In MidEast peace talks

Sadat has next move

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has the next move in the suddenly troubled Mideast peace talks, rocked by a controversy which Israel and the United States are blaming on each other.

Sadat was supposed to decide today whether to order the Egyptian delegation home for consultation after Israel's decision to expand its existing settlements in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip areas.

The Israeli decision brought a quick, sharp reprimand by the administration Thursday in the form of a written statement by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, who called it "very serious and deeply disturbing."

The administration's protest was conveyed to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin in a personal cable from President Carter.

Informed sources said the administration was considering possible further responses including postponement of a scheduled Pentagon mission to Israel to survey sites for new air bases the United States has agreed to help build in the Negev region.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said the eventual American reaction would depend on whether the Israeli decision proved to be more than "a bargaining ploy" and in fact led to a major expansion of the settlements.

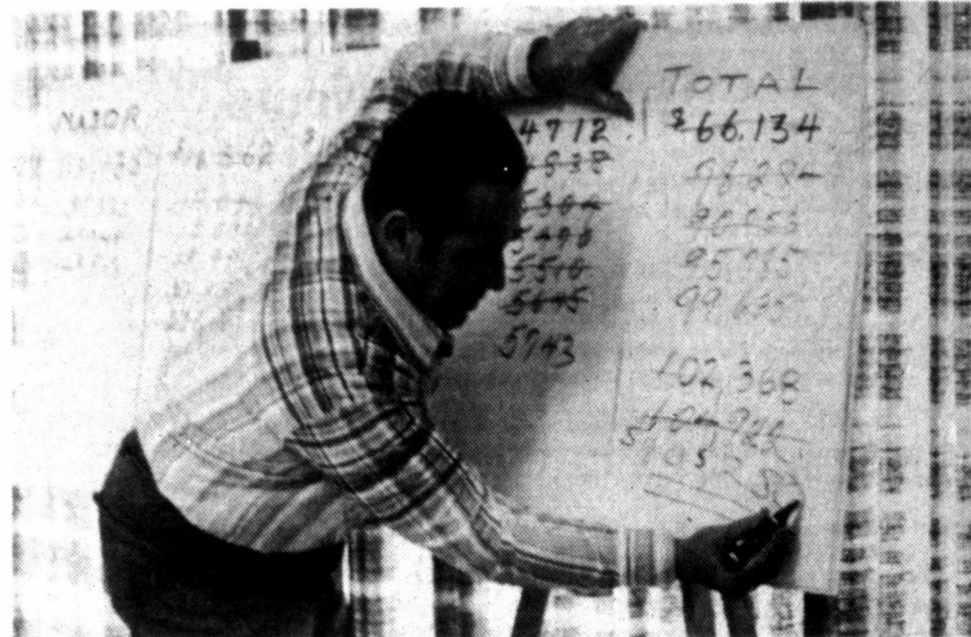

An Egyptian official, Usama

Al-Baz, said the Israeli move was "a very serious and negative development." Al-Baz said it "remains to be seen" whether a treaty can be agreed to under the new circumstances.

State Department spokesman George Sherman had no comment on the eventual fate of the talks. He said "we'll have to wait and see" whether a tentatively scheduled negotiating session between the Israelis and Egyptians would proceed on schedule this afternoon.

State Department officials, speaking privately, conceded there was nothing in the Camp David accords to prevent Israel from expanding existing settlements, although the American position has been that all the settlements are illegal.

Dayan said the Israeli public had a "bad, negative reaction" to recent statements by American diplomat Harold Saunders, the assistant secretary of state for Middle East affairs.

VIC RAYMOND, United Way campaign chairman, posts an intermediate total of $105,280 at Thursday's United Way report meeting. The campaign directors hope to reach their final goal of $158,000 at next Thursday's report meeting.

Clower leaves 'em laughin'

Gary Stevens, 1977-78 president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, turned over his gavel to Luther Robinson, the newly elected 1978-79 president at the 53rd annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting, held at M.K. Brown Auditorium, provided a variety of entertainment including the Pampa High School Choir and Stage Band, along with the featured speaker Jerry Clower, a country-western comic.

The program opened with the presentation of the colors by the Pampa Police Department Honor Guard, with the band and choir playing the National Anthem. Following the pledge of allegiance the invocation was led by Rev. Jim Pickens, pastor of the First United Methodist Church.

The musical entertainment was provided by the band and choir, followed a patriotic theme and was closed with the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

It was at this time that Jim Ward, First Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Jerry Clower as the featured guest.

When Clower walked on stage he turned to the audience and said, "I've been going all over the country telling folks that young people are good. If they didn't believe it, all they have to do is look at this choir and band."

Clowers routine included a story of an encounter he once had with Gloria Steinem, a nationally known women's libber. A story of his good friend Marcell Ledbetter along with a story about his life, and his inability to purchase nickel hamburgers.

Clower also told of a 17 day tour he went on to promote one of his books.

Following Clowers performance was the introduction of Robinson, and the exchange of gavels.

Robinson was named vice-president of the First National Bank in 1973, and appointed to senior vice-president in 1978. He has worked with the Heart Fund, is a member of the Kiwanis Club and has worked with the Salvation Army and the United Way.

As the gavel was being exchanged, Stevens said, "I give you a great responsibility and an honor."

"I give you these things in a piece of wood that says Luther Robinson, President 1978-79," he added.

Jerry Clower-just stories

By KATHY BURR

Jerry Clower didn't start out as a comedian, it was something he just backed into.

Clower was in Pampa Thursday to perform at the 53rd annual meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, and granted an interview to The News prior to his performance.

"I was a fertilizer salesman and received my degree in agriculture from Mississippi State University. My hobby was telling country stories... I told them to improve my sales technique."

Clower said in 1971 someone told him to put his stories on a record, but Clower seemed to think this person was just blowing in the wind. Later someone taped Clower and put it on a record. It was a hit and Clower was in business.

Some people know him from the show he co-hosts entitled "Nashville on the Road" but according to Clower that is just a small part of what he does.

"This is just one phase of my career. I do approximately 175-200 personal visits a year.

When asked to pick a high point of his life he said, "Everyday is a high point, but to be inducted into the World Famous Grand Old Opry in Nov. 1973 had to be a high point."

In addition to this Clower was named the number one country comic for five years in a row.

He paused for a moment and reverted back to his childhood.

"I'm glad no real educated person found me when I was little bitty baby and told me I wouldn't be worth anything. I would have believed them."

Clower said he is prodical of a broken home. "There were times in my life when I couldn't buy a nickel hamburger at the county fair. "You don't have to be in show business to be successful," Clower said. "Success is doing the best you can at what you are doing."

Clowers said his basic philosophy in life is to give thanks and keep on going.

He said his life has changed in some ways since he has become a celebrity.

"People recognize me everywhere I go, but my family life hasn't changed. I drive a bigger car, but I'm still Jerry Clower from Route four, Yazoo City, Miss. I've tried not to change in that regard."

Clower travels approximately 200 days out of the year and sometimes it gets old.

"I make myself enjoy traveling. Some people will come up to me and say, 'I don't see how you travel - it must be awful.'"

Clower is known for his stories, but some tend to wonder how much truth is in them.

"My stories are actual happenings," Clower said. "I think the funny things in the world is the actual happenings. I work up a story from the truth."

One of his stories that hit the top 20 charts in Billboard and stayed there for a length of time dealt with an encounter he had with Gloria Steinem on the Mike Douglas show.

"All I did was offer her a chair," Steinem became upset with Clower and proceeded to tell him. Following a lengthy conversation, Pearl Bailey joined in with Clower, and said, "Tell her Jerry, tell her."

Clower says he is a women's libber.

"I'm for advocating that women should be treated decent and properly."

Clower has had several obstacles to overcome in his life, but probably the hardest was prejudice.

"I was raised that way."

Clower said.

"Later in life my Christian convictions told me that wasn't so. The things I accepted as a kid happened not to be right."

Clower said he was raised with prejudice toward Republicans and blacks. "I would put them all in one group and say I don't like you. I give them all a chance as individuals now."

Clower said there was a time when he didn't give everybody a chance.

He said he sees his work as more than a way to make a living. He also sees it as a challenge.

"It was a challenge to get people to laugh during Watergate."

In addition to his work as a comic, he is a father and a grandfather — and a very proud one at that.

He has been married for 31 years and has four children that range in age from 25 to eight. He also has a grandson that was named Jayree after his grandfather.

Pampans injured in crash

Four Pampans were injured in a two-car accident that occurred at 1:55 p.m. Thursday. Lula May Crow, 528 N. Christy, was driving a 1970 Chevrolet south on Highway 70 and turned left on Farm-Market Road 70. A 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Nathan Monroe Ford, 915 S. Hobart, reportedly struck the Crow vehicle in the right rear.

Injured were Crow and her passengers, Loretta and Lorena Medley, 700 E. Scott, and Sandy Bardwell, 1214 Finley. All were taken to Highland General Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Crow was reportedly cited for unsafe turn and no driver's license.

Other entertainment for the meeting was the Pampa High School stage band and featured speaker, Jerry Clower, a country western comic. (Pampa News Photo by John Price)

Venora Cole-likes the job

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is one in a series of interviews with Carla Baranaukas with candidates running in the Nov. 7 election.

Venora Cole, Republican candidate for Precinct 2, Place 2 justice of the peace, is running for reelection, because she likes the job.

"I've enjoyed the office," Cole said. "I like the job and I think it's very rewarding. The justice court is the people's court, and I really think I've helped some people."

Cole was appointed to the office in Sept. 1976 after the death of her father who had held the office.

Cole won a special election in Nov. 1976 to fill the unexpired term. This is the first full term for which she has run.

Why does Cole think voters should cast their ballots for her?

"I see them voting for me, because I'm experienced," she said. "Some people think the job is just collecting fines for the Highway Patrol, but it's a lot more than that."

"I know my job, and I'm experienced with it. I know what to do with this office. You can't just walk into it blind. If you do you can really mess it up."

Cole said she knew a lot about the office when she was appointed, because she had helped her father for two years before he died.

"I helped my father for two years—free gratis," she said. "I knew what I was doing when I went into the office."

Cole's father held the office as a Democrat, however, Cole said she ran as a Republican after the Democratic party nominated another candidate.

The job requires more than a 40-hour work week, according to Cole.

"It's a seven day a week, 24 hours a day job," she said. "The justice of the peace needs to be here and be available. I've been very faithful. On holidays I'm always at home where I can be contacted if needed."

All state troopers must work every holiday, according to Cole.

"Every trooper in Texas works every holiday," she said. "I've made myself available to them."

Are there any issues in the campaign for justice of the peace?

"No, there aren't any issues," Cole said. "There aren't any politics in it. Justice court is the same for everybody."

Cole said it is sometimes hard to get votes from people who have appeared before her for traffic tickets.

"I have tried real hard," she said. "I try to do my job with compassion and mercy. I try to handle each case individually."

"I do listen when people come in, and I try to judge fairly. Nothing is cut and dried. I believe there should be someone to stand between the officers and the defendant."

Cole, 56, has lived in Pampa for her entire life. She graduated from Pampa High School. She is a member of the First Baptist Church, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and the Republican Women's Club.

Otto Mangold-fair but firm

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is one in a series of interviews with Carla Baranaukas with candidates running in the Nov. 7 election.

Otto Mangold, Democratic candidate for Precinct 2, Place 2 justice of the peace, says that two words he "picked up from his father have taken him a long way."

Those words are "fair but firm." And Mangold says that is the way he intends to operate the justice of the peace office if he is elected.

Why is Mangold, a former teacher, running?

"Four of my former students came to me and asked me to run," Mangold said. "I guess they thought I could do a good job, and I feel like I can serve the community."

Some of his teaching experiences and coaching experiences give him the background to handle a justice of the peace position, Mangold said.

"I've been on the playground for many years and refereed all sports for 19 or 20 years," Mangold said. "That experience has given me the judgment it takes to run an office like the justice of the peace office. I've had to make decisions on the playground and the athletic field."

Mangold said his experience as athletic director at Boys Ranch will also be beneficial in handling the justice of the peace duties.

"I was athletic director at Boys Ranch for two years," Mangold said. "It gave me the opportunity to work with kiddos who have been in trouble, needed help and hadn't been able to get it on the streets of the cities."

What would Mangold's philosophy be in handling the justice of the peace decisions?

"I feel the justice of the peace should be willing to listen to both sides of the story," Mangold said. "If elected I will run the office in a businesslike manner with fairness and compassion towards all."

Mangold said many people with whom he has spoken have asked what his policy would be concerning "hot checks."

"I'll do everything in my power to collect those checks that my office gives me the authority to collect," he explained.

Mangold said he would use the same criteria in handling other justice of the peace duties.

"I will do whatever my office gives me the authority to do," he said.

Mangold says he encourages everyone to get out and vote. As a history teacher he told his students it was their responsibility as an American to vote.

"If they want a change in this office, they'll go vote," he said.

Mangold, 61, graduated from high school in Clinton, Okla. He graduated from West Texas State University with a B.S. in physical education and has several certificates in special education. Mangold has been a Pampa resident for 27 years and taught at Pampa High School until 1977 when he retired. He is a member of the First Baptist Church and the Chamber of Commerce.

Good afternoon

News in brief

SUNNY

The forecast for Pampa is fair through Saturday with warmer afternoons. The high today will be near 70 and the low tonight near 40. Saturdays high should be in the mid 70s. The winds are variable at 5-10 miles an hour today and tonight.

Commission asks for rate cut

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman George Cowden of the Public Utility Commission suggested today that the Legislature consider reducing the price utilities companies pay to finance the commission.

Currently, the companies are assessed one-sixth of one percent on their gross receipts from consumers. Cowden suggested reducing that by one-half — or one-twelfth of one percent. Cowden told the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs that the one-sixth assessment raised more than $9 million in the last fiscal year but the commission budget was only slightly more than $3 million.

The overflow cannot be spent by the commission but goes into the general revenue fund.

Offshore oil rig capsizes

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An offshore oil rig capsized today when a leg gave way, dumping 16 workers into the Gulf of Mexico about 40 miles off the Louisiana coast, the Coast Guard reported.

All but two were plucked from the water by a boat and a helicopter in the area, the Coast Guard said. It said those rescued included two badly burned by chemicals and two confined to stretchers.

Search boats worked back and forth around the collapsed rig, looking for the two missing men.

The rescued workers were flown to Abbeville General Hospital by helicopter.

There was no word on their condition.

The Coast Guard said the rig was a jack-up-type, with four legs which stand on the seabed. The Coast Guard said one of the legs collapsed, toppling the entire rig.

A Coast Guard spokesman said a crewboat, the Tiger Shark, was standing by at the time and pulled two men from the water.

A helicopter from Petroleum Helicopters Inc. of Lafayette pulled out 12 others.

The rig, owned by the Mallard Well Service of Lafayette, was in water about 40 miles southwest of Intracoastal City, La.

Committee prepares for awards

OSLO, Norway (AP) — As of this morning, the Norwegian Nobel Committee had not made a final decision on awarding the 1978 peace prize, Nobel Institute Director Jacob Sverdrup said. The announcement of the prize winner, if any, is scheduled for 5 p.m. local time (noon EDT).

Sverdrup, reacting to a Swedish newspaper report that the prize was being awarded to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister

Menachem Begin, told reporters, "The Nobel Committee has come a long way in its work trying to find a winner this year, but no final decision has been made. The committee will meet again at noon (7 a.m. EDT) today and a decision is expected by 5 p.m. (noon EDT)."

The report that Sadat and Begin had won was published by the generally reliable Swedish daily Expressen, Scandinavia's largest newspaper.

Curbing bureaucratic autocracy

Is it possible that Congress is now moving in an attempt to curtail or take back some of the powers it so loosely gave away to the bureaucracy? Many bills are now pending which contain clauses giving lawmakers some sort of veto powers over executive actions.

For years, every time our representatives in Congress drafted a measure which set up a new agency, they included the right to make rules by the agency in order to implement the new law.

Having the right to make rules made of the department head a ruler within the province of his bureaucracy's domain. For any citizen affected by the agency's activity, these rules are just as demanding as any laws passed by the legislative body.

When this trend began, few people felt the sting of laws (rules) made by these petty rulers. Now that the federal agencies are injected into most every phase of life, many people are beginning to be made aware of the arbitrary power which little tyrants have acquired.

With the rapid growth of the bureaucracy and the proliferation of rules, the silent majority is becoming less than silent. Hit by regulations which are viewed as silly at best and dangerous to their economic welfare at worst, millions are now expressing their anger.

As the worth of the dollar falls and inflation drives prices up, heavy increases in taxes add fuel to the fire of anger.

The tax revolt goes deeper than just a grim determination to put a halt to over-spending by government. Many of these disgruntled taxpayers are now seeing that as consumers they are being consumed by piled on costs to business of burgeoning regulations. They know that as government adds a huge burden of costs on business, in the end, all such costs will be added to consumer goods. And the cost of maintaining the locust swarm of agency people is also added to the tax rip-off.

Administration officials are trying hard to head off this attempt by Congress to invoke legislative veto. They have their work cut out for them. The pressure on lawmakers to do something to curtail the bureaucracy is building.

It is not certain that legislative veto power would be upheld by the courts. But, the Congress could take a slower and we believe much more effective means of getting a handle on the agencies.

It could devote all its time and efforts to removing the law or parts of the laws which have given rise to unbridled growth and misused agency power for the next few sessions.

We realize this is a large order and one that would fly in the face of all political expediency. It would mean a battle with entrenched bureaucrats and powerful pressure groups. They have had things going their way for a long time, but as anger in the electorate grows to a point where incumbency is threatened, strange things might happen. Some might even be to the advantage of the silent majority.

Nation's Press

Divorce rates up or tax rates down

The leaves are already turning red, the hockey season is suddenly upon us, and tax-loss selling has begun on Wall Street. Yet few Americans have even begun to plan their year-end divorces.

For millions of families, the case for a year-end divorce grows steadily more powerful each year. The tax breaks are well known. When both husband and wife are working — and both are nowdays — it generally pays not to be married except in cases where one makes more than three times as much as the other.

When the incomes of the spouses are even approximately in balance, the advantages of income-splitting are outweighed by the penalties built into the progressive tax structure. An estimate prepared for us by a Census Bureau analyst indicates that something like 15 million married couples would have higher after-tax incomes if they got divorced by year-end. (For tax purposes, marital status at year-end is generally deemed to be governing.) In an extreme case, e.g., a family in which both spouses earned $30,000 and took the standard deduction, the divorce could be worth about $4,000 a year.

It's true that many people enjoy living with their present spouses. However, there is no compelling reason why they can't go on doing so after getting divorced. Our society is now much more relaxed than it used to be about unmarried people of the opposite sex living together. It had better be relaxed: Census Bureau data show some 750,000 people now involved in such arrangements.

And apparently the Internal Revenue Service will now allow people to get divorced, go on living together, and file separate returns. IRS letter ruling No. 7835076, issued a few months ago, gave precisely this permission to a working couple who had asked for a ruling. In principle, it's true, the agency still won't acknowledge the legitimacy of any divorce undertaken essentially to lower taxes (and will insist that the divorcees in such cases file as though married). And in practice IRS won't stand for arrangements in which people keep getting divorced at the end of one year and then remarrying early the following year; any such pattern would be viewed as blatant tax evasion and the people involved would not be allowed to file as though single. But the agency doesn't feel up to ruling that a one-time divorce, followed by indefinite cohabitation, constitutes tax evasion.

So we're looking for divorce rates to rise a lot — unless tax rates come down a lot.

Simon sounds timely warning

By OSCAR COOLEY

I don't recall any retired cabinet member, prior to William E. Simon, writing a book that hamper and hobble business, shrink individual freedom and rob the people by ever-increasing taxes and inflation.

Nor can we lay it to the labor unions entirely. Employers, too, are seeking subsidies and aids. Industry demands that government "protect" it from imports. Farmers want their prices supported just as they did during the Great Depression.

Don't blame it all on the Democrats. The Republicans, too, acquiesce in many of the measures that hamper and hobble business, shrink individual freedom and rob the people by ever-increasing taxes and inflation.

The universities, foundations and institutions devoted to the fine arts, and not satisfied with the generous amounts people have voluntarily given them, increasingly lean on the government for aid. It's for a good end, but the means is the use of power to force people, through taxation, to give more.

These supposed intelligentsia, says Simon are "intellectual basket cases in the realm of basic economics." They have forgotten, or never knew, that laissez faire capitalism as practiced in the United States created the richest society the world has ever known, nor are they aware that government-controlled economies have invariably destroyed people's productivity as well as their liberty.

Unlearned folk would be forgiven for assuming that central planning and control would bring home more groceries than individuals free to produce what the market demands, but Simon finds it almost incredible that lawyers, professors and journalists make this mistake. Congress harbors the first, universities the second and the third voice the media, molding the beliefs of the people and the policies of the government. They condemn capitalism, branding profit as evil. They are blind to how the markets work and they devise one agency after another to regiment and regulate.

These activists pose as dogooders, full of compassion for the poor, but their measures in fact benefit the middle-class more than the proletariat. They run not a welfare state but a redistributionist state, endlessly shaking down Peter to pay Paul. Not orphaned Paul, not crippled Paul, not aged Paul, not black Paul, just Paul.

Among the Pauls is the evergrowing army of government employees, who are favored with better pay and pensions than most workers; also the owners of the subsidized industries, the college students who get government aid and the well-to-do farmers who receive supported prices. A main threat of Simon's book, in fact, is that the ruling class in the United States is not working for the downtrodden and the minorities, as many assume, but like most ruling classes everywhere for themselves.

A chapter is given to New York City, a "disaster in microcosm" in that it has gone down the road to disaster a little ahead of the federal dinosaur. Unionized city employees, along with the reliefers, actual needy and non-needy, plundered the city's treasury with the aid and consent of the politicians.

For years, investors who sought tax exemption by owning municipal bonds had bought New York's issues freely. Then in March, 1975, they quit. The city had used up its credit. It could borrow no more. It was broke.

Like just about everybody else in dire need of money these days, Mayor Beame and his aides appealed to Washington. "You just can't let New York City go down the drain." But Treasury Secretary Simon could — and got the enmity of the liberals for not promptly opening the federal coffers.

An interesting chapter. But the point is that just as the world's richest city came to the end of its financial rope, so could the world's richest country — and will if it continues to follow the same profligate and socialistic policies.

Simon's book has aroused and alarmed many Americans. It should, it is no academic analysis. Rather it is a volley of facts, from one who has been in the thick of the battle.

And it concludes with a chapter of practical proposals of what people who love free America — using the word "free" in Jefferson's, not FDR's sense — can do to keep her free.

No way to run a country

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It's 8:30 on a Saturday night, a time when normal people are engaged in leisurely pursuits. But in the Capitol of the United States, the House Rules Committee has just convened for a meeting.

The final session of the 95th Congress is well underway, and just about everyone in Washington with a cause or pet project — that's literally thousands of people — is in the Capitol to promote the required legislation.

The Rules Committee is considering a bill wanted by the White House: Extension of the federal program of anti-recession fiscal assistance to local governments, known as countercyclical aid.

One committee member notes that the measure has been tacked onto a totally unrelated piece of legislation, then inquires about the intent of the original bill.

But nobody on the Rules Committee, which supposedly is in charge of all legislation flowing into the House floor, can answer the question. (It's a bill that authorizes an exemption from excise taxes for fuel used by aerial cropdusters.)

All over Capitol Hill, wags are referring to the session-closing proceedings as "Saturday Night Live." In fact, the show here is far more entertaining than the television program of that name. Here's an abbreviated chronicle:

9:10 p.m.: A House doorman tells an elevator operator: "The booze is coming in by the truckload."

9:40 p.m.: In the Senate press gallery, one reporter asks another: "Who's filibustering now?" The Senate began work at 9 a.m., but within an hour opponents of the energy bill tied up all proceedings in "the world's greatest deliberative body."

At one point in the desultory debate, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., the leader of the filibuster, receives Senate permission to allow floor access for his "intern" — political prankster Dick Tuck.

10:30 p.m.: Eight bleary-eyed people — lobbyists, committee staff members and government officials — are playing gin rummy and reading paperback books in a corridor while waiting outside the room reserved for a House-Senate conference on sugar legislation.

The conference originally was scheduled for 5 p.m., but was postponed to 7 p.m., then to 8 p.m., then 9:30 p.m. and finally to an unspecified time. A sign on the door says: "No Word Yet."

12 midnight: The House, which began work at noon, continues to plow through dozens of major and minor bills, ranging from the Duck Stamp Act amendments and the Indian Child Welfare Act to a multi-billion-dollar appropriation for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

12:30 a.m. Sunday: Abourezk and his allies abandon their filibuster. The Senate approves the energy bill, then moves on to the huge backlog of House-approved legislation that must be acted upon before the lawmakers can leave Washington.

3 a.m.: Three House members are sprawled on couches in the Speaker's Lobby, directly behind the House chamber. All are asleep, but only one had the foresight to bring a blanket.

But the fun has just begun for banjo-playing Rep. Thomas N. Kindness, R-Ohio, and saxophonist Rep. Del Clawson, R-Calif. They're holding forth on a Capitol portico, serenading the deserted streets with "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" and other old favorites.

4 a.m.: With more than 150 survivors remaining in the audience — many of them highly paid lobbyists and lawyers tax bill concludes its work. The conference on the sugar bills begins.

7:15 a.m.: The sun rises. Both houses are still in session.

6:30 p.m.: The sun sets. Both houses are still in session.

6:45 p.m.: The House finally adjourns for the day. The Senate adjourns 30 minutes later after establishing a new record for end-of-session marathons: More than 34 consecutive hours.

The gold bug! How to trap the con men

Using the glitter of gold as an almost irresistible bait, the telephone con men are now after your savings nestegg in record numbers. How do you detect the fraudulent pitchman and trap him before he traps you?

When the phone rings and a promoter starts talking about gold contracts, how much money you can make if you buy, and why gold will hit $300 an ounce before mid-1979, let him talk. While he is pitching, take notes under such headings as: the commodity (gold) and its market, the company, references, the salesman, cost, contract. When you're finished, your notes should look like this:

(1) The commodity — gold: Gold will go to $325 in April 1979. OPEC requiring gold clause in oil payment contracts, political unrest in South Africa.

(2) The company: Subsidiary of a Connecticut firm, long established, among biggest in Wall Street, offices in Geneva and London for 14 years, formerly in jewelry business.

(3) References: Trade on all commodity exchanges, major New York City banks, licensed by federal government.

(4) Cost: No commission to me, firm takes 25 percent of my profits, no margin calls, risk limited to my initial investment.

(5) Contract: I own the gold, but delivery deferred, I can get out at any time, gold stored for me, pays 8 percent interest. As when the pitchman has finished, you begin asking questions on statements you want to confirm — certainly a warranted curiosity since the salesman wants $4,000 of your savings.

(1) Gold will go above $300 an ounce by April 1979. Why? (You get a reputation about OPEC nations, inflation, weak dollar, unstable South Africa, etc.) But why before May 1979? You observe that in December 1974 gold reached $190 an ounce, then sank to slightly over $100 in mid-1976. "Why won't that happen again?" you ask, silence from the promoter. He has no retort.

(2) Mother company in Connecticut has the gold. What is its name? Address? Who is chief executive? Is your firm a subsidiary, affiliate? "Oh, no connection." If you call the "mother company," you may be told there is no connection, and the promoter asking for your $4,000 is just a cash paying customer of the so-called mother company or even may be misusing its name. Or you may find that the mother company was recently accused of fraud by a federal regulator.

(3) Firm long established. Under what name, ownership? Who were, are the officers? Same phone listing? (Check phone information.) Addresses of company's Geneva and London offices? Phone numbers?

(4) Trade on all exchanges. What is exchange name and address? Is the firm a member? How long? If not a member, through what member firm does it trade? Write to confirm relationship between promoter firm and exchange member, how satisfactory it is.

(5) No commissions. How can a salesman live merely on profits? How many sales does a salesman make per week (Newspaper ads for "telephone sales pros, heavy closers," often claim annual incomes of $50,000 to $100,000 per year. Something is not right!)

(6) Risk is limited to initial $4,000

investment. If it is an investment, just how risky is it? What is the security? Are there any additional charges, such as a storage fee, an incentive fee based on paper profit, a monthly management fee? (There usually are.) Get all details in writing — clearly and understandably to you.

As at the end of your questions, you will have basic information which you can check directly with responsible experts you trust, or more likely, you will have a list of vague responses and non-answers. But in either case, you will have lost any money. And you will not have developed a technique for foiling the phone con man who is thriving as never before in today's fast-paced marketplace.

There are 1,001 ways to lose your money, 1,001 ways to make stupid errors because you think you're smarter than the rest, and can beat inflation through speculation.

But the fact is, most speculators in this category lose everything. Gold glitters — and its glitter now easily can blind you. Don't permit this to happen to you. Beware the gold bug that bites!

Hale, Whaley discuss views

Bill Hale and Foster Whaley, candidates for state representative, discussed their views on local and state issues at Thursday's meeting of the Noon Lion's Club.

Both candidates agreed they are conservative, share the same views on many issues and are running a clean campaign.

Whaley explained the Tax Relief Amendment, passed at the recent legislative special session in Austin and subject to voter approval in the Nov. 7 election.

"This is the most important thing to vote for — more important than a lot of the candidates," Whaley said.

"I'm proud to live in a state run by the conservative element of the legislature," he said. "I'm glad we have low unemployment, a right-to-work law and neither income or corporate tax."

"I think our business climate is what's attracting industry here."

"I don't like the direction this government has gone in the last 25 years," Hale said, adding "I don't agree with and will constantly oppose the concept of government running our lives from cradle to grave."

Hale said he opposes the 25 percent cut in the state sales tax proposed at the last Republican state convention, but is in favor of cuts in the ad valorem (property) tax.

"The special session did some good things," he said. He described the Tax Relief Amendment as a "pig in the poke" but a step in the right direction, and said he would vote for it.

The candidates were asked what steps should be taken to improve the criminal justice system.

"I'd be for putting additional money from the state surplus into this," Whaley said. He decried "too much leniency from juries and judges."

"We're recently getting more conservative philosophy in the courts," Hale said. "Let's get something done about these people getting away too lightly."

Both men said they favor capital punishment.

New club presented at Pampa High

Pampa High School science teachers, David Guthrie and Patrick Homer presented a new math and science club Thursday morning at P.H.S.

Main topics discussed were UIL contests, a fund raising project and possible field trips.

The club will ask photography studios and x-ray laboratories to donate old fixer fluid. They will extract silver from the fluids to raise money for the club.

Visits to laboratories in the area and a planetarium were a few suggested ideas for future trips.

Officers were not elected at the meeting attended by 19 students.

A demonstration of a mini-computer T.V. system was presented.

Victim did not die from injuries

DALLAS (AP) — A 32-year-old McKinney man who died 17 hours after he was in a Sunday morning automobile accident did not die from injuries received in the accident, the Dallas County medical examiner's office has ruled.

Dr. Linda Norton, the physician who performed the autopsy, said David Holland died from head injuries that "would have happened by the back of the head hitting a stationary object."

"This injury commonly occurs when a person falls and strikes his head from behind," she said. "In order to receive such injuries to the head from an accident, the person would have had to be ejected from the vehicle and probably would have received other injuries."

The only other injury Holland received in the one-car accident was cuts on his head, Norton said.

A blood test taken after Holland was admitted to Parkland Memorial Hospital revealed his blood-alcohol content was three times the legal limit, she said.

"I believe it's probable that he fell before the accident," she said. "Or he could have fallen out of the vehicle when he opened the car door. He was obviously intoxicated and this type of injury is typical of people who have been drinking and fall."

Holland was taken to Medical City Hospital following the accident, but was "medically discharged" to police because he had no identification, said Tom Keefe, associate executive director of the hospital.

Police then took Holland to the city jail where the jail supervisor ordered him sent to Parkland for treatment.

However Norton said autopsy findings show Holland's chances of survival would have been slight even if he had received constant medical care.

Holland is survived by his wife Betty, their two daughters, ages 5 and 6, and an 18-month-old son.

Retirement benefits for county hospital employees will be greatly affected if the county hospitals are leased to a hospital corporation, according to Robert May, actuary.

The degree to which an employee's retirement benefits under the Texas County and District Retirement System will be affected is determined by the number of years of employment and whether the employee is eligible to retire, according to May.

Employees with less than 12 years of service will be affected the most according to May. These employees are not vested and are not eligible for retirement benefits if they cease to be employed by the county.

Employees who are not vested are entitled to a refund of the money they paid into the retirement system plus any accrued interest, May said.

Funds on deposit with the retirement system Jan. 1 receive interest Dec. 31 according to May. The interest rate is determined by the board of directors of the Texas County and District Retirement System, May said. In 1977 the interest rate was 8 1/2 percent.

Employees who are not vested have the option of leaving their funds in the system for up to five years, May said.

If an employee leaves the funds in the system and is reemployed by the county within five years, the employee's rights are protected and retirement benefits would be based upon past service, according to May.

The county is considering a five-year lease proposal with a five-year option, according to a letter of intent signed by Don Hinton, county judge.

May suggested that if there is a chance the county would take control of the hospital again within five years, it would be in the best interest of the employees to leave their funds in the retirement system.

Employees who have at least 12 years of service and are over the age of 60 are eligible to retire immediately, according to May. Employees with 30 years of service also are eligible to retire even if they are not over 60.

Employees who are eligible to retire should retire immediately if the hospital is leased, according to May.

It would be in these employees' best interest to retire, because they would lose death benefit protection offered under the system if they did not, May said.

Under the death benefit protection, if an employee dies before retirement, the system assumes the employee retired one month before dying and pays the beneficiary accordingly, May said.

An employee who retires under the county's retirement system is not restricted from taking other employment with the exception of employment with the county, May said.

Therefore, the Texas County and District Retirement System would allow retired employees to be reemployed by a hospital corporation.

Employees who have 12 years of service, but are not eligible to retire may leave their funds in the system and have the right to a pension at the age of 60, according to May.

However, these employees would not have death benefit protection under the program, May said.

Vested employees also have the option of removing their funds from the system, May said. These employees then would not be eligible for the pension under the system.

Experts to look at pipeline

HOUSTON (AP) — A metallurgical laboratory is taking a look at pieces of the natural gas pipeline that exploded in a towering flame early Tuesday, killing at least five persons and injuring many more.

Federal and state officials said Thursday the laboratory would be chosen later and a report could be ready by late next week.

Meanwhile, Houstonians who were beginning to forget Tuesday's disaster had the memory jolted back to crystal clarity Thursday by reports of two more natural gas pipeline incidents.

A gas pipeline fire near Channelview injured three Entex Inc. employees, and firefighters evacuated about 15 homes in a new southwest Houston subdivision when a 6-inch gas line was ruptured, apparently by construction equipment.

The three men were injured about 3:30 p.m. while making a service tap to a main gas line. Channelview Volunteer Fire Chief Duane Henry said the men apparently were in a hole welding the gas line with a torch, which ignited the gas.

Henry said firemen extinguished the 12-foot flame and Entex workers put a clamp on the gas line to stop the leak.

Two of the men, who were not identified, were taken to Tidelands Hospital, where they were reported in good condition.

The third, Charles W. Males of Houston, was reported in stable condition at Hermann Hospital.

Firemen of the Alief Volunteer Fire Department decided to evacuate the homes in the subdivision when the high pressure natural gas pipe was ruptured in case the gas fumes ignited.

The gas never caught fire, however, the leak was repaired after about 35 minutes, and the residents, who had left the area in their cars, were allowed to return.

Phillip Hogue, director of the National Transportation Department Safety Board, said the explosion of the 30-inch high-pressure natural gas transmission line that devastated a mobile home park may have been caused by a weakness in the steel pipe or a defective weld.

He said preliminary investigation showed no maintenance or operating failure by United Texas Transmission Co., owners of the pipeline.

Hogue was critical of the pipeline inspection programs of the Texas Railroad Commission, which handles the job for the state.

A commission spokesman said it has eight engineers and technicians who try to inspect the natural gas system in Texas every 24 months.

Hogue said, "Rip Van Winkle will be tripping over his beard before the job is done. None of them will live long enough to do it once. It is a mission impossible."

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: All through school I went with Steve (fake name), although my mother hated him. He was a really nice kid, but he was poor, and my mom kept telling me that I could do better. She even told him to his face that she would rather see her daughter dead than married to him!

Well, we loved each other, and got married against my mother's wishes. Naturally, Steve and my mom don't speak to each other.

I recently had a baby (mom's first grandchild) and now she's trying to make up with Steve, but he's still hurt about the way she treated him all those years.

Mom invited us to her house, and Steve says I can go if I want to but he'll never set foot in her house. He says if she wants to see the baby she'll have to come here while he's at work.

What can I do? I can't blame Steve for feeling the way he does, but she's still my mother and this terrible feud between them makes it awfully hard on me.

DOWN IN THE DUMPS

DEAR DOWN: I hope you can persuade Steve that forgiveness is a mark of maturity. Life is too short to hold a grudge.

Harry E. Fosdick said, "Hating people is like burning down your house to get rid of a rat." Wise man, Harry.

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both of us, and it would be perfect except for one thing.

My husband is a very successful small-town merchant who is well-known and admired in this community.

Every day he pockets part of the cash he takes in so he won't have to pay so much income tax.

Is this considered a serious offense? What can happen to him if he is caught?

I don't dare ask anyone but you. Please print your reply but don't mention my name or town. Hurry your answer. I love this man and I am worried.

NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: Avoiding income tax is a very serious offense and if caught and found guilty your husband could be fined, jailed or both. So if you love him, persuade him to play it straight. He may not eat as well, but he'll sleep better.

DEAR ABBY: We work in a store, and our hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. We are usually here at 8:30 a.m. preparing for the day's business, which requires getting the money and merchandise out.

Our problem concerns impatient customers who stand outside between 8:30 and 9 a.m. banging on the door and rattling the knob until it sounds like the building is coming down. Some of them even yell and gesture demanding that we open the door!

We have a sign on the door plainly stating that we open at 9 a.m. Sometimes we open a few minutes early because we'd rather let them stand inside than put up with their infernal racket.

Is there a solution to this problem?

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA

DEAR C.B.: Put a shade on your door and curtains on your windows so you'll not be in evidence. (If they can't see you, they won't hassle you.) If that's not practical, just play deaf.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Laaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Being a diabetic, my doctor says no operation on my feet. I am 69 years old and have bunions, callouses, corns and a hammer toe. I would like to know how to take care of my feet with all of the problems I have.

has something to do with how the bunions developed.

DEAR READER — I am sure your doctor is concerned about the changes in circulation to your feet. A diabetic is prone to develop poor circulation to the feet. The danger of surgery is that healing won't occur and amputation may become necessary.

Properly fitting shoes should cause your corns to disappear. You may need some additional padding around the edges of the callouses if they happen to be on the bottom of your foot. Callouses in that location usually mean abnormal weight bearing in that part of the foot. That might be expected because your big toe has moved out of position, which resulted in the bunion and probably the hammer toe.

You have a number of the common problems that the people without diabetes also have with their feet, and I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-10, Common Foot Problems: What To Do About Them.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What do you think of taking a couple spoonfuls of cider vinegar in one's drinking water with each meal to improve the metabolism of the body? Would the continued use of this upset the chemical balance of the body, or have adverse effects on the blood or urine? I have been told that many diseases were helped or cured with the continued use of vinegar or water. Please comment.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you more detailed information on what to do in each instance for corns, callouses and bunions.

DEAR READER — It would certainly be wonderful if such simple measures returned people to full health with exceptional quantities of vim and vigor, but it just doesn't work that way.

I'd like to point out that every one of these problems you have mentioned is a complication of improperly fitting shoes. In your instance, probably over many years' duration. It is very important for you to get a shoe that is actually large enough in all dimensions for your foot. It is going to be difficult now, because of the bunion and the hammer toe in particular.

Vinegar contains hardly any calories. There are only two calories in a whole tablespoon of it, whether it's dark vinegar or distilled vinegar. It does not contain any important minerals or vitamins.

You may need to get molded shoes, which means an actual cast should be made of your foot and a shoe built to fit your foot. This can be done. You should be able to move all your toes freely and easily within your shoe. Never wear a shoe with a pointed toe. That probably

It does contain acetic acid. This is a very weak acid and doesn't even begin to compare with the acid level of hydrochloric acid normally formed by your stomach.

I am afraid there is absolutely no health benefit whatsoever in taking small amounts of vinegar in a glass of water. The most important ingredient in that combination is the water itself. It might be helpful if you are not in the habit of drinking enough water.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — Please tell me how to remove that pretty adhesive-backed paper from my cupboard shelves. I have tried all sorts of things but cannot get it off and I want to change to a different pattern. — BETTY B.

DEAR BETTY B. — Try to work a corner loose with a putty knife. It is not easy but after even a tiny corner is lifted I find a quick yank will remove it. It may tear but repeat the pulling on what is left. The hardest part is getting the corner loose. A bit of water may help that. Any remaining sticky substance can be removed with linseed oil. — POLLY

Lingerie you'll want to hand down

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - The road to hell is littered with unwritten thank-you notes.

Forty years ago, Germany was the road to hell and Ellen Stein and Silvia Greenberg were on it.

Then England offered a sheltered lay-by for German refugees and Ellen and Silvia — then the Rozanski sisters — hurried to London with their parents and a suitcase.

"We left everything behind," Ellen says, with a trace of an English accent. "Three days after we arrived, World War II started and three days later, Silvia and I were sent to live with a wonderful family in the Midlands."

So the Rozanski's survived. Nine years later, when Silvia — fair, curly-haired, round and short — was 19 and Ellen — dark, curly-haired, round and short — was 21, they came here.

Ellen became a designer of bridal gowns, then lingerie; Silvia worked in fashion merchandising during the day and painted the rest of the time. They both married.

The word cigar comes from cicada, a Spanish cigar-shaped beetle.

NEW YORK (NEA) - True or false:

(1) You can only get the Vidalia onion in Vidalia, Ga.

(2) Crepe is a blouse, a dress, a skirt, but it's not a fabric.

Crepe and onions

(3) Crepe and the Vidalia onion mean a lot to Jack Fuller.

True, true, true. Because:

(1) The Vidalia onion doesn't get shipped anywhere. It suffers from motion sickness.

(2) Crepe is a process, not a fabric, according to Jack Fuller, 32, a tall, slender, black designer from Vidalia who sounds like anywhere but Georgia.

And (3), you don't know what an onion is, he declares, until you bite into one of those Vidalias which you can do because they're so sweet! So mild! So incredible!

That's his attitude towards crepe, too, which is why it's the foundation of all his collections, like onions in a stew.

"I never get bored with crepe," he says. "When we started this business two years ago and talked about evening separates — which no one had ever done — I wanted to do one base fabric and crepe was the one that did everything."

Fabric? Begging your pardon, didn't you say crepe was a process, not a fabric?

"Yes, it is. Crepe is a cross between a woven and a knit. In woven fabrics, the yarns are crossed vertically and horizontally. In crepe, the yarns — I use rayon blends mostly — are twisted or curved instead of interlaced."

That's how crepe is a woven. How it's a knit is that it's elastic, he says. "It follows the form it's on, whereas a woven fabric lays on it."

The lighter the yarn, the sheerer the crepe. You won't see through a wool crepe, obviously, because wool is hefty. It has meat on it.

But you also won't see through Fuller's sheer georgette crepe separates for holiday, priced $32-to-$70, because, he says, "We double the T-shirts and blouses so a woman can wear her favorite black lace bra under them."

Now you know that Fuller also does crepe dresses, priced $80-to-110.

Religion in the news

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Long ago in trying to elect a new leader, a religious organization became deadlocked between a "holy man" and an "intelligent man." At that point, a wise, old priest advised:

"A holy man will pray for us. An intelligent man will teach us. But it is the prudent man that will lead us."

The story was told by Roman Catholic Cardinal Basil Hume of England last week in an oblique response to questions about factors leading to the election of former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Poland as pope.

The implication seemed to be that he was chosen, at least to some extent, as a "prudent" man who could give sound, astute leadership to the church in an age of competing values among individuals, cultures and nations.

The cardinals consistently discounted the idea that Wojtyla was chosen specifically because he had brasted the tides of communism, surmounted its tactics and mastered the fine-line skill of keeping faith alive despite the onslaughts of official atheism, seasoning him to cope with anti-religious ideologies widely current in the world.

But the cardinals conceded they had been conscious of those timely and apt credentials.

"We were aware of the reality, but it was not the controlling reality," Cardinal John Dearden of Detroit put it.

Just what strategies the new pope will use in dealing with communist countries, or other challenges to faith, remain to be spelled out in positions and programs.

"Everyone knows it's a turn in the road, and we don't know what is ahead," said Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York.

However, the early indications are that the new pope plans to continue firm but prudent persistence in trying to enlarge church rights in repressive areas, a policy pursued by the Vatican in recent years, in involving negotiations with communist regimes rather than confrontation.

It also was the pope's approach while in Poland.

Addressing diplomats, including those from communist countries, he declared "willingness to dialogue" with legitimate governments, but that the church sought freedom to worship and to nurture faith.

Whether that stand can be sustained in discreet negotiations, or might lead to open clashes, remained a question, but various churchmen said the new pope brought a veteran's competence to the task.

"He proved his strength and ability in carrying out the ministry under the shadow of the cross," said United Methodist Bishop William R. Cannon of Atlanta, referring to the pope's record in Poland.

"Maybe he can find the means of opening the door to evangelism in communist countries."

Attendance day set for Sunday

"Great Day in the Morning" is the high attendance emphasis which will be observed in the Central Baptist Church this Sunday Morning, October 29, in the Sunday School Hour beginning at 9:45 A.M.

Throughout churches in the state of Texas, a concerted effort to reach as many people in the Bible Study Hour will be emphasized for this particular day. 678,000 Texas Southern Baptist will be in attendance for this Sunday.

In the local Palo Duro Association a goal of 5,040 has been set.

The Minister of Education, Jerry Arrington, urges all members of Central Baptist Church to make a "real effort" to be in attendance on this day.

The goal for this day is 540 members in attendance during the Sunday School Hour.

All are invited to attend and make this a great day.

'Just Seeking' to sing here

A local singing group, "Just Seeking," will provide special music at the 11 a.m. Sunday service of the Pampa Chapel of the Apostolic Faith and the entire 6 p.m. Sunday service.

Members of the groups are Greg and Troy Ann Dennis and Eddie Burton. The public is invited.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Methodist woman minister in Korea, the Rev. Cho Wha Soon, was among some 30 Christians arrested by police in a raid on a weekly prayer meeting in the Christian Center Building in downtown Seoul, according to reports received by U. S. Methodist officials.

Meanwhile, the North American Coalition for Human Rights in Korea received word that a missing Presbyterian minister in Seoul, the Rev. Park Hyung Kyu, had been arrested and is being charged with violating a law restricting demonstrations and assembly.

He had been missing a week since he led a prayer in Chung Ju in support of 12 students arrested in a demonstration against the regime of President Park Chung Hee. Kyo previously was imprisoned by the regime in 1974.

SURE HANDS OF THE SURGEON

A child walks... an arm is straightened... a growth is removed... these and many other things are the result of the fine work of the surgeon. This is an occupation and a labor worthy of appreciation.

A star... a new born baby... the world itself... these and many other things reveal God to us. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork."

Psalm 19, 1

God has wrought
a great work. Let us show our love and appreciation
by worshipping him in Church

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

These reports will include the Texas Crippled Childrens Camp, Diabetic Camp and program, Lionsess update, youth exchange, Lions International Foundation, Girlstown, Leo Clubs and sight conservation.

The afternoon activities will also include a report on Lions International by Ed Flood of Amarillo, past international director.

Names in the news

PARIS (AP) — It was a gentlemanly way of saying, "Put up your Dukes," to the father-in-law of Monaco's Princess Caroline.

Michel Junot, whose son, Philippe, married the princess in June, was sued for $2,500 damages in a Paris civil court Wednesday for "usurping" the first Duke of Abrantes as one of his ancestors.

The contested ancestor is Andoche Junot, an army general whom Napoleon appointed Duke of Abrantes after he took the Portuguese town of Abrantes from the Duke of Wellington in 1807.

The current holder of the title is 72-year-old Maurice le Ray, sixth Duke of Abrantes, whose claim to the defunct dukedom goes back to an uncle by marriage.

HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — Tennis player Bobby Riggs, accustomed to hard smashes on the court, was hit with a creamy one but he managed to volley right back.

A woman tossed a Boston cream pie at Riggs, splattering him slightly.

"I didn't even get enough on me to taste it, and Boston cream pie is one of my favorites," he said.

Riggs had just taken part in ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the opening Wednesday of the Hampshire Mall when a bit of the pie struck his shirt.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Grace Slick, the 38-year-old lead singer for the Jefferson Starship rock group, was put on two years' probation by a judge who warned her she would be jailed if she drank alcohol during that period.

Marin County Municipal Judge Gary Thomas on Wednesday also ordered Miss Slick to attend semi-weekly meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous for six months and not to leave the state without permission.

Miss Slick was arrested at Corte Madera, near her Mill Valley home, on July 25 for allegedly being drunk in public while on probation. She pleaded no contest last month to charges she had violated probation imposed by Thomas in March following her conviction in January on a charge of drunken driving.

LONDON (AP) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's difficulties with speech and other functions are hindering U.S. and Soviet negotiators in their efforts to reach a new strategic arms limitation agreement, the London Times reported today.

The newspaper said Brezhnev's health has become so uncertain that Western observers believe he is no longer capable of serious negotiations.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Sister Helen Mary was just too shy.

For 10 years, the nun was pen pal to a Polish cardinal. But when she visited Poland — her parents' home — several weeks ago, she couldn't get up the nerve to call on him.

She stopped in Krakow three times, but thought Cardinal Karol Wojtyla — now Pope John Paul II — would be too busy to see his pen pal.

"My cousins asked me if I would like to try and meet him," she said. But "cardinals are so busy, I guess I was just bashful."

In a 1973 letter, Sister Helen Mary said, then-cardinal Wojtyla wrote, "God repay you for your remembrance and good words at Christmas-time. I love Poland as much as you do. I wish for the freedom of Poland. I hope your New Year will be blessed. With my blessings, Cardinal Karol Wojtyla."

Asked if she would keep writing to her pen pal, the sister said: "Well, I do not know. He will have so much correspondence. . . I will probably write him at Christmas."

Federal program to curb output of corn, grains

WASHINGTON (AP) — An acreage set-aside program to curb next year's output of corn and other feed grains is not at odds with President Carter's anti-inflation campaign, says Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

The set-aside plan has been in the works for weeks and was to have been announced by now, Bergland said in an interview Wednesday that it could come momentarily, as soon as the White House gives the go-ahead.

Bergland said the anti-inflation guidelines announced by Carter can benefit farmers by cooling off the expenses they have in producing the nation's food supply.

"Farmers buy more than any other business group in the United States, and the inflating farm costs are one of the most devastating problems they have to reckon with," he said.

Bergland said Carter has "recognized that crop yields are going to be influenced by good and bad weather, and that weather will bring about changes in value that the government can do nothing about."

At a briefing later Wednesday for farm groups and reporters, Dawson Ahalt, a department economist assigned to work on the anti-inflation program, said stepped-up monitoring will be the heart of the effort as it applies to food prices.

"The price standard will be applied to the margins," or the mark-ups firms add to raw prices as the food moves toward consumers, he said.

Responding to a question in the earlier interview, Bergland said the acreage set-aside program was not counter to Carter's anti-inflation program.

"The world has more than ample stocks of grain on hand, so a set-aside program for 1979 in no way endangers the world's grain supplies," he said. "It will have no inflationary effect."

Bergland said studies have shown that until corn prices rise above $2.40 a bushel or so, "there is no significant impact" on the U.S. livestock industry.

Corn prices are far below that level now.

Bergland said, "We're going to concentrate on things that we can do something about" in the agricultural sector as part of Carter's anti-inflation program.

For example, Bergland said, another close look will be taken at sodium nitrite — the meat preservative that has been linked with cancer and currently is under review by USDA and the Food and Drug Administration to see if it might need to be banned at some point in the future.

Nitrite is particularly a sensitive question in the pork industry since it is used extensively in the preparation of bacon and ham.

"It is generally believed that a major reason for the lack of major expansion in the pork industry in the last year and a half is the nitrite issue," Bergland said.

Thus, Bergland said, USDA will be looking at all its regulations to see if they do impair agricultural expansion. He said this in no way implies that the nitrite question will be laid aside.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert W. Feragen, a native of Minot, N.D., will be sworn in next week as administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration.

Feragen, 53, will officially take over as head of the Agriculture Department agency on Oct. 30, the department said Wednesday. He has been deputy administrator of REA since July 2.

President Carter nominated

Feragen for the job Sept. 29. He was confirmed by the Senate on Oct. 15.

The department said Feragen has 17 years of experience in rural and municipal electric programs and, prior to joining USDA, was general manager of the Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Co., Ludlow, Mass.

Turning Back the Clock

Thousands of years ago, human beings used the shadows of trees to tell the time of day. Later they built sundials. The ancient Chinese, and later the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans, devised water clocks to help them determine the time on cloudy days and at night. Today clocks come in many shapes and sizes, and weights, springs, electricity, or even atoms may power them. This Sunday morning, millions of Americans will be setting those clocks back an hour, when Daylight Saving Time ends. This means that witches, ghosts and goblins celebrating Halloween a few days early will have an extra hour to prowl Saturday night — or an extra hour to sleep Sunday morning.

DO YOU KNOW — What famous clock was built into the tower of England's Parliament Building?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — President Dwight D. Eisenhower was nicknamed "Ike."

Good and bad news for Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the Republicans, there's good news and bad news.

They're getting network time for a rebuttal to President Carter's nationally televised inflation program.

But Carter already has a plan that seems to fit the mood of the voters. And his government austerity vows could have come out of a Republican platform.

According to the pollsters, most Americans favor voluntary wage and price guidelines. An AP-NBC News survey showed 54 percent support that approach to inflation control.

Carter's promises to hold down federal spending, erase needless regulations and foster competitive free enterprise sound a lot like Republican orthodoxy.

The Republican reply to Carter will lean heavily on a call for sharp cuts in federal income taxes over the next three years, their chosen issue in the congressional election campaign. They've refined it now to include a curb on federal spending.

There's no indication that the Republican tax cut has swayed many voters, although when people are asked whether they would like a one-third cut in their income taxes, 55 percent say yes.

Among the same people, 1,600 adults interviewed in mid-October, 33 percent said the Democrats can do a better job of keeping taxes down, while 31 percent chose the Republicans for that task.

"Tax reduction has never been more politically popular than it is today," Carter said in announcing his new inflation control plan — the fourth, and most stringent, he has adopted. "But if future tax cuts are made rashly, with no eye on the budget deficits, they will hurt us all by causing more inflation."

So Carter said he will oppose any further income tax cuts "until we have a convincing prospect of controlling inflation."

The Republicans counter that the absence of tax cuts means tax increases because inflation will keep pushing people into higher brackets.

In the AP-NBC News poll, 31 percent of those interviewed said cuts in federal spending are the best way to fight inflation, and 25 percent said controls on wages and prices would be best.

The Carter plan touches both bases, although it stops short of outright controls, which the president called simplistic and extreme, and which he couldn't invoke without congressional action anyhow.

Gerald R. Ford used to talk the same way, but the Republicans argue that he meant it and Carter doesn't. "The American people have a right to know why he has consistently proposed increases over the budgets and projections submitted by President Ford just before he left office," said Bill Brock, the GOP chairman.

As for Ford, he said voluntary controls don't work. "Once you start down that road, you wind up with government wage and price controls," Ford said of the Carter plan.

Washington briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter left here briefly for an unannounced visit to the late President Herbert Hoover's fishing camp on the Rapidan River in rural Virginia.

During crisp autumn weather Wednesday, Carter and wife Rosalynn went by helicopter from the White House for the afternoon jaunt to the Blue Ridge Mountains about 100 miles west of Washington. Camp Hoover, near the Appalachian Trail, was picked by the late president in 1929 as a trout fishing retreat after a search for a wooded, mountain retreat with trout streams but no mosquitoes within 100 miles of Washington.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed a bill that requires the government to obtain court orders for virtually all wiretaps on telephones of foreign agents in the United States.

The law, formally known as the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, provides "enough secrecy to ensure that intelligence relating to national security can be securely acquired" but permits reviews by courts and Congress to safeguard citizens' rights, Carter said Wednesday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative organization says it is planning to organize millions of American of Eastern European descent into a unified political force to elect conservative candidates and influence government policy.

"East Europeans comprise 15 percent of the American people, and although their high concentration in several of the larger states should give them a decisive voice in the domestic and foreign policy making process... they have in actuality participated far less in public affairs than either

BOSTON (AP) — A 16-year-old Colombian aerialist escaped serious injury when a circus worker managed to break his fall from a high wire 25 feet above the ground. A crowd of 8,600 people witnessed the accident.

Luiz Poso, a member of the Carrillo Brothers high wire team, was reported in fair condition Wednesday night at Massachusetts General Hospital after he plunged to the floor of the Boston Garden during a performance of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Tim Holst, the performance manager for the circus, said Poso apparently lost his footing while crossing the wire.

DENVER (AP) — Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. has modernized its 64-year-old symbol by incorporating the outline of three young women's faces in the traditional emblem's background. The new emblem keeps the Girl Scout trefoil — a three-leaf clover outline — but replaces its solid background with the faces.

Officials of the 2.5 million-member organization said the emblem was adopted as part of a national campaign to acquaint the public with modern scouting. The organization concluded its 41st national convention in Denver on Wednesday.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Protesting residents who plan to fly weather balloons above their homes could cause the crash of a jetliner near Lambert St. Louis International Airport, say airport officials.

Residents of a subdivision about a mile east of Lambert are planning to fly balloons attached to cords to an altitude of 450 feet above their homes beginning Nov. 3, their attorney said. They are protesting air and noise pollution.

"If a pilot got just a little bit low on the flight path, this kind of action could be... serious," Director of Airports Leonard Griggs said. "It could force an airplane to crash." Griggs said the airport will seek a court order forbidding the residents from flying the balloons.

ATLANTA (AP) — An outbreak of Legionnaires disease here last July has been traced to an air conditioning unit at an Atlanta country club where eight golfers were stricken by the disease, health officials said.

All eight victims survived and there is no longer any danger of contamination, William Elsea, director of the Fulton County Health Department, said Wednesday. He declined to name the club because its members had not yet been notified.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Teamsters Union local has filed an $11 million suit, alleging that a television station accused its members of planning criminal actions to keep Coors beer out of the city.

The suit was filed Wednesday in St. Louis Circuit Court in behalf of Brewery Drivers, Chauffeurs & Helpers Local 133, an affiliate of Teamsters International. The defendant, station KTVI, is owned by the Newhouse Broadcasting Corp. of New York.

Good Old Beans
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — When Elizabeth Aigner wants to recall the good old days, she looks at a jar of green beans.

Mrs. Aigner canned the beans 57 years ago. She liked the way they looked, so she kept putting off using them. They eventually became a remembrance of her long-departed youth.

"For years I've kept the jar on my pantry shelf, and whenever I want to think about the days when I had more time, I look at them," she says.

And she says the beans will stay where they are: at age 80, she's not about to change a pattern of a lifetime.

Gas Tickets

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gas-guzzling cars in Madison are ticketed even if they are legally parked.

"You have been cited for irresponsible use of common resources — gasoline and air," the "tickets" say. "By using your large car, we and many others feel that you are wasting resources precious to all of us. We aren't happy breathing air polluted with tetraethyl lead, unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide."

The tickets, which carry no fines, are issued by the Hoofers Environmental Action Committee, part of the University Outing Club.

Hooper Mary Ellen Vollbrecht says some people are irritated by the tickets, but the Hoofers aren't worried. "We'd rather have people mad at us than in different," she says.

Brinkmanship is a term coined by Adlai Stevenson in 1956 to describe policies leading to the brink of war.

Americans must pay with sacrifices now

NEW YORK (AP) — All Americans must make sacrifices, President Carter said Tuesday night, but some people will say he is doing whatever he can to avoid the sacrifices that austerity implies.

He shuns mandatory controls. He continues to abide a huge and inflationary budget deficit. He seems inclined to sign a tax cut. He tried soft persuasion before reluctantly accepting firm standards.

And the standards, on reflection, are likely to be considered less than harsh by both business and labor. They are in fact designed to continue inflation, although with a gradual lessening in severity.

While the president referred to sacrifices, and said "We must face a time of national austerity," his new wage-price standards give him away. He seeks a less painful remedy. Recession as a remedy is out.

Critics, however, feel that despite his policy of tolerating moderate inflation as the price of avoiding recession, the president might get both. And that he might also be forced into mandatory controls.

Economists generally foresee higher prices and lowered output in 1979, disagreeing mainly in degree. Inflation forecasts range from 6 percent to 9 percent, and output changes from below zero to plus 3.5 percent.

All such forecasts were made before the president's request for limitations of 7 percent on wages and 5.75 percent on prices, which he said could reduce inflation to 6 percent or 6.5 percent next year.

However, over the past year or more the administration has been notably more optimistic than non-government economists. It expected the 1978 inflation rate to be just over 6 percent. It may exceed 8 percent.

Throughout the inflation siege, individuals have tried various survival tactics, few of them successful. Pay raises, for example, were exceeded by higher prices, and real income therefore declined.

Others went deeply into debt, not just for luxuries but for basics too. Obligations to repay installment credit now take between 15 percent and 16 percent of disposable personal income, a record.

The president's call for sacrifices, therefore, may have served merely to validate what many Americans already know is necessary, and which already they have been practicing for many months.

Business and financial leaders especially, but consumer and voter groups too, have been telling Washington that sacrifice began there, and that federal spending, a primary cause of inflation, had to be cut.

The president has recognized that demand, promising to cut the fiscal 1979 deficit to $40 billion, but even in advance of his address many economists maintain it isn't enough, and blame it for inflation.

10TH ANNIVERSARY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery has marked the 10th anniversary of its opening. The observance took place Oct. 5.

The gallery was established by Act of Congress, and its "primary goal was to acquire portraits of notable Americans, preferably taken directly from life, or at least contemporary with the subject."

It says its permanent collection now numbers "more than 1,500 likenesses of individuals, ranging from Pocahontas to Jimmy Carter."

Harvesters in must-win game

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor
 Pampa and Tascosa, two schools that opened their District 3-AAAA football campaigns as slight favorites last week, meet at Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium tonight in what has suddenly become a "must" game for both schools.

Palo Duro, a one-point underdog, jolted the Rebels 33-19 last week, while Pampa took it on the chin from the Caprock Longhorns, 21-8. Both teams figured to have 1-0 district marks coming into tonight's game, but neither can fool itself into believing it can win the district crown with a loss tonight.

Pampa Coach John Welborn said it's "very definitely" a must-win situation for the Harvesters, 2-4 on the year after the Caprock setback. "There's no way you can lose two conference games and expect to come out with a two- or three-way tie in the district," he said Thursday. "Teams have won or tied for it with one loss in the past, and the team that won the game between the schools that tied has won the district."

To beat Tascosa, now 4-3 on the year, Pampa will have to stop a ground game that's averaged around 300 yards per contest. The Rebels also boast the district's top rusher in tailback Ray Scott, who's carried 130 times for 848 yards.

That's a 6.5 yard per carry average, but Tascosa's running game doesn't stop there. Fullback James Johnson is the No. 2 rusher in District 3-AAAA with 671 yards on 128 carries. Wade Hunt has 267 yards on 32 attempts and quarterback Louie Cardwell has 257 yards in 86 tries.

Despite the fact that Tascosa has gained just 93 yards through the air this fall, Welborn hasn't completely abandoned his pass defense. "Tascosa hasn't thrown much, but that doesn't mean they can't throw one for five yards and hurt you — if they throw it for a touchdown," Welborn said.

Vikings' shift catches Dallas napping

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

 DALLAS (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings looked like the Dallas Cowboys Thursday night from their multiple shifting offense to the final result on the scoreboard.

The Vikings, who somehow installed a tricky shift into their split formation despite a short work week, ripped the defending world champions 21-10 to stay alive in the National Conference Central Division with a 5-4 record.

Playing well, Landry admitted the Cowboys were surprised. "They came out in a spread formation that we had not seen. Tarkenton is a master at that kind of an offense," said Landry.

Tarkenton completed a four-yard touchdown pass to Chuck Foreman after Dallas fumbled away the opening kickoff. Ricky Young scored on a four-yard run, and Tarkenton winged a 12-yard scoring pass to Sammy White as the Vikings ran away to a 21-3 halftime lead.

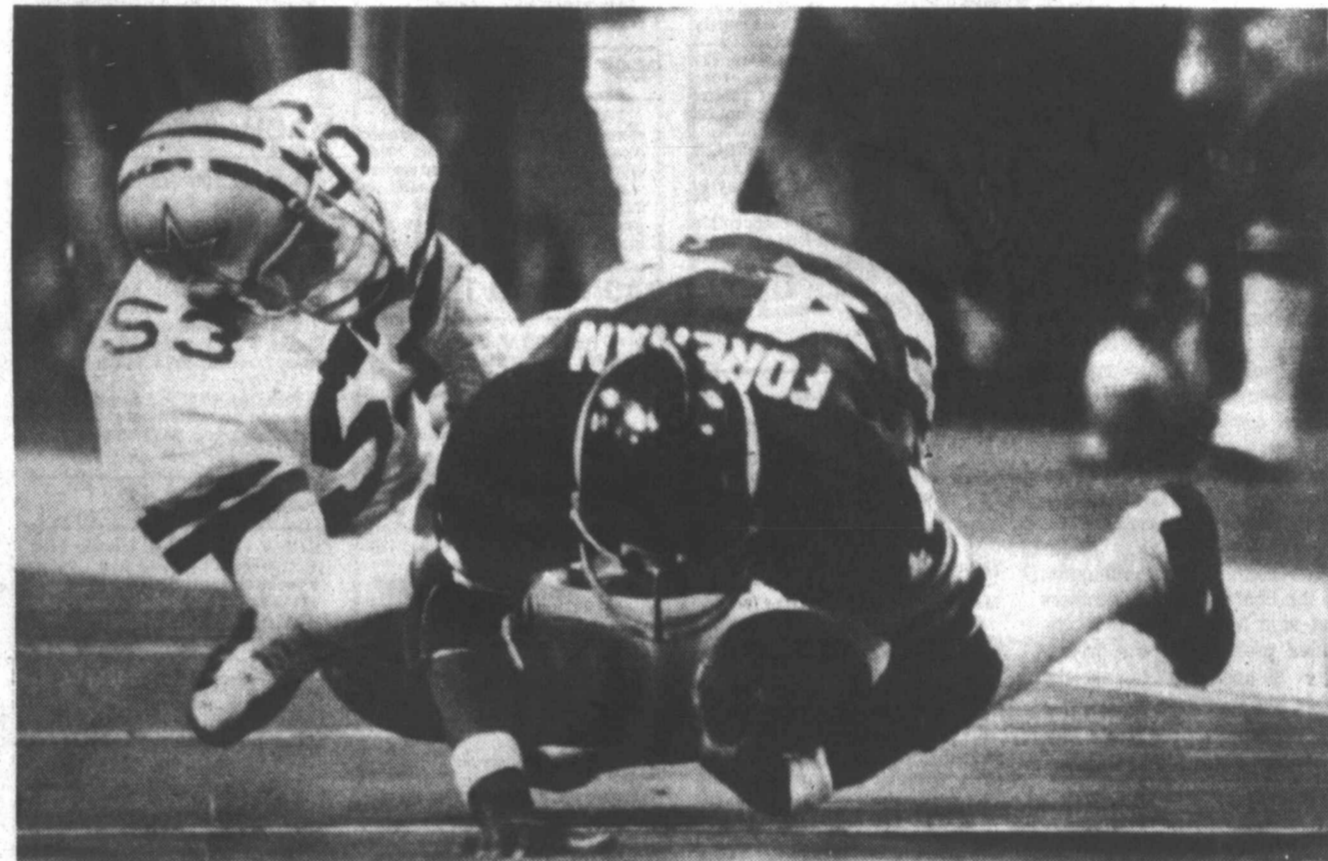

Dallas' only touchdown after Rafael Septien's 25-yard field goal was Robert Newhouse's one-yard run after an 11-yard Staubach to Tony Hill pass. Foreman gained more yards (131 on 22 carries) on the ground than the entire Cowboy offense (92).

Tony Dorsett, who regained his starting halfback job at midweek by apologizing for missing a team practice, was booed heavily by the 61,848 fans in Texas Stadium and watched closely by the Vikings, who permitted the breakthrough threat just 38 yards on 11 carries.

Shockers' rally stuns Amarillo

AMARILLO — If nothing else, the Pampa Shockers proved that a football game isn't over until the final gun here Thursday afternoon with a last-second 14-13 win over Amarillo High's junior varsity.

The Sandies had taken a 13-8 lead with just 18 seconds left on a 96-yard drive that culminated in a 23-yard pass from David Swafford to Jim Bond. Kyle Eddleman added the extra-point boot, and things looked gloomy at best for the Shockers.

BOB BREUNIG (53) wrestles Chuck Foreman of Minnesota to the turf but fails to stop him short of a first down Thursday night at Texas Stadium. Foreman took a second quarter handoff from quarterback Fran Tarkenton for the short gain and first down. (AP Laserphoto)

Yeoman hopes for upset

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
 Can Bill Yeoman pull a Guy V. Lewis?
 Asked what chance his underdog Houston Cougars had against the Arkansas Razorbacks this Saturday in a Southwest Conference football showdown in the Astrodome, head football coach Yeoman alluded to basketball and twin upsets inspired by Cougar Coach Lewis last winter.

"I don't think our people realize the emotion that you have to have available to go play someone like Arkansas," said Yeoman. "But, it was graphically illustrated during our basketball season when our basketball team beat them (the Razorbacks) twice in 10 days. That's the kind of emotion that we've got to have available."

Yeoman added, "I really think that our youngsters will play very, very hard, and, they had better. Cowins, Eckwood and Co. are great. There's no question about their capabilities."

Arkansas, shocked 28-21 by Texas last Saturday, was a three-point favorite over the fast-jelling Cougars who outlasted Southern Methodist 42-28 to move into a tie with Texas atop the SWC ladder at 3-0.

Groom gets by Lefors

GROOM — Groom scored a touchdown with less than two minutes remaining here Thursday night to record a 6-0 win over Lefors in junior high football action.

The Pirates tried to come back, but the clock ran out with Lefors on Groom's two-yard line.

Lefors Coach Don Parsons said it was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way. The teams' total yardage was nearly the same and the number of offensive plays were exactly the same, he said.

Cody Allison led Lefors rushers with 92 yards, while Donnie Winegeart had 35. Allison also led the Pirate tacklers with nine stops. Winegeart had 6, John Winegeart five and Parsons credited Skeeter Gifford and Chris McMinn with important defensive plays in the final moments.

Railroad Commission must make decision

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission must decide whether to sacrifice migratory birds or at least 42,000 barrels of oil monthly in a controversial brine dumping operation in West Texas.

Environmental concerns and the oil industry clashed Thursday at a day-long hearing on whether to continue banning salt water disposal in Whalen Lake in Andrews County.

Brooks Peden, chief counsel for the commission's oil and gas division, presided at the hearing, whose outcome will be decided by the three-member commission.

The agency ordered a halt to dumping Monday and told companies using the lake to explain why disposal should start again. Salt water rises to the surface with crude oil in drilling operations and is either disposed underground or at surface sites.

Disposal was stopped after a commission official inspected the site and found "substantial pollution" and that the area had not been cleaned up since an earlier hearing.

Midge Erskine of Midland operates the Eos Bird Rehabilitation Center and testified she finds ducks and other water fowl dead or dying from oil, salt or chemical pollution.

"It (high salinity) chews up our shoes and takes the oil off birds' feathers," she said. "I can go out there in winter and pick up birds that are salt-covered. They're doomed in less than 24 hours."

Without Whalen Lake, many small operators of the 624 wells using the lake would halt operations, said Ronnie Platt, a consulting petroleum engineer.

"Many oil leases (using Whalen Lake) are run by independent operators," said Ronnie Platt of Austin. "And it's not feasible for these operators to invest large amounts of money (for alternate waste disposal.) They'd simply shut the wells."

The 42,000 barrels that would be lost come from either marginally producing wells or on leases with only one well, Platt said. Those operators have no alternate disposal method, he added.

Richard Endess, special agent with the U.S. Interior Department in San Angelo said he first discovered the problem in December 1976 while looking for a reported whooping crane.

"Under the federal migratory bird treaty act, it's illegal to take migratory birds by any means and in any manner," he said. "It's been determined that if they land in an oil sludge pit and die, that's taking them."

Abandoning the lake could mean an illegal waste of oil reserves, Platt said, in addition to loss of state severance taxes, state royalties from state-owned leases and a blow to local economy.

Oil wells with a total oil allowable of 709,830 barrels monthly use the lake, he said.

Attention has riveted to State Bar of Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Since the Sunset Advisory Commission went to work last year on its life-or-death recommendations to two dozen state agencies, attention has riveted on the State Bar of Texas.

Commission members took their first ballot on the bar's fate Thursday and fell one vote short of submitting a recommendation to change it from a mandatory to a voluntary organization.

All lawyers now must belong to the bar as a condition for practicing law.

The commission now has no official position on the bar's future but meets again Nov. 10.

If the 1979 Legislature fails to pass a law extending the life of the bar, it will die as a state agency in 1980.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, moved to transform the bar into a voluntary association of lawyers and give its job of regulating attorneys to a new agency supervised by the Texas Supreme Court.

Reps. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas; Lee Jackson, R-Dallas; and Lance Lalor, D-Houston, voted with Doggett and Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, for the motion.

Voting "no" were Rep. Benjie Bock-H. D-New Braunfels, and Sens. Bill Meier, D-Euless, and Pete Snelson, D-Midland.

The commission has four House members and four senators, and it takes the votes of three from each side to submit a recommendation on an agency's future. Meier's vote or Snelson's would have put Doggett's motion over the top.

Bock said that while the bar had not made its own recommendation yet, he understood it would have one shortly.

Doggett's motion was based on a recommendation of the commission's staff. He said it would remove the taint of "compulsory unionism" from the bar and protect lawyers from "supporting political activities they disapprove of."

"It would be consistent with the right-to-work proposition," Doggett, a lawyer, said wryly.

His motion also would have turned over to the state the bar's $6.8 million Texas Law Center — for which lawyers are paying with special assessments that have set some to grumbling.

The commission received a staff proposal to establish an "umbrella agency" to be called the "Department of Occupational Licensing." It would provide most of the administrative, examination, investigation and complaint processing services now provided by the numerous licensing agencies.

The commission voted overwhelmingly, with only Snelson dissenting, to limit the Board of Barber Examiners to licensing barbers and abolish its authority over barber schools and instructors. The board would be reduced to an advisory body if the umbrella concept is adopted by the Legislature.

Schwartz said there was no need to license such businesses and persons as barber colleges and instructors since the Legislature passed the Deceptive Trade Practices Act in 1973.

Eliminating occupational licensing requirements "will give back a little free enterprise," he said.

"It is just going to change the bureaucracy from the agencies to the courts, Senator," Bock said.

"But in the courts, you can get triple damages," Schwartz replied.

Snelson observed, "You have to have a lawyer." To take advantage of the deceptive trade practices law.

"You can get a lot of these remedies without a lawyer... A letter from the attorney general does a lot of good," Schwartz said.

The commission deadlocked and made no recommendations on the future of the State Cosmetology Commission and State Real Estate Commission.

It recommended continuation of the Board of Law Examiners but said it should stop its detailed probing into the private lives of applicants to take the state bar examination.

The commission also voted to retain the Texas Turpinke Authority as a separate agency but require it to hold public hearings at the locations of proposed new tollways before building them.

Political spotlight hits senate race

By The Associated Press The Texas political spotlight fell Thursday on the heated Senate race between Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, and his Democratic opponent, Rep. Bob Krueger — part of the glare even caught President Carter.

Krueger had to deal with an unexplained appearance by Carter at a Washington fundraiser that netted $94,000 for the Krueger coffers.

"It is customary for the president of the United States to release his own schedule," Krueger said in parrying some hints that Krueger didn't welcome the association with the administration.

Asked why Carter was there, Krueger said, "Maybe it's pretty obvious we are going to win."

Krueger did give some support to Carter's inflation fight plan, saying it can work if the people "want to make it work."

Krueger also said the release of copies of a newspaper column casting aspersions upon an unnamed senator's morality was a mistake, but "not a big deal."

"If it had been my personal judgment, we wouldn't have sent out the Anderson thing," Krueger said of the Tom Anderson syndicated column printed in the Karnes City Citation.

Krueger also denied Tower allegations he violated Federal Election Code rules for listing advertising and media expenses, calling them book-keeping errors.

Tower campaign manager Ken Towery told the Fair Campaign Practices Committee that Krueger has further twisted a "distorted" version of Tower's 1970 comments to the New York Times Magazine.

"He is against dual school systems, but believes that for the most part blacks are less capable of learning for environmental reasons," the article said. Towery said a Krueger flyer distributed to Mexican-Americans has changed the quote's reference from "blacks" to "minorities."

Krueger conceded that personality clashes have dominated issues in the campaign. "Sure I'd like to see it continue on a higher plane," he said.

In the governor's race, Democratic candidate Attorney General John Hill said two more states have shown interest in filing suit to nullify parts of the 1978 Natural Gas Pricing Act.

New Mexico and Kansas, the fourth and fifth largest gas-producing states, sent representatives to a New Orleans meeting of Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma officials, he said.

Republican attorney general candidate Jim Baker said opponent Mark White was the target of a state auditor report that cited 111 complaints against White's management as secretary of state.

"I'd be ashamed of that type of report if I were him," Baker said.

Dollar dips lower on foreign marts

LONDON (AP) — Announcement of America's $1.69 billion September trade deficit, lower than most expected, didn't help the dollar on foreign exchange markets today as the beleaguered currency fluctuated in nervous trading. Gold edged upward.

Here were early dollar rates in Europe, compared with Thursday:

Frankfurt—1.7645 West German marks, down from 1.7660 marks.

Zurich—1.5106 Swiss francs, up from 1.5080 francs.

Paris—4.6255 French francs, down from 4.66 francs.

Milan—796 Italian lire, down from 797.60 lire.

Amsterdam—1.9250 Dutch guilders, up from 1.9245 guilders.

In London, it cost $2.0718 to buy a pound, compared to $2.0610 Thursday.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 179.625 yen after hitting a post-war low of 179.575 Thursday.

Gold sold for $233.90 an ounce in Zurich, up from $233.375 Thursday. In London a Troy ounce of the metal was fixed at $234.15, compared to $234.75 Thursday.

Foreign briefs

TOKYO (AP) — Zoo experts say they have given up hope that Lan Lan, a 10-year-old giant panda, is pregnant. Lan Lan and Kang Kang, 8, who mated May 18, were gifts from China in 1972.

China's Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping, here on an official visit, asked what the prospects were for a panda cub.

Shiro Nakagawa, chief of the panda project team, said, "We regret we've failed again. We hope to succeed next year."

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian government probably paid $142 million in unemployment benefits last year to people not entitled to them, Canada's Auditor-General J.J. Macdonell says.

In a report released Wednesday, he said the apparent overpayments were discovered during an audit and are in addition to $6 million in overpayments the government discovered earlier.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panama's sanitation workers have been on strike for more than a week, forcing health officials to clear away tons of rotting garbage.

Dr. Ernesto Tothery, metropolitan health department director, said the cleanup was not aimed at breaking the strike but was necessary to protect public health.

Health officials, assisted by the national guard's civic action branch and public works officials, began fumigating and clearing the estimated 3,000 tons of garbage Monday.

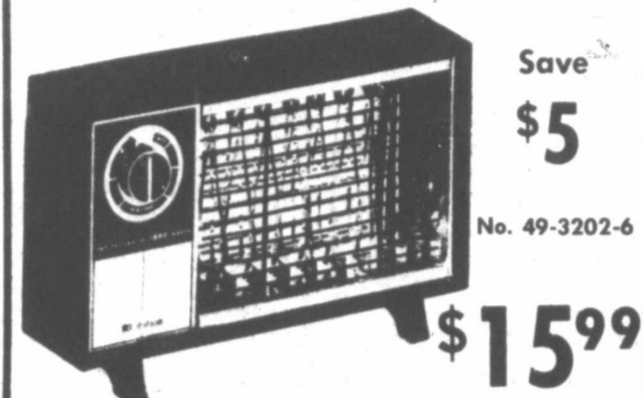

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Liverpool Cathedral, the largest church in England and the fifth largest in the world, was dedicated by Queen Elizabeth II Wednesday, more than 74 years after work started on it.

The cornerstone was laid July 18, 1904 by King Edward VII. A few finishing touches remain to be made.

The only larger churches are the unfinished St. John's Cathedral in New York City, St. Peter's in Rome, Santa Maria de la Sede in Seville, Spain, and the Cathedral of Milan.
