

Governor O'Daniel Urges Citizens In All Walks Of Life To Rally Texas' Part Of Nation's Needs

Governor W. Lee O'Daniel is taking long steps in preparing the State of Texas to assume its proper place in the line of military preparations for any unforeseen contingency. Broadcasting over radio from his residence in Austin he declared: "America will stand as long as the institutions of America are upheld. The American war will prevail insofar as that way is right. America will not perish as long as she deserves to live."

Clearly the governor is somewhat of a student of history in that he realizes the number of nations that have perished from the face of earth because they have failed to keep their trust with truth, honor and justice. While numerous nations have, apparently perished from outward attacks, yet close investigation of causes has invariably revealed the fact that inward conditions leading to failure were the real reasons back of enemy successes.

Six months ago, with co-operation of State university, Texas A. & M. and Texas Tech., the governor announced an industrial program which has since been conscientiously prosecuted. There are now nearly 250 Texas towns which have organized auxiliary industrial committees to co-operate with the state organization. While fundamentally, the plan was originated to bring new and more industries to this state, since the military situation has assumed such looming proportions, it has become ideal in directing the part to be played by the Lone Star state in needed war preparation. Continuing, the governor said:

"In times like these, our people must join in one great unified effort to protect the land we love and all those things which we hold so dear. Differences of opinion, deliberately allowed by the broadminded democracy, will ever exist, and it is essential that men be allowed to express them, freely and without fear; but ways are provided for the determination of public questions and the enactment of laws in line with the prevailing views of the people. No personal dislikes or disputes, no petty jealousies, bickering and greed must stand in the way of our endeavor to make this government function and to protect those freedoms which constitute the bulwark of our national being."

The governor declared Texas is stepping forward in seven-league boots in preparatory activities. Plans calling for 277 new and expanded airfields in Texas have already been initiated, various types of training, colleges have made special plans for a type of education especially needed in case of national conflict, innumerable surveys of various kinds, considered advisable, have already had official sanction and prosecution, chambers of commerce, transportation companies, industries of many kinds, publicly and privately owned utilities, service clubs and civic organizations of many kinds have been correlated and are putting on the harness for any future contingency and co-operation that may be needed.

"There is a task for everyone," the governor said. Service is the big watchword. Vision is essential and devotion the background. Some may be called to carry arms, man guns, float airplanes, build manufacturing plants, make machines, shape tools—hundreds of tasks, large and small that must be accomplished.

"Let us then be up and doing," said the governor. "Let us approach each new day each hour of time, alert and alive and thrilled to the gracious privilege of having a part, be it large, small, humble or great, yet a part vitally worth while in the continued life of the land which is ours."

House Is Accused Of Playing Politics In Draft Bill

The House has passed the National Conscription bill by a comfortable majority; but in passing it tacked an amendment to the measure providing it shall not be effective for 60 days. The bill now goes to a Conciliation committee to iron out differences between the Senate and House bills before the president signs it.

Commenting upon action of the House, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in its last Sunday issue, gave the following editorial comment:

Playing Politics

In amending the draft bill to give the voluntary enlistment system a 60-day trial before conscription would begin, the House patently yielded to a desire to postpone compulsory military service until after the November election. Thereby, the House is playing politics at the expense of national defense, because the loss of 60 days by a delay in training men for military service might be tragic in an emergency.

The House, moreover, is guilty of an attempt at deception of the public, however thin that effort may be on its face. The voluntary enlistment plan obviously will not provide the required number of men for the army, and every member in the House is aware of that fact. The voters who may oppose compulsory military service should not be fooled by the House amendment. Conscription still will come, but only after the election returns are in.

Because of political consideration incident to the current campaign, the draft plan has suffered from grave delays at the hands of both houses of Congress.

The primary necessity is that Congress recognize the existence of a national emergency and decline by resolution that such an emergency exists. Thereafter, every detail of the defense program would proceed with dispatch. But this proposed action by Congress likewise is another matter which is dodged before the election. Soon thereafter, it will be done, regardless of the outcome of the election. Congress in the meanwhile is practicing deception, similar to the pretense in 1916 that the country was being kept out of war.

No one claimed the Trades day gift last Saturday nor the Saturday before, so it has grown to $30 for this coming Saturday. Other benefactors of its day were E. C. Robertson $10; Ita Buck, $3; Mrs. C. C. Hoyt, $2; Hoyt Eubanks, $2.

The meeting was opened by the group singing, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," accompanied on the piano by Miss Theresa Pierson.

Mrs. Clyde Holt gave the evening prayer and Mrs. Earl Eicks followed with an earnest devotional, telling in her reports to us in everyday life, and how Jesus would react to certain traits, such as dirt in his short hair when he would be among men.

Mrs. R. N. Huckabee, centrally led the discussion of a sermon by the group under the new church regulation.

At the close of the evening, a delicious refreshment plate, consisting of angel food cake topped with whipped cream, candy nuts, crushed, and iced fruit punch were served to the following:

Mrs. Mollie Buzard Funeral Held Last Friday Afternoon

Funeral services for Mrs. Mollie Buzard were held from the Methodist church Friday afternoon of last week. Rev. R. N. Huckabee, officiating in the last rites and interment of remains was made in the local cemetery.

Mrs. Buzard had been a sufferer for some time previous to her death. She was past 68 years of age when she expired Tuesday at her home. She was united in marriage to Charles H. Buzard at Gallatin, Mo., in July, 1897. To this union three children were born, the youngest, Charles Chester, passing this life in 1918 when 17 years old.

Dudley B. Buzard, the son with whom she made her home, living five miles north of Muleshoe and one other son, L. Ray Buzard, who lives close by, still survive here.

Her husband passed this life February 14, 1936. She is also survived by six grandchildren.

She united with the Methodist church in Missouri when but 15 years of age, remaining a faithful member until death, and was very faithful in her devotions and church attendance until she suffered a paralytic stroke about three years ago.

A resident of Bailey county for the past 26 years, she was appreciated by all who knew her. The Buzard family pioneered the Plains area from Kansas and established their home in this section several years ago.

Other survivors of the deceased are six brothers and two sisters: Robert Canfield, Muleshoe; Walter P. Canfield and Allen W. Canfield, Pattonsburg, Mo.; Fred L. Canfield, Maysville, Mo.; Lee Canfield, Concordia, Kansas; Ernest A. Canfield, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Carrie High-tree, Nutwood, Ohio; Mrs. Myrna Brown, Pattonsburg, Mo. Two other sisters have preceded her in death.

At the funeral service the choir sang her favorite songs, "In The Cross" and "Gathering Home." Tye, Young and Mrs. H. L. Lowry in a duet sang, "When They Ring Those Gold Bells For You and Me." The Lemons Funeral Home, Plainview, had charge of arrangements.

Out of town friends attending the funeral were: Mrs. Fred L. Canfield and daughter, Marion, of Marysville, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Huff and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Bartley, Tahoka, Ok., and Mrs. Ray Hershby, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hershby and son, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Conklin and daughter, and G. R. Conklin all of Hereford.

It's got so that these modern radios in Muleshoe wear out the songs quicker than they do the tubes.

OUR DEFENSE

ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS PREPARED FOR THE MULESHOE JOURNAL BY THE NATIONAL DEFENSE ADVISORY COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Yes, there still is Cavalry. The Cavalry is very explicit on that subject. The Cavalry is usually what gets to the fight first. They may come on horses, as there are some territories where a horse is still the best means of going places. But a lot larger number gallop upon armored cars and in combat cars, that look, and—if you are on the receiving end—feel just like tanks. In fact they are tanks. Tucked away in the Cavalry are even men mounted on motorcycles. The Cavalry is still the fastest moving ground-fighting arm.

The Cavalry stays out in front of the main Army exploring the ground ahead. Because of its ability to move far and fast it is supposed to spend a good portion of time in the enemies rear lines making a mess of things. To move being its prime function a cavalry regiment needs the wherewithal to get places, and the job devolving on the National Defense Advisory Commission, in respect to the Cavalry, is to tell the Army where, and when, and how, it can procure that transportation.

When it comes to horses for the horse cavalry, the Commission bows to the Army. They have been buying and raising horseflesh for so many years that they know the name, address, and personal history of every type of horse they need. Sturdy half or three-quarter bred for hell-leather riding purposes, and heavier types for pack purposes. The American Cavalry is fitted out with heavy machine guns, mortars, and howitzers, which can be taken apart and made up into several suitable one-horse loads. Just for information, the Cavalry, when it gets to a fight, dismounts and sends the horses back.

Mechanized Cavalry
A mechanized cavalry regiment is made up of four combat car troops of about 100 men each. These are the striking power of the mechanized cavalry. Many of these are shortly to be transferred to the new Armored Force.

There is a service troop which provides for transportation and maintenance. The reconnaissance troop is used by the regimental commander to find out where the enemy is at any given moment. Like the combat cars, all the command cars are equipped with machine guns, and two-way radios so that the commanders are set up to give orders to their units whether they are moving or waiting to move. So it is that every part of a mechanized cavalry regiment is able to roll, and it has a tremendous fire power, which makes it hell-on-wheels.

For weapons the mechanized cavalry has pistols, rifles, 30 caliber air-cooled machine guns, 30 caliber water-cooled heavy machine guns, 50 caliber machine guns and 37 mm. guns (both used as antitank guns) and a 4.2-inch mortar to fire smoke shells. These shells are used as protection against enemy anti-tank guns. And to add a typically American touch, the Cavalry is supplied with the famous "Tommy Guns," belover of the prohibition wars.

A cavalry division also has all the units of the infantry division. For example, it has a field artillery unit, drawn by six-horse teams in a horse cavalry unit and by trucks in a mechanized unit. The distinguishing mark of a cavalry division is that it contains no one who habitually walks.

Keeping the Cavalry Rolling
New to keep all the rolling stock of a cavalry division able to roll takes considerable organization. There have to be men able to make a gasoline or diesel motor to purr when the motor may want to quit. There have to be others who know where the proper supplies of fuel are located and how to get that fuel into the gas tanks no matter where these gas tanks happen to be. And that's no easy job when you realize that mechanized cavalry can get in the morning, break camp, eat a hearty breakfast, get moving, and by nightfall be some three hundred miles and several thousand gallons of fuel away. And if the boys are to the rear of the enemy, the enemy undoubtedly will persuade the local filling stations not to sell them fuel. The fuel has got to go with the forces. Also the supply service must be ready to fix flat tires, tired tanks, jammed guns and give relief to the soldiers whose brains have been jarred into a splitting headache after rattling around inside a tank.

The problem in the horse cavalry is about the same. There must be hay for the horses, as a horse won't run without fuel any more than a tank. And the modern horse has learned not to be scared of himself in a gas mask, and has to be kept supplied with one. It takes a wonderful supply organization in the Army to see that all the thousand and one articles necessary to keep a cavalry division in the running are handy when and where they are needed, even if a day's run may put them any place in 270,000 square miles of territory. But behind the Army there must be another organization ready to find the supplies in the necessary quantity and get them to where the Army can take them over. That is the job of the National Defense Advisory Commission. And it has to be done, not only for the Cavalry, but for every other branch of the Army and Navy as well. That is why the Commission, for instance, has recommended that supplies of strategic materials be tucked away for future reference.

THE EVER-PRESENT GOD

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 139:1-12, 23, 24. GOLDEN TEXT—If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.—John 14:23.

"The Psalm of the Unavoidable" is the title of the characteristically Psalm 139, but goes on to say, "It's main theme is 'God Cares.' He cares personally and individually." The omniscience and omnipresence of God, in trying to get the hearts of men, rightly brings fear to the ungodly, but to those who love and serve Him it can bring only assurance and joy.

The sublime concept of God here presented is an evidence of the divine inspiration of the Bible, for no human philosopher could ever have attained to or expressed such an understanding of the true nature of God. Only the infinite, all-knowing God, speaking through man, could give us this magnificent Psalm. It reveals that

I. God Knows Everything (vv. 1-6).

He is entirely unlimited in His true and eternal knowledge of things. Man is always limited in his knowledge of himself, of the world in which he lives, and of God, except as He reveals Himself. Our knowledge is not only partial, but progressive, going from one fact to another; but God knows all things perfectly and entirely from the beginning, yes, from all eternity.

One might well suppose that such a Being would be concerned only with the great and mighty forces of the universe, but we are told that He has a personal and intelligent understanding of and interest in even such simple details of life as our "downsitting and . . . uprising."

God is not so foolish as man. He does not put things and power above Himself. He is interested in you and in me—is vitally, personally and blessedly concerned about each one of us. Knowing all about us, He has a garrison of understanding love around us (v. 5; see Phil. 4:7 R. V.), and keeps His eternally powerful but tender hand upon us, if we permit Him so to do. Reader, are you submitting your life to His control through Jesus Christ our Lord?

II. God Is Everywhere (vv. 7-12).

In our humanity we are limited, not only in knowledge, but also in our ability to be in more than one place at a time. The Bible tells us what our reason would expect; that God, the infinite One, is everywhere at all times. This does not mean (as the pantheist would have us believe) that God is lost in matter, bound up in the rocks and trees, but that He is everywhere immanent in majestic power and love, sustaining all things, controlling and directing the destinies of His universe. He is not afar off, letting the world care for itself (as the deist would say).

"But here in present majesty, As in His courts on high, The man who would hide from God and flee from the Holy Spirit finds no comfort in these verses. He may attempt to hide in heaven or in the abode of the dead, but God is there. If he could ride with the speed of morning light (v. 9) to the uttermost parts of the earth, God is there before him. Darkness, which men think will hide their evil deeds, is like daylight to "Him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4:13).

But why flee from a loving God? Why not come to Him in loving obedience, and then with the psalmist rejoice that we "cannot get beyond the circle of His love"? What a blessed truth it is that wherever these lines are read—in the home, the church, in a hospital, in a jail, in an airplane, in the depths of a mine, in darkness or in light, in the great city, or by one living alone in the wilderness—God, the infinite, all-knowing, eternal, loving God, is there. He is right at your side, reader. Turn to Him, count on Him, love Him, serve Him.

III. God Searches Man's Heart (vv. 23, 24).

Verse 3 of our psalm teaches that God searches the hearts of all men, but here we find the psalmist wisely inviting God to search his own heart. It is one thing to know a universal truth; it is another matter to make it personal. It is one thing to know that God, against my will, is pointing out to me the sin and rebellion of my heart; it is quite another thing to open my heart voluntarily to His searching scrutiny.

Why did the psalmist ask God to search him? That in trying his thoughts any wickedness might be revealed and put away. This is the important point. It is not enough to know that sin is there. We must ask God to give us grace to put it out, that He may then lead us in the "way of righteousness."

The Word of God points the way of righteousness in both heart and life. Who will decide this day to walk in that way—in fellowship with the all-knowing, ever-present Lo

ANOTHER DRY HOLE?

In the constant search for new oil reserves in Texas, even the dry holes benefit the communities in which they are drilled.

They mean employment and wages for Texas labor, lease money for Texas farmers and ranchers and many other expenditures which benefit all lines of business.

2,300 dry holes were drilled in Texas last year at a cost of nearly 60 million dollars.

Since oil was discovered in Texas, 52,000 dry holes have been drilled in all sections of the State at an expense of more than one billion dollars.

This billion dollar research has already resulted in the discovery in Texas of over half of all the known petroleum reserves of the Nation. The creation of this wealth will benefit Texas citizens for generations to come.

Whether the oil man wins or loses, the community always gains.

Destiny of America May Be Read In The Lines of History

The old saying, "There's nothing new under the sun," isn't true, for something new is always popping up in this world of modernism.

In Souix Falls, S. D., a bunch of women have organized what they call a "Spank You Club," where—only women who have been spanked by their husbands are eligible. The club's preamble reads: "Spanking makes wives happy, prevents divorce, makes them think more of their husbands and creates a better understanding."

Can one imagine such a feminine status when women are becoming more and more independent every day? At least such a club is not at all likely in Muleshoe.

Journal reporter interviewed several married women this week on the subject of "spanking," and not one of them was favorable to that gymnastic stunt in reply. Hence, the International WOSH is not likely to receive any valuable consideration in this municipality.

The Sioux City literature also says:

"Oug husbands always spank us when we need it, instead of arguing and fighting. Spanking has saved me from a lot of couples from divorce courts. It creates a better understanding between husbands and wives and makes home life much nicer. It makes a wife seem more than just a plain wife. In other words, it makes a woman seem more than her husband's sweetheart."

"Don't misunderstand us when we say our husbands spank us. They don't beat us, they just turn us across their knees or lap and give us a good old-fashioned spanking with their hand, paddle, hairbrush or anything they wish to use. They never spank through clothing because a good spanking must be given to the bare skin."

"We get spanked pretty hard sometimes, but we love our husbands for doing it. It makes better wives of us, instead of whining, peevish, nagging women."

One Muleshoe wife told this reporter, "My husband isn't big enough to do that job." Probably she exercised considerable forethought in selection of her mate. Another said: "Just let him dare try it." Still another said, "Spanking a woman is too much like spanking a child; neither does any good." A fourth woman said, "I ought to be a member of that club;" a fifth said, "I'm against it, while a sixth said, "I'd rather quit him if he tried it." Still another woman declared, "My husband has his husband to do a thing like that," while another woman accompanying her declared no gentleman would ever think of such a procedure, let alone write about it. (Probably slandering the editor's idea of a story). One sweet young thing declared if she could get the man she wanted he could do all the spanking he wished, probably meaning she would be so kind and loving he would never want to.

Let it be said that not one of the women were willing to be quoted—so in compliance with their wishes the reporter also missed a spanking.

Muleshoe Wives Say "No" To Spank You Club Suggestion

Reading history... hearing the stories handed down to your own family... listening on the radio to episodes from our past... have you ever wondered why we built this country so fast?

Only a little more than a century and a half since we became a nation. Only 300 years since all there was of it were those few precarious settlements on the Atlantic seaboard.

And now? We are the greatest nation in the world with power to lead that world, if we choose.

Have you ever felt that back of the urge which brought people to this country was something more than national ambition? A great plan—perhaps—that caught them up in its unfolding so that they were eager to cross the ocean when it was six weeks wide, and dangerous; so that they were determined to go West, generation after generation until there were no more frontiers? Have you ever wondered why women as well as men, were possessed with such a love for land of their own that nothing mattered but gratifying it? Not drudgery, not danger, not loneliness.

Have you ever wondered why even the climate of this new world for the most part more stimulating than that of the old so that men are necessarily active and intolerant of idleness? Have you ever thought that we are set apart between two great oceans or wonder why we have been so inventive and skillful with machinery?

Today, as the old world seems to be destroying itself, the need for a strong, new world, equipped by Nature and her own self-elected people for complete self sufficiency is apparent.

The great role, for which we as a nation have been unconsciously preparing through all of the swift, full years of our history, is not revealed. The part calls for colossal strength, great wisdom, tolerance and hard, persistent work if we are to play it well and realize the destiny which our great past has made possible.

We have the necessary resources. We have the propitious geographical setting, the economic genius and the material development. Those who have gone before us have played their part well, but have we the Will, the Unity and the Vision to play this part as it must be played if the world is to go forward in its own development?

Each one of us alive in America today is helping to give the momentous answer.

Election Of Next President May Depend More Upon Masses Than Parties; Willkie Is Growing

It has been a few weeks now since Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for president, delivered his formal acceptance speech on "homes a time and opportunity to thoroughly mull over, digest and mentally assimilate the details of that speech. Some have done so pro or con; but to many it has been an inextricably conglomeration of ideas and expressions difficult of mental diagnosis.

Plenty of folks today don't know whether to classify Mr. Willkie as a Hooverist or a New Dealer, a liberal or a conservative, for in that initial public address were tears and a few other tasty condiments, distilling it all out to the many guests attending that official banquet to taste, chew, and swallow. Some are still chewing, though others have finally masticated the brew and swallowed it.

Secretary Harold Ickes came near having a serious case of mental dyspepsia over that meal. Ickes has a penchant for such belching. He always accumulates a batch of gas in his mental tummy that has to be regurgitated, and while the reply he flew into print with, is generally conceded to have been a dismal failure, by both Republicans and Democrats, his wisecracks were somewhat amusing. Ickes has long been known as the clown of the present administration, his verbal antics while frequently enjoyed more often excite commiseration.

Willkie, in that first speech, evidently conveyed much ground in a general way, and as the campaign progresses will doubtless be more explicit in detail. As is to be expected in any such instance, whether Republican or Democratic, those politically biased will always give important statements a twist to suit their own attitudes, be they right or wrong. Some folks are, unfortunately, constituted that way. They simply can't help their particular complex coming to the front. Ickes was just one of many. The reason he sneezed out like a sore thumb, is because he has a sore head that sometimes aches and sometimes itches in ludicrous manner.

Political commentators, of course, set about to analyze Mr. Willkie's speech in the light of appeal or lack of it. There were a whole medley of conclusions. Some approved directly, some quasi-approved, while others diametrically objected. Willkie, in the main, addressed a nearly 100 per cent mid-western audience which for the most part was not favorable to any involvement in European war affairs. He had the courage to declare this nation should not become directly involved with affairs of any other democracy; that Fascism, Nazism were both our enemies and should unreservedly be so considered. In ringing tones of conviction he affirmed his faith in American democracy, and undoubtedly placed national interest and welfare above politics in the probable approaching crisis.

overwhelmingly put him out of office. They are not the type of people who write for newspapers and magazines. They have no connection whatever with publicity bureaus, they don't make public speeches. Not many of them even "button-hole" their fellowman; but they do quietly ponder and conclude their own method of action in the light of available facts, then vote that way.

Since that day thousands of newspapers, both daily and weekly kinds, have come out unreservedly for Willkie. Even the newspaper owned by at least one of Roosevelt's cabinet officials is against "his boss." That list is growing weekly. Thousands of old-time Jefferson Democrats and unbelievers in New Deal principals have declared for the Republican candidate, and hundreds of "Willkie clubs" are being organized in every state of the Union. These are the people who in November will either elect Wendell Willkie the next president or will give Franklin Roosevelt what no other president has ever been given or even sought—a third term in the White House.

MULESHOE ALLOWS TAX REDUCTIONS

At a meeting of the Muleshoe School Board held Monday night it was decided to allow the percentage reductions on tax payments this year as is provided by law. These reductions are three per cent if paid in October, two per cent for November payment and one per cent for December payment other districts using the new system last year found it an inducement to get prompt tax payments.

There are about $6,000 delinquent taxes due the school of this district, some of it dating back to 1925. A small percentage of it is personal tax, which it is not expected will be collectable.

Because of crowded conditions, plans are also on foot for dividing the old gymnasium into class rooms and the probable erection of another building for class purposes.

DRY HOLE OIL WELLS HELP COMMUNITY

In this issue of the Journal appears an advertisement regarding holes. Ordinary holes are not considered of much worth unless something comes out of them or is put into them.

rent, damages and costs of suit and for such other and further relief, special and general in law and in equity as he may show himself justly entitled to and in duty bound will ever pray.

Herein fail not, and have you before said Court on the 1st day of the next term hereof, this writ with your endorsement thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Muleshoe, Texas, this 2nd day of August, A. D. 1940.

J. J. WILLIAMS,
Clerk 64th District Court
Bailey County, Texas.
Pub. Aug. 22, 29; Sept. 5, 12, 1940.

The oil well hole seems somewhat different, for it takes labor to make that hole and labor means wages, while wages are generally spent in the community where they are paid. Last year there were 2,300 dry holes drilled by the oil fraternity in the State of Texas and at a cost of nearly $60,000,000. Think of it! Muleshoe is not yet in any proven oil area; but there are already suspicions in that direction.

MRS. H. STERLING GIVEN SHOWER

There was a large number of gifts, including floor linoleum, rocking chair, throw rugs, and many other for both household and personal use. Several who could not attend sent gifts. Mr. Allen McReynolds very appropriately read the poem, "The House By the Side of the Road." Refreshments of iced cold water-melon was served by the hostess to her guest friends.
