Scouts slate school night

Pampa youth seeking high adventure and outdoor skill activities are invited to attend the "School Night for Scouting" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pampa Middle School gymnasium.

It will be an opportunity for boys, ages 11-18 to join the Scout troop of their choice, becoming eligible for troop activities and district and council programs, according to Doreen Miley, Scout district executive.

The coming year's Scouting program includes district camporee; skiing at Red River, N.M.; and two trips to Scouting's Sommers Canoe Base in northern Minnesota.

Next summer's camp program will include a week of aquatics camp and a week of conservation camp.

Parents are asked to attend the "School Night" with their sons as their permission and signatures are required for a boy to join the Scouts.

Scouts and Scoutmasters from the eight Pampa troops will be at the "School Night." They are: T-401, Church of Latter Day Saints, Scoutmaster Vane Campbell; T-402, Salvation Army, Jimmy Schuneman; T-404, First Christian Church, Carl O'Neal; T-414, First Presbyterian Church, John Curry; T-416, Noon Lions Club, Dub Adkins; T-420, St. Paul United Methodist Church, Conner Hicks; T-422, First Baptist Church, Kenneth Box; and T-480, First United Methodist Church, Eugene Taylor.

The "School Night" is sponsored by the Adobe Walls Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Agent's death natural reports show

GRAHAM, Texas (AP) — Department of Public Safety officials said Saturday the death of an undercover DPS agent found lying in the front seat of his car was apparently due to natural causes.

Police found the body of agent Tommy Johnson, 45, of Wichita Falls, lying face up in his car Friday night. The car was parked in a city park just off State Highway 16.

"There was no evidence of foul play," said DPS spokesman Jim Robinson. "But just to make absolutely sure, the body has been sent to Dallas for an autopsy."

DPS officers declined to reveal the nature of Johnson's undercover investigations.

City and State news

Trial moves again

WHARTON, Texas (AP) — The murder-for-hire trial of a Louisiana man accused of shooting to death a Sugar Land couple at the instructions of the couple's daughter has been moved on a change of venue for the second time.

District Judge Neil Caldwell executed his own motion for a change of venue Friday, moving the trial of Feryl Granger of Lake Charles, La., to neighboring Matagorda County.

Previously, the case was moved to Wharton County from Fort Bend County. All three counties border each other. Caldwell said if the trial were held in Wharton it would be a "gross miscarriage of justice."

Texan killed in shootout

RUSK, Texas (AP) — A 25-year-old man, armed with a rifle in a wooded area near a roadside park, was shot and killed by Cherokee County Sheriff Danny Stallings, who said Saturday he had been lured to the park by an anonymous phone caller.

The victim was James Thomas "Jimmy" Pryor of Rusk, identified as a friend of a man killed last month by one of Stallings' deputies.

The Texas Rangers moved into Rusk to take over the investigation of the shooting Friday of Pryor and of other incidents over the past year.

Stallings, a former Department of Public Safety trooper and narcotics agent, had been enforcing drug laws rigidly in the county, according to a DPS spokesman. His father's house was burned down last October, and his own house was burned down on Aug. 5, while the sheriff was on vacation. Both fires were ruled arson.

The day after the sheriff's house burned, deputy Tom Glass picked up John Robert Odum for questioning concerning the incident. While the two were in the patrol car about five miles north of Rusk, a scuffle occurred in which Odum struggled with him for his gun and was shot to death. Glass said.

Friday, at 1 a.m., Stallings said, he got an anonymous call asking him to meet the caller at a secluded place for information on the arson cases. Stallings and his family had been getting threatening calls, mostly late at night and he suspected a trap.

The meeting was arranged for 6 p.m. Friday at a roadside park on Texas 294, near Farm Road 23 — 15 miles southwest of Rusk.

Stallings and Glass were dropped off by another deputy 1 1/2 hours early and hid in the woods. Stallings near the roadside park and Glass across the highway.

About 5 p.m., a small red car drove into the park, and one of two occupants of the car got out, looked around, then got back in and the car drove away. Twenty minutes later, a car — perhaps the same one — returned and drove down the highway about 75 yards.

Texas University short on funds

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston Continuing Education Center is $29,000 short for the first six months of 1978, and officials are unable to explain where it went.

An audit turned up the deficit, which Associate Chancellor Andrew Rudnick attributed Friday to inadequate financial reporting and accounting procedures.

Rudnick said the audit turned up no evidence of "wrongdoing," but the findings of the university's internal audit team were being turned over to the Harris County district attorney's office. District Attorney Carol Vance said the "unaccounted for" loss is being investigated.

"We do intend to take it to a grand jury," he said.

The university was unable to track down the missing money. Rudnick said, because "we don't have control over all the places where money can go," such as banks.

Only the district attorney's office, which has the power to subpoena records, can continue tracking down the missing money, he said.

CAREER OPENINGS IN RESTAURANT MANAGEMENT

Are you an individual with management capabilities, mature judgment, and the ability to motivate others?

If so, McDonald's® needs you.

Our rapid growth has created several openings for qualified individuals to serve as manager trainees with quick advancement into management for our new store in Pampa and for our stores in Amarillo, the Texas Panhandle, and Eastern New Mexico.

You will be thoroughly trained while you earn a liberal starting salary, commensurate with your ability and experience. Plus, you will receive an executive benefits package which includes paid vacations, life and medical insurance, and limitless opportunities for advancement.

You don't necessarily have to have a degree or previous food service experience, although both are desirable. What you do need is a talent with people and the desire and commitment to excel in your profession.

Sewell convicted of murder

PARIS, Texas — A jury convicted Randall Douglas Sewell, 22, of Gainesville, Ga., of murder Saturday and sentenced him to 80 years in the state penitentiary.
Sewell was convicted of shooting to death his long-time friend, John Wright Chapman, 24, a Gainesville native who spent winters in his family-owned home in this Northeast Texas city.
Prosecutors portrayed Sewell, a jailbreaker wanted in Georgia on a number of charges, as a hot-tempered house guest who shot Chapman March 7 in a fit of rage because Chapman wanted him to leave.
Sewell, who was convicted of forgery and drug charges in Georgia and charged with murder in that state, testified he did not shoot Chapman. Sewell said he had gone on a cigarette run early March 6 and returned to find Chapman's blood-soaked body.
Police discovered Chapman's body 10 days later, slain by shots from a 30-30 rifle.
Sewell, who had known Chapman since the two were in the seventh grade together, fled Georgia and arrived in Paris last January. Police said Chapman was not aware that Sewell was a fugitive.

Workman dies of burns

McLEAN — William Douglas "Doug" Clawson, 53, died Friday in Parkland Hospital, Dallas, of burns received in a Sept. 7 explosion at the Warren Petroleum Co. gasoline plant, northeast of here.
He had been in the hospital's burn unit since the afternoon following the 9:30 a.m. explosion which resulted in second and third degree burns to more than 70 percent of his body.
Two other workmen, Ernie G. Fry, 30, an employee of Nelson-Sikes Construction Co., and Jim Mayberry, 37, of Pampa, a Warren employee, were also burned. Fry is undergoing treatment at the Dallas hospital and Mayberry is a patient at High Plains Baptist Hospital, Amarillo.
The explosion reportedly occurred as the three men were repairing a low-capacity pump at the plant which processes natural gas and recovers "raw gasoline."

A spark is believed to have ignited fumes from the product.
Mr. Clawson was born in Brice. He married Louise Gunkel at Sayre, Okla., in 1943. A member of the Church of Christ, he had been an employee of Warren Petroleum Co. for 35 years, working as a plant mechanic.

Survivors, in addition to his wife, include a son, Gary of Pampa; a daughter, Mrs. Beverly McLemore of Borger; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Clawson of here; a sister, Mrs. Juanita Forsdick of Lubbock; and three grandchildren.
Services will be at 3 this afternoon at the McLean Church of Christ, Jay Farber, minister, and J. Loyd Rice, Cloud Croft, N.M., minister, officiating. Burial will be in Hillcrest Cemetery by Lamb Funeral Home.

Greta becomes hurricane

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Greta became a minimal hurricane Saturday as it moved westward across the central Caribbean Sea. It poses a direct threat to parts of Nicaragua and Honduras on Sunday, say forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.
Greta is the fourth hurricane of the 1978 Atlantic hurricane season.

At noon EDT, Greta's winds of 85 miles per hour were centered near latitude 14.0 north and longitude 78.7 west, or about 300 miles east of Puerto Cabezas on the extreme northeast coast of Nicaragua, forecasters said.
The storm, expected to get even stronger, was moving westward at 12 to 15 mph and was expected to maintain that speed while turning slightly to the west-northwest tonight.

Forecasters said precautionary measures should be taken by nightfall in northeast Nicaragua and in eastern Honduras.

Meanwhile, the center was still tracking the remnants of hurricane Flossie, a tropical depression and a tropical wave.
Flossie was first reported as a tropical storm on Sept. 4. It was then heading across the Atlantic on a course that would have brought it to the Eastern Seaboard, but it reversed course to the north. It was absorbed by low pressure system today west of the British Isles.

Behind the Scenes

with
Pampa News City Editor
Greg Hardin

WE HAVE BEEN LOOKING at the progress being made on the restaurant of the golden arches on Hobart and we are amazed. Brick masons have been working at a hectic pace on the new hamburger palace and we have been told McDonalds should open the doors to it's newest operation within 80 days. Now all we have to do is control those Big Mack attacks for a little while longer.

TODAY IS THE BEST DAY to start regular attendance in the church of your choice.

WE WANT TO CONGRATULATE the Harvesters on their impressive win over Dumas Friday night. We thought the young club showed great poise on both offense and defense in their second outing of the season. We hope Pampa fans will pool their resources next Friday and support the team as they travel to Altus. We will be there and hope to see most if not all of the Pampa fans in attendance at the game. Once again Harvesters, well done.

WE HAVE BEEN SEARCHING without success for a high school junior or senior to put to work. The News wants, a young man or woman interested in journalism, to work on the staff of the News as an intern reporter. We have tried various approaches to seek out a qualified individual for this training program and future career placement but we have had no takers. Anyone interested in journalism and a part-time job at the News should contact the city editor or managing editor.

WE ARE PUZZLED over the news recently in the split in the Democratic party. We ride the line in politics but we always like to see a good political battle. We hope that the troubles now plaguing the Democrats are worked out so the best man, whatever the party, wins come November.

WE ARE AMAZED at the redistricting plan passed by the commissioners recently. It looks to us that the problems with the new formula have only begun. We hope we are wrong in this feeling, but we will keep a close eye on any new developments. We understand the situation the commissioners were faced with and we anticipate they will do the best job they can as they have done in the past.

WE ARE PLEASED to see some improvement in the public facilities at the city parks. We were concerned that these facilities had been forgotten about but we noticed some general maintenance work had been done during the past week. We want to thank the city fathers for starting on the restoration work of the tennis courts and other facilities in the park system.

WE WERE ALSO PLEASED when we noticed that the city budget included $100,000 for improvements on city streets. We realize the sum is small but we are pleased that positive action has been taken to prevent wear and tear on our automobiles. We hope the city planners put the money to good use as we are sure they will.

WE WANT TO REMIND everyone that National Newspaper carriers week is coming soon. Everyone that feels their carrier deserves recognition should turn his or her name into the circulation department at the News.

The Followers, evangelistic singing group from Fort Worth, will present concerts of gospel music at 10:55 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday at the Central Baptist Church. There will be no admission, and a nursery will be provided at both services.

Monet's works at Giverny Marcum takes over program

NEW YORK (NEA) — The slender Japanese footbridge which arches over the water-lily pond in Claude Monet's garden at Giverny, 40 miles northwest of Paris in the Seine valley, was not erected by the artist as a symbol. But it could serve as one for this astonishing painter. His 70 years at the easel (from age 16 until his death at 86 in 1926) bridged from Impressionism to Abstraction, from the culmination of 19th century painting to much that 20th century art was to become.

The footbridge figures prominently in the Metropolitan Museum of Art's important exhibition, "Monet's Years at Giverny: Beyond Impressionism." The show will be there through July 9, after which it will move to the St. Louis Art Museum, Aug. 1 to Oct. 8. This is one well worth travelling to see, offering 81 Monet paintings from public and private collections in the United States and Europe.

Monet, his loving friend Alice Hoschede (she later became his second wife), her six children and his two moved to Giverny in 1885, the exact midpoint of his life. First he rented, then bought the property.

Although he had not been quite the first Impressionist painter (Edouard Manet deserves that recognition), Monet was a pioneer. He had given the title "Impression" to a seascape at sunrise, shown in 1874, which inspired a Paris critic to coin "Impressionist" as a put-down, to describe that kind of work. Impressionists painted things just as they struck the eye, with no literary, allegorical or other preconceived notions.

All the paintings in the Metropolitan show are of Giverny subjects — the footbridge, the pond, the water-lilies, the flowers, the garden path, the river adjoining the property, a line of poplars, haystacks in a nearby field. That doesn't mean Monet painted only in his own backyard those 43 years. He travelled to Rouen, London, Venice, Holland and the Italian Riviera, capturing the ever-changing qualities of light in all those places.

Nevertheless, the Giverny paintings best reveal the changes in his attitude that were taking place. He began to simplify his compositions, and to paint color for its own sake. Gradually he moved from Impressionism — painting scenes as they looked — to a more subtle painting of scenes as they felt to him.

Finally, in the last few years of his long and rich life, his garden, footbridge, water-lily and pond paintings became abstractions. Only the title of each offers a clue as to what it represents; with that, you can perceive the subject, obscured in the colorful riot of small brush-strokes.

But for the viewer, being able to recognize the house or bridge or garden no longer matters. Each painting conveys feeling, a sense of beauty, or serenity, or exaltation, enough in itself.

So just about everything of Monet's marvelous mind and mastery execution can be seen in the Giverny paintings. For example, he did series — of the haystacks, the poplars, the Seine at morning — to show how the change of light could make a single scene into a number of quite different paintings.

Even when he did not set out to do a series, he accomplished the same effect of modulation — not just of the light but of his own perception. Thus, the garden as he painted it around 1900 is a different aesthetic experience from the garden as he saw it 22 years later.

In his late years, as Monet's world grew smaller and he seldom travelled, his paintings grew larger, until finally he was doing the great, mural-size scenes such as the water-lilies which he gave to the French government. One such painting, which he did in three panels, as a triptych, measures over six and one-half feet high by 42 feet long. The panels had been sold separately in the 1950s, with the one on the left belonging today to the Cleveland Museum of Art, the center to the St. Louis Art Museum, and the right to the Nelson Gallery-Atkins Museum in Kansas City, Mo. They are reunited in the Metropolitan's exhibition, on loan from those institutions.

The gardens themselves were a Monet work of art. About 1900 he had begun to develop them, eventually adding the pond, the footbridge and trellises over the garden path. But following World War II they suffered from neglect. Several years ago, Lila Acheson Wallace, wife of the Reader's Digest founder, made a grant to restore the house and grounds. This exhibition, which also includes photographs of the property taken in 1926, 1933 and last fall, salutes the restoration of Monet's Giverny estate and Mrs. Wallace's generosity.

Come autumn, the house and gardens will be reopened to the public. Now at the Metropolitan and soon in St. Louis, they are there to be seen, as Claude Monet saw them.

Sometimes things in life come along at the most unexpected times.

That's what happened to Pat Marcum, the new vocational education instructor at Pampa High.

Pat has lived in Pampa for two years, but when she spoke to the school system this summer about a teaching job for the fall, she was told there probably wouldn't be any openings in VOE or the business department.

The day before school started she got a phone call telling her to be at work the next day — the former VOE instructor had quit.

Before coming to Pampa Marcum taught VOE and business for ten years in Hereford.

"I was ready to get back."

Many of the students in the VOE program had already been placed when Marcum started work, but that didn't make her job easier. Now she finds herself with the task of going out and meeting all of the student's employers.

Marcum describes the VOE program as one that is different from a regular classroom.

The program itself is open to male and female high school seniors in business education. The program provides on-the-job training with classroom instruction.

She teaches three classes a day, for one hour each and spends much of her time coordinating with employers.

She describes VOE as the high type of business instruction. Students in the VOE program are graded just like they are in any other course. The employer evaluates the student with one third of their grade coming from him.

Marcum said students in the VOE program have an edge on the job market, and many times they will stay with the job after their school term is finished.

She also said the students will usually end up majoring in that area.

Currently there are 31 students in the community in various office positions.

Entrenchment, competitive time for nation's colleges

EDITOR'S NOTE — The baby boom giveth; the baby boom taketh away. A few years ago, when the nation's college age population was burgeoning, so were colleges. Now that population is dropping and some private colleges are actually out looking for students.

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Newsfeatures Writer
American colleges are entering a time of retrenchment and fierce competition. The long-range problem is the declining birthrate of the 1960s. The current trouble is money. Nowhere is the apprehension greater than among the 1,500 private colleges, whose administrators fear they lack the political clout and the support of state treasuries that may determine which schools survive. The annual supply of potential freshmen won't drop in absolute numbers until 1983, but many private colleges, mainly because of inflation, are already showing symptoms of the new era of no-growth—steady state, educators call it. A decade ago a student entering college might have sent out several dozen applications. Today he may receive that many promotion brochures from admissions offices. A decade ago schools were ambitiously building dormitories and classrooms. Today they are scraping for paint and plaster and other maintenance money. A decade ago, esoteric and offbeat courses proliferated. Today some traditional offerings have become luxuries. "The most critical problem is inflation," says Dr. George Rainford, president of Kalamazoo College in Michigan and president of the National Association of Private Colleges and Universities. "We can't pass higher costs on to the Legislature as public schools can. And if we increase tuition to cover costs, we price ourselves out of the market." The association recently released a survey of 135 private colleges, chosen as representative of the private sector. While the new evidence doesn't support the down-the-tube Cassandra, it's not especially rosy, either. In the latest survey, 34 percent of the institutions were judged to be losing ground in 1976-77 compared with 20 per cent the previous year, although none in the survey thought closing was imminent.

Enrollments in private colleges have risen gradually over the past several years, although not as much as most schools wanted. The number of graduate, professional and part-time adult students has risen, recruiting offices have been beefed up, and more student grant money has been made available, primarily by the federal government. Elmhurst College in Illinois, for example, has attracted 280 Spanish-speaking adults to recently inaugurated courses taught off-campus in Chicago. Extension courses like this are popping up at many colleges. And Elmhurst has also stepped up recruiting. "We haven't gone to advertising," President Ivan Frick says, "but some schools have done that on billboards by airports and that kind of thing." Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., was once able to set aside an enviable $600,000 a year for a reserve building maintenance fund. That became impossible in 1973. The next year the trustees decided to put aside $150,000 a year. That, too, became impossible. "We're now living pretty much on the former health of our physical plant," president Arland Christ-Janer says. "We can't much longer."

CB radio's aid in finding city camping area

SOME VAGABONDS, used to easy-to-find recreational vehicle parks on the nation's highways, have turned to their citizen band radios to help them find a new one now open in the heart of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some vagabonds, used to easy-to-find recreational vehicle parks on the nation's highways, have turned to their CB radios to help them find a new one now open in the heart of San Francisco.

"They are calling us all the time on their CBs, saying they are lost and need directions into the park," said Sam Bell, co-owner of the park at a converted railroad depot near the downtown area.

"I would say 90 percent, perhaps as high as 99 percent, of them have CBs and they seem to automatically reach for them when they can't find their way around the city," Bell added. Bell said he thinks the park — and his ever-present CB radio — is helping end the habit recreational vehicle people have developed of rolling right through San Francisco and stopping somewhere else. Most of his customers agree.

"It's about time San Francisco joined the RV universe," said Ross Dedrick, a Los Angeles policeman recently passing through with his wife, three children and 20-foot camper.

"I'll tell you, if it weren't for this park, we'd just pass on through San Francisco," he said. In recent years the growing legion of "RV people" have bypassed San Francisco for other cities or areas where they could park their rigs, drop the awnings, plug into the nearest outlet, turn on portable TV sets and crank up the CB.

Last April the San Francisco Recreational Vehicle Park was born when its operators leased six acres at the site of the old Southern Pacific railroad depot, in the shadow of the freeway and not far from the docks.

Like most RV parks, San Francisco's boasts water, electricity, sewage hook-ups, showers, a laundromat, a shop, a nursery and rental television sets.

Ron Campbell, from Lafayette, Ind., sitting on a lawn chair sipping a beer, recounted his upward mobility in the "RV universe."

"We started in a tent, then we had two pop-up campers and now we've got this self-contained RV, which is a real luxury," he said.

Pampa pummels Dumas

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor

The scoreboard at Harvester Field was only half operational Friday night, but it wasn't because of any mischief on the part of the Harvesters. They were too busy punching out Dumas' lights to worry about anything else.

In a complete turnaround from its season opener at Hereford a week before, Pampa dominated the game from start to finish and came away with a resounding 29-7 victory that left little doubt about the abilities of the '78 Fighting Harvesters.

Neither the score nor the statistics, which heavily favored the Harvesters, could tell how badly Pampa outmanned Dumas in the trenches. From the opening kickoff, which Billy Grimes boomed out of the end zone, to the final gun, the Harvester line beat up the Demons on both offense and defense.

"It wasn't hard to see what was wrong last week," offensive line coach Gary Newcomb said. "They just weren't firing off the ball. Tonight they decided they could fire out and base block some people."

From the start, it was apparent that this game would be vastly different from the Hereford contest. Richard Wuest and Louis Cox appeared for the first time after sitting out the Hereford game with injuries, as did quarterback Rick Dougherty and Mike Porter tore apart Dumas' defense for three touchdowns, while Rudy Roland ripped it wide open on a 46-yard dash late in the third quarter.

Greg Quarles started the game as the Pampa signal caller, but Dougherty came in on the Harvester's second offensive series and led the team to its four touchdowns.

Following Grimes' kickoff, the Harvester defense didn't give up a yard in three Demon attempts and gave the offense the ball on the Dumas 46 when Randy Davis' kick traveled just 27 yards.

But a short-lived Pampa drive stalled when Doug Kennedy was stopped on a fourth-and-one at the Demon 28 by Sammy Gardner and David Dickey.

As it would until the waning moments of the game, Pampa put the clamps on Dumas' offense and gave itself a chance to begin its first scoring drive of the night.

Taking the ball on its own 36, the Harvester used a 28-yard pass from Dougherty to Roland and a 16-yard sweep by Porter to set up a first down on the Demon 16.

After an incomplete pass and a three-yard gain by Kennedy, Porter swept around his right end and scored Pampa's first touchdown from scrimmage of the year. Quarles provided one of the night's headiest plays when he snatched up a low snap on the point-after try and passed to Jim Agan in the end zone for a two-point conversion.

Grimes promptly booted the ensuing kickoff out of the end zone and Dumas was forced to start on its 20 again. Pampa's defense held, but Dickey intercepted a Dougherty pass on the Harvester's next series to give the Demons the ball on their own 20.

On a third and seven, Dumas quarterback hit Mark Stone with a 14-yard pass to give the Demons their first first down of the night—with 11:40 left to play in the first half.

But Grimes recovered a fumble on the next play to give Pampa another scoring opportunity at the Dumas 38. Kennedy bulldozed his way for 22 yards and got another eight when a Dumas defender made a late hit to give Pampa a first and goal on Dumas' eight.

A third down pass just eluded Roland's fingertips and Ward's field goal attempt was blocked by Kelly Bonner, but Pampa still managed to add to its lead before the half ended.

Following a fumble recovery by Kerry Adair and aided by roughing the kicker and pass interference penalties, Pampa marched 66 yards to score with 1:10 left in the half. Porter capped the drive by outrunning three Dumas defenders on a 25-yard scoring jaunt.

It didn't take long for Porter and the Harvester to add to their respective point totals once the second half started.

A high snap on a punting attempt resulted in a 36-yard loss and a Pampa first down on the Demons' 12. Porter immediately swept to the left side and could have walked into the end zone on his final touchdown of the night.

Roland got his touchdown with 2:28 left in the quarter. After a pair of bruising runs by Doug Smith and a 14-yard scramble by Dougherty put the Harvester on the enemy 46, Roland cut into, around and through the Demon defense on his way to the end zone. Ward converted his third straight extra point to give Pampa a 29-0 lead.

Dumas scored with a little over a minute left in the game when Sammy Gardner took it in from the six, but it took none of the luster off a magnificent goal line stand by the Harvester in the middle of the fourth quarter.

Suffering the same misfortune that befell Davis, Wuest lost 24 yards on a low snap from center while trying to punt.

Dumas hammered out a pair of first downs against a stubborn Pampa defense and was on the doorstep when Dickey carried to the three-yard line on first and goal. But Jeff Copeland and Mike Crippen combined to throw Davis for a loss before a pair of offside penalties gave the Demons the ball on the one with two downs to score.

Disaster struck the Demons for the fourth time as Davis fumbled on the next play and Pampa recovered on its own two.

PAMPA'S DEFENSE swarmed all over the field Friday night to shut down the Dumas offense. In all Pampa gave up less than 150 yards through the air and on the ground while the Harvester offense marched up and down the field to the tune of over 350

Boosters to meet

Football fans who stayed home to watch Muhammad Ali and Leon Spinks battle it out Friday night can view films of the Pampa-Dumas clash Monday noon at the Harvester Booster Club's weekly luncheon.

Coach John Welborn will give commentary on the films at the meeting at the Country Inn, 1101 Alcock. Boosters are asked to be on time, as serving will begin promptly at noon.

Miami nips Claude

CLAUDE — Miami overcame a slight case of overconfidence here Friday night and emerged with a hard-fought 16-15 win over Claude.

The Warriors scored on their first possession as Kevin Jenkins took it over from the nine and Randy Stone added the point after.

"We scored the first time we had the ball, and they may have thought they had it won," Miami Coach Dennis Anderson said.

But Claude proved it was a force to be reckoned with when Shane Rich scored the first of two touchdowns on a four-yard run with three seconds to play in the first half. Roger Osborn ran in a two-point conversion to give the Mustangs an 8-7 halftime lead.

Claude increased that margin to 15-7 win the third quarter as Rich bowled over from the seven and Mike Weatherly added the kick.

But the Warrior defense toughened and went to work on the Mustang lead. Claude's punter stepped out of the end zone when the snap from center was too low to handle and Miami trailed by a touchdown as the game began to wind down.

Miami scored its winning points with 5:35 left as Jenkins took an 11-yard pass from Randy Daugherty for the touchdown, Randy Stone, who led all rushers with 127 yards on 22 carries, kicked the extra point to give the Warriors their one-point win.

Anderson said his team played some good defense, "especially in the second half. We put a pretty good rush on their passer and he was throwing it over their heads," he said of Claude's one-for-six passing mark.

Miami hosts Texline Friday night in an attempt to improve its record to 3-0, while Claude, winless in two attempts, hosts White Deer.

Groom holds off Bucks

WHITE DEER — Sophomore fullback Dwan Weller rushed for 118 yards on 34 carries and scored twice here Friday night to lead the Groom Tigers to a 20-8 victory over a determined Bucks squad.

White Deer lost four fumbles in the first half, with one resulting in the game's only score in the first half. Jigger Britten scored from the Buck one to give Groom a 6-0 lead at intermission, but Coach Mike Purcell's Bucks knew they weren't out of it yet.

"We thought we could win at halftime, if we'd quit turning the ball over," Purcell said.

"I thought it was a physical game," he said. "We felt like we played well and improved from last week and we were moving the ball, but they (Groom) played well enough to win."

Weller scored his first touchdown on a three-yard run to open the second half scoring. Quarterback Gary White ran in the two-point conversion for a 14-0 Groom lead, and Weller scored on another three-yard run in the fourth quarter to pad the margin to 20-0.

That's when the Bucks began an aerial barrage that eventually resulted in a 49-yard touchdown pass from Ralph Gallett to Mike Pettit.

"They were literally lofting it," Groom Coach Russell Roberts said. "They have a good quarterback and he was throwing long passes. They caught us in a mistake in our coverage and took advantage of it."

Wheeler bombs Chillicothe

CHILICOTHE — The Harris System called it a mismatch, but it wasn't that close here Friday night as the Wheeler Mustangs piled up nearly 600 yards total offense and crushed Chillicothe, 71-7.

No less than eight Mustangs contributed to the Wheeler point onslaught as the defending Class B champions rolled up a 50-0 lead before Chillicothe got on the scoreboard.

Myron Jolly started the scoring avalanche by returning an intercepted pass 39 yards to paydirt. In short order, Marvin Grimes scored on a seven-yard run, Russell Gaines booted a 24-yard field goal and Grimes tallied his second touchdown on a 24-yard jaunt to give Wheeler a 23-0 lead after the first quarter. But the Mustangs added 27 more in the second period as Bret Mosley and Benny Baker added six-pointers and Jimmy Ryan scored on runs of three and two yards to give the Mustangs their 50-point bulge.

Richard Lockett's 79-yard punt return in the second quarter accounted for Chillicothe's only touchdown of the night.

The Mustangs tacked on 21 fourth quarter points as Kevin Andis took a Jolly pass from 24 yards out, Tom Christner traveled 34 yards with a pass interception and Baker scored his second touchdown on a 40-yard gallop.

The Mustangs finished with 503 yards rushing and added 82 through the air while limiting Chillicothe to just nine yards on the ground and five yards passing.

The Mustangs return home Friday night to host Phillips, and will take a week off before playing Texline for the Wheeler homecoming game Oct. 6.

Fish applications due Nov. 1

By J.D. Peer
Texas Parks & Wildlife
LUBBOCK — Application forms are available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for three species of fish to be stocked in private

Berry catches heavy string of channel catfish

Fern Berry of Pampa had a productive morning of fishing Wednesday when he took 21 pounds of catfish from Greenbelt Reservoir. Using cut perch for bait, Berry hauled in channel catfish weighing seven, three and two pounds, as well as two 4½-pounders.

waters in 1979. These fish, including the largemouth bass, channel catfish and sunfish are stocked at a recommended rate of 50 per acre. The bass cost $2 per surface acre, catfish $4 and sunfish $5. A $2 application charge is required for each order to cover cost of computer and paperwork. The bass fingerling will be delivered in the spring and the channel catfish and sunfish the following August. Purchasers must pick fish up at one of 37 locations across Texas. Texas pond owners should consider whether their waters actually need to be stocked with fingerlings. If a lake has an established fish population now, it would be expensive and wasteful to restock fingerling fish because the larger fish would most likely eat the smaller ones. New lakes or old ponds gone dry and refilled are the most ideal situation for fingerling fish such as the P&WD produces at its hatcheries. An alternative for the pond owner whose lake already contains fish is to either drain the lake or chemically remove all the fish before stocking the fingerlings. For pond owners who wish to stock larger-sized fish, or want fingerlings sooner than the P&WD production schedule permits, a list of commercial fish producers can be obtained by writing the department. Management of ponds and lakes can be complicated, but a department publication discussing lake management techniques is available to the Texas pond owner. The booklet entitled "Construction Hints and Preliminary Management Practices for New Ponds and Lakes" may be obtained by writing the Literature Distribution Office, P&WD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744. Pond owners who want fingerlings should write to the Hatchery Coordinator, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department at the same address for application forms. Applicants have until Nov. 1 to apply for these P&WD fish. YOU CAN HELP LUBBOCK — You as a concerned sportsman and citizen can help the enforcement of wildlife laws in Texas by reporting all game and fish violations to the nearest Texas game warden. Even though the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has 422 game wardens stationed at strategic cities and towns in Texas, the state is too large for these officers to observe and apprehend all game and fish violators. Recent hunter, angler and boater surveys completed by Texas game wardens indicate that nearly five percent of those contacted by the officers are in violation of one or more state regulations in the Lubbock region. Many sportsmen participate in outdoor activities on private property or in areas not readily accessible to game wardens. If it were not for responsible landowners, law-abiding sportsmen and numerous citizens, hundreds of game, fish and water safety violations would go unreported each season.

To assist you in reporting game, fish and water safety violations in your presence, the P&WD has placed a standard Violation Report form on the back of each new Texas Hunting & Sport Fishing Guide. If you witness a violation, do not try to apprehend the violator yourself. Simply fill in the blanks on the Violation Report and give it to a Texas game warden. The new guide with the Violation Report form can be picked up free of charge at license vendors, P&WD offices or from the nearest Texas game warden. Only with the participation of concerned citizens such as you or members of your family can Texas game wardens apprehend those who vandalize private property and steal our wildlife resources.

Ohio's Wildlife Legislative Fund has gone national

By MICHAEL HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
Ohio's Wildlife Legislative Fund has gone national and sportsmen's groups across the country have a new ally in their battle against preservationists. The fund, now the Wildlife Legislative Fund of America, plans to spread the word to organizations on the state level on how to beat the anti-hunting, anti-trapping and anti-fishing forces at their own game. The fund's president and chief executive officer is Jim Glass of Columbus. The chairman of the board is G. Ray Arnett of Stockton, Calif., immediate past president of the National Wildlife Federation. Among the directors is Pittsburgh Pirates President Dan Galbreath, also of Columbus. Ohioans who aren't sportsmen know of the WLF as a result of its participation last year in a victory over anti-trapping forces who had sought to change the Ohio Constitution to outlaw leghold traps.

leave of absence from his job with Rockwell International to work with the sportsman's group. He has worked for the company for 27 years. "There is a tremendous need for its (the WLF) existence" on national level, Glass said. There are a number of groups watching out for the interests of various aspects of the field sports. But this will be the only organization "working on the state levels helping local organizations with seed money and guidance when things crop up on the state level," Glass said. "Right now, we have a need to educate the general public to the fact that the sportsman is the greatest conservationist," Glass said. Glass thinks the immediate problem is with the state assemblies, where those opposed to the consumptive use of wildlife "continue to tramp on the fringes, on archers and trappers."

Terrestrial trout lures working

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A few minutes earlier, trout fishermen had lined the banks of Falling Springs Run, casting small mayfly imitations on the water of this fabled limestone stream. Standing nearly shoulder to shoulder, the anglers were attracted by a morning hatch of mayflies, small aquatic insects that often spur trout into a feeding frenzy. But now the hatch had ended and the anglers were quickly departing the stream, believing the trout had quit biting for the day. Only a few stalwart anglers remained when Gerald Almy arrived to begin fishing, but they soon gave up in exasperation. Almy, however, radiated confidence that he could catch the wary trout that inhabit this stream that meanders through the rolling green meadows of south-central Pennsylvania. He had, in fact, deliberately timed his arrival to avoid the crowd attracted by the morning hatch. He tied on a small black beetle imitation and began casting along the shoreline. Within minutes a trout surged out from under brushy cover and struck the fly, but was not hooked. Almy is a heretic among trout anglers, for his beliefs run counter to traditional angling wisdom. Instead of attempting to imitate aquatic insects that inhabit a trout stream, Almy focuses on terrestrial insects — the ants, beetles, grasshoppers, wasps and crickets. These are the insects that live and breed on the land adjacent to the stream, often falling into the water providing food for trout. "The most successful dry-fly fishing that I have enjoyed was almost always with terrestrials," Almy says. Almy, in fact, has just published a startlingly comprehensive book on the subject entitled "Tying & Fishing Terrestrials" (Stackpole, $14.95). It is the first trout-fishing book ever written whose subject is devoted solely to terrestrial insects. Since aquatic insects comprise barely 5 percent of all known insects, Almy argues, a fly fisherman's selection of flies should reflect this. But they frequently don't, he says, with most fishermen's fly boxes containing 95 percent aquatic imitations and five percent terrestrials.

Four Amarillo men make team

Four Amarillo men qualified for the the Poor Boy Bass Association's Classic Team with their fishing at the Texas Division V Qualifying Tournament on Greenbelt Reservoir Sept. 10. Butch Colantonio, Marlan Appel, Joe Lutz and Bob Woods qualified for the team, which will compete in the Association's National Classic Tournament in October. They were the top four finishers in the Greenbelt tournament and joined the top six point winners of the regular tournament season to make up the 10-man Classic Team. Fishing conditions were tough. There was a heavy fog all morning, and the wind blew in the afternoon. Few fish were caught and no definite pattern was established. Colantonio hauled in over seven pounds of fish to beat Appel for the $350 first prize, while Appel, who reeled in four and a quarter pounds, won $60 for the day's largest bass. Lutz and Woods finished third and fourth, respectively, and Jimmy Ratliff of Amarillo placed fifth. The four Amarillo men join Dwayne Busby, Richard Nowlin, Roy Alderson, Rodney Horne, Chuck Clarke and Mike Hardin on the Division V Classic Team.

Major investments proposed for coal degasification plants

HOUSTON (AP) — The natural gas utility industry estimates its capital investments through year 2000 will require $60.3 billion for coal gasification projects.

That is nearly one-half of the $126.2 billion the industry believes it will have to spend in developing conventional and supplemental gas supplies by the end of the century.

The projections for coal gasification do not include another $12.3 billion required for plants that will be under construction but not in operation by the end of 2000.

An American Gas Association study estimates $2.7 billion will be spent on coal gasification plants between 1981 and 1985, $15.1 billion between 1986 and 1990, and $42.5 billion between 1991 and 2000.

The figures are based on a capital cost of $1.37 billion for a plant capable of processing 250 million cubic feet of gas a day from coal.

The AGA says high quality gas from coal is feasible using current proven technology.

"A number of commercial plants are proposed and construction of the first few plants can proceed with federal loan guarantees," the report says.

"With such support, two plants producing a total of 0.2 trillion cubic feet could be operational by 1985. Subsequent capacity is projected at 13 plants by 1990, 24 plants by 1995, and about 44 plants by the year 2000."

The AGA said such a growth rate is consistent with the rate of growth experienced by the nuclear power industry between the late 1950s and the early 1970s.

"Additionally, the gas industry and the Department of Energy are continuing their combined efforts to develop advanced coal gasification technology which will enhance the commercial competitiveness in the 1990s," the report said.

Projections for conventional exploration and development total $28.8 billion, including $3.2 billion between 1978 and 1980.

New manager at Beal firm

Bill Terry has been named area manager of Beal Equipment Inc., 701 E. Frederic, which is currently observing its fourth anniversary.

A native of Pampa, Terry has 13 years experience in the area oil and gas industry. He asks that his friends stop by and see him at Beal Equipment.

The firm provides sales and service of chemical and glycol pumps and is distributor for production, pipeline and processing specialties.

The Pampa store, one of two owned by the firm, has recently expanded its inventory, providing more equipment for the oil and gas industry. Terry said. The other store is in Odessa.

Harold Gregory is the local area sales manager. Debbie Baldrige is the office manager and Earl Crane is the shop foreman.

Bunyan contest slated

AMARILLO — The ghost of Paul Bunyan, superman of logging camps, will be hovering over the Panhandle next week.

He'll be anxious to see who lays claim to his title as the greatest all around lumberjack of the era during the Paul Bunyan Games being held Friday through Sunday at the 84 Lumber Co. to help mark the grand opening of the firm's new lumber distribution center here.

Although no one is apt to top some of Bunyan's more heroic achievements — like the time he shot ducks that were flying so high in the sky they spoiled before reaching the ground — still the games are designed to test the skill and power of the typical lumberman, with a couple of new additions from the modern sports minded Bunyan.

Events include: nail driving a 30 penny nail into a log in the shortest time; cross cut sawing, one man sawing through a log in the shortest time; log rolling a log 40 feet in the shortest time; fish casting, a test of accuracy with rod and reel; and hole-in-one golf, hitting a golf ball closest to the pin.

The games will be open to everyone over 18 years of age and contestants may enter as many events as they wish. However, to achieve the title of "Paul Bunyan" — King of the Lumber Jacks — a contestant must enter and qualify in at least three events.

Qualifying rounds will begin at 10 a.m. Friday and Saturday with a special late-hour qualifying round from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday. The finals in all events will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Entry blanks are available at 84 Lumber Co. at 2004 Hardy St., off Wolfen near the Colter exit from Interstate 40.

The opening festivities Saturday and Sunday will also include a human bomb act by Benny Koske at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Koske packs enough explosives inside a one-ton safe to blow it open, crouches inside, counts down from 10 and presses the switch.

Career soars with 'Stars Wars'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Harrison Ford's acting career was zilch at the time, so he eagerly accepted the role in a space movie.

"I knew we would all have to work real hard to make it work," he recalls. "I knew nothing about science fiction, so I was not in a judgmental position to say, 'You can't do that.' I had some misgivings about a film that relied heavily on special effects and walking fur creatures, but I recognized mine was a great part and the whole project was well intentioned."

The part was Han Solo, the movie "Star Wars," and Harrison Ford's career suddenly ascended from zilch to spacial heights.

George Lucas remembered Ford from "American Graffiti" when he was casting Han Solo.

The current drought is very serious to local farm and ranch operators. Wheat farmers are in a pickle — many have not received enough rain since harvest to get volunteer sprouted. Wheat sowing would be underway if normal conditions with adequate moisture were the case. Fall wheat pasture is going to be limited even for irrigated fields. Most irrigated farmers have made so much money from wheat (that's a joke) that they are reluctant to put a pre-water expense into the crop to get their volunteer up.

Now for the cattleman, he has been expecting some late August, early September rains which would allow him to grow some more grass to carry his cattle through the winter on. It is getting late to grow much, if any, grass before frost, therefore, some ranchers are already expecting to feed a lot of hay this winter. For the most part, ranchers had about a six week grass growing period in the spring and that just isn't long enough to grow a year's supply of grass.

All in all this hot, dry summer and fall of 1978 is costing area farmers and ranchers and the situation gets worse each day we do without any moisture.

Stocker cattle seminar

There will be a Stocker Cattle Seminar Tuesday, Sept. 26, in Pampa at the Courthouse Annex meeting room at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature three area Extension Specialists: Dr. Gene Cope, veterinarian, Dr. John McNeil, beef cattle, and Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist. The subjects will center around health and management programs for stocker cattle producers.

Johnsongrass control

The hot, dry days of late summer and early fall are an ideal time to control rhizome johnsongrass in fallow fields.

Repeated tillage is an effective way to clean up fields heavily infested with rhizome johnsongrass. Chiseling followed by disking pulls the rhizomes to the surface and chops them into short segments which dry quickly in the sun. If the soil is moist enough to plow, rhizome johnsongrass can almost be eliminated with repeated tillage during dry, hot weather.

Every time johnsongrass shoots reach a height of 6 to 8 inches, plow the field again. During a period of extended rainfall, the degree of control

With this ring I thee wed...

Jane (not her real name), 18, a senior at Pampa High, has been married for a year and half. She quit school last year, and decided to go back this year in order to get her diploma.

That's tough she says, many of her friends graduated last year, and she found herself in the position of making friends all over again.

She doesn't think going to school and being married at the same time is tough though. "If you had to work it would be hard, but if you don't it's not so hard."

She said she is able to get her work done during the day and spend time with her husband in the evening. "School doesn't put pressure on me, but if I didn't have my work done it would bother him."

Jane agreed that a lot of Pampa girls do get married at a young age.

"Some get married to get out of the house. I didn't."

She said she felt marriage at this age depends on certain circumstances. "If you are both mature, you will stop and think about it. Financial stability is important, and you want to make sure that this is the one."

She also agreed many girls get married as an answer to the "what - do - I - do after graduation syndrome." "That's no reason to get married," she said.

"You need to find a person you really love, and know for sure he's the one. You need to be ready to settle down."

Jane describes her marriage as perfect. "I'm really happy. We don't argue, we'll discuss things. I have no regrets."

She added, "Marriage isn't a storybook, but the problems aren't outstanding."

Jane explained, "Many girls get married for the wrong reason. Many get married because they have to."

Currently Jane is going through school so she can finish it and get a diploma. She also has hopes of getting a good job after graduation. She added "I feel like maybe I should have finished school before getting married."

Even though she only dated her husband for seven months before the marriage, she felt that was a sufficient period of time.

"We learned each others feelings."

According to Jane the high school atmosphere changes when one gets married.

"You feel different in high school when you are married... It's a whole different set up then when you were single."

What does the future look like for Jane?

"We don't plan on having children for another five or six years. We like to be alone and together."

"You haven't got everything out of life yet."

She added, "I was mature enough to take on the responsibilities and I settled down with the man I love."

Mary (not her real name) is a senior at Pampa High School. She will graduate on Nov. 30, and have her baby around January. She was married in August.

Mary is also a part of the homebound program at Pampa High School.

Is it hard to be married and go to school at the same time? "Not really, we go in and do our stuff, but most of the work is done at home."

She added, "I don't think I would have gotten married if I would have had an entire year of school left."

She paused and brushed back her hair, then said "There is no difficulty in being married and going to school at the same time." She explained she does her homework in the afternoon so she can spend time with her husband in the evening.

The responsibilities of marriage didn't seem to be new to her. "I was aware of budget and finances, but doing it was new. You have to do more planning."

She added that in the month she had been married the responsibilities have become clearer to her. "It was a honeymoon at first."

Mary said she had dated her husband for eight or nine months before they were married. "We were planning on getting married after graduation, but in June I found out I was pregnant."

She believed they had dated long enough. She described their relationship as "love at first sight."

Their social life is spent with other married couples. The few girls she does associate with in school are those in the homebound program.

"I don't think of marriage as being tied down. There are things we have in common that will keep us together."

She added, "Some people say I'm very mature, but that is because I had a lot of responsibility at home."

"I love kids, and I like housework."

Responsibility a Key in marriage

Whether it is "puppy love" or "love at first sight," Pampa teen-agers are getting married — married at a young age. There are few statistics, and no real answers but various Pampa officials have given their opinion.

John English, a counselor at Pampa High, said, the "what - do - I - do after graduation syndrome," is "only an answer to a part of it."

English added, "Many teen-age marriages are an escape from home. They want to be on their own and have their own freedom."

M. B. Smith, pastor of Highland Baptist Church, and a teacher at Pampa High said, "Many will marry because of the cost of school. They feel they can't manage it." Smith said marriage is also used as an escape valve.

English said they are starting to fit into the social structure better. He added "Their interests are different and they become more of a homebody."

Smith commented the social activities in Pampa are rather limited. "This makes for a problem. We need some wholesome activities for young people."

Maturity seem to play a large part in these marriages.

Smith said, "Some will show maturity at the age of 17, and will fight the battle and stay with it."

He added, "Marriage will either mature a couple real fast or they will break up. I've seen more kids mature quickly than I've seen fall apart."

Smith also pointed out it is not only teen marriages that are having trouble, but many teens don't see the responsibilities of marriage.

"Later they are sorry they took the responsibilities so lightly. Many don't realize the responsibilities."

Smith added many only see marriage as a great big party. "Many only look at the glamour."

English pointed out many teens have a very unrealistic attitude toward marriage.

Smith said, "Kids are looking for something exciting. They think they'll find that in marriage."

How do parents react to young marriages?

Smith said in many instances the parents will try to show the couple responsibility but may give up in desperation and allow them to get married. He added the parents then try to help out the couple after the marriage.

This isn't true of every set of parents though Smith said. "Many parents will wash their hands of the situation and the trial becomes too much for the kids."

He added, "If they weigh it seriously, they will make it. Just because they are young in years, doesn't mean they are immature."

Smith said, "Problems come when responsibilities aren't met." He added, "They'll work their problems out if both are willing to try."

Some teens will find themselves not only married but pregnant and the high school wants to help.

There is a program currently open to these girls at Pampa High School called homebound.

It is taught by Doris Friend and Frances McLaughly.

The girls go to school in the morning, with all of their classes being taught by these two women.

They learn things other than reading, writing and arithmetic. They learn how to care for their baby in addition to finishing their high school requirements.

"We work with the health problems and the legal status of the girls," Friend said.

The program currently has five girls and Friend says most girls will complete the program.

"The girls have a great deal more work to do on their own than they do in class."

Mrs. Friend doesn't see the number of teen-age pregnancies increasing.

"I have worked with the program for approximately 10 years and I have had about the same number each year."

She also believes teen-age girls face their responsibilities.

"I think they realize the responsibilities as much as someone their age. There are some things the pregnant girl must absolutely face."

National trend conflicts with Pampa

Although the trend in Pampa seems to be "let's get married," according to a recent issue of Newsweek magazine the national trend is going the other way.

The article stated that it was only five years ago when the single life was seen as a transitory state of being. Single bars were haunted, and the image of the swinger was created. But, while these individuals were swinging and haunting bars they were waiting for that wedding day.

Today it's different - at least according to Newsweek.

The article stated today people are staying single by choice - not by chance. It is a type of life that is becoming more acceptable and often more desirable.

In 1977, 17 percent of all homebuyers were single, and 25 percent of all new car purchasers were single. Unmarried adults between the ages of 18-40 took three times as many vacation trips as the rest of the adult population. Thirty percent of all U.S. households belong to individuals that have never married.

Singles are also the fastest growing segment of the housing industry, with many market items being geared to the single.

The article continued saying, "Whether the new singleness will remain an institution or be replaced once more by the family remains to be seen. The divorce rate appears to be leveling off, and many experts believe the delaying of the first marriage will result in marriage stability."

The article also stated many people wonder if young men and women want to give up their financial stability to take on other demands.

But that is the nation wide outlook.

It seems to be different in Pampa. Although statistics are not available, there seems to be a trend to marry - and marry young.

There are approximately eight girls enrolled in Pampa High School that are married. Three of these are in the homebound program and are expecting a child.

No one has the answer to why there are this many young marriages, but it does make one stop and wonder.

story by Kathy Burr

photography by Pam Turek

Note: The following comes from Evelyn Duvall's book "Todays Teenager." It lists seven reasons why people marry young.

1. Marriage is glamorized and romanticized through out culture. Marriage appears to answer every dream, solve every problem.

2. Having mothers and friends who married young encourages a young girl to do likewise.

3. Getting married seems to offer a shortcut to maturity. "They have been given so much so soon all through their lives that they push for adult status as soon as they attain grown - up size," Duvall writes. "Instead of growing slowly into full maturity on their own, they sometimes imitate adult roles and play house before they are ready for the full responsibility of mature family living."

4. Marriage promises tenderness, closeness and intimacy.

5. Teenagers with few plans for the future tend to marry young. Identity confusion also can precipitate early involvement and marriage.

6. Adolescent rebellion spirit of individual freedom and the idea that "everyone is doing it" encourages young marriages.

7. Statistics reveal that half of all teen - agers are pregnant at the time they marry.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please help us solve a problem that I know many grandparents are having now.

Our daughter lives about a thousand miles from us. She left her husband, took their son and daughter, and is now living with another man.

We are planning a trip to see her and our grandchildren, so I wrote and told her that because we do not approve of her living with a man she is not married to, we refuse to stay with her, but will stay at a nearby motel instead. She responded by saying that she had plenty of room in her home, and if we didn't stay with her, the children would start asking questions, so if we wanted to see our grandchildren, we would have to stay with her.

We love our grandchildren very much and want to see them, but we don't know what to do or how to answer our daughter.

Please help.

SHATTERED

DEAR SHATTERED: Your daughter is holding the trump card, so if you want to see your grandchildren you had better stay with her. Staying with your daughter doesn't necessarily mean that you approve of her lifestyle.

You don't say how old the grandchildren are, but if they're old enough to "start asking questions," it's time your daughter started giving them some truthful answers.

DEAR ABBY: Although I'm only 14, I look much older, and I've been out with guys who are 20 and even 21. (I sometimes say I'm almost 18, and they believe me.)

My problem is that I am turned on very easily. I still have fairly high moral standards, but when a guy I like kisses me, my resistance melts away.

My friends say I'm cute, and I have a great figure. So far, I've gone only to "second and third base," but I'm afraid one of these times I won't be able to control myself. Am I normal?

WEAK IN THE KNEES

DEAR WEAK: The emotions you feel while being kissed are normal to everyone, but new to you. You are much too young to be dating guys who are 20 and 21. And furthermore, you would be wise to postpone the heavy kissing until you are older and sufficiently experienced to control yourself.

If, at age 14, you've gone to "second and third base," you had better get out of that league or you'll be known as the "Home Run Queen" by the time you're 15.

DEAR ABBY: I taught school and didn't marry until I was 34. Vincent was 36 and had never been married either. He lived with his mother, but said we would have a place of our own when we married. We did, but in less than six months his mother got "lonesome" and moved in with us.

Our house is small, but it does have two bedrooms, so I fixed one up for Mother J., with a new TV, which she rarely turns on. She comes to our bedroom and sits on our bed (even when we are IN it) and watches whatever we're watching. After we turn out our lights she sits in a chair in our bedroom and reads with a flashlight. And she doesn't leave until she thinks we are both asleep.

There is no lock on our bedroom door. Mother J. has two other children. They never ask her to their homes, but they run in to say "hi" to her on their way somewhere else. Her health is good, and she could afford to live alone.

I am at the breaking point, Abby. I have considered asking Vincent to make a choice between his mother and me but I'm afraid he'd choose her. I can't take this much longer. What should I do?

ASHLAND, KENTUCKY

DEAR ASHLAND: Have a long talk with Vincent. Explain your need for privacy, and ask him to convey it to his mother. Insist on a lock for your bedroom door. If Vincent refuses, then face it: he has already made his choice.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 152 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several months ago I was poisoned on chicken at a restaurant in town. My doctor put me in the hospital for a few days until I recovered. When I entered the hospital this doctor gave me intravenous fluid all night long. He kept me awake until 5 a.m. and I entered the hospital at 9 p.m. the night before.

Now the doctor says I have diabetes. I never had any diabetes until now. Could you please tell me if I got the diabetes from that sugar water they put in my veins all night?

I feel terrible about this and thought I'd get your idea on this way of treating me as I haven't been feeling good lately. I'm 79 years old.

DEAR READER — No, the intravenous fluids that you received for food poisoning did not cause your diabetes. It's standard practice when a person has severe food poisoning to replace their loss of fluid. Commonly the biggest danger from food poisoning is the loss of salts and water, either from diarrhea or vomiting or both. When there's too much salt in the water loss it's important to the circulation and overall health to replace it. Your doctor did the right thing for you and probably prevented other complications that you may have had.

The illness that you had was caused by some bacteria which may be present in chicken and many other foods. Salmonella and other bacteria are a frequent problem in food preparation and distribution. In fact, the bacterial infections which cause food poisoning are the major concern we should have about food and is far more common than some of the public scares about "chemicals" and other supposed impurities or unhealthy aspects of our food.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-2, Food Poisoning of Infectious Origin so you can have a better idea of the different kinds of bacteria that can cause food poisoning and what you can do to prevent it. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I think you have to look at it this way. Any time you go to a doctor's office for a medical problem he may find that you've had some other disorders that you didn't know about before. At least half of the people who have diabetes have no symptoms. If any one of them happens to be involved in an automobile accident and goes to the hospital because of this, while that person is in the hospital, the diabetes may be diagnosed.

I might add that you might need to talk to your doctor about how severe your diabetes is and how important it may be for you. Often mild elevations of the blood sugar in older people are not a major problem. It depends on how high the blood sugar is and if there are any symptoms really being caused by it, such as the loss of a lot of sugar in the urine.

On the house

The story goes — and there is at least one written account of it — that many years ago, professional wood finishers in some factories had to take off all their clothes before applying varnish to furniture.

Why? Because the dust and lint from their clothes would have settled on the wet surfaces and ruined the work. It doesn't matter much whether the tale has been exaggerated, because the premise behind it is as true then as now.

Whether old-line natural-resin varnishes or the newer and better synthetic varnishes, their enemy continues to be dust.

All newly finished surfaces must be kept free of dust, but the battle need not be as intense against such quick-drying materials as lacquer and shellac.

When varnish is being used, it is important the project be carried out in a room which no one is likely to enter while you are at work and preferably for several hours. The room should be as dust-free as possible, which in some cases means using a vacuum cleaner before starting, working very carefully, since the procedure itself sometimes stirs up dust.

After the surface has been sanded, it must be wiped thoroughly with turpentine or mineral spirits to get rid of the grit caused by the sanding. Pros use a tack rag, which is moistened with turpentine and a bit of varnish. You can buy one at almost any hardware or paint store.

If you wish to make one, sprinkle a clean cloth with turpentine and then add a little varnish. Ring out the cloth until nearly dry, then wipe the surface with it. After you have finished with it, put it in an airtight metal container and it can be used over and over again.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Another professional trick calls for the use of a picking stick. Here again you can buy one, although only in certain stores. But you can accomplish the same purpose — removing dust specks — with an ordinary wooden toothpick. Lightly touch the end of the toothpick to the bit of dust and it will come up. The wet varnish will then close in around the spot and smooth it out. This works only when the varnish is still very wet.

Varnish is applied with flowing brush strokes. Do not brush it back and forth. Work against the grain of the wood in a small area, then do the same thing with the grain. Stroke the brush across the can or something similar to remove excess varnish, then draw the bristles lightly across the work surface with the grain. This last operation, in which only the tips of the bristles touch the surface, is called tipping and is an important smoothing-out step.

Some varnishes require only a single coat, but this depends on a number of factors, including the kind of surface to which the varnish is applied. Since different manufacturers' brands call for different treatments, read the label carefully. If you apply more than one coat, each should be sanded lightly after it is completely dry.

Here's your answer

Q. — We are transforming our garage into an extra room and plan on using gypsum board for the walls. I intend to put up the walls myself with a little help from my brother. A few years ago I made some patches in a gypsum board wall in another part of our house, so I have some idea of how to handle the tape and the tape cement for the joints. However, I am somewhat puzzled as to how to go about taping the inside corners. Is there some special technique to this? Do I use two pieces of tape for each corner?

A. — Only a single tape is needed for each inside corner. First, fill the joint with cement in the same manner as you do for a regular seam. Then fold the tape in half and lay it in the corner so that half is on each side of the wall. Now cover the tape, again the same way as on a regular seam. Generally, three coats are needed, although you can sometimes get by with two. By the way, most dealers who sell the perforated tape also sell a tool made especially for smoothing out the cement on inside corners.

A. — No way to decide that. It depends on what kind of job you did. But you can be certain those particular shingles will stay in place during a high wind if you nail them at the corners. Use rustproof nails and cover the heads of the nails with cement. All this is based on the assumption that you are physically able to climb to the roof and know how to exercise the necessary precautions. Otherwise, hire a roofer. When the time comes to reroof, consider the use of shingles that are made especially to withstand high winds.

(When to reroof and how to select new roofing are explained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Roofing Guide," with a color chart, available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

DECORATING TRENDS... by Charlie's

People often ask if they should put their furniture parallel to a wall or whether it's all right to place some furniture diagonally. Generally speaking, a room usually looks better if the big pieces run parallel to a wall. This seems to create more unity, is more pleasing to the eye and is often more practical. However, like most rules of decorating, there can be exceptions based on personal preference or specific room situations, so there are times when major pieces could be placed diagonally, but most decorators prefer parallel placement in the majority of cases for the big pieces. Small pieces, on the other hand, may often be turned at an angle to a large piece. By doing this you can break up an over abundance of straight lines in a room, and give a room more interest and convenience. Another thing to consider is that even though you are placing a big piece, such as a sofa, parallel to a wall, the sofa doesn't necessarily have to cling to the wall. You might want to try floating it—letting it stand free in the room—and still keep its lines parallel to a wall even though it is not close against that wall. What ever your preferences are, remember that we can help you select beautiful furniture—and give you ideas on how to place your furniture in the most beautiful way, too. Stop in.

Mrs. R. A. Shirley

Lehrmann-Shirley vows

Renee Lehrmann of Amarillo became the bride of Russell Allen Shirley of Amarillo at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 2, at Christ Lutheran Church in Amarillo. The Rev. David A. Heidtke officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Lehrmann of Amarillo. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Shirley of Odessa.

The organist for the ceremony was Mrs. Lorna Schults, soloist was Miss Tracy Everett, and guitarist Steve Bart.

Maid of honor for the ceremony was Tracy Everett of Amarillo. She wore a long apricot colored dress with a matching picture hat and carried a bouquet of gerbera and white daisies and baby breath. Melinda and Melissa Shirley, Odessa were bridesmaids. Christina Mangold, Canadian served as junior bridesmaid, and Summer Ann Ziegelgruber, Pampa was flower girl. Mrs. Ziegelgruber, the flower girl's mother, was a flower girl for the bride's parents at their wedding.

The groom's attendants were: Fred Barber, Amarillo, best man; Bruce Lehrmann, Amarillo, and Vance Bruce, Pampa, groomsmen; Kurt Hill, Amarillo was ring bearer; and Brian McAdoo, Pampa served as acolyte. Ushers were Danny Golk, Amarillo, and Gary Rigdow, Dallas.

The reception was at the Christ Lutheran Fellowship Hall. Cake servers were Mrs. Jerry Bruce, Pampa and Miss Deena Norwood, Amarillo.

The couple will make their future home at the Bell Place Apts., 4402 Bell.

The bride attended Amarillo College and Stephen F. Austin. She was on the dean's honor roll at the University of Nacadoches where she was a member of Pi Kappa Delta National debating fraternity. She is an assistant at Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe.

The groom attended Amarillo College and is employed as Manager of Mission Taco.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bruce, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bruce, aunt and uncle of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Summers, cousins of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ziegelgruber, Summer Ann and Chad, cousins of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Aneta Keerns; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Johnson; Mrs. Jean Orr; Mr. William Wright; Mr. and Mrs. Gene McAdoo, cousins of the bride; and Mr. Abe Hildenbrand.

re-embroidered lace buttoned at the wrist. The full skirts fell in an A-line in front with long folds at the back with a chapel train. The entire hemline was trimmed in scalloped lace. To complete her wedding motif the bride chose a chapel length veil of matching illusion ivory. The cameo headpiece was made of re-embroidered lace encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a spring bouquet that was made of Sonia roses, various colored daisies and baby breath.

SELECT APPLIANCES TO AID ARTHRITIS SUFFERERS

Select household appliances to aid the person with arthritis. A person with arthritis may experience severe pain in trying to do everyday chores which others take for granted.

Some items that can aid the person with arthritis around the home include:

(1) Two-handled cookware: two handles make cookware much easier and safer for handling.

(2) Electric toothbrush: some of the small manipulative movements needed for brushing the teeth with a regular toothbrush are very difficult for a person with arthritis.

(3) Electric knife: an electric knife can make the hardest cutting job in the kitchen relatively easy.

(4) Electric scissors: These are especially important for a person who sews or does any kind of craft requiring a lot of cutting.

(5) Electric can opener: the difficulty in turning the key of a manual can opener is magnified for arthritis sufferers.

Look for a unit with power piercing cutting blade so that the user doesn't have to make the initial cut.

(6) Portable steamer unit: a portable steamer unit which can help to steam out wrinkles in both sheer and heavy fabrics can, in many cases, eliminate the need for ironing.

ALLERGIES

Allergies affect one in five Americans. The most common allergies are asthma and hay fever, and both appear seasonally or year round. Most serious of the common allergic diseases is asthma. About nine million Americans suffer from it. It usually appears as a shortness of breath with coughing and wheezing.

Asthma may occur in acute attacks which last from minutes to days, or it may be almost constant. Though asthma can begin at any age, most of its victims are afflicted in childhood. In the very young, symptoms of asthma may be rapid breathing and coughing spells or recurring cough with or without fever.

Asthma may be caused by pollen, house dust, grasses, weeds, animals or foods. Infections of the sinuses or of the bronchial tubes can also be made worse at times by emotional reaction to stress. Some allergic factors that bring on asthma in one victim may bring on hay fever in another. Symptoms are sneezing, itching, weeping eyes, runny nose, burning palate and throat. Hay fever, which affects an estimated 15 million Americans, may occur in spring, summer or fall and may last until frost.

Early diagnosis of allergies is important. Treatment for allergic diseases includes immunizing injections for allergens that cannot be removed - such as dust, pollens and mold spores. Shots must be given at intervals over a long period. Other remedies may include removing feather pillows or dust-catching furniture. Sometimes pets - cats, dogs, birds - must be removed. If certain foods cause allergies, they, too, must be removed from the diet. Many medicines are available to relieve symptoms of allergy.

Mrs. Victor Williams

Elliot-Williams vows

Patti Lyn Elliott became the bride of Victor Dee Williams at 2 p.m., Sept. 2, at the Mary Ellen Church of Christ with John Gay officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy W. Elliott of 1148 Starkweather. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Williams of 2116 N. Christy.

The music for the wedding was sung by Nan Hammons, Susan Cory, Don Adams, and Terry Simmons. Selections were: "Oh, Promise Me, You Light Up My Life, Evergreen, Twelfth of Never, and the Wedding Song."

The sister-in-law of the bride, Marie Elliot, and the sister of the groom, Velda Johnson served as matrons of honor. The attendants were attired in pale blue Qiana. The flower girl was Christy Heuston, cousin of the bride.

The groom's bestman was Dick Blain and Buck Williams, father of the groom, served as groomsmen.

The bride's gown was fashioned by her mother. It was honey satin covered with chiffon. The waist length illusion veil fell from a headband of white flowers and seed pearls.

The reception was in the church annex. Those assisting were: Jan Johnson, Jataun Scribner, Princess Kilcrease, Nancy Jewett and registering was Trinneer Acker.

The couple travelled to Colorado Springs, Colo. and will make their new home at 713 N. Dwight.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Pampa High School and is employed by Cabot. The groom is a 1975 graduate of Pampa High and attended WTSU for two years. He is presently employed by Celanese Chemical

Mrs. R.M. Collier

Young-Collier vows

Cynthia Ann Young of Arlington became the bride of Robert Michael Collier of Arlington at 8 p.m. Sept. 16. The bride is the daughter of the late John V. Young, Jr., and Mrs. Young of Dallas, formerly of Pampa. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Collier of Dallas.

The Rev. Fr. William Botick officiated at the ceremony in Christ the King Church in Dallas. Music for the wedding were classical selections by Noel Goemane, organist. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Jay B. Young of Nacogdoches.

The bride's attendants were: Nancy Soutanian of Arlington, Maid of Honor and Dottie Johnston, bridesmaid from Lubbock.

The best man was the groom's father Bob Collier of Dallas and Bob Taylor served as groomsman. Ushers were Charles Turner and Max Petch. The bride was attired in a chapel length gown of candlelight chiffon over silk taffeta with a bodice of Alencon lace, adorned with seed pearls. The gown had a stand up collar of Alencon lace which was also trimmed with seed pearls and cap sleeves of lace and seed pearls. The bride's veil of candlelight silk illusion fell from a wreath of fresh flowers which were repeated in her bouquet.

The reception was in the garden room and atrium of the groom's parents home. Vickie Walker and Terrie Phillips, cousins of the bride, assisted.

The couple is travelling to the Caribbean for a honeymoon. They will return to Dallas.

The bride is presently a student at the University of Texas at Arlington. She is earning her nursing degree.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Texas at Arlington with a degree in finance. He is employed by E.E.L., Incorporated.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

There is no one on the face of this earth for whom I feel more compassion than the mothers of children who are on half-day sessions at school.

My neighbor, Iris, went through an entire year of this schedule and we almost lost her. We all went over one day and literally dragged her from the utility room and set her down in the living room.

"Where are we?" she mumbled numbly. "In your living room," we said gently.

"I've never been here before," she said.

"Of course you have. It's the room right off your kitchen and utility room. Remember?"

She shook her head.

"All I remember is in September I went into the kitchen and the utility room and I've been there ever since. Rinsing breakfast plates, putting them in the sink, clearing the table, starting the washer..."

"It's all right," we said. "Don't dwell on it."

...and then picking up the pajamas and washing them, and making beds and it's lunchtime again and the kids are home and it's time to pick up the school clothes and wash them, and set the table and get lunch and rinse the plates and do the dishes and clear and it's dinnertime and I set the table and pick up the play clothes and wash them and get dinner and clear the table and rinse the dishes and start the washer... did I say that before?"

We nodded.

My kids went through it and it was a period that I paranoically refer to as the "Clothing Connection." It was like a game.

Every time they moved ahead two spaces, they passed go and went directly to the closet. My five-year-old once set a record for changing clothes. Within a 14-hour period, he changed clothes nine times. He had an outfit for eating breakfast, going to school, running through the house, using the phone, eating lunch, answering the door, riding his bike, weighing himself, and one that he wore because there was nothing clean left to wear.

We smiled. "On the day your kids start to do their own laundry..."

Mr. and Mrs. Rickey Garrison

Douthit-Garrison vows

Rene Douthit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Douthit of 711 Hazel, became the bride of Rickey Garrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Garrison of Canadian.

The bride is a senior at Miami High School. She is a member of the National Honor Society and president of the F.H.A.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Miami High School where he played football for four years, was on the student council for two years, played tennis, and was vice-president of his class for two years.

The reception table was covered with a gold cloth and centered with an arrangement of multi-colored spring flowers. The cake was decorated with wedding bells and roses. Serving the cake was Kathy Smith, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Beinda Gregory presided at the punch bowl.

The couple will live in Miami, where the bridegroom is employed by Roberts County.

gown and veil had pearls scattered throughout. Her illusion veil was edged with lace and had pearls scattered through the body of the garment. The bride's mother made her gown. The bride carried a bouquet of white and blue daisies.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Church of God Fellowship Hall. Viki Goodwin, Kim Anderson, Pam Kiesling, Margie Ray, and Sonja Teague assisted with the serving.

The couple's new address will be 1217 Duncan.

The bride is a graduate of Pampa High School and Pampa Beauty College. The groom is a graduate of Canadian High and is presently employed by Fites.

CURRY PICKLES—Unusual, delicious and easy to put up.

Pickling doesn't put her in a pickle

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Ellen Hostetter of Lancaster, Pa., makes unusual curry pickles. Ellen told me over the phone that she has been making them for a couple of years — ever since a patient in the doctor's office where Ellen works as a nurse gave her the recipe.

Ellen is in her early 30s and a whiz. She works four days a week at her job, keeps house and gets meals for her husband and their 6- and 9-year-old daughters, bakes, sews, does crewelwork and needlepoint, makes hairpin lace and flower arrangements, entertains informally and takes part in community projects.

And pickling is not the only thrifty preserving she does. Last spring she froze 30 pounds of sour red cherries (for pies and cheesecake toppings) and canned 20 pounds of sweet red cherries.

I called Ellen recently on her day off from work. She was about to can several bushels of peaches. "How on earth do you have the energy to can peaches and make pickles along with everything else you do?" I asked. Her quick retort: "Peaches and cucumbers don't talk back to me!"

"When did you make curry pickles this year?"

"While I was home from the office one lunchtime. I cut up the cucumbers and brined them. They soaked all afternoon and after I got home from work I cooked and processed them. I don't remember whether that was before or after supper."

PUNXSUTAWNEY SALAD
Raw mushrooms add marvelous flavor.

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 cups freshly cooked converted rice, at room temperature
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced through cap and stem
- 1 very large tomato, skinned and seeded and diced (1 cup)
- 1/2 cup minced sweet onion
- 1 small green pepper, seeded and finely chopped (1/2 cup)
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Salad greens

In small bowl whisk together the mayonnaise and lemon juice. Add the rice, mushrooms, tomato, onion and green pepper; toss together, adding the salt and pepper. Serve at room temperature on salad greens. Makes 6 servings.

When we made Ellen's pickles in my test kitchen, we cut up the cucumbers one afternoon and brined them overnight; the next morning we finished them.

Fit pickling in to suit your own schedule — and you won't be in a pickle.

ELLEN HOSTETTER'S CURRY PICKLES

- 1/2 cup salt
- 8 1/2 cups water
- 6 pounds pickling cucumbers, each 3 to 4 inches long
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/4 cup mustard seed
- 4 teaspoons celery seed
- 1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder
- 2 cups white vinegar

In a 6-quart saucepot or bowl of a non-corrosive material or with a non-corrosive lining, stir together the salt and water until the salt dissolves. Wash but do not pare cucumbers; cut ends from each and discard; cut crosswise into 3/4- to 1-inch slices — makes about 4 quarts. Add the cucumbers to the salted water; cover and let stand at room temperature 6 to 12 hours. Drain cucumbers; rinse thoroughly in cold running water; drain again. Turn into an 8-quart saucepot; set aside.

Into a 2- to 3-quart saucepan turn the sugar, mustard seed, celery seed, curry powder and vinegar; bring to a boil, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Pour over the reserved cucumbers; stirring often, bring to a boil. Ladle boiling hot cucumbers and liquid into hot pint-size canning jars, leaving 1/4-inch head space. Adjust covers. Process in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes. Makes 6 to 7 pints.

New Cordial is made from tea

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
The English who have been lingering each afternoon for centuries over their tea probably never dreamed this mild beverage that washed down their crumpets would one day be turned into a liqueur.

Imported from Germany, the new 70-proof spirit is distilled from Darjeeling tea leaves among other ingredients. It can be drunk hot or cold and in a variety of forms.

Promoters of the new spirit say it is good with plain soda, bitter lemon, ginger ale or even over ice cream. But I find it best in its natural habitat — an ounce of the liqueur added to a tall glass of iced tea.

Mixing tea with liquor is not new. It has been used for years in summer punches laced with whiskey, rum or fruit cordials. The spectacular success of Irish coffee in America prompted a few bar owners to offer hot tea reved up with Irish whiskey but it never caught on.

I do recall an aged aunt of mine, however, who used to put a tablespoon of bourbon in her hot tea on a chilly afternoon.

This latest import points up the growing popularity of liqueurs in the United States. From time immemorial, man has been steeping fruits, plants and herbs in alcohol until the flavors are absorbed, then distilling the result to intensify the taste and step up the strength.

Whatever blending method was used, the flavored spirit was usually sweetened with sugar, syrup or honey. Color was often added, the mixture finely filtered and then aged. Thus we have the classic herb liqueurs like Benedictine, flower extracts like rose liqueur and fruit spirits like apricot brandy or plant products like creme de cocoa.

Until recently, however, the cordial was sort of an oddity relegated to women's socials or used on desserts.

Today, cordials and liqueurs have begun cutting in on the market hitherto dominated by hard liquors. Statistics show that for the first six months of 1977, the sale of imported cordials rose 19 percent in this country.

If limiting the new liqueur to your iced tea begins to pall, there's a warm weather punch that is refreshing.

- 1 part lime juice
- 1 part brown sugar
- 2 parts tea liqueur
- 1 part rum
- 3 parts soda

Stir sugar and soda in ice-filled bowl. Add juice, rum and tea liqueur. Stir and serve.

Club news

20th Century

A business meeting of the Twentieth Century Club of Pampa took place Sept. 11, in the home of Mrs. Fred Neslage. Plans for the Fall Style Show, "Gallery of Fashions," were discussed. The show will be at 2 p.m., Sept. 30, at M.K. Brown Auditorium. The Pampa High School Choir will entertain and Behrman's will present the fashions. Proceeds will go to the scholarship fund for a Pampa senior.

The club yearbook was presented to each member and the club theme for the year, "Unity through Service," and the year's course of study, "Expressions of Service," was explained by the yearbook committee. Refreshments were served and the meeting was adjourned.

Worthwhile

Hostess at a recent meeting of the Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club was Eerie Ellis. President Pauline Beard conducted the meeting and Elaine Houston gave a program on saving energy in the home.

Keep wedding costs down

HOUSTON (AP) — When Beth and Jack, and Kathy and Mark, announced their engagements, their wedding plans sounded very similar.

Both couples were to be married in a church with a reception following. Both girls planned long wedding gowns, invitations, music. Florists and photographers were hired and cakes ordered.

Beth and Jack's wedding cost $700. But when Kathy and Mark said "I do," it cost Kathy's dad $5,000. What made the difference?

"It was not any one thing that made the difference, although the biggest cost in both weddings was the reception," said Betty Crager, a professional planner who coordinated both weddings. "In nearly every phase of the wedding plans, Beth chose to keep it simple and watch the budget."

When cost is a factor in planning a wedding, Ms. Crager has these suggestions for judicious savings.

—Invitations: Consider hand-writing invitations to save printing costs. For an engraved look consider thermography — much less expensive than engraving and looks very similar.

—Photographs: Don't skimp on quality, but do be sure you understand separate charges for extra prints, an album, a portrait, etc.

—Flowers: Think greenery and simple flowers like daisies and other garden varieties to cut costs.

—Reception: The reception is the single largest cost in a wedding and the time and place indicate how lavish the food and beverage choice should be. The church hall is usually the least expensive place to hold the reception and if the bride eliminates alcoholic beverages it greatly reduces the per-guest cost.

A morning wedding almost requires a brunch or light lunch type of menu for the reception. Early afternoon hours between 2 and 4 p.m. permit the bride to serve champagne and wedding cake and tea sandwiches. Evening weddings are very social and seem to promote the notion that you will be serving something more than cake.

The type of wedding brides prefer, says Ms. Crager, often depends upon their age.

The 19- to 23-year-old: She and her parents usually want a traditional church wedding. Her parents live in the same city and it is an important social event for them and their friends.

The 25- to 30-year-old bride: She is a career woman, whose family usually lives in another city. She and the groom invite their friends and are concerned with making their wedding simple and more personal. Often the bride pays for this wedding or she splits the cost with her parents or the groom.

The 30- to 50-year-old: She is the divorced bride who wants a church wedding either because she never had one or because she wants an opportunity to get her children and friends involved in the marriage ceremony. Even without orange blossoms and lace, this can be a lovely wedding and a reception where everyone knows one another and has a good time.

Ms. Crager formed Events, Etc., in Houston after taking a course on handling special events in Washington, D.C., from White House social secretary Gretchen Posten. She considers herself a professional mother-of-the-bride, helping brides to sort out the good from the gaudy among purveyors of flowers, food and photos.

"All brides are beautiful," she says, "but not brave. They let well-meaning friends complicate their wedding plans with ideas that turn out to be costly and needless."

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

September 18, 1978
This coming year you will be anxious to make several important changes. Those that you take the time to study carefully will prove successful. Hasty alterations could be another story.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It could be a costly mistake to take business matters at face value today. They're a bit more complicated than they appear, so tread warily. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless you are cooperative today you will have small reason to expect others to be so. Unfortunately, the opening moves will be yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Persons doing services for you today won't appreciate your looking over their shoulder. Make too many suggestions and they may drop their tools or up their price.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Subdue your desires to take risks or shortcuts today. Your ambitions aren't likely to be furthered by bold, outlandish strokes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Instead of leading by example today, you may want others to do as you say, but not as you do. It's not a good way to captain a crew.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Pressure tactics won't work today in your sales efforts. Prospects who feel you're herding them into a corner will lose interest in your product or service.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make it clear in joint ventures today that you will only be responsible for your own actions. Let this also be true of all others involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Helpers and coworkers aren't likely to be too impressed with your powers of persuasion today, especially if you act a bit domineering.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keeping your mind on a task may prove a bit difficult today. You must make a concerted effort, however, if you're working with dangerous tools or material.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Not everyone you encounter today will warmly embrace you. Bite your tongue if someone makes remarks that displease you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The respect of others is very important to you, yet you could pull some boners today that might arouse their disdain. Think before you act.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to make it overly important that everyone agree with you today. There will be some who won't. If you're not prepared, you'll be angered.

Pampa Fine Arts presentation

The first fall presentation of the Pampa Fine Arts Association will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, at Lovett Memorial Library The 1978 National Academy of Western Art Film (NAWA), showing some of the artists that make up the membership of this organization, will be shown. Admission will be free and there will be refreshments. The film deals with winners of the 1978 NAWA Show at the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Oklahoma City. Wilson Hurley, oils; Richard Greeves, bronze; Morris Ruppel, watercolors; are three of the artists whose work is discussed in the film. The showing Tuesday will be the first time the new film has been presented locally. All members of the Pampa Fine Arts and the public are invited.

Richard Dreyfuss

In one of the sillier scenes from "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," Richard Dreyfuss tossed trees, plants and garden dirt into his living room. But life doesn't always imitate art. According to the October issue of Apartment Life magazine, which features Dreyfuss' remodeled New York apartment, the actor says he hates plants. When the magazine agreed to decorate his apartment for the story, no foliage was one of the original ground-rules. Apparently he's not to keen on much else cluttering up his living space either. Says Dreyfuss, "For years I only had a copy of the Bill of Rights tacked up."

As it turned out, by the time they'd invested oriental rugs, platforms and such in his pad, he even agreed to allow a couple of trees in baskets invade his palace. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Battlestar Galactica in debut Sunday on ABC

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — American will be divided in debate Monday. At issue will be whether "Star Wars" is better than the "Battlestar Galactica" making a three-hour ABC debut this Sunday night.

To quote Billy Martin, I take no sides. I just say "Battlestar" proves all is not lost in TV, that some in it still care enough to do their very best and that this is it in all areas. Produced by "Star Wars" specialist-effects whiz John Dykstra, the saga doesn't have earthlings seeking new planets. Instead, humans of all creeds and colors set out to find planet Earth.

What starts their voyage is a space-age Pearl Harbor attack on their home planets by the wicked Cylons, mechanical giants bent on exterminating humanity and replacing it with technology.

As at Pearl Harbor, peace talks precede the sneak attack. The humans' guard is down and the only leader worried by the Cylons is Lorne Greene, cast as Cmdr. Adama, head of the good ship Galactica.

That his fears are justified is tragically shown when one of his two sons (both are fighter pilots) dies in the first round of good vs. evil, the latter depicted by sinister Darth Vader types.

As with "Star Wars," this and other aerial — pardon me, space — jousting offers brilliant special effects, painstaking attention to detail and realistic-sounding pilot chatter.

And the combat sequences — the good guys' ships resemble an F-100 up front, a four-barrel Phantom jet in back — are so beautifully executed even current or former aerial gunners will applaud.

Besides Greene, who leads a ragtag, 220-ship collection of survivors after the attack, other good thespians abound in the show.

The standouts are Richard Hatch, as his surviving son, Dirk Benedict as raffish, lady-chasing Lt. Starbuck; Maren Jensen as Greene's daughter, for whom Starbuck has big eyes; and Herb Jefferson as Starbuck's reliable wingman, Lt. Boomer.

To chronicle events after the sneak attack is like trying to put the Johnstown Flood in an eyedropper. The film is so rich in plot twists, turns and well-edited scenes it defies brief description.

But rest assured it is industrial-strength entertainment, its moments of great drama and doom nicely mixed with sly bits of humor, such as an outer-space resort scene involving a trio of lady singers.

Starbuck thinks they're great, even though each has four eyes and two mouths. He could get rich were he their agent, he says.

Sighs his wingman: "Every creature in the universe is out to exterminate us and you want to hire a vocal group."

Despite its rousing supply of action, up to and including a mighty zap-out (once called shoot-outs), the show's characters have much more dimension than the comic-book types of "Star Wars."

Which is a good idea, considering that "Battlestar" is a series and will need a big supply of character studies to tide it over each week once Sunday's $7 million whiz-bang concludes.

But mercy, what a grand way to start.

WHAT EUROPE HAS, and America has lacked, is an organized apprenticeship program for young conductors. A project sponsored jointly by the National Endowment for the Arts and Exxon Corporation is filling that void. One of the apprentices, Calvin Simmons, is in his third year with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Suzanne Sommers

Someone who has it can't handle it. Some desperately crave it and can't get it. And no one who has it can avoid dealing with it. Its name is fame. "It's unreal," says Suzanne Somers. "It's a very heady experience. It's great fun."

Somers should know. Last year she traded in the hard life for fame and fortune by way of a shorty nightgown on "Three's Company."

The game has just begun for her, so she's still learning the price of playing. "When you leave a restaurant and there are 25 photographers waiting outside, it's fun," she says.

"On the other hand, sometimes when I go out onto the terrace in the morning for coffee, we've got people sticking their cameras through the gate. I realize they're merely curious, and I'm learning to come to grips with that."

NO NONSENSE SCOT

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf told the story on himself at the British Open in July. Tom, who won the event in 1973, wanted to play a practice round at St. Andrews a couple of days before the first round. He innocently assumed the greens fee would be on the house. It wasn't.

When he checked in at the starter's hut near the first tee he was greeted by a stony-faced veteran who told him the charge was two pounds in British currency. "Do former champions have to pay?" Weiskopf asked.

"Aye," was the answer. Tom was then told to wait his turn. The wait was a half hour. When he teed up he went as far back as he could. The starter appeared and gruffly told him to tee off where everybody else was.

In a spot like that, you either explode with anger or you laugh. Weiskopf is still chuckling.

FEMINE PLOYS

NEW YORK (AP) — Debbie Austin, one of the regulars on the Ladies PGA tour, says women attempt a lot of psyching out of each other.

"We have experts on the tour," she said, "who will do anything from moving as you make your shot to having their caddies drop the bag right on another player's sight-line on a putt."
