Carter imposes veto on water, energy package

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced today he is vetoing a $10.2-billion energy and water development bill he considers wasteful and inflationary. House and Senate leaders planned quick attempts to override.

The anticipated showdown followed a day of furious lobbying by administration officials and emotional arguing by both sides in the quest for public support.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., told the Senate on Wednesday that he expected override attempts from both houses within hours of Carter's veto.

He said he believed the Senate would succeed in its attempt, but House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said he wasn't sure the two-thirds vote could be mustered among House members.

"I think we had them today," he said Wednesday night, "but the White House is really putting on a full-court press."

He said House members told him Vice President Walter Mondale and cabinet members were pressing them to support the veto.

Both Byrd and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., took issue with the veto, which Carter promised Tuesday, and warned it could lead to a backlash against the president's top-priority energy package.

"I don't like to see this brewing," said O'Neill, who predicted the House would override the veto. "There's going to be some rancor."

The bill contains $6.1 billion for the Department of Energy, but that's not at issue. Most of the rest would go for dams and other water-resource projects, and Carter has complained that the 53 starts on water projects — 27 more than he wanted — are "pork-barrel" goodies that are inflationary wasteful and absolutely unacceptable.

He was unhappy, too, that Congress restored six water projects he thought had been scuttled last year in a compromise on similar legislation.

White House press secretary Jody Powell declared that even if Carter loses a veto fight, "The people will believe the president has done the right thing."

But Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado and several other Western officials called it "an act of war on the West" where more than half the projects are slated for construction.

Lamm appeared at a briefing session for congressmen by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Budget Director James T. McIntyre and others, exclaiming, "This administration has recommended no new water project starts in Colorado... with the result that California takes a bigger drink from the Colorado River than we do. We have a claim to some of those resources... It's our life blood."

Rep. Gunn McKay, D-Utah, bellowed at Andrus. "Talk about pork barrel! But you can't name a single other project where the government gets its money back from the users."

Andrus agreed the costs are recovered over periods of up to 50 years from farmers and other users of such benefits as crop irrigation.

And Howard Jarvis, a force behind California's tax-cutting Proposition 13, also backed Carter, calling the measure "the big-tax, big-government, big-spending, big-waste bill of the year."

September wholesale prices turn upward again

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale food prices turned upward again last month, signaling a possible new round of increases at the grocery store, government figures indicated today.

The Labor Department said wholesale food prices jumped 1.7 percent in September after two months of declines. It was the largest monthly increase since the 1.8 percent gain in April, when food prices were spiraling

Over-all wholesale prices of finished goods rose 0.9 percent, also the biggest gain, since April. Non-food items rose 0.6 percent.

The biggest increases were in wholesale prices for beef and veal. The higher costs of producing food are usually passed on to grocery shoppers eventually.

So far this year, prices have been rising at an rate of about 10 percent, but the Carter administration has expected inflation to slow to 8 percent for the entire year.

The administration has been counting on lower food prices to help slow the inflation rate, which was 6.8 percent in 1977.

Only Wednesday, the administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability said in a report that "pressures on food prices have eased in recent weeks, bringing some relief to consumers."

"However," it added, "the inflation rate for the year as a whole will show a clear acceleration from the rate of the past two years."

It takes more than one month to establish a trend, but prices were rising rapidly at all stages of food production.

Grocery store prices had remained steady in July and August, but the new report indicated more pressure on grocers to raise prices.

Prices turned up after decreasing in August for processed poultry, vegetable oil and black pepper. Prices also went up, but less than in August, for pork, fish, dairy products, processed fruit and vegetables and flour-base mixes.

Wholesale prices declined for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, eggs and milled rice. Roasted coffee prices were unchanged.

Among other items:

- Wholesale prices turned upward for rubber shoes, home heating oil, home furnishings, soft drinks and prescription drugs.
- Larger increases for gasoline, over-the-counter drugs and paper plates were reported than in August.
- Prices dropped for motor oil and tires.
- Prices rose 0.4 percent, a smaller increase than in August, for long-lasting consumer goods, called durable goods. Prices declined for luggage, household appliances. Furniture rose slightly, but prices for home electronic equipment, cars and lawnmowers rose sharply.

After sudden swings in food and energy prices are removed, "the underlying rate of inflation has moved up from a rate of 6 percent in 1976-77 to an annual rate of over 7 percent this year," the wage and price council said in Wednesday's report.

Tammy Wynette abducted, beaten

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bruised, battered and choking from panty hose tied tightly around her neck, country music singer Tammy Wynette was found staggering up a rural driveway after her release by a masked gunman she says tried to kill her.

State investigators said the blonde, 36-year-old singer told them she was abducted at gunpoint from a Nashville shopping center Wednesday night and driven about 80 miles in her yellow Cadillac before being set free.

Miss Wynette said the gunman made no threats or demands for money

Beirut smolders after shelling

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The Syrian bombardment of Beirut's Christian districts diminished somewhat just before dawn after an all-night pounding, then resumed and continues unabated, the Lebanese capital's Christian radio station reported today.

The Christians' Voice of Lebanon gave no new casualty figures but said four Syrian army trucks "full of bodies of Syrian soldiers killed in the fighting" were seen driving away from Beirut.

More than 1,000 dead or wounded Lebanese were reported in the first seven days of fighting that began Sept. 27.

The Christian broadcast said Syrian shelling of East Beirut and its environs "did not cease for a single moment during the night."

The Lebanese government

The two Beirut stations and reports sent out by plane were the only sources of news of the fighting. Commercial communications channels were knocked out by direct hits on the electric power stations Tuesday.

The blackout left the Christian sector without water, and the threat of famine also was growing there because Syrian troops were blockading all approach roads and streets.

Christian militiamen were reported fighting to dislodge the Syrians from one bridge on the highway to the Christian hinterland north of the city, but so far there was no indication they were having any success.

New law takes some adjustment

By CARLA BARANAUCKAS
Pampa News Staff
The new "speedy trial" law which went into effect July 1 is forcing the Gray County attorney to screen misdemeanor cases more thoroughly, according to David Martindale, county attorney.

The county attorney serves much the same function in misdemeanor cases as a grand jury does in felony cases, Martindale said.

Law enforcement officials bring reports to his office, and it is up to the county attorney whether to file information on the case or not. Information is comparable to a grand jury indictment, Martindale explained.

"We don't have the luxury of time to spend on bad or questionable cases anymore," Martindale said.

"Of course, a difference of opinion is what makes court cases," he said. "But we've got to make sure we've got the facts on our side. Some cases that I might have taken before I won't take now, because they're too borderline."

The speedy trial law requires Class A misdemeanors go to trial within 90 days, Class B within 60 days and Class C within 30 days.

Since the law took effect the county has not had to dismiss any cases because of the time limit, according to Martindale. While no cases have been dismissed, there is a backlog of approximately 200 cases that have been pending since before the Speedy Trial Act took effect, he said.

"There's no way this one court and one attorney can handle all the cases," Martindale said.

However, Martindale said he does not expect the new law to make too great demands on his office.

"I don't anticipate any problems, especially when I get my assistant," Martindale said.

On Sept. 1 the Gray County Commissioners' Court approved the addition of an assistant county attorney to the county attorney's staff. The assistant, which Martindale has not chosen yet, is scheduled to begin work in January.

The reason the county attorney asked for an assistant was partially due to the new law.

There are four justices of the peace who each have a jury day each month, he explained. There is also a jury week in county court each month and arraignments are held every Tuesday.

"Then you have to add juvenile and child support cases," he said. "At that point I'm out of time."

In juvenile cases, preliminary hearings must be held within 24

Company won't change

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Don't hold your breath waiting for big changes in Southwest Airlines now that Howard Putnam has taken over as president. He's not about to tamper with success.

"I'm the head cheerleader," the 41-year-old Putnam said as he was unveiled at a news conference.

Putnam took over from interim president Herb Kelleher in August. Kelleher assumed the reins after the departure of the flamboyant Lamar Muse, who built the airline into a charismatic, scrappy intrastate carrier with an impressive growth rate.

Kelleher remains as board chairman.

Putnam came over from giant United Airlines, where he was group vice president for marketing services. The question was, why?

"It's a challenge to run your own thing," Putnam said. "It got to my wife and I. It's a challenge not to let Southwest become just another airline, with delusions of grandeur."

While Putnam is low-keyed when compared to Muse, who resigned, he is still interested in growth — but a controlled growth.

"Texas will always be our No. 1 priority," Putnam said. Despite that, he said plans are still perking to operate at Chicago's Midway Airport, New Orleans, Beaumont and Amarillo.

"We haven't given up on Midway, and we've filed for New Orleans," Putnam said. He said whether Midway service becomes an extension of existing routes or a hub under a subsidiary corporation depends on the future of proposed deregulatory bills.

Putnam said he's a team player, from enlisting the help of board members to making it a point to visit as many employees as he can.

Muse departed after a reportedly stormy confrontation with the board, but Putnam said he could work with the directors of the company.

"I think a lot of trunk carriers have taken a lesson (in short-haul operations) from Southwest," Putnam said.

Wednesday night, Steen took the trip, but said he will reimburse the Spurs for his share.

"I'll enjoy the trip and I want to go, but I'm going to pay the pro rate share for my wife and me," said Steen, who added that he also plans to reimburse the Spurs for his two free season tickets to last year's games.

On Tuesday, Cisneros noted the "unprecedented level of pressure and lobbying," some of it from the Spurs, that surrounded the council's recent decision on awarding a cable

Councilmen refuse to accept free season tickets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two city council members here have refused to accept free season tickets from the National Basketball Association's San Antonio Spurs, saying they believe the practice is unethical.

Councilman John Steen said Wednesday that the free tickets were "a clear conflict of interest" because the council has direct control over the rental rates paid by the Spurs at the city-owned HemisFair Arena. The council also sets the concession prices charged by the team under the table about this," said Drossos. "I don't think it is any kind of big deal what-so-ever."

Drossos said the custom, which has been in effect since the team moved here in 1973, did not affect the concession or rental rates.

"Regardless of the price they set, council members would still have complimentary tickets as city officials and as representatives of the community," added Drossos.

The Spurs sponsored a trip for city officials to an exhibition game in Austin television franchise.

The Spurs had supported one firm that would have telecast all of the Spurs' road games on local cable television. The city's cable television contract was awarded, however, to the other competing firm, which is negotiating with the team.

Mayor Cockrell said she consulted Mrs. Macon and has been advised "that the practice does not violate the city charter or city policy."

Councilmen Joe Alderete and Glen Hartman have also defended the practice.

"But I do think it is a clear conflict of interest," said Steen. "No one will buy your vote for 600 bucks but it is a matter of principle."

Councilman Frank Wing, who says he gives his tickets to needy children, said he felt the $500 per game rental fees charged the Spurs are too low and the ticket prices too high. The rental rate for other events is $850.

In Houston, where the NBA's Rockets play in the city-owned Summit, recently banned tickets for the council with a code of ethics. The council there also sets the team's rental rates.

LYNN HART, a former Pampa resident, now an employee of Disneyland returned to Pampa Thursday to visit with his family. Here, Hart took time out to visit with drama classes at Pampa High School.

By KATHY BURR
Pampa News Staff

A Pampan made good has returned to Pampa for a few days.

His name is Lynn Hart and boy did he do it up right.

Hart is working in Disneyland writing and directing special shows and has returned home for several days to visit his family. Hart spent Thursday and today working with the High School drama classes.

He described his work in Disneyland as a type of lifelong ambition that has been fulfilled.

Hart left Pampa after graduation from High School in 1973 and toured with Up With People for several years as a piano player. He has also attended Occidental College in Los Angeles, Calif.

It was while he was at Occidental that he met a friend named Ward Carlisle who worked at Disneyland with lighting and design. Carlisle suggested to Hart he apply at Disneyland for the same type of job.

Hart applied for and got a job working with lighting for two years and then began writing Disney road shows with another employee.

Hart said Disneyland was looking for someone to take over the summer road shows. He submitted his ideas. Disney liked them and Hart began producing the summer shows for Disney Land.

Now he has plans in the making for a Christmas show, Easter show and another summer show.

What's it like working for Disneyland?

"It's a lot of fun," Hart said. "It is a very creative atmosphere."

Hart explained Disneyland specializes in working on large scale shows. "An example of this is the Christmas show. I want to grow a large Christmas tree on the stage. "Everyone thinks big. There is a high level of quality. They are willing to spend more money and time," Hart added.

It was hard for him to pinpoint the one thing he liked best about working at Disneyland, but after thinking for several moments he said, "people."

He named an associate of his, John Ludin, as an extremely creative person. "We are working on several TV scripts together."

It was also hard for Hart to pinpoint the thing he disliked about working at Disneyland.

but after giving it some thought he said, "It is a big corporation and I have to put up with formalities and red tape."

He added quickly though he enjoyed the family-like atmosphere of Disneyland.

During his three year career with Disneyland his favorite assignment has been the summer show he produced this last summer.

Hart said it took approximately five months to produce the show, over which he had entire creative control.

It was a three and a half hour program using two musical groups. Hart said just a few of the things he had to worry about was the budget, rehearsal schedule and the crews.

"The last two weeks of the show were like 24 hour days."

"It was the heaviest technical show Disneyland had ever done." He added the corporation didn't have any misgivings about a show of this nature. "This is what they were looking for."

Hart said the music for the program centered around the '50s era and the '70s era. A group called Papa Doo Run Run represented the '50s, and the music from the '70s was a type of disco.

He said they could go from one group to the other in 154 seconds without losing any sound.

"Disneyland had never done any evening of non-repeating material," He added. "Each show had a different set and lighting." Hart said the show performed once a night, six nights a week for a total of 72 nights during the summer. A total of 5-10,000 people attended the show each night Hart said. He added, "The production cost us about $4,000 a night."

After you land a job with a Disneyland, where do you go from there?

"I don't know where, from here," Hart said.

Judge issues warning

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has issued repeated warnings against tedious and time-consuming questioning by attorneys in a suit filed against the Texas prison system by inmates alleging their rights have been violated.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice Wednesday asked prosecutors if they are trying to "wear everybody out" and termed their questioning "some kind of filibuster." The trial began Monday and some observers say it could last up to four months.

"I have never been subjected to this before," Justice said. "At this rate, we will be here a whole year."

Justice's warning followed questioning of an inmate by Rachel Rivers, an assistant attorney general.

Ms. Rivers had been questioning O.D. Johnson, 28, who is serving 30 years for robbery. The questioning included an item-by-item review of scores of entries in Johnson's prison medical record in an effort to refute allegations that inmates do not get adequate medical attention.

"It is tedious to listen to each and every entry," Justice said.

In 1894, President Grover Cleveland gave amnesty to persons convicted of polygamy.

Dog auction to be held

The following dogs were recently found running at large and were impounded: a black, white and gray female cow dog; a brown female cur; a brown and gray female cow dog; a tan female boxer; a black and white female husky; and a white male shepherd.

Unless the dogs' owners pay the chief of police $2 each, plus

$2 for each day the dogs are impounded, they will be sold to the highest bidder Friday at 2 p.m. at the city pound.

"In the doghouse" may be an undesirable predicament for humans, but dogs probably find it preferable to being stuck at the pound. Do an impounded dog a favor and take it home.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband loves to sing. He has had a few voice lessons and is quite good for an amateur. He has a large repertoire of songs and even has the piano accompaniment on tape to take with him when he goes where there will be no piano accompanist.

Sometimes he sings beautifully, but he usually sings too long and he frequently forgets the lyrics. He is 74.

The problem is that he wants me to ask him to sing when we have guests, or when we go elsewhere as guests. Our friends have been very patient with him so far, but no one else has ever asked him to sing, and when I ask him, it's like asking little Johnny to recite before a captive audience.

For years I have urged him to join a choral group, but he prefers to sing solo. This is partly because he can't read music, and partly because he can't hold a part if someone is singing a different note next to him.

Am I wrong in refusing to ask him to sing? He gets very upset with me, and says if I loved him I'd cooperate. Is there a solution?

DEAR WIFE: Yes. Suggest that he give recitals, invite his friends, and sing to his heart's content.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is one more comment in the debate on the mother-daughter trust that has been raging in your column.

It seems that a great many mothers have among their daily chores the cleaning up of their children's rooms. During that cleaning, mothers invariably discover things that their children prefer to keep secret.

Fortunately, I have never had that problem. My mother has always believed that I should clean up my own room—or not clean it up, as I choose. Besides, she has enough other things to do without doing for me that which I am perfectly capable of doing for myself.

N.L. IN W.H.

DEAR N.L.: You sound like a very together daughter. Congratulate your mother for me. She taught you responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: Let me tell you about a handicapped person I know. He's paralyzed from the waist down. Now some folks think that the disabled are also retarded. That's not so! My friend attended college, and now works for a large insurance company as an underwriter.

And as for getting around—yes, it takes a few minutes more for him to get into his car, but he gets there. His car is equipped with hand controls of course, but you should see this guy dance! When he does the "bump" his whole body and chair swings with him.

He also lifts weights—up to 300 pounds. He's even won medals for it. Some of you able-bodied men should try lifting a 300-pound weight. This guy has won scores of medals for racing, shot-put and discus in wheelchair sports.

And as for love—well, he knows more about love than a lot of people.

How come I know so much about him? He's my husband. And he's not nearly as "handicapped" as most people think. (Sign me...)

FUNNY FACE

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I have been taking a daily vitamin pill for 30 years. We are in very good health. My husband is 86 and I am 72. Our local doctor, as well as many others we know, "poo-poo" vitamin pills. Recently, I have had some gas pains in the early morning hours. I am careful about my diet and have eliminated some roughage foods and cold water. We drink only 2 percent milk and water, but still have gas pains. Could these vitamin pills be the problem? Just what do you say about vitamin pills?

DEAR READER — One of the ordinary daily vitamin pills is not likely to cause harm in any adults. In fact, many older people need some vitamin supplements because they don't always eat as nutritious a diet as they should. Also, there may be some increased requirements in older people.

No, I don't think the daily vitamin pill is causing you to have gas pains. I am more interested in your comments that you have eliminated some roughage foods. Gas pains are often related to less than optimal bowel function. This, in turn, is often related to an inadequate amount of bulk in the diet.

There are some gas-forming foods and it's true that even bran may increase gas at night. If you have been eating relatively the same diet for a number of years, and it contains adequate amounts of bulk in it, I wouldn't tamper too much with it.

Since your basic problem is gas, I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-8, Controlling Gaseousness. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

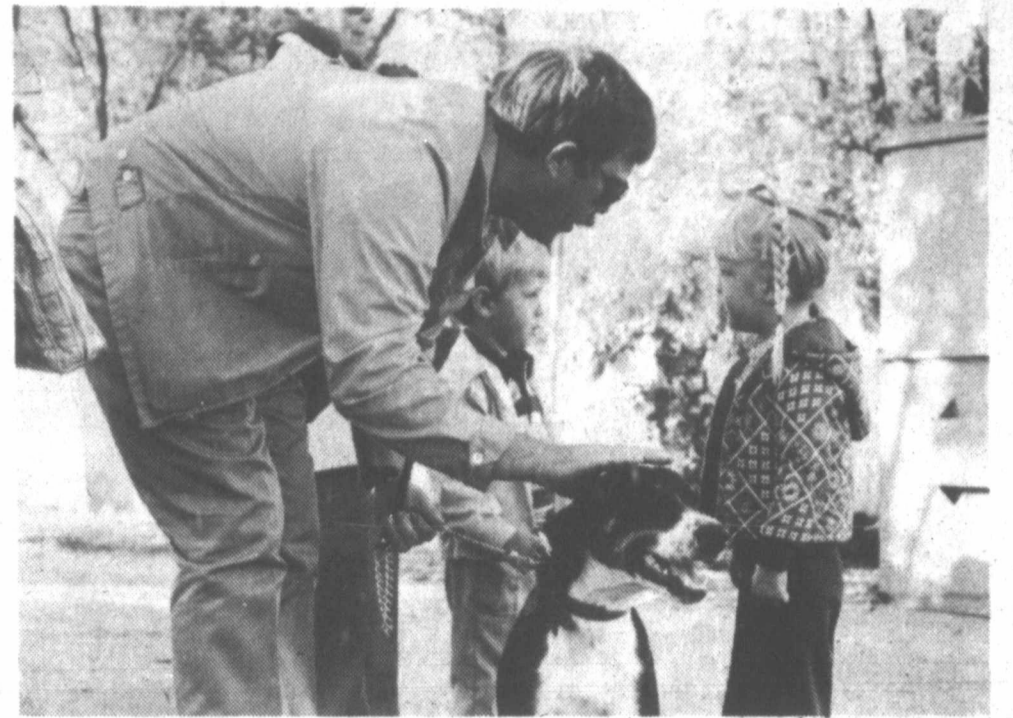

DEAR POLLY — I would like to pass on the way I always get a clean white wash. I put one and a half cups of chlorine bleach (if the fabrics will take that type) and a cup of washing powder in the first cycle. In the second cycle I only use clear water and the wash comes out white as snow and very clean. The reason for using only clear water in the second cycle is that this gets all the soap out of the wash so it does not have that telltale gray. — MARY

DEAR POLLY — I have some advice for the many who are over-extended on their credit cards. We used to be in debt, too. In 1949 we finally had all our debts paid and decided to stay out of debt from then on. At that time we had been married 21 years and if we wanted something we saved until we had the money to pay for it. What a wise decision we made.

The interest paid on using credit cards can be devastating. If others would wait until they can pay for what they want they could get ahead much faster. We have been retired since 1960 and if we had not paid cash all the way we would now be in dire circumstances instead of having a comfortable bank account. — ETHEL

Students waking up parents in order to get to school early?

Sounds a little strange; but that is what happened in some Pampa homes early Wednesday morning. Saint Matthew's Day School had a "blessing of the animals." The school has been studying about Noah's Ark and how God loved all the animals; so the day school decided to make a "for real experience" out of it.

There were more than 75 parents, students, animals, and clergy in the church parking lot for the event.

Overheard were remarks such as: "this is a mother's job; meow; grrrr; look.

that kid has a turtle; eeyow that one has a snake, don't scare Strawberry (a rabbit not too enthused about the whole thing); and hi, dinosaur lady (whatever that was in reference to)."

Some of the animals were not too crazy about having holy water on their heads and one mother received a little by mistake, but it sounded like Christmas with all the excitement. There weren't any disagreements between kittens or dogs, rabbits or snakes, just a few arfs and hushes during the prayers.

There was definitely excitement during the blessings, but not quite as much when it was time to return to class.

The encore should be fascinating.

"and the rabbits, too..."

Post oak smoke not noticed by natives

By MICHELLE SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
LOCKHART, Texas (AP) — Oldtimers around here say they don't notice the smell of burning post oak that fills the air. Maybe that's because the folks at Kreuz Market have burned post oak in their barbecue pits longer than most old timers have been around. There was already a market here when Old Man Charlie Kreuz (pronounced Kry-zar) came here in 1900, said Edgard "Smitty" Schmidt, the market's owner.

A large, friendly man in a white butcher's apron, Schmidt towers above the meat counter in the market. Almost as many people stop in to chat as stop in to eat.

Schmidt said he worked for Kreuz 13 years, then bought him out in 1948. He still owns the market but has turned over management to J. D. Fullove, his son-in-law.

Schmidt opened the door connecting the meat market with the pit room. A blast of hot air rushed into the market as he stepped through the door.

No frills barbecue beef and beef sausage are wrapped in brown butcher paper and served up by the pound at the far end of the pit room. Customers have their choice of crackers or bread. True Kreuz aficionados always take crackers.

Jalapeno peppers, pickles, onion, beer and soft drinks are sold separately. Potato salad, coleslaw and barbecue sauce are nowhere to be found. The mention of them elicits a haughty sniff from Schmidt.

"There's no secret to our barbecue except one," he said. "We use good meat." Schmidt said he uses only salt and pepper to season the choice meat.

"The secret's not what you put on the meat, but what you leave off—that and the wood," he said.

The market goes through an average of 6,000 pounds of beef a week and 120 cords of post oak a year.

Bare wooden tables and benches line one dingy wall of the dining area. Customers slice off chunks of meat with large butcher knives chained to the tables. Bottles of hot pepper sauce and small paper trays filled with salt, black pepper and cayenne are scattered along the tables.

Schmidt led the way down well-worn stairs to the basement. Boxes of crackers were stacked nearly to the ceiling against one wall. An ammonia compressor used to cool the "old" meat cooler between 1929 and 1977 stood to one side. The smokehouse, its walls blackened, now serves as a store-room.

"We've saved lots of our equipment and it'll be on display in the new dining room," Schmidt said. "We're quickly adding. We're adding to—we're not changing anything."

Schmidt has bought an adjoining store built in 1910. It's one-inch stucco walls and ornate metal ceiling and wainscoting will remain intact. "The atmosphere will stay basically the same," Schmidt emphasized.

"I hope to have the new addition completed by Nov. 1—my 30-year anniversary as owner of the market," he said.

While some of his customers are regulars, Schmidt said every day brings in new faces.

A particular Saturday afternoon found ranchers in expensive hats and boots, Mexican-American laborers, trendy university students and a businessman from New York City munching barbecue elbow to elbow.

"You know, when your business increases 40 percent in one year's time, you aren't going to know everyone who comes in," Schmidt said.

Egyptians see peace as better way of life

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The average Egyptian looks at the prospects of peace with Israel and sees a television set, a working telephone, better prices, a better salary — indeed, a better life.

He sees an Egyptian-Israeli treaty as the end of 30 years of sacrifice and austerity in the name of national defense. But economists — both Egyptian and Western ones — take a more sober view. They predict the economy will improve gradually but say peace is unlikely to produce the immediate changes expected by the man in the street. The Egyptian government says that four wars with Israel have cost an estimated $40 billion. As a result, Egyptians are heavily taxed. A middle-class family of four with a monthly income of $643, for example, pays $51 a month in national security and defense taxes. The same family pays a 12 per cent extra defense tax on every theater ticket and is allowed to buy meat only three times a week, in part so that the half-million man army can be fed.

The man in the street not only expects this burden to be lifted, but he anticipates an economic boom as well. And this, he expects, will improve the roads, telephones and utilities that have fallen into disrepair as the government dug deeper for guns and warplanes. Signs of this optimism are already evident. Observed Cairo merchant Abdel Aal Hamad: "The people are happy. Their appetite is whetted and they want to buy. People who never paid their accounts are now paying and business is up about 20 per cent."

The economists, however, fear this optimism could sour into disillusionment should the economy not live up to expectations.

They expect taxes to remain high to finance ambitious development schemes and military spending — more than $1 billion last year — to continue unchanged because of the need to replace obsolete weapons and upgrade salaries.

"It is a dangerous attitude to assume that because there is peace, Egypt will have prosperity," said one Western economist. "Peace is not a panacea."

And said an Egyptian official: "This is why it is important that the West makes Egypt a model like West Berlin after World War II. This will show moderate Arab states the benefits of the peace."

Egypt's economy has already improved since it reached its nadir at the time of the 1973 Middle East war. Growth for the next two years is forecast at 7 percent.

Serious problems remain, however. Inflation on non-subsidized goods is running at an annual rate of 25 percent, urban unemployment is 12 percent and the trade balance is currently $3.2 billion in the red.

Billions of dollars are needed to meet a housing shortage of 1.1 million units and billions more to upgrade long-neglected utilities such as telephones, sewer lines and electricity.

Western economists say peace will provide no solution to Egypt's population crisis — small economic improvements have led to bigger families — nor will peace solve the problem of declining agricultural productivity that results in part from migration to the cities.

"There will be 60 million mouths to feed in 20 years instead of 40 million now," said one Western economist. "Peace cannot provide the answers to these problems."

Egyptian Planning Minister Abdel Rezzak Abdel Meguid said in an interview, however, that the proposed peace treaty would have several positive results.

— Oil from Sinai fields now in Israeli hands will boost overall output to over one million barrels a day. Earnings from oil will total $1 billion a year — three times the current level — within 18 months. And Egypt will qualify for membership in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

— Foreign investment, $205 million last year, "could easily be doubled" in an improved business climate resulting from peace.

— Demobilization of troops would put more food in the stores for civilians. "This will be the most visible impact for the average Egyptian," he said.

— The return of Sinai will provide a potential harvest of minerals and a half-million acres of arable land. But both will require time and sizable amounts of capital to develop.

"There cannot be immediate relief for all our problems," Abdel Meguid said. "But we can now concentrate on the economy so that we don't have to live hand-to-mouth all the time looking for next week's supply of wheat."

Trade with Israel is not expected to have a major impact on the economy since the major exports of both countries are textiles and citrus. But the curiosity of Egyptians and Israelis for each other's country is likely to spur tourism.

Economists say, too, that co-operation is likely in developing the oil fields that Israel has already begun to exploit. And reliable sources say Israeli businessmen have already contacted the American Embassy in Cairo about the possibilities of setting up shop in Egypt.

Dr. Lutfi Abdel Azzim, editor of the economic weekly newspaper Al Ahram Iqtisadi, suggested in an interview that Egypt and Israel might set up joint venture manufacturing projects on their border in Sinai.

"What better way to assure a peaceful border?" he said.

On the light side

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Businessman Bob Short, the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, has been calling his opponent "Double D." rather than by his full name, David Durenberger. But it could backfire.

During an appearance Tuesday at the Minnesota Press Club, Short was asked whether he was concerned that Durenberger, a Republican, might start using initials to refer to Bob Short. Short said he had learned to cope with the possibility back in high school days.

Ag exports reliance makes farmers vulnerable

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government study warns that a reliance on agricultural exports to help ease U.S. trade deficits "increases the vulnerability" of farmers and consumers to what happens to crops and trade policies in foreign countries.

The report also discusses the role of federal programs on the future of farming in the United States and their impact on food prices.

Trends toward fewer, larger and more specialized farms are likely to continue, said the Congressional Budget Office.

Today, there are about 2.7 million farms, representing a gradual shrink in farm numbers over many years. If current policies are continued, they may drop to about 1.6 million by the year 2000, the CBO said.

Shifts in federal policies, such as actions to reduce production costs of large farms, could speed up the erosion and leave fewer than one million U.S.

farms by the end of this century.

On the other hand, concerted efforts to protect smaller farmers could ease the drain and keep farms at around 1.9 million to 2 million 20 years from now.

The report, "Public Policy and the Changing Structure of American Agriculture," was requested by Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn., chairman of a House subcommittee on family farms and rural development.

For years, particularly since 1972, when huge foreign orders for grain helped push up farm commodity prices, federal policymakers have stressed the need of expanding exports so that farmers can use their resources fully and get larger incomes through the marketplace.

Also, farm exports have been a consistent bright spot in U.S. trade balances, far exceeding the value of agricultural imports.

In the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, for example, farm exports were estimated at a record $26.6 billion against imports of $13.7 billion, meaning a favorable balance of $12.9 billion for the year.

The report's reference to exports was a minor part of its overall discussion of federal policies and their effect on U.S. agriculture. But it was explicit in warning against the "unexpected shocks arising from the agricultural sectors and trade policies of other countries."

"For example," it said, "good weather and bumper crops in the Soviet Union may result in depressed incomes for U.S. grain farmers; heavy taxpayer outlays, to acquire grain surpluses and withdraw farmland; unemployment in farm machinery manufacturing; a reduction in foreign exchange earnings; over-expansion of the domestic livestock industry; pressure to curb meat imports; and additional taxpayer outlays to support dairy prices."

The report added that "if ignored, the uncertainties associated with greater reliance on foreign markets may also slow the rate of adoption of new technology and increase the real cost of food to U.S. consumers."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Great Plains Wheat Inc., a market development association, says that China may soon order more U.S. wheat to help make up its food grain requirements in the coming year.

Recently, the Agriculture Department projected China's imports of wheat in 1978-79 at about 10 million metric tons, up from 8 million metric tons estimated in August.

Great Plains says in its current newsletter that with the increase in China's prospective requirements and uncertainty about wheat production in Australia, one of its traditional suppliers, "various observers are now beginning to expect a larger quantity of U.S. wheat to be purchased" in the coming months.

Earlier this year, after a four-year hiatus, China bought 2.5 million metric tons of U.S. wheat.

Telephone service began between the United States and Mexico in 1927.

National briefs

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Theodore Robert Bundy, who admitted being overconfident when he said he was ready to defend himself, has been given two more months to prepare for his trial on charges of killing two college sorority sisters.

Circuit Judge John Rudd postponed trial Tuesday until Dec. 4. Bundy, 31, a former law student, is charged with the Jan. 15 bludgeoning deaths of Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, as they slept at Florida State University's Chi Omega house. He also is accused of savagely attacking three other female students.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A mysterious benefactor, working through a Richmond lawyer, says he will give $10,000 to New York City's public schools — the same amount the man gave Cleveland last week.

Attorney Thomas D.H. Barnett said he will present a check on behalf of the anonymous donor to Dr. Frank Macchiarola, chancellor of the New York City Board of Education. Barnett said the gifts are being made in the name of the "Richardson family." He says that's as far as he can go in identifying the benefactor, who is said to have a special concern for the problems of urban schools.

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A man Provo police arrested recently on a charge of indecent exposure would have had no trouble making bail.

Officers said that while booking the man, they found $3,700 in coins and currency in his boots. Police said the man had six uncashed $390 social security checks, along with rolls of nickles, dimes and quarters and bills of various denominations. "He was just hoarding the money, I guess," said Lt. Bud Gillman. The man was released.

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — About 100 tons of fish has been caught off the Northwest coast in the week since American and Soviet fishermen linked up in a joint venture.

The U.S.-U.S.S.R. Marine Resources Co. Inc. is owned half by the Soviet government and half by Bellingham Cold Storage Co. The venture was licensed to operate within the American 200-mile limit on an experimental basis. It was approved after Congress adopted legislation allowing the catches of U.S. fishermen to be processed aboard foreign factory ships if no American processor can handle the fish. The catches count against American allocations of hake.

Names in the news

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford will cast his ballot in the November general election in California instead of his native Michigan.

Ford and his wife, Betty, now live in Palm Springs, Calif., and his residency question was raised by local attorney Albert Dilley in a May 22 letter to Ford. Dilley claimed Ford had no legal right to vote in Kent County.

Ford told the Grand Rapids Press that although he disagreed with Dilley's interpretation of Michigan election laws, "we do not wish to have protracted litigation" on the question.

"Betty and I still own a home in East Grand Rapids and we consider East Grand Rapids and Grand Rapids our real home," he said.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Charles Colson says he hopes his controversial past career as President Nixon's hatchet man will be a drawing card for a movie on his religious conversion.

Colson was here Tuesday night for the local premiere of the $3 million movie, "Born Again," based on his autobiographical book by the same name.

Proceeds from the $50 a seat screening were to go to the Prison Fellowship, an organization to foster spiritual work among prisoners which Colson founded after his prison conversion.

Talking to reporters before the premiere, Colson said a religious movie such as "Born Again" was a gamble at secular box offices but that his past career should be a drawing card.

Former pro athlete playing tax issue in politics

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Start Jack Kemp talking about taxes and the athlete shows through the politician. He's up, he's down, the words and numbers tumbling out non-stop.

He sheds his jacket, gestures his point, then slumps back in his seat so quickly he bangs his head on the wall. He shakes it off and keeps talking.

After all, Kemp learned how to play hurt during 13 years as a professional football quarterback.

These days, he's playing the tax issue for all it's worth. By Republican reckoning, that's a lot, although there is as yet no evidence to show that GOP efforts to ride the taxpayer revolt are going to pay off at the polls.

Kemp, 43, seeking his fifth term in the House from the Buffalo, N.Y., area, is one of the authors of the tax cut bill the national Republican Party has chosen as its major theme in the off-year election campaign.

With Sen. William V. Roth of Delaware, Kemp is co-sponsoring a three-year, 33 percent cut in federal tax rates. To describe Kemp as intense on the subject is to understate the case.

By comparison, his Senate partner on the GOP tax bill is relatively reserved. In a joint interview, Sen. Roth sometimes has trouble getting a word in, save when Rep. Kemp pauses for breath.

Never mind that the bill doesn't stand a realistic chance in a heavily Democratic Congress. Republican strategists are so convinced that the issue will work to their advantage that they've just staged a cross-country campaign swing with some of the party's biggest names arguing the case for the Kemp-Roth bill.

Kemp and Roth got there first with a phased tax cut plan they say would break not only with Democratic economic prescriptions but with the traditional formulas of their own party. The Republican way has been to insist on cuts in spending as the price of tax cuts.

Kemp and Roth say they are for restraint, holding down the growth of federal spending, but not as a prerequisite for their big tax-reduction bill.

Their bill would cut taxes dramatically by changing the brackets in a manner they claim would encourage economic activity and, in the end, stimulate production enough to generate at least as much revenue as the government gets from current rates.

It sounds utopian, but they insist it will work, although, when pressed, they acknowledge there is no way of forecasting with certainty what would happen.

"It's not a free lunch," said Kemp, disputing the label White House economists have applied to the Republican theory. "All Bill and I are saying and I think all this theory tries to point out is that high tax rates can be a barrier to production. ... It isn't a Shangri-la and it isn't a free lunch and it isn't something for nothing."

Corporations unwittingly encourage entrepreneurship

NEW YORK (AP) — Has your employer ever rejected your "better mousetrap" idea? If your answer is yes you might possess one of the qualities or experiences that could contribute to business success.

Bill McCrae, chairman of The Entrepreneurship Institute, has distilled 16 questions he feels can tip off a would-be business person on his or her chances of success. The better mousetrap question is one of them.

Corporations frequently do more to encourage entrepreneurship than they know, McCrae says, referring to a host of small electronics companies begun by frustrated ex-employees of larger firms.

Based on experience, of the 500,000 or 600,000 companies formed each year, one-half will have disappeared within five years, and the most common explanation offered will be "bad management."

Interesting, but the term is such an amorphous catchall it conveys little information. It might mean poor relations with people, but it can also mean inferior record-keeping and inadequate capitalization.

McCrae, himself an entrepreneur, thinks it also involves experiences and traits that can be pre-measured, helping to steer potential failures away from business or aiding them in overcoming weaknesses.

McCrae is founder of the non-profit institute and, with the best legal, financial, management and other brains he can find in a given area, conducts entrepreneurial seminars throughout the country.

A pilot program for woman entrepreneurs, for example, is scheduled for Dallas on Nov. 3 and 4. And a regional seminar for serious beginners and small operators is scheduled Dec. 2 and 3 in New York.

From these projects and seminars, McCrae and his staff distilled their 16 questions.

A sampler:
Question: Do I have a close relative that is or was in business for himself or herself?

Significance: "The available data show that the majority of entrepreneurs had a father or other close relative in business for himself."

"The importance of a role model is well documented. To make being in business for yourself credible, it is considered important that you see people in action who have started firms."

"Strangely, studies show that a close relative entrepreneur will frequently discourage entrepreneurship, so don't be dismayed if everyone tells you how tough it is and why you shouldn't do it."

Have you been fired? McCrae and his staff say most entrepreneurs rebel at working for others. Are you a loner? A lot of entrepreneurs are, but successful ones quickly learn to work well with others.

The institute offers the questions, their significance, and a rating guide to those who might benefit. (90 E. Wilson Bridge Road, Suite 247, Worthington, Ohio 43085.)

McCrae cautions poor scorers not to be overly discouraged, since they remain in rather good company. There are more than 200 million Americans who are not entrepreneurs, he says.

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela has thousands of openings on its police force but few applicants, authorities say.

The government has doubled the average police salary to $400 a month, but $433 is the average wage for industrial workers.

Caracas, a city of 3 million, needs 800 men to bring its force up to full strength of 5,300.

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — Two, masked men poured pistol and shotgun fire into a bar Tuesday night, killing at least eight persons. Police said the Telephone Bar, where the massacre took place, was an underworld haunt, and all those killed had police records.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Police say the Borinquen Popular Army, a new leftist group, was responsible for the theft of explosives from a government warehouse west of San Juan last weekend.

The police said the raiders took 52 sticks of dynamite, 6,600 pounds of ammonium nitrate, 300 dynamite caps and 24,000 feet of fuse. They left behind a machete marked with the word "machetero," slang for "popular army," the police said.
