teachers; and Charles Mathews, executive director of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

threat Congress will pass the tax credit bill, which Davis asserted would re-segregate schools and financially injure public schools.

A credit is a straight reduction of one's income tax payment, and Davis called the bill "a grant program for private education. He said the bill would help private schools established in both the South and the North as a way for students to avoid racial integration. "Private schools would receive these federal monies limitations we have applicable to us in the public schools,' Davis said. He added the credits would shift federal dollars from public schools to private ones and erode parent and voter support without any of the civil rights for school district budgets. Mrs. Rider said the tuition tax credit "would help a select category of students rather than the average."

tremely discriminatory. Public schools would become a refuse or trash heap for children who cannot afford to go to private school." Mrs. Norris said Matthews said President Carter might not be able to live up to his threat of a veto if Congress attaches the tax credit as an amendment to "legislation this administration must have. A bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee provides a

$500 tax credit for tuition at private elementary and secondary schools or colleges. The House Ways and Means Committee eliminated the credit for elementary and secondary schools but approved a $250 credit for private college

'We know that on the moor of the House of Representatives a major concentrated effort will be made to put back in the credit for elementary and secondary schools," Davis said.

Distributing company representatives said they were anxious to get the Algerian gas even though its pipeline price will be about $3.50 per 1,000 cubic feet. The present price for intrastate gas in Texas is now $1.50 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Vanden Bosch also said the corps has to consider the project's impact on shipping in Matagorda Bay. Robert Clegg, a shrimp boat operator from Port Lavaca.

said he is in favor of the LNG terminal but thinks not enough is known about possible impact on marine life in the area. Environmentalists claims the terminal represents a potential threat nearly as great as that posed by a nuclear power plant.

A big gamble

DEAR DR. BLAKER -My husband spends every Sunday at the racetrack. It hasn't bothered me too much because I know he loves to gamble

But last week he informed me that he will be giving up his present job in two months to become a fulltime gambler. He says he has to give it all his time and attention to find out if it's a winning or losing game.

I think it is a crazy idea. We have three children, a new home and unpaid bills. He says not to worry about money. But I don't see how we will manage. We don't have investments or sav-

I asked him to call Gamblers Anonymous but he thinks he can work it out himself by living out his "life-long dream." Should I take the children and leave? Or should I stay and see what happens?

DEAR READER - It must be a difficult decision. Your husband has evidentally been gambling for years and you have not experienced financial or emotional crises as a result.

Now, as he embarks on this new full-time gambling 'career'' in the face of unpaid bills, you may be asking yourself: "Is it realistic to be so worried? I have been trusting him all along and he has never let me down.

Let me reassure you. Your concern is well-founded.

In fact, you may already be unknowingly embroiled in the kind of cover-up a compulsive gambler constructs to protect his addiction. After all, how could you know about the money he has secretly borrowed - and secretly lost? I hope your husband's decision to gamble full-time forces you to face something you have previously been able to deny: He is a compulsive gambler.

Taking big risks gives him a "high." He has evidentally reached the point where he needs more time and money to maintain his habit. He is taking the time. Where will he get the money?

Do not let him fool you into thinking he will win it: Compulsive gambling is always a losing game.

Gambling has been your husband's mistress. Now he is moving her into the house. This is a bad situation — and getting worse.

If you do not want to be there when his "life-long dream" becomes a nightmare, why not attend a meeting of Gam-Anon, an organization for spouses of compulsive gamblers? Tell your story, listen to the experiences of others, ask them for advice. To find the chapter nearest you, write to Gam-Anon, 235 31st Street, New York, N.Y., 10016.

If you decide to stay in your marriage - without outside help - you will be taking a big gamble. The probability of living in fear of debts, lies and, finally, shady or illegal dealings will be high. In the last analysis. however, the choice is up to eral interest will be discussed in future columns.

Travelers showing up at the airport two hours before flight time can buy thrift-class tickets and get a place in line for unreserved seats that are not sold at full price by takeoff time.

When it comes time to board, those passengers at the head of the thrift-section line get on until all the section's seats are filled. The others get their money back.

Pugh said studies show that length of stay, the standard criteria for bargain fares, "had absolutely nothing to do with the airline's costs.

The first flight from Houston with the new rates took off Friday with 89 percent of the plane's seats filled, compared to an average of about 55 percent for the past two months.

Children, not dying, worries Mom

By GENE WARNER

Jamestown Post-Journal FREWSBURG, N.Y. (AP) -"It isn't the idea of dying that bothers me. It's what I'm going to miss when my children grow up, helping them through problems. The thought of Bob going through this alone tears me apart.

Sandy Spencer, a 36-year-old mother of three, is dying of cancer. Last October, she was given three-to-nine months to

"If the kids are talking about going on a picnic this summer, won't be here," she said. But she added, "I might outfox them all and still be here when they graduate.' The trouble began about 21/2 years ago. Doctors discovered breast cancer and performed a modified radical mastectomy.

Then last year, after suffering a recurrence and undergoing chemotherapy treatments. Mrs. Spencer's heart failed. She was hospitalized for almost seven weeks, barely clinging to life at one point. After doctors found cancerous part of the heart, Mrs. Spencer was told that statistics indicated she could expect to live less than a year.

She admits that her greatest concerns revolve around her immediate family - her husband Bob, 35, a seasonally employed bricklayer, and their three children, Robin, 13, Bobbie Jo, 6, and Kenny, 3.

"I'm worried that I'm hardly going to be a memory," she confided. "Life does go on and people have to make a new life for themselves."

the younger children, that Robin will pass on to her sister and brother memories of her closeness to her mother and the fun times they shared. In a cruel irony, Mrs. Spencer has had to worry about medical problems of her two younger children — Bobbie Jo's epilepsy and Kenny's serious heart condition.

"In one respect it's been good that they've had these problems," she said. "If they had been completely healthy, there would have been more self-pity.

think about."

other dying persons.

She and her family decided to make public her illness to aid

"I wish all people facing problems like this could be open about it," she said. "It's not as if you have leprosy or something to hide."

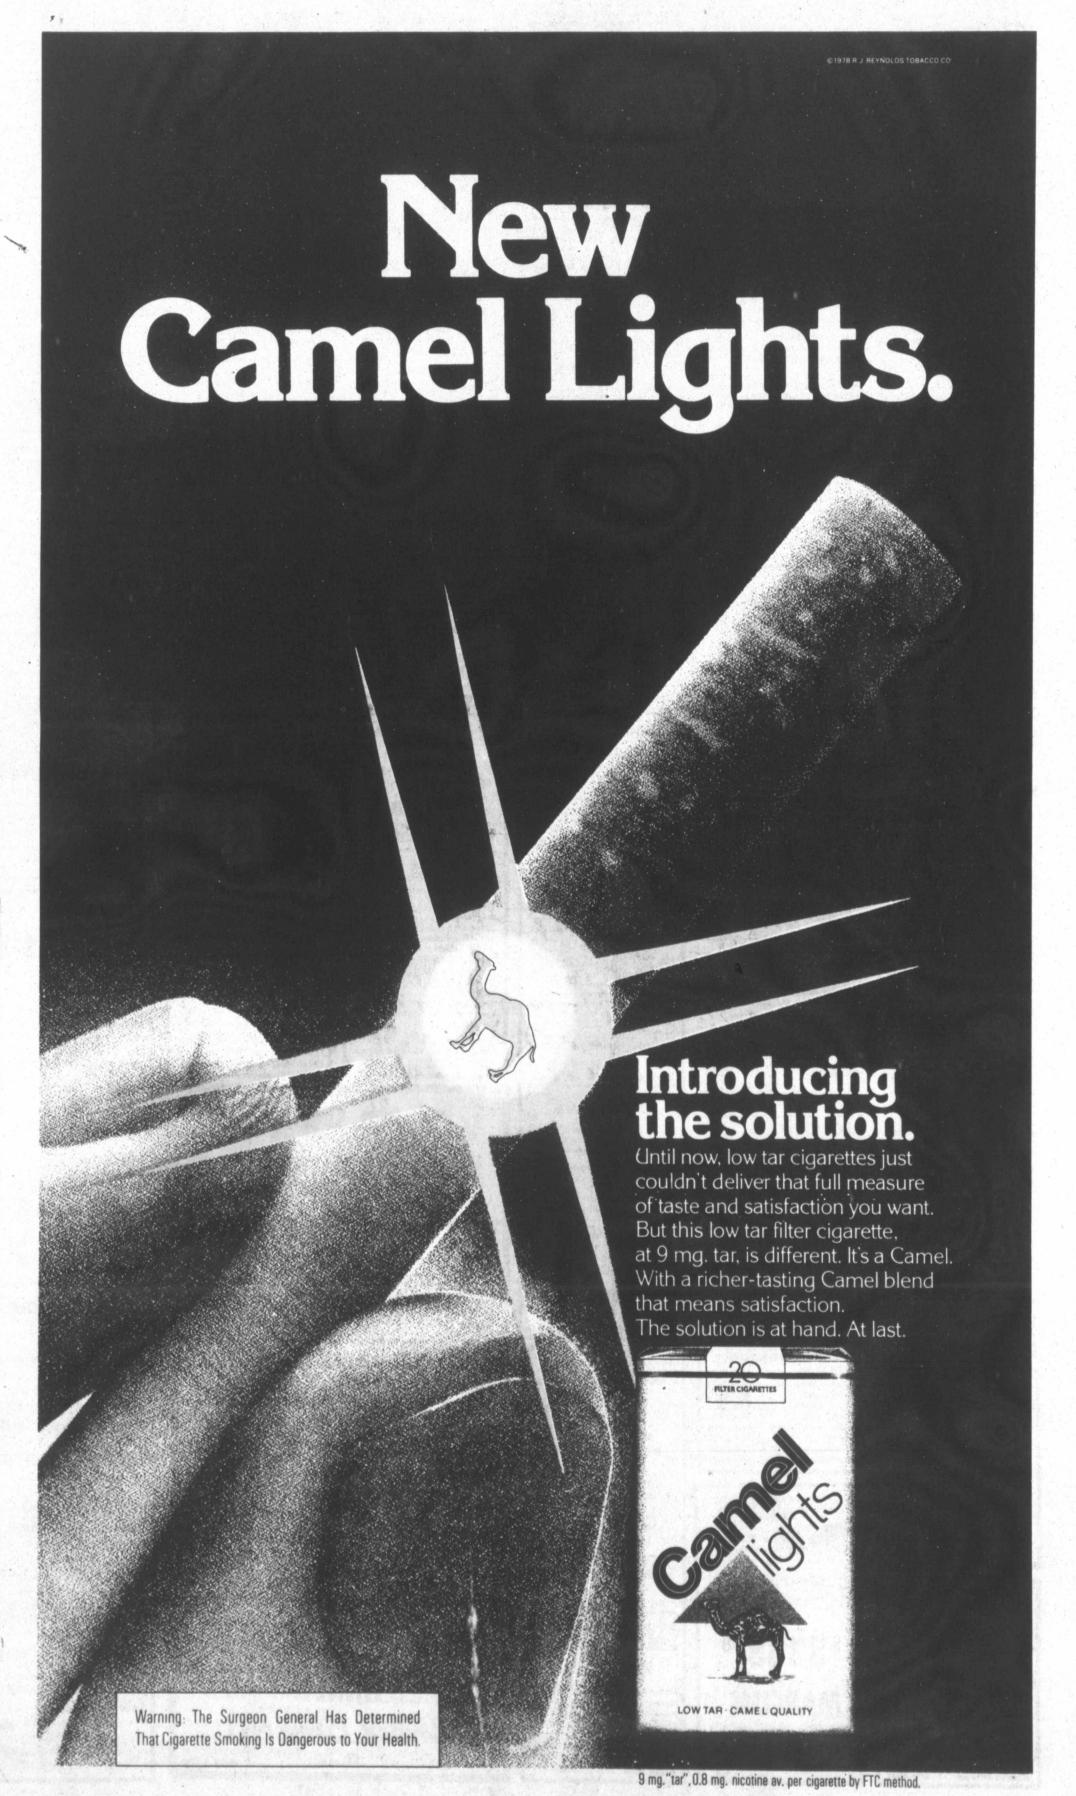

Child welfare meetings closed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -County child welfare boards may meet in closed session to discuss individual case files, Attorney General John Hill ruled today. Hill's opinion went to Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, chairman of the House Committee on Health and Welfare.

The attorney general said the board is covered by the open meetings act.

But, he said, it has the right to closed door meetings when reviewing information that is made confidential by law.
