Approval given by house of New York financing

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York City cleared a major hurdle in its race against bankruptcy when the New York City Financial Assistance Act cleared the House, fueled by an emotional speech by Majority Leader Jim Wright.

Wright, noting that the New York delegation had consistently come to the aid of "any part of our big American family that has been smitten by disaster," urged his counterparts on Thursday to pass the bill calling for $2 billion in long-term bond guarantees for the financially beleaguered Big Apple.

Without congressional backing, New York City officials estimated their city would slip into bankruptcy by July.

Following his fierce, five-minute speech, the Fort Worth Democrat received enthusiastic applause. Afterwards, the House voted 247-155 in favor of the bill. The controversial measure now goes before the Senate where it faces an uncertain future.

Despite Wright's efforts and backing of the measure by the Carter Administration, the 24-member Texas delegation as a whole shunned the bill.

Texas voted against New York City aid, 16-5, with three members not voting. Wright was joined by fellow Democrats Barbara Jordan, Charles Wilson, Henry B. Gonzalez and Bob Eckhardt in casting "yea" votes. Reps. John Young, "Tiger" Teague and Ray Roberts did not vote.

Dallas Republican James Collins was one of the most vocal opponents of the bill, recalling the 1975 plea by New York that was meant to be a "one-time-only bond guarantee, yet New York City is back again begging for more."

In 1975, only two Texans — Wright and Jordan — voted for New York City assistance.

Collins had compared New York City spending with that of three Texas cities — Dallas, San Antonio and Houston — and had drawn the conclusion that New York City has three times more employees (per 1,000 residents) than Dallas.

He said New York employees receive inflated salaries plus extravagant fringe benefits. The city's leadership, continued Collins, refuses to implement money-saving measures and "has opted instead for what is in the short run more politically profitable, but in the long run is financial suicide."

Wright countered by calling the House's attention to a recently-released poll that showed 85 percent of the country favored legislation aimed at saving New York City from fiscal disaster.

"If air was leaking out of a tire, would it be the act of a friend to pump a little more air in the tire so you could go three more miles?" asked Wright in reference to a soon-to-be defeated floor amendment calling for short-term bond guarantees.

Solzhenitsyn is unhappy with west

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, exiled from Russia for criticizing Soviet life, has turned his dissatisfaction toward his adopted home in the West, calling it weak, shallow and cowardly.

In a stinging, abrasive speech to Harvard graduates Thursday, the dissident author chastized the West for materialism, devotion to human rights, unwillingness to defend itself — even its music.

"After the suffering of decades of violence and oppression, the human soul longs for things higher, warmer and purer than those offered by today's mass living habits, introduced by the revolting invasion of publicity, by TV stupor and by intolerable music," Solzhenitsyn said through an interpreter.

The winner of the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature was Harvard's commencement speaker. In his rare public appearance, he addressed about 18,000 people — 4,474 of them graduates — who sat outside in intermittent showers in Harvard Yard.

Some of Solzhenitsyn's remarks, especially his criticism of American anti-war activists, were met with hisses. The biggest applause greeted his rejection of communism.

He said the West seems unwilling to defend itself against the Communists, who threw him out of the Soviet Union in 1974.

Palestinian base hit by Israeli troops in Lebanon

AAQBIYE, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli commandos striking before dawn from the air and sea attacked a Palestinian base at this southern Lebanon fishing village today, killing five guerrillas and wounding seven others. Palestinians here reported.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said two Israeli lieutenants were killed and eight of its soldiers were wounded in the surprise assault by seaborne commandos and paratroopers.

It said the strike destroyed a guerrilla naval base and there was evidence the seacoast compound was being used to prepare for terrorist attacks on Israel "in the near future."

An Israeli military spokesman said the raiders counted eight Palestinian bodies, and he claimed none of the estimated 30 to 40 defenders escaped before the Israeli raiders dynamited the base.

Guerrillas said they killed 8 to 10 Israelis in the two-hour clash.

Western correspondents who drove down from Beirut to this village 26 miles north of the Israeli border saw signs of a major firefight.

Abu Jihad, the Al Fatah guerrilla group's top military commander in Lebanon, toured the bloodstained site at mid-morning. He denied the base was used to train guerrillas for seaborne attacks into Israel.

He said 19 guerrillas were manning the garrison when it was hit by a force of at least 150 Israelis, landed by rubber boats and helicopters. He admitted the base was caught off guard.

Abu Jihad is No. 3 in the hierarchy of Al Fatah, largest guerrilla group in Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

"This is not a major base at all," Abu Jihad told reporters. "We have people here just as we have them scattered all around the area."

Inexplicably, Israel reported the attack was on Dahar el Bouj, about one mile inland and northeast of Aaqbiye. The area is six miles south of Sidon and 20 miles north of the Israeli-occupied zone of southern Lebanon.

The attack was the deepest Israeli penetration north of the Litani River since Israel invaded and occupied 500 square miles of southern Lebanon in March. That invasion aimed at driving guerrillas out of southern Lebanon, followed a Palestinian terrorist raid into Israel that killed 35 Israelis.

A pooled report prepared for the foreign press in Israel quoted military sources as saying all Israel's casualties today were caused by the explosion of a Palestinian arms depot.

Officers to testify about associates' brutal acts

JACINTO CITY, Texas (AP) — Twelve of this small city's police officers are prepared to tell state and federal investigators their former chief and some fellow officers routinely abused prisoners and performed other misdeeds over a period of 17 months, according to a copyright story in today's Houston Post.

The most significant allegation is that convicted capital murderer John Charles Zimmerman, 31, was tortured into signing a confession that he raped and then killed his 10-year-old niece last year.

The officers' other allegations are that evidence was planted, illegal search warrants were executed and citizens' property was destroyed, the Post said. Zimmerman, who pleaded insanity and went through the county's most costly trial in 1977, is awaiting execution at the state penitentiary at Huntsville. Testimony from officers may have significant bearing on the pending appeal of his conviction.

Only one of the 12 officers has agreed to have his name made public in testimony that will cover the period Allan R. Jamail was chief.

The number represents one third of the police force in Jacinto City, a town of 10,000 east of Houston and north of the Houston Ship Channel.

The city council fired Jamail in February of this year, citing allegations of brutality. The former chief won election to the council five weeks later.

The U.S. Attorney's office in Houston told the newspaper Thursday federal investigators were looking into numerous civil rights complaints against Jamail.

One man suffering from cancer said Jamail broke three of his ribs and jailed him for drunkenness when he tried to report a crime, according to the Post.

The officers, who could face prosecution themselves, said they were forced to take their complaints to prosecutors after Jamail won his council seat and Mayor J.D. Liles appointed him informal police and fire commissioner.

"I would have been willing to drop the whole thing if Jamail would have stayed out of city government after he was fired," one of the officers told the Post. "But now he's back and he doesn't give us any choice but to try to get him indicted."

Jamail has denied any wrongdoing during his tenure as chief. He told the Post he took the job with the intention to crack down on narcotics, "to do the job that needed to be done in Jacinto City." He said he was aware his methods would be controversial.

Jamail's attorney, Mike Ramsey, said former Harris County district attorney Mike Hinton, who is representing the officers, "is still serving as prosecutor."

Jamail dismissed allegations of general prisoner abuse but would not comment to the Post on one accusation that he beat a 16-year-old prisoner in his custody last year.

Officer Tommy Thacker and several other officers said they saw Jamail kick and hit the youth repeatedly after he had stopped up the commode in his cell, the Post reported.

The council specifically questioned Jamail about the incident when dismissing him.

Other officers said Jamail used electric cattle prods on prisoners and routinely had marijuana cigarettes or other controlled substances planted on narcotics suspects, according to the Post.

Jamail, who operated a gun repair business in his home and was a member of the city council when he was appointed chief, said allegations against him were part of a "political conspiracy." He said former councilman Joe Harwell and councilman James Martin were behind the conspiracy because they were jealous of the publicity he received while chief.

Jamail said he had been involved in 3,000 arrests during one year. All but two of 78 narcotics raids he staged, he said, resulted in the confiscation of drugs.

The former chief said the highlight of his career was the quick breaking of the Zimmerman case last year. He denied allegations that Zimmerman had been tortured with an electric cattle prod or "shock stick" to elicit a confession.

He did acknowledge, however, that prior to becoming chief he did sell as many as 10 prods to officers and at one time had one himself. He said he doesn't remember what happened to his shock stick but perhaps he sold it or gave it to another officer.

Jamail said he never saw any abuse of prisoners in his presence but acknowledged there had been some complaints of brutality.

"Any complaints I received I checked out as well I could. That's not to say there wasn't anything to it."

Government contends Exxon overcharged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, accusing the world's largest petroleum producer of overcharging crude oil customers $183 million over a three-year period, is suing Exxon Corp. for the money and interest.

The suit was filed Thursday in U.S. District Court here and is a follow-up to a probable violation notice issued against the Houston-based corporation by the Energy Department six months ago.

Dollar firmer

LONDON (AP) — The dollar closed unchanged in Tokyo trading today and then opened firmer on Europe's money markets. The price of gold was down slightly in London and unchanged in Zurich.

The U.S. currency ended the day in Tokyo at 220.925, unchanged from Thursday's close. A London dealer said as the business day got under way in Europe that the dollar was "a shade firmer."

Morning rates in major European financial centers, compared with Thursday's late rates:

Frankfurt—2.0901 West German marks, compared with 2.0841 Thursday.

Zurich—1.9015 Swiss francs, compared with 1.89475 Thursday.

Paris—4.6075 French francs, compared with 4.5960 Thursday.

Amsterdam—2.2390 Dutch guilders, compared with 2.22315 Thursday.

In London it took $1.8247 to buy a British pound this morning. This was a slight improvement for the U.S. currency as it took $1.82545 to buy a pound late Thursday.

Paul L. Bloom, a department attorney, said the government decided to go into the courts now instead of proceeding along administrative lines to achieve "the earliest possible resolution" of the case.

Presumably, he said, the company would have appealed an administrative decision to the courts at any rate. The suit is the result of an audit of Exxon records for the period running from late 1973 through 1976.

Exxon officials were not available for comment on the suit.

When the government's notice was issued last January, Exxon denied the overcharges. The company claimed the government was trying to apply price ceilings retroactively using "standards not in effect when our decision and commitments were made."

The Exxon suit involves the sale of crude oil after the government established a two-tier pricing system to protect against windfall profits and promote domestic oil development after the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

Under the tier system current crude oil production was divided into "old" oil and "new" oil. New oil is the quantity drilled which exceeds production capabilities before the tier system was established. The barrel price of new oil was $11.28 when the alleged violation occurred. That price was about $6 higher than what could have been charged for "old" oil.

The Energy Department alleged that Exxon at its Hawkins Field in Wood County, Texas shut down a number of wells and then shifted the production of those wells to a smaller number of new wells, using gas injections into the oil field.

Beef import increase to save money - Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says his decision to ease beef import restrictions will save Americans $500 million this year in cheaper hamburger, but the government still thinks the overall cost of beef will average up to 23 percent higher than last year.

Carter's plan — announced on Thursday — will allow an additional 200 million pounds of hamburger and other low-grade beef into the country by renegotiating meat-import agreements with 13 countries, principally Australia and New Zealand.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland predicted the larger supply would trim hamburger prices from what they might have been by a nickel or slightly more during the height of the late summer outdoor cooking season. What the "other-wise-might-be price" would have been, Bergland would not say.

But Kent Christiansen, an economist with the Food Marketing Institute, the food retailers and wholesalers' trade group, said, "It's hard for me to conceive of its having that kind of impact." The extra beef is a rise in the supply of less than 1 percent.

Some 15 percent to 18 percent of consumer grocery dollars go for beef each year and, Christiansen noted, "it is by far the most important item we sell in the grocery stores."

Beef prices have been rising rapidly since last summer and, with a record leap in April, led the largest increase in consumer prices in more than a year.

Prices to producers for their cattle have been increasing at an even greater rate, and neither spiral is expected to be reversed until sometime next year, if then.

The increases stem from cattle producers' reactions to devastating losses in 1974, losses that have been repeated for 15 of the last 23 three-month periods.

Carter said the added imports of lean, grass-fed beef "will not change the price of fat cattle at all."

"It will certainly not hurt the farmers who produce beef, but it will be of great help to consumers," the president said.

Equipment sold to Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is permitting the sale of $2.8 million in military-related equipment to communist China, reversing a decision made only one month ago.

Administration officials disclosed the reversal Thursday but contended that the action did not reflect a change in U.S. trade policy toward Peking.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said approval was granted only after the administration was convinced that the equipment's technology would be used for civilian, not military, purposes.

The equipment involves sophisticated airborne infrared scanning devices and high-speed recording devices that can detect potential earthquakes and help locate oil deposits.

The initial export application from Daedulus Enterprises of Ann Arbor, Mich., was rejected early last month on national security grounds.

The administration reportedly was concerned that the Chinese could adapt the equipment to intercept U.S. military signals.

The company criticized the rejection as "absurd," and filed an appeal. A company official argued that the technology was more than 20 years old and that the Chinese could obtain simpler methods for intercepting U.S. military signals.

Commenting on the reversal, one administration official said, "We satisfied ourselves that the equipment would not be diverted for military purposes."

Baker kept off ballot

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Election Commission has ruled that Sen. Howard Baker's name cannot appear on the ballot in his bid for a third term because election officials do not believe the signature on his qualifying papers is his.

"Politics is rough enough without people playing partisan games, childish games," said the Republican leader after the Democratic-controlled commission issued its decision Thursday.

He said he will go to court if necessary to get on the ballot.

Unless overturned, the commission action will keep Baker's name off the Republican primary ballot Aug. 3 and the Nov. 8 general election ballot. The qualifying deadline for both ballots passed on June 1.

Baker was expected to win the GOP nomination easily and have little trouble in November against one of eight Democrats running for the right to oppose him. If all else fails, Baker could try for a write-in campaign to give him the nomination in August.

Tax churches?

A reader called in the other day asking why we were not editorially supporting the idea of taxing churches if we're really for lower taxes. "Just think," he demanded, "how much lower our taxes would be if churches were not tax exempt."

Moreover, he added, "There is supposed to be separation of church and state in this country and, until you recognize that fact and begin calling for an end to church tax exemption, all I can say for your editorial policy is, Bah!"

Whew! THAT'S TELLING US OFF. May we offer these thought-nudgers in reply?

In the first place, and contrary to popular belief, churches do pay taxes. Although they do not pay income taxes per se, their members, from whom church contributions come, do. In addition, when churches spend funds for products and services, they pay sales and other taxes which have been added to the prices of such goods and services. So, in effect, what our caller was demanding was that churches be taxed again in much the same way that corporations are taxed twice on the same income: once at the corporate level and again at the stockholder level when the corporation pays dividends. Interestingly enough, those who demand that churches be taxed seldom demand that unions, for one example, and environmental foundations, for another, also be required to give up their tax "exemptions."

In the second place, we cannot think of a more definitive illustration of the separation of church and state than tax exemption. Tax exemption (in its true sense) means that privately earned and owned funds are not getting into the hands of politicians and bureaucrats who did not earn them. So, in reality, our caller's "Bah" betrays a profound confusion.

But, to address our caller's major point, which seems to occupy a goodly number of fevered minds these days: Our taxes in all probability would not be a whit lower if churches lost their so-called tax exemption. Tax-hungry politicians would simply look upon churches and their congregations as just one more source of revenue and as an added incentive to spend even more.

St. Augustine, one recalls, said that a Christian should be an "alleluia from head to foot." Apparently, some people believe that everyone should be a taxpayer from head to foot.

"Tax everything and everybody" is hardly a convincing cry from a thoughtful tax rebel.

Keeping up

The next time we hear that federal salaries should keep up with those paid in private industry, it might be well to consider the several couples making over $100,000 per year working for the Carter administration.

The Evan and Kit Dobbelle couple provides a good example. This is one of at least seven couples appointed to administration jobs.

Mrs. Dobbelle last earned a salary of $12,000 per year in 1972 working as a deputy director of a Ford Foundation grant program. Her husband was working as mayor of Pittsfield, Mass., before joining the Carter group. His salary was $20,000 per year.

How, by joining the Carter administration, did they suddenly become worth more than three times as much? Their income jumped from a total of $32,000 to $100,000 in "one giant leap," but not for mankind.

In the past eight years, pay for federal white collar workers has increased 57 percent. Blue collar workers for government have had big increases as their wages soared by 125 percent since 1970.

During this same period we have seen the only great increases in labor union membership occur in the area of public employment including teachers.

While labor unions have been losing members in the area of private business, they have made great gains in organizing teachers and other government workers.

In fact, labor unions in the private sector have become desperate and are presently in an all-out drive to get Congress to give them legislative aid to force unwilling workers into unions.

Labor bosses were promised this assistance by the president and the House went along quickly to pass the measure. The proposed law is now stalled in the Senate where it could die.

Senators are getting almost as much flak from the public on this as they did on the Panama Canal issue. There has been a flood of mail against this attempt to force workers into unions.

Union organizers of government workers are having more success, and after organization they can usually get what they want. It is always easier to give in to demands when it is tax money that will be involved.

The big bucks now being made by some of the individuals and couples hired by Carter can only lead to the raising of sights all down the line. The example has been set by the "man." It would be unreasonable to assume that there will be much of an attempt to hold the line on federal wages and salaries.

Too much sun

There is a hazard which is the major cause of the 300,000 cases of skin cancer a year in the nation. From these, there is a rate of over 6,500 deaths.

The sun is the culprit and it is doubtful that any of our government "protective" agencies will be able to force the sun to change its rays.

Too much sunlight destroys cells in the upper layer of the skin, thus leaving it vulnerable to cancer. No lab rats were involved in this discovery, and the cause was discernible and clear-cut.

Because of the zeal to protect everybody from every possible hazard, it must be a terrible frustration for the bureaucracy to consider such a great hazard without being able to find a proper scapegoat.

There is not much the regulators can do to make old Sol behave, but perhaps we should be careful in presenting them a challenge. Thinking about the air bag for cars and other dandy innovations, it is probably not beyond their reach to dream up some sort of mandatory protective cover for us.

They might even envision automatic equipment which would be activated by a sun relay in connection with a timing device. Then they would only need a few hundred thousand inspectors to see that everybody who strayed out of doors would be protected from possible skin cancer. If this all seems far fetched, either ask yourself, if you are over 50, or someone who is, what they would have thought, 20 years ago, of some of the silly regulations we tolerate today.

Can you imagine the reaction of a butcher back then if he was told he would have to wear a hard hat while cutting meat? Or imagine the reaction of a dignitary about to turn the first shovel of dirt for a new building being told he too must first top himself off with such a headpiece.

Some of the ideas advanced by government agency people in the quest for career enhancement border on pure genius. It is too bad their ingenuity is lost to the private sector. For if they were forced out of their sinecures into productive efforts they would become a double barreled asset to all who foot the bills of bureaucratic proliferation.

Life is full of hazards and we are all faced daily with calculated risks. Our best protection will always be ourselves and a bit of determination to act in a prudent manner.

We do not need one tenth of the so-called protection forced on us by our federal controllers. We can protect ourselves from too much sun. But it is getting increasingly difficult to gain protection from government protectors.

Sounds familiar

The largest city in the country is in severe financial straits.

With a deficit equivalent to almost $1 billion for the current fiscal year, it is $229 million over authorized debt ceiling even after making all feasible budget cuts including cancellation of annual pay raises for municipal employees. A concerned but reluctant government probably will have to step in to avert bankruptcy.

The farmer knows

Of all the government agencies that make life miserable — and costly — to farmers, the one that's taken the most ridicule is the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

Farmers and news people alike had a heyday with the "Dick and Jane" style approach OSHA took in their booklets about farm safety — almost as much fun as they had with OSHA's ruling for a toilet in every field.

Of all the editorial observations news media have made regarding OSHA and the farmers' reactions to some of the "help" it has offered to make the farm a safer place in which to work, one of the most astute has to be from the Omaha World Telegram:

See the farmer.
See the farmer go to the mailbox.
See the farmer get the little book.
The farmer can read.
The farmer can read big words.
The farmer can read big sentences.
The farmer knows about cows.
The farmer knows about fences.
The farmer knows about manure pits.

See the farmer read the little book.
Now the farmer knows about OSHA.
See the farmer kick the mailbox.
Hear the farmer say bad words.
See the farmer throw the little book.
See the farmer throw the little book into the manure pit.

See OSHA.
See OSHA print.
See OSHA write.
See OSHA throw money into the manure pit.
Say bad words about OSHA.
And a lot of farmers, in unison, shout "Amen!"

The FDA in the strawberry patch

The Food and Drug Administration has asked for comments on the new regulations it is proposing for producers of frozen strawberries, and we are glad to oblige.

First, it will be a long time before anyone tops the definition that the FDA says should be operative in the case of frozen strawberries sold as "halves." The term, says the agency, refers to "strawberries cut predominantly into two equal parts."

However, there are still problems in the area of "partial whole strawberries." This oxymoronic category has, of course, been a vexation to our government for years. The term refers to the unfortunate fact that strawberries sold as "whole" can't be entirely whole. Even the most experienced strawberry pickers will often take off a little of the berry when they remove the cap. And the machines used to sort strawberries will often shave off a piece of a berry. The FDA's problem is to figure out the extent to which these partial whole strawberries should be permitted in boxes of "whole" berries.

In 1974, the agency proposed some rules specifying (a) that partial whole strawberries could not constitute more than 20 percent of the weight of the strawberries in the box and (b) that a partial whole strawberry had to be at least 75 percent intact. However, the comments it received on this proposal led the agency to rethink its basic position on partial wholeness. The new proposals would retain the 20 percent rule, but in place of the 75 percent rule there would be a statement requiring partial whole strawberries to be entirely intact "except for that portion ... removed under good agricultural practices." Now, all we need to know is what those practices are.

Your money's worth

The boom in oriental rugs

Sylvia Porter

Whether you are a collector, connoisseur, or window-shopper, mounting numbers of you are turning to Oriental rugs as investments, with a handsome and perhaps spectacular promise of gain.

Never has the boom in Orientals in the U.S. been greater. The market for fine Orientals is now appreciating at an annual rate of 10 to 15 percent and no end appears in sight.

Skilled workers on new Orientals are shifting to other areas of employment throughout the world. Supplies of used Orientals are being snapped up by dealers and at auctions. Sales and auctions — once limited to such major centers as New York and Chicago — are now spreading all over the country. While the big wave of U.S. interest in Orientals dates back only to the past five years or so, experts predict that values of higher quality rugs easily could double in the next five years.

And on top of the investment appeal, the Western world has been fascinated by the designs and craftsmanship of Oriental carpets and the visions of the exotic that they inspire. But while the opportunities for gain in Orientals (particularly used Orientals) seem solid over the next decade, most industry experts agree, there are major pitfalls for the unwary and uninformed. On the resale side, for instance:

You should be fully aware that investments on Oriental classics are not for the overnight, get-rich-quick speculator. You must hold for the long-term — up, say, to 10 years.

You may have a major liquidity problem since, depending on the marketplace, a satisfactory sale could take as much as six months to a full year.

Because ales are generally made through dealers or at auctions houses which work on a commission basis with a commission from 25 percent and up, you must have a satisfactory built-in profit to compensate for your net shrinkage from the market value.

On the buying side, there are similar warnings.

No matter how much knowledge and experience you gain as an amateur in your early stages of studying Orientals, you will have difficulties in judging a rug. You must learn factors in evaluating an Oriental as the knot count, the quality of the wool used in the pile, the kind of dye employed, the period and place from which the rug came.

The guidelines will be altered for knot density, design type and wool quality depending on the region from which the Oriental originated. For instance, a carpet with high knot density could be less valuable than one with low knot density from the same period, depending on the skills of the area where it was produced.

Learn how to test for the quality of the warp and wool. Fold the carpet face-in; then jerk the fold slightly. If it cracks, hesitate about buying. The warp and wool could be faulty.

Learn how to value a rug's condition. The better the condition, the more valuable can be the rug. Check for evenly clipped pile, luster of wool along with the quality of the color dye.

Learn how to value a rug's condition. The better the condition, the more valuable can be the rug. Check for evenly clipped pile, luster of wool along with the quality of the color dye.

Avoid so-called bargain sales. Pick your dealer with utmost care, for this is the expert in position to consider all factors relative to valuation. Examine the rug in full daylight. Shop several dealers, for prices and advice will vary. As a novice, you must move slowly. Do extensive homework in advance, possibly preparing for a full year before entering the actual market for purchase.

Inquire if a dealer has a policy permitting you to buy on approval. Most reputable dealers want you to be satisfied, will allow to make an exchange if you ask within a reasonable time.

Study estate sales as a source; these sales ads frequently appear in the Sunday newspapers.

If you're a beginner, start in a price range from $500 to $3,000. Stay away from the high end of the price spectrum. If you're attending an auction, get expert opinion and evaluation in advance; the tempo is fast at an auction sale. Never forget you're bidding against professionals in many cases and restrain your eagerness.

Learn about maintenance, possible summer storage (if there is any threat of deterioration from bright light), washing and repairs. The basic of basics is STUDY.

And while you consider your Oriental rug as a valuable investment, treasure its beauty and functionality as well.

Crop estimates in high gear in July

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is cranking up its crop forecasting mill and within another month will be able to give a fairly comprehensive picture of 1978 harvest prospects.

For example, the department today prepared to issue an updated forecast on this year's winter wheat harvest which now is under way in southern areas.

But the most important crop estimates will commence next month, including USDA's first estimate of 1978 corn production. That report, scheduled for release July 11, also will include the department's first forecast of spring wheat output.

Thus, in July, the department will have for the first time a complete estimate of total wheat production this year, including winter wheat planted last fall and the remainder of the crop planted this spring.

On Aug. 10, the department's Crop Reporting Board will update its estimates for wheat and corn plus issuing first estimates of 1978 soybeans, cotton and a number of other important crops.

Meanwhile, today's winter wheat report will be based on surveys made June 1 and will include per acre yield estimates as well as total production by major producing states.

A month ago USDA estimated this year's winter wheat crop at about 1.28 billion bushels, down 16 percent from last year's production of 1.53 billion bushels. The decline results primarily from farmers reducing acres planted to winter wheat last fall in the face of sagging grain prices and acreage cuts ordered by the government to help curb rising grain surpluses.

Although production of spring-planted wheat will not be estimated by USDA for another month, experts have said it could total 400 million to 500 million bushels.

If so, that could mean a total wheat output this year of about 1.68 billion to 1.78 billion bushels, based on last month's winter wheat forecast. Last year, total wheat production was about 2.03 billion bushels.

A weather review for the week of May 29 to June 4, which includes the survey period for making today's new winter wheat estimate, says that the crop was "rated good throughout most of the major production areas."

The crop in Kansas, the leading wheat producer, was rated "good to excellent" although some areas sustained hail and rain damage during the week, the report said.

posed to impose strict country-by-country quotas for the remainder of the year to keep imports within bounds.

As part of the process, Bergland announced Thursday that his July 1 estimate of imports would be nearly 1.5 billion pounds for all of 1978. That was 200 million pounds more than the maximum permitted under the law's formula, precisely the amount announced by Carter.

Thirteen supplying countries, mainly Australia and New Zealand, previously were bound by "voluntary restraint" agreements to keep their shipments below the maximum level which would trigger quotas.

The new official estimate by Bergland then was used by Carter as a legal reason for proclaiming quotas for the remainder of 1978. Carter then immediately suspended the quotas under a provision in the law which allows for such action if "overriding economic or national interests" of the United States are involved.

Then Carter announced that the additional 200 million pounds of beef will be allowed to enter the U.S. market through new voluntary restraint agreements with the supplying countries. These will be negotiated by the State Department.

The same procedure was used several times during the Nixon Administration when beef imports were increased when consumer prices also were going up.

Cowboy rides saddle tall

VERNON, Texas (AP) — The sprawling W.T. Waggoner Estate near this Northwest Texas city is one of the few places left in the country where one can find working cowboys, and it's there that you'll find a cowpoke named Shorty riding tall in the saddle, more or less.

To Shorty Newman, size means nothing when astride a working quarterhorse, and that's a healthy philosophy for a man 5 feet tall.

Newman is one of 36 fulltime cowboys who work the half-million-acre estate, spending most of the time working cattle from the back of a horse.

Newman won't say what his real name is, explaining that "Shorty" is the only name he's ever used.

Shorty's equestrian colleagues take little note of his size.

"We must do it all and take our turn when it comes and this includes all chores," Newman said. He admits his size is often a handicap. "And there's no advantages to being a small cowboy...at least none that I've discovered."

Being small means something special each year when they bring out new broncs from which the Cowboys choose their workmate for the year.

Newman gets there first and tries to pick one of the smaller mounts. His current horse stands 14 hands and weighs around 1,000 pounds. The average size and weight among the horses is 15 hands and 1,100 pounds.

Newman is a bachelor cowboy and lives in a modern-day bunkhouse.

When the day's work is done, he and the other singles might "drink a little beer," ride their broncs or watch television, where they'll sometimes see a western movie.

"Television cowboys aren't cowboys," Newman said. "All you ever see them doing is chasing somebody or fighting."

What real cowboys do, Newman said, is arise at 4 a.m., ride a van to the location that will serve as a work site, and spend the day working cattle or mending fence, depending on the season. They get their marching orders from the foreman, wagon boss or straw boss. And they carry out their orders.

While asking no compensation for his size, Newman isn't a braggart either. "I don't tell anyone I'm a good hand," he said. "I just try to be and let my bosses say if I'm a good hand or not."

Newman has never been turned down for a cowhand job. "When you're horseback, size don't mean anything," he said. "You just get the job done. You have to put out like anyone. You have to earn your own way. I love cowboying, it's all I ever wanted to do...wouldn't do anything else."

Farmland value up

Texas farmland value jumped 11 percent for the year ending Feb. 1. This figure is slightly higher than the national average of nine percent.

Nationally, average land prices increased from $450 to $490 per acre maintaining what is termed a "strong" land market by U.S. Agriculture Department officials.

Texas farmland is currently valued at $316 an acre compared to $285 in February, 1977 and $195 in February, 1976.

Utility pact approved at Canadian

CANADIAN — The Canadian city council meet June 5, and unanimously agreed to sign another two year contract with Southwestern Public Service Company.

This power pact will assure Canadian of additional power when the city plant is operating at peak capacity.

The council will also advertise for bids on another city oil and gas lease on city property northwest of town. The bid opening will be at the regular council meeting on July 17.

In other action the council also approved new yard signs for the intersection of Cedar and Conklin and the intersection of Cedar and Sixth Street.

The council also agreed to paving Houston Street from sixth to seventh to the Canadian cemetery.

Foreign trade zone slated in New Jersey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Within a few days it is likely that a foreign-trade zone will be approved in the township of Mount Olive, Morris County, New Jersey, bringing to 37 the number of such sites in the United States.

Within that zone, imported components for electronic products, such as transistors, diodes, and other goods may be stored, processed, assembled and exhibited without immediate payment of customs duties.

of the zones, some measuring only a few acres, is a little foreign territory, even though future sites might be in such heartland places as Boonville, Mo., and Brook Park, Ohio.

A typical situation: An electronics company assembles components from foreign countries. Component imports often carry heavier duties than finished goods. But while in the zone no duty is levied.

The components are assembled into the finished product. If the product is reshipped abroad, no duty at all is charged. If it is shipped within the United States, the levy is at the finished goods rate.

Business mirror

For Uncle Sam it means less customs revenue. For importers it could mean the difference between profits and loss. For the local community it means jobs, and the related economic benefits that jobs bring.

John DaPonte Jr., executive secretary of the Foreign-Trade Zones Board, expects more than 40 zones and subzones by the end of the year. They are "simply a more rational way of paying duty," he says.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Thursday that an additional 200 million pounds of foreign beef will be allowed to enter the United States this year, it involved some fast paper shuffling to abide by a 1964 meat import law.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is required by the law to estimate every three months how much quota-type meat — mainly low grade hamburger beef — will enter the country in the entire calendar year.

If any of his quarterly estimates exceeds a maximum level specified by a formula in the law, the government is sup-

Scientists to play catch as skylab falls from sky

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Skylab is falling and the space agency is trying to catch it.

On Saturday morning, scientists in Houston will attempt a crucial maneuver to alter the huge, 85-ton space station's position and extend its orbital life for perhaps another year.

If the maneuver fails, Skylab could plunge to its destruction as early as next January, breaking up in the atmosphere and possibly scattering large chunks of debris over a 3,000-mile swath of the earth.

The fear is that some of the pieces could hit populated areas, although space officials say that chance is remote.

"Can you imagine a 300-pound piece of metal plunging out of space into the Super Bowl?" asked one observer.

Scientists have been making a major effort this week to extend the life of Skylab, the world's largest man-made satellite which the United States launched five years ago.

They have been sending a series of commands to turn on heaters and gyroscopes and to point the station's battery-charging solar panels at the sun.

These have been preludes to the big maneuver planned for Saturday, which key members of Congress will be watching.

At 7:12 a.m. in Houston, a team of 15 men led by flight controller Bill Peters will send a radio signal to Skylab from the same control center that was a hub of activity during the historic Apollo moon flights and when Skylab was inhabited by three different astronaut crews in 1973 and 1974.

If all goes well Saturday, the radio signal will fire small steering rockets to tip the cylinder-shaped station so that instead of orbiting with its nose up, it will fly parallel to the earth, small end forward. If the signal doesn't work, there will be no further attempts to prolong the station's flight.

There will be a few hours of tense waiting to see if the maneuver works. If it does, there will be a collective sign of relief throughout the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for it would reduce the atmospheric drag slowly pulling Skylab toward earth and could add as much as a year to its life in orbit.

That would give astronauts a chance to fly up to the abandoned spacecraft late next year and attach a small rocket to it. The rocket could be used to boost Skylab into a higher orbit, where it would stay several years, and perhaps be re-inhabited. Or it could be used to guide the station to an atmospheric re-entry, breaking up over a remote ocean area.

The astronauts can't make the rescue attempt before October, 1979, because the space shuttle, the new reusable manned spaceship, won't be ready for such a journey until then. The shuttle is slated for its maiden orbital flight in June next year.

Even if Saturday's maneuver is successful, Skylab's two gyroscopes must continue to operate if it is to remain in its new position. If not, the craft would shift in relation to the earth and its death plunge would be hastened.

Members of the House Appropriations Committee will be following the activity in Houston to see if they should approve the $20.5 million needed to develop the rocket the astronauts would attach to Skylab.

The committee recently rejected the financing, saying it did not believe the shuttle could be ready in time to accomplish its mission. But members said they might change their minds if Saturday's maneuver works.

What concerns NASA is Skylab's size. It is 118 feet long and 22 feet in diameter, with the volume of a three-bedroom house. While much of its aluminum skin and other soft metal parts would burn up from atmospheric friction during re-entry, scientists say the fuel tanks and structural girders of steel and titanium might partially survive and strike the earth.

Computer calculations indicate that when Skylab dives into the atmosphere it could spew pieces over a track 3,000 miles long and 100 miles wide.

Possibly as many as 400 pieces, some weighing as much as 300 pounds, might survive the searing heat of re-entry and strike earth at a speed of about 200 miles per hour.

Skylab's orbit — which girdles the earth 50 degrees north and 50 degrees south of the equator — covers all of the United States and most of South America, Central and Southern Europe, Africa, the Middle East, Southern Russia, China, India, Southeast Asia and Australia.

NASA administrator Robert A. Frosch notes that 75 percent of Skylab's orbital path is over water, which reduces the possibility of a land impact.

Jury: Hughes not will author

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The handwritten words that would have made a gas station attendant a millionaire have been rendered worthless because a jury concluded that Howard Hughes didn't write them.

The unanimous decision showed the jurors did not believe the strange story told by Melvin Dummur, the once obscure Utah man who said he met Hughes as a hitchhiker, helped him out and won a bequest of some $10 million.

The five men and three women of the jury, who heard seven months of testimony in the complex trial, spent 11 hours in deliberations before reaching their decision Thursday night.

In a hushed, packed courtroom, the verdict was unsealed and read:

"We the jury... find that certain three-page document written on lined, legal paper dated March 19, 1968... was not entirely written, dated and signed by the hand of the decedent, Howard Robard Hughes Jr. himself."

There were gasps. Los Angeles attorney Harold Rhoden, who invested two years and thousands of dollars in seeking to prove the will authentic, appeared shocked.

"Well, fellas, that's it," Rhoden said, turning to his team of lawyers.

Outside court, he said he would not appeal the verdict.

"The jury has spoken, and that's it," he said. "There's nothing more to be said."

Rhoden said he still believes the crudely scrawled will is authentic, "but I sure didn't convince the jury that it was."

Rhoden represented Noah Dietrich, a former Hughes aide who was named executor in the strange document delivered mysteriously to Mormon Church headquarters shortly after Hughes died.

It came to be known as the "Mormon Will."

Dummur, now a beer truck driver, was playing with a band at a country-western dance in Ogden, Utah, when the jury returned its decision.

"I would have hoped it would have gone in my favor," he said. "I was not in control of it so there's not much I can do about it. So I'm just planning to go on working like I have been."

Pampa man sentenced

David Kerr, 27, Pampa, was sentenced Wednesday in the 84th district court in Stinnett to 50 years in prison on a charge of deadly assault on a police officer on Dec. 31, 1975, at the National Guard Army in Borger.

A jury found Kerr guilty on May 26 in connection with the shooting of Borger Police Lt. John O'Brien. O'Brien was on routine patrol at the armory when he suffered bullet wounds in the left arm.

Sentence was set by District Judge Richard Courtiss.

The employee reported that the man, who was approximately 5'6", 150 lbs., clean cut with light sandy hair and wearing a light shirt with tan pants, had entered the store purchased a bottle of wine and drove away after filling his car with gas.

A no-injury, two-car mishap reportedly occurred in the 100 block of Kingsmill at 1:40 p.m. Thursday.

A Pampa resident reported that the rear tag, number 5K7350 and sticker number 437499C, of his camping trailer was removed at 8:42 Thursday, but no charges were filed.

In a 24 hour period, ending at 7 a.m. this morning, the Pampa police answered 34 calls.

The forecast called for clear to partly cloudy skies today across Texas. Temperatures should again soar in the 80s and 90s. Residents of the Big Bend area will feel temperatures over the 100 degree mark.

Temperatures were cooler than usual during the night. A record low was set at San Angelo, where the mercury hit 55 degrees about 6:30 a.m.

National weather

By The Associated Press Showers and thunderstorms covered a large section of the nation early today from New England and the lower Great Lakes and from Louisiana to Florida along the Gulf Coast.

Widely scattered showers or thundershowers also ranged over parts of the upper Mississippi Valley, upper Michigan and the southern Rockies and there was some light rain over the northern Pacific Coast region.

However, the heavy rains which fell in some areas Thursday had diminished today and most of the flash flood watches issued previously have expired or have been canceled.

Skies over the West Coast were cloudy but elsewhere in the nation skies were mostly clear.

Cool air which drifted down from Canada Thursday dominated most of the country before dawn with readings in the 40s and 50s common in New England and westward over the northern tier of states.

Today's forecast called for widely scattered showers and thundershowers from southern Louisiana through the Atlantic Coast states with a chance of showers or thundershowers from the Pacific Northwest into western Montana.

Sunny to mostly sunny skies were to prevail over much of the remainder of the country later today with warm temperatures from California to the southern Rockies, along the Gulf Coast states and through the eastern states from Georgia and Florida to southern New England.

Most of the remainder of the nation was expecting mild temperatures.

HAWK-EYED SKI STAR WATERVILLE VALLEY

N.H. (AP) — The young American skiing star, Phil Mahre, has exceptional eyesight which is helping him, according to Coach Harold Schoenhaar.

"Phil has the fastest eyes of any ski racer I have ever seen," Schoenhaar said. "He sees everything in front of him and reacts instantly to it. He changes edges faster and more precisely than any skier. One thing he must improve on is to finish his longer turns in the giant slalom."

News watch

WASHINGTON (AP) — During the past three fiscal years only $8 million of an appropriated $64 million in federal money has been spent by states to prevent juvenile delinquency, Rep. Shirley Chisholm says.

Ms. Chisholm, D-N.Y., said she will seek congressional hearings into why the money has not been spent by the states. Congress first appropriated money for the program in the 1976 fiscal year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Televisions and other electronic products may cost more if the Federal Communications Commission requires manufacturers to install shields against CB interference, an FCC official says.

Nina W. Cornell, chief of the FCC Office of Plans and Policy, said Thursday the increased prices also would affect persons who live in places where interference is no problem.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is not talking about the results of Soviet anti-satellite tests, although Defense Secretary Harold Brown said last fall the Russians had achieved "an operational capability" with such tests.

"We are operating under a new policy," said Defense Department spokesman Thomas B. Ross on Thursday. "We are acknowledging when we believe that there has been a probable anti-satellite test and we are not commenting on success or failure."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vote on legislation setting up a national goal of reducing unemployment to 4 percent by 1983 was put off for procedural reasons Thursday by the Senate Banking Committee.

Committee aides said the panel today would continue working on the legislation, known as the Humphrey-Hawkins bill. The House already has passed a similar measure.

NEW YORK (AP) — The producers of the Broadway musical "Beatlemania" say that the proceeds of the first anniversary performance will be put aside for the city.

The benefit, to be held July 12 in the Winter Garden Theater, is expected to raise about $10,000, producers said Thursday.

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The City Council has approved a July 4 parade permit in President Carter's hometown for a group protesting the convictions of two black women in the slaying and robbery of a white man.

Omwale Kesting, a spokesman for the Dessie K. Woods-Cheryl S. Todd Defense Committee, says as many as 1,000 people from 10 states will be in the parade. Mrs. Woods is serving a 12-year prison term and Mrs. Todd was sentenced to five years, with the last 3 1/2 years on probation. They were convicted in 1976 of manslaughter and robbery in the slaying of Ronnie Horne, 35, of Rentz, Ga.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — About 50 high school students sprayed the U.S. Embassy with red paint to protest President Carter's visit June 16 to formalize the new Panama Canal treaties.

The students chanted "Carter go home" and "Carter up against the wall" Thursday, then left peacefully.

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Thieves broke into a church during the night and carried off a golden statue of St. Januarius, the patron saint of Naples, an 18th century crucifix and three tape recorders.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli army pays for abortions for its female soldiers and then allows them to return to duty. Radio Israel reports. It says hundreds have had the operation since national restrictions on abortion were lifted four months ago.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Most of the 300 sled dogs abandoned by seal hunters on drift ice 19 days ago have been rescued, Radio Greenland reported.

Helicopters rescued 21 hunters caught when the ice broke up off the west coast of Greenland two weeks ago and 15 more were rescued by boats.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You aren't going to believe this, but my husband has been eligible for Social Security for two years, and he has yet to collect a dime of it!
Why? He says that as long as he's able to work, he doesn't feel justified in taking money from the government. I think he's crazy. What do you think?
MOREY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Social Security isn't exactly "welfare" from the government. Since the mid-'30s working people have kicked in part of every paycheck in order to build up some retirement income. Your husband is entitled to do as he wishes, but he's also entitled to the money.

P.S. A person who earns more than $4,000 a year at his job must return $1 of Social Security for every $2 he earns above $4,000.

DEAR ABBY: I know you will find this hard to believe, but every word of it is true:

There is an elderly gentleman (about 85) living in a small single room in a local hotel. This man has married children and grandchildren in town who hardly look at him.

He can't dress himself or bathe very well, and his eyesight is failing, so the maids help him. (The maids take better care of him than his own family.)

Several months ago, a maid found him on the bathroom floor. He had fallen the night before and couldn't get up, so he just lay there, cold and shivering, all night.

He eats only once a day on a tray sent to his room, and that's usually oatmeal and coffee. On Sundays the kitchen is closed, so he doesn't eat from Saturday until Monday morning.

How can people be so heartless? Today is Sunday, and believe me, Abby, my appetite is gone just thinking about that poor, old, neglected man.

FEELING SAD

DEAR SAD: If you really want to help, why don't YOU look in on the old gentleman? (You don't have to be a relative to extend a kindness.)

Writing to me without a clue as to who YOU are, who HE is, or even the city in which he lives, is futile. And your loss of appetite won't help him much, either.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who has just started to date. I am going to ask you a question I have asked many others; I have never been able to get a straight answer from anyone.

When a girl really likes a fellow, and they are alone together, naturally they are going to make out some. But how far should a girl go?

JUST "ME" IN PLAINS, GA.

DEAR JUST: The limits of self-respect will provide the answer. A boy who has genuine affection for a girl will never do anything that will degrade her or make her feel ashamed. Courtship is preparation for marriage; ask any boy how far he would like the girl he marries to go on a date. And if he's honest, you'll have an honest answer.

Caution to be exercised with sprays

By Herb Alexander

The problem with poisoning insects is that you might also poison yourself. Ever since Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring" a few years ago, with its warnings against the indiscriminate use of insecticides, there has been a growing concern about their safety.

Many advocate not using them at all. If you feel you must use an insecticide, use it properly and with precautions. Even the safest of bug killers can be dangerous if not used as directed.

First, read the label. Those that are labeled "non-toxic to humans" are the safest but must still be handled carefully. Even though exposure to the substance once may not be dangerous, there is a growing concern about cumulative toxicity, the effect of a long-term buildup. So use even the mild insecticides carefully. Use of the word "caution" also indicates a relatively mild insecticide.

When you get to the word "Warning," you know you have a more dangerous product. Follow directions to the letter.

If you see the word "poison" and the old skull-and-crossbones symbol, skip it and pick another product. Leave that stuff to the professionals and stay out of their way.

Read the instructions carefully. Never mix different insecticides together. Never mix an insecticide in greater strength than directed — it's only the bugs you want to kill, not pets or children or yourself.

Determine what you need it for. If it is one type of bug you are concerned about, then pick the least toxic insecticide that will kill that bug.

Keep the kids and the pets away when you dust or spray and for a good length of time afterward.

Keep insecticides out of reach of children. Such dangerous material should be kept under lock and key. Don't store them with food products. Never use garden insecticides inside the house.

Keep the insecticides in their original containers and keep the label clean and intact. When the containers are empty, get rid of them. Wash out bottles and cans before tossing them in the trash can.

Never mind the ads in which a girl in a bathing suit or a man in Bermuda shorts is spraying or dusting insecticides. Keep covered. Wear clothes that cover you completely. Wear rubber gloves. If working in close quarters or for a long period of time, wear a respirator mask.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need to know at what age a man becomes sterile if ever, or is his sperm always able to produce children. I'm in my change of life and my future husband is 66. Let me know if I need to take anything at this stage. I'd rather not raise any more children.

DEAR READER — There is no specific cut-off date for men that can apply to all cases. The Russians claim that one of the men that they have studied for aging was still potent and produced viable sperm cells at age 116.

To give you more information on this I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Since many older men do father children I would suggest that you use precautions until you are certain you yourself are no longer able to become pregnant. That usually means at least one year after you have stopped having menstrual periods after your menopause; some suggest two years for even greater security.

You can check with your doctor in your individual case to make sure that you have completed the menopause and are no longer apt to get pregnant before you throw caution to the wind.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About two years ago my wife and I started having a "staph infection." The infection appears as boils and they interchange their position from one arm pit to the other. The boils do come and go about every six weeks. We have done all we can do within our power to control it. No medications seem to work.

Now my wife, who has a tendency to blame me for anything that goes wrong and not to praise me for anything that goes right, says that she really hates me and that she gets the boils from me. She worsened the whole situation by saying without shame that there would be no more sex because having sex with me would bring on the boils. I nearly committed suicide. I do not know how we can have a baby without sex. That's also one of our problems. Can you tell me what causes these infections and what we can use to cure it?

DEAR READER — Staph infections are caused by the staphylococcal bacteria. These bacteria invade the root of the hair and start a little infection which turns into a boil. You will need medical guidance to help control it because once a staph infection has invaded a home it persists.

We all have some forms of staphylococcal organisms on our skin but fortunately our skin has sufficient protective barriers to help us out and they're often not the kind that set up an infection.

It's absolutely essential that in the presence of a staph infection that you do not exchange towels or washcloths. These can easily become contaminated with the bacteria. Your doctor should be able to culture the bacteria and find out which antibiotics will help control it. With proper skin care and antibiotics you may be able to control the infection.

Infection has no relationship to sexual activity. The problem here, as suggested by your letter, is your basic relationship with your wife. To resolve these problems you may need some help from a marriage counselor. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Most children have special little toys they like to carry along when they go to visit someone. To keep them from getting lost or scattered about I made a drawing bag for my grandson to carry them in. Before sewing up such a bag trace the child's name on it with a pencil and then either sew over the tracing with the sewing machine or work over it by hand with colored thread. — NANNY J.K.

DEAR POLLY — Pretty printed twin-size sheets can often be bought on sale and I find one of them makes a nice short sleeved summer robe with enough left over for a blouse, too. The best part is they never require any ironing. — MRS. E. J. B.

PAMPA NEWS Friday, June 9, 1978 9

Wilkins looks for world mark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muscular Mac Wilkins, hoping to better his world discus mark, tried to squeeze a record in between flights today as the AAU Track and Field Championships continue at UCLA.

Holder of the world standard at 232 feet, 6 inches, Wilkins led qualifiers in the discus Thursday with a throw of 209-3. He had just come off a flight from San Jose, took another flight back in the evening, then flew to Los Angeles once more early today.

Early Saturday, he's leaving for Europe to prepare for meets there.

The hasty trips to and from San Jose were necessary because Wilkins did not realize until the last moment that there would be qualifying in the discus on the opening day of the three-day AAU Nationals.

"They never do that," Wilkins said after Thursday's competition. "I guess it's the first time they've had a qualifying round in the discus since 1973."

"My problem is I have to fly back home to get some clean clothes. I didn't have any for the qualifying."

He promised, however, he'd be back in time for today's finals.

Rinaldo Nehemiah, a freshman from Maryland, established a meet record with a 13.35 second clocking in the semifinals of the 110-meter hurdles. That set up a showdown Friday with Greg Foster that could be a repeat of one of the most exciting events in the recent NCAA Championships.

Guy Abrahams was the fastest man in an outstanding 100-meter field during qualifying. Abrahams, who finished sixth in the Montreal Olympics, sped to a 10.16 clocking in the semifinals.

Steve Williams and Clancy Edwards were second and third in that heat to make the finals, while Don Coleman, James Gilkes and Rey Robinson qualified in the second heat.

Baseball finals to play tonight

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bellaire and Lubbock Monterey are down to the wire for the University Interscholastic League's Class 4A baseball championships.

Bellaire earned its berth in tonight's final tournament game by rolling past Duncanville 5-1 Thursday at Disch-Falk Field, while Lubbock Monterey made it past Corpus Christi Moody 6-1.

Before the 9 p.m. Class 4A final gets under way, a 7 p.m. match has Mount Pleasant taking on Burkburnett for the 3A crown.

Mount Pleasant shut out Brazosport 10-0 and Burkburnett squeezed past Jasper 3-2 in semifinal action Thursday.

John Moses' four-hitter helped Bellaire end Duncanville's fourth consecutive trip to the UIL event. Moses struck out 12 to raise his record to 17-2.

His only difficult moment came in the fourth inning when Duncanville loaded the bases with one out. Pitcher Mike Pierce then struck out and Craig Fouts ground out to second.

Bellaire now has a 35-8 season record. The school has chalked up four state titles in seven tourney visits. Duncanville ends its season at 32-4.

Seven errors by Corpus Christi Moody made the game easier for Lubbock Monterey. Ron Reeves ran his record up to 16-1 by allowing only five hits.

Reeves got out of a last-minute tight spot when Moody loaded the bases with one out in the seventh. He struck out Buddy Logan, and then Rene

Second place in AL west

Rangers sweep Royals

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Third base coach Pat Corrales didn't think Bobby Bonds' fly ball to shallow right field in the 13th inning was deep enough for Bump Wills to risk trying to tag at third and go for the winning run.

As Al Cowens made the catch, Corrales yelled "No" and Wills hesitated at first as if to stay where he was, then thought better of it and set sail.

Wills collided safe at home with catcher Darrell Porter, and the run gave the Texas Rangers a 3-2 victory over Kansas City and a sweep of a double-header that began seven hours earlier.

The victory, combined with a 5-4 victory in the opener, pushed the Rangers past the Royals into second place 2½ games behind Oakland in the American League west.

"The ball didn't go far enough to beat us. We should still be playing. It's a tough way to lose," Royals manager Whitey Herzog said.

A drained Porter, after playing 22 innings, sat stretched out before his locker in the dressing room.

"I don't know if the throw was good or not. I'm too tired to know," he said. "It got there before he (Wills) did, and if I catch the ball we get him. I guess I just missed it. I felt the ball hit the end of my glove, but I never did tag him."

Ranger Richie Zisk had spoiled rookie righthander Rich Gale's no-hit bid in the seventh with a single to left field after Mike Hargrove had walked for the third straight time.

Bonds came within a few feet of hammering a three-run homer a few moments later, but his shot landed up in the bleachers, just to the left of the left field foul pole.

Bonds walked on a 3-2 pitch, and Texas catcher Jim Sundberg, the American League's second-leading hitter, pushed a base hit between third base and shortstop to score two runs and tie the game at 2-2.

"I knew I had a no-hitter going, but I was trying hard not to think about it," Gale said. "My biggest concentration was to win it."

Walks led to Gale's downfall.

He gave up two of them in the first inning and let them advance to second and third with one out by heaving a wild pitch past Porter. He then settled down and retired the next 17 batters before walking Hargrove in the seventh. Hargrove drew a walk in the fourth but was cut down on a double play.

He gave up two more walks in the ninth as Texas loaded the bases with nobody out and appeared ready to end things then. But a force out at home, a squeeze play that misfired and a fly ball sent the game into overtime.

Gale left after 8 2/3 innings with a three-hitter. Steve Comer, Texas' third pitcher, got the win, his second in three decisions. The loss went to Al Hrobosky, 1-1, who left the game just before Bonds' winning sacrifice fly.

Norton faces Holmes in WBC heavyweight fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Ken Norton battles undefeated Larry Holmes tonight for one of the boxing's heavyweight championships.

The 32-year-old ex-Marine was given the title by the World Boxing Council when Leon Spinks signed to give Muhammad Ali, rather than Norton, a return match in New Orleans next Sept. 15.

Never before has the heavyweight crown been awarded outside the ring, but Norton says he deserves it even though he would rather have fought Spinks in the fight the WBC had wanted.

Norton goes against Holmes, who was the challenger named by the WBC to fight Norton in his first title defense.

"I'll fight anybody, and I'd like to fight Spinks," said Norton. And Holmes echoed the view, saying he would also like to fight the winner of the Spinks-Ali rematch.

Norton and Holmes dislike each other heartily, but nevertheless Holmes stood up for Norton, saying the WBC made the right decision in stripping the title from Spinks when he would not fight Norton in his first title defense.

Youth Center asks response

Adult swim lessons would be for beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate and swimmer classes. The lessons would be taught from 6-7 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The basketball camp for boys and girls would meet for two hours in the afternoon.

Those who would like to participate in either of the programs are asked to express their interest by calling the Center at 5-2622.

MADISON, Wis. AP — At age 30, Fred Grant is the patron saint of every hitchhiker who ever choked on the exhaust of passing cars.

Other cars may roar past, but Grant and his late model car are a sure — fire cure for a bad case of hyperextended thumb.

Every day at about 8 a.m., Grant turns up his hearing aid, cautiously pulls the car out of his driveway on Madison's East side, steers to the main thoroughfare heading downtown and aims for the University of Wisconsin campus.

Ten minutes, four miles, a couple of stops and a good conversation later, Grant drops off one, two or maybe even three hitchhikers.

Then he heads back toward his house, sometimes giving a lift to a hitchhiker heading in that direction, maybe to work at a factory.

But Grant still isn't finished for the day.

He makes another run toward campus, picking up another hitchhiker or two. In all, he may make three circuits and give a half dozen rides before easing his car back into the driveway after an hour or so and settling in for daytime TV.

"I started this hobby six years ago," said Grant. "I've probably given 10,000 rides. Want to see my book?"

"The Hitchhiking Guests of Fred Grant."

"There are 5,000 names in there," he says proudly. "I've picked up a lot of people more than once, but I only let them sign once."

Grant, a widower who lives alone, says his hobby gets him out of the house and the contact with young people makes life more interesting. "It's a kind of social event for me. It keeps me young."

Grant, who said talk in his car is most often about the weather, started picking up thumbers regularly after he tried it once and got into a stimulating political discussion with a young man during the 1972 presidential campaign.

He particularly likes to give rides to young women. During warm weather he also gives them fresh — cut flowers from his garden.

"I get a lot of pretty girls," he says. "At my age, they know I'm not up to anything. They're always glad to see me a second time."

He started keeping names and addresses simply as a record of his hobby, but they come in handy when Grant has to contact riders who inadvertently leave books, watches or jackets in his car.

"Out of all the rides I've given, I've only ever had two women who wouldn't sign," he said.

Grant said stories of robberies or attacks don't faze him.

"I'm pretty careful, and I presume they're pretty careful, too," he said. "I've never had no trouble."

Carter will visit four Texas cities

FORT WORTH (AP) — President Carter will visit Fort Worth on June 23, his first stop in Texas since his inauguration 15 months ago.

A White House spokesman confirmed Wednesday that Carter will deliver a luncheon address at the Tarrant County Convention Center, the first stop in a two-day tour of four Texas cities.

His appearance here, at the joint invitation of four civic clubs, three chamber of commerce organizations and Mayor Hugh Parmer, is billed as non-political and nonpartisan.

But after his address, the President will fly almost immediately to Houston, for a Democratic National Committee fund-raising dinner.

Preliminary plans call for Carter to land at Carswell Air Force Base at 12:30 p.m. and deliver his speech at 1 p.m. He is expected to leave Carswell at 2:20 p.m. for Houston.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth will introduce Carter at the luncheon.

After leaving Fort Worth, Carter will visit Houston, Beaumont and Ft. Hood at Killen.

In Houston, Carter will be making the second of five appearances he has agreed to make at DNC fund raisers this year. The first was Jan. 20 in Atlanta.

Carter will spend the night June 23 in Houston's Hyatt Regency Hotel, where the fund-raiser will take place, then host a regional news conference at the Hyatt at 10 a.m. June 24.
