Special review board considers appeals of San Antonio firings

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A special review board, established to rule on the possible reinstatement of some of the more than 170 garbage men and other city workers fired for striking, today begins wading through appeals from almost all of the dismissed employees. Meanwhile, the angry ex-workers and their supporters, disappointed at Councilman Rudy Ortiz' failure to convince the city council to fire City Manager Tom Huebner, vowed to rally again today at City Hall.

Upon City Hall on Thursday, hoping that Ortiz and Councilman Bernardo Euseste could convince the council to remove Huebner for ordering the mass firings of workers who walked out over wages. But the council took no action on the motion after a heated session punctuated by shouts and jeers from the predominantly Mexican-American protesters. The council also refused to honor demands that all fired workers be automatically reinstated. Eight of the 11 council members approved the firings before the illegal strike and continued Thursday to strongly support the city manager. Mayor Lila Cockrell says Ortiz' motion is "absurd." And Ortiz, who wants Huebner fired for "gross incompetence," admits he has only two votes. Ortiz, who says Huebner is promoting violence with his tough stance, said, "This thing is going to escalate. It will get worse before it gets better." Another councilman, Henry Cisneros, opposes the firings, but told the jeering crowd, "I do not believe that we have the votes or it is the time to fire the city manager. That is not the thing to do." Cisneros and Joe Alderete, two of the five Mexican-American council members, urged the strikers to work through the review board to regain their jobs. "You can say fire Huebner and it sounds good. The fact is, if you want your job, the opportunity is there. There is no other way," said Cisneros. Cisneros, who spoke mostly in Spanish, was booed and Alderete was shouted away from the bullhorn. But by Thursday afternoon, Public Works Director Frank Kiolbassa said the board had received appeals from 170 fired employees. "Just about everybody who was not at work is on the list," he said. The list included the leaders of the striking San Antonio Refuse Collectors Association Assistant Manager Louis Fox, who chairs the five-man board, said decisions will be made on each case after the board has heard all of them. Fox indicated an undetermined number of militant strikers will probably not be reinstated. The board reinstated six strikers on Wednesday after determining that the men had walked out because of threats. Garbage trucks, again shadowed by police cars, covered about half of the city Thursday for the second consecutive peaceful day. Fox said the police protection, beefed up Tuesday after sporadic, minor violence, will continue indefinitely. "We'll hold it at about half the routes for a while, since that's about all we can handle from a police standpoint," said Fox. Kiolbassa estimated Thursday that it will be another three weeks before garbage collection returns to normal. Bundles of rotting garbage have piled up in city parks pressed into service as temporary collection points, but the situation has not been critical, officials said. The trash trucks are manned by some 85 replacement workers, 24 drivers transferred from other city departments and the reinstated workers. While there aren't enough openings now to rehire all of the strikers in their old jobs, Kiolbassa said a city job would be found for any striker who deserved reinstatement. Angry, rock-throwing ex-garbage men ambushed three trucks on remote portions of south side routes Tuesday, smashing the windshields and slightly injuring two workers. The threats also escalated Tuesday, prompting the added police protection and a 10-day, temporary restraining order against the ex-workers. More than half of San Antonio's 313 garbage men walked off the job Saturday after the city council approved a 6 percent wage hike for all city employees. SARCA had sought a 9.3 percent hike for its members. Huebner fired 106 strikers within hours of the Saturday walkout. He fired about 35 others on Monday when they refused to work, saying they feared for their safety. Twenty-two dog catchers and 15 airport maintenance workers were fired Tuesday. SARCA members staged a two-day walkout in May over wages and working conditions. It ended when the city promised to ease the conditions and give the garbage men priority on the city budget.

Lebanon considered unsafe for Americans, Canadians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The United States and Canada are advising their citizens to leave Lebanon, reducing their details of health plan. By MICHAEL PUTZEL, Associated Press Writer. WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided his long-promised and oft-delayed national health insurance proposal will be presented in only the broadest terms at this time, leaving many essential details to be filled in later, informed sources say. The program's principles "are essentially a holding action that commits us to come up with something more later," the sources said, asking not to be identified. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. is to announce the program's outline by Monday. The president, who promised a universal, comprehensive and mandatory system of health coverage for all Americans during his campaign, has been under increasing pressure from his economic advisers in recent weeks to scale down or put off the proposal as too inflationary. At the same time, Carter has promised Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a long-time supporter of national health insurance, and Kennedy's principal backers in organized labor that the administration's plan would be put before Congress this session.

embassy staffs and sending home their diplomats' families because of the threat of more Syrian attacks on the Lebanese Christians. The U.S. Embassy said there are no plans yet to order evacuation of the 1,500-2,000 Americans in the war-torn country. But it urged those without pressing business to get out. "In view of the fighting in Beirut, we have decided it would be prudent to reduce our embassy staff and send out dependents," said State Department spokesman Ken Brown in Washington. "On such occasions, it's customary to inform the American community. It was our feeling that it was a reasonable precaution to take in view of recent fighting. It is not a response to any particular development but to an accumulation of factors over the preceding months." The Canadian government said it was also reducing its embassy staff and told all Canadians to "leave the country as soon as possible unless they have urgent or essential business in Lebanon." There have been four major outbreaks of fighting between Syrian troops and right-wing Christian militias in Beirut this year, and more are expected since the Christians still refuse to submit to Syrian control. Hundreds of Christian civilians have been killed. The Americans in Lebanon include about 150 diplomatic personnel and their families plus journalists, teachers, students, businessmen and retired Lebanese-Americans. It was not known how many of the embassy staff would leave. But the six remaining families of embassy staff members are going within a week, a spokesman said. American sources said the Lebanese government was not informed in advance of the State Department action. The government fears such action of evacuation orders will trigger panic in the already-shrunken foreign communities. In the summer of 1976, at the height of the civil war between the Christians and the alliance of Palestinians and leftist Lebanese Muslims, the U.S. government sent navy ships to evacuate Americans from Beirut because the airport was closed. American members of the community remained. The Syrians who make up the bulk of the 30,000-man Arab League peacekeeping force in Lebanon intervened in the civil war to prevent a Christian defeat. But two of the country's three major Christian political leaders have refused to let the Christians take control of the Christian areas they control and have in effect partitioned the country into Christian and Muslim zones. The Syrians have vowed to bring the Christian militias to their knees and end the partition.

Marathon develops in House over tax relief. AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House debate over a constitutional amendment on property tax relief has turned into one of those marathons that sometimes afflict the state Legislature. Representatives go into their third day of debate today after working seven hours Wednesday and five hours Thursday without reaching a final vote. Still before the House was the issue that tied it up for hours Thursday — whether to compel future legislatures to reimburse school districts for revenue lost to tax relief. Senators, meanwhile, whipped out their version of the property tax relief package Thursday in about two hours, quickly agreeing 29-0 on a "compromise" produced by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. The Senate then adjourned for the weekend. For the voters to get a final say on the property tax relief question at the Nov. 7 election, both houses must agree on the same proposal and approve it by a two-thirds vote in each chamber. The House calendar for today also included Orange Rep. Wayne Peveto's massive bill to create uniformity in appraisal of property for taxation. Peveto, however, indicated he was having second thoughts about pushing for the bill, which is acquiring serious opposition. "I'm just so disgusted by the whole thing," Peveto said as the House quit Thursday after two days of debating and bickering. Senators voted, 16-10, for a resolution adjourning the special session at 6 p.m. Tuesday and sent it to the House. Hobby said he and House Speaker Bill Clayton had agreed to try to end the session a week before its Aug. 8 adjournment deadline. The Senate's version of the constitutional amendment to ease property taxes would: —Tax all agricultural land according to the income it could produce, not its value on the real estate market. Only farmers and ranchers earning 51 percent of their income from the land now qualify for such a tax break.

Tax-cut bill set for battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1.2 billion tax-cut bill is heading for the House floor and a struggle to expand it and make it more to the liking of President Carter, who opposes its reduction of the capital gains tax. The House Ways and Means Committee, which had held up the legislation for months, approved the bill 25-12 Thursday night in a flurry of last-minute compromises. The bill would provide about $12.3 billion in income tax relief to individuals, the remainder to corporations. The measure would cut taxes by $71 for a single person earning $15,000 a year and $160 for a single person earning $25,000. A childless couple would see a cut of $39 at the $10,000-income level, $6 at $15,000 and $160 at $25,000. A couple with two children would save $62 if earning $10,000, $77 if making $15,000 and $232 if earning $25,000.

One late change given an excellent chance of House approval would — in the great majority of cases — eliminate the capital gains tax on profits from the sale of a home. With bipartisan backing, the capital gains issue — a measure Carter has denounced as giving breaks to the wealthy while ignoring the needs of others — won out. Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., the issue's principal author, put through a last-minute compromise making a slight concession to Carter's views. The compromise would — through a complicated formula — try to assure that no taxpayer with substantial capital gains could totally avoid a tax. The Treasury Department had contended that Jones' original bill would allow persons with capital gains of more than $1 million and with other sheltered incomes to pay no tax on that gain or income. The measure, however, would still largely exclude capital gains from the regular 15 percent minimum tax on sheltered income, a major point in Carter's disapproval, and would set the maximum rate at 35 percent. The theoretical maximum now is 49.1 percent, but the Treasury Department says few persons pay more than 40 percent. Under present law, taxpayers generally may deduct one-half of capital gains they have realized from the sale of assets, such as stocks or real estate, which they have held at least a year. They pay tax on the other half according to their income bracket. A special provision allows taxpayers to postpone the capital gains tax on the profit from the sale of his principal residence if invested in another home of at least equal value. The committee voted to exempt from the capital gains tax altogether the first $100,000 profit from the sale of a home. This special privilege could be used only once in a lifetime, but the provision for rolling over the proceeds of a sale by buying a new residence, a method typically used by younger families, would be retained.

Postal pact sent for vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A postal contract settlement that has prompted wildcat walkouts, a rejection vote by a union advisory panel and a threat of new strikes is being sent to 554,000 postal workers for approval. The outcome of the ratification vote won't be known for at least several weeks. And, ironically, union leaders must count on members to stay on the job to complete ratification, since it is conducted by mail ballot. Until the votes are counted, union officials acknowledge the possibility of a mail strike persists. Efforts by union leaders to sell the proposed accord to their rank-and-file were dealt a setback Thursday when a committee of local officials from the nation's largest postal union voted 29-15 to reject the pact. But the committee agreed to let the 280,000 members of the American Postal Workers Union decide whether to push aside calls for a mail strike and approve the contract. Emmet Andrews, president of the APWU, said he did not think the committee's vote was representative of the attitude of the rank-and-file, and he appeared confident the pact would be ratified. An aide to Andrews said union leaders believe there are only isolated pockets of resistance to the contract. Chief objections to the new contract are that the 19.5 percent pay raise over three years is not high enough and that a number of work rules remain too rigid, particularly concerning mandatory overtime. The APWU and three other unions that negotiated a new contract with the Postal Service plan to mail ballots to members within a week. It will take at least another three weeks to tabulate the results, according to union officials. The APWU's militant New York Area Postal Union, the largest local in the country, has scheduled a strike vote for early next week. A walkout could snarl delivery of the ballots. Postal strikes are prohibited by federal law. But that didn't stop workers from walking off the job at bulk mail centers serving metropolitan New York and California during the past week. Postal Service officials said Thursday that the walkouts, which began as a protest to the tentative agreement reached last Friday, have abated and operations were nearly normal again. In another touch of irony, the Postal Service used the mails to send 112 notices of dismissal to workers who participated in the walkouts. Several union locals have indicated they would follow the lead of the New York local if it votes to strike. That pattern occurred in 1970, when New York sparked a walkout that was joined by more than 200,000 postal workers. Participants in the 1970 strike were not punished under the terms of a contract settlement reached to end the walkout. This time, the Postal Service has vowed, it will enforce the law.

UN mission to set up Namibian state

By WILLIAM N. OATIS, Associated Press Writer. UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says a U.N. mission will be on the way to South-West Africa within a week to put the Western independence plan for the territory into effect despite uncertainty over what South Africa will do. The Security Council, by a 13-0 vote Thursday, directed Waldheim to name a special representative to "ensure the early independence of Namibia through free elections" held under U.N. supervision and control. The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstained. In a second resolution which South Africa rejected, all 15 council members joined in a declaration that disputed Walvis Bay, the only deep-water port on the coast of South-West Africa, should be handed over to the new nation after it becomes independent. Namibia is the African name for South-West Africa, the West German colony South Africa seized in World War I, held under a League of Nations mandate and refused to give up after the U.N. terminated the mandate in 1966. Walvis Bay was a British enclave which Britain turned over to South Africa in 1910, but South Africa has administered it as part of South-West Africa since 1922. The Western independence plan to which South Africa agreed calls for negotiations after independence to decide the disposition of the enclave. The South Africans threatened earlier to repudiate the plan if the Walvis Bay resolution was adopted. But after Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told the council the resolution "does not prejudice the position of any party, it does not seek to coerce any party." South African Foreign Minister R.F. Botha indicated that might satisfy his government. Waldheim told the council the special representative would be Martti Ahtisaari, the U.N. commissioner for Namibia. He said his mission was expected to take two or three weeks to make a survey of arrangements needed to hold elections. After Ahtisaari makes his report, the council will meet again to create a U.N. Transition Assistance Group of about 1,500 civilians and 7,000 troops to help manage the transition to independence, expected next spring or summer.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coving Commandment.

Reality beginning to peek through tax haze

Marxists and other socialist ideologues have, over the years, gone on the assumption that the power to tax is the power to destroy. Following this formula, they have advocated piling taxes upon taxes while preaching that the power to tax is the power to destroy. Following this formula, they have advocated piling taxes upon taxes while preaching that the capitalistic, free enterprise system would destroy itself.

Until the passage of Proposition 13, things certainly seemed to be going their way. The people of California, however struck a spark in the darkness when they passed the proposition. It was like lighting a match in a darkened stadium, and it is just possible that that light will be followed by one and then another until the entire nation is lighted up.

There are some fairly well-grounded fears that a national tax revolt could be accompanied by disaster of one form or another. People get the idea that police and firemen will be the first to go. This could happen if there is not an equally strong demand that the system be shaken up and that the entrenched, unproductive bureaucrats be given their walking notice instead of people serving in vital, functional areas.

Experts say that one of the worst things that could happen to the economy of this country would be for there to be a grass-roots movement to limit taxation without limiting government spending and services.

Already, this is beginning to emerge. As cities and counties and states find their fiscal hands tied by the voting strength of the people, governments at those levels already are indicating that they will be asking the federal government for more money.

Cities, with New York leading the way, have sent word to Washington that they can't live without federal dollars. New York got its foot in the door, felt the pressure decrease immediately, and apparently started making plans then to prove its case for continued assistance.

Other cities are standing at the ready to make their own pitch. If Congress is weak, and it has a record of weakness when pressured, there can be but one place for such money to come from — the old printing press. And the more dollars that are cranked out in the name of saving a city means that much more inflation stacked at the doors of the taxpayers who thought they were doing a good deed when they voted to decrease taxes.

Certainly much of the blame for the high cost of government can be placed on the heads of politicians and bureaucrats. But they don't deserve it all. It is the special pleaders' politician, doing what comes naturally, who hears the voice of the special pleaders and heeds it. It might be new park lands. It might be a new civic center, a gym, a grant to help entice industries into the area. The good politician will promise he can get these things from Uncle Sam, and he can get elected on promises. The successful politician is the one who can come through with the goodies and open a new dam or cut a ribbon on a new fire station or post office. And the special pleaders, of course, are happy.

It has been said, and rightly, that there is no such thing as a free lunch.

The message is beginning to get back home to the voter, not always a reasonable, rational being.

And that bodes hard times for politicians in the days ahead.

Stop the meddlers' roller coaster; we want to get off

By BILL NEIKIRK
(Chicago Tribune)

It's hard to make plans on a roller coaster. Our children know this simple truth better than we, so they are better at coping with the climbs, the plunges, the turns and the upside-down loops of the death-defying monsters. But we like to show some foresight, avoid the surprises, look certainty in the face and call her beautiful.

We have been on an economic roller coaster in this country for several years. Whoever constructed it had vivid imagination: the thrills and surprises have been heart-throbbing. To the economic policymakers in Washington, they have been heart-breaking.

People who like to think ahead have a terrible time on roller coasters. President Ford took office and immediately went to work tackling the thrill of the moment, the double-digit inflation he inherited from many governments preceding him. He proposed, if you remember, a $5 billion surcharge on income taxes to fight rising prices, along with the voluntary Whip Inflation Now (WIN) program, buttons and all.

But before Congress even had time to consider his plan, the economic roller coaster whipped over the top and down the other side. Not inflation, but the worst recession since the Great Depression became the new economic reality.

Ford's $5 billion surcharge was ignored by Congress and WIN became a national laughingstock.

When President Carter took over, he immediately tried to bring down unemployment by proposing a $50 per person rebate on income taxes. Shortly after he sent it to Congress, the coaster took another sharp turn. The economy began improving on its own. Carter — finding himself out of tune with the situation — dropped the rebate.

Now, history is repeating itself. The president, assiduous planner that he is, sent a $25 billion tax cut to Congress to offset higher Social Security taxes and ward off the demon of economic stagnation expected later this year.

Before he could blink, the roller coaster went through one of those upsidedown loops. Inflation suddenly stretched out to reach double-digit levels for the first time since 1974-75. Suddenly the climate became inclement for passage of a tax cut. Result: Carter trimmed it back, and some members of Congress are talking about junking it altogether.

The point is that Jimmy Carter, and presidents before him, have followed mainly traditional means in trying to solve our economic problems — through the budget, through interest rate policy, and through government persuasion. They have concentrated on making the coaster ride more bearable.

While they planned their big tax cuts and their anti-inflation programs, our industry became less competitive and began losing out to foreign companies. Youth unemployment became a national scandal. Investment sagged. Regulations contributing to inflation were added to the lawbooks. Tax policies promoting inefficient enterprises were permitted to flourish.

Fundamental problems remained unaddressed while leaders kept their attention riveted on the next twist or turn of the coaster ride.

The American people are entitled to something other than the traditional remedies, such as a tax cut here or tight money there. Innovative ways to deal with the inflation-unemployment problem would be welcome. Dealing with our fundamental problems would be a godsend. Stop the coaster. We want to get off.

By OSCAR W. COOLEY
"Gambling stocks rallied sharply" begins a recent business page story. Referred to are stocks of firms that plan casinos like the big one just opened in Atlantic City. These are now lawful in New Jersey, which has joined Nevada in approving the operation of gambling joints. Gambling, in case you had not noticed, is on the increase in the United States. Thirty-two of the 50 states permit horse-race betting, and 14 allow betting on dog races. The state governments, themselves are deep in the gambling business, 15 of them operating lotteries for profit.

In ancient times, governments sponsored lotteries to fill their coffers. The emperors of Rome offered slaves instead of money as lottery prizes. The American colonies and many states up to the 1830's operated lotteries. Invariably proving to be a fount of graft and corruption, they were discontinued by order of the state legislatures.

Now, state lotteries are staging a come-back. Has human nature changed? Are we all so virtuous compared to our forefathers that we can reap good out of what they found evil?

The earliest laws against gambling in England and France were enacted because the common people were ceasing to work and produce wealth, instead were turning to the gambling tables in the hope of making money without working.

Opportunities to gamble are especially alluring to the poor — to those who can least afford to lose. Most of the state lottery tickets are bought by wage-earners. The vast majority lose repeatedly, in fact never gain, and so this state-sponsored gambling further impoverishes those who are already poor.

The lure of "something for nothing" has always been tempting. The presence of gambling devices such as slot machines and the advertising of lotteries by our state governments hold out that lure.

But it is held out today in many other guises. During the depression of the 1930's, Americans received doles of many sorts: welfare, make-work, unemployment compensation, old-age benefits, farm subsidies. Need temporarily justified these doles, it was said.

We no longer have the depression as an excuse. In fact, we live in clover, comparatively, but we still have our hands outstretched for largesse. And it has come to be such a habit that to many, perhaps most, people it seems justified. They look upon doles as a feature of the American way of life.

During the depression, presumably only the needy received aid. Today, establishing need is a matter of form: To get unemployment compensation, the law says, one must be out of a job but able to work, desirous of work, and unable to find work. However, in practice one can quit a job, make little or no effort to find another, and still draw unemployment compensation for the allotted time.

Some represent themselves as poorer than they are in order to get on welfare, others to get food stamps. They do not consider themselves dishonest. Outwitting the government is looked upon in a different light from deceiving your neighbor.

In truth, "the government" is all the neighbors. Every dollar one takes from the government is a dollar taken from the neighbor without their permission or, indeed, their knowledge. The neighbors — note recent events in California — are beginning to get uneasy.

It seems the yen to get something for nothing has become almost irresistible. Perhaps it is not surprising that Americans are turning to slot machines and lotteries when these are not only permitted but endorsed and recommended by government.

Socialism appeals to the common man in that it holds out the promise that the state will take care of him and he will not have to exert himself — that pie-in-the-sky will be forthcoming and hence he will not have to work for a living.

We pretend to hate socialism — but we love pie-in-the-sky. Hence, we establish and support a government which is largely a game played by people in the hope of getting something for nothing.

Washington, for example, is the lottery to end all lotteries. It has sold the people as taxpayers on giving it nearly half a trillion dollars a year. It gives 37 cents of each of these dollars in direct benefit payments to individuals. Seventeen cents it gives to states and municipalities. (This figure will rise now that Washington has agreed to meet the debts of New York City's government for the next three years). Thus, over 50 percent of the Treasury's take is handed out. This is the welfare state.

Is it any wonder Americans are coming to look upon their government as a gigantic lottery out of which all are to get something for nothing?

Your money's worth Summer economy driving tips

Sylvia Porter

TIP ONE: While most of you know you should not drive on tires with no tread or with cuts or bulges in the sidewalls, eight out of 10 of you are driving your cars on underinflated tires. This is extremely hazardous because it increases your difficulty in handling your car. It also dramatically hikes your fuel consumption through raising the resistance of your tires to the road surface.

Service station air pumps are often inaccurate. Buy yourself an inexpensive tire gauge at an auto store and check your tires once a week. If you're driving a standard American-built car, 28 to 30 pounds of air is the best combination of ride and economy.

But if you're driving one of the increasingly popular subcompacts, the best combination is 24 pounds for the front tires and 28 for the rear.

TIP TWO: In the high temperatures of summer, your car requires engine oil that better retains its viscosity; so for most cars, a switch to 10W-20W-50 multigrade oil is a smart move now.

Look for oil that exceeds API service standards SE and SD — it's marked on the can. For a smaller car, the expert advice is multi-viscosity oils such as SAE 20W-40, which provides the easy starting characteristics of a 20W oil and the lubricating characteristics of a 40W oil at high temperatures. Change the oil filter at the same time if you change your oil.

TIP THREE: Because automatic transmissions take additional abuse in the summer, check the fluid level with the engine running and the transmission in park.

Periodic changing of the fluid and replacement of the filter is a wise bit of preventive medicine that most of you overlook.

As we move toward the peak summer weeks in areas all over the U.S., how you maintain and drive your car will become crucial in how much money you waste (or save) on gas, how well your car performs and how long it lasts. There are special guides for hot weather driving. In addition to the above three tips:

(4) Check the ignition timing (and reset it if necessary) at every engine tune-up, as well your distributor points and valve adjustments.

(5) Pay extra special attention to your spark plugs, points and condenser. Change your air filter and fuel filter now, if you have not already done so in the past several months.

(6) Also have the wheel alignment and balance checked when you bring in your car for its tune-up. A true-running tire not only creates less friction and drag but also economizes on fuel.

(7) Since summer driving puts a particularly heavy strain on the fan belt and accessory drive belts, make sure yours are tight, unfrayed and that the pulleys are properly aligned. Belts pulled too tight eat up gas mileage, belts too loose will break or allow your battery to run down because of reduced alternator speed or an over-heating situation.

(8) If your car has an electric cooling fan, it will be turned on automatically by a thermo switch when the engine temperature reaches a certain point — even if the ignition is not running. "Be careful when you place your hands on anything else near the cooling fan," cautions Patrick Jacquemart, an automotive engineer and auto racing competition manager at Renault USA.

(9) While you probably believe that using 100 percent radiator coolant in the cooling system protects your car at higher temperatures, that's a mistake, warns American Motors engineer Daniel Hittler. The best protection is achieved with a 50-50 ratio of coolant and water. Using more coolant than this not only costs more money but is also less effective.

Also an engine that's overheating is much more likely to fail, so 50-50 radiator coolant mix is vitally important. Today's closed cooling systems with an expansion bottle to recycle overflow coolant should not need added coolant under normal driving conditions. Never open a cooling system when hot.

(10) If you have a dubious battery, replace it now — before it gives you trouble. Batteries get overstressed in the hot summer just as much as in the coldest winter.

(11) While air conditioning is nice for you, it's tough on your engine and fuel economy. A typical air conditioner will cost three to five miles per gallon at highway speeds, when often a simple fresh air vent would keep you just as cool. Try to be judicious in use of air conditioning and you'll substantially cut your gas costs during these hottest weeks of summer.

Astral Misunderstanding

Before scientists understood seasonal changes, astronomers believed that the sun, in its apparent "path across the heavens," passed over the Tropic of Capricorn (on Dec. 21 or 22 by modern calendars) and again when it reached the Tropic of Cancer (about June 21). Ancient astronomers named each moment "solstice," from the Latin "sol," (sun) and "sistere," to stand still.

A beginning in Bonn

By DON GRAFF

It wasn't on the agenda. And it does not, at least directly, have anything to do with economics.

But the agreement on joint action to counter skyjacking could well turn out to be the most meaningful development of the seven-nation Bonn economic Summit.

At this point, there really isn't much to it — merely a three-paragraph statement in which the seven leaders express their concern over terrorism and hostage-taking and pledge their governments to halt air traffic to and from countries failing to deliver up skyjackers and skyjacked aircraft promptly.

It could, however, mark the real beginning of an effective international program to bring under control a problem which so far has defied efforts at solution by international bodies up to and including the United Nations.

There are already in existence a number of multinational agreements on air piracy. Specifically, conventions adopted by the International Civil Aviation Organization in Tokyo (1963), The Hague (1970) and Montreal (1971) defined the crime, national jurisdiction and obligations in prosecuting or extraditing offenders.

Their weakness is that the focus is on the countries in which skyjackers seek haven, with compliance remaining voluntary. And, most important, the really crucial nations — those prone to provide shelter — have declined to join the team.

The Bonn declaration is the first to commit its parties to meaningful sanctions. The seven nations do not control world air commerce. But, just as they carry the most economic clout in the non-Communist world, so are they more equal than other in the airways.

Their severing of air connections would not in itself bring the government of Algeria or Libya — to name two countries especially hospitable to skyjackers in recent years, particularly if they happen to be Palestinians or sympathizers — to its knees. But it would hurt, and it would brand an offender as no carefully vague U.N. resolution is likely ever to do.

Details of implementation are still to be worked out. And there is some bad news with the good. It is agreed that to be effective, the compact can allow no exceptions. It must apply to aircraft seized in totalitarian countries by people seeking asylum in the West.

There was no advance preparation. The suggestion was dropped into the Bonn discussions almost off the tops of their heads by Prime Ministers Takeo Fukuda of Japan and Pierre Trudeau of Canada.

It was a particularly gratifying development for the United States, which had been thinking of pushing for similar action in the United Nations but without much hope of getting it through.

Indulging in a bit of diplomatic hyperbole, President Carter sees the skyjacking declaration as alone "worth the entire preparation and conduct of the summit."

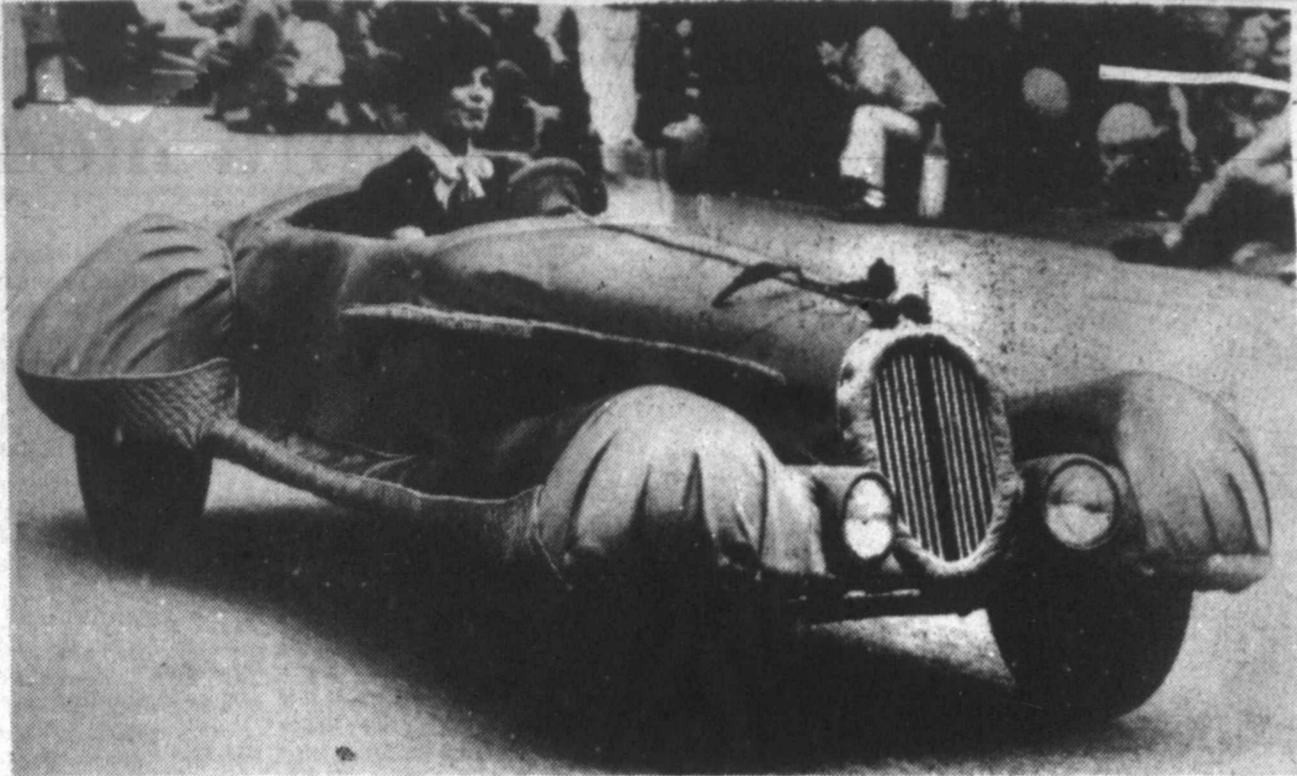

Given adequate follow-through and a little luck, he could turn out to be right.

Man indicted for Florida murders dares authorities to convict him

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — An angry, defiant Theodore Bundy, indicted for the murders of two Florida State University sorority sisters who were savagely beaten as they slept, has dared his accusers to convict him.

"You told them that you were going to get me," Bundy told Leon County Sheriff Ken Katsaris Thursday night as Katsaris read him the indictment. "OK, you got the indictment. It's all you're going to get."

The indictment returned by a Leon County grand jury includes two counts of first-degree murder, three counts of attempted murder and two counts of burglary.

Bundy, 31, a convicted kidnapper and a suspect in a string of sex slayings in the West, was to be arraigned on the indictment today.

The charges came six months and 12 days after a lone assailant entered the Chi Omega sorority house in the pre-dawn hours of Jan. 15. He crept unnoticed to the second floor of the building and bludgeoned the sleeping women with what authorities believe was a heavy club-like instrument, possibly a limb from a tree.

The assailant beat and seriously injured two other sorority sisters before he escaped, unnoticed, into the night.

An hour later, a fifth woman was beaten in her off-campus apartment. Investigators have speculated the same person was responsible for both attacks.

The murder victims were Margaret Bowman, 21, and Lisa Levy, 20, both of St. Petersburg. Authorities have said that one of the women was sexually assaulted, although they've never said which one.

The three counts of attempted murder stemmed from the beatings of Karen Chandler, 21, Tallahassee, and Katherine Kleiner, 19, Miami, members of the sorority, and Cheryl Thomas, 22, Richmond, Va.

Bundy escaped from a jail in Glenwood Springs, Colo., on New Year's Eve. He was awaiting trial for first-degree murder in the 1975 death of Caryn Campbell, a Dearborn, Mich., nurse who was raped and killed while on a skiing vacation in Aspen.

Three more test-tube babies expected

LONDON (AP) — Three more women, two of them countesses, expect test-tube babies this year, the Daily Express reported today.

Christmas and the third woman, a Scot, expects hers in November.

None of the women were identified. But the Express said the British countess, like the mother of the world's first test-tube baby born Tuesday, became pregnant after treatment by gynecologist Patrick Steptoe and physiologist Robert Edwards at the general hospital in Oldham, a mill town in northern England 190 miles northwest of London.

A fourth woman who hopes to become pregnant after conception outside the womb is under treatment in London's St.

Thomas's Hospital. She is in her 30s and is being shielded from the press, but medical sources said it would be some time before it was known if she was pregnant.

Medical history's first test-tube baby, Louise Brown, was moved from a special care unit Thursday to join her mother in the maternity ward at Oldham and District General Hospital, and a bulletin said she was "progressing very well."

The mother, Lesley Brown, who will be 31 Monday, and her husband John, 38, a truck driver who has a daughter by a previous marriage, had been unable to have children for almost 10 years of marriage because an irreparable blockage in Mrs. Brown's Fallopian tubes prevented normal conception.

The Steptoe-Edwards technique, on which the two doctors had worked for 12 years, involved removing an egg from Mrs. Brown's ovaries, fertiliz-ing it in a laboratory dish with sperm from her husband and implanting the dividing cells in her uterus about two-and-one-half days later.

The result was a blonde, chubby-cheeked, 5-pound 12-ounce girl born nine days prematurely.

Some 5,000 women are reported to have sought help from the two specialists or from others working on similar projects. Published estimates are that in Britain alone 10,000 women are infertile because of blocked Fallopian tubes.

But the British pioneers discouraged infertile women from getting their hopes up yet.

"We have a lot to learn," Edwards told a news conference. And Steptoe said Britain does not have the facilities to take care of an influx of would-be mothers from abroad.

The doctors also said they would not write the official report on their technique until they have had a vacation.

Retired generals say military captive of the administration

By RICK SCOTT Associated Press Writer DALLAS (AP) — Three retired Army generals who left the service after clashing with the civilian federal bureaucracy say the U.S. military has become a political captive of the administration in power.

The trio, addressing a conservative caucus in North Dallas late Thursday, said President Carter is ignoring the advice of his top professional military strategists and leading the nation into trouble.

"We are being led down the path of unilateral disarmament and toward our ultimate destruction," said retired Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, who clashed with Carter over plans to withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea.

Singlaub, who was chief of staff for the 8th Army in South Korea, said his reassignment and retirement this year was "designed to get the message to professional military people that the 1st Amendment guarantee of free speech does not apply to them."

Singlaub termed his removal from the Korean assignment "overkill, to say the least."

addressed an enthusiastic meeting of the Third District Conservative Caucus in an air-conditioned high school auditorium.

The organization paid the men's travel expenses to appear. About 1,000 people paid $2 each to hear them speak and enjoy patriotic marching music played over a loudspeaker system.

Following the presentation of colors, the pledge of allegiance and a lengthy prayer opening the meeting, the three generals warned that continuing bureaucratic intervention into military matters will weaken the nation's defense.

Sumner, who left the Army this year in protest of the Carter administration's handling of Latin American policies, particularly Carter's stand on the Panama Canal, said the United States is suffering from "geographic vertigo."

"We've lost our balance. We've been going from one bad decision to another one," said Sumner.

The audience, sweating in the heat, cheered and clapped wildly as the three criticized gun control, the Equal Rights Amendment, the U.S. exit from Vietnam, draft dodgers, Communism, Washington bureaucrats, the Panama Canal treaty and the anti-volunteer military.

The former generals supported increased defense spending, the neutron bomb and development of the B1 bomber.

Singlaub and Sumner said the Carter administration is muzzling the advice of its top military advisers.

"There are those who say we must have blind obedience," said Singlaub, "but we need more open discussion."

Sumner, the only active duty military officer to testify against the Panama Canal treaties, said the Carter administration "is trying to politicize the military in this country, which has been apolitical since the beginning, and this is a dangerous step," said Sumner.

"We're expected to show up at congressional hearings in uniform and give the impression that we were in on the decisions and that we support them and approve of them," he said.

Lewis, who said he retired last year after becoming "fed up with the civilian mismanagement and Washington bureaucracy," said he, Sumner and Singlaub did not challenge the concept of civilian control over the military.

American journalists must have permits to enter Mexico

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Mexican officials, apparently upset about recent U.S. news coverage of local events, have given notice that journalists from north of the border must obtain permits to work here.

A South Texas television reporter was taken to an immigration office here Thursday and warned not to return without a permit.

"They're very mad at you people," U.S. Consul Francis Arenz told a reporter. "They think you have a conspiracy against Mexico."

Jeff Walker of KRGV-TV in Weslaco was allowed to leave after the warning was issued. He and partner Jose Luis Madrigal were interviewing a police official when the immigration officials intervened.

"They said American news is no good for Matamoros," Madrigal said.

The reporters were working on a story concerning a Central American girl who was reportedly kidnapped here two weeks ago. The girl was located in Brownsville Wednesday.

"It was a bit of fear and a lot of confusion," Walker said after the incident.

The reporter said he was taken to an office while an immigration official called Mexico City. Walker said he spent about 40 minutes awaiting the official's decision.

He was told not to return without the permit and then to

Consumer prices rose in June, for third month

By MICHAEL DOAN
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose 0.9 percent for the third month in a row in June, as the average worker continued to lose ground to inflation, the Labor Department said today.

The cost of food, housing and automobiles led the big increases in prices, which have continued steadily since the start of the year.

Consumer prices would rise 11.4 percent if the trend of the past three months continued for a full year, the department said.

The Carter administration predicts price increases will not be as large in the next six months and is banking on a downturn in food costs.

The department said the average worker's purchasing power declined 0.4 percent in June, the second drop in a row. The worker made 0.5 percent more in hourly wages, just over half the increase in prices.

The prices consumers pay for food jumped sharply by 1.3 percent last month, and beef prices continued to spiral by 5.6 percent.

"Beef prices this June were 30.7 percent higher than in October 1977, when the current uptrend began," the Labor Department said.

The cost of poultry, dairy products, cereal, bread, oils and sugar increased in June, but prices of vegetables, pork, eggs and coffee declined from May.

Home-ownership costs rose 1.2 percent in June, as housing prices and mortgage interest rates continued to move up.

Electricity costs, which have risen rapidly since January, climbed a substantial 2.6 percent in June, the department said. A mail rate increase pushed postal costs up 14 percent, the first big increase since early 1976.

Natural gas and fuel oil prices rose moderately, while telephone charges were unchanged, as they have been most of the year.

New-car prices went up 0.9 percent after rising 1.2 percent in May, reflecting higher price tags for imported autos and recent increases by U.S. auto-makers.

However, airline, taxicab and long-distance bus rates declined in June, and gasoline prices dropped slightly.

Despite the generally bleak report, the department said the cost of entertainment declined in June by 0.2 percent because of lower prices for sporting goods, toys, hobbies and music equipment.

Consumer prices last month were 7.4 percent higher than in June 1977. The department said the Consumer Price Index stood at 195.3, meaning that prices were 95.3 percent higher than in the base period of 1967.

In advance of today's report, top presidential trade and inflation aide Robert S. Strauss said, "June is going to be another bad month."

In presenting his 1979 budget in January, President Carter predicted prices would rise 6.1 percent this year, less than the 6.8 percent price climb of 1977.

But food and housing prices shot up rapidly in the first five months of the year, and administration officials slowly raised their targets.

On July 6, government economists increased their inflation prediction to 7.2 percent. And on Wednesday, Strauss said inflation could "very easily" climb above 7.2 percent.

In the first five months of the year, consumer prices were rising at an annual rate of almost 10 percent. That means every product costing $100 on Jan. 1 would cost $110 by year's end if the trend continued.

Even though Strauss says the 10 percent rate shouldn't continue because of predicted food price declines, he concedes that the inflation of the first half of 1978 will make it hard to slow inflation sufficiently in the second half to hold the line at a 7.2 percent yearly increase, he said.

The administration has also had to raise its estimate of food prices. The Agriculture Department started the year predicting a 4 percent to 6 percent increase for the year, then raised the estimate gradually to 8 percent to 10 percent last month. Other officials say that 10 percent is a more accurate prediction because of bad growing conditions last winter and dwindling cattle herds.

On a brighter note for the administration, the unemployment rate has dropped much more rapidly than expected.

In January, the administration said unemployment would be 6.3 percent by the end of the year. Only halfway through the year it is already down to 5.7 percent.

On Thursday, Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon had more predictions for a better economic picture when he said U.S. oil imports will continue to decline this year.

Solomon said the decline will lead to a stronger position for the dollar on foreign currency markets, a continuing worry for economists and American consumers of imported goods. Likewise, he said, the U.S. trade deficit should also decline.

The Treasury official said the drop in oil imports should total one million barrels a day by year's end. For the first half of 1978, the decline totaled 200 million barrels.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, and I've had terrible luck with dudes. I've had two illegitimate babies, which I gave up for adoption.

I'm ashamed to admit it, Abby, but I'm pregnant again. I will have to give this one up, too, because the guy I'm having the baby for can't marry me. He's in prison now and I just found out he's married and has five kids, so maybe it's all for the best that it worked out this way.

I want to put my past behind me and start a new life, but here is my problem: I have some very bad stretch marks on my stomach as a result of my pregnancies, and they're so noticeable I can't even wear a bikini.

Please tell me if I have to carry these ugly stretch marks for the rest of my life, or is there some way to get rid of them?

STRETCH MARKS IN THOMASVILLE

DEAR STRETCH MARKS: A plastic surgeon can tell you if your stretch marks can be removed. In the meantime, you had better learn something about birth control as well as self-control. I think you've been stretching your luck too far.

DEAR ABBY: This probably won't make your column, but for the sake of all men who have fat wives, I hope it does.

My old lady is 5 feet 2 and she tips the scale at 225 pounds, but as long as she is happy, so am I.

Our children love her, I worship her, and her friends adore her. She's a wonderful cook and housekeeper, and she always dresses neat and smells fresh and clean. She's never nervous or grouchy like most women who are always on some crazy starvation diet. To me, she is the perfect wife, and I tell her so. I couldn't be more anxious to get home to her every evening if she looked like Miss Universe.

SATISFIED WITH MY OLD LADY

DEAR SATISFIED: If you're satisfied with your "old lady," fine. But is her doctor satisfied? Ask any insurance expert how many years of life one can deduct for each 10 pounds of overweight.

Appearance isn't everything, but if you want that wonderful wife around to "worship" in your old age, start giving her some food—for thought!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is doing something that I think is wrong, but I need someone to back me up. Our son, 5, is left-handed, so every time my husband sees him doing something with his left hand, he gives him a smack and makes him try to do it with his right hand.

My husband says that when he was a boy he was also left-handed, or started out to be, but he had a teacher who used to force him to use his right hand instead of his left, and she finally broke him of the habit. He says he is thankful to that teacher because all the tools and things are made for right-handed people, and it is a handicap to be a lefty.

Is this true or not? Our son is now writing with his right hand, but he wets the bed. Please help me.

MOM: LONGVIEW, TEXAS

DEAR MOM: The inconvenience of being left-handed is nothing compared to the emotional damage a child might suffer from being forced to use his right hand. Tell your husband to keep his hands off the boy!

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We need your advice. My husband has high blood pressure and takes one Hydrodiuril and one Apressoline each day. Recently he read an article that said a drink of alcohol a day is good for high blood pressure so in the evening he takes a shot of whiskey. He says it helps him relax. I am worried that it doesn't mix with his medication. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER — I really hate to see anyone develop a regular alcohol habit such as a drink a day for any reason. An occasional social cocktail is one thing but a regular habit is somewhat undesirable.

There are studies that show that at least drinking moderate to excessive amounts of alcohol increase the likelihood of having high blood pressure. There was also a spate of news stories not too long back about drinking protecting people from heart attacks.

I'm sorry to say that the new stories weren't really representative of the true nature of the scientific articles that were published in medical journals and dwelled upon the sensational rather than the factual. The truth is that individuals having one to two drinks a day in one study showed a lower instance of heart attacks than those who did not drink. The rest of the story is that those who drank more had an increased rate of heart attacks. Associated with the mechanism were changes in the blood fat compositions which may be related to a decrease in the amount of circulating male hormones in those who used the alcohol.

In any case the best method to prevent heart attacks, strokes and complications from fatty cholesterol deposits is a program to control high blood pressure, if a person has it as in your husband's case, to get as lean as possible and stay lean. Eat a diet that is low in fat, particularly low in saturated fat and cholesterol. Of course smoking should be scrupulously avoided.

I doubt that the one small drink an evening is going to harm your husband but I hope he will not use that as a substitute for a much more important and basic program that he could follow to help him control his medical problems.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure to give you more information on how it is controlled and factors that affect it. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Just what is the caffeine content in ordinary decaffeinated coffee, 97 percent caffeine free? Does that mean that 3 percent of the coffee is caffeine?

DEAR READER — No, that's sometimes confusing to people but what it really means is, of all the caffeine that would normally be in the coffee 97 percent of it has been removed. That means there is only a trace of caffeine in the coffee. Such a negligible amount is inconsequential.

That's why individuals who cannot drink coffee because they don't tolerate caffeine well and don't need all that stimulation from it can often tolerate decaffeinated products.

DEAR POLLY — It is usually so hard to get all the mayonnaise out from the bottom and sides of the large jars. But now that I use a rubber spatula for this the jar can be cleaned out very easily. — JEAN

DEAR POLLY — I am a nurse's aid in a hospital and my white nursing shoes have to stay white. When I do not have time to polish them I use an alcohol swab on them and the dirt marks come off nicely. — DEBBIE B.

DEAR POLLY — I save paper grocery bags. To keep them neat I have stretched one-half inch elastic to the side of a kitchen cabinet and put tacks for each size bag. They stay neat with the sizes together and are out of the way. — CHRISTINE

DEAR POLLY — I would like to share a Pointer on the care of refrigerator gaskets that was given to me by a repair man. Wash them with a mild solution every month or two and dry completely before applying a very light application of petroleum jelly. Be sure and treat well into all the creases. — MRS. E. B.

Thelma Moriltrie tries for third title

By KATHY BURR
Pampa News Staff

Some people are born as leaders and others are born as followers. Thelma Moriltrie is a leader.

On August 5 Thelma, a former Pampa resident, will leave Dallas for the Miss Black America pageant in Philadelphia.

This is the third title she is vying for in a few months time period. On June 19, Thelma was named Miss Black Dallas Chamber of Commerce, and on June 22 she was crowned Miss Black America of Texas.

How long has she spent preparing for the Miss Black America pageant. "I've been getting ready since June 23, and I'm getting tired," she said.

Thelma's talent number for the pageant is a ballad entitled "God Bless the Children." Thelma explained that the ballad music is an extension of herself. Part of her preparation for the pageant includes voice lessons, and the choreographing of her number.

Thelma has also been working with a wardrobe designer, a make-up artist, and has spent time trying to get financial backing.

What would possess someone to enter so many pageants, and

Agent attends state meeting

County Extension Agent, Mrs. Elaine Houston, will attend a statewide professional conference on "Develop Family Potentials" in Houston Aug. 24. This will be the 35th annual meeting of the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists (TAEHA).

The conference objectives include analyzing, and understanding today's family and self, programs and activities to reach today's families, developing potentials and designing the future.

spend so much time on a contest. Thelma says the pageants are really more than a contest, they are part of being a total woman. She said, "It's a growing process and a learning process that involves me and other people." This is part of the reason Thelma is looking forward to the pageant. "I will enjoy interacting with others." Thelma also sees the pageant as an opportunity to get some national exposure, plus "I'll win."

When Thelma was asked what she saw after the pageant she said, "I'll probably win, and I'll take some music lessons."

Thelma's leadership ability started when she was in high school. She was the first black cheerleader at Pampa High School, and was the first black cheerleader at West Texas State University, where she received a degree in psychology in 1975. How did she feel about being a first? "I had to fight to get in, but once I got in I thought it was nice." She added, "I am a leader, I'm aggressive and I enjoy doing my best."

Presently, Thelma is working for the IBM Corporation in Dallas. But her job isn't the only reason she's in Dallas. Thelma enjoys being near the theatre and fashions, and in addition to that she has opportunities to do some modeling for some various companies. Modeling was something Thelma started doing her sophomore year in college and so far she hasn't quit.

Where does she go from here—well leaders usually rise to the top.

Fashions include quilted jackets

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - The Chinese never suffered from intellectual tunnel vision, that's for sure. They dabbled in this and came up with that, practically on command.

What do you need, something to pour tomato sauce and parmesan cheese over? Here, they said, try these stringy noodles and call them spaghetti if you want to. We're too polite to chortle in your face.

Is your neighbor giving you a hard time about the old mill stream? Put some of this powder in your musket, stick it in his face and see if he doesn't come to terms before the sun goes down.

Now, for our own women-folk, we've come up with a new kind of sewing, they said long ago. You take two slices of fabric, jam some goose-down in between, and then stitch them together. Do those teeny little stitches you're so good at, all over the fabric, nice and neat and geometrical. You just keep stitching there sewing and we'll let you know when the softball game starts.

What the Chinese had come up with that time, according to designer Robert David Morton, was quilting, which he thinks is a fine idea come December when you're going to a posh affair and don't want to wear your ski parka over your Halston frock.

"I've done quilted evening jackets because it was so cold last winter," he said recently from under his hat (which he's wearing full-time until his hairplant gets finished).

"For another thing, quilting is an indestructible idea and if you use an iron fabric like Qiana, you can wear these things forever."

Year after year, formal dance after fireman's ball, you can keep showing up in his quilted oversized man's smoking jacket with its big shawl collar and patch pockets inside and out so you don't lose the tickets. Not only is it poly-cotton, it's reversible so you can pull the sleeves in from a rust, pink and gray mille fleurs print out to a solid wine, for $120.

Or you might like his quilted square-necked tunic in black that goes over matching black, slinky pants. "Quilted but bare for sex appeal," he said, for $140.

"They're all lightweight and easy for a woman to be in," he went on. "Just as warm as a fur coat and safer. In fact, a woman can wear a quilted jacket under a fur coat if she wants."

And don't worry about the stitching being avant garde. He's used a horizontal rib or a honeycomb stitch because they're classical. Here yesterday, here tomorrow.

Finally, because he's got polyfiber stuck in the middle of his quiltings instead of goose-down, you won't have to worry about the stench of feathers if you fall down in the snow. Chances are those Chinese women didn't have to worry about that anyway.

Happiness to be promoted

A special program to promote happiness in the home will be conducted July 30 - August 3 at Mary Ellen Harvester Church of Christ. Dr. Kenneth G. Dye of Stillwater, Okla., the executive director for the Institute of Family Strengths, will be the speaker.

Dye, a minister of the gospel in Stillwater, is a member of the American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors, editor of the Family magazine, and state treasurer of the Oklahoma Association of Marriage and Family Counselors.

Owen Gee will deliver sermon

Owen Gee will deliver a sermon entitled "Satisfaction Guaranteed" Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray St. Elder Betty Hallerberg will assist in the pulpit.

Junior High Fellowship will meet at the church at 5:30 p.m. Sunday. The Summer School of Faith will begin August 6 with Rev. Tom Boyd of O.U. presenting the sermon, and will continue through August 7.

Religious Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — A leader of a Riverside Church group concerned about handicapped persons says that "one of the most oppressive systems in our society is the transportation system."

Ruth Elizabeth Knaff, head of Mainstream, says "if the churches are truly concerned about oppressed people, they must realize that disabled people are not worried about where they can sit on the bus — front or back — because they can't even get on that bus at the moment."

ECONE, Switzerland (AP) — Still defying papal orders, Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre has ordained 16 more priests into his traditionalist movement, including two Americans.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Eight bishops in Alabama — Episcopal, Roman Catholic and United Methodist — have issued a joint pastoral letter opposing capital punishment. They said there is no evi-and Nelson Street, will be held July 30 during the morning worship hour, beginning at 10:50 a.m.

Dr. Boswell, 43, a native of Fort Worth, has served as pastor of the First Christian Church of Brady, Texas since 1962. He holds a BA degree from Atlantic Christian College and the degrees of master of divinity and doctor of ministry from Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University. His leadership offices held in various civic and church organizations include president, vice president and Christian Youth Fellowship Chairman for District 6.

Boswell served as chaplain for the interdenominational US Army Chapel at Fort Richardson, Alaska.

He was called as senior minister for First Christian Church beginning July 1, 1978.

Rev. Veach, 28, was called as associate minister beginning July 15, 1978. A native of Oregon, he holds a degree in pastoral ministry from Northwest Christian College in Eugene, Oregon, and will serve the Pampa church for an extended period prior to entering seminary to continue his preparation for the ministry. His experiences include service as youth minister for First Christian Church of Springfield, Oregon, and supply pastor for Franklin Christian Church-Church of Christ in Franklin, Oregon.

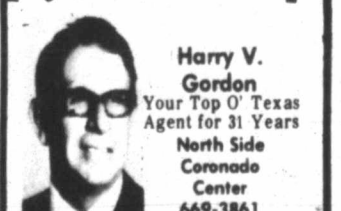

Immediately following Sunday's installation service and morning worship there will be an informal coffee hour in the Fellowship Hall of the church, for all visitors to stay and meet the new ministers and visit with the membership.

A fellowship dinner honoring the ministers and their families will be held at 6:30 p.m. Sunday and everyone is invited to attend. The Sunshine Choir will present a brief program in song, and Dr. John Steward, professor of Biblical Studies at the Texas Christian University Seminary, will be the guest speaker.

An investment in Your Future ATTEND CHURCH COMMUNICATION

ATTEND CHURCH

Telephone lines spread across our nation, giving us immediate contact with loved ones. Vital business is rapidly contracted through this medium.

Our linkage to God is prayer. Through prayer we can express our love, our thanks, and seek God's help.

"Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray."

Attend church, join others in fellowship and prayer to God.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Chinese build home for 2,11 2,100-year-old army

By C.C. MINICLER
Associated Press Writer
HSIYANG VILLAGE, China (AP) — Beyond orchards of pomegranates and apricots, and a few lily ponds, the People's Republic of China is building a room vast enough to house an army.

Indeed, the room will do just that, covering more than 6,400 life-sized pottery figures of soldiers, cavalrymen, war chariots and horses that were buried here 209 years before the birth of Christ.

The army has been called the archeological find of the century. Each figure has an individual face representing soldiers of the Emperor China Shih Huang, who first united China and built the Great Wall.

The soldiers wear different, appropriate uniforms and the horses look alert. Indeed, the entire formation appears ready to do battle at the slightest provocation.

A single-span roof measuring 238 feet by 673 feet will arch over the archeological site in Shensi Province in central China. The site, which was accidentally found by well diggers in 1974, was seen in last April's National Geographic magazine.

Since 1974, second and third burial sites of life-sized figures were found nearby. Seventeen test holes led to the belief that there are 1,100 more figures inside the second site. The sites have been reburied to protect the pottery figures until the roof is finished.

All three sites are to the east of the tomb of Emperor Chin, founder of the Chin Dynasty. Historical writings suggest that the tomb, whose outer wall is almost 25 miles in circumference, exceeds that of Egypt's King Tut in riches.

Records show it took hundreds of thousands of workers 38 years to build the tomb, which includes palaces, rare treasures from different parts of China, a ceiling in which stars are represented by pearls and a map of China on the floor, with streams of mercury for rivers.

Yang Chen-Ching, head of the preparations office for the Museum of Battle Troops of the Emperor Chin Shih Huang, told an interviewer there are no present plans to dig up the pyramid-shaped tomb.

Since discovery of the first pit, now being roofed over, and the two others, workers have found pottery figures of officials to the west of the tomb and buildings to the north. To the south is a hill.

Yang said up to 500 men worked in the initial building of the protective roof and some 200 men are now finishing the job. Next year, archeologists plan to unearth the figures beneath it, digging up a breathtaking exhibition which has been in place for 2,180 years.

By Communist China's 30th birthday, on Oct. 1, 1979, Yang hopes the museum will be open. Visitors will find ranks of troops, accompanied by horses and chariots, facing them as they enter from the east.

Yang said some 960 life-sized figures of soldiers, each with individual faces and differing hair styles, were found in the first two pits. Test diggings in the second pit unearthed wooden chariots, drivers, a general, pottery horses, cavalrymen and foot soldiers.

The soldiers were originally brightly painted judging from bits of paint found around the figures and from tests made on the carefully moulded uniforms.

In the second pit, found in May 1976, there are also crossbows and bronze arrowheads, spear blades and fragments of swords.

The swords, made of a mixture of 13 alloys, are virtually rust free. An intricate mechanism housing the trigger for a crossbow is one of the relics Yang is keeping to display in the museum.

Officials from American museums visited the site this spring and gave Yang copies of the National Geographic feature. Asked if there were plans to ship some of the soldiers to the United States, Yang said that would have to be worked out in Peking and Washington.

To date three of the figures, two men and a horse, have been sent to a museum at Peking's Forbidden City. One soldier is on display in Hong Kong, and others are in the local village museum and, at Sian, the 3,000-year-old walled capital of Shensi Province, which is in central China and is bounded by the Yellow River and the Great Wall.

Tourists are not allowed to photograph the seven soldiers and two horses displayed here but marvel at the individuality of the terra cotta figures.

Research archeologist Wu Pai Lun told an interviewer that 300 years before Emperor Chin died it was traditional to bury an emperor's bodyguards and close entourage alive — with his remains.

Chin, buried in 209 B.C., chose instead to bury lifelike figures. He was not entirely benevolent, however. Yang said some 450 Confucian scholars were buried alive to stifle their opposition to Chin's reforms, but he disputed reports that they were beheaded.

Congress gets brief lesson concerning barnyard sex

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been handed a brief lecture on barnyard sex education and how the biological cycles of cattle, hogs and chickens affect the food supply.

The rudiments of livestock reproduction were included Tuesday in testimony by Howard W. Hjort, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, before the domestic marketing, consumer relations and nutrition subcommittee of the House.

Hjort's main job was to explain food prices and the administration's goal of putting together an effective national food policy.

One of the main reasons that food prices are going up faster this year than in 1977 — a projected gain of 8 percent to 10 percent against 6.3 percent — is that farm prices of meat animals are much higher than they were.

Hjort explained that weather conditions, a prime factor in crop output, also can bear heavily on livestock production.

"Severe cold in the hog producing states last winter, and the reduction in the cattle inventory since 1975, were to a large extent the most important factors responsible for the rapid increase in meat prices this year," he said.

The sharp reduction in the cattle inventory, triggered by depressed market prices, has been the backdrop for the current livestock situation and the outlook for many months ahead, however.

Hjort said that in addition to the economic and weather factors there are "biological and genetic realities" to consider in producing food.

"In many cases, it is simply impossible to increase the production of one food product when another has been adversely affected by weather," he said. "For example, 27 months are required from the time a beef cow is bred until the offspring reaches slaughter weight."

"Furthermore, if the first offspring is retained to increase the herd (the production plant), it could be five and a half years from the time the first calf is retained until the first offspring reaches slaughter," he said.

"For the hog producer, this adjustment period is much shorter, about two and a half years. Broiler production, on the other hand, can be increased in about a three-month period."

Cattle producers responded to favorable prices during the late 1960s and early 1970s by expanding their herds. Hjort said that this expansion continued because of "biological thrust" after prices declined to unfavorable levels for producers.

The total Jan. 1 cattle inventory rose from 108.8 million head in 1967 to a record of 132 million head in 1975. Last Jan. 1 the inventory was cutback to 116.3 million head.

A mid-year report issued by USDA Wednesday put the July 1 inventory — which historically larger than the Jan. 1 count because of the annual crop of new calves — at about 121.6 million head, down 7 percent from 130.2 million a year ago.

Farm roundup

Thus, department experts believe that the inventory for Jan. 1, 1979 will show a further reduction from the beginning of this year, indications that a massive rebuilding of cattle herds has not taken a strong hold at this time.

Although the "biological and genetic realities" described by Hjort at the hearing are common knowledge to farmers and ranchers, his report may have helped provide city consumers with a little perspective on how hamburger and pork chops are produced before they reach the supermarket.

In the case of cattle, Hjort said, after a heifer calf is born it take 14 to 18 months for the animal to reach maturity for breeding. Then its pregnancy lasts nine months. After that, assuming the calf is another heifer wanted for the breeding herd, another 14 to 18 months is needed before it is ready for breeding. That calf then needs 17 to 19 months of "growing" before it is ready to be slaughtered as beef.

Thus, it can take more than 60 months — five years — to produce a beef animal for consumers from the time a farmer or rancher decides to expand his herd.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S. farm exports set a one-month record of more than $2.7 billion in May, says the Agriculture Department.

That was up about 23 percent from $2.2 billion worth of farm products shipped abroad in May, 1977, the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service said Wednesday.

Exports in March and April of this year were worth about $2.2 billion, the agency said in a new issue of "Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States."

Department experts have forecast that farm exports this fiscal year ending Sept. 30 may be a record over-all of $25.5 billion, up from the previous high of slightly more than $24 billion in

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

July 29, 1978

This coming year it is very likely you'll join an organization where you will play a prominent role. Many new adventures are awaiting you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Discuss your newest interest today, especially if you find yourself at a large gathering. There's a possibility of meeting someone who can be very helpful. Find out more of what lies ahead for you by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be in the center stage today, pulling off something important to you, but there's a person behind the curtains who helped put you there.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Reworking or reviving an old idea you've had may promise to bear fruit in the future. Knowledge and experience will be your best allies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone important to your plans will come through for you today and provide the bold measures necessary for you to obtain success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Include your friends in your plans today. They can be most helpful in your efforts to work something out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) With cooperation of strong coworkers today you should be able to complete a major project long on the drawing board.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Plan to be among friends if you haven't already done so. You'll be in one of your moods to explore new vistas with good companions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's your nature to be helpful when you can. Today, even though you're not seeking profit, there are large returns for services you perform.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is a good day to discuss matters close to your heart with your mate or loved one. A mutual understanding can be reached.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Opportunities to acquire something of value will be presented to you today. It's possible this will benefit the whole family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) After a hectic week this should be a fun day socially. Your bright, sparkling attitude makes you popular as well as nice to be around.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You shouldn't have to push to have things go your way today. The more you roll with events, the more good things can come through.

Wilder hooked on 72s

San Antonio's Web Wilder is afflicted with a malady that most golfers would be glad to have. He's hooked on 72s.

Wilder fired his third straight one-over-par 72 Thursday in the third round of the Tri-State Senior Golf Association's 44th Annual Tournament. In the process, Wilder reduced the field of challengers with a realistic chance to catch him to five.

J.B. White equaled Wilder's 72 Thursday and trailed the leader by two strokes going into Friday's final round. A pair of 73s in White's first two rounds are the margin, or difference between him and Wilder.

Still in contention at 220 was Roy Peden, who recorded the day's best score at 70. A three-man logjam at 221 has first-round leader J. Carroll Weaver, Pampa's Ed Myatt and C. L. Duniven Jr. tied at five strokes behind Wilder.

The rest of the Championship Flight includes C.R. Hefner, who has recorded three straight 74s for a 222 total. Fay Hixon is at 223. Woodrow Gray at 224 and defending champ Harold DeLong of Shawnee, Okla., was tied with Mel Shaffer at 225.

Wilder is gunning for his third championship in the annual event. His previous titles came in 1972 and 1976, and Wilder has been the tournament's runner-up three times.

In the President's Flight, C.C. Dugger ran away from the rest of the field by recording a 71. His 225 total is six strokes better than Bud McKinney and Bob Selman, tied for second at 231.

Bill DeFee was at 232. Frank McAleavey had a 233 and Charles Kemp and E.V. Price were deadlocked at 234.

The nine lower flights were reduced to four players each with Thursday's match play results. The four finalists in each flight will play stroke play Friday to determine the individual championships.

Here are the finalists for the lower flights:

First flight — Harold F. Smith, Tom Morris, Fred Neslage, Floyd Watson.

Second flight — Otis Garner, Oliver Waters, Doug Roush, Boyd Stephens.

Third flight — Ray Dunkin, W.O. Taylor, Otis Nace, Terrill Sharp.

Fourth flight — L. Whiteaker, Wiley Reynolds, Arthur Duggan, D.A. Harkrider.

Fifth flight — Frank Maerz, R.A. Washburn, Vester Smith, Leon Williams.

Sixth flight — Tom Foster, H.G. Sharp, L.E. Bradshaw, Charles Linton.

Seventh flight — Douglas Newton, W.G. Hopkins, Frank Gipson, Dr. L.W. McClendon.

Eighth flight — David Reeves, Al Elrod, M.F. Robertson, Jack Sisemore.

Ninth flight — Buster Owens, Bailey Averitt, L.B. Penick, F.B. Martin.

Dumas selected to play in bowl game

Gary Dumas has been selected to play in the 29th Annual Greenbelt Bowl All-Star Football Classic in Childress August 11.

Dumas was chosen for his outstanding performance as a member of the Pampa High School team in 1977.

College recruiters from throughout the Southwest will be in Childress for the event, which has a long list of college and professional players from its past games. Such individuals as Mike Hargrove of the Texas Rangers, Dr. Frank Ryan of the Cleveland Browns and Jerry Tubbs and Bob Harrison of Oklahoma University have played in the game and gone on to notable sports careers.

Dumas will be in Childress for a week's preparation prior to the game, which is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Other activities for the week include a picnic and queen contest, a golf tournament for high school and college coaches and a mini coaching clinic.

Tough defense could help South

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — South All-Star basketball Coach Bob Latham of Houston Westchester says he's going to try something different against the North tonight in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star basketball game-play tournament.

"These all-star games usually turn into free wheeling shooting games but we're actually going to try and play some defense," said Latham, who must overcome the North's superior height.

A victory by the South also would even the 34-game series at 17-17 and give the Rebs three straight victories.

"I'm sure there will be some running but we're going to have to play some defense if we have a chance to win," said Latham.

North Coach Al Oglesby of Odessa Permian has the luxury of five players over 6-6, including Anthony Lee of Tyler and James Griffin of Fort Worth Dunbar, both 6-9 and Lamessa's Eddy Kerr, the tallest player in the game at 6-10.

Lee, who averaged 23 points as a senior last season and plans to attend the University of Washington this fall, has issued a warning to any South player who might try to penetrate the North's inside defenses.

"There's no way they (South) are going to mess with us inside," Lee said. "I feel the South will have to shoot from the outside because the North will be the inside blocked."

Lee and Griffin, scheduled to attend the University of Illinois, likely will get plenty of help from Whitehouse's Dwight Pettigrew, David Little of Abilene and Mike Allen of Highland Park.

"The most pleasant surprise of our workouts has been Pettigrew," Oglesby said. "He is much quicker than we originally thought and will be able to help us a lot."

Pettigrew, 6-3, hit 58 per cent of his shots last season for an 30 points per game average.

Allen, son of Southern Methodist basketball coach Sonny Allen, averaged 26 points for Highland Park last season, shot 52 per cent from the field and had 252 assists.

The South's chances likely will depend on the shooting skills of Houston Westchester's Joe Costello, Beaumont South Park's Arthur Gray and West Osco's Jerry Davis.

Davis averaged 34.4 points last season and led his West Osco team to the Class 3A state tournament three straight years. Gray averaged 21 points and 15 rebounds per game last season and was a Class 3A second team all-state selection.

Terry Teagle of Broadus, who averaged 30 points per game last year and was an all-tournament selection three straight years at the state tournament, could help the South cause if he recovers from an ankle injury suffered on the first day of practice.

The coaching school finale is scheduled Saturday night with the North-South All-Star football game in the Astrodome.

Swiaki tosses four-hitter

By The Associated Press
San Antonio Dodgers pitcher Bill Swiaki allowed only four hits as he pitched the Dodgers to a 5-0 Texas League baseball victory over the Arkansas Travelers Thursday night.

In other Texas League action, Midland blasted Tulsa, 14-3. Jackson swept a doubleheader from El Paso by scores of 1-0 and 2-1, and Shreveport beat Amarillo, 12-9.

Swiaki struck out eight Travelers in his third professional start since he was drafted. He is now 2-1. Arkansas pitcher Pat Darcy, who gave up three hits in the five innings he worked, was the losing pitcher. He is now 5-4.

Jackson Mets pitchers gave up only six hits in the doubleheader sweep. Larry Prewitt, who was working on a no hitter when he had to leave after five innings because of an arm problem, was the winner. He is now 7-3. Reliever Dennis Solari gave up only one hit in the remaining two innings to preserve the shutout. Chuck Porter, now 6-3, was the losing pitcher.

The Mets got only four hits in the opener, but one was a triple by Mookie Wilson to drive in Bobby Bryant with the only run Jackson needed.

Jeff Reardon, now 13-3, gave up only five hits and one run in the nightcap. Dave Steck, who also allowed only five hits, took the loss. He is 8-9.

Jackson scored the two runs when Kelvin Chapman scored on a fielder's choice and later on a sacrifice fly by Stan Hough. El Paso's only run came on Bob Clark's 23rd homer.

Joe Hernandez' grand slam homer in the fifth inning helped Tulsa blast Midland, 14-3. Herman Segelke, now 5-5, was the winning Drillers pitcher. Dave Curtcher, now 1-2, was the losing Cubs pitcher.

Richard maintains reserved attitude

HOUSTON (AP) — Although he has three 1978 two-hitters to his credit and is running away with the National League strikeout championship, Astro right-hander J.R. Richard is trying to maintain a low-key attitude toward his accomplishments.

"I just try to go out there and throw strikes," said Richard after striking out nine Mets while firing his third two-hitter of the year in Houston's 8-3 romp over the Mets Thursday night.

"Records don't mean anything to me. I just let everything take care of itself," Richard said.

Richard raised his major league leading strike out total to 194 while improving his record to 10-9 as the Astros captured their fourth straight victory.

The Mets collected both hits off Richard in the fourth on Tim Lincecum's single and Willie Montanez' 14th homerun of the season, a towering two-run

Texas gets pitcher more than one run

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers finally got Jon Matlack more than one run and he was almost too sick to enjoy it.

A drained Matlack, who has permitted only seven earned runs in 60 and two-thirds innings, scattered seven hits Thursday night as the Rangers tripped the Boston Red Sox 3-1.

"I've had a head cold for five days and it's not a nice feeling," said Matlack, who has the second best earned run average in the American League and a mediocre 8-8 record.

In his last 34 innings, Texas has scored Matlack only six runs.

If Matlack had been provided with just three runs a game, his record would be 13-3.

"Those runs were a long time coming," said Matlack.

Texas got an unearned run in the fourth inning on Boston third baseman Butch Hobson's throwing error and rocked Luis Tiant in the fifth inning with blasts into the right field seats.

New York scored its only other run of the game in the seventh on walks to Lee Mazzilli and Doug Flynn sandwiched around three wild pitches by Richard.

"You have to put him right up there with the hardest throwers in the League," Montanez said. "He was throwing his breaking ball over for strikes, and when ever he does that you know he's going to be tough."

The Astros scored three first inning runs against losing pitcher Tom Hausman, 2-1, on back-to-back triples by Terry Puhl and Dave Bergman. Enos Cabell's run-scoring single and Art Howe's sacrifice fly.

Puhl's second inning sacrifice fly drive in Houston's fourth run, preceding a two-run third inning highlighted by Bob Watson's RBI single and a balk by Hausman.

homeruns by Bump Wills and Mike Hargrove.

Tiant allowed only four hits but lost his third game in 10 decisions.

Matlack yielded a third inning homer to Sam Bowen—the first major league hit for the Red Sox's utility outfielder—then cruised to the victory.

"It's a funny thing but the last two starts I felt good when I started but ran out of gas," said Matlack. "I think I need to sleep for five days."

"I had to be careful toward the end of the game. In fact I had to be damn careful. I was so tired I could have gotten into a lot of trouble."

Boston, now just four and a half games ahead of Milwaukee in the AL East, fielded a patchwork lineup for the game. Shortstop Rick Burleson and center fielder Fred Lynn were out with ankle injuries and left fielder Carl Yastremski has an aggravated back.

The Light Side

GRAFTON, Ohio (AP) — When village officials became concerned that workers would get injured mowing grass at the hilly sewer plant site, they obtained six sheep from Grafton resident James McKeen.

But the animals avoided the slopes, preferring to munch more level ground. Not deterred, village administrator Carl Essex returned to McKeen and persuaded him this time to donate two goats. They don't seem to mind the exercise walking up and down the hill.

The grass is neater than ever.

Many people anxious to enter coronary classics around country

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) — I ran into a neighbor the other day running out of a bookstore with one of those run-for-your-health books under his arm like he hadn't paid for it. He had on those zippered longjohns Bruce Jenner wears when he spoons his breakfast cereal, heel-less sneakers and little sweat socks with pom-poms, each of course is the ritual gear these days for the joggers who throng our highways and by-ways like sheep in Ireland. In the driveway he almost ran down a lady in satin shorts jogging in the other direction. Not since Pheidippides, the Greek who began the rage by running himself to death without benefit of satin scanties on the original run from Athens to Marathon, has there been such a cavalry charge of bipeds on our public thoroughfares, both urban and rural.

Fred Lebow, who honchos the New York City Marathon in which commuters try to out run the muggers, reports he now has five cardboard boxes full of applicants, each box containing 3,000 names, for the October coronary classic. Almost as many as ran for Mayor last time when Ed Koch, a jogger, won.

Close on New York's heels, the 26.2-mile Mayor Daley jogfest in Chicago in September is expecting 10,000 marathoners to puff through the Windy City.

I can recall less than a decade ago when a sports writer friend of mine named Tom Henshaw was the only marathon maniac that I knew or ever even heard of. Not that Tom was a jogger himself or even a waddler. He had a physique like Tony Galento embracing a keg of beer, but he followed runners, their careers, their diets, their breathing spasms the way other guys study Arnie Palmer's backswing or Bjorn Borg's serve.

Tom got married the weekend of the Boston Marathon. For a honeymoon, he took his bride along on the press bus, but being a gallant Bostonian, he gave her the window seat. Last Sunday I met a woman who lives nearby out walking her dog. The dog was limping, dragging his left rear leg. "Did he catch a thorn?" I asked. "No," she said. "He pulled a muscle jogging."

New CB rules eliminate government gobbledygook

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New CB rules going into effect Tuesday are best known for banishing government gobbledygook in favor of plain, simple English. But they also contain several major changes in the way you must operate your radio.

Most noticeable is the change in the station identification requirement. Under the old rules, CBers had to use their Federal Communications Commission call signs at the beginning and then again at the end of each transmission. No longer. Now you are required to identify your station only at the end of your call.

"This change is proposed with the hope that voluntary compliance with the identification rule will increase if the demands are slightly reduced," said Ericka Ziebarth and Greg Jones when they recommended the rule change last year. But remember, your communications still are limited to no more than five minutes, with a one-minute standby period required before keying the microphone again. The new rules also simplify the restrictions on base station antenna heights. The old rules required different heights for omnidirectional and beam antennas and were difficult to understand.

Not any more. The new rules apply to both types of antennas and say simply that they must meet one of the following requirements: "The highest point must not be more than 6.10 meters (20 feet) higher than the highest point of the building or tree on which it is mounted; or, "The highest point must not be more than 18.3 meters (60 feet) above the ground."

The old rules used only frequencies to identify the individual channels. No longer. The new rules identify each frequency with channel numbers that long have been used informally by CBers. Thus, 27.405 megahertz now is identified as Channel 40 — the same way it's marked on your radio.

The old rules also authorized you to use only five radios with your CB license. Not now. You now may operate as many as 25 radios.

It appears Carter needs White House friends list

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon had his enemies list. It may be that what President Carter needs is a White House friends list.

The president seems to have recurring problems with people he counts among the best friends he has in the world. That's how Carter described Dr. Peter G. Bourne upon installing him as director of the Office of Drug Abuse Policy. Bourne is gone now, after embarrassing the White House in a controversy over drugs.

A summer ago it was Bert Lance, a friend Carter said he knew like a brother. Lance resigned as director of the Office of Management and Budget after wearing weeks of dispute over his private banking practices and personal finances. Appointing Andrew Young to be ambassador to the United Nations, Carter put him in the best friend category, too. Young said at the time that he wouldn't be likely to leave that post over policy differences, but that he wouldn't be silent about them either. He has not.

Young has stirred repeated controversy with his comments on topics ranging from racism in America to the Cuban role in Africa. He has sometimes seemed to be debating the State Department. He drew a presidential rebuke for saying that there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of political prisoners in the United States — a comment made while Carter was denouncing political trials in the Soviet Union.

"I know that Andy regrets having made that statement, which was embarrassing to me," Carter said. "I don't believe he will do it again." Even best friends can be trying at times. None, it would seem, more than Bourne, although Carter hasn't betrayed any displeasure, saying only that his friend resigned "out of consideration for my administration."

That concern came a bit late. Bourne's troubles began when, as a physician, he wrote a prescription so that an assistant could get a powerful sedative under an assumed name, for the sake of privacy Bourne said later that she needed the medicine and that he had done nothing wrong. When another woman tried to fill the prescription, the druggist called police.

That happened on July 11, and Bourne might as well have cleared out his desk then. He would have spared his friend Carter a lot of trouble. Instead, he waited. So did Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, after the Justice Department advised him of the situation.

Even after the story was published by the Washington Post, Bourne tried to hang on, Powell announcing that he would be taking a paid leave of absence from his $51,000-a-year job. It takes some doing to devise a way for a White House drug adviser to play a useful role after acknowledging that he had written a prescription like the one Bourne gave to the fictitious "Sarah Brown," innocently or not.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration began an investigation last November after the independent Center for Auto Safety said 100 accidents and 12 deaths were caused by the transmissions in those cars jumping from park into reverse by themselves. Agency spokesman Hal Parritz, responding to a Washington Post report that a decision on the recall is expected next week, said today: "We're trying to get some conclusion as soon as possible, but I don't expect any preliminary finding for at least two or three weeks."

"We haven't made a determination yet one way or another on what should be done," he added.

In a letter sent Wednesday to safety agency administrator Joan Claybrook, the center's director, Clarence Ditlow, criticized the agency for taking so long to decide on a recall.

The Fords involved were manufactured with either the C-6 or FMX automatic transmission and include practically all cars with engine displacements of 300 cubic inches or more and light trucks with engines of 350 cubic inches or more.

Ford has maintained that the accidents might be due in large part to driver carelessness in putting the shift, lever into park. The company says there are no flaws in the transmissions.

It recently confirmed, however, that one of its engineers was slightly injured last November when an idling 1979 prototype car slipped out of park into reverse and ran over his foot.

The company wouldn't say what type of transmission was involved in the accident.

QUICK QUIZ

1. If you want to determine if lighting is wasting electricity, you measure its efficiency in (a) Kilo watts per hour (b) Lumens-per-watt (c) Candles per square inch (d) Watts per lamp?

2. Of these streetlighting fixtures, which one gives the most light per electricity cost? (a) Mercury (b) High-Pressure Sodium (c) Incandescent (d) Fluorescent?

3. By converting all public streetlighting in America to the most energy-efficient fixtures, this country could cut streetlighting energy costs by (a) 8% (b) 19% (c) 25% (d) 32%?

ANSWERS: 1. (b) Lighting to light your streets and highways. 2. (b) High-pressure sodium. 3. (d) High-pressure sodium streetlights are the most efficient. They use 50 and 80 percent less energy to provide the same light as incandescent or mercury vapor streetlights. They are a more efficient light source for as much or more lumens-per-watt. They also require less electricity. Thus, a high input efficiency. The number of lumens-per-watt is measured in lumens-per-watt. The number of lumens-per-watt is measured in lumens-per-watt.
